No arrests made in Sunday shooting

The investigation into the early Sunday shooting of a Big Spring man is continuing, although no arrests have been made, according to police.

Tony Vega, 24, 405 S. Burton St., suffered a gunshot wound to the abdomen about 1:30 a.m. Sunday in the 600 block of East 5th St., Det. Sgt. John Luebner said.

Vega is listed in stable condition at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a nursing supervisor said Monday morning.

"We have not been able to get a statement from the victim because he underwent surgery and is heavily sedated," Luebner said.

Police interviewed several people at the scene of the shooting, although there were no witnesses, he said.

The shooting may have been the aftermath of a fight that Vega was involved in Saturday night following a traffic accident that caused severe damage to his car, according to police reports.

Rainfall near

average for year

Big Spring residents received between 2 and 7 inches of rain Sunday, bringing the total for the year to date up to about 10 inches. Intermittent light rain reportedly fell over much of the city this morning.

Sporadic showers Sunday were recorded by east side resident Tommy Hart at 2 inch, bringing the year-to-date total to just short of 10 inches.

B.G. Barber, east central Big Spring resident, reported 3 inch on Sunday. He had recorded a full inch Saturday, and his total year-to-date has risen to 10.6 inches.

H. Boyce Hale of Sterling City Route recorded just over half of an inch Sunday, for a weekend total of 1.97. His year-to-date total is 9.87.

The Agricultural Research Station recorded .41 inch Saturday and .76 inch Sunday. Year-to-date totals as recorded there are 10.94, slightly above the average for the date as reported by the National Weather Service.

Hit-and-run driver sought by officials

The Texas Highway Patrol is looking for the driver of an 18-wheel truck who left the scene of an accident he was involved in which left a Dallas woman seriously injured.

Wendy Janine Goodman, 20, was taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center with serious injuries from the accident which occurred in the eastbound lane about 5.9 miles east of Coahoma, according to a report filed with the Department of Public Safety.

A hospital official was not available this morning for further reports.

Goodman was a passenger in a 1989 Escort being driven by Ronald David Minner, 26, of Dallas, when the 18-wheel truck changed lanes as the car was passing on the inside lane, the DPS report says. The car, forced off the highway after being struck by the truck's trailer, rolled over and came to a rest on its roof.

The truck driver "apparently did not observe (the car) on the inside lane attempting to pass," the report states.

Minner was admitted Scenic Mountain Medical Center with minor injuries.

Crews pump oil from crippled barge

By SUSAN FAHLGREN
Associated Press Writer

GALVESTON — Salvage crews began transferring oil from a damaged barge in the Houston Ship Channel early today and were beefing up efforts to attack a 50,000-gallon oil slick in Galveston Bay, U.S. Coast Guard officials said.

At 1 a.m. crews began transferring the oil from one of two barges damaged in a collision Saturday with the Liberian oil tanker Shinoussa. One barge nearly sank and the other was listing.

The transfer from the listing barge to another vessel was expected to be completed by 11 a.m.,

Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Robert Warman said early today.

The more complicated transfer from the almost sunken barge was scheduled to begin later today and is expected to take three days, Warman said. While transferring the oil, salvage crews will simultaneously attempt to raise the barge, he said.

Cleanup crews were working to deflect a 5-mile-long oil patch from sensitive marshlands. Up to 420 gallons of oil washed ashore Sunday at Afel Park Beach on the east end of Galveston Island, but Coast Guard officials said they could not immediately determine if the oil came from Saturday's spill.

The slick shifted north and south Sunday with the changing currents, and crews worked through the night to contain the oil. But Coast Guard officials warned that some of the oil could eventually wash ashore.

"We've been fortunate with the winds and tides the way they are," said Coast Guard Capt. Thomas Greene. "It looks like it's just going to move back and forth and eventually we're going to see some oil go on some shoreline. Where we don't know."

A vacuum truck and another skimmer were to join the cleanup efforts today. Besides the main slick, a smaller patch had developed near the accident site about one mile offshore from a sandy beach.

The leading edge of the main slick is about six miles southwest of Houston Point, which is a peninsula on the eastern edge of Trinity Bay.

During the afternoon, the slick took a southerly path with the changing current, Greene said. The slick begins about two miles from the accident site.

The ship channel remained closed early today, backing up vessels for the second time in a week. Warman said 22 vessels were anchored in the Gulf of Mexico awaiting the reopening of the ship channel.

The channel probably will remain closed through Wednesday, Warman said.

Booms have been placed around both barges to contain spilling oil. Greene said crews also had placed about 2,500 feet of boom at the leading edge of the slick.

"We hope to encircle the patch and hold it there, so they can get skimmers out there to suck it up before it can hit landfall," Greene said.

Together, the two barges were carrying about 700,000 gallons of "catfeet oil," similar to a No. 5 heavy crude used in refining, Greene said. The barges were among three barges being towed by the tugboat Chandy N.

Faculty calls survey example of repression

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

The "climate survey" at Howard College was yet another example to faculty members that their workplace environment is repressive and intimidating, a spokesperson for the Faculty Senate said.

Senate president Mel Griffin was asked to clarify some statements

Faculty members fear loss of employment, or that their working conditions will be made unbearable in retaliation for information divulged in the surveys, Griffin said.

made in a senate report, released after the group's meeting last week. Griffin said the report was intended to respond to articles in the Herald July 19 and 20.

President Bob Riley said today that he had not seen a copy of the report, but that he hoped the college would "lay the matter to rest" today.

"First of all, many faculty members were not given the chance to respond (to the survey) except under the close, watchful eye of Dr. Cheri Sparks (assistant to the president)," Griffin said.

"Many were not permitted to take it home to fill out," Griffin said. "Secondly, she (Sparks), inconsistent with standards of professional research, at one point said she did not know how many surveys she had handed out."

Sparks said the only response she could make was to say she did not look at the responses faculty were making when she was present during the survey process.

Faculty members are concerned that the completed surveys were kept in an open envelope for over a week, Griffin said.

"Many faculty members believe there's a possibility that she removed some of the negative responses or added to the "no" responses," she said.

It has been reported that members of the senate received a memorandum from Riley threatening legal action if the results of the survey were divulged by members of the Senate.

According to the report, each senator who wished to view the entire survey was told to sign the memo acknowledging that divulging the results was an illegal act. Griffin, who had helped tabulate the results of the survey, was required to sign the memo, it states.

"The Senate strongly objects to the fact that Dr. Griffin was not apprised of this risk before being selected to compile the data," the report says. "The Faculty Senate believes the method in which this was done can be interpreted in no other way except as intimidation to the faculty members involved."

Griffin said reportedly the surveys have now been destroyed, but she cannot be certain.

"We (Sparks and Griffin) were to destroy them together," Griffin said. "As far as I know they have not been destroyed."

"Many faculty are concerned about this," she said. "They fear they could be identified by their handwriting, that (Riley) has already seen the raw data and repercussions will be forthcoming."

Sparks said the surveys had not been destroyed this morning, but were to be following today's noon board of trustees meeting.

Golf course deficits ignored in budget considerations

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

While funding for the municipal swimming pool was not included in the city's new budget because it loses money, funding for the city golf course, also a losing proposition, continues.

The city pool officially closed Saturday — and despite some council members who wish it would remain open, it failed to fall into the "priorities" category.

Mayor Max Green, who opposed funding for the pool next year, said, "it's a matter of priorities."

"The city is in a tight money situation and it's my opinion that streets, police cars and fire trucks come before a swimming pool," he said.

Green added that he is not insensitive to the needs of the city's children, but there are "other places" youngsters can go, "like the YMCA."

The following figures — released by the city finance department — show the municipal pool's expenses and revenues during the last three fiscal years:

1987-88: expenses $25,605, revenues $8,660; deficit $16,945.

1988-89: expenses $24,410, revenues $8,234; deficit $16,176.

1989-90: Through the month of June, the city spent $15,213.88 on pool expenses and revied $5,146 in revenues.

This summer, Boyd said he expects the pool to incur between "17,000 and $20,000" in losses. He added that lowering the admission price — from $1.50 to $1 — failed to attract a higher number of patrons.

The pool is normally open from early June through late August and was expected to be open this year until Aug. 18 or 25, however several unforeseen factors forced city officials to close it early, Boyd said.

These factors included the resignation of Parks and Recreation Department Superintendent David McChughy, the early resignation of the pool manager, and unexpected expenditures created by excessive chlorine requirements.

Boyd has called the decision to close the pool early "prudent."

The municipal golf course, however has a much larger operating budget and loses even more money annually than the pool, according to city finance department figures.

Expenses and revenues for the municipal golf course for the last three fiscal years include:

1987-88: expenses $139,806.80; revenues $127,158.64; deficit $12,648.16.

1988-89: expenses $174,296.27; revenues $137,289.86; deficit $37,006.41.

1989-90 (through June): Current expenditures are $93,404.12 and $110,592.25 in revenues have been

'World's finest' up for auction

HOUSTON (AP) — There's still time to bid on an emerald touted as "the world's finest" — an 83.1 carat, plum-sized gem — before it's sold on the auction block tonight at the Ritz-Carlton Houston.

The emerald, nicknamed "Denise" after the fiancée of the Los Angeles owner, is the main attraction of the sale featuring hundreds of other gemstones and Soviet artwork. The sale, expected to bring $10 million, began Sunday and continues tonight at 7 at the hotel.

But be prepared: the minimum bid for the emerald is $1.5 million.

Sandy Reid, executive vice president of Greystone Galleries of Toronto, said the emerald was retrieved from the famous Muzo Mine in Colombia, considered the finest emerald mine in the world.

It is "the largest ever gotten out of the mine," Ms. Reid said, adding it should fetch at least $3 million. At least two people already have offered the minimum bid for the gem.

Officers allege wrongdoing in probe

DALLAS (AP) — Police Chief Mack Vines and top administrators tampered with reports or discarded procedure in three politically sensitive cases, according to current and former internal affairs investigators, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

"It's a question of integrity," said one former supervisor, who like others requested anonymity. "If your case is high profile, the chiefs are going to come to a political decision early on and expect your investigation to come to their conclusion."

Vines has denied any wrongdoing, saying that he always reserves the right to request more information, redirect investigators or set aside procedures in any inquiry.

Family fears man was lynched

WAXAHACHIE, Texas (AP) — The death of a 36-year-old retarded man has been ruled an accident caused by a deviant sexual practice, but relatives and friends say he may have been lynched.

The naked body of Tommy Phillips was found on Jan. 27 hanging from a tree outside a group home where he lived. A sock was stuffed in his mouth and his hands were loosely tied behind his back.

Authorities at first ruled the 36-year-old's death a suicide. But the Department of Public Safety later ruled the death an accident caused by a deviant sexual practice. Phillips had the mental capacity of a kindergartner.

The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday that after the death, several employees received threatening phone calls at home and at work and were told to leave town. The group home closed in April.

A woman who worked at the home said: "They got what they wanted. The got us out of the neighborhood."

The DPS report said Phillips rigged the noose, framed the sock in his mouth and tied his hands behind his back to increase his sexual excitement when masturbating.

DOC defends closed session

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Department of Commerce officials say there was nothing wrong with a decision to close meetings where advertising agencies made presentations seeking to win the state's tourism contract.

The action drew the ire of AdWeek, a regional industry publication. But Commerce Department counsel Bruce Anderson said the move was legal because only staff members were on hand to judge the contestants.

Oil spill latest in string of sea accidents

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Saturday's collision of a jet fuel tanker and two oil-laden barges, which spilled an estimated 50,000 gallons of crude into the Gulf of Mexico by Sunday, is one of a recent series of spills and other maritime mishaps in U.S. coastal waters. Here's a list of some incidents since the Exxon Valdez spill in March 1989.

The information comes from Associated Press reports and Golob's Oil Pollution Bulletin of Cambridge, Mass.

June 23, 1989 — Greek tanker World Prodigy runs aground on Brenton Reef just outside Narragansett Bay, R.I., spilling 420,000 gallons of No. 2 heating oil.

June 23, 1989 — Barge Coastal 2514 collides with the Panamanian tanker Rachel B in the Houston Ship Channel, spilling 252,000 gallons of slurry oil.

June 24, 1989 — Uruguayan tanker Presidente Rivera runs aground in the Delaware River, spilling 300,000 gallons of No. 6 fuel oil.

Aug. 12, 1989 — Fish processing vessel Ocean Pacific sinks, leaking 25,000 gallons of No. 6 fuel oil through a hole of undetermined origin into the Kill Van Kull, Bayonne, N.J.

Mar. 7, 1990 — The barge Cibro Savannah explodes in the Arthur Kill between New Jersey and New York City, spilling 100,000 gallons of Alaska crude oil off Huntington Beach.

Feb. 28, 1990 — Exxon barge E-25 spills 25,000 gallons of No. 6 fuel oil through a hole of undetermined origin into the Kill Van Kull, Bayonne, N.J.

May 29, 1990 — The cruise ship Regent Star runs aground on a sand bar in Delaware Bay, stranding 1,360 passengers and crew. Passengers are ferried ashore and the ship refloated without a fuel spill.

June 10, 1990 — The cruise ship Bermuda Star hits a rocky underwater ledge off Cape Cod in Buzzards Bay, ripping a 90-foot gash in the hull and spilling 7,500 gallons of diesel fuel.

June 10, 1990 — British tanker BT Nautilus runs aground due to human error, leaking 260,000 gallons of No. 6 fuel oil into the Kill Van Kull, Bayonne, N.J.

June 8, 1990 — Norwegian tanker Mega Borg explodes in the Gulf of Mexico 57 miles offshore from Galveston, spilling 3.9 million gallons of light crude oil. Most of the oil was consumed by the fire. Four crew members were killed.

July 28, 1990 — An oil tanker collides with two barges in the Houston Ship Channel, sinking one of the barges, puncturing another and causing an oil spill of at least 50,000 gallons. The threat remains that more oil will spill.

HOUSTON — A barge attached to a tug sinks after being hit by a Liberian oil tanker Saturday in the Houston Ship Channel. The tanker collided with some barges, sinking at least one and endangering another.

Scientists say global warming could ruin East Texas forests

ODESSA (AP) — The lush forests of East Texas could look like the barren sand dunes of West Texas if predictions of global warming prove correct, some scientists say.

And such a scenario might be nearer than many Texans think, given mounting evidence of global warming, or the greenhouse effect, scientists say.

Bruce McCarl, an economist at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in College Station, said last week that West Texas landscapes of thirsty soils and treeless horizons could sweep across the lush Sam Houston National Forest of East Texas if a recent study by Texas scientists is correct.

Global warming is blamed on a buildup in the atmosphere of carbon dioxide and other gases, which trap sunlight that normally would be reflected by the Earth. Carbon dioxide is a byproduct of fossil fuels being burned, and its presence in the atmosphere increases the Earth's ability to retain heat.

Ron Hilliard, district conservationist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Odessa office, said last week if West Texas dried out any more than it is now, much of the vegetation would not survive.

"Our summers average between 80 and 90 degrees ... we couldn't handle a 10-degree increase," he said. "Much of the forage that ranchers depend on just couldn't cope with that. Farmers would be in much worse shape, too."

McCarl said that as much as half of the Piney Woods in East Texas could disappear as fossil-fuel combustion and industrial development continue to change the Earth's atmosphere.

"Some data indicate that the tree line, now west of Austin, could move back to east of College Station," McCarl told the Odessa American. "The environment in Houston could be similar to that now west of San Antonio."

Federal geologists have said their studies indicate that the Ogallala Aquifer, a huge body of underground water that stretches from South Dakota to Texas, is being depleted by irrigation pumping at an annual rate equal to the entire flow of the Colorado River.

Tom Ahlbrandt, a geologist with the U.S. Geological Survey office in Virginia, said last week that this has accelerated desertification in West Texas and could result in a region depleted of natural vegetation.

Donor provides five organs for patients

DALLAS (AP) — A single donor provided lifesaving organs for at least four patients, including three who received transplants in unusual simultaneous operations, a surgeon said.

The organs came from an unidentified 18-year-old woman who died in a Dallas motor vehicle accident, said Dr. Peter Alivizatos, director of cardiac transplantation at Baylor University Medical Center since 1986.

"This donor really helped ... for a heart, a lung, a liver and two kidneys," Alivizatos said Sunday night.

"That's a hell of a lot of help for one person," he added. "It was a simultaneous operation."

tions were performed Saturday by surgical teams totaling about 30 doctors, nurses and technicians, said Baylor spokeswoman Susan Hall.

A fourth transplant was performed Sunday and one kidney was sent to another hospital, she said.

Gene Gilliard of Seneca, S.C. was listed in critical but stable condition Sunday night after receiving a right lung in a five-hour procedure, Ms. Hall said.

"A lung is one of the more difficult organs to transplant because it is so delicate," Alivizatos said.

Gilliard, 47, suffered from severe emphysema resulting from a genetic disorder, alpha-1 antitrypsin, Ms. Hall said.

Board examining ties between six failed firms

Business

DALLAS (AP) — State officials are examining the failures of three insurance companies located in the same building — failures regulators estimate will cost taxpayers $30.7 million.

The inquiry covers ties between six failed insurance firms. The three companies in one suite near downtown Dallas were Southern National Life Insurance Co., First National Indemnity Co. and American Equitable Life Insurance Co., The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday in a copyright story.

Susan E. Martin, an attorney with the State Board of Insurance's liquidation division, said the fact that three insurers shared one office appears unusual.

"I personally don't know of any situations where you've got three insurers sharing the same offices," Ms. Martin said. "We're still investigating and trying to evaluate exactly what led to the insolvencies."

The failures of two other insurance companies with ties to one of the executives who had operated in The Crescent tower's Suite 1150 are expected to cost Texas taxpayers more than $6.5 million, the newspaper reported.

A sixth firm, which complained in 1988 that one of the firms in Suite 1150 unfairly took control of policies worth $1 million a month, has since failed and is expected to drain $8 million from the state treasury.

Suite 1150 now is occupied by a firm that is unrelated to the bankrupt insurance companies. More than 20 Texas insurance companies have failed in the past two years. State and federal investigators are examining records of more than 60 firms to determine whether the problems are due to fraud or simply the result of Texas' economic decline in the late 1980s.

State records show that insurance failures already have cost Texas taxpayers $180 million. Officials estimate that the final bill will hit $400 million.

Executives and consultants who worked for the three firms that operated out of the suite included two former Texas insurance commissioners. One, Joseph D. Hawkins, is accused in a civil lawsuit of helping to loot more than $11 million from an Dallas-based insurance company.

Explosion destroys businesses

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — Losses were estimated at up to $1 million after a weekend explosion and fire left little but cooling rubble where part of downtown Monroe had stood.

The explosion late Saturday night in this town of 13,000 demolished at least eight businesses, shattered storefront windows nearly the length of Main Street and sent six people to a hospital with cuts from flying glass, officials said.

"It was really an awful experience," said Nancy Sarno, a nursing supervisor at Union Memorial Hospital. "I was coming in to work just after the blast, and the area was just engulfed in flames."

Officials suspect a natural gas leak was the cause of the blast. They were still tallying the cost of the damage Sunday.

Local police and agents from the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation and the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms waited Sunday for the rubble to cool before digging through it for clues.

Power outage sparks looting

CHICAGO (AP) — About 20,000 homes and businesses remained without electricity today in the wake of a power outage that led looters to ransack more than a dozen grocery and liquor stores on the city's West Side.

Police said they arrested 49 people on looting-related charges after a generating plant fire knocked out power to 40,000 customers late Saturday night.

About 15 stores were ransacked, said Detective Luby Novitovic, who cautioned that it was a "rough estimate."

Three people died early Sunday in a fire started by candles they were using to light their home, authorities said.

Four other fires broke out on the West Side later Sunday, but firefighters could not confirm if they were related to the outage.

He said the number of police on the streets in the affected area had been increased to 300 from 100 on Saturday night.

Power was restored to about 20,000 customers by 4 p.m. Sunday, said Commonwealth Edison, but a similar number were without electricity Monday morning in the 14-square-mile area.

Former robber makes donation

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — A Kansas City philanthropist returned Saturday to the town where he robbed a bank more than 30 years ago, this time to donate $50,000 for a new band shell in the city park.

Delbert Dunmire robbed the Commercial State Bank of Abilene of about $2,600 in October 1958.

Dunmire said his donation for the band shell in Eisenhower Park represented compounded interest for the money he stole.

"It was an act of malfeasance on my part, and I can't make excuses for it," he said. "It was a crime against society that I can never repay society for. And I'm not attempting to do that now."

"I am attempting to go back and cover my tail wherever I have done wrong and try to do right," he said.

Dunmire was caught after the robbery, and served time in

After the ceremony, Dunmire produced a maroon gym bag loaded with cash and let people reach in to each take one unseen bill.

Dole visit may spur reform for migrants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole saw firsthand the rundown barracks and poor plumbing provided for men and women who work the fields when she made a surprise visit to a migrant farm labor camp in Florida.

So moved was she by the experience, Mrs. Dole is weighing steps to boost enforcement of housing standards and wage laws applying to the estimated 1.5 million migrants who work in the United States.

Among the possibilities — targeted strike forces at labor camps on the East and West coasts and increased penalties for employers who violate housing and wage standards, sources said.

G. Wayne Culver, a department aide who accompanied Mrs. Dole to the Zellwood farm camp in central Florida last May, recalls the conditions:

Toilets didn't work. There was no hot water, windows were broken, and workers made do without closets by draping their clothes over wires strung from wall to wall.

Even before the department puts final touches on the initiative, farm labor organizations say they're skeptical the administration will make much of a dent in the well-documented poor living conditions for migrants.

"I'm more than a little skeptical that this will ever happen (but) I would hope it's not just rhetoric that makes the front page for a week and goes away," said Mike Hancock, executive director of Farmworker Justice Fund Inc.

Business groups are leery of any plan that would impose stiff new restrictions on farmers, saying farmers already face burdensome regulations concerning pesticides, ground water and food safety.

"You have all of these economic pressures ... You're going to get to the point where it's just not economical to produce the crops in this country," said Libby Whitley, the American Farm Bureau Federation's assistant director of national affairs.

200 massacred by Liberian troops

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Government troops today broke into a refugee camp in Monrovia and massacred at least 200 people, most of them women and children, witnesses said.

One witness who visited the Lutheran Church compound in the Sinkor district of the beleaguered capital said he had seen women with their heads smashed open or blown to pieces by bullets, babies still tied to their backs.

Thousands of refugees fleeing the civil war between rebel forces and the crumbling government of President Samuel Doe, are crowded into refugee camps in the area. Their numbers have swelled recently as rebel troops have stormed into Monrovia.

The witnesses said the soldiers broke into the church compound at about 2 a.m. when the refugees were asleep. There was no telephone in the compound and the victims had no way of calling for help.

Most of the refugees were members of the Gio and Mano tribes which have formed the main support for rebel armies.

Interpol expects new members

LYON, France (AP) — The end of the Cold War may help the International Criminal Police Organization, better known as Interpol, live up to its name.

Interpol, the largest international police agency with 150 member nations, probably will grant membership this year to the Soviet Union and Poland, and possibly to Czechoslovakia.

The global police agency is entering a new era as politicians urge closer international coordination against drug trafficking and other cross-border crimes, Gen. Raymond Kendall, the agency's director, said in an interview.

"What you're looking for in Europe today is a common denominator," Kendall said. "Clearly, the only common denominator that exists, in police work anyway, is Interpol."

After 34 years, Interpol remains widely misunderstood. It does not conduct investigations but serves as a clearinghouse of information about criminals and crimes, including drug trafficking, terrorism, art theft and smuggling.

Hostages in hands of extremists

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (AP) — Two days after Moslem extremists took the prime minister and 30 others hostage, efforts to gain their release stalled and thousands of people seized on the breakdown in order and looted stores.

The leaders of the attempted coup claim to have wired Prime Minister Arthur Robinson with explosives and threaten to blow him up if a rescue attempt is mounted.

At least 27 people reportedly have been killed and many wounded since Abu Bakr, leader of a black Moslem commune, stormed Parliament on Friday and captured Robinson and most of his Cabinet. Bakr is believed backed by Libya.

Simultaneously, the rebels seized the government television station.

Opinion

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Opinions from across the U.S. Amendment not an answer

Once again, Congress has rejected the chimera of a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. . . . The simple, practical truth is that the problem was not created by a flaw in the rules governing the way budgets are put together. Nor can the trouble be eliminated by tinkering with those rules, whether constitutional or merely statutory. The Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law is an example of the latter.

Rather, a continuing string of excessive deficits has resulted from political cowardice — an unwillingness to either raise taxes to cover expenditures or cut spending to stay within revenues. Those are the only two ways to balance a federal budget.

Spurred by Ronald Reagan's election and his crusade against taxes, the government in 1981 switched from a Democratic policy the new president derided as "tax and spend, tax and spend" to a new approach: borrow and spend. Borrowing to cover the gaps between annual expenditures and revenues more than doubled the national debt in less than a decade and made interest payments on the debt the third largest item in the budget, consuming 20 percent of current spending.

The ballooning cost of the savings and loan rescue measures, among other things, has frightened George Bush into abandoning his dogmatic opposition to any tax increase. That breakthrough may create opportunities for the kinds of compromise that will be essential if current budget negotiations are to achieve success.

Public anger growing

Have you noticed that public anger over the cost of the S&L bailout has journeyed upward several notches? And there has been a corresponding reaction in Congress to take some steps to reassure the American people on these points: (1) That wrongdoers will be prosecuted; (2) that ill-gotten gains will be confiscated and some of the money paid back to the institutions from which it was stolen; (3) that legal barn doors are being closed to keep such a scandal from occurring again.

There's another point that deserves attention, but is not getting it. You hear no debate about why it is that all the states have to share in the bailout regardless of how much (or how little) of the crookedness occurred within the borders of individual states.

When the shape of new clean air legislation was being hammered out in meetings between the administration and Senate leaders, and then later in Senate debate, no one wanted to hear anything about the regionalism aspect of the legislation.

Lawmakers from the West and New England were determined that the Midwest states would pay more than anyone else because of the region's reliance on coal-fired utilities.

This is why states in the Midwest have a bigger beef about the S&L bailout than some others that are not happy about paying for out-of-control wheeling and dealing, particularly in Texas and California. It's also why Washington hasn't heard the last of this issue — not by a long shot.

The Repository, Canton, Ohio

People angry, too

So Neil Bush is angry. He says the Democrats are putting him in the political food processor because of his name.

The president's 34-year-old son, former director of Silverado Savings and Loan Association in Denver, has been charged by thrift regulators with failing to mention his business relationship with two important Silverado borrowers.

So if you think you're mad, Mr. Bush, you should talk to the American public, which is going to have to bail out all of the failed thrifts nationwide to the estimated tune of $500 billion. The tab for Silverado is estimated at $1 billion.

Congressional Democrats are also up to their necks in the S&L scandal, and must be willing to take a certain amount of blame. Congress and the Justice Department must put aside partisan zeal and fervently seek culpability — and remedy — for what is becoming the nation's largest financial scandal. Even if Mr. Bush gets mad.

The Hudson Dispatch, Union City, N.J.

A violation of rights?

Now that the trucking industry has called for a federal ban on radar detectors in interstate trucks, the radar detector lobby once again drags out its long-discredited constitutional argument against a ban.

"The government can't limit a citizen's use of a radar detector any more than it can limit the use of an AM-FM radio," said an industry flack.

Sorry, friend, but the "government" can and it does. Radar detector bans, imposed by a few courageous states not just on trucks but on all vehicles, have been upheld by the courts.

And not only can the government impose such bans, it clearly ought to do it. Radar detectors are used only for one purpose — to break the law. And a survey found that between 33 percent and 52 percent of individual semitrailer drivers checked in a seven-state survey used the detectors.

The next time you're being tailgated by one of those hotshot jockeys, you can rightly wonder about whose rights are being violated.

Chicago Sun-Times

Justices frequently unpredictable

By MIKE FEINSILBER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — On the surface, David H. Souter has the credentials to become a predictable strict constructionist Supreme Court justice. But the record — and constitutional scholars — say you just can't tell.

Sometimes at once, sometimes over the years, judges often evolve and take positions on the bench that dismay the presidents who put them there.

"In the past 20 or 30 years, a good third of the appointees have disappointed their appointers," says Lawrence Marshall, professor of constitutional law at Northwestern University.

Bernard Schwartz of New York University Law School agrees: "Nobody knows how a judge is going to turn out until the judge actually sits on the bench."

So the verdict is not certain on what sort of justice Souter may become if confirmed.

He is only 50. He may surprise; lots have. President Bush, in selecting him, called him a judge "committed to interpreting, not making, the law" — code for a strict constructionist, music to conservative ears.

Schwartz cites Justice William Brennan, the man Souter was chosen to replace, as a justice who surprised his sponsoring president.

"He was appointed as a conservative Democrat from New Jersey by President Eisenhower," Schwartz said. After 34 years, Brennan retired a liberal giant so persuasive he could even influence justices who disagreed.

"Same thing happened when Eisenhower picked Earl Warren to be chief justice," Schwartz said. "He was supposed to be a middle-of-the-road, slightly-to-the-right Republican."

Instead, Warren molded the liberal "Warren Court," which ruled that schools must desegregate and suspects must be told of their rights.

Eisenhower, after leaving office, was quoted as saying he'd made two big mistakes as president "and they are both sitting on the Supreme Court."

Justice Tushnet of Georgetown University Law Center cautions that unpredictability can be overstated.

"It's not that common," he says. "Presidents generally get an idea of the ways their nominee will approach the law."

Still, he notes that Richard M.

Nixon as president "appointed three members of the court which wrote Roe vs. Wade," the decision that legalized abortion.

If abortion had been a "hot" issue when the vacancies occurred, Tushnet says, "Nixon would have been more careful."

Once on the bench, of course, justices have life tenure — and unlimited independence. And they know posterity is watching. "I think they do pay attention to the way things will look in history," says Tushnet.

"Sometimes the chemistry within the court will move a justice from left to right or right to left," James Simon, dean of New York Law School, says. He noted that Brennan probably was influential in moving Nixon appointee Harry Blackmun from hard-right to a more centrist role.

And when the court leans left or right, Simon says, some justices will move in the opposite direction as a counterbalance. He suspects Sandra Day O'Connor, Ronald Reagan's first appointee, is "working the middle" more than she might in a less conservative court.

Justice Byron White, a John F. Kennedy appointee, and Blackmun also play that role, Simon says. "They try to pull the court together."

Moreover, Simon says, justices simply grow in office. After 10, 20 or 30 years on the bench, it shouldn't be surprising if they have gone down new philosophical paths.

Of the eight justices on today's Supreme Court, four — White, Blackmun, O'Connor and Ford appointee John Paul Stevens — turned out different than expected.

Blackmun is the classic case. He was a lifelong friend of Nixon's solidly conservative chief justice, Warren E. Burger. Both were Minnesotans. Initially they marched in judicial lock step; they were called "the Minnesota twins."

But the liberal Brennan took Blackmun under his tutelage, and Blackmun evolved into a more-often-than-not liberal. He wrote the Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion.

Marshall's theory is that when presidents pick nominees for non-ideological reasons, they are more likely to wind up with ideologically surprising justices.

But when justices are picked because they represent a particular philosophy they are less likely to surprise, he says.

He cites O'Connor and Warren as examples. Reagan chose O'Connor not for her ideology but because he had promised in his campaign to pick a woman.

Eisenhower promised a Supreme Court seat to Warren at the Republican convention in 1952, where Warren, then governor of California, was competing with Ike for the presidential nomination.

"It's unclear what my theses suggests with respect to Souter," Marshall says. If Bush wanted to avoid a big political fight in 1992 over abortion, he might have deliberately picked a nominee who is unlikely to vote to overthrow Roe vs. Wade, he says, "and then it seems quite possible that Souter is going to end up disappointing the conservatives."

"On the other hand, if you believe that Bush scrutinized this man on ideological grounds, there's less chance he'll be a big surprise."

Letters to the editor on issues of general interest always are welcomed by the Big Spring Herald and always are printed if these guidelines are followed:

Letters should be 350 words or less, typewritten if possible, and double-spaced. If not, the handwriting must be legible to reduce chances for mistakes. They are subject to editing, but the essence of the writer's message will not be altered. Letters exceeding the 350-word limit will be cut.

They must be signed, free of libelous statements and in good taste.

S&L business Mr. Smith goes to Neil Bush

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

A wino walks into the Silverado Savings and Loan and says to the next available teller, "I want some money."

"You want to cash a check?" the teller asks.

"No," says the wino. "I don't have any money and I want some."

"Then it's a loan you're after," replies the teller. "You would need to see Mr. Bush about that."

The wino is directed to Miss Hullingsworth, Mr. Bush's secretary. Mr. Bush is director of Silverado Savings and Loan.

"Go right in," says a smiling Miss Hullingsworth.

"You Bush?" the wino asks.

"I prefer you call me Neil."

"I want some money."

"Then it's a loan you're after. You have come to the right place. What do you need this money for?"

"Wine."

"You're going to start a winery. Fantastic. I'm sort of a wine lover myself. The Chablis Grand Cru I had at dinner last evening was arrogant but certainly not offensive. Is that a favorite of yours, too?"

"I had a pint of Thunderbird for breakfast."

"Wine with breakfast? Interesting. How much do you need to start your winery?"

"Occupation?"

"I was a brain surgeon before the malpractice suit."

"Married?"

"She left me when I went broke."

"And exactly how much money do you need?"

"How's a hundred?"

"Can do. One hundred thousand dollars. What the hell. Let's make it two hundred thousand. You never know if you might need a little extra. Now Mr. Smith, what sort of collateral do you have?"

"None."

"No collateral? Who's worried about details? Now if you will just take this form up to the next available teller you can get your loan."

"Can I have it in cash?"

"Of course you can. At Silverado, we always aim to please. Your payments, by the way, will be $1,450 a month."

"I gotta pay this back?"

"Don't worry about it now. Just drop back by in a month or so and we'll talk about it then."

"Thanks, Neil."

"It was my pleasure, Mr. Smith. Miss Hullingsworth, please get my father on the phone. He's late sending my allowance again."

ORLANDO, Fla. — Scott Caldwell, an employee of West Orange Glass and Mirror in Winter Garden, Fla., creates multiple images of himself as he cleans a mirror after installing it at a local school Thursday.

Outcast finds husband at high school reunion

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "It's My Turn in L.A.," the girl who was snubbed by the "in group" in high school and had no desire to go back for her class reunion, inspired me to write. I was just another girl who was not part of the "in group." I wore glasses, had "zits" and never had a date.

At the time of my 10th reunion (in 1983), I was a successful pharmacist and faculty member at a state university. I threw hurt and anger to the wind and decided to attend the reunion — alone. Well, it just so happened that another classmate decided to do the same thing — so he went stag.

An hour before the evening ended, we "discovered" each other. He walked me to my car, holding hands, and I felt like I was back in high school again — with the same excitement and "jitters." One thing led to another, and we married a year later.

Now I have a wonderful husband and three lovely children. — WENDY WEINGART BENNEWITZ, MILWAUKEE

DEAR WENDY: Congratulations. Your letter was a welcome "upper." This office loves happy endings.

DEAR ABBY: I know it's a little late, but I wanted to report on another miserable Mother's Day. It started out OK, but when my husband and I stopped off at a local ice cream shop, the clerk asked, "Are you a mother?"

When I responded "No," I was told that if I had been one, I would have gotten a free ice-cream cone. How wonderful!

I can understand stores wanting to share in the Mother's Day celebration, but I resent it. I cannot have children, and I don't need it rubbed in by some clerk reminding me on Mother's Day that I am not a mother and therefore not entitled to an ice cream cone I didn't want in the first place.

My heart goes out to those other childless women who may have miscarried or lost their only child to death. It's thoughtless to bring to mind a subject that is never far from the surface, especially on Mother's Day.

If shops want to celebrate the occasion, why don't they just give their small gift to any woman of childbearing age (and up), and let it go at that? The pain that is caused to those of us who are not mothers is unforgivable. — BARBARA

DEAR BARBARA: You make a point that I had never considered, and I thank you for it. Moral: Just because you're celebrating, don't assume that everybody else is.

DEAR ABBY: One good story leads to another. I was reminded of something funny when I read the letter from "Appalled in Chicago," whose new secretary couldn't find "Europe" in the dictionary. (She was looking under "U"!)

A few months ago, I dictated a letter to our new secretary who was a college graduate. The secretary was told to address the letter to "John Smith, Esq." When the letter came back to me for my signature, the salutation read: "Dear Mr. Esquire." Sign me — TOPPER

DEAR ABBY: The defensive, guilt-ridden smoker who pointed her finger at fat people who tend to overeat should have pointed out:

(2) No one has ever accidentally fallen asleep with a piece of pecan pie and burned down a house. — MEDICINE LODGE, KANSAS

Golden Agers attend luncheon, celebration

By MICKIE HARRINGTON
The Golden Agers of the First Church of God celebrated Independence Day July 21. Red, white and blue streamers accented the ceiling, flag runners centered each table and Uncle Sam hats unfolded at each end. Red, white and blue floral arrangements completed the decor.

Twenty-eight members including three visitors attended the covered-dish luncheon and celebration. Visitors were Lavera Alexander, Helen Jones and Ted Phillips daughter, Lila Phillips.

Truett Thomas opened the meeting with kind words for Juanita Harrington, chairman. "My mom would have said, 'Son how did you ever get messed up in a deal like that?', and I'd have to say, because Juanita wanted me to."

Truett led participants in singing "America." He shared a story about the Rev. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of First Baptist Church, who preached about America on a recent Sunday. "He almost choked up when talking about our country and the freedoms we enjoy," Truett said.

George Harrington rang a school bell dating back to 1811 behind a "Let Freedom Ring" sign, then talked of our freedoms, including the freedom of speech, freedom to worship God, freedom from want and freedom from fear.

The Rev. Charles Harrington directed the singing of "America the Beautiful".

Truett also sang "My Grandfather's Clock."

The Rev. George Harrington discussed "Why America Was Not Discovered," stating that America is more than the land discovered by Columbus in 1492, for it took planning, heart, mind and spirit to make America the great country it is today.

Pastor Darrell Hendrickson sang, "It's Time to Pray."

Deanda charged, posts bond

A 22-year-old Big Spring woman charged in connection with a traffic accident that seriously injured three people July 20 surrendered to the Howard County sheriff's department Friday afternoon. Bond for Michelle Dawn Deanda, 809 Aylford St., set at $1,500, was posted.

Hardy Wilkerson filed a charge of aggravated driving while intoxicated against Deanda Friday morning after reviewing police investigative reports.

On Thursday, Big Spring police issued four citations to Deanda and a passenger in connection with a July 20 traffic accident in the 1200 block of Scurry Street that seriously injured two women and a 5-month-old boy.

The three remain hospitalized, but their conditions are improving.

A breathalyzer test confirmed the woman had been drinking prior to the accident, although her blood alcohol level was under what is considered legally intoxicated.

Souter opposed state-paid abortions as attorney general

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court nominee David Souter, as New Hampshire's attorney general, opposed an order that the state pay for Medicaid abortions.

In its 1976 brief, the state referred to abortion as "the killing of unborn children."

The brief was filed during a federal court appeal of a case begun during the tenure of Souter's predecessor, Warren Rudman, and Souter did not personally argue the case. New Hampshire's attorney general is appointed by the governor and required by law to represent the governor's views in court. New Hampshire's governor at the time was arch-conservative Meldrim Thompson.

Souter's name was listed on the brief but it was signed by its author, Richard Wiesbusch, then an assistant attorney general.

Although nothing in the brief sheds any light on Souter's personal views on abortion, the case likely will provide Senate Judiciary Committee members eager to learn those views a vehicle to raise the issue.

"Clearly the Senate should ask Judge Souter to address himself to this document at his confirmation hearings," said Arthur J. Kropp, president of the liberal activist group People for the American Way, which today distributed copies of papers filed in the 1976 case. New Hampshire was appealing to the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals a lower court injunction that it pay for elective abortions sought by Medicaid patients during the resolution of a larger case in which the state was seeking to prove it didn't have to pay.

New Hampshire's brief acknowledged the U.S. Supreme Court's 1973 Roe v. Wade decision legalizing abortion but argued that nothing in that landmark ruling required the state to use tax dollars to pay for abortions sought by Medicaid recipients for reasons other than to preserve a pregnant woman's life.

"Many thousands of New Hampshire residents find the use of tax revenues to finance the killing of unborn children morally repugnant," the state's brief said.

received. Public Works Director Tom Decell said recreational services are designed for the entertainment of the public.

"The city doesn't make a profit or break even on any recreational services," he said.

Green said he favors closing the pool instead of the golf course because it has a serious leak that would require excessive funding to repair.

Decell said the pool does have a leak, but said he didn't consider a "major" problem.

Councilman Chuck Condray said although he supported not funding the pool next year, he did so with the belief that monies to operate it will be available when next summer arrives.

"I would hope we can continue to keep the pool open because in my opinion, it is very important recreational spot," he said.

Councilman Sidney Clark also believes the pool should remain open even if continues to lose money.

Swimming pool open at YMCA

Although the municipal swimming pool closed its doors Saturday, the public can still swim at the YMCA, 801 Owens St., officials said.

YMCA Office Manager Massie Gonzales said summer swimming lessons have caused more restrictive hours, however, daily admission for persons 17 and younger is $1 and adults (18 and older) are charged $5.

"Adult swimmers do get additional time for lap swimming," she said.

The schedule for free swimming is: Monday through Thursday, 4 to 5:30 p.m.; Friday, 1 to 5:30 p.m.; and Saturday 1 to 4:45 p.m.

YMCA members are not charged an admission to swim.

"I'm in favor of keeping the pool open if we can keep the losses down to from $4,000 and $5,000 a year," he advised.

When informed of the expenditures and revenues related to the golf course, Clark seemed somewhat surprised.

"It is my opinion that the municipal golf course should at least be a break-even proposition," he said.

Councilwoman Gail Earls said she favors continued funding for the pool, golf course and all recreational services, even if they lose money.

Councilwoman Pat Deanda has been the most vocal supporter of continued funding for the pool and expressed her displeasure with this year's early closing at a recent budget hearing.

She suggested that the pool continue to operate without a manager, but officials expressed concern that could create a number of unforeseen problems.

divulged in the surveys, Griffin said.

Sparks said the surveys would not be used against any faculty member.

President Bob Riley, when contacted today, said it was to be his last public statement about the matter.

"In any organization," Riley said, "where you have management and those reporting to management there are always the feelings of concern about job security and what can 'safely' be said. It's easy for some to say 'I'd do it this way or that way' but they don't always realize everything the administration has to deal with and consider."

There are a few faculty members who are concerned about how the administration has handled certain situations throughout the year, Riley said.

"I have only heard from two or three faculty about situations of concern," he said. "By and large this thing has been blown completely out of proportion. The vast majority (of faculty) appreciate their jobs and appreciate the administration."

"By and large this thing has been blown completely out of proportion."

A July 20 Herald article quoted Sparks as saying she believed the faculty load policy had started the discontent and was the primary issue.

"That article was filled with platitudes inconsistent with reality," Griffin said.

The negative environment at the college has been created by the administration's actions over the past several years, and culminated with the recent change in faculty course load policy, a prepared report from the Faculty Senate states.

"Contrary to the statement in the (July 20) article," the faculty report states, "the load policy itself is not the major issue, but is a symptom of other underlying problems concerning the treatment of faculty by the administration."

The load policy was the only issue the faculty was permitted to discuss in an audience with the board of trustees, the report states. Members of the senate presented their grievances in a 24-page document at a June board meeting, but the policy was passed swiftly by trustees.

"I truly believe that the only things this administration has ever done is to operate in the best interests of this district, our students and the faculty," Riley said. "I hope we can lay this matter to rest right now."

He said he has developed a plan for the coming year that will address issues of concern about the climate of the college.

Griffin, when asked whether the faculty believed that the situation will be resolved this year, said, "The feeling of the faculty is that they've heard a lot of words before. The words have no meaning when not followed with action."

Pokes coach gives team passing grade

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite some pass coverage breakdowns against the Houston Oilers' run-and-shoot offense, Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson is giving his team a passing grade.

The two teams tied 24-24 in a controlled scrimmage in San Antonio on Saturday. Dallas and Houston have another scrimmage Thursday in Austin and play an exhibition game Sept. 1 at Texas Stadium.

"The thing is, the Oilers don't use a conventional offense, even on the goal line," Johnson said Sunday. "In a couple of cases, the breakdowns came when we had a linebacker isolated on a wide receiver. If we were actually playing the run-and-shoot in a game, we'd play six defensive backs."

Overall, Johnson was pleased with his team.

"The coaches were really happy with the effort," Johnson said. "Offensively, we feel the running game has improved. We felt our offensive line did an excellent job in pass protection and also did an excellent job blocking for the run."

Carter to get raise from Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Anthony Carter and the Minnesota Vikings have agreed in principle on a contract that would make Carter one of the highest-paid receivers in the NFL, a published report said today.

The deal was agreed to Sunday night, and Carter was expected to report for the opening of training camp today, the Star Tribune said.

One unidentified source said the deal is worth more than $1 million a year, the Star Tribune reported. That would put Carter in the same range as San Francisco All-Pro Jerry Rice, who averages just over $1 million a year.

The highest-paid receiver is the New York Jets' Al Toon, who averages $1.325 million per season.

Louisiana wins HS rodeo crown

SHAWNEE, Okla. (AP) — Kimberlee Stowers says she was shocked to learn that she had won the girls All-Around title as the National High School Finals Rodeo ended.

"I knew I'd done well, but not this well," Stowers, of Tishomingo, Okla., said Sunday. "It just never crossed my mind that I'd have a chance in the all-around."

A capacity crowd of over 7,500 at the Heart of Oklahoma Exposition Center watched the 17-year-old Stowers vault from fourth place to take the crown, capping a great day for the Oklahoma contingent and an even better afternoon for competitors from Louisiana.

Louisiana took its first-ever team title with 2,280.33 points, edging out eight-time champ Texas, which had 2135.83. Oklahoma, which started the day in fifth, took third at 2066.67, with Stowers providing a good deal of the punch.

Room to roam

SAN ANTONIO — Houston Oilers quarterback Warren Moon (1) has plenty of time to throw in Saturday's scrimmage against the Dallas Cowboys as running back Allan Pinkett provides protection. The scrimmage ended in a 24-24 tie.

U.S. hoopsters lose gold medal game

SEATTLE (AP) — On the basketball court and the gymnastics mat, this was a day the Americans would like to forget.

Yugoslavia gave the United States a lesson in the value of poise, precision and patience to win the basketball gold, and the Soviets reasserted themselves as queens of gymnastics Sunday at the Goodwill Games.

Playing as if they invented the game, the Yugoslavs won the gold medal 85-79, the third straight time the Americans have failed to finish first in a major international competition.

"They execute their offense extremely well," U.S. coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "You can tell they know one another very well."

"Their international experience really hurt us," U.S. center Alonzo Mourning said, "because they played well and they passed the ball well and they were able to hit the open jump shots."

The U.S. players, all college underclassmen, are just getting to know each other. The difference was apparent to anyone who watched the finale.

"When we weren't hitting, each kid took it upon himself to make it happen offensively, and that only happens on a team like this that doesn't know each other," Krzyzewski said.

"Our weakness is not really knowing one another," he said. "I feel bad for our kids."

In gymnastics, the Soviet Union won seven of 12 individual medals. Sixteen-year-old Natalia Kalinina led the way with two golds and two silvers. The Americans managed just two bronze by 14-year-old Kim Zmeskal.

TACOMA, Wash. — Japan's Shiego Kajita (20) is out at second as Brent Gates (9) of Grandville, Minn. makes a good double play throw to first to end the fifth inning during Goodwill Games baseball action.

The Soviets moved ahead of the Americans in the gold medal race 52-49. The Soviet Union also leads the overall medal chase 142-124.

The United States fared better in baseball, advancing to tonight's medal round with a 15-2 victory over Mexico.

Five of six U.S. boxers won in Sunday's preliminaries, including world 106-pound champion Eric Griffin.

Meanwhile, the American wrestlers are basking in their best performance against the Soviet Union in three decades. On Saturday night, in front of a wildly enthusiastic crowd at the University of Washington's Hec Edmundson Pavilion, the United States beat the Soviets in a major competition for the first time since the 1960 Olympics.

The Americans also won four individual wrestling titles — Cory Baze at 105.5 pounds, John Smith at 136.5, Nate Carr at 149.5 and Bill Scherr at 220.

Basketball

The Americans had trouble hitting open shots all night. Playmaker Kenny Anderson was 3-for-12. His backcourt partner, Todd Day, was 1-for-10.

"We've been hitting like crazy in these ballgames," Krzyzewski said. "We just couldn't put them down tonight."

And the U.S. pressure defense didn't bother Yugoslav guards Toni Kukoc and Jurij Zdovc.

"I am very, very satisfied with the play of our guards," Yugoslav coach Dusam Ivkovic said.

The Americans found themselves behind most of the game, even though Yugoslavia lost

Daniel overtakes Jones for LPGA Championship

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Above anything else, Beth Daniel had one primary objective this year — to win a major golf championship.

Her last chance to fulfill that goal was at the LPGA Championship, and her odds appeared slim when she entered Sunday's final round.

Daniel had six birdies and a bogey in the final round to beat Jones by one shot. Jones had a chance to force a playoff, but lipped her 50-foot birdie attempt on the final hole to finish with a 72 and a 3-under 281 total.

Daniel took the lead with birdies on Nos. 12 and 13, then made four straight pars before missing a 6-footer for par on No. 18. That gave Jones a chance to pull even, but her crucial putt hit the left side of the cup and spun away.

It was Daniel's second victory in seven days — she won the Pharo-Mor at Youngstown, Ohio, in a playoff last Monday — and fourth this year.

Now, comes a well-deserved rest.

Almost two years after wreck; jailed swimmer speaks to press

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — Former Olympic diver Bruce Kimball, in his first interview since he drunkenly drove his sports car into a crowd of teenagers two years ago, feels constant remorse, and wants people to know he is sorry.

Kimball, 27, has served 19 months of a 17-year sentence for two counts of manslaughter in the Aug. 1, 1988 accident in Brandon that killed two and injured six. He pleaded guilty to the charges and has never spoken publicly about his feelings — leading families of the teen-agers to believe he didn't care.

In an interview at Marion Correctional Institution that The Tampa Tribune published Sunday, Kimball said he has been silent long enough.

"I want people to know that I am sorry for what I've done and I'm trying to change my life," Kimball said. "I didn't take it in stride. For a while, I've been wanting to come forward, but it's very difficult to talk about these things."

Kimball said he was advised by lawyers not to talk about the accident and now believes that was a big mistake.

"By my not saying anything, they (the public) thought I wasn't remorseful. But it's a daily struggle to deal with it. There's not a day that goes by that I don't think about it," he said.

A silver medalist in the 1984

Olympics, Kimball was training for the 1988 trials when he spent that August day drinking with a friend and his fiancée. As he was driving fellow diver Chuck Wade home, his car tore through the group of teen-agers gathered at a dead-end street. The car was going at least 70 mph.

Kimball declined to talk about the night of the accident. But he admits his decision to compete at the Olympic trials in Indianapolis just two weeks later was seen by many people as terribly selfish.

"I can see where people would have trouble with that," Kimball said. "I'm not going to say it was the right or wrong thing to do."

Earnhardt DieHard 500 winner

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Change the restrictor plates. Raise the spoilers. Tighten the inspections. Dale Earnhardt doesn't care.

"Drop the rag. Let's just race," says Earnhardt, who refuses to get into verbal wars about NASCAR's continuing — and escalating — restrictions.

Of course, objections would sound a little funny coming from Earnhardt, who won Sunday's DieHard 500 at Talladega Superspeedway and now has won three of the four restricted races this season.

In recent years, NASCAR has ordered the carburetor plates used at Talladega and Daytona International Speedway — it's two fastest ovals — to slow the cars down in the interest of safety.

None of it fazes Earnhardt, who led 134 of 188 laps Sunday and led 519 of 736 possible laps in the two races here and the two at Daytona this season.

The one race he lost was the Daytona 500 in which he shredded a tire while leading two turns from the end and wound up fifth.

Despite the obvious strength of his Chevrolet Lumina on Sunday, Earnhardt still had to contend with Mark Martin through most of the race and Bill Elliott over the final 50 laps.

Martin, who started the day 48 points ahead of Earnhardt in the Winston Cup standings and ended it just one point up, never led. But he stayed with Earnhardt much of the day until he was forced to pit for fuel just 10 laps from the end and wound up ninth.

Elliott, no factor in the early going, got his Ford Thunderbird into the lead on lap 144 and was a thorn in Earnhardt's side the rest of the way, losing by only 0.26-seconds — less than two car-lengths.

Elliott led from lap 151 through 168, but Earnhardt darted past the next time around the 2.66-mile, high-banked oval and stayed in front the rest of the way.

That whole scenario was directed by Earnhardt, who made his final pit stop on lap 141.

Earnhardt waited behind Elliott as long as his patience would allow. After he got past, he asked Childress if he was going to be OK.

"Richard said, 'I reckon it'll have to be alright, won't it?'" Earnhardt said with a chuckle.

"When Earnhardt made his last move and got around me, I pretty much knew that was it. I gave it my best shot, but, boy, he was strong."

Earnhardt came up with his sixth victory of the season and earned $152,975, including the Unocal Challenge bonus of $68,400 for winning from the pole.

Beck rallies for Buick win

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Hale Irwin was bound to slip, sooner or later. And when he did, Chip Beck was there to pick up the prize.

Beck, rallying from an eight-shot deficit, shot a 65 and won ly played a lot different.

But it didn't hinder Beck, a journalism grad from the University of Georgia who had nine birdies over the final round.

"What's interesting today — and you don't see this very often — is that the golf course wins," Beck said. "When you think of how well everybody plays out here, but the course really played tough. I could see after about eight holes that the course would be a challenge."

But by that time, Beck — who started the day at 9-under — was already 13 under after five birdies and one bogey. The bogey came at the par-4 5th, a 437-yard hole.

It was the third career victory on the PGA Tour for the 33-year-old Beck. Irwin, 45, was tied at 273 by Fuzzy Zoeller and Mike Donald, who lost the U.S. Open to Irwin in a playoff last month at Medinah.

Beck's best finish this season was a seventh and he only decided to play in the Buick Open when he missed the cut in the British Open last week. He hadn't won since 1988 in New Orleans and came to Michigan ranked 73rd on the 1990 money list with $135,378.

After slipping back to 13-under with a bogey at the par-3 11th, Beck reeled off three successive birdies to go 16-under with four holes to play.

Irwin drove into a bunker off the 18th tee, and his second shot went into the long rough behind a greenside bunker.

His third shot landed about 20 feet from the pin. He began walking the instant he hit the approach, clearly displeased with the shot.

PGA

the Buick Open at 16-under-par 272 when Irwin missed a tying putt on the 72nd hole Sunday.

Irwin, who hadn't made any bogeys during the first three rounds, had six for a final round 74, two over par at Warwick Hills. Afterward, he complained that the course had dried out.

"That was a much different golf course than we've seen the rest of the week," Irwin said. "I don't know who took it upon themselves not to put any water on the golf course, but it certainly

Arkansas leaning towards SEC

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The president of the University of Arkansas system says he expects the chancellor of the Fayetteville campus to recommend a move to the Southeastern Conference. "I would expect Dr. (Dan) Ferritor to make that recommendation," UA President B. Alan Sugg said Sunday. He added there "is a strong indication" that Ferritor favors action by the university to sever its 76-year affiliation with the Southwest Conference and join the SEC. Sugg said he would talk with Ferritor today before formally announcing a Wednesday meeting of the UA Board of Trustees. "We are planning to have a meeting, and if we do meet, it will be to discuss (the possible move to the SEC)," Sugg said. The final decision on a move lies with the UA board, although every group polled so far has favored a switch. Arkansas has not received an invitation to join the SEC, officials say, but is expected to get one when the university is ready to accept it.

Track club misses 400 relay mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Lewis anchored the Santa Monica Track Club 400-meter relay team to victory and won the 100-meter dash at the New York Games on Sunday, but tightened up at the finish of the relay, negating the possibility of a world record. After taking a poor baton pass from Floyd Heard, Lewis began the final 100-meter leg about a half-meter behind Tony Dees of the Florida Clippers. About 40 meters later, Lewis was in the lead and cruising. But instead of firing through the finish line tape, Lewis slowed just before it and the winning time was 38.18 seconds, short of the world record of 37.83, set by the 1984 U.S. Olympic team. About two hours before the relay, Lewis bucked a 15 mph headwind and won the 100 in a relatively slow 10.39, way off his world record of 9.92.

U.S. wins Federation Cup

NORCROSS, Ga. (AP) — Zina Garrison, rebounding from a loss in singles, and Gigi Fernandez beat the world's No. 2-ranked doubles team Sunday to give the United States a 2-1 victory over the Soviet Union and a successful defense of the Federation Cup. Garrison and Fernandez beat the Soviet pair of Natalia Zvereva and Larisa Savchenko 6-4, 6-3 to give the United States its 14th cup in the tournament's 28-year history.

There's nothing to do to change it." April Bruffy, 20, has undergone 11 operations to repair a leg shattered in the accident. She can now walk without a limp and hopes to resume her career as an aerobics instructor — but she said she'll never understand why Kimball kept silent. "If I killed an animal, I'd cry. If I did something bad, I'd have to apologize 50 million times. But he's never said anything," Miss Bruffy said. Her mother, Rita, added: Those two words, "I'm sorry," really would've meant a lot. The last basket came when the Americans' Chris Smith accidentally knocked the ball in the wrong basket while going for a rebound. The United States narrowed it to 78-74 on Billy Owens' 3-pointer with 2:56 to play. But Kukoc, a second-round draft pick of the Chicago Bulls, responded with a 3-pointer with 2:31 remaining to boost the margin back to seven. "Toni is a big-hearted player," Ivkovic said, "and when it is an important part of the game, he is a winner." Not even Jane Fonda's participation in the "wave" by the 13,156 fans at Seattle Coliseum could bring the Americans back. Zdovc made 9 of 10 field goals and scored 21 points. Garrelts makes sure Giants sweep Reds

By The Associated Press
No no-hitter, but a race in the National League West. Scott Garrelts says he'll take it.

In the year of the no-hitter, Garrelts lost his bid for baseball's record eighth of the year when Paul O'Neill singled with two outs in the ninth inning Sunday. Garrelts retired the next batter, giving the San Francisco Giants a 4-0 victory and sending Cincinnati to its seventh straight loss.

"I'm not as disappointed as you think," Garrelts said. "I just wanted to throw strikes and win the game. The no-hitter was secondary to getting the sweep."

The four-game sweep gave San Francisco a five-game winning streak and moved the Giants within 5½ games of the Reds. Cincinnati tonight begins a two-game series in Los Angeles, where the Dodgers have crept within eight games.

Garrelts (9-7) won for the eighth time in nine decisions. Jack Armstrong, who started the All-Star game, is 0-4 since the break and dropped to 11-7.

Garrelts struck out five, walked four and did not come real close to allowing a hit until O'Neill lined the first pitch to center field.

Garrelts' previous career-best was a three-hitter. He has three of those, including two this season.

Garrelts led the league with a 2.28 earned run average last year, but began the game with a 4.22 ERA. The Reds started the day with a .270 team batting average, tied for best in the majors.

A crowd of 55,792, the largest of the season at Candlestick, saw Garrelts bid to pitch the seventh no-hitter in the last two months.

Tigers have double trouble against Red Sox

By The Associated Press
You couldn't blame the Detroit Tigers for seeing double after losing to the Boston Red Sox.

Boston set an American League record with 12 doubles in Sunday's 13-3 rout of the Tigers. Tony Pena and Tom Brunansky were the only Boston starters not to double.

Wade Boggs hit three doubles

and drove in four runs. Jody Reed doubled twice to raise his major league-leading total to 37. Ellis Burks and Tim Lincecum also doubled twice and Randy Kuteher, Mike Greenwell and Carlos Quintana each doubled once. Boston's doubles broke the Indians AL record of 11, set by the Tigers against the New York Yankees on July 14, 1934. The major league record of 13 was set by the St. Louis Cardinals against the Chicago Cubs on July 12, 1931.

Greg Harris (8-4) allowed four hits in eight innings as he won for the first time in six starts since June 24. Loser Jeff Robinson (8-8) gave up seven hits and six runs in 3 1-3 innings.

Yankees 8, Indians 5
Yankees 4, Indians 3

Roberto Kelly homered twice, drove in five runs and scored three as New York swept its second doubleheader at Cleveland in three days. Despite winning four of five from the Indians, New York still has baseball's worst record at 38-61. Cleveland has lost 10 of its last 13.

Tim Leary (5-13) won the first game, Eric Plunk (4-2) won the second and Greg Cadaret saved both, becoming the first Yankee other than Dave Righetti to get a save this season.

Bud Black (9-6) and Cecilio Guante (2-3) were the losers. Guante made his first start in 363 career appearances.

Twins 6, Athletics 5

Brian Harper extended his hitting streak to 19 games, with a single in the first and won the game when he singled in the 10th. Minnesota won three games of the four-game series.

Angels 6, Mariners 2
Bill Schroeder homered twice at the Kingdome and Jim Abbott (7-9) pitched seven strong innings. It gave Schroeder three home runs this season and seven multiple-homer games in his career.

Brewers 9, White Sox 8
Gary Sheffield singled off Scott Radinsky (6-1) to break an 11th-inning tie after a 40-minute rain delay at Comiskey Park. Greg Brock followed with a two-run single.

Blue Jays 10, Rangers 8

Fred McGriff (3-3) allowed four hits in three runs each and first baseman Rafael Palmeiro's fourth-inning error allowed the go-ahead run to score at the SkyDome. Toronto trailed 7-5 in the fourth but tied the game on McGriff's two-run single.

Jim Acker (2-2) allowed four hits in 2 1-3 scoreless innings. Craig McMurry (0-1) was the loser, giving up three hits and four runs without getting an out.

Orioles 4, Royals 1

Brady Anderson led off the game with one of Baltimore's four doubles. He has reached base in seven straight games since coming back from the disabled list July 20.

John Mitchell (3-3) allowed four hits in 7 1-3 innings and Gregg Olson pitched the ninth for his 23rd save.

Battlin' Bill Bates hangin' tough with Cowboys

AUSTIN (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys coaches know strong safety Bill Bates can hit.

But the problem is that he often does it after the ball carrier or receiver has gotten too far downfield.

The slow-footed veteran is fighting to earn a job on a team craving for the one thing he knows he can't deliver — speed.

"The coaches want athletic ability that I don't have," Bates said. "Speed is a tool I don't possess. I've made the team for seven years with my ability to do other things. I'm a hitter. Football is hitting."

Bates became the starting strong safety in 1986 under coach Tom Landry. He led the team in solo tackles and total tackles in 1988.

But Bates lost his job last year and had to be content as a leader of the special teams.

Landry loved Bates. "If I had 11 Bill Bates on defense I wouldn't have to worry," Landry said. "He loves to hit."

Bates made some contributions as a linebacker in the nickel defense last year on obvious passing downs when Dallas went to six defensive backs.

But coach Jimmy Johnson is making it clear that Vince Albright has beaten out Bates for the time being at strong safety.

"It all comes down to how valuable he is on special teams," Johnson said. "He does good things in the secondary but we have other players with more speed."

And speed is the ingredient Johnson is trying to sprinkle on all areas of the team.

"Speed is what separates the good teams from the bad teams in the NFL," Johnson said. "We didn't have it last year and you saw what happened (1-15 season). We have to get faster in all areas."

Bates needs the job. He's the father of triplets and his wife, Denise, is almost three months pregnant.

"It makes me want to try even harder," Bates said. "I'll be going all out every practice."

Bates made the team in 1983 as a free agent rookie out of Tennessee.

Landry liked what he saw when Bates hit somebody. Now Bates hopes he can catch Johnson's eye the same way again.

Bates played well in Saturday night's 24-24 tie with the Houston Oilers in a scrimmage at San Antonio, making several hard hits.

Johnson said, "I was happy with the aggressive play of the defense and the number of sacks we were able to get."

Dallas got touchdown passes from Steve Walsh and Babe Laufenberg.

The teams are scheduled to scrimmage again Thursday.

Black school could benefit

DALLAS (AP) — Proposition 48, which critics have denounced as biased against black athletes, may help boost enrollment at some black schools battling to survive.

Charlie Neal, executive sports producer for Black Entertainment Television, said many black athletes might start turning to National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics-affiliated black institutions, which are not bound to Proposition 48.

"I'm not going to say that the academic standards are not high at black institutions," Neal told the Dallas Times Herald. "But a kid may be able to get into a Division II or a NAIA black school and not have to go through the same Prop 48 rules and regulations that he would if he tried to get (into) a Division I school."

Proposition 48 requires incoming freshman athletes to attain a minimum score on one of two college entrance exams and a minimum high school grade-point average to be eligible to play as a freshman.

But Neal and others say that tests such as the Scholastic Aptitude Test and American College Testing exam have hindered many black athletes.

Canada plays Japan in tonight's other semifinal at Cheney Stadium in Tacoma.

Hockey
The United States meets Soviet Union in a first-round game tonight in the Tri-Cities. Both teams are 1-0.

Boxing
Griffin quickly established himself as the favorite in the smallest amateur weight class in a dominating performance against Alcis Bel Flores of Venezuela. American light heavyweight Jeremy Williams scored a spectacular first-round knockout of Ljubomir Agov of Bulgaria.

All five Soviets won Sunday, bringing the team record to 10-1 after two days of boxing.

The favored Cubans, who had been expected to win several medals despite being allowed to enter fighters in only seven of the 12 weight divisions, already have to losses.

Water Polo
Yugoslavia won the gold medal as Igor Milanovic and Ducan Popovic scored goals in the second overtime period to beat the Soviet Union 10-8.

NEW YORK (AP) — Deborah Norville got a New York taxi driver fined for cursing at her during a ride in December.

The co-host of NBC's "Today" show told New York magazine she hailed a cab driven by Isidro Ortiz. When she arrived at her destination, Norville said, she tapped on the partition window to tell Ortiz where to drop her off.

Norville said she refused to give him a tip and Ortiz slammed shut the money vent and sent the fare flying. A coin struck her in the eye, she said. "I was absolutely shaking when I got out of the car," she was quoted as saying in the magazine's July 30 filmmaker, the talk of the Cannes Film Festival and a Hollywood maverick.

But residents of the Fort Greene section of Brooklyn, where he has opened a store that sells memorabilia from his movies, insist he's still one of their own.

"You have to respect Spike," said Marc Sweeting, 20, a student who looked over T-shirts after Spike's Joint opened Monday. Lee's latest movie, "Mo' Better Blues," had its premiere in Manhattan the same day.

Spike's Joint offers T-shirts, posters, books, caps, postcards and other items celebrating such movies as "Do The Right Thing," "She's Gotta Have It" and "School Daze."

Ortiz, 31, was fined $100 at a hearing April 2, said Rebecca Bowser, Taxi and Limousine Commission spokeswoman.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

TUESDAY, JULY 31, 1990

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Geraldine Chaplin, economist Milton Friedman, sportscaster Curt Gowdy, actor Don Murray.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Not a good day for launching new projects. Review accounts and answer correspondence. Emotional matters will require careful handling.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A loved one helps you discover hidden resources. Keep your emotions in check. Hasty decisions could work against you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Community work holds special appeal now. Your reticence in business affairs will pay to your advantage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22):

Higher earnings are only part of the good news this week. A personal relationship improves beyond belief! Friends prove helpful where your private affairs are concerned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You need cooperation from key officials to move forward. An old project may have to be redone; rising costs could necessitate a budget revision.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your relationship with a new colleague shows signs of improvement. Be patient. Some good news may be announced today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The acquisition of a luxury item will bring you much pleasure. Sign contracts and legal documents.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Financial pressures ease. Recycle an old idea to reap new profits.

ments you make now will bring rewards in the near future. Share your thoughts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take the lead in correcting a distressing situation. Meet your co-workers more than halfway.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good day to tie up loose ends. Tend to your interests and contacts abroad.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Flexible people find new opportunities for career growth now. Teamwork is the key to greater financial gains.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A great day to analyze your financial holdings. A stranger who comes to your aid is not inspired by romance.

Cystic fibrosis doesn't dampen cheerleader's upbeat spirits

By JEANNE WILLIAMS

ROCKDALE — Between all the fun things in life like cheering on the football team, playing with her pets, going to school, camping, swimming and enjoying the company of her close friends, Jennifer Phillips is busy staying alive.

Jennifer, a blonde, blue-eyed Rockdale High School junior who is a varsity cheerleader, homecoming princess, class president and honor student, was born with cystic fibrosis, a lethal genetic disease that affects the respiratory system and pancreas.

Until recent years, victims of the disease rarely lived beyond early childhood. Today, the average life expectancy is the early 20s.

But Jennifer, at 16, doesn't want to hear horror stories or frightening statistics.

She's too involved in enjoying life and planning her future. For the present, she wants to join the cheerleading team at national competition in Tennessee. She has numerous close friends, loves outdoor activities, painting T-shirts, collecting stuffed animals and singing Christian songs at church. She likes cheerleading at football games. And she smiles a lot.

ROCKDALE — Jennifer Phillips, 16, says she is too involved in life to worry about horror stories about cystic fibrosis, a disease she has had since birth.

After high school? Well, Jennifer has several ideas.

"I have always wanted to be a pharmacist," Jennifer said, as she curled up comfortably on the family room sofa. "All that medicine comes in the house. I like to play with it. I like to mix it and stuff."

She has, by the way, not ruled out becoming a marine biologist or an accountant.

Phillips said. "She asked me, 'Mother, am I going to die?'" Mrs. Phillips said. "One of the little boys she played with told her his mother said Jennifer was going to die because she had cystic fibrosis. She came home and asked me.

and medication. Others are not so fortunate, she said.

Her parents, Becky and Barry Phillips of Rockdale, lost one child to cystic fibrosis.

"I sat down with her and told her. From that time we've never tried to soft pedal it or pamper her. With the exception of her health, we've always treated Jennifer as normal as possible and allowed her to do a lot of things we have been criticized about. The doctors told us that whatever she wants to do, whatever she is physically able to, do it."

Some of the children she has met at a cystic fibrosis clinic in Dallas have given up, are negative and come from broken homes. Many do not attend school.

Jennifer's brother, Wade Phillips, a 20-year-old Texas A&M University student, does not suffer from the disease, but Jennifer was diagnosed several days after birth, Mrs. Phillips said.

Like all cystic fibrosis sufferers, Jennifer must follow a strict daily regimen of medication, breathing exercises and therapy to maintain good health. The only outward clue that Jennifer suffers from the disease is a recurring cough. Surgical implants in the chest and abdomen make the daily routine of providing calorie-packed nutrients less complicated.

"Their parents don't help them do anything and some of these kids are real little, 6 years old," Jennifer said. "A lot of their parents got a divorce because they didn't want to take care of their kids."

Despite her cheerful outlook, Jennifer knows the score.

"From day one, we have told her she's special," said Mrs. Phillips. "Yes, she has cystic fibrosis. But only God knows when she's going to die. No doctors can give her a date or a time."

Jennifer's normal routine includes exercise. Swimming in the family's backyard pool is a fun alternative to the cardiopulmonary therapy, or systematic back "clapping," necessary to dissolve mucus buildup in the lungs. And she keeps an oxygen bottle handy.

Jennifer has a host of friends and support from school officials, the community and the church where they worship. While some of the children with the disease are atheists, Jennifer and her family are devout Christians.

"I had to take medicine when I ate," she recalled. "It was gross."

"We taught her to take a pill when she was 3," Mrs. Phillips said. "She was probably 4 before she realized what she had."

"On a normal day, I do a therapy in the morning and one at night," Jennifer said. "I am like everybody else except for a pill I take when I eat. That's all."

The past two years have been Jennifer's most critical, Mrs. Phillips said.

"This is the first time she has been without IVs or without being in the hospital since the middle of April," Mrs. Phillips said. "We were going anywhere from once every two months to once every other month just about two years. We did almost lose her in April. It was about a 72-hour period the doctors were very concerned."

"I was 4," Jennifer said. "I remember it just because they made me sit on the counter until I swallowed it. I cried and cried and cried when they told me I had to take that pill. I just knew that I had to take a pill because my food didn't digest. That's all I thought about it because I didn't have any lung problems at all."

Jennifer does not suffer from extreme symptoms, Mrs. Phillips said. "They have a low percentile of kids who did as well as Jenny for the first 13 years. She's an exception."

Jennifer believes her happy home life and the support of her parents have been the best therapy

Despite missing five weeks of school in April, Jennifer managed to achieve the status of honor student. And with September just around the corner, she'll have yet another opportunity to repeat that feat.

When Jennifer was 5 years old, she began to ask questions, Mrs.

Meanwhile, the mystery of Jennifer's survival in the face of long odds remains unsolved. There are no easy explanations, only a hunch offered by one gratified mother.

Children in need of school clothes

Only four weeks of the precious summer left to go. It seems like only yesterday we were announcing the end of the school year. Kids, you'd better enjoy these weeks because word is the schools are going to try to make you learn something this year! Can you believe it? Seriously, though, if you start shopping for school clothes, remember that there are some kids who can't afford anything new, or even their school supplies. Talk to your parents about the sponsor-a-child program at Northside Community Center.

Summer is winding down, so have a good time, but take care of yourselves. Report Card says, D-FY-IT!

Little Miss in final stages

Plans for the Little Miss Martin County Pageant are in the final stages, according to Karen Graves, co-chairperson for the pageant, set for 6 p.m. Aug. 17 at the Community Center.

There will be a dress rehearsal the morning of the pageant. Judging will be held at 5 p.m.

Tere Garlington and Graves will be sharing the duties for this year's contest.

Previous winners have been Rainnie Hull, Carrie Crow and Sheree Cox. Kinsey Williams is the reigning Little Miss Martin County.

To be eligible for entering, girls must be between the ages of 4-9 as of Aug. 1, and must live in Martin County or attend a Martin County school. The girls should wear a short party-type dress.

There will be three age divisions: 4-5 years old; 6-7 years old; and 8-9 years old. Rosettes will be awarded to the overall winner and the top finishers in each age group.

Entry deadline is Aug. 15. Entry forms are available at several area businesses and at the Stanton Herald.

Forms need to be mailed to: Tere Garlington P.O. Box 728 Stanton; or Karen Graves P.O. Box 1222 Stanton.

Program to benefit farmers, ranchers

SNYDER — Area farmers and ranchers will find it less expensive to finance the purchase of new and used equipment through a new Texas Production Credit Association loan program, effective Aug. 1.

The program offers a fixed rate of 9.95 percent for loans up to five years with no repayment penalty. All qualified farmers and ranchers in Texas are eligible.

"This program is intended to help local farmers and ranchers make equipment purchases in time for the coming harvest season," said Kenneth Smith, Texas PCA president.

Financing is available for the purchase of such things as tractors, combines, new farm vehicles, sprinkler systems, feed wagons, planting and harvesting equipment.

Established in 1933, Production Credit Associations are specialized agricultural lending institutions owned by farmers-borrowers and managed by agricultural financing professionals.

Additional information on the equipment loan program may be obtained at any Texas PCA office or contact Kenneth Smith at 962-9265.

Well blows after gas pocket hit

GRAHAM (AP) — Drilling mud was to be used to try and shut down the flow of natural gas today from a well blowout near Graham, a law officer said.

Young County Sheriff Carey Pettus said no one was hurt and there was no fire.

The blowout happened around 7:30 p.m. Sunday, in a rural operation about 8 miles southwest of Graham. Drillers hit a pocket in the Upper Strawn Formation, the sheriff said.

"It's spewing gas like you wouldn't believe. It's coming laterally out, a cloud of gas about 300 feet away from the rig," said Pettus.

The force blew out the well, and the natural gas was going out a vent pipe, which is part of the mechanism.

Winners, losers at farm bill trough

By DIANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — When the final vote on the 1990 farm bill was taken on the Senate floor it was a time for tears or cheers for about 200 special spectators.

Special interest spectators, that is.

Ralph Page, a lobbyist for minority farmers, rushed into the anteroom of the Senate floor joyfully punching the air with his fist. "We got it," he said as he rushed to a small knot of colleagues among the 40 or so lobbyists milling about.

He threw a bear hug around a Senate aide to express his pleasure at the Senate's unanimous approval of an amendment to the farm bill that sets up a program to end racial discrimination in Agriculture Department programs and halt the decline in numbers of minority farmers. Others had less to crow about last Friday.

Sam White, of the National Agricultural Chemicals Association, had been working the bill until 2 a.m. the night before and was up at five Friday morning for a breakfast meeting.

But the Senate didn't go along with his efforts to change a section of the bill that bans export of pesticides that are unregistered in the United States.

The lobbyists that are a part of any legislative process were out in force for the $54 billion farm bill which passed the Senate 70-21 on Friday.

They're still on the job as they try to educate, cajole and seduce members of the House into their

10-hour crime spree lifts July homicides

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas police detectives say they need more manpower to keep up with the rising number of homicides.

Three people were killed during a 10-hour spree of weekend violence that also left two dozen others injured. Police are wondering if the number of July homicides will match the high of 43 registered in June.

There have been 40 homicides so far this month. The 43 slayings last month was a record for the month of June. In June 1989, there were 11 homicides, police said.

"We're all hurting, and we're frustrated," Sgt. Ed O'Bara said. "We need more manpower because we're overwhelmed."

From 10:05 p.m. Friday to just after daybreak Saturday, there were 18 stabbings, beatings and shootings reported throughout Dallas, police said.

Detectives are working 16-hour shifts with an average of 15 new assault cases per day. "This is an unusually high number of shootings in a long time," said Sgt. Eddie Douglas. "We've been overloaded all summer — all year."

The weekend assaults began with a stray bullet that struck a man in the arm as he walked home Friday night. About 40 minutes later, 38-year-old Michael Williams became the first fatality as he and two other men walked through South Dallas.

Williams was two blocks from home when he saw his wife being harassed by a longtime friend, said Detective Chuck Hudson. Williams told the 26-year-old man to leave his wife alone. But the man threw a bottle at Williams.

A fight broke out and Williams was fatally stabbed in the chest. The assailant fled. Williams died at 12:30 a.m. Saturday at Baylor University Medical Center.

Polk County residents happy about new prison

LIVINGSTON (AP) — Sometime within the next two years, Andy Kildow will have almost 2,300 convicted felons living a mile from his Lake Livingston home.

He couldn't be happier at the prospect. Really.

"How would you feel if somebody handed you a $100 bill?" says Kildow, a 41-year-old car salesman. "That's basically what they (the Texas Board of Criminal Justice) are doing, putting money in our pockets. I don't know of anybody who's opposed to it. It's bound to help business."

Kildow and Polk County civic leaders say local businesses badly need the 800 new jobs the prison will create.

Polk County, population 30,000, has long been the state's leading timber producer. Champion International, with mills in Corrigan and Camden that produce mainly plywood, employs almost 1,000 people. The plants remained stable during the state's recent recession because Champion aggressively sought new markets outside Texas.

But local leaders note the county has no major industry aside from the timber business and the fluctuating resort and retirement trade generated from the 90,000-acre Lake Livingston.

"Business is good in the summer because of resort properties, but it's dead in the winter and that's the way it's always been around here," Kildow says.

Ben Ogletree Jr., a local banker and mayor of Livingston, says Polk County citizens banded together in an impressive show of unity to land a prison unit in the latest round of the "prison derby" — the race among communities to get in on the prison system's statewide expansion.

A maximum-security, 2,250-bed unit like the one Polk County was awarded carries the promise of a steady, $17 million annual payroll. "It's interesting that not too way of thinking on the issues still unfinished by that body. Then they'll start working on the conference committee members assigned to put the two bills together.

 One lobbyist, a former congressional agriculture aide, estimated that there are more than 200 people like him working on various aspects of the farm bill.
 "It's a whole community. It's what they do," he said.

 Throughout consideration of the bill, a flock of farm lobbyists stood vigil around the rooms and corridors off the House and Senate chambers, glancing up each time someone moved toward the chamber.
 There were the usual representatives of commodity groups and organizations such as the American Agriculture Movement.
 But among the farm corps, some with cowboy boots protruding from under their suit pants, were unlikely allies — the labor and environmental lobbies.

 They started watching agriculture after passage of the 1985 farm bill. That measure contained landmark conservation provisions and a section that used overseas sales of surplus grain to subsidize the U.S. merchant marine.
 It was a coalition Rep. Charles

Schumer, D-N.Y., couldn't defeat when he tried to eliminate subsidies from the wealthiest farmers in the House version of the bill.
 "We never had enough support on the outside," Schumer lamented after his amendment failed 263-159. The farm lobby "was out there in force, and they were united."
 He said Agriculture Committee members pour all their efforts into this one bill every five years, making friendships and doing favors for colleagues to ensure its passage.

 "This is the most important issue to 40 or 50 members of Congress. And that's hard to beat," he said.
 Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y., who tried unsuccessfully to cut back subsidies in the sugar program, said "Some of the better labor lobbyists were watching the farm bill closely."
 "Bartering 40 or 50 solid votes is a very powerful coalition," he said of the agriculture bloc. "I was astonished by the number of votes that beat us" on the sugar amendment. "They play hardball."

 House Agriculture Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, acknowledged some of the unlikely bedfellows that were joining the farm lobby.
 "If you drive farmers out of the program, you take acres out of the program that you will not be able to keep environmentally sound."

Bertha loses hurricane status

MIAMI (AP) — Bertha, the first hurricane of the 1990 Atlantic season, churned along the Gulf Stream as a mere tropical storm today, tossing high winds at Bermuda and heavy surf along the Southeast Coast.

Born as a tropical depression off northeast Florida, Bertha grew quickly Saturday into a minimal hurricane with winds of 75 mph, then dropped below the 74 mph hurricane threshold Sunday night.

At 6 a.m. EDT Monday, Bertha had top sustained winds near 65 mph and was centered near latitude 34.4 north, longitude 68.5 west, or about 250 miles northwest of Bermuda, said forecasters at the National Hurricane Center near Miami.

Oil slick

 some of the oil could eventually wash ashore.

"We've been fortunate with the winds and tides the way they are," said Coast Guard Capt. Thomas Greene. "It looks like it's just going to move back and forth and eventually we're going to see some oil go on some shoreline. Where we don't know."

A vacuum truck and another skimmer were to join the cleanup efforts today. Besides the main slick, a smaller patch had developed near the accident site about one mile offshore from a sandy beach.

The leading edge of the main slick is about six miles southwest of Houston Point, which is a peninsula on the eastern edge of Trinity Bay.

During the afternoon, the slick took a southerly path with the changing current, Greene said. The slick begins about two miles from the accident site.

The ship channel remained closed early today, backing up vessels for the second time in a week. Warman said 22 vessels were anchored in the Gulf of Mexico awaiting the reopening of the ship channel.

The channel probably will remain closed through Wednesday, Warman said.

Booms have been placed around both barges to contain spilling oil. Greene said crews also had placed about 2,500 feet of boom at the leading edge of the slick.

"We hope to encircle the patch and hold it there, so they can get skimmers out from there, so they can get it up before it can hit landfall," Greene said.

Together, the two barges were carrying about 700,000 gallons of "calfed oil," similar to a No. 5 heavy crude used in refining, Greene said. The barges were among three barges being towed by the tugboat Chandy N. The tugboat and the third barge, carrying 20,000 barrels of fuel, were not damaged.

The 601-foot tanker, carrying 29,400 metric tons of jet fuel, remains anchored at Bolivar Roads, officials said. While the collision caused a gash in its hull, the 27,793-ton vessel did not leak because it has a double hull.

County Extension Agent
 Two Licensed Private Applicator Training courses will be offered Aug. 8-9 in Martin and Howard counties.

These licensing opportunities will be the same as they were at the April trainings. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Martin and Howard counties are sponsoring these activities with the assistance of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

A private applicator license is required by law for those persons who use or supervise the use of restricted State limited-use pesticides.

Those who are currently Certified Private Applicators are still able to purchase and use these chemicals, but are not by law allowed to supervise the use of these products.

Recertification is now required for persons holding private applicator licenses and for those wishing to maintain private applicator certificates issued prior to Jan. 10, 1989.

Private applicators must obtain 15 continuing education credits over a five-year period. Of the 15, two credits must be in laws and regulations and one credit in integrated pest management. The recertification requirement is among new and amended regulations adopted by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Licensed private applicators must satisfy the recertification requirement by Dec. 31 of the year preceding renewal of their license.

Persons wishing to maintain private applicator certificates issued prior to Jan. 10, 1989 must satisfy the recertification requirement by Dec. 31, 1995 and each five-year period thereafter.

Persons who obtain private applicator certification during the period Jan. 10-Dec. 31, 1989 must recertify by becoming licensed on or before Dec. 31, 1994. Upon becoming a licensed private applicator, recertification through continuing education will apply as previously described.

Educational activities of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service that include the opportunity to obtain continuing education credits will be identified in program announcements and related publicity.

The licensed private applicator trainings and licensings will be offered Aug. 8 at Dora Roberts Building, Howard County Fairgrounds in Big Spring at 8 a.m. The other training will be held on Aug. 9 at the Grady School Cafeteria, Grady ISD, Martin County at 8 a.m. TDA will be administering the test, which must be passed with a 70 or higher score in order to obtain a license. Upon passing the test, a fee of $50 is to be mailed in by the individual in order to obtain a license.

For more information, contact Greg Jones at the Extension office 756-3316.

Programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Prison

Many years ago, prisons had to come into town sort of privately and clandestinely to see if they could put a piece of land together that was not too objectionable to the community and hope for no opposition," Ogletree said.

"It's now viewed as a very desirable piece of payroll and areas are in fierce competition to put together packages and incentives to attract prisons," he said. "It's a stable, clean, growth industry. And we are very happy to get a piece of it."

While there has been no organized opposition to the prison, one dissenter says the county would have done better to woo a more desirable industry.

"A prison is just not something you would want in your neighborhood if you could avoid it," says Raymond Spiller, 48, a retired merchant seaman whose Livingston home is within five miles of the planned prison.

Ogletree says local support for a prison was manifested in a twofold referendum last summer. Polk County voters approved a rollback in county taxes. But they also gave the county authority, by a 2-to-1 margin, to issue $2 million in certificates of obligation to raise incentive funds for the prison board to select Polk County.

The $2 million will be used largely for the purchase and preparation of the 380-acre prison site five miles southwest of Livingston.

The city of Livingston sweetened the incentive package with a pledge of almost $800,000 for such services as expansion of a water treatment plant that lies across the road from the site. The city also offered the prison system free use of the municipal airport, also directly across from the site.

The return on that local investment will be the 800 jobs and the economic ripples they stir.

This notice concerns 1990 property tax rates for STANTON ISD. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate for taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$1,577,720
+ Last year's debt taxes	$179,751
= Last year's total taxes	$1,757,471
- Last year's tax base	$147,726,592
= Last year's total tax rate	$1.202 /$100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$1,739,619
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$140,448,725
= This year's effective tax rate	$1.08422 /$100

(In the first year a city or county collects the additional sales tax it must insert the following lines unless it made its first adjustment last year.)

This notice concerns 1990 property tax rates for Martin Co. Fresh Water. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate for taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$35,682
+ Last year's debt taxes	$0
= Last year's total taxes	$35,682
- Last year's tax base	$6,152,750
= Last year's total tax rate	$.579 /$100

This year's effective tax rate:

Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$35,682
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$7,989,810
= This year's effective operating rate	$1.44559 /$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$1.56124 /$100
+ This year's debt rate	$0 /$100

(A school district must insert the following lines)

- This year's rollback rate before adjustment	$0 /$100
+ Rate to recoup lost state funds	$0 /$100
= A. Adjusted rollback rate	$0 /$100
B. Rate that would result in maximum state funds	$0 /$100
Rollback Rate (greater of A or B)	$0 /$100
- This year's rollback rate	$0 /$100

(A city or county that collects the additional sales tax (including one that collects the tax for the first time this year) must insert the following lines.)

- Sales tax adjustment rate	$0 /$100
= Rollback tax rate	$0 /$100
