Scorpions are on the prowl

Scorpions are finding their way into homes and cars all over Crossroads Country, said entomologist Victor Lucero. "I've had some calls about people who've seen them," Lucero said. "Mostly they (scorpions) are trying to find a mate, trying to find something to eat. And they'll seek shelter now that it's wet." Although they may resemble tiny armed warriors, they are not as harmful as people often think, he said. "Well, they are only aggressive if people bother them," he said. "They will sting, and it will hurt. They have a toxin they use to paralyze their prey before they eat it. "But the ones we have out here aren't poisonous enough to kill a person or anything like that. Getting stung just hurts." Children and pets could be seriously hurt by the pests, however, he said. Parents and owners may want to keep an eye out for them, he said. "They are actually very beneficial," Lucero said. "They eat all kinds of insects. They eat roaches." Ridding your home of other insects will make it a less desirable habitat for scorpions, Lucero said. To keep them out of your house, seal cracks and improve the condition of weatherstripping around windows and doors. "You may want to treat (with a pesticide) if you live close to fields or pastureland," Lucero said. "If you want to treat with something, granulated Dursban works well, or call a pest control (company)."

Mid Tex talks are continuing

The Big Spring City Council will meet in executive session this evening to discuss lease agreements with representatives of Mid Tex Detention Centers, Inc. for the second time in three days. Officials said they expect to announce the second and final reading of a resolution authorizing the agreements with the airpark. The meeting will begin at 5:30 p.m. in Room 1106 at the McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark. Following a two-hour executive session Tuesday night, officials on both sides announced the first reading of the lease agreement calling for construction of a 375-bed correctional center to be located on 10 acres at the airpark. Mid Tex Business Manager Johnny Rutherford said four new buildings will be constructed — along with major renovation of Wythcomb Hall. Sixty-five new jobs are expected to be created when the project is completed. Rutherford said he is hopeful the new facility will be operational by January or February. The correctional center is expected to have an annual payroll of $1 million.

Report: S&L losses mount

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Losses in the nation's privately run savings and loans continue to mount, despite government efforts to seize failed institutions.

The Treasury Department's Office of Thrift Supervision said Wednesday that the 2,505 S&Ls outside government control on March 31 lost $271 million in the first three months of this year. That marked a sharp improvement from the $3.1 billion loss in the final three months of 1989, but it was a drop from the slight $10 million profit in the first quarter of last year.

Information was withheld on an additional 350 still-open institutions controlled by the Resolution Trust Corp., an agency created last year to close and sell failed thrifts. It is expected to issue data on those institutions next week.

Nearly one-quarter of the surviving institutions lost money and S&Ls overall lost money in 20 states. Although there was a vast improvement in Texas, the state hardest hit by the S&L crisis, the industry deteriorated in Northeastern states hit by lackluster real estate markets.

Texas thrifts lost $110 million in the January-March period, compared with $2.2 billion in the same period a year earlier.

However, S&Ls in New York lost $162.9 million, compared with a $61.6 million profit a year ago.

Massachusetts lost $68 million, compared with a $100,000 loss. The industry in Connecticut lost $104.2 million, compared with a $3.5 million profit.

Analysts contended that reporting profit results separately for private and government-controlled thrifts amounts to sugar-coating bad news and interferes with their ability to analyze the entire industry. The thrift office collects information from both sets of S&Ls and in the past had always released both groups of figures.

"It's hogwash," said Bert Ely, a financial institutions analyst in Alexandria, Va. The thrift office "wants to be the good news boys."

However, thrift office director Timothy Ryan declared, "I'm not... Mr. Rosy Scenario." "Putting the two together presents an inaccurate picture of the industry," he said.

In Wednesday's report, the thrift office did not say how much the losses were reduced by government subsidies to S&Ls bailed out in 1988. Ely estimated the subsidy at between $1 billion and $1.5 billion per quarter.

The 1988 deals are coming under increasing criticism from Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and others in Congress who say they provided acquirers with virtually guaranteed profits for very little investment.

Ryan, in a news release, greeted the first-quarter results as a sign of

Helping clothe children

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Staff Writer

There are children in Big Spring so poor they don't have shoes. Some wear the same clothes to school day after day, facing the ridicule of others.

Marianne Brown-Esquelin of the Northside Community Center has a program to help the children of financially struggling families in the community. Adults, families and organizations can sponsor a child by contributing money for new clothes and school supplies.

The program operates much like the sponsor-a-child programs in India or Africa, Brown-Esquelin said.

"With money so tight in the community, there is so much need here," she said. "I thought it would be a good idea to do that at home."

Mary Ann Foster's two children got new clothes and school supplies from a sponsor last year.

Linda Foster, 12, said having a sponsor was "neat."

"She (the sponsor) took us shopping and out to lunch," Linda said. "She was nice."

"I appreciate it from the heart," Foster said. "I try my best to have what they (the children) want, but it's hard. I'm not poor, I just need a little help."

Brown-Esquelin said sponsoring a child is simple, can cost a little or a lot, and is needed now more than ever, since the school year begins soon.

Foster said Linda and her brother Howard, 14, are growing fast and can't wear the same clothes year after year. She said the beginning of school is especially hard for the family since she lost her job.

"There's so much you have to (buy) at this time," she said. "Sometimes you have to give up something."

Most sponsors take the child out for an afternoon of shopping, which may include any number of clothing items, shoes, notebooks and pencils. If one person does not have enough money to provide for a child, several may combine resources.

Penny Hollar of Big Spring is getting ready for her third year as a sponsor.

"I think this is very worthwhile," she said. "I know kids would be embarrassed to show up at school because they didn't have new clothes. Other kids make fun of them, and they aren't accepted."

Hollar has sponsored two little girls. The first child had never been in a store.

"I took her out shopping in October of that year," Hollar said. "I wanted to get her something she wanted."

"I knew her teacher. She told me later that the kids around (the child) really noticed... they complimented her on her clothes. There was a definite change in her attitude. I didn't realize what an impact it would have."

Pauline Williams has also been sponsoring children for three years.

"We buy the child a pair of jeans, a couple of shirts or tops, underwear, socks, a pair of shoes and school supplies," she said.

"The two years before they have been so sweet. When you are shopping

Landfill study is planned

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission board of directors passed resolutions Wednesday to begin funding of a 17-county study of landfills and how they may be affected by new proposed federal regulations.

The study, expected to be completed by 1992, could cost up to $250,000, said Planning Commissioner Executive Director Ernie Crawford. If the Planning Commission does not do the study, the state will, he said.

The study will examine possible cooperative regional landfill arrangements and the costs involved due to Environmental Protection Agency regulations, which would initiate stricter pollution controls, such as expanding post-closure underground water monitoring from five to 35 years.

The board, which met at the Big Spring Country Club following the semi-annual general membership meeting, authorized the application in August of a $63,788 50-50 matching regional solid waste planning grant to the Texas Department of Health to help fund the study.

They also passed a funding formula to collect the other half. If needed, the formula, which collects between $500 to $2,000 from cities and counties, would be invoked for a second year, Crawford said. It depends on the bids received.

The original estimate, provided by state health officials, was $127,000, he said. But bids of up to $400,000 for a similar study for a Panhandle planning commission indicates that their study could cost twice as much.

"I thought originally one year of funding would do it," Crawford said. "The state was evidently wrong in their estimate."

"I'm surprised by it," he said. "I hope we can get it for a whole lot less than a quarter of a million dollars."

For the bidding process, Crawford said qualifications from firms will be considered and then the list will be narrowed to four or five. "There's probably four or five in the state that are qualified to do it," he said.

The study could begin by the first of the year. "I'm sure it's going to take in excess of a year," Crawford said. "That pretty well coincides with the regulations that the cities and counties will be under from EPA." The regulations are expected to be implemented by 1992.

Ruling will end DeAnda council pay

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

City Attorney Mike Thomas has made a determination Pat Deanda can no longer receive compensation for her work as a councilwoman because she is a state employee.

Thomas said he made the ruling after researching two Texas Attorney General opinions.

Because Deanda is a Big Spring school teacher she is considered an employee of the state, prohibiting her from receiving further compensation from another governmental agency, Thomas said this morning.

"Basically, the attorney general opinion states because the state subsidizes the public school system, she cannot receive further compensation as a member of the council," he said.

Thomas added that Deanda — who is out of town and unavailable for comment — will not be required to reimburse the city for monies she has previously been paid.

"This is a constitutional, not a criminally-related, question and since the amount of money is so small, I don't think reimbursement would be necessary," he said.

Finance Director Tom Ferguson confirmed this morning that he was told by City Manager Hal Boyd to cease further payments to Deanda for her work as a councilwoman.

He added that council members are paid $25 per meeting, not to exceed $50 per month — a provision outlined in the city charter.

A similar issue — involving Councilman Chuck Condray — was brought to the council's attention last fall because he is employed by Big Spring State Hospital.

The issue became a moot point, however, when Condray refused further compensation for his work on the council and, in fact, repaid the city all monies previously received, Ferguson said.

Thomas said he is inclined to believe that Condray would be ineligible for payment by the city because he is a state employee.

He added that he is unsure whether Councilwoman Gail Earls — an employee of Howard County — would be affected by the ruling. "I haven't been asked to research that issue," Thomas said.

The question was initially raised by Jack Watkins, who asked for a legal opinion on the matter, Boyd said.

DA to seek death penalty

PANHANDLE (AP) — A district attorney says he is ready to counter the likely defense strategy for a man accused of killing a 17-year-old boy in an alleged cult sacrifice.

Carson County district attorney David McCoy said he believes Kenneth Glenn Milner's attorneys "will holler 'diminished (mental) capacity' because that's all they've got."

"But if (Milner) knows the difference between right and wrong, he is sane," McCoy said.

Milner, 19, of Panhandle, was arraigned Tuesday in state District Court on capital murder charges in connection with the July 13 shooting death of Frankie Garcia, 17, of Panhandle. Bond was denied.

Milner also faces attempted murder charges in connection with two July 14 assaults.

"The ultimate crime deserves the ultimate punishment," McCoy said after Tuesday's hearing. "I understand that he (Milner) has indicated a desire to die. I intend to try to accommodate him."

Slain Customs agent honored

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Customs Service agent who was killed in the line of duty is being honored by the Department of Treasury as one of the service's top narcotics agents.

Inspector Timothy C. McCaghren died Feb. 20, one day after he attempted to stop a fleeing van at an El Paso border bridge.

The driver of the van accelerated and ran the checkpoint, dragging McCaghren until he was flung from the vehicle. He died from the injuries.

McCaghren was scheduled to be honored at the Customs Service's annual awards ceremony Thursday in Washington.

U.S. Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady was scheduled to present to McCaghren's wife, Dedra, and the couple's children, Chastity and Brant, the Presidential Memorial Certificate for Law Enforcement Officers.

Freeze cause of higher food prices

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans are still seeing the effects of last winter's freeze on their grocery bills, with grapefruit and orange juice prices up nearly 20 percent since January, said state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

"Approximately 85 percent of the pre-1983-freeze citrus acreage was wiped out by last year's freeze, and it is too early to tell how much will be replanted," Hightower said Wednesday.

Prices on other staples, such as peanut butter and ground beef, also are up, he said.

Driver saves workers from inferno

MIDLAND (AP) — An oil company transport driver warned office workers in time for them to escape from an exploding tanker and fuel tanks and then raced back into the inferno to drive another truck through the flames to safety.

James Harrison, 43, of Midland, was unloading his petroleum transport truck Wednesday afternoon at Rasure Oil Co. when he realized the truck was about to explode.

He warned people inside a nearby office in time for them to escape and he ran from the exploding truck and fuel tanks.

Harrison then noticed that another truck was near the fire and might explode and kill people and destroy some nearby buildings.

He donned firefighters' gear and raced through the 40- to 50-foot flames with a hose as his only guide.

The truck's windshield had been crystallized by the heat, making it hard to see outside.

"I just hoped I could get through the flames without anything going up," he said.

The truck's steering wheel was so hot he could barely touch it, an indication that the vehicle was in danger of exploding, Harrison said.

"I'm not trying to say I'm a hero; I just didn't want anyone to get hurt," he said. "It just had to be done."

"I thought I was going to be talking to Jesus this afternoon," Harrison said.

Eighteen Midland firefighters put out the flames within 2½ hours, using 8,000 gallons of water, officials said. No one was injured.

Rasure Oil incurred losses of up to $150,000 to one transport truck and two 2,000-gallon storage tanks, said Frank Rasure, one of the company owners.

"I was afraid this whole end of town would go up," Rasure said.

"There was nothing you could do but stand around and watch it burn."

NCNB reverses decision to evict families

WACO (AP) — NCNB Texas National Bank has reversed a decision that was going to force nearly a dozen families to leave their rented homes after only a few days notice.

"Because of the circumstances involved, we have made the decision to allow the tenants to stay in that location," Chris Spencer, spokesman for NCNB Texas National Bank, said Wednesday.

Some of the residents complained Tuesday about being told that they were going to have to leave their homes with only a few days notice.

The actions came after the bank foreclosed on a Waco landlord's property earlier this month.

Residents received certified letters last week from Coldwell Bank Hallmark Realty telling them that NCNB had become the owner of their duplexes, and they would have to leave by July 31.

Spencer said Tuesday a subsidiary of NCNB called Financial Resource Management Inc. is handling the loan. The firm was established in July 1988 to handle the bad loans NCNB Texas National assumed from First Republic Bank. NCNB since has shuttled other bad loans from other acquisitions into the subsidiary.

The bank's normal procedures were not followed, Spencer said without elaboration.

"In this case it led to the situation at hand. Basically it was a misunderstanding of our policy," he said. "This situation was not our intent."

NCNB said it will bring in a management company for the property. The bank will continue to charge each tenant the same rent payment they currently pay.

"Of course, the property is still for sale," he said. "That doesn't change. But we will enter into contracts with the tenants, and the contract will give a 30-day cancellation notice should that property be sold."

"Overall, this situation was one of unusual inconvenience to these people and one of an unusual misunderstanding," he said. "We're always willing to work with tenants in this situation. As I said before, it was misunderstanding of our policy."

Some of the ads note the products "support the curriculum guidelines of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics."

Shirley M. Frye, president of the teachers' group, had no qualms about her organization's mention in the advertisements.

WACO — Residents of a local duplex explain their short notice of eviction after their landlord was foreclosed by NCNB Texas National Bank. The bank, which was trying to move 11 families from their homes with only a few days notice, reversed its decision Thursday.

TI ad campaign pushes education, products

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Instruments Inc. will undertake a $1 million-a-month advertising campaign next month urging parents to get involved in education, and suggesting company products as good tools to give their kids a head start.

"Our children and students face significant challenges in becoming successful, competing players in tomorrow's world," said Texas Instruments vice president Gary Rado. "Because of these changes, our newest generation must be our smartest generation to compete globally."

"We want to demonstrate TI's support of education and of the vital role that America's teachers have in educating our children," Rado said.

"However we also want to point out that America's teachers can't do it alone, they need the help of America's parents."

The ads, which will run for 11 months in major magazines and newspapers, also suggest students could use the help of Texas Instruments' calculators and Learning Path line of educational aids, such as Listen & Learn, Speak & Spell and Speak & Read.

The announcement comes less than a week after Texas Instruments reported a 90 percent drop in quarterly earnings and warned it could lose money in the next quarter.

The ads each carry titles reflecting educational conditions in other countries or shortcomings in the United States.

For example, the first ad is headlined, "There is no illiteracy in Japan." Others are "The West German school year is two months longer than ours," "Saturday is school day in Korea," "A third grader spends an average of 900 hours in class. And 1,170 hours watching television" and finally "America's teachers need America's parents."

Pantex cleanup halfway

AMARILLO (AP) — About 50 percent of the problems identified last fall by the U.S. Department of Energy's tiger team at the Pantex nuclear plant have been corrected, officials say.

The tiger team listed 87 findings in a report to Energy Secretary James Watkins.

Jerry Hemphill, acting division manager of environmental, safety and health for Mason & Hanger-Silas Mason Co. Inc., which manages Pantex for the DOE, said Wednesday the company is responsible for taking care of 72 of the findings. The DOE must work on the others, he said.

The violations listed included violations of environmental, health and safety regulations; deficiencies in management procedures and employee training; and observations that Pantex is not yet in compliance with new and more stringent DOE regulations, officials said.

"We expect to be 85 percent complete by the end of the calendar year," Hemphill said.

The rest of the findings will be addressed later, but before the end of 1993, because the solutions involve major construction projects, such as upgrading sewer lines and sewage treatment plants and building storage facilities for chemicals used at the plant, Hemphill said.

None of the findings represent threats to public health and safety, the tiger team concluded.

Watkins formed the tiger teams last year to inspect the various nuclear weapons plants, identify failures to comply with federal and state environmental laws and reveal problems in plant management.

About $113 million will be needed to correct flaws identified by the tiger team at Pantex, said Ted Taylor, environmental projects coordinator for the Amarillo office of the DOE.

Staying in compliance will cost as much as $15 million to $18 million more each year, he said.

Pantex officials have been working to comply with more stringent DOE regulations, but tight finances have prolonged attempts to comply with the stricter rules, Hemphill said.

Members of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration also performed an inspection at Pantex after the tiger team and listed 136 instances or findings where OSHA regulations had been violated, Hemphill said.

For the 136 findings, 336 citations were written. One finding could be accompanied by several citations or instances in which a violation occurred at several places in the plant, he said.

Governor vetoes record labeling bill

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. Buddy Roemer vetoed a bill that would have slapped warning labels on recordings that some say promote such behavior as deviant sex, drug abuse and violence.

He also planned to announce Friday whether he would veto the nation's strictest state abortion bill.

Roemer vetoed the bill Wednesday as he was flanked by supporters including Tipper Gore, president of a parents organization that pushed for voluntary labeling, and Jason Berman, president of the Recording Industry Association of America.

The bill would have mandated labels for recordings with themes of rape, murder, suicide, incest, illegal drug use, child abuse and satanic worship. It also would have prohibited sale of such recordings to people under age 17.

Retailers, manufacturers and distributors of recordings would have been subject to possible six-month jail terms and $5,000 fines.

Souter urged legislature on abortion

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — As a state judge nine years ago, Supreme Court nominee David Souter urged New Hampshire's legislature not to adopt a law that would have empowered judges to approve abortions for minors if their parents refuse permission.

Souter did not express a personal stand on the issue, but said his fellow judges had decided that a measure then pending before the state legislature would promote "shopping for judges."

because it did not include guidelines on how judges should act. Therefore, he said, the bill would unfairly leave such decisions up to individual judges with varied opinions on abortion, resulting in inconsistent application of any such law.

The 1981 letter, written to the chairwoman of the legislative committee considering a parental consent bill, is one of Souter's few public actions addressing the abortion issue.

Eastern indicted for false records

NEW YORK (AP) — Eastern Airlines may have put thousands of passengers at risk by falsifying airline now is safe. Federal regulators agreed.

Unprecedented in the airline industry, the 60-count indictment unsealed Wednesday charged Eastern and high-level managers with conspiring to falsify safety and maintenance records to avoid flight delays and cancellations.

ANDREW J. MALONE

"The motivation was to get the airplanes into the air. An airline only makes money with planes in the air," said Andrew J. Malone, a U.S. attorney in New York.

Maloney said the charges involved critical items, including radar, landing gear, automatic pilot instruments and fuel systems.

Senate denounces Durenberger

WASHINGTON (AP) — It might have been a tribute to an honored elder statesman, so lavish was the praise — and not the unanimous condemnation of a senator for deliberately breaking Senate rules.

The Senate voted 96-0 Wednesday to denounce Sen. Dave Durenberger for financial wrongdoing. But first, senators called the Minnesota Republican a man of conscience, of influence, of decency. Afterward they lined up to hug him, shake his hand and pat his shoulder.

He is, after all, one of them.

And, as Sen. Bill Armstrong, R-Okla., put it, "After this is all over and we denounce him, we still want him to be our friend."

Durenberger was disciplined for violating Senate speaking fee and gift limits, misleading the Senate on real estate transactions involving his Minneapolis condominium and converting a campaign contribution to personal use.

A minor traffic accident, which caused an air bag in a 1990 Plymouth Sundance to inflate, alarmed emergency workers, who hosed down anyone who came in contact with a fine powder believed to be sodium hydroxide. Air bags are packed in cornstarch or talcum powder, which may have caused the rescue workers to react with the precautionary shower.

AWOL soldiers won't be court-martialed

Six U.S. soldiers who went AWOL from intelligence posts in West Germany and were arrested at a Florida beach known for UFO reports won't be court-martialed. But many other questions about the bizarre case remain.

Were the six — five men and a woman — acting on "psychic input" from biblical figures and preparing for the world's end, as a friend of one suggested?

Did they plan to move to the West and live "like a survivalist group," as a police captain said he was told by two in the group?

Or was there another explanation of the events that began unfolding when the six, who held top-secret security clearances, left the 701st Military Intelligence Brigade in Augsburg, West Germany, early this month?

"Don't judge them yet. They have a right to defend themselves," said Anna Foster, at whose Gulf Breeze, Fla., home four of the six were arrested July 14. Ms. Foster, a civilian described by authorities as a psychic, is not charged in the case and said she could not elaborate.

The Army offered the six "non-judicial punishment" — no trial by court-martial — after an investigation by the Army Intelligence and Security Command found no evidence of espionage, officials said Wednesday.

At Fort Knox, Ky., where the six were being held, Maj. Ron Mazza said they could receive reductions in pay or rank, or both, and could be fined. Specific terms will be determined by an officer acting as a sentencing judge.

Having lost their security clearances, the six might be discharged, Mazza said.

They were reported missing in West Germany on July 9. On Friday the 13th, Pfc. Michael Hueckstaedt was stopped in Gulf Breeze for driving a van with non-working taillights. A computer check found him listed as absent without leave.

Army information and a search of the van revealed the whereabouts of the five other soldiers, Gulf Breeze police Capt. Kenneth Hicks said.

Besides Hueckstaedt, 19, of Farson, Wyo., they are Pfc. Kris Perlock, 20, of Osceola, Wis.; Pfc. William Setterberg, 20, of Pittsburgh; Spc. Vance Davis, 25, of Valley Center, Kan.; Spc. Kenneth Beason, 26, of Jefferson City, Tenn.; and Sgt. Annette Eccleston, 22, of Hartford, Conn.

Hicks said Ms. Eccleston and Hueckstaedt said little when questioned by him and the FBI.

Remains flown out of Canada

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — With a blessing by Buddhist monks, six sets of human remains were flown out of Cambodia today for tests to see whether they are the bones of Americans missing from the Vietnam War.

It was the first time since the end of the war in 1975 that communist Cambodia has allowed the repatriation of suspected remains of those missing in action, or MIA.

A somber American military honor guard escorted six flag-draped aluminum caskets on board a U.S. Air Force C-141 that took off for Hawaii, where the remains will undergo forensic examination to try to identify them.

Buddhist monks chanted prayers during a 15-minute memorial service conducted before an altar covered with flowers and burning incense. The six caskets sat behind the altar, and a monk sprinkled holy water to bless the dead.

"The United States appreciates the support of the Phnom Penh authorities for this undertaking," said Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas Boyd, spokesman for the repatriation team. "We consider this an important humanitarian undertaking which, if successful, will help to alleviate the suffering of American families."

Korea's prime ministers to meet

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — North and South Korea signed a historic agreement today calling for their prime ministers to meet for the first time in an effort to end four decades of Cold War confrontation on the divided peninsula.

Yet in a scenario which has become commonplace in inter-Korean relations, the day ended in controversy, name-calling, and dissidents shouting anti-Seoul government slogans near the border.

The acrimony erupted over the aborted border crossing by five

North Korean civilians and threatened to spread a blight on today's accord.

The planned fall talks between the prime ministers would focus on easing political and military tensions, promoting exchanges and other moves toward cooperation between the two states formed 42 years ago.

By signing the accord, North Korea's Communist government of Kim Il Sung tacitly recognized the legitimacy of the Seoul government of President Roh Tae-woo.

Presidents break Waldheim boycott

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — The presidents of Czechoslovakia and West Germany today broke a virtual international boycott of President Kurt Waldheim, who has been widely shunned for his past as a Nazi officer.

But President Vaclav Havel of Czechoslovakia delivered remarks indirectly critical of his Austrian counterpart. Speaking at ceremony hosted by Waldheim that opened the Salzburg Festival of music and drama, Havel spoke of the dangers of lying about the past.

Jewish activists protested today's meeting between Waldheim, Havel and President Richard von Weizsaecker of West Germany.

American Rabbi Avi Weiss, a persistent Waldheim critic, was arrested with an associate inside the festival hall after they forced their way into the lobby shouting: "It's a shame to meet Waldheim!"

Officials: Budget cuts are likely to affect older Americans

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Reps. Ronald Machtley and James McClure Clarke have a message for the budget negotiators who are thinking of cutting Social Security and Medicare.

Don't.

"That's the poison pill for any solution," said Machtley, R-R.I.

"Social Security would be awful," said Clarke, D-N.C. "Medicare should be only a last resort."

Machtley and Clarke both represent districts with large numbers of retired people and both expect tight re-election races this fall.

But their reluctance to slash Social Security and Medicare is shared by most members of Congress. That's why budget bargainers, who are likely to cut programs that help the elderly, are exploring those reductions with all the trepidation of kids tiptoeing into an isolated, dark cave.

"F-16s (fighter planes) don't vote, senior citizens do," said

House Majority Whip William Gray, D-Pa., referring to the Democratic preference to cut deeply into the defense budget. "That's a political reality of an election year."

Negotiators from the White House and Congress have been trying for 11 weeks to reduce the federal budget deficit by increasing taxes and trimming programs.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Wednesday that the two sides had agreed to present specific proposals as early as week's end.

The talks are being watched closely by senior citizens' organizations. Those groups have warned the negotiators to leave Social Security alone and go after Medicare only as part of a package in which all groups — not just the elderly — bear some pain.

"It would be very tough to argue to the people affected by these cuts that it's a fair sacrifice for them if they look around and see other people not suffering with the same intensity," said lobbyist John Rother of the 32-million-member American Association of Retired Persons.

Members of both parties involved in the budget talks say it now appears unlikely that Social Security benefits will be cut.

"Social Security has been described as the third rail of American politics. If you touch it, you die," said Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., a negotiator who favors restraining the program's growth.

But the Bush administration supports some cuts in the program — which helps support 39 million elderly and disabled people and their dependents — and the issue isn't completely off the bargaining table.

Medicare, which provides health coverage for 33 million elderly and disabled Americans, appears targeted for at least $3 billion in reduced payments to doctors and hospitals.

The reason Social Security and Medicare are vulnerable boils down to arithmetic.

Budget negotiators are trying to reduce next year's projected $169 billion deficit by at least $50 billion. That's a lot of money, even for a $1.2 trillion budget, so the bargainers are looking for big targets.

They've found them in Social Security and Medicare. Social Security is the biggest federal benefit program and will cost $245 billion this year. Medicare will have a $97 billion price tag.

Together, they account for more than one dollar of every four the government will spend in 1990.

As the country's population ages — and medical costs soar — these programs are expected to grow even more. The non-partisan Congressional Budget Office projects that by 1995, Social Security will cost $338 billion and Medicare will cost $183 billion.

"They can at least arguably stand a reduction," said Frenzel, who is retiring from Congress.

These programs are even more vulnerable because by some measures, the nation's elderly are a relatively well-off group. Advocates for the elderly dispute those measures.

Yeltsin hatches insidious plan

Just when you thought it was safe to trust the Soviets, a diabolical plot has been hatched in Moscow, no doubt with the intention of exporting this revolutionary concept to the free world: Boris Yeltsin, president of Soviet Russia, has decreed an end to perks for the political elite.

It's unsure whether this left-wing radical can pull it off, given the long tradition of privileges for hardworking apparatchiks, privileges that include special well-stocked stores, large, comfy apartments, chauffeur-driven cars and dachas on the Black Sea coast. Yeltsin wants to eliminate all that, so that government officials receive much the same benefits as average workers.

He may be taking glasnost much too far. Top Washington officials perhaps should try to convince Soviet reformers not to be too hasty, lest the government become overburdened by radical change.

After all, if not for well-deserved perks, our senators, representatives and top bureaucrats would be overcome by the rigors of governing a nation. That's why we provide them with free or subsidized haircuts, parking, WATS lines, medical care, prescription drugs, dining rooms, franking privileges and "fact-finding" trips to Hawaii or the Paris Air Show.

How could they govern this nation without travel expenses, fully staffed gymnasiums, swimming pools, basketball courts, tennis courts, volleyball courts, steam rooms, saunas, and paintings from the National Gallery of Art and plants from the government's Botanic Gardens to decorate their offices.

And what about special subway cars; office equipment, including radios, computers, televisions, VCRs; long-term auto leasing (for work, of course); subscriptions to newspapers and magazines; office furniture from leather couches to made-to-order bookcases; education expenses; American flags; and photographs of themselves to give to constituents.

If allowed to spread, Yeltsin's radical notions could infect our nation. We're confident our leaders in Washington will remain vigilant against this insidious Soviet threat to the American political way of life.

Chapter 11 is easier on the very wealthy

By ART BUCHWALD

In the summer we live on an island, and we only see each other for two months. Yet it's amazing how much we get done in that short period of time.

We were spread out on the beach last Wednesday, and someone said, "What happened to the Doubleglasses?"

"Harry went into Chapter 11 and Mrs. Doubleglass went to Reno."

"What is Chapter 11?" Dottie Tubridy, a visitor from Dublin, Ireland, asked.

"It's when you can't pay your bills and you say to a judge, 'This is now your problem — not mine.'"

"I don't understand why anyone would want to go into Chapter 11," Dottie went on.

Darryl replied, "They don't want to do it. They have to so the plumber won't beat them up."

"Would a plumber really beat up a person because he can't pay his debts?" Dottie asked.

"Not once," answered Crimea, "he'd beat him up 20 times. As a matter of fact, when someone can't pay his bills, there is a long line of people waiting to beat him up. That's why we have Chapter 11 laws, so the person can hide when the mob wants to tear him apart."

Dottie was fascinated with all of this. "Is it a disgrace to go into bankruptcy?"

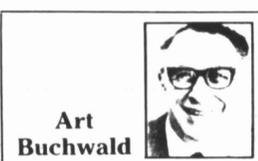

"It used to be," said Joel the lawyer. "But now everybody's doing it. It's like buying a hot tub."

Angel, another lawyer, declared, "It's very wise to do it, particularly if you have put everything in your wife's name."

"I don't understand," Dottie confessed.

Angel explained, "Many people play it safe by putting everything in their spouse's name so when they declare bankruptcy they have no assets to divide among their creditors."

"That's very clever," said Dottie in her lilting Irish voice.

Art Buchwald

"It is and it isn't," Angel admitted. "Sometimes when the guy goes bust, the marriage goes bust about the same time, and then the wife keeps the assets he turned over to her for safekeeping."

"It seems unfair," Dottie muttered.

"We have a saying in this country. Life and Chapter 11 are both unfair," Sheldon stated.

"Can a person get out of Chapter 11?" Dottie asked.

"He can if he pays all his debts and the bank gives him back his car," Donald told her. "Going into Chapter 11 and coming out again is what is known as the American dream."

Angel added, "The thing you must understand, Dottie, is not everyone who goes into Chapter 11 has the same lifestyle. The richer the bankrupt person, the easier it is for him to maintain the way he lived in the past. The poorer people in bankruptcy are poorer now than they ever were before."

"Why do the rich bankrupt people live better than the poor?" Dottie asked.

"Because the rich can keep up a front, and the poor are not permitted to. Besides, the rich can always count on someone giving them credit on the off chance that they might have their real money stashed away in Liechtenstein. No such hopes for the poor."

Dottie told us, "Your Chapter 11 is much more civilized than the one we have in Ireland."

"What happens in Ireland when you go broke?" Sheldon asked.

No quick or easy fix for the deficit

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — While it makes a handy slogan in a campaign year, the balanced budget amendment wouldn't have put a dent in the deficit any time soon, if ever.

Curbing deficits will require tough, politically painful decisions on spending and taxes, item by item. By contrast, there's no political downside to a vote in favor of amending the Constitution in the name of balanced federal budgets.

So a House majority voted for the amendment, falling just seven short of the two-thirds margin it takes to approve a proposed change in the Constitution. A day later, the House overwhelmingly approved a bill to require that government revenues and expenditures be equal beginning in the next budget year.

That, too, is political symbolism, because it probably won't pass the Senate and couldn't be enforced even if it became law. But it gave House members another opportunity to record votes in favor of balanced budgets after the constitutional amendment was turned down on Tuesday.

Measures like those have been argued for years, sometimes approved, then forgotten or waived — nearly 400 times in a decade in the case of a measure that was supposed to curb spending.

The only restraint that counts is the one that has the heat on now: the Gramm-Rudman budget control law that will force drastic, automatic spending cuts in the middle of the fall campaign unless Congress and the White House come to terms on sharp reductions in the projected deficit, now forecast at a swollen $168.8 billion. That law, too, has been eased, and probably will be again as part of any 1990 settlement.

The problem is that deficits are made up of hundreds of decisions, not one judgment that can be reversed with a single stroke. No constitutional amendment is going to balance the budget, any more than a constitutional amendment stopped people from drinking liquor.

"BALANCE THE BUDGET? ... OKAY! ... JUST TOSS ON A FEW MORE TAXPAYERS!"

Habits persist, no matter what is written into the Constitution, and deficits have been habitual, the pattern in 50 of the past 58 years, the rule in 20 of the past 21.

Every spending program has a constituency of interests and individuals — voters — who benefit, while the cost is spread among all the taxpayers or added to the national debt. The congressman who votes for spending targeted at his constituents can, and does, follow up with speeches denouncing deficits.

Eight years ago, Ronald Reagan pushed a balanced budget amendment as an antidote to his own administration's budget, which forecast a record deficit. Reagan, and now President Bush, have been seeking approval ever since, although neither has sent Congress a balanced budget.

In 1982, the Senate, controlled by Republicans, approved the amendment 69 to 31. The House turned it down, 46 votes short of the required two-thirds majority.

The Senate came within a vote of reviving the balanced budget amendment in 1986, narrowly rejecting a Democratic version. That measure is up again, but House rejection forecloses congressional approval of an amendment this year. Were one to be approved, it would go to the states for ratification.

Capitol report

The near miss in the House this time reflects the frustration, the dilemma, and the political discomfort of deficits that have swollen the national debt to $3.1 trillion and counting.

The version the House rejected would have required presidents to propose balanced budgets each year, with Congress and the administration then agreeing on anticipated revenues and spending no more unless three-fifths of the members of each house vote to do so.

That certainly would make deficit votes more difficult. But it comes with variables, loopholes and no enforcement terms. And it orders an outcome, not a solution. One opponent, Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said it would mean no more than a bumper sticker.

While they argued about the impact of an amendment, sponsors and opponents agreed in their set-piece debate that Congress lacks the political will and the courage to cope with the deficit.

An advocate said the only people who would have been hurt by a balanced budget amendment, including a provision making it more difficult to impose new taxes, would be thousands of lobbyists who want taxes raised so they can get more money appropriated for the interests they represent.

But lobbyists don't vote, on taxes or on appropriations. Members of Congress do that.

Quotes

"After this is all over and we denounce him, we still want him to be our friend." — Sen. Bill Armstrong, R-Okla., after the Senate voted 96-0 Wednesday to denounce Sen. Dave Durenberger for financial wrongdoing. But first, senators called the Minnesota Republican a man of conscience, of influence, of decency. Afterward they lined up to hug him, shake his hand and pat his shoulder.

"This precious fruit will open a decisive chapter in a road to ending national division and achieving peaceful unification." — South Korean chief delegate Song Han-ho after an agreement was signed in Panmunjom with Communist North Korea that calls for talks to ease Cold War confrontation.

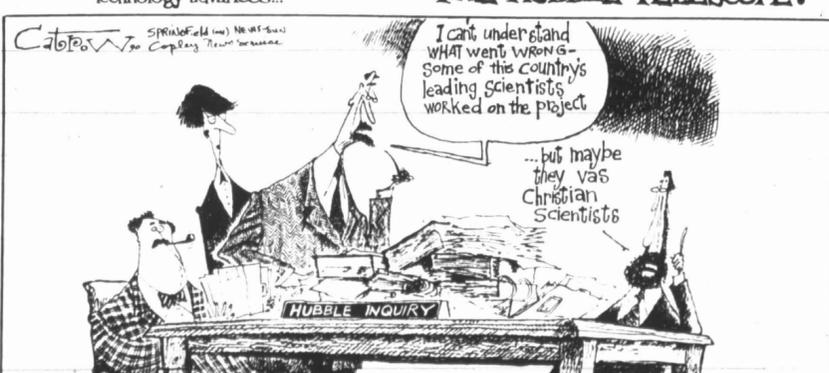

"The trouble with Imelda (Marcos) is she is so insincere. She is using the disaster for her foolishness." — Philippine Press Secretary Tomas Gomez, announcing that $5 million in frozen funds allegedly looted from the national treasury will not be released so the former first lady can donate it to help victims of the July 16 earthquake.

Former Coahoma students reunite

By CLARA JUSTICE
Coahoma Correspondent

Ninety-seven people attended the recent reunion of Coahoma classes 1954, '55 and '56, which began with a Friday night barbecue.

Visiting was the highlight of the evening, and door prizes were awarded to the person with the most children, most grand children, the persons married the longest, and the person traveling the greatest distance.

Then men began Saturday morning with a game of golf. Other activities began at 10 a.m. in the Patio Room at the Days Inn, beginning with a continental breakfast, followed with lunch. More visiting, picture taking and looking at annuals and old pictures was enjoyed by 45 to 65 class members, spouses and visitors. Saturday evening 88 persons enjoyed a buffet at La Posada restaurant. The weekend ended with several enjoying the rodeo and dance.

Fourteen members and spouses of the class of 1954 were in attendance, including the Rev. Darrell and Kathy Robinson, Atlanta, Ga. Other 1954 class members attending were Shirley Cearley Ditto, Donna Huston McIntosh, Clyde Montgomery, and Tommy Wyrick, all from the Big Spring area. Traveling from other parts of Texas were Shirley Graves Edwards, Midland; Carolyn Harrington Fielder, San Marcos; Sue Hill Murray, Lewisville; Billy Jenkins, Gardendale; Beverly Meador Riley, Burkburnett; Jerris Springfield, New Braunfels; Skeet Williams, Port Neches; Murphy Woodson, San Antonio; and Jack Owens, Elk City, Okla.

Seventeen members and spouses of the class of 1955 attended, including J.C. and Carolyn Petty, Warner Robins, Ga. Other class members attending were Mackie Brooks Hays, David Hodnett, Doug Warren, Valcee Cox, Sue Buchanan Tindol, Ann Hodnett Baker and Richard Gilmore, all from the Big Spring area.

Coming from other parts of Texas were Dudley Arnett, Burleson; Grady Barr, Tyler; Bob Garrett, Midland; Carl Kennedy, Odessa; Mary Massey Hughes, DeSoto; Sue and Jackie Sheedy, Pickton; Paul Thomas, San Antonio; Martha White Kallus, Midland; and Jack Morrison, Lake Jackson. Also attending was Grady Barr's mother, Maureen Barr, Big Spring.

At 48 former students, the CHS class of 1956 was the largest eighth grade to that point, it only graduated 21 due to moves, matrimony etc. Attending the recent reunion was a total of 23 classmates — including 11 of the graduates — along with 18 spouses (two of which were in the class of '54), one friend, one dad, C.H. DeVaney, Lewisville, father of Arlon DeVaney, one child and one grandchild.

Coming the farthest were Al and Vonna Mae Springfield Cope from the Netherlands. Next were Gene and Patsy Owens Fields from Charleston, S.C. The youngest child — a one year old son — belongs to Gene Hair and wife, Roberta Fischer, Allen. Sporting beards, which further concealed their identity, were Robert Jeff Alexander and Art Dodds, both of Big Spring.

Other 1956 class members from Big Spring area were Jaynet Graham Smith, Harold Williams, Darla Woodson Swindell, Jimmy Hopper, Guy Hodnett, Elzan Tindol Schafer, Mollie Griffith Wyrick and LaBeth Walker Montgomery. Attending from other parts of Texas were Iris Lilly Conner, Robert Lee; Sandra Reid Duenzi, Dallas; Natha McMinn Mitchell, Stanton; Tommy Aberegg,

Help is a banner away for motorists

DEAR ABBY: My grandson, Greg, now 21 years old, developed fluid on the brain at the age of 14. Since that time, he's had several operations. Last April, while Greg was at the hospital recovering from the last operation, he took a turn for the worse during the night. I was called and told that his condition was critical.

My friend Barbara offered to drive me to the hospital. En route, her car broke down on the highway. Fortunately, she had a "Call Police" banner in the glove compartment of her car. No more than five minutes passed from the time we displayed the banner until a state trooper arrived!

What a happy coincidence: Last October, I read about those "Call Police" banners in your column and sent for 50 of them to give to friends and relatives as Christmas gifts. Barbara's "Call Police" banner had been a gift from me! Little did I know that I'd be the one to benefit from it. The trooper told us that numerous cars have telephones these days, which explains why the response to the banner was so immediate.

Greg's operation was successful, thank God, and he graduated from Boston College on May 21, 1990. Thanks again, Abby. — DEBORAH J. TOCCO, READING, MASS.

DEAR DEBORAH: Thank you for sharing your experience with me so that I can remind others to order "Call Police" banners.

To order, write to: W.C.I.L. Banners, P.O. Box 66955, Los Angeles, Calif. 90066. The cost, which includes postage and handling, is $4 for one banner or $7 for two (for windshield and rear window). Make your check or money order (U.S. funds only, please) payable to: WCIL BANNERS. The Westside Center for Independent Living exists to help physically disabled people live independently.

DEAR ABBY: I am the father of a beautiful 2-year-old daughter. I enjoy taking her out for breakfast once a week for some special "one-on-one" time with her daddy. The problem arises (inevitably) when one of us has to go to the restroom. I wouldn't think of leaving her alone at the table when I go, not in this day and age when there are nuts who would grab a child in a minute. But, with her at age 2, I'm not sure it's cool to take her into the men's room with me, either.

When she has to go "potty," I am unsure of which restroom she belongs in. (Believe me, Abby, I have had some strange looks from women entering the restroom as I am leaving it with my little girl in tow.)

So, on behalf of all of us fathers, I am asking you: What is the safest and most proper way to deal with this problem? — SEATTLE FATHER

DEAR SEATTLE FATHER: Little boys are routinely taken into ladies' rooms by their mothers, so why shouldn't little girls be taken into men's rooms by their fathers? (Better a small girl in a men's room than a grown man in a ladies' room!)

Obviously, if there is a stall with a door in the men's restroom, that is the one you should choose.

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Readers can write to Abby at P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

1990 Property Tax Rates in Forsan ISD

This notice concerns 1990 property tax rates for Forsan ISD. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$2,310,487
+ Last year's debt taxes	$613,827
= Last year's total taxes	$2,924,314
+ Last year's tax base	$296,216,325
= Last year's total tax rate	$.99 /$100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$2,902,891
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$330,626,198
= This year's effective tax rate	$.8779 /$100

(In the first year a city or county collects the additional sales tax it must insert the following lines unless it made its first adjustment last year:)

Sales tax adjustment rate	$-0- /$100
Effective tax rate	$-0- /$100

x 1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing

This year's rollback tax rate:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$2,287,126
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$330,626,198
= This year's effective operating rate	$.6918 /$100
+ 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$1.7471 /$100
= This year's debt rate	$1.2102 /$100

(A school district must insert the following lines)
= This year's rollback rate before adjustment	$.9573 /$100
+ Rate to recoup lost state funds	$.0051 /$100
= A. Adjusted rollback rate	$.9624 /$100
+ B. Rate that would result in maximum state funds	$-0- /$100
Rollback Rate (greater of A or B)	$.9624 /$100

= This year's rollback rate $1.9624 /$100

Dinosaur expecting baby this month

A dinosaur at the Petroleum Museum's Dinosafari exhibit, the apatosaurus, is expecting a baby later this month. Staff members have noticed a nest-like structure in the creature's setting.

A hatchling is expected to appear about July 28.

The apatosaurus, "Deceitful Lizard" lived in the mid to late Jurassic period about 170 to 140 million years ago. It could grow to 15 feet tall and 70 feet long.

Admission to the exhibit is $4 for adults, $3.50 for seniors citizens and $3 for children 3 to 11. Call 687-6868 to hear a list of current activities at the museum.

Symphony plans Dallas concert

It's official: the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale are set to perform Sunday, Sept. 30 in Dallas. Their show will take place at 2:30 p.m. in the Meyerson Symphony Center McDermott Concert Hall.

A special travel and performance package sponsored by NCNB Texas allows travelers to fly round-trip to Dallas, stay at the Plaza of the Americas and attend a reception for the group at the Museum of Art. Cost is $239 per person, double occupancy, $284 per person, single occupancy.

Call 1-800-458-2878 for information by Aug. 15 for the special trip package. For individual tickets to the show, call Rainbow-Ticketmaster.

Vault stores celluloid turkeys: truly terrible

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — When you're bored by "Batman" and depressed by the relentless good cheer of "The Sound of Music," perhaps it's time to load the VCR with a tape from the Video Vault's collection of celluloid turkeys.

"Guaranteed Worst Movies in Town" reads a signboard on the tree-shaded sidewalk outside Jim McCabe's video store in this genteel suburb south of Washington D.C.

McCabe isn't kidding. Video Vault is B-movie heaven, an emporium of Tinseltown disasters, a supermarket of film schlock with such titles as "Santa Claus Conquers the Martians," "I Was a Zombie for the FBI" and "Wrestling Women vs. the Aztec Mummy."

Here are enshrined the long-forgotten relics of Republic, Monogram and other low-budget studios of the 1930s and 1940s, where there was no retake if an actor flubbed his lines or a boom mike suddenly swooped over a lovers' embrace.

McCabe's inventory of more than 18,000 videocassette tapes at two locations includes the usual array of new Hollywood releases, the bread and butter of the video rental business. But he attributes his financial success to Video Vault's stock of hard-to-find foreign art films, pre-1950s classics and cult movie atrocities.

He boasts several copies of "Detour," a 1945 film noir which McCabe says is "probably the most famous B movie ever made." Featuring a cast of three obscure actors, it was shot on a $21,000 budget in just six days on two sets — a hotel room and the inside of an automobile.

There are stomach-churning two-reelers by H.G. Lewis, "the godfather of gore," the cult classic "Reefer Madness," Russ Meyer's "Mondo Topless" and other bosomy epics, "Cannibal Holocaust," "Ilsa, Harem Keeper of the Oil Sheiks," and Ed D. Wood Jr.'s "Night of the Ghouls," hailed as "the ultimate in cheap, trashy horror films."

Wood, incidentally, is considered the worst director of all time and his "Plan 9 from Outer Space" is a blue-ribbon staple at festivals of the worst movies ever made, McCabe said.

"Wood was dead serious, but the guy was so inept that when people see his stuff they say 'My God, I can't believe this.' They fall out of their seats and roll on the floor. His movies are so bad they're entertaining."

McCabe, 40, is a trained psychologist who suffered burnout after seven years of working in the state mental hospital in his native Columbia, S.C. He moved to Washington in 1980 as a Reagan administration appointee in the Education Department. "It was zombie land," he said.

"I've always been a movie buff, so five years ago I said what the hell, let's roll the dice and see what happens," McCabe said. He rented the rear of a converted townhouse in historic Alexandria and put 500 movie tapes on the shelves.

McCabe spent long hours scouring the fine print of obscure distributors' and collectors' catalogs for "the good movies that you don't find anywhere else," and his business boomed. He opened a second outlet in Washington's fashionable Georgetown neighborhood last January, and offers mail-order rentals to subscribers in more than 40 states and British Columbia.

McCabe estimates he will gross more than $1 million this year, an unusual achievement in a highly competitive industry dominated by such giant chains as Blockbuster Entertainment Corp. of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., West Coast Video Ltd. of Philadelphia and Erol's, a local firm.

"I warn the little guys out there that this is a serious game, a tough business, and you've got to find your niche or you'll get swallowed up by the big guys," he said.

McCabe has found his niche. You can find it, too, on the racks labeled "Saturday Night Sleazies" and "Drive-In Madness." Look no further than "Bela Lugosi Meets a Brooklyn Gorilla" or "Girl on a Chain Gang."

And don't miss "Guide to Safe Sex," a compilation of 1940s sex education films. The one with a couple of grinning bobby-soxers on the cover and this warning label: "Don't Touch That Zipper Until You See This Tape."

ALEXANDRIA, VA. (AP) — Jim McCabe holds a poster of one of the really bad movies he rents in his video store. The Video Vault is a B-movie heaven, an emporium of Tinseltown disasters, a supermarket of film schlock. Could this be a new trend for the 90s?

Funny-man Murray makes uneven film

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Quick Change," the new Bill Murray comedy from Warner Bros., begins with the most ingenious heist on film since "Topkapi." It's a robbery of a Manhattan bank by three people who manage to escape with their loot despite a heavily armed task force of the New York Police Department.

The opening is a riveting sequence full of quick surprises, a tough act to follow. The movie doesn't exactly go downhill from there, but it does get mired in borgh backwaters as the bickering robbers blunder their way to Kennedy International Airport. Is it really that hard to find the airport in New York?

The film opens with closeups of faces on the subway, weary, dispirited citizens and then one in a clown's makeup. He emerges on the street with his gas balloons, and the bustling crowd pays him no heed. Arriving at a bank, he barely beats the closing time. Then he produces a gun.

While the robbery is in progress, the bank is surrounded by the police force led by chief Jason Robards, who grows more frustrated by the clown's demands. The chief is totally tricked, and he vows to track down the culprits.

Bill Murray is the brains behind the robbery. Geena Davis is his clear-thinking accomplice, and Randy Quaid is the dull-witted getaway driver. It's hard to imagine a more incompetent co-conspirator than Quaid, but Murray feels a certain loyalty because they were childhood pals.

The actors perform admirably with the uneven material. Murray is his glib, fast-talking self, Geena Davis again impresses as a comedic actress and Quaid does his Gomer Pyle imitation.

Family group back into the music biz

BOSTON (AP) — In the late 1960s, the Cowsills were the quintessential American family, a sweet, pop rock group of five siblings and their mini-skirted mother who later became the model for TV's "The Partridge Family."

By 1971, they had virtually vanished, the victim of a fickle public and poor management. Their $30 million fortune disappeared in bad investments. The breakup was so acrimonious, many members of the family did not speak until their mother's funeral in 1985.

"It wasn't just the end of a business, it was the end of a family," said group leader Bob Cowsill, 40.

Several of the Cowsills spent the last two decades battling drugs, alcohol and severe depression. The family declared bankruptcy in 1977.

Now they're planning a comeback — both as a group and as a family. They reunited for the first time in 20 years in Boston in early July, in a concert dedicated to their mother. In attendance at a packed club for the concert were singer Paula Abdul and two of the Beach Boys.

At their concert, the Cowsills sang the old hits as well as new material, in a surprisingly smooth, polished set reminiscent of such groups as Fleetwood Mac. They have a new manager and are shopping a tape of new music at different record labels.

As their fame evaporated, so did the facade of the happy family. Years under the iron rule of their father, and manager, Bud Cowsill, took a toll.

At the time of their mother's death from emphysema, she was working the night shift in a Rhode Island nursing home, estranged from several of her children.

Bud Cowsill, whom his children say has "mellowed," now lives alone in Rosarita Beach in Mexico.

The Cowsill kids were recruited for the "Partridge Family" TV show in 1970, but refused to sign when producers rejected their mother in favor of actress Shirley Jones.

The Cowsills hope to find a record company that will allow them to do the kind of music they envisioned in the early days in Newport. Only four Cowsills performed in Boston but the plan is to add the other three, including Richard, once they get more bookings.

The Cowsills are, from left, Bob, Susan, John and Paul, seen backstage before their recent Boston reunion concert. The family group is trying to make a comeback.

Spring board

How's that?

Q. Is it true that Howard College will lose thousands of dollars in federal revenues if the dormitories are not completed by Aug. 15?

A. No, says Vice President for fiscal affairs, Terry Hansen. If the dorms were never completed at all, the college might lose some state appropriations due to lower enrollment, but federal money is not in the picture. He says he is still confident they'll be done for the arrival of new students.

3-person injury mishap results in four citations

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

Big Spring police have issued four citations to the driver of a car and a passenger involved in a traffic accident last week that seriously injured three people, including a 5-month-old boy, investigators confirmed.

Lt. Pam Jordan said this morning the car's driver, Michelle Dawn Deanda, 22, 809 Aylford St., was cited for failure to control speed to prevent an accident and no safety belt.

Jordan said she could not release the speed the car was traveling.

A passenger who was riding in the front seat, Rosendo Rodriguez, 20, who was arrested at the scene of the accident on a public intoxication charge, was issued citations for obstructing a driving mechanism and no seat belt, Jordan said.

She added that the police investigation of the accident — primarily conducted by the patrol division with the assistance of detectives — was completed Wednesday and forwarded to Howard County Attorney Hardy Wilkerson.

He has stated under Texas law a driver who is considered intoxicated and causes bodily injury can be charged with aggravated driving while intoxicated.

That charge is a Class A misdemeanor, however, it carries "enhanced penalties," when serious bodily injury occurs, Wilkerson said this morning.

An individual who registers under .10 on a breathalyzer test can still be considered legally intoxicated if the investigating officer determines the driver is impaired, according to state statutes.

Jordan said she was unsure whether the citations were delivered by uniformed officers or Deanda and Rodriguez were notified and came to the police station.

Individuals who are issued citations by police are notified they have 14 days to either pay a fine or appear before Municipal Court Judge Gwen Fair to enter a not guilty plea, according to warrant officer Javier Becerra.

Wilkerson said he will make a decision on the filing of charges by Monday.

Deanda was administered a blood alcohol alcohol test twice at the police station by a Texas Department of Safety officer. Chief Joe Cook has said she registered under what is considered the legal limit (.10).

Deanda has not been arrested. The three pedestrians injured in the accident remain hospitalized, but their conditions are improving, according to nursing spokeswomen.

James Elijah Lang — who suffered a fractured skull and brain hemorrhage — is listed in stable condition, a nursing supervisor at Lubbock's St. Mary's Hospital said this morning.

She added the child's vital signs remain stable.

The boy's mother, Lakisaj Lang, and Tammi M. Smith, are both listed in good condition this morning, a nursing supervisor at Scenic Mountain Medical Center said today.

Lang sustained a separated pelvis and Smith is being treated for a broken right leg, a broken thumb and facial cuts.

The accident occurred shortly after midnight Friday when Deanda's car left the roadway in the 1200 block of Scurry Street and struck the pedestrians — including a man who sustained only minor injuries — on the east side of the road, according to police reports.

ing you have to look at their face to see if they like it, because they would never tell you. They've just been precious children."

Brown-Esquilin has a list several pages long of kids whose parents cannot afford to buy them new clothes. Their ages range from 4 to 16 years old.

"Now is a good time, because school is almost starting," she said. "The mothers are panicking, wondering where they are going to get clothes and school supplies."

Last year, 28 kids were sponsored in the program.

"It really needs to expand this year," Brown-Esquilin said. "There are so many more already who need help."

"Churches can do this, organizations, families," she said. "I had one family, the mother told her kids to each give up something and they used the money to sponsor three children."

Besides clothing, sponsors can arrange for the children to have free haircuts at Head Hunter Beauty Salon.

"I appreciate it from the heart," said the parent of one recipient. "I try my best to have what they (the children) want, but it's hard. I'm not poor, I just need a little help."

"This is all part of their self-image," Brown-Esquilin said. "Self-image and self-worth are so important. If you think you're not worth anything, you aren't going to achieve anything."

Dumping: City fees disputed; officials provide $287 filing fee

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

A county trash hauler said Wednesday that he has contacted a lawyer who says it's illegal to impose city fees on a county trash service, even though the landfill is in city limits. At the same time, three public officials have personally paid the permit fee to allow Carter to gather and dispose of garbage from outside of Big Spring city limits.

Ronnie Carter, who closed his trash business in June because of city commercial permit and dumping fees, would not disclose the name of the lawyer but said he is from San Angelo. The lawyer is willing to represent him, Carter said.

"He said they're imposing an ordinance on me that does not apply," he said. "I'm not picking up trash in the city. They're trying to impose an ordinance on me like I was picking up trash in the city."

Asked if that argument could make any difference in the 1974 city-county landfill contract that authorizes fees for commercial haulers, Big Spring City Attorney Mike Thomas said, "It could, but right now from what I've seen, he is using our streets . . . it costs money to run the landfill."

"Unless something comes up that changes my mind, my position is that they can" (charge those fees), he said. "The city can do it if the trash hauler is doing it for compensation."

Howard County Attorney Hardy Wilkerson said he would have to look at the contract to be sure. "I'm not familiar with the contract so I can't tell you," he said. "If that's the case, then Mr. Carter certainly has legal recourse against the city."

Meanwhile, the county judge and two commissioners, frustrated after two months of negotiations to amend the city-county landfill contract to lower the fees, met in an impromptu session Wednesday afternoon and decided to pay $287.50 for a city permit fee out of their own pockets in behalf of Carter. It does not cover a dumping fee of $1.75 for every square-yard of trash dumped.

"I appreciate it," Carter said. "There's only one problem. I've got me a lawyer that said in an hour-and-a-half he could be in court and take care of it."

Carter said he would prefer to negotiate the issue out of court without attorneys. "I'd rather settle this locally since it is a local problem," he said.

"What I'm shooting for, either with an attorney or without the attorney, is that I get an unlimited contract for the rest of my life," he said. "I myself would like to sit down and negotiate without any attorneys."

Carter said he would also like to recoup his losses if possible. He says he lost more than $1,000 since April when he was informed that he would need to pay commercial fees.

Losses include: $100 for an oil field tank to burn trash; about $300 in gas from traveling to the courthouse and city hall to try to get the fees waived; a potential of $547 in income for July; and $125 reimbursed to customers after closing his business last month.

In April he had 48 customers, each being charged $10 a month. He began charging $12.50 a month in June but had been losing customers, he said. He closed in June, saying that burning the trash was bad for his health.

Carter said he would also like to see commissioners reimbursed for the permit fee. "Out of this reimbursement that I'm asking for they might be able to go back to the council to get their money back," he suggested.

The decision of commissioners to personally pay for a permit fee followed a move by Wilkerson Tuesday to stop any county payments of the city fees for Carter, pending an opinion from the state attorney general's office to see if Commissioners Court has the authority by state statutes to make such payments. Commissioners had agreed at a regular meeting Monday to allow the county to temporarily handle the fees for Carter.

County Judge John Coffee said they wanted to make sure a county trash hauling business is available for county residents.

"I'm concerned about those people out there that need their trash hauled," he said of elderly and sick residents.

"I don't know what the city's problem is," he said. "We're no closer to getting a solution than we were 60 days ago. It looks like the city's dawdling."

"From our viewpoint, first of all, we own half that landfill," he said. "It seems like if we own half of it we ought to have more say-so about who can bury what out there."

According to the landfill contract, the county pays the city $14,000 a year to help subsidize the city for operating the landfill, Coffee said. County residents can dump their trash without charge, but commercial haulers must pay fees.

After the impromptu meeting Wednesday involving Coffee and commissioners Bill Crocker and Paul Allen, Coffee delivered a personal check to City Public Works Director Tom Decell.

"We've gotten kind of fed up," Crocker said after the meeting. Decell said Carter can have a permit within about five minutes after bringing in the permit application and showing proof of automobile insurance.

Benefit bill out of sub-committee

A bill allowing concurrent receipt of disability and retirement benefits for veterans passed in a sub-committee of the House of Representatives Wednesday.

The bill, HR-303, was explained in a two-part series on the plight of disabled retirees in the Herald May 20-21.

Marc Lubin, an aide to Rep. Charles Stenholm, said the bill passed in the Compensation sub-committee by a vote of six to four. The bill will be referred to the Veterans Affairs Committee.

Lubin said a majority of the members of that committee are signed on as sponsors of the bill. Chairman Sonny Montgomery, however, has voiced opposition to the bill, according to information from Uniformed Services Disabled Retirees, a veterans group that has local members.

Cost of the bill, Lubin said, is widely disputed.

Montgomery is a member of the Armed Services Committee as well. That group has been considering the bill for some time, and Lubin said the bill has not made progress there.

progress. "It appears that deposits and profits are returning to the strong part of the industry," he was quoted as saying.

However, at a news conference, Ryan told reporters it was too soon to draw conclusions from the data. He said he would not know if the industry is capable of surviving until sometime early next year.

"Should we jump up and down and declare victory?" he asked. "No. This is still a very tough situation, in my view."

The thrift office divided the S&L industry into four parts: 310 institutions expected to fail, 311 struggling thrifts that may fail, 620 S&Ls that are somewhat weak but are expected to survive and 1,264 institutions in good shape.

Only the institutions in the last group earned what investors consider an acceptable return, $692 million. The next best group earned a subpar $192 million. The struggling S&Ls lost $281 million and the expected failures lost $874 million.

"You have an enormous segment of the industry that isn't making it," Ely said.

Wednesday's report was about a month late. Ryan said the agency had changed its data collection process and hoped to release the reports on time in the future.

ARLINGTON — Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan shows his frustration during play against the New York Yankees Wednesday. Ryan failed in his bid to post his 300th career win.

Win No. 300 will just have to wait

ARLINGTON (AP) — Nolan Ryan picked the wrong time to have his worst performance in 13 years against the New York Yankees.

A good luck haircut didn't even work as his 300th victory party was spoiled by three homers.

However, Pete Incaviglia kept Ryan from a loss Wednesday night with a dramatic ninth-inning homer and Rafael Palmeiro called the game-winning homer in the Texas Rangers' 9-7 victory in 11 innings.

Ryan was crestfallen because he didn't win before the sellout crowd of 41,954, largest of the year in Arlington Stadium.

"I'm really disappointed it turned out like it did," Ryan said. "A lot of people went to a lot of trouble to be in the ballpark and I kind of let them down."

Ryan, hoping to become the 20th pitcher to earn 300 career victories, trailed 7-3 when he left after the eighth inning.

The Rangers tied it on Incaviglia's two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning off Dave Righetti then won it off Palmeiro's two-run homer in the 11th off rookie Mark Leiter.

Palmeiro called his shot for Commissioner Fay Vincent. Texas owner George Bush told Ryan page 2-B

Lewis still unbeatable in long jump

SEATTLE (AP) — U.S. men's basketball is alive at the Goodwill Games, and so is Carl Lewis' incredible nine-year string of long jump victories.

Scrambling to stay alive in the tournament, the U.S. basketball team rebounded from a 92-85 loss to the Soviets the night before with a 113-76 rout of Italy that sent America into the medals round.

"We do have tomorrow," U.S. basketball player Billy Owens said after the U.S. loss.

And what an impressive tomorrow it was.

Lewis, meanwhile, won his 64th straight long jump with a less impressive effort of 27 feet, 6 inches, more than a foot off his best. But there were none better Wednesday night.

"You always want to jump farther," Lewis said.

Basketball

The United States took a 21-point lead at halftime, holding the Italians to 27 percent from the floor, and coasted the rest of the way.

Italy got within 77-55 in the final 10 minutes, but Kenny Anderson of Georgia Tech scored six points in a 10-0 run that ensured this would be a blowout to the end.

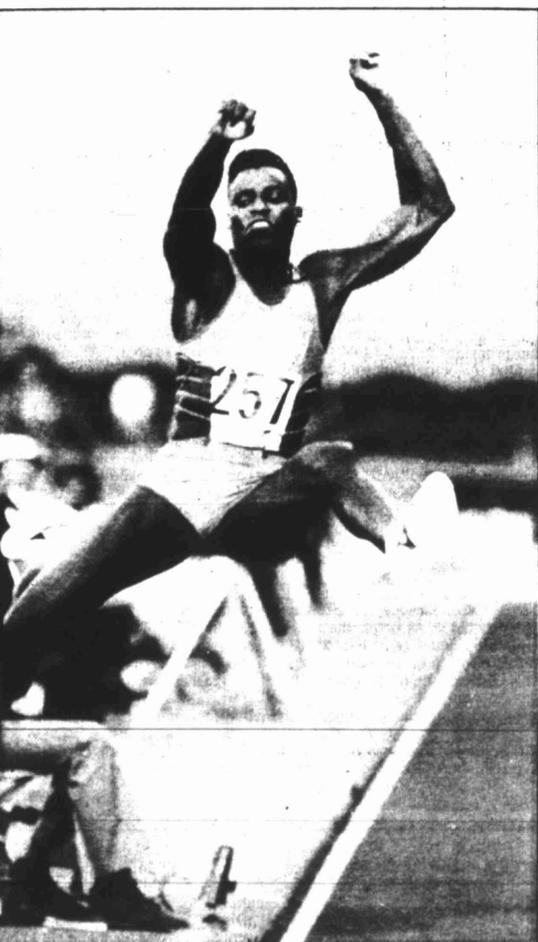

Anderson led the American team with 19 points. Todd Day of Arkansas, starting for the first time, had 15 points and held Italy's top scorer, Antonello Riva, to 21 points, 10.5 below his Goodwill Games average.

The largest U.S. lead was 113-72 on two free throws by Bryant Stith of Virginia with 30 seconds to play.

Two years ago in Seoul, the Soviets beat the United States for the first time in 16 years in major international competition. That loss kept the Americans from winning the gold, something they couldn't have done here if they had not beaten Italy.

"I thought we reacted in a very positive manner after the Soviet game," U.S. coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "We realized we're in a tournament and that game wasn't for the Olympic championships."

In Friday night's semifinals, the United States meets Brazil, which got through the qualifying round undefeated. Oscar Schmidt, one of the most explosive scorers in international basketball, had 42 points

Andrews cowboy smokes field in breakaway roping

By STEVE BELVIN

The American Junior Rodeo Association rodeo got off to a good start Wednesday night at the Big Spring Rodeo Bowl, and Andrews' Ricky Harper showed the crowd why he's ranked so high in the AJRA standings.

Competing in the boys 12-and-under breakaway roping event, Harper, ranked number two in the nation, roped his prey in 3.04. In fact, he was the only contestant in his age group to record a time in opening night action.

Two local participants competed Wednesday. Jerod Johnston competed in the eight-and-under goat hair pulling and the barrel race. Rick Hair was in the boys 16-19 bull riding event.

Johnston no timed in the barrels, but finished second in the goat hair pulling in 18.02. Winning the event was Trey Dove of Seminole in 13.71.

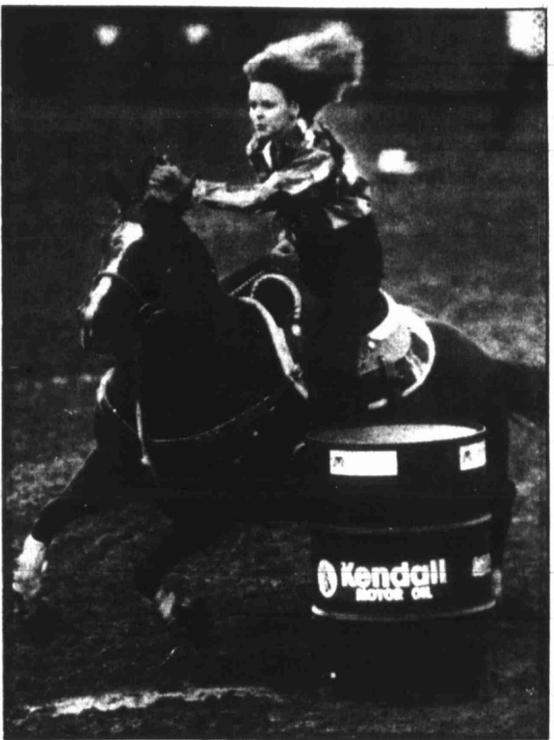

Hair didn't record a score on the bull.

Winning the junior bull riding competition was Blue Bryant of Nacogdoches with a score of 68.

There was some close competition in the girls 12-and-under barrel race as Sterling City's Shanna Bynum won the event in 18.4. She was followed by Sweetwater's Shasta Brooks (18.5) and Erin Kelly of Iraan (18.6).

The best barrel racing score of the night came from Mecca McMullan of Iraan in the girls 16-19 division. McMullan was timed in 17.7. She was followed by Schelli Walls of Stephenville in 18.0 and Midland's Robyn Jones in 18.4.

Action continues tonight at 7:30 at the Rodeo Bowl. Admission is $4 for adults and $1.50 for children.

Five years and nine hours short

EDITOR'S NOTE — Almost 25 percent of the 331 players drafted by the NFL last April left college one semester or less away from a degree. This is the story of one of them in the second of a three-part AP Sports Extra series.

By HAL BOCK

AP Sports Writer

In some places, defensive tackle Oliver Barnett would have been described as a project, an academic longshot.

Athletics versus Academics

At the University of Kentucky, though, he was the pride of the counseling department, a football player who had worked hard to make it, a student who was just nine hours from his degree in social work. On the Kentucky campus, he was a success story, a top flight athlete who was making it in the classroom as well.

And then came the spring semester, the scouting combines, the tryouts, the NFL draft, the mini-camps. And that's when, after five years of classes and counselors, five years of tutors and tests, five years of working for everything he got academically, Oliver Barnett dropped out.

Nine hours — not even a full semester — short of his degree.

"You want to graduate, but the opportunity to play pro ball... most guys put that higher," Barnett said. "There was a lot of pressure when the season was over. First, there are the all-star games. You want to play. You want to show your talents and give it all you have."

"Then the pro scouts come around to test you out. They test at all times of the day, every day of the week, it seems. It puts a strain on academics. A big strain."

In April, Barnett was picked in the third round by the Atlanta Falcons. In May, Kentucky's class of 1990 graduated — without him.

"Watching that, seeing the guys I knew on the team who graduated, I felt left out," he said. "It was kind of sad."

Astros 5, Braves 1
Danny Darwin pitched a five-hitter, equaled his career high with 10 strikeouts and singled a run home and Eric Yelding had a career-high four hits and drove in two runs as Houston won for only the third time in its last 26 road games.

Darwin (5-1), making his fifth start after 111 consecutive relief appearances, pitched his first complete game since Aug. 19, 1988. He lost his bid for his first shutout since Aug. 15, 1987, when Lonnie Smith opened the Atlanta ninth with a double and scored on Jeff Treadway's single.

The Astros jumped on rookie Steve Avery (1-5) for three runs in the second inning on RBI hits by Carl Nichols, Darwin and Yelding.

seven games he homered twice.

After grounding out in the sixth Canseco drove in two more runs with a bases-loaded single in Oakland's five-run seventh.

The victory was Oakland's fourth straight and gave the A's a four-game lead in the West over the White Sox, their biggest lead since June 20.

Royals 6, Blue Jays 1
Brett collected a single in the first and a triple in the third, both off Blue Jays starter Todd Stottlemyre. Brett doubled off reliever Frank Wills in the fifth, then homered off Wills in the seventh, his sixth of the season, to give the Royals a 6-0 lead.

The last time Brett hit for the cycle was against the Baltimore Orioles on May 28, 1979. It marked the sixth time a Royals player has accomplished the feat.

Andy McGaffigan (1-0), making his first start since 1986, allowed two hits over five innings to gain the win. Todd Stottlemyre (9-11) lost his fourth straight start.

Red Sox 2, Brewers 0
Roger Clemens pitched a three-hitter for his first win since June 28 and Carlos Quintana homered to lead Boston over Milwaukee, ending a four-game losing streak.

Clemens (13-5) struck out nine and gave up three singles.

that with agent Bruce Allen, Barnett's representative.

"I called the agent and asked him to fax the 'graduation completion program' to me. I told them I wanted to see it. They told me it's not in writing, I'm not surprised."

Allen said he works with college counselors trying to assist players to go back to school in the city in which they play and to make their credits transferrable. He cited one of his clients, Sonny Gordon, a defensive back from Ohio State, who took courses at the University Union, who jumped last in the event, could do no better than 27-0.

"I felt I could have had a little better effort," Lewis said. "But it was a little cold, and the main thing was to win. I'll get some better jumps off later this summer."

Randy Barnes won the shot put with a throw that was more than five feet short of his world record.

"I'll see how he feels and then we'll make a decision," Valentine said.

Ryan said he's ready to get his 300th ordeal over.

"I don't want this thing to drag out," Ryan said. "I don't want a cloud on it. The last thing I want is for it to drag out."

Kevin Maas, Roberto Kelly and Bob Geren hit homers off Ryan.

"He didn't have his best stuff," Kelly said. "It wasn't the Nolan Ryan I had faced before."

Maas was one of four Yankee rookies in the game.

"Just to bat against a Hall of Famer is an honor and to hit a

Pete might not be welcome to play on prison softball teams

MARION, Ill. (AP) — Pete Rose is heading for the lockup, but the place where baseball's all-time leading hitter will be doing time is more like a spring training camp than a slammer.

The Marion Prison Camp — which adjoins the nation's toughest maximum-security federal penitentiary — houses about 200 inmates in an air-conditioned, art-deco style dormitory surrounded by manicured lawns and flower beds.

There is no fence and inmates have free roam of the grounds, including a softball diamond, weight room and tennis, handball, basketball and bocce ball courts.

The inmates can't wait to greet their famous fellow prisoner.

"Everyone here wants to meet him and talk to him," said Mark Bailey, an East Chicago, Ind., native finishing the last two weeks of a seven-month sentence.

"We are betting on whether he will be in the rec department," Bailey said, referring to the prison's inmate-staffed recreation department.

But the general manager of an inmate softball team says Rose may not be welcome on his squad.

"We don't know if we want Pete Rose on the team. The other (teams') guys might quit," said William "Catfish" Haas, an inmate who manages the Undertakers, one of a half-dozen prison softball teams.

Rose was sentenced to the Federal Prison Camp at Marion after his conviction on two counts of filing false income tax returns that did not report $350,000 from gambling and baseball-card shows.

Baseball manager and former Cincinnati Reds manager must report to the camp by Aug. 10. His attorneys said Rose wants to report as soon as he heals from the knee surgery he underwent Friday.

MARION, Ill. — William "Catfish" Haas is general manager of a prison team, the Undertakers. Haas is not sure if he will try to sign Rose to play softball for his team.

Michael knows baseball

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan isn't ready to hang up his sneakers for a pair of spikes, but the Chicago Bulls' star has proven he's no slouch with a baseball bat or a golf club.

Jordan is one of the better golfers among those whom earn their living playing team sports. And, on Wednesday he showed what he could do on a baseball diamond.

Joining the Chicago White Sox in batting practice, Jordan — who routinely scores 30 and 40 points and more in Bulls' games — knocked two practice pitches into the left field stands at Comiskey Park.

"For not being able to play for about eight or nine years, it really felt comfortable," Jordan said. "I'm very pleased with the way I performed, hitting two home runs and all."

The 27-year-old Jordan, a pitcher in high school, had earlier surprised the Sox bullpen by firing out a few sidearm fast balls.

Left-handed reliever Ken Patterson estimated the speed of Jordan's pitches at more than 80 mph.

"I was more impressed with him on the mound than I was at the plate," Patterson said. "He had some real power, upper 80s at least. That's pretty good for a guy who said he hasn't pitched a baseball in two or three years."

Jordan thinks he could have made it as a pitcher.

Wearing a numberless uniform, the 6-foot-6-inch Jordan took the first three pitches from bullpen coach Dave LaRoche before he stroked one to center field.

of Tampa after being drafted by the Bucs and got an Ohio State degree.

"For players who want to do it, it's possible to do it," Allen said. "I don't believe the NFL cares if you graduate. I don't think you can criticize them for leaving early if it helps them get drafted higher. It's a business decision."

Bradley called Allen's graduation completion program "baloney."

"There is no way that anybody is going to tell the University of Kentucky how he will complete his degree," he said. "I told Oliver there was no such thing. Basically it's a lie, a hype."

Barnett, however, bought the hype.

"The sad part is Oliver worked for everything he got," Bradley said. "He was a 50-50 gamble and he gave it everything he had. He was a kid who had to work hard to make it. He was not gifted academically. But he made solid progress here. His skills were so enhanced, socially and academically. He carried himself so well."

"And then in the last semester, after five years, boom, it's over. To see it end nine hours short, that's sad."

Barnett says it's not over. "I'll go back in the off-season and finish up," he said.

Bradley hopes so but his experience tells him otherwise because there are roadblocks to returning. Stay away two years and the university's degree requirements can change.

German Ulf Timmermann, who passed up this meet reportedly over concern about his country's changing politics.

"I'm not surprised at my decline in throwing after the world record," Barnes said. "It's part of the trade. I'm not upset; I'm tickled to death to win."

Dave Johnson overtook Dan

O'Brien in the final event, the 1,500 meters, to win the decathlon, just as he did at the national championships. O'Brien came into the day with a 218-point lead but, with one event left, it had dwindled to 23 points.

At the end, Johnson had 8,403 points to 8,358 for O'Brien.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Sylvester Stallone says he will flex his brain more than his biceps in films. Stallone, 44, who rose to prominence with the original "Rocky" film about an underdog fighter, said in this week's People magazine that audiences cannot identify with the kind of superhero he portrayed in "Rambo III."

"I recently saw 'Rambo III' again and recoiled at a scene where, strong and invulnerable, I stood up there. I mean, I was so invincible, I had veins in my hair. There I was, superhuman, with my gun obliterating everyone crossing my path," Stallone said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Guitarist Nancy Wilson of the band Heart said male groupies are more romantic than female groupies.

"In fact, the males are more like fans. I wouldn't even call them groupies because they deserve better," said Wilson, 36, in this week's People magazine.

She said male fans will send poems and flowers.

"Guys get very shy. They're not as obvious about it," said Wilson, who leads Heart along with her sister, singer Ann Wilson.

The band's latest album is "Brigade."

FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Wonderful adventure lies ahead. Give in to those feelings of wanderlust in September! You can negotiate a deal in November. Look forward to a fabulous holiday season. A legal matter will be settled in your favor in early 1991. Look into a health matter in March and follow your doctor's advice.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Puerto Rican patriot Jose Celso Barbosa, figure skater Peggy Fleming, actress Betty Thomas, actor Keenan Wynn.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your good luck should be evident today. Self-improvement courses are the key to career advancement. Your health strengthens, thanks to a new diet-exercise regimen.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your willingness to face the truth about people and money helps you straighten out your life. You could find yourself strongly attracted to someone who has a difficult personality. Think twice.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Learn to make the most of your assets. Someone's friendly advice is right on target; put it to work! Diet, exercise keep you in top condition. You make great gains with a relative.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You and a loved one discuss your goals and hopes. Be honest. Deal from a position of strength and confidence. Give romance a second chance! Avoid buying shoddy sale merchandise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Curb your spending this weekend. Buy clothes that are attuned to your personality. Copying another's style would send the wrong message. Join friends for an inexpensive night on the town.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You will profit from perfecting a technique. Age is no deterrent to learning. Member of opposite sex is attracted to you but may be too shy to let you know. Be attentive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Career and business affairs move ahead smoothly. Contact influential people about a new idea or project. A good time to finalize financial arrangements. Love can wear rose-colored glasses!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Postpone luxury purchases and be more selective in your choice of romantic partners. A relative may resent your interference. You get along wonderfully with young people. Be a good listener.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Romance is part of your day's plan. If the atmosphere at home is tense, try to soften the mood. You can cope with any face-to-face meeting. Avoid sounding vehement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The financial outlook could suddenly change. A budget revision will help relieve tension. Try not to be upset if a request is turned down. Your popularity is on the rise. Be gracious.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It is time to make a decision about a situation affecting your family. Someone who was ill is now in excellent health. Have more confidence in yourself! Remember past triumphs.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Seek better rapport with an authority figure. Mate may be overly concerned about a financial matter. Take this loved one into your confidence. Make better use of your creative talents.

Former SISD administrator dies

AUSTIN — The Herald office has been informed that former Stanton Superintendent W. C. Glazener passed away July 21. He served as Stanton school superintendent from 1936-1938. He was 85 years old.

SISD athletes to be tested

SISD Athletic Director Dale Ruth has announced that Dr. Thomas Miller of Martin County Hospital will be conducting physical testing for students who want to participate in school athletics for the 1990-91 school year.

"This physical is for junior high and high school athletes, on Wednesday Aug. 8," said Ruth. Girls will be tested from 11 a.m.-noon and boys from noon-1 p.m.

Two-a-day workouts for the football team will begin at 8 a.m., Monday, Aug. 13.

August 20-24 — To be announced.

"For a winning 'Top-Shelf Attitude,' your attendance is required," said Kirk McKenzie, newly appointed director of Bands at Stanton High School. McKenzie urged all band members who must miss a rehearsal, "Please inform me at the band hall or call 267-5613 and leave a message if I'm not there."

Medicare claim change announced

People who have Medicare Medical Insurance (Part B Medicare) should know about an important change in the way claims will be submitted beginning Sept. 1.

Beginning that date, claims for part B or medicare must be prepared and submitted by the service provider — the doctor, laboratory, medical supply company or other party giving the service.

In the past, medicare beneficiaries had to submit a form 1490S (Patient's Request for Medicare) unless the doctor or service provider accepted assignment. (Assignment means that the doctor or service provider accepts the Medicare approved charge as the total charge.)

Starting in September, the doctor or service provider must send in the claim if they don't accept assignment.

Service providers cannot charge for preparing and submitting the Medicare claim.

PBRPC commissions landfill study

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission board of directors passed resolutions Wednesday to begin funding of a 17-county study of landfills and how they may be affected by new proposed federal regulations.

The study, expected to be completed by 1992, could cost up to $250,000, said Planning Commissioner Executive Director Ernie Crawford. If the Planning Commission does not do the study, the state will, he said.

"I'm anxious to see what it's going to be. Until the EPA regs come out I don't think anyone can be confident of what they're doing." — Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport

The study will examine possible cooperative regional landfill arrangements and the costs involved due to Environmental Protection Agency regulations, which would initiate stricter pollution controls, such as expanding post-closure underground water monitoring from five to 35 years.

The board, which met at the Big Spring Country Club following the semi-annual general membership meeting, authorized the application in August of a $63,788 50-50 matching regional solid waste planning grant to the Texas Department of Health to help fund the study.

They also passed a funding formula to collect the other half. If needed, the formula, which collects between $500 to $2,000 from cities and counties, would be invoked for a second year, Crawford said. It depends on the bids received. The original estimate, provided by state health officials, was $127,000, he said. But bids of up to $400,000 for a similar study for a Panhandle planning commission indicates that their study could cost twice as much.

"I thought originally one year of funding would do it," Crawford said. "The state was evidently wrong in their estimate."

"I'm surprised by it," he said. "I hope we can get it for a whole lot less than a quarter of a million dollars."

For the bidding process, Crawford said qualifications from

Duo wins at fashion show

by KATHRYN BURCH
For the Herald

Martin County's Kelly Harrell and Rachel Burnett brought back top honors at the District 4-H Fashion Show held in Andrews.

Harrell won first place in the junior consumer day wear division. She chose a black cotton knit jumpsuit trimmed in white. She is the daughter of Bob and Deborah Adkins and Tooter Harrell.

Rachel Burnett also won a first place spot with a party dress in fluorescent colors in the same division. She is the daughter of David and Deanna Burnett.

Consumer skills played an important role in these girl's decisions.

Amanda Riley placed third in the intermediate construction evening wear division. She made a floral cotton dress with fitted bodice and big puff sleeves. She is the daughter of Rebecca and Tom Riley.

Cheyenne Romine won a blue ribbon in the junior active sportswear division. She designed her own fluorescent green and black swimsuit cover-up. She is the daughter of Jacky D. and Toby Romine.

Cassie Huckaby won a blue ribbon in the junior daywear division. Her southwest jumper of turquoise and coral was a perfect match with her auburn hair. She is the daughter of Laura and Randy

KELLY HARRELL

Huckaby. Belinda Riley won a red ribbon in the junior construction party wear division. She made a beautiful cotton, floral print dress. She is the daughter of Rebecca and Tom Riley.

The fashion show supported a theme of "Top Brass." Huge American flags filled the stage as hundreds of youth from across the district competing for top honors.

4-H wishes to extend their hearty thanks to the Extension Homemakers and West Texas Utilities for their support in sponsoring the show.

The district fashion show is the culmination of many local leaders and 4-H'ers work in teaching youth some important concepts about self-image, completion of a project, consumer skills, and care for clothing and equipment and much more as we try to prepare our youth for tomorrow.

Hewtty, MC stars in Tuesday action

Florencio Hewtty struck out seven batters and scattered four hits as a solid Martin County defensive effort helped eliminate the regional-tournament-bound McCamey all-star team, 6-0, Tuesday night at Walker field.

Martin County began the tilt with an error, sending McCamey's Chris Ramirez to third base on a routine bunt. Edward Puentes then drew a walk to put two runners on base, but Hewtty ended the threat by striking out the next two batters and forcing a third out on a grounder.

MC's second baseman Raymond Cruz led off for the home team with a single to left field. Cruz was called out at second on a fielder's choice hit by teammate Tommy Hewtty. Hewtty stole second base and, from there, Mark Tarango doubled to the fence bringing home Hewtty for MC's first run.

Leading 1-0, pitcher Hewtty was walked and advanced to second by another McCamey walk. He helped his cause with aggressive base running, stealing third and home plate for another run. McCamey pitcher Gabriel Urias prevented any more runs with a strikeout.

Hewtty still had the clamps on the visiting team as he allowed only one hit in the second and one in the third, while striking out two and forcing four to ground out. The MC defense added the right complement to Hewtty's effort as they snagged up any grounder hit around their position.

Urias managed to strike out three batters in the third inning, but the home team still pummeled McCamey. The power of Tarango and Anthony Rangel, followed by the crafty running of Florencio, proved too much for the visiting team as MC scored two more runs to pad their lead to 4-0.

McCamey began the fourth stanza with two quick outs, but teammates Randy Bolen and Chris Brooks popped two singles down in the middle, and McCamey seemed to be rallying. Hewtty ended the threat, however, with a strikeout.

Cruz started the bottom of the fourth with a walk and stolen base and Tarango followed with another base on balls. F. Hewtty hit a pitch to second base; Tarango was forced out but Cruz came in to score. The next batter, Robin Barnes, hit a pitch over the centerfielder's head and drove in Hewtty from second base to end all scoring in the contest.

Martin County — Hits (5) — Cruz (2); Barnes (1); F. Hewtty (1); Rangel (1); Steals (2); T. Hewtty (2); F. Hewtty (3); Barnes (2); Rangel (1); Cruz (3); Tarango (1).

Nurse accused in neglect case heads another home

HOUSTON (AP) — A nurse once accused in the death of an 87-year-old nursing home resident now is the administrator of another Houston-area nursing home, according to published reports.

Mattie Locke, one of five defendants in the celebrated Autumn Hills neglect case that ended in a trials in 1986, has operated Heritage Manor nursing home in The Woodlands since September.

The Houston Chronicle reported in a copyright story Wednesday.

"When an administrator or a nurse doesn't live up to their job, why don't we go after their license?" said Sam Perlin, president of Texans for the Improvement of Nursing Homes. "Why do we let them stay in the industry?"

There is nothing in Texas law to prohibit the former Autumn Hills staffer from obtaining an administrator's license. And it is unlikely that the state would ever take it away, except for a conviction, the newspaper said.

The Texas Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators rarely punishes administrators for poor nursing home care, the newspaper reported, though it has the power to revoke or suspend their licenses.

Legally, it can be difficult to prove that a home's poor performance on state inspections is the fault of the administrator, said Karl Bishop, executive director of the licensure board. He said while the board receives health department reports listing its actions against nursing homes, they rarely would

Richards, Williams target violent crime

NACOGDOCHES (AP) — Both Texas gubernatorial candidates have come out swinging against violent criminals, pledging that they'll push for harsher penalties if elected.

Democrat Ann Richards on Wednesday issued a statement saying she'll fight against parole for violent offenders.

"One of my first acts as governor will be to propose legislation that ends parole for violent offenders and big time drug pushers. No parole. No double talk. No games," the statement read.

And Republican Clayton Williams, on a campaign swing through West Texas, said Texans want tougher penalties for violent criminals.

"Clayton Williams doesn't need time to study the crime issue. As your next governor, I will put action over campaign rhetoric when it comes to protecting Texas' families from violent criminals, and making sure that criminals convicted of heinous crimes — like killing a child — receive the death penalty," Williams said.

Also Wednesday, Ms. Richards gave a tongue-lashing to a man distributing leaflets promoting the legalization of marijuana.

Darin Williams walked up and handed Ms. Richards one of the leaflets following her campaign speech at the Nacogdoches County Law Enforcement Center, The Daily Sentinel reported.

Ms. Richards looked at the leaflet and then shoved the pamphlet back at Williams, a Nacogdoches resident.

"I've been treated for (alcohol) addiction and I know what it's like," Ms. Richards told Williams. "I'm not going to back anything like this that can destroy people's lives and I don't want you distributing this kind of thing while I'm here speaking."

The leaflet bears the name of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws.

The pamphlet said, "Marijuana should be legalized because: taxing it would pay for drug education and real treatment. It is as safe as, or safer than, legal relaxants. It is not addictive. It relieves symptoms of glaucoma and is a super remedy for monthly cramps."

Ms. Richards, who was treated for alcoholism in 1980, has been criticized throughout the campaign for refusing to answer repeated questions about whether she's ever used illegal drugs.

The Annual State Pecan Show was held July 8 at the Hilton Hotel in College Station. Martin County was well represented at the State Pecan Show by four local growers. These samples were first entered in the County Pecan Show held in November. Those winning entries were then entered in the Regional Pecan Show that was held in Odessa Dec. 12-15. The top placing entries at the Regional Show were then sent to College Station and placed in frozen storage until July. The 1989 Pecan Show were divided into three main categories for judging. Those divisions were Commercial, Classic and Native. Within these three categories each variety of pecans were judged against those other entries from across the state. The top three entries were placed in each variety. The winning entries within the various varieties then competed within their division for the Champion and Reserve Champion winners. Congratulations to the local producers and we appreciate your support of the pecan show and look forward to them in the future. Crowd protests planned burner

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — Residents and environmentalists had a march and rally protesting the proposed storage and burning of hazardous wastes. The protesters said Wednesday they have no guarantees their air, water and health will be protected. Balcones Cement Plant owners said misinformation about transportation and emission of wastes has stirred up emotions.

initiate disciplinary action against the home's administrator. Bishop said since 1985, the board has revoked 24 administrators' licenses, suspended six and denied five applications. There are nearly 1,100 administrators employed in Texas nursing homes. Ms. Locke doesn't dispute that her first year as an administrator has been troubled. Texas Department of Health records show that inspectors have visited Heritage Manor at least 10 times since Ms. Locke arrived and have logged numerous deficiencies. Twice, Health Department firms will be considered and then the list will be narrowed to four or five. "There's probably four or five in the state that are qualified to do it," he said. The study could begin by the first of the year. "I'm sure it's going to take in excess of a year," Crawford said. "That pretty well coincides with the regulations that the cities and counties will be under from EPA." The regulations are expected to have an 18-month grace period for compliance. Until the regulations are passed, landfill planning by cities and counties will be stunted. "I'm anxious to see what it's going to be," Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport said of the regulations. "Until the EPA regs come out I don't think anyone can be confident of what they're doing." Martin County Commissioners and the city of Stanton have been closing their old landfill and are preparing to open a new one pending the passage of the new regulations. The closing and opening costs are expected to run $750,000. Some of the expected regulations, such as groundwater monitoring, could cause problems, Deavenport said. Upton County Judge Peggy Garner earlier this year estimated that it would cost $20,000 just to install two monitoring wells. Annuals tests on the wells could run $6,000-$8,000. The irony in Stanton is that there is no detectable water table beneath the site of both the old and proposed landfills. "It's real frightening," Deavenport said of possible costs. "If we get some small entities exclusions we can probably handle that." Earlier this year Deavenport and Garner traveled to Washington D.C. with other representatives of Sparsely Populated Entities Coalition, a group of about 100 cities and counties, to talk with EPA officials and U.S. representatives and senators about getting site-specific exceptions to the regulations. The regulations would be part of the Waste Materials Management Act of 1990, of which Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, is a co-author. The act would reauthorize the Resource Conservation and Recovery act of 1976.

THE MARTIN COUNTY OLD SETTLERS REUNION

Would like to say a great big thank you to everyone who helped make our 57th Reunion a huge success. Thanks for the time and donations that each of you gave. A very special thanks to The Borden Company for the lemonade, the Chamber of Commerce and Tom Angel for the games, the Lions Clubs, the Museum, DeWitt Davis for the afternoon entertainment and each of you who attended. This was one of the very best.
