Kuwaiti refineries wired to explode

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Iraqi occupation forces in Kuwait wired all four of the Persian Gulf emirate's oil refineries with plastic explosives and carted off large chunks of Kuwait's oil industry equipment, U.S. government sources say.

The explosives, if detonated, could knock out Kuwait's entire refining capacity, the sources said Friday.

Explosives also have been placed at other vital oil installations, including pipeline pumping stations, oil processing centers, oil wells and loading terminals, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

They said the moves appear to be part of a "scorched earth" strategy by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to devastate Kuwait's economic base in the event his army is forced to withdraw by the U.S.-led multinational forces in the region.

"They're basically all wired up for destruction — even the refineries," said one source, who is involved in the administration's monitoring of developments inside Kuwait.

Iraq also is removing large quantities of chemicals, pipes, meters and other oil-processing and production materials from storage areas in Kuwait for apparent use in Iraq, the sources said. There is no evidence, however, that the Iraqis are dismantling oil refineries by removing operational parts, they added.

Representatives of the exiled Kuwaiti government have said their country's oil industry was being severely damaged by Iraqi forces, but few details had come to light.

The threat of war against Iraq to force Saddam's army out of Kuwait has been a central reason for the rapid escalation of crude oil and gasoline prices over the past 10 weeks. Oil market participants

Senate sends latest budget effort to Bush

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Senate gave final legislative approval to a record package of taxes and spending cuts Saturday as Congress dashed through a stack of major bills and toward adjournment of its long election-year session.

The Senate voted 54-45 to embrace the budget compromise, the centerpiece of a $496 billion deficit-reduction plan that reaches the wallets of everyone from buyers of gasoline to Medicare recipients but takes special aim at the well-to-do.

Voting for the measure were 35 Democrats and 19 Republicans. It was opposed by 20 Democrats and 25 Republicans.

President Bush said in Honolulu that he would sign the bill "because for the first time we've made significant and long term cuts in federal spending that should have a positive impact on America's economic future."

Noting that the bargaining that led to the budget has "sometimes been painful," the president said:

"All political points of view have sacrificed to bring this agreement about. Needless to say I don't like raising taxes, never will. But there is a price to divided government and that means that I have had to compromise on items that I feel strongly about in order to do what I think is best for the country."

As debate began on the measure — which sat 10 inches tall on senators' desks and weighed 24 pounds — lawmakers said the sacrifices it would demand were necessitated by years of growing budget gaps that have helped weaken the economy.

Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Sasser, D-Tenn., said the measure would begin a "fundamental adjustment to too many years of indulgence and excess."

"It will be worse for America, worse for this decade, worse for our children if we do not reduce this lingering, pervasive deficit now," said the budget panel's ranking Republican, Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico.

With two of the White House officials who helped negotiate the plan watching from the visitors'

U.S. changes time

WASHINGTON (AP) — For those befuddled by late-starting church services or football games, be reminded — America moved back in time Sunday.

Most of the nation changed from Daylight Saving to Standard time at 2 a.m., local time, shifting an hour of sunlight from evening to morning.

For those who remembered to set their clocks back one hour before going to bed Saturday night, that meant an extra hour of sleep. For a few — police officers, bartenders and overnight telephone operators — the switch saddled them with an extra hour of nighttime duty.

The time change, first tried in 1918 and institutionalized with the Uniform Time Act of 1966, is designed to give a little more winter light to youngsters waiting for early-morning school buses and farmers rising for their break-of-dawn chores.

The time change did not affect a few states that do not observe daylight time. The Uniform Time Act allows states to exempt themselves, and Hawaii, Arizona and parts of Indiana have opted out of the system.

Daylight Saving time returns on the first Sunday of April.

Local Baptists urged to fight Baylor action

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

Local Baptists met Saturday as conservative speakers urged Baptists to oppose Baylor University's withdrawal from the control of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

On Sept. 21, Baylor University's Board of Trustees voted to amend the school's charter to establish a Board of Regents with sole responsibility for governance of Baylor, the world's largest Baptist university.

Previously, Baylor's charter provided for the school to be governed by a 48-member Board of Trustees elected by the Baptist General Convention of Texas. Under the amended charter, the university's regents, reduced to 24, will elect three-fourths of the new regents, with one-fourth being elected by the BGCT.

According to Dr. Winfred Moore, trustee chairman, the amended charter was supported by the overwhelming majority of the trustees.

Hillcrest Baptist's pastor, the Rev. Robert Lacey and Luan Stallings, president of Baptist Women's Missionary Union, invited speakers and guests to meet and discuss the facts and outcome of the Baylor charter change.

Lacey said the people of Big Spring are far removed from Dallas and Waco, and the question and answer forum was intended to enlighten Baptists in West Texas.

Bill G. Grubbs, a trustee for Baylor University, Jim M. Bolton, a former Baylor trustee, and Marty Angell, a senior Baylor business major, answered questions in the Hillcrest auditorium for about 50 people who attended the meeting.

Grubbs said he was present when Dewey Presley asked the trustees if he could present a miscellaneous item of business not on the agenda at the regular February meeting.

Letter People help kindergartners learn

Teacher Isabel Villarreal holds up Letter Person B as enthralled students at Anderson Kindergarten Center watch.

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

Mr. H has horrible hair. To the untrained ear, that may sound like a simple insult. To Anderson Kindergarten Center Principal Jonathan Slaten and his staff, however, it has become a useful teaching tool.

What? That 2-foot tall blow-up doll with long stringy green hair, a useful teaching tool?

As Mr. W says, "Don't worry." Read on.

Mr. H is one of the "Letter People," a group of 26 similar though unique male and female cartoon-like characters, who, for three years, have "helped kindergartners learn the alphabet. Slaten recently got a grant to improve the collection of Letter People materials — now H and his pals will be teaching the kids about values, safety, citizenship, creativity and hygiene.

"This is the time for them to learn character development," Slaten said. "I've always felt like this is where we need to get them."

Developing "character" in kindergarten may help kids avoid discipline, drug and alcohol abuse later, he said.

With that idea in mind, Slaten put together a proposal for the Region 18 Service Center's drug education grant program.

"I was stunned," Slaten said of finding out he had received a total of $8,000 in books and tapes. "This is really wonderful for us. I fight over the budget every year to get enough materials for the kids. I never expected to get this much."

The new materials cover such timely topics as peer pressure, including the Just Say No campaign. Mr. N, who has a noisy nose, teaches his birds friends to "say no and fly away" when others attempt to pressure them.

The difference in these lessons, Slaten said, is that they are geared toward their audience.

"We don't talk about drugs," he said. "We talk about character."

Fourteen injured in bus accident

MINERAL WELLS (AP) — A school bus carrying students home from classes Friday went out of control, overturned and landed upright in a gully, injuring 13 children and the driver, authorities said.

The driver lost control of the bus for unknown reasons about 4 p.m. on a two-lane road in a rural area about 20 miles southwest of this north-central Texas community, said Sgt. John Stahl of the state Department of Public Safety.

The eastbound bus swerved into the westbound lane, overturned once and came to rest upright in a gully, Stahl said.

Patsy Jackson, 8, was in critical condition with internal and head injuries, hospital officials said. The child was airlifted to Cook Children's Medical Center in Fort Worth, where she was undergoing surgery late Friday, said hospital spokeswoman Robin Worthington.

The other 12 children — ranging in age from 5 to 13 — and the bus driver were treated at hospitals for minor to moderate injuries, hospital officials said.

Why people hate the government — some theories

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stephen W. Schneider, in a letter-to-the-editor to The Dallas Morning News, suggests that officeholders running for re-election should have "Inc" placed after their names on the ballot.

"Inc" would stand for "incumbent," but if voters took it to mean "incompetent," well, that's an understandable conclusion," writes Schneider sardonically.

Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., was home for the weekend taking part in a parade at a Navaho Reservation when someone — he figures it was a federal employee unhappy about the government's budget impasse — called out, "You're playing with our lives."

For the first time, Richardson said, he heard the most dispiriting sound a politician can hear. He was booed.

"It's not comforting to be an elected official these days," said Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa.

Americans seem to be growing more and more hostile toward government — viewing it more as their enemy than their servant.

The evidence is everywhere. Oklahomans, getting even, voted to bounce legislators out of office — good, bad or indifferent — after they've served 12 years. Similar term-limitation propositions are expected to get heavy votes in California and Colorado on election day.

On Oct. 6, the day President Bush shut down the government in a budget impasse with Congress, former Ku Klux Klansman David Duke got 44 percent of the vote in Louisiana against three-term Democratic Sen. J. Bennett Johnston.

Duke got nearly 60 percent of the white vote, even though the establishment of both political parties was against him. His showing has been interpreted as a disgust-with-Washington vote.

Congressional votes to raise Congress' pay last spring produced an outburst of outrage.

One poll found that 57 percent of the American people don't believe the government represents people like them. Some observers contend that suspicion of government can be healthy.

Healthy or not, it's certainly not new.

The founding fathers were suspicious of government and wrote a cumbersome system of checks and balances and limited powers into the Constitution. Individual presidents have been the targets of national scorn, even assassins.

But for all the alleged throw-the-rascals-out sentiment within the body politic, for all of newspaper reader Stephen Schneider's disgust with officeholders, most incumbents get re-elected. In 1988, 404 of 408 incumbents were returned to the House by the voters.

Bruce Buchanan, political scientist at the University of Texas, said voter turnout is a better thermometer of the public mood. When people are disenchanted with government, he said, they don't vote. Turnout has been lower in the 20th century than it was in the 19th, lower in the 1980s and 1990s than in the 1950s.

"Now only about half the electorate shows up," he said.

So something sour is going on. Government that is supposed to be for, of and by the people increasingly is looked upon as impersonal, nosy, self-serving, bloated, wasteful, incompetent, corrupt and unhelpful.

After all, two presidents ran on that premise. Jimmy Carter promised to change government: he would produce "a government as good as the people." Ronald Reagan would "get the government off your back."

Politicians, said Buchanan, have a responsibility to encourage belief in the system. Running against government, he said, "is like eating the seed corn."

Buchanan breaks the disenchanted into these groups:

- The Archie Bunker Types. These are the Louisianians who are not racists but still voted for David Duke. "They are fed up with a government that seems interested in everyone except them. They regard affirmative action programs as aimed against them."
- The Cynics. An even larger group, "they regard government as increasingly self-serving and irrelevant to them and their lives."
- The Turned-Off. They believe in government, but are appalled by manipulative political campaigns that consist of content-less advertising and preening. "They listen to gubernatorial candidates in Texas and California, and decide that what they are talking about has nothing to do with what the one who wins will have to do."
- The Indifferent Young. "They're 18 to 24, and all of this is utterly irrelevant to them. They don't care about politics. They don't read the paper. They are ignorant of the process."

"Put them all together," Buchanan said, "and you have a big group who don't vote, don't pay attention and who get mad."

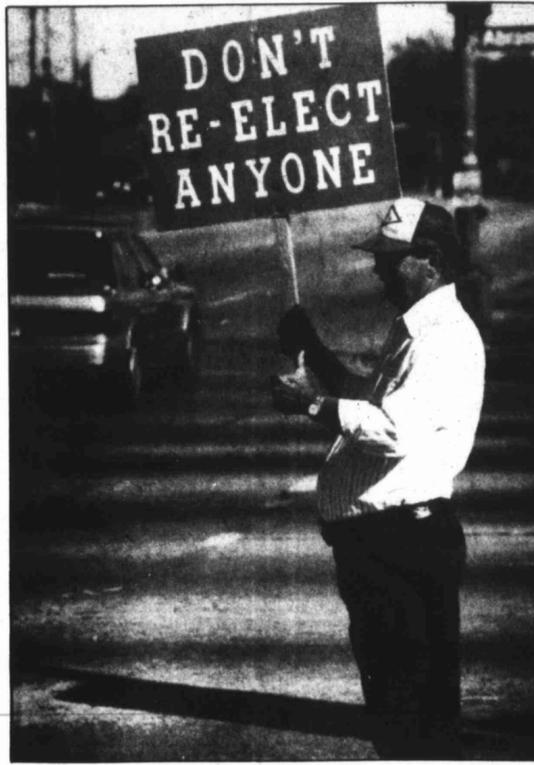

John Gardner, former cabinet member and founder of Common Cause, a citizen group that seeks to reform government, blames the mix of money and politics. He thinks America is becoming aware of how "campaign money is corrupting our political system."

Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., agrees. "We've got too much money in politics," he said. "The individual voters feels his money or vote doesn't count."

Willard Wirtz, secretary of labor in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, believes "confidence in government has diminished for almost 25 years now."

"It probably started when people discovered they weren't being told the truth about the Vietnam war," Wirtz said. "It developed with Watergate and the discovery that their president was a crook. Then both Carter and Reagan seemed to have, in very different forms, a contempt for the processes of government."

For one thing, she said, people don't realize what they're getting from the government for their taxes. People eat food that has been tested by government, drive on government-built roads, send their kids to government-operated schools without a second thought, she said.

Then, people blame government when they have a run-in with the Social Security bureaucrat or the IRS.

State Department issues warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terrorists could be planning to attack a passenger ship or aircraft "at any time," the State Department says.

The agency said Friday night that the attack could come on a passenger ship in the eastern Mediterranean Sea or an aircraft in Europe or the Middle East.

"The risk of acts of international terrorism in Europe and the Middle East is increasing," said a statement from the department's deputy spokesman, Richard Boucher.

He said the department had received "specific and credible" information about a threat to ships in the eastern Mediterranean, and added: "Such an operation may be undertaken at any time."

He added, "We note that civil aviation remains a particular target."

Klan loses appeal to march

WASHINGTON (AP) — The District of Columbia will not have to allow the Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan to march along a major Washington thoroughfare during a rally here Sunday, a federal appeals court ruled Saturday.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia vacated an order by a lower court judge that would have allowed the Klan to march along Constitution Avenue from the Washington Monument grounds to the U.S. Capitol, said Mark Langer, an aide to the court's clerk.

U.S. District Judge Louis F. Oberdorfer earlier this week had ruled in favor of a suit brought by the American Civil Liberties Union, which claimed the Klan's constitutional rights were being violated by the police limits.

City officials refused to issue the Klan a permit to march along Constitution Avenue, saying they could not adequately insure the safety of the marchers over such a long route. Police urged the organization to instead travel from the monument grounds to the Capitol mostly along the grassy Mall.

Replacements 'deliver' newspaper

NEW YORK (AP) — Rusty editors, managers and replacement workers wrote, printed and delivered the Daily News on Saturday despite the absence of 2,400 employees in a strike marked by sporadic violence.

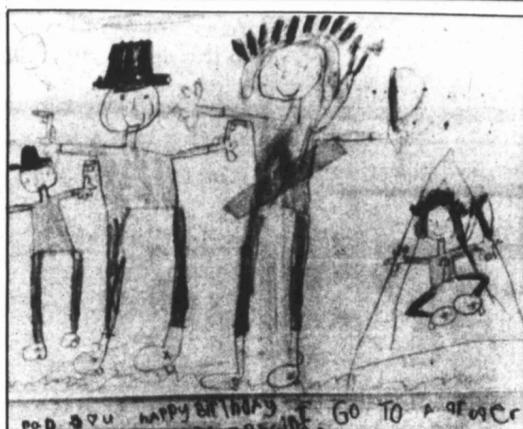

"The Fight For The News" read the paper's front page headline above a photo of strikers vandalizing a bus carrying replacement workers. Inside, there were ads to fill the strikers' jobs in all departments at the paper.

At stake is the future of the 71-year-old daily, which has been in a financial tailspin for the past decade. The News has lost about $115 million and seen daily circulation slip by about 700,000 since 1980.

Unlike most strikes, though, there are no negotiations in progress or planned. The News plans to replace the strikers.

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A birthday card to kidnapped American hostage, Terry Anderson, written and drawn by his 5-year-old daughter, Sulome, was published Saturday by Lebanese newspapers for his 43rd birthday. Sulome has never met her father because she was born several months after he was kidnapped. It is Anderson's sixth birthday in captivity.

Court considers clinic's family planning options

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court wrestles with abortion once again, this time considering whether patients at federally funded family planning clinics can be told that they have the option of ending unwanted pregnancies.

The arguments, scheduled for Tuesday, center on free-speech issues and not the legality of abortion. But the hearing still may give the first glimpses of Justice David Souter's stance on abortion.

At stake is the information available to the 5 million low-income women who depend on federally funded clinics and similar health-care providers.

If any of these women faces an unwanted pregnancy, she has the same three options confronting wealthier women: raise the child, place the child for adoption or abortion.

But if the Bush administration wins in the Supreme Court, doctors and counselors at some 4,000 federally financed family planning clinics will be barred from discussing the third option with their clients.

Federal regulations adopted by the Reagan administration in 1988 imposed the ban on counseling about abortion, but court challenges have kept the regulations from being enforced virtually everywhere.

Last year, family planning clinics received more than $140 million in federal money.

A federal appeals court in New York upheld the ban, but other federal courts have ruled it an unconstitutional infringement of free-speech rights. After hearing arguments in the New York case Tuesday, the Supreme Court is expected to resolve the conflicting rulings by July.

Souter joined the court earlier this month, succeeding Justice William Brennan. During confirmation hearings, he declined to state whether he would vote to overturn Roe vs. Wade, the 1973 ruling that legalized most abortions. Tuesday's arguments will be the first for Souter on abortion since he joined the federal bench.

Report fails to silence debate

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli leftists and Palestinians are lambasting a government report that says police shot Arab stone-throwers in self defense earlier this month. Far-right leaders say the document hurts Jewish interests.

Less-radical right-wing parties say the report released Friday bolstered Israel's earlier declarations that the rioters were chiefly to blame for the violence Oct. 8, in which police gunfire killed 20

Palestinians.

The 59-page report, written by a three-man investigative committee appointed by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, drew immediate criticism from leftists and Arabs.

"The impression given by the first announcement of the report is that the committee sees the deaths of about 20 Palestinians and the injury of more than 100 Palestinians as a necessity that cannot be condemned," said legislator Yair Tsaban.

Leftist demonstrators clash

LEIPZIG, Germany (AP) — Leftist demonstrators Saturday clashed with neo-Nazis shouting "Heil Hitler!" a news agency said. One of the policemen called to the scene reportedly wounded two rioters.

A policeman was also injured by rioters hurling stones, and three teen-agers were arrested, the Germany news agency ADN said.

It said the officer who wounded the rioters fired in self-defense when confronted by attackers carrying iron bars, sticks and signal flares. It did not say if the two people wounded were neo-

Nazi marchers or their opponents.

The clashes began after nearly 150 neo-Nazi youths left a discotheque in Leipzig, about 100 miles southwest of Berlin, and marched through the city shouting Nazi salutes and slogans hostile to foreigners, ADN said. The group was confronted by anti-Nazi youths.

Police separated the two groups, but one patrol car came under attack by a group of 30 to 50 youths, ADN said. One policeman "was forced to make use of his firearm," it said.

Xavier Cugat dead at 90

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Xavier Cugat, the band leader who introduced tropical rhythms of the rumba to millions of Americans, died today in a Barcelona hospital, his doctors said. He was 90.

Cugat died of heart failure because of arterial sclerosis, doctors Jorge Rius and Jaime Pujadas said in a statement.

He checked into the hospital Oct. 8 with a lung infection and failure of his left ventricle.

"Coogie," as he became known to millions of Americans and Europeans, became a star in the early 1930s playing Latin dance music at the Coconut Grove club of the Los Angeles Ambassador Hotel and later at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

He and his band, the Gigolos, were featured in several popular Hollywood movies in the 1940s and 1950s.

Drug treatment is country need

For a decade, the war against drugs has been fought mostly with jails and exhortation. That strategy has left a major front in the war — drug treatment — neglected and underfunded. A new study by the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences offers good evidence why that should change.

In a report mandated by Congress, a panel of researchers has concluded that drug treatment is cost-effective and should be greatly expanded to serve more of the 5.5 million Americans in need of rehabilitation. Treatment using current methods can deliver benefits, in reduced crime and increased productivity, that far exceed the cost of delivering the services to drug abusers. Even in cases where a drug abuser has a relapse, treatment frequently pays for itself by reducing the abuser's criminal activities while under care, the panel found.

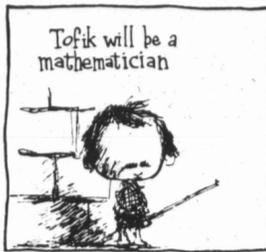

The only exception to the general finding about cost-effectiveness is private drug rehabilitation care that begins with a long period of hospitalization; this kind of program is no more effective than less expensive outpatient care or residential therapy, the researchers reported.

After declining for a decade, federal support of drug treatment rose sharply this year, to $1.3 billion. But the panel said spending needs to increase by another $2.1 billion.

The researchers recommended that the money go first to provide treatment to tens of thousands of people who have asked for help in getting off drugs but are waiting for care. They also urged that more be spent in improving existing programs, reaching out to pregnant women and young mothers on drugs; and to expanding treatment in jails. Thus, most of the treatment effort would be concentrated on people who have real motivation to kick their habits.

In a break with the policies of the past decade, the Bush administration has welcomed the panel's recommendations and signaled a willingness to spend the needed money. Taxpayers should welcome the recommendations, too. No society is rich enough to deal with the problem of widespread illegal drug use through cops, courts and jail alone. If the demand for drugs is to be reduced, governments also must provide a helping hand to those who want to straighten out their lives.

Legislation is needed in this fight

To the editor:
Less than two miles from the eastern Howard County line a Pennsylvania firm wants to build the largest hazardous waste facility west of the Mississippi River. It would process 80,000 tons of hazardous waste per year on land where cattle and cotton now prosper. They would bury toxic residue atop the Colorado River watershed in addition to their incineration activities.

This facility could imperil our air, our water and our foodchain. Texans need legislation to protect us from corporate waste-burners who seek to profit at the expense of our air, land, water and people. Call for help in registering your concerns with our legislators.

Group works toward improvement

To the editor:
We know you are aware of the pollution and disposal of waste we are facing in Texas. We feel sure you agree with us, further pollution by incineration and landfill is not the answer to the problem.

tion of waste by recycling is part of the solution? Have you done any research into other solutions?

As citizens and voters, we would like to be a part of the solution, not a part of the problem. We hope our politicians will tell us what they are doing to alleviate the pollution/waste disposal problem, and tell us what we can do to help.

Issues taken with biblical remarks

To the editor:

While I do feel all people should pay their fair share of taxes (whatever "fair" is), I must question the use of the Bible verse written in a letter on Sunday, Oct. 21, 1990, pertaining to the taxation of the wealthy to reduce the deficit. Although I believe Ms. Ritz wrote in good faith, the original Greek term of "charge" is not used in the same manner in which we use the term today for the monetary concept of payment or credit. According to the Strong's Exhaustive Concordance of the Bible, the term for "charge" in I Timothy 6:17 is the original Greek term "paragello," which means to "transmit a message, i.e. enjoin, command, demand." The definition "command" is also used in Webster's New World Dictionary: Second College Edition as a meaning for "charge." Hence, the verse says to "enjoin/command/demand the rich not to be highminded or trust in uncertain riches, but trust in the living God... God did not speaking through Paul to require Timothy to extract money from the rich to force them to trust God. God forces no one to come to Him. Also, to get the full meaning of the verse, one must continue through to verse 19, which ends the sentence.

However, related to the above, one way the federal deficit has been run up is by the extensive use of credit. The Bible has plenty to say about creditors and usury. For lack of space, I will not quote any verses, but it does encourage that interest should not be charged, except to strangers, in Deuteronomy 23:19-20.

Congress needs to learn that dependency upon credit so extensively to handle the budgetary needs of the country must stop. And we all must accept the outcome, no matter how much it hurts each of us. We elected them, so we must also do our share. If one didn't vote, no one has any right to complain.

Clayton using his 'forked tongue'

To the editor:

Once again Clayton Williams "speaks with forked tongue." After negative public response and I am sure pressure from his own organization, Williams came up with the reason as to why he did not shake hands with Ann Richards was that to him a handshake showed trust and he did not trust Ann Richards.

If he really believed that, he would not shake hands with anyone he did not know. What about all the handshaking he has done on his campaign tour? For an educated man he does not know the meaning of several words — to most people a handshake is a greeting. The act only reinforced his male chauvinistic attitude and disrespect for women.

People — think carefully as to how you will vote when you go to the polls on November 6. Do we really want Clayton Williams to represent Texas as the male image of this great state? Surely not!

She's bidding a judicious fairwell

To the editor:

When this letter appears in the paper, there will be several people who are aware of my decision of retiring/resigning from the positions of Big Spring's Municipal Judge and Court Clerk.

It has taken several months for me to come to this decision because I have been with the City government for 15 years and have met many wonderful people that I consider friends. Due to health problems, I must leave.

There have been times that I have dreaded for 5:00 to come on weekdays or the weekends to arrive that I would be away from the people I have come into contact with, whether legally or simply a friendly face that has made my position very fulfilling, a challenge but rewarding.

I will continue to perform my duties until Dec. 31, 1990 and would enjoy a visit from the people I have met, whether paying a ticket or any other circumstances, to come past so I may wish you farewell and to simply say, thank you.

Youngster looking for postcards

To the editor:

My 4th grade class has just finished a huge pictorial map of the United States. We learned lots of geographical facts while doing this project. Now we would like to learn more from the people of the United States.

We want to match the cities of our map with picture postcards and learn facts from the people who actually live there. We want to collect as many as possible from all over the country.

Do you think any of your readers would be willing to send us a postcard greeting? If so, please send the postcards to: Mrs. Clemons, 4th grade class, Independence School, 4700 S. Memphis St., Aurora, CO 80015. Thank you.

Letters

Letters to the editor on issues of general interest always are welcomed by the Big Spring Herald and always are printed if these guidelines are followed:

Letters should be 350 words or less, typewritten if possible, and double-spaced. If not, the handwriting must be legible to reduce chances for mistakes.

They are subject to editing, but the essence of the writer's message will not be altered. Letters exceeding the 350-word limit will be cut.

They must be signed, free of libelous statements and in good taste. Political endorsements won't be accepted during a campaign.

Can Reagan save his Texas allies?

By JESSE TREVINO

Ronald Reagan comes to Texas next week. With the country at its knees, Reagan's arrival presents a splendid opportunity for him to explain to Texans the benefits of ten years of Reaganomics and the reasons his policies should be continued. Voters can also ask if the candidates he supports are going to give Texas the kind of non-government Reagan provided the country.

This information would be especially timely in the case of the state's junior senator, Phil Gramm. Gramm, perhaps more than any other person in the U.S. Congress, not only shares Reagan's economic views but has been responsible for implementing them on a national scale.

Clayton Williams and Rob Mosbacher (not to mention Bill Clements) all favor Reagan's economic policies. After ten years of support, it is time for Bill Clements, Clayton Williams, Rob Mosbacher, Phil Gramm, and Ronald Reagan, amateurs all at the task of governing, and indistinguishable from each other in economic philosophy, to explain to the people of Texas the wisdom of continuing economic policies which have produced, among others, the following results over the past ten years:

- Income redistribution. Between 1980 and 1990, families earning more than $200,000 per year saw their incomes increase by 45 percent and their taxes decrease by 10 percent. No one should quarrel with those people making more money, except that at the same time the incomes of families earning between $30,000 and $50,000 per year decreased by 5 percent while their taxes increased by 15 percent. Reagan betrayed the middle class who voted for him thinking he would reduce their taxes.

- Deregulation. Lack of oversight by federal regulators resulted in both lax and illegal banking practices. The infamous savings and loan bailout will cost taxpayers upwards of $500 billion — the latest estimate. The fate of many commercial banks and insurance companies remains unclear. Many corporations enter the feared recession from weakened positions thanks to the free-wheeling wars of the junk bond and leveraged buyout era.

The opening of federal lands to mining and other development from Alaska to the California coast to the wetlands of the Southeast, along with the failure to enforce new standards on clean air and toxic waste led to the greatest environmental damage since the 1950s, when we polluted out of ignorance rather than greed.

Deregulation of the airline industry, along with the firing of a majority of air traffic controllers, led to monopolies in most markets and a frightening number of near crashes in mid-air. Age and overuse resulted in questions about the mechanical and structural safety of airliners.

- Drugs. As domestic spending was slashed, drug use skyrocketed. An entire generation turned to drugs as a means of both subsistence and escape.

Nightly shootings and gang wars erupted in cities from New York to Los Angeles in one of the largest crime waves to hit the country in decades. As a result, babies — innocent things — are being shot to death in major cities as bullets fly through the air randomly.

- Education. Another victim of domestic budget cuts, American students continue to score below their European and Asian counterparts. Standardized test scores remained low and many schools sought increased funding from state governments. This helped precipitate financial crises in several states, including Texas. Many schools raged out of control due to drugs.

- Infrastructure. Many of the nation's roads and bridges deteriorated beyond the point of safe use thanks to decades of neglect. The needed repairs probably could employ every one of the thousands of construction workers that have been laid off because of crashes in the real estate and housing markets.

Unfortunately, there is no money left to finance this construction because:

- The deficit. Between 1980 and 1990, Ronald Reagan and George Bush borrowed billions of dollars to pay for their much heralded tax cuts. As a result, the elderly face cuts in Medicare and Social Security, the Japanese bought Rockefeller Center and Columbia Pictures, and the U.S. had to ask other nations to donate money to pay for military operations in the Middle East.

It will be to the credit of the state Republican Party if Reagan is encouraged to explain to Texans why the policies that produced all these results and more should be continued. More likely, however, the Republican Party will use Reagan's visit to once again gloss over the truth about Reaganomics. The question is whether, having been fooled once, the people of Texas will allow themselves to be fooled again. Or will they this time recognize the Republican Party's trifling with the public for the insult it is? The amount of money the Texas Republican Party is paying Reagan for his appearances is not yet known. It surely isn't the $1 million the Japanese paid him for four days of recent speeches. But whatever price he is getting for his acting skills these days, Reagan should use his public stage to explain the mess he helped create.

Chances are, however, that Reagan will deliver great lines about law enforcement and drug eradication and gun control and standard anti-tax platitudes. Some Americans still believe Reagan was a good president. He treated America to eight years of good feelings, and Americans like that. While the underclass overdosed on crack, the voters overdosed on Reagan's warm fuzzies. Reagan made the voters feel so good, they didn't care about anything except getting more of his stroking.

This year's Republican candidates share Reagan's opinions, but not his hypnotic powers. America is in withdrawal from Reagan. The question for Texas is, will this one last fix provided by Reagan's visit save his allies here?

Area murder played up in national detective magazine

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

"Love on the Rocks Made a Deadly Splash!" proclaims the recent issue of Official Detective on its front cover. The story features the June 1988 strangulation-drowning murder at Lake Colorado City of Big Spring bank teller and resident Tammy Gray, then 27 years old. Her husband, Travis Gray, 31, was sentenced in March to 40 years in prison for the crime by a Mitchell County jury and has been free since escaping June 20 from the state prison in Snyder, where he was a model prisoner. The former employee of Big Spring State Hospital maintained his innocence throughout the trial and afterwards. The story, written by magazine staff writer Bill Cox and headlined on the cover of the January 1991 edition of the detective magazine, is making splashes of its own. The last copy was sold out Thursday at Poncho's News Stand in Big Spring. It was the only one of about half-a-dozen detective magazines that had sold out. "I was pretty shocked that it was in a magazine," said a relative of Tammy's who did not want to be identified. She said the 5 1/2-page story reiterated what was covered in newspaper accounts but felt the headline was played up. "Well I think it's pretty much what the newspaper already said," the relative said. But, she added, "It didn't lead up to the headlines." The story was accompanied by pictures of Tammy and Travis, Mitchell County Sheriff Wendell Bryant, the front of the courthouse and the lake. The prosecutor in the trial, 32nd District Attorney Frank Conard, said he has not heard of the story but said any national exposure of Travis Gray will increase the chances of his capture. "The more people that see his picture throughout the United States, the better chances they'll have finding him somewhere," he said. "He needs to be back in the penitentiary." Travis escaped from the minimum security prison at Snyder by stowing away in a truck at the furniture factory where he was assigned to work. Using a hammer and wire snips, he cut a hole in the roof of the truck which stopped in Abilene. Electrical tape was put on the hole's edges, probably so his body would not be scraped and cut as he slid to freedom.

The 5-foot-8 white male, 172 pounds, blue eyes and brown hair, left behind a prison uniform in the truck with the name tags ripped off and then probably went jogging off wearing blue jogging shorts and white tennis shoes which were bought from the prison commissary, said Texas Ranger John Billings, Snyder. There are no new leads as to his whereabouts. While in prison, he had told an assistant warden that since he was innocent, he "just had to get out." Bruises on his wife's body were incurred by him trying to save her from drowning, according to testimony in his defense. Evidence showed that he had taken out more than $180,000 in insurance policies on his wife and had been seeing another woman whom he later married after Tammy died. Travis, who did not have a prior criminal record, had an appeal in the case dismissed in 11th District Court of Appeals due to his escape. Billings, who was involved in the murder investigation, said he has not heard of the detective magazine article. Another investigator, Bryant, said he has not heard of it either but recalled someone calling him on the phone and asking questions about the case. There was one apparent mistake in the article. It said Big Spring is to the north of Colorado City.

Berchermann for judicial restraint

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Voters will decide Nov. 6 if they want to keep a conservative interpretation of the law within the highest criminal court in the state, said David Berchermann, Republican candidate for re-election as judge on the Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 4. The court is conservative right now, he says, but five places of the nine-member court are up for election. "The court is probably divided more often than not 5-4 on conservative and liberal issues," said Berchermann, 43, San Antonio, a declared conservative and the first Republican on the court. "The five votes that are the same is the way the court goes. Majority rules," said Berchermann, who stopped in Big Spring last week while on a three-day campaign swing through nine West Texas cities. "There's a difference in philosophy and approach," he said of the choice voters have. "I believe in judicial restraint, not activism," he said. "I believe that judges should interpret the law, not write it."

on our families, our law enforcement officers, our cities and towns is devastating. Texans need judges who will not run from the law," he said. "We need judges who carry out the letter of the law in a fair and judicious manner. It is time we send a message to the criminal element that we mean business on the court." Places 1 through 5 are up for election, with four Republican, five Democratic and one Libertarian candidates running. At least one Democrat, Place 3 Judge Bill White, San Antonio, who has a Libertarian but no Republican opponent, is conservative, Berchermann said. There is only one other incumbent Republican candidate, Place 5 Judge Louis E. Sturns, Ft. Worth. Berchermann says his opponent, Democratic Charles F. "Charlie" Baird, 35, a Houston defense lawyer for 10 years, is also liberal. A press release cites campaign reports which show that more than half of Baird's $19,135 in contributions from July 1 to Sept. 27 came from attorneys associated with the criminal defense bar and about 20 percent came from labor unions. "When the bulk of Baird's contributions come from one side of the equation — the criminal defense bar — you have to wonder whose interests will be represented on the court — victims or criminals," Berchermann said. The issues in the Place 4 race involve experience and qualifications, Berchermann said. His experience is more well-rounded, having been a judge, prosecutor and a lawyer in private practice, he said. He was appointed by the governor to his present position in January 1989. He was 290th district judge in San Antonio from 1981 to 1988, in private practice from 1980-81, and a Bexar County assistant criminal district attorney from 1973 to 1980. He is a 1973 law school graduate from St. Mary's University in San Antonio. "I think you need to have experience on all sides," Berchermann said. In another issue, Berchermann says that judges should set self-imposed guidelines to speed up cases on the court. Opinions should be rendered in a specified time period. "These are rules that the judges could easily impose," he said. "We have already discussed them among ourselves." The Court of Criminal Appeals, the criminal counterpart to the Texas Supreme Court which hears civil appeals, handles on appeal all death penalty cases in the state as well as other criminal cases from intermediate appeals courts.

SWCID receives award for increase in minority students

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf has been honored for a recent increase in its minority student population. The award was presented by the Coordinating Board of Texas to 12 colleges and universities in the state who increased opportunities for minorities to enroll. Administrator Ron Brasel said he was "very pleased" that SWCID was among the honored. An increase in minority enrollment at SWCID means the campus gets "more of a cultural variation," he said. "Every group we have brings with it a cultural exchange — they come from different educational backgrounds. All of that is of benefit to the campus as a whole." Bob Coltrane, admissions counselor, said the college has not made specific attempts to increase its minority population. "I'm talking to all students equally," he said. "But we're in a growth mode, our numbers are going up." Coltrane added that the school has added some programs during the last few years which may have opened doors for some students often "missed" by traditional programming. "For example, we've got programs for those not as high in academics. Those students have been neglected in the past. We've implemented some training programs... (that meant) we were able to serve a lot more students." He said population of virtually all racial and ethnic groups has increased. "You definitely can't stereotype groups, but you also must recognize that (minorities) do have some additional influences and problems," he said. He cited as an example, students who come from families that do not have a strong command of English. Those students are often starting "a step behind" native English-speakers. He said SWCID has been trying to "meet more students' needs." "I pushed for this (addition of programs)," he said. "I really wanted to see it happen. I knew we weren't meeting the needs of a lot of kids." Brasel said SWCID "did some recruiting in some places we hadn't been before, including some non-traditional sites. "People are beginning to hear more about us," he said. Howard College President Bob Riley, in Austin for a conference, attended a ceremony and accepted SWCID's award Friday.

100-year-old woman plans to keep driving

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Jessie Fiedler just turned 100 and she'd rather sit in a driver's seat than a rocking chair. "Driving is one of my pleasures in life," said Fiedler, who hit the century mark Thursday. "It keeps me young and interested in life." Her driver's license expires in 1992. "Of course I plan to renew it," she said. "If I had to sit in a rocking chair all day, I'd feel pathetic," she said Wednesday after taking a pre-birthday drive around the block in her 1980 Buick Century. "I always say it's better to wear out than to rust out." "When you practice for a lot of years, you'd have to get better."

Senate vote increase in Texas judgeships

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Saturday voted to increase the number of federal judgeships in Texas by 11 to 47.

A vote on the bill was expected later in the House. Texas lawmakers said the increase is badly needed, particularly in two of Texas' four U.S. judicial districts. Those districts along the Mexican border lead the nation in the number of drug case filings and consequently have huge backlogs.

Senators approved by a voice vote a bill introduced by Sen. Joe Biden, D-Delaware, that sends eight judges to those areas.

The bill originally contained fewer new judges for Texas. But both Texas senators, Democrat Lloyd Bentsen and Republican Phil Gramm, pushed Biden to accept 11. "Our federal court dockets are seriously overloaded," Bentsen said. "It takes years to try civil cases because of the backlog of drug cases."

For Texas, the bill gives one new judge for the Tyler-based Eastern District, two for Dallas-based Northern District, three for the Midland-based Western District and five for the Houston-based Southern District.

In 1989, the average caseload for judges in the Southern and Western districts was twice the national average.

The districts led the nation in drug case filings in 1989. The Southern district, which includes the Lower Rio Grande Valley, had 1,662 and the Western district, which includes San Antonio, had 708. A judicial district in central California was next with 576 cases.

During a recent 16-month period, the 20 judges of the Southern and Western districts in Texas sentenced 23 percent of the defendants in all federal courts.

"There is a demonstrated need for these judges in the areas along the Texas-Mexico border," said Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio.

Grubbs said the trustees agreed unanimously to hear the item of business, and that was the first Grubbs knew of the charter change.

"I gave a lengthy argument for them to leave it like it is. Our school has been taken away from us, and it should not have been. Not in the manner that it was. But we do have recourse," Grubbs said.

He urged Baptists to attend the BGCT convention in November, where a report from a special committee organized to investigate the matter is expected. Grubbs said a majority may overrule the chairman of the trustees and the executive committees by vote, if necessary.

"We've got to be in Houston to do what we can do. We need to do something to get our school back. I'll probably make a motion that we rescind what has been done," Grubbs said.

Reading from the charter for Baylor before the change, Grubbs pointed out that the institution's boards are unable to make changes or decisions without consulting with the trustees.

"It's taken two years to bring this about. But not one time did they report this. If it's unethical or immoral, it's not my place to judge. But if they wanted to take it away, they had the constitutional responsibility to take it to the Texas Baptists and discuss it with them," said Grubbs, who describes himself as no fundamentalist, but an "average pew-sitting Baptist."

Learning

Research has shown that this character development is more beneficial at this age. Drugs would confuse them. We're trying to teach them about making the right choices.

Not only the content, but its presentation works for the students, Slaten said.

"The books are colorful, high interest and low-vocabulary," he said. "Many of our kids come to us with no vocabulary at all, they really just don't speak. The books give them vocabulary words and explain what they are so they can understand."

Teacher Isabel Villarreal, in her third year at Anderson, is pleased with the addition to the Letter People program.

"Kids love them," she said. "Kids associate with them like a doll."

Her class is enjoying learning about Mr. B this week. B takes a walk and learns about safety rules, so her class will take a similar walk as a kind of field trip along with the unit, she said.

"The kids take the Letter People pretty seriously," Slaten said. "Sometimes the balloons get

The reason given for no notice given to the people of Texas sooner was because the people of Texas would have risen up and gotten a court order for an injunction to stop it. This was justified as the threat of fundamentalist takeover.

Bolton said the law in Texas gives the trustees the right to take this action, which was described as a "loophole" by Lacey.

Angell said the trustees are promoting the charter change as a "done deal" but that the rallying of support for the Houston convention proves the situation is not resolved.

Several area Baptist ministers attended the open forum including Kenneth Patrick from First Baptist Church in Big Spring, Ken McMeans from College Baptist Church, Harold Scarborough, the Director of Baptist Missions for Big Spring and Lamesa and Bill Irwin, the pastor of the Luther Bethel Baptist Church.

Irwin said, "I don't think we've gotten the whole story. Everyone on both sides feels like they're 100 per cent right."

Stallings said she invited several moderate Baptists from Odessa, Midland and Abilene.

"We tried very hard to get someone here. They were all nice, very receptive, but had other plans," she explained.

Moderate Baptists have stressed their concern for the reputation of Baylor University if it is controlled by fundamentalists. They support the Board's action in the name of academic freedom.

Ahmadi and Shuaiba near Kuwait City and the much smaller Mina Saud facility near the southern border with Saudi Arabia — had a pre-invasion capacity of nearly 900,000 barrels a day.

The explosives attached to these facilities could, if detonated, knock out all of Kuwait's refining capability for at least six months, the sources estimated. It would take at least two years to get the facilities back to full capacity, they said.

Details about the installation of plastic explosives at refineries and other Kuwaiti oil facilities have come from Kuwaiti exiles and from released foreign hostages, an administration source said.

The kids think they are sick or dying or something." As teachers carry the blow-up Letter People around the halls, kids wave and call out to the dolls, he said.

Villarreal said students particularly enjoy the tapes, some of which include songs to go with the characters. Typically, one letter of the alphabet will take one week. The unit starts with an introduction to the character.

"Sometimes the teacher will say, 'We have a visitor today,' Slaten said. "The kids will think the character is alive. They really relate to it."

Once the students have practiced the sound of the letter, they listen to their teacher read from the book. Questions, suggested additions and projects are included along with the text.

The tapes can be used as a class lesson at first, and later, students can listen to them alone to review the letters, Slaten said.

Because, as Miss U teaches, everyone forgets sometimes.

Though, like Mr. L, some kids may find out they can do things they never thought possible.

Astronomers find bigger galaxy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronomers reported today they have found the largest galaxy ever discovered in a concentration of stars that stretches for 6 million light years, or more than 60 times the size of the Milky Way.

A central galaxy in a distant cluster of galaxies called Abell 2029 has more than 100 trillion stars, said a study published in the journal Science. The Milky Way, which includes the sun and its solar system, has about 3 billion stars.

The stellar structure "is the largest single galaxy that we have resolved," said Jeffrey R. Kuhn, a Michigan State University astronomer who coauthored the study.

"If we talk about the galaxy and the halo (diffused light around the galaxy) as a single entity, then it is the largest object that we are aware of," he said.

Until this study, the largest known galaxy was Markarian 348, which was identified in 1987. It is 1.3 million light years in diameter.

Kuhn and his co-investigators, Juan M. Uson of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory and Stephen P. Boughn of Haverford College, determined the size of the galaxy using a series of observations from the Kitt Peak National Observatory in Arizona.

Sixteen photos taken by the observatory's 36-inch telescope were processed through a computer that removed from the view all of the light from other sources. This enabled the scientists to precisely measure the brightness and size of the galaxy, although individual stars could not be resolved.

Later, a second series of photos from Kitt Peak confirmed the findings.

Kuhn said the Abell 2029 cluster of galaxies is about a billion light years away and includes about a thousand galaxies, each with billions of stars.

"If you were to look up into the sky and could see this cluster, they would occupy an area a little smaller than the moon," he said. "Of course, they are much fainter than the eye can see."

A light year is 5.89 trillion miles, the distance that light can travel in one year in a vacuum.

The very large galaxy, classified by astronomers as a cD (for central dominant), emits more than a quarter of all the light radiated by the entire cluster.

Kuhn said that by analyzing the diffuse light by computer, the group was able to determine that there was little stellar matter between the cD galaxy and others in the Abell 2029 cluster.

Budget

chief of staff John Sununu and budget director Richard Darman — opponents objected that farmers would be hit too hard and that the measure imposed a new burden taxpayers do not need.

"You're going to see the working, struggling people of this country will be hit by increased taxes and fees," said Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss.

But after 10 months of intense and partisan budget warfare, exhausted lawmakers said it was time to close the deal.

"I've left my wife without much firewood out in the country," joked Sen. James Jeffords, R-Vt. "It's time to get home."

Tired and testy, the lawmakers pushed to complete work on a host of bills standing in the way of a hoped-for weekend adjournment, including final passage of historic clean air legislation.

The House labored to work out some last-minute snags on Senate-passed legislation embracing the first major overhaul of the nation's legal immigration system in a quarter-century. A major feature of the bill subject to floor debate was language providing more visas for families and those with special job skills.

The Senate passed the massive, 1,100-page Clean Air Act by an 89-10 vote, with most of the opposition coming from members representing heavily industrialized states. Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, hailed the legislation as "a long overdue step" to clear the air of toxic pollutants.

The House passed a bill that would establish new grant programs for child care and increase tax credits for low-income families with children in the name of child-care assistance. The grant programs are expected to cost at least $3.2 billion over five years, while the tax credit program may cost $12.4 billion over five years.

Both chambers were putting finishing touches on bills appropriating money for government operations for the budget year that started Oct. 1, including a $15.5 billion foreign aid bill that includes provisions tying future El Salvador aid to peacemaking efforts in that country. It also forgives $6.7 billion in debt owed by Egypt.

Just before dawn Saturday, the House approved the budget 228-200, with the support of most Democrats and a few Republicans. Some representatives criticized the plan's taxes and others lauded its whack at federal red ink.

But all agreed with buttons some sported that pleaded "Free the 101st Congress."

Even with the plan, the federal deficit will remain formidable. The red ink for the fiscal year is expected to reach a record $254 billion, even with the $40 billion in savings the budget would produce. The bill envisions that the overall federal debt is expected to soar from just over $3 trillion to nearly $5 trillion over the next five years.

But lawmakers on both sides said it was the best compromise they could reach. It was achieved only after a year that saw Bush abandon his campaign vow of "No new taxes" and congressional Republicans split deeply over demands for taxes on the rich while swallowing deeper spending cuts than they liked.

The package, the fruit of six months of negotiations, was originally designed as a $500 billion deal. But some unpopular savings dropped out of the tax bill during last-minute efforts to round up votes. Other savings will come from Pentagon cuts in other legislation, and interest payments on the debt that will now be less than expected.

The bill would raise taxes by $137 billion, boosting the 9-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax by a nickel and raising levies on alcohol, tobacco, airline tickets and luxury items like yachts.

The 600,000 wealthiest Americans, who now pay a 28 percent income-tax rate, would enter the 31 percent bracket. The 4 million others who are almost as well-off — including couples earning between $80,000 and $160,000 — would see their rates drop from 33 percent to 31 percent.

Itemized deductions would be reduced by 3 percent for incomes above $100,000 yearly, and people earning more than that amount would face a phaseout of the $2,050 personal exemption.

The 1.45 percent Medicare payroll tax would be deducted from salaries up to $125,000, instead of the current $51,300 cap.

Medicare, serving 33 million elderly and handicapped people, would be cut $44 billion from the amount it was expected to reach by 1995. Beneficiaries would shoulder $10 billion of that cut; doctors and hospitals would bear the rest.

The $28.60 monthly Medicare premium beneficiaries pay for doctors' expenses would rise gradually to $46.50 by 1995. The $75 annual deductible for doctors' bills would grow to $100.

Medicaid, which helps the poor afford medical care, would be reduced by $600 million. But at the same time, there would be new spending for the low-income elderly and children, some coverage for mammograms and new restrictions on abuses by private health insurers of senior citizens.

The package also would reduce federal support payments for farmers, crack down on defaulters on student loans and tighten benefits for veterans.

The bill also contains:

- A $950 billion increase in the debt limit to $4.073 trillion, enough borrowing authority to carry the government through May 1993.
- $5.9 billion of tax breaks for businesses, such as for research, and for individuals, such as for those who get legal assistance from employers.
- $2.5 billion in tax advantages for oil and gas companies, won by Bentsen.
- New rules governing noise at airports.

Random thoughts while waiting for the start of basketball season (already?):

Before we shovel the last bit of dirt on the 1990 baseball season's grave, allow me just a few thoughts on the Great Cincinnati Upset.

Third and long

First, there have been ump-teen learned opinions from greater sports authorities than I on just how the Reds were able to smite the mighty Oakland Athletics in a four-game sweep. These masters of deduction have credited everything from the stars to Jose Canseco's aching middle finger on the A's demise.

A lot of these experts (including a certain sports editor who's editing this column) are of the opinion that the Reds' victory was all the more flukish because the A's were clearly the superior team during the regular season.

That may or may not be so, but it is rather insulting to a very good Cincinnati team to say that the A's lost the Series, rather than the Reds winning the thing.

The argument also overlooks what I think is the nicest thing about baseball: the short series. Granted, over a 162-game season, the Athletics might dominate Cincinnati, but in seven-game series, anything, as they say, is possible.

As Oakland pitcher Dave Stewart put it, if the Reds were in the A's division, they might not even make it to the World Series, but in the Series itself, the Reds flat outplayed the defending champs.

And has everybody forgotten just how the Reds got to the Series in the first place?

For starters, they did it by being the first team ever to lead their division during every day of the season. No team has ever accomplished that, not even the mighty 1927 New York Yankees.

Then, after leading their division wire-to-wire, they knocked off a fine Pittsburgh team to reach their rendezvous with the A's.

Granted, they weren't loaded with All-Stars like Oakland, but they didn't exactly arrive at the Series on the back of a turnip truck, either.

Chris Sabo, Barry Larkin, Jose Rijo, Eric Davis, Billy Hatcher, Danny Jackson, Rob Dibble... Now, there's a good core to build a world champion around.

And pulling this all this talent into a cohesive unit was an ex whipping boy of George Steinbrenner: Lou Piniella. People have said that all the Reds' talent was acquired while Pete Rose managed the squad, but the simple fact of the matter is that Cincinnati was known as a talented group of losers until Piniella arrived on the scene.

Another group nay-saying the Reds' accomplishment point to the fact that A's reached the Series on a down note: Their top slugger, Canseco, was hurting; and their next best home-run hitter, Mark McGwire, was in a horrific slump.

Again, this may be so, but Canseco, even with a bad back, hit 39 home runs this season, and Cincinnati's pitching still made him look bad on occasion. And McGwire never had a chance against the Reds.

Cincinnati won by getting a great Series from Larkin, an unbelievable Series from Hatcher, great starting pitching from Rijo and Jackson and the usual outstanding performances from the Nasty Boys — relievers Norm Charlton, Dibble and Randy Myers.

They also played sterling defense. All of these factors together, and they were simply better than the A's during that week in October.

Whether history will say the Reds were better than the A's is debatable. I feel fairly confident in predicting that sports experts will be debating that one for quite some time.

But what cannot be debated is this: While the Athletics may be a great team, the Reds are world champions.

Lady Steer harriers district champs

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Make it five-in-a-row. The Big Spring Lady Steers withstood a strong challenge from the San Angelo Lake View Maidens and won their fifth consecutive district country meet at the 3-4A meet here Saturday morning.

The regional meet will be Saturday at 10 a.m. at Mae Simmons Park in Lubbock. The top five individuals and top two teams qualified for regional.

It was an especially sweet win for Coach Randy Britton's troops, since they came into the meet with only five runners, two under the usual squad number. But the Lady Steers did what they had to do and nipped Lake View 27-30.

As expected in the boys race, defending champion San Angelo Lake View easily won the title. Coach Nat Sawyer's squad scored 18 points; Andrews finished a distant second with 47 and the Big Spring Steers were third with 76 points.

To win the girls title, Big Spring pulled off a one-two-three finish. Senior Mimi Regalado defended her crown by running a two-mile district course record of 13:18.68. Second was sophomore Elizabeth Lopez, who ran a personal best of 13:48.42, followed by senior Ericka Franks in 14:17.92.

Finishing ninth was Shawnda Wilson who ran a personal best of 15:22.78 and 12th was Rebekah Trent who ran a 15:55.77, also a personal best.

Things didn't look so well for the Lady Steers as the Lake View contingent raced to an early lead. But the Lady Steers gradually gained ground and by the one mile mark, had things well in hand.

Britton said he was a little worried at the start of the race. "I knew they (Lake View) would go out early, but it kind of scared me when that one girl tried to break the pack," said Britton. "We had talked about it and our goal was to finish one-two-three."

Regalado said she and her teammates followed their coach's advice. We knew they were going out fast, so we just wanted to stay behind them and let them break the wind," she said. "I took the lead about the first 800 (yard) mark, that's what I wanted to do."

"Franks said the rest of the Lady Steers followed Regalado's move. "When Mimi went, we all went with her. We knew we had to finish one, two and three, and we did just that," said Franks, who finished third at the district meet for the third straight year. Lopez said she didn't feel she had second place secured until late in the race. "I wasn't sure how far I was in front of her (Ericka), I just wanted to push her and myself," she said.

Sophomores Wilson and Trent both finished with strong kicks. "I really didn't have enough left. I just didn't have any energy," said Wilson. Trent knocked more than a minute off her previous best. "It feels good, it's my best time of the year: it was 17:09, I wanted to break 16 (minutes) and I ran 15:55."

The Lake View boys went one-two-three as senior Lewis Coburn edged out sophomore brother Jeff 16:21.11 to 16:22.82. Third was football player-runner Kevin Dumas, who ran a 16:42.32.

Coach Sawyer said the goal was a total Chief sweep, but the district crown is very satisfying. "We would like to have swept; shoot for the stars, but we knew Andrews had a couple of good runners. But we got a good effort today," said Sawyer.

Sawyer, who returns Lewis Coburn and Dumas from last year's team that finish second at the region meet, says he likes this team's chances this season. "We've won seven of eight meets this season. We've beaten everyone in the region. I think we've got the best team in the region."

The Steers best finish came from a surprising Kevin Stansel, who finished 10th. Stansel, who has just

Tragedy mars Breeder's Cup

NEW YORK (AP) — Brilliantly matching sunshine was eclipsed by tragedy Saturday on racing's biggest day in the Breeders' Cup at Belmont Park.

Meadow Star, the 2-year-old filly, glittered as her name suggests. Lester Piggott, the great English jockey, rode again — as masterfully as he has on many, many days in his career. Unbridled returned to his Kentucky Derby form to win the world's richest race — and did it without any medical aid.

Go for Wand died. So did Mr. Nickerson. That's what the seventh Breeders' Cup day will be remembered for.

Go for Wand, the brilliant 3-year-old filly, crashed to the ground while fighting off Bayakoa in a desperate bid for victory in the Distaff.

Mr. Nickerson collapsed and died on the first turn in the Sprint. Go for Wand shattered her right front ankle just a stride inside the sixteenth pole, falling and spilling jockey Randy Romero. Bayakoa charged on to victory, but most of the crowd of 51,236 was watching Go for Wand.

The filly struggled to her feet and staggered to the finish line. Just past the wire, she was wrestled to the ground by those trying to help her. Then she was humanely destroyed.

Hundreds of fans then left Belmont Park. "It's like my wife said," said Bayakoa's trainer, Ron McAnally, tears in his eyes. "They give their lives for our enjoyment. "I can't cope," he said in the winner's circle.

In talking about Meadow Star, his unbeaten 2-year-old filly who won the 1 1/16-mile Juvenile Fillies by five lengths, owner Carl Icahn said, "You don't get many like her, maybe once in a lifetime and maybe this is mine."

Go for Wand was 76-year-old Mrs. Jane Dupont Lunger's once-in-a-lifetime horse.

She finished her career and her life with 10 victories in 13 starts, seven in nine races this year. In 1989, she won the Breeders' Cup Juvenile Fillies and was 2-year-old champion.

The duel between Go for Wand and Bayakoa started at the break. Romero put Go for Wand on the lead and she was never more than a half-length in front of Bayakoa as they headed into the stretch.

The duel drew lots of cheers when it reached the stretch. Suddenly, the sound changed to one of shock. It was as if someone had hit the large crowd a collective blow in the stomach.

"It's the track," said Rose Badgett, the wife of and assistant to trainer Billy Badgett.

Trainer D. Wayne Lukas said: "This has to come under serious review. There is something wrong here. I am not a track superintendent, but too many horses are breaking down and not just Breeders' Cup horses."

"You can't blame the track," McAnally said. "The inside is the worst part of (any) track. Not because it is unsafe because it is a tough place... there are several factors involved in a horse breaking down."

The victory for Bayakoa, a 6-year-old mare, was her second straight in the 1 1/8-mile Distaff.

Mr. Nickerson apparently died of a heart attack. After he fell, Shaker Knit tumbled over him. Shaker Knit's jockey, Chris Antley, sustained a broken right collarbone, but Jose Santos, aboard Mr. Nickerson, returned to win the Juvenile Fillies on Meadow Star and the Juvenile on Fly So Free.

It was first believed Shaker Knit was not seriously hurt, but Dr. Albert Saer said later the horse had suffered "acute trauma of the spinal cord."

"There was no prognosis or time frame. We will have to make a decision. He is in shock and has lost his sense of balance," he said.

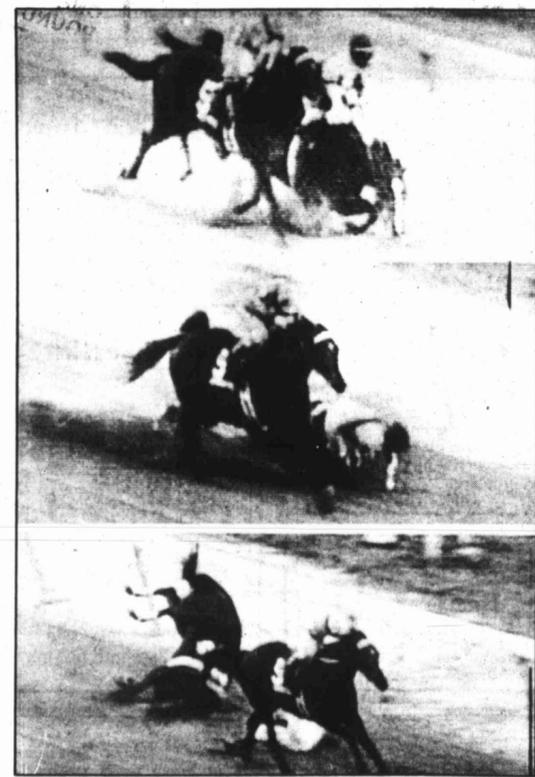

The dazzling sunshine may have done in European-bred Dayjur in the Sprint. In the stretch, he charged along the rail in a streak of sunshine, while the rest of the track was in shadow. Inside the sixteenth pole, it appeared Dayjur would beat the filly Safely Kept when 25 yards from the wire, he jumped a shadow.

That cost him as Safely Kept won the six-furlong race by a neck.

Jockey Willie Carson of Scotland said the colt had jumped a shadow in his previous race, but that time it didn't cost him a victory.

"I knew this horse had just one short run in him," Day said of Un-

Hey buddy, have I got a horse for you

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Psst. Hey, buddy. Yeah, you, with the tout sheet sticking out of your pocket.

Step over here for a minute. Have we got a deal for you.

Did you ever go to the racetrack and, after handicapping the horses and betting your two bucks, peek up into the owners' boxes?

Did you ever wonder what it would be like to sit up there with the fancy folks, dining on steak and champagne instead of hot dogs and beer?

Well listen up, pal. This could be your big chance to move up from railbird status to a more sophisticated level of thoroughbred racing.

This is your opportunity to buy a racehorse — or at least a piece of one.

Centennial Farms is looking for owners. The Boston-based thoroughbred investment management company picked Breeders' Cup week — when the blood of horseplayers runs a little hotter than normal anyway — to place ads in the Wall Street Journal and New York Times offering a piece of the action in the business of race horse investment.

"This provides a way to own thoroughbred yearlings," said Sara Cohen, executive director of Centennial, which maintains its training farm in Middleburg, Va. "For a modest amount of money — modest in this business, at least — an investor can own a horse without the hassles and headaches that ordinarily go along with it. We are a management company. We buy the horses and do all the bloodstock work."

Before you whip out your wallet, though, Cohen has a warning for you.

"This is a very high risk investment," she said. "We don't want people putting their children's college fund into this."

Typically, the minimum investment is $15,000. That would buy approximately a two percent share in a partnership that owns between four and six horses valued up to $1 million. "We pick the horses at the summer select yearling sales at Keeneland in July and Saratoga in August," Cohen said. "The best 500 horses bred in the country are available there. The average price is $300,000. Last summer, for example, we purchased four from $50,000 to $300,000."

The bloodlines of two of Centennial's 1990 purchases include Damascus, winner of the Preakness, Belmont and Wood Memorial. The other two have Kentucky Derby winner Northern Dancer in their family trees.

This is not an exact science, though. These are yearlings. Some will grow into champions, perhaps.

What Centennial is offering then is a ride on some untested thoroughbreds. The theory is that with sufficient capital, successful results can be achieved in the racing industry. By pooling moderate investment dollars from a number of people, the capital is achieved. The payoff is purse distribution and/or eventual sale and Centennial's track record is pretty good. "In 1988, we were the ninth leading owners of stakes winners in the country," Cohen said.

Since 1983, Centennial's horses have won or placed in 97 stakes races, two-thirds of them graded. To sell shares, the farm used its star attraction. The centerpiece of the newspaper ad is a picture of Centennial's Aptostar winning the 1988 Acorn Stakes, first leg of the filly triple tier. She was a $295,000 select sale yearling at Saratoga in 1986 and won over $530,000 in purses before being sold in 1989 for $750,000.

There are ups and downs in this business. Centennial's Topicount had been struggling. She was fifth in a Belmont allowance race when she came to an abrupt stop at the top of the stretch — hardly an endorsement for future performance.

Lady Steers finish win a victory

FORT STOCKTON — The Big Spring Lady Steers finished the volleyball season on the right foot, defeating the Fort Stockton Prowlers 15-11, 15-8 Saturday afternoon.

With the win, the Lady Steers finish the season with a 10-9 overall record and 7-5 league mark, good for third place.

Coach Lois Ann McKenzie said that Teveyan Russell, Marta Mathews, Kerry Burdette and Cassie Underwood all played a good match. "We just got it together a little bit too late. If this was played in halves, we would be sitting pretty," said McKenzie, indicating that Big Spring won five of its last six matches. "We've improved our record every year, and it's the first time the freshmen, junior varsity and varsity all had winning records. I'm real proud of the girls. I'm just disappointed for the seniors."

In junior varsity action, Big Spring won 15-8, 15-13, finishing the season with a 11-10 mark. The JV was 6-5 in league play. McKenzie said that Annie Rodriguez and Heather Farris played well in the match.

The freshmen Lady Steers lost 10-15, 15-8, 10-15, finishing the season with an 8-5 record. McKenzie said that Veronica Ovalle played a good match.

Longest HS win streak ends at 69

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The enemy's footsteps that Animas High School coach Bill Henson sensed four years ago finally caught up.

Lordsburg High School, Animas' only competitive neighbor in the desert of New Mexico's Hidalgo County, Friday night stopped Animas' 69-game winning streak — longest in the nation in prep football.

Lordsburg's 9-8 victory ended Animas' bid to break the all-time national record of 72 consecutive wins by East Hudson High of Michigan from 1968 through 1975.

The streak began in the first game of the 1985 season and during its 5½-year course produced a state record six Class AA state championships for Animas, a school that draws its student population from the surrounding farming, mining and ranching communities in the state's southwest corner.

A first-quarter 1-yard touchdown run by Lordsburg quarterback Louie Lazos and a 34-yard, third-quarter field goal by Robert Gandara gave the Mavericks the win over an Animas team that had outscored its first seven opponents this season by a combined margin of 286-28.

Animas got a 1-yard touchdown run by Robert Gomez with 6:40 left in the game. The Panthers then recovered an onside kick at midfield, but Lordsburg's defense twice sacked Animas quarterback Mark Davis.

Dolphins angry over broadcast

MIAMI (AP) — Miami Dolphins coach Don Shula, team president Tim Robbie and several players' wives are angry over a local television broadcast that showed nude and semi-nude players in the locker room after a game.

WSVN-TV aired a story Wednesday night showing the Dolphins postgame locker room from a female reporter's viewpoint after an Oct. 18 NFL game against the New England Patriots.

The tape showed several players milling around nude before and after showering. The station opaque the players' private parts, although legs, torso and arms were exposed.

One player — cornerback Tim McKyer — was shown from head to toe wearing nothing but a jockstrap. No opaque was used on McKyer.

"If they had told me they were using a long shot, I would have grabbed a towel or something to cover up. Now my phone has been ringing off the hook with women calling me," McKyer said.

Baylor Bears upend No. 24 Horned Frogs

FORT WORTH (AP) — J.J. Joe's 78-yard scoring pass and two interceptions propelled Baylor to a 27-21 victory over Texas Christian, on Saturday, knocking the 24th-ranked Horned Frogs from the Southwest Conference lead and ending their surprising five-game winning streak.

The loss dropped the Frogs to 3-1 in SWC play and 5-2 for the season while the Bears kept alive their slim title hopes at 3-1-1. They are 4-3-1 for the year.

The Frogs, trailing by 11 points in the final quarter, pulled within three with 8:13 left but their comeback was cut short by a pair of interceptions, the first by Charles Bell with 3:43 remaining.

Bell picked off Leon Clay's pass at the Baylor 44 and returned it to the 22, setting up a 36-yard field goal by Jeff Ireland.

With just over two minutes left, Clay passed TCU out to midfield, but a fourth-down desperation pass was picked off by Michael McFarland at the Baylor 29.

Joe rifled a first-quarter pass to the TCU 30, where Melvin Bonner wrestled the ball from Frog defender Greg Evans and raced untouched to the goal on a 78-yard play from which the favored Frogs never recovered.

Joe waltzed five yards untouched to cap an early 74-yard scoring drive but TCU kept within striking distance on field goals of 44 and 41 yards by Jeff Wilkinson. The Frogs made it 14-13 on a 3-yard pass from Clay to Stephen Shipley that capped a 55-yard march in the second quarter.

LUBBOCK — University of Miami Hurricanes fullback Alex Johnson (21) is tackled on the two-year line by Texas Tech University Red Raiders safety David McFarland (21) during second quarter action in Saturday's game at Jones Stadium. Miami beat Texas Tech in non-conference action.

No. 13 Texas 52, Southern Methodist 3

AUSTIN (AP) — Alex Waits buried Southern Methodist with his long punts until the Texas offense started to move as the 13th-ranked Longhorns routed the Mustangs 52-3 on Saturday.

Texas, a Cotton Bowl contender, remained undefeated in the Southwest Conference at 3-0 and improved to 5-1 overall. But the Longhorns showed little of the emotion they had in back-to-back victories over Oklahoma and Arkansas. SMU dropped to 1-6 overall, 0-4 conference.

Waits, a senior ranked eighth nationally with a 43.5-yard punting average, pushed Southern Methodist to its own 6 with a 64-yard punt in the first quarter, and also had punts downed at the SMU 3 and 7 in the first half as Texas grabbed a 17-0 lead. Waits punted six times for a 46-yard average.

Texas, with great field position, scored on Michael Pollak's 23-yard field goal with 5:14 left in the first quarter and added rushing touchdowns of 7 yards by Butch Hadnot and 1 yard by Adrian Walker in the second period.

No. 8 Miami 45, Texas Tech 10

LUBBOCK (AP) — Craig Erickson threw for four touchdowns and Miami's defense had 10 sacks to lead the No. 8 Hurricanes to a 45-10 walkover against Texas Tech on Saturday.

The Hurricanes (5-2) bounced back after a loss to Notre Dame last week, moving the ball effortlessly against the outmanned Red Raiders (2-6) for 563 yards. Miami silenced an overflow crowd of 50,028 and impressed scouts from the Citrus, Fiesta and Cotton Bowls. Miami's swarming defense, ranked eighth in the country against the rush, allowed Tech only 93 yards, holding the Red Raiders to 41 yards on 44 plays through three quarters.

Tech had only 13 yards in the first quarter.

No. 6 Houston 62, Arkansas 28

HOUSTON (AP) — David Klingler passed for 457 yards and a career-high seven touchdowns and No. 6 Houston scored 38 consecutive points to rout Arkansas 62-28 Saturday, extending the Razorbacks' losing streak to four games.

Houston (7-0 overall, 6-0 Southwest Conference) stretched its winning streak to 11, longest in the nation. Arkansas (2-5, 0-4), is off to its worst start since 1958, when it opened with six losses.

During the losing streak, the Razorbacks have been outscored 214-115. The 62 points were the most ever scored against Arkansas in an SWC game, topping the 60 by Baylor in 1922.

Klingler tied the school record set last year against Temple by Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware. His passing yardage was four short of his career high, established last week against Southern Methodist.

Klingler threw touchdown passes of 15 and 4 yards to Tracy Good, 42 to Marcus Grant, 26 to Patrick Cooper, 25 to Verlon Brown, 24 to Craig Alexander and 14 to Chuck Weatherspoon.

Klingler, who set NCAA records for completions and attempts with a 48-of-76 performance against SMU, connected on 34 of 51 with three interceptions against Arkansas. The junior has thrown for more than 400 yards in six of seven games this season. The Cougars, who lead the nation in passing, trailed 14-7 after the first quarter before exploding for 38 straight points. After Roman Anderson kicked a 22-yard field goal for Houston, Klingler threw five consecutive TD passes.

Texas A&M 41, Rice 15

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Kevin Smith returned interceptions 35 and 78 yards for touchdowns and Darren Lewis became the Southwest Conference's career leading rusher on Saturday as Texas A&M rolled to a 41-15 victory over the Rice Owls.

The Aggies increased their overall record to 5-2-1 and stayed alive in the SWC race at 2-1-1. Rice dropped to 3-5 and 1-4.

Lewis rushed 25 times for 176 yards to take the SWC career rushing lead at 4,453 yards.

season, finished 14th, running a 18:11.15. He wasn't happy with his performance. "I didn't run good. My arms got tired and I couldn't do anything with them. Anytime that happens I can't concentrate on the race."

Britton said this Lady Steers district championship was perhaps the sweetest. "This was the toughest one simply because we had only five people, if we tied, we wouldn't've lost. It was real close, a little closer than I would've liked."

Regalado summed up the feeling of the Lady Steers. "We wanted Coach Britton to be proud of us, we wanted him to be happy."

No doubt Britton is smiling all the way to the trophy case with bridled. And the jockey waited patiently to give Unbridled the right chance to make that run.

The 3-year-old colt, who had won only once in five previous races since the Derby and who was 12th with a half-mile to go and ninth with a quarter-mile to go, charged down the middle of the stretch. He shot between Ibn Bey and Thirty Six Red battling for the lead and won the Classic by a length over Ibn Bey.

When Unbridled, owned by 92-year-old Frances Genter, visited Belmont Park in June, he finished fourth in the Belmont Stakes. Critics were quick to note that the absence of Lasix, for horses that suffer pulmonary bleeding, made Unbridled less of a horse than he is while on the medication.

New York does not allow racing on medication.

"I don't want to be egotistical, but I always had a lot of faith in this horse," trainer Carl Nafzger said. "He was not muscularly fit in the Belmont. He just got beat. Lasix had nothing to do with it."

The trainer looked like a man who knew the old adage "he who laughs last, laughs loudest."

Asked if the surprising victory should make his colt Horse of the Year, he just laughed, then raised one finger.

"This is a marvelous day," said Piggott, who just returned to racing recently.

The jockey, who has won most of the major races in the world, including nine English Derbys, made news when he was convicted of income tax evasion and served one year and one day in prison before being released in October 1988.

Piggott took Royal Academy, starting from the No. 1 post, back to last shortly after the break, then brought him around horses to win the Mile on the turf over Itsallegrektome.

Fly So Free took command of the 1 1/16th-mile Juvenile with 5-16ths of a mile remaining and beat Take Me Out by three lengths

In the 1½-mile Turf, it appeared 1989 Canadian Triple Crown winner With Approval was headed for victory. But, in a cavalry-charge finish, Gary Stevens put In The Wings on the lead near the wire for a one-half length win over the Canadian-bred.

It was a bad day for Lukas, who had 10 victories and earnings of $7,888 million on six previous Breeders' Cup days. He sent out six starters in five races and the best he could do was a fourth by 7-year-old Steinlen in the Mile, a race the horse won in 1989.

Santos' double victory day also included a second on Colonial Waters in the Distaff and fourth-place finishes on Steinlen and Alwuhush in the Turf. Santos now has five Breeders' Cup winners, as does Day and Laffit Pincay, who won with Bayakoa on Saturday.

The Classic victory, in 2:02 1/5, was worth $15.20 to win and a purse of $1.35 million for Unbridled's owner.

In The Wings closed from third place with a quarter-mile remaining in the 1½-mile Turf for a half-length victory over With Approval, who was 1½ lengths in front of El Senor. Saumarez, owned by hockey star Wayne Gretzky and winner of the Arc de Triomphe, was fifth.

The unbeaten Meadow Star broke from the No. 10 post in the 12-horse Juvenile Fillies and Santos kept her on the outside because "I was taking no chances."

Meadow Star moved into contention on the turn and flew past Dance Smartly at the top of the stretch, and the race was over.

"She has so much class that she beats them even though she was tired," Santos said following Meadow Star's five-length win over Private Treasure, who was one length in front of Dance Smartly.

Meadow Star carried scale weight of 119 pounds over 1 1/16th miles in 1:44 and paid $2.40 to win. Her seventh victory was worth $450,000, which will go to the Children's Rescue Fund for homeless children, founded by the filly's owner, Carl Icahn.

The Sprint victory, which paid a winning mutuel of $26.40 and was worth $450,000 for Safety Kept, was the second in the Sprint and third in a Breeders' Cup race for jockey Craig Perret.

Drive carefully.

Blocked point makes difference for Auburn

By The Associated Press
 At Starkville, a blocked extra point by Darrel Crawford with 2:33 left in the game proved to be the difference as Auburn edged Mississippi State, 17-16.

Mississippi State (3-4), which has lost 10 straight conference games dating back to 1988, pulled within one point in the fourth quarter when senior David Fair scored on a two-yard run. But Crawford, a junior linebacker, batted the low kick by MSU's Joel Logan to the ground, preserving the victory for Auburn (6-0-1).

No. 4 Nebraska 45, Iowa St. 13
 Leodis Flowers rushed for a career-high 208 yards and scored three touchdowns, leading a big-play offense that carried Nebraska over Iowa State.

Iowa State, coming off a 33-31 upset of Oklahoma, couldn't handle Nebraska's running game, which amassed 557 yards. The Cornhuskers (8-0 overall, 4-0 Big Eight), also contained Iowa State quarterback Chris Pedersen, who had been effective running against Oklahoma.

No. 5 Illinois 21, Wisconsin 3
 Jason Verdusco passed for two touchdowns to lead Illinois past Wisconsin 21-3. Turnovers hampered the heavily favored Illinois, who improved their record to 6-1 overall and 4-0 in the Big Ten. Wisconsin dropped to 1-6 and 0-4 before a crowd of 67,746.

No. 10 Colorado 32, No. 22 Oklahoma 23
 Eric Bieniemy bolted 69 yards for a third-quarter touchdown, and Darian Hagan passed 85 yards to Rico Smith for a fourth-quarter TD as Colorado beat fading Oklahoma.

It was the sixth straight victory for the Buffaloes (7-1-1 overall, 4-0 Big Eight), while No. 22 Oklahoma (5-3, 2-2) lost three straight for the first time in 25 years.

No. 12 Florida St. 42, LSU 3
 Amp Lee scored three touchdowns as Florida State defeated Louisiana State, giving coach Bobby Bowden his 200th career coaching victory.

Bowden's victory celebration was marred by a bench-clearing free-for-all after Florida State was flagged for a late hit on the game's final play. Coaches and stadium authorities moved in to separate the players.

No. 15 Iowa 56, Northwestern 14
 Matt Rodgers threw for two first-half touchdowns and Nick Bell scored three times before halftime, leading Iowa over Northwestern.

The victory by Iowa (6-1 overall, 4-0 Big Ten) set up a showdown next Saturday at No. 5 Illinois, which retained a share of the conference lead by beating Wisconsin. Northwestern (2-5, 1-3) dropped its 17th straight game to the Hawkeys. The Wildcats haven't won in Iowa City since 1971.

No. 16 Georgia Tech 48, Duke 31
 Kevin Tisdell returned a kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown and Jeff Wright set up another with a 52-yard kickoff return as Georgia Tech beat Duke.

William Bell rushed for 166 yards and one touchdown and Shawn Jones and Stefan Scotton each scored two as the Yellow Jackets set up a first-place ACC showdown with unbeaten, top-ranked Virginia next Saturday.

It was the 11th consecutive home-field victory for Tech (6-0-1 overall, 4-0-1 ACC) and extended its unbeaten streak to 11 games since losing to Duke for the third year in a row, 30-19, last year.

No. 19 Clemson 24, Wake Forest 6
 Freshman tailback Ronald Williams rushed for 75 yards and a touchdown and the Clemson defense sacked Phil Barnhill eight times as the Tigers beat Wake Forest.

The Tigers (7-2 overall, 4-2 ACC) won the school's 500th football victory and beat the Demon Deacons (2-6, 0-5) for the 14th straight time.

DeChane Cameron completed 10 of 15 passes for 111 yards while the Clemson defense, the top-ranked unit in the ACC, held Wake Forest to two field goals and 200 yards.

No. 9 Brigham Young 55, New Mexico 31
 PROVO, Utah (AP) — Ty Detmer passed for five touchdowns, three to Micah Matsuzaki, as ninth-ranked Brigham Young swamped New Mexico 55-31 in the Western Athletic Conference on Saturday.

Before leaving late in the third quarter, Detmer completed 26 of 41 passes for 464 yards with two interceptions for BYU (6-1 overall, 4-0 WAC).

New Mexico (2-7, 1-3) got a big day from its own passer, Jeremy Leach, who had the Lobos in a 21-21 tie in the second quarter. He completed 22 of 40 passes for 293 yards and four touchdowns, two to Mike Henderson.

Leach was intercepted three times by BYU's Derwin Gray, who returned one for a touchdown.

Detmer drove the Cougars 79 yards in eight plays late in the second period for the go-ahead touchdown, which came on a 4-yard pass to Matsuzaki.

Gray picked off a tipped Leach pass at the New Mexico 17 and ran it back for the score that put the Cougars safely ahead at 35-21.

Keith Lever's 44-yard field goal with one second left increased the margin to 17 at halftime.

BYU turned the game into a romp early in the third quarter when Detmer threw an 18-yard scoring pass to Andy Boyce. Boyce, who caught nine passes for 235 yards and two TDs, also had a 24-yard reception to set up Detmer's 14-yard touchdown to Matsuzaki.

Earl Kauffman added a 38-yard field goal as the Cougars outscored the Lobos 17-3 in the third quarter. New Mexico countered only with David Margolis' 39-yard field goal.

New Mexico led 7-0 on Leach's 6-yard pass to Eric Morgan at the end of a 67-yard drive. Leach's other first-half TD passes were five and nine yards to Henderson.

Detmer had a hand in the other three BYU scores before halftime, throws of 15 yards to Matsuzaki and 53 to Boyce, and a 7-yard bootleg run.

Tulsa 35, New Mexico St. 10
 LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Mark Brus rushed for a school-record 312 yards and scored three touchdowns Saturday as Tulsa snapped a six-game losing streak with a 35-10 victory over New Mexico State.

Brus, a senior tailback who entered the game with only 111 yards for the season, scored on runs of 29, 9 and 67 yards as the Golden Hurricane extended New Mexico State's losing streak to 25 games, the nation's longest.

Tulsa improved its record to 2-7 for the season and the Aggies dropped to 0-8.

Tulsa took a 21-7 halftime lead with all of its scoring drives starting inside the Aggie 35.

Halfback Frank Cassano scored the first touchdown on a 25-yard pass from halfback Chris Hughley. Cassano caught the pass, fumbled the ball into the end zone and then recovered it for the score.

Brus added his final TD on a 67-yard draw play up the middle with 9:48 left to play. Brus broke the Tulsa record of 250 yards rushing in a single game, set in 1952 by Howard Waugh.

Oklahoma St. 48, Missouri 28
 STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Gerald Hudson ran for a career-high 255 yards and three touchdowns, and the usually sluggish Oklahoma State offense came alive Saturday in the Cowboys' 48-28 Big Eight Conference victory over Missouri.

Oklahoma State (3-5 overall, 1-3 in the league) came in ranked last in the conference in scoring and total offense. But the Cowboys compiled 521 yards in their biggest scoring show since a 62-14 victory over Wyoming in the 1988 Holiday Bowl.

Missouri dropped to 3-5 and 1-3, despite 130 yards rushing and two touchdowns by fullback Michael Jones. It was the first 100-yard rushing day this season for the Tigers, whose 109-yard rushing average was last in the league.

Hudson's 2-yard run with 6:24 remaining and the ensuing two-point conversion made the score 41-28 and finally gave Oklahoma State a comfortable cushion. He added a 58-yarder with 1:49 to play to put the game out of reach and give him 1,109 yards for the season.

Kenny Ford gave the Cowboys the lead for good, 17-14, with a 3-yard option keeper midway through the second quarter. Then after the second of Mike Clark's two interceptions, the Cowboys drove 53 yards for another touchdown to take a 24-14 halftime lead.

Ford, making his second career start, ran for 96 yards and threw for 112.

Kansas 27, Kansas St. 24
 LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Chip Hilleary passed for a career-best 221 yards and led the Kansas Jayhawks with 102 yards rushing and Dan Eichloff kicked a school record 58-yard field goal as Kansas held on for a 27-24 win Saturday in the annual matchup of the two old rivals.

Kansas State (4-4 overall and 1-3 in the Big Eight) had rallied for two fourth quarter touchdowns when Hilleary broke a 40-yard run on third down and three at the Kansas 32.

The Wildcats had no time outs left and could only watch as Kansas (2-5-1, 1-2-1) ran out the remaining four minutes.

Yale 27, Penn 10
 PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Darin Kehler threw for 128 yards and ran for 54 and a touchdown Saturday to lead Yale to its first Ivy League victory in Philadelphia since 1980, 27-10 over Penn.

Kehler's 5-yard touchdown run gave Yale (4-3, 3-1) a 21-7 lead at halftime. Yale gained 260 yards total offense in the first half while holding Penn (2-5, 2-2) to 149. Yale ended with 340 and Penn with 294.

Becker gets another shot at Edberg

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Top-ranked Stefan Edberg overcame a shaky start to beat Alexander Volkov 7-6, 6-2 Saturday, setting up a dream final against No. 2 Boris Becker in the Stockholm Open.

Becker reached Sunday's final with a 6-4, 6-4 victory over U.S. Open champion Pete Sampras.

Edberg struggled with his serve-and-volley game early in the semifinal and had to rally from a 2-5 deficit in the opening set. He won the tiebreak 7-4, acing the unseeded Soviet on the final point.

"I have to serve well to play good tennis, but I had big problems early," Edberg said. "I picked up after breaking him for 4-5."

That gave the Swede the confidence he needed. After taking the tiebreaker, Edberg broke Volkov with a backhand passing shot for a 3-1 lead in the second set and held easily the rest of the way.

Three foot-faults were called against Edberg during the match. "I probably had a few more. I'm so clumsy," he joked.

The victory avenged a first-round setback to Volkov in the U.S. Open, just two months after Edberg won the Wimbledon final over Becker.

Becker has a 2-1 edge over Edberg in three matches this year, the German winning a semifinal at Queens Club before Wimbledon and the final at the Sydney Indoors this month.

"It will be fun to play Boris," Edberg said. "He's playing very well, so I'll have to serve better from the start to stand a chance."

Becker, winner of the Stockholm Open in 1988, broke serve once in each set in beating the fourth-seeded Sampras.

Becker's third consecutive straight-set victory in the $1.1 million tournament improved his indoor record to 24-1 for the year and 77-5 in the past three years.

"I cannot play much better," he said. "I think I'm in the same kind of form as in the Davis Cup final last year."

Becker crushed Edberg and Mats Wilander indoors at Stuttgart, Germany, last December, leading West Germany to victory over Sweden.

Sampras said Becker's experience gave him an edge.

"The difference between Boris and myself is that when it comes to crunch time, to a break point, he's going to get his first serve in at 120 miles per hour while I'm going to miss it," Sampras said.

That's what happened in the first set when I double-faulted on a break point. That cost me the set. He's more experienced. He's been in these situations much more."

Becker set up his first break point with sharp service returns,

Down 30-40, Sampras then double-faulted, giving Becker a 3-2 lead.

The 19-year-old Californian had two chances to break back to 5-5. "But he served well and there was nothing I could do," he said.

"His serve was very difficult to read," Sampras said. "I had no idea where it was going."

Playing Becker for the first time was about what Sampras expected. "I knew it would be a very hard-hitting match and it was," Sampras said.

"Boris... played unbelievably well today."

Becker broke Sampras' serve in the ninth game of the second set to lead 5-4 as the American netted a low backhand volley. He moved to match point with an ace and Sampras then returned wide as the German came up to the net on his first serve.

Becker, who connected on 65 percent of his first serves, had eight aces and 18 service winners in the match.

"Sampras is a good player," Becker said. "He has nice strokes and a good serve. He has the potential to be there for more than just a year."

"But he still has a way to go..." Sunday, Becker will seek his fifth tournament victory of the year. A three-time Wimbledon and one-time U.S. Open champion, he did not win any Grand Slam titles this year.

This was Sampras' first tournament since beating Ivan Lendl, John McEnroe and Andre Agassi en route to the U.S. Open title Sept. 9. He was sidelined three weeks because of shin splints and only played a few exhibitions after the U.S. Open.

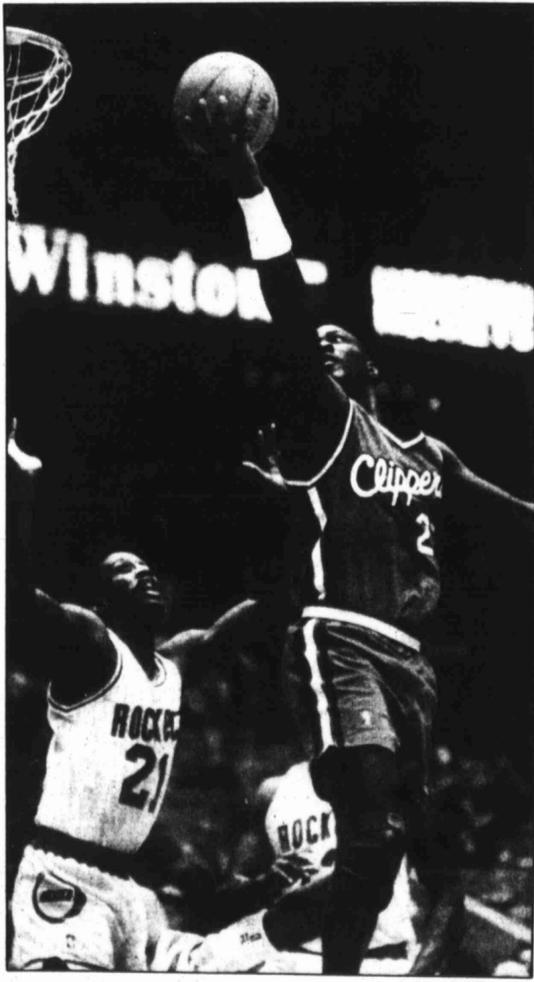

"I played three pretty good, tight matches in Stockholm," Sampras said. "It was good for me. I feel confident and I'm ready for my next tournament."

American final in Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Second-seeded Jennifer Capriati used an overpowering baseline game to oust No. 6 Gigi Fernandez, 6-2, 6-1 Saturday in the semifinals of the $150,000 Puerto Rico Open.

Top-seeded Zina Garrison also advanced to the final with a 6-4, 6-4 victory over Carrie Cunningham to set up a Capriati-Garrison final Sunday.

With the win, Capriati moves closer to her first tournament victory since turning professional last March.

Going to the hoop

HOUSTON — Los Angeles Clippers Gary Grant (23) drives the lane and leans back to attempt a finger roll at the hoop in second quarter action Friday night. Houston Rockets Eric "Sleepy" Floyd (21) can do little but watch the move to the basket. Houston won the game 94-93.

Owner hurts injured player's feelings

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds outfielder Eric Davis is still in pain, not only from a kidney injury suffered during the World Series, but from being snubbed by club president Marge Schott.

Davis returned home on a rented plane Friday night from Oakland, where he had been hospitalized since bruising and puncturing his right kidney while diving to make a catch in the final game of the World Series. The Reds won the game over the Oakland Athletics 2-1, completing a Series sweep.

When Davis stepped off the private jet, he grimaced in pain, then flashed a thumbs-up sign to the media before boarding an ambulance for Christ Hospital.

But at a news conference at the hospital, Davis complained that Schott "put forth no caring or effort" during his six days in Merritt Peralta Medical Center in Oakland and failed to return his phone calls to discuss his condition. He also said that Schott forced him to rent a plane to make the flight home.

"If I were a dog, I would have gotten more care, and that's the truth," he said.

"Marge hasn't called me. (General manager) Bob Quinn hasn't called me. I got phone calls from (National League president) Bill White and Jesse Jackson. That's the only down thing I feel now. I didn't get support I needed from my management."

Schott told The Cincinnati Post she was out of town on business Thursday and could not return

Davis' call. She said his transportation was a matter to be settled by Quinn and Davis' agent.

Asked earlier in the day whether the team was paying for Davis' transportation, Quinn said, "We fulfilled our obligations."

Davis' physician, Dr. Steve Spreen, said the flight did not appear to have caused any medical problems, according to Reds spokesman Jon Braude. Davis was checked into a private room at the hospital.

Pro Picks

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are touts and there are touts.

Like the guy who once picked the Giants to beat the Cardinals, then in St. Louis, "because New York is 6-0 against the spread in road games east of the Rockies the week after they fail to cover at home."

The Giants won and covered. On the other hand, there is the law of averages, which applies this week to the Giants and Redskins.

If you're like the above-cited tout, you have to like the Giants, who are favored by 3½ points.

Not only have they won five straight and eight of nine from Washington, including a 24-20 decision at RFK Stadium two weeks ago, but except for a win by a 1987 replacement team, the Redskins have lost six straight in the Meadowlands dating back to 1983.

Moreover, of the nine two-game season series completed in the NFL this year, the team that won the first game has also won the second.

On the other hand, there is something called the law of averages.

It says:

a. The 6-0 Giants almost lost last week and are due to lose.

b. New York's five straight against Washington are by a total of 18 points.

c. The Redskins probably outplayed the Giants in three of their five straight losses, including the game two weeks ago.

'Skins hoping to end Giants mastery

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Someone asked Joe Gibbs this week about the possibility that the New York Giants may use a 4-3 defense against him Sunday rather than their standard 3-4.

"We've seen it from them before," he replied. "We've seen everything from them before."

From Washington's standpoint, that's unfortunate.

Including a 24-20 New York win in Washington two weeks ago, the Giants have won five straight over the Redskins and 10 of the last 12 non-strike games. Nor have the Redskins won in Giants Stadium since 1983, when New York was 3-12-1 — except for a strike replacement fiasco in 1987.

This week means survival for Washington, which is 4-2 and trails the 6-0 Giants by two games in the NFC East. A loss and they're effectively four games behind — three games plus the tiebreaker and are most likely playing the rest of the season for a wild-card spot.

"We know exactly what we face," Gibbs said. "It's a chance to be 5-2 and a game behind the Giants or we'll be three back."

Despite the lopsided nature of the series, the games are anything but that. The Giants' five straight wins were by a total of 18 points and most have been decided by an odd bounce here and there, like the punt that rolled off a Redskins' foot in the first game and was recovered by the Giants at the Washington 1.

Is that what we get again? "Who knows," said coach Bill Parcells of the Giants, who gets Phil Simms back at quarterback after a sprained ankle caused him to miss three quarters of last week's last-second 20-19 win over Phoenix.

"Maybe it could be a blowout... But yeah... I'd bet it will be another of those games."

In other games Sunday, Buffalo is at New England, Detroit at New Orleans, Miami at Indianapolis, Minnesota plays Green Bay at Milwaukee, the New York Jets are at Houston, Philadelphia at Dallas, Chicago at Phoenix, Cleveland at San Francisco, Tampa Bay at San Diego and Cincinnati at Atlanta.

The Los Angeles Rams are at Pittsburgh Monday night.

Denver, the Los Angeles Raiders, Kansas City and Seattle are off.

Cincinnati (5-2) at Atlanta (2-4)
Sam Wyche can't avoid it.

Whoever he goes there's a storm, even to Atlanta, which at last glance hardly had a bitter rivalry with Cincinnati.

Enter Jerry Glanville, still seething over a 61-7 beating a year ago administered by Wyche to the Oilers, then Glanville's team. Plus various other insults and slanders during their AFC Central rivalry.

Wyche, meanwhile, still is taking donations to pay the $27,000 fine levied by commissioner Paul Tagliabue for barring a woman reporter from his locker room.

All of which makes a sideshow of the on-field doings, the last of a five-game road trip for the Bengals. A win would put them in great shape, with six of their final eight games at home.

"They both have a lot of peripheral stuff going on," Cincinnati quarterback Boomer Esiason said of the two coaches. "Sam's got the locker room issue and Jerry thinks Elvis is alive."

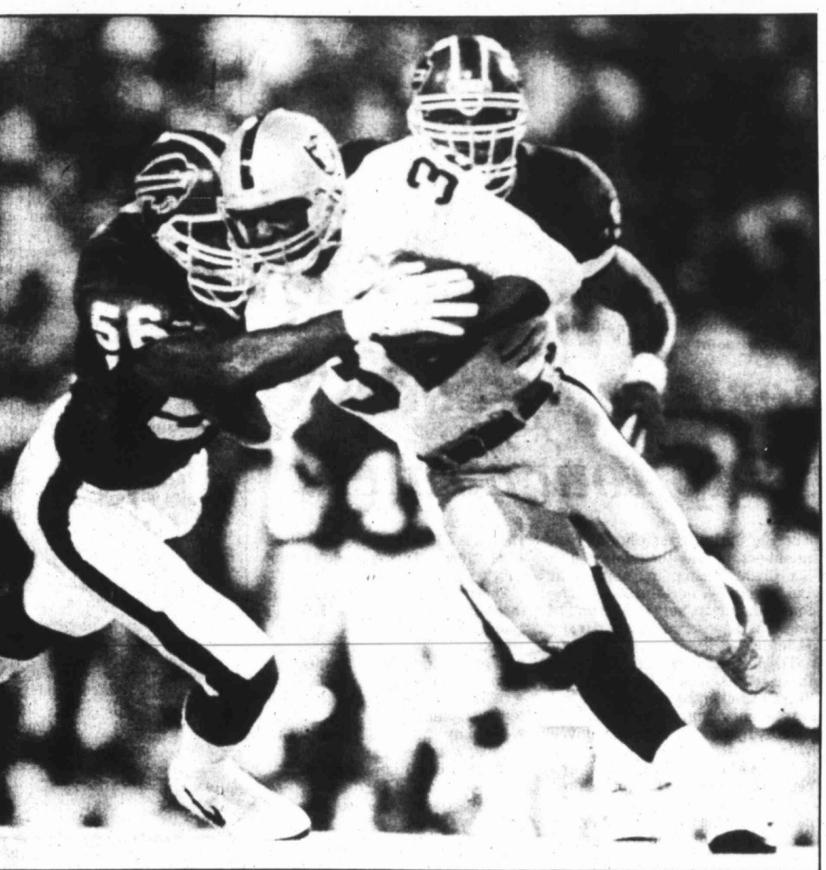

"Sometimes I think they really like each other. Maybe they're a little alike. The only difference is that Jerry wears a cowboy hat and boots and Sam wears a baseball hat and sneakers."

Philadelphia (2-4) at Dallas (3-4)
Speaking of sideshows.

This is a replay of the "Bounty Bowl" of last year, when Buddy Ryan allegedly put a bounty on Luis Zendejas, then the kicker for the Cowboys. Ryan and Jimmy Johnson exchanged insults afterward and Johnson was pelted with snowballs during the replay in Philadelphia.

Did Ryan fear Johnson would be out to put the heat on this week?

"Heat has to be put on yourself," Ryan said. "Jimmy Johnson will have a hard time putting any heat on me."

Los Angeles Raiders running back Marcus Allen runs out of running space as Buffalo Bills linebacker Darryl Talley makes a tackle in a game earlier this season.

Ryan may have to pay more attention to the improved Cowboys, who have already tripled their win total of 1989 and would be in the playoffs if they started this week. That's where Ryan wants to be. The 13-7 loss at Washington last week just about knocked them out of a shot at the division title.

(Cleveland (2-5) at San Francisco (6-0)

If only...

Only if the Browns could have gotten by Denver a time or two, they might have met the 49ers under happier circumstances, like in New Orleans, Miami, Pasadena, etc.

Now it seems only a matter of time before the Browns' slide costs coach Bud Carson his job. "There has already been too much speculation," said owner Art Modell, which is hardly a vote of confidence.

"It takes away from my preparation," Carson said. "But that's something you're going to get if you lose. That's an extra burden you have to carry and you have to overcome. Nothing good happens with losing."

Quarterback Joe Montana has a sore finger, but he'll play for the 49ers, although running back Roger Craig may miss his third straight game and wide receiver John Taylor could be out. But there's an embarrassment of riches here. Dexter Carter carried 18 times for 90 yards in Craig's place last week and Mike Sherrard replaced Taylor and caught a TD pass.

Los Angeles Rams (2-4) at Pittsburgh (3-4) (Monday night)

John Robinson, who saw no hope for the Rams a week ago, has been energized by the 44-24 win over Atlanta that left Los Angeles only a half-game out of a playoff spot.

"We've just crawled out of our hole and are wiping the dirt off our face," he said.

The Steelers won't be easy. They gave San Francisco a tough game for 2½ quarters last week until Barry Foster inexplicably let a kickoff drop on his 5-yard line and gave the 49ers a chance to break open the game. Still, after nine touchdowns in two games, the offense needs a jump start again.

Jets trying to find a way to win

HOUSTON (AP) — Bruce Coslet could write a book about losing games in the closing minutes.

The Jets have lost three times this season after taking leads into the fourth quarter and Coslet hopes he doesn't get more material for another losing chapter Sunday when his rookie-laden New York Jets play the Houston Oilers in the Astrodome.

"We got all the way down to 19 seconds before we lost this last time," Coslet said, referring to Sunday's 30-27 loss to Buffalo. "Something different happens every game to us. We had Cincinnati, Miami and Buffalo on the ropes and just couldn't put them away."

The Jets (2-5) have a three-game losing streak coming in against the Oilers (4-3) who have won four of their last five games since starting the season 0-2.

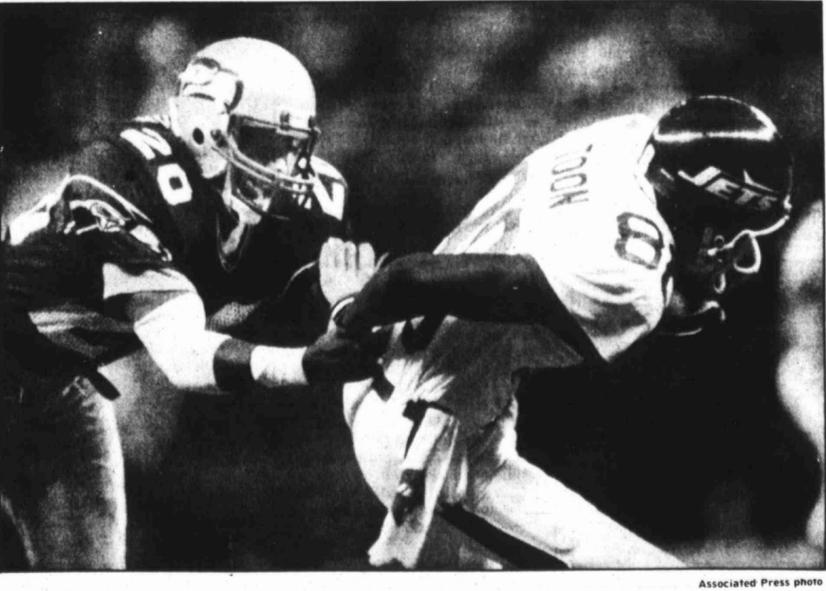

Are the Jets wilting in the fourth quarter because there are 14 rookies on the team? Is it because there is a complete new coaching staff? Is it because there is a new offensive and defensive system?

"(Youth) That's a contributing factor, we're green as grass," Coslet said. "Plus, we've got a brand new staff, a new system, that type of thing."

That's all part of it but there's no one reason.

Miami beat the Jets 20-17 in the final 1:03. Last week, Buffalo rallied to a 30-27 victory with 19 seconds left on the clock. Cincinnati established the trend in the season opener, erasing a fourth quarter deficit for a 25-20 victory.

"We emphasize it and talk about it but there's not much physically you can do about it," Coslet said. "It boils down to the fact that somebody has to make a play, a tackle on special teams, a sack or a touchdown instead of a field goal. That person hasn't stepped forward."

The Jets' rookies include starters Blair Thomas and supplemental draft pick Rob Moore and cornerback Tony Stargell.

Coslet doesn't have the luxury of allowing the rookies to season before throwing them into the NFL.

"We're not that deep so we have to use all of our young players and they've had their ups and down," Coslet said. "You throw them into championship play and it's tough. You double that with the new system and it's very tough."

At least Thomas and Moore can share the glitter that goes with being a top draft pick in New York.

"Blair has done everything we've asked of him," Coslet said. "He came in late and now he's starting to develop. He's just now getting over his training camp period."

Thomas is the Jets' leading rusher with 290 yards on 62 carries and he's caught 8 passes for 103 yards. Moore leads the receivers with 23 catches for 380 yards and two touchdowns. He's the top rookie receiver in the AFC.

Thomas is glad he's playing his first year.

"The only way you can get experience is to get out there and contribute as much as possible," Thomas said. "I think the first year is the best year to learn. You learn so much more than being over on the sidelines."

The Jets will be going against the No. 6-ranked defense in the NFL and the Oilers are No. 3 in offense. The Jets rank 11th in offense and 21st in defense. Ken O'Brien is the fifth-ranked passer in the AFC.

Miami (5-1) at Indianapolis (2-4)
Someone should tell the Indy boobbirds that 55 yards in 9 carries for Eric Dickerson after missing six games and all of training camp isn't bad. Sunday, Dickerson is facing the NFL's second-best rushing defense — one that's had a 10-day rest.

Jeff George's strained abdomen is healed, but Jack Trudeau, who has the Colts' only two wins, remains the quarterback.

"It feels healed," George said. "But I'll let the coaches decide."

Chicago (5-1) at Phoenix (2-4)
This may not be easy for the Bears after a week off — depending on the Cards' mindset after losing a game to the Giants they could have and should have won.

"Momentum could be a problem," Mike Ditka said of the two-week rest his Bears had.

It could also be a problem for the Cards, who allowed the Giants 19 points in the final 3:21 and lost 20-9 in what coach Joe Bugel called "the worst loss I've ever been associated with."

Minnesota (1-5) vs. Green Bay (2-4) at Milwaukee

"I still think we'll make the playoffs," said tight end Steve Jordan of the Vikings, perhaps the NFL's biggest bust.

Everything and everybody seems to be coming apart for the Vikings, mostly Herschel Walker, who when last seen carried three times for three yards and fumbled twice against the Eagles. The latest problem: allegations by ABC News that kicker Donald Igwebuike has been involved in heroin smuggling.

Moreover, even the playoff claim sounds hollow to some Vikings.

"That's great," quarterback Rich Gannon said. "But unless we start practicing like a championship team, we won't play like a championship team or make the playoffs. I don't know if some people realize the importance of practice. I don't know if the intensity is there."

Buffalo (5-1) at New England (1-6)
Speaking of things not going well

New England has been sliding on and off the field since the first week, although the Pats could get off to a good start this week — the Bills are this year's Kardiak Kids, pulling out games in the last quarter. Last week it was 30-27 over the Jets on Jim Kelly's TD pass to Jamie Mueller with 19 seconds left.

The other plus for the Patriots is that they've played the Bills well the past few years. But that may not be good enough against a team that has made almost every play that it's needed.

Detroit (2-4) at New Orleans (2-4)
Despite the records, these two remain in the expanded playoff picture. Each is only a half-game out of the last wild-card spot and has the potential to reach it.

Vikes to iron out differences

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue on Friday notified the two ownership groups of the Minnesota Vikings that he will evaluate and resolve significant aspects of their dispute.

In a letter to each side, he said the dispute has had an "adverse effect" on the Vikings' organization and the league, according to a statement released by the commissioner's office. The letter itself was not released.

The statement said the letter did not deal with the day-to-day operations on the team, but focused on the club's shareholder interests and voting arrangements.

Lawyers for both sides in the ownership met Monday with Tagliabue, but said little after the meeting.

Banker Carl Pohlad, who also owns the Minnesota Twins baseball club, and businessman Irwin Jacobs, own one-third of the Vikings' voting stock and want to gain control of the team.

Pohlad and Jacobs are suing general manager Mike Lynn and the majority stockholders over the method in which Lynn gained control of the team. They also say Lynn attempted to sell stock and form partnerships against NFL rules.

The commissioner has taken a more active role in the dispute since Lynn accepted a position with the NFL's new international spring league. Lynn has said he would soon leave the Vikings. He has controlled the club almost singlehandedly since restructuring the organization in 1984.

Local fishermen attend championship tournament

Glenn Berry of the Big Spring Bass Club poses with his 2nd Placing winning catch.

The Big Spring Bass Club had six members attend the annual Top Six Championship tournament at Lake Whitney, north of Waco. The tournament was held Oct. 13 and 14 and was sponsored by the Honey Hole BCA.

The six members were divided in three teams. Team 1 consisted of Jim Darling and John Fort; team 2 was Johnny and Pam Christian; and team 3 was Jim and Joyce Wilson.

A total of 85 clubs were represented at the championships.

A lot of fish were reportedly caught, but very little was eligible for weighing-in. The Big Spring Club had only one fish qualify, caught by Jim Wilson.

The club did receive the award for traveling the farthest. The Abilene Club was awarded 1st Place.

The Big Spring club held a point tournament on Oct. 20 at Lake J.B.

Thomas. Tournament directors were Jerry Dudley and Glenn Berry.

There were 16 contestants in three divisions: Men's 13, Women's 2 and Youth 1.

Men's Division Standings:

- Jerry Dudley, 65 points, 5.6 pounds, spinnerbait.

- Glenn Berry, 64 points, 5.5 pounds, spinnerbait.

- Johnny Mills, 62 points, 4.7 pounds, worms.

- Johnny Christian, 60 points, 3.1 pounds, worms.

- Walt Ussery, 59 points, 2.14 pounds, crankbait.

Calcutta - Big Bass:

- Glenn Berry, 3.2 pounds.

- Johnny Christian, 3.1 pounds.

The next tournament is planned Nov. 3 at Lake Colorado City, from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Jerry Dudley and Glenn Berry will be the directors. For more information, call Jerry at 267-2629 or Glenn at 394-4802.

The art of deer calling

By AARON PASS

The most recent phenomenon to sweep over the hunting horizon is the art and/or science of calling deer. The concept of calling wild turkeys is well-established and is one of the cornerstones of the sport of turkey hunting. It is also well-known that elk and moose, North America's largest antlered game, will answer and come to a call at certain times. However, the current rage in wildlife sound reproduction is directed at our nation's favorite big-game animal — the deer.

Today's outdoor marketplace is awash in various types of deer calls. There are also instructional tapes and videos, along with a host of other paraphernalia to help hunters lure deer by sound. The big question is, "Are these gadgets and gizmos a mere fad, or do they really work?"

"Rattling" is perhaps the granddaddy of all deer-calling techniques. Actual deer antlers or synthetic reproductions are clashed together to simulate the sounds of bucks fighting. In theory, other bucks, hearing a "fight" in progress, will come into the area to defend their territory or to look for the does that the supposed bucks are fighting over.

Rattling has been used for years in south Texas and now is being tried nationwide. The general consensus seems to be that rattling, when done correctly, will draw in other bucks at certain times. The immediate pre- and post-rut periods, when the bucks are more "in the mood" than does, are considered prime rattling times.

The "bleat call" imitates a fawn in distress. It seems to work best on does in the early fall during archery season. However, bleating occasionally attracts both does and bucks later in the year. Many think that the bucks are merely following does attracted by the bleat call.

"Grunting" is a guttural sound, like a pig's grunt. It is made by bucks while following receptive does or sometimes when bucks square off to fight. Grunting is thought to be an effective way to call bucks in the same way rattling is. In fact, grunt tubes are often used in conjunction with rattling "horns".

The problem with gauging the effectiveness of deer calls is that, unlike turkeys, elk and moose, deer are not very vocal. Deer do not use sound as a primary means of attracting mates or defending territory. They seldom answer a call directly and may only come close enough to survey the calling area by scent or by sight. Thus, even if deer do show up near a calling site, one must question whether they would have shown up anyway, and whether they were attracted or merely curious.

Though far from conclusive answer, indications are that deer calls, when properly used, really do attract deer and can help the hunter's chances. However, the calls by themselves are certainly no guarantee of success. Deer calling is no replacement for thorough scouting, competent woodcraft and good hunting skills.

Fishing with Mark

By MARK WEAVER

The last few years have seen bass fishing take its lures deeper and deeper. First, there were crankbaits that broke the 20 foot barrier, then 25 feet, now even 30 feet or more!

Well, Autumn is here, so forget about all those extra-deep diving crankbaits and tie on an "old-timey" shallow running lure instead. Fall offers the best crankbait fishing of the entire year, if you remember to fish shallow.

In the Fall, baitfish will often school nearer the surface, and small shallow running crankbaits can be deadly. As the water cools, these bait fish will move up into coves and, generally, bass will be right behind them. Bass will often school and literally gorge themselves on these bait fish in preparation for winter.

Under these conditions, a stringer of bass can be had mighty quickly!

Many anglers refer to crankbaits as fish finders, but they are also excellent structure locators as well.

Often I use a crankbait to find a submerged stump, for example, then I'll work that stump with as many as 10 to 15 cast with a jig.

When fishing a crankbait, try to bump it against every piece of available structure. Bass just can't seem to resist a lure fished in this manner. If you are fishing an area that is void of structure, try a stop and go retrieve of the lure.

My experience has shown that the color of the lure tends to, for some reason, be more important in the Fall. Overall I have had greater success with natural shad and perch colored baits as well as combinations of blue or black on chrome.

Crankbaits with a wider "wobble" tend to work better in the Fall than others. Bass are generally very active in the Fall, and seem to readily notice and attack a wobbling lure.

As for rod selection, remember to use a limber rod in the six to seven foot range. Fiberglass is a good choice as the sensitivity of graphite can do more harm than good when crankbait fishing.

Since you will generally be fishing your crankbait in shallow water, you can get by with using a heavier line than you could if you were fishing depths of 15 feet or more.

Remember you can fish a shallow running crankbait in many of the same places you would a spinnerbait, so consider giving it a try during this Fall season.

Big Bend National Park cleaning up mountains of mud

At Big Bend National Park, the maintenance crew, equipped with only two graders, two dump trucks and one front end loader, faces the Herculean task of cleaning up after record rains and river levels left a staggering amount of mud and debris in campgrounds on park trails, and on primary asphalt and back country gravel roads.

According to Park Superintendent Jim Carrico the Rio Grande, cresting at 22 feet October 3 scoured out about 25,000 square feet of embankment adjacent to Cottonwood campground. The campground itself is inundated in river mud and restrooms show water rings six foot above ground level. It is uncertain when that 35 site campground will be open again.

Rio Grande village campground, seventy miles downstream from Cottonwood, remained relatively intact. Although mud laden water swirled through the lower third of the campground, the 100 site campground is now open for business.

The nine mile road between Castolon and Santa Canyon has been layered over with sand and gravel to a depth of four feet at the Blue Creek and Alamo Creek crossings. Park officials estimates it will take at least a month to clear the Castolon road of flood borne debris.

A water gauge at Big Bend National Park measures the depth of gravel deposited by recent flash floods in the area.

River waters flooded the floor of the old Hot Springs post office and lapped at the doors of the old motel. Part of the trail leading to the hot springs itself has been obliterated. And although deep washouts have closed the Hot Springs access road, maintenance crews expect to have it open this week.

Santa Elena Canyon raft/canoe take-out point has been gnawed away leaving a steep ten foot bank in its place. River runners are debarking at the Cottonwoods campground until conditions stabilize at the former take-out point.

Extensive silting and erosion closed much of the 120 mile back country road system as well, including the Old Ore Road, River Road, and Glenn Springs Road. These and other gravel and dirt road will be open to four-wheel drive and high clearance vehicles as soon as maintenance crews can clear them; some because of heavy erosion and the possibility of intervening rains, may be closed until after the new year.

To avoid disappointments, prospective visitors are urged to call or write the park about the status of park campgrounds and back country roads as their vacation plans develop.

Lowell V. Diller, Wildlife Biologist for the Simpson Timber Company, lures a Northern Spotted Owl out of hiding near Arcata, California. Diller uses a long stick with a mouse on the end to entice the owl, the latest animal on the United States endangered species list.

Endangered species act threatened by owl debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate showdown over the threatened northern spotted owl turned into a debate over the future of the Pacific Northwest's oldest forests and a vote of confidence in the Endangered Species Act.

"The owl is an indicator species. As it goes, so goes the forest," Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., said Tuesday night.

On a 62-34 vote, the Senate rejected an attempt to circumvent the Endangered Species Act so Northwest logging could continue regardless of the impact on the rare bird.

Republican senators in Oregon and Washington pushed the plan to help soften the economic blow on communities expected to be hit hard by dramatic reductions in timber harvests as a result of federally mandated protection of the owl.

Gore and Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, led the charge against Oregon Sen. Bob Packwood's amendment to the Interior appropriations bill.

The Senate voted 52-44 to reject an amendment to the bill by Sen.

Wyche Fowler Jr., D-Ga., to reduce road-building funds for the Forest Service by $100 million from a planned $196 million.

Timber companies rely on public funds to "go up to the top steep slopes, the older growth, places of scenic beauty," Fowler argued. Road-building expense caused the forest Service to lose $365 million on timber sales last year, he said.

Western senators contended the amendment would gut logging in their states. "Mill towns into ghost towns, that's what the Fowler amendment creates in my state," said Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.

The Fish and Wildlife Service's decision to declare the owl a threatened species in June "sounded a warning that within our lifetime an entire ancient ecosystem may be lost forever," Mitchell said.

Forest Service biologists have determined the owl is on the road to extinction unless logging is banned across millions of acres of the Northwest's oldest forests.

The government predicts logging reductions to protect the owl will cost the Northwest tens of thousands of timber jobs by the end of the decade.

Experts estimate about 3,000 pairs of the secretive, 20-inch owls survive in the old-growth forests of Oregon, Washington and northern California.

Packwood's amendment to the Interior appropriations bill would have eased the criteria required to convene the Endangered Species Committee.

That Cabinet-level panel, commonly referred to as the "God Committee," has the authority to overrule the act's protection of wildlife if it determines the economic consequences of such protection is too severe.

"I hope we have not reached the point where the Holy Grail is science and only science and nothing else counts," Packwood said in a Senate floor speech.

The Endangered Species Committee chaired by the secretary of interior has met only twice in the 17-year history of the Endangered Species Act, once in a dispute over the snail darter and Tennessee's Tellico Dam.

A good day's work

Dwain Leonard, left, J.C. Ringner and Noble White pose with the 35-pound yellow catfish they caught at Lake Amstead Oct. 22. The trio reported catching 200 pounds of fish on that trip.

Fishing report

The Big Spring Bass Club had 16 competitors in its tournament last week at Lake J.B. Thomas.

Jerry Dudley set the pace with a black bass weighing 5 pounds, 6 ounces. Second place went to Glen Berry with his catch weighing only an ounce less. Third place went to Johnny Mills with a bass weighting 4 pounds and 7 ounces.

Fishing was relatively light. The best results for channel catfish were at depths of six to eight feet. However, J.D. Taylor, Lake Thomas, did take a 26-pound blue catfish off his troutline. Crappie and yellow catfish catches were reported to be few.

Traffic was lighter at Lake E.V. Spence, where striped bass and black bass were beginning to hit top-water lures more frequently. Catfish, mostly channel cat, dominated reports, but a few stripers were caught.

Happy Halloween

By CHRISTINA FERCHALK
I began writing this column some time ago but it had such a Halloween flavor I decided to hold it off until a more appropriate time — like now.

It was a Saturday night late in August. I was alone on my front porch swing. I spend a lot of time there. I can be found on my swing nearly every evening from the time the first of the robins reappear until the time my husband calls out, "Don't you have enough sense to come in out of the cold? Are you nuts?"

So, enjoy your Halloween. Pass out the treats to the little tricksters and light your Jack-O-Lanterns, but keep an eye in the sky.

This night the weather was beautiful. It had been too warm in the afternoon but after an early evening shower the air was cool, but very misty. The swing faces east so I was looking in that direction. Something caught my peripheral vision. I turned my head slowly to the left and that's when I saw it. It was directly over the house across the street. It seemed to be only a few yards above the chimney. It looked like a large, amber-colored headlight floating in the sky. It didn't twinkle or blink. I could see a dark shape behind the headlight but it was too misty to discern the shape of the shape.

Three thoughts came into my head. One, I had never seen anything like this in my life. Two, the headlight was oddly silent. There were no motor sounds, not even a hum. Three, no one would believe this.

The headlight moved very slowly toward my house. At times, it seemed to stop completely (the word 'hover' comes to mind). Suddenly it shifted direction. It didn't turn around, just began backing away. I wasn't the least bit afraid. In fact, I was so thrilled my skin was tingling. This was great, but I needed a witness. I knew, as sure as God made little green apples, the instant I ran inside the house looking for someone, the headlight would book out of sight.

But it didn't. I pulled my husband and son away from the exhibition football game long enough for them to get a good look at my headlight. They agreed it was something not of this Earth. No, they had never seen anything like it before. Yes, it certainly was exciting. Now, could they please get back to their game. Apparently, not everyone is enthralled with the unknown. I watched the headlight until it faded into the mist. I stayed on the porch until dawn waiting for its return, but I never saw it again.

It always seems that people who have had such an encounter claim they were non-believers until the night the spaceship landed and burned a big round hole in their wheat field. I can't say the same about myself. I believe in everything. Be it UFOs, ghosts, big foots, sea monsters, out-of-body experiences or things that go bump in the night, you name it and I'll buy it.

This experience taught me a lesson I'd like to pass on to readers. If ever you have an encounter of the weird kind, enjoy it, relish in the moment, but for cryin' out loud keep it to yourself. No one will believe you. The people you tell will nod their heads appreciatively and say, "Gee, isn't that interesting." But you can see it in their eyes, what they're really thinking is, "Just what kind of pills did your doctor give you, and do you have any more?"

I knew there had to be other people who saw the headlight that night. So far I've found seven. Four were attending the keg party, two were in a cemetery playing with a Ouija board and one claims to have seen the amber headlight on other occasions. But only on the nights the Lady in White walks among the living. So much for valid testimonials.

So, enjoy your Halloween. Pass out the treats to the little tricksters and light your Jack-O-Lanterns, but keep an eye in the sky.

Because, believe it or not, they are out there!

Tenth Anniversary

BIG SPRING SYMPHONY

Presents —

'Big Band to Big Balls in Cowtown'

Big Spring musicians who will appear with the Big Spring Symphony Orchestra at its season opener Nov. 10 are: Pat Daniel, tuba player; Myra Harrell, flutist; and Jody Nix, fiddler, special guest. Former resident Ricky Mitchell, now of Lubbock, will play trombone. Other musicians in the city's orchestra are contract players from the Midland-Odessa and Lubbock Symphony Orchestras.

A regional flavor permeates most of the activities of the upcoming weekend — from the Big Spring Symphony's "Big Band to Big Balls in Cowtown" concert, to the western dance with Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys, to dinners featuring Southwestern cuisine. Shown in the attire they've chosen to wear are, left to right, Cynthia Weeks in a leather skirt; Pam Welch in a jeweled sweater over a cow-print skirt; Teresa Welch, in a blue denim dress; and Gil Oxendine, who prefers slacks and sports jacket.

The Big Spring Symphony Association and the Symphony Guild will fire the musical shot that will be heard around Texas the weekend of Nov. 9-11.

That weekend, Big Spring hosts the fall meeting of the executive board of the Texas Association of Symphony Orchestras, an organization representing support guilds or leagues of the 30 Texas cities that have their own symphony orchestras. Big Spring is the smallest city in the state to field its own ensemble, which is celebrating its 10th anniversary this season.

Hosting the TASO meeting gives a city the chance to trot out its big guns culturally. And Big Spring is right on target with a weekend of Southwest cuisine, western duds, country swing and its traditionally famous hospitality.

As a highlight of each meeting, the TASO cities try to outgun each other with the performance of the host city's orchestra. What better ammunition than Big Spring's own Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys appearing with the Big Spring Symphony Orchestra in a pops concert titled, "Big Band to Big Balls in Cowtown," Nov. 10 at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The price of the ticket includes a dance to the music of Nix and his band, following the concert. The concert is open to the public and dress code is "jewels to jeans."

Symphony volunteers have been working on the event since July. Guild members put in many hours creating their unique souvenir gift package — a canvas tote colorfully appliqued with a howling coyote and filled with gifts from local merchants and information about Big Spring — which will be given each visitor.

Early reservations for TASO visitors have already arrived from Beaumont, Sherman, Plano, Corpus Christi, Irving, El Paso, Abilene, Amarillo, San Angelo, Tyler, Odessa, Victoria, Midland and Austin. Other members include Ft. Worth, Dallas, San Antonio, Houston, Waco, Richardson and Edinburg.

Lisa Nichols is the Big Spring Symphony Guild representative on the executive board.

Visitors will be met by symphony volunteers at Midland International Airport Nov. 9, and whisked to Days Inn for a quick change before dividing into small groups for dinner in some of Big Spring's finest homes. Host couples include David and Judy Rickey, Cleo and Thelma Carlisle, Robert and Mary Miller, and Ben and Kay Bancroft.

James and Pam Welch will host a breakfast at their home Nov. 10, and the TASO business meetings will be held at the Big Spring Country Club. Following the work session, the visitors will be bused to see Big Spring's attractions, including Comanche Trail Park, the Amphitheatre, Scenic Mountain, the VA Medical Center, Railroad Plaza, the Municipal Auditorium and Howard College.

Dinner that evening will be catered by Cinda Stanley and Paula Talbot, who have trained under Big Spring native Stephan Pyles, one of the nation's most innovative cooks who practically "invented" Southwestern cuisine. Hosts are Ford and Debney Farris. Big Spring Symphony board members will join the out-of-town guests at this dinner.

A pre-concert reception is planned in the Coliseum East Room at 7 p. m. for holders of tables on the coliseum floor. Table seats for groups of eight or 10 cost $10 per person, and are available only to concert ticket holders. Table reservations may be made by phoning 267-1673.

The concert will include a selection of classics, including "Orpheus in the Underworld," "Overture (Offenbach)" and "The Phantom of the Opera," selections (Webber), followed by the Big Band sounds, including themes of Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller, Hal Kemp, Artie Shaw, Tommy Dorsey, Count Basie and others.

Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys will appear in the second half of the program in special arrangement of old favorites such as "Maiden's Prayer" and "Sally Goodin."

After the audience joins in on a sing-a-long of "San Antonio Rose," "Faded Love" and "Big Balls in Cowtown," a song written by Hoyle Nix, the grand finale is "Orange Blossom Special" with the full ensemble.

Gene Chartier Smith, conductor of the San Angelo Symphony Orchestra, will be on the podium.

Tickets for the Nov. 10 concert are available at Accent Shop, Artifacts, Chamber of Commerce, Dunlap's, and other locations as well as from symphony board members. Prices are $12.50 regular, and $8.50 senior citizens and students. This concert ticket is also included in the symphony's season ticket package of three concerts for $20 regular, and $15 senior citizens and students.

Tickets also will be available at the door.

Big Spring Symphony Guild volunteers have been preparing for months for the meeting of a statewide symphony organization here the weekend of Nov. 9-11. Pictured, left to right, are Phyliss Graumann, Pam Welch and Thelma Carlisle applying howling coyotes on souvenir canvas tote bags which will be given each guest of the executive board of Texas Association of Symphony Orchestras. Welch is Guild president.

Former broadcaster shares 'real thrills'

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

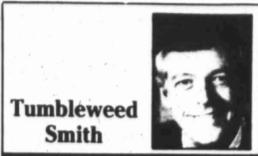

When Humble Oil sponsored Southwest Conference football broadcasts, everybody in Texas knew Saturday was game day. Humble service stations were decked out in decorative banners that gave each station the appearance of being at the center of the football universe.

The stations gave away school stickers and schedules of all Southwest Conference teams. The men pumping the gas seemed to be experts at details of games and personalities. And nearly always they were rooting for the same team you were.

Humble began broadcasting the games in 1934. An account executive at Humble's ad agency, Kern Tips, was chosen to do the play by play. He became a legend.

He put together an impressive team of announcers: Dave Smith, Ves Box, Connie Alexander, Charlie Jordan, John Smith, Eddie Hill, Jim Wiggins.

Dave Smith began working for the Humble Network in the fall of 1951 and became one of the top men in his field. "Kern gave us rules to follow," says Dave. "If anyone broke those rules, they didn't work for the network anymore. He was strict, but he was kind and gentle."

Listeners never heard of a player being hurt. He was shaken up. Nobody was ever carried off the field. They left the game. And you never questioned an official's call. Every penalty was a team penalty, not against an individual.

Kern urged his team to be fair, accurate and impartial when on the air. "We never covered the same team two weeks in a row to avoid us being called 'homers' and becoming partial to that particular team," says Dave. "Kern told us not to worry if we didn't finish reading a commercial before play resumed because the entire broadcast of the game was a commercial."

The broadcasters had to be in the booth by 9 a.m. Saturday for a 1 p.m. kickoff. If the game started at 8 p.m., the announcers were in the booth by 4 p.m. And the announcer, color man, producer, engineer and spotters stayed together until the game was over. Alcohol was absolutely forbidden before, during and immediately after the game.

Each announcer had a three minute hour glass. When the last grains of sand dripped out he had to give the score.

Kern always said the best ad-lib is the written ad-lib. "We were required to have fifteen minutes of written ad-lib for every broadcast," says Dave.

Once a tornado cleared a stadium during a game. Everybody left except the announcers, who stayed on to complete their obligations. "That's when those written ad-libs really came in handy."

Kern Tips used words and phrases which made his broadcasts extremely listenable. "He kept those little gems taped to the press box window," says Dave. "When he would use one, he would tear it off, put it aside and would not use it again during the broadcast."

The Humble Radio Network was on the air 46 years. It ended in 1980, when the Southwest Conference decided it wanted national coverage instead of regional. But the national network did not work out and the Southwest Conference has not been the same since.

"We learned some solid broadcast principles with Kern," says Dave. "The new boys didn't seem too interested in using those principles, so most of us quit."

Dave, who has a public relations firm in Austin, won lots of awards for his sports broadcasting, but he considers the best ones the memories he carries with him: "Arriving at a stadium early, wearing your Humble Jacket. Fans coming up to you and talking about the game. Those were the real awards and the real thrills."

Osmulski installed as worthy advisor

During a recent open installation of officers, Amy Osmulski was installed as worthy advisor of the Big Spring Assembly No. 60 Order of the Rainbow for Girls. Installing officers included Erica Jo Hughes, marshal; Adele Tibbs, chaplain; Doris Mason, musician; Ina Stewart, recorder; Ann Weaver, installing officer; and Eunice Thixton, mother advisor. The decor reflected the worthy advisor's chosen colors.

The podium was draped with white satin and accented with all the rainbow hues. Baskets of white roses with rainbow floral accents and miniature blue birds surrounded the podium. This theme was carried throughout the hall and reception room.

The worthy advisor's chosen theme, "Happiness and Dreams," was reflected in an original poem by Amy, titled "Falling Star."

"As I look into the night sky, I see a falling star. One of my dreams dying, And I begin to cry. As I look out again, I see millions of stars shining. Millions of my dreams waiting, And I begin to smile."

Special music was provided by Stephanie Mauch and included "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" and "Friends." Ricky Mitchell was the evening's guest speaker. His topic was "God's Promise" relayed in his special symbol, the rainbow.

Other officers installed included Shawna Tidwell, worthy associate advisor; Amy Earnst, charity; Amber Grisham, hope; Melissa Birrell, faith; Marci Weaver, chaplain; Erica Hughes, drill leader; Felicia Ragsdale, love; Aimee Walker, religion; Dawn Shober, nature; Jamiee Bolton, immortality; Stephanie Mauch, fidelity; Mandy Ussery, service; Jamiee Haas, confidential observer; and Kristen Sevey, musician.

Following the installation, a reception was hosted by the advisory board. The color theme was continued with table accents of red, orange, blue, green, indigo and violet.

Amy is a sophomore at Big Spring High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Osmulski.

Agent offers tips for fall planting

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

Fall was made for planting. Air and soil temperatures cool off to a tolerable level, soil moisture levels are high, weed and insect pests are not as aggressive. To sum it up, growing conditions are ideal for many plants to become established.

October and early November are fine for planting new trees and shrubs and up-dating that winter damaged landscape. If you haven't tried them yet, you might consider planting Chinese Pistache, Western Soapberry, Texas Red Oak, or the Shumardi Red Oak in your landscape plans. No doubt about it, bluebonnets planted in the fall are far superior to those planted in the spring — regardless of whether they are established from seed or transplants.

We maybe a little late on planting seed or transplants, as the best time is usually around Sept. 15, but many gardeners report success with plantings as late as Oct. 27, and have had good results. Select a full sun location with excellent drainage. Improve the planting site with three inches of organic matter and one to two pounds of a complete fertilizer (preferably a slow-release nitrogen type) per 100 square feet of bed. Thoroughly water in transplants or seeds. The biggest danger with establishing bluebonnets is over-watering. Once established, bluebonnets are drought tolerant. If there is a severe, prolonged drop in temperature expected, be ready to cover young plants with a layer of mulch. If planting seeds, use acid treated sees for a quicker and higher germination rate.

It might seem totally "un-Texan" to even consider using them, but other than the traditional blue colored variety, Abbott Pink, White, and Worthington Blue (A pale Blue color) are now available. To avoid winter injury of trees and shrubs this winter, don't promote late season growth in woody plants. Avoid deep watering, late season nitrogen fertilizers and pruning. All of these practices used in late summer and fall can cause late season succulent growth that is

Humane Society

The Big Spring Humane Society has the following animals available for adoption.

Pets of the Week — A trio of German shepherds — Moses, Sable and Genie are all beautiful. They are brown with black markings, long noses, and tall ears. Two females and one male. They desperately need a home.

"Coach" full-blood male Doberman Pinscher. Black with tan markings. Cropped ears and docked tail. He is a family dog and loves children. 267-6165.

"Nikki" full-blood Akita. She is a young adult, probably 11 months old. She has a beautiful black mask and a very curly tail. She is energetic and protective. She would be a great one dog family.

"Bonbon" small solid black dog. She has a medium length coat and coal black hair. She is small and sweet. Great indoor dog.

"Star" full blood female gold labrador. Has short, sleek coat, very calm and docile. Under a year of age.

"Linda" basenji mix. She has a brindle coat with white markings. Very small features. She is a spayed, smaller dog with a gentle personality.

"Dixie" small tan terrier mix. She is a Benji type with longer, soft fur. She is spayed, shy young adult who is always happy.

"CooCoo" miniature poodle. Brown coat, male, housebroken, has an allergy condition. Needs a home.

"Buster" lilac point Siamese. Adult, bright blue eyes, loving personality and neutered.

"Snickers" full-blood chocolate point Siamese, neutered, bright blue eyes, young beautiful adult.

"DeeDee" young calico kitten. Orange, white and black coat, about 7 weeks old.

All cats and kittens at the shelter are a $15 donation. This donation covers spaying or neutering, vaccinating, worming, feline leukemia tests, litter box trained and a two-week adoption period with your money back if it doesn't work out. Shelter hours are Mon-Fri. 4-6 p.m.; Sun. 3-5 p.m. and closed Saturdays. 267-7832.

Child Care Provider Conference

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will co-sponsor with the Texas Department of Human Services, Midland College and Children's enterprise Inc. a conference to provide educational programs to meet the needs of child care providers who want to maintain a safe and enriching environment for children.

A Child Care Provider Conference will be conducted Nov. 10, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Midland College Fine Arts Auditorium.

Topics on "Legal Liabilities,"

Focus on family

"The Professional Image For The Daycare Worker," "Clientele Relationships," "The Importance of Self-Esteem," "Discipline," "Storytelling," "The Importance of Play," and "Make and Take" will be presented.

Participants will tour the Midland College Daycare Center facilities, and will receive six Continuing Education units from Midland College and six annual training hours from the Texas Department of Human Services.

There is a registration fee of $15 for lunch, educational materials, and Continuing Education units from Midland College. Late registration, after Nov. 2, fee is $20.

For additional information and to obtain registration forms, please contact the County Extension agent.

Millers cruise up the Amazon River

Tidbits

By LEA WHITEHEAD
For the Herald

Robert and Mary Miller have been spending their time lately cruising up the Amazon River.

The pair just returned from a 13-day tour aboard the Pacific Princess (the original "love boat") sailing from San Juan, Puerto Rico.

They visited St. Thomas, Martinique and Barbados Islands in the Caribbean, stopped at Devil's Island off the coast of New Guinea (where the colonial French sent their prisoners!), and then entered the Amazon at Santarem, Brazil.

They left the cruise ship in a tender to visit Alter Do Chao and Bocadovalerio, two small, remote villages where the natives still live in huts. At Manaus, Robert and Mary took a day tour through the jungle and then went on a nighttime alligator hunt! (The natives captured the alligator.)

At Bocadovalerio, they accept no form of coins or currency, so tourists were told in advance to bring trinkets, pencils or cosmetics to trade for simple handmade items in the shops. Robert made a deal for a blowgun with two darts (not poison!) and a stuffed piranha.

The trip wouldn't have been complete, of course, without viewing the famous "meeting of the waters" — where the dark waters of the Rio Negro and the clear waters of the Rio Solimoes empty into the Amazon and do not mix, but flow side by side for 11 miles!

Mary's one-word description of the trip was "Wonderful!"

Lonnie and Gail Legg spent a week visiting Gail's brother, Bill Whitney, in Independence, Kan.

Their trip coincided with the town's 47th annual celebration, "Neewollah," which is Halloween spelled backward. The week-long event included a production of the musical comedy "Gypsy," a street carnival and western show, plus specialty food vendors who come in especially for the event, all topped off with a parade. Gail says the celebration brings in 80,000 visitors to the community of 12,000! The town's residents stage the entire event.

Gail says the town also sponsors an annual William Inge Festival ("Splendor in the Grass," "Picnic" and "Bus Stop") at the local community college, bringing in literary scholars from all over the world.

R.X. (Jack) and Ruth McNew had a lot to celebrate at their 58th wedding anniversary dinner recently at LaPosada.

The couple has lived throughout their married life in Fairview. They had nine children, 26 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren — and all are still living. Plus there'll be two more great-grandchildren in a couple of weeks.

Among family members attending the dinner were Gertrude McCann, Callie Bennett, Bonnie and Jess Skein, Danny and Barbara Clark (with Daniel, 6); Brian Scoggins; Robert and Joy Howland; Jimmy and Misty Rodgers; Carolyn Rodgers, Billy Bob and Christy Scoggins (with Cody); Kevin Rodgers, Brandon Rodgers, Jackie Seay, Robert and Kay Howland, and Michelle Howland.

Restored building

KINGSVILLE — The Ragland Building, formerly known as Ragland's Department Store, at the corner of Sixth Street and Kleberg Avenue in Kingsville has recently been restored by the King Ranch. The store, originally opened in 1909 as the John B. Ragland Mercantile Co., will open Saturday as King Ranch Saddle Shop.

Barbecue host

Texas man plays host to all visitors

By MICHAEL RAMEY
Longview News-Journal

MARSHALL — Hundreds of people have sat down to a plate of Jesse Grubb's honey-basted barbecue. None have paid for it.

The 62-year-old master potter will have it no other way. "The more people I have around me, the more fun I have and the more I enjoy life," he said. Among those who have coated their palate with Grubb's barbecue are Gov. Bill Clements and 12 Russian military advisers.

Everyone who travels U.S. 80 between Longview and Marshall passes Grubb Pottery Manufacturing Co. just west of the city. Jesse Grubb, a fifth generation potter, founded the business in 1954 — across town from his father's pottery plant.

Today, Grubb's son and son-in-law run most of the business while he worries about having fun and entertaining.

"I worked hard in my younger years so I can live good and enjoy my later years," he said.

Behind his home, Grubb's built the Taj Mahal of family pavilions that houses several barbecue pits, deep fryers and even a pancake cooker. At one end is a dance floor and a small stage. A small bar occupies the opposite corner.

The area also has a swimming pool, bathhouse and horseshoe pits. "This has kind of been my electric train during the past 17 years," Grubb says. "I add something to it every year."

He built the half-acre complex to entertain friends, and in the process, has made many new ones. "I grew up as an only child, so I guess I was lonesome most of my life," Grubb says. "Now, I can have as much company as I want."

At times, parties with more than 200 revelers have packed the Grubbs backyard. He has the family's annual Fourth of July reunion there, and in September, the area Republican Party held a fund raiser in the pavilion.

Six couples have exchanged wedding vows in his back yard, and many a sliver of barbecue has been devoured there.

It all started when the Marshall man was in diapers.

"Every July 4, we would go to my uncle's house in Woodlawn (east of Marshall)," he said. "As an only child, this was where I would see the other kids in the family. It was the most fun I ever had as a child."

As the years passed, Grubb began hosting the holiday barbecues and the family grew.

"As the family grew, my cooking and entertaining area grew."

Now, it is a family entertainment area like no other.

"I let friends use the barbecue area. I don't charge for it because I enjoy the company," he said. "I

Marshall for his senior parties. "I like seeing the folks that have lived here through the years. We really have a good time."

But at Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches, Grubb, who never finished high school, is a member of Theta Chi Fraternity. "I like seeing the folks that have lived here through the years. We really have a good time."

Now, he is known nationally as the "Uncle of Theta Chi."

"I am able to relive my teen-age years with them, and at the same time, I talk with the kids and help them with their problems," Grubb said. "Sometimes I am like a second father to them. This summer, I was best man at a Theta Chi's wedding."

He hosts several parties each year for the fraternity, and the college students invite Grubb and his wife to all their functions.

"I enjoy helping people have a good time," he said. "I used to show old films and silent movies at the junior high school here, and the kids would be laughing and rolling in the aisles."

"I believe there is plenty of sadness in the world — it just comes to us. But you have to make, invent and create laughter."

Bring good cheer to troops far from home

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to ask you and your readers to mobilize for the most important Operation Dear Abby/America Remembers Campaign ever. Our servicemen and women in Saudi Arabia and at sea in the Persian Gulf need visible support from their countrymen. We are asking schools, service groups, business clubs, towns and cities to once again step forward and declare their support for our troops by "adopting" units and ships serving in the Persian Gulf during the approaching holidays. With the help of the armed services, we have arranged for many of the units and ships to be available for "adoption" for Christmas and, if needed, for Valentine's Day as well.

Dear Abby

When we launched the "Adopt a Unit" program last year, more than 4,500 schools and groups participated. The response was overwhelming! This year, a generous corporate company, Taco Bell, has offered its headquarters employees to process the mail to ensure an even smoother operation. In addition, they have provided office space and computers for this effort.

Imagine how proud the small towns across America will be knowing they are taking care of "their" troops overseas. Elementary schoolchildren could work on special class projects, and teenagers could also join in the operations. Imagine how thrilled the troops will be!

While our country is most concerned with supporting troops in the Persian Gulf, we cannot forget our service members stationed in Europe, Asia and the rest of the world. So, your readers are being asked to do even more than ever. I know they will come through, because as you have often said, Dear Abby readers are the best people in the world!

Thanks to you and your readers, our joint effort on behalf of the troops has brought incredible joy and love to hundreds of thousands of outstanding young men and women who proudly wear our nation's uniforms.

With deepest gratitude to you, your staff and your millions of readers for all your love and concern. — DONALD P. GRIMES, NATIONAL CHAIRMAN, 1990 AMERICA REMEMBERS CAMPAIGN

DEAR READERS: In the past, you have proven to be generous beyond belief, and I hope that this year you will again open your hearts to our servicemen and women who will be far from their families for the holidays.

Your cards, letters and goodies can be tremendous morale boosters to these dedicated young people. Some wonderful friendships have been formed — and some found romance, too!

Those individuals or groups interested in adopting a unit or ship, please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: America Remembers/Operation Dear Abby, c/o Taco Bell Corp., 17901 Von Karmen, Irvine, Calif. 92713.

P.S. I'll publish specific addresses for servicemen and women before Thanksgiving.

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed some letters from people who wrote to defend the "masculinity" of boys who take piano lessons. In one example, an 18-year-old was a weight lifter who lettered in soccer and had girls calling him for dates. In another, a 16-year-old boy weighed 200 pounds, had a black belt in some martial art and played varsity football.

Abby, those things are fine, but please let's not try to prove the rule by citing the exception.

Most music students don't fit that mold, and more important, they shouldn't have to. If the kid weighs 140, has zits, thinks a date is an exotic fruit, and plays the harp like he was born in heaven, now what do we have? A "sissy"? Is he expected to compensate for his shameful interest in music by taking up football or karate?

Albert Schweitzer played the organ and probably never touched a football. Winston Churchill painted. I believe that when we face the only judge who counts, he won't consider our masculinity or femininity — only our humanity.

We have more important matters on the planet to worry about. — ANONYMOUS IN HOUSTON

DEAR ABBY: The clan gathered at my sister-in-law's house for a holiday dinner. Everyone was nice and friendly until Sis turned to me and in a very loud voice said, "Say, what color would your hair really be if you didn't dye it? Gray?"

Taken completely by surprise, I said the first thing that came to mind: "I'll tell you what color my hair really is if you tell me how much you really weigh." (Sis is very fat. She claims she has a thyroid condition, but she eats constantly.)

Well, things got pretty hot around there, and now the whole family — including my husband — is furious with me for insulting the hostess.

I don't see why her privacy is any more sacred than mine, but if you think I should apologize, I will. — NOT IRISH FOR NOTHING

DEAR IRISH: Even though she struck the first blow, you were childish and unkind to have struck a lower one. If it will restore peace in the family, apologize.

DEAR ABBY: Please advise "Car Lover in Maine" to spend a few evenings sitting in the driveway, reading or listening to music with the cat on her lap, before starting out for a cross-country motor trip.

If you plan to travel in an RV or motor home, it's a good idea to actually live in it for about a week — that way, it becomes the cat's territory. Also, take a few trips up the alley and back so the cat will become familiar with the sounds and the motion of the vehicle.

Another thing that will reassure the cat: Talk to it. Believe it or not, pets can read your facial expressions and can also read body language, and they will be able to interpret what you are saying to them by the tone of your voice and your expression. — RALPH E. EMERSON, TACOMA, WASH.

Bankruptcy not the sole solution

By JOHN PAYNE

Question: I am so deeply in debt that I think I cannot get out. Is bankruptcy the only solution? — Steve W.

Dear Steve: No, bankruptcy is not the only solution. In fact, if at all possible, don't file for bankruptcy. A bankruptcy will stay on your record for up to 10 years. This means that at any time you apply for credit, whether to buy a car, furniture, a house, or a personal loan, your bankruptcy will turn up and your loan will be denied.

There is another solution. I suggest you contact the Consumer Credit Counseling Service, or CCCS for short. The CCCS is a non-profit debt counseling service with more than 550 chapters nationwide. The organization is supported by the business community to help debtors honor their obligations.

I know several individuals who have "gone through" CCCS and they have nothing but good things to say about them. CCCS works with you to solve your credit problems so that you can pay your debts without ruining your credit rating and even ruining your life.

CCCS states that the average debtor coming to them for help is in his mid-30s, earns about $25,000 a year, and is married with 2-3 children. The average amount of debt is about $18,000 to about 12 different credit card companies. CCCS will help these clients come up with a realistic budget and will at times even take over the actual bill paying. A counselor may also be able to negotiate lower monthly payments with credit card companies, banks, and department stores. CCCS would then pay the bills with a check sent to them by the client each month.

Steve, you may ask why would banks, credit card companies, and department stores accept lower payments? The creditors also realize it is in their best interests to work with debtors to help them pay off their debts. Otherwise, the debtor may file for bankruptcy and the creditor would not be paid at all.

One of the first questions CCCS asks is that you bring all of your credit cards with you. Then they cut them up. This may be difficult to do, but without doing it, I think you would not be able to get out of debt.

Next, CCCS asks debtors to audit their debts and income and to develop a budget and debt repayment schedule. It's frightening to note that often this is the first time the debtors have ever written what they earn, what they spend, and what they owe. It's usually an eye-opening experience for them.

One-third of those who go to CCCS go into the agency's debt management program (their bills are paid through CCCS), and more than 70 percent of these eventually pay off their debts in full. Only 5 percent of the clients actually end up filing for bankruptcy. I think this is a good track record.

There is a way to get out from under your debt load. It won't be easy and will take a lot of will power and work on your part. I believe your first step should be to call Consumer Credit Counseling Service. They are good people and if you listen to them, CCCS can be the answer to your problem. They are listed in the phone book.

Big Spring noted in national magazines

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

The city of Big Spring was noted in two national magazine articles recently. City landfill and wastewater treatment plant designs made the pages of "American City & County" and "Public Works" magazines.

Assistant City Manager Tom Decell co-wrote both articles.

"This is fantastic for us," he said. "We (The city) can use that. It shows that we are progressive — somebody reads them, decides they want to try the same project — that's publicity for us."

"This is fantastic for us. We (The city) can use that. It shows that we are progressive — somebody reads them, decides they want to try the same project — that's publicity for us." — Assistant City Manager Tom Decell.

The wastewater article, "Sludge Made Manageable With Wedgewater Filter Beds," describes our city's common problems with the treatment of waste, and the revolutionary solution. The system, developed in London in 1970, uses the same basic premise as a conventional gravel drying bed, the article states, but its loading capacity is twice as high. Sludge is spread into the beds, allowing water to drain. With the Wedgewater beds, tedious manual cleaning — city employees with shovels — is no longer necessary. Big Spring became the first West Texas city to utilize the process when it was implemented here in 1987. Decell said city officials from Las Vegas, Nev. have requested information about the project and its success.

The landfill article, "Texas Town Saves Landfill Space," describes the city's use of a "baler" to compress landfill material into bales to be stacked. The option was first considered because the city had been running out of space for its landfill, Decell said.

He said in this time of trash woes all over the world, we were the first city in Texas to utilize the balefill process.

"I get requests constantly. We'd like to look at your baler," Decell said. He added that city officials from Florida, California and Canada had come to view the landfill.

Artwork that gives the time of day

By MARSHA STURDIVANT

Watches by Gloria feature the unusual designs of original watercolor paintings by Gloria McDonald, a Big Spring resident. These timepieces, the first of their kind, offer inspirational sayings or detailed, colorful scenes with a southwestern art theme.

McDonald has lived in Big Spring for 46 years. She began producing the paintings for her cousin, Carolyn Corbin. Corbin, a professional speaker and author, said she was searching for a medium to reproduce her inspirational sayings.

"She's a very dynamic person, and after her speeches people would say 'I loved what you said, don't you have it written down on something?'" McDonald said. Watches were chosen because they are "such a fashion thing," and because people look at watches so often during the day, McDonald said.

Artspirations, a new division with Carolyn Corbin, Inc. offers the watches to the public. The watches are made from the paintings by a unique photography process that creates an exact copy of the original art work. The watches are the art itself, in full color, not a copy.

Each watch is encased in gold plate, and is offered in both men's and women's styles. The faces of the watches have different scenes of southwest art, varying from an Indian eagle shield to a snow-covered teepee to pueblo buildings. The southwestern watches have no numerals. McDonald said they tried putting the traditional hour marks on the faces, but the numbers took away from the beauty of the watch.

All the watches are named by McDonald, who said she is a meticulous artist devoted to detail. "I'm a very structured artist, and I love little bitty detail. I paint everything with a small brush. I like the watch scenes to be running out the edge of the face. That creates excitement in people, wanting to see what's out there," said McDonald, pointing to a snow scene where a barren tree fades into the horizon on the watch face.

Gloria McDonald, inset, has created several motifs for Watches by Gloria, timepieces that feature designs of Southwestern art. McDonald, a Big Spring resident, will have her watches featured at this year's National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas.

McDonald is very cautious about her art work and the process of putting the paintings on the watches. She said a new watch is never ordered until a prototype is sent from California, so she can be sure of the quality of the print. She said each painting, depending on the design, takes from eight to 40 hours to produce. She tries to visualize what the watch will look like as she combines her colors for the scenes.

"I try to paint to the watch. And I have to compensate with my blues and grays, because the photograph exaggerates some of the colors, they appear darker. I could lose a lot of detail, so I watch my darks and try to mentally compensate for that," she said. She also demonstrated that some of the colors of the first paintings faded in the photography process.

McDonald began painting when she was 12 or 14, she said. Her mother, brother and children are also artists, as was McDonald's grandmother.

"We've found pieces of cardboard where she (grandmother) sketched old historical things. She also made her own dyes and paints," said McDonald, who explained that her grandmother died when her mother was an infant.

McDonald said she enjoys making the watches because it gives her a "warm fuzzy feeling" when someone appreciates her art.

"There's a lot of self-satisfaction, to create and to have my talents so enjoyed. Anytime anybody sees it, the size of their facial expressions over something I have created, totally, (pleases me). When I go into a store and somebody says 'I'm wearing one of your watches,' I get a warm feeling inside. People like it well enough to buy it," McDonald said.

The watches have not been profitable since the first was created in March, due to the outlay of expenses to promote the artistic timepieces, but McDonald said she expects the venture to be self-supporting in six months.

There are plans to expand the painting and photography process into ceramic necklaces and rings. Currently she is working on new designs, featuring old work boots and hats, to continue in the southwestern theme. She also does painting designs upon request, she said.

"As people say, 'can you do,' we pick up on that and design that," McDonald said.

Watches by Gloria were featured in the first annual Best of the Southwest Design and Crafts Show in September. She was thrilled when her art work was chosen by the show's jury to appear.

"We were in the company of some great artists, like Pena, Bill Rabbit, Rourke. We had 30 orders in one night (of the show). Our wat-

Deficit soars to record high

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal deficit soared to $220.4 billion, the second highest ever, in the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, the Treasury Department reported.

It was the 21st straight year in which the government spent more than it took in. The fiscal 1990 red ink was 43.7 percent more than the $153.3 billion imbalance last year.

Oil closes down on futures market

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil zigzagged wildly on the futures market, closing down more than $1 per barrel after a rally based on war fears ran out of steam and traders began selling.

Light sweet crude, the key grade of oil, fell $1.24 Friday to $33.01 per barrel for December delivery contracts on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Oil had gone to a high of $35.40 per barrel before the selloff began.

Aetna announces restructuring plan

NEW YORK (AP) — Aetna Life and Casualty Co. announced a restructuring plan, including layoffs, to tighten operations and save hundreds of millions of dollars.

The Hartford, Conn.-based insurance company also announced a 51 percent drop in third-quarter earnings that included a one-time, $60 million charge for costs associated with the reorganization.

Analysts said the restructuring may help both Aetna and the ailing insurance industry.

The rise and fall of Southland

By STEPHEN L. ARTERS
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — John Jefferson Green figured one day in 1927 that he could lure more customers into his Southland Ice Co. store if he stocked milk, eggs and bread, giving birth to the convenience store industry.

The same year, Joe C. "Jodie" Thompson Jr. went to work for the ice company, selling ice from the docks.

Sixty-three years later, the company Thompson once led out of bankruptcy, is bankrupt again, unable to survive a $4.9-billion leveraged buyout in 1987 and increased competition from gasoline retailers.

Southland Corp. filed Wednesday for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection from creditors. In hopes of speeding the process, Southland also filed a reorganization plan that would give 70 percent of the company to Japanese investors in exchange for $430 million in new cash. Creditors would get 25 percent of the company, leaving 5 percent for the Thompson family.

Green's innovation started Southland's expansion beyond peddling ice. The stores, renamed Tote'm and using totem poles as a symbol, began selling gasoline in 1928; beer, snacks and grocery items and Slurpees came later. Diversification eventually would include dairies, refineries, food processors and even an auto parts chain.

But by 1931 the company was struggling in the Great Depression, and went through its first takeover as Middle West Utilities bought out the shareholders.

Thompson, then 30, was named president, and later became the receiver when Middle West itself went bankrupt. The Thompson family has controlled the company ever since.

With the repeal of Prohibition, Southland began selling beer in 1933; growth was spurred again in 1935 with the introduction of the paper milk carton.

Thompson even founded Oak Farms Dairy to make the products that made Southland the largest retailer of dairy items in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

In 1939, Southland had 60 stores, all in Texas. Expansion outside of the state didn't come until 1954, when the now-renamed 7-Eleven stores opened in Miami and Jacksonville, Fla.

The chain had reached more than 7,000 stores worldwide until it began selling off stores trying to reduce its debt from the 1987 buyout. Today, there are closer to 6,800 stores, with another 5,900 run by affiliates and franchisees.

Jodie Thompson died in 1961 at the age of 60, and his oldest son, John P. Thompson took over as president. Jere W. Thompson, the second son, was elected to the company's board of directors.

It wasn't until 1965 that the Slurpee, an iced slush drink, came along.

Southland purchased Citgo Petroleum Corp. in 1983, but sold half interest in the refinery years later to a subsidiary of state-owned Petroleos de Venezuela, SA for $290 million.

It was four years later that the events began that ended with Wednesday's bankruptcy filings.

As junk-bond fed buyout fever was building, the Belzberg family of Canada began talking about buying the Dallas company.

But the Thompsons wanted to keep control of their company, so they undertook their own leveraged buyout.

Unfortunately for them, the stock market took a dive — a 508-point drop in the Dow Jones Industrial Average on Oct. 19 — after the buyout was announced.

The LBO eventually totaled $4.9 billion, inflated by higher interest costs after the crash.

But the Thompsons also eventually were criticized by some of the creditors, who claimed the family profited too much from the buyout.

Almost immediately, Southland began selling off subsidiaries and closing and selling some stores to help find cash to pay the bills.

Eventually the dairy operations

The Angel Tree product line from Word Publishing consists of five books and an audiocassette, which can be purchased at Sunshine and placed in a special slot for shipment to a distribution center. At the center, the books will be packaged with toys and clothing and mailed to inmates' families.

 Both of the articles were developed from original project reports Decell had completed.
 "Anytime you complete a (public works project)," he said, "you do a cost analysis, write up all the what, when and why. Then, if it's as successful as these have been, you improve upon that report."
 Working with Richard Dormier of Gutierrez, Smouse, Wilmut & Associates on the landfill article; and engineers Charles Wilmut and Ted Palit on the wastewater article, Decell was able to improve the reports enough to insure their publication.
 He said their appearance in the magazines, both seen by large numbers of city officials, is good for Big Spring in more ways than one.

 Locally, Blum's Jewelers in Highland Mall distributes the watches, which retail for $69, or $89 for the deluxe style. Greg Brooks, president of Blum's Jewelers, said the first 12 watches sold out completely, and he's ordered and received 19 more.

 "These are beautiful, she's really done a good job," Brooks said.
 McDonald doesn't handle any of the retail operations, she said. Her representative, Dean Sheppard, and Corbin have been responsible for getting the watches in various retail businesses, including the Galleria in Dallas.
 "They do all the hard work and allow me the luxury of painting," McDonald said modestly.

Regulators are unprotected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Savings and loan regulators, unprotected by federal whistleblower laws, are like police officers who can't make any arrests, a House Democrat says.

The lack of protection for thrift regulators who expose cases of abuse harms the government's effort to clean up the S&L industry, Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., told a hearing Thursday.

"Imagine putting a cop on the corner, taking away his gun, badge and nightstick, and telling him that he'd be fired if he tried to make any arrests," Schumer said. "That's about what we've done with our S&L regulators."

Employees of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., the now-defunct Federal Home Loan Bank Board and other banking agencies are not covered by the Whistleblower Protection Act of 1989. Schumer said he will propose legislation in Congress next year to extend to them that protection. Schumer spoke at a hearing of the House Budget Committee's Task Force on Urgent Fiscal Issues, which he chairs. Two S&L agency employees who were fired testified at the hearing.

John M. Geddes, a former employee of the now-defunct Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., was fired in August 1989. He had told the agency about serious errors he found in the adjustable-rate mortgage portfolio of American Federal Savings & Loan of Anderson, Ind.

Geddes said errors involving adjustable-rate mortgages, which he discovered at various S&Ls around the country, could mean $8 billion to $15 billion in liability for the lending industry and the government. In some cases, he said, borrowers have been overcharged by almost $10,000 on loan balances of $25,000.

Several law firms consulted by Geddes had warned the FSLIC that its failure to correct the errors could expose the agency to allegations of fraud.

"I was not the only employee who was informed not to rock the boat," Geddes said. "Other employees were passed over for advancement or given the worst jobs until they could not take it any more and resigned."

In June, the FDIC ordered an investigation into overcharges on adjustable-rate mortgages.

The other whistleblower, Lisa R. Walleri, was an examiner for the Federal Home Loan Bank of Seattle. She testified that she was fired for refusing to sign a report on Far West Federal Bank that distorted its financial condition to make it look more healthy than it was.

John F. Downey, an official of the Office of Thrift Supervision, said his agency agreed with Ms. Walleri that the Seattle FHLB's report on Far West was inaccurate.

Side-impact crash protection mandated on cars

The regulation is "a positive step in the area of auto safety. We know from our own figures that safety sells." — John Guiniven, spokesman for the Chrysler Corporation the traffic safety agency. Also on the drawing board are standards for light trucks and vans.

The new regulation drew acceptance from the industry and cautious praise from safety advocates.

"We expect to comply fully with it," said Toni Simonetti, spokeswoman for General Motors Corp.

The nation's largest automaker fought NHTSA as the rule developed, contending the dummy used in crash tests was faulty. The agency rejected GM's plea to switch to a dummy the company designed.

Even so, GM became more supportive after a meeting last January between Curry and Robert Stempel, then-president of the company and its current chairman.

Chrysler Corp. considers the regulation "a positive step in the area of auto safety," spokesman John Guiniven said. "We know from our own figures that safety Ford Motor Co. spokesman Robert H. Munson said complying with the rule "in some cases may necessitate significant re-engineering of our product lines." The regulation may increase car weight and make it harder to improve gasoline mileage, Munson said.

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety and Advocates for Highway Auto Safety said the regulation was "a long-overdue first step." But they said it would be incomplete until head-injury protections were added.

The changes will boost the average car's cost by about $50, "a small price to pay for the prevention of the immense loss of life and suffering as a result of these side impacts," Skinner said.

Manufacturers can choose between two timetables for phasing in cars that meet the standards. Either way, all new cars must comply by the 1997 model year.

and Chief Auto Parts subsidiary were sold, as was the other half of the Cigo operations.

Although still bringing in more than $8 billion in annual revenue, the costs drained too much cash. Southland announced a $1.01 billion loss in 1989's fourth quarter as it wrote off "goodwill" from the buyout. The writeoff was seen as an admission the Thompsons paid too much for the company.

In March, the company said it had reached a deal with Ito-Yokado Co. Ltd. and Seven-Eleven Japan

Co. Ltd., its Japanese franchisees, that would keep the company out of bankruptcy.

In exchange for $400 million, the Japanese investors would get 75 percent of the company, the Thompsons would keep 15 percent and creditors would be paid off or left with the remaining 10 percent.

But too few creditors would go along with the accompanying debt swap, and the deal had to be sweetened. The Thompsons' share was dropped to 5 percent, and the Japanese cash infusion upped to $430 million.

Plan won't stop deficit spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even if Congress agrees on a massive deficit-reduction plan, the nation's deficit is still expected to hit a record $250 billion this year and the $3 trillion federal debt will continue to swell.

Analysts said many Americans are probably unaware that the $250 billion deficit-reduction plan — which Congress and the Bush administration spent months feuding over — will rein in deficit spending but won't eliminate it.

It's A Natural.

When it comes to doing things better for less, nothing works like gas. Naturally. Nothing heats your home, heats your water, cooks your food, or dries your clothes as efficiently. Or as cost-effectively. Or as cleanly.

What's more, no other form of energy helps to protect our environment — or our economy — quite like natural gas. Leading scientists state that the use of natural gas can guard against many of the environmental problems facing us today. And, virtually all of the natural gas we consume in the United States is produced right here in North America.

As for reliability, when's the last time your natural gas went off?

Use natural gas for your household energy. For cleanliness, cost-efficiency and reliability, it's a natural.

The Best Career.

VA offers you opportunities to select your DESIRED WORKING HOURS.

Also, recent legislation will revamp VA's nurse pay system. It's all part of our ongoing plan to become the preferred employer for RNs across the country.

The job security provided by working in the nation's largest health care system is unmatched. So is the mobility offered by VA's nationwide network of over 170 medical centers, making transfers possible while maintaining full benefits.

Additional benefits for VA nurses include:

- 26 days paid annual (vacation/personal) leave, that begins to accrue immediately, and may accumulate up to 85 days;
- 13 days sick leave each year with no limit on accumulation;
- Free parking, uniform allowance, active employee association, dining facilities and retail store, credit union, and cash awards and other recognition programs.

Over 40,000 RNs are integral members of our VA team - call us to learn more about our diverse career opportunities and to discover why a VA career just might be the best career for you. Working with the Best. Where The Best Care.

Second highest deficit reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government posted a $220.4 billion deficit, its second highest, in the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, the Treasury Department reported today.

It was the 21st consecutive imbalance between government revenues and spending, although it did not top the previous record of $221.2 billion set in fiscal 1986. It did jump 43.7 percent above the fiscal 1989 deficit of $153.3 billion.

The Bush administration projects a record $253.6 billion deficit during the fiscal year that began Oct. 1 — if the administration and Congress can stick to a proposed package of $40.1 billion in increased taxes and reduced spending. If not, the administration says the gap will total $293.7 billion.

The fiscal 1991 projection excludes the estimated $1 billion a month the government is spending on its military forces in the Persian Gulf. It expects to regain half of that from contributions from other nations.

The administration had forecast a $123.8 billion imbalance last February.

The government posted a $20.8 billion surplus in September, partly because it paid out in August about $25 billion that was due in September to avoid late payments because of the Labor Day holiday.

It had a $6.1 billion deficit in September of fiscal 1989.

Revenues amounted to $102.9 billion in September, pushing receipts for the year up 4.1 percent to $1.03 trillion. But outlays totaled $82.0 billion last month and $1.25 trillion for the year, surpassing 1989 spending by 9.4 percent. The deficit is the difference between income and outlays.

The Resolution Trust Corp., the federal agency charged with bailing out the savings and loan industry, spent $46.5 billion in fiscal 1990, including $8.8 billion in the final month.

The government hopes to regain much of the bailout cost by selling real estate, loans, securities and other assets from failed thrifts. That would help reduce the deficit in future years.

As usual, the biggest spending categories were the military, Social Security and other programs of the Department of Health and Human Services and interest on the national debt.

Applauding their handiwork

Workers at the General Motors Saturn plant in Spring Hill, Tenn., applauded the unveiling of the car Thursday. GM has said it will take at least six months before the cars are available in most major U.S. markets.

Foreign concessions are not welcome at Yosemite

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — The National Park Service director has urged the chief of MCA Inc. to sell its food and lodging concession in Yosemite National Park before MCA is acquired by a Japanese company.

Park Service Director James Ridenour told MCA Chairman Lew Wasserman that many park lovers are concerned that a takeover of MCA by Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. would put the concession in foreign hands.

Ridenour suggested that MCA sell the concession to a non-profit or other group or to the Park Service itself, the Los Angeles Times reported in today's editions.

"If the price is right, the government would be interested," said Park Service spokesman George Berkclacy.

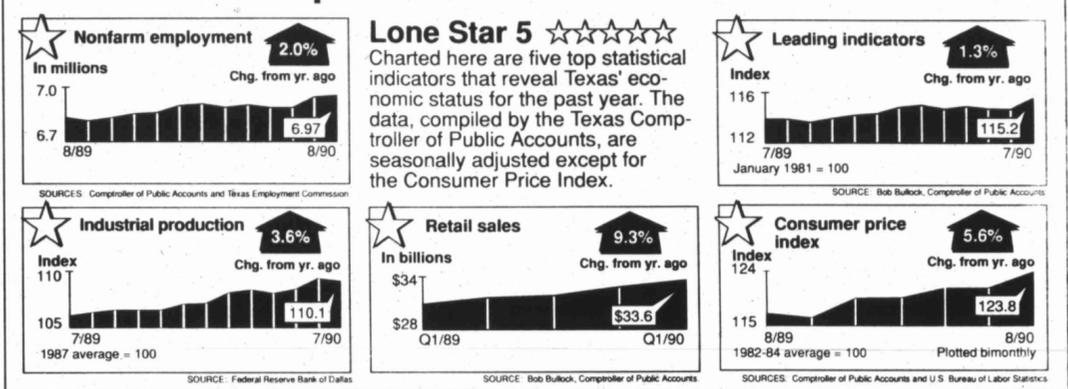

MCA owns the Yosemite Park & Curry Co., which operates lodgings, restaurants and stores in Yosemite under a contract that expires in 1993.

Matsushita and MCA are negotiating a possible purchase of MCA, which also owns Universal Studios, record companies, a film library and a television station.

"What is driving this is these national parks are America's national treasures, and while foreign owners have the right to invest in the United States, that doesn't mean they should be buying up all of America," said Steven Goldstein, spokesman for Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan, who presides over the National Park Service.

"People identify Yosemite... with mom and apple pie," Goldstein said.

Oil/gas

BORDEN COUNTY
Pumping 44 barrels of oil per day from four sets of perforations, the No. 1 McKinight has been completed in Borden County's Myrtle Field, 13 miles northeast of Gail.

Ocelot Oil Inc. of Denver is the operator. The well will produce from Strawn Formation perforations ranging from 7,628 to 7,710 feet into the wellbore.

GLASSCOCK COUNTY
Deeper drilling depth has resulted in extended production at a well in Glasscock County's Spraberry Trend Field, 14 miles west of Garden City.

Involved in the venture was the No. 1 Brunson, flowing from new perforations in the Wolfcamp Formation, 8,357 to 8,610 feet into the wellbore.

The well showed ability to flow 10 barrels of oil per day with no salt water recorded.

TGB Inc. of Midland is the operator.

Mitchell County
The No. 1 Dooley has been brought on line in Glasscock County's Northeast Barbee Field, 18 miles southeast of Garden City.

Grand Banks Energy of Midland conducted a plugback for shallower pay.

The well potential at 14 barrels of oil plus minor volumes of gas and salt water on an open choke. Production is from new perforations in the Wichita-Albany Formation, 6,166 to 6,172 feet into the hole.

Pat Gray's can make your car look like new

When your car leaves Pat Gray Body Works it will look and handle like new!

A factory-perfect paint job is the final touch when your collision repairs have been completed with Pat Gray's state-of-the-art equipment.

Pat Gray Body Works is the only body shop in this area equipped with the Italian-made Blowtherm Ultra Spraybooth oven. Not just one, but two, so there's minimal delay on your job!

This unique system features triple-filtered air so there's no dust; humidity is perfectly controlled (they can paint on a rainy day!); and the baking process is so durable, your car rolls out of the oven ready-to-go.

Pat Gray's stocks factory tinting formulas, but personnel custom mixes the paints as needed to achieve any variances caused by sun and other factors. The lighting in the paint ovens duplicates sunlight to ensure that the paint matches perfectly.

Written warranties are provided for all repairs when you bring your collision job to Pat Gray's. Lifetime warranty on workman-
