Sales tax to increase Monday

Big Spring sales taxes will increase by 1 percent effective Monday.

The increase, as approved by voters May 5, includes 1/2 percent to fund economic development and ½ percent to reduce property taxes. It raises local sales taxes to a total of 8.25 percent.

"A large number of cities have enacted what we did,' said City Secretary Tom Ferguson. The city of Big Spring estimates a $700,000 revenue from each 1/2-cent increase, he said.

The five-member board of Moore Development for Big Spring Inc. will utilize the economic development funds generated by one 1/2-cent tax increase. Property taxes will be lowered by about 20 cents — to 1 cents per $100 of value — by the other portion of the sales tax increase. However, they were recently increased slightly in the new city budget.

A 2.82-cent increase came automatically with the sale of contractual obligations to buy 15 new police cars and a fire truck. Further authorizations for city equipment purchases added another 3.77 cents to the total, bringing it up to 57.69 cents per $100 of valuation.

The city already collects a 1 percent city sales tax and all local sales taxes are added to the state's 6.25 percent sales tax, according to information from State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Merchants collect both state and local taxes and send them to the comptroller's office with their tax returns, the report states. The office keeps its portion and sends local governments their share every month, it states.

Taxpayers who would like a new rate card or who have questions about the tax increase may call the Comptroller's office at 1-800-252-5555.

Senate overrules federal regulations

U.S., foreign embassies issued warning by Iraq

Iraq has threatened to execute U.S. and other diplomats unless they hand over Westerners they're sheltering. The threat against the diplomats was contained in official statements to the U.S., French and British embassies in Baghdad Wednesday and Thursday.

The Iraqi Foreign Ministry Thursday refused to comment on the statement, but Iraqi officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the memo only contained a reminder of an Iraqi law - issued when Iraq annexed Kuwait last month - which stipulated that those who provide refuge for foreigners could be punished by death. The officials said the law applies only to Iraqis.
In Tokyo, Prime Minister

Toshiki Kaifu Thursday unveiled a plan to dispatch Japanese military personnel overseas for the first time since World War II, but he said they would be unarmed and kept away from combat.

British oil prices fell sharply Thursday after President Bush said he would sell 5 million barrels of oil from the 590-million-barrel U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Hurt by new and tougher trade sanctions, Iraq's leaders said Wednesday they would cut off food to non-Arabs in their country. They announced plans this weekend to extend nationwide rationing to rice, flour, sugar, tea and cooking oil. Bread has been rationed since Sept. 1.

Bush announced the move on Wednesday, saying he aimed to stem crude prices that have skyrocketed since Iraq increased its share of world reserves to 20 percent by invading Kuwait Aug. 2.

Bush taps nation's oil supply

BY RITA BEAMISH Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — President Bush is warning U.S. and world oil markets that if "intensive and unwarranted speculation" does not end, he may expand the first-time use of the national petroleum stockpile to control escalating prices.

The president announced Wednesday he will sell 5 million barrels from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

"I'm prepared to take additional steps, if necessary, to ensure that America stays strong right here at home," Bush told a political fundraising audience in Rosemont, Ill., on Wednesday night.

He announced his decision during a two-day trip to help Republican gubernatorial and Senate candidates.

The petroleum reserve, now containing 590 million barrels, was established in 1975 to ward against potential future oil shortages.

The president said he wanted to test the process of drawing down the reserve. He said the country has "sufficient oil to meet current needs," and added that "there is no justification for the intensive and unwarranted speculation in oil futures.'

Oil prices have skyrocketed to nearly $40 a barrel since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2 and the United Nations trade embargo against Baghdad.

Bush's decision marks the first time the government has tapped into the reserve. It comes at a time. when the administration says there is not an oil shortage, but officials are warning the Middle East crisis could result in tight supplies by the end of the year. • OIL page 8-A

Shoppers get to speak out

Consumers will have an opportunity tonight to tell merchants in a public forum what would convince them to do more shopping in Big Spring. More than 10 percent of local money is being spent outside the county.

'Not Shopping in Big Spring? Tell Us Why!" will be conducted from 7-9 p.m. in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum East Room.

A panel of six consumers and six merchants will raise issues and attempt to identify the needs and concerns of consumers and merchants. Questions and comments from the audience will be welcome.

'This is a sincere effort to hear what the merchants should do, rather than an attempt to tell the public why they should shop at home." said Forum Coordinator Bob Coltrane, an admissions counselor at Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf. Coltrane is also a member of Leadership Big Spring Alumni, one of the organizations sponsoring the event.

Other sponsors include the Business Committee of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, the Texas Agricultural Extension Office, Howard College and the Big Spring Herald.

According to information from the Chamber office, Howard County shoppers in 1988 had an effective buying power of $315.3 million, but retail sales that year totaled only $280.7 million. That means about 11 percent of purchases are being made outside the county. The effective buying power in 1989 rose to 332.6 million, an average of $18,965 for each of 12,600 households.

The panel tonight will explore reasons why consumers go outside • FORUM page 8-A Local Red Cross to aid in locating displaced persons

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

During and after World War II, many people lost touch with husbands, wives, parents and grandparents who remained behind the Iron Curtain. Now, a generation later, as the Cold War dwindles and walls are broken down in Eastern Europe, a Red Cross service will try to answer lingering questions and, in some cases, put families back together. There are still a lot of people missing," said Marianne Brown-Esquilin, executive director of the Big Spring Red Cross. "Who said. knows, they might be alive. Or, you might have to accept that he or she's dead. It might be final."

The American Red Cross "Holocaust and War Victims Tracing and Information Center," based in Baltimore, Md., can be accessed locally. Its purpose is to help people find out what happened to family members during the turbulent wartime - the horrors of the Holocaust, daring escapes and forced relocations. Even if the news is not encouraging, for many people just knowing the truth may be a comfort, Brown

"I think I'd rather know the truth, whatever it is," she said, adding that she has relatives whose whereabouts have been unknown since the war. "I'd want to know instead of wondering for the rest of

Though tracing of lost relatives has been an agency service for many years, inquiries associated with World War II and the Nazi regime of Germany are expected to become easier to resolve, the report states. The service was created specifically to handle the expected increase in such tracing requests.

There is a chance your loved ones didn't disappear without a trace," say Red Cross ads for the ... We now have new service. " copies of death books, certificates and lists containing hundreds of thousands of new names of victims imprisoned by the Third Reich. It could mean the answer you've been searching for.'

Local persons interested in tracing the path of lost relatives in Eastern Europe should contact Brown at 267-3992. The Red Cross office is housed in the Northside

Community Center, 110 N.E. Eighth Street.

Inquiries should be prepared using a form available at the Red Cross office, and should include identifying information as detailed as possible. Names in the person's native language are helpful, according to agency reports.

A full and detailed search may take up to one year, but death certificates can often be located in only a few months, reports say

"It's going to take some time," Brown said. "It won't be easy, but it will be worthwhile if you try it."

Inside Texas

'Killer bees' appear stalled

HOUSTON (AP) - The much-publicized "killer bees." who had been expected to arrive in Texas almost any day, appear to be stalled in Mexico where they have killed 16 people, and may not reach Texas until next spring, an expert

Dr. Anita Collins, a geneticist at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's honeybee research laboratory at Weslaco in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, said Wednesday the aggressive bees seem to be stalled in the neighboring Mexican state of Tamaulipas, 150 miles south of Brownsville

The African bees began their trek northward soon after they were introduced to Brazil in 1957 as part of a breeding experiment

'It's possible we may yet find (in South Texas) an Africanized honeybee swarm in October, later this fall," Collins told the Houston Chronicle. "Normally, swarm activity drops off in November, December, January and February

"If not, I'd say it's fairly likely we'll see something early next spring - in March, April or May," she said. "But of course, that's what we said last year and they didn't show up.

Man shoots burglar during struggle

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A man who heard sounds coming from a neighbors home shot a burglar to death during a struggle, police said.

Officers said Wednesday that Antonio Alcozer, 22, was killed when he was hit with a shotgun blast during a struggle with a 36-year-old man.

Police questioned the man. but released him without filing charges.

"It was a justifiable homicide," police spokeswoman Sandy Perez

Investigators said a shotgun the man had leveled at Alcozer accidentally fired when Alcozer grabbed the weapon's barrel.

Police also questioned a 16-year-old boy in connection with the break-in, but later released him when they were unable to establish that he had been inside the burglarized

Belt stops bullet in shooting

GARLAND, Texas (AP) - A highway worker's belt stopped a bullet from injuring him after a drive-by shooting, police say.

Garland police spokesman Allan Peck said Thomas Duane Purcell, 30, of Mesquite, was struck by a bullet about 2:20 a.m. Wednesday. "Highway department employees were picking up newspapers that had been dropped by a truck. In the process, one of the workers was resting, sitting on the guard rail in the median," said Peck.

Purcell heard a crack and a whiz, and was knocked off the guard rail. He was shot in the back, but the bullet only penetrated his belt, Peck said. Purcell did not require medicai treatment, police said. No arrests have been made.

Challenger center dedicated

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A hightech learning center that simulates space voyages will help attract students to basic science and math, the city's public school superindentent says.

"With space science being on the front burner today and with the president's goals of becoming number-one in science by the year 2000, we need every incentive that we can possibly find that will turn these kids on," Superintendent Franklin Smith said Wednesday.

"I don't believe there is a kid who can go through that lab and not get turned on to space science," he said.

The facility is part of the Challenger Center for Space Science Network, which was established in 1986 as a living memorial to the astronauts who died in the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger. It is the fourth such center in the United States.

Oil companies playing it safe gas companies say they've learned the hard way it's better to wait out the latest Persian Gulf crisis, but at least two are rushing ahead to take advantage of higher oil prices to increase drilling.

'A lack of trust in the pricing situation keeps us in place until we stop staring at each other across the Kuwait border," said Julian Martin, executive vice president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association in

Oil prices have been rising since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2. Light sweet crude sold for $37.53 per barrel for November contracts on the New York Mercantile Exchange on Wednesday

Arkla Exploration of Shreveport, La., and Houston-based Conoco, a DuPont subsidiary, announced this month they were boosting their domestic exploration budgets.

Conoco raised its domestic exploration budget by $10 million, the first major energy company to respond to the recent price increases with more spending. Officials said the money would cover the cost of five new wells in the Gulf of

'With the literal dismantling of the exploration infrastructure in the U.S. during recent years, this country can't expect to see a significant increase in exploratory activity right away," said Max Pitcher, Conoco's executive vice president for worldwide exploration. But while this single effort will not lessen U.S. dependence on overseas oil right away, it is a step in the right direction," he said.

Arkla, which drills primarily for natural gas, announced last week it has increased its capital budget for the remainder of 1990 from $55 million to $70 million, a nearly 30 percent jump over what it originalplanned to spend this year. We are doing something aggressive," company spokesman

HOUSTON (AP) - Many oil and Louis Resweber said. "The industry has to step up to the plate and assist in finding a domestic energy source when we're being threatened by the Middle East."

But Martin and independent producers said it was too risky to increase drilling with expectations of $40-per-barrel oil and suddenly be stuck holding $10-per-barrel oil.

"Even if a real war breaks out and oil goes up to $60 a barrel, it would be risky to (increase drilling)," said Houston oilman Michel Halbouty. "Nobody's going to spend a lot of money then watch the price plummet.'

"Most independents were burned in 1985 and 1986," TIPRO's Martin said. "They fear the same phenomenon will occur again if they start projecting higher prices for a long time.'

Martin added, however, that some independents are using the increase in internal cash flows to rework existing wells and are increasing production in developed leases. Others, he said, are saving the money to increase drilling budgets in the next few months if it becomes clear that oil prices will stay up for a relatively long time.

But for now, "Your friendly bank and traditional investors are unwilling to get into such an uncertain venture," Martin said.

Other natural gas companies, including Mesa Ltd. Partnerships in Amarillo and Mitchell Energy and Development Corp. in Houston, said they also were waiting to see how the Persian Gulf crisis shapes up before increasing drilling. "The more ominous it gets, the more people are tempted to stick their necks out," said Tony Lentini of Mitchell Energy. "But they're taking the risk that without a price floor, the Saudis could flood the Lentini also said the company was beginning to turn "just a little bit" toward oil production because of demands for domestic oil.

Drive carefully.

Gunman takes hostages at hotel

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) - A man shot his way into a residential hotel early today and took 12 to 15 hostages, police said. One person was killed and seven

The gunman, identified by witnesses as a Iranian man in his 30s, shot six people after entering the Hotel Durant after midnight, said police Capt. Phil Doran. Police reported two other people were shot during another round of gunfire about 3:15 a.m. in Henry's Bar and Grill on the hotel's first floor.

Witnesses said the shooting was punctuated by the gunman screaming: "When is it going to end? How long? How long?"

The Motion Picture Association of America eliminated the X rating on Wednesday, replacing it with NC-17, for no children under 17 admitted.

Committee votes on Souter today

JUDGE DAVID SOUTER

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Judiciary Committee voted 13-1 today to approve the nomination of Judge David Souter to the Supreme Court.

The panel sent the nomination to the full Senate, where confirmation was expected within a few days. Republicans urged a speedy vote so Souter could take his seat before the court opens its term on Monday.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., cast the only vote against Souter did not attend the comnittee meeting; but many of the activist groups that worked for or against his nomination were present in the packed hearing room.

outside the White House Wednesday as Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., listens. GOP lawmakers said President Bush is sending signals concerning budget compromise. Instead of lowered capital gains tax rates, Bush might accept other items he believes would spur the economy, they said.

Bush may be moving toward compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush's tempering of his demand for a lower capital gains tax could signal that 4-month-old budget talks with Congress are nearing success and that deep federal spending cuts will be averted.

"It's going to have to be tomorrow, period," House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., said Wednesday evening, shortly after budget bargainers ended a six-hour meeting. "We can't fail, we've invested too much time.'

Should no action be taken by Monday, the start of the 1991 fiscal year, government spending will be slashed by $85 billion and many of its 2.4 million civilian workers will face payless days off as the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law takes effect.

Wednesday's bargaining session capped a day in which participants said Bush was moving toward defusing the prickliest issue remaining between the two sides: whether tax rates on capital gains should be dropped.

But the president and Democratic congressional leaders also traded accusations that the other side was jeopardizing the negotiations.

"If and when the ax falls, the Democratic Congress knows that it will be held accountable," Bush told a Republican campaign rally

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley. D-Wash., and Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, fired back, saying the remarks could damage the talks.

"Ironically, I thought we were making progress," Mitchell said,

Bargainers also reported progress at recent sessions in narrowing differences between the two sides over defense cuts and reductions in domestic programs. The overall goal is to take a $500 billion bite out of the federal deficit over five years.

Since talks began in May, Bush has sought to honor a campaign pledge and lower the rates of the capital gains tax, which is charged on profits from the sale of real estate and other investments.

Democrats say the proposal, which Bush contends would spur the economy, would merely put money in the pockets of wealthy property owners. They have demanded tax hikes for the rich as a tradeoff. Administration bargainers offered to leave the capital gains tax rate at current levels, in exchange for exempting the increased value of assets due to inflation, said officials who asked not to be identified. "I think it's still a very viable option," said one Republican official. Democrats brushed aside the idea, one official said. But there were other signs of a new White House flexibility on the issue

Kremlin edicts losing respect

As the Soviet economy lurches toward the abyss, Mikhail Gorbachev has won another battle to expand his executive powers. But his victory may turn out to be an empty one, because the Kremlin's capacity to rule the restive union of Soviet republics appears to be disintegrating.

For the first time since the Communist Party consolidated its grip on power in the early 1920s, Moscow's authority over the country is in doubt. The impending economic collapse which Soviet citizens perceive more vividly with each passing week has stoked a mass revolt against seven decades of centralized control. It is no longer far-fetched to speculate the Kremlin may ultimately be reduced to a Russian-style Vatican City without influence beyond the Kremlin walls.

Gorbachev's bungled attempts during the last five years to reform the command economy have only accelerated the slide in living standards. The Kremlin's half-measures are chiefly to blame for the alarming shortages of basic products such as bread, potatoes and cigarettes. Although the command structure is crumbling swiftly, Gorbachev has stopped far short of the fundamental changes needed to free individual initiative and implement a true market system.

The Soviet leader's disastrous vacillation is plainly evident in his call to simply meld the rival economic plans of Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov and Russian Federation President Boris Yeltsin.

Yeltsin's "500-day" proposal, actually authored by Kremlin economist Stanislav Shatalin, is a radical formula for abolishing the state-run economy. Ryzhkov's plan, on the other hand, would retain much central planning, with the state continuing to set most prices. Gorbachev's preposterous notion of combining these two incompatible strategies was aptly derided by Yeltsin as like trying to mate "a hedgehog with a snake."

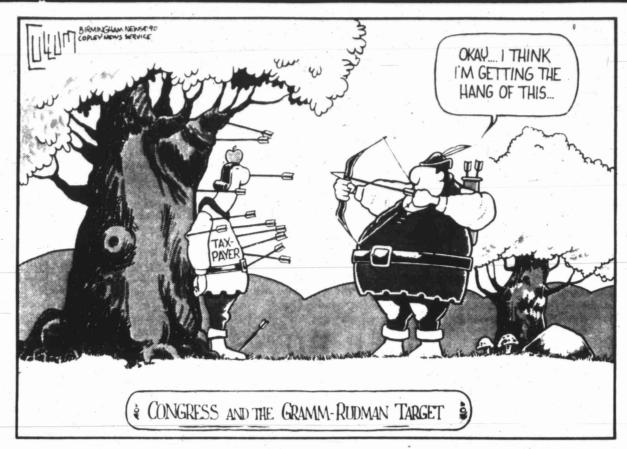

As the economic chaos multiplies, the Kremlin leader's answer is to gather for himself emergency powers to rule by decree. The added executive measures extended to Gorbachev by the Supreme Soviet permit him to overrule local institutions, such as the parliaments of the 15 republics, on everything from the economy to property rights and social policy.

Gorbachev's czarist approach to the crisis is the exact opposite of what is needed to rescue the Soviet Union from communism. What the country needs is more political competition and decentralization, not less. Protesters outside the Kremlin's Spassky Gate drove home this imperative this week with signs declaring: "A president, not an emperor" and "All decrees of the president are battles against democracy."

Yet it is far from certain that Gorbachev's executive decrees will be heeded. Yeltsin, backed by the enormous resources of the Russian republic, has vowed to ignore any Kremlin edict that infringes on local sovereignty. It is worth remembering that the planned price increases announced by Ryzhkov last spring were aborted because leaders of the Russian Federation and other republics bluntly refused to carry them out.

Because of the greater degree of openness in Soviet society, the impetus for change has shifted from the Kremlin to more ambitious reformers such as Yeltsin, Moscow Mayor Gavriil Popov and Leningrad Mayor Anatoly Sobchak. All three of these leaders have resigned from the Communist Party. Gorbachev, by contrast, is proving himself to be a dedicated communist after all.

Noriega trial will be eye-opener

Jack

Anderson

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON - Prosecutors in the drug trial of former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega are lining up potential witnesses to testify against him. Their testimony could leave the public gaping in disbelief about what Noriega allegedly got away with while under the protective wing of the United States government.

But what you won't hear during the trial is even worse. Sources in Panama tell us that the prosecution is being very picky about who it puts on the witness stand. Our associate Dean Boyd has learned that many potential witnesses with intimate knowledge of the dictator's dirty work are not on the list to testify. Their stories could embarrass the United States and shed light on intelligence operations that the government would rather keep in the dark

For example, don't look for Mai. Felipe Camargo on the stand. He was a ranking member of Noriega's intelligence force and today is in jail in Panama awaiting trial on 18 counts of orutality. A former schoolmate of Camargo's told us that several months ago an intermediary for Camargo asked him to put Camargo in touch with U.S. authorities. Evidently Camargo hoped to cut a deal to testify against Noriega in return for a lighter sentence for himself, although plea-bargaining is not allowed in Panama

Camargo is one of the few people in Panama who could talk about one of the key assertions in the Noriega case — that Cuban leader Fidel Castro mediated a drug dispute between Noriega and the Medellin drug cartel of Colombia in 1984. "Noriega would be very worried if Camargo the Justice Department has given Camargo the cold shoulder. Why? Michael O'Kane, a Miami lawyer representing a client who was indicted along with Noriega, testified," a leading Panamanian journalist told us. Nevertheless, told us that the prosecutors 'won't touch anyone that smacks of intelligence." Camargo has extensive ties to Cuban intelligence and also reportedly knows about Noriega's cozy relationship with the Central Intelligence Agency

Another man who won't be called to testify against Noriega is telligence agent. As a "businessman" in Panama. Harari forged ties with the CIA and probably knows more about Noriega's alleged crimes than anyone else, including information about drugs used as barter in the Nicaraguan contra resupply operation

Harari was in Panama at the time of the U.S. invasion last December, but soon after, turned up safely in Israel. Informed sources in Panama told us that U.S. intelligence agents shipped Harari to Israel to get him out of the picture

The Bush administration is doing everything it can to stay away from "people who know about contra drug connections," according to another Miami lawyer, John Mattes. Mattes represents a drug trafficker who has already told a Senate subcommittee some details about the contra-drug connection.

Today, most of Noriega's closest officers are in jail in Panama with a wealth of information in their heads. But sources in Panama told us those officers have been given only token debriefings by U.S. authorities. Rodrigo Miranda, a former Panamanian special prosecutor, told us that several of the men could give "very explosive"

A former Drug Enforcement Administration agent agreed that there are many Panamanians with dirt on Noriega. But, he said, "The people they really don't, want on the stand are the U.S. officials who knew what Noriega let it slide."

We asked Diane Cossin, executive assistant to the U.S. attorney who is prosecuting Noriega, about the charges that the Justice Department is deliberately ignoring hot witnesses. She refused to comment "on any speculation by people not involved in the prosecution or the investigation. Copyright 1990, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Big Al is stuck with guns

By ART BUCHWALD

I went out to Big Al's Weapons Bazaar in Alexandria, Va., the other day. The warehouse was stacked with crates addressed to Baghdad.

'You seem overloaded," I remarked.

Ever since the U.S. embargo of Iraq, I've been stuck with all this stuff. Our government doesn't give a damn about what happens to its businessmen.

'Was Iraq a good customer?' 'The best. They bought everything in my catalogue and paid cash on the barrelhead. "Does it bother you that so many of the weapons you sent to Iraq might now be used against

"Listen, we were encouraged by the State Department to sell to the Iraqis so that they would beat the hell out of the Iranians. Everybody — the French, the British, the Russians, the Germans - were after Iraq's account. I underbid them, and by beefing up Iraq I helped the U.S. trade balance. If it hadn't been for me, China would have stolen all the business.

"Are you saying that the U.S. urged you to sell to Iraq?

'The Commerce Department doesn't regard arms as weapons of war, but rather as export products that can benefit the U.S. economy. The Soviets were discounting their ammunition until we had a pre-Christmas sale.

"Did you send any chemical weapons to Iraq?

'None that I know of. At the same time, when it comes to arms, you never ask a country why it wants airtight shells. It's rare for a nation that's up to no good to buy all its equipment in the same place. It may purchase computers in Japan, casings in Sweden, delivery systems in France and chemicals in Germany. I sold them masks and protective suits to repel the gas. No one can be criticized for selling a country like Iraq defensive weapons.

"I guess the good news for the rest of us is that there is not much more you can do for Iraq as long as the embargo is on," I told him.

"I'm going to testify before Congress about how badly the government treats its arms merchants. We have a political action committee, too.

'There are some who say that the munitions people are part of the problem. If you hadn't sold all the equipment to the Iraqis, they might not be in a position to threaten the entire Western "Arms merchants don't start wars. All we do is make sure that both sides involved are properly equipped.'

'What are you going to do with all this stuff you can't deliver to "Sell it to Iran." "But Iran has declared a holy war against us and is going to help Iraq!"

"Nobody's perfect. If I don't get rid of all this equipment I'm going to take a terrible bath, and President Bush will have no one but himself to blame.'

'Where did you originally get the supplies for Iraq'

"From U.S. government stockpiles. You see the Pentagon has two departments — one that buys weapons and one that sells them. The latter gives dealers far more respect because if the arms merchants don't buy surplus equipment, the Pentagon will sit on a lot of stuff that everyone is dying for.

Psychotherapists view ruling as threat to confidentiality

LOS ANGELES - A court decision allowing audio tapes of counseling to be used in a murder trial has mental health professionals worried that the ancient tradition of patient confidentiality is in danger.

California courts opened the door to the psychotherapist's office a bit wider with a decision Aug. 6 allowing tapes of counseling to be used against brothers Lyle and Erik Menendez in the slaying of their

Jose and Kitty Menendez were shot repeatedly at close range in their Beverly Hills mansion in 1989. Six months later, police arrested Lyle, 21, and Erik, 19, alleging the young men coveted their parents'

$15 million estate. Prosecutors argued that tapes of the brothers' counseling sessions with therapist L. Jerome Oziel, in which they reportedly confessed to killing their parents, could be used as evidence.

Superior Court Judge James Albracht agreed, saying the tapes were not covered by laws guarding patient-therapist communication.

Many psychotherapists say the courts are eroding this vow when the need to protect society clashes with an individual's right to

"Confidentiality is the cornerstone of the relationship between patient and therapist," said

In making his decision, Albracht cited a recent state Supreme Court case, People vs. Clark.

William John Clark was convicted of injuring his former therapist and murdering her husband by setting the couple's home on fire. While in therapy during the trial, Clark told another psychologist he wanted to kill two other people.

That therapist warned the two people, following guidelines established in a 1974 landmark duty-to-warn ruling called the Tarasoff decision. She later testified about Clark's murderous

Clark, sentenced to death, appealed the verdict, arguing that he had not given his therapist permis-

Gerald Chaleff, Lyle Menendez's attorney, acknowledged that threats were made, but questioned the judge's decision to allow all the tapes into evidence. "What has to Albracht's Menendez decision be divulged is only what is necessary to prevent danger." he

> The APA's Schachter said the Menendez decision could have a chilling effect on therapy.

> "The decision might imply that any careless words or placing of files might inadvertently trigger an opening of what was believed to have been confidential," he said. It could be incredibly damaging.

However, Elliott Alhadeff, the prosecutor who argued for the tapes to be released, said, "The patient has nothing to worry about as long as he trusts his psychotherapist.

Dozens of other court decisions have further limited patient privacy, and therapists wonder where it will end.

Santa Fe dig yields artifacts By ED MORENO

Associated Press Writer

SANTA FE, N.M. - Remnants of an ancient Indian pueblo or centuries-old ox deposits? Nobody's sure what lies beneath Santa Fe Plaza in the heart of the nation's oldest capital city, but archaeologists hope to find out.

Watched by Plaza regulars. skateboard riders and tourists, an archaeological team on Tuesday began the first of several exploratory digs on the verdant square, which is surrounded by museums, boutiques and gift

"It was the center of the frontier for at least three nations. This was the focus of the frontier up until the time the railroad came," Snow

Within hours, volunteer diggers were unearthing interesting shards of pottery, including a button-size chip of blue and white Mexican majolica clay, used in pottery since the 17th century.

Excavation leader David Snow said diggers could find older Plaza levels, Indian artifacts and evidence of frontier life.

"We've already learned something in the top six inches.

Santa Fe was the seat of frontier government and a distant outpost of civilization for most of its 380-year history.

The Plaza was once a terminus for exploration, trade and immigration routes, including the Camino Real from Mexico City and the Santa Fe Trail from the Mississippi River.

"It was the center of the frontier for at least three nations, Snow said. "This was the focus of the frontier up until the railroad came" in the early 1880s

The Plaza is anchored by the Palace of the Governors, the seat of government built by the Spanish starting about 1610. Pueblo Indians outsted the Spanish in 1680, and it is thought that some Indian dwellings and a kiva, a large room often used for religious purposes, were built on the Plaza.

The Spaniards returned in 1692 The palace housed Spanish, Mexican and U.S. territorial governors until the late 1800s.

These days, the only conquistadors and mountain men around are re-enacting history in the palace, now a museum. Indians sell jewelry to tourists under its portal. Youngsters loiter in the square, riding skateboards and playing games.

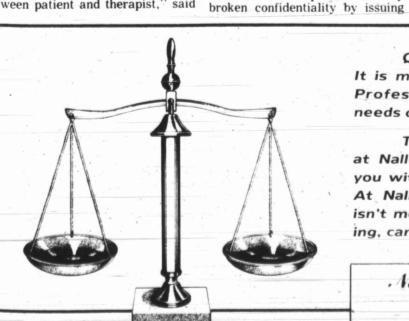

Archaeologists will work for about a month on the first phase of the excavation, restricted to selected areas totaling 10 square

If they uncover enough promising artifacts, and the City Council approves, a second dig will begin next year under San Francisco

Street, across from the palace. A major Plaza dig would be conducted in 1992, if the dig pans out. The Plaza is a historically designated site protected by city ordinances, and the surrounding buildings are unlikely to be threatened by any excavation.

'A Coupla' is much more

"A Coupla One Acts" at Howard College turns out to be much more than the name implies. Thanks to a cast of fine, diverse young actors led by sensitive directing, audiences are in for an evening of lively, thought-provoking theatre.

Both shows are directed by Howard College theater instructor Bill Doll.

The first is Juvie, an intense depiction of young people in varying degrees of trouble - from kidnapping to shoplifting to murder and drugs. Each character tells his or her story to the audience in a narration-and-pantomime

What a few characters seem to lack in depth, the actors definitely make up in diversity, playing several roles each. There are moments of powerful emotion in each scene, from both central figures and secondary characters.

Excellent performances come from four Big Springers. Angela Reed as Jean gives this production its high point, and handles a very important role with Brandy Qualls as Carey pulls off a very strong monologue. Then this Play review by versatile actress performs impressively in several back-up roles. She and Reed make a wellcoordinated team

Ben Fritzler is very capable as leader of this many-ringed circus. His mask of strength is always in place as Pinky, but he proves versatile in an excellent mime as an elderly victim.

Sherman Powers first reveals his strength in several secondary roles and makes a fine transition into Sean, whose "scratches" bit - a metaphorical explanation for his socially unacceptable behavior is one of the evening's high points.

The set's cut-away prison cell is a very clever use of space, most notably the bricked back wall of the theatre: Off-stage voices, including the Voice, become important additions to several eerie moments and a strong final scene.

The second show is a dark, dark comedy titled "A Game" by Dennis Noble. This show seems especially timely in light of recent world events. A brave choice for Doll, and well-executed.

Susan Phillips, Brandy Qualls and Lanelle Markgraf all demonstrate a grasp of comic timing and well-balanced energy in their roles as three participants in ah "experiment."

Each of these three characters is also quite distinct, though somewhat limited in scope by the script

And all three actresses take us easily into the darker side and beyond comfortable limits.

Their bright clothing works well on an extremely, and necessarily, sparse set. If a few technical coordinations can be worked out, the climax should sufficiently disturb, providing conversation material for the drive home.

In short, don't let the name fool you. "A Coupla One Acts" is not

HC groups to take stage at State Fair

Howard College's New Dimension and Nighthawks will be on stage Saturday, October 6 at 9 a.m. in the Food and Fiber Building at the State Fair of Texas for the first-ever Texas Community College Day at the State Fair.

The New Dimension, a vocal ensemble under the direction of Joe Whitten, and the Nighthawks, a jazz band under the direction of Adolph Labbe, will perform from 9 a.m. until 10:30 a.m. More than 1,000 students, faculty and staff representing a majority of Texas' 49 community college districts are expected to participate in Texas Community College Day at the fair. The event is sponsored by the Texas Public Community/Junior College Association.

At 11 a.m. a giant-sized diploma will be presented to Big Tex, symbolizing the role two-year institu- ray of community college tions play in higher education for academic and career programs the state. Simpsons to sing the blues on new album soon tention to those premature reports. Yes, the Gloved One has been approached about singing with the Animated One. But no, it is not a done deal. Which is why the recent stories about Jackson doing a duet with Bart Simpson have infuriated the folks over at Fox Broadcasting Co.'s hit cartoon show.

Especially perturbed is "Simpsons" creator Matt Groening, who plops down at a West Hollywood recording studio and grants a speedy interview about the latest project to come from America's favorite dysfunctional family.

"Oh, it's so frustrating," says the while ago that I would like to have this happen and it was printed as if it was true.

Latest reports say Jackson may be "too busy" to put in the studio people we'd like to use on the Jones' "Born Under a Bad Sign, album," Groening said. "Stevie sung by Homer, and the "Moanin" Ray Vaughan was lined up, then he was killed.

Milling around the recording studio this day are the actors who provide the voices for "The Simpsons.

There is Julie Kavner, whose scratchy vocals come out of Marge's animated mouth and Dan Castellaneta, who talks for the long-suffering dad, Homer. Sitting nearby is Yeardley Smith, the voice of the high-minded daughter, Lisa. Nancy Cartwright, nursing a cold and chugging Evian water, drops in and out of Bart's unmistakable whining monotone.

The four performers have been working on "The Simpsons Sings the Blues" for about a month. So far, they have completed only two rough cuts in between taping shows for "The Simpsons" fall season, which begins Oct. 13.

Due out in November, the disc contains an eclectic mix of old blues tunes such as Billie Holliday's "God Bless the Child" and original songs such as "Deep, Deep Trouble," produced by rapper D.J. Jazzy Jeff and written by

Fox has been trying to keep the record under wraps until negotiations with performers like Jackson are nailed down. But word has tion of those involved.

Jackson's duet was to come on "Do the Bartman," and published reports have said it was penned by Jackson. It wasn't, which prompted producer and filmmaker James L. Brooks to issue a press release late last week apologizing for any misunderstanding about who actually wrote the tune. The composer is Jackson pal Bryan

In a marketing blitz highlighted by Simpson T-shirts, Thermoses, watches, and — coming soon to a video arcade near you — a Simpsons pinball machine, why are 'The Simpsons' singing?

"James L. Brooks walked into cartoonist. "I said to a reporter a the office one day and said 'The Simpsons Sing the Blues,' " explains Groening. "Then we all spent a lot of time deciding what the blues was

The final decisions for the album include Chuck Berry's "School "We have a whole wish list of Day," sung by Bart; Booker T. Lisa Blues, sung by

> Back at the studio, Fox has organized a media event, pulling in nearly a half-dozen camera crews to interview and tape the would-be recording stars in action.

> Problem is, there is no action The four actors are not laying down tracks for the album. Instead, much time is spent standing around while they pretend they're singing for the benefit of the cameras.

The phenomenal success of "The Simpsons" begets such hype. The animated family with all-toocommon frailties has gone beyond being a hit television show. It has become part of pop culture.

This point is not lost on the young Fox network, which made a brash decision this season to put "The Simpsons" up against NBC's toprated but aging "The Cosby Show."

Some of "The Simpsons" cast think Fox's decision was foolish. Since moving to Thursdays at 8 p.m., the cartoon show that once peaked at No. 4 in the Nielsen ratings has plummeted to 45th Says Groening, "This is a very wild time. We've got a lot of things going on. There are some very good singers in 'The Simpsons. This is going to be a big record.

The voices of hit TV family "The Simpsons" are, wearing disguises they insisted upon, from left, Dan Castellaneta, Homer; Yeardley Smith, Lisa; Nancy Cartwright, Bart; and Julie Kavner, Marge. When not recording the show, they are working on an album.

The Howard County Lioness Club met Sept. 17 in Memorial Hall at Wesley United Methodist

Nan Howard, vice president, presided in the absence of President Rose von Hassell. Leta Kirby gave the invocation and led the pledge to the flag.

During the business meeting Helen Crandall reported on the status of the D-FY-IT club, which the Lioness Club donated to last month. It was reported, also, school supplies were bought for a needy student.

Jan Noyes reported on the booth the Lioness had at the Lion's Fest. She also told of the Big Spring Evening Lions Queen Contest, covering new rules and awards. To be eligible the youth must be a Big Spring High School senior, have an outgoing personality, and have good grades. They will have out-oftown judges, and a scholarship will be given.

Marguerite Thompson reminded members to sell tickets for the Grocery Buying Spree chances.

Roy Green of the Harold Davis Fitness Center at Howard College gave the program. He told how the Center began and its primary goals. It is located in the former Hawk Gym building. He stressed the fact that only you can control your health. Local doctors work with the participants on the exercise routines and nutrition each individual requires. He also stressed "weight won't kill you - fat will!m.

A 16-week program is recom-mended and he invited the public to visit and tour the center. Each person is checked and a program to meet their needs is available.

Refreshments were served to 3 members and one guest, Sally

Woman celebrates 83rd birthday

By CLARA JUSTICE

About 50 people attended the birthday celebration held recently at the Coahoma Community Center. Maria Olguin celebrated birthday at a party hosted by her children: Emma Olguin, Lupe Phillips, Trini Games, Connie Herrera, and Jane Vela. Her son, Octivana Olguin Jr. of Salinas Calif., was unable to attend.

Maria was born in Presidio, but has lived in Coahoma for 50 years. She has 18 grandchildren, 22 greatgrandsons, and two greatgranddaughters. Maria is the last of her family; her brother, longtime Coahoma resident, Fortino Martinez, passed away a few years ago. Maria enjoyed the celebration and visiting with her friends and relatives and is looking forward to her next birthday.

Victim Services needs volunteers

Rape Crisis Victim Services needs several volunteers to complete a 40-hour training class and become a crisis volunteer

Lisa Brooks, the executive director for the Rape Crisis Victim Services in Big Spring said in a recent interview that the training allows anyone to go out and work with a sexual assault emergency or crisis intervention.

"This is good training for anyone. There's good human information in the training session. We do a lot with videos and discussion, plus there's a thumbnail presentation on how the criminal justice system works.

"Two parole officers have been through the training to gain more knowledge about volunteerism and dealing with current sexual assaults, Brooks explained, adding that men volunteers are needed as well as women

"This is an issue men need to know. It happens to men, too. And all rape victims have men in their lives, like fathers, brothers, boyfriends and husbands.

"Sexual assault is a community issue. It doesn't matter if you're male or female,' Brooks explained, and agreed that rape is a crime of violence, not sexuality

Brooks said that although the 40 hour training class is time consuming, the volunteer work itself is less demanding.

"This is really passive volunteering. We have a warmline, not a hot line. Our volunteers carry a beeper from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. three or four days a month. If called on an emergency, they may spend two to six hours working, but we have some volunteers who haven't gotten a call," Brooks

Brooks said that the warmline is an answering machine. Nighttime emergency calls are instructed to call Scenic Mountain Medical Center and leave a first name and phone number for a counselor to call back immediately.

The only requirements for being a rape crisis volunteer are 18 years of age and a willingness to learn. Brooks said that a reference check is done, and there is an interview

Automatic cuts would affect all areas of government

WASHINGTON (AP) - There will be fewer maps for troops in the Middle East. A million children won't be vaccinated against polio, measles and diphtheria. There may not be enough government lawyers to argue before the Supreme Court. Airline flights will be reduced and most space shuttles won't fly at all.

All this, and more, is predicted if there is no budget agreement and the president orders automatic spending cuts Monday, the first day of the government's 1991 fiscal

For 2.4 million federal employees with mortgage payments and mouths to feed, the impact could range from a few days off without pay to the devastation that faces Jeannette Gordon. She could be laid off 255 days out of a work year of 260.

Most agencies of the government expect to be forced to trim expenses by 32.4 percent. They'll do it by cutting services to the taxpayer, suspending programs, furloughing employees, putting off that needed paint job or turning out the lights at

The Gramm-Rudman law doesn't much care. It requires whatever it takes to slim down federal spending by $100 billion or so in fiscal 1991. Most federal employees can be laid off for 22 days with a simple notice; after that the rules get more complicated

don, who works for perhaps the smallest agency in government, is unique

'We don't have contracts we can cut and we don't have employees to lay off," says Mrs. Gordon, one of two people who run the Susquehanna River Basin Commission. "My budget for 1991 is $211,000; our 32.4

notice they might be furloughed. Meat counters would be emp-tier as 7,344 federal meat and poultry inspectors shave weeks off their annual duties. A sequester, which is what the cutback in funds is called, "would result in the absence of inspection services and the shutting down of meat and percent is $68,364," she says. What remains goes into office expenses and the salary of Commissioner Warner Depuy, who won't be furloughed because he is a presidential appointee.

"That," she says with a sigh, "doesn't leave anything to hire Ironically, Mrs. Gordon used to work at the Office of Management and Budget, which tells the president what kind of a cut to order.

'I worked at OMB for 17 years,' she says. "I was always on the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue. I never knew it worked like that." The way it works is this. To save

 There would be fewer maps produced by the Defense Mapping Agency, which has worked overtime to make 20 million maps for Operation Desert Shield since the Middle East crisis began. The agency's 8,000 employees are on poultry slaughter and processing plants for about 140 days," the House Appropriations Committee predicts.

 NASA would have to cancel the space station and drop or postpone all 21 shuttle flights scheduled in 1991 and 1992, according to the committee. But the agency says it has enough money left over to launch the first shuttle in the new fiscal year, on Oct. 6.

 Commercial airplanes would not be able to fly at night because the National Weather Service will close 250 stations from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. Pilots need up-to-date weather information. The Federal Aviation Administration would start cutbacks with 20 percent fewer flights the first three days because controllers will be furloughed two days each in every two-week pay period.

Many important government ac-

The affairs of state won't suffer The State Department plans to exempt people whose jobs deal with crisis spots, but cut back on travel and overtime. The White House will furlough people one day a week on different days. A joke making the rounds is that presidential dog Millie will have to give back one of

The Justice Department said furloughs during the first two weeks of the new fiscal year would range from one day per Drug Enforcement Administration employee to nine days at the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission. Layoffs will hobble prosecutions of savings and loan fraud and make it difficult to operate the nation's overcrowded federal prisons, officials say

The furloughs "hit us at the worst possible time," said Deputy Solicitor General John Roberts, whose lawyers are scheduled to argue 10 of the 20 cases scheduled to be heard before the Supreme Court in the first two weeks of October. "The arguments will be 20 percent shorter," Roberts quipped. Checks written to farmers under various commodity programs, including price support loans and direct payments, will be reduced by the percentage of the sequester.

About $84 million in federal grants to states for foster care, adoption and child protective services would be eliminated, straining state child welfare systems. Biomedical research would be cut by $3.5 billion and 30,000 drug abusers would not get treatment.

The government has pulled its Perils of Pauline act nearly every year in recent times, threatening to run out of money, but Congress always comes to the rescue. Sequestration has been required only twice before: in the current fiscal year, which ends Sunday, and in

The General Accounting Office checked five departments to see how they were affected by the 1990 cutback and found few dire effects.

Although many agencies will hold staff meetings on Friday to finalize their plans, the likelihood is that no one will know the extent of the required cuts, if any, until Sunday.

"If there is no action before Friday," said Laura Kopelson of GAO, 'our instructions are to be watching the news on Monday morning.

Hightower calls for more responsive water commission

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

AUSTIN - Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower has taken a stronger stand against hazardous waste incinerators and has reiterated calls for expanding and electing the three-member Texas Water Commission, the permitting agency for such facilities. 'What is even more hazardous than the waste these corporations want to burn in the countryside is the back room dealing that they are getting away with," he told more than 50 people protesting the location of incinerators in Texas at a 10 a.m. statewide rally in front of TWC offices in the Stephen F. Austin Buidling. The rally was organized by Texans United.

Hightower, the Democratic TWC Chairman Buck Wynne III for the Sept. 11 approval of an incinerator in LaPorte which was reportedly opposed by Harris County officials, the Chamber of Commerce, various community organizations and the TWC hearing "This coup against the people apparently was engineered by Buck Wynne III's buddy Lee Biggert, a for-hire lobbyist who previously served as a water commissioner and reportedly is in line for a $340,000 bonus (from the incinerator company) for landing the LaPort permit," Hightower said. "It's time to get our Water Commission out of the pockets of the polluters and on the side of the people of Texas," he said. "The only way that the people can hold these guys accountable is if we have the ability to throw the rascals out every few years.'

Hightower, who last week said he has made his office available to assist those opposed to an influx of incinerator proposals in Texas, said he has been getting more involved because his constituents have become more concerned and vocal about it.

'It's because I've been out in the country and farmers and ranchers are just up in arms about this," he said. "The pure Texas agricultural product is in danger from all of this."

He mentioned recent incinerator proposals in communities such as Lubbock, Mitchell County, Monahans, New Braunfels, Pecos, Midlothian, Loving County, Ft. Stockton, Alpine, Kermit, Levelland, Sanderson and Channelview. He said there are other alternatives for dealing with waste, such as recycling, source reduction and bioremediation.

Referring to the state's anti-litter 'Don't Mess With Texas'' campaign, he said, "What good does it do us to tidy up our litter if our state government lets these corporate waste-burners poison our air, land, water and people with the hazardous wastes that they want to TU Director Rick Abraham, Houston, one of about half a dozen speakers at the rally, said, "We have a political agenda. Put these agencies back into the hands of the people they're supposed to be protecting.

Mitchell County Texans Against Pollution Secretary Darlene Hines, Westbrook, got an applause when she said, "Government will not use us for their quick fix solutions anymore."

Another speaker, TU organizer Jon Crunk, Levelland, said, "Incineration is political science; it isn't physical science.

Speaker Linda Suggs, San Antonio, said, "I have to go back and take care of my kids and family. I have no power. I have no money. I'm glad there's someone out there to speak for me."

Following the speeches, the protesters went inside TWC offices to attempt to meet with water commissioners. TWC Public Relations Director Bill Colbert said Wynne agreed to meet with 2-3 representatives in October. However, Abrahams said he will submit a list of anybody who wants to meet with commissioners and then go from that point.

"We've been suggesting this to him," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee. He said the administration needs to call on West Germany and Japan to tap their stockpiles.

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, who more than a month ago called on Bush to tap the reserve, also welcomed the president's decision

Ed Kevelson, a Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. trader who deals in oil futures on the New York Mercantile Exchange, said the selling of reserve oil could have a quick effect. "We should be considerably lower," he said. "You've certainly got that possibility for a big move to the downside.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater indicated the move was as much to warn off price escalation as to test the reserve system.

"Part of the reason is to signal that we have huge reserves and to nake the public point that we don't think this kind of speculation is warranted," Fitzwater told reporters traveling with Bush.

'I would expect it to have a downward impact" on prices, Fitzwater said.

Administration officials do not se the word gouging, but claim that the price escalation is unwarranted. Bush said Wednesday: "At home and abroad, let me caution those who might take advantage of the current crisis in the Persian Gulf, those who might seek profit by subverting the sanctions, or here at home, those speculators who might try to drive up the price of oil. Oil supplies were reduced by the international embargo against Kuwait and Iraq, following Iraq's invasion of its neighbor. Industry experts estimate production in other countries has restored about two-thirds of the 4.8 million daily barrels of oil production removed from world markets by the

The United States uses more than 17 million barrels a day, about half of it imported. Fitzwater said Bush had the authority to tap the reserve under a 1975 law.

With winter heating needs approaching, "We do anticipate that there could be shortages and that we could have a need to rely on the petroleum reserve in a more permanent fashion," Fitzwater said.

He said the tapping of the reserves would begin immediately, with offering of bids to potential buyers. The process, ending with delivery of the oil, will be complete within 30 to 60 days, he said.

Coffee wins match play Steers expecting tough game

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

If it's anything like last year, pads will be popping when the Big Spring Steers play the Snyder Tigers at Tiger Stadium Friday.

Last year Big Spring cliniched the district championship in week nine at Tiger Stadium, but it didn't come easy. The Steers escaped with a 28-16 victory. The Steers scored 21 second half points to break a 7-7 halftime score even though the Tigers held the yardage edge that night, outgaining the Steers 296-286

Three of the Steers touchdowns were scored by wingback Neal Mayfied, who is questionable with a sprained ankle. Mayfield, who leads Big Spring with 402 total yards, didn't play last week in Big Spring's 20-14 win over Lubbock High. Carrying the slack was tailback Jermaine Miller, who rushed for a career-high 213 yards in 39 carries

If Mayfield can't go, junior Pat Chavarria will take his place again. Last week Chavarria carried 11 times for 30 yards, and caught one pass for 18 yards.

The Big Spring defense had an "unusal" time against the Lubbock High defense; but Chavarria, play-nerback Maurice Evans (33) and outside linebacker Kevin Rodgers (22). The pass was intended for Lubbock's Charlie Ortega.

ing strong safety, led the way with three interceptions and four tackles. Lubbock High tried only five running plays; outside linebacker Kevin Rodgers was the Steers' leading tackler with six.

Steers coach David Thompson is expecting a recall of Snyder's effort last year.

"Looking back to last year, I think we went into the game lackadaisical, and Snyder knocked our heads off. They did most of the hitting. Snyder will be fired up for us," said Thompson.

Second year Snyder Coach David Baugh said the main difference he notices about the Steers is quickness. "They are not big, but they are a lot quicker on defense, and that concerns me because they are ready to run to the ball," said

"Jermiane Miller looks good; he runs hard. If you don't stop Miller they can give it to Mayfield. We haven't done anything special to get ready for Big Spring, but it seems the kids always play pretty good against them.

The Tigers have looked good this season. After dropping the seasonopener to Monahans, a 14-0 verdict, Snyder beat Clyde 40-0 and Lit-

All eyes will be on Odessa Friday night

ODESSA (AP) — The Permian and Odessa high school football teams will face each other Friday night, enveloped in the shadow of sanctions against one team and an uncomplimentary book about Odessa football.

The fear is that tempers may run high Friday because sanctions announced against Permian last week originated with cross-town rival Odessa.

Odessa football coach Jerry Taylor told University Interscholastic League officials he had witnessed Permian breaking summer practice rules. Taylor's charge resulted in defending Class, 5A champion Permian's ban from the 1990 playoffs.

Ms. Bonner and 14 students from both schools on Wednesday taped a public service message they hope will show that the city's image isn't all negative

The message is an appeal for unity within the community because of anger resulting from the sanctions and H.G. Bissinger's book, about what could happen at Friday racism is rampant, football gets more support than English and school district lines are drawn to guarantee the best athletes go to the premier school

> 'With this appeal ... we are asking that everyone who goes to the game Friday night show the real stuff that Odessa is made of. Let's show everyone watching us, and that's going to be a lot of people, that Odessa has a lot of strengths, really are, not who we have been portrayed to be," the mayor said. Ector County school officials have been contacted by more than 20 news agencies planning to attend Friday's game, including CBS' "60 Minutes. A "60 Minutes" crew, including

Mike Wallace, will be in Odessa for interviews and will attend Friday night's game. Players and students Wednesday presented a calm disposition about the growing interest in their town and its devotion to football.

Friday night "will be just a regular game," said Odessa quarterback and free safety Ira Young. "But we're going to play to win. We all feel sorry for the Panthers, but our attitude hasn't ready to win Friday's game."

Panther tight end Mike Faulkner, 17, said, "We're maintaining a positive attitude. We have a good team and it's going to be a good game. We'll all have fun, and we'll play with the best of our ability.

Elisa Caddell, 17, president of Odessa High's Student Council, said most students there are proud of Taylor because they believe he stood up for what he believes is

"We're not embarrassed by what he did," Ms. Caddell said. "Our school spirit, our pride and morale are higher than ever, and we are

Chargers NG takes a beating

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Joe Phillips, the San Diego Chargers' starting nose tackle, will miss at least eight weeks because of injuries inflicted by three men who severely beat him outside a restaurant, the club said.

Phillips, 27, suffered a skull fracture, broken nose, three broken ribs and a broken facial bone near an eve. The men attacked Phillips after he and a woman left a beacharea restaurant early Wednesday, police spokesman Bill Robinson

"Words were exchanged between Phillips and the three suspects before they jumped him,' said Robinson. "One of the men had steel-toed boots and they struck Mr. Phillips with their fists and with the boots.

The Chargers placed the 6-foot-5-inch, 275-pound Phillips on the reserve non-football injury list, meaning he will miss at least one month. It's not known how long he will remain hospitalized, but the club said Phillips isn't expected to return to practice for at least eight

Restaurant manager Tom Saska said he doesn't think the assailants followed Phillips from the restaurant, where he had dined with the woman. Police reports said the woman was not Phillips'

Robinson said Phillips was in the wife, Cynthia, but authorities refused to identify her.

> "He was assaulted down in Mission Beach. He's got some head injuries. He definitely won't be able to play for a while," said Chargers head coach Dan Henning, adding that he didn't know the details of the fight.

Phillips had just left Saska's Bar in Mission Beach about 1 a.m. and was walking to his car when he was assaulted. The assailants remain at large, and investigators haven't been able to speak with Phillips yet because of his condition, Robinson

"At this stage in the investigation we have no apparent reason for the attack," he said.

S. Carolina going to new conference

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) -The Southeastern Conference, not wanting or willing to throw stones, didn't ignore South Carolina's past problems on and off the field.

But Florida president John Lombardi says changes within the administration showed the school was headed in the right direction

Few will dispute that South Carolina seems on the right track under interim president Arthur K. Smith and athletic director King Dixon. The school took a major step forward Tuesday night in announcing it was joining the SEC.

The basketball program was put on two years' probation in March 1987. Then, in October 1988, former Gamecock football player Tommy Chaikin started what is known as the "steroid scandal," alleging players used steroids and other drugs.

Five months later, athletic director Bob Marcum was fired after a school task force determined the drug-testing program for athletes was a sham. But Marcum filed a lawsuit and a jury found in November 1989 that he had been unjustly fired, awarding him nearly $250,000.

A few months earlier, three former football coaches were sentenced to three to six months in halfway houses on charges stemming from the steroid scandal.

Astros 'Stubbs' Dodgers playoff hopes

By The Associated Press Jose Rijo couldn't have picked a better time to get hot for the Cincinnati Reds and Franklin Stubbs couldn't have picked a worse time for the Los Angeles Dodgers. The combination of Rijo's pitching for Cincinnati and Stubbs' hitting for Houston has put the Reds into a great position for winning the National League West. Rijo, one of the major league's hottest pitchers, hurled an eighthitter to lead the Reds to a 5-2 win over the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night. Stubbs, meanwhile, had a career-high six RBI to pace the

NL

Astros over Los Angeles 10-1. The combination of those results reduced the Reds' magic number for clinching the NL West to three with six games to go.

Rijo (14-7) had flatly declared last Sunday that the race was over, only to watch Los Angeles close within 31/2 games for the third time this month with a win Tuesday

Rijo and Eric Davis have put the Reds in position to exorcise the cliche

Davis hit a two-run homer and drove in three runs, and Rijo stayed on the crest of a hot streak that's brought him six victories in his last seven starts.

Astros 10, Dodgers 1 Stubbs, an ex-Dodger, knocked in the Astros' first six runs - with a three-run double in the first and three-run homer in the fifth, his 22nd. Stubbs, who had previously

"I'm in a pretty good groove right now," Stubbs said. "I'm not ready for the season to end. Right now everything looks hittable. Jim Deshaies (7-12) won with a four-hitter. 'Most of our games haven't been very important," Deshaies said. "This one was, for the Dodgers. It's easy to pitch with a six-run lead. When you get three runs to work with in the first inning, it really enables you to go after the hitters. Dodger starter Mike Morgan

Mets 4, Expos 0

David Cone gave up two hits over eight innings and tied the major league strikeout lead to keep the Mets hopeful.

Cone (13-10) struck out seven to reach 221 for the season. That is one more than the Dodgers' Ramon Martinez and left him tied with Texas' Nolan Ryan for the major league strikeout title. Dennis Martinez (10-11) gave up three runs and eight hits, striking out five and walking four in seven innings

Giants 7, Padres 6

Matt Williams regained the NL RBI lead by driving in five runs with two homers as the Giants beat the Padres

The five RBIs gave Williams 119 for the season, breaking a tie with Pittsburgh's Bobby Bonilla. Bonilla knocked in his 116th run for Pittsburgh Wednesday night.

Williams also established a franchise record for RBIs by a third baseman. The previous mark was held by Mel Ott with 116 in 1938. when the team played in New Randy O'Neal (1-0), the third of six San Francisco pitchers, got his first win since 1988 and Steve Bedrosian worked a scoreless ninth for his 16th save. Dennis Rasmussen (11-15) was the loser.

Bryn Smith allowed only one run in seven innings and Todd Zeile: homered and drove in two runs as . St. Louis defeated Philadelphia.

Tagliabue may decide to suspend, fine or reprimand Mowatt for Kiam's suspension. next week after he has met with the player and hears his side of the story, NFL spokesman Joe Browne said Wednesday. Tagliabue has ordered Mowatt to report to the NFL office in New York by Friday.

Kiam, who also owns the company that makes Remington electric shavers, has been criticized for his failure to condemn Mowatt and

Herald sports editor Bob Sales told the New York Times that he sent a letter to Tagliabue calling

Michele Himmelberg, president of the Association for Women in Sports Media, was quoted in USA Today on Wednesday that AWSM would demand that Tagliabue make an example of Kiam to pre-vent "unjust harassment" of female reporters.

Kiam has denied the comments attributed to him, saying he called for his comments regarding Olson. Olson "aggressive." He apologized for any mistreatment by his employees, but Olson refused to accept the apology.

"How can I accept his apology after he questioned my professionalism in front of hundreds of thousands of television viewers?' Olson said in Wednesday's editions of The Herald. "It's obvious the Patriots are trying to bury the sexual harassment issue by trying to discredit me with blatant lies. I am the victim here and they are putting me on trial.

"The apology was a start, but the issue is not whether Victor Kiam thinks I'm a 'classic bitch.' If the Patriots are interested in solving this issue, how about making public the names of the players who verbally and sexually harassed me instead of covering up for

The Globe reported that several players, who asked not to be identified, said Wednesday night that the entire squad expressed serious regrets about the Olson incident at a Monday team meeting. tlefield 16-6. Snyder won the battle of stats against Monahans. "They moved the ball against Monahans. They should've have beaten said Thompson. "We could've have beaten them. We had our chances," said Baugh.

Steers defensive coordinator Dwight Butler says this Snyder team is better offensively than the one last year. "They've got more threats. They've got a good fullback (Bryan Burnson) and a good tailback (Paul Anderson), said Butler. "The quarterback (Ed Rios) is a passer, and he doesn't mind tucking it up and running. They have more balance between them. (run and pass) I wouldn't be surprised if they threw it more.' Last week against Littlefield, the Snyder defense dominated, limiting Littlefield to 86 yards total offense. Meanwhile the Snyder offense ran for 209 yards and passed

"Offensively, we're better than last year," said Baugh, the son of NFL great Sammy Baugh. "We've got a better quarterback who throws better. He's got a good arm. If we can catch it. We've been dropping a lot of them.

Big Spring's Coach Thompson says the key to the Tigers is their defense. "They are a good defensive team. They are leading the area, giving up about 120 yards per TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Jazz guitarist Pat Metheny is suing Gov. Bob Martinez for using his song "Last Train Home" in a campaign commercial.

Metheny doesn't consider the firstterm Republican governor "the sort of politician to whom I would lend my music for any amount of money, Metheny's publicist said in a statement

Martinez's campaign manager, J.M. "Mac" Stipanovich, said the song was used accidentally and had been replaced. The commercial aired on 42 television stations between Sept. 6 and Sept. 9, Metheny said. The lawsuit, filed Friday in federal court in Miami, accuses Martinez and producers of the commercial of copyright infringement and invasion

Metheny said he will donate any money he is awarded to the Censorship Is UnAmerican Campaign, a Los Angeles-based group.

The assailant took a small amount of cash and escaped. Anderson, not WASHINGTON (AP) - Synseriously injured, said he walked a dicated columnist Jack Anderson short distance back to his office.

Two candidates' records obtained

Normal for year......15.00

AUSTIN (AP) - An FBI agent obtained campaign finance records for two Democratic politicians, lieutenant governor candidate Bob Bullock and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, state records showed today.

Both Hightower and Bullock called the action politically motivated.

Hightower said the agent who sought the records from the secretary of state's office, Greg Rampton, had been questioning agriculture department employees for months without finding any wrongdoing.

"They've caught us with our pants up," Hightower said. "It amounts to Nixonian dirty

Teacher groups sue over designation

AUSTIN (AP) - Four Texas teacher organizations said today they are suing the state to try to force it to designate qualified educators as "master teachers.

The master teacher is the top level on the state's teacher career ladder, a bonus pay plan approved in 1984.

The groups, in a statement, blamed "administrative footdragging" by the Texas Education Agency for a delay in implementing the master teacher designation.

But TEA spokesman Joey Lozano said the Legislature didn't give the agency the money needed to develop the oral examination that the law requires for master teacher designation.

The required written exam has been developed and will be administered for the first time in November, Lozano said. He said the agency's budget request to the Legislature, which meets in regular session in January, would ask for money for the oral test.

Iraqis deny threat

By CHRISTOPHER BURNS Associated Press Writer

Iraq has threatened to execute U.S. and other diplomats unless they hand over Westerners they're sheltering, and it pressed on today with the campaign to swallow up Kuwait, ordering Kuwaitis to apply for Iraqi citizenship.

The threat against the diplomats was contained in official statements to the U.S., French and British embassies in Baghdad Wednesday and today.

The Iraqi Foreign Ministry to day refused to comment on the statement, but Iraqi officials speaking on condition of anonymity said the memo only contained a reminder of an Iraqi law — issued when Iraq annexed Kuwait last month - which stipulated that those who provide refuge for foreigners could be punished by death. The officials said the law applies only to Iraqis

Crisis won't cut CRP payments

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON - The federal spending grinch called a sequester will not reduce payments to farmers next month under the popular Conservation Reserve Program, Agriculture Department budget analysts say. Between some unspent money left over from the current fiscal year and a new appropriations by Congress for fiscal 1991, which begins on Monday, the department thinks payments under CRP will just squeak by.

Under the program, farmers sign up to take fragile cropland from production for 10 years. In return, they get federal assistance to plant the land in protective grass and trees and annual rentalpayments.

About 34 million acres have been signed up in CRP. The annual land rental payments to the farmers have been averaging close to $50 per acre each year, just after Oct.

Robert E. Sherman, deputy director of USDA's budget office, said the program payments are subject to the sequester, or spending cut, ordered by President Bush. But he said Wednesday that it appears enough money will be available to make the payments, probably in late October or early November.

About 90 percent of the total CRP costs are the rental payments to farmers, Sherman said. Overall, the program cost about $1.4 billion in 1989 and $1.6 billion in 1990

For 1991, Sherman said, the base used for the CRP sequester is $1.878 billion. A cut of around onethird in federal spending would reduce the funds available for 1991 by more than $600 million to $1.27

Of that amount, the rental money for payment to farmers would be CRISIS page 8-A about $1.11 billion, Sherman said. In other words, a farmer due about $50 per acre for CRP participation would get less than $35 under an across-the-board spending cut. But there's good news.

Participation in the CRP was less than expected in fiscal 1990, Sherman said. And the costs of planting grass and trees were not as great as had been supposed.

Thus, the program has about $570 million left over for use in the new year. Add that to a new appropriations by Congress of around $1.3 billion, and there will be approximately $1.885 billion available in the kitty for CRP in fiscal 1991 just over the level used as a base for the sequester.

Although the figures are subject to further review, Sherman said, 'We expect to be able to make the full payment (to farmers) after the sequester reduction calculation is • Continued from page 1-A applied."

that if the department is forced to make a partial CRP payment to farmers — $35 per acre instead of $50, for example — the government still is obligated to pay the remainder farther down the road.

Farmers sign contracts specify ing that USDA agrees to annual rents for 10 years "subject to availability of funds," Sherman said.

If a sequester is carried out, it "doesn't necessarily reduce government's liability under the contract" to pay farmers the full amount due under the CRP arrangement, he said

When might that occur? "Whenever money becomes available," Sherman said, without further comment.

WASHINGTON - The Agriculture Department says Americans are eating a record amount of seafood, including farmraised catfish and other products.

Per capita consumption was estimated at 15.9 pounds in 1989, a 5 percent increase from the revised average of 15.2 pounds in 1988 and slightly more than the previous high of 15.7 pounds in 1987.

'Seafood consumption has risen in eight of the last 10 years and is up 24 percent since 1980," the department's Economic Research Service said in its report Wednesday.

Catfish continues to lead in U.S. aquaculture production, rising 16 percent last year and an additional 11 percent in the first seven months of 1990, the report said. The volume of catfish processed in 1990 is expected to total between 370 million and 385 million pounds.

"After falling sharply in the summer and early fall of 1989, the farm price for catfish rose in late fall 1989 and early 1990," the report said. "With the advent of the Catfish Bargaining Association and its negotiations with catfish processors, the farm price of catfish has remained relatively stable at 79 cents per pound.

A recent department survey showed the number of catfish growers is down this year, but pond acreage is up 12 percent, totaling 157,490 acres.

The total catch of the world's commercial fisheries in 1988 — the most recent year tabulated — was estimated at a record 216.9 billion pounds, a 5 percent increase from Japan, the Soviet Union, China, Peru and the United States were the top fishing nations, accounting for 47 percent of the global catch.

Cotton growers facing less government support

By Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

LUBBOCK — High Plains cotton producers in the 1990's will face, and face up to, less income support from government and more outside influence on federal farm policy, according to Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Lubbockbased Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

As luncheon speaker at the annual Crosby County Agricultural Day in Crosbyton Sept. 17, Johnson painted a somewhat gloomy picture of what producers can expect from farm legislation in the coming decade.

But he added a brighter overlay by expressing confidence that the effect of less favorable farm programs can and will be offset by advancing production technology and market-oriented breeding

Cotton talk

To illustrate the extent of farm program benefits in recent years, ne pointed to deficiency payments in 1987, 1988 and 1989 that made up an average of about 23 percent of Crosby County cotton income at the farm level. And while not suggesting that all those payments would be lost in 1991 or 1995, he indicated a distinct possibility that payment income would be reduced to some degree, "possibly, even probably, beginning in 1991.

Payments on next year's crop will be made under the new 1990 farm bill, the final provisions of which Johnson described as highly uncertain. The House and Senate bills basically freezing 1990 cotton target price and loan provisions through 1995.

But, according to Johnson, chances are almost nil those provisions will ever take effect in their present form. The conference committee isn't going to meet until the 'budget summiteers'' agree on a deficit reduction plan, he explained.

And when they do meet, he continued, conferees will be forced to adjust program costs to meet new and undoubtedly more restrictive requirements.

Conferees most likely will be looking first at ways to reduce deficiency payments, Johnson believes, either by cutting the target price level, reducing the number of acres eligible for have passed and sent to conference payments or lowering the limit on payments any individual farm operation can receive.

If a budget agreement is not reached, he added, the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings sequestration order already issued for the first two weeks of October would be extended, requiring an estimated 32 percent cut in all fiscal 1990-91 agricultural expenditures.

To offset lower government payments, Johnson outlined the potential for lower per-pound production costs, through higher peracre yields, plus the prospect of higher average market prices through improved quality. Noting significant improvements in average yields and quality of the High Plains crop over the past decade, he said "This tells me we're learning how to get more out of the dollars we put into production.

Discussing federal farm policy in more general terms, Johnson pointed out that farm legislation is no longer the exclusive province of agriculture committees, USDA, farm groups and land grant colleges, but involves consumer groups, environmental activists, distributors and government agencies ranging from the State Department to the Environmental Protection Agency and the Food and Drug Administration.

"Which means producers are going to have to work harder and work smarter in the future," he said. "Otherwise we could be swept away in a sea of farm policy wriiten at the whim of interest groups that know nothing about our business.

Wall has another weapon in running back Brandon Braden.

The Warbirds were picked to win district 6-2A, while the host team was estimated to finish fourth. Buff head coach Dale Ruth does not agree with the predictions, saying his team has been improving against a tough schedule, beginning with the first scrimmage.

'We measure our team with two scrimmages and three tough opponents before district ever begins. We feel that if we need to make mistakes and change personnel, we have time to adjust and learn from our mistakes," Ruth said. "With district, this is a whole new ball game. That is what we tell our kids, and we believe that this will prepare them for a long district road ahead of us. "Even with the loss against Greenwood, we saw some good things come out of that game. We didn't like losing like that, but sometimes that's what it takes to get prepared and see where our adjustments are needed."

Iraqi Foreign Ministry. Baker called threat "repugnant," and a French Foreign Ministry spokesman in Paris called the threat "utterly

"The ministry will appreciate it if the esteemed mission would kindly inform the ministry of whether any of its citizens or any other nation's citizens are residing in the mission's embassies and your diplomatic residences."

In Washington on Wednesday night, the Iraqi ambassador denied the threat was made. 'We're not threatening anyone,' Ambassador Mohamed al-Mashat told reporters after a meeting at the State Department. He refused further comment.

Baker, in New York on Wednesday, rejected the Iraqi request for the names of the people given sanctuary in the U.S. embassies in Baghdad and Kuwait.

About 300 to 350 U.S. citizens are stranded in Iraq, and 600 to 700 in Kuwait, according to figures released Monday by the State Department. The United States has refused to discuss how many are on U.S. embassy grounds.

Oil prices have skyrocketed to nearly $40 a barrel since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2 and the United Nations imposed a trade embargo against Baghdad.

Bush's decision marks the first time the government has tapped into the reserve. It comes at a time when the administration says there is not an oil shortage, but as officials also are warning the Middle East crisis could result in tight supplies by the end of the year.

"We've been suggesting this to him," said Rep. John Dingell; D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee. But he said the administration needs to call on West Germany and Japan to also tap their stockpiles. Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, who more than a month ago called on Bush to tap the reserve, also welcomed the president's decision.

Ed Kevelson, a Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. trader who deals in oil futures on the New York Mercantile Exchange, said the selling got that possibility for a big move to the downside.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater indicated the move was as much to warn off price escalation as to test the reserve system.

'Part of the reason is to signal that we have huge reserves and also to make the public point that we don't think this kind of speculation is warranted," Fitzwater told reporters traveling with Bush.

"I would expect it to have a downward impact" on prices, Fitzwater said.

Administration officials do not use the word gouging, but claim that the price escalation is unwarranted.

Bush said Wednesday: "At home and abroad, let me caution those who might take advantage of the current crisis in the Persian Gulf, those who might seek profit by subverting the sanctions, or here at home, those speculators who might try to drive up the price of oil.'

Oil supplies were reduced by the international embargo against Kuwait and Iraq, following Iraq's

"We should be considerably dustry experts estimate production he said "You've certainly in other countries has restored about two-thirds of the 4.8 million daily barrels of oil production removed from world markets by the embargo.

The United States uses more than 17 million barrels a day, about half of it imported. Fitzwater said Bush had the authority to tap the reserve under the 1975 law that created it.

With winter heating needs approaching, "We do anticipate that there could be shortages and that we could have a need to rely on the petroleum reserve in a more permanent fashion," Fitzwater said.

He said the tapping of the reserves would begin immediately, with offering of bids to potential buyers. The process, ending with delivery of the oil, will be complete within 30 to 60 days, he said.

Bush, during his four-state political swing, collected $1.3 million in a series of high-dollar Midwestern events on Wednesday. He was expected to bring the twoday total to about $4 million by the end of today.

Students banish late-night munchies

WACO (AP) — It's midnight on a pliances frequently college campus. After a long evening of studying you feel that familiar growling in your stomach and a sudden irresistible urge to eat anything. The cafeteria is closed. What do you do? Many students, including some at Baylor University, prepare for this crisis by stocking up on lots of munchies in their dormitory At Baylor, students are allowed to bring refrigerators to school with them as long as they meet the school's wattage requirement, said

Gail Perry, assistant director of residence lifestaff coordinator. "We're not that concerned with actual size, as long as that amperage matches," she said.

Some items are not allowed in "We ask them not to have any type of appliance with a heating element," said Ms. Perry. "They may have popcorn poppers, and little hot pots or coffee pots are acceptable." Kitchens are featured in all residence halls. Some have a kitchen on each wing, she said.

"Those have refrigerators, microwaves and a stove and oven unit, and they are welcome to cook basically anything they would like in those areas," she said.

Students make use of the ap-saltines - is the key word in the two weeks they head to a grocery

"We see a lot of things along the lines of snacks," Ms. Perry said. "There's lots of cookie making, popcorn popping in the microwave. We do have some buildings where students are not required to be on a board plan, and they'll fix some easy frozen dinners, or that type of thing. We see very little full scale cooking in the halls, but the kitchens do get a lot of use.

Freshman Amy Curry and her roommate keep a few snacks on hand to eat when the urge strikes

"We have a lot of cereal, a lot of candy, homemade cookies from home," she said. The roommates also stock up on coffee and lemonade mix. "We eat all the time," she said. 'We're always eating. You name it, we eat it," she said. Melissa McMahon fills her
