Arab forces join U.S. troops countering Iraq

By ROBERT DVORCHAK Associated Press Writer

Saudi Arabian anti-aircraft guns fired at two Iraqi planes near the border with Kuwait on Saturday, diplomatic sources said. The reported firing came after Egyptian and Moroccan troops landed to join the U.S. buildup to protect Saudi Arabia from Iraqi aggression.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said "there is no hope" for a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis.

The Saudis fired about 10 rounds at two reconnaisance planes in the Khafji region close to the border to deter them, according to sources who spoke on the condition of anonymity. They said the planes turned back without crossing the dent took place and said "the first bullet will not be from Saudi Arabia." The official spoke on condition of anonymity.

Iraq denied any of its planes crossed the border but did not say whether any of its aircraft came

Iraq's official radio quoted a spokesman as saying the reports were "some sort of prattle and buffoonery propagated by the suspect quarters that are seeking to undermine great Iraq or to attack it."

Worldwide sanctions tightened a vise around Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, whose call for an Arab "holy war" against Saudi Arabia was met instead with Arab forces arriving to defend it. Iraq said it would execute any citizens that sells food on the black market.

County facing funding deficit

By PATRICK DRISCOLL

Howard County Commissioners will grapple with a 12 percent funding deficit in the proposed 1990-91 budget when they meet in this year's third budget workshop Monday. The budget includes a 3 percent tax increase but would have a lower tax rate due to increased mineral values

It is the fifth year in a row that proposed expenditures threaten to overide revenues and bite further into dwindling surplus funds, despite the proposed tax increase. A lowering of surplus funds was avoided in 1989-90 by commissioners, who decided during the year to add fees and cut some planned purchases.

However, proposed 1990-91 expenditures of $6.8 million, a $396,284 or 6.1 percent increase over 1989-90 budget estimates, would cut in half a projected $17.1 million balance in this year's budget. But that balance is needed yearly to run the county between October, when the budget takes effect, and December, when collected funds begin rolling in, of-

Loose control of EDC board favored members are allowed to make

A majority of city council members believe the five-member board of directors of the Big Spring Economic Development Corp. should have broad powers while working to attract businesses to the

A disagreement between Mayor Max Green and Councilman Corky dominated last week's council meeting and is still apparently unresolved

Councilman Sidney Clark said he believes in giving the board "latitude" while performing their duties.

"The people we select are going to be of such high caliber . . . so I don't believe in tying their hands,'

Clark said. Councilman Chuck Condray expressed a similar position, saying he believes the council will be informed by board members about any major plans they undertake.

"Since confidentiality is so important to potential businesses coming to Big Spring, I am of the opinion the board should have broad discretionary powers," he said.

Condray added that he has explicit confidence in the people whose names he submitted for consideration on the board.

"My hope is that they won't need much of the council's time because they will have things under control," he said.

Gail Earls believes the $50,000

without prior council consent suggested in a first draft of bylaws for the corporation "ridiculous" and that $250,000 would be a more realistic figure.

"I think we'd be insulting their intelligence by restricting expenditures to that little ($50,000)," she said. "I'm with Corky in that if we don't give these people a free rein then I will withdraw the names I submitted for consideration.

Earls was referring to a statement made by Harris at last Tuesday's council meeting. Councilwoman Pat Deanda said it is ludicrous to put restraints on the board because so much effort is being expended to select the most capable people.

By patricipating in the selection rocess, Deanda said it is tacitly implied that the council has confidence and trust in the board's abilities

'Let them do their jobs don't hold them back before ney even get started," she said.

When informed he was the only member of the council who favored restrictions being imposed on the board members, Green declined to publicly comment on that matter. Although denying that he had changed his position on the issue of authority, Green's focus has been reserved for the wording in the articles of corporation, he said. Repeated attempts to contact

Councilman Tim Blackshear thoughout the week were unsuccessful.

Groundbreaking for prison expected soon

It will be approximately three weeks before groundbreaking ceremonies take place for a new Big Spring correctional center at the airpark, although utility lines are currently being moved to help facilitate construction, officials

Mid Tex Detention Center Business Manager Johnny Rutherford said Thursday that he is optimistic the new facility will become operational by January

Brady businessman Ed Davenport is the financial backer of the project.

The airpark correctional center will be categorized as a medium security prison, and like the Big Spring Correctional Center, will primarily incarcerate illegal aliens, Rutherford explained. "It will have the capacity to hold 375 inmates who will serve an average sentence of about two years," he said. The Big Spring Correctional Center, which formerly was the site of the Homestead Inn, began receiving inmates in June. It has the capacity to hold between 300 and 350 prisoners, according to Rutherford

Following an July 26 executive session that exceeded two hours, the city council approved a resolution authorizing lease agreements with Mid Tex for the new airpark correctional center.

The lease agreements concluded months of talks between the council, Mid Tex and city officials.

Rutherford said four new buildings will be constructed at the airpark, along with a complete renovation of Wythcomb Hall. The new prison will be located just behind the West Side Community Day Care Center and will parallel the Federal Prison Camp on the

'Plead or bleed' Mattox says

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Attorney General Jim Mattòx said 40 men summoned to a special mass paternity docket in Laredo can either "plead or bleed.

Mattox said Thursday. 'Anybody can be a father, but let me tell you it takes a real man to be a Daddy

Over the past month, 40 alleged fathers from the Laredo area have received notices ordering them to appear in court

Those who fail to appear could receive orders declaring them to be the legal fathers. Those who show up may either sign the paternity papers or submit to scientific paternity blood tests, he said.

"We'll have technicians standing by at the courthouse to draw blood. They can either plead, or bleed," Mattox said.

The attorney general's office said it has increased paternity actions with "plead or bleed" programs in Houston, San Antonio, Victoria, Paris and the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Residents blame wells in cancer cases

()DESSA (AP) — Private wells in a small community near this West Texas city contain dangerous levels of heavy metals and other contaminants, and residents want to know if the pollution is linked to many cancer deaths.

'There's been a lot of cancer and lot of kidney stones," said Howard Hodges, who has one of Jonesville's oldest wells. His wife, Cathern, agreed, savresidents are drinking contaminated water. 'Our 41-year-old daughter, who lives across the alley from us, has lost half a lung and a kidney, and she recently had a colostomy," ing most of the community's 200

said Mrs. Hodges.

'She has been sick so much lately, with bone cancer in her feet. There have been numerous cancer deaths all around us, and some that moved away that now have it. One passed away about a week ago down the street from lung cancer, and a child nearby has leukemia. It's serious.

Oil wells surround the community, about seven miles from Odessa near Interstate 20. Mrs. Hodges said the settlement, carved from an old ranch, once had batteries of petroleum tanks.

'We've got bad water," said John Patterson, another Jonesville resident. "Most everything shown on the test results is over government standards."

The Texas Department of Health said Thursday that some of the test results could "merit health concerns.

The Texas Water Commission's tests of eight water wells, including Patterson's, showed unacceptable levels of heavy metals, including rsenic, barium, chromium and fead, in drinking water. Levels of nitrates, chlorides, fluorides and sulfates also exceeded limits set by the Environmental Protection Agency, according to the TWC tests in June.

Patterson said the small community will continue its efforts to get the Ector County Utility District to provide water.

"And the test results should prove useful in proving that we have contaminated water and need help," said Patterson.

Nitrate levels in all eight wells all registered higher than the 10 parts per million that Ron Bearden of the TDH Division of Water Hygiene in Austin said could pose health problems.

'There is a health advisory limit of 20 parts per million where the nitrate tends to combine with hemoglobin in red blood cells and keeps the blood from absorbing oxygen / said Bearden.

'Miracle Baby' doing better

FORT WORTH (AP) - A baby born three months premature after experimental fetal surgery now has a 95 percent chance of survival, doctors Faith Nicole Alexander had a 50 percent chance of living when she was born last Sunday at Harris Methodist Hospital. Doctors increased her chances Friday.

"She is doing extremely well," said Dr. Michael Stanley, one of a group of specialists treating Faith.

The baby was in critical but stable condition Saturday, hospital spokeswoman Kathy Fridge said.

Faith's mother, Teri Alexander of Burleson, underwent experimental surgery at the University of California in San Francisco last month. The baby had a diaphragmatic hernia, in which a hole in her diaphragm failed to close.

The condition allowed her abdominal organs to move into her chest cavity, preventing her lungs from developing.

Mrs. Alexander was told the condition would probably be fatal. She was told by her Texas doctor to consider an abortion, but then heard of the surgery on a television program.

The California surgical team partially removed the fetus from her mother's womb last month, moved the organs to the right places and closed the hole in the diaphragm.

"I am excited," Mrs. Alexander said of her daughter's condition, "and I think it is because she has the best physician of all: the Lord.

Stanley said Faith should be in the intensive care unit for another 10 weeks.

'Rare' tornado hits Staten Island

NEW YORK (AP) — A rare New York City tornado uprooted trees, smashed houses and cars, and downed power lines while cutting a narrow swath through the Staten Island borough.

There were no reports of injuries in the tornado Friday, but four people were treated for hysteria, said Emergency Medical Services spokesman Robert Leonard.

Lt. Jim Powell, a fire department spokesman, said trees torn from the ground fell on houses, cars and power lines, cutting off a three- to four-block area.

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) - Yosemite National Park's spectacular sights, normally enjoyed by up to 25,000 visitors on summer weekends, were clouded by smoke Saturday as 14,000 acres burned on the park's west side.

"There's next to nobody here," Don Fox of the U.S. Park Service said at Yosemite Valley, location of the El Capitan and Half Dome rock masses and other muchphotographed attractions. Yosemite was closed Friday after the first summertime evacuation in its 100-year history. All told, more than 175,000 acres were burning in northern California, with 14 fires classified as major and hundreds of smaller ones being watched.

District of Columbia Mayor Marion Barry walks outside U.S. Disrict Court in Washington Friday after hearing the jury's verdict in his drug and perjury trial.

Barry asks prosecutors to drop retrial thoughts

Marion Barry called on federal prosecutors on Saturday to abandon any thought of retrying him on drug and perjury charges, saying,

"Now is the time for healing. Of the jury that convicted him Friday on one charge, acquitted him on another and was deadlocked on 12 more, Barry said, "Let their judgment be our last judgment.

In an emotional speech before some 500 supporters chanting, "Four more years!," Barry did not address his own political future. Nor did he say whether he would appeal his conviction on a misdemeanor charge of cocaine

Instead, in an appearance that blended elements of a campaign rally and a revival meeting, he apologized to the city's residents, "young and old, black and white, Jew and gentile," and he asked them to "forgive me for any hurt I may have caused. ... I hope that any of you who still harbor resentment and vengeance can let go. Barry had said repeatedly before

U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens has not yet announced whether he will seek to retry the mayor on charges that the jury could not decide. Among them are three perjury counts and a cocaine possession charge backed by videotaped evidence of the mayor smoking crack cocaine in an FBI sting operation Jan. 18 at the Vista Intercontinental Hotel. He was arrested that night

'Now is the time for healing,' Barry said. "I call on the United States government to join in this healing.

Barry, 54, announced earlier that he would not seek re-election to a fourth term as Democratic mayor of the nation's capital this year. But close associates have said in recent days he was considering a race either for a city council seat or perhaps for mayor as an independent. He served on the city council from 1974 until he was elected to his first mayoral term in 1978

Israel to ask Germany for $1.5 billion

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel will ask a united Germany for $1.5 billion to cover East Germany's unpaid debt to Holocaust victims, an Israeli newspaper has reported.

Foreign Minister David Levy will make the request when he meets with West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher in Bonn next week, the independent Haaretz daily said Friday in an unsourced report.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed the meeting but denied the sum cited by the newspaper.

West Germany has paid more than $40 billion in Holocaust reparations to Israel. But for 40 years East Germany's hard-line Communist leaders ousted last fall had refused to pay, arguing they themselves were persecuted by the Nazis.

Handle Hussein with great care

Saddam Hussein's call for an Arab holy war against 'imperialists and Zionists'' has been muted by the Arab League's demand that Iraq withdraw from Kuwait, its adoption of economic sanctions against Baghdad and its dramatic decision to send troops to protect Saudi Arabia against Iraqi aggression.

Still it would be a grave mistake for the White House to discount Hussein's call to arms as the ravings of a deranged dictator. By playing on traditional Arab fear and hatred of outsiders, the Iraqi strongman is desperately seeking to regain the strategic momentum he had several days ago before President Bush began to isolate

Iraq. Confronted with an increasingly united front of nations committed to prevent Saudi Arabia from becoming Hussein's next victim, the Iraqi leader is trying to rally Arab hard-liners to his side. To date, Libya, Jordan and Yemen have indicated they may contribute volunteers to Iraq's cause. And militant Palestinians, embittered by their inability to achieve a homeland in the Middle East, are potential holy warriors Meanwhile, a multinational force is gradually coming together to deter further aggression by Iraq. U.S. military units are being deployed in and around the Persian Gulf. Great Britain, France and Australia have promised to augment this effort. British and French ships and planes are operating in the gulf area with more on the way. West Germany has dispatched five mine sweepers to the eastern Mediterranean and Canada has sent several warships to the region as well. At the same time, the Netherlands, Spain, Italy and Belgium are considering joining a naval blockade of Iraq. Turkey has moved some U.S.-built F-16 fighters along with some Rapier air defense missiles closer to its 200-mile western border with Iraq. And Israel remains on full military alert in the wake of Hussein's threats to launch a pre-emptive nuclear strike against the Jewish state.

Even more encouraging is the Arab League's belated decision to send armed forces to protect the Saudis. Heeding the warning of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak that events are rapidly outpacing the league's opportunity to resolve this crisis, 12 of the member nations decided to take a stand against this despot before it

During the last 48 hours, Iraq has increased its occupation force in Kuwait to 170,000. By next week, the United States will have more than 30 warships in the region, was some armed with cruise missiles programmed for targets in Iraq. And a formidable allied armada will soon be poised to enforce a U.N.-sanctioned economic embargo to force a withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

The wild card at this critical juncture is Saddam Hussein, who still has it within his power either to defuse or detonate the ticking time bomb in the Persian Gulf. And time is running out.

In D.C., it's: 'Iraq around the clock'

By GEORGE GEDDA Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — What could be more anesthetizing than the first August in Washington of the post-Cold War era?

Answer: Just about any August of the Cold War era. This city seemed headed for one of the laziest Augusts ever just a week ago. With communists a disappearing species, what passed for controversy here was the way Roseanne Barr butchered the National Anthem. The sounds of summer could be

August was only about 18 hours old when all hell broke loose in the Middle East. Nothing has been the same here since then. Saddam Hussein has reduced Roseanne Barr to a mere footnote.

Washington has become a city of frayed nerves and furrowed brows, of countless canceled vacations. The work days have become longer and the tempers shorter.

George Lewis of NBC News had it right when he put new words to an old Bill Haley tune, titling it, "Iraq Around the Clock

Baker was soon on his way to Moscow for talks with his Kremlin pal, Eduard Shevardnadze. Since leaving Mongolia, the shredding of Baker's schedule has continued unabated. He canceled a trip to Houston for his mother's birthday and gave a visiting Mexican delegation two hours of his time instead of the 12 that had been planned.

Killing criminals stops crime

This is in reference to your editorial on the death penalty written on August 7, 1990.

In the article you state that 80 percent of American people counted in polls do favor the death penalty. Then you later state they are reluctant to carry out this same death penalty that they favor. I believe you are wrong on the last part. The hold up on executions is from the endless appeals, not because the public doesn't want them carried out.

I agree with Chief Justice Rehnquist, that a faster appeals process is needed and I also believe that the majority of the American people will agree with this idea. By your article, I am sure you feel that imposing the death penalty will not stop murders, rapes and other violent crimes, so it is useless. I agree it won't stop these crimes completely, but I can guarantee you that any criminal guilty of one of these crimes and executed for it, will never commit that crime, or any other crime, again. However, you cannot guarantee me that anyone guilty of one of these crimes, who spends time in prison for the crime and then gts out, won't commit this same crime, or some other crime, later.

Also I have heard the argument that when you execute a criminal, there is always another one to take his place. Well you have at least eliminated one, so instead of two criminals, you are back to one.

Then you seem to think that crime does not pay "drug kingpins" don't deserve the death penalty, but did you not think of all the violent crimes that are committed and lives ruined as the result of the products they deal in? Then just look at Columbia, now the "drug kingpins" have put a bounty of $4,000.00 on the policemen over there, but of course the law enforcement officials can't do the same for the drug dealers because this wouldn't be legal. That is one of the problems with our legal system now, it is written to protect the criminals and worry very little about the victims

I think the crime bill you discussed in your article is a good start in the right direction and I believe the 80 percent of American people that want the death penalty will also agree with this bill.

Then you want a videotape of a gas chamber execution to show how the criminal suffers, but you don't even mention the pain and fear suffered by his victim or victims, as if it doesn't matter. Also, you say the public should see a Texas death row inmate's life slowly easing from his body after being injected with a deadly serum. What about the victims that their lives were anything but slowly eased from them?

I believe that you could show these executions to the public, but also show pictures of their victims and talk to the victims' family members, and the 80 percent of the American people polled would still want the death penalty to be enforced. It might also make some criminals and some would-be criminals realize that a life of

To the editor:

Whayne Moore, executive vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, passed away on July 28, 1990. His passing leaves many voids in our personal, as well as our business

Many of his friends have made an inquiry as to the best way to help in this situation. Therefore, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce board of directors has elected to establish an education memory. This fund will be used to continue the educa- President tion of the Moores' three children,

Richards' campaign must avoid Clayton torch

By JESSE TREVINO

A friend from New York called the house two weeks ago and left a message on the machine: 'What is wrong with the Ann Richards campaign for governor?" The question is consuming Democrats all over Austin and in key areas of the country

The Richards' effort is considered a premier race in the country this year, especially for women, so the call from New York was not unusual. Indeed, Richards has amassed an expansive list of contributors. Women's groups from all over the country are managing to get their members to contribute to her campaign But unlike Diane Feinstein's race for governor in California, the other featured political race of the year involving a woman, Richards cannot get her campaign unstuck. Feinstein, starting as an underdog but using creative and imaginative strategies, swept to victory over California's attorney general in the primary and since then has kept even with her formidable Republican opponent, incumbent

By contrast, Richards, who also faced a state attorney general started as the front runner, ran an awful primary campaign. She finally won in a

She now trails a candidate, Clayton Williams, who has painted himself as a highly successful businessman but is in fact treading water financially, has never held public office and seems to embrace all of the approaches to state government that Ronald Reagan employed at the federal level with disastrous results

His promise to make Texas great again pales in light of his record. Still, Richards lags by as much as nine points in the polls.

Something is not clicking for Richards out beyond Ben White Boulevard on the south and Highway 183 in the north, where the real Texas lies. Her campaign is taking on the sounds and appearance of a rolling tumbleweed

Tumbleweeds can reach six or seven feet, looking mighty in appearacnce. Driven by the wind. they rumble across the landscape making crackling noises. When the winds stop, the tumbleweeds come to a halt, swaying now and then as another pulse of winds hits them. In between gusts of winds, farmers and ranchers use the

still air to torch the

Like an unmoving tumbleweed, the Richards campaign has no wind behind it Unlike Feinstein's, Richards' campaign can make no use of the shift in the national mood against Republican candidates. Now, with the Iraq-Kuwait crisis making George Bush again presidential, the only wind Richards' campaign will be feel ing any time soon is the rush of patriotic sentiment now that U.S. troops are landing in Saudi Arabia.

The confrontation with Iraq could easily do for Bush what the Cuban missle crisis did for the youthful president, John F. Kennedy, whose administration. like Bush's today, two years after the inauguration had yet to find itself. After the Cuban crisis, Kennedy's Democrats turned around lagging polls and swept the elections in November. The fight with the Iraqis could bury nascent Democratic hopes across the country.

Sensing the opportunity, Clayton Williams's more astute campaign managers have designed an attempt to torch Richards early and scatter her to the wind. They have timed their television advertisement campaign brilliantly to coincide with a public opinion survey now concluding in the field. The Richards campaign, meanwhile, sat back and waited, for what? If things go as well for Williams as they have so far, the gambit might inflate the current Williams lead and explode it into a commanding advantage that may be insurmountable. If the trick works, Williams would take on the appearance of invincibility and Richards that of a tumbleweed that didn't make it out of the reach of the spark of the blowtorch.

The traditional Democratic argument holds that in the dog days of August no one pays attention to politics. Wait 'til after Labor Day, Democrats always say, when Texans come back from visiting grandma, start buying the kids clothes for the new school year and the Cowboys finish training camp.

This is outdated thinking. Vac cuums disappear when things happen, and Williams is making things happen. Every day, his campaign fires off a new burst of fire that has kept Richards' staff off balance.

Last week he asked her to resign as state treasurer, citing a statement she made about incumbents running for higher of fice. Across rural Texas, Williams is associating Richards with Dukakis, drugs and decadence. Although still young by political standards, this campaign threatens to be over before it begins If the next poll shows that

Williams' campaign managers are outwitting Richards', she'll have to hope that a variety of new ideas and schemes to get out the Democratic vote in November work and provide her with a surprise that is invisible at the moment

Richards needs help, and needs it badly

etims. you discussIt is time for Big Spring school students to register, said assistant superintendent Murray Murphy.

"Parents need to register children to be sure they'll be going to the (elementary) school in the district in which they live," Murphy said. "Late students may have to be bused to another school."

The district will send out letters to new families in the area this week, reminding them of the times and places, he said. Enrollment is expected to be about the same as last year, Murphy said.

"We'd like to see a significant increase, but based on what we know so far, we don't expect one," he said.

A complete scheduled of Big Spring registration and orientation follows:

New students to district and returning students who have not already done so, should bring Social Security numbers at registration.

Monday-Friday, Aug. 6-10 & 13-17 — Registration for all students new to district. Grades 6-12, at Goliad, Runnels, and Senior High, 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Monday, Aug. 20 — Headstart registration at Lakeview School from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Children must be 3 years 3 months or older by Sept. 1. Bring birth certificates, immunization records and proof of income (W-2 forms, check stubs or AFDC forms).

Thursday-Friday, Aug. 16-17 — Kindergarten — Grade 8 registration for all students (both new and returning) at school of attendance. August 16 — 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Aug. 17 — 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (Schools will be open during the noon hour.)

Parents must sign registration (AGR) cards. Kindergarten students and 1st grade students not attending a Texas kindergarten should bring birth certificates and immunization records. Income verification is required for full day kindergarten.

Personalized Achievement Center — New students register from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Vocational Building of Big Spring High School

Monday-Friday, Aug. 6-10, 13-15, 20-24 — Parents of returning students to Grades 6-7-8 should sign registration cards at Goliad and Runnels between 8 a.m. and noon and 1 p.m.-4 p.m.

Colleges returning to basic cirriculum

By RICHARD J. MALOY Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON - It's back to basics on the college campus these

Almost all colleges today have resumed the practice of requiring their students to take specified 'core' or general education courses

And 80 percent of the colleges are esting their students to find out if they are really getting an education in return for their costly tuition Cpayments

The back to basics movement was revealed in the annual "Campus Trends" survey released by he American Council on Educaion, a Washington based umbrella

The return to required core ourses by colleges and the inauguration of student assessment programs is seen as a response to widespread public criticism of the programs is seen as a response to widespread public criticism of the academic laxity and do-your-ownthing campus atmosphere that was ervasive in the '70s and was the ubject of Allan Bloom's book "The "Closing of the American Mind"

ACE Research Director Elaine El-Khawas, who directed the survey, said 96 percent of the academic deans who responded said they now require students to take general education, or "core" subjects in the social sciences, natural sciences, math, foreign language, culture and civilization. To graduate, students must complete about one third of their course work in those subjects.

El-Khawas, who conducts the survey annually, said the "most days, a survey released today notable progress" made by U.S. colleges during the past decade "is in strengthening of requirements in the undergraduate curriculum. General education requirements have again become the norm."

The dominant pattern at colleges today is a course load of five courses per semester, according to the survey, though at one-third of the colleges a four-course load is most common

The survey also revealed that 82 percent of colleges are involved in some form of student assessment, or testing, to discover if students actually learn anything. About half organization which represents of these programs are mandated by state officials in an effort to "show evidence of educational effectiveness

Initial results from student assessments are being used to evaluate college programs and sometimes to revamp curriculum. The annual Campus Trends survey also showed: Enrollment growth of traditional, full-time students is slowing at colleges across the land, and at 40 percent of four-year colleges last vear freshmen enrollment decreased because of the smaller pool of high school graduates. Enrollment gains are still being experienced at two-year colleges, however.

After a long period of surplus, there is a developing shortage of qualified college professors.

Area school lunch prices vary widely

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

While many schools across the state and in the Permian Basin are raising lunch prices above $1, Crossroads Country school prices vary widely from as little as 40 cents to as much as $1.25. They continue to remain lower than larger cities in the area, however.

According to published reports, Abilene will be raising prices to $1.25, and $1.75 this year. The same records show Midland kids will be paying $1.25 and $1.30, Odessa students $1.10 and $1.25.

School officials said a variety of factors contribute to the price. Many schools said they are in the process of raising the price or have recently raised the cost in an attempt to recover losses.

Grady Independent School District has the lowest reported prices in the area. Students all pay

School officials are unsure if the board of trustees will raise that price this year

Big Spring elementary students pay 80 cents for lunch, junior high and high schoolers pay 95 cents. Stanton students pay 75 and 85

Stanton's price, one of the lower costs in the area, will most likely remain for the coming year, school officials said. In Big Spring, Ray Lawlis, director of cafeterias, said the district's lunch prices, after holding steady for several years, may rise next year.

We thought we were going to have to go up this fall, but we managed to avoid it," he said. "We may have to go up next year.

Help with lunches available

Free and reduced-price lunches will be available to school students based on the household income. Families who receive food stamps or AFDC payments for a child can receive free lunches for that child.

Guidelines, applications and other information will be sent home with students at the beginning of the year.

The income chart for free and reduced-price lunches is as

tollows:	Aı	nnual:		Monthly Weekly

	$ 2,782	$ 3,959	$ 232	$ 330	$ 54	$ 77

Keeping the individual cost secretary Judy Park under $1 has been supported by several factors, Lawlis said. "First, it helps that we have a closed campus, a captive audience, so to speak. Also we make a profit on our snack bars, so we can use that money to keep our lunch prices down.

About 60 percent of the district is on the federal free lunch program. For each of those meals the district is reimbursed $1.60, which helps as well, Lawlis said.

Coahoma charges high school and junior students 75 cents, elementary kids 60 cents, with no plans to raise the price, said

Forsan also manages to keep prices at 75 for all students, thanks to help from taxes, said superintendent J.F. Poynor.

We put a lot of tax dollars into it, and we go into the hole deeply every year," he said. "We'll hold it at that price until we have to change. We have a lot of poor families, not free lunch students, but those who are just above that level.

Poynor said of the district's 520 students, about 450 eat lunch in the cafeteria. About 15 to 20 percent receive free lunches, he said.

Similarly in Garden City, prices cents for older students.

"Ours has only been that two years," said bookkeeper JoAnn Turner. "We were 30 and 50 (cents) for 20 years. I think the school board elects not to have those higher prices. Westbrook superintendent David Casey said the district's current price of 60 and 70 cents would probably be raised at the next school board meeting. He said the district, where slightly above 40 percent are on the free lunch program, continues to lose money each year in the lunch program.

Sands students pay 75 cents in the lower grades, $1 in grades 6-12. Borden County and Colorado City Schools have the highest reported prices among Crossroads schools.

Borden charges $1 for grades 1 through 7 and $1.25 for eighth through twelth. Colorado City fees are set at $1.05 for kindergarten through second grade, $1.10 third through fifth, and $1.15 sixth and

"It's a struggle to make ends meet on those prices," said Christine Cooley, Colorado Schools cafeteria director. "We're going to propose an increase this year.

She said the self-supporting, 4-campus district has a cafeteria at each facility.

An "open campus" for secondary students, meaning they have the option to go home or go out for lunch, contributes to higher cost as well, she said. Many students take their money elsewhere during the

Rescued dog was former star

VICTORIA (AP) — She saved a celebrity, but little did she know. To her, the mangy dog Cindy Saunders saw limping down the roadway was just another animal in need of the help she could provide

She already had a dozen cats and could scarcely afford them. She decided, given the condition of the Labrador retriever, to take him to be destroyed.

It seemed the kindest thing to do. But she changed her mind and took the animal home, selling her plasma twice a week to buy food for him and her cats.

Little did Saunders know that the dog she saved was Trinity Rocket Starr, a regional celebrity for his ability to catch a Frisbee disk. Trinity had performed at local

The Noid — the star of commercials promoting Domino's Pizza was snatched from a local outlet of the pizza chain just four hours after his arrival in Westchester County.

Noid-nappers took a 15-foot version of the big-toothed, rabbiteared creature from the roof of the pizza outlet to a local park last Saturday, assistant manager Danny Lowenheim said peared 41/2 years ago. But she suspected he was something special, she said, so she placed an ad in The Victoria Ad-vocate's lost and found section. Saunders, who kept the dog for three weeks, said it was obvious that Trinity had been well-trained. "Every day, the dog would do something to make me think someone had taken time to train him. I knew if I had a dog I had trained and loved that was running around somewhere, I would hope someone would do that (run the ad) for me," she said.

When Warren Milberger saw the ad, he had little hope the dog was his long-lost pooch, he said, but he figured he'd check it out. He called Saunders. Amazingly, the dog was Trinity.

"He didn't come up and lick the in the face. But I knew it was him because it's like knowing your child," Milberger said. Trinity also had a missing tooth.

"I look out in the back yard and see Trinity, and it's hard to look at him because it is so hard to believe he is back," said Milberger's wife. Claudia.

Milberger said he lost Trinity when a neighbor, upset that the dog kept wandering into his yard, took Trinity somewhere else and abandoned him. The neighbor told Milberger he didn't realize the dog was the well-known Trinity.

Trinity is back with Milberger, but the years have taken their toll He'll grab a flying disk if someone holds it, but cringes if one is

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The (Sands ISD) will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in (1989) by (33%) percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or less rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on (August 20, 1990) at (Sands school).

FOR the proposal: Keith Nichols, Reggie Hambrick, Joe Barnes, Tony Gillespie, and Ray Long. AGAINST the proposal:

PRESENT and not voting: ABSENT: Eddie Herm and Lloyd Robinson.

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the (effective) tax rate that the unit published on (July 1990). The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

Average home value	Last Year 27,520	This Year 26,717
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's		20,777
exemptions)	10,159	10,066
Average taxable value	17,361	16,651
Tax rate	1.15	1.12 (proposed)
Тах	199.65	186.49(proposed)

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would (decrease) by $(13.16) or (decrease .07%) percent compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would (decrease) by $(.03) per $100 of taxable value or (decrease .026) percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Poll: Bush rating up with crisis response

NEW YORK (AP) - President Bush's handling of the current Middle East crisis boosted his approval rating among Americans to 75 percent, the second-highest total since he took office, a Newsweek poll released Saturday shows.

An overwhelming percentage of Americans — 93 percent — felt U.S. oil companies were taking advantage of the Middle East uprising to unfairly raise gasoline prices, the poll showed.

It also showed 94 percent of Americans supported military retaliation if Iraqi troops struck against U.S. troops; 79 percent favored a U.S. strike if the Iraqis killed U.S. civilians in Kuwait or Iraq; and 61 percent backed a strike if the Iragis took American hostages.

Three out of four Americans believed it was at least somewhat likely that the U.S. forces in the Middle East will engage in combat with Iraqi troops, the Newsweek

A separate poll by The New York Times poll found that about half of Americans expect a bloodless resolution to the confrontation, but a third said they anticipated fighting. The rest said they did not know what would unfold.

The Newsweek poll showed that 58 percent were opposed to a covert assassination of Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

Bush's rating was his secondhighest since Newsweek began gauging his approval rate in May 1989. Last month, his approval stood at 65 percent, with 26 percent disapproval; only 15 percent disapproved now, the poll showed.

The Gallup Organization conducted a telephone survey of 770 adults on Aug. 9-10. The poll has a sampling error of plus or minus 4 percentage point.

In the Times poll, published Sunday, 66 percent approved of sending troops to Saudi Arabia and 28 percent disapproved. That poll found 50 percent of Americans believed Bush had clearly explained why troops were sent to Saudi Arabia, and 41 percent said the reasons were not explained clearly.

Those polled were roughly divided when asked if they thought entering the Middle East conflict was like getting involved in Vietnam in the 1960s. Forty-two percent said that was a good comparison, 52 percent said it was not.

The New York Times poll of 670 adults was taken by telephone on Thursday and Friday. It had a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

1990 Property Tax Rates in Howard College This notice concerns 1990 property tax rates for Howard College. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

crisis. President Bush, beginning a three-week vacation in Kennebunkport, Me., praised the Arab action at a news conference.

"It must make Saddam Hussein realize how isolated he is in terms of world opinion," said Bush, who took a boat ride in the rain Satur-"The world is united against

A belligerent Saddam, who said he holds the Saudis responsible for Arab disunity, now faces a growing multinational military force of ground and naval power. And his oil flow, vital to its ability to import food, has been virtually cut off by a U.N. condemnation of Iraq's Aug. 2 blitzkrieg and absorption of Kuwait.

In Cairo, Mubarak was asked if believed there is a possibility of a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis. "I want to tell you honestly - and note that I am always optimistic - there is no hope of that," Mubarak said. There were also indications that Iraq is preparing for a world economic seige. The Ruling Economic Command Council warned that selling food on the black market would be a criminal act of sabotage punishable by death.

In a statement broadcast Saturday, the council said the decision was taken to "provide enough foodstuffs to all citizens and foil the cheats and the greedy ones.'

The state-run radio also said "enraged Baghdad masses" mobbed the Saudi Arabian and Egyptian embassies. The radio said the protesters "chanted death to the enemies of Iraq and the Arab nation, the inheritors of colonialist doctrine and protectors of Zionism who are protecting their thrones with the bayonets of foreign troops.

Iraq had sealed its borders after its lightning invasion, trapping 3,500 Americans and other foreigners.

It was unclear how the Egyptian and Morrocan troops would be deployed with American soldiers, said. but all the forces were landing at the same northeastern Saudi base.

The Pentagon has committed 50,000 ground troops but the number could skyrocket if Iraq invades with forces massed on the Kuwait-Saudi border.

Egypt and Morocco were each expected to provide 5,000 troops, battlegroups in the Red Sea and Inaccording to diplomatic sources who spoke on the condition of anonymity. They were under the flag of their respective countries. Cairo Radio called them "an Arab

The planes turned back without actually crossing the border, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

In Washingon, Col. Miguel Monteverde, a Pentagon spokesman, said he was aware of the report but, "It's unconfirmed by American sources."

President Saddam Hussein U.S. MILITARY: Marines and and his ruling Revolution Command Council, according to Baghdad, met and said that "any manipulation of food supplies for trading purposes will be considered a crime and a sabotage act infringing national security."

ANTI-U.S. DEMONSTRA-TIONS: Thousands of Yemeni demonstrator's on Saturday staged pro-Iraqi protests in front of several embassies in the capital of S'Ana and smashed the windows of the U.S. mission, witnesses said.

In several Jordanian towns and cities, protesters denounced the United States and hailed the Iraqi annexation of Kuwait. In Irbid, 50 miles north of Amman, a crowd of about 3,000 people chanted pro-Iragi slogans and speakers denounced Arab leaders who agreed to send

Budget_

● Continued from page 1¹A Jackie Olson said. "If we don't have this ($1.7 million) then we have a problem," she said. "That's what we've got to work on starting Monday.

In addition, the proposed budget, with its projected $890,357 balance, does not include another $321,000 in department requests which commissioners will also consider. About $140,000 is for improvements to the courthouse building. Other requests include furniture and office equipment. "That $890,000 is going to shrink," County Judge John Coffee said. "There are repairs that need to be made to the courthouse. Every so often we have a leak up there. That's been going on for 20 vears, maybe the last 25 years."

There are also pay raise requests from departments which are not included in the $321,000 figure or the proposed budget. They include 10 percent increases for some and other specified and unspecified amounts for others. Each 1 percent increase in salaries costs $30,000 a year, according to Olson. The May county payroll was $268,741 for 136 full-time employees and 23 parttime employees

The last pay raise for county employees was a $65 a month across-the-board raise in the 1987-88 budget, Olson said. With about 130 employees that cost the county a little more than $100,000 a

Olson said the department requests will generally be scrutinized the closest by commissioners. "They need to look at those requests," she said.

The increases responsible for the 6.1 percent difference in the proposed budget from this year's budget are "pretty well routine," she says.

Recalling one of the larger increases included in the proposed budget figure, she said costs for autopsies may go from $12,000 to $21,600. "I know there may be several more (similar examples) in there,'' she said.

Cutting spending to maintain an adequate operating fund balance is nothing new to Commissioners

This year's budget was projected Olson said.

Rough punishes best

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) Wayne Grady, staring down a history of second-place finishes, held on to the lead at the PGA Championship on a day when golf's best players took a beating at Shoal Creek.

Grady, whose four career victories are overshadowed by 29 runnerup finishes around the world, led a grudging group of five players under par after three rounds of golf's fourth Grand Slam tournament on Saturday

All around him, players were battered - or at least muddied by the infuriating rough that punishes anyone whose shots are a little off-center.

Nick Faldo, already the winner of two Grand Slams in 1990, thrashed his way through weeds and muck to an 80 that ended any chance he may have had of winning another major title.

"This is the hardest golf couse we play," Grady said. "It's just very, very difficult.

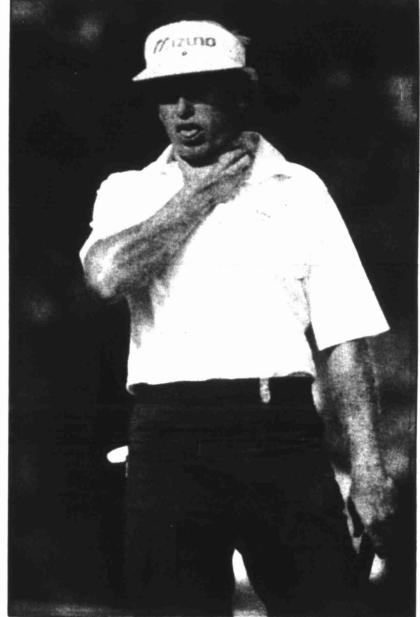

And, while he has two strokes in hand going into the final round, Grady admitted he's not in a comfort zone.

"I think this will be more dificult than the British Open last year because of the driving," said Grady, who lost in a three-man playoff for the 1989 British Open title after leading for most of the first 71 holes.

Grady's even-par 72 gave him a 211 total and a 2-stroke lead over Payne Stewart and Fred Couples. Grady has a 4-shot margin over Loren Roberts and Gil Morgan, a 43-year-old PGA Tour veteran who confounded the experts with a 7-under-par 65 that vaulted him from a tie for 49th to a tie for table 15 strokes behind.

Faldo, the winner of the Masters and the British Open, was mudspattered to the waist and looking shell-shocked when he emerged from the scoring tent after adding up the worst card he's ever had in opportunity of matching Ben major-tournament competition.

Faldo's 80 left him an insurmoun- BIRMINGHAM. Ala. — Wayne Grady of Australia gives a choke sign after missing a birdie putt on hole number 14 during PGA Championship action.

Laura Hurlbut, who started the day with a two-stroke lead, three-putted the 18th and fell one shot behind

Benz and Davies, a first-year player from Wales, started tied at 3-under and three strokes behind Hurlbut, and each overcame poor starts to shoot 70s for 5-under 211.

Hurlbut was at 6-under after 17, but hit a trap in front of the 18th green, took three putts from 30 feet away and shot a 74.

She was tied with Cindy Figg-Curier, the first round leader, and Lynn Connelly.

Figg-Currier also reached 6-under on the back nine, but a bogey on No. 13 and a three-putt on the last hole left her with a 72. Connelly, playing with Benz and Davies, had a 71.

Cathy Gerring, 72; Caroline Keggi, 70, and Nancy Harvey, 67, were locked at 213. Harvey was tied for the first round lead before bulging to a 78 Friday.

Delayed decision turns out to be good move for hoop coach

By Mark Watson

For the Herald

"There, but for the grace of God, Local resident Ed Sparling may be inclined to use that phrase every time he watches news about the Persian Gulf situation. If it had not been for a "small" decision by the Kuwait Basketball Club, he might be making the news himself. Three months ago, Sparling — a longtime basketball coach — began talks with the Kuwait club about the possibility of coaching the team. A couple of weeks ago, the

Kuwait club informed him any decision had been postponed until

September, when current Coach Jim Calvin's contract expires. When Iraq invaded Kuwait, Calvin, a San Antonio native, hid with his wife Phyllis in the basement of their apartment building for three days, without food. The U.S. State Department considered the couple to be missing until Calvin contacted the U.S. Embassy in Saudi Arabia. He was then advised to make a run for the Saudi

The Calvins left everything and drove immediately to Saudi Arabia, but not without encountering Iraqi troops and tanks trying to block their real-life exodus.

Although Sparling missed all that excitement, he's had plents of experiences in his career as an international basketball coach. A 26-year coaching veteran, he's spent the last two years coaching basketball and teaching overseas in places such as Venezuela, Cameroon, Brazil and the Central African Republic

Perhaps the most dangerous situation he has encountered was coaching at the African Games, held last year in Angola, which is still enduring a civil war. He claimed that he had been required to buy insurance that would ensure the return of his body to the U.S. if he fell victim to the Angolan conflict. "There are wars and burshfires all over," Sparling said. "They've had a running war in Lebanon, Israel, Syria and Jordan, but what people don't understand is that life goes on. Sparling maintains that in any given year, there may be quite a' few coaches enduring potentially perilous situations in order to teach the American game around the Third World

Veteran basketball coach Ed Sparling had some good luck when the Kuwait basketball team delayed its decision on hir-

"For example, we've got several of our coaches in Israel and there's danger in Israel everyday," Sparling said. "We've got at least 16 coaches there. Ted Owens, who was at Kansas University for 16-18 years, now coaches the national team and club team besides.

What motivates men like Owens and Calvin and Sparling to coach in places where the governments could be overrun at any moment?

Frankly, money is a prime motivator. An accomplished coach can earn a six-figure income taxfree by working for foreign basketball clubs. Other rewards include a free apartment, free use of a car and a living allowance.

Another prime motivator for Sparling lies within the very nature of the international game

'It is a contact sport," Sparling said. "The only way I can explain it is that it reminds me of when I played basketball in the 1950s. Back then, if you went down the middle, you were going down on the floor. That's how international basketball is played now . . . Referees don't call a lot of fouls...so when you see (American) teams play, they have a great adjustment to make, because they are going to be hit, pushed and shoved every time they go down the floor.

'It's a much faster game. I really enjoy it. Coach Calvin will go back. This is just one incident.'

U.S. hoopsters in quarterfinals

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The quarterfinal field for the World Basketball Championships is set by a couple of upsets on the final night of qualifying-round

Puerto Rico clinched the top spot in Group A with an 82-75 victory over Yugoslavia, widely considered the favorite for the tournament, on Friday night. Australia, which had to win to advance, beat Brazil 69-68 on Andrew Vlahov's tip-in of a missed free throw with 1:39 to play. Brazil and Australia thus moved on from Group B.

The final team with a chance to win and move on was Canada, which came up short against the Soviet Union, 90-81, and that loss in Group D play meant the host team would join the Soviets in the quarterfinal round.

Argentina, which rallied from a 10-point deficit with just over two minutes to play to beat Canada on Thursday night, will face the United States, the top seed from Group C, on Monday, the first of three days of quarterfinal competition.

the four groups advanced to the quarterfinals, while the remaining teams dropped into classification play for ninth through 16th places.

Yugoslavia, which won the gold medal at the recent Goodwill Games and boasts a roster full of NBA-caliber players, led 56-39 at halftime. But Puerto Rico rallied behind the play of former NBA player Jose Ortiz, who finished with 23 points.

Ortiz, who played with Utah Jazz, broke a 75-75 tie with 3:00 remaining with a free throw and add ed a a tap-in rebound on the second shot to give Puerto Rico the lead for good

'This victory gives us special motivation," Ortiz said. "Now we're ready for anything, even to play in the finals.

Australia had to stop Brazil's Oscar Schmidt for any chance to advance and the assignment went to Vlahov, who used his bulk to force Schmidt out of his game and hold him to 18 points while scoring a game-high 25 himself.

'We were fighting for survival,' said Australian coach Adrian

The top two teams from each of Hurley. "If we lost we were out of the whole series. We had more at stake than Brazil.

Australia's suprise victory dropped Italy into the classification round.

The United States beat Spain 95-85 to finish its qualifying round unbeaten. Kenny Anderson led the U.S. team with 19 points, seven rebounds and five assists.

The Soviet Union's 90-81 victory over Canada allowed Argentina, which beat Egypt 82-65, to advance

In other games, Greece routed South Korea 119-76 to classify for the quarterfinals from Group C; Italy, edged out of the quarterfinals by Australia's victory over Brazil, routed a weak Chinese team 115-76 and Venezuela overcame Angola 83-77 Canada, which trailed by 16 points with 8:15 remaining, cut the lead to 82-80 with 1:47 to play. Valeri Tikhonenko, who finished with 28 points, then sandwiched two baskets around two free throws by Alexander Volkov of the Atlanta Hawks to end the third upset bid of

Denver coach has minor surgery

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Dan Reeves may be coming off the disabled list soon.

Following minor surgery for hardening of the arteries, doctors said the 46-year-old coach of the Denver Broncos could be out of the hospital this weekend and back at work in less than two weeks

Reeves, who suffered chest pains earlier in the week. underwent the surgery at Sequoia Hospital in Redwood City, Cahf., team owner Pat Bowlen said Friday.

The procedure "successfully removed the plaque from two areas that were clogging his coronary arteries," Hawkins told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

Bowlen said the most optimistic estimate for Reeves' return would be after the Broncos' Aug. 20 preseason game against San Francisco.

Defensive coordinator Wade Phillips has served as interim coach in Reeves' absence.

Rams run over Chiefs, 19-3

WEST BERLIN (AP) -Gaston Green rushed for 115 vards and Buford McGee and Alfred Jackson scored touchdowns to lead the Los Angeles Rams to an error-filled 19 3 victory over Kansas City Saturday in the first NFL game in continental Europe. At the Olympic Stadium where Jesse Owens mocked Adolf Hitler's theory of Aryan supremacy by winning four gold medals in the 1936 Summer Games, the Rams dominated the Chiefs in a game riddled with penalties and turnovers.

Rangers escape with 7-5 victory

Hough won his third straight decision and the Texas Rangers escaped jams in the seventh and eighth innings Saturday to beat Chicago 7-5, dropping the White Sox 412 games behind in the American League West.

Oakland, which beat New York 10-1, holds its largest lead since May 26. The White Sox stranded 14 runners and could not overcame an early 6-0 deficit.

AL

Hough struck out Frank Thomas with the bases loaded to end the third inning. In the seventh, Brad Arnsberg struck out Phil Bradley with runners on second and third.

Chicago loaded the bases with one out in the eighth against Arnsberg, but shortstop Gary Green made an over-the-shoulder catch on Lance Johnson's looper and doubled off pinch runner Steve Lyons at second base.

CHICAGO (AP) — Charlie nine hits in 6 2-3 innings. He struck out five and walked five. Kenny Rogers got two outs for his 12th save.

> Craig Grebeck's run-scoring single chased Hough with two outs in the seventh. Ozzie Guillen hit an RBI double off John Barfield, but Arnsberg took over with runners on second and third and struck out Phil Bradley > Melido Perez (10-10) lost for the third time in four starts. He gave up seven runs on eight hits in the first four innings.

Rafael Palmeiro hit an RBI single and Ruben Sierra had a sacrifice fly in the first inning. Jeff Huson hit an RBI single with the bases loaded in the second, and two more runs scored on the play when right fielder Sammy Sosa let the ball roll through his legs for an error. Texas made it 7-1 in the fourth

when Gary Pettis singled, Huson walked and Julio Franco had an RBI grounder

Chicago scored in the third on Bradley's single and two passed balls by Geno Petralli. The White Hough (10-7) gave up five runs on Sox made it 7-3 in the fourth on a

Athletics 10, Yankees 1 OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Curt Young and Gene Nelson teamed on a seven-hitter and the Oakland Athletics, playing without Jose Canseco and Rickey Henderson, routed New York 10-1 Saturday to remain unbeaten in eight games against the Yankees this season.

The Athletics have outscored New York 37-5 this year. Oakland's bid for its fifth shutout against the Yankees was spoiled by Kevin Maas' home run in the ninth inning. The Athletics are 17-3 against New York since 1989.

Carney Lansford got three of Oakland's 16 hits and Walt Weiss and Lance Blankenship each drove in two runs. The Athletics won without injured stars Henderson, who missed his fourth straight game with a strained left hamstring, and Canseco, a late scratch because of lower back pain.

Young (7-4), in his first appearance since July 29, gave up five hits in 5 2-3 innings. Nelson took over for his fifth save and allowed two hits, including Maas'

McGwire doubled with one out in the fourth and scored on Ron Hassey's single for a 1-0 lead off Andy Hawkins (3-10). Weiss singled to start the fifth and later scored on Lansford's double

The A's put the game away with four-run outbursts in the sixth and seventh. Mike Gallego and Blankenship each hit RBI singles, Weiss had a sacrifice fly and Lansford scored on a wild pitch by Greg Cadaret in the sixth.

In the seventh, Blankenship and Jamie Quirk hit RBI singles, Felix Jose doubled home a run and Weiss had another sacrifice fly.

Blue Jays 7, Twins 4

TORONTO (AP) — Kelly-Gruber homered on Terry Leach's first pitch, capping a three-run rally in the seventh inning Saturday and leading the Toronto Blue Jays over the Minnesota Twins 7-4.

Toronto trailed 4-2 in the seventh when Glenallen Hill blooped a oneout double off Roy Smith and Tony Fernandez hit his major leagueleading 15th triple, tying a team record. Gruber met Leach (2-4)

Dave Stieb (15-4) allowed four runs, three earned, on five hits in 7 2-3 innings. Tom Henke went 1 1-3 innings for his 24th save in 26

NEW YORK (AP) — Reliever Steve Wilson bailed Chicago out of a first-inning jam and pitched 6 2-3 solid innings and Shawon Dunston and Ryne Sandberg each drove in two runs in a four-run second, leading the Cubs past the New jams. The Pirates had two on with Craig Lefferts pitched the 10th for York Mets 6-3 on a rainy Saturday

Despite the loss, the Mets maintained a half-game lead over Pittsburgh in the National League East as the Pirates lost to St. Louis.

A light rain in the top of the fourth inning turned into a torrential downpour in the bottom of the inning and play was delayed for an hour and 33 minutes. The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Sandberg reached on second baseman Gregg Jefferies' one-out throwing error, stole second and scored on Dave Clark's single off Jefferies' glove.

The Mets tied it in the bottom of the first and threatened to blow the game open but Cubs manager Don Zimmer quickly yanked starter Mike Bielecki, who walked three of the five batters he faced.

Bielecki, who hasn't won as a starter since May 27, walked the first two batters and Jefferies blooped a single for a run. After Darryl Strawberry hit into a force play, Howard Johnson walked to load the bases.

The $3.25 million average per year would put Montana ahead of the NFL's current salary leaders Buffalo quarterback Jim Kelly, who receives $3.14 million on average, and Philadelphia quarterback Randall Cunningham, who gets $3.1 million.

Montana had one of his finest seasons last year, completing 70 percent of his passes for 3,521 vards and 26 touchdowns during the regular season. He completed 78 percent of his passes in the playoffs for 800 yards and 11 touchdowns.

"That's a trademark of Ed DeBartolo," Policy said. "He appreciates performance and loyalty and he rewards it.

Montana, 34 years old and enter-

Award-winning journalist writes book about Landry

DALLAS (AP) — "God's organization, including President Coach," Skip Bayless' scathing Tex Schramm and Vice President new book about Tom Landry, just as easily could have been titled "Devil's Advocate.

Or how about "Wizard of Oz II." In "God's Coach". Bayless sees himself as Toto while Dorothy & Co. cower before the huge screen flaming and roaring with great and powerful Oz, the untouchable magician.

Slipping away, Toto pulls open that mysterious curtain with his teeth, revealing a very average little man frantically yanking the levers that controlled the mighty

Near tears, Dorothy exclaimed, "Oh, you're a very bad man."

"Oh, no, my dear," the man answered. "I'm a very good man. I'm just a very bad wizard."

In the end, Bayless says, Tom Landry proved to be a very bad wizard, and he invites his readers to come along if they dare through the Lions and Bengals and Bears. "We're off to see the wizard."

Bayless, an award-winning coland longtime Landry critic, gives an incisive and complex portrait of the man who coached the Dallas Cowboys for 29 seasons until his sudden firing last spring, and the troubled football organization that relentlessly promoted itself as "America's team.

Tex Schramm and Vice President Gil Brandt, who, along with Landry, the author refers to as the "Unholy Trinity." Schramm is portrayed as a gifted public relations man who managed to persuade a series of owners to let him run the Cowboys without interference, despite controlling only 3 percent of the team. Bayless says it was Schramm, and not new Cowboys owner Jerry Jones, whose job it was to fire Landry, and tells how Schramm cleverly evaded this responsibility.

Brandt, known across the country as "the Draftmaster," helped develop winning Cowboy teams by building up an unmatched network of scouts and prospective player files, including everything from height and weight to sexual preference, Bayless writes.

Bayless says that although Brandt rivaled a computer in his ability to manipulate information, he never bothered to learn much about the game itself.

Once other teams developed umnist for the Dellas Times Herald their own sophisticated scouting networks, the Cowboys were at a severe disadvantage. The consequences, Bayless says, were evident in the fall of the team and its dismal performances in Landry's final years.

In the final irony, Bayless says being fired freed Landry to become his image — to be God's coach without the burden of actually coaching football. Bayless says Landry and the entire Cowboys organization suffered for years from a major discrepancy between image and reality.

However squeaky-clean an All-American image they projected, Bayless says, the Cowboys were "built on prairie dust. On Texassized egos. On greed. Excess. Sex appeal. Adultery. Lies. Oil. Alcohol. Arrogance. Gusher luck. On a towering media-made facade known as Cowboys Mystique ... No longer were they just a pro football team ... They were the tallest Texas tale. They weren't what they

Edberg now world's top-rated player

MASON, Ohio (AP) — On the same day that Stefan Edberg became the top-rated men's tennis player in the world, he also earned some overdue respect for his heart.

Edberg won 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 Friday over Michael Chang to move to the semifinals of the ATP Championship at the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center.

The victory also gave Edberg the points needed to pass Ivan Lendl and take over the No.1 position in the ATP computer rankings

"I really think he's a lot stronger mentally now than he used to be,' Chang said of Edberg. "People used to say Edberg didn't have any fight in him. Now he's been up there for quite some time and he's starting to get that determination. Even if you have him down, he won't fold. He'll fight and fight until the last point is played.'

The softspoken Edberg said overcoming Lendl had long been a goal of his.

'Not everyone is going to be number one in the rankings," said the 24-year-old Swede. "You need to play good tennis. I've done that this year. (Being No.1) is something that I've wanted to do. The last couple of years I thought I had a chance. Now I've done it."

Edberg, the reigning Wimbledon champion, passed the idle Lendl to become the eighth No.1 since the computer ratings began in 1973. Lendl has been No.1 for most of the last seven years, except for a brief period when another Swede, Mats Wilander, was on top.

Edberg said that he was aware that he could take over the top spot this week. He also said that he was

"When you look at the top players - Lendl and Becker they've got that kind of attitude that they don't want to lose, no matter who you are. If you're ranked 100th or ahead of them, they don't want to lose. I think Edberg's got that now," said Chang.

Edberg advanced to meet Andres Gomez, the third seed ranked fifth in the world. Gomez handled Jim Courier 6-1, 6-4 in another quarterfinal.

'Ivan has been (No.1) a long time," said Gomez. "Stefan is very worthy. Since 1973 there have only been a few people who have been number one. That's a very small number for such a long time.'

Defending champion Brad Gilbert held off Jakob Hlasek 2-6, 6-1, 7-5 to earn a spot in the semifinals against Scott Davis. The unseeded Davis overcame 15thseeded Richard Fromberg, 4-6, 6-4, 7-6 (10-8) in a marathon match on the stadium court.

Gilbert was indifferent to Edberg's move into the No.1 position

Try flipp'n for those big bass

By Mark Weaver

Mention the word flipp'n to most anglers and only one thought will come to mind . . . using a jig and pig in cold water. The trouble is, it's thoughts like that which have let a lot of lunkers get away.

Flipp'n throughout the hottest part of summer can be one of the most deadly tactics for big bass.

First, it is important to realize why flipp'n is so productive. Think of it like this . . . most anglers really only use about ten to fifteen percent of their actually lure retrieve to get the lure in a likely "fish holding" spot. By this I mean that most anglers will position themselves about ten vards away from their target, a stump for example, then cast the lure maybe five to ten yards past the stump. The result is a twenty yard cast, with lure in the target area for only a few yards.

With a flipp'n technique, you

can concentrate your cast directly on the target, resulting in lots more casts, with the lure spending lots more time in a produc-

One the major misconceptions about flipp'n is the types of lures that can be used. As I said earlier, most anglers consider the jig and pig to be the only acceptable lure. Nothing could be farther from the

As a matter of fact, one of the best producing summertime flipp'n lures is probably the least likely — the spinnerbait. A shortbase of a tree, or stump, will draw more than it's share of rodbending strikes.

Plastic worms are another excellent choice for summertime flipp'n. Personally I prefer to use a larger size than I might if I were fishing a worm in a more traditional manner. Big bass do like big baits and they just can't seem to resist a fat eight inch plastic worm when it is flipped in front of their nose. I have also found that worms with large paddle or

"hook" tails, which create extra vibration, will add a quality to the lure which bass seem to like. I know I've said it before, but I can't emphasize it enough, that you need to practice your flipp'n technique at home, in the yard, to help you master it before going out on the water. Otherwise, you'll probably give up the technique before giving it a fair chance So when the action slows this summer, don't pack up the rods. arm spinnerbait, when flipped to try flipp'n for those summer bass.

Booklets, forms are in the mail

AUSTIN - Persons who applied for public hunts on Texas Parks and Wildlife Department Type I wildlife management areas (WMAs) last year will automatically receive Type I "Hunting Opportunities" booklets and hunt application forms in the mail.

Officials said the booklets will be sent to all those whose address appeared on the 1989-90 Type I hunt application cards, whether the hunter was actually selected for a hunt or not. They will be mailed this month, officials said.

Persons who did not apply for hunts last season can obtain the booklet by writing the department at 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, TX 78744. or by calling toll-free 1-800-792-1112. The booklet also will be available at department field offices beginning Aug. 1. Participants in the Type I

WMA hunts for big game species such as white-tailed deer are selected by public drawing. Hunts for other species are offered on a regular permit or permission by registration basis, neither of which require registration in advance

Type II hunting down last season

AUSTIN - Participation in the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Type II public hunting lands program declined slightly in 1989-90, but officials said it provided low-cost hunting and outdoor recreation to a large number of Texans.

The department sold approximately 31,000 of the $35 Type II hunting permits for the 1989-90 hunting season. Holders of the permits had access to 727,825 acres of land leased by the department, including newly-added acreages in North Texas and the Panhandle Almost 159,000 hunter-days of recreation were provided by Type II, with an additional 48,000 days of nonconsumptive use. A $10 Limited Use Permit was available for persons who wished to visit the areas but not hunt.

Hunting course required for some

AUSTIN — Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials remind hunters that effective Sept. 1, persons born during the period of Sept. 2, 1971 through Aug. 31, 1974 must have completed a certified hunter education course to hunt legally in "Time is running out for folks who need the course to complete one before hunting seasons begin," Erwin said. He said prospective students should call or write the TPWD, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, TX 78744, (512) 389-4999, or toll-free in Texas, 1-800-792-1112.

1990 Property Tax Rates in Forsan City

This notice concerns _ 1990 property tax rates for Forsan City . It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Getting past life's little rules

By CHRISTINA FERCHALK

My eye doctor prescribed reading glasses. His assistant went with me to choose the frames.

I knew exactly what I was looking for. I wanted glasses like Sophia Loren's, ones with tinted lenses and frames that covered half my face. I wanted shiny stems and little gold initials. The assistant asked how much I planned to spend. Apparently, Ms. Loren doesn't have to limit herself to the budget frames.

I had to make some concessions but I managed to find frames that suited my style. Unlike the prissylooking ones suggested by the assistant, these frames had character. I could tell by their feel that these frames wouldn't mind if I chewed on the stems and they wouldn't allow the lenses to steam up when I was heavily into a Harold Robbins novel. These were the frames for me.

The assistant said I couldn't have them, "Why not?" I asked. "They're in my price range."

"But my dear," she said. "These are male glasses."

Call me stupid, but until that moment, I didn't know glasses had sex organs. I asked how she could tell the males from the females. She told me the males have double bridges.

"Oh, I see," I said. "Well I guess that's easier than checking under their tails."

She wasn't amused.

I explained I wasn't all that feminine. Years of wearing fussy little maternity tops had cured me of any and all affection for the buttons-and-bows routine. I wanted the male glasses. She told me to choose from the females.

"Look," I said. "Can't we just pretend I'm a guy? It shouldn't be all that difficult. My breasts are practically non-existent and I had myself spayed years ago. If I wore my hair under a baseball cap and went without make-up, I could pass."

It was no use. I could tell by the look in her eyes I was about to be stonewalled. I was up against a true believer of the Idiot Rules.

I've been fighting these rules since the day I was born. I would rather have had a blue receiving blanket, but being a girl baby, I had to settle for pink. It was one of the Idiot Rules.

When I was 7, I wanted a bike just like the kid next door. But it was a boy's bike and off-limits to me. There was no fighting the Idiot Rule.

Girls ride girls' bikes; boys ride boys' bikes. The only purpose for the bar on a boy's bike is as an object of torture. Little boys even have a very fitting name for that bar. I can't tell you what it is because it's unprintable. But just ask any 9-year-old boy who walks funny; he'll tell you.

When I was a teenager, I couldn't buy the Madras jacket in the store window because it was a man's. Somewhere, it is written that men's jackets, shirts and jeans have to zipper, button and snap on the opposite side of women's. No one knows why. It's just one of those Idiot Rules.

The world is crammed with illogical un-allowables. I know women who wouldn't think twice about applying for a job as a construction worker, but wouldn't be caught dead wearing white pumps after Labor Day.

Who is responsible for the Idiot Rules? Someone lost a lot of sleep thinking up restrictions to needlessly complicate our lives. But what's even more important is why we are willing to abide by those restrictions. There is no Idiot Rules Gestapo to keep us in line. Someday there will come a generation of people who dress their babies in any color they choose, eliminate the painful bars from little boys' bicycles and dare to wear seersucker before Memorial Day.

But until then, there will be people like myself. I picked pair of prissy-looking frames. But, for what it's worth, I flatly refused to accept the floral designed carrying case and demanded a plain black one instead. If you're going to break the rules, you have to start somewhere.

Fashion can pass a dress code

Big Spring schools have revised the dress code: For the first time, junior high and high school students in Big Spring will be allowed to wear shorts to school.

The dress and grooming rules, according to the new school handbook, apply to all school functions.

The highest hemline allowed for dresses and skirts, as well as shorts, is approximately three inches from the top of the knee, the code states.

Other stipulations in the new code are:

Form-fitting pants, such as the new spandex "biker" pants, are not allowed.
When wearing spandex pants underneath another garment, the outer garment should be the one measured for length.

Most of the dress code remains the same. School officials said they think Big Spring students are ready for the opportunity to wear shorts to school, and have confidence that they will wear approrpriate clothing.

Students in violation of the policy will be subject to disciplinary action, to be determined by the administration, the code states.

Big Spring High School students model clothing that meets the new dress code requirements. Abel Hilario, top left, demonstrates that shorts of the right length can be stylish. D.J. Tedesco wears a pair of shorts that are too short to be appropriate for school. Both guys were outfitted by Gentleman's Corner.

Tasha Gilstrap, upper left photo, models an appropriate outfit for back-to-school. Her knee-length shorts are worn over black lace-trimmed leggings. Next to her, Alma Ontiveros wears a pair of shorts that are not appropriate for school wear. Both outfits are from Connie's.

Ashley McCann, lower left photo, models a split skirt that is appropriate for school wear. Beside her Reagan McCann is wearing spandex biker pants under a miniskirt too short to be appropriate. When leggings or spandex pants are worn under a skirt or shorts, the top layer must be no more than three inches above the knee. Both outfits are from Connie's.

Wheeler-Caylor

Mary Lynn Wheeler and Justin Kyle Caylor, both of San Angelo, exchanged wedding vows July 21, 1990 at a 7 p.m. ceremony at the Cactus Hotel, San Angelo, with the Rev. Larry Altman, pastor of St. Luke's United Methodist Church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Allen Wheeler, Stanton. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Dona Belle Wheeler, Midland; the late Stanley Wheeler, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Reid McNott. Her great-grandmother is the late Ela Neill.

Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Grosshans, Lindenwold, N.J.; and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Caylor, Lohn.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with three Roman columns, three four-branch candelabras entwined with Boston fern, large leaf ivy, white gladiolus, silk gray rosebuds and silver bells. Gossamer fabric draped from the celing to the floor was held together by a dusty rose satin bow. A unity candle and two candles completed the setting. Pew bows consisted of silver streamers centered with silk dusty roses, silver bells and silver rosebuds.

Music was provided by the hotel, using original artists.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a designer gown of white silky taffeta with a shoulderwide portrait neckline, fashioned with beaded pearls and sequins. The fitted sleeves tapered to petal points over her wrists. The basque bodice was fashioned of beaded lace and pearls. At the back, a candybox bow accented the hipline. The circular ballgown skirt swept into a cathedral-length train. Alencon lace appliques decorated the front of the floor-length skirt and were scattered over the back of the train. Scalloped schiffli lace finished the hemline of the gown and

Her headdress consisted of a large flowers with petals of iridescent sequins and strings of pearls on the side of a nee headpiece with a sheer illusion pouf on the back. The double-tiered, floor-length veil of tulle was attached to a crown of pearls.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white floral lace streamers accented with white stephanotis, Queen Anne's lace, white silk rosebuds, Boston fern and dusty rose mother-of-pearl beads.

Positive attitude and your health having a negative attitude about life isn't healthy, and many experts agree. But what effect, if any, does a positive attitude have on health? According to Mature Outlook magazine, the idea that the mind can heal the body isn't new. The current wave of interest began about 10 years ago, when "Anatomy of an Illness" (Norton) by Norman Cousins was published. He claimed humor helped him to overcome a serious illness

And the results of a multitude of scientific studies make the mindbody healing concept appear plausible. But the evidence hasn't convinced everyone. Critics voice

(AP) - Many people believe that concern about how much effect a positive outlook has on a person's health. They also fear health professionals espousing this theory may be promising too much.

> Medical evidence clearly indicates the mind can influence certain body functions. Blood pressure is a prime example.

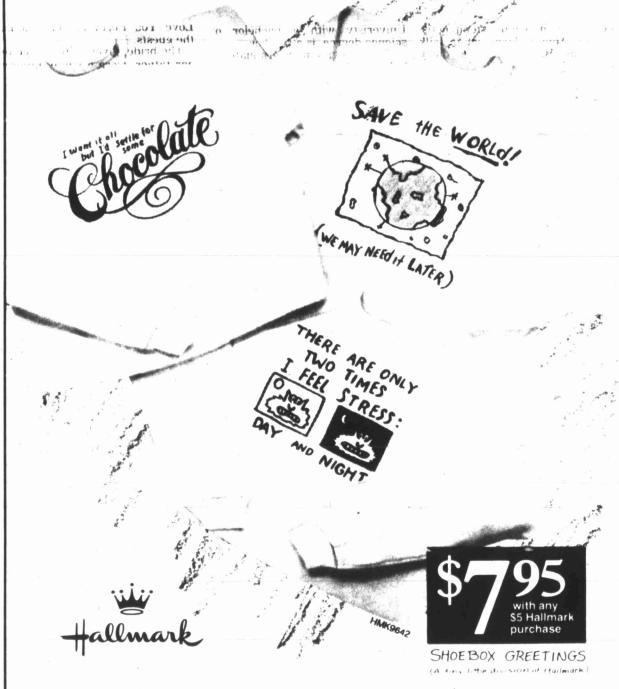

Researchers at the Mind-Body Institute at New England Deaconess Hospital and Harvard Medical School in Boston taught patients with mild to moderate high blood pressure to bring on the "relaxation response," the op-posite of the "fight or flight response.

By eliciting the relaxation response, these people significantly reduced their blood pressure, according to Dr. Herbert Benson, president of the institute. The mind can trigger profound physiological changes, Benson explains. The relaxation response causes a person's heart rate and metabolism to slow and muscle tension to decrease.

Several similar studies confirmed the results and that prompted the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute to accept relaxation therapy as one of the nonpharmacologic treatment options for combating mild to moderate hypertension

The daughter of a local woman has just finished writing a book and is scheduled to take it on a 10-city promotion tour this fall.

Janet Hogan Larkey, Pittsburgh, Pa., daughter of Dixie Hogan, has put together her ideas for a self-help guide on "How to Flatter Your Figure," to be published by Prentiss-Hall, New York City

Several years ago, Janet began giving lectures on color analysis to women's groups and at conventions, says Dixie. Later she developed a pamphlet - complete with her own illustrations on choosing clothes to flatter the figure, and offered lectures on the subject. Prentiss-Hall saw the pamphlet and commissioned her to expand it into a full book.

By DON RICHARDSON County Extension Agent

Thanks to the recent rains experienced inmost areas of thecounty, prospects for a better cotton crop than earlier predicted is expected — but, insects and weeds are now a problem for the farmers

- and what to do about them is a big question on most of their minds

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will conduct a Summer '90 Cotton Field Day Thursday at the Knott Co-op Gin at 9 a.m.

Scheduled on the program will be updates on the insect and weed problems, chemical uses and safety, and information on the new pesticide laws regulations. To help discuss these problems and concerns will be Charles Stickler, Extension agronomist, Ft. Stockton; Victor Lucero, entomologist for Howard, Midland and Martin counties; and local Extension agents. Producers attending this proagent gram will be given the opportunity to obtain two Continuing Educational Unit Credits applicable to the new pesticide laws requiring such credits to maintain certification. Fifteen such credits must be earned by producers within the next five years or they face new testing and certification procedures. Those producers that were tested this past week may receive credit providing they have sent their testing certification in to the Texas Department of Agriculture in Austin prior to the field day. The local Extension office has conducted four training programs in recent months, and more than 150 county producers have taken advantage of this training and have been certified. TDA officials have warned producers that there will be spot checks across the area this fall and fines enforced to those in violation of the pesticide laws.

These certification programs enable producers to purchase and apply restricted-use chemicals through hired or contract labor in a supervisory role. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is the only agency authorized to perform such testing programs.

Unless a demand is felt justified to arrange another such training program, none are scheduled in the area until at least next spring. There will be several opportunities in the county to receive CEU's, however, coming up in the near future. Please watch producer newsletters from our office and this column for notification of such opportunities

If marriage begins with baby, will it last?

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't believe my eyes when I read your answer to "To Marry or Not." I thought you were more sensible than that.

Here was this 25-year-old, unmarried pregnant woman due to deliver in a few months. Her parents were pressuring her to marry her live-in boyfriend before the baby was born. She and her boyfriend had both come out of failed marriages and didn't want to rush into marriage again, even though they were sure of their love, so you advised them to get married. Your advice is very oldfashioned.

Come on, Abby, this is the '90s, and a baby on the way is not a good enough reason to get married. There's no disgrace in being a single parent today. Get real, Abby. — DISAPPOINTED IN YOU

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw all the mail objecting to my answer. "To Marry or Not" said she and her boyfriend were already living together, they loved each other and the baby was due "soon," but she didn't think a baby was a good enough reason to get married. Well, I thought it was. If they're going to try to make their marriage work, they'll probably try harder if they have a legal as well as a moral commitment. Readers? Isn't there anybody on visiting a dear friend who is now in a convalescent home. Her husband asked me if I would go through her things and discard some of them. (She clipped everything she thought was worth saving.)

I don't know how long you've been writing, but this Dear Abby letter was printed in the Honolulu Star Bulletin in 1966. I think it's worth repeating. — MRS. F.W. FOX, LAKEWOOD, CALIF.

DEAR MRS. FOX: I began my column on Jan. 9, 1956, and here's the letter you thought was worth repeating. So do I:

DEAR ABBY: In the winter of '58 you had something in your column about children from broken homes, "thrown to the winds to grow like weeds," but who managed to do more with their lives than some children of today who have all the advantages. There was so much truth in it that our minister read it from the pulpit and built his sermon around it. Would you please do your readers a favor and repeat it? - FAITHFUL ABBY

DEAR FAN: Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: In my lifetime I have seen children from broken homes thrown to the winds to grow like weeds, with no supervision, no upbringing and none of the advantages. Still they managed to make something of themselves

My husband was a man like that. Our son was given all the advantages his father never had — given all the love and attention and material things a child could ask for, yet he turned out so bad that I am ashamed to claim him as our son. Why, Abby, why? BROKENHEARTED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your son was denied the very things that make a man out of a boy: hard work, selfdiscipline and the satisfaction of making it on his own. The biggest favor parents can do their children is to let them struggle a little.

DEAR READERS: Guess who said, "Life is not a matter of holding good cards but of playing a poor hand well"?

Charles Goren? Alfred Scheinwold? No! Robert Louis Stevenson.

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Joe Cooper: The life of a circus booking agent

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Joe Cooper grew up in Childress, and took a winding route through an interesting 20 years or so and now lives at Hugo, Oklahoma. Joe has been a radio executive and truck driver. He now is a circus booking agent, which is how he got to Hugo.

Hugo, about 25 five miles north of Paris, is the circus city of the southwest. It is the winter quarters for three circuses. Joe works for the biggest of the three, Carson and Barnes, the largest wild animal circus and the only five-ring circus traveling in America today.

Cooper lives in a house behind the circus office in Hugo. He calls it a haven for weary circus booking agents. He named the place the Boar's Nest. When somebody knocks on his door by mistake, he invites them in and sometimes even cooks them a meal if they look hungry enough.

Joe has worked with the circus for about half a dozen years now. He was first an advance man, doTumbleweed Smith

ing the publicity before the circus got to town. Then he realized he could make better money by book-

Joe has learned circus lingo. He knows that the pie car is a place where circus folks can go for coffee and snacks. The pie car is quite different from the dining tent. Joe carries his own pie car in the front seat with him when he travels. It's a basket filled with peanut butter, crackers, rat cheese, Fritos and fried pies. "Some of the towns I visit don't even have a grocery store," says Joe.

He's good at his work. He is every bit at home behind a podium speaking to a large group as he is carrying on a conversation with all the bases. And he notices things.

He noticed that several of the circus folks had little extra jobs that paid them extra money. The second jobs were circus related. For instance, one performer had a snake show, another one parked cars for circus personnel and got good tips. Another had a train concession

One time Joe was in a town looking over the site for the circus. It was a vacant lot with a dried-up look to it. But there was one big area where the grass was healthy and green. Joe's curiosity got the best of him. He asked the circus sponsor who was with him, "Why is that grass yonder greener than the rest of the lot?" His companion replied, "That's where the elephants were. It greens up real nice every year after the circus just one person. In his dealings found a way to make extra money with service clubs and other groups using a circus product. Since there which sponsor the circus, he covers are so many folks in America who like to grow things, he figured, they oughta know that elephant manure would help them quite a lot.

Back at Boar's Nest, Joe gave the situation some thought. He and another agent formed what is called The Great Oklahoma Caca Company. They put their product in a No. 2 can and sell it as a gift item. They call their product "Old Number Two." They put up New Crop Number Two in the fall. It's fresh then. The "Old Number Two" is pretty dry

They sell other things in conjunction with the elephant stuff. They have a T-shirt with the company's logo on it and the slogan, "Things Grow Better With Caca.

Joe says he's afraid the Coke folks in Atlanta might lawsuit him over that. "But I want to say right here and now and make it very clear that we have no intention of going into the soft drink business,' Joe put two and two together and says Joe. "But Caca Cola does thought to himself that he had just have a nice ring to it.

There are choices when it comes to drinking water

(AP) — The cracked cup that held his daily ration of water during World War II accompanied novelist Somerset Maugham on his travels. He kept the cup as a reminder that the best things in life are the simplest — and the least appreciated.

Today, water is no longer simple or unappreciated. As regulations tighten, more people are learning to pay better attention to drinking water. That attention starts with checking the safety of water supplies.

For water that proves to be less than perfect, Better Homes and Gardens magazine reports the taste and budget.

Help your child acquire language skills describe the objects or things they By NAOMI HUNT

County Extension Agent

Oral language skills are important predecessors to reading and writing. How parents talk to their children about the experiences the child has influences the amount and kind of knowledge the child will gain form the experience.

When children begin to read, they draw upon the experiences they have had and the knowledge they gained from those experiences. Parents can aid their children in acquiring literacy skills in a number of ways:

• Talk about the things in which children are interested.

 Patiently answer their questions in ways they can understand. • Encourage children to develop their interests and talk about them.

 Do things together and talk about your activities: going to the store, visiting the museum or the zoo; attending amovie, a concert, or church together; watching television and talking about what is happening; checking out books at the library and discussing how many different books there are; participating in or watching sporting events; and engaging in hobbies together.

 Allow children to direct the conversation; don't tell them they are stupid or what they're saying is ed instructor, is a set of skills that helps people establish rapport and influence others by unlocking the door to unconscious information that influences human behavior. Developed in the late 1970s by computer programmer Richard Bandler and linguist John Grinder, NLP can help lawyers interview witnesses and pick friendly jurors, sales people to market more merchandise and married people to communicate with inattentive spouses

"NLP will teach you how to establish rapport," says Gantt, who teaches NLP at the Coastal Georgia Center. "By watching eye posture, by listening to the predicates people use, you will understand how they experience the world and then you can match their world. You also want to listen to their voice qualities. Are they speaking fast or slow, high pitched

The founders based the NLP system on extensive studies of people who were good at helping others make changes in their lives. The people they studied had one thing in common: all were good at establishing rapport with others.

"Once you gain rapport at the conscious and unconscious level, people begin to believe you understand their problem," says Gantt, a Savannah businesswoman.

She says Don Juan became an unwitting practitioner of NLP when he asked his lady friends to tell him about their first love experiences.

"As they did that he would look unconscious. The Coastal Georgia Center, operated jointly by Armstrong State College and Savannah State College, offers nearly 80 non-credit courses ranging from cake decorating to elementary Russian.

Gantt, who teaches NLP classes for sales people and attorneys, says the key is in unlocking the door to unconscious programming that triggers anger, fear, sadness and other emotions

We make our decisions based on emotions, and that is the unconscious," she says. "We validate those decisions with logic, which is the conscious.

Sleep apnea

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER For AP Newsfeatures

Two new therapies show success in treating obstructive sleep apnea, in which a temporary blockage of breathing occurs while a person

"During sleep, the muscles in the back of the throat may relax and block intake of air," explained Dr. David M. Rapoport, medical director of the Bellevue-NYU Medical Center Sleep Laboratory. A person cannot breathe for 10 to 60 seconds, begins to choke and wakes up briefly

A person with sleep apnea may have as many as 1,000 such episodes each night. People who do not have breathing problems while awake may experience interrupted breathing during sleep.

The condition is fairly common. more so among men than women and increasingly with age. The main risk factor is marked obesity.

Unexplained sleepiness, severe snoring or disturbed sleep may be symptoms of sleep apnea and may require evaluation, Rapoport said. Under ordinary circumstances it is not normal for a person to be sleepy during the day

One treatment technique for obstructive sleep apnea, continuous positive airway pressure, involves wearing a mask that blows a stream of pressurized air into the nose to keep air breathing passages open.

Theother uvulopalatopharyngoplasty, involves the surgical removal of excess tissue from the back of the throat. Also excised is the uvula, the flap of tissue that hangs down in the back of the throat.

Typically, people with sleep apnea are unaware of the condition, and their bed partners notice the characteristic loud snoring of sleep apnea. The noise often robs partners of sleep, Rapoport

An important symptom of sleep apnea is sleepiness during the day, causing the person to doze off periodically. This not only affects job and personal life, but may be dangerous if the person drives.

Sleep apnea is thought to promete high blood pressure and may be particularly hazardous to those at high risk for heart attack or Obstructive sleep apnea can be suspected by a tape recording made while a person sleeps. Snoring associated with sleep apnea has a distinctive sound.

When attempting to treat obstructive sleep apnea, a physician first looks for an obvious cause, such as a receding chin or big tongue, Rapoport said. Swollen tonsils or adenoids are often the cause of sleep apnea in children, and can be surgically removed. When hay fever or some other allergy is a factor, treating it may improve sleep apnea

For snoring or mild sleep apnea, preventive measures include not sleeping on one's back, which can make apnea worse Some patients have sewn a tennis ball into the back of the pajama shirt to deter them from rolling onto their backs," he said.

In addition to treatment, he recommended that people with apnea not use sedatives, such as alcohol or sleeping pills, which may aggravate mild cases and be life-threatening in severe ones. Smoking should be shunned because it may cause swelling of the throat and nasal passages.

Monahans sandhills stunning part of West Texas landscape

By DEAN SUELTENFUSS The Odessa American

MONAHANS SANDHILLS STATE PARK (AP) — There are no palm trees here. No camels,

But tourists who visit this 4,000-acre state park and its giant sand dunes might believe they've driven into the middle of the Sahara Desert

Constantly shifting mountains of sand tower up to 100 feet, dwarfing those who walk among the hills and making each step difficult.

The odd shapes and silhouettes formed by the dunes look like scenes from a foreign landscape.

Weird markings run across the sand, signs of recent visits by lizards, bugs, birds and small rodents.

The dunes are home to forests of miniature oak trees, measuring only 3 feet high and bearing huge acorns. Hundreds of species of plants and animals, some of which are found in few other places, live among the hills.

Surprisingly, the dunes hide fresh water just below their

Travelers once relied on the which stretch 70 miles from south of Monahans northward into the southeastern corner of New Mexico — as a source of drink ing water.

In some areas, the dunes have been stabilized by permanent vegetation, but bare dunes are subject to constant metamorphosis at the hands of the wind.

Many stories are told in weathered artifacts extracted from the dunes by ever-present winds that both uncover and hide with the same gust.

Ancient arrowheads and pottery, dilapidated Army equipment from the mid-1800s, objects from an old wagon train rumored to have been attacked by Comanches in the 1870s — all these things have been found among the sand hills and can be seen at the park's museum.

The Indian relics displayed at the museum are among the few reminders that man has lived among the dunes for 12,000 years.

The hills were used by Indians as a source of water and game. Food such as mesquite beans and acorns also were gathered in the hills.

A century ago U.S. Army explorers traveled through the area and expressed surprise at finding an abundant water supply within

One of the first records of the dunes comes from Capt. Randolph B. Marcy, who was leading an Army expedition across the West the Texas and Pacific Railroad in Texas desert in September 1848, searching for a new route east after escorting a party of gold seekers to Santa Fe.

On Sept. 22, Marcy spotted the sand hills to the east. The next day he sent a party ahead to explore the hills, and a few days later, the entire expedition entered the dunes.

In his journal, Marcy wrote about finding water among the

"In the following up the trail from our road into the midst of this ocean of sand," he wrote, "we suddenly came upon several large, deep pools of clear water — the very last place on earth where one would ever think of looking for it.

"We are told by our guide that water can always be found here in campments, the sand hills are the (driest) season, and judging home to a variety of plants and from the rushes and other water animals plants growing in the ponds, I have no doubt that such is the case.

Other visitors to the dunes have not met with so pleasant a fate. Forty wagons returning east from Fort Yuma, Ariz., were attacked by Indians in the sand hills, and the travelers were killed

Or so the story goes. No one knows for certain where the wagon train was from or exactly what happened to it.

The charred remains of the wagons were found in 1901 near Willow Springs, north of the area now covered by the park.

Although some of the items found at the site ended up in museums, including the park museum, many of the objects were taken by curious visitors

An important event in the history of the sand hills was the arrival of be seen regularly. the 1880s. Monahans was selected as a water stop between the Pecos River and Big Spring, and the dunes became more accessible once rails were laid through them.

Evidence of the railroad is quite visible in the park today. A house built by the railroad in 1903 was refurbished and now serves as the park's concession building.

Since the park opened in 1957, people have flocked to it to spend a few hours in the sun, slide down a dune or two and then head for home or continue their vacations.

But for the nature lover or history buff, the park is more than just a giant sandbox

In addition to being the site of historic expeditions and Indian en-

"The state park itself is a game preserve,'' park Superintendent Dan Olivas said. "We protect everything from deer to rattlesnakes

According to an exhibit in the park's museum, the sand hills support many animals, including some that one might not expect to find among the dunes.

Bobcats, mule deer, striped skunks and covotes are a few of the animals that make their homes in

A field checklist available at the park lists more than 90 species of birds that can be seen at various times of the year. Although birds such as the golden eagle and the sandhill crane are found in the park only rarely, others, such as the scissor-tailed flycatcher, can

Edith Grissom, who worked at the park from 1965 to 1984 and still volunteers there, said many people come to the park to observe wildlife.

Grissom said she has seen many kinds of wild animals, but one of her favorite pastimes involves morning treks into the dunes to observe tracks made by animals the previous night.

'It is just so interesting to see those tracks and try and figure out what made them," she said.

Olivas said plants and animals are able to live undisturbed in most of the park.

'We've got here a little under 4,000 acres," he said. "A small percentage is developed. So, yes, there is space for wildlife."

Over 700 sandwiches sold during a 3-day sale.

Monetary picture off-center

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — In the best of times, developing Federal Reserve policy is something like fitting together a jigsaw puzzle on a lurching train.

No matter how impossible it might seem to be, the goal is to interrelate the parts. For the Fed that means coordinating its concern about inflation, the dollar, the trade deficit, stocks, bonds, federal budget problems

Tough job, you might agree. And you probably won't disagree that it is now an almost impossible task because a passenger with aggressive elbows has taken the next seat and refuses to move. His name is Saddam Hussein.

The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, and the oil crisis it precipitated, presents the Fed with a dilemma that tops most of those thrown at it:

Higher oil prices could worsen inflation. They also could cause recession. The Fed's usual antitdote for inflation is to tighten up on the money supply. Its antidote for recession is the opposite, to loosen the supply.

If it tightens, therefore, it could be blamed for recession, and if it lightens it could be accused of allowing inflation. And if it does nothing it most certainly will be criticized for not doing something.

But doing something will be difficult. The Fed might not be able to fit the oil predicament into the jigsaw picture. For one thing, history demonstrates that the Fed's power against imported inflation is decidedly limited.

g

During the oil crisis of 1973. for example, it pursued a tighter money policy, but critics say it only hurt the economy because inflation was of the imported variety rather than of domestic origin:

That is, say the critics, 1970s inflation didn't come so much from an excess of demand over supply, called demand-pull inflation, as from high oil costs forcing up the prices of goods. That's cost-push inflation.

What ensued in the 1970s was an economic nightmare of double-digit inflation and double-digit interest rates. Rising interest rates hardly restrained price increases: many theorists say they added to higher prices.

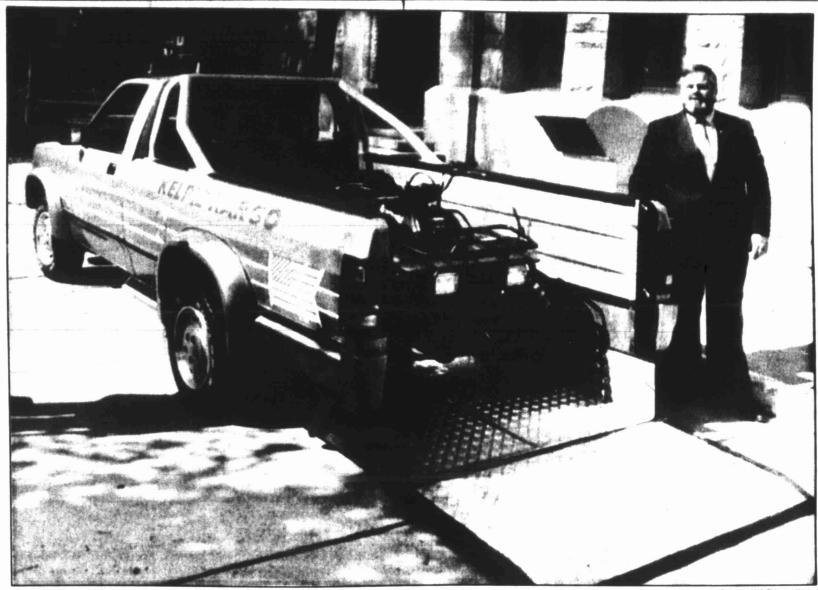

Some critics maintain that the economic disaster of the 1970s has much to do with today's federal budget deficits, weakened productivity increases and low savings rates Those who saved in the 1970s lost money to inflation. Today, economists seem to believe that demand for goods and services is not beyond the economy's ability to provide them. They feel that Fed policy has inflation in check; some, of course, believe a recession is on the way

But if the oil mess isn't cleared up quickly, higher prices also are on the way. Do you lower interest rates to avert recession or do you raise them in an attempt, however futile it might be, to thwart inflation?

These decisions, of course, have other and vast consequences

Higher or lower rates also could have an impact on the dollar's value in international trade, encouraging or discouraging imports and exports and perhaps worsening the trade deficit.

Cost of bailout on rise

By DAVE SKIDMORE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Bankrupt savings and loans under government management effectively added $1.35 billion to the cost of the thrift bailout in the first three months of Operating losses at the 350 failed, but still open, institutions rose 35 percent from the $1 billion in operating red ink a year earlier, when the S&Ls were still managed privately, the Resolution Trust Corp. said Thursday.

However, the operating losses were down 16 percent from $1.61 billion in the last three months of 1989, the bailout agency said.

Analysts said the operating loss increase from the first quarter of 1989 does not necessarily mean the insolvent thrifts are being managed poorly by the government.

'It may indicate the institutions are worse run or it may just indicate they've had another year to deteriorate. ... Also, interest rates have shifted," making it more difficult to earn profits, said Martin Regalia, an economist with the National Council of Savings Institutions.

The figures, however, underscore the need to close the thrifts quickly, even when it must keep and warehouse the S&Ls' inherited real estate, sour loans and other assets, Regalia said.

The RTC noted that $443 million of the $1.35 million operating loss occurred in 155 institutions that in the following quarter were either closed or sold to new investors.

'Keeping these institutions open doesn't seem to help them,' Regalia said. "It would be nice if you could say we closed them all down ... but that's what the RTC is trying to do.'

The agency announced plans recently to close or sell 130 more failed thrifts in the second half of 1990. But unless Congress provides more bailout funds as requested by the Bush administration, the RTC would have to drastically slow its operations after September and fall short of the goal.

At the same time, additional S&Ls are failing — 66 since March 31. In the next two years, the agency could end up taking over 230 to

Pickens: Companies' greed causing gas price increases

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Major oil companies are taking advantage of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait to raise gasoline prices for American motorists before the increases are justified, contends Texas oil billionaire T. Boone Pickens.

"I think what you're seeing is greed has set in by some of the major oil companies," Pickens said Tuesday during a visit to Indianapolis. "They are running the price up because there's no way that you could raise the price of gasoline based on the price of crude oil that they paid that went through the refinery that got you the gasoline.

"So I think they've been a little bit quick to draw on this one," he said at a fund-raiser for 6th District U.S. Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind.

Gasoline prices have risen by as much as 19 cents a gallon since the Iraq invasion. Pickens said he believes prices are reaching a 10 cents to 20 cents a gallon more if Iraq is allowed to force up the price of crude oil.

With control of Kuwait's oil industry, Iraq now commands about 20 percent of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' production capacity, said Pickens.

"I think what will happen is you'll have a new price for crude oil, and the Iragis will try to press the price up," he said. "I think you're going to see crude oil prices fluctuate, but you'll see the trend continually up.

Although consumers might be upset, rising prices could produce a good side effect, Pickens said.

"Increased prices cut down on consumption, and that's not bad because we should use less gasoline and crude oil in this country," he said.

Pickens, chairman and president of the Mesa Limited Partnership that deals primarily in natural gas, also said he doesn't think the current situation justifies using the United States' strategic oil

"I cannot believe we would dip in reserves to control the price of gasoline. That isn't what the reserves are for," he said.

"I think those reserves are for an emergency and we're not having an emergency," he said. "It may feel like it if you're filling up your car with gas this afternoon, but there's no emergency right now."

About 65 people attended the fund-raiser for Burton, paying $250 per person for lunch or $1,000 per person for lunch and a private session where Pickens autographed plateau now, but could go up from copies, of his autobiography,

The money will go toward Burton's campaign to win a fifth term. He is opposed by Democrat James

While in Indianapolis, Pickens also renewed his complaints about his treatment by a Japanese company in which his Boone Co. owns a 26 percent share.

Pickens said he and other American shareholders were treated rudely at the June 28 shareholders' meeting of Koito Manufacturing, an auto parts maker. Pickens left the meeting in disgust after he was refused a seat on the company's board.

Pickens told the luncheon meeting that the Japanese "have had access to buy every damn thing in America" but they recoil when an American investor attempts to get involved in the management of one of their companies. He predicted Congress will eventually pass legislation seeking reciprocity in business relationships involving Americans and the Japanese.

"All we ask for is the same access we give the Japanese," he said. "We need to have the same access. They keep throwing up to me cultural differences and stuff like that. That's a bunch of baloney.

"They are very quick to accept our society and to take advantage of everything they can here, buying all the way from the Rockefeller Plaza to Columbia Pictures, but they won't even let us serve on the board of a Japanese company.'

Pickens called on Toyota Motor Corp., which owns 19 percent of Koito, to dismiss Koito President Takao Matsuura, saying Matsuura had hurt the company's image by failing to control the hostility toward Americans at the recent board meeting.

However, a Toyota spokesman said as a minority stockholder in Koito, Toyota doesn't have the authority to fire Matsuura.

"This is really not a matter for us," said Jim Olson, vice president for external affairs at Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A. in California. "This is between him and Koito. We are not going to be dragged kicking and screaming into it by Mr. Pickens.

Promotions to move out summer merchandise and good weather boosted business at some big store chains in July.

But modest industrywide sales growth failed to impress analysts who predict possibly tighter times in retailing for the rest of the year. Industry analysts said Thursday there was a continuation last month of a gradual slowdown in consumer spending.

An index of 17 leading chains compiled by Merrill Lynch & Co. indicated that sales at stores open at least a year rose 5.7 percent in July from a year earlier, little different from June's 5.8 percent year-to-year gain.

Invasion

The military's reliance on ground troops will have to shift to an ability to deploy troops and equipment rapidly, he said. Many defense programs in Texans would fit the bill, he said, including Bell's V-22 Osprey tilt-rotor, LTV's C-17 transport plane and General Dynamics' F-16 fighter.

Hatchett said he doubts lawmakers will undo previous budget cuts, but said they will be more careful about making future

"I think the Congress probably understands now that even though the Cold War is over that the potential for regional conflicts is very high and that they may have to rethink some of their defense cuts," said economist Harold Gross, associate director for the Center for Economic Development and Research at the University of

"How that rethinking will affect the defense industry in Texas is anybody's guess," he said Thursday. "We may not like some of the decisions they come up with. They're not going to make the simple, straightforward decision of restoring programs that have been

Some programs geared towards superpower conflict, such as the Strategic Defense Initiative, could suffer as well as LTV's work on the stealth bomber, Gross said.

Although the Middle East crisis may give the perception of boosting the defense industry, Gross said it could hurt the U.S. economy in the long run.

If oil prices continue to hover in the $25 $26 per-barrel range, Gross said, "the overall economic picture will probably worsen." That will place even more pressure on Congress to deliver a lean budget.

"The budgetary pressures aren't going to go away. They are going to intensify," he said.

Defense contractors declined, for the most part, to speculate on how Iraq's invasion would boost the industry. "We have no control over that," said General Dynamics spokesman Joe Thornton. "The equation is not whole. There are too many unanswered questions.

LTV Aircraft Product Group spokesman Lynn Farris and LTV Missiles Group spokesman Mike Drake declined comment.

Last week the House Armed Services Committee approved $403 million for the V-22 tilt-rotor and also approved provisions to research and purchase the V-22, which provides jobs to thousands in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

But the committee also cut funds to the B-2 stealth bomber, which also employs many Texans. Another part of the $283 billion defense bill reduced the number of F-16 fighter jets the military may buy in 1991 from 150 to 108.

Heller said Hammer's is the biggest of fewer than a dozen American companies devoted to making products from recycled plastic.

With 95 percent of America's 63 billion pounds of plastic used each year suitable for recycling, Robbins figures he has an unlimited supply of raw materials.

Both Hammer's and Plastic Lumber focus on items like picnic tables, park benches, mailbox posts and parking lot car stops.

Although plastic lumber costs more, Robbins says customers get more for their money, including durability and easy maintenance. His picnic table sells for $189 wholesale.

Pat Linehan, a buyer with the purchasing department for the city of Syracuse, N.Y., has placed nearly $2,000 in orders with Plastic Lumber, mostly for curb edgings for a police garage.

"I think the concept is a great idea, and I jumped right on it because I like to see the recycling effort," he said. Linehan said the real test for the curb edgings would be whether they withstand wear and tear from snow plows and

Setting empty milk jugs and soft drink bottles by the curb is becoming a way of life in communities around the country that want to ease the costs of landfills.

A survey by the Council for Solid Waste Solutions turned up plastic recycling programs in cities in 35 states that are collecting tons of material each month.

One of the largest programs is in California, where 2,100 recycling centers and 88 curbside programs are collecting clear plastic, such as soft drink bottles.

In January alone, more than six tons of clear plastic was collected in a pilot program in West Los Angeles. In September, the curbside program will be expanded to 95,000 households in Los Angeles.

Dow Chemical Co. uses plastic collected in Walnut Creek, Calif., at its research laboratory to find new uses for recycled plastic, said Doug Draper, spokesman for the company, based in Midland, Mich.

Collecting the material is one thing, finding uses for it is another, Draper said.

In a recycling project in Akron, Ohio, two tons of plastic has been collected and used by Dow to test equipment that mechanically sorts one type of plastic from another.

Plastic milk jugs now must be separated by hand from plastic soft drink bottles. Draper said Angeles, San Francisco and Portland, Ore.

By 1995, the company expects to collect 250 million pounds of polystyrene a year. That's about 25 percent of all polystyrene used in the country.

Dow spends about $35 million a year on recycling research.

... "The public expects recycling to take place. They're saying there is a shortage of landfill space and this is a way to conserve more resources," - Doug Draper, Dow Chemical Co. spokesman.

Dow's mechanical system uses a water bath and air streams to sort the plastics. For example, soft drink bottles can be parted in a water bath because they are heavier than other plastics, he

'We think it's the environmentally responsible thing to do. The public expects recycling to take place. They're saying there is a shortage of landfill space and this is a way to conserve more resources," Draper said.

"There is a potential to turn this into a profitable business at the same time.

The material is sold back to the Chicago Parks District at a reduced price and is used to rebuild 100 parks a year. By 1992, the city hopes to improve 300 of its 563 parks.

In 1989, 140,000 pounds of plastics, including soft drink, water and detergent bottles and milk jugs were collected.

In Naperville, Ill., recycling of plastics and other materials has trimmed the waste going into landfills by 30 percent. In March, nearly 90 tons of high-density polyethylene was recycled through curbside collection from 24,000 households and 13 drop-off

Generic drugs ideal for folks on fixed incomes

$taff Writer

Many people on a fixed income have trouble paying for the medicine they must take. Most doctors realize this, and offer their patients a choice when purchasing their medication.

'There are two blanks to sign, said Mark Dunn, pharmacist at Eckerd Drug. Doctors sign the prescription "dispense," or 'substitution permitted.

"There are those doctors who Neal's Pharmacy Incorporated. don't care. But, for the larger part, they sign it substitution permitted. They leave it up to the patient,' Dunn said

'Most doctors will allow you to substitute, but a few don't like generic and say don't substitute," said Bob Peercy, at Bob's

'We always ask the patient if them if there is generic available. With some drugs, generic is not available." Dunn explained. 'Generic is for older drugs, after the patent has expired. There are a lot now that there are no generics for." said Peercy "Patients can usually save 30 to 40 percent with generics. sometimes more, sometimes less. It just depends how expensive the drug is to make," Dunn says.

You can save as much as 75 percent. That will vary from drug to drug. Fifty percent as an overall average," said Ed Corson, at Leonard's Clinic Pharmacy.

"Prices for generic drugs vary from three dollars to fifty dollars, to sixty dollars. It depends on what it is," stated Neal Roberts, at Peercy said the five most common prescription drugs at his pharmacy are Zantach, Micro-K, Dilantin, Zarviset M 100, and Nichorett Chewing Gum.

Larry Miller, at Carver Drive-In Pharmacy, said his five most common prescription drugs are Zantach, Pagnet, Byzade, Vastoc, and Procardia.

Corson said his five most common prescription drugs are Procardia, Zantach, Dilantin, Vasotech, and Lanoxin.

"It's important for older people to discuss the cost and rely on the pharmacist for advice," Corson

Farah files for reorganization

EL PASO (AP) — Farah Inc. shareholders were meeting in El Paso to vote on control of the company as the owner seeks bankrupt cy protection.

Shareholders were set to vote at a 10 a.m. MDT meeting to decide who would control the company, Farah or the Farah Inc. board of

The bankruptcy petition shows Farah's debts to his largest unsecured creditors total $2.3 million. Creditors include his daughter and three sons who are owed thousands. His daughter, Haleen Farah Zwiefel, is owed the most at $724,947.

A list of assets was not included, but the petition said the assets were over a million dollars.

Farah's attorney, Larry Fields, said in a news release Thursday that the petition was filed to protect Terrace Hills Apartments. Fields said Farah has $3 million invested in the $8 million apartments.

'The 1986 change of tax law involving passive income caused a change in the way income properties such as the apartments are valued, and has caused a great financial hardship to owners of the properties and the institutions that financed them," Fields said in the news release

Fields also told The Associated Press that the plunging price of Farah Inc. stock is part of the reason his client filed the Chapter 11 petition. Fields said he has advised Farah not to comment on the petition.

Farah Inc. stock sold for as high as $29 per share in 1984. But the stock has plunged to as low as $2 since Farah and the board of directors have been battling for control of the company. Farah stock closed at $3.50 a share Thursday Farah, son of the founder of the 70-year-old company, owns 16 percent, or about 11 million shares, of Farah Inc.'s 6.3 million outstanding shares. He has been serving as a consultant and director for Farah Inc. since last year

Farah Inc. is known for its men's slacks that sell under the company name and the brand names of John Henry and Savane.

The company reported Tuesday that its apparel orders for the spring 1991 season are up from a year ago, but did not supply figures. The company said there also was an increase in sales this spring over last

Bryan's downtown heading uptown

Monroe is an urban guerrilla — in a refined sort of way.

A partner in a new downtown Bryan restaurant, Monroe is a California transplant who moved to Bryan a year ago and is making a name for himself by attacking the need for downtown renovation head-on.

"We intend to march up and down Main Street in Bryan developing properties until we have turned downtown into a chic, upscale commercial village,' Monroe asserted just before the recent opening of the Brazos Stock Exhange, an upscale dining spot at 222 Main St.

Bryan Mayor Marvin Tate would like to see Monroe do just that. "He's very enthusiastic and imaginative, and he's been able to put his money where his mouth is. Those are the kind of people we need to go to downtown Bryan and get things moving," Tate said. "I just hope that everything he's doing and all his creativity works." Monroe's concept is simple.

"I will buy a building that's historically and architecturally viable. I will then restore it and bring the building up to code for a commercial purpose," he explained. "All of this work is done with my capital.

Monroe said that frees him from having "any partners to answer to initially.

He then leases the building to a commercial tenant — in the Stock Exchange case, to Frank Fields, owner of the now-closed Frank's turkey, prawns or veal. Salads, stores that would make downtown eased enterprise. Doubting Thomases wonder if the Stock Exchange won't soon be another Brazos Grill, another renovated historic building that was made into a soup, salad and seafood restaurant in December but closed early this summer.

Asked if another new restaurant downtown isn't risky business, Monroe said simply, "It will work.

Part of the reason for that, he said, is a lower rental rate. He would not say what the Stock Exchange rate would be, but said lower rent reduces one of the greatest risks restaurateurs face high rents during slow sales periods.

Monroe and Fields hope their other plans draw a discriminating crowd.

Fields said, "We're going to be offering a quality of food and presentation not available elsewhere, a culinary experience that's new to the Brazos Valley.

Among their initial menu items are Norwegian salmon with limejalapeno Hollandaise or citrus vinaigrette, cedar-baked sturgeon filets rolled in crushed almonds and butter and topped with buerre blanc, and grilled medallions of venison in a cranberry-jalapeno and Port wine coulis.

soups, appetizers and desserts round out the menu.

The chef is Tim Conley, Houston transplant named Houston's chef of the year in 1988 by the Texas Chefs Association. He formerly was head chef in Houston's Rainbow Lodge.

Monroe's renovation was intended to reflect the transition between historic East Texas and West Texas. A pressed-tin roof and the red-brick facade, which Monroe said was standard architecture for Texans nostalgic for the Eastern United States, represents the eastern portion of the state.

Monroe went so far as to leave one interior corner unplastered to expose the red brick.

In the western end of the restaurant, a tile mural and a tiled food preparation area reflect the Southwestern influence on Texas.

Tabletops, wall inlays, the bar top and bar backing are pink marble from the facade of another Main Street building Monroe bought and will renovate.

Monroe not only wants "pillars of the community" to invest in such limited partnerships as the Stock Exchange, but wants them to gather at the restaurant and bar to discuss issues of the day. Professors, civic leaders and journalists are among the people he'd like to have gathering there to exchange ideas and even "vent their anger.

He also has grand visions for downtown — among them, drawing Other recipes use quail, lobster, designer or other factory outlet the nation," he said. Monroe, who was raised and educated in North Carolina, was a developer in California before retiring in 1982 to attend law school. He never practiced and has an admitted dislike for attorneys, saying he "just wanted to fight" them.

But even before finishing school, he was already back developing. He eventually heard about the Bryan-College Station area from other California investors and bought several rental properties.

'And then I discovered downtown," he said. If any part of downtown hasn't discovered him yet, it's because it's not paying attention. He has quickly become a fixture in the Downtowners, a business group, and with Downtown NOW, a cityfunded organization.

A great-uncle was chairman of the University of Texas history department, and Monroe enjoys the state's diversity.

But he may still possess some habits Texans might call typical Californian, as city officials and other community leaders have

Steel siding eliminates painting forever

Have you taken a good look lately at the paint on your house? Is it peeling, chipped or faded? Is the color outdated? If you've been putting off the inevitable, you have three choices, says Owen Johnson, owner of Big Spring Siding: 1. You can re-paint the house yourself — for weekend after weekend.

2. You can hire a professional housepainter to put your house in tip-top shape — an expense that you will repeat in just a few

3. You can make a modest investment in new steel siding and scratch house-painting off your list of chores forever.

Siding gives your home a permanent just-painted look that is as durable as it is attractive.

"We install only the top-ofthe-line siding," says Johnson. This siding carries a lifetime warranty which is transferable, should you ever decide to sell your home. The warranty guarantes that the siding will not crack, peel, rust or discolor.

Of course, a warranty means nothing unless the siding is properly installed, Johnson adds. Big Spring Siding has the equipment and skills to do the job right.

"Unlike many siding companies, we have no commissioned salesmen, nor do we use subcontract installer," Johnson
