Morning edition for July Fourth

The Big Spring Herald will publish a morning edition on July 4th so employees can observe the holiday. All Herald offices will be closed Wednesday, but will open at the regular time on Thursday. The circulation department will be answering the phones between 7 and 10 a.m. Wednesday morning to handle any delivery questions.

A previous July Fourth parade participant tells the tale: The Highland Addition July 4 parade begins Wednesday at 10 a.m.

10 a.m. parade

The Highland Addition Fourth of July parade begins Wednesday at 10 a.m. Entrants should arrive earlier at the corner of Stonehaven and Highland Streets, organizer Kay Burns said. The route continues from there to Goliad Street, not Goliad Middle School as was previously reported. The categories are: strollers and wagons; walkers with costumes and pets; bicycles and Big Wheels; bicycles for kids aged up to eight; bicycles for ages nine and up; scooters and skateboards; and motorized vehicles. Neighborhood residents will be judged on the best mailbox decoration.

Holiday closings

In observance of the Fourth of July holiday, all city offices and county offices will be closed Wednesday. All emergency personnel will be available and the landfill/landfill will be open as usual. No city trash pick up will be conducted Wednesday; regular schedules will resume Thursday.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP) — It took 2½ hours to seat the 21 groomsmen and 21 bridesmaids when Yvonne Garcia and Raymond Mora tied the knot. "We just didn't want to leave anyone out," said Mora, 29. "The bigger the better, with more people happy."

Panic is fatal for pilgrims

MECCA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A ventilation-system failure was blamed today for a stampede in a packed pedestrian tunnel linking this holy city with a tent city. Diplomats said about 1,400 pilgrims suffocated or were trampled to death.

Sources said a power failure caused the air conditioning in the 1,500-foot-long, 60-foot-wide tunnel to switch off in 112-degree heat on Monday, setting off the stampede.

"It was God's will, which is above everything," King Fahd said of the disaster. "It was fate."

The disaster occurred during the hajj, one of the world's largest religious gatherings, which draws about 2 million Moslems. Observances had largely ended, and pilgrims were observing post-hajj rituals or preparing to leave.

Diplomats said about 1,400 pilgrims were killed. Asian and Middle Eastern diplomats, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said most of the victims were Malaysian and Indonesian pilgrims.

Doctors at hospitals said today that large numbers of Egyptians and Pakistanis also were among the dead.

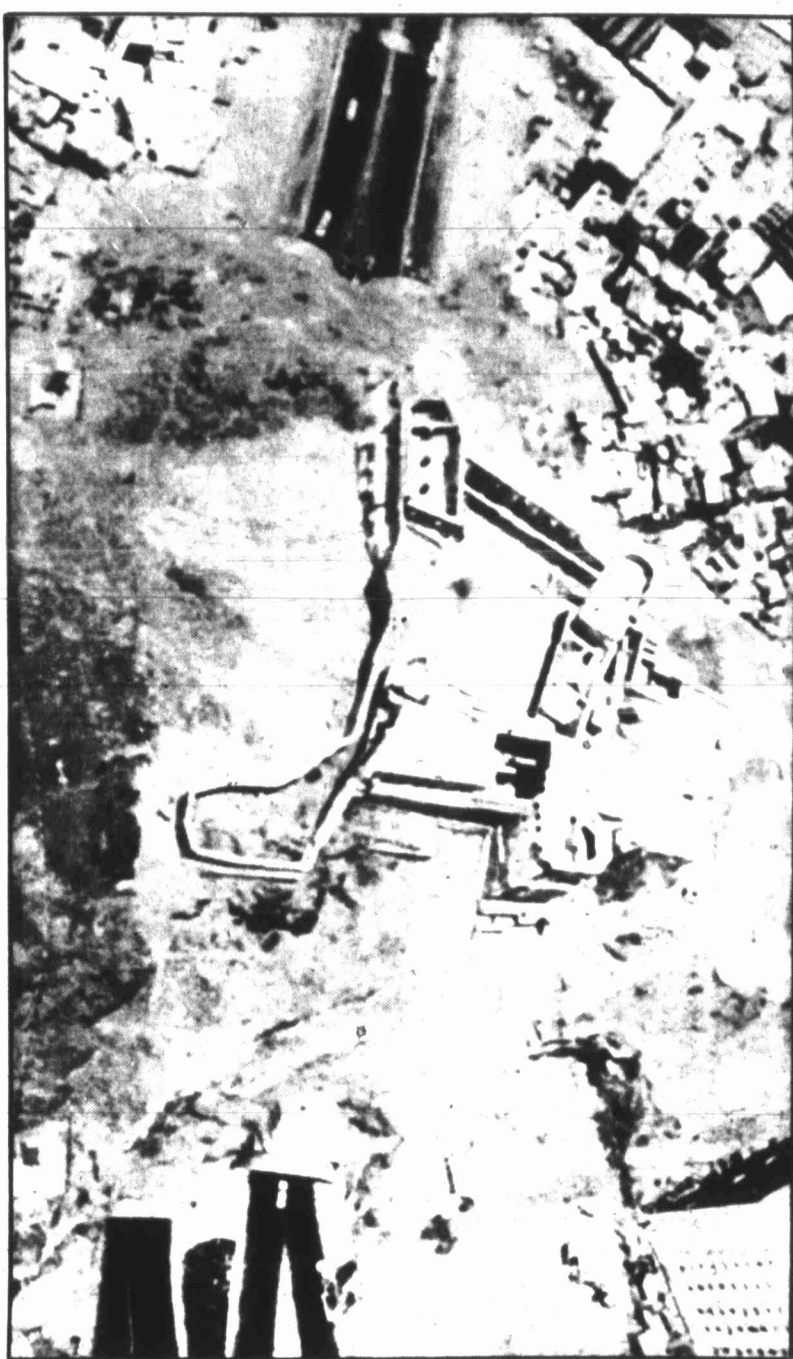

The official Saudi media gave no specific casualty figure, although King Fahd acknowledged indirectly that there had been a large loss of life.

He called the dead "martyrs of the Islamic world."

"Had they not died there, they would have died elsewhere and at the same predestined moment," the king said at a meeting Monday night with pilgrimage security officials.

The deaths shattered what had been a peaceful observance of the annual hajj and was the worst pilgrimage tragedy in recent years. In previous years, the celebration has been marred by terrorist attacks and riots.

Diplomats said the tunnel became packed beyond capacity when some pilgrims stopped in the middle while people outside continued to push their way in. A witness said the tunnel, designed to hold as many as 1,000 pedestrians, became clogged with up to 5,000 people.

"With the lack of oxygen, a good number collapsed unconscious, and some died. There was also a stampede," said the witness, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

He said he helped carry victims to the ambulances waiting by the tunnel's exits, but that he did not know how many of the stricken were dead and how many were simply unconscious.

The pedestrian walkway runs under part of a mountain, but sometimes cars use it as a shortcut, filling it with choking fumes, sources said.

As the scope of the disaster became apparent, ambulances and security forces rushed to the tunnel, which joins Mecca and the

Incinerator site prompts citizen concern, meeting

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — Members of Texans Against Pollution met with 17 local residents Monday night to garner support against a proposed Mitchell County hazardous waste incinerator that would be one mile east of Howard/Mitchell county line.

"The people in West Texas need to band together and say 'enough. We don't want your stuff,'" TAP member Barbara Danley told residents. "I think you need to write letters to your congressman and representatives."

Proposing the incinerator operation is National Waste and Energy Development Inc., of Pittsburgh, Pa. It would be located on as much as 5,000 acres west of Westbrook and south of Interstate 20 in an area known as Iatan Flats, according to a host agreement signed by company officials and Mitchell County Commissioners in April. However, Vice President Jim Cronin, of Pittsburgh, said in June that they may require 12,000 acres.

The facility would have one or more hazardous waste incinerators and landfills, the host agreement says. In return for their cooperation, the county would get at least 50 cents per ton of trash brought in. Company representative Jim Moody, Colorado City, said in April that at least 2,000 tons would need to be handled daily. There would be about 100 employees.

TAP member Darlene Hines urged citizens at the meeting last night at the Community Center to talk to their county and city officials to prevent trucks from hauling the waste through Coahoma.

"We want the hazardous waste trucks kept out of your town and we want your school to have an evacuation center," she said. "You're going to need it." She said the site is one mile east of the Mitchell County line, 5-6 miles west of Westbrook and two miles south of Interstate 20.

TAP members, who are from Mitchell County, said there will always be a chance of an accident

"The people in West Texas need to band together and say 'enough. We don't want your stuff,'" Texans Against Pollution member Barbara Danley told residents.

or mistakes in the operation of the facility. Some contamination is inevitable, they say.

"West Texas wind blows a lot. Ash is going to be on that site," Danley said. "When they do bury it, it will leak. And it will leak into your groundwater."

However, one local resident told them that precautions would be taken.

"The state health department is required to take their samples a minimum of three times a year. They will take samples and check them in their lab," he said. "Those trucks (hauling waste) have to be inspected regularly."

Answering statements that the operation cannot run perfectly, he said, "Has anybody ever done everything right?"

Another resident acknowledged that hazardous wastes have to go somewhere but said he is not happy with the location in Mitchell County.

"I don't want to be breathing it," he said. The man said he would try to get on the agenda for the July 10 meeting of the Coahoma City Council to find out what its position is.

Meanwhile, TAP members, who began circulating petitions last week, have set a July 20 meeting for interested parties at the Civic Center in Colorado City. "Bring everybody," Danley said.

On Thursday, a Mitchell County citizens advisory committee will meet at 7 p.m. at the courthouse in Colorado City. The committee, formed by the Mitchell County Economic Development Board, is to meet with National Waste representatives.

American miner returns home, after ransom paid

By ROBERT LEE ZIMMER
Associated Press Writer

PEORIA, Ill. — Scott Heimdal got a hero's welcome in his hometown from friends and strangers who helped raise the $60,000 ransom his South American kidnappers demanded for the release of the American gold miner.

"It's a great feeling" to be home, said Heimdal, 27, upon arriving in this western Illinois city. Except for a celebration Saturday, Heimdal said his only plans for this week were to "take it easy."

Wearing an "I Love Peoria" T-shirt, Heimdal stepped off a plane late Monday with his mother, Marge, who had flown to Ecuador June 18 to negotiate his release after the Colombian guerrillas refused to free him despite being given the money.

Heimdal had been working as a miner in Ecuador when he was kidnapped April 28 near the Colombian border.

His family raised $60,000 in four days of public appeals. Bars and banks took up collections, children sold lemonade and nursing homes held bake sales.

Heimdal said he intends to return to Ecuador. "It's really a wonderful country," he said.

Earlier Monday during a stopover in Miami, he identified his captors as members of the communist People's Liberation Army. He said they treated him with "great respect" and wished him "good luck" on his release. Reporters' questions and a jubilant crowd of about 100 deluged the Heimdals as they entered Peoria airport.

"This has been the longest day of our lives," said Linda Heimdal, one of his sisters.

Heimdal received a bouquet of

MINER HEIMDAL, SISTER

roses from Trudy Maloof, wife of the town's mayor, a family friend. Outside, a blue van was decorated with balloons and a sign saying, "Welcome home Scott and Marge."

Those welcoming Heimdal included Ruby Cules, who said she didn't know the family but had prayed for his release. She carried a sign that read, "God hears our prayers."

"We don't know the family, but it's wonderful that he's coming home," said Jo Frederick.

In Miami, Heimdal recounted his kidnapping, which took place while he was returning to the Ecuadorian capital of Quito.

"We were going down river in a 30-foot Indian dugout canoe when three men attacked us. They killed the driver, wounded the other guy and took me hostage. They were looking to kidnap a North American," he said.

Heimdal said that he initially feared for his life but that his captors treated him well.

Treating Ol' Glory respectfully

By KIM LABBE
Staff Writer

It's possible that patriotic Americans who are upset over flag desecration by protestors are themselves violating flag etiquette every time they display old glory.

"Some nations have a carefully laid down code of flag etiquette which gives precise instructions as to how the flags can be used under all conditions. Such a country is the United States," according to "Flags of the World". These instructions are commonly known as Public Law 623 of the 77th Congress.

The flag should be displayed from sunrise to sunset on all days when the weather permits.

However, when a patriotic effect is desired, the flag may be displayed 24 hours a day if properly illuminated during the last hours of darkness.

The flag should be displayed, weather permitting, on or near the main administration building of every public institution.

When raising the flag, it should be hoisted briskly and lowered ceremoniously.

When carried in a procession with another flag or flags, the flag should be either on the marching right or if there is a line of other flags, in front of the center of that line.

The flag should not be displayed on a float in a parade except on a staff. The flag should never be draped over any vehicle, train, or boat.

No flag should be flown above the stars and stripes except during church services conducted by Naval chaplains at sea.

When flown with a number of other flags, the U.S. flag should be at the center and at the highest point of the group. When the flags are flown from adjacent staffs, the U.S. flag should be hoisted first and lowered last.

When a flag is displayed otherwise than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out.

There are certain prohibited uses of the flag. The flag should never be displayed with the union down, except as a signal of dire distress. It should never touch anything beneath it, such as the ground, the water, or the floor. It should never be carried flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free.

The flag should never be used for advertising purposes. No advertising signs should be fastened to a staff or halyard from which the flag is flown.

Darrell Turnbow, left, and Manuel Hinojos attach the flag to the rope at the Texas Employment Commission Tuesday morning.

One local flag flyer in apparent violation is Whataburger. They have a Whataburger flag flying directly under the American flag.

Deborah Kingston, team leader, said Whataburger was not aware they were in violation. "I'm sure we will change it," Kingston said.

Also apparently in violation of flag etiquette is the Do-It Center, which has no lights on its flag. However, a floor manager at Do-It Center said he was not aware of the violation and said he will check with the general manager about correcting it.

Willie's picnic on for the 4th

AUSTIN (AP) — Willie Nelson's not-quite-annual July 4th "picnic" is on again this year.

But organizers are promising a somewhat tamer event than past picnics.

"We're all older, the performers are older. That's the evolution of the picnic, placing it in 1990. But I hope it's not too restrained," said organizer Tim O'Connor.

"The mellowness is there," said singer Steve Fromholz. "Neither Willie nor I party as hard as we did 10 years ago, but I believe the music has gotten better for all of us."

O'Connor forecast a crowd of 25,000 to 35,000 for this year's picnic, which will be held in Austin's Zilker Park. Nelson lives near Austin.

The "redneck rock" style of music — country with a harder edge — that became associated with Austin, had its roots at the first Willie Nelson picnic on July 4, 1973.

McMurry now a university

ABILENE (AP) — It's taking a while for some employees at McMurry University to get used to the school's new name.

"I catch myself at least twice a day saying, 'McMurry College, may I help you?'" Genie Henson, the switchboard supervisor at McMurry, told the Abilene Reporter-News.

Ms. Henson has been the chief operator at the school for the last 26 years.

She has attempted to train herself since last year not to say "McMurry College," and she even stares at a note warning herself not to say it, she said.

These days her stock answer is, "McMurry, may I help you?"

Thomas K. Kim, the president of 76-year-old McMurry, said the name switch was made, in part, to keep students from identifying the school as a junior college.

"A rising number of junior colleges, particularly in Texas have assumed the name 'college' rather than 'junior college,'" Kim said Monday.

"Most of the traditional colleges have changed to university. It is a sign of the times and we decided to do the same thing."

Agent slaying suspect arraigned

EL PASO (AP) — An FBI agent killed after stopping a bank robbery had put his gun in his holster and was about to handcuff the gunman when he was tackled and shot three times, an FBI supervisor testified.

Richard E. Whitaker, Las Vegas FBI supervisor, said in a preliminary hearing Monday that a teller told authorities she saw the gunman stand over the agent, shoot him once, pause and then shoot him twice more.

Jose Antonio Echavarría Lorrente, 29, went before U.S. Magistrate Janet Ruesch Monday on charges of bank robbery and injuring a person while attempting to flee. Echavarría was arrested last Tuesday in Ciudad Juárez, Mexico, and turned over to the FBI.

He is accused of killing Las Vegas FBI Agent John Bailey.

Computer may help Hubble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fuzzy images from the Hubble Space Telescope may be improved to sharp, crisp pictures through the same computer process that cleaned up photos taken by the Voyager spacecraft.

Lennard Fisk, chief scientist for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Monday that scientists are studying the possibility of using computer-enhancing techniques to remove the focusing flaw from star pictures taken by the Hubble.

NWS predicts grim summer for South Texas

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The National Weather Service cast a gloom over the bad news for South Texas farmers in a single word: grim.

Despite abundant rain in the spring, South Texas is being hit by a drought so severe that virtually no moisture exists in the upper or lower soil zones anywhere in the region.

The rainfall this spring was substantial, measuring 125 to 175 percent of normal totals in most places for the first four months of the year. Farmers south of the Hill Country had been optimistic about crop prospects after two frustrating years of almost non-existent crops, the NWS said.

Despite abundant rain in the spring, South Texas is being hit by a drought so severe that virtually no moisture exists in the upper or lower soil zones anywhere in the region.

But weather service officials said in a special statement on Monday that the spring rain was "in the overall picture, useless."

The moisture was stored in the top 24 to 30 inches of soil, but it was baked away by searing heat in June. The average temperature for June in San Antonio was 87.5 degrees, 6.6 degrees above normal.

The degree of parched, crack soil has not been seen since the mid-1950s.

What appeared to be solid stands of crops have dried up and fallen over in McMullin, Live Oak, and Bee counties. Agricultural officials in Uvalde County expect they will harvest about 50 percent of their normal yield of cotton.

The citrus crop in the Rio Grande Valley already had been strated by a killing freeze last December. There are some trees left, but continuing drought and heat are putting stress on them, the NWS said.

This is the third straight year there has been virtually no soil moisture south of the Hill Country and from the Guadalupe Basin to the Nueces River, southward to the Rio Grande.

The City of Corpus Christi is one of the areas being hit the hardest. Very little runoff from April floods made it down the Frio and Nueces Rivers into the Choke Canyon Reservoir and Lake Mathis.

The Lower Rio Grande Valley also is particularly dry. The area was missed by the heavy spring rainfall. It received a couple of showers over the past week, but it probably comes too late to help grain sorghum and cotton crops.

The Valley's water supply is nothing but grim. Amistad Dam has slowly been declining the last three years and now stands at more than 26 feet below the pool level of 1,117 feet.

The heat has been boiling away the lake water. Falcon Lake fell more than 6 feet during June. Falcon dam reported daily pan evaporation rates of .6 inches or greater on some days.

Halliburton, Soviets work on oil pact

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Americans and Soviets are going into the oil business.

Later this month, if all goes as planned a Soviet ship will depart from Seward, Alaska. Most of the scientists and equipment on board will be American. They will be probing beneath the arctic Chukchi Sea in Soviet waters for oil.

The unusual arrangement is between Texas-based Halliburton Geophysical Services and the Soviet Ministry of Oil and Gas. A spokesman for Halliburton cautions that the deal is not yet final. But the agreement calls for Halliburton to collect oil-related data and sell it to western oil companies for future development.

The deal is useful for both sides. The Soviets need hard, western currency. They want U.S. help dealing with markets, environmental laws and technology and other aspects of the business, said Nicholas Robinson, a Soviet expert at Pace University in New York. And U.S. corporations want the Soviets' large oil reserves.

Robinson was one of many U.S. and Soviet scholars, lawyers and scientists who discussed prospects for joint ventures at a recent conference in Fairbanks, Alaska.

Dr. Oleg Kolbasov, deputy director of the Institute of State and Law of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, was another participant. Through a translator, Kolbasov explained that the Soviets are trying to make their oil industry "self-paying" and "cost-effective."

This is the second such joint venture between U.S. and Soviet concerns. The first was hatched last month when Chevron Corp. agreed to cooperate with the Soviets in exploring and developing the northeast Caspian Sea, which the Soviets believe to be one of the largest known oil fields in the world.

As such partnerships increase, a likely focus of attention may be the icy, wind-whipped Bering Sea.

Penry goes on trial for the second time

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Defense attorneys for accused murderer Johnny Paul Penry say the Death Row inmate's mental retardation makes his case unique.

Penry is on trial a second time for the 1979 rape-slaying of a Polk County woman.

Pamela Moseley Carpenter, 22, died about two hours after being attacked in her Livingston home on Oct. 25, 1979.

"When she lost that battle, another one started, to bring her killer, Johnny Paul Penry, to justice," District Attorney Joe Price told the jury. He described the attack that left the woman with a gaping hole in her chest from a scissors wound and bruises so severe that at least one was in the shape of a heel print.

"Sometime over the next few weeks that battle will end," Price said.

JOHN PENRY

"In an ordinary case, perhaps a signed statement would convince you," defense attorney John Wright said of Penry's confession to police.

"This is no ordinary case. Johnny Paul is mentally retarded. All the horror story you've just been recounted had its start right there."

Penry, now 34, has been on Death Row since 1980, when a jury convicted him of capital murder in the death of Mrs. Carpenter, sister of former kicker Mark Moseley of the National Football League Washington Redskins.

In 1986, Penry came within hours of lethal injection before receiving a stay from the U.S. Supreme Court. The court vacated his death sentence two years ago, saying jurors should have been told about Penry's retardation.

In opening arguments Monday, Price told the jury how Penry allegedly forced his way into Mrs. Carpenter's home and how she was attacked.

City, homeless reach agreement

ATLANTA (AP) — Homeless people who seized an abandoned hotel two weeks ago agreed to leave today after Mayor Maynard Jackson promised to build thousands of single-room apartments for the homeless by 1994.

Jackson and homeless leader Bill Jones announced their agreement Monday night after hours of negotiations, bringing cheers from about 50 of the street people who have been living in the ramshackle Imperial Hotel.

The city had set a midnight deadline for an end to the occupation.

The mayor promised the city will build 3,500 units of single-room occupancy housing over the next 3½ years.

In return, the squatters said they would leave the Imperial today and move to a 200-bed shelter opened Monday. The city said the shelter would have more lenient rules about entering and leaving than most other city shelters.

Company to pay woman $3.75 million

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A West German chemical company has agreed to pay $3.75 million to a woman who claimed her leukemia was caused by a detergent used to launder her diapers 23 years ago.

Fawna Wright, 23, of Mound City, Ill., reached the settlement with BASF Wyandotte Corp. on Monday. Her lawyers contended chemicals in Loxene may have harmed thousands of infants before the detergent was pulled from the market in the 1960s.

"I'm amazed by it," said

Wright, whose leukemia is in remission. "Something that happened as a baby took part of my life."

Wright had sued in 1985, maintaining her illness was caused by chemicals in Loxene that included pentachlorophenol.

Despite being warned as early as 1959 that pentachlorophenol was unsafe, the company instructed Booth Memorial Hospital in St. Louis, where Wright was born, in how to use Loxene on diapers, crib sheets and other linens.

Spill will have minimal effect

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The oil spill in the Chesapeake Bay probably will have a minimal effect on the environment, the Coast Guard says.

Officials said about 30,000 gallons of fuel oil went into the bay and the Elizabeth River when two cargo ships collided at the mouth of the estuary on Sunday.

A Coast Guard board of investigation was to convene today to take testimony from the ships' crews.

Capt. Eugene K. Johnson, commander of the Coast Guard Marine Safety Office, said aerial surveys showed that the oil in the bay was dissipating but that some had washed ashore on Norfolk beaches. He said most of the oil was in the river.

Mandela raises more than $7 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Nelson Mandela raised more than $7 million for the African National Congress in his eight-city U.S. tour, and Americans paid millions more in tax dollars for his police protection.

While no total for donations was available from national organizers of the 11-day trip that ended Saturday, spokesmen in each city had rough counts as of Monday. Many said money still was coming in.

Similarly, no sum of government costs for Mandela's protection was available. In New York City alone, municipal expenses were put at $2.6 million. Another big spender was the U.S. State Department, which oversaw security.

"There isn't even the remotest guess yet" as to the federal expense, said Frank Matthews, spokesman for the State Department's Bureau of Diplomatic Ser-

Chernobyl pilot dies

Soviet helicopter pilot, Anatoly Grishchenko, left, died Monday night at Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle. He received a bone-marrow transplant at the center in April to treat leukemia he contracted after the 1988 Chernobyl nuclear accident. The transplant went well, but Grishchenko later required surgery for a lung infection. He died of cardiopulmonary failure. He is shown here during a June visit by Yuri Osipyan, vice president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

Bush wants NATO to adopt new strategies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush will urge the NATO allies this week to adjust to changing times by adopting new strategies for repelling a Soviet attack with fewer nuclear weapons and fewer troops along Europe's East-West divide, U.S. officials say.

The most dramatic aspect of the change will be to make the use of nuclear weapons a highly unlikely last resort. Quietly, however, the NATO allies also will respond to a diminished Soviet threat by thinning out their ground forces along the East-West frontier.

Instead, the officials told The Associated Press on Monday, a heavy proportion of NATO troops will be deployed at various points behind the East-West line, prepared to rush to any breach in Western defenses.

A pending treaty to sharply reduce U.S. and Soviet troops, tanks, artillery and other non-nuclear arms in Europe is contributing to the revision in strategy that Bush and the leaders of the 15 other NATO countries will undertake in London on Thursday and Friday.

There simply will be fewer U.S. troops in Europe, and fewer Soviet soldiers to defend against.

Moreover, East Germany is about to be absorbed by West Germany, removing the one-time staunch Soviet ally from the front line and requiring a tactical shift in the alignment of NATO troops.

Jim Henson mourned in Britain

LONDON (AP) — Big Bird was there, and Fozzie Bear, and Oscar the Grouch, as more than 1,400 colleagues, family and fans paid tribute to Muppet creator Jim Henson in a verdant St. Paul's Cathedral.

England was a second home to Henson, who died in May at the age of 53.

"He loved England and the English; we claim him as ours," said Duncan Kenworthy, chief of Henson Productions in Britain.

For the tribute, the cathedral was transformed to resemble a north London parkland Henson loved. The 17th-century building was festooned with greenery, its aisles full of Henson's creatures and portraits of their creator.

Friends and colleagues of Henson had worked into the night adorning the cathedral with garlands, plants and birches.

A May 21 memorial for Henson at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York included a Dixieland band and Muppets singing their way through the crowd. Henson died May 16 in New York of pneumonia.

Residents seek refuge in embassies

MAINZ, West Germany (AP) — Eighty-four people in the Albanian capital of Tirana braved police gunfire and rushed into the West German embassy compound in search of refuge, West German media reported today.

The Bild newspaper reported the people wanted refuge for "political reasons" and that one person was shot in the leg.

The newspaper, based in Hamburg, said between 60 and 80 refugees also were in the embassies of Greece, Italy, Algeria and Egypt.

The Associated Press tried repeatedly to get information from the Foreign Ministry in Bonn, but was told the only spokesman authorized to comment was not in his office.

Conservatives against reforms

MOSCOW (AP) — Conservatives mounted a counteroffensive against some of Mikhail S. Gorbachev's reforms today at a crucial Communist Party congress that could help determine the fate of the Soviet president's ambitious program.

Hard-line Politburo member Yegor K. Ligachev won thunderous applause from the 4,567 delegates at the 28th party congress when he angrily denounced what he described as a media campaign against conservative party members and their allies in the military.

"In our day, there are forces going against socialism and the Communist Party... and they have great influence in the mass media," Ligachev said.

Acquittal poses quandry for Aquino

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The acquittal of Imelda Marcos on racketeering and fraud charges throws Philippine politics into disarray at a time when President Corazon Aquino's government faces a growing public crisis of confidence.

The verdict sets the stage for a political "war of the widows," with far-reaching implications for this troubled country.

On Monday, a federal jury in New York acquitted Mrs. Marcos on charges of looting the Philippine treasury of $222 million to buy real estate, jewelry and art. Co-defendant Adnan Khashoggi also was cleared of helping Mrs. Marcos hide ownership of the property.

Now, if Mrs. Aquino wants Philippine charges brought against her old enemy, she would have to pay a price — letting Mrs. Marcos come home. The constitution bans criminal trials in absentia.

Philippine officials said today they were ready to file criminal

IMELDA MARCOS charges against Mrs. Marcos if the president allows the former first lady to return.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Mr. Pig is rolling in it.

The 150-pound gray-rumped hog, along with a German shepherd named Calamity Bob, will be taken care of for the rest of their lives after inheriting part of a $600,000-plus estate left by Margo Lamp of Davenport, who died in February at 81.

Chico the Amazon parrot is also living comfortably, despite losing a large chunk of an inheritance to its late owner's godchildren. But the fate of four cats — Clementine, Martha, Gene and Smudge — hinges on what happens in probate court.

Save an owl; save a forest

The battle between the timber industry and conservationists in the Pacific Northwest is not just about the survival of the spotted owl. It's about whether ancient, virgin American forests will survive.

While the concern about the loss of timber industry jobs in Washington, Oregon and Northern California is valid, those jobs will be lost in a few decades anyway. At the rate logging companies are cutting, the last of the ancient forests outside wilderness areas and parks will be gone in 30 years.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service declared last week that the spotted owl was a threatened species and its remaining habitat has to be protected. Wildlife officials said that logging of virgin forests must stop. But last week President Bush's secretaries of agriculture and interior outlined a plan that would allow destruction of ancient forests to continue — in order to protect jobs. A new federal task force will devise long-range plans to allow logging and owls to co-exist.

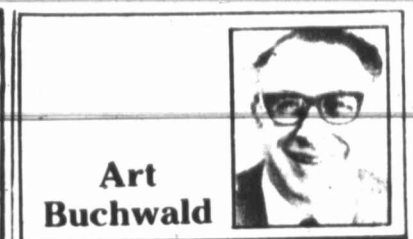

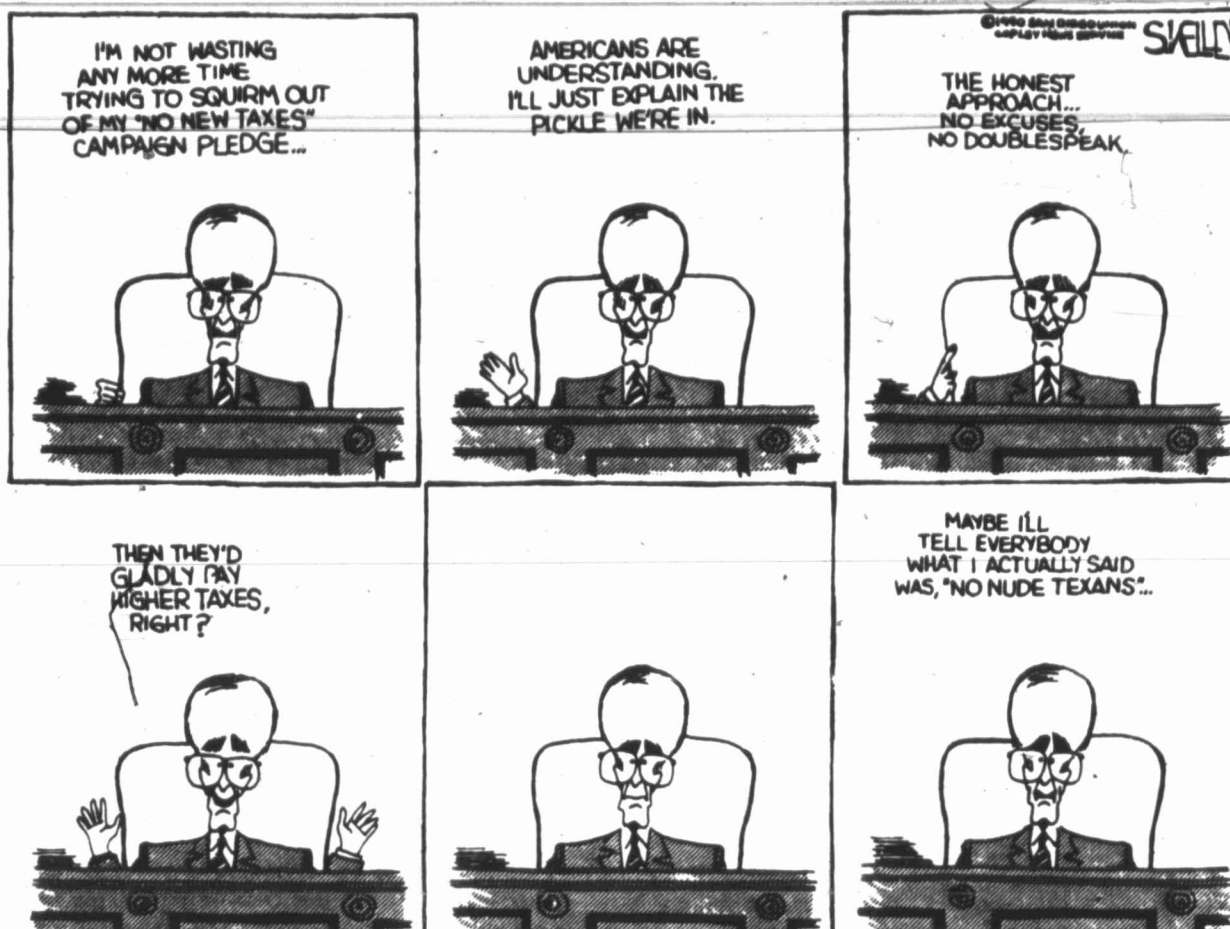

The only reasonable long-range plan is to cease logging virgin forests. The timber industry must adapt to the use of replanted forests. The wholesale shipment of logs overseas should be curtailed to give domestic mills a chance to survive. The Pacific Northwest timber country must begin to develop new industries.

If the clearing of forests stops now and economic retooling begins, there will be jobs and forests 30 years from now; otherwise, there will be neither.

Industry spokesmen insist that it's a choice between owls and jobs. It isn't that simple. The spotted owl is at the top of the food chain in the ancient forests. Biologists call the owl an "indicator" species. That means its status reflects the state of the entire ecosystem in which it lives. If the spotted owl is threatened, so is a whole ecosystem.

It's also worth noting that these are our forests. Nearly all virgin timber on private land has been cut down; the remaining ancient trees are on U.S. Forest Service land.

Much concern is voiced in the United States about the destruction of tropical rain forests and the ecological disaster that portends. But our own precious woodlands, like the rain forests of Brazil, play an important role in the survival of the planet. We can set a good example for the rest of the world by saving our own forests.

FDIC must be running short of employees

By ART BUCHWALD

They always tell you when the government is taking over a bankrupt savings and loan institution, but they never tell you who in the government is doing it.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is charged with stepping in when a bank collapses and trying to separate the junk from the bonds.

Unfortunately, there are so many S&Ls going under, that the FDIC is running out of employees to do this.

During my talk with Worldly in his office this suddenly became very clear to me. He was handed a fax message that he read aloud. "The Forget-the-Alamo S&L has gone down for the third time, and they're sending us the keys to the men's room by UPS. We have to have our own team in place by tomorrow morning."

"You must be used to that," "We're out of people to take over banks," he said. "When it comes to surplus staff, we are not the Defense Department."

At that moment there was a tinkling of a bell outside the office. The coffee cart was coming down the hall.

"You want coffee?" Worldly asked. "Yes," I replied. We both went out into the hallway where Big Sam was pouring coffee into paper cups for people who were standing in line.

"Wait a minute," Worldly exclaimed. "Something just hit me." He went up to Big Sam and said, "How would you like to run the Alamo S&L in Texas?"

Big Sam answered, "No, thank you. This is a good job and it keeps me moving."

"But you would be handling billions of dollars of debt, and trying to salvage a corrupt system recently run by knaves, curs and scoundrels. Doesn't that appeal to you?"

"There must be something wrong with it if you're offering it to me."

"Big Sam, you are very much part of this agency. We couldn't straighten out our savings and loans problems if we didn't have our coffee breaks. Your decisiveness, particularly when it comes to knowing who gets black and who gets cream, makes you a perfect candidate to run a billion-dollar bank."

Big Sam said, "I don't know how to run an S&L."

Worldly told him, "Neither does anybody else in this country. As a matter of fact, the less you know the easier it is to keep the bank afloat. Believe me when I say that there's nothing to it. You give customers money and then they give you back more — and the difference between what they borrowed and returned is your profit."

Big Sam asked shrewdly, "If it's that simple why did so many S&Ls crash?"

"I guess the FDIC was just lucky."

"I'd rather stick with selling coffee and bagels. It's a cash business," Big Sam said.

"Pepe, what if I told you that the President of the United States wants you to take over the Alamo S&L?"

"Why does he care?" Big Sam laughed. Worldly replied, "It's not for him, it's for his son."

Fatherhood makes for a great, if not very relaxed, vacation

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

Well, it was nice being on vacation, but it's kind of nice being back on the job as well.

After all, I could use the rest. I've heard a vicious rumor floating around that vacation is a time to kick back, relax and catch up on all that sleep you've been missing the other 50-odd weeks of the year.

I don't know who started this perfidious rumor, but it's a darned good bet the fool's never been a parent.

A parent's vacation, alas, is not a time of relaxation. On the contrary, it can, at times, resemble something out of an Ernest T. Worrell movie.

Faithful readers of this space, know where I'm headed. That's right, it's time for my semi-regular Shark column, dedicated to a certain fuzzy-headed (referring to his crewcut, not his mental capabilities) six-year-old that graces his mom and me with his presence a few times every year.

And while he can be a bit vexing at times (remind me sometime to relate how well he can say "No"), without a doubt, his comings and goings make for some interesting column material.

Aside from that, his all-too-infrequent visits allow me to do a self-evaluation as to my parental prowess. At the end of the day, I sit back and reflect on how I would be able to be a full-time father if Jeremy was my full-time child.

The jury is still out on that one. There are times when I handle the responsibilities quite well. It is at those times I figure that Robert Young and Andy Griffin and all those famous TV dads don't have a thing on me.

There are other times, however, when my beloved Jeremy does his best Bart Simpson imitation, that Robert Young and Andy Griffin and whatever-the-heck Donna Reed's husband's name is go flying out the window and Al Bundy comes marching in.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not trying to place any blame on Jeremy's fuzzy little head (OK, maybe a little). After all, if I was more resolute in either ignoring or correcting his few shortfalls, life for everybody would eventually be more peaceful.

Unfortunately, if I had a nickle for everytime I haven't ignored his few shortfalls, I'd take us all to the Bahamas for a few weeks. But, what the heck, I don't dwell on anybody's shortcomings and I'm sure not going to start with me. Needless to say, everything has not been doom and gloom at the Reagan household this past week.

We have had a great time doing lots of things. For example, we've gone swimming several times. And my sunburn is fairly well cleared by now.

And we did go to the rodeo. It was a fair trade: Jeremy got his thrills watching all the bulls and horses throw their riders; and I got a good laugh when Quail Dobbs' exploding car scared the bejabbers out of a couple sitting next to us.

We've been to the park several times, spent countless hours playing Nintendo games and even managed a short (but costly) trip to the carnival — where yours truly did his daddy duty by winning his little tyke a stuffed animal at one of the booths.

No applause please — just throw money. Perhaps the neatest thing he's done for me, except grace me with his presence, of course, is to acquaint me with John Wayne westerns.

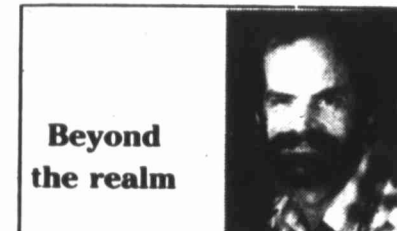

I used to be a big Duke fan, but somewhere down the line I lost my taste for his movies — or so I thought. About the third day the Shark was with us, we suggested that we go rent a movie or two. Instead of requesting a Teenage Mutant Ninja Whatchamacallit video or some other lamebrain cartoon, he wanted to see a John Wayne movie.

Not just any western, mind you, but a John Wayne western. I have to admit, the kid's got class.

Since that day, we've been holding a sort of John Wayne Film Festival at the house. We've seen the Cowboys (twice), Big Jake (three times), we're still working on Rio Bravo and Cahill, U.S. Marshal — and that's not counting all the Duke's movies we've seen on TV.

And there's still plenty of John Wayne to see. The problem is, the Shark will probably head home before we exhaust the list. That's definitely not fair, but as the Duke probably would say, "Well, pilgrim, you just gotta make the best of things."

Anyway, I've got to wrap this thing up now. It's just about closing time and there's a fuzzy-headed boy and a good movie (not to mention a dandy movie) waiting for me at the ol' casa. Just keep your powder dry, and I'll see you here about the same time next week, OK, pilgrim?

Tax issue is ultimate challenge for Gingrich

By STEVEN KOMAROW Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — For many Americans, President Bush's abandonment of his anti-tax pledge was a betrayal. For House Minority Whip Newt Gingrich, it's the ultimate challenge. His closely watched career Gingrich, R-Ga., is the ideological leader of the Conservative Opportunity Society. He spent most of the 1980s engaged in rhetorical and parliamentary warfare against the Democrats.

Last year he hit paydirt with his ethics committee charges that forced Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, to resign from Congress. As Wright went down, Gingrich rocketed into the No. 2 position among the House Republicans.

While maintaining his wonderfully hyperbolic rhetoric, he joined the establishment. He talks with Democrats about vacation schedules and even supported the controversial House pay raise passed last fall.

Now, he's a Republican negotiator in the big budget talks. But Bush's tax flip might be too much for him to take. The Neutron, as his friends call him, is fighting a political meltdown.

The tax issue is at the core of Gingrich's political being. His rhetorical package is anchored by attacks on the "bureaucratic liberal welfare state" fed by undeserved tax dollars.

And George Bush is saying he needs a tax increase to get the budget talks moving and prevent cuts in needed government services.

Gingrich was invited to the meeting last Tuesday when Bush told the top congressional leaders he'd go along with a statement calling for "tax revenue increases."

Apparently, when Gingrich first heard about it he couldn't believe it. A heated argument over the telephone with White House Chief of Staff John Sununu ensued.

Gingrich afterward tried feeding reporters the Sununu ruse that nothing had changed since Bush had started the budget talks with a pledge that "everything was on the table." But his anger made it obvious that he didn't believe it himself.

Capitol report

"I'm just frankly enraged," he said. By day's end, he was telling reporters that Bush had "thrown an interception." And by week's end, he was distancing himself from the White House.

The president "made a mistake on Tuesday and I think it has been a severe blow to the president's credibility and a significant blow to the Republican party," Gingrich said.

"I do not think he has to raise taxes. I'm willing to stay in the summit but I'll just say flatly that I think it is an error to give in to the Democratic party," he said.

Gingrich says the Democrats forced Bush into reversing his pledge by refusing to negotiate, and says the president should have gone to the American people and told them that.

But Gingrich also states the obvious truth, that the Democrats weren't going to pull out of the talks.

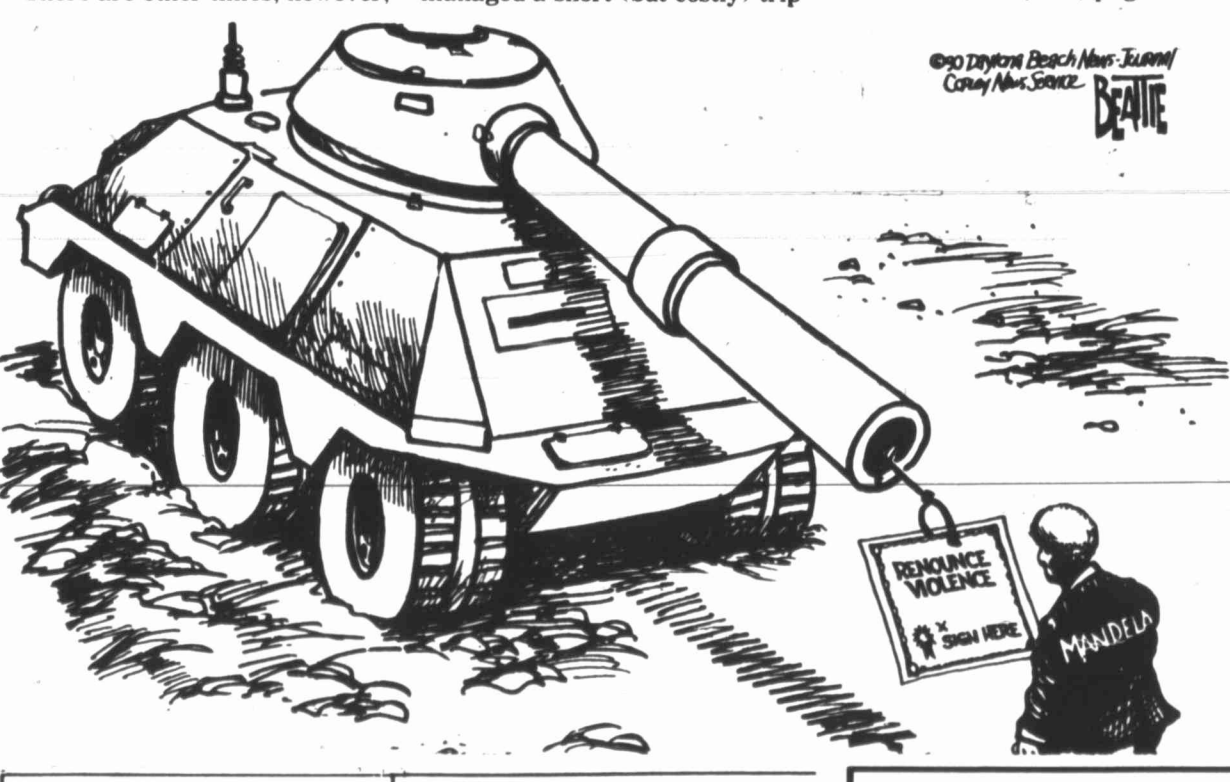

They didn't even threaten it, and neither can he. There's too much at stake, and he's a part of the Republican leadership now, part of the establishment.

What Gingrich can do is maneuver to make sure he and his supporters retain some influence in the budget talks.

Gingrich's deputy, Rep. Robert Walker, R-Pa., reacted to Bush's statement last week by gathering the signatures of more than half of the House Republicans on a statement opposing any tax rate increase. Gingrich, wearing his negotiator's hat, didn't sign it.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., has stated repeatedly that Democrats won't vote for any tax increase unless most Republicans support it also.

If Foley sticks to that pledge, it could give Gingrich the equivalent of a veto. If Foley doesn't, it might give Gingrich back the tax issue which Bush's statement has so badly blunted.

Quotes

By The Associated Press "I am in great awe and respect for the jury system that symbolizes the soul of the American people." — Imelda Marcos, after she was cleared of charges she looted $222 million from the Philippines and hid the money by sinking it into art and real estate "Six months from now, a year from now, I expect you all to ooh and ahh over the picture that Hubble is going to produce and, of course, compliment the current management of NASA for their success in pulling it off." — Leonard Fisk, chief scientist for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, announcing that fuzzy images from the Hubble Space Telescope may be improved to sharp, crisp pictures through the same computer process that cleaned up photos taken by the Voyager spacecraft.

Scuddays to leave Forsan

By KATHRYN HOLLINGSHEAD
Woodrow and Nova Scudday, longtime residents Forsan, will be leaving Forsan for a new home in Eastland the first week of July. "We wanted to get closer to all the grandchildren," explains Nova. Woodrow has completed three terms as mayor of Forsan. He was being succeeded by Roger Hudgins in May.

Nova attended grade school at nearby Chalk. "Doris Chalk was my teacher," Nova reminisces "in an all-grade schoolhouse." Nova served as tax accessor and bookkeeper for Forsan ISD for 20 years, under superintendents Roy Stockstill, Darrell Flint, H.D. Smith and the present superintendent, J.F. Poyner. Nova was sole preparer of the tax rolls and statements until four years ago.

Forsan reunion

The faces of former graduating classes line the halls of Forsan High School, from the class of '29 to the recent class of '90. On Aug. 4, some of these faces will return for the Forsan-Chalk reunion.

This will be the fourth reunion, held every 3 years on the first Saturday in August, according to Susan Alexander, reunion coordinator.

Among many others, former principal Meril Roman and his wife plan to return for this event. The Romans currently reside in Georgetown.

"The reunion is just a time for all past and present Forsan ISD employees, parents of Forsan graduates and friends to get together and visit" Alexander states.

The reunion begins at 3 p.m. There will be a tour of the school and the pool will be open so the kids can swim. There will be a barbecue at 6 p.m. For reservations call Susan Alexander at 267-6442 or 437-2202.

Community reunion

Do you remember Chalk or Ross City? There will be a school and community reunion Aug. 4 at Forsan High School at 3 p.m. For reservations for the BBQ meal, call Ozella Long at 267-8040.

Final jeopardy

NEW YORK — Alex Trebek, host of the television game show "Jeopardy," poses with his bride of a few months, Jean Currihan, alongside the yacht Jacana on New York Harbor Sunday. The newlyweds held a reception aboard the yacht.

Computer lighting basics

(AP) — A home computer can be a real work saver and great fun to use.

Enthusiasm will wane, though, if improper lighting causes eyestrain and headaches. Home Plan Ideas magazine recommends paying special attention to lighting at the time the home computer workplace is set up. By doing so these problems can be averted.

Evenly distributed illumination is a must for computer work areas because eyes constantly shift from keyboard to lit screen to paperwork. Reduce eyestrain by offsetting the video display screen's brightness with a lamp focused on the keyboard and paperwork. In addition, balance the task lighting at the work area with low-level general lighting for the rest of the room.

Task lighting reflecting off the video display screen is another cause of eye irritation.

Houston native is Miss Texas-USA

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The new Miss Texas-USA is Christy Bogard of Houston, who represented North Harris County in the annual pageant.

Ms. Bogard, 23, 5-9 with blue eyes and blond hair, will represent the state in the Miss USA Pageant next spring.

Along with the title, Ms. Bogard won a $16,000 scholarship, a mink coat, a new Subaru automobile and jewelry.

Melissa Linn, 22, of Waco, representing Central Texas, was the first runnerup Miss Southeast Texas. Sherry Krantz, 25, of Webster, was the second runnerup. Angie Sisk, 23, representing Houston, took fourth and Kelli Lynn, 21, representing Humble, took fifth.

Ms. Bogard, a junior at the University of Houston also works as a model and intends to pursue a career in communications.

Dear Abby

Lawyer charges nephew for services

DEAR ABBY: Recently, my sister's son (I'll call him Steve) was in minor trouble with the law, and my husband, who is an attorney, represented him in court. It involved only a few hours of his time, but it took time away from other things he was working on. When my husband presented Steve with a bill for $75, my sister was furious. She thought he should have represented her son for nothing because he was family. Normally, my husband would have charged at least $300, but he gave his nephew the family rate. Incidentally, Steve is 20 years old and works full time.

Now, instead of appreciating the fact that my husband saved her son $225, she thinks he took advantage by charging him anything at all, and they aren't speaking to us. I realize that your opinion won't change things, but I'm curious. Who do you think is right? — IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: I think your husband was more than generous to have charged his nephew only $75. And if that money does not come out of Steve's paycheck (if it's only $10 a week), it should! He needs to learn that he is responsible for his own actions and his own bills.

For your sister and her family to stop speaking to you and your husband because he didn't represent his nephew for nothing, shows them to be unbelievably ungrateful and petty.

DEAR ABBY: Last night, I got a telephone call from a man who said his name was "John," but he wouldn't tell me his last name. He said he was calling to tell me that my husband had been cheating on me for quite some time, and he thought I should know because I have three children. (It's true, I have.)

John said my husband had given this woman an engagement ring last Christmas, and that she had followed my husband to Florida so she could be near him while we were there on vacation! Abby, I couldn't believe I was getting this call, but I kept calm and let the man talk. He said he was mailing me some proof so I could get a divorce. (It's true; we did vacation in Florida last winter.)

Should I file for divorce, or wait and see what the proof is? Should I tell my husband about John's call and ask him to explain it? I am all confused and upset. Please answer soon, as I need to know how to handle this. — ALL SHOOK UP

DEAR SHOOK: Don't accept anything as fact from an anonymous telephone informer who appears very eager to "help" you get a divorce! First, wait to see if "John" sends you the proof he promised.

Proof or no proof, however, tell your husband about this call, and give him a chance to explain it.

Johnson named top AL pitcher

NEW YORK (AP) — Randy Johnson, who threw the first no-hitter in Seattle Mariners history on June 2, was named the AL pitcher of the month and Cleveland's Brook Jacoby was selected AL player of the month. Two other pitchers who threw no-hitters in June, Dave Stewart of the Oakland Athletics and Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers, were named the AL and NL players of the week, respectively. Johnson, traded to Seattle from the Montreal Expos last year in the Mark Langston deal, was 5-0 in six starts last month, allowing 30 hits and 12 earned runs in 45 innings. Jacoby, meanwhile, hit .394 (41-of-104) with 21 RBIs and 17 runs scored. He had six homers, four doubles and a triple. Stewart no-hit the Toronto Blue Jays 5-0 on Friday at the Skydome. About three hours later, Valenzuela no-hit St. Louis 6-0 at Los Angeles. Andy Hawkins of the New York Yankees, who lost a no-hitter 4-0 on three teammates' errors, received an honorable mention for the weekly AL honor.

Top Wimbledon seeds continue to roll

Graf suddenly not a youngster

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Steffi Graf doesn't feel old. A couple of years ago, she was a prodigy. She was only 4 when Martina Navratilova first played at Wimbledon. But after defeating 14-year-old Jennifer Capriati in a Centre Court battle for the future of women's tennis on Monday, Graf was asked once again what it feels like to play a youngster. "It's just weird," said the top seed and two-time defending champion, who turned 21 last month. At 33, Navratilova does feel old. She says it's important to have easy matches to give her body a chance to recover. So the second seed spent only 53 minutes defeating Judith Wiesner on Monday. In the process, she tied Chris Evert's record for most Wimbledon victories (96) and made the quarterfinals for a record 16th consecutive year.

Becker peaking for title shot

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Boris Becker seems to be peaking at the right time as he bids for his fourth Wimbledon title. The second-seeded West German played his best tennis of the tournament in beating former champion Pat Cash 7-6, 6-1, 6-4 on Monday to move into the quarterfinals. Becker had trouble in his first three matches, but he lit up Centre Court on Monday with the dominating power game that earned him the champion's trophy in 1985, 1986 and 1989. "I had three tough matches," he said. "My draw has been much more difficult this year than last year. So I had to play much better much earlier. But I have done that. I have survived that and that's good." Cash had two set points in the first set, but Becker saved both and went on to take the tiebreaker 7-3. "After I won the first set, it kind of clicked and it was much easier for me and more difficult for him," Becker said. Cash, who won Wimbledon in 1987 but is making a comeback after a long injury layoff, said Becker will be hard to beat. "If he plays as well as he did the second and third sets, I can't see too many people stopping him," the Australian said. Relations between Becker and Cash have been strained the past few years. During a quarterfinal meeting here two years ago, Cash was incensed when Becker dived over the net to imitate him after he tumbled going after a shot. Cash then wore a red clown's wig to his news conference, mimicking Becker's red hair. The Australian said Monday that Becker had been jealous of his 1987 victory and had made critical comments about his personal life. But Cash said there were no longer any bad feelings between the two. "I think he's had a few relationships and he's starting to realize what it's all about," Cash said. "I think it's part of growing up. He's a very nice young man and he's holding his head up high." Becker's quarterfinal opponent, ● PEAKING page 2-B

Sheep farmers block section of Tour route

POITIERS, France (AP) — The Tour de France left the future and returned to the past Monday. After the weekend around Futuroscope, a high-tech industrial park, the world's most famous cycling race headed into the provinces and encountered an old tale — farmers complaining about prices. Sheep farmers, upset by falling meat prices, disrupted the Tour de France on Monday, blocking the cyclists' route with tree trunks, manure and tractors. Debris was placed by the protesters over a 15-mile section of the course, starting at the 54-mile mark. Organizers of the world's premier cycling race first arranged for the competitors to make a detour onto another route. But later they decided to stop all the racers and have them start again. After everything was sorted out, Steve Bauer of Canada still led the standings. Bauer was 36th in the third stage, a 144.5-mile stretch from Poitiers to Nantes, near the west coast of France. Bauer finished one spot ahead of Greg LeMond, the two-time champion. LeMond and the other major contenders stayed more than 10 minutes behind as the overall standings stayed basically the same in a fairly flat stage. Moreno Argentin of Italy won the stage with a modest breakaway near the end of the leg that was marked by showers throughout the day. Argentin, the 1986 world champion, was 2 minutes, 28 seconds ahead of the rest of the pack. It was the second straight day that there were demonstrations on the route. On Sunday, there were two small demonstrations. One group spread wool over a small part of the route and other protesters spilled oil, causing about 15 riders to fall. Race organizers said security ● TOUR page 2-B

Angels steal win

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS It was like taking candy from a baby. Actually, it was more like taking a ballgame from Candy. The California Angels stole a 2-1 victory from the Cleveland Indians on Monday night when left fielder Candy Maldonado collided with center fielder Mitch Webster, causing him to drop Wally Joyner's bloop with two out and a runner on third in the ninth inning. Chili Davis opened the ninth by drawing a walk from Cleveland reliever Jesse Orosco (3-4) and Dave Winfield followed with a bunt single. Rudy Seanez relieved and Lance Parrish grounded into a double play that sent pinch-runner Max Venable to third. Joyner then hit a fly to no-man's land in shallow left-center. Here came Maldonado. There came Webster. "When you're in motion, it's tough to change direction," said Maldonado, who originally called for the ball. But baseball's unwritten law of the outfield says the center fielder catches anything he can reach. Webster called Maldonado off at the last second. "When I heard him, it was too late," Maldonado said. "All I tried to do was stop and let him go in front of me. He's the center fielder. I have to let him take it." The ball hit in Webster's glove just as the glove slammed into Maldonado, jarring the ball loose. Maldonado was charged with an error. In other American League games, it was Chicago 5, Detroit 4; Oakland 3, Toronto 2; Boston 3, Texas 2; and Kansas City 11, New York 5. Maldonado's gaffe made a winner of Chuck Finley (11-4), who was moved up a day in the rotation to enhance his chances of pitching in next Tuesday's All-Star Game. Finley held the Indians to a run and four hits in 8 1-3 innings, and Bryan Harvey fanned the last two batters for his 11th save. Cleveland's Bud Black yielded one run in seven ● AL ROUNDUP page 2-B

Closed roof doesn't bother Expos' hitters

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS The Montreal Expos couldn't open the roof at Olympic Stadium, but it didn't keep the Atlanta Braves from hitting the ball out of the park. A mechanical problem prevented the Expos from opening the roof for the first time this season and a pitching problem kept them from winning the game. Jim Presley hit two of Atlanta's four home runs off rookie Howard Farmer as the Braves beat the Expos 6-3 Monday night. "I don't know why, but the ball seemed to be really jumping off my bat tonight," Presley said. "Power hitters have streaks where they get homers in bunches. That's what happened tonight." Farmer, making his major league debut, got a rude welcome when Oddibe McDowell led off the game with a double and Jeff Treadway followed with a home run on Farmer's fourth pitch of the game. hard," Farmer said. "But the guys said to hang with them and I will. Next time I'll make sure to keep the ball down."

Farmer (0-1) was called up from the minors last week to replace the injured Kevin Gross in the Montreal rotation.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Philadelphia 5, Houston 1; San Francisco 3, St. Louis 2; Los Angeles 3, Chicago 1; and Pittsburgh 4, San Diego 3 in 14 innings.

Braves starter John Smoltz (6-6) allowed five hits and three runs in 7 1/3 innings for the victory and Joe Boever finished for his seventh save.

"I felt like I had control of my curve and slider," Smoltz said. "I felt like I could spot them in any situation and I didn't need to throw a change all night. And the early runs definitely helped."

Phillies 5, Astros 1
Darrel Akerfeldt pitched out of a one-out, bases-loaded jam in the seventh inning and finished for his first major league save as Philadelphia defeated visiting Houston. The Astros have lost 14 of their last 15 road games.

Bruce Ruffin (6-7) worked 6 1/3 innings, allowing four hits to earn his third victory in his last four games. With the Phillies leading 3-1, Ruffin walked the bases loaded with one out in the sixth and Akerfeldt relieved.

Eric Yelding lined out to shortstop Dickie Thon and Rafael Ramirez hit into a force at second to end the threat and the inning.

Jim Vatcher hit a two-run homer in the eighth, his first in the majors.

Giants 3, Cardinals 2
Don Robinson allowed two runs in 8 2/3 innings and scored a run, leading San Francisco past St. Louis at Candlestick Park.

Pedro Guerrero spoiled Robinson's shutout bid when he hit his ninth homer with one out in the ninth inning. One out later, Mill Thompson doubled and Jose Oquendo chased Robinson with a run-scoring single. Jeff Brantley got his 11th save when pinch-runner Rex Hudler was caught stealing by Gary Carter.

Loser Joe Magrane (4-11) allowed three runs and six hits in seven innings.

Greg Litton had a two-run single in the third inning and Robby Thompson's squeeze bunt single made it 3-0 in the sixth.

Dodgers 3, Cubs 1
Tim Lincecum pitched a five-hitter and Los Angeles beat Chicago at Dodger Stadium, ending the Cubs' season-high five-game winning streak.

Belcher (6-6) held the Cubs hitless for 4 2/3 innings before Luis Salazar singled to center. The Cubs spoiled his shutout bid in the eighth inning when Ryne Sandberg hit a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded.

Kal Daniels and Hubie Brooks had RBI singles in the first and Rick Dempsey and an RBI grounder in the third.

Pirates 4, Padres 3
Jay Bell singled home Jose Lind from second base with one out in the 14th inning to lift visiting Pittsburgh past San Diego, sending the Padres to their season-high sixth straight loss. The Pirates have won three straight games and lead New York by 1 1/2 in the NL East.

Lind led off the 14th with a double off Calvin Schiraldi (2-1), and after pitcher Bob Patterson struck out trying to sacrifice, Sid Bream was intentionally walked. Bell followed with a single to center.

Patterson (5-3) pitched three hitless innings for the victory.

White Sox 5, Tigers 4
Chicago's vaunted bullpen blew a three-run lead in the eighth inning, but the White Sox remained four percentage points ahead of Oakland in the AL West when Carlton Fisk singled home the winning run in the ninth.

Robin Ventura opened the ninth with a single off Detroit relief ace Mike Henneman (4-5) and took second. Ivan Calderon grounded out. Craig Grebeck ran for Ventura and Ron Kittle was walked intentionally before Fisk, who had a sacrifice fly in Chicago's three-run first inning, singled to give the White Sox their 10th victory in 11 games.

Athletics 3, Blue Jays 2
Rickey Henderson hit his 14th home run and Mike Moore (6-7) held Toronto to four hits in seven innings as Oakland handed Toronto its seventh loss in eight games. Dennis Eckersley got the final six outs for his 25th save.

Henderson's home run in the second inning scored Mike Gallego, who hit into a forceout after Walt Weiss singled. A sacrifice fly by Mark McGwire in the first inning produced Oakland's first run off Jimmy Key (4-4), who yielded 10 hits in six innings.

Red Sox 3, Rangers 2
Kevin Romine led off the bottom of the ninth inning with his first home run of the season and Mike Boddicker outlasted Nolan Ryan for his 10th straight victory. With seven strikeouts, Ryan became the only pitcher in baseball history with 100 or more strikeouts for 22 seasons, breaking a tie with Don Sutton.

Romine hit a 3-2 pitch off Kenny Rogers (2-4) into the left-field screen as the Red Sox finished a 9-2 homestand and opened a 4 1/2-game lead over Toronto in the AL East.

"I knew I hit it well, but I didn't know if I hit it well enough," Romine said after only his third homer in 246 games with Boston since 1985.

"I thought the home run would be the last thing that would beat you today with the wind blowing in," Texas manager Bobby Valentine said.

Royals 11, Yankees 5
The Yankees, who lost a no-hitter on four unearned runs Sunday, continued their sloppy play, committing three errors and issuing three bases-loaded walks. Five Kansas City runs were unearned.

George Brett went 4-for-5. Gerald Perry homered and Kevin Appier (3-3) went six innings for his second victory of the year over the Yankees. Brett had an RBI single in the Royals' two-run first against Jimmy Jones (1-2) and singled for one of three hits in Kansas City's six-run second.

plusive, I mean, powerful."

Graf, still bothered by a sinus inflammation that sent her home to West Germany for the weekend, said Capriati is stronger and steadier than was Graf at 14, when she already had been on the pro circuit for a year.

"It's just great how far she is already with her game," Graf said. "She is so natural."

Navratilova, an eight-time Wimbledon singles champion, defeated the 14th-seeded Wiesner 6-3, 6-3 and hasn't lost a set in reaching the quarterfinals. That, she said, is important to her body.

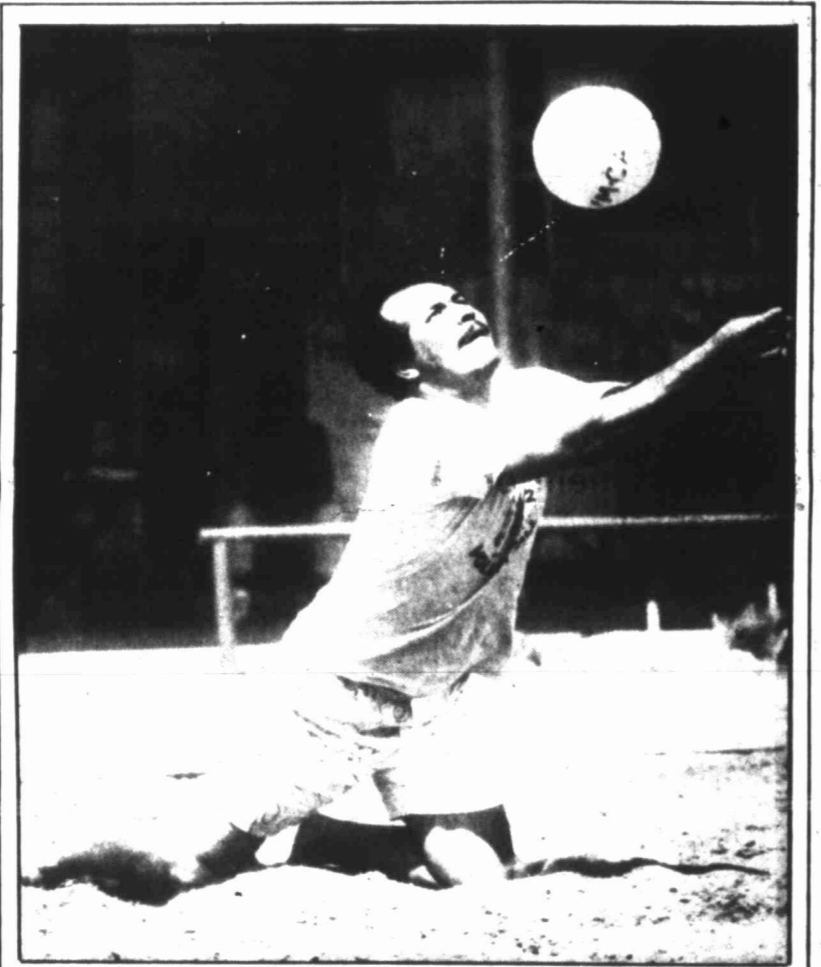

"Getting older means that it takes you longer to recover from tough matches," she said. "When you get up the next morning, you just don't feel as pain-free as you used to. No matter how good shape you get in, the muscles just don't recover quite as quickly."

Navratilova has a 96-9 record in Wimbledon singles. Evert was 96-15 before retiring last year. Billie Jean King was 95-15 while winning six singles titles.

The winningest man at Wimbledon is Jimmy Connors, who won 82 of 98 matches.

Women's third seed Monica Seles defeated Ann Henricksson 6-1, 6-0 to set up a quarterfinal clash with fifth-seeded Zina Garrison, a 6-3, 6-3 winner over 10th-seeded Helena Sukova.

Garrison hasn't lost a set in the tournament and said she is confident about playing Seles on grass. The two have met just once before, Seles winning on clay in the 1989 French Open.

will be seventh-seeded Brad Gilbert, who saved two match points and survived 23 aces in beating fellow American David Wheaton 6-7, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, 13-11. The match lasted 4 hours, 10 minutes.

Wheaton gave Gilbert no chance, saying, "I don't think he serves well enough to beat Becker or volleys well enough to beat Becker."

Informed of Wheaton's assessment, Gilbert shot back, "That's probably why he's 20 years old and 30 spots below me."

Gilbert has a 4-3 career record against Becker.

"I've beaten the guy more than he's beaten me," he said. "If I return well, I have a good chance."

along the rest of the route will be increased.

Today, the riders head from Nantes to historic Mont St. Michel, 126 miles away.

The tour's route is similar to 1988, with relatively flat racing before the riders enter the Alps July 10, heading into Switzerland.

The high mountain stages begin in earnest on July 11 with the ride up l'Alpe d'Huez. Two years ago, after holding the lead for a few days into the mountains, Bauer dropped 2 minutes, 34 seconds on the leg up l'Alpe d'Huez and had to give up the yellow jersey.

He went on to finish fourth overall, more than 14 minutes behind winner Pedro Delgado.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Hank Williams Jr. has married a former suntan-lotion model.

Williams, 41, wed Mary Jane Thomas of Daytona, Fla., before 50 family members and friends Sunday at the University Congregational Church in Missoula, Mont., said his manager, Merle Kilgore.

Williams met Ms. Thomas five years ago at a concert in Washington, Kilgore said. Ms. Thomas, who is in her mid-20s, was a model for Hawaiian Tropic lotion.

The couple will postpone their honeymoon in Africa until September, when Williams finishes his tour, Kilgore said.

Williams won a Grammy in February for best country collabora-stop round-the-world flight of the Voyager in 1986, walking away from an emergency landing after an experimental plane she was co-piloting caught fire.

Sheriff's Deputy James Neff said Yeager and pilot Shirland K. Dickey were about four miles from the airport Sunday when the engine caught fire and smoke was detected in the cockpit.

He said the engine quit while the plane was a half-mile out, and Yeager and Dickey made a deadstick, or powerless, landing.

On touching down, the plane left the runway and its landing gear collapsed, he said, but the 38-year-old Yeager of Nipomo, Calif., and Dickey, 48, of Chandler, Ariz., walked away.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1990

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: President Calvin Coolidge, twin sisters Ann Landers and Abigail Van Buren, talk host Geraldo Rivera.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Getting involved in too many projects at one time could dilute your work performance. Your intuition can be affected by your fears. Find a neutral sounding board. A phone call gives you hope.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Rushing into things leads to unnecessary complications. Flirtatious person may be unusually direct. Do not let vanity blow matters out of proportion. Avoid taking loved ones for granted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your plans will be questioned and may have to be altered. Capitalize on your gift of self-expression. Your anxiety about a group is largely unfounded.

Postpone a decision; wait for more data.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your friends are very supportive. Avoid clinging to the past or you will miss out on current opportunities. Get several bids if home repairs are necessary. A friend may be sending you a message.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If you are too conservative, you may need experts' advice. Focus on creative work. A chance encounter with an old friend could lead to an interesting disclosure. Do not believe everything you hear!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Adopt a conservative approach to investments. Cut back on luxury purchases. Cooperation is the key to a successful partnership. Postpone a social event if your work is not complete. Mate is understanding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not allow others to steal your glory. Safeguard your ideas and contacts. An authority figure is impressed by your ability to work under pressure. A raise or promotion is in the offing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A change of attitude will open up new horizons. Take time to socialize with people who make you laugh; your outlook will improve. Team effort boosts the bottom line. Romance makes you sing!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A favorite project gets the green light from an influential party. Give your work best shot. A newcomer is neutral, not hostile. Take your cue from your mate. Romance merits top priority.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cooperation may be difficult to obtain at work. Stick to solo projects. Power must be put in the right hands. A small package brings great delight. A new friendship enriches your life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Open up new lines of communication with your co-workers. Have a frank talk with someone who always takes but seldom gives. A hunch could be both valid and premature. Avoid financial speculation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Face a tough financial dilemma squarely. Your intuition is right on target where a new love is concerned. Try not to show surprise at what your romantic partner has to say.

Texans relate census woes to committee

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Stories by federal officials of valiant attempts to get a correct population count in Texas were countered by Texans who told of misdirected and insufficient efforts by the Census Bureau.

The U.S. House Subcommittee on Census and Population at a field hearing Monday heard that Texas' census is off again, perhaps by more than 500,000.

An undercount would cost Texas federal funds and representation in Congress, just as it did in the 1980s, state officials said Monday.

Witnesses detailed shortcomings in counting minorities, rural residents, the homeless, and transients. Federal officials responded by saying the 1990 census is the most accurate ever.

Michael Darby, undersecretary for Economic Affairs in the U.S. Department of Commerce, said, "It's clear we're doing a better job" than in 1980.

Ten years ago, witnesses said, census takers missed 547,000 Texas residents, which cost the state $300 million and one congressional seat.

"I am more than concerned," Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said. "I am deeply disappointed. We're on the road to

Dos and don'ts about fireworks

Stanton's Evening Lions Club is sponsoring a firework stand, just west of the city limits, to help celebrate Independence Day.

A city ordinance from 1957 relates where it is legal to discharge fireworks: "City Ordinance prohibiting the sale and discharge of fireworks, torpedoes, rockets, etc., within the city of Stanton, Texas . . ."

Chief of Police Mike Adams reinforced the ordinance to the present day saying, "Yes, there is a city ordinance prohibiting the use of fireworks in the city limits. We will need the cooperation from everyone since it is so dry this year."

With this year's temperatures hovering over the 100 degree mark for 22 consecutive days — and the current dry spell with no end in sight — any type of spark could set off problems for the city, officials say.

Other problems that arises from fireworks is the stress that is caused to your pets. Pets do not share in the holiday spirit when it involves the bright sparks and loud booms of July 4th firecrackers, as stated in animal literature.

DPS officer surrenders

McKINNEY (AP) — A Texas Department of Public Safety trooper surrendered to police early today after holding authorities at bay for almost 14 hours at his home in McKinney.

Richard Lenoir, 43, surrendered at 3:28 a.m. and was taken to North Texas Medical Center for observation and evaluation, McKinney Police Sgt. Tim Warden said.

Police were called to Lenoir's house at 1:48 p.m. Monday by a woman who said he was standing outside holding a gun to his head.

Warden said Lenoir, a 19-year veteran of DPS, was upset over personal and financial problems.

Some little-known facts about flag etiquette

By KIM LABBE
Staff Writer

It's possible that patriotic Americans who are upset over flag desecration by protestors are themselves violating flag etiquette every time they display Old Glory.

"Some nations have a carefully laid down code of flag etiquette which gives precise instructions as to how the flags can be used under all conditions. Such a country is the United States," according to "Flags of the World." These instructions are commonly known as Public Law 623 of the 77th Congress.

The flag should be displayed from sunrise to sunset on all days when the weather permits. However, when a patriotic effect is desired, the flag may be displayed 24 hours a day if properly illuminated during the last hours of darkness. The flag should be displayed, weather permitting, on or near the main administration building of every public institution.

When raising the flag, it should be hoisted briskly and lowered ceremoniously.

When carried in a procession with another flag or flags, the flag should be either on the marching right or if there is a line of other flags, in front of the center of that line.

The flag should not be displayed on a float in a parade except on a staff. The flag should never be draped over any vehicle, train, or boat.

No flag should be flown above the stars and stripes except during church services conducted by Naval chaplains at sea.

When flown with a number of other flags, the U.S. flag should be at the center and at the highest point of the group. When the flags are flown from adjacent staffs, the U.S. flag should be hoisted first and lowered last.

When a flag is displayed otherwise than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out.

Congress considers boosting rural doctor loan program

By EVAN RAMSTAD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Congress is moving to increase the size of a program that repays loans of young doctors who set up a practice in country towns that lack adequate health care.

Texas has a shortage of doctors in 130 counties, officials say, and could benefit the most from the increase.

The House commerce and energy committee last week approved the reauthorization of the National Health Service Corps, which since 1972 has placed 12,000 doctors in rural areas in dire need of better medical services.

An amendment to that bill authorizes a spending increase from $1 million to $10 million on a loan repayment program that seven states use as an incentive for doctors to move to small towns and rural counties.

A similar bill is pending in a Senate appropriations committee.

Since the program began two years ago, Texas has received the most funds, about $800,000, and matched that with its own money to place the most doctors, 51.

Bridgette Taylor, who watches health issues for the state of Texas office in Washington, said the state could continue receiving the most money from the program.

That's partly because Texas was making loan repayments on its own when the U.S. program began, she said.

"While some other states were trying to scamper around and make application, Texas was able to put its application together pretty easily," Ms. Taylor said.

The counties that need doctors are all over the state, said Claudia Siegel, director of medical programs for the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

"Several are in West Texas. We have some along the valley border area, have them in north, even some that are urban counties," he said.

The rural health care problem is acute in 50 Texas counties that have no hospital. The state led the nation with 29 hospital closings in 1988.

Some congressional members believe money should just be directed to the National Health Service Corps so Congress can directly see that hardest hit areas are getting help.

But proponents of the loan repayment program say it gives states a chance to intervene before a health service crisis occurs.

1,400 killed in stampede

MECCA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A ventilation-system failure was blamed today for a stampede in a packed pedestrian tunnel linking this holy city with a tent city. Diplomats said about 1,400 pilgrims suffocated or were trampled to death.

Sources said a power failure caused the air conditioning in the 1,500-foot-long, 60-foot-wide tunnel to switch off in 112-degree heat on Monday, setting off the stampede.

"It was God's will, which is above everything," King Fahd said of the disaster. "It was fate."

The disaster occurred during the hajj, one of the world's largest religious gatherings, which draws about 2 million Moslems. Observances had largely ended, and pilgrims were observing post-hajj rituals or preparing to leave.

Diplomats said about 1,400 pilgrims were killed. Asian and Middle Eastern diplomats, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said most of the victims were Malaysian and Indonesian pilgrims.

Doctors at hospitals said today that large numbers of Egyptians and Pakistanis also were among the dead.

The official Saudi media gave no specific casualty figure, although King Fahd acknowledged indirectly that there had been a large loss of life.

He called the dead "martyrs of the Islamic world." "Had they not died there, they would have died elsewhere and at the same predestined moment," the king said at a meeting Monday night with pilgrimage security officials.

The deaths shattered what had been a peaceful observance of the annual hajj and was the worst pilgrimage tragedy in recent years. In previous years, the celebration has been marred by terrorist attacks and riots.

Diplomats said the tunnel became packed beyond capacity when some pilgrims stopped in the middle while people outside continued to push their way in.

A witness said the tunnel, designed to hold as many as 1,000 pedestrians, became clogged with up to 5,000 people.

"With the lack of oxygen, a good number collapsed unconscious, and some died. There was also a stampede," said the witness, who

Heimdal returns home after kidnapping

PEORIA, Ill. — Scott Heimdal, left, is hugged by his sister Linda after arriving at the Peoria airport Monday night. Heimdal returned home after being freed by Colombian rebels who had held him for 61 days.

By ROBERT LEE ZIMMER
Associated Press Writer

PEORIA, Ill. — Scott Heimdal got a hero's welcome in his hometown from friends and strangers who helped raise the $60,000 ransom his South American kidnappers demanded for the release of the American gold miner.

"It's a great feeling" to be home, said Heimdal, 27, upon arriving in this western Illinois city. Except for a celebration Saturday, Heimdal said his only plans for this week were to "take it easy."

Wearing an "I Love Peoria" T-shirt, Heimdal stepped off a plane late Monday with his mother, Marge, who had flown to Ecuador June 18 to negotiate his release after the Colombian guerrillas refused to free him despite being given the money.

Heimdal had been working as a miner in Ecuador when he was kidnapped April 28 near the Colombian border.

His family raised $60,000 in four days of public appeals. Bars and banks took up collections, children sold lemonade and nursing homes held bake sales.

Heimdal said he intends to return to Ecuador. "It's really a wonderful country," he said.

Earlier Monday during a stopover in Miami, he identified his captors as members of the communist People's Liberation Army. He said they treated him with "great respect" and wished him "good luck" on his release.

Reporters' questions and a jubilant crowd of about 100 deluged the Heimdals as they entered Peoria airport.

"This has been the longest day of our lives," said Linda Heimdal, one of his sisters.

Heimdal received a bouquet of roses from Trudy Maloof, wife of the town's mayor, a family friend. Outside, a blue van was decorated with balloons and a sign saying, "Welcome home Scott and Marge."

"We don't know the family, but it's wonderful that he's coming home," said Jo Frederick.

In Miami, Heimdal recounted his kidnapping, which took place while he was returning to the Ecuadorian capital of Quito.

"We were going down river in a 30-foot Indian dugout canoe when three men attacked us. They killed the driver, wounded the other guy and took me hostage. They were looking to kidnap a North American," he said.

Spring board

How's that?

Q. What are the statistics on injuries caused by fireworks?
A. In 1989 alone, 10,000 Americans suffered fireworks-related injuries. Almost half of the injuries occurred in children under the age of 16. Approximately 1,300 of these injuries damaged the eye, according to the American Academy Of Ophthalmology.

spoke on condition of anonymity. He said he helped carry victims to the ambulances waiting by the tunnel's exits, but that he did not know how many of the stricken were dead and how many were simply unconscious.

The pedestrian walkway runs under part of a mountain, but sometimes cars use it as a shortcut, filling it with choking fumes, sources said.

As the scope of the disaster became apparent, ambulances and security forces rushed to the tunnel, which joins Mecca and the pilgrim tent city of Mina.

"Thousands of the pilgrims thronged through the tunnel of Mo'essem, causing severe congestion within the tunnel as the pressure was beyond its capacity," state-run Riyadh radio said.

The official Saudi Press Agency quoted King Fahd as saying the pilgrims had failed to follow safety rules "issued in good time ahead of the (pilgrimage) season." But he pledged to work for better safety.

"God willing, we will see no tragedies in the coming years," he said.

The tunnel is part of $15 billion development plan for the holy sites, including other tunnels and overhead bridges, to move pilgrims in a more orderly fashion. The king said the disaster caused grief to Moslems everywhere.

"But I reiterate that it is the inescapable will of God," he said.

An estimated 2 million Moslems, including 800,000 visitors from around the world, come to Islam's holy sites in and around Mecca for the hajj.

The celebration climaxed Sunday with prayers on Mount Arafat, about eight miles from Mecca.

The rituals being celebrated Monday — the Eid Al-Adha, or the Feast of Sacrifice — commemorate the Prophet Abraham's offering of his son in sacrifice to God.

Before Monday, only a small fire at Mina and a few cases of heat fatigue had disrupted the pilgrimage season.

Farm scene

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — At least one of every six farmers who take out federal crop insurance does so in order to get a loan to stay in business, according to a recent survey by the Agriculture Department.

The survey also showed that crop insurance was more likely to be a requirement if loans were sought from the Farm Credit System, FCS, or the Farmers Home Administration, FmHA.

Merritt Hughes of the department's Economic Research Service said the findings were based on the annual Farm Cost and Returns Survey for the 1988-89 crop year and a recent follow-up survey of 3,000 farms that focused on insurance.

Writing in the July issue of Agriculture Outlook magazine, Hughes said roughly half of the farms represented by the survey had some form of debt and that 23 percent of the indebted farms carried federal crop insurance in 1988-89.

"Commercial banks and the FCS have stated that they never require crop insurance as a prerequisite for lending," the report said. "FmHA has required federal crop insurance participation for some loan contracts in some years."

The latest survey questioned borrowers, rather than the lenders. About 17 percent of all farm operators — represented by the survey who bought insurance did so because it was required by lenders.

"Considering just the three major lenders (FCS, FmHA and commercial banks), almost 31 percent of their borrowers represented by the survey who bought federal crop insurance said they did so because of a requirement by their lender," the report said.

The three institutions accounted for about 80 percent of the nation's farm loan volume in 1988.

Of the total number of borrowers who said they were required to buy insurance, almost half were required to do so by banks. Roughly one-third said they were required by FmHA, and one out of seven by the FCS.

WASHINGTON — Some consumer groups and others want the Agriculture Department to disclose more test information about a proposed new beef inspection plan before a scientific panel completes its review.

The Government Accountability Project, a leader in the coalition's demands, said Monday it planned to file a lawsuit in U.S. District Court here asking that the USDA data be released under the Freedom of Information Act.

At the heart of the controversy is the department's long-pending plan for a "streamlined inspection system" for beef that has been undergoing pilot tests in preparation for final review by the National Academy of Sciences. The NAS was contracted by USDA for $170,000 to review the proposal.

The plan, called SIS-Beef, would require participating meat plants to take greater responsibility for some of the chores traditionally done by federal inspectors.

Agency officials contend that the inspectors would then concentrate more on checking for disease and other defects that can affect meat in the consumer pipeline. Each participating plant would have to submit a quality control plan in advance for USDA approval.

Critics claim that under the plan fewer inspectors would monitor plants and that beef would be turned out under speeded-up, slipshod, dirty conditions as a result of companies taking over some of the duties previously performed by federal inspectors.

Tom Devine of the Government Accountability Project said the NAS review should be delayed until the department releases more information. GAP is a non-profit public interest group that provides legal support for government whistle-blowers.

"It's our contention that serious public health decisions shouldn't be made on the basis of secret reports," Devine said in a telephone interview. "The reason these things aren't being released is they couldn't withstand scrutiny."

But the USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service, which oversees the program, said results at the pilot plants show the SIS system "compares favorably with the traditional system" of federal inspection.

Spokesman Jim Green said the agency denied the request by Devine and others for more information on the ground that "some of it is proprietary" and not allowed to be made public.

"Some of it has a direct bearing on the ongoing agency contract with NAS, and release of that information to a third party would interfere with the scientific process and possibly compromise the results of that contract (with NAS)," he said.

WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department is sending a team of scientists to the Soviet Union this fall to help set up a computer bank for Russian plants.

Information about seeds and other plant reproductive material — germplasm — will be stored in a Soviet data base modeled after a Germplasm Resources Information Network, called GRIN, developed by the department's Agricultural Research Service.

Reservists served nation in Panama

PLAINVIEW (AP) — As the United States celebrates its 214th birthday Wednesday, some Texas Army reservists recall how the special skills they possess in civilian life were pressed this year into the nation's service.

The Texans, along with colleagues from across the nation, were called to serve active duty tours of 31 to 139 days as part of an elite Army team known as Civil Military Operations Task Force South. The task force was made up of citizen-soldier experts charged with a post-combat mission of nation building and restoration of democracy in Panama.

Many of the soldiers wore civilian clothes, not battle fatigues, to serve as advisers.

The regular Army has only one civil affairs battalion. The majority of its strength in that area is in reserve units nationwide, one of which is the 413th Civil Affairs Company in Lubbock.

"An army study had revealed that our unit, and two others like it in Abilene and San Antonio, had the largest percentage of Spanish speaking soldiers in the country," said Tommy Combs, unit aide for the 413th. "More than 50 percent of our men speak Spanish, and that's what they needed."

"Fort Bragg called our commander directly, because that is where the operation was being coordinated," Combs said. "We sent them a biographical sketch on each man available, and they picked from that list."

The 321st Civil Affairs group in San Antonio and the 490th Civil Affairs Company in Abilene also supplied men for the mission.

A stint in Panama was the farthest thing from the mind of the postmaster of Abernathy, of a farmer from Idalou, and two officers of the Texas Department of Public Safety when their phones rang Dec. 20 alerting them their skills were needed in Panama.

Jesse Mendoza, an Army reserve Captain and Department of Public Safety officer stationed in Plainview, put his law enforcement background into play when called to active duty with a 21-member team of men highly skilled in civilian police work.

C.A. "Tony" Richardson, a DPS intelligence officer in Lubbock, was on annual training duty at a 2-week Army leadership course at Fort Chaffee, Ark., in mid-January when he learned the Army wanted him in Panama.

Richardson left Fort Chaffee on Friday; spent a day in Lubbock with his family, then left Sunday to join the same team of U.S. police personnel as Mendoza would be on. "You spend your life training for real life situations, and when you get an opportunity to use that training, see all the plans made for years coming together, it is in a way kind of exciting," Richardson said.

Mendoza says his wife wholeheartedly supported his efforts and even his 3-year-old son Mark comprehended much of what was going on while Dad left job and family behind in January.

"His daycare teacher, Mrs. Frances Sams, told me he was telling everyone at the center that 'My Daddy is in the Army. He's in Panama.' Apparently, he knew just where I was," Mendoza recalls.

While the families of Mendoza and Richardson took the Army service in stride, so did their employer, the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Maj. V.J. Cawthon, regional commander of the DPS in Lubbock, said he and the DPS were glad to see Mendoza and Richardson have an opportunity to share their law enforcement knowledge with Panama.

"We as a department were pleased they could add their services down there when needed," Cawthon said. "You may never know exactly how far reaching the effects of what they did will be."

The DPS officers were involved in planning sessions with Panamanians, helping brainstorm the framework for a national police academy — a task that Panama's vice president Guillermo Ford told the U.S. Congress is currently a top priority for the country.

Census

significantly undercounting Texas again."

Subcommittee chairman Tom Sawyer, D-Ohio, said the Census Bureau had encountered in Texas "many of the conditions that make census-taking difficult — a highly mobile population, literacy and language barriers, sparsely populated areas, poverty and fear of government."

State Rep. Alex Moreno, D-Edinburg, questioned whether the failure to count Rio Grande Valley migrant workers was an "intentional effort to undercount the population of a significant Democrat-dominated area."

Judith Sanders-Castro of San Antonio, staff attorney for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, said the census will have to be adjusted.

"The commitment voiced by the Bureau to reach out to the Hispanic was not backed by a budget or actions," Ms. Sanders-Castro said. But Darby said census workers went to extraordinary lengths to be sure everyone was accounted for.

He told of census takers using their own boats to visit houses cut off by floods this spring, and of one crew leader who worked from a hotel room after she was evacuated from her own home. Nationally, he said, 98.7 percent of all known housing units were counted as of Monday.

"I am sure by now that you share my belief that the shrill concerns about the completeness and accuracy of the 1990 census are simply not supported by the facts," Darby told the subcommittee.

Moreno and Ms. Sanders-Castro were unconvinced, questioning whether the same diligence had been used to count migrant farm workers who left the Valley early to look for work elsewhere after a hard freeze in December killed many crops.

Land Commissioner Mauro said, "I find it disheartening that anybody really believes that we've counted 98.7 percent of our residents."

"If they would just say, 'We've got real problems and we're going to work real hard to solve them,' I'd feel a whole lot better," Mauro said.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox recommended, as he said he did 10 years ago, that the U.S. Postal Service conduct the census.

"The Postal Service is already in the field, and they already know the territory," Mattox said. "They could give us the most accurate count ever. In one week, or even one day, we could cover the entire country."

The census is taken every 10 years as required by the Constitution. Results are used in determining federal funding for programs and in legislative and congressional redistricting.
