United Way drive kickoff lunch nears

Permian Basin television news personalities will headline the quarterly Community Luncheon Thursday, which kicks off the 1990-91 United Way Campaign in Big Spring/Howard County.

Randy Jackson, KTPX-TV, and Mary Catherine Matthews, KMID-TV, will emcee the luncheon program under the auspices of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. The luncheon buffet begins at 11:45 a.m. in the East Room, Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The United Way campaign goal is $220,000, an increase of $8,000 more than last year.

Steve Fraser, president of the United Way, will open the program followed by Murray Murphy, 1990-91 campaign chairman, who will introduce the campaign cabinet and outline this year's strategy.

Others on the program will be Scott McLaughlin, chairman of the Chamber's Public Affairs Division, which planned Thursday's luncheon; and Jim Purcell.

Sponsors of Thursday's luncheon are TU Electric, Energas and Southwestern Bell, with Kiwanians acting as host civic club.

Reservations for the luncheon and program can be made by phoning the Chamber at 263-7641.

At least 29 killed on Texas highways

Traffic accidents have killed at least 29 people on Texas roads over the Labor Day holiday that began Friday night, and the Texas Department of Public Safety said drinking apparently was a factor in many of the incidents.

The DPS projected that 40 people would die in Texas motor-vehicle accidents in the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday and continued through midnight Monday.

That compares with 52 who died as a result of injuries suffered in traffic accidents during the Labor Day weekend in 1989.

Last year, 62 percent of those killed in Labor Day holiday traffic accidents were in accidents connected to alcohol or driving too fast, and 77 percent of the victims were occupants of cars or light trucks who were not wearing seat belts.

The DPS said it put all available troopers on the highways for the holiday.

In its 10 a.m. report on Monday, the DPS added four motor-vehicle victims, bringing the total to 29 through midnight Sunday.

James Edward Johnson, 32, of Tyler was killed late Sunday when one vehicle ran a stop sign and struck another at an intersection of two farm roads about 10 miles east of Tyler.

47 Americans arrive from embassy

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — Americans freed from the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait, after weeks as virtual prisoners of Iraqi soldiers outside the walls, say the comrades they left behind face mounting hunger, thirst and weariness.

As the 47 Americans arrived Sunday, the few who met with reporters painted a grim picture of life inside the eight-block compound just across a six-lane highway from a Persian Gulf beach.

"The situation is deteriorating daily," former hostage Lloyd Culbertson, 76, said today. He estimated that 20 to 25 Americans remain at the embassy.

"The food is spoiling. There is no electricity," Culbertson said on CBS' "This Morning." "We have no means of communicating with other people. Our ambassador is not allowed to talk with other ambassadors or to American citizens. He can't leave the compound."

"These situations also prevail at the Canadian Embassy and the Japanese Embassy and possibly others," he said.

Iraq's ambassador to the United States, Mohamed al-Mashat, who met the former hostages at Washington-Dulles International Airport on Sunday, told them, "I come to welcome our guests here."

His remarks got a cold shoulder. "I wasn't a guest," said the white-bearded Culbertson, of El Paso. "I damned near starved to death."

Bonnie Anderton of Denver said, "It is the only hotel I have ever been a guest in that I don't intend to leave a tip. We were sleeping on the floor, there was no water and no power and we were being eaten alive by bugs."

Mrs. Anderton was accompanied by her daughter, Jennifer, 10, who nervously twirled a red baseball cap as her mother spoke.

FRANKFURT, West Germany — Betty Adler from West Germany hugs her two daughters upon arrival from Iraq Sunday. They were aboard a special plane that took 311 women, children and a few men from 22 countries from Baghdad to West Germany. Adler's husband remains in Iraq.

Jennifer's father, Richard Anderton, an engineer, remained behind in the embassy, where the family took refuge the day after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Iraqi officials cut off power and water to the embassy after Washington refused a demand to close it.

Jesse Jackson, the American civil rights leader who arranged for more than 100 foreigners to leave Baghdad and Kuwait City on Saturday, urged the Iraqis to restore water and power, saying that otherwise he did not believe the embassy could hold out more than a few days.

"He doesn't know us," said Mrs. Anderton. "We'll make it. I think they'll stay as long as they have to."

D. Michael Cheers, a freelance photojournalist who accompanied Jackson, said the Americans in the embassy were boiling water from the swimming pool for drinking and breaking up furniture to burn in wood stoves.

Many of the hostages were greeted in their hometowns by joyful relatives.

"Long live America!" 16-year-old Sayyeda Mirza's father, Masood, said after he, his daughter and his wife arrived at New York City's La Guardia Airport on the last leg of their journey to their BAGHDAD, Iraq — The government has acknowledged that it is instituting food rationing but says Iraqis would rather eat mud than bow to foreign powers, who have isolated Baghdad as punishment for its seizure of Kuwait.

Government spokesman Naji al-Hadhithi on Sunday denied reports that the U.N.-ordered embargo on trade with Iraq had caused shortages.

He said, however, that as a precaution his government was instituting steps to reduce food consumption.

"We have a war-tested society. We have a war-tested economy. So even if we eat mud, we will resist pressure and not kneel down to any foreign power," he said, referring to the eight-year war with Iran that ended in 1988.

Foreigners who left the country reported lines for bread and other food.

Last week, Iraqi sources said rationing was to begin Sept. 1, but on Sunday a shopkeeper said he thought the rationing would begin Wednesday. It was not immediately clear whether the measures affected all of Iraq at once.

The embargo, backed by a U.S.-led armada of warships from several countries, has halted nearly all of Iraq's vital oil exports and food imports, aiming to force an Iraqi pullout from Kuwait.

Al-Hadhithi and Information and Culture Minister Latif Nasaif Jasim took a defiant stance in a Alfred Tidwell, Lee Porter, Darvis Chenault and John Stanley look at the Texas historical marker recently placed at the entrance of Mount Olive Cemetery. The marker recognizes the location of the Masonic burial site that was established in 1884.

History marking the spot

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Staff Writer
Now there is another spot where local citizens can learn about the history of Big Spring and Howard County. The area's oldest cemetery, a Masonic burial site established in 1884, got a state historical marker last week.

"The more you know the history of where you live, the more interesting it is to you," said Howard County Historical Commission Chairman Polly Mays. The group assisted the Masons in securing the state-ordained marker.

"I look at it this way: If we lose history, what is there?" Mays said. "There is just the present. These (markers) are very important to the community."

The newly recognized piece of history began in December of 1884, when a local group of Masons was chartered by the Grand Lodge of Texas. They called themselves the Staked Plains Lodge. A few months later, they received a donation of land from a member to establish a cemetery.

The Masons' site and surrounding community graveyards later became known as Mount Olive Memorial Park, located one mile north of Big Spring on SH-350.

Lee Porter, a Mason for 61 years and a retired county judge, has been involved with the cemetery improvement project since 1942. The committee's mission was to "lay the groundwork to establish a permanent care cemetery," he said.

"That was our first plan," he said. In the end, however, almost all of Mount Olive was designated as "perpetual care" under the jurisdiction of the city.

To establish a care fund, Porter had to contact the families of many of the people buried in all sections of the cemetery to ask for donations. His attempts were very successful for the most part.

Porter did run into trouble when trying to locate the families of a group of graves that appeared to be Hispanic.

"I went through the Catholic church to try to locate those (families)," he said. "The priest said he would have to go through the bishop. . . After going back again and again, I had to give up. I couldn't get any information."

He was able to mail letters to families with loved ones buried in the neighboring I.O.O.F. cemetery and two church-related sites, however, and they responded.

"Out of all the people I contacted, I had only one real rejection and two maybes," Porter said. "You'd be surprised at the response I got. We raised enough money to start watering the place, level it off and get the care fund going."

Porter said the cemetery's appearance has improved dramatically since the care program began. Money earned from the sale of lots now goes into a fund to continue the process.

Although the Masons erected their own markers, Porter said,

Groundwater control question stirring officials

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer
Some local officials are concerned that a proposed 50-year state water plan will usurp local control of groundwater, giving more control to the state.

"It appears that the state will be taking over control of groundwater," said Rep. Rob Junell, D-San Angelo, who is on the House Natural Resources Committee. "We are definitely against that. Those of us in West Texas want to be able to control our own groundwater both in quantity and quality."

Junell testified Thursday in Austin in the last of 13 public hearings held around the state last month on the proposed "Water for Texas Plan" by the Texas Water Development Board. The TWDB plan to develop and manage the state's water resources in order to insure adequate water is mandated by state law.

"I'm going to do everything I can to see that control of our underground water remains with local people and with property owners," Junell said.

Losing local control would also affect underground water districts, said Mark Hoelscher, president of Texas Underground Water Conservation Districts. Hoelscher testified Tuesday at a hearing in Midland that the proposal implies that local groundwater districts do nothing, lack expertise and state control is needed.

"I can only surmise that its author simply does not have a working knowledge of existing districts nor the ability to envision their future potential," Hoelscher said of proposal statements in Chapter 4, page 11. "Who in the TWDB do we still need to convince that underground water conservation districts are effective?"

Hoelscher also disagreed with proposals in Chapter 4 to require that groundwater district management plans be approved by the TWDB and that districts provide water usage data to the board.

"We strongly disagree!" he said of getting TWDB approval for management plans. "Time and history have shown that local issues are best understood and handled by local people. The preservation and protection of West Texas' most precious natural resource, groundwater, is perhaps the most important of these local issues and groundwater districts have done a commendable job handling it."

"We wish to be given credit for having done so and given assurance that this witch hunt for state-control will stop," he said.

As far as providing usage data, he said that with increased underground water levels in the past 10 years, it is not "an appropriate way to spend our money and time." Otherwise, local water districts have always been willing to share information, he said.

Besides groundwater, the TWDB plan also addresses other issues such as surface water projects dealing with quantity and quality. The plan projects that seven trillion gallons of water annually will be needed by the state in 2040 for an estimated population increase from 16 million in 1985 to 35 million.

Inside Texas

Police arrest four in driveby shooting

DALLAS (AP) — Four teenagers who shot at rival gang members after a weekend drag race have been charged in the wounding of three small children who were playing in a nearby yard, police said.

Jose N. Estrada, 18, Santiago Castro Bahana, 17, and two 15-year-old boys were picked up shortly after Saturday's shooting as they drove nearby in a two-door 1983 Buick matching witnesses' descriptions. A .410 gauge shotgun was found beneath the rear seat of the car, police said.

Bahana and Estrada were being held late Sunday on three counts each of injury to a child at Lew Sterrett Justice Center. Estrada was being held in lieu of $36,000 bail. Bail for Bahana was set at $30,000.

The other suspects were being held at Dallas County Juvenile Detention Center, detective Sam Schiller of the police department's youth division said. Their names were not released because of their ages.

Lubbock residents evaluate Bush

DALLAS (AP) — In the brown Plains town of Lubbock — the city President Bush has called his own Peoria, where he looks to gauge Americans' assessment of his performance — the Persian Gulf military escalation has produced a blend of fatalistic opinions.

Mostly, the people of Bush's Main Street USA view the crisis with resigned loyalty. Like it or not, they say, the global forces that might spawn war are beyond the control of people who grow cotton, shop for groceries and try to get to school on time.

All they can do is have faith and hope that the right thing will be done.

"There ain't a helluva lot I can do about it," Odell Poteet told the Dallas Times Herald. Poteet is a 74-year-old retired farmer whose daughter and son-in-law are in Saudi Arabia.

The Rivera brothers, Jesse, 24, and Ray, 21, vow to fight if called. But they view the situation with cynicism.

Iraqi invasion plays well at cash register

BEAUMONT (AP) — Patriotism can spur commercial success, as employees at a screen printing and T-shirt store here are learning.

Cotton Cargo graphic designer Stephen Hellweg said cash registers have been ringing since he came across a fax of an armed Iraqi soldier atop a camel with the printed message: "I'd fly 10,000 miles to smoke a camel."

"The first thing I thought of is... we can make a T-shirt of this," Hellweg said.

Hellweg said he improved the original art for the front of the T-shirt. Then, inspired by the comments of a soldier who said some military personnel have a new nickname for the Port of Beaumont, Hellweg printed the message, "Fort Beaumont, 1990, Operation Desert Shield" on the shirt's reverse side.

A Cotton Cargo secretary who displayed the T-shirts at the Jefferson County district attorney's office returned to the store with an order for 25 T-shirts.

"The office girls went wild," said secretary Frances Foux. "One guy took the shirt... and covered the courthouse with it."

An hour later, the store received a fax from the courthouse ordering 12 more T-shirts.

The store had planned an initial production of 25 T-shirts, but responded to the demand by printing 650 by Saturday.

The store owner, Beau Price, said he wants to use the profits from the $10 T-shirt to buy soft drinks for the troops in the Middle East.

The first delivery of 10 cases of soft drinks was made to the port Saturday, just in time for a drive organized by Vietnam veterans on behalf of the soldiers in Saudi Arabia.

People brought 700 cases of soft drinks and some fruit juice.

Some of the items contained written messages to the soldiers in Saudi Arabia.

One 12-pack of soft drinks was labeled, "Proud parents of a Viet KIA (killed in action). God bless you all."

Members of the Southeast Texas Vietnam Veterans Chapter 292 accepted contributions at the port Sunday and Monday. They hoped to receive 1000 cases of soft drinks.

Oil firms increase security

HOUSTON (AP) — Several major oil companies are bolstering security at their facilities because they fear the Middle East crisis may spark terrorist attacks on Texas soil, analysts say.

Mike Guidry, a crisis analyst to five major oil firms, said Houston is a prime target of Middle East terrorists because many U.S. petroleum giants have offices and refineries here.

"Our intelligence sources tell us we would have a very good chance of seeing terrorism here if we do go to war with Iraq," said Guidry, president of Guidry and AssociatesCRG, an international consulting service with offices in Houston and Washington.

"But whether terrorists actually bomb a facility or just threaten to, they could shut the plant down and stop production," he said.

Pary Perry, a security consultant for Trinity Security Corp. in Houston, is advising his five oil company clients to take extra precautions now. He said he's already seen a marked increase in the number of requests for uniformed guards.

"Based on the information I've gotten from experts on terrorism, I think it (terrorism in the United States) is overdue," Perry said.

Bob Campbell, president of Advanced Information Management Inc., an international security firm based in Virginia, agrees, saying that a terrorist attack in the U.S. "is just a matter of time."

S&L sentences longer than similar crimes

WASHINGTON (AP) — People convicted of savings and loan fraud are getting harsher prison sentences than the typical white-collar criminal, according to Justice Department figures.

Thirty-seven of those convicted for S&L crimes since Oct. 1, 1988, have not been jailed. But the 128 who received prison sentences got an average of 3.2 years, according to department statistics.

That compares to an average 2.5 years for all federal fraud cases, including embezzlement and forgery, according to a study compiled last year by the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics. That study used figures from 1987, the most recent year available.

The average sentence for embezzlement during 1987 was 1.8 years while the average sentence for mail and wire fraud was 2.6 years.

The Justice Department defines a major S&L case as one involving fraud or loss of more than $100,000 or in which the defendant was an executive or officer of a thrift institution.

Sentences have ranged from probation to the 30-year term handed to Woody F. Lemons, former chairman of the failed Vernon Savings & Loan Association near Dallas, earlier this year.

Lemons, who could have been sentenced to 65 years in jail, was convicted of 13 counts of bank fraud, misapplication of funds, conspiracy and bank bribery.

Other important sentences include:

- A 15-year prison term given to Robert Hopkins, former chairman of Commodore Savings Association in Dallas, for making illegal campaign contributions with the thrift's money and concealing the donations from federal regulators. He also was ordered to pay restitution of $122,980.
- The 12-year prison terms given to Oscar Tharp, president, and John O'Donnell, the vice president, of First Mutual Savings Association of Pensacola, Fla., for conspiring to steal money from the S&L through kickback schemes involving multimillion-dollar bank loans for Georgia real estate projects.

The 12-year sentence that Julian Seidel, president of First Maryland Savings and Loan received for embezzlement by approving speculative loans. Losses to the Silver Spring, Md., thrift were estimated at $60 million. Senior Vice President James Porter received a seven-year prison term.

The average is brought down by a large number of defendants who are shown leniency in exchange for cooperating with federal investigators to help convict higher-level officers or executives.

"We always make cooperation known to the court" at the time of sentencing, said Marvin Collins, the U.S. attorney in Dallas, whose office has prosecuted roughly a quarter of the major S&L cases.

"We want other people out there to distinguish between those people who are willing to cooperate and testify against others who have broken the law and those who want to thumb their noses at the system," Collins said.

Short prison sentences or probation were imposed on defendants in cases in which the fraud was not directly related to the failure of a thrift institution, Collins said.

Virtually all those convicted in the S&L cases are first-time offenders, except those who face sentencing a second time for a related conviction.

"These are traditionally no-record defendants," Collins said.

"Given all of that, I feel reasonably comfortable with the types of sentences that we have been receiving," Collins said.

"Most of the people are receiving jail time."

Festival makes Temple lively

TEMPLE (AP) — All aboard for all points past, enlightening and fun.

The Texas Train Festival is building steam and nearly ready to bring the magic and history of trains to life in Temple.

For seven years the festival has spotlighted Temple's historical roots.

"Trains are part of Temple's history," said Mary Irving, director of the Railroad and Pioneer Museum, which is housed in a 1907 depot building.

"It's important for the community to know its heritage," she said, pointing out that Temple was founded by the Santa Fe Railroad and named for Bernard M. Temple, the railroad's chief engineer.

The train festival, scheduled for Sept. 15-16 at the Railroad and Pioneer Museum and the Frank W. Mayborn Civic and Convention Center, will include events to please folks who like trains in a big way and those who like trains in a small way.

Full-size trains and train accessories are on display at the museum, while the area model train club, Centra-Mod Inc., will have miniature model trains chugging throughout the convention center.

The Amtrak Depot in downtown Temple also will get into the act with a Santa Fe Railroad display, and two round-trip train rides to Fort Worth will enthrall youngsters and adults alike.

Along with displays of antique engines and cabooses, museum activities include living history demonstrations, food and entertainment.

Living history demonstrations include making soap, peeling apples on an antique apple peeler, weaving, spinning and corn grinding — and perhaps sheep shearing and a blacksmith.

"We try to make it an educational thing where the kids can have fun and see how it was for their ancestors," Ms. Irving said. "Kids can peel an apple and keep it, or grind corn and get some in a little sack to take with them."

The fighting 6th, a Belton-based Civil War re-enactment group, will stage gunfights, a depot robbery and a train holdup. But, Ms. Irving joked, "Last year they blew up their cannon, so I don't know what they're going to do for a cannon this year."

Festival goers also can experience history through those who lived it.

"Out here at the engine and caboose we'll have some retired railroad men so you can talk to an old-time engineer and see what it was like then," Ms. Irving said.

"We're trying to bring all this history alive for people through the models and the museum," she said.

Other entertainment includes concerts, ethnic food and folk dancing such as Czech, Korean and Mexican.

The festival is offering a group ticket this year for the first time. The ticket allows festival goers into all festival activities — $3.50 for adults and $2 for children.

Tickets for just the museum activities are $2 for adults, $1 for senior citizens and children under 12; children under 5 are free.

Tickets for the model train show at the convention center are $2.50 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Model train show activities include model train displays, vendor and manufacturer booths, swap tables and a children's play area with high-quality railroad toys, which will be donated to charity after the show, said Centra-Mod President Bob Winters.

Model train enthusiasts will find specialty items for their train sets such as railroad sounds recorded on compact discs, railroad prints and custom-made brass locomotives, he added.

The model train club works with modular railroads, which allow for easier traveling and setup. Models are built in sections; each owned by a different member of the club, Winters said.

Some of the train layouts include a circus train, mining trains, historical trains and even inventive train layouts such as one that features giant insects and a mock toxic waste dump.

Other activities at the model show include door prizes donated by vendors and club members building a model railroad from the ground up.

"We build the whole thing right there. It gives everyone a chance to witness how this stuff goes together — from the scenery to the track work to building the cars," Winters said.

The club gets most of its operating budget from the annual train festival.

"It's a hobby. There's no great emphasis on accumulating capital, but we do cover our expenses," Winters said.

Among its other activities, the club travels to shows and competitions, sets up trains at Richland Mall for Christmas and sponsors a public television program about trains.

American, pilots still deadlocked

DALLAS (AP) — Negotiators for American Airlines and the Allied Pilots Association will talk again Wednesday about a contract, nearly a year on the bargaining table, which is now in question because of fuel prices.

The Persian Gulf crisis has pushed up already rising fuel costs, creating one more pressure on airline managements to bargain tough in hopes of controlling costs.

But the pilots, who agreed in 1983 to concessions that helped pay for American's successful seven-year expansion, say it's catchup time and they point at Delta Air Lines.

Mediators for Delta and the pilots union reached an agreement one day before Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait last month. The APA has said Delta has consistently led the industry in pilots' pay.

Son dies after protecting Mom

NEW YORK (AP) — A young man from Utah, who intervened after muggers in a subway station punched his mother and robbed his father, was fatally stabbed, police said.

Brian Watkins, 22, of Provo, Utah was in New York with his family for the U.S. Open tennis tournament on Sunday when he was attacked on a midtown subway platform, Transit Police spokesman Sgt. Bob Valentino said.

Watkins, along with his father, mother, 26-year-old brother and his wife, ventured into the subway station at 53rd Street and Seventh Avenue for a two-stop ride to a station near the Tavern on the Green restaurant in Central Park.

As they waited on the north-bound platform, five young men approached, a knife was brandished and the victim's father was robbed, Valentino said.

"During the robbery, one of the assailants punched the mother in the face and the two sons intervened," Valentino said. The victim was stabbed during the fight.

The robbers fled, Valentino said. Two men were questioned early today, but no immediate arrests were made.

Watkins was the 18th homicide victim in the New York subway system this year, Valentino said.

Columbia countdown begins anew

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The countdown began today for NASA's third attempt to launch Columbia with the Astro observatory after engineers solved the latest problem to befall the mission.

Liftoff is scheduled for 1:20 a.m. EDT Thursday. It will be the first shuttle launch in more than four months — the longest gap between missions since flights resumed following the 1986 Challenger disaster.

"It's been a long, hot summer, and we're just glad to be getting back into the flight business," said NASA spokesman Dick Young. The shuttle fleet had been temporarily grounded after hydrogen leaks were discovered on two of the three orbiters, including Columbia.

NASA decided on a Thursday launch after re-establishing full contact with the X-ray telescope inside Columbia's cargo bay.

Contact between the instrument and launch control computers was lost Wednesday night after the cargo bay doors were closed, and NASA scrubbed Saturday's launch attempt.

Workers installed a new electronic component for the telescope inside the cargo bay and finished testing it Sunday.

Protestors cancel Klan march

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 3,000 counter-demonstrators succeeded in forcing the Ku Klux Klan to call off its planned march through the capital, but Klansmen are vowing to return next Labor Day.

But robbed and hooded members of the Mount Holly, N.C.-based Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan still held a brief rally on the U.S. Capitol steps Sunday as a mob, held several blocks away by police, shouted protests.

Police escorted about 46 members of the white supremacist group to the Capitol while a crowd estimated by police at 3,000 attempted to move into the area.

Officials said the klansmen called off their planned march after learning that counter demonstrators were blocking the route.

"Officials conferred with the Klan and they were advised... anti-Klan protesters were blocking the roadway and it would be difficult, if not impossible, for the Klan to march through there," District of Columbia police spokeswoman Shannon Crockett said.

A Klan leader promised his group would return.

Typhoon Abe death toll passes 50

BEIJING (AP) — Typhoon Abe killed at least 51 people and injured about 250 when it hit Shanghai, China's largest city, and surrounding coastal areas, an official newspaper reported today.

The storm, which struck Friday, killed three people in Shanghai, which just two weeks ago was suffering from a heat wave, the China Daily reported.

Previous reports have said 48 people were killed in coastal Zhejiang province by Abe, the sixth major storm to batter China's southeastern coast this summer and the worst typhoon to hit Zhejiang in 34 years.

Heavy rainfall flooded most of urban Shanghai during the weekend. One district registered 8.2 inches of rainfall in one day, China Daily said.

An accompanying photograph from the neighboring city of Nanjing showed trees planted in sidewalks uprooted and leaning into the streets.

In Zhejiang, 41,000 people were left homeless and 45 were reported missing, the paper said.

Mohawk settlement draws troops

OKA, Quebec (AP) — Canadian troops backed by armored vehicles and helicopters Saturday swept into a Mohawk community where armed Indians and authorities have stared at each other across barricades for 53 days.

Gen. Armand Roy, commander of the Canadian Forces 5th Brigade, said he decided to send in his troops after two Mohawk men were wounded in factional fighting behind Indian barricades set up in a land dispute with government officials.

"I decided to move my troops so as to guarantee the security of civilians and my soldiers," Roy said.

The military action came after efforts failed to reach a negotiated settlement in the dispute. The Mohawks have been trying to block a golf course extension on land they claim is theirs, but they have also raised other grievances.

One shot was fired into the air by a Mohawk after the troops moved in, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. said. But there were no reports of casualties.

Defiant Indian militants stood their ground and screamed at Canadian soldiers to get away as troops pushed to within 100 yards of the Mohawks' main barricade Saturday afternoon.

The troops moved into an area where the army had estimated at least 50 armed members of the militant Mohawk Warrior's Society were located.

Later in the evening, Lt.-Col. Pierre Daigle said the army was digging in for the night around two other barricades.

"I'm willing to die for this," one Warrior screamed.

Police study clues left by serial killer

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
GAINESVILLE, Fla. — With one day to go before classes resume at the University of Florida, police are studying what they vaguely described as "messages" left by the killer of five college students.

Investigators on Sunday also said they reduced their list of prime suspects from eight to four, and clues left by the killer are helping.

The slayings have terrorized the campus, where students are on a Labor Day break until Tuesday.

"The messages were given to us from the crime scenes," said police Lt. Sadie Darnell. "The messages are indirect that we're interpreting to be messages of some importance."

The killer left no notes or other writings, she said, declining to provide further details. Sheriff's Lt. Spencer Mann added that no "calling cards" were found on the bodies. "It's not a signature-type homicide," he said.

Autopsies on Tracy Inez Paules and Manuel Taboada, both 23, showed they died of stab wounds similar to those that killed the other victims, Mann said. Unlike

Yeltsin criticizes economic plans

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris N. Yeltsin, populist president of the Russian republic, sharply criticized Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev over plans to free the sinking economy of government control and let the market rule.

He rejected Gorbachev's call earlier for the merger of two vastly different blueprints for economic reform.

Yeltsin told a news conference at the Russian federation headquarters: "We won't go along with merging the two programs. That's completely unrealistic."

That would be a brake not only on economic reform but also on the entire renewal of society and the political life of our country.

"The president is showing indecisiveness in this regard," he said.

One plan, prepared by Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov, calls for the government to retain control over prices initially and for long-term denationalization of industries and property.

The other, drafted by a governmental advisory board, outlines more rapid lifting of price controls.

Opinions from across the U.S.

Let George lead the way

We've seen this before. In 1968, Lyndon Johnson imposed a 10-percent surtax on incomes to pay for the Vietnam War and his Great Society domestic welfare boondoggles. The result: the end of the prosperity sparked by President Kennedy's 1963 tax cuts, and a decade of stagflation.

In the same way, President Bush, if he joins the surtax mania, would risk giving us renewed stagflation, perhaps leading to his own defeat at the polls in 1992. But the president could by himself act to retard, or even prevent, an economic implosion. First, the president could announce that tax hikes are simply beyond consideration.

He could declare a moratorium on all new regulation, such as the economy-killing Clean Air Act. He could order all cabinet departments to reduce, by 10 percent, paperwork foisted on the public. He could order a hiring freeze for all federal agencies to last until the end of his term of office in January 1993.

Such actions to reduce the federal bureaucracy would send an important message: When the economy gets in bad shape, and families must tighten their belts while businesses cut back, government, too, should institute economy measures and pare down. (The president, as the main molder of policy and opinion, should take action to make sure government does its part to lighten the added burden now carried by all Americans.

Saddam is fooling no one

We didn't buy it, did you?

We hope most people around the globe who saw videotape of the "friendly" Butcher of Baghdad's disgusting manipulation of innocent children and others he's holding hostage weren't fooled. We hope they responded with revulsion and an increased determination to rid the world of Saddam Hussein's imperialistic terror.

This unscrupulous kidnapper and killer — who has unleashed the horrors of chemical weapons upon young and old; who condemned a million people to death in the war with Iran that he initiated; who shamelessly raped and robbed Kuwait; who declared a "holy war" against the United States and who is now shielding Iraq against an angry world's response by holding innocent people as prisoners at military installations — has miscalculated once again if he thinks intelligent and sensitive human beings believe he loves children or has any respect for life.

Using his government-controlled media as propaganda weapons, he hopes to paralyze the West, especially Britain and the United States, from responding decisively.

He is trying to terrorize us and make us feel guilty. Well, we will not be made to tremble and we have nothing to feel guilty about. Harm inflicted upon Saddam's thousands of "guests" being held against their will at gunpoint will be on his head. He and his army will be held accountable.

The little British lad whose head Saddam and his military goons caressed didn't buy the lying leader's ugly display of insincerity and neither, we hope, did the rest of the world — just as the civilized world didn't buy images of a smiling Josef Stalin patting the head of a peasant girl while sending her parents to the gulag or of an affable Adolf Hitler strolling along flower-strewn paths while trying to bring the world to its knees.

In our view, Saddam's sickening stunt has only served to strengthen our resolve that he must be stopped and that his machine of war and destruction must be dismantled.

Defining paradise

Those people searching for heaven on Earth, or at least in the United States, should head out to Bremerton, Wash., the spot designated by a recent Money magazine survey as The Best Place To Live.

One problem with such surveys is that they rely on a fairly predictable list of criteria to determine rankings. Below is a list of other categories that will have to be incorporated into these surveys for them to be taken seriously.

Existence of a good car mechanic. Reliability, price and availability are the keys here.

Traffic civility. An area recording a traffic related homicide involving firearms should be immediately discounted.

Good Chinese food and pizza. Good reception. Being able to get clear pictures from all three commercial networks and one public television station.

An eerie quiet on Capitol Hill

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
WASHINGTON — By the time this gets into print, our nation may be at war. As I write, our nation's capital is peacefully, eerily quiet.

This is the usual pattern of late August. The president is in recess, the Supreme Court is in recess, members of Congress have scattered to the four winds. On Capitol Hill the marble corridors echo the sound of an occasional file clerk passing by. The subway is running a single car. Press galleries are empty. Everyone who can afford to take a vacation has gone on vacation. It is thus a good time to brood over what has happened since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2, and what may happen hereafter.

The word "dilemma" is much abused. It is usually defined as a situation in which one must choose between two equally balanced and equally unacceptable alternatives. The word ought to be reserved for indecisions more serious than a choice of TV channels at 9 o'clock.

In responding to the Iraqi blitz, President Bush confronted a true dilemma. To intervene or not to intervene? He was damned if he did and damned if he didn't. He made the right choice. He sent in the troops.

Suppose he had opted for a policy of non-intervention. It would have been a plausible posture. In times past we have had a useful rationale for military action. In Grenada, it was to protect American citizens. In Panama, we sought to restore a democratically elected government in our own hemisphere. Operations in Korea and Vietnam had noble underpinnings.

But the rescue of Kuwait? Of Saudi Arabia? There was nothing noble here, nothing to touch the heart, nothing to stir the finest emotions of political consanguinity. In the oil-rich emirates of the Middle East, no one has seen democracy lately. Why intervene? Are we risking the lives of American troops in the holy name of cheap gasoline?

Fair question. Good question. The unpalatable answer is, yes, that is exactly why we have sent thousands of troops to the sands of Saudi Arabia. It is not the whole answer. For a more complete explanation, one has to consider the second horn of the president's dilemma.

Again, suppose he had done nothing. In that event, not only the United States but much of the Western world would now be hostages to Saddam Hussein of Iraq. The conquest of defenseless Kuwait would have been followed at once by the conquest of Saudi Arabia. The smaller emirates would have surrendered either literally or effectively. By this time Hussein would have consolidated his position as king of the hill. He would be on his uninterrupted way toward the development and deployment of nuclear arms.

Bush could not permit this to happen. That is the long and the short of it. He had to move.

It is a great tribute to George Bush that he moved with consummate skill. Whatever happens, his achievement in putting together a

James J. Kilpatrick

U.N.-sanctioned blockade has to be hailed as a triumph of diplomacy. Iraq is now an outcast member of the family of nations.

What lies ahead? In a sea of uncertainties, we may be certain of this much: Western interests demand that Hussein be defanged, removed from power, and his successor rendered incapable of threatening the West again. If this can be accomplished through economic sanctions, well and good, but Hussein will not be easily dislodged. The saving of face is as important in the Arab world as it is in the Orient.

This implies force. Before long we may have a Grenada justification in the rescue of Americans held hostage in Kuwait and Iraq. Citizens of Egypt, France, Italy, the Soviet Union and Great Britain are equally in peril. It would be better to have company, but if need be the United States must go it alone. We must strike with overwhelming power. This cannot be another Vietnam in which greathearted troops are supported by a halfhearted effort.

"If it were done when 'tis done," mused Macbeth, "then 'twere well it were done quickly." We cannot maintain thousands of troops indefinitely in Saudi Arabia. They must be asked to accomplish their mission professionally, and then to withdraw.

Meanwhile, a host of domestic problems cry out for attention. A sluggish economy, an irresponsible Congress, a revised budget for defense — these are compelling concerns. Capitol Hill is quiet now, but it is an uneasy quiet. If it is to be a shooting war, let us throw every resource into winning it, and winning it soon.

Going write on with vacation

By LEWIS GRIZZARD
A number of my friends and colleagues were stunned when I told them I was going on vacation in a few days.

"You can't do that," one said. "And why not?" I replied. "I deserve a vacation."

Writing columns isn't that easy. First, you've got to think of an idea, which can give you a headache.

Then, you've got to write the darned thing, and that can take hours and cause nausea. Even to those who read it on occasion, I would assume.

Then, there's my editor. He's a gentle, friendly man, but he's got this thing about facts. He expects me to have them straight every time out and facts can really get in the way of a good column.

"You just shouldn't be going on vacation," my friend/colleague said, "with the crisis in the Persian Gulf it will be bad for your image."

"I still don't understand," I said.

"If you go on vacation, then you won't be available for keen international observations regarding subsequent developments in the crisis."

"But I haven't had any keen international observations yet," I pointed out. "And this thing is weeks old now."

The only thing I've done on the Persian Gulf Crisis was when it first came up I declared war on Iraq.

And that wasn't really that difficult to do since I'm well over the draft age and likely wouldn't be called to duty until the fighting got to the Gulf Service station a few blocks from my house.

I tried to reason with my friend further. "Listen," I said, "if it will make you feel any better, I will take my typewriter with me on vacation."

"If I should have been international observations — but don't count on it — then I will type them and send them back to the paper."

He still wasn't convinced. "You really can't do the job on vacation that you could do if you remained here at your post," he argued. "You'll probably be out playing golf all day and won't keep up with the crisis, which could worsen in a heartbeat."

"Your readers will be turning to you for your clever insights and wise suggestions, but you'll be standing over a putt somewhere, and they'll have to make do with George Will and William Safire. George Will and William Safire wouldn't take a vacation at such a point in global history."

"But George Will and William Safire actually have clever insights and wise suggestions concerning the crisis in the Persian Gulf," I said. "I haven't had any clever insight or a wise suggestion in months." I went on. "That's one of the reasons I need a vacation."

I stood my ground and I'm still going on vacation in a few days, regardless of what it might do for my image.

Besides, I don't have to get re-elected.

(Editor's Note: Readers, don't despair, the insights will go on. Grizzard's editor was finally able to talk him out of his vacation.)

Assets of 3.3 million richest exceed GNP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 28.5 percent of America's personal wealth is in the hands of 3.3 million persons whose holdings exceed the entire gross national product, the Internal Revenue Service reports.

The IRS says the richest 1.6 percent of U.S. adults — those with assets of $500,000 or more — had total holdings of $4.3 trillion and a combined net worth of $3.8 trillion in 1986, the latest year for which figures are available.

By comparison, the value of all goods and services produced in the United States in 1986 — the GNP — was $4.1 trillion.

Four years earlier, 23 percent of personal wealth in the United States was held by 2.2 million people with a net worth of $2.1 trillion.

The IRS report suggests the United States has well over 1 million millionaires. In 1986, the IRS estimated, there were 941,000 adults with a net worth of $1 million or more, almost twice the 475,000 reported in 1982 and five times the 180,000 in 1976. The number has surely climbed since then.

The report, based on estate-tax returns, tracks other recent findings that the number of wealthy people and their share of the pie grew sharply over the past decade. Those studies attributed the increase to an economy that grew for seven straight years and to major changes in tax law.

The IRS study estimates the 3.3 million wealthiest Americans had an average net worth in 1986 of $1.13 million. The portion of women among the super-rich continued to grow; they accounted for nearly 43 percent of total assets and on the average owed less and had a greater net worth than men.

Past studies found the wealthy putting the biggest portion of their money into real estate, but now the No. 1 investment choice is corporate stock.

"Considering the relative performance of the real estate and stock markets between 1982 and 1986, this reversal was not unexpected," wrote IRS analysts Marvin Schwartz and Barry Johnson.

"The Dow Jones Industrial Average (the most-watched indicator of the stock market) more than doubled during this period, rising 103 percent, while the price index of new one-family houses sold rose a comparatively modest 14 percent," the report noted.

More than one-quarter of the richest adults were in California (558,000) and New York (340,000). Texas, battered by declining oil prices, dropped from second to third place with 250,000; Florida had 238,000; Illinois, 148,500.

On a per capita basis, the IRS said, Connecticut had the largest concentration of wealthy people, at 327 per 10,000 adults. California had 299 per 10,000. The national average was 198 per 10,000.

For statistical reasons, the IRS did not count the 25,100 people with net worths of $10 million or more when estimating the wealthy in each state, although they are included among the 3.3 million. They were worth nearly $538 billion, an average of $21.4 million each.

Junk mail museum in works

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Millionaire Warren Meyer is about to realize his decade-old dream of opening a shrine to junk mail.

"There's a lot more to junk mail than Ed McMahon's handsome face," said Meyer, known locally as the "junk mail king." His firm Meyer & Son Mailhouse is a leader in direct-mail sales drives.

Meyer said he believes junk mail suffers from a negative image, and he hopes his museum will deliver the respect it deserves. The museum will be built in mid-1991 in Los Angeles. "The museum is a 10-year dream and I am finally seeing it come into fruition," Meyer said. He plans to run newspaper advertisements in coming months seeking examples of junk mail "classics" for the museum archives.

Junk mail serves an honorable purpose, said Meyer, who recently donated his company's services to more than 25 charities and mailed over 1 million pieces of nonprofit and charity direct-mail appeals for them.

Schools cope with finances, demographics

DALLAS (AP) — Summer's ending for millions of Texas public school students just when it got cooking.

A short time ago they melted in the year's highest temperatures. Now they are sweating out spelling tests, multiplication speed trials, Pythagorean theorems, computer programs and literature from See Spot Run to Shakespeare.

They return to 1,068 school districts that are being reshaped by a new system of state funding and higher numbers of minority pupils.

A whole spring of special sessions of the Texas Legislature drew attention to inequities in the way districts receive state funds.

Many school officials spent the summer figuring out how they would be affected by an infusion of $528 million to the state's $14 billion annual education outlay.

But they have also been preparing for a change in who they see in their classrooms. Within two years, Texas will become the fourth state where minority students outnumber non-Hispanic whites in public schools.

The change — a benchmark in the growth of cultural diversity since desegregation — presents Texas educators and lawmakers with unique problems and opportunities because the state is the largest for it to happen.

School finance, curriculum development and teacher training and recruitment already are being influenced. So will the attitudes of the next generation of Texans, experts say.

"What we're talking about here is not just knowledge," said David Erlandson, head of the educational administration department at Texas A&M. "We're talking about attitudes, acceptances of different ways of doing things, different cultural patterns, different priorities."

said Thomas Oakland, a University of Texas educational psychology professor.

Some have launched special services such as after-school care, day-care for babies of teenagers and English classes for Spanish-speaking parents. Others are exploring options.

While students are becoming more diverse, Texas schools ironically are having problems teaching methods and programs. Such innovations abound as the school year begins. Among them:

- An alternative high school in the west Texas town of Hobbs, where the school district consolidated this year with nearby Rotan. Several districts will help fund the school, which will train about 80 students who have dropped out or appear to be at risk of dropping out. Day-care will be provided for the children of teenage students and classes will emphasize vocational skills, said Nolan Kinsey.

- A school for about 100 dropouts and at-risk students also begins in Longview. The school will feature smaller classes and use computers, said Janis Cannon, deputy superintendent for curriculum and instruction.

- The Texas Academy of Mathematics and Science at the University of North Texas accepts its first full class of 200 students. It is Texas' only statewide public school, enrolling students from all over for their last two years of high school. With work at the Denton university, the students at graduation have earned enough credit to leap to the third year of college.

- The new Homer Drive Elementary School in Beaumont teaches Spanish to fourth graders. And students correspond with pen pals in the Soviet Union, said principal Norman Traylor.

... statisticians believe the shift to a "minority majority" will occur in the 1992-93 school year when the public school population reaches 3.5 million. It currently totals 3.3 million.

Non-Hispanic whites made up 51 percent of the students in Texas schools in 1988-89, the last year for which statistics are available. Hispanics accounted for 32.2 percent and blacks were 14.6 percent, Texas Education Agency records show.

The agency's statisticians believe the shift to a "minority majority" will occur in the 1992-93 school year when the public school population reaches 3.5 million. It currently totals 3.3 million.

The change is also causing more schools to provide services needed by minority families, who tend to be less affluent.

"We might be perceiving race to be the important factor when it's really socioeconomic status," recruiting minority teachers, officials say.

That's partly because the demand for well-educated minorities is also high in business and science, professions where there is often better pay and more respect.

"We're having trouble competing," Erlandson said.

Several Texas colleges and universities have scholarships to recruit minority students to education training. Some at Texas A&M are paid by school districts in exchange for a commitment by a minority student to teach in their system for a few years.

The demographic shift also holds many opportunities, educators say, including new

There she goes Relinquishing crown will be bittersweet

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss America 1990 Debby Turner says giving up her crown this week will be bittersweet, but she conceded she's looking forward to lounging around with no make-up on.

But after a week of relaxing, it will be back to the books to finish her degree in veterinary medicine.

Miss Turner, a 24-year-old who competed as Miss Missouri after losing in years past in her home state of Arkansas, said she has enjoyed the last 12 months.

She says Saturday, her last night as Miss America, will be a sad one.

"It is a bittersweet experience. This has been a good year and you always hate to see it end," Miss Turner said. "I'm sure I'll be a little weepy about it."

Among the highlights were meeting President Bush, Bill

Cosby, Oprah Winfrey and jazz great Lionel Hampton.

"I am looking forward to a week to go somewhere and do nothing but lay out with no make-up," she said. "I get tired. I'm on the road seven days a week. Living out of a suitcase has its challenges."

She said that after taking a week off she will resume her studies at the University of Missouri-Columbia Veterinary School, where she is six months short of her doctor of veterinary medicine degree.

Miss Turner said she remains surprised by how much attention she received as Miss America.

Among the stranger incidents drawing attention were the loss of her luggage in Moscow, Idaho, and a call she placed to another Turner staying at a New York hotel who was receiving her messages.

By BARBIE LELEK
Colorado City correspondent
Colorado City will be seeing several new coaches this year.

Sharma Smith will be the new girls volleyball coach at the high school. Sharma grew up and graduated from Paducah High before attending West Texas State University in Canyon. She received a bachelor's degree in physical education, health, and driver's education. Smith made her home in Levelland for nine years where she taught school.

Todd Pollard is a Snyder High School graduate. He attended West Texas College in Snyder for two years and finished his college career at Howard Payne University where he received a degree in physical education and mathematics. Todd taught at Brownwood High School. He will be teaching math and the Colorado Middle School and assisting basketball at high school.

Gary McNeil graduated from Hardin-Simmons University with a bachelor's degree in physical education and history. He is currently working towards a master's degree in history at the University of North Texas. Before moving to Colorado City, he taught in Burleson.

Below is a list of all the new teachers including those who were unavailable to comment.

High school teachers: Alex Martinez, band; Sharma Smith, volleyball, PE and health; Kristi Hartwick, Plan A; Larry Hartwick, math, coach. Shiela Redwine will be employed as the new registrar. The new faces at Middle School are Noel Guerra, band; Gary McNeil, coach and PE; Yandy Powell, history and coach; Todd Pollard, math and coach; Gayle Younger and Leigh Ann Erwin, aides and Sonja Girvin, secretary. Those at Hutchinson are: Connie Waldrip, 4th grade; Judy McArthur, 4th grade; Patti Wilson, special ed.; Carolyn Redwine, Vicki Weaver and Connie Stone, aides. Kelly Elementary new teachers are Adele Morgan, prekindergarten; Lea Ann Burnett, 1st grade; Mona Crockett, kindergarten; Diana Castro, Virginia Mendoza and Ann Kay, aides.

Neighbor is quick to judge couple

DEAR ABBY: My wife has had Alzheimer's for several years and is now totally bedridden. She doesn't even recognize me. My life has been very lonely. My children have encouraged me to get out and enjoy the last years of my life. (I am 73 and my wife is 75.)

To get to the point, I started seeing a 68-year-old widow who lives in my condo complex. We go to dinner, theater, concerts, etc. We are good company for each other, but the flak we are getting from some of our neighbors is very upsetting.

What is your opinion of this? Do I have the right to enjoy my life? And what about the woman I'm seeing? Does she have the right to date me — a married man? — SINGLE, BUT NOT SINGLE

DEAR SINGLE, BUT: Since there is no hope for your wife's recovery, and she no longer recognizes you, I see no reason why you and your neighbor can't enjoy each other's company. Easing the burden of loneliness isn't a sin, so don't allow anyone to lay a guilt trip on you. Read on for the flip side of your situation:

DEAR ABBY: Dad died suddenly of a massive heart attack on the tennis court. It was a terrible shock to Mom. They had been married for 48 years.

Mom's new-age therapist gave her one year only to mourn Dad's death, then she ordered her to get on with her life. This therapist then were terminally ill with no chance of recovery and no longer recognized my husband, I would want him to live the remainder of his life with as much happiness as possible. And I would hope that the community would treat him with understanding and compassion — and not rush to judgment.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it's OK to let an 8-year-old boy make a train trip alone? It's only 2½ hours. He has been a latchkey kid for over a year and has shown that he is mature enough to be alone while his mom works, so I think he should be mature enough to travel alone.

His grandfather doesn't agree with me, but he said I should write to you, and we will abide by your decision. — WAITING IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR WAITING: I may be a "nervous Nellie," but I would not send an 8-year-old child alone on a train trip of any length.

"How to Be Popular" is for everyone who feels left out and wants an improved social life. It's an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. # Opposition to official English language grows in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A growing movement is afoot to rid India of a pervasive vestige of the British colonial Raj: the English language.

It won't be easy. English is the language of law, government and some of the best modern Indian literature.

It is spoken by the wealthy and well-educated who have dominated politics and business since independence in 1945. They often are called, derisively, the Brown Sahibs.

Kapil Kapoor, a linguistics professor, predicted the movement would grow because knowledge of English "provides privileges to a few, but it deprives privileges to many."

Experts estimate 35 million Indians know some English. That is more than the population of Canada, double that of Australia and about half the number of people in Britain, but only 4 percent India's 880 million.

Anti-English sentiment has arisen periodically, sometimes accompanied by violence. This year, the campaign has gone farther than before toward eliminating English from official business in some of India's 25 states.

Mulayam Singh Yadav, who leads the government of Uttar Pradesh, the most populous state, banned the official use of English in April. He instructed the courts to conduct their business exclusively in Hindi, the language of about 200 million people in northern India.

Yadav also suggested forbidding

English as the language of instruction in private schools, where the children of many well-to-do Indians are educated.

Two other Hindi-speaking states in northern and central India have ordered all official correspondence and public announcements made in Hindi.

In Goa, on the southwest coast, the local government tried to cut off public funds for English-language schools and teachers blocked the main highway for three days in protest.

At a seminar in New Delhi last month, Yadav of Uttar Pradesh said: "I will happily accept any Indian language as our national language, but English must go."

There are plenty of indigenous tongues to choose from.

India has 15 recognized official languages, including English. A census in 1971 indicated 1,652 languages and dialects were spoken, 33 of them by more than a million people each.

English billboards and signs rule the streets of New Delhi, in the heart of the Hindi belt. One-fourth of all the newspapers circulated in India are in English, as are 40 percent of the books, said publisher Ravi Dayal.

"It's not that easy to get rid of English," said M.P. Chhaya, a consultant for the Education Department. "It's only possible if one common language besides English is accepted. That won't happen soon."

One advantage of English is its neutrality. Although Hindi is by far the most widely spoken language, southern Indians say adopting it as the official national tongue would amount to accepting northern domination.

"The constitution was written in English," said Kapoor, director of the Center for Linguistics and English at Jawaharlal Nehru University. "Maybe 98 percent of the people can't read it, but they are supposed to swear by it."

"English is an instrument for making people feel inferior," he said in an interview.

Persian was the administrative language of the Mogul emperors who united most of India in the 16th century, then English became the tongue that linked the nation together.

Sanskrit, one of the earliest great languages and the medium of India's classics, has been dead as a spoken idiom for 1,000 years.

After 40 years of studying English, Kapoor said, he began to appreciate his own culture when he discovered the importance of Sanskrit and early Indian literature to Western thinkers.

"In this prestigious university, there is no department or chair in Sanskrit," he said. "We have chairs in all kinds of classical languages, but not our own."

Resentment of India's ruling class feeds the anti-English movement. "They are a class of people deliberately created by the British," Kapoor said. "They are English in taste and opinion, and Indian in blood and color."

How's that?

Q. I am an honorably discharged veteran of the Vietnam era. I plan to retire shortly and I would like to buy a new home. I know that I was entitled to a VA-guaranteed home loan when I got out of the service, but I believe the time limit on this benefit has expired. Is this correct?
A. Loan guaranty eligibility is not subject to an expiration date, according to the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Saudis to boost oil output to 7.6 million barrels

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Saudi Arabia will boost its daily oil production by 2.27 million barrels this month to make up for the loss of Iraqi and Kuwaiti output, the Middle East Economic survey reported today.
In addition, the United Arab Emirates will boost output from fields in Abu Dhabi by about 450,000 barrels a day, the respected Nicosia-based oil industry newsletter said.
Before Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2, Iraq's President Saddam Hussein warned that he would retaliate for the violation of OPEC quotas by Kuwait and the U.A.E. The extra oil on markets was driving down crude prices.
A United Nations economic embargo imposed on Iraq four days after the invasion stopped Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil exports, slashing available OPEC production by 4 million barrels a day and driving up prices.

The new increase in daily output follows an agreement by Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Vienna on Aug. 29 to suspend quota restrictions and allow production to rise toward 22.5 million barrels a day.
That was the production level set in Geneva by the oil cartel on July 27, six days before Iraq invaded Kuwait.
The move to boost oil production by Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates will boost Saudi output to 7.65 million barrels daily, and the Emirates' to about 2 million barrels a day.
The newsletter estimates that OPEC production will reach 22.1 million barrels a day this month and rise to 23.1 million barrels daily by year's end.
The Vienna agreement was aimed at restoring market stability and salvaging OPEC's credibility in the wake of the Persian Gulf crisis.

"I have had an enjoyable time," said Beth Krekeler of St. Louis, a former English teacher in Baghdad. "I have had a cross-cultural experience."
Mrs. Krekeler, who spoke to reporters while cuddling her two-year-old cat, Minutiae, also said she did not object to the Iraqi policy of ferrying hostages to potential bombing targets to serve as human shields.
"I think it is a very noble thing to be there, to stop the bombing of cities and the bombing of people," she said.

Police beat

A minor accident Sunday at Moss Creek Lake ended with the arrests of two Odessa men for assault and intoxication.
Lake personnel were attempting to close and lock the front gate shortly after 10 p.m., according to Big Spring police reports. The vehicle was reportedly stopped in the roadway, while a second car was stopped outside awaiting entrance.
A car approached at a high rate of speed, skidded and struck the second car, causing it to hit the first car, according to the report.
Scott Ronald Worley, 31, Odessa, was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated and class C assault. Jeffrey B. Spruill, 21, Odessa, was arrested and charged with class A assault and public intoxication.
The drivers of vehicles 2 and 3 were transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center by private vehicle, treated and released.
The Big Spring Police Department reported the following additional incidents:

have been designated as historic with state or county-ordained markers.
Mays said the county commission plans to continue to work toward designating other historic sites and plans to publish a brochure with information about each.
They hope to establish a total of 20 county-designated sites this year, she said. The First National Bank of Big Spring and the St. Thomas Catholic Church will receive Texas historical markers sometime this fall, she said.

Guilty plea draws 10 year term

A 26-year-old Big Spring man, arrested Aug. 23 in connection with the recent burglary of J.C. Penny Co., was sentenced to 10 years in prison after pleading guilty to the break-in.
District Judge Robert Moore imposed the sentence Friday after accepting Moncado's plea.
Moncado was on parole when he was arrested Aug. 23 by Big Spring police executing a search warrant at a residence in the 800 block of South Douglas Street.
During execution of the search warrant, police allegedly recovered about $1,000 worth of property believed to have been taken in the department store burglary.
Two other men, Arthur Lee Gibbs, 43, and Alvin Phillip Allen, also 26, are free on bond after being arrested on burglary charges stemming from the J.C. Penny break-in.
All three men were on parole and have previous burglary-related convictions in Howard County, according to courthouse records.

meeting with reporters on Sunday, saying Iraq wanted peace, but was prepared for war.
"I'm not afraid of war with the United States, which has deployed tens of thousands of troops in the Saudi desert since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2. He said his country has 1.5 million men under arms and 5.5 million volunteers ready to fight."
"During the war with Iraq, hundreds of American-made planes darkened our skies, and even our children used to throw rocks at these planes," Jasim said. "So if Bush wants to stay in power, he will pull out his soldiers and not make war."
Under a plan organized by the ruling Ba'ath Party, stores will limit the quantity of certain products that can be sold at one time, al-Hadithi said.
"We need only bread and water. We need no more than that. We can live for a long time," Jasim said. "Dignity is more important than food."
"Earlier, sources said coupons had been issued to Iraqis entitling them to a monthly allocation of 13 pounds of flour, 3.3 pounds of rice, 2.2 pounds of sugar, 3.5 ounces of tea, 1.1 pounds of oil, 17 ounces of detergent and one bar of soap."
"Two food store owners in Baghdad said they were told the rationing plan would limit purchases of such items as rice, sugar, tea, cooking oil, baby food, detergent and soap."
"We really don't think about this. I'm not hoarding. Everything is here. We are not worried about it," one shopper said on condition of anonymity.
Al-Hadithi said the plan was a precaution prompted by the U.N. sanctions but not a response to any spot shortages.

Volunteering: a graduation requirement

NORTH KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Volunteering soon will become a high school graduation requirement for students in the North Kansas City School District.
In a pilot program announced last week, the 16,000-student district will require students to complete 36 hours of community service outside the classroom as part of a new social studies class, "the American citizen."
"It's time to put the 'me' generation behind us," Superintendent Gene Denisar said Tuesday at a convocation for the district's 2,000 teachers and administrators.

He declared the North Kansas City district's 1990-91 school year, which begins Tuesday, as the Year of Service.
The "American citizen" class will first be offered next semester as an elective in a high school to be chosen later. Starting in fall 1992 it will become a required course.
Denisar said that as far as he knew, no other school district in the state has such a graduation requirement.

Lady Steers spikers ousted by Amarillo

AMARILLO — The Big Spring Lady Steers beat Odessa Permian in pool play to advance to the championship bracket at the 16-team Amarillo tournament over the weekend.

Friday Big Spring lost to Hereford 12-15, 8-5. Later that day they came back and defeated Odessa Permian 15-11, 15-12. That was good enough to get them to the championship bracket.

Unfortunately, their opening round opponent was Amarillo High, who Lady Steers coach Lois Ann McKenzie called "by far the best team I've seen play this year." Amarillo High beat Big Spring 15-2, 15-10.

"I switched the lineup against Permian, switching Amber Fannin with Kerry Burdette," said McKenzie.

"We looked better than any Big Spring team since I've been here. It took some pressure off Marta (Marta Mathews, hitter) and the set. It made all the difference in the world."

"We looked horrible against Amarillo High in the first game. In the second game we played like we had against Permian. Amarillo had a tall team, they had five players 5-foot-10 and over. I'm pretty sure they won the tournament."

Big Spring, 0-3 for the season, will play Bronte Tuesday at Steer Gym. Junior varsity starts at 6 p.m., followed by varsity play.

Fina Oilers do well at nationals

MINOT, N.D. — The second time around was better for the Fina Oilers as they competed in the Class A national fast-pitch tournament.

The Oilers won four games and lost two. Two years ago the Oilers lost their first two games in the tournament.

"There were four undefeated teams left when we were defeated, so I figure we may have finished in the top 10," said Oilers coach Cotton Mize.

The Oilers beat a team from New Jersey 5-3 as Bobby Doe got the win. Then the Oilers took a dramatic victory over T&B Sports from Santa Rosa, Calif. 9-8.

Fina trailed 6-1 in the second inning, as Coach Mize let son Johnny Mize relieve Doe. The Oilers fought back into the game. In the last inning, with Fina trailing 8-7, one man on, two strikes and two outs, Rick Crider of Denton hit a homer, giving the Oilers a 9-8 victory.

The Oilers were eliminated by a team from Pennsylvania 6-1 as Johnny Mize was the losing pitcher. "Johnny pitched a good game, he struck out 12, which is just about unheard of. The most people were striking out was about five," said Coach Mize.

"I hate to say it, but errors is what got us beat. We've beaten a lot better teams than the teams that beat us. But we did good; that's about the highest finish of any team that ever came from our region. A team out of Odessa went to nationals five straight years, and they only won one game in five years."

"Having been there (nationals) one helped us. We knew what to expect."

Highsmith becomes newest Cowboy

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers traded running back Alonzo Highsmith to the Dallas Cowboys for undisclosed draft selections, the Oilers announced today.

The trade unites Highsmith with his college football coach Jimmy Johnson, who left the University of Miami to coach the Cowboys.

"We've traded Alonzo Highsmith to Dallas for undisclosed draft selections," said Oilers spokesman Chip Namias, who added that the year and number of the selections also will not be revealed.

Highsmith was scheduled to fly into Dallas about 2 p.m. today, take his physical and try to be on the field for the Cowboys' afternoon practice, a Cowboys spokesman said.

The Cowboys said a press conference was tentatively set for between 3:30 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Stieb fires no-hitter at Indians

By The Associated Press
No-hitters are so easy to come by this season that even Dave Stieb pitched one.

Stieb, who had lost three no-hit bids with one out to go over the last two seasons, finally pitched one Sunday as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Cleveland Indians 3-0.

It was the record ninth no-hitter in the majors this season. The no-hitters are happening so often that even Stieb is taking notice.

"Maybe it's not that tough to get one this year," he said. "That's why I got one."

Seven of this year's nine no-hitters have come in the American League, a record for one league. Mark Langston and Mike Witt of California combined for one against Seattle, Randy Johnson of Seattle did it against Detroit, Nolan Ryan of Texas did it against Oakland and Dave Stewart of the Athletics did it against the Blue Jays.

Andy Hawkins of the Yankees pitched a losing no-hitter against Chicago and Melido Perez of the White Sox pitched a rain-shortened no-hit game against New York.

Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles and Terry Mulholland of Philadelphia have thrown no-hitters in the National League.

"I had much better stuff the other times, much better control," Stieb said. "I always knew it took a lot of luck to get a no-hitter."

In other games, Boston beat New York 7-1, Oakland beat Texas 4-2, California beat Chicago 1-0, Milwaukee beat Baltimore 4-2, Minnesota beat Detroit 4-3 and Kansas City beat Seattle 8-0.

Stieb (17-5) struck out nine and walked four at Municipal Stadium, becoming the first Toronto pitcher ever to pitch a no-hitter. The 17 victories matches his career high, ac-

Daniel a pain to Expos

But Daniels wasn't thinking about sitting. He was thinking about hitting.

Shaking off an 0-for-16 slump and aching ribs, Daniels hit a pair of two-run homers and went 3-for-4 on Sunday as the Los Angeles Dodgers rolled to a 12-5 victory over the Montreal Expos.

"I wasn't going to come out," said Daniels, who entered the game 6-for-44. "I'll only come out if I can't handle the pain. It wasn't bad enough. We're in a pennant race right now."

After managing just two runs on six hits while losing to the Expos on Friday and Saturday, the Dodgers had 18 hits in Sunday's game. Lenny Harris and Mike Sharperson, who had three RBIs, also homered for Los Angeles, which trails Cincinnati by 6½ games in the NL West after facing a 13½-game deficit on July 21.

"Since the All-Star break our chemistry has come together," said veteran catcher Mike Scioscia, who had an RBI single. "I'm not talking about in the clubhouse but on the field. The table-setters are getting on and our 3-4-5 hitters are getting them home."

Elsewhere in the NL, it was New York 10, San Francisco 6; San Diego 9, Philadelphia 1; Cincinnati 6, Chicago 2; Atlanta 5, St. Louis 0; and Pittsburgh 7, Houston 6.

Tim Crews (2-4) was the winner with 2 1-3 hitless innings in relief of Jim Neidlinger, who allowed five runs on six hits in 4 2-3 innings, including Tim Wallach's 18th three-run homer after the Dodgers opened a 12-2 lead.

Expos starter Mark Gardner (7-8), who entered the game with a 5-2 record and 1.47 earned run average at Olympic Stadium, didn't survive the first inning, when the Dodgers scored four runs.

Harris led off the game with his second homer, Chris Gwynn hit a sacrifice fly and Scioscia and Neidlinger had RBI singles.

"I just didn't have good stuff or good concentration today," Gardner said. "I was in a situation where I had to pitch and all I did was throw."

Baylor plays No. 7 Nebraska tough

By The Associated Press
No. 7 Nebraska 13, Baylor 0

The Baylor Bears were thinking upset at Lincoln, Neb., when they drove to a first down inside the Cornhuskers' 15-yard line in the fourth quarter. But Frankie Smith fumbled at the 5 after a hit by linebacker Pat Tyrance, and Travis Hill recovered at the 3.

This set the tone for the game as the Nebraska Cornhuskers downed fiery Baylor 13-0.

Although two big plays pushed the ball well away from the Nebraska goal line, the Cornhuskers couldn't get into the Baylor end zone until Scott Baldwin scored from the 2 with 22 seconds to play. Until then, all of the scoring had come on second-quarter field goals of 37 and 20 yards by Gregg Barrios.

No. 8 Tennessee 55, Pacific 7
Tennessee got a long look at reserve tailback Tony Thompson and it's a good thing, because he'll be needed on Saturday against Mississippi State. Thompson, pressed into service after starter Chuck Webb hurt his right knee, scored on runs of nine and 52 yards as the Vols built a 31-0 first-quarter lead.

a game marred by 21 penalties for 248 yards. Each team had a player thrown out after a third-quarter altercation in front of the Brigham Young bench.

UTEP led 10-7 in the second quarter when Detmer drove BYU to a pair of scores. He completed passes of 12, 15 and 19 yards in setting up his own 3-yard TD run for a 14-10 lead. Peter Tuipulotu capped the next drive with a 1-yard run.

No. 18 Pittsburgh 35, Ohio U. 3

Curvin Richards ran for 110 of his 119 yards before halftime and Alex Van Pelt threw for 151 yards and a score before intermission as Pitt made quick work of the Bobcats. The Panthers scored on four of their five first-half possessions to lead 28-3 midway through the first game in 88 years between the teams. It was Paul Hackett's regular-season debut as Pitt coach. He took the club over last December, a few days before the John Hancock Bowl, when Mike Gottfried was fired.

No. 25 W. Virginia 35, Kent St. 24

Jon Jones' first college carry was a big one, a 32-yard scamper for a touchdown that ended a Kent State rally. West Virginia had led 21-3 but Kent State was back to within 28-24 when Jones broke free with 6:17 to play.

Florida St. likes ACC

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State might like to become a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference, but first the ACC has to decide whether it wants to expand.

Commissioner Gene Corrigan said Sunday that Florida State is the only school currently being considered by the ACC. But he cautioned that the eight members aren't sure if they want to add No. 9.

"It (would) bring us into the state of Florida and I think that's the key," Corrigan said at a news conference following a visit by 11 ACC officials. "That's the key more than anything else."

Corrigan said the ACC delegates were impressed with Florida State's facilities and what he described as "the character" of the university.

"We were tremendously impressed with the way Florida State goes about its business," Corrigan said, adding that the ACC officials were aware of Florida State's Sept. 30 deadline for making a decision.

Inside Sports

Hill victorious in GTE Seniors

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Hill birdied the first hole of sudden death Sunday to beat Bruce Crampton in the GTE North Seniors Classic.

Hill's second shot on the par-4, 364-yard 16th hole landed three inches from the cup. He tapped in for the birdie in his first-ever playoff to earn $67,500. Crampton's approach landed beyond the green and his third shot skidded past the cup.

Hill shot a final-round 4-under 68 for a 54-hole total of 201, 15-under on the 6,695-yard Broadmoor Country Club course.

Hill birdied the 482-yard 17th hole to tie Crampton, who shot a final-round 66. Crampton missed a chance to win on 18 when his birdie attempt from the fringe was just short.

Dale Douglass, the leader through the first two rounds, was third at 203.

Couples wins by three strokes

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Fred Couples shook off two penalty strokes Sunday to fire a final-round 2-under-par 70 for a three-stroke victory in the Northwest Open.

Couples finished 54 holes at Heron Lakes Golf Course with a 6-under-par 210 to earn $25,000 in winning the tournament for the second time in three years. Greg Whisman closed with a 69 to finish second at 213. First-round leader Todd O'Neal shot a 70 and was third at 214.

McGovern outduels former teammate

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Jim McGovern outduelled former University of Arkansas teammate John Daly down the stretch Sunday to win the inaugural Ben Hogan Texarkana Open by two strokes.

McGovern's 5-under-par 67 over the Texarkana Country Club course gave him a 54-hole total of 200, 16 under par, and $20,000.

Unser Jr. wins fourth straight

BRITISH COLUMBIA (AP) — Al Unser Jr. took a record-setting fourth straight victory in the inaugural Molson Indy-Vancouver on Sunday, a race marred by an accident in which one course worker was killed and several injured.

The series point leader dominated the second half of the 97-lap, 165.29-mile event at Pacific Place on the edge of downtown Vancouver, beating Danny Sullivan by 10 seconds.

One track worker died of what race officials called "significant head injuries" and two others were hospitalized after they were struck by the car driven by Willy T. Ribbs.

Six track workers were pushing Ross Bentley's car when the accident occurred on lap 17. As Bentley pulled away, several of the workers darted toward the wall, directly into the path of Ribbs' car.

Unser's victory, the 15th of his career and sixth in 12 races this season, made him the first driver in CART's 12-year history to win more than three straight races. He led 58 laps and averaged 77.350 mph in the race slowed by four full-course caution flags.

Unser won $138,628. Mario Andretti finished third, followed by Rick Mears and John Andretti.

French nationals set 400 relay mark

SPLIT, Yugoslavia (AP) — The French national team broke the world record in the men's 400-meter relay and East German sprinter Katrin Krabbe became a triple gold medalist at the European Championships on Saturday.

The French team of Max Moriniere, Daniel Sangouma, Jean Charles Trouabal and Bruno Marie Rose was timed in 37.79 seconds in setting the only world mark of the six-day meet. It erased the record of 37.83 set by the United States national team at the 1984 Olympics.

After winning the 100 and 200, Krabbe ran the second leg on the 400-meter relay, which was timed in 41.68.

Salvatore Antibo of Italy took the 5,000 in 13:22.00 and Jens-Peter Herold of East Germany captured the 1,500 in 3:38.25.

McEnroe survives; Martina doesn't

NEW YORK (AP) — Martina Navratilova spent so much energy winning her first love, Wimbledon, that she had none left for her second — the U.S. Open.

"I think Wimbledon took so much out of me that I really had a hard time," Navratilova said. "I wanted to be up, but I just couldn't kick it into gear."

And one minute short of two hours after she began her fourth-round match, Navratilova was out of the tournament, a 7-5, 3-6, 6-3 victim of Manuela Maleeva-Fragniere.

"It's not like I didn't want to win," said Navratilova, the second seed. "But, I really had to work at it. The win at Wimbledon came naturally."

The win at the U.S. Open didn't come easy for Maleeva-Fragniere. But it came — her first over Navratilova in eight career meetings. In fact, until Sunday, she had won only one set from Navratilova in her life.

"When I learned I had to play her in the Round of 16, I thought that maybe this is the time when I am finally going to beat one of the top two seeds in a Grand Slam tournament," the native of Bulgaria said.

Navratilova's loss, preceded earlier in the week by the departure of third-seeded Monica Seles, has opened up the bottom of the women's draw. Maleeva-Fragniere, the ninth seed, plays eighth-seeded Mary Joe Fernandez in the quarterfinals while No. 5 Gabriela Sabatini will battle unseeded Leila Meskhi of the Soviet Union.

On Sunday, Fernandez defeated No. 15 Judith Wiesner 6-3, 6-2; Sabatini eliminated No. 11 Helena Sukova 6-2, 6-1; and Meskhi ousted Italy's Linda Ferrando 7-6 (7-4), 6-1.

Today, the top half of the women's draw will play fourth-round matches with top-seeded Steffi Graf meeting No. 13 Jennifer Capriati, No. 7 Katerina Maleeva — Maleeva-Fragniere's younger sister — facing No. 12 Jana Novotna, No. 4 Zina Garrison taking on unseeded Nathalie Tauziat of France and No. 6 Arantxa Sanchez

NEW YORK — John McEnroe reacts to the applause of the crowd after he won his match against seventh-seeded Emilio Sanchez in the U.S. Open Sunday. McEnroe won 7-6, 8-6, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4.

Vicario playing No. 16 Barbara Paulus.

The top half of the men's draw moved into the quarterfinals with No. 3 Ivan Lendl to play No. 12 Pete Sampras and two unseeded players facing each other: four-time U.S. Open champion John McEnroe against David Wheaton.

The 31-year-old McEnroe, turning back the clock to when he dominated men's tennis, thrilled a packed Louis Armstrong Stadium crowd at the National Tennis Center when he ousted seventh-seeded Emilio Sanchez 7-6 (8-6), 3-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3. Lendl defeated Israel's Gilad Bloom 6-0, 6-3, 6-4; Wheaton defeated Kevin Curren 7-5, 7-6 (7-1), 4-6, 6-4 and Sampras upset No. 6 Thomas Muster 6-7 (6-8), 7-6 (7-5), 6-4, 6-3 at night.

NEW YORK — Martina Navratilova reacts after missing a shot during her match against Manuela Maleeva-Fragniere in the U.S. Open Sunday. Navratilova, who was seeded second, was upset 7-5, 3-6, 6-3.

Today, the bottom half of the draw sends second-seeded Boris Becker against Darren Cahill, No. 9 Aaron Krickstein against Amos Mansdorf, No. 4 Andre Agassi against No. 13 Jay Berger and Christo van Rensburg against Andrei Cherkasov.

"All the hard work I have done for two years paid off today," Maleeva-Fragniere said. Still, it was a victory over Navratilova by her sister she thought about.

"It flashed to my mind when my sister beat Martina in Houston," Manuela said. "It was again three sets. My sister won the first set, she lost the second. Usually, when you lose the second set against a good player, you lose the match. I said the same thing is going to happen."

And it did.

Maleeva-Fragniere won the first set, which she shouldn't have. Navratilova, after all, was up 4-1 and serving.

"My serve went away for a while," Navratilova said.

That was enough for Maleeva-Fragniere, who won six of the next seven games to capture the set. Then, after Navratilova sailed through the second set, appearing to be in the groove, Maleeva-Fragniere struck again.

"I could feel that she was not hitting the ball really hard and I had become quite faster, which allowed me to go for the passing shots," the winner said. "She served a few good games, but I have never returned or passed like this match, and she was probably a little surprised."

Shocked might be a better word. So would eliminated.

McEnroe was brilliant at times in his victory over Sanchez, taking the net at every chance, getting penetration on his volleys and setting up the points with a good serve.

"It was a very hard match, very close and high quality," McEnroe said. "But on this surface, if you are consistent enough, sooner or later that person is going to feel the pressure."

Gallagher claims first PGA title

FRANKLIN, Wis. (AP) — Golf is a family affair for Jim Gallagher Jr. His father, a club pro in Marion, Ind., taught him how to play, his brother is on a satellite tour and his wife plays in the LPGA.

Now the Gallagher clan has a champion on the PGA Tour. Jim Jr. beat Ed Dougherty and Billy Mayfair on the first hole of a playoff Sunday to win the Greater Milwaukee Open, a $162,000 paycheck and his first PGA title.

"This is a reward for my parents. I won it for my father," Gallagher said. "It's an awesome feeling. Hard work and patience pays off. I've spent seven years on the tour but I spent all my life getting ready for something like this."

"My hands were shaking but that's what it's all about. The first one is the toughest."

Gallagher and Dougherty had final-round 66s Sunday at the Tuckaway Country Club. But they took their 17-under 271s to the clubhouse and had to watch.

Mayfair birdied Nos. 16 and 17 — which would later be the first playoff hole — and had a one-stroke lead with a hole to play. But on the 18th, Mayfair hit his tee shot into the right bunker and blasted out just short of the green. From there it took him three shots for a par and a tie.

Then there was Ray Stewart, the leader through three rounds. Like Gallagher, Dougherty and Mayfair, Stewart also was after that elusive first title.

But he hit two bunkers on the 18th, ending his tournament with a bogey and falling into a fourth-place tie with Steve Lowery and Scott Hoch at 272.

FRANKLIN, Wis. — Jim Gallagher Jr. of Palm Beach, Fla., holds up the Greater Milwaukee Open trophy after winning in sudden death over Ed Dougherty and Billy Mayfair.

Two deadlocked for Rail Charity lead

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Beth Daniel is looking for her third set of back-to-back wins this year. Martha Nause would be happy with one victory.

Daniel and Nause were tied for the lead entering today's final round of the $300,000 LPGA Rail Charity Classic. But while Daniel wasn't pleased with her play after a second-round 69 on Sunday, Nause was delighted to have a chance to win.

"I'm really happy to be in this position," Nause said after shooting the day's best round, a 5-under-par 67, to match Daniel at 8-under 136 for 36 holes. "I have had some good rounds this year, but haven't hit consistently. Today, I hit my driver real well."

Nause, whose only LPGA Tour victory was the 1988 Pat Bradley Invitational, eagled the 11th hole and made four birdies.

"That shot I made to get the eagle on 11 was a really good shot," she said.

Daniel, the defending champion, shot six birdies but made three bogeys in an up-and-down round that left her unhappy with her play.

"When you have been playing well, your expectations are a lot higher," she said. "I just did not play well today. I didn't hit well at all, especially in the fairways."

Daniel won last weekend's Northgate Classic near Minneapolis, and is seeking her third set of back-to-back wins this year.

Three-time Rail Classic champion Betsy King and rookie Donna Andrews were next at 6-under 138. King's 70 included five birdies, but was marred by three bogeys, including one on the 18th hole.

"My finish doesn't really bother me," King said. "Considering the way I'm playing, I feel fortunate to be where I am."

the fifth on Kirk Gibson's RBI double, Daniels' second homer and a run-scoring groundout by Sharperson.

The outburst gave the team a boost despite Cincinnati's victory.

Reds 6, Cubs 2

Cincinnati won for the ninth time in 12 games as Jose Rijo scattered nine hits for his fourth complete game and third straight victory.

Cubs starter Greg Maddux (12-12) lasted just five innings and gave up four runs, three earned, on eight hits and four walks.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the first on an RBI double by Bill Doran, who's 3-for-6 in his first two games for the Reds after being acquired from Houston.

Cincinnati made it 3-0 in the third on singles by Doran, Eric Davis, Todd Benzinger and Reed. Davis is 17-for-41 (.415) in his last 11 games and Reed is 24-for-69 (.348) in his last 23 starts.

Mets 10, Giants 6

New York survived San Francisco's 17-hit attack thanks to some shaky base-running by the Giants, who were swept in the four-game series at Shea Stadium.

Winner David Cone (11-7), who allowed four runs on 11 hits in just five innings, trailed 3-0 before retiring a batter. Kevin Mitchell hit a two-run single with the bases loaded and Matt Williams added an RBI single.

Williams had four hits and Mitchell, Mike Kingery and Terry Kennedy added three each for San Francisco. But Brett Butler, who had two hits, was picked off twice, Mitchell was caught stealing at third and Williams was tagged out after Robby Thompson missed a squeeze bunt.

The Mets rallied against Pat McClellan, who was making his major-league debut.

Kevin McReynolds and Tim Teufel homered for New York and Howard Johnson had a three-run double.

Pirates 7, Astros 6

Pittsburgh led 5-0 in the sixth inning, then held on to beat Houston and stay a half-game behind the Mets in the East.

Starter John Smiley (8-7) retired 16 of the first 18 hitters he faced before Eric Yelding broke up the no-hitter and the shutout with an RBI triple in the sixth.

Student Council already at work

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Staff Writer

From what I hear, the Big Spring High School Student Council is already at work this year. I suppose we should put these guys on salary! Officers are: Stef Stevenson, president; Travis Sinclair, first vice president; Brooke Arrick, second vice president; Gail Reinert, recording secretary; Tracey Owen, corresponding secretary; and D.J. Tedesco, parliamentarian.

The officers attended a workshop at Angelo State University in July. When they returned, they held a workshop lock-in for representatives. Owen reports that it was a complete success. Next up for the council, the Steer Round-up, Saturday, Sept. 8 on the high school patio. What is it? An evening (5 p.m. to 9 p.m.) of fun and games, not to mention food, for the entire community.

Report Card

hibit for the county fair. Members are encouraged to go by the County Extension Agent's office in the court house to get a copy of the rules and regulations.

The group has a local artist who will be available for art lessons for children in grades 1 through 12. Approximate cost for the start-up materials would be $40. Interested persons should call Pam Klaus at 267-7626.

Persons interested in receiving the newsletter should send a $10 yearly fee to Sam Kelton, 106 Jefferson, Big Spring.

spring semesters during the senior years, and take 12 more the summer after high school graduation. That totals 36 hours, about six more than is normally earned during the freshman year of college.

Those who wish to enroll through Early Admission must obtain a permit slip from a high school counselor, have it signed by the counselor, school principal, and parent before applying for admission to Midland College.

Continuing education

The Continuing Education Department at Midland College has 23 classes starting now. There are five sections of Beginning Typing and five of Computer and You, plus two sections each of Calculating Machines, Intermediate Typing, and Word Processing Training.

In addition, you could enroll for such subjects as Coed 50-Plus Aerobics, Oil and Gas Law I, Aerobic Dance, Basic Drawing, Introduction to Machine Shop/Lathe, Beginning Shorthand, and Sign Language I.

One should register for these at the Continuing Education Office in the Administration Building. More information is available by calling 1-685-4518.

Sul Ross State adds new class

The Sul Ross State University Education Department added the weekend format class "Advanced Seminar in Administration" to its fall schedule.

Students may enroll in the class during regular registration, or they can enroll the first evening of class on Sept. 7. Additional class dates or more information on the class can be obtained from the SRSU Education Department at 915-837-8170.

UTPB offers two new courses

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin is offering two new courses this fall — The Environment in American History and Petroleum Engineering. While the former is a survey of representative thinkers such as Thomas Jefferson and Henry David Thoreau, the latter is a series of topic courses which can lead to a graduate degree.

Registration will be held Tuesday and Wednesday. Call the office of admissions at 367-2210 for more information.

Howard County 4-H'ers Dustin Gaskins and Blake Hull won first places in the sub-junior skeet shooting competition at the State 4-H State Trap, Skeet and Sporting Clays Shoot.

The students were accompanied by shooting sports leader R.C. Thomas at the event. It was held in San Antonio earlier this month, with over 280 4-H members in attendance.

Harris earns master's degree

Nancy Wise Harris, RN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed L. Wise, and granddaughter of Mrs. Eck McClure, all of Big Spring, completed her master's degree in nursing from the University of Texas at El Paso recently. Harris is currently employed by Odessa College as instructor of nursing.

Two earn degrees from Sul Ross State

Linda Dianne Davis and Raymundo Villarreal Jr., both of Big Spring, received degrees from Sul Ross State University Aug. 18. Each earned a master of education degree.

Pete P. Gallego, newly elected state representative in the 68th Legislative District, was the keynote speaker.

Bowers earns bachelor's degree

Suzanne Bowers, daughter of Ron and Marisue Cunningham, Big Spring, and Jack Bowers, McAllen, recently received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Texas at Austin.

Bowers graduated with university honors as well as honors in her field, psychology with the completion of a two-year honors research thesis.

Her activities included Golden Key International Honor Society, Psi Chi, Alpha Delta Pi sorority the psychology club. She plans to attend graduate school to work toward a Ph.D. in clinical psychology.

MC offers Early Admissions Program

Midland College offers an Early Admissions Program, which allows high school seniors to enroll for college-credit courses. Attendance and course requirements are the same for Early Admission Students as they are for all other students. The credits earned are held in escrow until the student is graduated from high school.

The work could begin the summer after the junior year, when the student would take six hours during each of two summer terms. Then he/she would take six hours in each of the fall and

Backyard becomes wildlife habitat

SAUK RAPIDS, Minn. (AP) — It seems strange for an 8-year-old to talk about "when I was younger." But when Philip Vaughter was younger he was fascinated by dinosaurs and the fact they became extinct.

That got him thinking "that all the animals are sort of endangered," he said. And Philip's interest got his parents interested. Now their property is an officially registered "backyard wildlife habitat" by the National Wildlife Federation.

The recognition process was started by Philip, who registered his parents' land in a form in a magazine, "Ranger Rick," a National Wildlife Federation publication for children that focuses on environmental and nature issues.

"When I was younger, I really liked dinosaurs," said Philip, who will be a third-grader this fall.

The fact that dinosaurs became extinct stuck with a young Philip.

"We belong to it (the National Wildlife Federation) because Philip is so interested in animals," said Paul Vaughter, a history professor at St. Cloud State University. "A couple of years ago we got the idea to just let some of our land go to natural growth to try to provide some habitat for wildlife. Urban encroachment is taking more and more land away from animals around here — and people, too. There's getting to be more cement and asphalt all the time."

Craig Tufts, the director of the federation's backyard wildlife habitat program, says the program is a "nationwide network of mini-refuges for wildlife in residential neighborhoods, at schools and at places where people work."

Kay Vaughter said the family sent in a form listing all the trees and shrubs they've planted to attract wildlife. "And we had to list the provisions we've made for watering and feeding. They wrote back and said we had been certified."

One reason the Vaughters started their backyard habitat is because a grove of about 70 Norway pines, which had existed in their backyard for about 35 years, died off, primarily because of the drought and beetle infestations.

That, plus the fact that more habitat near the Vaughters' property was wiped out when the Sauk Rapids school district added some ball fields, led to the backyard development.

As lifeguards change their image, few sign up for duty

BOSTON (AP) — Time was, being a lifeguard was a dream job: sitting atop a white tower, a bronzed Adonis for the bikini-clad teenage girls to admire.

These days, it's hard to find people interested in the job.

Because of chronically low wages and costly and more rigorous certification lessons, potential candidates, especially in the Northeast, are drawn to easier, better paying jobs — like flipping burgers in fast-food restaurants.

Some beaches and pools in New England and the mid-Atlantic states have closed for lack of lifeguards, according to the U.S. Lifesaving Association.

"Not too long ago we had waiting lists of applicants," said Tim Hall, lifeguard coordinator for the Maine Bureau of Parks and Recreation.

"Now we have to go out and recruit them. The booming economy of the late '80s made summer jobs more available to college students. Work as chambermaids, waitresses and construction workers paid more."

Those who do sign up, from California to Florida, are frequently much younger than in years past and not always as conscientious, longtime lifeguards said.

"Anyone can put on an orange suit but these young guys don't know what to look for," said Rian Wilkinson, a veteran lifeguard from Newport, R.I. "They just sit on the stands and there aren't any older guys around to keep them from goofing off."

Part of the shortage stems from tougher and more expensive training. In 1982, the Red Cross introduced a national lifeguard certification program to replace the simpler lifesaving courses designed for the general public.

"Now kids have to pay $75 or $80 for certification when it used to be free, and so they'd rather work somewhere else," said Joe Pecoraro, president of the U.S. Lifeguard Association and general supervisor of beaches and pools for Chicago.

"It used to be a glamour position," said Donald Cotter, recreation director in Foxboro, who began recruiting lifeguards in January and did not sign up his last one until a week before the season opened. "Young kids just don't want to do the training."

Many in the profession say the tougher requirements are part of a plan to ensure that lifeguards are better trained and more professional.

"What we call the 'beach mystique' is still there," said Hall. "But the lifeguard's image has basically changed and that's good. We're not looking for people who want to smear suntan lotion on their bodies and look for women. We're looking for people who are interested in someday being policemen, firemen, paramedics — who'll see lifeguarding as an emergency service provider."

John Crisp, 42, assistant chief for lifeguards in the Daytona Beach, Fla., area, said Volusia County takes lifeguards at 16.

Grady boosters set meeting

LENORAH — The Grady School Booster Club will meet in the Grady Board Room at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to discuss plans for the 1990-91 school year.

Thanks for the memories

Villa Wilkerson would like to thank each and everyone who attended and help celebrate with her 90th birthday Saturday, Aug. 25 at her home. "I am very grateful not only for the gifts and cards, but for your presence as well. I want to express my sincere appreciation to all my dear friends who sent me flowers and cards," Wilkerson said.

OC registration closes Tuesday

ODESSA — Late registration for Odessa College's fall semester will close Tuesday, according to Dr. Mary Koeninger, registrar. Late registration times are from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 5 to 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Friday in the registrar's office on the second floor of the Student Union Building. All students must be advised by a counselor before registering. The counseling center is on the second floor on the Student Union Building. Fall semester began Wednesday, Aug. 29. Students who register late will be charged a $5 late registration fee. For more information, call 335-6433.

Hospice to hold benefit

Hospice of West Texas will sponsor a benefit dance at 8 p.m. Sept. 15 at the Martin County Community Center at 301 North St. Theresa. On tap will be Elton Williams and the J.P. Habits Band to entertain the audience. All proceeds will go to benefit Hospice of West Texas. For more information call 756-2657.

Authors divided on 'Peaks' killer

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Four best-selling authors questioned by TV Guide couldn't agree on who killed Laura Palmer in ABC's "Twin Peaks," but say the series better solve the crime in a hurry. Jackie Collins, Andrew M. Greeley, Tony Hillerman and Iris Ranier Dart, were asked to pick the most likely villain of the quirky show, directed by David Lynch and set in a sleepy logging town in the Pacific Northwest. Their answers appear in the Sept. 8 issue of the magazine.

Citizens observe holiday

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans enjoying the last gasps of summer sizzled hot dogs and hamburgers on barbecues, frolicked on the beach, spread out picnics and just plain had fun in Labor Day celebrations nationwide.

Sobering current events take center stage tonight in Corpus Christi, where a prayer service for U.S. military personnel shipped to the Middle East was organized.

A mock funeral in New York today will mark the unofficial demise of summer with the burial of a coffin containing hot-weather items like sunglasses and swim trunks.

Virginia Beach saw no repeat of looting and violence that marred last year's holiday, a $40 million aquarium complex on the Mississippi River opened to record attendance in New Orleans and annual clamshell-toss championships were held on the New Jersey shore.

Hordes flocked to the beach in California, where a body-building competition was scheduled for today at famed Muscle Beach in Los Angeles.

In Texas, the annual Marfa Lights Festival ends its four-day run today after celebrating the natural phenomenon that can always be viewed about five miles east of Marfa, a city about 200 miles southeast of El Paso.

Scientists have tried to explain the mysterious lights, first documented more than 100 years ago by pioneer ranchers. Legend has it the lights are the ghost of the

Americans still in Kuwait hungry, thirsty, tired

By W. DALE NELSON

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — Americans freed from the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait, after weeks as virtual prisoners of Iraqi soldiers outside the walls, say the comrades they left behind face mounting hunger, thirst and weariness.

As the 47 Americans arrived Sunday, the few who met with reporters painted a grim picture of life inside the eight-block compound just across a six-lane highway from a Persian Gulf beach.

"The situation is deteriorating daily," former hostage Lloyd Culbertson, 76, said today. He estimated that 20 to 25 Americans remain at the embassy.

"The food is spoiling. There is no electricity," Culbertson said on CBS' "This Morning." "We have no means of communicating with other people. Our ambassador is not allowed to talk with other ambassadors or to American citizens. He can't leave the compound."

"These situations also prevail at the Canadian Embassy and the Japanese Embassy and possibly others," he said.

Iraq's ambassador to the United States, Mohamed al-Mashat, who met the former hostages at Washington-Dulles International Airport on Sunday, told them, "I come to welcome our guests here." His remarks got a cold shoulder.

"I wasn't a guest," said the white-bearded Culbertson, of El Paso. "I damned near starved to death." Bonnie Anderton of Denver said,

"It is the only hotel I have ever been a guest in that I don't intend to leave a tip. We were sleeping on the floor, there was no water and no power and we were being eaten alive by bugs."

Mrs. Anderton was accompanied by her daughter, Jennifer, 10, who nervously twirled a red baseball cap as her mother spoke.

Jennifer's father, Richard Anderton, an engineer, remained behind in the embassy, where the family took refuge the day after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Iraqi officials cut off power and water to the embassy after Washington refused a demand to close it.

Jesse Jackson, the American civil rights leader who arranged for more than 100 foreigners to leave Baghdad and Kuwait City on Saturday, urged the Iraqis to restore water and power, saying that otherwise he did not believe the embassy could hold out more than a few days.

"He doesn't know us," said Mrs. Anderton. "We'll make it. I think they'll stay as long as they have to."

D. Michael Cheers, a freelance photojournalist who accompanied Jackson, said the Americans in the embassy were boiling water from the swimming pool for drinking and breaking up furniture to burn

Stanton battles to tie in pre-season tuneup

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ
Staff Writer

A 13-yard scoring run by John Paul Barry capped a length-of-the-field drive and allowed the Stanton Buffalos to tie the Wink Wildcats, 1-1, in Friday night scrimmage action at Buffalo Stadium.

Stanton began the controlled scrimmage and moved the ball 61 yards to the visitors' 19-yard line. On fourth down and 10, the Wink defense sacked junior quarterback John Eric Wyckoff for a four-yard loss, ending the drive.

After the Buffalos completed their scheduled number of plays, the Wildcat offense took its turn on the field. The Buffalos' defense — led by the front four of senior DE Allan Carby, senior DT Rene Frausto, junior DT Craig Brooks and junior DE Rick Posey — limited Wink to less than 30 yards, total offense in 20 plays.

"Our front four did a great job of stopping Wink's running backs and chasing their quarterback out of the pocket. They didn't give him time to find a receiver. Our secondary did a better job of staying with their man this week. And our linebackers improved and everything is falling into place. Our plan is to improve every week and keep healthy," said Stanton Head coach Dale Ruth.

The Buffs then began their second round of offensive plays, but disaster struck on the third play from scrimmage when Wink recovered a Stanton fumble of the Buffalos' 25-yard line. The Wildcats wasted no time and moved the football across the end zone and scored first.

Stanton, however, responded with a scoring drive of its own. On third and 12 from the 20-yard line, Thompson dashed through the line and picked up a first down. The Buffs began mixing their plays well and sent Hernandez through

Grady releases free, reduced-price meal schedule

The Grady Independent School District has released its schedule explaining which students qualify for free or reduced-price meals this school year.

Regular meal prices at GISD this year will be 60 cents for all students, while breakfast will be served free. A reduced-price meal is 30 cents for those students that qualify, according to information released by GISD Superintendent Gerald Singleton.

The following students may qualify for free or reduced-price meals, if parents receive Food Stamps or Aid to Families with

Dependent Children (AFDC) for any child:

If total household income is at or below the amounts on the income chart that accompanies the application, children can get free meals or reduced-price meals for 30 cents for lunch.

Most foster children are eligible for benefits regardless of household income, the information stated.

Here's how to apply:

To get free or reduced-price meals for your children, carefully complete the application offered at the superintendent's office and return it to the school. If you now get food stamps or AFDC for any children, the application must have the children's names, your food stamp or AFDC case number and the signature of an adult household member.

If you do not list a food stamp or AFDC case number for all of your children, the application must have the names of everyone in the household, the amount of income each household member now gets, where it comes from and how often it is received, the social security of either the primary wage earner or the household member who signs the application or the word "none" if the member does not have a social security number and the signature of an adult household member. An application that is not complete cannot be approved.

Verification: Your eligibility may be checked by school officials at any time during the school year. You may be asked to send information to prove that your children should get free or reduced-price meals.

Fair Hearing: If you do not agree with the school's decision on your application or the results of verification you may wish to discuss it with the school. You also have the right to a fair hearing. You can do this by calling or writing the following official: Gerald Singleton, HCR 72, Box 4, Lenora, Texas 79749. Phone: (915) 458-2444.

Reporting Changes: If your children get meals based on income information, you must tell the school if your household size decreases or your income increases by more than $50 per month or $600 per year.

If your children get meals based on AFDC/food stamp information, you must advise the school if you no longer get AFDC or food stamps for your children.

Confidentiality: The information you give on the application will be used only to allow your children to get free or reduced-price meals and to verify eligibility.

Reapplication: You may apply for free and reduced-price meals at any time during the school year. If you are not eligible now but have a change, such as a decrease in household income, an increase in household size, become unemployed or get food stamps or AFDC for your children, fill out an application then.

How's that?

Q. I am an honorably discharged veteran of the Vietnam Era. I plan to retire shortly and I would like to buy a new home. I know I was entitled to a VA-guaranteed home loan when I got out of the service, but I believe the time limit on this benefit has expired. Is this correct?

A. Loan guaranty eligibility is not subject to an expiration date, according to the Department of Veterans Affairs.

the line from the slotback position, gaining 17 yards to the Wink 13-yard-line. Barry's touchdown tied the contest at 1-1.

Thompson finished the scrimmage with 68 yards rushing on 10 carries, while teammates Barry finished with 56 yards on 10 carries. Hernandez added another 17 yards on four carries.

"After starting out fast the kids settled down and began to concentrate on their responsibility and began moving people out of the seams, giving the runners a place to run. Garry (Thompson) and John Paul (Barry) had a good game. Selestino (Hernandez) had a couple of key runs," said Ruth.

The Buffalos will play their season opener against the Seagraves Eagles at 8 p.m. Friday at Buffalo Stadium.

"Seagraves has a good ballclub. They have a good quarterback that can throw the football and good receivers. They will probably be passing more this year because they have that kind of personnel," explained Ruth.

In earlier action, the Stanton junior varsity lost to the Wink junior varsity 1-0. "We looked real good in some parts and we just broke down on a couple of runs by Wink that hurt us," said junior varsity coach Rob Young.

The JVs will be in Seagraves Thursday to take on the Eagles at 6 p.m. for their first game of the season.

Iraq refugees' plight worsens

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Asian refugees from Iraq and Kuwait are dying from exposure in a makeshift camp in the desert no man's land between Iraq and Jordan, and rioting may break out soon, U.S. aid workers said Monday.

The estimated 41,000 stranded Asians are fighting each other over scant supplies, they said. An Indian woman's face was bashed in with a water jug by other refugees.

Several thousand of the increasingly desperate refugees mobbed an Indian who volunteered to help relief workers when they suspected him of cheating in distributing tents. He was beaten, but survived. "Helping here is like building a sand castle three feet into the surf," said Jim Nuttal, coordinator for Save the Children. "New people keep coming at 100 an hour, and there's no end in sight."

Dick Clay, an American construction manager who spent three days at the camp after fleeing Kuwait, disguised as a Filipino, said, "People will be killing each other soon if nothing is done."

"There was a death Sunday, and there will be more," said Rebecca Salti, an American settled in Jordan who also works with Save the Children. "Things are so bad we in wood stoves.

Many of the hostages were greeted in their hometowns by joyful relatives.

"Long live America!" 16-year-old Sayyeda Mirza's father, Masood, said after he, his daughter and his wife arrived at New York City's La Guardia Airport on the last leg of their journey to their Manhasset Hills, N.Y., home.

Mirza said that when he learned he was being released, "I was happy. I was crying."

"And the next moment I thought, 'What about the others?'"

Prabhavathi Murikpudi, 40, wept with joy when she and her 10-year-old daughter, Sylaja, were met at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport by her husband, whose monthlong effort to gain their release included a videotaped plea sent to Saddam.

Sylaja celebrated her 10th birthday while in Iraq.

"Some ladies mentioned (her birthday) to the cook and they arranged a big celebration," including champagne, music, gifts and a candlelight dinner, she said.

"We were really treated very well, physically," Mrs. Mirza told television station WCBS-TV in an interview at the family's Manhasset Hills home. Others disagreed.

A U.S. official said 24 women, 11 men and 12 children arrived Sunday but declined to identify them, citing privacy laws. About a third of the women were reported to be pregnant. The State Department said about 1,000 Americans remain in Kuwait, and about 500 are in Iraq.

Among the men was Edward Johnson, 62, a vice president in the St. Louis office of Fasco Industries, which makes electric motors.

"We don't want to leave the embassy," he said. "It's American ground."

Cheers said the men who were allowed to return after Iraqi President Saddam Hussein announced he would free women and children were chosen because of medical problems.

Johnson, a diabetic, said he took refuge at the embassy Aug. 17 on the advice of an embassy official. Culbertson, who taught electronics to the Kuwaiti military, had been in the embassy since Aug. 10.

Of the Americans aboard the green Iraqi jumbo jet who had been held in Baghdad, only one spoke to reporters. She gave a markedly different picture of her captivity than those from Kuwait City.

"I have had an enjoyable time," said Beth Krekeler of St. Louis, a former English teacher in Baghdad. "I have had a cross-cultural experience."

Mrs. Krekeler, who spoke to reporters while cuddling her two-year-old cat, Minutiae, also said she did not object to the Iraqi policy of ferrying hostages to potential bombing targets to serve as human shields.

"I think it is a very noble thing to be there, to stop the bombing of cities and the bombing of people," she said.

Culbertson criticized President Bush for vacationing during the crisis and said, "If it were not for the grace of God and Jesse Jackson, we would not be here. The State Department has not lifted a hand for us."

Labor Day

Gospel music Sunday at the Spirit Festival in Kansas City, Mo., gave way to rock 'n' roll from the group Santana Sunday night. Controversy flared briefly at the festival when not everyone was amused by live mice on a roulette wheel or the mule that jumped through a blazing hoop.

Animal-rights activists complained and the attractions were shut down.

Barbecue was alive and well in Ireland, where a team of four Kansas City-area grill chefs were named grand champions at the 6th Annual World Cup Barbecue Competition in Lissodunvarna.

The competition was waged over hot coals by 31 teams, including representatives from the Soviet Union, Italy and Holland. A team from Kansas City won last year, too.

Sunday's crowd of 16,099 at the Aquarium of the Americas in New Orleans was a single-day record, said spokesman Steve Schulken. The figure topped the previous high of 15,101 set in 1989 by the National Aquarium in Baltimore.

Highway death toll for holiday hits 29

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents have killed at least 29 people on Texas roads over the Labor Day holiday that began Friday night, and the Texas Department of Public Safety said drinking apparently was a factor in many of the incidents.

The DPS projected that 40 people would die in Texas motorcides in the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday and continued through midnight Monday.

That compares with 52 who died as a result of injuries suffered in traffic accidents during the Labor Day weekend in 1989.

Last year, 62 percent of those killed in Labor Day holiday traffic accidents were in accidents connected to alcohol or driving too fast, and 77 percent of the victims were occupants of cars or light trucks who were not wearing seat belts.

The DPS said it put all available troopers on the highways for the holiday.

In its 10 a.m. report on Monday, the DPS added four motorcide victims, bringing the total to 29 through midnight Sunday.

James Edward Johnson, 32, of Tyler was killed late Sunday when one vehicle ran a stop sign and struck another at an intersection of two farm roads about 10 miles east of Tyler. Johnson was a passenger in one of the vehicles and was not wearing a seat belt, the DPS said.

In a similar accident, Eucebio Rendon, 61, of Katy died about two hours after a two-car accident about 7:10 p.m. at the Katy-Hockley cutoff road and Clay Road in Harris County. Five people were injured, and Rendon was not wearing a seat belt, authorities said. Rendon was a passenger in one of the vehicles.

In a 10 a.m. report on Monday, the DPS added two one-vehicle fatalities that occurred early Saturday.

Roel Morales Salinas, 21, of Arlington was killed when the motorcycle he was operating went out of control, slid and struck a curb in Arlington about 12:20 a.m. Saturday. A passenger was thrown into a field. Both Salinas and his passenger wore helmets.

Vivano Ranulfo, 43, of Mount Pleasant, was killed as a passenger in a vehicle that went out of control, hitting a utility pole, and overturning in Mount Pleasant. The driver and other occupants fled the scene, the DPS said. Ranulfo was not wearing a seat belt, authorities said.
