Local man escapes from Midland jail

A former Big Spring resident could face 2-10 years in the penitentiary for escaping Monday from the Midland County Jail where he only had another week or two to serve.

Ray Sanchez Jr., 29, whose address is listed as 1601 E. Fifth in Big Spring, was doing outdoor work when he escaped, said Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter.

"The man who was watching him had to go back inside for a few minutes. When he came back outside, he was gone," Painter said this morning. "It's really stupid because now we have felony escape charges on him. Now he's facing 2-10 years in the pen."

Sanchez, in custody since Aug. 10 when he was stopped and arrested by the Texas Highway Patrol, had 20 days and 72 hours pending on five misdemeanor sentences in Midland County, Painter said. "He was scheduled to be released in about a week or two weeks," he said. "He still had some time to do but it would have been better than serving 10 years."

The sentences were for theft, two for driving while license suspended, a criminal mischief and no liability insurance. In addition, he is wanted on another theft in Ector County and for charges of speeding and failure to appear in Martin County.

Officials with the Howard County Sheriff's Department and the Big Spring Police Department said they have been notified of the escape.

Suspect surrenders to Big Spring police

Johnny Mack Brown, 47, of Carl Junction, Mo., turned himself in to Big Spring Police Tuesday on a June indictment for involuntary manslaughter. He is accused of running over insurance agent Virginia Ryan, 43, with a vehicle on the 3600 block of Parkway in the early morning hours of Dec. 2. Brown was released on a $20,000 bond.

He may be on a docket to go to trial within the next six months, said 118th Assistant District Attorney William Dupree. "I don't know because the courts haven't set arraignment," he said.

Nine indicted in marijuana ring

DALLAS (AP) — Nine people have been indicted by a federal grand jury in connection with a ring that distributed some 300 tons of marijuana valued at more than $200 million.

Grand jurors on Tuesday returned an indictment against Milton Eugene Robins and eight other people alleging they conspired to possess marijuana with intent to distribute.

The Drug Enforcement Administration said Robins led an organization that was responsible for procuring and distributing multi-thousand pound shipments of marijuana.

Air Force cargo jet crashes

Reservists from Texas die in crash

By GEORGE BOEHMER
Associated Press Writer

RAMSTEIN, West Germany — A giant Air Force cargo jet loaded with supplies for U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf crashed and burned shortly after takeoff today. Air Force officials say nine of the 13 people killed in the crash were reservists from Kelly Air Force Base.

Names of the victims were not released pending notification of relatives.

Air Force spokesman Doug Moore said the Lockheed C-5A had 17 military personnel aboard, most of them reservists who had volunteered for the round-the-clock deployment aimed at discouraging further Iraqi aggression.

The plane, which can lift about a quarter million pounds, crashed in a field a quarter mile from the Ramstein Air Base runway at 12:30 a.m., said Capt. Ed Worley, another Air Force spokesman.

He said the jet was headed for Frankfurt's Rhein-Main base, about 90 miles to the northeast, and then on to the Persian Gulf.

Cathy Cox, an Air Force spokeswoman, said the death toll climbed to 13 after the recovery of the bodies of two people who had been unaccounted for in the fiery crash. The bodies of 10 others were recovered earlier, and one person died of injuries in the hospital.

Cox said the four others who had been on the plane were in stable condition at the U.S. Army's nearby Landstuhl hospital.

No civilian casualties were reported.

The plane's cargo included food, medical supplies and aircraft maintenance equipment, according to officials. The cause of the crash was under investigation.

Ramstein, the largest U.S. Air Force base in Europe, has been a stopover point for the steady stream of U.S. planes headed to and from the Middle East. Worley said the C-5A belonged to the 60th Airlift Wing at Travis Air Force Base in California. He said it was flown by a crew from Kelly Air Force Base in Texas.

At Kelly, base spokeswoman Maj. Donna Pastor said 10 reservists with the base's 433rd Military Airlift Wing were aboard the plane — eight crew members and two maintenance personnel. She said the other seven on the plane were from other Air Force bases in the United States.

The 433rd had not been called to active duty, but some reservists with the wing were voluntarily participating in Operation Desert Shield after arranging time off from their civilian jobs.

The C-5A and C-5B are the largest transport planes in the Air Force fleet and each costs about $148 million.

Under Desert Shield, begun after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, the United States and other Western and Arab countries have sent troops, equipment and warships to the gulf region to protect Saudi Arabia from Iraq.

Lawmakers praise handling of crisis

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress are praising President Bush's handling so far of the Middle East crisis, but some who interrupted their summer break for a presidential briefing are wary about the future.

"I don't think there's a question of a blank check here" for the president, said House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash. But during an hour-long meeting Tuesday with Bush and top aides, "there were really no overall reservations" by the 170 or so lawmakers present, he said.

Both Democrats and Republicans were effusive about Bush's diplomacy: the garnering of international support for an economic boycott of Iraq, the winning of United Nations backing for military enforcement of the blockade and his enlistment of Arab military forces in the regional show of strength.

"For the moment, among professional politicians, there is a sense of awe at how brilliantly Bush has handled this," said Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., the House minority whip.

Congress will continue to support Bush's actions "provided that we do not get into a protracted struggle where the goals are not clear, where there's loss of life and there does not seem to be an opportunity for victory," said House Majority

Whip William Gray, D-Pa.

But there were worries, as well. "There was concern about where the line in the sand is," said Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich. "There is no sense of how long it will last."

Others said Bush avoided the crucial question of whether Iraqi President Saddam Hussein can remain in power in his own country even if he pulls out of Kuwait, which his forces overran on Aug. 2.

"I am concerned about what it is that we want to leave there," said Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J. "What happens when all this is over? I think it's very important that (Iraq's) military machine be rendered inoperative before we can call this mission a success."

Other lawmakers said they believe the administration intends to wait for Saddam's own people to overthrow him, or that the world will rely on a long-term multinational peacekeeping force to rein in Iraq.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., said he worries about the lopsided nature of the international force in Saudi Arabia.

"The Germans think they have constitutional problems in sending troops outside the NATO area. The Japanese just send cash," said Obey, chairman of the House Appropriations foreign operations subcommittee. "If we don't watch it, we'll have a 90 or 95 percent share of the on-the-ground troops. I

Council proposes tax hike

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council approved the first reading Tuesday night of an ordinance authorizing the issuance of $430,000 in contractual obligations for the purchase of 15 new police cars and a new fire truck.

A specially-called final reading of the ordinance is scheduled Thursday at 5:30 p.m. at the airport.

City Finance Director Tom Ferguson said effective Oct. 1 there will be a 2.82-cent per $100 valuation property tax increase to help pay for the bond indebtedness. Only Mayor Max Green voted against the ordinance, although Councilman Chuck Condray was absent when the vote was taken.

Longtime financial advisor Joe Smith, of First Southwest Co. in Abilene, told the council that the city is able to borrow the money because of the recently-created Public Property Finance Act of the local government code.

The action will increase the effective tax rate to .5769, which is the maximum allowed before a rollback vote must be called, Ferguson said.

The $430,000 will be paid back over a 10-year period through annual property tax increases, he said.

Ferguson said the proceeds from sale of the bonds will be placed in an escrow account at First National Bank.

The monies in that account will be used to pay for the police cars and fire truck, he said.

Smith recommended that the County employees to get 5 percent pay increase

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

County employees and elected officials will receive a pay raise of about 5 percent next year, the Howard County Commissioners Court decided Tuesday at their final budget workshop. The last pay raise was a $65 per month across-the-board increase in 1987-88.

The most recently proposed 1990-91 budget of $6.9 million, a deficit budget, includes an ad valorem tax rate decrease from .3281 cents to .3278 cents per $100 valuation. However, tax revenues will increase 3 percent due to increased mineral and oil-related property values. Expenditures in the budget are almost $950,000 more than revenues.

The 5 percent salary increases would be implemented one of two ways, depending on whether salaries for elected officials can be increased in the middle of the fiscal year. If they can, a $50 a month across-the-board raise will go into effect Oct. 1 for elected officials and employees. Then on Jan. 1, salaries will be increased 3 percent.

A public hearing on the budget has been scheduled for Sept. 10, at which time the budget could be approved. The tax rate could be set at a Sept. 24 meeting.

Deficit budgets have been approved for the past four years, although cuts and some increased fees in 1989-90 actually increased surplus funds this year by a projected $1.2 million.

Commissioners were originally considering increasing salaries by 3 percent, which would have cost about $90,000. However, closer scrutiny of items in the Road and Bridge Department led to cuts of over $125,000 and prompted commissioners to increase salaries by 5 percent, which will cost about $150,000.

Cut from the budget was $100,000 for the purchase of a motor grader, a soil compactor and two pickups. Other cuts were made in the form of reductions in funds for caliche, patching materials, bridge materials and fence posts and wire. Equipment repair costs, radio equipment and a summer employee program were also cut back.

"These are realistic cuts you think you can live with?" Commissioner Bill Crocker asked as County Engineer Bill Mims read through the list.

"I think so," Mims responded. Although they would like to have the items and services, he said at one point, they were things they "can get by without."

The 5 percent salary increases would be implemented either one of two ways, depending on whether salaries for elected officials can be increased in the middle of the fiscal year. If they can, then a $50 a month across-the-board raise will go into effect Oct. 1 for elected officials and employees. Then on Jan. 1, salaries will be increased 3 percent.

If the pay for elected officials cannot be increased in January, then they and county employees

Dallas chief may face perjury charge

DALLAS (AP) — Felony perjury charges are to be filed against Dallas Police Chief Mack Vines in connection with his testimony before a special investigatory panel, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

In a copyright story, the newspaper quoted sources as saying the district attorney's office is expected to file the charge today, referring the case to a Dallas County grand jury.

The Dallas Times Herald reported in a copyright story that the case could go to the grand jury as early as next week.

A third-degree felony perjury charge would carry maximum punishment of up to 10 years in prison and fine of up to $10,000.

The incident began when Vines testified before a panel reviewing the 1989 dismissal of Officer Patrick LeMaire, sources said. The panel had confronted the chief with accusations that he tried to influence the testimony of an assistant chief regarding the speed of the internal investigation of Officer LeMaire.

Murderer ran drug ring from jail

SAN ANGELO (AP) — A convicted triple murderer operated a drug ring from the inside the Lubbock County Jail and was able to use inmate telephones to make telephone calls pertaining to the drug ring, a narcotics officer has testified.

Damon Jerome Richardson of Lubbock is the last of 21 defendants to be tried on organized crime charges resulting from a wiretapping investigation in April and May 1988.

The case was transferred from Lubbock to San Angelo on a change of venue, based on extensive pre-trial media coverage in Lubbock. Judge Brad Underwood of Lubbock's 364th Judicial District is presiding.

Richardson was in the Lubbock County Jail during the wiretap investigation, awaiting trial on capital murder charges.

He was accused of killing three people on Sept. 3, 1987, and was convicted on those charges a year later in Abilene. That conviction, and the death sentence Richardson received, are now under appeal.

Mom gets 5 years for caging sons

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A woman who locked her two sons in a homemade cage for four days has been sentenced to five years in prison for child cruelty.

The cage in which Terri Forbes placed her boys, ages 12 and 16, had a chair and mats to sleep on. Its sanitary facilities were a soft drink bottle in which to urinate and a grocery sack for defecation.

A Caddo District Court jury in April convicted Forbes and boyfriend Vincent Talbot of two counts each of cruelty to a juvenile for placing the boys in the cage last year. Talbot, who built the cage, is to be sentenced later.

AG gets settlement from solicitor

AUSTIN (AP) — A professional charity fundraiser was ordered by a state district court judge to pay the state $90,000 and give $40,000 to charity, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said.

Mattox said Tuesday that Jerry Watson and Bryon C. Hughey had solicited funds on behalf of several charities, but little of the money went to the charities.

The defendants, doing business as Watson and Hughey Co. and Cancer Fund of America, Inc., spent most of the money on fundraising, administration and "public education," Mattox said.

Reservists: Middle East missions tiring, scary

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Air Force reservists who have flown cargo loads to the Middle East under Operation Desert Shield say their journeys were tiring and sometimes frightening.

"There is a fear factor when you do go into a situation where there could be combat," said Maj. Dennis Means, a reserve pilot who has made three trips to the region since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Means and other members of the 433rd Military Airlift Wing at Kelly Air Force Base are flying C-5 cargo planes to the Middle East to take supplies to troops. The wing hasn't been called to active duty, but more than 200 members of the wing are voluntarily participating. The reservists spoke with reporters Tuesday at Kelly.

Later in the day, a C-5 with a crew of 17 — including 10 reservists from the 433rd — crashed and burned at Ramstein Air Base in West Germany, killing at least 10 people.

Technical Sgt. T.W. Robinson said he knows his family is worried about his missions to the Middle East, and particularly about the possibility that his reserve unit could be called to active duty.

"They're concerned about me of course, but they know that this is a job that I've promised to do," said Robinson, a flight engineer who also works as a civilian computer technician.

Crew members said one of their biggest problems was battling fatigue during the trips, which sometimes included only six-hour stopovers in Saudi Arabia.

"It's tough. You're just real tired," said Means, who in civilian life is a pilot for Southwest Airlines. He has taken unpaid time off to fly the Middle East missions.

Several reservists talked of the hot, sandy desert in Saudi Arabia.

"The glare off the sand flying over it is absolutely almost blinding," Staff Sgt. William Salter said. "You almost get the impression you're flying over another planet all together."

Salter, who described the Saudi Arabian desert as what he imagines the surface of Venus might look like, said he wished he could have stayed longer, but was glad he wasn't there permanently.

"It's the kind of place you get the impression you're glad you don't live there," he said. "It's good to visit once or twice just to say you've been there. But it takes some getting used to."

Staff Sgt. George Hernandez said his job was to make sure the C-5s were in good shape despite the sand and searing heat.

"Where ever it's flying, you still have to check the tires, the oil," he said.

Fatal crash
SAN ANTONIO — One person was killed and one other injured when this single-engine plane crashed in a field in far north San Antonio early Tuesday morning. Rescuers did not find the crash site until several hours later after triangulating on the plane's emergency transponder.

Angry shrimpers Say snapper restrictions could ruin industry

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Restrictions designed to help red snappers could severely cripple and possibly kill the shrimping industry, according to Texas shrimpers who testified at a hearing held by the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council.

Most shrimpers agree that officials should do something to help increase the population of red snappers, but they told authorities at a Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council that those restrictions could hurt them.

The council, a federal body that develops policies for managing fish in the Gulf, has proposed the three restrictions in response to overfishing of Gulf waters.

Overfishing, the council argues, causes a reduction in the numbers of young snappers which would reach spawning age. About 300, including shrimpers from Brownsville and New Orleans, attended the public hearing here Tuesday night. More than 400 people turned out for a hearing Monday night in Brownsville.

"(Shrimpers) support a May 1 through July 1 or even July 15 closure but feel that the industry cannot survive a closure for the entire month of July." — Sidney Herndon.

Douglas Gregory, Gulf Council staff biologist and statistician, said that at least 20 percent of each year's new red snapper offspring must survive and reach maturity if the species is to survive. National Marine Fisheries Service has estimated that only 1 percent of those young fish are now surviving. The proposed restrictions include a reduction in the daily sport fishing bag limit from seven fish per angler to two, cutting the commercial catch from 3.1 million pounds to 1 million pounds and closing the Gulf of Mexico to shrimp trawling from May 1 to July 31 beginning next year.

Shrimpers may also see additional shrimping closures by 1993 or be required to use fish excluder devices, so that young fish can escape shrimpers' nets.

The regulations target federal waters of the Gulf, beginning 9 nautical miles off the Texas coast and extending out to 200 miles.

"The (Texas Shrimp Association) believes that these measures should be given a chance to work before increasingly stringent regulations are implemented," Sidney Herndon, chairman of the board of Herndon Marine Products of Aransas Pass, said. "The stock seems to be on the rebound already and current management measures will enable that recovery to continue. We urge the council to give this plan a chance."

Shrimpers, who already face a closure from May 15 to July 15, say shrimping closures through the entire month of July, the most productive month for shrimping, would severely cripple the industry.

Oil prices rebound from Monday slide

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices rebounded Tuesday from a tumultuous slide a day earlier, rising almost $1 per barrel as traders speculated on diplomatic efforts to resolve the Middle East crisis.

Traders also were monitoring OPEC discussions that could lead to higher crude production, offsetting the shortfall caused by the international boycott of Iraq and Kuwait. Overall, however, market strategists saw no news that could push it wildly in either direction.

"It was such a collapse yesterday that it's getting its breath," said Philip L. Dodge, an oil analyst with Nomura Securities International Inc. "OPEC has postponed their meeting, maybe suggesting to some that they're not agreeing on ways to increase production."

In Vienna, ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries delayed formal endorsement of a plan for production increases to give more time to hear from absent members Iraq and Libya.

The price of light sweet crude, the benchmark grade of oil, rose 97 cents to $27.88 per barrel for October contracts on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Wholesale unleaded gasoline rose .97 cent to 88.53 cents per gallon for September delivery, while home heating oil rose 1.42 cents to 79.52 cents per gallon on September contracts. Natural gas barely budged, closing at $1.500 per 1,000 cubic feet, compared with Monday's close of $1.502 on October contracts.

With no cataclysmic news coming from the Persian Gulf, traders pondered the diplomatic nuances and reports of prospects for peace in the region, a crucial provider of petroleum to the United States and other developed nations.

By some reckonings, 4 million barrels of oil a day has been removed from the market because of a U.S.-led boycott of crude from Iraq and Iraq-occupied Kuwait.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar planned to meet Thursday with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz to discuss the turmoil that has developed since Iraq seized Kuwait Aug. 2.

Earlier speculation about a non-violent solution to the crisis was a partial cause of Monday's $4-per-barrel drop in the price of crude, but some petroleum strategists said Tuesday the market may have overreacted.

"It's almost as if the market has declared peace, but in reality we're still missing 4 million barrels a day of oil," said Stephen Smith, an analyst with Bear Stearns & Co.

Others predicted prices would fluctuate, pending outcome of Perez de Cuellar's mission.

"It's just a very choppy market at this point," said Ed Kevelson, of Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. "I think it will chop around for a couple of days. You'll probably see a lot of emphasis put on that meeting."

Utah blaze started by campfire

MIDWAY, Utah (AP) — A 2,600-acre forest fire that killed two firefighters and destroyed 19 homes was caused by a campfire, investigators said Tuesday.

Firefighters expected to bring the blaze, burning 30 miles east of Salt Lake City in the mountains near this community of 1,200, under full containment by 11 p.m. MDT Tuesday.

John Shive, incident commander of the Interagency Fire Team coordinating efforts to snuff the blaze, predicted it would be controlled by 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The fire, propelled by 60 mph winds, exploded in tinder-dry oak brush and pine trees Sunday afternoon. Shive said an ember from a smaller blaze — ignited by a campfire — apparently drifted over firelines and started the deadly inferno.

Authorities said they hadn't determined who started the blaze, which caused millions of dollars in damage, destroyed 19 homes and cabins and forced evacuation of more than 300 others.

Police search for killer, students keep weapons

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Scores of police took up the hunt in this terrified college town today for the "maniac on the loose" who killed and mutilated five students. Students armed themselves or fled to their parents.

"We slept with steak knives last night," said a tearful Stacie Green, a 19-year-old junior from Jacksonville. "I had to call my mom. This is unreal."

The victims — four women and a man attending either the University of Florida or Santa Fe Community College — were slain in three attacks at off-campus apartments since Sunday. Police would not disclose how they were killed but said three victims were mutilated. A newspaper said one was decapitated.

Police checked out several reports of suspicious people around the city overnight, but made no arrests, Lt. Sadie Darnell said this morning.

Police have refused to say how the killer got into the apartments, which are within a few miles of each other.

"It's clear this part of the country has some maniac on the loose," said University of Florida President John Lombardi. "It reminds us of a natural catastrophe. The killer is selecting victims by criteria that are not clear to us."

Police Chief Wayland Clifton said the slayings probably were linked, based on the killer's methods, but he would not elaborate. Sheriff's Lt. Spencer Mann said he was less certain of a link. He said only that there were similarities.

"You'll see more police coverage than you've ever seen in any city you've ever lived in," Clifton said.

The buildup was scant comfort for the thousands of students living off campus in the town of 90,000, where the slayings have stirred memories of serial killer Ted Bundy. He died in the electric chair last year after murdering two Florida State University sorority sisters in Tallahassee in a 1978 rampage.

Hundreds of students bolted their doors, fled to emergency shelters, went home to their parents or angrily demanded details on the slayings and how to protect themselves. Many armed themselves with pistols, stun guns and Mace.

Judge orders ban to save dolphins

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal judge has ordered a ban on imports of tuna caught by five nations until they can show that they are not killing more dolphins than U.S. law allows.

U.S. District Judge Thelton Henderson on Tuesday said the Bush administration had given foreign fleets too much time to comply with a 1988 federal law requiring an embargo of any nation whose dolphin-killing rate was more than twice the rate of the U.S. tuna fleet.

The law provided for an embargo at the end of 1989 unless the Commerce Department had determined that a nation's dolphin kill rate was under the limit, Henderson said. The department contended it was entitled to evaluate figures submitted by each nation from 1989, an assessment that has not been completed.

August Felando, president of the American Tunaboat Association, the largest group of U.S.-flagged tuna boats, said the embargo could have serious consequences.

He said foreign boats caught 46 percent of the light-meat tuna canned by U.S. companies last year.

Up to 26 killed by Illinois tornado

CREST HILL, Ill. (AP) — National Guardsmen took up positions to stop looting today after tornadoes flattened scores of homes, tossing bodies 400 feet into a cornfield. Up to 26 people were reported dead and at least six were missing.

The dead included at least eight people from an apartment complex demolished by a twister.

At least 293 people were treated at hospitals after the cluster of tornadoes touched down in four spots Tuesday afternoon, cutting an eight-mile trail of destruction leading to the northern Illinois city of Joliet.

SEARCHING FOR SURVIVORS

"We are going out and assessing the damages and starting the mop-up," Mayor Mary Lotta of Plainfield said today.

She said looting had not been a major problem.

United Nations may run Cambodia

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States and the four other permanent members of the Security Council want the United Nations to run Cambodia until a new government is elected, but the warring parties have yet to agree.

The proposals adopted Tuesday by the five nations call for the world body to "supervise and control ... if necessary" five key Cambodian ministries — defense, foreign affairs, finance, public security and information.

It would be an "unprecedented" U.N. operation to solve a regional conflict, one U.S. diplomat said — costing the United Nations up to $5 billion over one or two years and involving as many as 10,000 peacekeeping troops and 10,000 civilian personnel.

"We have gone as far as we can as the five permanent members," said a U.S. diplomat involved in the talks, which also included Britain, France, China and the Soviet Union.

"Now it is up to the four Cambodian parties," said the diplomat, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "The question is, can the four Cambodian factions agree?"

The diplomat was referring to the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge, its two U.S.-supported non-communist guerrilla allies led by Prince Norodom Sihanouk and former prime minister Son Sann, and the Vietnam-installed government in Cambodia.

Gulf crisis strains Israeli hearts

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Persian Gulf crisis appears to be taking a toll on some weak-hearted Israelis.

Shahal, a private company that operates a 24-hour telephone emergency service for Israelis suffering from heart conditions, on Tuesday reported a 20 percent increase in the number of calls since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

"When subscribers call Shahal we don't ask them their political opinion on the situation, but it is difficult to give another reason to what is happening," said Erez Alroy, deputy head of the company, which has more than 15,000 subscribers in the Tel Aviv and Haifa areas.

"We see an apparent link between the situation and the anxiety. Part of their release of tension is by calling the hotline," Alroy said.

He said Shahal has received 170 calls compared to the average of 140 daily and that intensive care units have been sent out 25 times a day as compared to the usual 20.

Moscow forced to ration cigarettes

MOSCOW (AP) — Facing a tobacco shortage that has produced street protests and rioting in some cities, Moscow's City Council decided Tuesday to ration cigarettes starting Sept. 1.

When Moscow residents pick up their monthly coupons for sugar, which is already rationed, they will also get coupons for five packs of cigarettes per person, the newspaper Vechernaya Moskva said.

Tobacco coupons apparently will be issued in the same indiscriminate manner as sugar coupons, which means that every resident — including children and non-smokers — will get the same amount.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The City of Big Spring will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1989 by 12.89%. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in the taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on Wednesday, September 5, 1990 at 5:30 P.M. in the Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark Conference room at the Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark in Big Spring, Texas.

FOR the proposal: Pat DeAnda, Gail Earls, Corky Harris, Sidney Clark, Tim Blackshear

AGAINST the proposal: Max Green

ABSENT: Chuck Condray

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the effective tax rate that the unit published on August 19, 1990. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average Home Value	$25,260	$24,940
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	5,052	4,988
Average taxable value	20,208	19,952
Tax rate	.71	.5769
Tax	$143.48	$115.10

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would decrease by $28.28 or 19.77% compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would decrease by $26.91 per $100 of taxable value or 18.75% compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Free market school plan

The parental-choice bandwagon will gain even greater momentum if Oregon voters approve a November ballot initiative that would provide tax credits to cover tuition for private schools or the expense of educating a child at home. If the measure is adopted, it will be the most comprehensive school choice reform to date.

Next month, Arkansas, Iowa and Nebraska will join Minnesota in allowing parents to select the public schools their children attend. No fewer than 23 other states are considering similar proposals. In a breakthrough pilot program, 1,000 low-income Milwaukee children will have the opportunity to attend private, nonsectarian schools at state expense. Choice programs already have been adopted in various cities.

Because state funds follow students, school districts have a special incentive to improve their offerings under the choice concept. Otherwise, they could face the prospect of going out of business.

This free-market approach is looking better and better to taxpayers and parents who are tired of seeing such a small return on their educational investment. More than 60 percent of parents of school-age children surveyed in a recent Gallup Poll said they wanted to choose their children's school. Parental choice is especially popular among poor families who view a quality education as the key to their children's ultimate escape from poverty.

Critics frequently contend that parental choice is an elitist plot to destroy public schools by siphoning off the better students. Not true. If anything, choice is designed to rouse public schools from their torpor by making them more accountable to all students.

Under the current system, public schools have little incentive to do better than they did the previous year. Each fall, they are virtually guaranteed a captive student enrollment because of mandatory attendance policies. The state, moreover, pays the districts several thousand dollars per student, even though many drop out of school without acquiring the basic skills needed to function in the job market.

Taxpayer funds should be going to those schools that provide a safe and sensible learning environment. That is precisely the point of parental choice, which proceeds from the logical premise that competition is good for public schools. Small wonder this good idea appeals to a public disillusioned with the government's de facto educational monopoly.

Agent Orange links still being denied

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration has continued a shameful pattern of denying the link between Agent Orange and medical maladies of the Vietnam veterans who were doused with the herbicide.

Newly declassified reports show the federal government knew more than it was willing to admit about Agent Orange three decades ago, yet it continued haphazard use of the dioxin-laden chemical. The picture is of a cavalier U.S. war effort bumbling along with Agent Orange, discovering pitfalls along the way and covering them up with a propaganda campaign.

We have examined military and State Department memos that were traded on the issue of Agent Orange in the 1960s. They show that whatever the government knew about the dangers of Agent Orange, it used the defoliant anyway, in the face of questions about its safety and efficacy.

The documents suggest a government policy of composing the music while playing it — making up policy as it went along and covering up the blunders. When Agent Orange's dangers drew public flak, the government ducked the fire through public relations campaigns instead of seriously examining the problem.

Even from the get-go, there was more concern about rubber plantations than about the soldiers and civilians. The U.S. operations respected a secret, five-mile buffer zone around Vietnamese rubber plantations, for reasons "we must accept," according to a June 1968 memo from the U.S. Embassy in Saigon. The same classified memo refused that courtesy to populated areas.

The plantation owners had more clout than poor villagers and their crops, but even the plantations suffered because of goofs in the spraying program. A November 1967 memo to the U.S. ambassador in Saigon from his assistant noted that unintended drift of Agent Orange "was responsible in early 1967 for significant damage to the rubber plantations." Some of that drift was blamed on "navigational error."

Other memos fret about this problem of drift and how to correct it. The implication is that

Jack Anderson

Agent Orange was spread over even more than the 6 million acres that were targeted.

Our associate Dan Njegomir examined the old documents and talked to advocates who have tried for years to get the government to take responsibility for the fallout from Agent Orange. Ron Rossani, a disabled Vietnam vet who has studied Agent Orange for years, said the documents reveal "incompetence at the highest level."

As public concern grew in Vietnam and at home, the U.S. government seemed most interested in orchestrating a media blitz as a counter measure. One proposal that was almost adopted was an outright lie.

In late 1967 and early 1968, a series of memos proposed that the government publicly declare that Agent Orange would be banned in certain heavily populated areas. "In fact, this area would be so defined as to cover areas where there is very little use of defoliants any longer in any case," according to a secret internal Army memo from November 1967. "Appearing to restrict the use of defoliants," the memo continued, would have the added benefit of good psychological warfare because it would suggest "that large areas were sufficiently pacified by now."

The Army never went public with that lie, but it wasn't an attack of honesty that stopped the proposal. The plan was dropped because the army was afraid the Vietcong would congregate in the areas touted as Agent-Orange-free.

We asked the Pentagon to comment on the pattern of deception evidenced in the memos. A spokesman insisted the Agent Orange program was undertaken without an eye to public relations. "It had a military purpose and a military application only," he said.

Time to say no to Puerto Rico

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Let it be stated for the record, bluntly and without qualification: Statehood for Puerto Rico is an intolerable proposition. Pending bills that would pave the way to that prospect should be defeated out of hand.

The American press regrettably has paid little attention to the Puerto Rican issue. The situation is heating up. Two Senate committees have completed work on a bill (S. 712) that would speed the path to statehood. A subcommittee in the House has reported its bill (H.R. 4763) to the full Interior Committee.

Under a timetable proposed last year, Puerto Ricans would go to the polls on June 4, 1991. They would choose among three options: statehood, independence, or continued status as a commonwealth. Under the Senate bill, if a majority opted for statehood — even a majority as fragile as 50.1 percent — Puerto Rico automatically would become our 51st state. Under the House bill, a vote for statehood would still require supplementary legislation.

If a plebiscite is to be held next summer, a Puerto Rican bill would have to be passed very soon. Time is short and pressures mount. Floor votes could come at any time after the committees formally report their bills.

The case for Puerto Rican statehood echoes some of the arguments that one hears in support of statehood for the District of Columbia. As citizens of the United States, the island's 3.3 million residents are subject to service in the armed forces. Like residents of the District, they have no voting representation in Congress. The difference is that residents of Puerto Rico pay no federal income taxes or Social Security taxes, and they have no vote for president.

Two paramount objections stand in the way of statehood. The first is cultural, the second constitutional.

Spanish is the principal language of Puerto Rico. Spanish would continue to be the principal language under statehood. The island's proud culture is essentially an Hispanic culture. No act of Congress could alter these facts of life. To admit Puerto Rico to statehood would be to invite the very dissension that has torn Canada apart over the question of French-speaking Quebec. The answer to this invitation should be an emphatic no!

The precedent of Hawaii is inapplicable here. With Hawaii's admission to the union in 1959, the tradition of geographical contiguity was breached, but the principal language of Hawaii is not Hawaiian, but English. It is all very well to have a multilingual society — we have large areas of multilingual population in Florida and in the Southwest — but official bilingualism is something else entirely. The U.S.A. enjoys the great benefit of a common language, abuse it as we may. That asset ought never to be compromised.

Under the Constitution, Congress may admit new states by simple statute, but on one point the Constitution seems clear. It says that "all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States." In its status as a commonwealth, Puerto Rico now enjoys a great benefit of non-uniformity: U.S. companies doing business in Puerto Rico pay no income taxes on their profits there.

This provision, known as Section 936 of the Tax Code, has been of incalculable value to the island. A study by the Congressional Budget Office concluded that without the incentive of Section 936, Puerto Rico would lose 100,000 jobs over the next 10 years. The unemployment rate is now 14.4 percent. The prospect is for economic disaster.

Proponents of statehood respond in several ways. They point out that the Constitution does not say that "taxes" must be uniform throughout the United States; it says only that "all duties, imposts and excises" must be uniform. Moreover, proponents have written a neat gimmick into their bill in order to surmount any problem of uniformity: Federal taxes would be collected in all the states, but during a five-year transitional period in Puerto Rico the proceeds would be given back. The phrase is "covered over." It is in fact a cover-up.

This won't do. With statehood, residents of Puerto Rico would qualify for an additional $2 billion to $4 billion a year in welfare benefits. If they want to go for independence, fine. If they want to maintain their successful status as a commonwealth, fine again. But statehood? No. Statehood is irrevocable. Neither Congress nor the island could change its collective mind hereafter. Let us fend off the idea while we can.

Ramps are needed by many people

To the editor:

Why do we not have ramps? I know a few people who need them very badly — but still no ramps! I'd like to know who is running this show of horrors. I'd be interested in finding out, if only to plead with them for mercy for the handicapped who are in wheelchairs and for the elderly who need them to walk up — but still no ramps!

I had an accident the other night and I sure could've used one (a ramp, that is). But still I must say that wasn't the limit of my injuries though. I was at this place... on Gregg Street! Now on with my story. I had trouble getting into the place to start with, and on the way out is where I made my debut. I fell off the steps going backwards! What happened to our security? What happened to the City Council who are responsible for what happens in Big Spring? What happens to the many people who just happen to be tax payers?

Please place this in your next "letters column". Thank you so much for letting me get off my chest what has been needed to be said for a long time!

Bad checks need immediate action

To the editor:

I read and I hear about how people want this town to grow, but yet it does not happen; why? Is it because of attitude or what? My point is this: Concerning people who write bad checks, why don't they make the names public, let everyone know who it is that is doing, and do away with this waiting period of anywhere from 15 to 60 days before you can start any legal action. But now you turn checks into the courthouse and all you hear is give them a little more time. But what are the merchants to do while the checks are hanging in limbo and their money is tied up. This is the only county in Texas that has the waiting period on checks. They have tried to do away with it here, but council members fought it on the grounds that people should have a chance to pick up the checks. But to give them 15 to 60 days, is that a little stupid? Look after the merchants. They pay a lot of taxes, too. Bring back Melba Soles. She can get it straightened out.

The steamy side of Atlanta

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Look what's happened to that grand ol' gal of the South, Atlanta.

She's become a sexpot. She's Hollywood East. She's where it's happening, sexually speaking.

I'm not certain when all this started. I'd guess you'd go all the way back to Scarlett O'Hara.

Let's face it, she was hot. I still think Ashley probably gave in to her advances at least a couple of times, and she probably was involved with the Tarleton twins, too. Maybe even at the same time. A menage a Tara.

Now, we zoom to modern times. The last great sex scandal of the '80s took place in Atlanta.

Rob Lowe. The 16-year-old girl. "Sexiest Hotel Room Videos" and all that.

A political party (the one besides the Republicans, I forget the exact name) decides to hold its national convention in Atlanta and the big story is Rob Lowe and sex, not Michael What's-his-name and politics.

And then there is the mysterious case of the 16,000 condoms (unused, I presume) being stolen from Atlanta's Grady Hospital.

That really happened. As far as I know, the culprit or culprits have not been fetched, but is

Lewis Grizzard

Rob Lowe tied into this in any way? The man obviously has the sexual appetite of a West Texas jackrabbit.

Steve Garvey, the Rob Lowe of baseball, has a fling with an Atlanta woman during all the sexual mess he got into.

And Rankin Smith Jr., president of the Atlanta Falcons, gets hit with a paternity suit by a woman who claims he fathered not one, but two of her babies.

No wonder the Falcons have been so bad. When did Junior have time to run the team?

Now, the latest: Atlanta Catholic Archbishop Eugene A. Marino has been sexually linked with a 27-year-old looker, who claims he exploited her when she came to him for counsel regarding sexual abuse by another priest.

Isn't this a spicy little number? Let's call it, "Celibate Is Irrelevant" or "It Sure Gets Hot Under the Collar in the Summertime."

Personally, I enjoy a good sex scandal occasionally, but Atlanta has had a veritable buffet of them.

Is it in the drinking water? Is it the steamy nights with all that humidity?

Is there a connection with the fact our sports teams are always so lousy?

Does Jane Fonda, rumored to be more than just friends with Ted Turner, have anything to do with any of this?

What does the Pope have to say? Do any of the participants in Atlanta's sex scene sleep with a trumpet?

Was Scarlett, if the truth be known, actually a nympho who slept with a third or so of the entire Confederate army? How long would 16,000 condoms last her?

Did anybody ever realize just how much fun priesthood could be?

I wish I had some answers for these questions, but I don't. I also don't think there is a shred of truth to the rumor that Rhett Butler was actually bisexual and walked out on Scarlett rather than tell her of his true feelings for a certain young Union lieutenant he met at a gay bar Sherman missed.

RUWEISHID, Jordan — Refugees carry their belongings with them as they cross over into Jordan from Iraq Monday morning in Ruweishid, Jordan.

Americans asked to write letters to troops in Persian Gulf region

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are being encouraged to write letters to U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf region in a new campaign organized by the group No Greater Love.

The campaign, called Operation Brave Heart, is designed to offer emotional support to military men and women in the gulf and to boost their morale, the group said Monday.

Separately, US Sprint Communications Corp. said it is offering U.S. military personnel in the gulf free calls home in the event they are wounded, expecting the birth of a child, or facing other emergency situations. The calls would be relayed by shortwave radio to ham radio operators in the United States and from there into US Sprint's telephone network, said company spokesman Jim Crawford in Washington.

The Postal Service announced last week that only letters weighing 12 ounces or less could be sent through APO or FPO addresses to personnel involved in Operation Desert Shield. Packages will be returned to sender because the Defense Department is putting priority on military cargo shipments, officials said.

No Greater Love, a non-political support group for families of U.S. hostages and other victims of terrorism, inited Americans of all ages to participate.

It said the salutation for the letters should be: Dear "Brave Heart". Letters sent to the Army, Air Force and Marine Corps in Saudi Arabia should be addressed: Operation Brave Heart, c/o Operation Desert Shield, APO New York 09848-0006.

Letters sent to the Navy and Marine Corps on board ships in the Gulf region should be addressed: Operation Brave Heart, c/o Operation Desert Shield, FPO New York 09866-0006.

Asian refugees swarm into Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — In a crowded refugee center, Ghulam Hussain Ali thought about the job he lost in Kuwait and how he may support his two sons if he returns to impoverished Pakistan.

He raised his palms to Allah.

"Nobody here knows what he will do," said the 28-year-old former port guard. "There is no work. Too many people in Pakistan."

Each day, Asian workers fleeing Kuwait and Iraq join thousands already in the refugee centers, where Jordanian officials provide limited services while urging governments to aid in repatriating the often destitute and desperate people.

Some officials estimate the potential Asian refugee wave could swell into the hundreds of thousands. About 250,000 foreigners, including Arabs, have fled to Jordan since the Iraqi invasion of neighboring Kuwait on Aug. 2.

"We expect an avalanche," said Sofi Ullah, the Bangladeshi consul in Abu Dhabi who came to Jordan to supervise repatriation. He said 600 were flown home and 9,000 remain. "This is the best we can do," he said.

Most of the workers, who came to the Persian Gulf seeking better jobs, fled nearly penniless with whatever they could grab: a small radio, a few shirts, a Koran, a soup spoon.

Egyptians and Sudanese are flown out directly from Aqaba, Jordan, but Bangladeshis, Pakistanis, Indians, Sri Lankans, Thais, Filipinos and Nepalese wait for word from their governments.

Jordanian volunteer committees provide food, tents and basic essentials.

But a senior Jordanian official who spoke on condition of anonymity stressed that resources are limited.

"No one will be allowed to stay in Jordan," he said. "We don't want to push governments, but we expect cooperation soon. We will not allow a refugee problem here."

"At the rate they are taking us home, it will be six months," said Mosharof Hussain Khan, a Bangladeshi refugee from Kuwait. "After six months in this place, a man will die four times."

Khan sat on a mat among other refugees at an Amman exhibition hall, forbidden to go outside because neighbors complained they were begging and relieving themselves in public.

"We have 22,000 people living here, and toilets, maybe 10," Khan said. "You can think about that."

Ullah said 70,000 Bangladeshis worked in Kuwait, with another 7,000 in Iraq.

Khan and his friends assailed Bangladeshi authorities, saying a consular officer visited the Amman International Fair camp but refused to talk to anyone.

"One plane every other day, this is impossible," Mujibar Rahman said.

"We have extremely limited resources," Ullah said. "We wish that some friendly country or charitable organization will make available a Hercules (transport plane) or a jumbo (jet) or a ship to help us."

At a separate center, nearly 5,000 Pakistanis await flights home. More arrive than leave.

Refugees sprawl listlessly on mats, wait in water lines or sit and brood. At lunchtime, they stand hours in line for a piece of bread, a tomato and a thin slice of salami.

"Everyone wants to do something good, but we don't know where to start," said Hind Talib, a nurse who is helping with sanitation at the center.

Early on Tuesday, one Bangladeshi attacked another with an iron bar in a quarrel over mattress space.

Yet the refugees worry more about the future.

At the Amman International Fair, a crowd of 40 Bangladeshis gathered around a reporter who stopped to talk. One asked out loud in Bengali if anyone had even a faint prospect for a job back home. "No!" all shouted in unison.

Manop Kraiwan, a stocky Thai driver in an electric blue jogging outfit, took in the scene with a stoic smile. He has been in Kuwait almost five years supporting a young son he has never seen.

"I don't know where to look for work anymore," he said. "Things change, but I'm trying."

Name change jinxes golf business

NORTH MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Morris Dweck was counting on the allure of the Middle East to drum up business when he added a roadside genie and changed the name of his miniature golf course to "Treasures of Baghdad."

The changes, made well before the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, have not proved popular in the vicinity of Myrtle Beach Air Force Base.

"We've had this place for eight years, and up to this year, it was known as the Golden Dragon," Dweck said of his 36-hole course at a prime location across from a water park. "Now we don't have anybody at all during the day, and only an occasional person at night, when it's supposed to be the most crowded."

Dweck spent $15,000 on a fancy "Treasures of Baghdad" sign and added a roadside turbaned genie sitting cross-legged with a bobbing head.

Around town, one of the hottest-selling souvenirs is a T-shirt featuring a likeness of Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein above the line "Public Enemy Number One." The Air Force base sent several A-10 jets to Saudi Arabia.

"It's been tough in a few other ways, too," Dweck said. "A man and his family came by not long ago, got ready to play and asked us which Arabian country we were from."

"I told him we were Jewish and from New York, and he immediately packed his family up and left," he said. "He was from Jordan."

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer. Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. The cost is only $64.50. A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Prisoners and seniors plow, plant

AGAWAM, Mass. (AP) — A sheriff opposed to "warehousing" prisoners has inmates plowing and fertilizing plots of land for gardens tended by the elderly, with the harvest going to the jail kitchen or to charity.

"We're just so grateful we have this opportunity to do it," said Elizabeth Burke, 85, one of the gardeners honored Monday at a ceremony marking the program's third year.

Mrs. Burke said she had no qualms about taking part in a program with prisoners. "They've got two eyes and a nose and a mouth just like me," she said. "These boys have just gone wrong."

"I think it's tremendous. I think it's a healthful sort of thing, not only for the seniors, but also for the inmates." — Ed Morytko, 71

The program was started by Hampden County Sheriff Michael Ashe, whose unorthodox style caused controversy in February when he seized a National Guard armory in nearby Springfield to house overflow inmates from the county jail.

The inmates were later moved to an armory in Holyoke until a new, bigger jail is built. Some of those inmates are among those doing the heavy work at the jail farm, generally out of sight of the senior citizen gardeners.

To ease community objections to the temporary jail in Holyoke, a town of 45,000 in western Massachusetts, inmates have patched streets, swept gutters and mowed lawns.

"When you think of a jail you think of something that's very isolated, sort of a fortress in the woods," Ashe told the group of 29 senior citizens who work a half-acre at the farm about two miles from the county jail.

"It's a joy for us to see you involved," Ashe said. "It's great to have you participate and I know the inmates make comments to us that they feel good about their own self-respect."

Fifteen inmates with good records who have almost finished their sentences work on eight acres of corn, tomatoes and other vegetables — enough produce to save the county about $30,000 a year. Surplus food goes to charity.

On Monday, the first golden globes from a pumpkin patch planted for poor children were showing.

The older gardeners, often cooped up indoors, said the program has given them the kind of space they haven't had in years.

"I think it's tremendous," said Ed Morytko, 71. "I think it's a healthful sort of thing, not only for the seniors, but also for the inmates."

Morytko, who has been in the program for a year, admitted that at first "I didn't know what to expect." But a friend who had already gardened at the farm "told me not to be foolish," and Morytko said he'll be back next year.

Sandra Smith, acting director of the Agawam Senior Center, said the popularity of the farm project has grown. "I have people on the waiting list now that want to come in next year," she said.

Inmates said they relish the chance to work outdoors rather than spending their time in a cell.

"We have a lot more freedom in here," said a 23-year-old inmate spraying corn for pests. "In a way it shows me that you get to earn your money and you get to earn your living."

Air bags to be in 1995 GM cars

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., the world's largest automaker, plans to install air bags on the driver's side of all its cars built in the United States by the fall of 1995.

Barring unforeseen design problems, the safety devices would be in all Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles, Buicks and Cadillacs, the company said Monday. The plan doesn't apply to cars GM makes in cooperation with Japanese companies, such as the Geo and the Nova.

The announcement came as GM plays catch-up with its Big Three competitors in installing a safety device that appears destined to become as common as the safety belt.

Chrysler Corp. currently equips almost all its North American-made cars with air bags, first announcing the step in 1988, and Ford Motor Co. has air bags in about half of its fleet.

Under federal law, all cars made in the United States after Sept. 1, 1989, must have either an air bag or automatic seat belt for drivers and front-seat passengers.

GM last November said that driver's-side air bags would be standard or optional equipment on 1.3 million 1991 models, up from 450,000 model 1990 cars.

Air bags normally are stored in the steering wheel and inflate rapidly during a crash. They have been mainly on the driver's side because that seat always is occupied and because many injuries are caused on impact with the steering wheel.

GM President Lloyd Reuss said the company will begin offering passenger-side air bags in the 1992 model year. Officials said GM is conducting research on rear-seat air bags, but there are no firm plans to offer them.

Engineering and market considerations led GM to decide to install driver's-side air bags by late 1995, said Donald Postma, spokesman for GM's Technical Staffs Group.

The only GM cars lacking driver's-side air bags would be those in which the systems posed unforeseen design problems. "As far as we know there won't be any exceptions," Postma said.

GM first introduced air bags as optional equipment in the 1988 model year. Since then, the automaker has made the devices standard on some models and introduced them as options on others, which Postma said would continue until 1995.

Postma declined to say how much each air-bag system costs GM. Air bags on the 1990 Oldsmobile 98 and Oldsmobile 88 are options costing the consumer $850, he said.

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety estimates that air bags have inflated in about 2,500 crashes since the early 1980s. It estimates that widespread air bag use could save up to 9,000 lives annually.

Drought devastates Okefenokee Swamp

WAYCROSS, Ga. (AP) — Pogo's home swamp is so dry that overcrowded alligators are starting to eat each other.

A summer drought has turned the Okefenokee Swamp into a tinderbox, with water levels at their lowest in 20 years, said Don Perkuchin, manager of a 396,000-acre national refuge in the swamp.

Fire danger and a wildlife crisis forced the refuge's closure to fishing enthusiasts and boaters.

"A lot of the canoe trails have no water," Perkuchin said. "We're very dry and it's been a cumulative effect over the last decade. What it's going to take is a major tropical system to dump a 5- or 10-inch rain, or a long period of substantial rain to turn things around."

Okefenokee Swamp, encompassing about 700 square miles mostly in southeast Georgia, is the real-life wetland the serves as the fictional home of comic strip character Pogo, created by late cartoonist Walt Kelly.

Okefenokee National Wildlife Refuge workers are using a helicopter to spot small fires, most sparked by lightning, Perkuchin said.

"We've had lightning strikes and we've had to go out and dump water on those," he said in a recent phone interview from his Folkston office.

A fire discovered July 7 burned 4,500 acres of swamp land before it was doused. "If things continue to stay dry, the fire hazard can get worse," Perkuchin said.

Much of Georgia has been plagued by drought since June. Farmers have suffered up to $350 million in crop losses and some communities in the Atlanta area have had to restrict water use.

Bill Cribbs, a biology professor at Valdosta State College who has made a lifelong study of the swamp, said the crisis is hitting wildlife.

"Youngerigators are being eaten by otherigators," he said. "Fish resources are really taking a beating both from consumption by other animals and reduced habitat. A lot of the bird life you'd normally see, you just don't have around the swamp."

The Suwannee River, one of two rivers that originate in the swamp, is almost dry, Cribbs said.

"It's not 6 inches deep in some places and you have to drag the boat," he said, adding that September and October are usually the swamp's driest months, followed by a three-month wet season that typically begins in December.

"I'm expecting it to get much drier before it gets better, unless we have a hurricane," he said.

"When you have a drought period and all the water recedes to these small areas, the alligators eat turtles, snakes, smaller alligators and even the raccoons that come to feed," he said. "If they didn't eat their own population, there'd be nothing to hold the (alligator) population in check."

The swamp is home to more than 25 species of birds, including the sand hill crane and the endangered red cockaded woodpecker. Other residents include black bears, armadillos, at least two types of rattlesnakes, water moccasins and endangered eastern indigo snakes.

Ex-students fail to repay school loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government estimates that defaults on student loans will cost taxpayers nearly $2 billion this year, and a major reason given by people who wince on debt is that they are out of work.

Many said they simply didn't like the education they got, the Education Department said Monday.

"Unemployed and without income" was cited more than any other reason, slightly ahead of "working, but insufficient funds," the department said in an 80-page booklet called "Reducing Student Loan Defaults: A plan for action."

"Behind the default statistics are students who are either unable or unwilling to repay their loans," says Education Secretary Lauro F. Cavazos in the introduction.

"Many of the defaults could have been prevented if everyone involved in student loans — students, post-secondary institutions, lenders, guarantee agencies and the federal and state governments — had worked together," the report says.

Cheeleaders attend mini camp

By RAEMI FRYAR
Knott-Ackerly Correspondent
 The Sands High School Cheerleaders held a Mini-Cheerleading Camp Aug. 20-22 for kids through the sixth grade to raise money for their trip to compete at the national level later this year.

Among the 16 girls completing the camp were: Shauna Nichols, Kara Hughes, Andrea Gillespie, Amanda Riddle, Katie Gaskins, Marla Reed, Holly Zant, Mendi Floyd, Amy Rodriguez, Keele Barnes, Anna Beth Hall, Katy Goch, Valerie Wootan, Aubrey Foster, April Kennemur, and Stacy Gillespie.

Along with learning the latest cheers and chants, the girls also experienced cheerobics, jump adjustments, and evaluations of what they had learned by their "instructors" at the end of each day. Named to the Honorable Mention Cheerleading Squad were Amy Rodriguez, Andrea Gillespie, and Kara Hughes. Second runner-up and voted Most Spirited was Mendi Floyd. First runner-up was Hollie Zant with the winner being Keele Barnes.

School is not the only thing on our minds these days, Aug. 13 marked the beginning of SHS football, coached by Randy Roemisch. Varsity and JV teams have been practicing twice a day for the past six weeks preparing themselves for the season. On Friday, the Mustangs scrimmaged and beat the Borden County Coyotes at Gail. The Mustangs will also scrimmage again this Friday against Smyer at Ackerly.

New teachers; a few changes

Not everybody is ready for the new school year to begin, but the time has arrived to hit the books all over again. Sands CISD has made a few changes for the upcoming year and one of these is adding some members to its faculty. New teachers this year will be Debbie Gleghorn, Lamesa, Special Education; Leland Bearden, a Sands and Texas Tech graduate, who will teach social studies and serve as assistant girls basketball coach; Allison Foster, Ackerly, elementary aide. Although she isn't exactly new to the school, Zelda Bilbo will also take over as the elementary principal.

Also on the change list this year, Sands will not begin school until 8:40 a.m., allowing sleepy teenagers 15 minutes more sleep time; and will not dismiss until 3:20. This new schedule then leaves only three minutes in between classes turning the halls into a two-lane freeway!

Woman in rug business is called on the carpet

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in the carpet business. We do beautiful work and our prices are right. When so-called "friends" show us carpet they have installed in their homes, which they bought somewhere else, and they ask us what we think of it, what should we say? (They even have the nerve to tell us how much they paid for it.)

Nine times out of 10 it is a poor job of installation, and they paid too much. I always tell them the truth. My husband says that I should never knock the competition, regardless, otherwise it will sound like sour grapes.

These same people never even let us give them an estimate! I say why should we consider their feelings if they don't consider ours? What do you think? — CARPET PEOPLE

DEAR PEOPLE: I think your husband is right. And the same goes for people in the jewelry business, furniture business, fur business and every other kind of business.

DEAR ABBY: I think it was very considerate of that hairy husband to shave his chest for his wife. My husband is as hairy as an ape and refuses to do anything about it. We sleep spoon-fashion with me in front, and sometimes I just about go crazy when his big hairy chest heaves up and down and tickles my shoulders and back — in rhythm yet! I know just how that lady must have felt. — TICKLED PINK

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS, and how to prevent unwanted pregnancy. It's all in Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Erase unwanted marks

By TONY WEDIG

Everyday products with multiple uses fascinate me. This week I would like to share with you a remarkable (no pun intended) remover — the eraser.

The eraser is a very old product. It dates back to ancient times. In 1858 Hyman Lipman brought it of age and received a patent for attaching it to a pencil. Today the U.S.A. leads the world in the manufacture and sale of pencils and erasers.

The eraser is composed of pumice (a porous abrasive), rubber and gum to hold the eraser together and wax which helps in the dissolving of oil substances. A person's home is full of places to put the eraser to work.

The main ingredient in pencil lead is graphite — carbon. The eraser is designed to remove carbon. The soot (carbon) and other residue from any burning process found in your home can be easily erased.

Black heel marks can be erased with an eraser along with the residue from tape and price tags. Light switches, grout in tiles, door frames, and door knobs are also easily cleaned with an eraser.

All in all, when in doubt, try an eraser.

Recently I had a congested nasal passage — I thought this sounded better than stopped-up nose. When I looked for my empty plastic nasal spray bottle, I could not find it. I asked my wife where it was.

"I threw it out dear, it was empty," she said.

Kitchen Kemistry

"That's why I wanted it, because it was empty," I responded.

You see, a Kitchen Kemist needs a lot of empty bottles to pour his concoctions in. As luck would have it I located another empty nasal spray bottle. As Watson would say, "The game was afoot."

Anyone who has gone swimming in the ocean will agree with me that ocean water is nature's nose spray. This salt solution will provide temporary relief of nasal congestion due to colds, sinusitis, or allergies. Wow, what a commercial. What an idea — ocean water in a spray bottle to relieve nasal congestion. What a profit margin!

It is very easy to make simulated salt water. Add one half teaspoon of table salt (sodium chloride) with a like amount of diet salt (potassium chloride) to four ounces of tap water. Stir and allow to stand.

When this solution is saturated, which is what you want, solids will be left in the bottom of the container. Fill the sprayer one-half full with this solution and one-half with tap water. Use as you would other nasal sprays.

You just don't understand: The languages men and women speak

NEW YORK (AP) — Eleanor and Isaac Cullick are the kind of people who take time to chat with strangers, but they were barely speaking to each other when their 12-year marriage broke up in 1971.

"He was a lecturer. It seemed that every time he spoke to me, it was a critique," said Eleanor, who now lives in Houston. "I don't think he... was the type of person who could share experiences and emotions and feelings."

"All I ever did was listen," said Isaac, who is remarried and still lives in Shreveport, La. "She was going to have things her way. I couldn't reach Eleanor. It's amazing, people can live together but can't talk things out."

The Cullick's story is not unique. And in her new best seller, "You Just Don't Understand: Women and Men in Conversation," Georgetown University sociolinguist Deborah Tannen suggests why.

"Because men and women are regarding the landscape from contrasting vantage points, the same scene can appear very different to them, and they often have opposite interpretations of the same action."

No one is to blame here, the author cautions.

It's just that people of different genders generally speak different languages. Tannen reached that conclusion after studying hundreds of hours of videotaped conversations between men and women, boys and girls.

"Men and women grow up in different worlds," Tannen said in a recent interview. "It's utterly essential that people accept and understand the differences. Other-said Tannen, who lives and teaches in Washington. "But for women, talk is the glue that holds relationships together."

These are stereotypes, but sociolinguists said they apply more often than not. Since the publication of her book this spring, Tannen said

"A lot of people wondered why we took the course," said Kass, who lives with her husband in Denver. "But it really helped us get our marriage off on the right foot."

It wasn't that the couple would otherwise have started out in a women communicate is not only helpful on the homefront, sociolinguists said. Gender-based conflicts show up and can be resolved in the workplace as well.

Take, for instance, the way in which a male employee interpreted an order from Barbara Meade, co-

"It's like speaking English and French. It's not that one is better than the other," said Robin Lakoff, a linguist at the University of California at Berkeley. "They are just different."

Gender studies experts, whose field has blossomed since the late 1970s, said the communication gap is rooted in childhood.

"Boys' groups are hierarchical and activities-oriented," Tannen said. "Girls' groups tend to be egalitarian, smaller. They tend to have one best friend... and spend a lot of time telling secrets."

When they grow up, women often expect their mates to be that same best friend, which often baffles men more comfortable with locker room towel-snapping than sharing secrets.

Tannen said couples can reach a happy medium with time, patience and compromise. But it will take a lot more to change the fundamental mindsets that separate men and women, researchers said.

"The kinds of language differences we see reflect real differences in the way men and women are in the world," said Penny Eckert of the Institute for Research on Learning in Palo Alto, Calif.

"Language is symptomatic of other things, of underlying power relations... in a male-dominated society."

Over 15 years of research, sociolinguist Deborah Tannen said she's seen clear conversational patterns emerge. Men use talk primarily to communicate a desire or goal, while women consider exchanges important in and of themselves, she said.

To a woman, hashing through the day's details often indicates intimacy. For her mate, the ritual may simply seem a drag.

To a woman, hashing through the day's details often indicates intimacy. For her mate, the ritual may simply seem a drag.

Similarly, she said, "Women often feel a relationship is working if you're talking about it. Men feel it's working if you're not talking about it."

"A lot of men feel that a woman's insistence on talking things out is like a dog hanging onto a bone."

she has received scores of telephone calls and letters from fans of her theory.

"Misunderstood gender differences is one of the biggest causes of divorce," said Howard Markman, who directs the University of Denver's Center for Marital and Family Studies.

"It's a pervasive problem... but couples who learn how to understand each other can successfully improve their chances of having a happy marriage," the marital researcher said.

John and Kass Patterson did. The couple took Markman's "Premarital Relationship Enhancement Program" before they wed two years ago. Today they are expecting their first child.

"Women are trained throughout their lives on how to talk things out and express feelings," said Kass, 30, a legal secretary. "I am still more the one that pulls things out of John, but since the course he's much more vocal."

Each also understands better what the other is trying to say.

"You become aware of the differences in the way you argue," Kass said. "Sometimes there's no changing the other person, but understanding eases the frustration."

owner of Politics & Prose Bookstore in Washington.

"I wanted him to do some specific tasks having to do with bookkeeping... and thought it was understood," Meade recalled. "But apparently... he thought I was asking if he'd be willing to do it."

Tannen says this is common. Women often couch a direct order in an interrogative phrase: "Would you mind...?" Whereas men usually say simply: "Do it."

Both bosses may be issuing an order, she said, but a male employee will likely interpret a female boss's request as optional while a female employee will often find her male boss's style unnecessarily peremptory.

City orders legal action against delinquent owners

By MICHAEL DUFFY
 Staff Writer

Responding to a request from representatives of Big Spring Main Street, Inc., the city council instructed City Attorney Mike Thomas to initiate legal action against the owners of burned-out buildings in the downtown area.

Public Works Director Tom Decell will meet with Mike Thomas to review the status of two buildings located on the west side of Main Street between Second and Third streets.

Thomas advised the council he will probably have to initiate criminal charges against Larry Moffat, who owns one building, as a way of coercing him into paying for the demolition of the building, an action which has been ordered by the board of adjustments and appeals.

Thomas said a provision of the Health and Safety Code allows municipalities to fine an owner up to $2,000 for not complying with the board's order.

Big Spring Main Street Inc. Coordinator Beverly Franklin said the owner of one of the buildings in question has already verbally agreed to pay for the demolition of his property.

The third downtown building is owned by a woman who doesn't reside here and owes a considerable amount of back taxes, Franklin said.

Contacted this morning in Midland, Moffat denied that he owns the building. He said the property was deeded to another party by quitclaim in April.

A scheduled public hearing on the proposed 1990-91 fiscal year budget never materialized. No one asked to address the council about the $16 million budget.

In other action, the council approved a resolution authorizing a waiver of the water bills for residents of the Capehart addition.

City Manager Hal Boyd said the city will issue $5,232 in refunds for water bills paid by residents of that housing addition from June 20 through July 19.

The resolution was opposed by Councilwoman Pat Deanda and Mayor Max Green, who wanted to introduce a resolution that would allow individual residents to petition the city for a waiver because of inferior water.

Deanda said she believed the council's action promotes favoritism and will result in future repercussions.

The council also dismissed Traffic Commission Chairman Don Proctor's recommendation that it request the state Department of Highways and Public Transportation for a survey on a 2½-mile stretch of highway along FM 700. The traffic commission made its recommendation during last week's board meeting.

Following a 20-minute executive session, the council approved a lease agreement with Basin Aviation in Midland to act as the fixed base operator at the airport.

Boyd said the city currently has a temporary agreement with Basin and he will present a long-term contract to the council for its approval at a later date.

The council also approved the 911 communication budget of $134,375 for the 1990-91 fiscal year, which included a five percent salary increase for director Carl Dorton.

DPS tests show Hardy severely intoxicated at time of accident

By MICHAEL DUFFY
 Staff Writer

A 19-year-old Big Spring man who remains in a Lubbock hospital for injuries sustained in a one-vehicle collision that claimed the life of another man Aug. 9, was severely intoxicated at the time of the accident, according to the Department of Public Safety.

DPS Trooper Jim Lasater said Scott Hardy's blood alcohol level was .21 — or more than twice what is considered legally intoxicated in Texas — at the time of the accident.

The blood alcohol level of Brenton Hartfield, also 19, who suffered massive head injuries in the accident and died a short time later at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, was .08, slightly under what is considered legally intoxicated, according to Lasater.

It is not yet known who was driving the vehicle.

Lasater said he was informed of test results Tuesday night. The analysis was performed by the DPS Toxicology/Crime laboratory in Austin.

Lasater said because of the high level of alcohol in Hardy's blood system, toxicology tests to determine the presence of drugs were not performed.

The standard for legal intoxication in Texas, and in most states, is a blood alcohol level of .10.

Toxicology tests on Hartfield confirmed there were no drugs in his system at the time of the accident, Lasater said.

Howard County Justice of the Peace Willie Grant said she did not order an autopsy for Hartfield.

Blood samples were taken from both men at Scenic Mountain and sent to the DPS laboratory in Austin, Lasater said.

Hardy, who has been taken out of the intensive care unit, is listed in satisfactory but stable condition at University Medical Center in Lubbock, a nursing supervisor said this morning.

Lasater said hospital physicians monitoring Hardy have informed him that, although his condition is improving, the Big Spring man is suffering from memory lapses.

DPS investigators are still unsure about who was driving Hardy's 1990 Silverado pickup when the accident occurred at the 11th Place Extension, approximately one-half mile east of FM 700.

"There was no way of telling by the physical evidence at the accident site," said Lasater. "The only way we will know is if we can talk to Scott."

Until it is confirmed who was driving the pickup at the time of the collision, Lasater said he would not consider presenting a case to the district attorney's office for possible criminal prosecution.

Lasater said the pickup was traveling 82 mph at the time the accident occurred. The posted speed limit is 45 mph.

Scientific team finds riches in forest

NEW YORK (AP) — A conservation "SWAT team" has returned from an unexplored Bolivian forest with plants unknown to science, tales of spectacular animals, and a case of bubonic plague.

The team's trip to northern La Paz province, Bolivia, was the first test of a method for surveying wilderness areas to determine whether they are deserving of protection or further study, said Russell Mittermeier, president of Conservation International in Washington, D.C., which devised the method.

The month-long trip by four American field biologists and three of their counterparts in Bolivia revealed an area with one of the richest collections of plants and animals on Earth.

"It's really confirming that the region may be as diverse as the Manu National Park (in Peru), which is known to be the richest protected area on Earth in terms of biological diversity," Mittermeier said.

The SWAT team — known more properly as a "RAP team," for rapid assessment program — found 403 species of birds and 45 species of mammals, including three not previously known to exist in Bolivia. They were the spiny tree rat, the big-eared bat and the short-eared dog.

"For me, the most exciting thing was the sighting of this short-eared dog," said Mittermeier. It was spotted by Louise H. Emmons of the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History.

"It's an extremely poorly known animal. She actually got a look at one with a frog in its mouth." That was the first observation ever of the animal feeding in the wild, Mittermeier said.

Emmons also found something she wasn't looking for: fleas carrying bubonic plague, the black death of the Middle Ages.

"She came back and got sick, and they said 'You've got the plague,'" Mittermeier said. "They cured it, but she was out of it for a few weeks."

The team also came back with hundreds of plant specimens, which they are now studying. "Some of them are likely to be new to science," the team said in its report.

The council also approved an emergency reading of a resolution authorizing Mayor Max Green to execute an agreement for the sale of the bonds.

The council also set Sept. 5 as the date of a public hearing on the proposed property tax increase. It will be held at 5:30 p.m. in room 1106 at the airport.

Ferguson said that when a city's effective tax rate exceeds 3 percent, the council is mandated to call a public hearing on the matter.

The city is also required to publish notice of the public hearing at least seven days prior to the hearing date.

That notice, which appears in today's edition of the Herald, must make public each council member's recorded vote on the tax rate increase, Ferguson said.

Employees exempted from the percent increases include the librarian, whose pay will be increased from $21,300 a year to $25,500 and the indigent health care director from $20,724 to $25,238.

Exempted from the percent increases will be the county court coordinator whose salary will increase $2,000 a year and the director of the senior citizens center, who will receive an additional $600 a year.

Current salaries for elected officials include $23,238 a year for commissioners and $31,434 for the county judge, according to County Auditor Jackie Olson. Among the higher paid elected officials is the county attorney who receives $35,784. Among the higher paid employees is the county engineer who receives $32,904.

Pay for some other elected officials includes $29,604 a year for the county clerk and the tax assessor-collector and $23,238 for each of the three justices of the peace.

Meanwhile, commissioners indicated in earlier meetings that they may cut some job positions as they become vacant throughout the year in order to cut spending. "There's a job or two at this courthouse we could do without," said Commissioner David Barr on Tuesday as he addressed the issue again.

County Judge John Coffee, who said the tax base has eroded by 16.6 percent since 1985, said that somehow the tax base would have to be increased.

The Court is currently working on an overall economic development plan which will allow them to apply for federal grant monies for the creation of jobs in the county. Previously they have looked into creating jobs through ventures such as a proposal to locate a state prison in Big Spring.

"Hopefully as of Jan. 1 the oil values will go up and we can play some catch up," Coffee said.

Would you say that Sports Illustrated has it in for Notre Dame?

In the current issue of Sports Illustrated, a former Notre Dame linebacker claims steroid abuse was widespread and that two assistant coaches even recommended the muscle-building drug.

Last season, a Sports Illustrated story held Notre Dame responsible for a pre-game brawl at South Bend between Irish and Southern Cal players.

Sports Illustrated say it isn't attacking the good Catholics in South Bend.

"We are not watching Notre Dame any closer than any other school," said SI Publisher Donald J. Barr. "We are not camped on the doorstep looking for flaws in a great institution."

"This story was brought to us. We wouldn't have practiced good journalism if we didn't pursue it."

The magazine's managing editor, Mark Mulvoy, said back-up sources confirmed the story of steroid abuse.

The steroid story all began when Steve Huffman, who left the Notre Dame football team in 1987 with an injury, claims nearly half the lettering players used steroids. The muscle-building drugs have negative side effects and are banned by the NCAA.

Huffman's first-person article in the Aug. 27 issue contended two assistant coaches suggested steroid use and that Coach Lou Holtz must have known of the situation. Huffman also claimed Holtz pressured him to play despite his injury.

Huffman contacted SI writer Rick Telander, who flew to Dallas and interviewed him, said Mulvoy.

Notre Dame acknowledged five players have tested positive for steroids since 1987, but Holtz flatly denied all of Huffman's allegations. Former ND coaches say Huffman is retaliating against Holtz because in a book Holtz wrote about the 1988 national championship season, Holtz called Huffman a quitter.

So is SI picking on Notre Dame, or is it simply good journalism. I vote for good journalism. After all, Donald J. Barr is a Notre Dame alumnus.

The San Angelo Standard-Times released its football tab Sunday and it was very impressive. There was a section listing West Texas' best players in the 1980s.

None of the Big Spring players made the first team, but there were some named to the second team. Big Spring had the unique distinction of having the only brother duo named to the West Texas All-Decade Team.

From the 1986 Steers district championship team, Jay Burcham, now attending Abilene Christian University, was named to the second team as an offensive lineman. I guess the Standard-Times didn't know, Burcham played defensive tackle.

Making the second team from the '86 team as a punter was Brian Mayfield, who went on to play basketball at Southern Methodist University. Brian averaged 44.7 yards per punt.

Little brother Neal Mayfield, a current Steer player, was named to the second team as a utility player, for his performance at wingback for the Steers.

While leading the Steers to the state semifinals last season, Neal rushed for 1,051 yards, averaging 7.8 yards per carry. As a receiver he caught 47 passes for 908 yards. He scored 31 touchdowns in 14 games.

Here's something to think about — with another superb season, Neal could have the distinction of making All-Decade teams in two different decades.

The Big Spring Herald's football edition comes out Sunday. This special 12-page section will give readers a preview of all 10 Crossroads Country teams and schedules, plus much more. Don't miss it!

Men's number one seed ousted

NEW YORK (AP) — How sweet it is for Jennifer Capriati. And how Swede it was for the legion of players from that Scandinavian country.

Capriati, the 14-year-old sensation from Wesley Chapel, Fla., made her first trip to Stadium Court at the U.S. Open. She was impressed and impressive, and she became the youngest winner ever at the National Tennis Center.

"I think that's great that I could do that," she said after her hard-fought 7-5, 7-5 victory over West Germany's Anke Huber. "I feel really good about it."

And as far as the 20,000-seat Louis Armstrong Stadium is concerned, she said, "It's so big."

Before Capriati made her U.S. Open debut in the cavernous stadium, Stefan Edberg made a quick exit.

Four years ago, five players from Sweden were seeded at the U.S. Open, the top 16 players in the world. This year, Mats Wilander was the defending champion and Edberg was the No. 1 seed, coming off his second Wimbledon title in three years.

Today, only four Swedes are left in the men's draw. Wilander and Edberg are not among them.

Ivan Lendl, seeking a record ninth consecutive trip to the final and his fourth title, played his second match in two days today when he faced West Germany's Michael Stich.

In other key matches today, fifth-seeded Gabriela Sabatini played Isabelle Demongeot and Martina Navratilova, the No. 2 seed going for her second consecutive Grand Slam title, faced Britain's Clare Wood. In night matches, Monica Seles, the French Open women's champion, plays Ros Fairbank-Nideffer and Jim Courier, seeded 14th in the men's singles, takes on South African Gary Muller.

Edberg on Tuesday became the first top seed to lose in the opening round of the U.S. Open in 19 years, falling to Alexander Volkov of the Soviet Union 6-3, 7-6 (7-3), 6-2.

"He was very relaxed out there and had nothing to lose," Edberg said of Volkov.

NEW YORK — Jennifer Capriati of Broken Sound, Fla., returns a shot to Anke Huber of West Germany during her first round match in the U.S. Open Tuesday at the National Tennis Center. Capriati, the youngest player in the tournament, won the match 7-5, 7-5, to advance to the second round of play.

Edberg, on the other hand, had a lot to lose, but not the world's No. 1 ranking. Despite the first-round defeat, the right-hander will continue in the No. 1 spot even if No. 2 Boris Becker or Lendl, the No. 3 player, wins the U.S. Open.

Wilander, who rose to No. 1 in the world after winning the U.S. Open in 1988, has fallen to 59th on the computer. Unseeded this year, he was ousted by eighth-seeded Brad Gilbert on Monday.

Besides Edberg, other Swedes falling on Tuesday were Mikael Pernfors, the French Open finalist in 1986, Thomas Hogstedt and Lars Jonsson. Remaining in the hunt for the title are Johan Carlsson, Anders Jarryd, Peter Lundgren, David Engel and Jonas Svensson.

Edberg has one other distinction: He is the only seeded player to lose thus far in the tournament.

Tuesday's winners included Lendl, No. 4 Andre Agassi, No. 7 Emilio Sanchez, No. 9 Aaron Krickstein, No. 10 Andre Chesnokov, No. 11 Michael Chang and No. 13 Jay Berger.

Besides the 13th-seeded Capriati, other women's seeds who were victorious on Tuesday were Navratilova, No. 4 Zina Garrison.

Sabatini, No. 6 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, No. 9 Manuela Maleeva-Fragner, No. 12 Jana Novotna, No. 14 Natalia Zvereva and No. 15 Judith Wiesner.

Capriati ripped off the first eight points of the match en route to a 4-0 lead.

John McEnroe, a four-time U.S. Open champion who is unseeded this year, won his first-round match.

Bats away!

ANAHEIM, Calif. — California Angels right fielder Dave Winfield looses grip of his bat in the third inning of Tuesday night's game against the Texas Rangers. After retrieving his bat, Winfield grounded out to second base.

UT 'D' looking strong

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas middle linebacker Brian Jones sat on a golf cart, recuperating from 2½ hours of practice in 100-plus degree heat, and recalled the slogan Longhorns Coach David McWilliams came up with in spring training: Whatever It Takes.

Jones knows the rest of the sentence is: to finish better than the 1989 record of 5-6. And to win a bowl game — something the once-proud Longhorns have done only twice in 10 years.

With that in mind, Jones, a 6-3, 238-pound senior from Lubbock, has taken McWilliams' motto and added to it.

"Some of the guys and I have expanded it to 'By Any Means Necessary,' which is taken from Malcolm X," Jones said. "They both pretty much mean the same thing. If it takes practicing in 106-degree heat, then that's what it takes."

The current Longhorn defense has shown signs that it may have the heart of the old Texas teams, which dominated opponents in the 1960s and 1970s.

The contemporary Texas defense blitzed often and successfully during an intrasquad scrimmage on Saturday, coming up with 12 sacks and dominating the offense.

After that performance, defensive end Oscar Giles reflected the mood in the Texas defensive camp.

"I was proud of our defensive lineman, linebackers and secondary," said Giles, a 6-3, 246-pound senior from Palacios. "Every series seemed like three-and-out."

Giles also believes in the "Whatever It Takes" philosophy.

"We were saying that all last spring," he said. "I can't really say where it came from, but it's within us and it is going to stay within us. It's a team deal and a personal deal."

Jones and Giles tied for the team lead in sacks last year, seven apiece.

This year, Jones said, "I want to be in double figures in sacks, have 150 tackles, at least three interceptions and cause at least five fumbles. If I do that, we will win every game."

Texas opens at Penn State on Sept. 8, then hosts Colorado on Sept. 22. Jones, however, does not think the statement is out of place.

"People say you shouldn't say things like that, because then (opponents) will know what's coming. We want them to know we're coming. We want them to know we're coming," Jones said. "It's a challenge to see if you can stop us. I want them to know that there is no place to hide. I want them to know I'm coming."

"It's not confidence, it's not bragging and it's not boasting. We're just convinced that we're better than last year."

Snyder downs spikers

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

It was anything but home sweet home for the Big Spring Lady Steers' volleyball team Tuesday as the Snyder Lady Tigers ruined the Lady Steers' 1990 home opener with a 15-10, 15-8 thrashing at Steer Gym.

The Lady Steers, still searching for their first win, for the season, had fine individual play from Kayla Roberts, Maria Mathews and Tevayan Russell, but were unable to establish any consistency against the Lady Tigers.

Big Spring's inconsistency was what particularly galled Coach Lois Ann McKenzie.

"When you miss 10 serves, it's hard to win," McKenzie said. "We had some bright spots, but we're not playing mentally correct ball right now."

"We let down when we shouldn't have," she added. "The intensity wasn't there. We just went into Nana Land. They'd come back, then they'd stop. It's ridiculous to wait until you're a zillion points down before you start to come back."

The Lady Tigers began their domination early in the first game when they rode the fine serving of Liz Greathouse to a 6-2 lead.

Big Spring rallied briefly on Mathews' serving turn to cut the deficit to 6-4, but Russell netted a kill attempt and Katina Brandon blocked a Kerry Burdette spike to regain Snyder's four-point cushion.

The Lady Tigers then reeled off three straight points — again on Greathouse's serving turn — and held off Big Spring to take the first game.

It was more of the same for Big Spring fans in the second game. The Lady Steers tied it at 1-1 on a serving ace by Mathews, but Snyder scored seven of the next eight points to gain firm command, and cruising the rest of the way to close out the match.

"Player by player, we're better than they are," McKenzie said. "But when you miss 10 serves, it's hard to win. When we were good, we were very good. When we were bad, we were real bad."

"We should've had it," she added. "We just had some key breakdowns. With five starters coming back, it's easy to think we should be whomping on everybody, but it's more than just finding a replacement for Dorothy (Viasana, who graduated). It's a matter of finding the right combination (of players)."

"At this stage, I'm not worried," McKenzie said. "We've got two more weeks before district starts — then I'll panic."

The Lady Steers fall to 0-2 for the season, McKenzie said that the two losses in the Monahans tournament over the weekend don't count because pool play competition doesn't count in the regular season play.

SNYDER MAKES IT A SWEEP
In junior varsity action, Snyder defeated the Lady Steers 15-8, 13-15, 15-8. The junior varsity Lady Steers fall to 3-3 for the season.

The varsity Lady Steers will be in action Friday and Saturday when they compete in the Amarillo tournament.

Astros slugger set to rejoin team

HOUSTON (AP) — Slugger Glenn Davis has rejoined the Houston Astros after completing a rehabilitation assignment with the team's Double-A affiliate in Columbus, Ga.

Davis worked out with the Astros prior to Tuesday night's game with the Chicago Cubs and is expected to be reinstated from the disabled-list prior to Wednesday night's game.

Davis was placed on the 15-day disabled list on June 27, retroactive to June 25th, with a torn muscle in his left rib cage. At the time he was placed on the disabled list, he was hitting .252 and leading the National League with 19 home runs.

During his rehabilitation assignment, Davis hit .297 with one home run and eight RBIs in eight games.

To make room for Davis on the roster, the Astros announced they have waived right-handed pitcher Brian Fisher for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

Fisher, 28, was signed by the Astros as a free agent in February.

He spent most of the season with the Triple-A Tuscon Toros.

Jones and crew gives up license

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Athletic Commission would seek a court order to keep Olympic silver medalist Roy Jones Jr. and his promoters from holding any unsanctioned bouts in the state, the panel's executive director says.

Red Sox take six-game advantage

By The Associated Press
The week that was for the Boston Red Sox isn't over yet.

In the last five days, Boston has won five straight while Toronto has dropped five in a row. And the Red Sox, whose lead was a scant one game after a loss to the Blue Jays last Thursday night, suddenly find themselves with a whopping six-game bulge in the American League East.

Cleveland had taken a 4-3 lead on Brook Jacoby's tie-breaking home run off Dennis Lamp in the bottom of the eighth, but the Red Sox rallied with three in the ninth. The five-game winning streak, including three straight shutouts in Toronto, is their longest on the road since June 1986.

Indians relief ace Doug Jones (4-3), who pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth thanks to a double play, started the ninth by walking Carlos Quintana and Wade Boggs. Ellis Burks popped out, but Greenwell tripled to put Boston ahead and scored what proved to be the decisive run on Dwight Evans' single.

Angels 2, Rangers 0
Kirk McCaskill pitched a four-hitter for his first shutout in more than a year as California spoiled Nolan Ryan's bid for his 302nd victory. Ryan (12-7) made his 700th career start, tying Tommy John for fifth on the all-time list. Ryan lost despite pitching a three-hitter and striking out 11. McCaskill (10-9) struck out four and walked one.

Reds shock Cards with two-out bunt

By The Associated Press
The six-game National League schedule saw 17 doubles, six homers and three triples.

None of those at-bats, however, was any bigger than the walk and the bunt single put together by a pitcher in Cincinnati on Tuesday night.

Reds right-hander Jose Rijo, batting .421 in his last nine games, dropped a two-strike bunt single down the third-base line in front of a shocked Terry Pendleton, giving Cincinnati the decisive run in a 2-1 victory over St. Louis. The win kept the Reds 6½ games in front in the NL West.

Cincinnati led 1-0 on Barry

Larkin's RBI triple in the first inning, then Paul O'Neill led off the second with a double and took third on a groundout.

Rijo said he saw Pendleton back off when Cardinals starter Joe Magrane got to 2-2 in the count. The resulting bunt single gave the Reds a 2-0 lead.

Rijo (10-6) allowed only one run despite giving up six hits and four walks in five innings. Relievers Tim Layana and Randy Myers finished the game, with each pitching two innings and allowing one hit apiece. Myers earned his 26th save in 30 chances.

Magrane (8-15) gave up just five hits in eight innings, retiring 10 in a row in the middle innings. But the only support he got was Ozzie Smith's RBI single in the third.

The Reds have outscored the Cardinals 41-21 this season and have won nine of 11 games against them.

Cubs 5, Astros 2
Ryne Sandberg's fourth-inning home run made him the first second baseman in history to have consecutive 30-homer seasons, and Greg Maddux pitched his seventh complete game in the Chicago's victory over Houston.

Maddux (12-11) didn't allow a runner past second base until he gave up two runs in the ninth. His seven complete game trails only the eight by Ramon Martinez and Dave Stewart in the major leagues.

Dave Clark also homered for the Cubs.

Brewers 9, Pirates 0
Atlanta handed Pittsburgh its fourth consecutive loss as Charlie Leibrandt pitched a five-hitter for seven innings and Greg Olson drove in four runs with a double and a homer.

Leibrandt (6-8), who lost five of his previous six decisions, did not walk a batter, and the Braves jumped on Pirates starter John Smiley (7-7) for three runs in the first inning, chased him with three more in the fifth and got the final three on Olson's seventh homer.

Dodgers 5, Phillies 1
Kirk Gibson's single with two outs in the eighth inning broke a 1-1 tie, and Hubie Brooks had three RBIs for Los Angeles against Philadelphia.

The Dodgers had only three hits off Jose DeJesus (4-5) through seven innings, but Jose Offerman led off the eighth with a walk. Offerman advanced to third on a sacrifice and a groundout before in the seventh. Pat Borders followed with a bloop single that scored Olerud and cut the Brewers' lead to 4-2.

Athletics 3, Royals 2
Terry Steinbach's two-out, bases-loaded single drove in the tying and winning runs in the ninth inning. After Danny Tartabull put Kansas City ahead with a leadoff homer in the top of the ninth, the A's loaded the bases against Royals reliever Jeff Montgomery (5-3).

Twins 12, White Sox 6
Kent Hrbek's two-run homer in the fifth inning put Minnesota ahead to stay and the Twins handed slumping Chicago its fourth straight loss.

Yankees 11, Orioles 3
Baltimore-killer Jesse Barfield and Randy Velarde homered to back Mike Witt's pitching. Barfield, who was 4-for-4, singled home the tying run in the second inning and hit a tie-breaking two-run homer in the fourth. It was the 20th of the season for Barfield, who has homered in three straight games and has hit five home runs against Baltimore in eight games. He is 14-for-27 against the Orioles.

Mariners 4, Tigers 3
Edgar Martinez hit a two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning off Paul Gibson (3-4) following a single by Harold Reynolds. Keith Comstock (6-3) got the victory with 1 2-3 innings of hitless relief after replacing Brian Holman.

The Mariners took a 2-0 lead against Jack Morris in the third when Martinez singled and Ken Griffey Jr. hit his 18th home run. The Tigers went ahead 3-2 in the fifth. Mike Heath singled, Tony Phillips walked and Lou Whitaker hit his 15th home run.

Cubs second baseman makes history at 'Dome'

HOUSTON — The Astrodome was full of surprises for Chicago's Ryne Sandberg, who didn't expect to hit 30 homers this season and he didn't expect to reach the milestone in the spacious home of the Houston Astros.

But there he was in the fourth inning Tuesday night, hitting a solo home run over the left field fence and making history.

Sandberg became the first second baseman to hit 30 or more homers in consecutive seasons as he led the Cubs to a 5-2 victory over Houston.

"It's tough to hit home runs here," Sandberg said. "I was very fortunate to get one tonight."

Sandberg hit 30 homers last season and didn't realize before the season that he could become the first second baseman to do it consecutively.

"Before the season, I knew nothing about it, but it's a nice accomplishment," he said. "I didn't expect to hit 30 again this year."

"Last year was a career high and I'm surprised to see it happen again."

Sandberg is glad he's reached the milestone homer. Now he can return to his normal style.

"For the past couple of weeks, I've been swinging for the fences too much," Sandberg said. "Now I can just hit the way I normally hit and if the home runs happen, they happen."

Houston starter Bill Gullickson (8-12) had pitched three hitless innings when Sandberg came to the plate to start the fourth.

He hit an 0-2 pitch over the left field fence to record. It marked the ninth time a second baseman has hit at least 30 homers.

The others were: Dave Johnson, Atlanta, 1973, 42; Rogers Hornsby, 1922, 42 and 1925, 39 with St. Louis and 1929, 39 with Cubs; Joe Gordon, Cleveland, 1948, 32 and with New York Yankees, 1940, 30; Bobby Grich, California, 1979, 30 and Sandberg, 1989, 30.

"All I've been reading in the papers is my chance to get 30 homers again and my average has suffered," Sandberg said. "There was a point when I was hitting different from my normal style. Now I can get back to normal."

No one appreciates Sandberg more than Cubs manager Don Zimmer.

"How would you like to be a manager in the major leagues and have a guy who makes all the plays, hits .300 and gets 30 home runs?" Zimmer asked. "He's the best at his position in baseball."

After Sandberg's homer, Andre Dawson tripled and scored on Luis Salazar's single.

Sandberg had a sacrifice fly in the fifth to score Shawn Dunston and Dave Carter hit a solo homer in the sixth, giving the Cubs a 4-0 lead.

Colts happy; Eric will show for physical

By The Associated Press
While most teams cut down, the Indianapolis Colts are happy that Eric Dickerson will show up.

At least to take another physical. Dickerson, who failed an examination after arriving late for training camp, will have his injured left hamstring looked at again today, according to his agent.

"We have talked to Colts general manager Jim Irsay and told him that Eric will be there and is coming back to pass his physical and to fulfill his contract obligation," Leigh Steinberg said Tuesday. "Eric attempted to report earlier and was ready to start preparing for the 1990 season when the club determined that he had a non-football injury."

Should Dickerson pass, he can begin working out with the team, if the Colts don't decide to unload the often-unhappy running back. Dickerson criticized his offensive line for not protecting him and threatened to retire rather than play for Indianapolis again.

Steinberg said he had no information of a deal involving his client, who is scheduled to earn $1.45 million in the final year of his contract.

"I believe if a trade was in the air, I would know about it," Steinberg said.

Neither Irsay nor Coach Ron Meyer would comment on Dickerson's situation.

However, it was a disappointing situation for Lyle Alzado and Hanford Dixon. Both were forced to retire on Tuesday, as NFL teams trimmed rosters to 60 players.

Alzado, 41, had attempted to return to the Los Angeles Raiders after five seasons out of football.

Packers

Tom Braatz, Green Bay's executive vice president for football operations, rejected a proposal which would have made holdout quarterback Don Majkowski an unrestricted free agent after this season.

Bob Woolf, the attorney for Majkowski, said his client would be willing to play for the NFL minimum of $80,000 under the agreement, co-authored by the quarterback's agent Randy Vataha.

Braatz quickly turned it down. "This is the same request that Lawrence Taylor and his agent Joe Courrage made of the New York PONTIAC, Mich. — Detroit Lions coach Wayne Fontes (left) gives Andre Ware a Detroit Lions cap to wear during a news conference at the Pontiac Silverdome to announce the signing of Ware, the Lions' number one choice in the NFL draft. Ware signed a four-year contract estimated at 1.2 million per year.

Giants last week," Braatz said. "George Young, the Giants general manager, replied, 'I do not want to be named winner of the mayor's dumb bell of the year award,' in turning down the request."

"The same answer applies in Green Bay. The Vataha-Woolf proposal is rejected."

Bills

Guard Will Wolford agreed to terms and came to camp. Wolford, a starter in every non-strike game for Buffalo since being a first-round pick in 1986, reportedly agreed to a three-year deal worth an average of $700,000 a year.

Browns

Tackle Paul Farren, who started 13 games last season, agreed to a contract, but linebackers Clay Matthews and Mike Johnson and defensive backs Frank Minniefield and Felix Wright remain holdouts. Fullback Tim Manoa was placed on injured reserve and lost for the season.

Redskins

Three potential regulars, offensive lineman Mark May, defensive end Jumpy Geathers and defensive back A.J. Johnson were all placed on the physically unable to perform list, allowing them to return after the fourth week of the season. The Redskins also waived running back Reggie Dupard, a one-time No. 1 choice in New England.

Saints

New Orleans cut ninth-year quarterback Dave Wilson and put together an injury settlement to waive former Pro Bowl offensive lineman Brad Edelman.

Wilson, a No. 1 draft choice in 1981, had asked to be released, saying he did not figure in the team's plans. Edelman, a Pro Bowl starter at guard in 1987, ruptured his right biceps three weeks ago and will be sidelined for at least six weeks.

Chiefs

All-Pro safety Deron Cherry, still recovering from a knee injury, was placed on the non-football injury list.

Broncos

Offensive lineman Monte Smith and cornerback Le-Lo Lang were placed on the non-football injury reserve list.

Smith will be sidelined for the season after accidentally shooting himself in the foot while cleaning a gun last Tuesday.

Falcons

Atlanta placed free agent wide receiver Titus Dixon on injured reserve. Dixon injured his right knee in Saturday's win over Green Bay.

Chargers

San Diego obtained a two-week roster exemption for first-round draft pick Junior Seau, who signed Monday, meaning he won't count against the 60-player limit.

Free-agent punter Keith English, who has averaged 41.7 yards in preseason, was traded to the Los Angeles Rams for an undisclosed draft choice.

Seahawks

Quarterback Rusty Hilger, who has played for the Raiders, Bills and Lions, was waived by the Seahawks, who also acquired offensive lineman Ronnie Lee from the Atlanta. The Falcons get a draft choice in return.

Vikings

Jim Gustafson, a key third-down receiver for the last four years, was placed on injured reserve with a nerve problem in his neck, and will miss the season.

Patriots

Defensive end Gary Jeter, second on the team with seven sacks last season, was one of five players released. Sixth-year safety Jim Bowman and ninth-year linebacker Bruce Scholtz were also cut.

Inside Football

Tech LB will be out for two games

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech linebacker Ben Kirkpatrick will be lost for the first two games of the season with a knee sprain, says coach Spike Dykes.

"We're fortunate, that's all it was," Dykes said Tuesday. "Losing him for Ohio State (Sept. 8) and Houston (Sept. 13) isn't great, but it certainly is better than the alternative."

Kirkpatrick, a sophomore from Post, Texas, was injured in a scrimmage on Saturday.

Dykes also announced that junior cornerback Sammy Walker of McKinney has fulfilled his summer school requirements and is eligible for the 1990 season.

Arkansas defense looks better than "O"

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas' first defensive unit is working better than its offensive counterpart because the defense is better at following the leaders, Coach Jack Crowe says.

"The first defense may have played as well as they've played this year. They are doing a better job than the offense, but that is because they have more seniors and more leadership on their side," Crowe said Tuesday.

Arkansas opens its season Sept. 15 at Fayetteville against Tulsa.

Tuesday's workout didn't roll as well as Crowe wanted, except at the end.

Oilers cut three players

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers cut three players from the team to drop the roster to the required 60 players.

Cornerback Vince Courville, defensive tackle Mark Garalczyk and defensive tackle Richard Byrd were waived from the team, the Oilers said Tuesday.

Names in the news

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Country music star Ronnie Milsap says in a new book that he has no love for his mother, who abandoned him.

Milsap, who was born blind, said in his autobiography "Almost Like a Song" that she abandoned him when he was a 1-year-old infant.

"I don't hate her," he wrote. "I have no feelings for her at all."

Milsap said his mother once asked him for money after he became a successful entertainer.

"Why would I want to see her? Motherhood means more than just giving birth," he writes.

The book, published recently by McGraw-Hill, is named after one of Milsap's hit records.

DETROIT (AP)—Aunt Marie helps them with their voice projection and Uncle Donny wrote them a song, but the Osmond Boys say they're working on their own image.

"We grew up around music but we're not trying to copy anybody," leader Michael Osmond, 15, said Saturday before a performance at the Michigan State Fair.

The four brothers, Michael, Nathan, 13, Douglas, 12, and David, 11, are sons of Alan Osmond, at 41 the oldest of the defunct Osmond Brothers, who themselves got their show biz start as youngsters. The Osmond Boys are on a 70-city tour that ends in mid-November, when they return home to Utah.

"There's a lot of screaming girls," Michael said. "It makes it a lot more fun on stage."

They released an album, "The Osmond Boys," last month that includes a song written by Donny Osmond, "Wait on Love."

They're developing their own style — no flashy costumes — but Alan Osmond, who manages his Osmond Boys, said it's like reliving his past.

"Everyone says they've got the Osmond smile," he said. "We've had a lot of screaming girls on this tour."

He said he's trying to keep things as normal as possible.

Ware's here; Peete wants more money

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Andre Ware is making the big bucks, but Rodney Peete appears to have the edge in the Detroit Lions' quarterback battle and hopes he'll be rewarded if he becomes the starter.

Peete, a second-year pro out of Southern California, where he was runner-up in the Heisman Trophy balloting in 1988, was the Lions' sixth draft pick in 1989. He signed a two-year contract worth $250,000, then became the Lions' starting quarterback.

Ware, who won the Heisman Trophy last season at the University of Houston, was the Lions' No. 1 draft pick in 1990 and received a $2 million signing bonus to go along with a four-year contract worth $4.6 million.

Now, this is where the fun starts. Ware wants Peete's starting job and Peete wants some of Ware's money.

According to the NFL Players Association, the average salary for a quarterback last season was $638,000. Peete might even settle for that, for now.

"When I start the season," Peete said Tuesday, "it would be a nice gesture on their part to come to me and say, 'Rodney, we realize you're underpaid and making much, much, much less than what the average starting quarterback in the league is making. So, we want to get something done.'"

"Hopefully, they'll come to me. But if we have to go to them, we'll go to them. I'd like to get something done before the start of the season. The thing is, I'm up after this year. The contract is up. So if it's not right, we'll just wait."

Peete, who said he wanted to see Ware get as much money as possible, isn't blaming the Lions for the size of his contract. He realizes that when the contract was signed last year, the money he received was in accordance with his status as a sixth-round pick.

But now he has led the Lions to a 3-0 preseason record. He wants to be rewarded, although he promised he won't walk out, no matter what.

This just might be last game for Smith

IRVING (AP) — Timmy Smith's last shot.

That's one of the themes for Saturday night's preseason game between the home-standing Dallas Cowboys and the Houston Oilers.

With the Labor Day cut to 47 players looming, Smith, the hero of Super Bowl XXII, could find himself on the waiver wire again with a poor performance. Smith rushed for a Super Bowl record 204 yards for the Washington Redskins against Denver but was released the next year.

So far Smith has gained 13 yards on 12 carries for the Cowboys.

"We want to take a long look at Smith in the game," said coach Jimmy Johnson of the former Texas Tech Red Raider product.

The Cowboys cut defensive tackle Jon Carter on Tuesday to get to their 60 player limit and coach Johnson announced he would start Smith at running back.

Carter is a second-year player from Pittsburgh who was picked up as a free agent in 1989. Dallas has to get down to 47 players next Monday.

The Cowboys running game has been almost non-existent in the first three exhibition games as Johnson has alternated Smith, Terrence Flagler, and Lorenzo Hampton while negotiations continue with first round draft choice Emmitt Smith, who has enrolled at the University of Florida for the fall semester.

"I want to give Timmy more work and see what he can do," Johnson said. "It's obvious our running backs really haven't had a lot of opportunity the way we are blocking. I would like to look at Smith over an extended period."

Johnson said he was "optimistic" that Emmitt Smith would be in camp before the regular season starts on Sept. 9. "I have no particular reason to be optimistic but I just have a feeling Emmitt wants to be here," Johnson said.

Owner Jerry Jones seconded Johnson's thoughts, saying "I don't think Jimmy is being overly optimistic."

Asked if he had heard about Smith helping arrest two thieves in Florida, Johnson quipped "he's a good person, a law-abiding citizen and we want law-abiders with our team."

The Cowboys have only averaged three yards per rush and that includes some long scrambles by quarterback Troy Aikman.

Falcons player at ease with new position

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) — A co-valedictorian at Syracuse, the Atlanta Falcons' Tim Green is not your typical football player.

He's also not the prototype NFL defensive end, which is where he has found a home in coach Jerry Glanville's blitzing defense.

"For me, it's a special opportunity, to play defensive end," said Green, whom the Falcons drafted in 1986 in the first round to play linebacker. "I played defensive end all my life until I got here."

"At 245 pounds, I had some success in college with 45 sacks in three years," said the 6-foot-2, 26-year-old, who also is a second-year law student.

"I had done well as a defensive lineman, but my agent told me if I wanted to be drafted in the first round, I had to become a linebacker," Green said. "Because of my size, he said no one was going to draft me that high as a lineman."

"So I worked hard at making the conversion to become a semi-skilled linebacker instead of a grunt," he said, using a term attached to linemen.

Green was beset by injuries his first three seasons with Atlanta, although he did start 11 games while missing 18 others. Last season, however, he started 14 games, 13 at linebacker and one at defensive end, and wound up with 111 tackles, including five sacks.

This year, when Glanville was hired to replace Marion Campbell, one of his first moves was to tell Green, who has 4.6 speed in the 40-yard dash, he was a defensive end again, where they could use his quickness.

Green has responded by winning a starting position and had three sacks last Saturday in a 17-14 preseason victory over Green Bay.

"The big difference has been Jerry Glanville and his staff," Green said as he spoke while holding a Charles Dickens novel he had been reading during a lunch break. "They have an entirely different defensive philosophy than I've ever been involved in. It involves lots of blitzes and stunts and it's very high risk."

The Falcons are 3-0 in preseason, their best ever start in the 25-year history of the franchise and Green attributes it all to Glanville.

"He's brought in excitement, and a different attitude. There's a confidence about Jerry Glanville, and it's contagious."

American accused of looting artifacts

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) - A government official Wednesday accused a Texas man of illegally looting dozens of artifacts from a 19th-century battle site in the Anglo-Zulu war.

Gregory Marcinek of Bedford, Texas, allegedly shipped eight large boxes of artifacts to the United States, according to Janette Deacon of the National Monuments Council.

She said Marcinek dug up the artifacts without permission at a private farm near Vryheid in the eastern province of Natal.

"We have instructed our lawyers to take steps to get the material back," she said.

USAF cargo jet crashes; 13 dead

By GEORGE BOEHMER
Associated Press Writer

RAMSTEIN, West Germany — A giant Air Force cargo jet loaded with supplies for U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf crashed and burned shortly after takeoff today. Air Force officials say nine of the 13 people killed in the crash were reservists from Kelly Air Force Base.

Names of the victims were not released pending notification of relatives.

Air Force spokesman Doug Moore said the Lockheed C-5A had 17 military personnel aboard, most of them reservists who had volunteered for the round-the-clock deployment aimed at discouraging further Iraqi aggression.

The plane, which can lift about a quarter million pounds, crashed in a field a quarter mile from the Ramstein Air Base runway at 12:30 a.m., said Capt. Ed Worley, another Air Force spokesman.

He said the jet was headed for Frankfurt's Rhein-Main base, about 90 miles to the northeast, and then on to the Persian Gulf.

Cathy Cox, an Air Force spokeswoman, said the death toll climbed to 13 after the recovery of the bodies of two people who had been unaccounted for in the fiery crash. The bodies of 10 others were recovered earlier, and one person died of injuries in the hospital.

Cox said the four others who had been on the plane were in stable condition at the U.S. Army's nearby Landstuhl hospital. No civilian casualties were reported.

Cannon returns home from Holland

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ
Staff Writer

Stanton High School sophomore John Cannon returned home from his journey into the Netherlands for most of his summer vacation as part of the Youth for Understanding program.

John, son of Frank and Pam Cannon of 502 West 4th St. in Stanton, was among those selected to travel to Holland from a field of 15,000 applicants. The participants submitted an eight-question essay out of which 5,000 were chosen as semi-finalists. The list was reduced to 3,000 after the third phase was completed through interviews before the finalists were considered, according to Cannon.

"After an applicant is considered, that's when the paper work piled up. They sent an YFU official from Lubbock to interview your friends, classmates and school officials. She became the person who would choose between myself and another program qualifier. The other applicants was from Midland," said John.

Cannon's trip began at 10 a.m. June 26, for Kesteren, The Netherlands. "It was a long trip because it took us about 12 hours by plane to reach Amsterdam Airport. As soon as we landed, YFU officials took us for a six-hour orientation class. There were about 90 students from all over the United States there for the reception.

John Cannon, right, and a couple of Stanton Buffalo teammates prepare to work out at the SHS weight room recently. John, the son of Frank and Pam Cannon, spent most of the summer in The Netherlands as part of the Youth For Understanding program.

After that, we went quickly through customs and we got to meet our host family," said

Cannon. John's host family were Mr. and Mrs. Titus Koopman and their family, sons Victor and Jems.

"As soon as we got there, we went home and they showed me where everything was. My first question was, 'May I have a glass of water?' The reason this sticks out in my mind was that when I asked for water they went to their faucet and got it straight out of the spigot. Coming from West Texas, you don't do that here. The water was crystal clear and good tasting," said Cannon.

"After that, I began to visit with my host family. It was helpful that they knew English. Days later, Jems and I decided to go to a movie. As I waited for his parents or him to bring the car in front of the house. He surprised me by bringing two bikes. The reason I was surprised was the fact that the nearest theatre was ten kilometers. That's almost six and quarter miles, but we went on the bikes."

"People from Holland walk and ride bikes almost all the time, they hardly ever use their vehicle unless their going on a long trip," according to John.

"Their diet is different than ours from the States. Sitting at the table, for example, would be a large plate of French fries and mayonnaise. That was it. They have very strict manners about where one eats. We have gotten used to eating in front of the television set here at home, but one can-

The plane's cargo included food, medical supplies and aircraft maintenance equipment, according to officials. The cause of the crash was under investigation.

Ramstein, the largest U.S. Air Force base in Europe, has been a stopover point for the steady stream of U.S. planes headed to and from the Middle East.

Worley said the C-5A belonged to the 60th Airlift Wing at Travis Air Force Base in California. He said it was flown by a crew from Kelly Air Force Base in Texas.

At Kelly, base spokeswoman Maj. Donna Pastor said 10 reservists with the base's 433rd Military Airlift Wing were aboard the plane — eight crew members and two maintenance personnel. She said the other seven on the plane were from other Air Force bases in the United States.

The C-5A and C-5B are the largest transport planes in the Air Force fleet and each costs about $148 million.

Under Desert Shield, begun after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, the United States and other Western and Arab countries have sent troops, equipment and warships to the Gulf region to protect Saudi Arabia from Iraq and to pressure Baghdad into withdrawing from Kuwait.

Reps give president high mark

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress are praising President Bush's handling so far of the Middle East crisis, but some who interrupted their summer break for a presidential briefing are wary about the future.

"I don't think there's a question of a blank check here" for the president, said House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash. But during an hour-long meeting Tuesday with Bush and top aides, "there were really no overall reservations" by the 170 or so lawmakers present, he said.

Both Democrats and Republicans were effusive about Bush's diplomacy: the garnering of international support for an economic boycott of Iraq, the winning of United Nations backing for military enforcement of the blockade and his enlistment of Arab military forces in the regional show of strength.

"For the moment, among professional politicians, there is a sense of awe at how brilliantly Bush has handled this," said Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., the House minority whip.

Congress will continue to support Bush's actions "provided that we do not get into a protracted struggle where the goals are not clear, where there's loss of life and there does not seem to be an opportunity for victory," said House Majority Whip William Gray, D-Pa.

But there were worries, as well. "There was concern about where the line in the sand is," said Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich. "There is no sense of how long it will last."

Others said Bush avoided the crucial question of whether Iraqi President Saddam Hussein can remain in power in his own country even if he pulls out of Kuwait, which his forces overran on Aug. 2.

"I am concerned about what it is that we want to leave there," said Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J. "What happens when all this is over? I think it's very important that (Iraq's) military machine be rendered inoperative before we can call this mission a success."

Other lawmakers said they believe the administration intends to wait for Saddam's own people to overthrow him, or that the world will rely on a long-term multinational peacekeeping force to rein in Iraq.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., said he worries about the lopsided nature of the international force

Dallas chief may face perjury charge

DALLAS (AP) — Felony perjury charges are to be filed against Dallas Police Chief Mack Vines in connection with his testimony before a special investigatory panel, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

In a copyright story, the newspaper quoted sources as saying the district attorney's office is expected to file the charge today, referring the case to a Dallas County grand jury.

The Dallas Times Herald reported in a copyright story that the case could go to the grand jury as early as next week.

A third-degree felony perjury charge would carry maximum punishment of up to 10 years in prison and fine of up to $10,000.

The incident began when Vines testified before a panel reviewing the 1989 dismissal of Officer Patrick LeMaire, sources said. The panel had confronted the chief with accusations that he tried to influence the testimony of an assistant chief regarding the speed of the internal investigation of Officer LeMaire.

Murderer ran drug ring from jail

SAN ANGELO (AP) — A convicted triple murderer operated a drug ring from the inside the Lubbock County Jail and was able to use inmate telephones to make telephone calls pertaining to the drug ring, a narcotics officer has testified.

Damon Jerome Richardson of Lubbock is the last of 21 defendants to be tried on organized crime charges resulting from a wiretapping investigation in April and May 1988.

The case was transferred from Lubbock to San Angelo on a change of venue, based on extensive pre-trial media coverage in Lubbock. Judge Brad Underwood of Lubbock's 364th Judicial District is presiding.

Richardson was in the Lubbock County Jail during the wiretap investigation, awaiting trial on capital murder charges.

He was accused of killing three people on Sept. 3, 1987, and was convicted on those charges a year later in Abilene. That conviction, and the death sentence Richardson received, are now under appeal.

Mom gets 5 years for caging sons

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A woman who locked her two sons in a homemade cage for four days has been sentenced to five years in prison for child cruelty.

The cage in which Terri Forbes placed her boys, ages 12 and 16, had a chair and mats to sleep on. Its sanitary facilities were a soft drink bottle in which to urinate and a grocery sack for defecation.

A Caddo District Court jury in April convicted Forbes and boyfriend Vincent Talbot of two counts each of cruelty to a juvenile for placing the boys in the cage last year. Talbot, who built the cage, is to be sentenced later.

AG gets settlement from solicitor

AUSTIN (AP) — A professional charity fundraiser was ordered by a state district court judge to pay the state $90,000 and give $40,000 to charity, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said.

Mattox said Tuesday that Jerry Watson and Bryon C. Hughey had solicited funds on behalf of several charities, but little of the money went to the charities.

The defendants, doing business as Watson and Hughey Co. and Cancer Fund of America, Inc., spent most of the money on fundraising, administration and "public education," Mattox said.

Reservists: Middle East missions tiring, scary

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Air Force reservists who have flown cargo loads to the Middle East under Operation Desert Shield say their journeys were tiring and sometimes frightening.

"There is a fear factor when you do go into a situation where there could be combat," said Maj. Dennis Means, a reserve pilot who has made three trips to the region since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Means and other members of the 433rd Military Airlift Wing at Kelly Air Force Base are flying C-5 cargo planes to the Middle East to take supplies to troops. The wing hasn't been called to active duty, but more than 200 members of the wing are voluntarily participating. The reservists spoke with reporters Tuesday at Kelly.

Later in the day, a C-5 with a crew of 17 — including 10 reservists from the 433rd — crashed and burned at Ramstein Air Base in West Germany, killing at least 10 people.

Technical Sgt. T.W. Robinson said he knows his family is worried about his missions to the Middle East, and particularly about the possibility that his reserve unit could be called to active duty.

"They're concerned about me of course, but they know that this is a job that I've promised to do," said Robinson, a flight engineer who also works as a civilian computer technician.

Crew members said one of their biggest problems was battling fatigue during the trips, which sometimes included only six-hour stopovers in Saudi Arabia.

"The glare off the sand flying over it is absolutely almost blinding. You almost get the impression you're flying over another planet all together." — Staff Sgt. William Salter.

Salter, who described the Saudi Arabian desert as what he imagines the surface of Venus might look like, said he wished he could have stayed longer, but was glad he wasn't there permanently.

"It's the kind of place you get the impression you're glad you don't live there," he said. "It's good to visit once or twice just to say you've been there. But it takes some getting used to."

Staff Sgt. George Hernandez said his job was to make sure the C-5s were in good shape despite the sand and searing heat.

"Where ever it's flying, you still have to check the tires, the oil," he said.

Oil prices rebound from Monday slide

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices rebounded Tuesday from a tumultuous slide a day earlier, rising almost $1 per barrel as traders speculated on diplomatic efforts to resolve the Middle East crisis.

Traders also were monitoring OPEC discussions that could lead to higher crude production, offsetting the shortfall caused by the international boycott of Iraq and Kuwait. Overall, however, market strategists saw no news that could push it wildly in either direction.

"It was such a collapse yesterday that it's getting its breath," said Philip L. Dodge, an oil analyst with Nomura Securities International Inc. "OPEC has postponed their meeting, maybe suggesting to some that they're not agreeing on ways to increase production."

In Vienna, ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries delayed formal endorsement of a plan for production increases to give more time to hear from absent members Iraq and Libya.

The price of light sweet crude, the benchmark grade of oil, rose 97 cents to $27.88 per barrel for October contracts on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Wholesale unleaded gasoline rose .97 cent to 88.53 cents per gallon for September delivery, while home heating oil rose 1.42 cents to 79.52 cents per gallon on September contracts. Natural gas barely budged, closing at $1.500 per 1,000 cubic feet, compared with Monday's close of $1.502 on October contracts.

With no cataclysmic news coming from the Persian Gulf, traders pondered the diplomatic nuances and reports of prospects for peace in the region, a crucial provider of petroleum to the United States and other developed nations.

By some reckonings, 4 million barrels of oil a day has been removed from the market because of a U.S.-led boycott of crude from Iraq and Iraq-occupied Kuwait.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar planned to meet Thursday with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz to discuss the turmoil that has developed since Iraq seized Kuwait Aug. 2.

Earlier speculation about a non-violent solution to the crisis was a partial cause of Monday's $4-per-barrel drop in the price of crude, but some petroleum strategists said Tuesday the market may have overreacted.

"It's almost as if the market has declared peace, but in reality we're still missing 4 million barrels a day of oil," said Stephen Smith, an analyst with Bear Stearns & Co.

Others predicted prices would fluctuate, pending outcome of Perez de Cuellar's mission.

"It's just a very choppy market at this point," said Ed Kevelson, of Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. "I think it will chop around for a couple of days. You'll probably see a lot of emphasis put on that meeting."

Fatal crash
SAN ANTONIO — One person was killed and one other injured when this single-engine plane crashed in a field in far north San Antonio early Tuesday morning. Rescuers did not find the crash site until several hours later after triangulating on the plane's emergency transponder.

Angry shrimpers Say snapper restrictions could ruin industry

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Restrictions designed to help red snappers could severely cripple and possibly kill the shrimping industry, according to Texas shrimpers who testified at a hearing held by the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council.

Most shrimpers agree that officials should do something to help increase the population of red snappers, but they told authorities at a Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council that those restrictions could hurt them.

The council, a federal body that develops policies for managing fish in the Gulf, has proposed the three restrictions in response to over-fishing of Gulf waters.

Overfishing, the council argues, causes a reduction in the numbers of young snappers which would reach spawning age. About 300, including shrimpers from Brownsville and New Orleans, attended the public hearing here Tuesday night. More than 400 people turned out for a hearing Monday night in Brownsville.

"(Shrimpers) support a May 1 through July 1 or even July 15 closure but feel that the industry cannot survive a closure for the entire month of July." — Sidney Herndon.

Douglas Gregory, Gulf Council staff biologist and statistician, said that at least 20 percent of each year's new red snapper offspring must survive and reach maturity if the species is to survive. National Marine Fisheries Service has estimated that only 1 percent of those young fish are now surviving. The proposed restrictions include a reduction in the daily sport fishing bag limit from seven fish per angler to two, cutting the commercial catch from 3.1 million pounds to 1 million pounds and closing the Gulf of Mexico to shrimp trawling from May 1 to July 31 beginning next year.

Shrimpers may also see additional shrimping closures by 1993 or be required to use fish excluder devices, so that young fish can escape shrimpers' nets.

The regulations target federal waters of the Gulf, beginning 9 nautical miles off the Texas coast and extending out to 200 miles.

"The (Texas Shrimp Association) believes that these measures should be given a chance to work before increasingly stringent regulations are implemented," Sidney Herndon, chairman of the board of Herndon Marine Products of Aransas Pass, said. "The stock seems to be on the rebound already and current management measures will enable that recovery to continue. We urge the council to give this plan a chance."

Shrimpers, who already face a closure from May 15 to July 15, say shrimping closures through the entire month of July, the most productive month for shrimping, A would severely cripple the industry.

You just don't understand: The languages men and women speak

NEW YORK (AP) — Eleanor and Isaac Cullick are the kind of people who take time to chat with strangers, but they were barely speaking to each other when their 12-year marriage broke up in 1971. "He was a lecturer. It seemed that every time he spoke to me, it was a critique," said Eleanor, who now lives in Houston. "I don't think he... was the type of person who could share experiences and emotions and feelings."

"All I ever did was listen," said Isaac, who is remarried and still lives in Shreveport, La. "She was going to have things her way. I couldn't reach Eleanor. It's amazing, people can live together but can't talk things out."

of hours of videotaped conversations between men and women, boys and girls. "Men and women grow up in different worlds," Tannen said in a recent interview. "It's utterly essential that people accept and understand the differences. Otherwise we end up blaming each other."

Over 15 years of research, Tannen said she's seen clear conversational patterns emerge. Men use talk primarily to communicate a desire or goal, while women consider exchanges important in and of themselves, she said.

To a woman, hashing through the day's details often indicates intimacy. For her mate, the ritual may simply seem a drag.

said Tannen, who lives and teaches in Washington. "But for women, talk is the glue that holds relationships together."

These are stereotypes, but sociolinguists said they apply more often than not. Since the publication of her book this spring, Tannen said

"A lot of people wondered why we took the course," said Kass, who lives with her husband in Denver. "But it really helped us get our marriage off on the right foot."

It wasn't that the couple would otherwise have started out in a women communicate is not only helpful on the homefront, sociolinguists said. Gender-based conflicts show up and can be resolved in the workplace as well.

Take, for instance, the way in which a male employee interpreted an order from Barbara Meade, co-

"It's like speaking English and French. It's not that one is better than the other," said Robin Lakoff, a linguist at the University of California at Berkeley. "They are just different."

Gender studies experts, whose field has blossomed since the late 1970s, said the communication gap is rooted in childhood.

"Boys' groups are hierarchical and activities-oriented," Tannen said. "Girls' groups tend to be egalitarian, smaller. They tend to have one best friend... and spend a lot of time telling secrets."

When they grow up, women often expect their mates to be that same best friend, which often baffles men more comfortable with locker room towel-snapping than sharing secrets.

Tannen said couples can reach a happy medium with time, patience and compromise. But it will take a lot more to change the fundamental mindsets that separate men and women, researchers said.

"The kinds of language differences we see reflect real differences in the way men and women are in the world," said Penny Eckert of the Institute for Research on Learning in Palo Alto, Calif.

"Language is symptomatic of other things, of underlying power relations... in a male-dominated society."

Over 15 years of research, sociolinguist Deborah Tannen said she's seen clear conversational patterns emerge. Men use talk primarily to communicate a desire or goal, while women consider exchanges important in and of themselves, she said.

To a woman, hashing through the day's details often indicates intimacy. For her mate, the ritual may simply seem a drag.

The Cullick's story is not unique. And in her new best seller, "You Just Don't Understand: Women and Men in Conversation," Georgetown University sociolinguist Deborah Tannen suggests why:

"Because men and women are regarding the landscape from contrasting vantage points, the same scene can appear very different to them, and they often have opposite interpretations of the same action."

No one is to blame here, the author cautions.

It's just that people of different genders generally speak different languages. Tannen reached that conclusion after studying hundreds of hours of videotaped conversations between men and women, boys and girls. "Men and women grow up in different worlds," Tannen said in a recent interview. "It's utterly essential that people accept and understand the differences. Otherwise we end up blaming each other."

Over 15 years of research, Tannen said she's seen clear conversational patterns emerge. Men use talk primarily to communicate a desire or goal, while women consider exchanges important in and of themselves, she said.

To a woman, hashing through the day's details often indicates intimacy. For her mate, the ritual may simply seem a drag.

Similarly, she said, "Women often feel a relationship is working if you're talking about it. Men feel it's working if you're not talking about it."

"A lot of men feel that a woman's insistence on talking things out is like a dog hanging onto a bone," she has received scores of telephone calls and letters from fans of her theory.

"Misunderstood gender differences is one of the biggest causes of divorce," said Howard Markman, who directs the University of Denver's Center for Marital and Family Studies.

"It's a pervasive problem... but couples who learn how to understand each other can successfully improve their chances of having a happy marriage," the marital researcher said.

John and Kass Patterson did. The couple took Markman's "Premarital Relationship Enhancement Program" before they wed two years ago. Today they are expecting their first child.

tangle of unusual problems. The Pattersons just didn't want to waste time bickering about the banal: finances, tardiness, who interrupted whom.

"Women are trained throughout their lives on how to talk things out and express feelings," said Kass, 30, a legal secretary. "I am still more the one that pulls things out of John, but since the course he's much more vocal."

Each also understands better what the other is trying to say.

"You become aware of the differences in the way you argue," Kass said. "Sometimes there's no changing the other person, but understanding eases the frustration."

owner of Politics & Prose Bookstore in Washington.

"I wanted him to do some specific tasks having to do with bookkeeping... and thought it was understood," Meade recalled. "But apparently... he thought I was asking if he'd be willing to do it."

Tannen says this is common. Women often couch a direct order in an interrogative phrase: "Would you mind...?" Whereas men usually say simply: "Do it."

Both bosses may be issuing an order, she said, but a male employee will likely interpret a female boss's request as optional while a female employee will often find her male boss's style unnecessarily peremptory.

 in Saudi Arabia.
 "The Germans think they have constitutional problems in sending troops outside the NATO area. The Japanese just send cash," said Obey, chairman of the House Appropriations foreign operations subcommittee. "If we don't watch it, we'll have a 90 or 95 percent share of the on-the-ground troops. I don't think that's politically sustainable at home."
 Some participants in Tuesday's briefing — noting that the Pentagon doubled its estimate of the cost so far of the troop deployment to at least $2.5 billion from $1.18 billion — said money was a growing factor.
 "As time goes on, there's going to be a strain," said Rep. Amo Houghton, R-N.Y., a member of the House Budget Committee.
 House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said Congress and the president may have to scale back by as much as $15 billion the amount they hope to shave from the budget deficit next year.
 Some of that cost must be shouldered by U.S. allies who are even more dependent on Middle Eastern oil than the United States — Japan and West Germany in particular, they said. Bush told the lawmakers he was working on just such a cost-sharing arrangement, participants reported.
 Another concern, voiced during the closed-door meeting by Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, was that Bush has failed to articulate a national energy policy that can cope with the uncertainty the gulf crisis creates.
 Dingell said the country has no plan to encourage domestic oil production, no program to increase conservation and alternative energy sources and no standby rationing plan. "I must say, the president's response on that wasn't the strongest," said Rep. Norm Dicks, D-Wash.
 Foley said Congress will expect to be kept informed of developments in the region, and it became clear that lawmakers will take a more active role in the crisis in the coming weeks.
 Two bipartisan delegations, one from the House and one from the Senate, are preparing to leave Friday for visits in Saudi Arabia, Egypt and other Middle Eastern countries to review the U.S. military deployment firsthand.

Board considers premium increase

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance today received its staff recommendation that homeowners statewide pay an average 15.8 percent more for property insurance.
 The Insurance Board is scheduled to conduct two days of hearings on proposed rule changes and rates and will set the rates later. The new rates will probably go into effect April 1 or May 1.
 Board Chairman James Saxton Jr. said, "There is probably going to be some property rate increases, but we'll just have to see how it comes out."
 Lee Jones, a spokesman for the board, said insurers paid $180 million more in claims in 1989 than they collected in premiums.

Layoffs would adversely effect USDA, farmers

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS
 WASHINGTON — Stephen B. Dewhurst is one of many Agriculture Department employees who were notified this week that they would be taking an unpaid furlough later this year.

In all, some 2.4 million federal workers are being told of the layoffs that will come if Congress and the White House fail to solve the government's budget problems.
 Dewhurst is USDA's budget director and feels closer to the technical aspect of the problem than most.
 But a report Tuesday by his office showed the plan to save money under a "sequester" plan to cut spending would have far-reaching effects.
 There would be lower subsidies for major commodities, and needy farmers would have less of a chance to get housing and operating loans, the report said.
 Perhaps as many as 90,000 USDA employees, roughly 90 percent of the department's permanent workforce, would be affected one way or another by the layoffs.

 It would affect chicken inspectors and economists, scientists and file clerks, highly paid executives and those at the bottom of the scale, the report warned.
 The layoff notices and other measures are in the works just in case Congress and the Bush administration don't come up with an 11th-hour rescue for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.
 Citing the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law, the White House has ordered an across-the-board cut of federal spending to begin Oct. 15 if no budget agreement is reached.
 About $22.9 billion of USDA's projected outlays would be affected. Food stamps and child nutrition programs generally are exempt from the cuts.
 The USDA study anticipates cuts of 31.9 percent, or $7.3 billion from affected programs.

 "Farm price support payments and many other USDA loan and grant programs would be severely reduced," the report said.
 The report added: "The necessity to lay off employees would disrupt USDA services throughout the world and especially at USDA county offices throughout rural America. Producers and industries dependent on the availability of USDA programs and services would be severely affected."
 For example, so-called deficiency payments to farmers for next year have been projected at about $3 billion; a 31.9 percent cut would be more than $900 million.
 Dairy farmers would be assessed approximately 8.7 percent per 100 pounds of milk marketed, which would reduce cash receipts by nearly $130 million.
 In state and county offices of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, where the programs are administered, salaries and expenses would be reduced by the same percentage. More than 20,300 employees of the county offices would be furloughed. Offices would be closed Mondays and Fridays.

 Dewhurst said he and others in the USDA budget office had received letters that they would be furloughed three days out of every 10.
 "You can get a 50-50 bet, I suppose, from people who think it won't happen at all and those who think (cuts) will be 40 percent," he said.
 The Office of Management and Budget has already boosted its estimate of spending cuts to 32.4 percent, and Dewhurst said that could balloon further.
 Only about $600 million of the $23 billion in food programs would be subject to the cuts.
 Food stamps alone account for around $16 billion or so. But the current food stamp law runs out in 1991.
 "If, as everybody expects, the food stamp program is reauthorized, it will drive federal spending up," Dewhurst said. "You'd see the (cuts) go to somewhere between 38 and 40 percent."

That would put a further bite on commodity price support operations, the Farmers Home Administration, food aid to foreign countries, conservation, research and the other eligible programs.
 According to the report, using the "planning" cut of 31.9 percent, farmers also would see their government checks for price support loans reduced by that amount.
 If the cuts are carried out, it will mean about $1.8 billion less for farmers taking out crop loans next year, according to 1991 budget projections.
 "A 31.9 percent sequester would greatly complicate program administration and would introduce instability into commodity markets," the report said.
 In the case of meat and poultry inspection, where most USDA spending is vested in the salaries of employees, a 31.9 percent spending cut was said to "result in the absence of inspection services during a furlough of about 137 days," effectively shutting down the slaughtering and processing industries for that amount of time.

Kirby announces retirement

AUSTIN (AP) — State Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby today announced plans to retire in January after 30 years with Texas public schools.
 In a letter to Chairman Monte Hasie of the State Board of Education, Kirby said he is "looking forward to the opportunities and relaxation that retirement affords."
 He said he would remain commissioner for a short while after Jan. 31 if the board needs more time to find his successor.
 Kirby, who has been commissioner for six years, faced the possibility of being replaced next year anyway.
 Under education legislation passed this year, the governor got the power to appoint the education commissioner for a four-year term beginning March 1. The commissioner will be nominated by the State Board of Education and confirmed by the Senate.
 Previously, the commissioner was selected by the State Board of Education and served at its pleasure.
 The education legislation is being challenged in court by poor school districts that say it doesn't do enough to address school funding inequities found unconstitutional by the Texas Supreme Court.
 Kirby, who has served as education commissioner since October 1984, oversaw sweeping school reforms approved that year by the Legislature. He also worked on this year's education measure.
 He has been with the Texas Education Agency — which oversees the state's 1,052 school districts — since 1965. He has held a number of positions with the agency, where he started as a federal programs consultant.

Measurement Service
 We finally got the other half of our slides Friday, Aug. 17, and it looks like we will be able to service all request by Aug. 31. Please remember that you have five working days from the date of notification to come in and certify.
 Failure to come in within the five working days can put you out of compliance and you will not be eligible for any program benefits. For those of you that still have measurements pending, make plans to be here by close of business, Aug. 31. Hang in there with us and be prepared to do some writing.
ACR Maintenance
 Recent rains have developed weed problems. Penalties will be assessed if excess weeds are found on ACR acres. Designated ACR acres must be kept clean through Dec. 31.

 He said that sailing was also very exciting, as he went on a cruise along with 50 other YFU students for about a week. They went to museums and saw paintings from Vincent Van Gogh, Rembrandt and other Dutch famous painters.
 Cannon said that the Dutch were quite interested in the Soccer World Cup Games, going on in Italy at that time. Television was also different for this Stanton native; Dutch television began after 6 p.m., with two or three stations to choose from.

Before you make another use of disaster affected cotton acres, an ASCS-574 (Application for disaster credit) must be filed. We are required to check FCIC appraisals before the crop evidence is destroyed.
 If you have FCIC insurance, have them do their appraisal and bring us a copy of that appraisal. (Too many of you are failing acres and do not have the slightest idea how many acres and the location of the affected acres.)
Workmanlike Manner
 Remember, normal cultural practices must be carried out. If weeds are found on your program crop acres or if your farming practices will not produce your yield, your ASCS yield will be reduced which can result in a loss of payment.
1990 Overpayments
 We recently sent out a letter concerning overpayments of 1989 deficiency payments. This resulted when you received deficiency and disaster payments on the same pounds. The disaster ACT does not allow duplicate payments to be made on the same pounds.

 The payments are due Aug. 31, (without interest). If not paid within 30 days, then the debt will be transferred to Claim Status and interest penalties will apply retroactive back to the due date.
 Interest will be at a rate of 9 percent if paid within 90 days and will then go to 12 percent retroactive back to the due date.
CRP
 Annual rental payments will become due and payable on Oct. 1. Authorization to pay comes after this date. All CRP fields will be spot-checked in September and annual rental payments may be reduced for weed problems, unauthorized grazing and for any other unauthorized use. Please do not allow your CRP acres to cause problems for your neighbor.

Hostage's wife joins info race

Donnita Cole got tired of waiting for news to trickle across thousands of miles from Iraq on the fate of her husband, John Henry Cole.
 So, she got a fax machine.
 "I am the type of person who cannot sit and do nothing," said Mrs. Cole of Odessa. "I cannot sit and just wring my hands. I have been an all-or-nothing person all my life."
 Mrs. Cole says she didn't see her husband Tuesday on the latest television transmission of foreign hostages held in the Middle East crisis.
 "I would like to throw myself across the big pond, but I can't do that," said Mrs. Cole. "An Odessa company was kind enough to loan me a fax machine and I got maps of the region. Now, when I read about the different data, I can actually pinpoint the areas they are talking about."
 She said she has not heard from the 50-year-old Cole, an OGE employee, since Aug. 3, the day after Iraqi forces invaded Kuwait.
 Families of the five other Texans held in Iraq didn't see their loved ones either on Iraqi TV and were told the American hostage who died of a heart attack there was not from Texas.

 All the families said they were unimpressed after watching President Saddam Hussein mingle with foreigners.
 But some said they were comforted by his claim that women and children could leave.
 "I hope Hussein does," said P.C. Carr of Aspermont, the father of hostage Gary Carr. "I hope they let them all go. But it wouldn't deter the U.S. if they decided to do something (militarily)."
 "If it ever gets serious, I don't think the hostages will be a consideration," he said. "They will do the best they can, but in time of war, we can't be deterred."
 Gary Carr's mother said at last word, she was told her son was all right. Carr is believed to be in a group taken from a hotel to an industrial area near the Syrian border, but Edythe Carr said the family has been unable to confirm that.
 The 46-year-old Carr is from North Richland Hills near Fort Worth.

DIETITIANS' SHOWCASE

Favorite Recipes

Couscous and Vegetable Salad, French Coffee Cake, Red Snapper Augustine, Hearty Long Island Seafood Chowder... sound sinfully delicious? Guess again. These are the winning recipes from Mazola corn oil's Heart-Healthy Recipe Contest. Straight from the experts themselves—Registered Dietitians—these foods are lower in fat, cholesterol and calories.

Reducing total fat in the diet is an important concern for everyone. But with so much confusion surrounding which foods are good to eat, many people don't know how to prepare healthful meals at home. That's why Mazola corn oil decided to ask nutritionists what recipes they recommend.

The Mazola Heart-Healthy Recipe Contest invited American Dietetic Association members to submit their favorite recipes—many of these recipes dietitians used when counseling clients. The result: hundreds of responses nationwide.

Careful screening by dietitians and home economists narrowed the choices to ten finalists, which were then judged by a panel of food and nutrition experts: Jean Hewitt, Food Editor of Family Circle Magazine; Dr. Marion Nestle, Chairman, New York University Foods and Nutrition Department, and Peter Wood, D.Sc., Ph.D., Professor of Medicine at Stanford University and author of The California Diet.

The winning recipes were selected based upon taste, appearance and healthfulness.

Coffee Cake updates the classic sour cream cake. It uses nonfat yogurt and diet margarine to lower fat without compromising flavor or texture.

Second and Third Prizes - Heart-healthy virtues have made seafood a popular at-home menu item. Second-prize winner Red Snapper Augustine is a nutritious Mediterranean-inspired dish that is simmered in wine and seasoned with red pepper, tomato and olives. Hearty Long Island Seafood Chowder, third prize winner, uses pureed vegetables and lowfat milk instead of heavy cream to add richness and flavor.

To balance this selection of heart-healthy recipes are Razzle Dazzle Muffins, a top ten finalist.

Enjoy heart-healthy meals at home with any of these prize-winning recipes. Convenient and nutritious, they are excellent choices for people interested in improving their diet.

For more winning lowfat recipes, send for your free copy of Eat Healthy America, a 36-page illustrated booklet also featuring a healthy eating plan which teaches you how to eat healthy for life. Send your name and address to:

Tips on dental care for seniors

Today's older adults have a lot to smile about. Advances in dentistry and preventive techniques are vastly improving the dental health of those who take advantage of them.

Surprisingly, many older adults still believe that tooth loss and tooth decay are simply a natural part of aging.

To combat these myths and create further awareness of the importance of oral health, the American Dental Association has designated May 13-19 as National Senior Smile Week.

The fact is, tooth loss is not inevitable. On the contrary, the rate of toothlessness is a prime example of the dental health improvements that many adults are now enjoying. Dentists can now successfully treat and save many of the teeth that were considered hopeless just 25 years ago.

But even with the exceptional advances in dentistry, mature adults are still more at risk of tooth loss than any other age group. Ironically, because they are keeping their natural teeth longer, older adults are more susceptible to periodontal disease and tooth decay.

Periodontal disease is the most serious threat to adult teeth. According to the American Dental Association, statistics show that periodontal disease is responsible for 70 percent of all tooth loss in adults. After age 35, three out of every four people have some form of the disease.

One of the reasons that periodontal disease has been able to attack three quarters of American adults is that it is often painless in the early stages.

In its earliest form, periodontal disease is referred to as gingivitis. While the signs of gingivitis are sometimes overlooked, the first indication is often bleeding gums. Contrary to what many people believe, it is not normal for the gums to bleed when brushing or flossing.

Other signs of gingivitis may be red, swollen or tender gums. While gingivitis is usually reversible, a dental check-up should be scheduled as soon as possible.

As periodontal disease progresses, the signs can become more noticeable. Any of the following signs necessitate an immediate visit to the dentist:

- Gums that have pulled away from the teeth.

- Pus between the teeth and gums when the gums are pressed.
- Persistent bad breath or bad taste.
- Permanent teeth that are loose or separating.
- Any change in the way your teeth fit together when you bite.
- Any changes in the fit of partial dentures.

Tooth decay is another problem common to mature adults. Because they are keeping more of their natural teeth, older adults are getting more cavities. According to one study, two out of three cavities in people over age 50 occur around the margins of old fillings. Because many adults grew up without the benefits of fluoride products and fluoridated water, they are more likely to have fillings.

Older adults are also more prone to root decay—a problem that occurs in more than 60 percent of adults over age 65. Tooth roots become exposed because of naturally occurring gum recession and gum disease. Since the root is softer and unprotected by the hard coat of enamel that protects the tooth crown, it is especially prone to decay.

Simple as it may seem, spending about five minutes each day on oral hygiene can help prevent periodontal disease and tooth decay. Unfortunately, it is known that most Americans spend an average of one minute a day on their oral hygiene. Just a few extra minutes a day spent on brushing and flossing, combined with healthy eating habits and regular dental visits, will help the mouth stay healthy.

During National Senior Smile Week, state and local dental societies will hold a variety of special community programs and activities geared toward older adults.

To find out more about activities in your area, call your local dental society. Society names and addresses can be found in most local telephone directories.

In regard to our recent advertising in the Herald's cash bash, we wanted to let you know what kind of response we are getting.

We had immediate response with our maternity ad in the cash bash. Right after the ad ran we had several people come in to Beth Ann's for our maternity wear.

Lots of people have come in to the shop for the first time since we began our advertising in the cash bash. Many have said they had been meaning to come out to Beth Ann's. The cash bash has given them an extra reason to come on in to the shop. If we can just get our customers to come in for the first time we know they'll be back.

Our advertising in the Herald's cash bash has really been good for us.

Tips for soft contact lens care

Contact lenses let people look their best and see the world with clear vision. But sometimes taking care of contacts just isn't a top priority, especially for busy college students who are constantly on the go—running from class to class, working out in the gym or playing sports, studying at the library and socializing with friends. With such a full schedule, cleaning and disinfecting contact lenses can sometimes seem to require too much time and too many products. But cleaning "short-cuts" to speed up the process can be harmful to eye health and vision, and even to the lenses themselves.

Contact lens care can be more convenient to suit busy lifestyles. But contact lens wearers do need to follow a regular and thorough lens care regimen, completing the two basic steps of cleaning and disinfecting.

For daily wear soft contact lenses:

- Remove, clean, and disinfect daily.
- Enzymatically clean weekly or as doctor prescribed.

For extended wear soft contact lenses (which can be worn for one to seven days, as prescribed):

- Clean and disinfect whenever removed from the eyes.

For disposable soft contact lenses (which are worn and discarded after use):

- Clean and disinfect whenever removed from the eyes.

• Clean and disinfect whenever removed from the eyes.

• Clean and disinfect whenever removed from the eyes.

New multi-purpose solutions easier to use

New lens care products on the market can be used to clean, rinse, and disinfect soft contact lenses. These multi-purpose products, such as Bausch & Lomb ReNu Multi-Purpose Solution, cut down on the hassle of contact lens care, making "doing the right thing" for proper care of contacts far more convenient.

Having just one solution, instead of the usual array of products, creates additional conveniences for the active college student:

- Reduces the clutter of solutions in tight living quarters.

- Makes packing lighter and quicker for weekend roadtrips and visits home.

- Cuts down on items needed for daily workouts at the gym and pool.

- Allows more flexibility in wearing contacts for biking and camping trips when space is too limited for various solutions in backpacks.

- Makes it easier for daily use in the dorm bathroom—rather than carting around different solutions, only one is necessary.

Experts from the Bausch & Lomb InVision Institute, a not-for-profit consumer education organization, recommend the following tips for contact lens care:

Soft contact lens do's and don'ts for the college scene

- Take the time to properly clean and disinfect contact lenses—even during exam crunch time when all-night study sessions are common.

- Stay stocked up on contact lens care solutions. If the last drop has been squeezed out of the cleaning solution, don't borrow a friend's. Consult an eye doctor before mixing and matching lens care products or switching solutions.

- Use rewetting drops for marathon studying sessions at the library to rewet dry lenses.

- Always apply all makeup and use aerosol products, such as hairspray, before inserting contact lenses. If irritation occurs, contacts should be removed and rinsed with a saline solution or a multi-purpose solution such as ReNu.

- Don't sleep with daily wear contact lenses in eyes. Carry a contact lens case and a supply of lens solutions in an "emergency" overnight pack.

- Don't use soap or saliva to clean contacts and don't store them in open glasses filled with tap water.

The InVision Institute recommends regular visits to an eye doctor. At your next visit, ask whether a convenient multi-purpose solution is right for you.

To receive a free copy of the Contact Lens Care Desk Guide, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: "LENS CARE" c/o The Bausch & Lomb InVision Institute, JFK Post Office Box 9295, Boston, Massachusetts 02114. BS900953

Meatless meals add variety and interest to anyone's diet

If you've been trying to cut back on the amount of meat you eat, whether because of health concerns or for other reasons, you may wonder just what else there is to eat. Most Americans were brought up to believe that a good dinner consisted of a main course of some kind of meat, with vegetables, grains, or pasta served on the side. Thus, many of us imagine that a meatless meal would probably be a plate of lettuce, broccoli and other "rabbit food."

To be sure, you can add meatless meals to your weekly menus by serving spaghetti with marinara sauce, or a tossed salad, but after a while, these choices will seem boring. But, believe it or not, you could eat a different meatless meal every night for a month without ever serving a single salad.

To give you some ideas and get you started on some adventurous meatless cooking, why not try either or both of the recipes below. As if to show the inroads which meatless cooking has made into mainstream American cuisine, both recipes are taken from a Betty Crocker cookbook: Betty Crocker's Light and Easy Cooking, by The Betty Crocker Editors (Prentice Hall).

BEAN PATTIES
Guacamole sauce (below)
1 can (17 ounces) refried beans
1 can (4 ounces) chopped green chilies, drained
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1 small onion, chopped (about 1/4 cup)

1/2 cup shredded cheese (about 2 ounces)
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
Prepare Guacamole Sauce. Mix

beans, chilies, egg, bread crumbs, onion, cheese and salt. Heat margarine and oil in 10-inch skillet until margarine is melted. Drop bean mixture by 4 spoonfuls into skillet. Flatten with spatula to 1-inch thickness; push in sides to form patties. Cook over medium heat until brown, about 5 minutes on each side.

BUSINESS REVIEW

It's back-to-Hester's — then it's back-to-school

Where can you find poster paper in 24 colors — including fluorescents? And hard-to-find biology paper? And all those other essentials for the new school year? At Hester's Supply, 209 Runnels, it's a tradition to offer the most complete selection of back-to-school supplies. Hester's is a one-stop store for students — and their teachers — from kindergarten to college," says Noel Hull.

Hester's Supply is your one-stop center for back-to-school supplies. Pictured at the Back-to-School Center, set up to make selection easier, Janet Hull shows off the many items available. Supplies are carried for students and teachers — kindergarten to college.

"We're the exclusive source in Big Spring for biology paper," Noel says. And the store carries the three-inch ring binders which are a requirement for biology class. Still the most asked-for notebook binder is the one with transparent zippered cover to show off photos and mementos, says Noel.

For the lower grades, Hester's stocks the popular Big Chief tablet, beginners pencils (approved by schools), 5-inch scissors (can be used by right or left handers), construction papers in all colors — and plastic boxes to store it all in.

And pencil and pens, what a selection! Drawing and drafting pencils, erasable ink pens (notes can be erased up to 72 hours!), red checking pens and pencils, map colors, Magic Marker felt tip pens, and mechanical pencils (from 3MM to 9MM.) Plus typing erasers and pencil grips (fit on end of pencil to provide a comfortable grip.) Teachers always need poster putty, a product that can be used to tape posters and other lightweight items to the wall. A new item this year is E-Z Ups — clips with a wax back that clings to any surface, to hang posters and notes; they're reusable and don't damage wall surfaces. Hester's also stocks Bordette & Corobuff line of bulletin board aids in school colors as well as novelty hues.

And, of course, the school supplies center has plenty of typing and notebook paper, report covers with Tang fasteners, zippered clear pouches to fit into loose leaf notebooks, wireless "spiral" notebooks with perforated pages, and Elmer's Glue in all sizes for art classes.

A survival guide for the home business owner

Not being taken seriously by customers and suppliers is the problem of operating a business at home. That's one of the findings of Paul and Sarah Edwards, authors of Working From Home: Everything You Need to Know to Live and Work Under The Same Roof (Jeremy P. Tarcher).

Based on in-depth interviews conducted with over one hundred fulltime home-based business owners, the Edwards found that a lack of an office or retail outlet sometimes results in lost contracts, less attention from suppliers, and difficulty in obtaining merchant status from banks. As one home businessperson said: "Some corporations above a certain size need to see chrome and glass."

The second most common problem with working from home is juggling family and career. The home-based businessperson has to do it all, including those tasks that in a larger firm are usually delegated to employees. It isn't easy to take time off for the family at night, on weekends or for vacation.

Other frequently mentioned challenges of working at home include:

- Limited availability of space: a business can outgrow a home as work-related materials (especially paper) spread like vines.

- A sense of being isolated: one often feels like a Lone Ranger!

- A loss of privacy: Children, customers, employees and friends are all around you all the time.

- Lack of self-discipline: It's not always easy to get started in the morning, stick to business during the day, and get away from it all at day's end.

- Lack of time: Having to do it all without support personnel isn't easy.

- Distractions: A lot of things go on in and around a home!

- Poor delivery services: Messenger services and overnight mail can be a problem in some locations.

Despite these problems, nine out of ten business people who work at home want to continue. And the Edwards firmly state that there are solutions to these legitimate concerns. In Working From Home, a guide for the legions of self-employed home-based workers, they address the following issues:

- Assessing one's psychological adaptability to working at home.

- Using technology (computers, modem and fax) to solve most perceived image problems.

- Juggling home and career.

- Finding the furniture, equipment and organizational system scaled to the space limitations of a home office.

- How to deal with distractions and interruptions.

- How to exercise your "self-management muscle" vis a vis discipline, isolation and time management.

- Staffing.

- Workaholicism.

Working From Home is not just a trend. It's a lifestyle that's here to stay. You can navigate the rough waters of creating a productive and creative home working environment. TT900377

FLOODED OUT?—Splashing through flooded streets is not in the best interest of any automobile. Avoid such streets, if possible, but if you must drive through them, do so slowly, with patience and caution.

Save Your Fun On Water For Ride In Boat

Cars were not intended to be water-borne vehicles, and encounters with flooded streets can only increase the chance of a car malfunction.

During the rainy season, avoid standing water at intersections or elsewhere if possible, particularly if it is above the bottom of the wheel rims. However, if you have no alternative but to drive through, here are some tips to help you safely navigate these water hazards:

Drive through the water very slowly. Rapid movement might cause the water to "swamp" or stall the engine, and perhaps leave you stranded.

If you do stall as you cross a deep puddle, try to coast toward the side of the road and wait for the engine to dry out before trying to start it. Wiping off the spark plugs, wires, and other parts of the ignition system with a dry cloth can help you get moving faster.

Remember that the car's brakes may be affected by driving through standing water, and you should check their stopping ability before an emergency demands their use.

AERO-MAZE

A chocolate treat

Here's a scrumptious recipe that you and your friends will enjoy. It's very easy to make, but you should have an adult help you melt the chocolate and butter.

MARS BARS SQUARES

What you need:
Three Mars Bars
Three ounces of Rice Krispies*
Three ounces of butter or margarine
A few blocks of cooking chocolate

Start by slicing the Mars Bars into small pieces. Place the slices in a medium sized non-stick saucepan with the butter or margarine.

With mom or dad's help, gently melt the Mars Bars and butter on low heat until you have melted the chocolate and it is blended with the butter. Pour in the Rice Krispies and keep stirring until all of them are covered.

Next, pour the mixture into a greased, shallow, rectangular pan. Spread the mixture in the pan so that it is flat and even, and then place it in the refrigerator.

If you want, you can melt a few blocks of chocolate and spread it over the top.

Once the chocolate has set, get mom or dad to cut the Mars Bar mixture into squares.

Voila! Now you have a candy treat to share with your friends.

How can you move while you're standing still?

Even though you might think you are standing perfectly still, you are actually moving in five different directions, all at the same time. Here are the explanations:

First: The earth is continuously rotating on its axis, which gives us day and night.

Second: The earth is continuously orbiting the sun, travelling 600 million miles a year at a rate of 1,000 miles a minute. This gives us our seasons.

Third: Our whole solar system, the sun and all nine planets, is continuously revolving around our galaxy, the Milky Way, at a speed of 180 miles per second.

Fourth: The Milky Way itself is continuously moving at about 1,350,000 miles per hour around a cluster of galaxies.

Fifth: Some astronomers believe that there is a center to the universe and that the cluster of galaxies containing the Milky Way is continuously moving away from that center.

So even though you may think and feel as if you're standing still, you can see that this isn't so!

FOOT PROTECTION ALWAYS IMPORTANT

But while many fun-seekers are enjoying themselves, they obliviously ignore potential dangers to their bodies.

Americans annually pay millions of visits to emergency rooms, mostly during the summer. Many emergencies result from too much exposure to the sun. Many others are beach- or swimming-related, and can do harm to the feet.

Overexposure to the sun can be avoided if you limit your time outdoors, particularly between mid-morning and mid-afternoon when the sun's rays are the strongest—and most harmful.

Working, walking, and playing in the hot and humid summer weather can cause foot problems.

Different sports activities call for specific footwear to protect your feet and ankles. Use the correct shoe for each sport; don't wear any sports shoe beyond its useful life.

The same advice applies to walking or hiking. Wear proper, protective shoes or boots, particularly in rough terrain.

And when you mow the lawn, wear shoes that will protect your toes in the event of an accident. Mowing should be done in the cool of the morning, or when the sun is going down.

If you're at the beach, watch out for glass, shells, and sharp stones if you walk barefooted. Also, be careful not to walk barefooted on dirty pavement or littered ground, both good places to pick up the plantar wart virus.

If you prefer swimming pools, use sandals or other protective footwear in the shower and locker room areas. The fungi that cause athlete's foot breed in the warmth and dampness of these areas, and usually attack between the toes. The warm and humid area of shoes also fosters fungus growth.

If an apparent fungus condition does not respond to proper foot hygiene and self care, consult your podiatrist. For more information on athlete's foot and foot health, call toll free 1-800-FOOT-CARE.

THE GORILLA IS A SHY ANIMAL THAT ONLY BECOMES FEROCIOUS IN DEFENCE OF ITSELF OR ITS FAMILY. IT IS NOW AN ENDANGERED SPECIES DUE PARTLY TO HUNTING BUT MAINLY BECAUSE OF THE DESTRUCTION OF ITS HABITAT.

IN 1980 A SAN FRANCISCO COMPANY HAD A GUITAR MADE THAT MEASURED TEN FEET ONE INCH IN LENGTH MAKING IT THE LARGEST GUITAR IN THE WORLD.

AT MOUNT RUSHMORE IN SOUTH DAKOTA THE HEADS OF FOUR FAMOUS U.S. PRESIDENTS ARE CARVED INTO THE HILLSIDE. THEY ARE 60 FEET HIGH AND NEEDED 14 YEARS WORK BY THE SCULPTOR WHO DIED JUST BEFORE FINISHING THEM.
