Board to consider book update

The city's electrical board will consider the electrical book during its monthly meeting on Thursday. The board will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the conference room of city hall. The two items on the agenda are: approval of June 21 meeting minutes; and review and update electrical book.

Items worth $13,000 reported stolen

Burglars stole electronics equipment valued at more than $13,000 Monday from a home on the southwest side. According to police reports, thieves broke a window at a residence in the 2600 block of Albright Drive and took electronic entertainment items, as well as record albums and compact discs. Stolen items and their value include: Sony 25-inch TV, $1,400; 300 albums, $3,600; 200 compact discs, $3,000; TAEC real to real player, $500; amplifier, $800; pre-amp, $400; two 120-watt speakers, $995; four Realistic 25-watt speakers, $400; amplifier, $400; Realistic cassette deck single player, $150; Kenwood cassette deck double player, $200; Sony disc player, $300; Realistic turn table, $150; and a Philco 25-inch TV and an RCA 12-inch TV with a combined value of $900.

Police Lt. Terry Chamness said a detective was assigned to the case this morning and has begun an investigation.

Pesticide dropoff stations set up

People who still own the banned pesticide chlordimeform, known by the trade names of Galecron and Fundal, will be paid for turning in the remaining pesticide to a statewide collection program.

One of eight state dropoff points will be open Wednesday in Lamesa from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Hughes Fertilizer Inc. on North 22, 1/4 mile west of Highway 87. Another one will be open Friday in Veribest from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Veribest Ag Supply eight miles east of San Angelo on FM 380. "This is a free, no-strings-attached collection program to get rid of a banned chemical," Texas Agricultural Department Commissioner Jim Hightower announced. "We won't even ask for names and addresses. And if farmers have unopened containers of the pesticide, the manufacturers will pay for them."

There will be no reimbursement for partially full or opened containers. However, the manufacturing firms of Ciba-Geigy and Nor-am, working in cooperation with the TDA, will bear all responsibility and expense associated with disposal of the products.

Chlordimeform was banned by the Environmental Protection Agency in 1989 at the request of its manufacturers.

BSISD hires band director, counselor

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

The Big Spring Independent School District board of trustees hired three staff members and accepted two resignations in its regular meeting Monday.

Denise Gandy was hired as high school counselor. Gandy has 18 years of experience in teaching and counseling.

Edward F. Gellner will take over as high school band director beginning with summer band workouts Aug. 6. Gellner has worked in top band director positions at several Texas schools, most recently in Round Rock. He has 18 years experience with marching and concert bands, composing and music theory instruction.

His wife, Joann Gellner, will teach at the elementary level, placement to be assigned.

Resignations were accepted from two teachers:

Jana Erwin, Washington Elementary first grade, leaving to take a position in Midland.

Karen Lee, Goliad Middle School choir, moving to Granbury.

"Hopefully we are winding down on resignations," said Assistant Superintendent Murray Murphy.

"July 20 is our actual date to cease (accepting) resignations, but there will always be exceptions. We may have some surprises yet."

The board approved some changes to its policy DEE, expense reimbursement, to match federal funding requirements. The changes were made to comply with changes in the IRS code concerning employees travel and Texas Education Agency recommendations.

Zoning approved for nursing home tract

By MICHAEL DUFFY Staff Writer

The Big Spring Planning and Zoning Commission approved the request of an Austin-based company for a tract of land Monday night to be used as the site of a 119-bed nursing home.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said the commission approved a 4.02-acre No. 7 "neighborhood services" tract located at the northwest corner of Wasson and Parkway roads.

"If the council passes the commission's recommendation tonight, the firm will have cleared all the administrative hurdles with the city of Big Spring," Decell said.

Larry Voegtle, president of Signature Contracting Group, Inc., the company planning construction of the project, said today even if

Flash floods and tornadoes strike southern Texas

By KELLEY SHANNON Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO — South Texans started to clean up from flash-flooding and tornado damage just as another downpour drenched the region, forcing more residents from their homes.

The National Weather Service predicted rain for the San Antonio area through today. Forecasters also issued flash flood warnings for several South Texas counties Monday afternoon.

"All over town in the low-lying areas they are evacuating people," said Jenny Garcia, a Dimmit County Sheriff's Department dispatcher in Carrizo Springs. "We do have shelters set up. The Red Cross has been notified."

In Kerrville and Leming, residents cleaned up from tornadoes that touched down Sunday as storms swept South Central Texas.

Six people were taken to hospitals from a tornado that struck a residential section of Kerrville, but no one was seriously injured, officials said.

Business managers in downtown San Antonio mopped mud and smelly water out of their businesses Monday after showers dumped up to 14 inches of rain in some parts of the city. Flooding also stranded some motorists in their cars and forced evacuations in other counties.

Tax hike possible solution

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

The board of trustees began its yearly budget workshop Monday by looking at a complete picture of the district's financial status and considering an increase in local taxes.

They were presented with a budget that would leave the district with a deficit of about $500,000, and discussed expense cuts and tax increases to effectively balance it.

"(The board) has been looking at three possible tax rates: the effective rate, a 1 percent increase and 2 percent increase," McQueary said. "They (board members) have said they do not want to go any higher than the effective rate."

The effective tax rate is a rate which would bring in the same amount of revenue as the previous year's rate.

For the district, the current taxation rate is 1.076 cents per $100 of valuation. To generate the same amount of revenue, the district would have to increase the rate by 2.8 cents, McQueary said.

"We figured out that on a $50,000 home, that's about $14 per year," he said.

The board faces a decrease in local property values this year. The amount of revenue lost as a result is estimated at $8 million to $12 million, though actual figures will not be available until sometime later in the year.

Superintendent Bill McQueary said the board began looking at ways to cut expenditures and will continue to do so tonight.

The board considered some large expenditures that could be cut for next year, including a planned roof for Goliad Middle School, which would cost $180,000, and im-

Child support sets new record

AUSTIN (AP) — Child support collections in Texas in June totaled more than $20 million, for a new record, Attorney General Jim Mattox said.

Mattox credited the opening of 21 new offices and special monitoring and enforcement projects with helping set the third straight monthly record.

"In April, we brought in $18.5 million; in May, we collected $19.9 million, and last month we drew $20.4 million. All three beat the previous monthly record of $17.5 million we set in June 1989," Mattox said Monday.

"These are more than just numbers. Each dollar collected helps families put food on the table or repays Texas taxpayers for welfare funds that supported these children when their absent parents didn't," he said.

MHMR board gets Midland member

AUSTIN (AP) — A retired banker from Midland has been appointed by Gov. Bill Clements to the Texas Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Edward Brunson Weyman, 57, will fill the unexpired term of F. O'Neil Griffin of Kerrville, who resigned. Weyman will serve until Jan. 31, 1993.

Weyman has served as chairman of the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

In another appointment, Clements picked William L. Arrington of Pampa to the Interstate Oil Compact Commission.

Arrington, 57, is president of a holding company for oil and gas exploration and production activities and farming and ranching interests.

Officials capture escaped trusty

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A trusty who escaped from the Bexar County Jail after claiming he had been moved from laundry to kitchen duties was captured about 12 hours later at a relative's home, authorities said.

Bexar County Sheriff Harlon Copeland said Jimmy Hernandez, 20, of San Antonio had been sentenced to four years in prison for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. He was awaiting transfer to state prison.

Hernandez, assigned to the laundry room, told other trusties Monday morning he had been transferred to the jail kitchen, Copeland said. Hernandez put on a khaki kitchen uniform and went to the kitchen, the sheriff said.

When a milkman arrived to make a delivery, trusties were called to haul in the milk. When the door was opened, Hernandez allegedly pushed back the trusties as though he were going after milk, but then broke free and ran, Copeland said.

Hernandez was arrested about 6:30 p.m. Monday. Three other people also were taken into custody at the relative's house, officials said.

Dead man's parents sue UT fraternity

AUSTIN (AP) — The parents of a University of Texas student who died in a 1988 fraternity ritual have filed a $30 million lawsuit against the fraternity.

Delta Tau Delta and Delta Tau Delta International, based in Indianapolis, were named in the lawsuit filed by Laura Boyle and Pat Boyle of Houston, the mother and stepfather of Gregg Scott Phillips.

The lawsuit, filed Friday, alleges that the fraternity was negligent in the Sept. 21, 1988, death of Phillips, who fell off a 125-foot cliff while being chased by two pledges.

It seeks $5 million in actual damages and $25 million in exemplary damages.

NASA identifies shuttle problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA Administrator Richard Truly predicted today that space shuttle flights will resume by the first of September now that scientists have identified unrelated hydrogen leaks on two of the vehicles.

"We were afraid that we had what we call a generic problem, something we had overlooked that might really be a dangerous situation that would have a long-term effect," Truly said on ABC's "Good Morning America."

"As it turned out, it was just the terrible coincidence of two separate, specific leaks. We have found them both and now, since it did involve two orbiters and two payloads, we're now just looking at schedules to see what is the most effective way to get back to flight."

He said a new flight schedule probably will be announced later today or tomorrow, and predicted that flights will resume by mid-August or the first of September.

"The system didn't go down for three years like it did after Challenger, it went down for three or four weeks," he said.

NASA grounded the space shuttle fleet after a hydrogen leak was found in Columbia in May and another leak was found on Atlantis last month. Columbia, which had been poised for launch on an astronomy mission, was rolled back to the hanger and partially dismantled. The part that was leaking has now been replaced.

Atlantis remains on the pad and NASA officials said its leak may be repaired without taking the shuttle back to the hanger.

Truly acknowledged that problems with the shuttle and the Hubble telescope could prompt the public to question NASA's competence, but said a management review panel announced Monday is intended to look at long-range plans rather than second-guess recent problems.

He said Vice President Dan Quayle "fully understands that these recent events have been separate events that didn't have anything to do with each other."

"What we talked about most was the future, where we're going in future years and how a NASA of the future might be structured and how we could get advice on where it would move to," said Truly. "We agreed to do something we both thought was the right thing to do and that is get in a few people that have some real top experience in both government and industry management and report to me and take a look at where we might go in the future."

However, the Bush administration's decision to have an outside panel study the nation's long-term space goals is getting a cool reception from some lawmakers.

"After a weekend of rumors that the administration was going to ask some fundamental questions about NASA, we now find it will create yet another group," said Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., chairman of a subcommittee that oversees the space program.

The panel, which is being appointed in response to a spate of recent embarrassments to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, will report to Quayle, head of the National Space Council.

"Is it too much to ask that in the wake of these multiple mistakes that President Bush should do what President Reagan did not do after the Challenger tragedy — give personal attention to the problems at NASA," Gore said.

Rep. Michael Andrews, D-Texas, also said strong leadership, not another study, is needed to solve the problems in the space program.

Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., chairwoman of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee that has oversight responsibility for NASA, summoned Truly and former space agency Administrator James Beggs to a hearing Wednesday.

NASA needs congressional support to continue the $32 billion space station scheduled for a critical design review this year, a planned Earth study called "Mission to Planet Earth," and the president's announced goal of a permanent manned base on the moon and an expedition to Mars.

Burned tanker sold for scrap to German mill

GALVESTON (AP) — A Norwegian tanker that exploded and burned in the Gulf of Mexico last month has been sold for scrap to a German steel mill, a Houston attorney said.

The 886-foot Mega Borg, which threatened to break up and spew 38 million gallons of crude into the Gulf, was sold for about $2.4 million, attorney Robert Klawetter said Monday. He said the buyers' identities have not been disclosed and that the sale was arranged through a ship broker in Gibraltar.

Klawetter said a contract was signed on July 13, and the new owners are to take possession of the vessel by Friday.

"The ship is going to be towed to Karachi, Pakistan, where it will be broken up for scrap," he said. "They anticipate it will take about two months to tow it to Karachi."

An explosion ripped through the pump room of the vessel June 8 as it was transferring its Angolan crude to another vessel for transport to a Houston refinery about 57 miles southeast of Galveston.

Two men died in the explosion, two are missing and presumed dead, and 37 others were rescued by a nearby vessel.

The fire aboard the tanker burned out of control for four days. Salvage crews brought the blaze under control with water and foam and extinguished it a week after the explosion.

Smit American Salvage Inc., which coordinated the massive effort to save the Mega Borg and its $22 million cargo, has crews standing by the vessel as a precaution.

The U.S. Coast Guard estimated that 3.9 million gallons of crude escaped the vessel. Most of that burned or evaporated. Skimmers collected at least 200,000 gallons of oil from the water. The rest of the cargo was successfully removed from the ship.

Animals rights group disputes bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's most outspoken group on behalf of animals has spoken out on Rep. Charles Stenholm's proposal to make it a federal crime to steal from farmlots and research labs.

They don't like it.

Ingrid Newkirk, director of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, said Monday that Stenholm's proposal hurts whistleblowers and violates the First Amendment.

A bill by Stenholm, D-Stamford, making theft of animals punishable by up to three years in prison and a $10,000 fine, was scheduled for hearing by a House agriculture panel today.

Stenholm became active in the debate over animal research rights after activists last July stole research animals from a laboratory at Texas Tech.

In a letter to Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., who chairs the subcommittee that is holding the hearing, Ms. Newkirk said PETA does not advocate violence. But she urged the panel to "broaden its vision."

"There are much better solutions," she said, pointing to alternative legislation offered by Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C.

Rose's bill allows people to file a lawsuit on behalf of animals. That would "eliminate any excuse for anyone claiming that an illegal action was the only way to stop violations of animal care regulations," Ms. Newkirk said.

She said Stenholm's bill will seal animal welfare records at labs and farms.

Pro-Israeli sentenced to 90 days

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge sentenced a wealthy pro-Israel activist to 90 days in prison for making an illegal $120,000 campaign contribution to aid the re-election of Alan Cranston in the 1986 Senate race.

"You must be made an example," U.S. District Judge Ronald S.W. Lew told Michael Goland during sentencing Monday. "There must be deterrence."

Goland, 43, was convicted of a misdemeanor charge of making the illegal contribution in the tight race between Cranston and his Republican challenger, Ed

Zschau of Los Altos. Goland was accused of paying for a $120,000 television advertisement for American Independent Party candidate Ed Vallen to help split the conservative vote between he and Zschau to aid Cranston, who is considered liberal.

Cranston is a long-time supporter of Israel and Goland felt Zschau might be less supportive of continued aid for the Middle East nation. The candidates were not implicated in the case. Cranston beat Zschau by about 100,000 votes.

Group denies subliminal messages

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Subliminal messages such as "try suicide," "let's be dead" and "do it" in a song by the heavy metal band Judas Priest led two young men to shoot themselves in a suicide pact, their parents' lawyers say.

Members of the British rock group deny any such messages were hidden in their music. They and CBS Records are being sued by parents of the men, Raymond Belknap and James Vance.

The parents contend the young men hatched the suicide plot as they drank, smoked marijuana and listened to the album "Stained Class" — and particularly the song "Better By You, Better Than Me" — in 1985.

"What pushed the boys over the edge to eternity was the subliminal push," Vivian Lynch, the Vance family's attorney, said

Soviet soldiers prepare to leave on vacation from Wuenndorf, East Germany in June. Divided states can't come to an agreement

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — While most of Europe is on the threshold of unification, Yugoslavia's deeply divided states cannot agree on how to remain together. The troubled Balkan country is on the brink of disintegration.

"Yugoslavia no longer exists," said Dimitrij Rupel, foreign minister of Slovenia, the republic leading the rebellion against Yugoslavia as the world has known it for the last 70 years.

The country was formed as a joint kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes in the aftermath of World War I.

After being occupied and dismembered by the Germans in 1941, it re-emerged as a Communist-style federation of six "peoples' republics" with Macedonia, Montenegro and Bosnia-Herzegovina added to the three pre-war states under Yugoslavia's Communist founder Josip Broz Tito.

During the Cold War, Tito's nationalist politics were useful to the West, which provided significant financial and other support to non-aligned Yugoslavia as a check on Soviet influence in the sensitive Balkans.

This in turn helped Tito impose unity and the rule of a Communist Party that ostensibly rose above Yugoslavia's traditional ethnic rivalries.

But traditional ethnic and regional rivalries began to bubble after Tito's death in 1980. And the message of greater democracy and human rights that spurred last year's revolutions in Eastern Europe also worked against the old-style centralized rule from Belgrade.

On July 2, Slovenia proclaimed its full sovereignty, establishing an independent legal system and asserting the right to control all armed forces stationed on its territory.

Nations hail Gorbachev's decision

LONDON (AP) — Western countries are praising Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's decision to allow a united Germany the freedom to join NATO, calling it a turning point in European history.

The decision, announced Monday by Gorbachev and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, was "an extremely positive development in Soviet thinking," Britain's Foreign Office said.

"We have throughout argued that a united Germany in NATO would be in the best interests of all those concerned," it said in a statement.

In Washington, President Bush said Gorbachev's action "strengthens efforts to build enduring relationships based on cooperation."

By dropping its objection to NATO membership for a united Germany, the Soviet Union removed the last big obstacle to German unification.

Drug smugglers extradited to U.S.

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — In a move sure to anger cocaine bosses, the Colombian government has extradited to the United States two more men accused of drug trafficking, one a native Texan, police say.

Both were sent to the United States on Monday night, bringing to 19 the number of suspects extradited since August, when the government declared war on cocaine traffickers.

President-elect Cesar Gaviria promised Monday to fight government in Medellin slums, where drug traffickers are hiring teen-agers as assassins in their war to stop extraditions, the fate they fear most.

The Texas native extradited was identified as Eduard George Mitchell, a U.S. citizen wanted on drug smuggling charges in Wisconsin.

The other suspect, Jose Gil Zapata, is a Colombian charged in a Florida court with cocaine trafficking, a police spokesman said in a telephone interview.

Philippines earthquake kills 193

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Authorities said today that about 200 people were killed in a major earthquake, and television reports said the worst affected areas were woefully short of blood, medicine and rescue equipment.

U.S. military units rushed to two of the worst affected areas with medical supplies and engineering equipment to help clear rubble. Japan and other countries also provided help.

President Corazon Aquino today visited the quake-stricken city of Cabanatuan and declared a state of emergency in the affected areas.

Scores of buildings were destroyed by Monday's temblor and the death toll was expected to rise as rescuers pulled more bodies from the rubble.

The Office of Civil Defense counted 193 dead and 585 injured in the quake, which measured 7.7 on the Richter scale and struck the country's main island of Luzon, including Manila. Its epicenter was 60 miles north of the capital.

RESCUE SOLDIERS

Plant plot can poison pigs, people

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Plants in this garden range from those whose names suggest danger — rattlebox, water hemlock, snakeroot — to those that seem as innocent as a backyard in spring — tomato, daffodil, black walnut.

Don't be fooled. In this small field, all the plants are poison.

When the quarter-acre plot at the University of Illinois is complete, students will study nearly 100 varieties of vegetables, shrubs, trees and weeds that can be toxic to humans or animals.

The main idea is to give veterinary students a look at plants that can cause sickness and death in house pets or livestock, said Val Beasley, who teaches toxicology.

"Students need to see the real plants in all their growth stages — spring, summer and fall," said Beasley. "They can stroll through the garden at lunchtime; it's a lot better than looking at slides."

The plants are being put into the 50-by-150-foot plot, which will have mulch walkways and a chain fence. They will be labeled with their Latin and common names as well as the toxic symptoms they produce.

"When vet students get into practice, an owner might come in and say, 'This is what my animal has been chewing on,'" said Beasley. "Or they might go to his home and see one of these plants and make a quick diagnosis."

If a pig eats pigweed, it can suffer kidney failure; if a cow nibbles on a fallen cherry branch, its cyanide can be lethal; if a horse encounters black walnut shavings, its hoofs can become swollen and sore, and if it eats a Japanese yew, its heart can stop.

"The animal is walking along and drops dead," said Beasley. "People think he's been struck by lightning."

Beasley saw the need for a poison plant garden, and vet student Paula Bratich decided to make it her project.

She has raised money and gotten materials from businesses, hospitals and canine groups. She is working with university horticulturists on the design. The state will provide trees, and volunteers will gather plants as they travel through Illinois.

"The challenge will be creating the right habitat and getting all these things to grow well out here," said Bratich, pointing to the garden that now is marked by a row of Japanese yews.

An S&L recipe for Fail-ure

Let's call it a Fail-safe deal. You're the federal government, and you have 15 stinking Texas thrift institutions on your hands. They are bankrupt, they are costing you money by the hour, and you want to get rid of them fast. So what do you do?

Well, if you're M. Danny Wall, former head of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, you get in touch with James M. Fail, a Phoenix businessman who might be interested in taking the S&Ls off your hands.

Such a deal federal banking officials offered Fail, despite the fact that several insurance companies he has operated have run into legal problems with regulators and prosecutors. Of course, the feds insisted that Fail put up some of his own money — $1,000 of it. He was allowed to borrow $70 million. And just to sweeten the deal a little more, he was promised $1.85 billion in federal subsidies.

Fail took the failed thrifts and consolidated them into Dallas-based Bluebonnet Savings. Thanks to his amazing Fail-safe deal, Bluebonnet bloomed. It was the most profitable large S&L in the nation last year.

Federal regulators concluded that Bluebonnet's profitability was "solely due to the extensive assistance provided by (the) Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation." That is hardly surprising since Bluebonnet made only four new loans in all of 1989. The "extensive assistance" came in the form of the first $250 million in federal payments that Bluebonnet will be getting over the next 10 years.

This latest S&L outrage comes to the public's attention courtesy of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee investigating the S&L "black hole" (committee Chairman Howard Metzenbaum's term).

The "black hole," the largest financial bailout in the nation's history, is expected to consume some $200 billion of American taxpayers' money, enough to rescue the nation of East Germany and put it on a sound footing. Add another $200 billion in interest on the debt, and the total could rescue all of Central Europe.

Accept the General Accounting Office's $500 billion estimate, plus interest, and comparisons boggle the mind. If the GAO is right, every man, woman and child in America will owe at least $2,000.

The government has put 155 failed S&Ls out of business in the past three months, but it still holds a backlog of 247 institutions, plus all the assets those institutions hold. More thrifts will fail; more horror stories will surface.

Now that the public is beginning to pay attention, politicians are angrily and apprehensively pointing fingers. They should leave that nasty chore to the American people and tend to urgent business long neglected.

Their pointing fingers likely will be needed to plug other potential black holes — in the commercial banking industry and in government loan guarantees to students, farmers, small businesses and veterans. Not unlike the thrift industry a decade ago, these are disasters waiting to happen.

Golf: Death to good dinner conversation

By ART BUCHWALD

For reasons that escape me, the obsession of our time is golf. Not since bowling has any sport become such a craze.

It's not that people play it, but it has become their main topic of conversation when they are off the links. Golf is now the road to business success and is considered the only ladder to upward mobility.

If I sound bitter, I have reason to be. I spent $290 for dinner the other night, and the only subject my guests talked about was the difficulty of hitting a little white ball with a seven iron.

"Do we have to talk golf?" I asked.

They all gasped.

Dinah said, "Is there anything else to talk about?"

I replied, "What difference does it make if you hit the ball in the rough, the sand or the water? When the game is over, it's over, over there."

David expounded, "Golf is only over for those who were never there. Golfers remember every stroke of every game they ever played. That's because we have invested our lives in the sport."

I protested, "But do you really care if Dinah shanked her drive or not?"

"Not really," Richard said. "But if I don't listen to her story, she won't listen to mine."

"I'm very good on details," Dinah told us.

"The trouble with golf is that it has become more than a game," I argued. "Most of our important decisions are now being made on the fairways of this land. People are being given responsibility for nuclear reactors, not based on their ability but on their golf scores. A guy who shoots a 76 is considered a better architect than one who shoots a 103. A brain surgeon who scores an 89 is held in higher esteem than one who can only shoot 120."

Art Buchwald

"What's wrong with that?" Richard asked. "Americans look up to those players with low scores. I was on the course the other day with a terrific golfer. He birdied half his holes. Well, I did what anybody who plays golf would do under the circumstances. I gave my insurance business to him instead of to Ida Kessel, who never leaves her office for lunch."

"People who don't play golf shouldn't pass judgments on those who do," Dinah said. "We who play at country clubs have paid our dues."

"All right. But if golf is such a healthy activity, why do you need golf carts to get around the course?"

"Because with a cart you can get back to the club faster and tell everyone about your game," David explained to me.

"He's making that up," Dinah said. "Golf is a sport on wheels and the less time you spend walking, the more time you have to study the lay of the ball. I don't believe you would have this surge of interest in the game if there wasn't public transportation from hole to hole."

"I got a 15-foot putt today," Richard told the group.

David sounded excited, "Let's hear all about it, and don't leave out any of the details."

"I don't want to hear about it," I protested.

"Don't be too sure," Dinah said. "Richard's stories are always much better than his golf."

Dollars with a social conscience

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Time was when buying a can of beans was as easy as pie.

You had to consider whether the beans would be tasty and nutritious and wouldn't have too much salt.

It's not that simple any more. Now a savvy consumer considers whether he should be buying his beans in biodegradable containers and, beyond that, the social policies of the company that cans the beans.

Does it hire and promote women? Trade with South Africa? Also manufacture cigarettes? Pollute? Recycle? Test its products on animals?

Some investors also are raising questions like that. They want to know whether the companies they support do more than merely make a profit. They want their investment dollars to have a social conscience.

That process of looking into corporate policies has been given a lot of names: "green consumerism," "economic democracy," "corporate responsibility" or "empowerment." Opponents might call it supermarket socialism.

"We call it casting an economic vote," said Leslie Gottlieb, representative of the Council on Economic Priorities, a 21-year-old nonprofit research organization and a proponent.

"In the '90s, people have a need to be empowered," she said. "They want to know the policies behind the companies they support and invest in. We no longer want to be guided only by advertising slogan."

Last year, the council published a booklet, "Shopping for a Better World: A Quick & Easy Guide to Socially Responsible Supermarket Shopping," which rates companies and products on 10 criteria.

The council took a chance and initially published 100,000 copies. The booklet is now in a mass market paperback published by Ballantine. Total sales have exceeded 699,000.

Growth has been rapid, too, in investment funds that buy stocks only in firms that meet "social responsibility" criteria.

The "socially responsible" investment funds of Calvert Group of the Washington suburb of Bethesda, Md., favor firms that avoid South Africa, Northern Ireland, nuclear power, weapons of mass destruction and animal testing, have progressive records on equal opportunity and promotion of women into the corporate boardroom; make safe, non-polluting and recyclable products and use alternative fuel sources.

"It turns out that of the top 1,000 publicly traded companies, 60 percent pass our criteria," said Steve Schueth, Calvert vice president for socially responsible investing.

John Schultz, president of the Social Investment Forum, a Minneapolis-based trade association, said the amount of money put in such "screened" investments went from $40 billion in 1984 to $500 billion this year.

Schueth said the phenomena goes back to the 1920s, when church groups steered their investment money away from stocks in tobacco, alcohol or gambling firms. "Socially responsible" investing is much further advanced in Europe, where it is pushed by the "green" environmental movement.

In America, "it is growing, but it is still minuscule because 99 percent of all decisions are made on other grounds," said sociologist Amitai Etzioni of George Washington University, who has kept an eye on the phenomenon.

"It is still so small that statistics cannot put a handle on it," he said. "I don't know if it is one-eighth of one-eighth of 1 percent."

It is essential to note that we are only talking about what business does at the margins," Etzioni added. "No one in his right mind thinks that business should dedicate itself solely to doing good."

Still, there's a philosophical argument against subjecting business decisions to a "socially responsible" test.

Nobel Prize-winning economist Milton Friedman, a well-known conservative, makes a distinction between how people spend and invest their own money and other people's money.

With their own money, they can do what they like, he said; but if they spend or invest on behalf of others it is irresponsible to make the decision on criteria not specified by the money's owner — usually to maximize profits or get the best buy.

"I doubt very much that much of the endowment of Harvard University, to take one example, was contributed by people who intended that Harvard should sacrifice income for some supposedly superior purpose," said Friedman.

(Harvard may disagree. The university announced recently that it has weeded tobacco stocks from its endowment's portfolios.)

Argued Friedman: "The fundamental principle is very simple. Responsibility is individual and not social. The very concept of social responsibility is a snare and a delusion."

As for whether the movement is a growing and permanent one, that depends.

Said Schultz: "If you make the decision that a corporate relationship to society is important, it is very difficult to unmake the decision."

He said it was "the kids at the school lunch counter" who compelled the nation's major tuna canners to stop buying tuna that had been caught by methods that also kill dolphins. As adults, he said, those kids will continue to press for business decisions made with a social conscience.

Said Friedman: "If society continues moving in a socialist direction, then it will be a permanent part of the landscape. If we should move in the opposite direction, then it will not be a permanent part."

So there's no telling if it will ever be easier to buy a can of beans.

Beyond the realm

The sky isn't falling!

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Random thoughts while getting up the nerve to move — again.

For those of you who have expressed concern about that strange stuff falling from the sky the past few days, relax — the sky, contrary to our fears, is not falling.

That wet stuff is called rain. Now, I know lots of West Texans are unfamiliar with this rain thing. Being a West Texan myself, I include myself in that category.

So, being the enterprising newshound that I am, I decided to investigate.

You folks aren't going to believe some of the things I discovered.

For starters, rain is actually — hold on to your seats — water that falls from the sky.

I know, I know, it sounds like I've been eating mushrooms, but I'm being serious.

Anyway, the man I talked to said there are places in this country where rain is a common occurrence.

"Do tell," I said.

"Really," the man replied. "Why, up in spots like Oregon and Washington, it's considered strange if it doesn't rain."

"You're fooling, right?"

"No, I'm totally serious."

"And these folks don't mind this stuff falling on their heads?"

"Naaw, they're used to it," he said. "In fact, if it didn't rain, they'd all probably think the world was going to end and start wearing 'Free Jim Bakker' T-shirts or something like that."

"OK, I can buy all that, but can they drive when it's raining?"

"Oh, sure."

"I'm serious," he said. "These folks zip around in the rain like it was the Indianapolis 500. I think they probably drive better on wet roads than dry ones."

"That is really weird," I said. "Tell me more about this rain stuff."

"Well, for one thing, you can drink it," he replied.

"Get outta here."

"I mean it, Reagan."

"You mean to tell me that water comes from the sky, and you can drink it? Without having to drill 10 miles into the earth?"

"God's truth."

"Wow, this place — Oregon, did you say? — sounds like something out of the Wizard of Oz. Next you're going to tell me the Good Witch of the South drives a water truck in Portland."

"Hey, mock me if you want," he said, "but I'm telling you the truth: That wet stuff that falls from the sky is called rain, it's made of water, you can drink it and there are places where this kind of thing happens all the time."

"And the folks that live there don't think all this is just a bit strange?"

"No," my friend said. "They think nothing about it. They just pick up their umbrellas and go to work as if nothing's happening."

"Wow."

"It's the truth — I swear."

"That's really weird, but I have just one more question," I said.

"What's that?"

"What's an umbrella?"

Reader: Toothless woman deserves no biting remarks

DEAR-ABBY: In regard to the little old lady who left her false teeth (dentures) on the lingerie counter of La Vogue's Department Store in Hoquiam, Wash.: The people at the store went to a lot of trouble tracking down the owner. They learned that she was a visitor from San Francisco, so they carefully wrapped the dentures, marked the package "fragile," insured it, and mailed it back to her. Seeing the humor of the situation, they wrote to you, mentioning that they had never received a thank-you note for their trouble.

Dear Abby

Abby, I am also an older person who forgets things constantly, and although my own teeth are securely fastened, I wouldn't fault a little old lady for failing to write a thank-you note. Anyone who could forget her false teeth, as she did, should be forgiven. So I hope the kind people at La Vogue's Department Store in Hoquiam will not cease being kind to old people who are forgetful because of this one incident. May I offer them my thanks for their kindness to the little old lady from San Francisco. I could sign this, "A Little Old Lady From Huntington Beach, Calif." — but my name is — JUANITA

DEAR JUANITA: Thank you for your thanks to the generous people at La Vogue's Department Store. I received a wonderful letter from William L. Bitar — one of the three bachelor brothers who operate this family-owned store, founded by their father, a Lebanese immigrant who came to this country years ago as a peddler. Mr. Bitar's letter (in part):

 "Dear Abby: Amazing! The reaction to the dentures story was tremendous. It had our little town of 9,000 in an uproar with laughter and humorous remarks. Everybody is talking about it. People come into our store and ask the clerks, 'Have you found any false teeth today?'
 "Our mayor, Phyllis Shrauger, said, 'Dear Abby has put Hoquiam on the map! Now the talk on the street is about false teeth instead of the timber industry and owls.'
 "Every man, woman and child in the United States must read 'Dear Abby.' Our store has had phone calls from New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, California, New Mexico, New Jersey, North Carolina, Seattle, Los Angeles, etc.

 "A lady from Pennsylvania told us a hilarious story about her grandfather misplacing his dentures. She plans on visiting our store on her next trip out west.
 "A man from Baltimore wanted to thank us for caring enough to locate the owner of the lost dentures so we could return them. A dentist phoned from Las Vegas to say that the dentist must have done a lousy job on those dentures, or that old lady wouldn't have taken them out in the store.
 "We had a lot of fun with that story. Thanks for printing it, Abby. We've been in business for 79 years, and have never had so much publicity.
 "As for the little old lady in San Francisco, we forgive her. She was probably so overjoyed at getting her teeth back, she forgot to thank us."

CONFIDENTIAL TO CONCERNED SISTER: It is not true that people who threaten to commit suicide seldom do. Tell your sister that when she feels life isn't worth living, she should call her local suicide prevention center. A trained member of its staff will talk to her about her problem. It is listed in your telephone directory, or call directory assistance.

DEAR ABBY: Your column covers such a broad variety of interesting subjects. I find it fascinating. Please provide me with an answer to this mysterious question: Has anyone ever grown a third set of teeth? — OOPAH IN

RAMONA, CALIF.
DEAR OOPAH: I asked Dr. Stan Golden, my dental consultant, who went to the root of the matter. His response: "Nature provides only two sets of teeth. Occasionally a person will grow a third tooth, but it is a rare occurrence. So, if a person is to have a third set of teeth, it will be made — by a dentist."

 "How to Be Popular" is for everyone who feels left out and wants an improved social life. It's an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Fashion graveyard Leisure suits featured among inventory

By KIRSTEN DIETZ
Wichita Falls Times Record News
WICHITA FALLS — Polyester leisure suits, bell-bottom pants and platform shoes have become passe in today's fashion world, but the third floor of Muehlberger's Men's Wear has remained suspended in time and the odor of moth balls.
 A mere flight of stairs up from the 1990s fashions of neon shorts and tailored suits are racks of clothing from the 1940s through the 1970s.
 Some of the brightly colored plaid pants and polyester suits are enough to make a visitor cringe at the thought that anyone could ever have worn such monstrosities.
 The inventory, from underwear to shoes to topcoats and hats, was merchandise that never sold, said Greg Muehlberger, co-owner of the store begun by his great-grandfather and grandfather. Most of the items were trendy ones, he said.
 "If you miss the boat, you keep it," he said.
 Muehlberger said the old idea of retailing was that a store kept an item instead of getting rid of it and cutting its losses.
 In those days, he said, the idea was to squeeze every penny possible from merchandise, "even if you have to hold on to it for years."
 The last addition to the third floor was made in the 1970s, Muehlberger said. Today the retail business moves at a quicker pace, and if an item does not sell, the store gets rid of it, he said.
 Some of the items that did not sell: blue suede platform shoes with brown leather trim; a double-knit denim-blue jacket with contrast stitching; a red-and-yellow patterned jacket with red piping and matching yellow and red pants; and 1950s bowling shirts.

 Jackets, lapels and pants legs range from the extremely narrow to the extremely wide. Service station and police uniforms, supplied for years by the store, also have a home on the third floor, along with patches for some of those uniforms. Many of the patches are reminders of companies that no longer exist.

 The out-of-date clothing is occasionally sold today, usually for theme or Halloween parties, Muehlberger said.
 Some of the clothing has run the gamut from fashionable to hideous to "funky."
 One of the third floor's best customers is a fifth-generation Muehlberger, Greg's daughter, Melissa. She wears a black-and-white-checked Nehru jacket scavenged from the third floor to team with a black skirt and white blouse.

 Some of her other discoveries include a red, white and blue vest sporting such '60s lingo as "soul," "funky," "hip" and "cool," a '60s tapestry vest with fringe; and a tailored, dark gray jacket worn by service station attendants in the 1950s.

Church convention ends with a change of heart

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Delegates to the world conference of the Seventh-day Adventist Church ended their meeting Saturday after making an exception to a hotly debated decision barring the ordination of women.
 The ruling body of the church voted Wednesday against allowing the ordination of women, after hours of discussion and splits along geographical lines among the 1,500 delegates to the 55th world conference.
 On Friday, delegates extended to women members some ministerial duties denied in the earlier vote. The change allows local congregations to grant women the right to perform marriages, a duty formerly reserved for ordained ministers.
 Church spokesman Herbert Ford said the rule change "does, in effect, allow women to be a little closer to ordination."
 In the earlier decision, delegates had voted along geographical lines, 1,173 to 377, to accept a commission's report that ordaining women would be disruptive to the world church and should not be allowed.

 European and North American delegates offered the greatest support for ordination, while leaders from Africa, Asia and South American overwhelmingly opposed letting women preach the gospel. The Seventh-day Adventist Church is separated into 11 geographical divisions encompassing 190 countries and 6.2 million members.
 Robert S. Folkenberg, the church's world leader, capped the 10-day conference in downtown Indianapolis on Saturday.
 "This unity is not uniformity," Folkenberg said in addressing the conference during worship service. "If God wanted a church of uniformity, he would not have made flowers of different colors."
 "We are not a family of God unless we are building bridges to all people of all nations," Ford said when he designated "local elders" by their congregation will be allowed to perform marriages with the approval of regional church officials.

The writing is on the wall at Frank's place

By VERONICA FLORES
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
HEBBRONVILLE — A red, size 9 King Comfort shoe box guards Francisco Gutierrez's past.
 The box, unceremoniously placed on a shelf behind the cash register at Frank's Cafe, contains pictures of Gutierrez's former girlfriends, World War II Army buddies and their girlfriends, and a well-preserved photo of Gutierrez's father.
 A quick glance, or long, wistful reviews of the box's contents induce tales from the 73-year-old owner of Frank's.
 His storytelling further adds to the charm of Frank's and can vary from customer to customer.
 Most times, though, Gutierrez — or Paco, as he is called — lets the advice written on yellowing white poster boards hung on the cafe's walls speak for itself.
 "Don't tell everything you know," quips one placard. "But know everything you tell."
 The poster-board quotes — more than 7,000 in all — are Gutierrez's hobby, one that won't take him away from his restaurant-bar, a business he has been cultivating for 44 years.
 A menu that once offered only menudo and chili con carne now boasts T-bone steaks, enchiladas and chicken-fried steaks — a phenomenon Gutierrez attributes to the growing popularity of Frank's among hunters and hungry travelers who happen upon this tiny South Texas community.
 "This place is famous because it's been here so long," Gutierrez said, a grin on his weathered face.

HEBBRONVILLE — Francisco "Paco" Gutierrez sits in front of a few posters offering words of wisdom at his Hebronville restaurant, Frank's Cafe.

He doesn't advertise, apparently much to the chagrin of telephone book advertising salesmen.
 Gutierrez said annual attempts by salesmen to persuade him to buy ads continue to prove unsuccessful. A boldface line in the white pages distinguishes the Frank's Cafe listing from other Hebronville residents and businesses.
 Word-of-mouth and the restaurant's reputation for homestyle food does much of the advertising for him. From September through March, empty chairs at Frank's are an unlikely sight. Reservations — a $1 per person — are just about the only way to gain entry.

 Plentiful hunting leases in the area provide the seven-month business boom, Gutierrez said, although Frank's also has a steady stream of regulars.
 If good food or good advice are not enticing enough, there also are photos and other evidence of famous drop-ins. Television celebrity Desi Arnaz and former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White are among the big names, as well as Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan, who recently celebrated his birthday at Frank's.

 The Jim Hogg County Courthouse, where Gutierrez's son, Rodolfo, prosecutes accused lawbreakers, is a frequent source of patrons. During a recent week-long trial, the visiting judge, three defense attorneys and the district attorney found their way to the dining hub.
 Three pool tables and three old-fashioned bar coolers filled with beer and soft drinks attract the local working weary.
 High ceilings in the old building, which dates from about 1919, allow torturous summer heat to rise and several large fans circulate the air to keep the former general store cool.
 The edifice, built by Gutierrez's father, is one of the few along East Galbraith Street that isn't boarded up. Screen doors creak their welcome to customers.
 Copper ceiling tiles, a white trellis toward the rear of the restaurant and a structure that once supported a running ladder are what remained of the general store.
 Corpus Christi resident Ed Hicks has been a frequent visitor to Frank's for about five years and continues to return because, "It's a good place to go and relax."
 "The food's great; the atmosphere is a lot of fun," Hicks said, adding, "You can go to Frank's and find out what's going on all over the (Rio Grande) Valley. That's the hot spot."

 improvements at Memorial Stadium, which would cost $25,000, among others.

This year's budget workshop will be less "taxing" than last year, when the local rate was increased by about 8 cents, McQueary said. An $800,000 increase in state funds and lower beginning deficit have made planning easier, he said.

"Tonight our focus is going to be on cutting expenditures," McQueary said. "We are hoping to hammer out a balanced budget within the next three days, and it looks like we will have to approve a (tax) increase or cut our expenditures. We want to look at those expenditures very carefully."

• John Villa Pantoja, 42, of Stanton, was arrested Monday and charged with driving while intoxicated. He was released on a $500 bond.

Congress considers 'right-to-die' laws

WASHINGTON (TNN) — Acting on the Supreme Court's finding of a constitutional right to die, Congress this week will consider legislation to make it easier for people to spell out in advance their wish to die.

Ruling in the landmark case of a comatose Missouri woman, eight Supreme Court justices last month said a person whose intentions are clearly known has a constitutional right to discontinue life-sustaining treatment. But the court differed on how specific these wishes must be.

The purpose of the bill, sponsors say, is to prompt more Americans to state their wishes in a "clear and convincing" way by executing living wills or powers of attorney that stay in effect despite a person's incapacity by illness or injury.

The legislation would require most health care providers to discuss these types of "advance directives" with their patients as "a routine part of medical care," the sponsors say. All but four states accept some kind of living will or power of attorney as a legally valid way of directing medical treatment ahead of time.

The measure's two principal authors are Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., and Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y. Their two states and Maine are alone in requiring the "clear and convincing" standard for proving the medical wishes of an incapacitated person.

In the Supreme Court case, the justices ruled 5-4 that Missouri could continue to sustain the life of Nancy Beth Cruzan, incapacitated in a 1983 car crash, because her family had not met that standard in suggesting she would have wanted her treatment stopped.

Original trial testimony included assertions from Cruzan's family and associates that she would not want to be kept alive in her condition, known as "a persistent vegetative state."

Consideration of the Senate bill will begin with a Friday hearing before the Subcommittee on Medicare and Long-Term Care. Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., the panel's chairman, has not taken a position on the bill, but says there is a "need to take a closer look at how individuals and families make decisions concerning medical treatment."

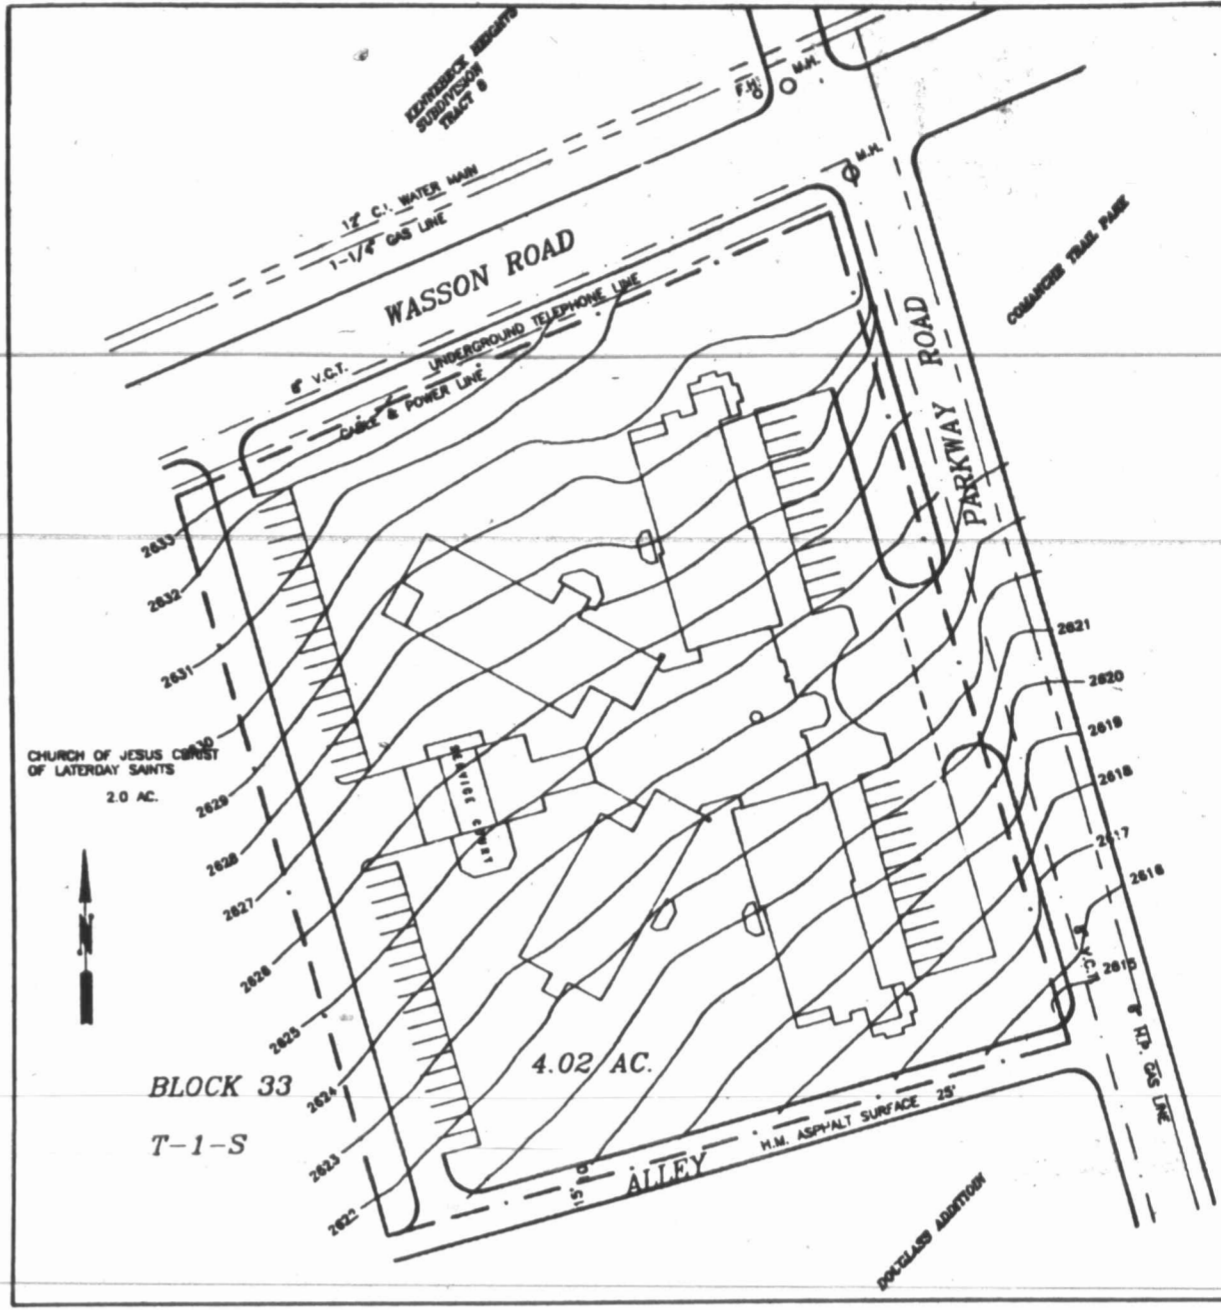

Under the legislation, any hospital, nursing home, home health agency or hospice receiving Medicaid or Medicare payments would have to provide information about what directives are binding under state law, ask patients if they have completed a living will or comparable order, record the answer in all medical records and then adhere to the expressed wishes.

Five other Democrats and four other Republicans are cosponsors of the Senate bill. A companion measure has been proposed in the House.

Friday's hearing will feature two witnesses, one from New York City and the other from Texas, who have been involved in right-to-die litigation.

One estimate is that 9 percent of adults have living wills, and fewer who have durable powers of attorney. Harvard University recently concluded that almost all Americans would make advance plans about their medical treatment if urged to do so.

There are about 10,000 people in the United States in the same vegetative state as Cruzan, in which the patient is unconscious and must be given food and water through a tube.

 located adjacent to Scenic Mountain Medical Center as the site of the proposed nursing home. However, an agreement with the owners of the tract, National Healthcare headquartered in Atlanta, "just didn't work out," according to Voegtle.

Officials with National

Healthcare were unavailable for comment this morning as to why the original deal collapsed.

Voegtle intimated that he would have preferred the nursing home to be built on the site located near the medical center, but will be pleased if the council grants approval for the alternate tract of land.

"If the test results are wonderful, construction will begin in from two to three weeks," Voegtle said.

He estimated that completion of the project will take about eight months and cost about $1.5 million. Completion of the nursing home will create between 60 to 75 new jobs, according to Voegtle.

first floor offices.

"They're airing out and drying some of them, so we're hoping it's not an insurmountable problem," said health district spokesman Joe Callahan.

Jim Ory, owner of House of the Bride dress shop near San Pedro Creek, and his employees rushed damaged wedding gowns to dry cleaners to try to save them.

"It looks like a wall of water came down here, not just rising water," Ory said.

Some bridal gowns on layaway were stored on high shelves and escaped the water, Ory said. "It's fortunate, especially for the ones who are getting married pretty soon," he said.

At Operation Friendship thrift store, workers threw out clothes.

"It's sewer water — it smells something terrible," assistant manager Iris Dominguez said. Dell Smith, manager of the non-profit thrift store, added: "It'll be non-profit now, for sure."

Mannequins at the nearby International Store were muddy up to their thighs, and the manager of a Texas State Optical store lost racks of eyeglasses and optical equipment.

"My seats are four blocks from here," Hal Harris said. "A lot of stuff completely disappeared."

Authorities had no exact figures on the downtown damage.

Some low-lying streets and sections of Interstates 35 and 37 had been closed because of flooding but were reopened Monday. Dozens were rescued from their cars overnight.

Further south in Atascosa County, people in a mobile home park were cleaning up Monday from a twister or twisters that demolished five mobile homes. No injuries were reported, said sheriff's department spokeswoman Ann Gates.

"We don't know if it was one twister that hit all five — they were several miles apart — or if it was two twisters," Ms. Gates said.

One mobile home washed into the San Saba River near Menard, where authorities evacuated half a dozen people.

Despite the downpours, San Antonio and other communities intended to enforce mandatory water rationing rules that took effect after weeks without rain.

despite opposition from two members, to disallow reimbursement for meals when overnight lodging is not required. Board member Al Valdes voiced his opposition to the change.

"When I vote on something I take it very seriously and I don't like it (the change in policy)," he said. "If a teacher has to go out of town for a meeting... we should pay the lunch. We're talking about small amounts of money."

Valdes and John Arrick voted against the policy change.

In other business, Andre Clark, principal of Kentwood Elementary, and Jean Broughton, principal of Bauer Elementary, were honored for the exceptional achievement of their students on the TEAMS test in 1988-89. They were presented with framed certificates.

"I understand that less than 1 percent of the schools in Texas were so honored," Murphy said. "This is a good example of what our schools are doing."

The board approved the sale of a lot in the Northside Addition. The sale, at a price less than the appraised value, must be approved by all four taxing entities.

It was announced that high school French teacher Nancy Koger will be exchanging her post with Josely Lacroix, a teacher in the French West Indies, this school year. Koger will spend a school year abroad teaching the language in that country, while Epiter, fluent in English, will spend the year in Big Spring.

The two teachers will meet at an orientation workshop in Washington, D.C. during early August.

daughter, Mary B. Merritt, Houston; eight grandchildren. He was preceded in death by one daughter.

Pallbearers will be Rocky Vieira, L.J. Jeter, Roy Keifer, Earl Coates, Robert Madigan, Gilbert Senter, Dewey Simond and R. C. Armstrong. Honorary pallbearers will be Troy Newburn, Omar Cashion and Samuel Myers.

The family suggests memorials to College Heights Christian Church or to the volunteer program at the VA Medical Center in Big Spring.

Jack Irons

Jack Irons, 72, Big Spring, died Sunday, July 15, 1990, after a year-long fight with cancer.

He was born in Paducah, Texas, on July 20, 1917. He was the great-grandson of Jesse Tannehill, a member of the original group of settlers that came to Texas with Stephen F. Austin.

He was a graduate of Paducah High School, where he played football. After graduation he began his life-long career with the West Texas Compress & Warehouse Company in Quannah, where he met his wife, Jennie Kate Brazil. They were married in Fort Worth in 1943. During World War II, he served in the Army Air Corp as a Tech Sergeant in the Training Command at Sheppard Air Field and Amarillo Air Base. After he was discharged in 1945, he moved to Big Spring and continued his career with the Compress Co. where he worked until his retirement in 1978. He was active in many national cotton association committees, including the Board of Directors of the National Cotton Compress & Warehouse Association.

He was an Elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Big Spring and a member of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank. He was active in many civic projects.

He is survived by his wife, Jennie Kate Irons, of Big Spring; two brothers: Beason, Paducah, and Edwin, Lubbock; three sons: Jack Ed, Dallas; Dick, San Angelo; and Mike, Midland; eight grandchildren.

Graveside services will be in Paducah Monday at 3 p.m. A memorial service is scheduled at 2 p.m., Tuesday, at the First Presbyterian Church, Big Spring.

ACU names new athletic director

ABILENE (AP) — Cecil Eager has been named athletic director of Abilene Christian University, the school announced Tuesday. Eager, 41, replaces A. Don Drennan, 54, who is taking an early retirement after 32 years with the university. Drennan made a three-year commitment to the job when he was named in 1988. "My commitment was to a three-year stay or until the university could find a long-term replacement," Drennan said.

Imposter takes place of the real champ

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Olympic silver medalist Roy Jones Jr. thought he knocked out Texas junior middleweight champion Derwin Richards in a professional fight Saturday. But Richards says Jones knocked out an imposter. "I was definitely not there," Richards, a security guard at a Houston correctional facility, said in a telephone interview Monday with the Pensacola News Journal. "I would like to fight Roy Jones, but that wasn't me fighting." His manager, Willie Savannah, also of Houston, backed up his fighter.

Internationals finish in third

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

The International Little League All-Stars went one better than last year, but the District III Little League title still eluded them. Midland North Central scored five runs in the last two innings and came away with a 5-0 blanking of the Internationals Monday night at Lawson Field. The elimination game gave the Internationals third place in the tournament; last year they finished fourth. North Central will play undefeated Midland Mid-City tonight at 7:30 at the Johnnie Hobbs Field, home of the American League. North Central got a superb pitching performance from Keith Lant. The hefty right-hander was near perfect against the usually hard-hitting Big Spring team. Mixing a good fastball with a big sweeping curve, he pitched perfect ball for the first three innings. He finished the game with a two-hitter, striking out nine and not allowing a walk. Big Spring never had a runner reach second base, and the closest it came to scoring was when first baseman Brandon McGuire hit a line shot homer foul over the right field fence in the second inning. The only International hits were singles by shortstop Joe Montez in the fourth inning, and pinch-hitter Scott Goodblanket in the sixth inning. On the other side, Big Spring's Jesse Hernandez pitched a strong game himself, despite not getting the best of defensive support — his teammates committed six errors, leading to four unearned runs. Hernandez, a hard-throwing lefty, allowed four hits, fanned five and walked three. Big Spring coach Romero Perez said the key to the game was Lant's pitching prowess. "Their pitcher done a good job," said Perez. "He had the kids off-balance, he was the best pitcher we've faced. I don't know what it was; Jesse pitched good. Our fielding wasn't there, and even if it had been perfect, our hitting wasn't there."

But it was defense that kept Big Spring in the game through the first four innings of play, as both teams battled to a scoreless deadlock. Three times North Central had scoring chances squelched as Big Spring catcher Rogelio Cervantes threw out runners trying to steal, and once tossed the ball to Hernandez at home with a runner trying to score from third on a wild pitch. But in the top of the fifth, North Central would not be denied. Internationals page 2-B

Cleveland State coach had drugs in system

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland State University basketball coach Kevin Mackey, who has tested positive for cocaine use, has "a serious problem," his lawyer is quoted as saying. Mackey pleaded innocent Monday to misdemeanor charges of driving under the influence and consuming alcohol in a motor vehicle. His plea came after police arrested him Friday night when they saw him leave a suspected drug house with a woman, enter his car and drive erratically. The (Cleveland) Plain Dealer, in today's editions, quoted David Roth as saying Mackey told him he was "so out of it that anything could have happened. He was dazed and confused. That's how messed up he was. Life was a blur." "He will not deny or run from the truth," Roth said. "When I say he has a serious problem, I mean serious. If it was a one-time mistake, as if he just happened to run into it, then I would call it an unfortunate incident." Mackey will seek a medical leave of absence, said Roth, who plans to meet today with university officials. "I want them (Cleveland State) to understand that when you have an illness, that bad things can happen to you." Police Lt. Martin Flask said Monday, several hours after the arraignment, that a urine sample Mackey voluntarily provided during the booking process revealed he was legally intoxicated by alcohol. Traces of cocaine showed up in a drug screening.

The Cleveland Police Department's scientific investigative unit was "unable to determine the frequency or intensity of use," Flask said. "This additional issue, being the presence of cocaine, will ultimately be presented a prosecutor for review." Cleveland State spokesman Ed Mayer said university lawyers were determining what steps to take in light of the police findings. "We hope to have a resolution in the next couple of days," Mayer said. "It doesn't look good for Kevin right now, but we haven't taken any legal action at this time." The university on Wednesday announced it signed Mackey to a two-year contract containing base salaries of $85,000 next season and $90,000 in 1991-92. Outside income from television and radio shows, endorsements and summer camps could have nearly doubled the base. Mackey came to Cleveland State as head coach in 1983 from Boston College, where he had been an assistant. His 1985-86 Vikings team went 29-4 and reached the regional semifinals of the NCAA tournament. "A leave for Kevin will enable him to return to good health," Roth said. "He is willing to take a drug test every day for the rest of his life if he needs to. I don't know what more he could do to confront this head on." University President John A. Flower suspended Mackey indefinitely after learning of the arrest. Coach page 2-B

A's make prep star a million dollar baby

DALLAS (AP) — University of Texas head baseball coach Cliff Gustafson says major league teams make it impossible for high school superstars to choose college over the pros. "Anytime you're dealing with the prospects of a Todd Van Poppel going to college instead of the pros, you're taking a risk," Gustafson said. "The pros can just keep upping the ante until it's impossible for him to turn it down." Van Poppel, 18, of suburban Arlington, agreed to a $1.2 million, three-year package with the Oakland Athletics Monday that included a $600,000 signing bonus. Thirteen other teams passed on the high school senior, who was regarded as the top prospect of the June draft, because he had openly expressed a desire to play baseball for the Longhorns. Van Poppel had said his goals were to play in the College World Series and the 1992 Olympics. But the A's drafted him anyway with the No. 14 pick, and then persuaded him to skip college and sign. "I think Oakland should be commended for the way they signed him," Gustafson said. "They weren't pushy and I don't think the money came up until this past weekend." Van Poppel's guaranteed a three-year major-league contract is the longest ever for a draft pick. He will report to the A's Class A Medford, Ore., team on Wednesday. Texas Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds, who said he hadn't heard about Van Poppel's decision until a reporter telephoned his home Monday night, said the school will certainly miss the phenom. "That's a lot of pressure," Dodds said of the contract. "So my decision would be to wish him well. We're sorry that he opted not to come here, but I'm sure he'll do well." Todd said he will continue his studies on a "correspondence" basis probably after next season. He held a perfect 4.0 grade point average at Martin High School. Van Poppel was 11-4 with a 1.04 earned-run average for Martin this season, striking out 169 batters in 101 innings. He allowed 39 hits and 38 walks. The fact that Oakland used a lucrative contract to lure Van Poppel away from Texas doesn't bother Dodds. "You know everybody has their own rights," Dodds said. "If a pianist was senior in high school or college and the New York Symphony wanted that person to come play with them, then I think that person ought to be able to make said Deron Gustafson, who has been an assistant coach with his father's team for seven years. "There's no doubt about it. I would certainly tell my kids to sign for that kind of money."

Soviets plan on winning boxing and wrestling

SEATTLE (AP) — The Soviet minister of sport says his athletes will win in boxing and wrestling events at the Goodwill Games, but gives Americans the edge in swimming and track and field. "I would like to admit that our Goodwill Games athletes and coaches have been training hard," Nikolai Rusak said Monday night after arriving with the first planeload of athletes from Moscow. "We expect good competition and we are ready to show best results."

The first plane carried 132 people, including Soviet swimmers, gymnasts, volleyball and water polo competitors and others who came to view the Olympic-style games. The arrival of a second plane, originally expected Monday night, was postponed until today, games spokesman Steve Smith said. That plane was expected to carry about 130 athletes, plus 55 other Soviet visitors who will be hosted in local homes. More than 2,000 Soviets — athletes, citizens and officials — are expected to arrive on 29 Aeroflot charters for the July 20-Aug. 5 games. The games are expected to draw

2,500 athletes from 50 countries and bring an estimated 60,000 out-of-state visitors to Washington. They feature 21 events in Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, Kennewick, Enumclaw, Redmond and Federal Way. Athletes arriving on the first plane were exhausted, Matveev said, because their flight was four hours late leaving Moscow and poor weather forced it to skip a refueling stop in Murmansk, just east of the Finnish border. "It's a great moment," games organizer Bob Walsh said as Rusak passed through Customs and stepped through the terminal door to be greeted by a throng of Goodwill Games hosts, interpreters and well-wishers. "We are waiting for this moment for four years," Rusak said. "And now our dream has come to reality and we are in Seattle." He said the Goodwill Games, first staged in Moscow in 1986 as the brainchild of television entrepreneur Ted Turner, have been a force in smoothing relations between the superpowers. "In 1986 the idea was to improve relations," he said. "Part of that goal was achieved. If it was not for the Goodwill Games in 1986 it would have been doubtful our participation in Seoul in 1988," he said, referring to the summer Olympics in Korea. Arriving with the athletes was 16-year-old Andrey Verinchuk, who suffers from a growth deficiency that gives him the bone structure of an 11-year-old. He and his mother will stay with a retired college instructor in Seattle while doctors at Group Health test the boy to determine if his condition can be improved by drugs. If so, the San Francisco firm Genentech has agreed to provide a genetic growth hormone free of charge. The boy's treatment was arranged by Walsh. The Verinchuks' Seattle hostess, Mary Aldrich, 72, said she had prepared for her guests by tiding up and buying several pounds of bananas.

Red Sox fall from first place

By The Associated Press
Steve Lyons dropped his pants and Boston dropped from first place. As usual, Cal Ripken didn't drop anything.

Lyons made the most embarrassing play Monday night when he absent-mindedly pulled down his pants to brush off some dirt after sliding into first during Detroit's 5-4 win over Chicago.

When he heard the crowd laughing, Lyons realized his gaffe and quickly pulled up his pants. But it was too late to avoid the TV highlights, which showed him stripped down to his athletic supporter and a pair of longjohns.

"I don't have anything to be embarrassed about, but it's embarrassing that I did it," Lyons said. "When I got back to the bench, girls were waving money at me."

Boston waved goodbye to first in the AL East by losing to Minnesota 3-2 on Paul Sorrento's RBI triple in the ninth inning. With a 4-3 win over Seattle, Toronto took over the top spot by a half game.

There was no change in Ripken's fielding.

In Baltimore's 7-6 victory over Texas, the Orioles' shortstop handled his 385th straight chance without an error. That broke the major league mark for his position set by John Kerr with the 1946-47 New York Giants.

Alan Trammell's two-out homer off Don Pall in the ninth inning helped Detroit snap Chicago's 11-game road winning streak.

"It's a magic moment," said Trammell, who had three other hits. "You run around the bases and you know your teammates are going to be there to greet you at the plate and you'll be the hero."

Pall (1-4) gave up the homer on only his second pitch of the game.

"That's the absolute worst feeling in the world," he said. "That's a long walk from the mound to the dugout."

Orioles 7, Rangers 6
Brad Arnsberg walked Mickey Tettleton with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to force in the winning run.

After the Rangers rallied from a 5-2 deficit to take a 6-5 lead in the eighth, it appeared the Orioles were headed for their 30th loss by two runs or less.

But they came back in the ninth, tying it on Phil Bradley's RBI single and winning it when Tettleton walked on a full-count pitch. Mike Devereaux started the winning rally with a leadoff single against Kenny Rogers (3-5).

Gregg Olson (5-3) pitched the ninth inning for the win. Rafael Palmeiro had three hits for the Rangers, including a two-run homer.

Twins 3, Red Sox 2
The Twins scored the winning run on a bizarre play.

With Minnesota trailing 2-1, Kent Hrbek led off the ninth with a double off reliever Jeff Gray (1-3).

Greg Gagne was sent in to pinch-run and scored the tying run on Brian Harper's single. Harper came home when Sorrento's fly ball bounced off the wall and hit center fielder Kevin Romine in the head. Romine was helped from the field, but was not seriously hurt.

Athletics 3, Indians 0
Scott Sanderson allowed four hits over 8 1/3 innings and Ron Hassey homered for the first time in two months as the Athletics beat the punchless Indians.

Blue Jays 4, Mariners 3
Jimmy Key allowed three hits over seven innings and Fred McGriff homered for Toronto.

Houston stops New York, 4-1

By The Associated Press
The hottest bats in the National League have cooled off and one of its Gold Gloves has turned to lead.

The cool bats belong to the New York Mets, who entered the All-Star break as the NL's hottest team. But the Mets have dropped four of their last five games and managed only three hits for the second straight game in a 4-1 loss to the Houston Astros on Monday night.

NL

"Three hits and one run in two games; I think the players know they're going to have to press the issue," Manager Bud Harrelson said.

The lead glove belongs to three-time Gold Glove winner Willie McGee of St. Louis. McGee, the Cardinals' center fielder, made his 11th error of the season when he allowed a fly ball to drop in the sixth inning, setting up a four-run outburst that gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a 5-2 victory at Busch Stadium.

"I'm the center fielder; he's new out there," McGee said of the mix-up with rookie Craig Wilson, playing his first game in right field. "I'm supposed to be aggressive on that play. I got lazy and took it for granted. It was my fault."

Astros 4, Mets 1
The Mets, who got only three hits in a 2-1 loss at Cincinnati on Sunday, matched that figure against Mark Portugal (4-8) and two relievers.

Gregg Jefferies homered in the first inning and Darryl Strawberry followed with a single, but Portugal retired the next 16 Mets until Jefferies singled to start the seventh.

The Mets then loaded the bases, but Daryl Boston bounced into a pitcher-to-home-to-first double play. Reliever Juan Agosto walked Tim Teufel, giving the Mets another chance with the bases loaded, but Larry Andersen got Mackey Sasser to ground out.

The Mets were 17-2 in their last 19 games before the All-Star break, but have scored just 12 runs in their last five games.

The Mets remained two games behind Pittsburgh, which also lost for the second straight day.

"We need to start winning again," Jefferies said. "We've already lost two opportunities, last night and tonight. We need to put some pressure on Pittsburgh. We need to be tougher in the second half than we were in the first half. If we get off to a slow start, we don't have as much time to catch up again."

The Astros, 15-4 in their last 19 games at the Astrodome, took the lead in the second when Craig Biggio tripled in a run off Bob Ojeda (4-8) and scored on Franklin Stubbs' groundout. Javier Ortiz added an RBI single in the third.

Dodgers 5, Cardinals 2
McGee, recognized as one of the game's top outfielders, had another nightmarish evening at Busch Stadium.

He allowed Kirk Gibson's easy fly ball to fall between him and Wilson for a two-base error as Larry Harris scored the tie-breaking run. The Dodgers capitalized on the extra out as Hubie Brooks had an RBI double and Mike Scioscia doubled in two more runs.

McGee's 11 errors equals his career high, set in 1982, his rookie season. He had three errors in 1989, an injury-plagued year, but has dropped, or allowed to drop, four balls at Busch Stadium this season.

"The Cardinals have always been one of the best defensive teams in baseball," Scioscia said. "They usually don't give you much."

Rookie Terry Wells (1-1) gave up four hits in 6 1/3 innings for his first major-league victory. Bob Tewksbury (4-2) allowed five runs, only one earned, in six innings.

Giants 6, Pirates 1
The Giants are playing their best ball of the season despite having to use a four-man starting rotation due to injuries.

Scott Garrelts (7-7), pitching on three days' rest, allowed just three hits for his second straight complete game. Garrelts, whose 1-6 start mirrored the Giants' early-season collapse, is 6-1 since May 31. The Giants are 31-12 in their last 43 games after going 17-28.

Kevin Mitchell drove in two runs for the Giants, who handed Rick Reed (2-1) his first loss of the season.

Reds 8, Expos 3
The Reds stayed 7 1/2 games ahead of the Giants in the NL West thanks to a late-inning power display.

Eric Davis' fifth career grand slam, in the sixth inning, overcame a 3-0 deficit. Joe Oliver and Barry Larkin homered in the seventh and Chris Sabo added a solo shot in the eighth.

The first three homers came on sliders off Zane Smith (5-7).

Phillies 7, Braves 2
Terry Mulholland pitched a six-hitter and Von Hayes and Darren Daulton drove in two runs apiece as Philadelphia beat Atlanta.

Mulholland (4-3) struck out three and walked one in his first complete game.

Lozer Marty Clary (1-6) allowed eight hits and three runs in 5 2/3 innings.

Buffer pinch ran for Lant. Buffer promptly went to second on a passed ball. Next Mike Carrasco walked; and both runners advanced on a wild pitch.

The daring Buffer was then caught in a rundown between third and home; but managed to slide in under the tag at home, giving North Central a 4-0 lead. The final run came when Rubio couldn't handle Jimmy Valdez's grounder, allowing Carrasco to score. The inning finally ended when Jose Pesina snagged a line drive at second and fired to first to complete the double play.

"The errors hurt us; but those things happen, even in the pros," said coach Perez. "This is the best the International League has ever finished: It was a long ride and it was a good ride."

With two outs and Matt Dickman on first base via a fielder's choice, the Midlanders accounted for two runs. Dickman went to second on a wild pitch; and scored on shortstop Nick Benavidez's single into left field. Benavidez, the leadoff hitter, was the only player to get two base hits in the game. Benavidez advanced to second on the throw home.

Next Britt Harper hit a grounder that went through both shortstop

Montez and left fielder Manuel Cervantes' legs, which easily scored Benavidez with the second run of the game.

The sixth inning was even worse for the internationals, as Midland scored three runs on no hits and two more errors.

With one out, Adam Schneider walked, and went to second on a wild pitch. Next Lant hit a grounder to third base, but Gabriel Rubio's throw was off target; allowing Schneider to score. Rob rest late Friday. Mackey, 43, on Monday appeared with his wife, Kathleen, and Roth before Cleveland Municipal Judge Carl B. Stokes.

Mackey made no comment during the arraignment or when approached by reporters.

Roth left open as a possibility a defense that Mackey had been framed.

"The facts are very sketchy at this point," Roth said. "I do know that the way it went down wasn't just because somebody stumbled over it. It was because someone called the police on him."

One of Mackey's players, William Stanley, a guard who averaged 14.3 points a game as a senior last season, lives on the same street where Mackey visited a house and emerged allegedly intoxicated.

Stanley said he has no knowledge of a drug house being there.

"There's a vast number of basketball athletes in this area," Stanley said. "I thought maybe he was around here trying to recruit someone."

Mackey and Alma Massey, 36, were stopped Friday about 8:30 p.m. a half-block from the house. Lt. Michael Thome of the city police narcotics unit said.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Jane Pauley has had it all — even hives. The former "Today" co-host, now a fill-in anchor on the "NBC Nightly News," told New York magazine that at age 7, she broke into hives after being punished for another child's prank.

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Sara Helena Martin said believing in herself was the key to her being named America's Young Woman of the Year. "I'm just numb," said the 19-year-old Miss Martin of Schaumburg, Ill., as she received hugs Saturday night from other contestants who competed for $75,000 in scholarships.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The wife of Gov. Ray Mabus has given birth to a girl, the first child born to an incumbent Mississippi governor since the turn of the century. The girl, who was named Elisabeth Hamilton, was delivered by Caesarean section Sunday at Baptist Medical Center, and weighed 9 pounds, 8 1/2 ounces. The mother, Julie, and the child were doing well.

Baseball Today

SCOREBOARD Cleveland at Oakland, 2 (3:15 p.m. EDT). Oakland's Bob Welch (14-3) goes for his league-leading 15th victory against knuckleballer Tom Candiotti (10-4) in the opener. Dave Stewart (11-8) opposes Rod Nichols (0-1) in the second game.

STREAKS Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken handled his 34th consecutive game without an error Monday, breaking Buddy Kerr's pit with the 1946-47 New York Giants. Pittsburgh has lost two straight at home for the first time since April 13-14.

STATS The Pittsburgh Pirates bullpen has a combined record of 18-7. Boston's Wade Boggs had three hits Monday to give him 101 for the season. Boggs is trying to reach the 200-hit plateau for the eighth straight season.

SWINGS Boston left fielder Mike Greenwell, who has averaged 18 home runs the last three seasons, has hit three homers this year.

STARTERS San Diego's Eric Show is 1-7 this season. Baltimore's Jeff Ballard has not won since May 27.

STOPPERS Bobby Thigpen of the Chicago White Sox has 30 saves. The New York Yankees have 31 victories.

SLUMPS Storm Davis and Mark Davis have combined for three victories for the Royals. Mark Davis hasn't been used in a save situation since May 11. The New York Yankees have lost 100 games in a season only twice - 1908 and 1912.

SLOPPY St. Louis center fielder Willie McGee has made 11 errors this season. He made three in 1989.

SCHEDULING The World Series will start Tuesday, Oct. 16, three days later than originally scheduled, in the home park of the NL champion. The Series was originally scheduled to start on Saturday, Oct. 13, but was set back because of the lockout that delayed the start of the season by a week and necessitated playing some games after the planned end of the regular season.

STARS Scott Garrelts pitched a three-hitter as San Francisco beat Pittsburgh 6-1 Monday night. Eric Davis hit his fifth career grand slam to help rally Cincinnati past Montreal 8-3 Monday.

SIDELINED Bret Saberhagen, last year's AL Cy Young Award winner, was placed on the 21-day disabled list by the Kansas City Royals on Monday. Saberhagen had to leave Sunday's game against the Red Sox in Boston because of soreness in his right elbow. His injury brings the number of Royals on the disabled list to six, with half of them pitchers.

STATUS Kansas City catcher Bob Boone, out since May 16 with a broken and dislocated right index finger, could return as early as next week.

SCOUTING Sterling Hitchcock of Greensboro pitched a no-hitter as the Hornets defeated Sumter 1-0 Monday night in a South Atlantic League game.

SPEAKING "Put it in the paper that the stuff I said about wanted to be traded was just some blowing off steam. My views have changed on a lot of things in the past couple of weeks. People were putting pressure on me (because of his pitching problems), and I started to go into a shell. I was thinking, 'me, me, me,' instead of about what I can do to help us win." - Cincinnati reliever Rob Dibble.

SEASONS 1982 - Ambidextrous pitcher Tony Mullane of Louisville pitched with both hands in a major-league game at Baltimore. Normally a right-hander, Mullane switched to the left hand in the fourth inning. He eventually lost 9-8.

1983 - The New York Giants and the Philadelphia Phillies tied a major-league record by combining for a total of 30 men left on base in a nine-inning game.

1970 - Willie Mays bounced career hit number 3,000 through the left side of the infield off Mike Wegener in the second inning of the San Francisco Giants' 10-1 romp over the Montreal Expos.

1987 - New York's Don Mattingly tied Dale Long's 31-year-old major league record night when he hit a home run for the eighth consecutive game in the Yankees' 7-2 loss to the Texas Rangers.

Storytime seminar set at museum

The Martin County Historical Museum has set its 4th annual Storytime seminar on Texas for July 18 through Aug. 22. "Texas has a very interesting history background," said Karen Graves, director of Storytime. "There are many cultures that we have learned from throughout the years." The storytime hour is taken from the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio. Graves herself a native San Antonian, says the storytime is for kids 6 to 11 to learn as much about Texas as time permits. Its about official and unofficial things that make up Texas.

The program consist of crafts, projects and a small video that will enhance the youngsters to learn about Texas history.

"It keeps them busy throughout the six weeks and at the same time they get on hands experience in making anything such as, cornbread, projects and crafting," she said.

Pam McCampbell is assisting Graves in this seminar. Most of the learning literature is taken from books provided by Martin County Historical Museum Board Committee.

"They have really been helpful and instrumental in supporting this program for the kids. Its really good for the kids during the summer months and for the community," she said.

South Texas begins cleanup

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — South Texans started to clean up from flash-flooding and tornado damage just as another downpour drenched the region, forcing more residents from their homes.

The National Weather Service predicted rain for the San Antonio area through today. Forecasters also issued flash flood warnings for several South Texas counties Monday afternoon.

"All over town in the low-lying areas they are evacuating people," said Jenny Garcia, a Dimmit County Sheriff's Department dispatcher in Carrizo Springs. "We do have shelters set up. The Red Cross has been notified."

In Kerrville and Leming, residents cleaned up from tornadoes that touched down Sunday as storms swept South Central Texas.

Six people were taken to hospitals from a tornado that struck a residential section of Kerrville, but no one was seriously injured, officials said.

Trustees move appraisal office to new building

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ Staff Writer

Stanton Independent School District trustees deliberated the proposed 1990-91 district budget, as well as personnel changes, during a meeting Monday night.

One of the topics the board discussed was moving the Martin County Appraisal District to the Lewis Building in downtown Stanton. The appraisal district office has been located behind the school administration building since 1981.

Delbert Dickenson, chief appraiser for Martin County, expressed delight in the acquisition of their new office.

"It's more convenient for the taxpayers and more room for us," he said. "The taxpayer will be next to the courthouse and city hall."

"We discussed the buy with Martin County and received a bid from Charles Lewis. He gave us a good price and instead of renting like we have in the past, we thought it would be better for us to buy our own building. We will have twice as much room."

The move should take at least until Aug. 15, according to Dickenson. "We have to move our computer lines, and that in itself will take about 30 days," he said. "Our computer lines are in Fort Worth."

The school district will pay about $12,180 for its share of the cost for the move. The board will have to amend their budget to meet their percentage. Others to share in the cost will be the Grady Independent School District, City of Stanton, Martin County, Martin County Freshwater District, Martin County Underground Water District and Martin County Hospital. Those entities share in the funding of the appraisal district.

The board also discussed policy changes mandated during the summer sessions of the courts and Legislature. According to Stanton Superintendent Wayne Mitchell, Policy Update 36 is to provide the school system with legal changes that have taken place or have been rewritten since their adoption for the schools.

"Almost all the school systems in Increased school spending needed

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas should spend more to equalize public school education "without breaking the bank," an expert for poor school districts testified.

Craig Foster, executive director of the Equity Center, also said state lawmakers could have bolstered the education budget by keeping in place so-called temporary tax increases that expired.

Foster made his comments at a court hearing on the state's new funding plan. The hearing entered its second week Monday.

The temporary taxes which raised $571 million, included an increase in the business franchise tax, an insurance surcharge and professional fees. They were passed in 1987 to help bridge a multi-billion dollar state budget deficit. All had lapsed by last January.

"If Texas had the will, there are untapped sources of revenue that could be applied to public education and they could do it without breaking the bank," Foster said.

Foster's Equity Center is an Austin-based research organization representing about 200 of the state's poorest school districts.

Poor school districts oppose the state's new finance plan, claiming the law would perpetuate the same system that the Texas Supreme Court ruled was unconstitutional. The court ruled the system allowed disparities in funding between property-poor and property-rich schools.

"If Texas had the will, there are untapped sources of revenue that could be applied to public education and they could do it without breaking the bank." — Craig Foster, executive director of the Equity Center.

In response to the state Supreme Court ruling, the new education law passed in June provides $528 million in additional state education funding for the 1990-91 school year.

During the four-day program Schraeder was briefed on numerous subjects related to the business of pork production and marketing, and visited two hog farms in Fayette County.

Tower named to intelligence board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Sen. John Tower of Texas is the new chairman of the president's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

As part of a major overhaul Monday, President Bush also replaced all Reagan-era members of the panel, except Tower, and cut its size from 15 to six.

Tower, who was nominated by Bush as secretary of defense last year but not confirmed, was the only holdover member of the board. He now works as a consultant in Dallas.

The board is charged with assessing the quality, quantity and adequacy of intelligence collection.

Bailout officials approve fast sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Savings and loan bailout officials hope to speed the sale of distressed real estate and sour loans by mixing them with more attractive assets in multimillion-dollar packages.

A Bush administration board overseeing the bailout approved the new sales technique on a trial basis Monday. The Resolution Trust Corp. Oversight Board, headed by Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady, authorized bulk sales totaling $2 billion.

The agency overseen by the board will put together portfolios of similar assets such as commercial loans, commercial real estate, apartment properties or apartment loans. The packages will include both good and problem assets.

Ed Kane, Ohio State University business professor and thrift expert, said $2 billion is a small amount compared with the huge Sen. Bob Glasgow, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Legislative Redistricting, shows some charts depicting growth across Texas. Glasgow made the presentation during a public hearing on redistricting held at Texas Christian University recently.

No senate district safe from redrawing

AUSTIN (AP) — The chairman of the state Senate's redistricting panel has a warning for elected officials as the Legislature prepares to redraw political districts in 1991: no one is safe.

Over the past decade, Texas' population has grown by about 20 percent, double the national average, but growth has not been even. While 15 of Texas' 254 counties grew by 50 percent or more, 108 counties lost population.

Legislators whose districts grew in population by exactly 20 percent may think their lines won't change, said Sen. Bob Glasgow.

"If they're operating by that criteria, they're going to be really shocked," he said. That's because the ripple effect caused by population loss or gain in adjacent areas can cause the lines to move.

As population increased in

• SENATE page 4-A

 South and Central Texas and in the suburbs, it decreased in East and West Texas and in central cities.

This has caused wide variations in the populations of political districts in Texas.

Redistricting is done every 10 years, after the federal census, to correct such imbalances. In Texas, the Legislature will redraw districts for congressional seats, for the Texas House and Senate and for the State Board of Education.

If the Legislature fails to redistrict itself during the first regular session after census data become available, the task falls to a board composed of the House speaker, lieutenant governor, attorney general, comptroller and land commissioner.

Under the federal Voting Rights Act, redistricting plans must be approved by the U.S. Justice Department. They can be challenged in court.

Glasgow, D-Stephenville, said in 1991 redrawing political districts could be more complicated than ever before. But it also could be more open.

Not only are state and federal courts looking over the Legislature's shoulder, but computers can quickly calculate the demographic effects of moving a district's lines. This has given more people a voice.

In 1981, "if you wanted to draw a plan, you went down to the Legislative Council and they said, 'Yeah, we can get you a plan in three or four weeks,'" Glasgow said.

Now the information is available within hours.

Glasgow said it will be possible for many computer terminals to have access to redistricting data. He wants to ensure that every senator has a staff member trained in operating the computer.

"We're trying to open up the process as much as we can," Glasgow said, "and computers are the way to do that."

To get ideas from public officials and private citizens, Glasgow and state Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, chairman of House redistricting, are holding hearings around the state. They will conclude in Austin in early September, Glasgow said.

It will be easier to draw new congressional districts than state legislative districts. That's because Texas probably will gain three congressional seats. Adding new districts will help protect incumbents.

The number of legislative districts won't change. There are 150 in the Texas House and 31 in the Senate.

"Probably the major decision that you have to make in redistricting is where to start, and it affects the whole plan," Glasgow said.

"You can start in El Paso and work east. You can start in Texas and work west. You can start in the Panhandle and work south. Or you can start in Brownsville and work north."

Officials also must decide whether to draw districts outward from the cities, Glasgow said.

That would be a departure from the past 25 years. Traditionally, districts have been drawn from the home turf of incumbents in rural areas into the cities to pick up the required number of residents.

Trustees

 the area have this type of policy updates," Mitchell said. "They are designed to keep up with changes in the rules and regulations of school policies. They keep us from having to research every new rule and regulation."

The school district will have some personnel changes that will take place this coming year. The board approved the resignations of Rick Lee, director of bands, Caron Rawlings, child development, and Linda Davis, co-op teacher. The board members approved the hiring of Robert Tucker, assistant to director of bands, Janet Outlaw and Tammy Bell. Kirk McKenzie, last year's assistant to Lee will head the band as director. The teachers will be subject to assignment before the school year will resume.

Also on the agenda was the scale-increase that the state froze last year. This year the state will increase the salary of any career ladder stage that that certain teacher was entitled to last year.

"This is a state raise, this is not a local raise," said Mitchell.

 volume of assets that need to be sold, but he praised the bulk sales concept.

"I think the important thing is to get these things out of the hands of the government, which is run for bureaucratic purposes, and put them into the hands of private people who can make decisions for entrepreneurial reasons. That will be best for the taxpayers in the long run," Kane said.

Bulk sales have been criticized by others, who label it a fire sale that could depress asset values by flooding the market.

However, Kane said, "When you have the financial equivalent of a fire, a fire sale is the first thing you do."

Selling properties one by one is "terribly inefficient," he said.

In its first 11 months, the RTC has taken over about 460 failed S&Ls, selling or closing about 210 of them. But in S&L sales so far, the agency has been stuck with about half of the institutions' assets, usually the delinquent loans and repossessed real estate.

The oversight board is permitting the bailout agency to lend portfolio buyers up to 85 percent of the purchase price for up to five years. "Ideally we'd like it to be shorter term... but we wanted to give (the agency) the flexibility," said Felisa Neuringer, an oversight board spokeswoman.

After the trust corporation completes $2 billion in sales, the oversight board will evaluate the program's success.

On a related matter, the oversight board authorized the trust corporation to give some properties away to local governments and non-profit agencies for use as day care centers, housing for the homeless or other public purposes.

Properties will be eligible for the program if the agency determines that the cost of holding and selling them exceeds their value.

Another part of the S&L bureaucracy, the Federal Housing Finance Board, announced approval of a $669 million housing program for low-income people.

 But the law does not limit how much school districts can raise through local property taxes. Poor school district representatives say this will simply continue the same kind of funding structure that has hurt students in poor areas.

State District Judge Scott McCown, who is presiding over the hearing, said he hopes to make a decision by Sept. 1.

In an out-of-court development, Texas Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby said the $100 million short plan could fall $150 million short if local school districts statewide raise taxes, which would then require the state to pay more to the local districts.

The shortfall would mean each district would get less state money than it is entitled to with the heaviest burden falling on the wealthier school districts, Kirby said.

Man charged with killing rare tigers

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas businessman has been charged by federal authorities in the deaths of two endangered Bengal tigers that allegedly were slaughtered for their furs.

Joe Eldon Mills, 49, is scheduled for arraignment later this week. He was released Saturday on $5,000 bond following his arrest.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service officers claim that both tigers were anesthetized and killed with an ice pick to the skull.

The indictment accuses Mills of six counts of violating the Endangered Species Act and with illegally transporting Bengal tigers for commercial gain.

Lowell Jones, a lawyer who represents Mills, said his client was "victimized by unsupervised government informants" who set him up to escape their own troubles with the law.

"Joe Mills has not broken any laws or killed any tigers anytime," Jones said.

Man begs, pleads with utility workers not to cut down trees

MOTHER NEFF STATE PARK, Texas (AP) — A Central Texas man who is attempting to stop a utility company from cutting down trees on a road leading to the state's first state park said he stood in the road and begged and pleaded with the crew not to cut down trees while authorities were preparing a court order to stop the work.

Clay Davis said he heard the utility trucks come to the area early Monday and saw men begin cutting branches hanging over Leon River Road.

Davis has attempted to halt the cutting along the tree-shrouded road in the name of historic preservation.

"If you've ever seen a grown man cry, I cried this morning," Davis said.

Neither rain, the Davis family nor Coryell County Sheriff Gerald Kitchens could stop utility workers from trimming tree branches for a line of new poles and power lines on the road, about 30 miles southwest of Waco. Davis has been trying to get the road listed on the National Register of Historic Places, citing the natural beauty of the parkside property and the politics under which the six-mile road was built 51 years ago.

He accused the utility Monday of trying to hurry completion of the expansion to beat a court order and other efforts to preserve the road.

"They knew I was going to get a court order," said Davis. "I stood there begging and pleading for them not to cut the trees."

Davis called Sheriff Kitchens, who showed up with an unofficial copy of the temporary restraining order that a Gatesville judge had approved Sunday night.

Utility manager Ron Golden of McLennan Electric, who was not at the work site, radioed his men to continue working until the official order was served.

Golden had given written notice on Thursday that he planned to resume the work he halted temporarily on May 23 amid a public flap Davis initiated. He said he was not aware of Davis' weekend efforts to win court intervention.

"I had no knowledge of the injunction," said Golden, whose notice did not specify when work would resume. "There was no injunction when the boys went down there to work this morning. Contrary to the way it looks, we're not trying to run over anyone, and we're not trying to do damage to anything that is environmentally or archaeologically significant."

Sandy Gately, a Gatesville lawyer who represents Davis, said even if Golden was unaware of the order, he should have cooperated when he received the unofficial copy. And she believes a rush job at the site was apparent.

"I was surprised to find them putting up electric poles in pouring rain," she said. "And I was surprised at the size of the crew out there."

 escaped the water, Ory said. "It's fortunate, especially for the ones who are getting married pretty soon," he said.

At Operation Friendship thrift store, workers threw out clothes. "It's sewer water — it smells something terrible," assistant manager Iris Dominguez said. Dell Smith, manager of the non-profit thrift store, added: "It'll be non-profit now, for sure."

Mannequins at the nearby International Store were muddy up to their thighs, and the manager of a Texas State Optical store lost racks of eyeglasses and optical equipment.

"My seats are four blocks from here," Hal Harris said. "A lot of stuff completely disappeared."

Authorities had no exact figures on the downtown damage. Some low-lying streets and sections of Interstates 35 and 37 had been closed because of flooding but were reopened Monday. Dozens were rescued from their cars overnight.

Further south in Atascosa County, people in a mobile home park were cleaning up Monday from a twister or twisters that demolished five mobile homes. No injuries were reported, said sheriff's department spokeswoman Ann Gates.

"We don't know if it was one twister that hit all five — they were several miles apart — or if it was two twisters," Ms. Gates said.

One mobile home washed into the San Saba River near Menard, where authorities evacuated half a dozen people.

Despite the downpours, San Antonio and other communities intended to enforce mandatory water rationing rules that took effect after weeks without rain.
