When's a jail not a prison?

WASHINGTON (AP) - "The ordinary person, even the ordinary politician, has a difficult time distinguishing a prison from a jail.

It's a difference Howard Safir had to explain over and over for the last 12 years. As operations director of the U.S. Marshals Service, Safir was responsible for finding jail cells not prison cells — for federal inmates Safir, who recently retired, got them from the U.S. Bureau of Prisons or leased them from other governments.

The U.S. Justice Department uses jails differently from the states, counties and cities.

Federal jail cells house only individuals who have been denied bail while they await trial or for those convicted but awaiting sentencing.

State and local jails do that, too. But they also hold individuals serving short misde meanor sentences. The federal government sends such convicts to low-security prisons and prison camps.

Iraq declares Kuwait as its 19th province

Associated Press Writer Baghdad moved today to tighten its grip on Kuwait by declaring it a 19th province, and an American civilian died in Iraq, reportedly one of 63 Americans who were rounded up for use as human shields against attack.

U.S. Navy warships enforcing the U.N. embargo against Iraq stopped two cargo ships and crewmen boarded one in the Gulf of Aqaba before allowing them to proceed to Jordan, shipping sources said today.

It was believed the first time a ship was boarded and inspected by the U.S. Navy since the embargo began shortly after Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

The developments came as U.N. chief Javier Perez de Cuellar said he was intervening with Iraq to try to arrive at a solution to the gulf

President Bush said he was pessimistic about the U.N. initiative.

Iglehart sentenced for murder of wife

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY - Mitchell County's only pending murder trial ended almost as quickly as it began Monday morning when the defendant changed his plea.

Roy Iglehart, a lifetime resident. of Colorado City, pleaded guilty to murder in the shooting death of his wife, Viola, which occurred April 6. Iglehart, indicted by a grand jury for the crime, had previously entered a plea of innocent.

"I really did not expect this to happen," said District Attorney Frank Conard. He said he had been notified of the change over the weekend by the defense attorney, Lance Hall of Sweetwater, but continued with trial plans.

"We were going ahead with it," Conard said. "The jury panel reported and all. One just never knows what will happen in these situations.

Conard said the trial would have most likely been a difficult one in the community, as the five children of Roy and Viola Iglehart are residents of Colorado City.

"I don't know if it was pressure caused Iglehart to change his of Criminal Justice facility plea), but I think this is better for all concerned. That's got to be the toughest kind of case, where there are grown children.

Conard had earlier acknowledged that Iglehart was well known in the community, but said he did not expect that to interfere with a fair

At the time of the murder, the Iglehart family lived on several in Cooper's Cove west of Lake Colorado City. Iglehart was employed as a manager at Skinny's convenience store.

In the early morning hours April 6, authorities, responding to a call from Iglehart, discovered Viola Iglehart dead. It was later ruled that she had died of gunshot wounds to Mitchell County Sheriff's deputies took Iglehart into custody the same morning.

On Monday, he was sentenced to 26 years in prison. Conard said "finding of a deadly weapon" had been added to the murder charge and would increase the time he spent in prison.

Iglehart will remain in the Mitchell County Jail until he can be from his family, or what (that transferred to a Texas Department

Commissioners facing almost 1 million dollar budget deficit

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

County Commissioners, who are now facing a $916,733 budget deficit, recessed a Monday meeting until 3 p.m. today, at which time they plan to discuss a possible 3 percent county employee pay increase. The increase, not included in the most recently proposed budget, could cost up to $90,000.

Meanwhile, the number of county employees, about 135 now, may be reduced through attrition in the upcoming year in order to reduce spending, which outstrips revenues by 15 percent in a proposed $6.9 million 1990-91 budget. It includes a slightly lower tax rate but increased tax revenuesof 3 percent due to increased mineral and oil-related property

Commissioners may adopt the proposed budget this afternoon. County Auditor Jackie Olson recommended that they set the tax rate at a Sept. 4 meeting. Commissioners are considering a tax rate of .3278 cents per $100 valuation. The current rate of .3281 cents would increase taxes by 3.07 percent.

Though this could be the fifth year in a row that a deficit budget is passed, a projected $1.7 million in surplus funds from 1989-90 is expected to leave a $790,931 balance next year. Olson said they eventually need to end up with at least a $1.5 million balance to operate the county for three months before tax revenue comes in. The 1989-90 budget originally projected a surplus of $492,238. 'We're looking at a shrinking tax base and increased operating costs," County Judge John Coffee said. Tax values have decreased 16.6 percent since 1985, he said. He suggested that throughout the year, they should consider cutting county employees by not rehiring people in some positions as other employees leave. He recommended against any layoffs. "I think we've got to keep our people employed," he said. "We don't cut expenses by cutting Commissioner Bill Crooker agreed. "Attrition is a much better way to approach this. When you have a department of 6-to-8 people, possibly the workload could be spread a little more.' Concerning employee pay increases, Commissioner Paul Allen said they may want to increase longevity pay instead of giving a complete across-theboard pay increase. The costs of a longevity pay increase would not all be included in next year's budget. He said it would be more fair to experienced employees. 'That'll give you a little bigger spread," he said. "That'll give the more deserving some earnings. The county currently pays $149,000 a year for longevity pay, Olson said: Employees need to work three years before becoming eligible for it. Commissioners did agree to raise the salary of a library employee from $15,372 to $16,248 after hearing a report from Librarian Donna Jackson. They also heard reports from American Medical Transport, the three county justices' of the peace and County Engineer Bill Mims. A representative of AMT was ask ed to bring in financial statements for the past 12 months. No changes were made in the proposed budget concerning those reports

Contra courier denied damages

Eugene Hasenfus, jailed in Nicaragua while the U.S. government disavowed knowledge of a clandestine rebel supply network, is due no damages because he knew the risks involved, a jury decided.

The federal court jury on Monday denied damages to Hasenfus, his wife and the family of pilot Wallace Sawyer Jr., who was killed when Sandinista troops shot down their supply plane in 1986.

Jurors agreed Hasenfus and Sawyer were working for Miamibased Southern Air Transport and had been hired by retired Air Force Gen. Richard Secord, but ruled the men were independent contractors well aware of the Hasenfus sought $57,000 in back pay and his wife Sally sought $66,000 reimbursement for legal expenses involved in extricating her husband from the Nicaraguan jail where he was held for three months after the crash.

Mrs. Hasenfus said U.S. State Department officials had assured her that they would help pay for her husband's legal expenses while he was in jail in Nicaragua.

But Hasenfus' attorneys were unable to link Secord and Southern Air to those State Department officials, explained

"If we could have proved the State Department (employees) were agents of Secord and Southern Air, we would have given them money," juror Ivis Charbonier said.

New term to start without Souter

WASHINGTON (AP) -Supreme Court nominee David H. Souter cannot be confirmed by the Oct. 1 start of the court's 1990-91 term even if he sails through his Senate confirmation hearings, sources say.

That means the high court will start a new term one justice shy for just the third time in the last 20 years.

'It's a matter of timing," said a Senate Judiciary Committee aide who requested anonymity. The aide added the earliest committee vote on Souter's nomination would be Sept. 27, two weeks after the Sept. 13 start of his confirmation hearings.

If all goes smoothly for the federal appeals court judge from New Hampshire, his nomination likely will reach the full Senate the week of Oct. 1 or Oct. 8 Diana Huffman, the committee's staff director, rebuffed questions about the timing of any committee vote. "I'm just not going to speculate on it at all," she

But other committee aides, both Democrats and Republicans, said no committee vote on Souter is likely before Sept. 27 even if his hearings before the Judiciary Committee last only three days.

If Souter is confirmed, his late arrival would not necessarily hamstring the court. He would have the option of reading legal briefs and listening to tape recordings of oral arguments in the cases already heard by the

Utah wildfire still out of control

MIDWAY, Utah (AP) - A wildfire that killed two firefighters, razed 19 houses and blackened more than 3,000 acres of timber and brush defied control today, although its progress slowed somewhat, officials said.

About 100 firefighters worked through the night cutting fire lines in dense brush and alpine forests to prevent flames from advancing into nearby canyons dotted with homes and cabins.

John Shive, a firefighting commander, predicted today that the blaze would be contained by Wednesday evening.

'It's not over but it's looking better," fire spokesman Dick Buehler told residents at a town meeting Monday night. "Give us one more day to chase it and catch it.'

Physicians must begin filing Medicare claims

ing next week, all physicians will be responsible for filing reimbursement claims for their Medicare patients.

The Sept. 1 change is welcomed by advocates for the elderly as a relief from what many say is confusing and time-consuming paperwork that discourages some patients from filing the forms and receiving reimbursement.

But it is dreaded by many physicians who envision a bureaucratic nightmare.

'This is one of those instances where someone is trying to fix something that wasn't broken in the first place," said Dr. Joseph F. Boyle, executive vice president of the American Society of Internal Medicine.

The bulk of the estimated 450 million Medicare claims expected to be filed this fiscal year will have been submitted by physicians or medical suppliers, said Barbara Gagel, the government official responsible for implementing the new provision.

About 10 percent of the bills are submitted by patients themselves. Medicare officials do not know how many physicians this represents.

"Now Medicare beneficiarles will receive the benefits to which they are entitled without having to patient at the time of service. deal with the burdensome pane work," said Horace Deets, executive director of the American Association of Retired Persons.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginn- that they paid that year. Most often they said the forms were too complicated or time-consuming.

These unfiled claims amounted to between $90 million and $130 million, the commission estimated. The change in filing regulations was approved by Congress last year, but one member, Rep. Joe Kolter, D-Pa., is already trying to repeal it with legislation introduced last May.

"We think it's an unnecessary burden on physicians," said Bob Powers, Kolter's senior legislative assistant.

"We've gotten a lot of mail from Medicare recipients who are insulted" because they feel the provision implies that they can't fill out the forms themselves, Powers said. "They want to do it themselves," usually because they can do it faster than a physician's office staff can

Physicians will have up to a year to file claims, less than half the time now allowed. Failure to file would mean $1,000 fine for each violation.

Physicians will not be allowed to charge Medicare patients for preparing and filing claim forms. But, as is the case now, doctors can require payment in full from the Dr. Norton J. Greenberge president of the American College of Physicians, the largest professional organization of internists, said the change has a "desirable goal" of easing the paperwork burden on patients. It also will encourage electronic billing and could speed payments, he said.

Army sent to remove barricades

Mohawks fled their reservations after Quebec's premier ordered the army to tear down road and bridge barricades that Indians built in a seven-week-old armed standoff with authorities born of a land dispute.

Premier Robert Bourassa also told reporters he was breaking off talks with the Mohawks and accused them of not negotiating in good faith.

In comments carried live on Canadian television on Monday, Bourassa said he was obliged to assume his responsibility for

"We Quebecers and Canadians cannot tolerate groups of citizens to this crisis.

TORONTO (AP) - Some living in Quebec choosing which laws they want to respect and which they want to ignore," the premier said.

To back a claim on land, the Indians had first barricaded a road to a golf course that local officials wanted to expand onto what the Mohawks claimed were tribal lands. Warriors then blocked a bridge that links Montreal with its southern suburbs, adding hours to daily commutes and angering residents.

Bourassa said he had asked the Canadian army to take down the barriers, "and I hope in the coming days we will have a resolution

Earth may be heating up faster

SUNDSVALL, Sweden (AP) — The Earth is heating up faster than previously documented and it is imperative that nations agree to reduce gases responsible for global warming, say scientists at a conference on climactic

"We face warming trends faster than at any time in 10,000 years," Mostafa K. Tolba, head of the U.N. Environment Program, said Monday in an opening speech outlining the results of a two-year international climate study.

The conclusion that the Earth is heating by one-third of a degree Celsius each decade is among the conclusions of a draft document being debated at the four-day conference. About 300 government officials. lawyers and scientists from 70 countries are hoping to adopt a final report that would be a basis for United Nations action on fighting the "greenhouse effect."

The United States, represented by a 25-person delegation, has objected to some preliminary conclusions of the report, which was prepared by 1,000 atmospheric experts from industrialized and developing countries.

In the past, U.S. officials have resisted a worldwide ceiling on emissions of carbon dioxide the gas that scientists believe causes 60 percent of the "greenhouse effect." Increasing levels of carbon dioxide are believed to trap heat from the sun, gradually warming

The United States produces more carbon dioxide than any country, and 75 percent of all 'greenhouse' gases are emitted by the Western industrialized nations

President Bush is among leaders calling for more exact measurements of the effects of carbon dioxide and precise predictions of the result of emission reduction before he would consider mandatory ceilings.

South African peace talks planned

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Police said two black men were killed in unrest, but the country's major townships were peaceful today after two weeks of factional fighting that has claimed more than 500 lives. Meanwhile, President F.W. de

X marks which spot?

Some of Hollywood's leading directors have had it with the 22-year-old rating system that, among other things, has lumped serious films like "Midnight Cowboy" with the likes of "Debbie Does Dallas." The X rating was meant to label films suitable only for adults, but once the porno merchants seized upon it as a marketing device. serious directors had to become self-censors to get a coveted R rating, which allows those under 17 into the theater if they're with an adult.

An X rating means being frozen out of most mainstream theaters and even the entertainment pages of newspapers that don't take ads for X-rated films. Now some directors are going to court and threatening to append their own rating — in most cases an A (for adult) to films they consider mature but not raunchy. Better, for the sake of industry harmony, they'd like the Motion Picture Association of America to adopt the A itself.

After initial resistance, MPAA President Jack Valenti seems to be bending under pressure, and well he might. It's unfair to punish an innovative director like Wayne Wang, for example, with an X because of one scene in which a character is seen looking at a pornographic magazine — a scene that illustrates a theme of decadence in contemporary Hong Kong.

Some might say just take the scene out, as censors have said ever since Hollywood started policing itself some 60 years ago. It's to filmmakers' credit, however, that they've resisted that solution — as when producer David Selznick fought to let Rhett Butler tell Scarlett O'Hara that he didn't give a damn — or subverted it, as director Preston Sturges did so brilliantly and hilariously in "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek" by ridiculing the system without actually violating it.

Unfortunately, adding an A also adds confusion to a muddled system that now runs the gamut from G to PG to PG-13 to R to X but doesn't, except where local theaters or critics volunteer the information, tell people just why a movie has been given, say, a PG-13 instead of an R: Is it simple nudity, sex, violence, profanity, all of the above? Adding an A to the list makes sense within the context of the existing system; the question is whether Hollywood can come up with something that's both simpler and more informative.

Movies have come a long way from the time when husbands and wives couldn't occupy the same bed, when even the mildest curse was taboo, when women were pecting" but never pregnant. No doubt some filmmkers, even "serious" ones, have gone too far, but the solution to that is to give audiences intelligible guidance. It's too bad all of this has to be so complex, but so is the society it: reflects.

No sacrifice too great for firsthand coverage

I appreciate the anchormen of the network news shows going to the scene of the "big story. Nothing cheers me up as much as seeing Dan Rather, Tom Brokaw, Peter Jennings or Sam Donaldson in the hot desert sands of the Middle East giving a firsthand report of what is happening on the front

If I have any problem with the coverage, it is that occasionally the anchormen land in the wrong

Then, because they don't want to admit making a mistake, we're all stuck with their reporting on an area where nothing is going on.

The rule of thumb for network anchormen is that the news is not where the news is, but where they are. You don't spend thousands of dollars shipping in crews of technicians to a foreign setting only to acknowledge that the anchorrhan is in the wrong place at the wrong time.

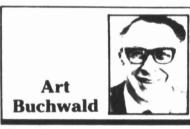

Let's say the anchorman, Horace Trotter, has been given a tip that the big news on the Mideast will break in Tangier. Morocco. New York makes the decision to send the entire evening news crew to Tangier and announces it will be broadcasting ive from there until the Iraqi orisis is over.

When he arrives Horace discovers all the action is coming dut of Saudi Arabia. He is not deterred. He interviews a camel driver whose nephew has just slipped through the embargo and delivered a case of maple syrup to Baghdad. The camel driver tells Horace that his nephew was held as a hostage but managed to escape by giving his captors three legs of lamb and a microwave

After this lead story, the program moves on to the U.S. embassy where Horace interviews the commander of the U.S. Marine Corps guard detail, a master sergeant, who gives a briefing on the military situation

Horace then shifts to the university to explain why Tangier plays

a key role in the Iraqi war. He brings on a professor from Western Illinois University who specializes in Bedouin camel racing. The professor feels that since Tangier supports the moderate Arab states, Iraq will have to give in.

Horace sends the tape back to New York and Flora Delta, his assistant anchor, reports a story on a heart-transplant operation between an owner and a Yankees' baseball player and a crack bust in Washington during which no video pictures were taken. Then she throws it to Horace for his final commentary

"It's hot in Tangier," Horace says as he takes off his tie on camera. "It's hot because the sun is hot, and that makes people hot. I've been hot ever since I arrived here, and yet it was the King of Morocco who told me during an exclusive interview in his airconditioned palace, 'If you can't stand the heat, get out of the desert. "Nobody knows what is going to happen in this climate, but we know this much — the key to everything lies somewhere out there in the sand. Americans have not been asked to land in Tangier, but I have been assured by U.S. military authorities that if they wanted to, they could. Tonight at midnight, we're going to talk to an Algerian Communist and a Yemeni capitalist, who will discuss ways out of the mess the area has gotten itself into.

"On behalf of everyone at QBC. this is Horace Trotter bringing you the news when it happens, at the moment it happens. And if we're in Tangier you better believe that's where it's happening.

Will the country rally to O-I-L?

By MIKE FEINSILBER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - When the United States goes to war or comes close to it, it usually invokes one or both of two great purposes: to protect the nation against an imminent threat or to protect the democratic ideal.

President Bush is denied those rationales in the Persian Gulf. Instead, he invokes the abstract principle that might should not make right and the pragmatic view that America's "way of life" is threatened if one man has the power to control the price and supply of petroleum.

The question that remains is whether the American people will support an enterprise based on those purposes

Bush says the lesson of the 1930s is that appeasement of tyrants does not work, and he would not find widespread disagreement with that proposition among his

However, a public opinion poll probably would uncover virtual unanimous agreement with a counter-balancing proposition: "The United States cannot be the world's policeman.'

That is a lesson America extracted from the Korean stalemate of the 1950s, the Vietnam failures of the 1970s, the budget deficits of the Bush probably would agree. He notes that 23 nations have signed on to the effort to push the Iraqi army of President Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait and back behind the Iraqi border. "It is Iraq against the world," Bush said last week.

The end of the Cold War has denied American presidents the ready explanation that the line had to be drawn against the advance of communism

International communism is no longer a threat. It is not even very international. Its strongest remaining outposts are Cuba, a thorn but not a menace, and China, with which the Bush administration maintains cordial relations.

BY KATHRYN HOLLINGSHEAD Forsan High School '90-'91 Student Council staged a BYOB (Brng Your Own Banana) back to school ice cream party Friday for n-service teachers at Forsan High

Students provided ice cream, toppings and coffee, but only Spanish teacher Colleen Slaughter remembered to bring a banana, which she promptly shared with fellow teacher and student council sponsor Jan Sims.

Student Council's theme for this school year is SHAPES, an acronym for "Students Having A Rositive Experience in School.' Council members printed each returning high school student's name on a construction paper shape and hunt the shapes from the ceiling in the main entrance hall of the high school.

Junior high student lockers are decorated with cut-out shapes inscribed with the legend "Take shape! Chewz to be the best," with a piece of chewing gum taped to each sign.

The theft of nearly $11,000-worth of clothing from a Big Spring business may have been the work of an area burglary ring, Lt. Terry Chamness said

He said local investigators have received information from law enforcement agencies in Abilene, Midland and Andrews about similar burglaries at clothing stores in those West Texas cities.

Thieves stole 43 coats from Connie's Fashion, Inc., 600 S. Main St., early Sunday. Among the stolen items reported was a full-length mink coat valued at $1,300.

Police are also continuing to investigate the shooting of a 28-yearold woman at her residence early Beatrice Garza, 1002 E. 16th St., was discharged from Scenic Mountain Medical Center on Monday, according to a nursing supervisor. She was treated for a gunshot wound in her left shoulder.

Garza told police she was shot by an unknown assailant.

Electronic diplomacy emerges in the television age

 ${\bf NEW\ YORK\ (AP)-Diplomacy}$ played out through the media is not new. What's new is the speed by which it happens, live by satellite. When President Bush speaks in Kennebunkport, Maine, presumably Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is listening 6,000 miles away in Baghdad — and vice

Diplomacy "used to be by cable, and now it's by satellite," said Steve Friedman, executive producer of NBC's "Nightly News."

"I think it's fraught with danger, in terms of television's 'live' incapacity to really interpret some of these events," said Reid Collins, CNN anchorman in Washington.

"The problem is that communication is instant, reaction is instant, and everybody needs to just slow down," said anchorman Jim Lehrer of "The MacNeilLehrer News Hour" on the Public Broadcasting Service.

Diplomacy by television was born in the Middle East when the 1967 Arab-Israeli war divided the principals behind battle lines.

"When you are unable to have diplomatic contact, the reporter is the one who is able to get the message," said Barbara Walters, who covered the Middle East for ABC in the '70s.

"I would go and interview (Egyptian President) Anwar Sadat, then I would have to go to Israel by way of Cyprus, because the two countries had no direct links and were technically at war, and I would talk with Prime Minister (Yitzhak) Rabin" of Israel, she said.

"I remember the feeling of how ironic and how sad it was that time, probably more than a cen-

The role of television and the TV journalist as mediator reached its high point in 1977, when CBS anchorman Walter Cronkite simultaneously interviewed Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

On the "neutral ground" of television, Cronkite asked Sadat if he would visit Israel. Yes, Sadat would go to Israel. Would Sadat be welcome in Jerusalem, Cronkite asked. Yes, was the answer.

The next day, Israel's invitation arrived in Cairo. It was, CNN's Collins said, "the genesis of the Camp David accords" and Egyptiansraeli peace.

Satellite diplomacy was an occasional phenomenon before the creation of "Nightline" during the Iran hostage crisis, said ABC News vice president Richard C. Wald. Then it became almost institutionalized," he said.

American television created a dialogue for South Africans in their country in a 1985 broadcast, Wald said. A representative of the ruling white minority debated with a member of the unrepresented black majority.

'They were engaging in a debate on the air — not face-to-face, but electronically — for the first time ever. And it was viewed in South Africa," Wald said.

TV diplomacy can hinder the the last line, the world would be much better served," Collins said. "This is not a television show...This is a real-world confrontation," said Lehrer.

But Wald said satellite diplomacy may function as a safetv valve.

"Clearly you could misspeak. But you can misspeak anywhere. Clearly you could give the wrong signal. But you could give the wrong signal anywhere," he said. "To talk is better than not to talk. Quoting Winston Churchill, 'Jaw, jaw is better than war, war.

After running a number of tests at the pool, Decell said he believes the source of the leak is in a set of new pipes. He said he has determined that the leak is not in the drainage system.

During 1987 and 1988 the pool underwent significant renovations, the public works director said.

Chairman Keith Gibbons expressed the board's gratitude that the pool remain open.

Board members also asked Decell to request a legal opinion

The board expressed its pleasure with the condition of the municipal golf course, which apparently attracts golfers from as far away as Dallas.

"I think it is very beneficial to the city to have an asset like the municipal golf course," said Gibbons.

Although admitting the golf course loses money, he called it an invaluable "public relations tool." The next regularly scheduled from the city attorney about a board meeting will be Sept. 24.

Poor hygiene offers greatest food threat

quarter-century campaign to educate Americans about the dangers of foodborne illnesses has produced negligible results, according to a food-safety expert who says consumers continue to risk their lives with lax food-handling

The most common foodborne illnesses — salmonellosis, shigellosis, hepatitis A, triochinosis and botulism — are increasing despite aggressive federal programs aimed at educating consumers, said Dr. Richard Lechowich, director of the National Center for Food Safety and Technology. The center is a

WASHINGTON (TNN) - A coalition of university research departments funded by the foodprocessing industry.

"The major factor contributing to all foodborne illnesses is mishandling of food in final preparation steps."

To avoid food poisoning, cooks must keep food products at the proper temperature and serve food promptly after it is prepared. Poultry and seafood should be washed before cooking and cooks must avoid contact between raw meats and other foods. Lechowich also advises against using wooden cutting boards because microorganisms can hide in the grain of the wood.

But the ministers delayed until Wednesday a formal meeting expected to give final approval to the agreement until messages had been sent to Iraq and Libya, whose representatives did not attend the gathering.

In Washington, the State Department said an American had died in Basra, a southern port in Iraq, but did not list a cause of death. The American was reported to be a man in his mid-50s killed by an apparent heart attack after being taken from Kuwait. The Cable News Network said the man was one of those Americans who have been taken from their homes and moved to key military or civilian installations as protection against U.S. attack Meanwhile, 52 dependents of U.S. diplomats who were evacuated from the American Embassy in Kuwait arrived in Paris today on their way home from Turkey. Three young men from the group were not allowed to leave Iraq. A furious United States, saying Iraq had "once again reneged on its pledge" that all the dependents could go free, swiftly ordered 36 Iraqi Embassy staff members in Washington expelled from the United States and imposed travel limits on the 19 envoys allowed to remain.

The State Department said Monday it could not confirm U.S. media reports that Iraqi ship captains had been ordered not to resist if their vessels are stopped and searched by warships enforcing the U.N. embargo

Diplomats and shipping executives said that previously, the U.S. Navy simply radioed ships demanding to know their nationality, cargo and destination. Lloyd's also said that on Sunday the U.S. Navy denied the French container ship Paris entry into the Gulf of Agaba Iraqi newspapers today published Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's decree turning Kuwait into an Iraqi province. The newspapers did not say when he issued the decree, which created the province of Kuwait. Iraq's longstanding claim to Kuwait is based on the fact that during the Ottoman Empire Kuwait was part of the Basra governate and the British split it up after World War I.

There was no letup for the thousands of Westerners stranded sun, and Iraqi troops surrounding the buildings. But despite appeals to its allies, the United States was alone today in expelling Iraqi diplomats.

was another matter.

What really mattered, however, was that the Blue Jays suffered two more losses Monday night. They blew a 2-0 lead and (a) lost to the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2 and (b) lost another game off the pace in the American League East, falling five games behind Boston.

The game was delayed for minutes in the bottom of the fifth when swarms of gnats invaded the SkyDome

They were all over everybody, said Milwaukee's B.J. Surhoff, who doubled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning. "We could have played on, but it was ridiculous. "They seemed to be concentrating on home plate and the mound. That's when it gets dangerous, when the batter and the pitcher are distracted. Elsewhere in the AL, it was Minnesota 7, Chicago 0; New York 4, Baltimore 0; and California 7, Texas 3. After the Blue Jays fell behind, they never had an opportunity to call on relief ace Tom Henke, the Terminator. Rather, they needed an exterminator. "I've never seen anything like it," said umpire Don Denkinger, the crew chief. "I've seen games called by rain, wind and snow, but never bugs. They were just flying around, but there were so many, it was impossible for not only the players, but the umpires as well." He ordered the SkyDome's retractable roof closed and the air conditioning was turned up. It seemed to work after the bug barrage had players spraying relieved starter Frank Wills in the

Whitson (11-7) held the Expos to nine hits and one run for 8 2-3 innings, lowering his NLleading ERA to 2.35 in the process

It was the fourth straight win for Whitson, who hasn't lost in seven starts covering 56 1-3 innings. In that span, he has allowed just six earned runs, two in the last 35 innings.

The 1989 season aside, the numbers don't support Whitson's claim: In 1988 he was 13-11 with a 3.77 ERA; in 1987 he was 10-13 with a 4.73 ERA.

A major contributing factor to Whitson's season has been his ability to cut down on allowing home runs. He has given up just one in his last 13 starts, covering 97 innings. The opposition has hit 12 round-trippers in 26 starts compared to 20 at this point in

Even with his new-found success, Whitson says he just wants to be durable.

"I haven't set any goals," he said. "I just want to go out and pitch every game I'm supposed to start.'

In Monday's start, Whitson got the offensive support he needed from Joe Carter, who hit his 21st homer, tying the game 1-1 against Montreal starter Oil Can Boyd (7-5) in the fourth, and Garry Templeton, who hit a tworun homer in that made it 4-1 in the seventh.

WCT goes out of business

 $\mathbf{NEW} \ \mathbf{YORK} \ (\mathbf{AP}) - \mathbf{World}$ Championship Tennis, which staged the Tournament of Champions at the West Side Tennis Club, has gone out of

WCT directors Lamar Hunt and Al G. Hill Jr. announced that the 23-year-old Dallasbased company has discontinued its tournaments effective immediately.

Besides the Forest Hills event, other tournaments scheduled for London in December, Scottsdale, Ariz., in March, and Dallas in April, have been cancelled.

Expos look for local money

MONTREAL (AP) - In abid to help lure local investors, the Montreal Expos reached a $23 million agreement with Labatt's Brewery for television rights over the next five years.

Expos president Claude Brochu said he hopes the deal will be followed by similar agreements with a petroleum company, a car manufacturer and a soft-drink firm.

Brochu has been mandated by owner Charles Bronfman to find local buyers by Sept. 1, or Bronfman, who put the team up for sale last spring, will entertain offers from U.S. investors

Dodgers' assault charges dropped

PITTSBURGH (AP) -Charges of simple assault filed against two Los Angeles Dodgers following a scuffle with a bartender at a night club July 21 have been withdrawn following an out-ofcourt settlement.

None of the parties involved in the settlement would discuss specifics of the agreement between the players — Juan Samuel and Alfredo Griffin and Wilson Sturgeon Jr., the 26-year-old bartender.

McMichael, Bears reach agreement

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) -Holdout defensive lineman Steve McMichael reached an agreement to play for the Chicago Bears this season.

Terms of the deal were not dislosed. McMichael had wanted his current pact renegotiated to raise his salary from $500,000 to $800,000 for 1990 and bring his wages in line with those of other top linemen in the NFL.

McMichael, 32, a 10-year veteran, holds the Bears record for most consecutive games started - 101.

Chargers sign first-round pick

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) -Former Southern Cal linebacker Junior Seau, the fifth player selected in the NFL draft, signed a five-year, $4.5 million contract with the San Diego Chargers.

Seau and his agent, Steve Feldman, had reached an agreement in principle on the contract last Thursday, meeting a deadline imposed by general manager Bobby Beathard, who told Seau and his representative that the team's proposal was a bottom line, take it or leave it offer

Mota wins third straight marathon

SPLIT, Yugoslavia (AP) -Rosa Mota of Portugal won a record third straight women's marathon and Salvatore Antibo of Italy dominated the men's 10,000 meters in the European Field Championships. Mota, 32, finished in 2 hours, 31 minutes, 27 seconds. Antibo was clocked in 27:41.27.

Other matches have lasted later during Open night play, but this was a one-ticket day session extravaganza that gave fans more than they bargained for.

Certainly eight staffers and members of the media got more than they expected when they had to be rescued after being stuck in an elevator for 40 minutes.

Neither rain nor a crafty foe from Spain could stop Boris Becker as he and fellow defending champion Steffi Graf began with victories on a day of weird weather and strange silence.

The rumbling of jets was only a memory Monday as players and fans enjoyed blissful quiet thanks to a new arrangement to change the takeoff routes from nearby LaGuardia Airport.

After the hard court in the stadium was mopped and wiped dry, Becker attacked the net aggressively and served well to score a 7-5, 6-3, 6-2 win against Aguilera, who beat Becker on clay in Hamburg last May Aguilera rarely approached the Grat, all business after a summer of little pleasure, wore a dark scowl as she took the court to begin defense of her title. Minutes later, a blazing sun on a lovely opening day gave way to black clouds, thunder rocked the stadium and lightning lit up a gray Manhattan skyline in the distance.

Omen or coincidence, Graf's dramatic entrance livened up the tournament's first day and reflected her foul mood as she tries to reassert her dominance after defeats in the French Open and Wimbledon.

Graf, the two-time defending U.S. women's champion, played faster than usual to beat the oncoming rain, and rushed out to a 4-1 lead against an overmatched, exvery humid and that made (the asperated qualifier, 19-year-old Maureen Drake. But after 16 minutes, with the wind whipping papers and hats around the court and a 20-minute downpour starting, the umpire suspended play.

Graf looked no less grim and determined when she came back an hour later. She won the next two games quickly, then after another 25-minute rain delay won 6-1, 6-1. Altogther, the match took 41 minutes to play, but lasted two hours and 13 minutes.

Graf, 21 and barely clinging to the No. 1 ranking she's held since 1987, grumbled Sunday after struggling to beat 14-year-old Jennifer Capriati in three sets in a tuneup tournament. Graf has been besieged by erratic play and problems on and off the court all year. Winning here would go a long way toward putting those problems — a broken thumb, a paternity suit against her father, surgery to clear a nose blockage — behind her.

Jesse Barfield, Matt Nokes and Roberto Kelly homered off rookie Ben McDonald, who had yielded only two homers in 57 previous innings, and Andy Hawkins (5-10) held Baltimore to four hits in 8 2-3 innings. Continued from page 1-B of 12 passes for 113 yards. Each quarterback had one touchdown

"I just went out and took, what they gave me. We came out intending to pass and that's exciting for a quarterback. I think our offense has a lot of potential." Trudeau said. "I can't control the situation, so I go out there to have a good time. I think I've proven myself before. Sure, I want to play but as I said when I came to training camp, I think the decision has been made and Jeff will start.'

Meanwhile, veteran Matt Cavanaugh gave Philadelphia coach Buddy Ryan something to ponder by completing nine of 10 passes for 109 yards, bringing the Eagles back from a 16-7 deficit in the final quarter.

"We might have to go with three quarterbacks," Ryan said. "We may have to cut short the defensive safeties or something. Matt did a good

Cavanaugh, a 13-year NFL veteran, moved the Eagles 63 yards in seven plays to start the comeback. Robert Drummond, who had a 25-yard reception during the drive, scored on a onevard plunge with 4:26 gone in the final period.

He then brought the Eagles from their 18 to the Indianapolis 11, setting up Ruzek's winning 33-yard field goal with 1:56 to 'The Colts played with emotion. We didn't play well," Ryan said. "Just well enough to win. We didn't look good.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Cosby doesn't care for smart alecks like Bart Simpson, and says the Huxtables are ready to take him on.

Beginning this week, Fox TV moves its runaway hit, "The Simpsons," from Sunday nights to a Thursday night slot, pitting it against NBC's hit "The Cosby Show."

"The mean-spirited and cruel think this is 'the edge,' and their excuse is, that's the way people are today. Cosby said in an interview being published next week. "But why should we be entertained by that? TV should be moving in a direction from the Huxtables forward, not backward.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 29, 1990 CELEBRITIES BORN ON

THIS DATE; actor Sir Richard Attenborough, director William Friedkin, actor Elliot Gould, megastar Michael Jackson.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Deal with any career vs. home conflicts early. Someone who has opposed you in the past rallies to your defense. New financial rewards are possible. Romance requires more nurturing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Intriguing job offers are featured. Think carefully about what you want and what you already have. Stress your positive attitude and wealth of experience. Romance is sweet the second time around.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Seek expert advice about credit, loans and investments. The suggestions you give to a friend or relative could fall on deaf ears. Work goes best when you move at a steady pace.

Accomplish as much as you can at work before mid-afternoon. A shift in your social plans could upset your emotional applecart. Ride with the LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Others are only too eager to climb aboard your success train. Choose your passengers with greater care! A lighter atmosphere at work favors both your romantic and financial hopes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Someone you met on a business trip could have a profound effect on your future. At work, welcome suggestions from less-experienced co-workers. Always give credit where it is LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Teamwork is essential now. Tend to paperwork related to banking, budget and bills. A new division of domestic chores may be in order. Double-check all financial details.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Speculative ventures are too risky now. Creative ideas will swell profits CANCER (June 21-July 22): A and impress higher-ups. A candid sudden windfall lifts your spirts. conversation with your co-workers gives you valuable new insights.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Romance holds few surprises. Be more discreet about a friend's mistakes. Unconventional ideas can provide the financial success you seek. Travel could advance career or finances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An excellent period for launching new financial ventures. You become more efficient at work, thanks to an older person's hint. You are more aware than ever of mate's needs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A recent misunderstanding can be straightened out. Be willing to listen to explanations offered by close associates. Optimism is often contagious! Romance appears to be in a holding pattern.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A financial situation shows signs of improvement. You and your partner recognize the profit potential of a small business venture. Do not let your loved ones be duped by a

GHS student council seeking furniture

Grady High School student council members are searching for furniture for the Student Council Activity Center.

"There is a large area upstairs on top of the old gym and last years' student council started fixing it up. We laid carpet and let the students paint the walls; gives the kids a place to get away. It's like a student lounge — we have a stereo and a couple of chairs,' said student council sponsor Johnny Tubb.

"We are looking for an old chair that someone might be trying to get rid of, an old couch something like that," said Tubb.

Anyone wishing to give some type of furnishings should call 459-2445, or contact Council President Laurie Romine or Mike McKaskle, vice president.

St. Joseph site of 'mini festival'

The Knights of Columbus have scheduled a "mini festival" for Saturday at St Joseph Catholic Church Fellowship Hall at the corner of Carpenter and Convent Streets.

"The mini festival is being sponsored by different church organizations including the guadalupanas, CCD classes, Knights of Columbus and the altar society," said Knights of Columbus spokesman Clemente

The guadalupanas will hold a cake walk, the KOC will have their usual bingo and other booths. The CCD classes are planning a pot of gold booth and the altar society will have a booth making gorditas, according to Villa.

When's a jail not a prison?

WASHINGTON (AP) - "The ordinary person, even the ordinary politician, has a difficult time distinguishing a prison from a jail.

It's a difference Howard Safir had to explain over and over for the last 12 years. As operations director of the U.S. Marshals Service. Safir was responsible for finding jail cells not prison cells — for federal inmates. Safir, who recently retired, got them from the U.S. Bureau of Prisons or leased them from other governments. The U.S. Justice Department uses jails differently from the states, counties and cities Federal jail cells house only individuals who have been denied bail while they await trial or for those convicted but awaiting sentencing. State and local jails do that, too. But they also hold individuals serving short misdemeanor sentences. The federal government sends such convicts to low-security prisons and prison camps.

Iraq declares Kuwait now its 19th province

In Vienna, 10 of the 13 OPEC ministers tentatively backed a deal that would permit increased oil production by Saudi Arabia, Venezuela and some other nations to help offset losses arising from the gulf crisis.

But the ministers delayed until Wednesday a formal meeting expected to give final approval to the agreement until messages had been sent to Iraq and Libya, whose representatives did not attend the gathering

In Washington, the State Department said an American had died in Basra, a southern port in Iraq, but did not list a cause of death. The American was reported to be a man in his mid-50s killed by an apparent heart attack after being taken from Kuwait

The Cable News Network said the man was one of those Americans who have been taken from their homes and moved to key military or civilian installations as protection against U.S. attack.

Meanwhile, 52 dependents of U.S. diplomats who were evacuated from the American Embassy in

A furious United States, saying Iraq had "once again reneged on its pledge" that all the dependents could go free, swiftly ordered 36 Iraqi Embassy staff members in Washington expelled from the United States and imposed travel limits on the 19 envoys allowed to remain.

The State Department said Monday it could not confirm U.S. media reports that Iraqi ship captains had been ordered not to resist if their vessels are stopped and searched by warships enforcing the U.N.

'We certainly hope they are true," said spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler

But Iraq's ambassador to the United States, Mohammed Sadiq al-Mashat, seemed to confirm the reports in an interview on ABC's Nightline.

Evelyn Lankford has seen 35 of he dreaded — or highly anticipated - first day of school. This year she will just spend her time, however, "taking it easy, crocheting, reading and working puzzles. Mrs. Lankford had been with the Stanton Independent School District since 1957, until her retirement this past school year. She began her teaching career in 1942, at Rolling Springs teaching two classes, third and fourth grades. Evelyn continued her teaching career at Levelland as an instructor for girls' P.E. class. "I really enjoyed being a teacher," adding, "There is nothing better than watching a youngster grow up and begin learning something that he or she had no knowledge the day they walked into my classroom. It's a rewarding job

She taught for two years before marrying; she then put her career on the back burner, knowing that one day she would return to her the job she thought the world of. "Sure I had other interests. For instance, when I was aa Texas Tech I presided over the Women's Recreation Association, and I participated in basketball and field hockey. In 1957, the Lankfords moved to Stanton. Mrs. Lankford always wanted to get back into teaching and finally got her wish beginning the fall of '57.

"I began teaching at Stanton in August 1957, beginning with the fourth grade. For the next 33 years I had the pleasure to stay with that grade until my retirement. It seemed that every year would top the other," said Evelvn.

After her lengthly career, Lankford would like to just "take it easy and retire my alarm She plans to enjoy her hobbies and spend her time crocheting, reading and working puzzles. "I haven't decided yet what to do with all that time I might have on my hands, but I have been looking into the possibility of doing some volunteer work.'

The American Association of Parents and Children prepared the report card after an earlier study found nine out of 10 teachers think parents don't care about education. The group's executive director, Scott Stapf, said the reports should be a "wake-up call" telling parents they play an important role in education.

"It's a disastrous message to create the impression with parents who need to be concerned are grade teachers and school administrators and state lawmakers," Stapf said.

"Unless you create a picture that includes parents in the equation as well, you're really missing a big part," he said. The AAPC, a year-old, independent research group, compiled dozens of studies by the Department of Education, the Carnegie Foundation and others for its report card

Oil price hike not necessarily boon for Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — Rising oil prices associated with the Mideast crisis might seem like a godsend for Texans. But industry spokesmen and analysts said such increases are tenuous

"I don't think anybody sees that these prices are going to persist," said Al Ballinger, economics data manager for the University of Houston's Center for Public Policy

Already on Monday, the price of oil dropped slightly to $27.15 a barrel — but still remained well above the $9-a-barrel bust price in the late

"This is a short-term, knee-jerk reaction," said J. Virgil Waggoner, president of Sterling Chemicals. Once the crisis is settled, oilproducing countries again will pump more than the world needs and the prices will fall, he said. Even a 1.5 percent increase in the weekly number of rigs sear- barrel, Ballinger said. "It depends ching for oil and gas may not be directly attributable to the Gulf crisis, said Ike Kerridge, who keeps the figures for Baker Hughes

On the whole, most observers believe that Houston's economy will get a boost from higher oil A high, long-term oil price "will be positive for Houston, but it will not be a bonanza with everybody benefiting," Kerridge said.

Despite declining Monday, oil prices remain significantly higher than in mid-June. Oil watchers, year, Kerridge said. stand by their overall predictions for the year and explorers are not changing their plans.

In the early 1980s, oil prices were in the $30-plus range, but people invested in exploration thinking that last week, but increased 26 rigs the prices were going to $60 and $80 per not on the price now but on what people's expectations of future prices are going to be," he told The Houston Post.

"I don't expect a big increase in activity unless this price persists for a long period of time," said Doug Von Gonten, head of Texas A&M's petroleum engineering department.

Baker Hughes has not changed its projection of the U.S. rig count for 1990, expecting an average of 1,005 rigs during the year for an increase of 15.6 percent over last

On Monday, Baker Hughes said the number of working oil and natural gas rigs in the United States rose by 15 this week to 1,002.

The count had dropped by five previous week. A year ago this week, the count was 909, Baker Hughes said.

"I don't think you can really say this week's increase is the reflection of higher prices," he said. We think 1.005 is still a good forecast," Kerridge said. "We may have to raise next year's if it appears crude prices will stay this high. The oil companies already have planned their exploration budgets for the year, based on an assumption of $18 oil. Kerridge said. These assumptions will not change until they draw up the 1991 budgets later in the year, he said. "It's been fluctuating about the 1,000 level, slightly lower, for the last eight or nine weeks," he said.

Cambridge Energy Research is saying oil prices have established a new floor at $21 a barrel, Kerridge

But even if oil prices stay in the $25-plus range per barrel for the next few years, economists say not to expect a boom.

Tom Manning, vice president with Purvin & Gertz consultants, said "this price shock just messes things up.

"We were on a good, steady uptick," he said. "The oil business was getting healthy again.'

Now, however, gasoline demand will turn down and hurt the refiners and higher feedstock prices will hurt the petrochemical companies. Manning said.

Higher prices will lower petrochemical profit margins, particularly for products that are in excess supply, Waggoner said. If prices stabilize at a higher level, then it will slow the growth in demand for petrochemicals, Waggoner said

Hygiene greatest food threat

WASHINGTON (TNN) - A quarter-century campaign to educate Americans about the dangers of foodborne illnesses has produced negligible results, according to a food-safety expert who says consumers continue to risk their lives with lax food-handling

The most common foodborne illnesses - salmonellosis. shigellosis, hepatitis A, triochinosis and botulism — are increasing despite aggressive federal programs aimed at educating consumers, said Dr. Richard Lechowich, director of the National Center for Food Safety and Technology. The center is a coalition of university research departments funded by the foodprocessing industry.

Although it says the vast majority of food poisoning cases go unreported, the Centers for Disease Control estimates that the actual number of cases in the U.S. could be as high as six million per vear and as many as 9,100 deaths can be attributed to tainted food. Elderly people, pregnant women and people with cancer or AIDS are the most vulnerable to the microorganisms. "Government programs have been very unsuccessful. It's very difficult to get the message across to the public. . . The problem is we have all these tongue-twister names (for the illnesses).' Lechowich said at a meeting of the American Chemical Society here Monday.

Lechowich said the U.S. Department of Agriculture started an aggressive campaign more than 25 years ago aimed at wiping out salmonella bacteria in the nation's poultry and egg industry. But instead of shrinking, the percentage of products infected with the dangerous microorganism has increased slightly, he said.

Public opinion polls have shown that Americans are concerned about the safety of their food supply, but they are most worried about food additives, pesticide residues, food processing aids and preservatives.

But those factors pose a minor risk to the nation's food supply, Lechowich said. Government agencies and food-safety experts ranked microorganisms as the greatest threat, followed by poor nutrition and natural toxins.

"The major factor contributing to all foodborne illnesses is mishandling of food in final preparation steps which results in microbiological problems,' Lechowich said.

"The media and educational institutions should emphasize consumer education concerning safe food handling practices to prevent these outbreaks rather than sensationalizing relative minor hazards like small amounts of pesticide residues in apples," he said.

To avoid food poisoning, cooks must keep food products at the proper temperature and serve food promptly after it is prepared. Poultry and seafood should be washed before cooking and cooks must avoid contact between raw meats and other foods. Lechowich also advises against using wooden cutting boards because microorganisms can hide in the grain of the wood.

Classing of cotton to be available on computer

LUBBOCK - Directors of USDA's Lubbock and La Classing offices are encouraging High Plains producers, through their gins or other authorized agents, to make maximum use of an advanced, improved computer system installed for the 1990 crop

Officials of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. also think growers will do well to give the new system a try. "Electronic data transmission obviously is the direction our industry is going," says Larry Nelson of Tulia, producer, ginner and current PCG President. "And if the system does what we are told it will do, without some of the problems we've had in the past, there's no doubt it can be a valuable asset, particularly in our marketing operations.'

The new system is designed to allow growers access to classing results the morning after the cotton is classed. Authorized users will be able to automatically access the system directly (1) by-bale number range, (2) by classing date or (3) by requesting all data since the last transmission. Systems in place last year required information from instrument lines to first be recorded on cards, then downloaded to the computer, than transmitted to users on punched cards, tapes. disketts, or by telecommunications.

This year classes will enter directly into the computer, saving time and permitting USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) to make the most costCotton talk efficient use of classing personnel and equipment, resulting in significant cost savings. Tapes and disketts still will be available, according to Mary Atienza, Area Director at the Lubbock Classing Office, but additional costs and time can be saved by eliminating that step and utilizing the computer-to-computer link now available between classing office and gins or other grower agents.

Atienza is newly arrived in Lubbock, replacing Wendell Wilbanks who is now Chief of the Grading Branch of AMS Cotton Division in data is received. Memphis, TN.

To take advantage of the copmuter-to-computer feature, Atienza says ginners will need an IBM-compatible personal computer and a Hayes-compatible 1200 or 2400 baud modem. In addition they will have to use the classing office telecommunications program developed from Tandem IXF software. There will be no charge, Atienza adds, for telecommunicated data in lieu of class cards. Otherwise, the gin at the end of the season will be billed for $17.25, the cost of the Tandem software. Gins requesting telecommunicated data plus class cards, disketts or tapes will be charged one cent for each bale on which

Don Lewallen, Lamesa Classing Office Area Director, emphasizes other improvements over last year's system — improvements that should be a big step toward producer acceptance. The new system, dubbed the "Tandem CLX fault-tolerant system," is designed to greatly reduce erroneous input and virtually eliminate loss of data on any individual bale or group of

To reduce errors, if data entered on a bale is outside preprogrammed "normal" parameters the computer advises the operator to double check his figures, Lewallen explains. And, he continues, two safeguards have been installed to avoid data loss.

Electric diplomacy emerging in TV era

NEW YORK (AP) — Diplomacy (Egyptian President) Anwar played out through the media is not new. What's new is the speed by which it happens, live by satellite.

When President Bush speaks in Kennebunkport, Maine, presumably Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is listening 6,000 miles away in Baghdad - and vice

Diplomacy "used to be by cable, and now it's by satellite," said Steve Friedman, executive producer of NBC's "Nightly News."

'I think it's fraught with danger, in terms of television's 'live' incapacity to really interpret some of these events," said Reid Collins, CNN anchorman in Washington.

"The problem is that communication is instant, reaction is instant, and everybody needs to just slow down," said anchorman Jim Lehrer of "The MacNeil-Lehrer News Hour" on the Public Broadcasting Service.

Diplomacy by television was born in the Middle East when the 1967 Arab-Israeli war divided the principals behind battle lines.

When you are unable to have diplomatic contact, the reporter is the one who is able to get the message," said Barbara Walters, who covered the Middle East for

"I would go and interview

Sadat, then I would have to go to Israel by way of Cyprus, because the two countries had no direct links and were technically at war, and I would talk with Prime Minister (Yitzhak) Rabin'' of Israel, she said.

"I remember the feeling of responsibility, and I would think how ironic and how sad it was that a reporter was going around delivering messages between people who could not speak.

The role of television and the TV iournalist as mediator reached its high point in 1977, when CBS anchorman Walter Cronkite simultaneously interviewed Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

On the "neutral ground" of television, Cronkite asked Sadat if he would visit Israel. Yes, Sadat would go to Israel. Would Sadat be welcome in Jerusalem, Cronkite asked. Yes, was the answer.

The next day, Israel's invitation arrived in Cairo. It was, CNN's Collins said, "the genesis of the Camp David accords" and Egyptian-Israeli peace.

"Wire services and newspapers have been doing this for a long time, probably more than a century," said Robert MacNeil.

AUSTIN (AP) - While full effects of the oil spill in Galveston Bay won't be known for some time, state officials say fish, wildlife and sensitive wetlands extensive damage

The July 28 spill dumped 716,000 gallons of oil near Redfish Island after the Greek tanker Shinoussa collided with a three-barge tow.

The toll on resources such as plankton, the basis of the food chain and larval fish, shrimp and crabs is yet to be assessed, said Larry McKinney, director of resource protection for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.
