Veterans, widows and dependents are eligible to take advantage of a Department of Veteran's Affairs mobile information center Friday between 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. at the north side parking area of Highland Mall.

Those in need of assistance and information about benefits are invited to visit the unit. An accredited claims representative will be available to provide information to any veteran, widow or dependent concerning benefits which may be available through the Veterans Administration or the state of Texas.

United Way near goal of $220,000

With the deadline one day away, the Big Spring United Way has reached 89.77 percent of the 1990 goal of $220,000.

"We can account for $25-30,000 that is still not in yet," said Executive Director Sherrie Bordofsky. That amount would put the drive over the goal, according to Bordofsky. At present, the campaign has collected $197,510.32. "The response has been great," said Bordofsky. But, she added, more is needed to fund the agencies served by the United Way.

This Friday will be the final day of the 1990 campaign, with an official announcement of the drive total to be made sometime after Thanksgiving.

Bordofsky added that anyone who had not yet contributed to the United Way and would like to can mail their contributions to the United Way, P.O. Box 24, Big Spring, 79720.

Broken windows reported to police

Six incidents of criminal mischief to glass doors and windows were reported by city businesses Wednesday, following three similar reports Tuesday.

Three of Wednesday's incidents caused an estimated $500 in damage; most incidents resulted in damage reports of over $100. Most of the reports cite use some type of firearm, though several windows were reported to have been shattered by force.

The damage has occurred in the east, west and central areas of the city.

Bingo profitable for Big Spring

Bingo has become a highly profitable game all over Texas, and the city of Big Spring is no exception.

State Comptroller's reports show a recent 15 percent increase in the game's profits statewide. Bingo tax payments are up by 58 percent locally.

The city of Big Spring has received a check for just over $7,000 in bingo taxes for the last three-month period. That compares with $4,257 for the same period last year.

Democrats urge Bush to give sanctions time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats are counseling President Bush to give international sanctions against Iraq as much as 18 months to take effect before considering military moves in the Persian Gulf crisis.

At a White House meeting Wednesday, House Speaker Thomas Foley and others asked Bush to be patient. Foley suggested that the economic embargo may take many months longer to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, according to a senior congressional source.

Afterward, House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., issued a statement calling for "a policy of patient strength, permitting the economic sanctions . . . to work."

But Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., said, "I'm terribly worried about the direction they're going" in the administration.

The sanctions were imposed with broad international support following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. They have largely shut down commerce in food, oil, weaponry and other goods.

In separate closed-door briefings, senators and House members heard from Secretary of State James A. Baker III and from Defense Secretary Dick Cheney. But some left with fears the administration is edging ever closer to war.

Rep. David Obey, who attended the White House meeting, said, "I'm pessimistic about the possibility of avoiding war, based on the tone of conversation coming from administration officials."

"If we're going to be the champions of patience, we're going to send our kids into a lot of bloody battles," Obey, D-Wis., added.

Sen. Wendell Ford of Kentucky, the newly elected No. 2 Democratic leader in the Senate, said war would only split America apart. "I think there's no question about it. This is not a Grenada or a Panama. It's a Vietnam with sand."

Ford added: "I would prefer to let (the sanctions) run for a year and win without bloodshed."

Baker said the sanctions "are beginning to bite." But asked whether they would be enough to force Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw from Kuwait, he answered, "I don't think we can say that today with certainty."

Analysts say Iraq's civilian factory production has been sharply curtailed and some food shortages are occurring, but sanctions have been slow to affect the military. They point out that Iraqis, having just lived through an eight-year war with Iran, are used to finding substitutes for goods in short supply and making do without.

Following the briefing by Baker and Cheney, Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., said the embargo appears to be holding but is taking longer than expected to show signs of impact.

"The embargo is not a quick solution," Sasser said. "My counsel is patience, that we continue the sanctions with the full realization that it may take months, perhaps even a period of a year or two."

But some Republicans balked at such a long commitment, saying

State Representative Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, watches as state Senator John Montford, R-Lubbock tells Big Spring Chamber of Commerce members an increase in the state gasoline tax may be necessary to help fund highway projects.

Montford: Hike in state gasoline tax a possibility

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A suggestion to boost the state gasoline tax — by 10 cents a gallon, a 67 percent increase, to help fund highway projects — may be realistic up to 5 cents, Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, told Big Spring Chamber of Commerce members Wednesday afternoon.

"I'd say the most realistic state goal is a nickel. I don't think that's enough for the projects that we've got on the board but that's the most realistic," said Montford, who was introduced at the Chamber office board room by Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring.

Fraser, who said he may not support the increase, said he is concerned that it would benefit large metropolitan areas such as Dallas and Houston more than it would rural areas.

"I would only support it if it were for total miles and not by the population," Fraser said. "If the taxpayers out here, if they're going to pay the tax, they should end up getting the benefit."

State Department of Highways and Public Transportation officials say that only 38-40 percent of $2.5 billion in approved projects will have funding available in the next seven to eight years. Not funded in Howard County is the 10-foot widening of four 26-foot bridges on Interstate 20 at a cost of $2.4 million.

"With the proposal we would be able to meet about 65 percent of those identifiable projects," said Don Clark, the director of the highway department's travel and information division.

The proposal calls for increasing the state tax from 15 cents to 25 cents a gallon. The federal gas tax will increase from 9 cents to 14 cents on Dec. 1.

Clark said he is not sure how many of the identifiable state projects are in metropolitan areas, but said, "Of course that's where

SWCID gets new activity center

Possibly as early as this spring SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf will have a place its entire student body can gather for special programs or events. It will be the first time in the history of the college.

A land transfer with the U.S. General Services Administration, in the works for more than a year, has recently become officially complete: SWCID can take possession of the 17,000-square-foot building adjacent to its campus and the 4.51 acres around it.

Howard County Junior College District President Bob Riley noted the building's "ideal" location and the usable features inside it. There is a full auditorium in good condition, as well as facilities for a snack bar.

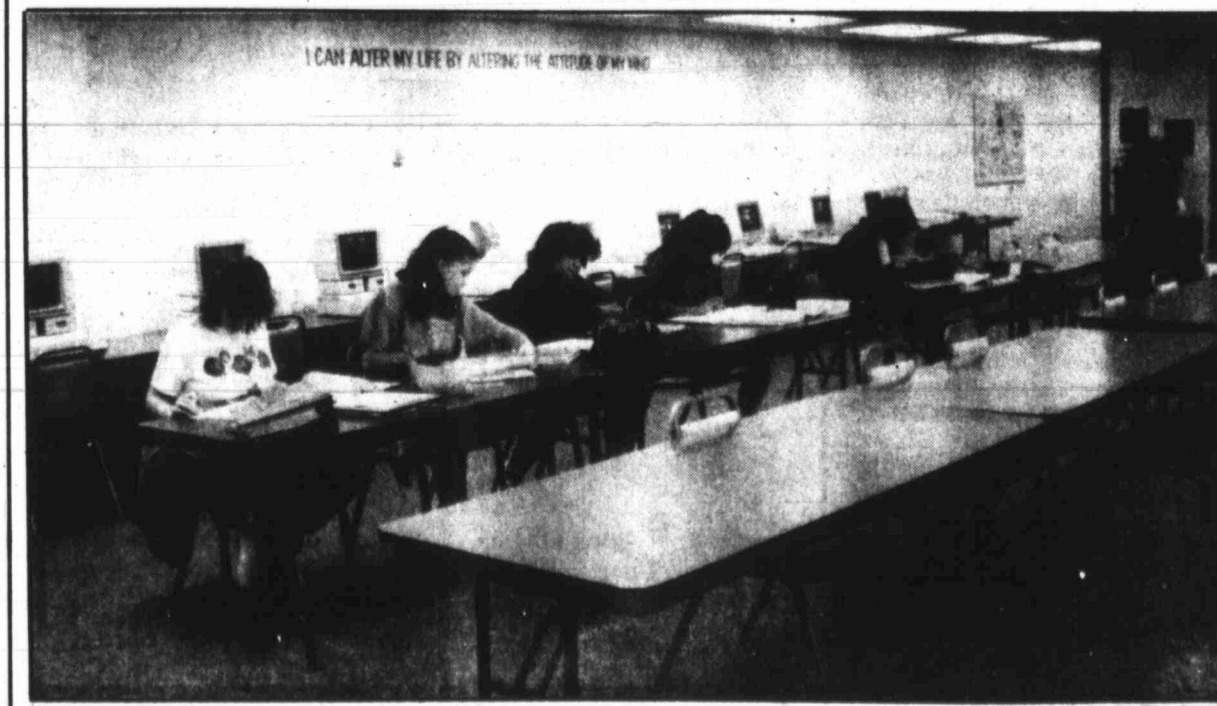

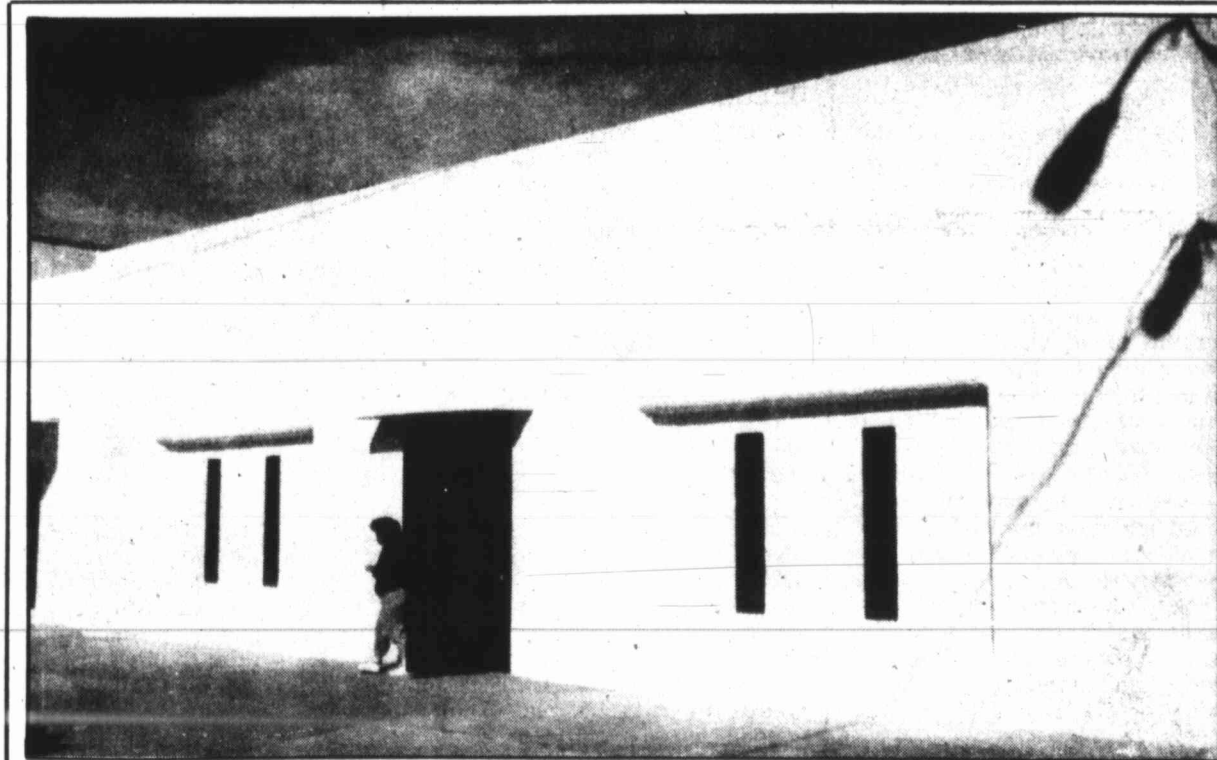

Riley said the building has had an interesting past. Now known simply as "Number 444," the building has been used for several purposes including a bar, a church, and the Non-Commissioned Officer's Club at Webb Air Force Base.

"It's really wonderful," Riley said. "It will be just a perfect student union building."

"We're very excited," agreed administrator Ron Brasel. "There has not been a place for the entire campus to get together before, and now we have this auditorium that will seat 250 people."

Remodeling work on the building has already begun, and is expected to make the building usable by the spring of this year. Brasel said a possible problem may arise with the heating and air conditioning systems, which need repair, and may be costly.

C-City official resigns

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — City Manager Brenda Hammond resigned effective Dec. 13 at a Colorado City Council meeting Tuesday night, citing problems between the city staff and some city council members.

"I resigned because of the lack of cooperation and the lack of support of city staff by some councilman," said Hammond, who did not want to name anyone or any specific problems. She did say, "Personal vendettas have no place on the City Council."

Hammond, 46, who has been city manager for about eight years, said the decision to resign was not abrupt. "I've been watching it for a while and just felt it was time to get out," she said.

Having "somewhat" of a bearing on her decision was the resignations of councilmembers Eric White last week and Dee Hearn last month, she said. White accepted a job with an oil company in Quitman and Hearn needed more time to take care of the three-year-old child of her son, who is serving with the armed forces in Saudi Arabia.

"They were good strong, solid councilman who believed in abiding by the laws of the city charter," Hammond said.

Concerning an evaluation by councilmembers of her job performance, Hammond said, "They hadn't done that. They talked about it. I don't know if they would have ever done that at all."

Mayor Jim Baum said evaluation forms were given to councilmembers at Tuesday's meeting. The forms were to be filled out and turned over to a personnel committee consisting of Councilman Gary Redwine, White and Hearn.

Baum, who said he rated Hammond "very good to excellent in

Supportive signs getting the ax

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Lisa Moseley, 28, spent two days this week putting up 300 signs in support of U.S. soldiers in the Persian Gulf. Now, she has been ordered to take some of them down, and she's plenty mad about it.

"If I have to take them down it will be with a scream — the whole city will know I'm taking them down," Miss Moseley said Wednesday after she was told any signs placed on utility poles in right-of-way were illegal.

She said she put up the signs Monday and Tuesday after getting permission from officials in Live Oak and Universal City, two incorporated suburbs in northeast San Antonio near Randolph Air Force Base. The signs read, "We Support Our Troops."

Her brother, Matthew Moseley, is an infantryman serving in the 82nd Airborne. When she called city hall in Universal City on Wednesday to ask if the city wanted to help pay for more signs, Miss Moseley said, she was told she violated an ordinance prohibiting signs on utility poles within the city's right-of-way.

Inmate bitter over sentence

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A man sentenced to die last week for killing a 15-year-old girl called the judge who presided over his capital murder trial a murderer happy to send him to death row.

Gary Wayne Etheridge, 26, of Freeport, was convicted in the Feb. 2 rape-slaying of Christie Chauviere. The girl's mother, Gail, 50, was robbed and stabbed at least 15 times in the Brazoria County attack.

During an interview Wednesday on death row, Etheridge blasted State District Judge J. Ray Gayle III, who presided over his trial in Angleton.

"If you could have looked into his eye the way I was looking into his eye when he sentenced me to die, you could have seen it was like his ultimate experience in life," Etheridge said.

Fraternity heads receive subpoenas

AUSTIN (AP) — The presidents of the 29 fraternities at the University of Texas have been subpoenaed to appear before a Travis County grand jury that is investigating allegations of hazing.

County Attorney Ken Oden and the grand jury issued the subpoenas Wednesday, saying there is "rampant disregard of the hazing statutes" among some fraternities.

The subpoenas were delivered the day after a University of Texas fraternity was suspended by university officials amidst allegations of hazing by Sigma Nu members.

The subpoenas demand the names, addresses and phone numbers of all members and pledges and recent photographs of any who are not pictured in the university yearbook.

Court overturns murder convictions

AUSTIN (AP) — Prosecutors said they plan to seek new trials in the 1987 kidnap-slaying of a Clear Lake Shores city council member and the 1979 stabbing death of a Texas A&M student.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed death-penalty convictions in both cases Wednesday.

In the Clear Lake Shores case, Timothy Lane Gribble was on parole for a 1983 rape conviction when he allegedly abducted, sexually assaulted and strangled City Council member Elizabeth "Libby" Jones in Galveston County.

Gribble, a handyman from San Leon, was helping remodel Ms. Jones' home when she disappeared in September 1987.

Governor denies reprieve for dying murderer

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements denied a request to allow a terminally ill woman out of prison to spend her last days with her 7-year-old daughter. The woman set a fire in 1985 that killed her husband, two of her children, and a friend.

Peggy Marie Taylor, 37, had been turned down twice for an emergency medical reprieve, but the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles reversed an earlier decision and recommended Monday that she be allowed to leave prison.

But Wednesday, Clements denied the request.

"She was responsible for the deaths of four people, and this was a particularly brutal, heinous offense," said Knox Fitzpatrick, associate director of the criminal justice division of the governor's office.

Peggy Marie Taylor

"She showed callous disrespect for human lives."

By Wednesday morning, he said, the governor's office had received 35 phone calls and a petition with 63 signatures opposing Mrs. Taylor's release.

On Tuesday, sitting in a wheelchair at the Gatesville unit of the Texas Department of Corrections, she talked about her hopes of hugging her 81-year-old father and reading to her young daughter, Elisa.

"It's been real hard to have a terminal illness and be away from your family," she told a Dallas

Morning News reporter. "The people here have been very good to me. But being away from my daughter has really hurt."

"It's time to go home."

Agents from the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms arrested Mrs. Taylor and charged her with arson on Sept. 5, 1985 — about six months after a fire raced through the family's one-story frame house in Rowlett, a suburb on the northeast edge of Dallas.

Her husband, Eddie Taylor, 37, and an employee of his heating and air-conditioning repair business, Earl Schultz, 51, were found dead in the dining room.

Two of Mrs. Taylor's daughters also died in the blaze. Angela, who celebrated her 11th birthday the day of the fire, was found in her bedroom. Tonya, 9, was found in the bathroom.

Mrs. Taylor and daughter Elisa, who was 16 months old at the time, escaped the fire. The girl now lives with Mrs. Taylor's brother in Wichita Falls.

Richards readies transition

AUSTIN (AP) — Speculation abounds over who Ann Richards will choose for key staff jobs and other appointments when she takes over the governor's office.

Richards on Wednesday was wrapping up a post-election vacation on South Padre Island, said Bill Cryer, her press secretary.

"She starts meeting with transition people tomorrow," Cryer said Wednesday. "Over the next several days, we're going to be meeting about the process of the transition."

Richards takes the oath of office on Jan. 15.

In a column written for the Houston Chronicle and published during the weekend, Richards said she already has assigned aides to begin organizing what she called the Texas School Assembly.

That group, she wrote, "will bring together teachers, administrators, parents and even students to help formulate an equitable solution to our crisis in public education."

Cryer said the Democrat hasn't made up her mind on any of the key appointments she will be making to assemble her staff between now and the time she takes over from retiring Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

"There have been no commitments made or anything like that," Cryer said.

But some Democrats around the Capitol have been speculating on just who might be tapped for which jobs as Richards moves from the Treasury to the governor's office.

A top political appointment for any governor is secretary of state, the individual who oversees elections and by tradition fills in for the governor at a variety of functions.

Sources, asking that their names not be used, say possible candidates for that job are state Rep. Lena Guerrero of Austin, who served as political director for Richards' campaign, and former San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, who was a campaign co-chair.

Some also have suggested the secretary of state's job might be offered to former congresswoman Barbara Jordan, who offered high-profile campaign help. But Ms. Jordan's health problems and her post at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs may keep her from the office.

Mary Beth Rogers, Richards' campaign manager and first deputy treasurer, is being mentioned for the post of chief of staff.

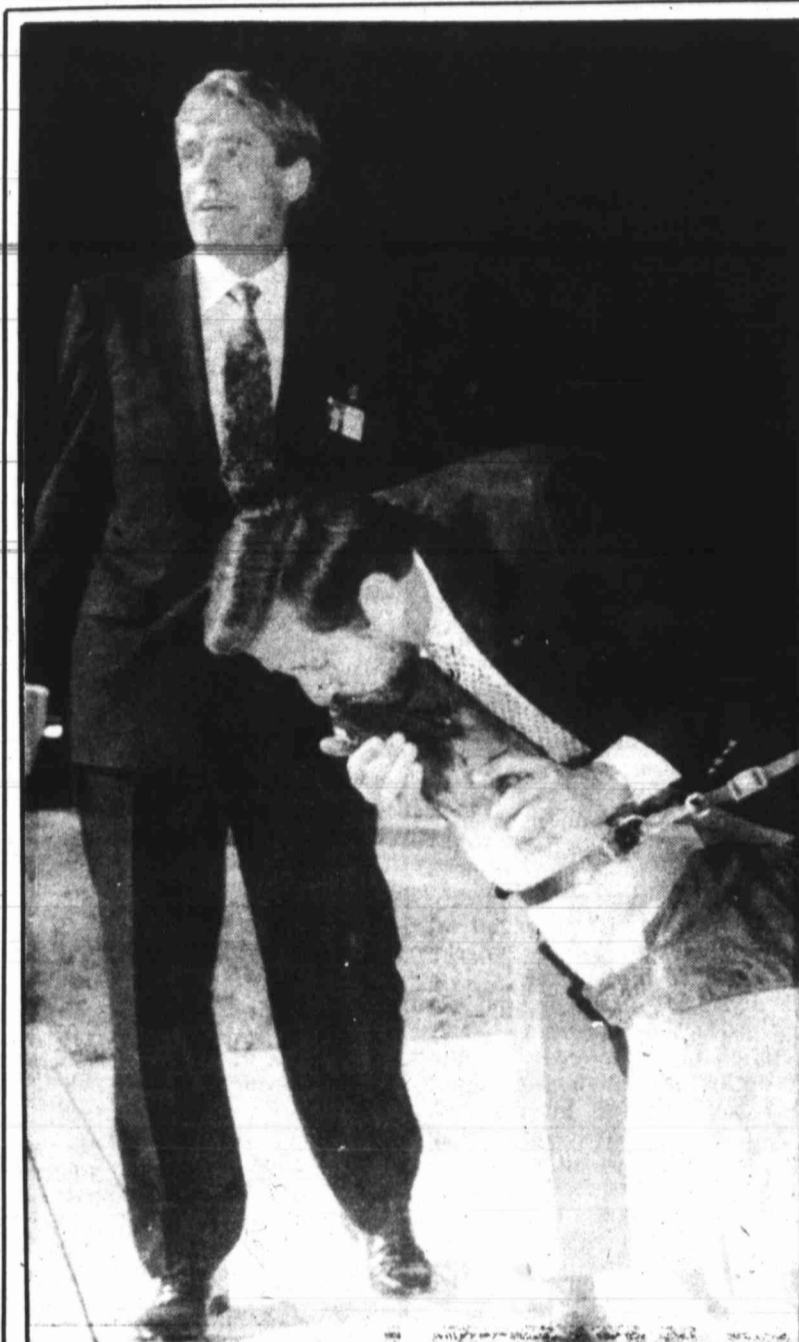

Paul Williams, the current deputy treasurer, has been suggested for budget director, as has state Rep. Ric Williamson, D-Weatherford.

Cryer, who served as Richards' spokesman at the Treasury and won good notices for his press work during her campaign, is being mentioned for the press secretary's role.

The three-member Railroad Commission, which regulates the state's oil and gas industry, will have a vacancy after the first of the year. That's when Commissioner John Sharp takes over the comptroller's office that he won on Nov. 6.

Richards will appoint a successor to Sharp. Speculation has focused on defeated Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, who lost his bid for a third term and once ran for the Railroad Commission. Hightower's name also has been mentioned for the Water Commission and Insurance Commissioner.

Other names suggested for the oil and gas panel include former state Rep. Clint Hackney, D-Houston, and state Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center. Former congressman Bob Krueger, elected to the commission last week, takes the seat of retiring Commission Chairman Kent Hance. Incumbent Jim Nugent remains.

Officials: Baylor issue helped revitalize faith

HOUSTON (AP) — The Baylor University controversy may have created friction at the Baptist General Convention of Texas, but officials said the issue ultimately served to renew Baptists' commitment to their faith.

"I think it was a very positive convention, very helpful to the people," the Rev. Phil Lineberger, president of the convention and pastor of Richardson Heights Baptist Church in Richardson, said Wednesday as the convention drew to a close.

"We focused on the family. Despite the problems with Baylor, we still went away with a great family feeling."

With a theme of "celebrating the family," the two-day convention frequently featured introductions of wives, husbands, children and grandchildren of speakers and many references to holding together the Baptist family of the church.

"Every time conflict arises there will be strong leaders who stand up and say, 'Remember folks, what it is we do agree on. We agree on almost everything and that is sharing Jesus and providing the basic needs of those that don't have.' And that's what happened here," said Ramiro Pena Jr., a messenger from Goodwill Baptist Church in Temple.

"We'll be starting fresh. Priorities are set up again. The mission is clear," Pena said.

Baylor, the nation's largest Southern Baptist university, voted Sept. 21 to change its charter, eventually replacing a 48-member panel selected by the Texas convention with a self-perpetuating body of 24.

Baylor officials contend trustees made the change to protect the school from a takeover attempt by denominational fundamentalists.

Bypass may not be the answer

DALLAS (AP) — Men with clogged heart arteries and mild chest pain can be safely treated with medicines alone, and bypass surgery does not help them live any longer, a 10-year study concludes.

The study, released Wednesday, shows that doctors need not rush to perform this common form of surgery to save the lives of those with relatively non-severe disease.

The results are part of the Coronary Artery Surgery Study, an experiment in which 780 people with chest pain and clogged arteries were randomly assigned to get bypass surgery or drug treatment. Bypass surgery has long been used to relieve angina, the chest pain that results when the arteries that feed the heart become plugged with fatty buildups. Surgeons use pieces of vein or artery to reroute blood around the clogged sections.

At the time the study began in the mid-1970s, doctors wondered whether the surgery would improve the outlook of people with bad arteries who had only mild pain.

Fat is replaced with algae product

CHICAGO (AP) — McDonald's Corp. is hoping the health-conscious will want to sink their teeth into a new super-lean hamburger that replaces some of the fat with an algae product.

The Oak Brook, Ill.-based fast-food giant announced Wednesday it is test-marketing the 91 percent fat-free burger in 54 franchises in the Harrisburg, Pa., area.

"We're excited about it and are very optimistic," said Chuck Rubner, a McDonald's spokesman. "They like the taste of the product and they like the fact that it's a low-fat alternative."

The Lean Deluxe quarter-pound burger with condiments has a 10.5 percent fat content and 310 calories. That compares to a 20.7 percent fat content and about 410 calories in the McDonald's regular Quarter Pounder.

"That's unbelievable," said Michael Jacobson, director of the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a consumer group in Washington. "Obviously, I'd have to taste it, but it could be the best burger on the market in terms of fat content."

The patty is composed of 90 percent lean beef, 9 percent water and 1 percent seasonings, Rubner said. Carrageenan, a gumlike algae product used in meats and other foods to bind ingredients, is listed as one of its seasonings.

Weather may delay launch tonight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The weather outlook worsened again for tonight's launch of Atlantis with five astronauts and a satellite that reportedly will spy on Iraq.

The shuttle is scheduled to blast off between 6:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. EST. The exact time of the military mission will be kept secret until nine minutes before liftoff, as was the case with the six previous Pentagon flights.

Air Force meteorologists today predicted a 40 percent chance of good weather at launch time, down from earlier forecasts of 60 percent. The biggest threat was crosswinds that might exceed the allowable limit of 14 mph. Another concern was scattered clouds.

"There doesn't seem to be any problems with the countdown," NASA spokesman Karl Kristoferson said today. "The weather is the only iffy thing."

The all-military crew was supposed to go up in July, but the mission was delayed when Atlantis, like Columbia, was found to have dangerous hydrogen leaks. Both ships were pronounced leak-free during fueling tests last month.

A news blackout has been imposed on the approximately four-day flight.

Inventor will sue other automakers

DETROIT (AP) — The inventor of the intermittent windshield wiper says he's ready to take on nearly two dozen other automakers after accepting a $10.2 million settlement with Ford Motor Co. for infringing on his patents.

"Maybe I got to first base," Robert Kearns, 63, of Houston, said after agreeing to the settlement Wednesday.

Intermittent wipers, now standard or optional equipment on nearly all cars sold in the United States, automatically start and stop at intervals.

World leaders to debate the future of Antarctica

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say they will oppose a proposal to make Antarctica a world park permanently off limits to mining, urging instead a limited moratorium on oil drilling and other minerals development.

The issue will be debated at talks opening Monday in Santiago, Chile, among the 24 countries with voting rights under the 1959 Antarctica Treaty.

Environmental activists said they regretted the U.S. decision to line up against the world park idea backed by France, Australia and New Zealand.

The head of the U.S. delegation, Assistant Secretary of State E.U. Curtis Bohlen, said Wednesday that a long-term moratorium was the "likely middle ground" between those nations wanting to block mining forever and those, like the United States, unwilling to rule it out.

"At the moment we have no legally binding controls," Bohlen said in a telephone interview. "A legally binding moratorium of 30 years is clearly a big step forward."

Assassination planned two years

MOSCOW (AP) — The man who tried to shoot at Soviet leaders during last week's Revolution Day parade had been planning to kill President Mikhail S. Gorbachev for more than two years, Soviet news reports said today.

Alexander A. Shmonov, a 38-year-old unemployed man from Leningrad, was charged with attempted terrorism in the Nov. 7 shooting on Red Square.

Police say Shmonov managed to fire two shots, but was prevented by police from targeting Gorbachev and other Soviet leaders, who were observing the traditional military parade from atop Lenin's Mausoleum. No one was hurt.

Col. Pyotr Sokolov, a top KGB investigator, told the newspaper Glasnost that a body search of Shmonov turned up a note confirming that Gorbachev was his intended victim.

"The note was prepared in advance in case of his death during the assassination attempt," Sokolov was quoted as saying in a Tass news agency report of the interview. "In the note, Shmonov explicitly set out his criminal intentions as regards to the Soviet president."

Palestinians march, fly their flag

JERUSALEM (AP) — Palestinians flew their outlawed national flag from rooftops today and marched through villages chanting anti-Israeli slogans, defiantly celebrating the second anniversary of their declaration of independence.

Army curfews covered most of the Gaza Strip and more than half of the West Bank, confining more than 1 million Palestinians to their homes.

The army closed all schools and declared the Gaza Strip and all West Bank cities sealed military areas to keep journalists out.

For the past two days, soldiers have fired tear gas and rubber bullets to break up marches and demonstrations that were held early in anticipation of the curfews. They also reportedly carried out widespread arrests of activists.

The underground leadership of the nearly 3-year-old Palestinian uprising called for three days of celebrations, starting today. They mark the declaration of independence issued Nov. 15, 1988 by the parliament-in-exile of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Six Americans die in Zurich crash

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Pilot error was suspected in the crash of an Italian jetliner trying to land at Zurich's international airport, killing all 46 people aboard, including six Americans, authorities said today.

The Alitalia DC-9, arriving on a 50-minute flight from Milan, skimmed treetops before its fiery crash into a wooded hillside on Wednesday night, five miles short of Klotten airport, police said.

Josef Meier, a spokesman for Swiss air traffic control authorities, told a news conference that witness accounts suggested several causes for the crash and that no possible theories, including terrorism, were being ruled out.

Cash infusion keeps airline flying for now

NEW YORK (AP) — Eastern Airlines has persuaded a federal bankruptcy judge to let it draw $15 million from an escrow account to keep on flying, thwarting efforts by creditors — at least for now — to close the airline.

Judge Burton R. Lifland ruled late Wednesday that Eastern can take the money from the $273.6 million account now and draw another $15 million next month if it can prove it is making strides toward financial recovery.

"There's a great sense of relief," Eastern spokesman Jim Ashlock said afterward. "This was the big one."

Eastern's creditors, who include banks, airplane companies and unions, had demanded the airline be closed and its assets sold off because it has no realistic chance at becoming healthy.

Tapping the escrow fund will leave Eastern without enough money to carry out an orderly shutdown, the creditors argued.

In his ruling, the judge said Eastern's bankruptcy trustee, Martin Shugrue Jr., had shown reasonable business judgment.

"I'm not sure the creditors' committee has exercised business judgment superior to that of the trustee," Lifland said.

Operation is a picnic so far

American women have served with courage and distinction in our military forces for decades, but you wouldn't know it by the spoiled, shallow comments of a female sergeant in Saudi Arabia.

When Secretary of State James A. Baker III visited some American troops involved in Operation Desert Shield on Nov. 4, this unidentified woman from Alabama was quoted in press reports as saying:

"I'm tired of eating this dirt. I'm tired of drinking hot water. I'm ready to go home. (And) I haven't had a chance to have a baby."

Wonderful.

This woman, a volunteer, has been in Saudi Arabia less than three months and has not heard a single shot fired in anger. Although she has to cope with heat and dust, she is eating three square meals a day, has complete medical care and has access to amenities (unbroken sleep, regular showers, occasional entertainment) that other troops at other times could only dream about.

No doubt the conditions in Saudi Arabia are not pleasant, but compared to the terrible hardships other generations of American soldiers have endured at Valley Forge, Bastogne or the Pusan Perimeter, Operation Desert Shield is a Sunday afternoon picnic so far.

A history lesson would be in order for this childish woman who doesn't know how lucky she is.

It's an ocean, not a sewer

A quick glance at the globe shows most of the Earth is covered by water. There seems to be so much of it that it's hard to imagine that mere humans could make a difference in the vast seas. But we've been giving it the old college try.

It's time to stop and think about the future and consider that the oceans aren't as limitless as previously thought. Fortunately, the world's largest industrial nations have reached agreement on a global ban on dumping industrial waste at sea and moved toward restricting marine pollution discharged on land.

At a meeting of the 43 signatory nations to the London Dumping Convention, a consensus was reached to phase out industrial waste dumping at sea by 1995. It is legally binding on all the nations that signed the 20-year-old London treaty, including the United States, Britain, Germany, France, the Soviet Union and almost all other industrialized nations.

The international agreement calls for dumping to stop without increasing pollution in other parts of the environment. Nations are encouraged to promote cleaner industrial processes, recycling, treatment of waste on land and more research and development on environmentally sound means of waste disposal.

These goals are to be applauded... the seas must not be turned into sewers.

Mattox helps consumers

Volvo, thanks to Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, just received a classic lesson on truth in advertising. It was a crushing experience.

The attorney general questioned the Swedish auto company's claims in a TV commercial that its cars were strong enough to stand up to monster trucks. Unlike other puny cars, the sturdy Volvos were not crushed by the big-wheeled monster trucks, the commercial demonstrated.

It turns out, though, as Volvo explained in a newspaper ad mea culpa, that the cars used in the TV commercial were not your average Volvo but were in fact reinforced to withstand the weight of the monster trucks.

When Mattox challenged the validity of the commercial, Volvo withdrew it and apologized.

Mattox's tenure as attorney general has been checked, to say the least, but in the general area of consumer protection, and especially in cases involving deceptive advertising practices, the attorney general who likes to call himself "the people's lawyer" has done a good job.

Paying for early releases

The Texas Board of Criminal Justice has heard all the loud complaints about the early release of prisoners, and now has a question to put to the complainers. It's the old and somewhat inelegant question of whether they are ready to put their money where their mouth is.

Jerry Hodge, acting chairman of the board, has a plan that calls for asking the next session of the Legislature to approve $1.3 billion for prison construction that would provide space for 37,000 additional beds.

The plan also calls for paying counties for housing convicted felons in their jails. The plan also seeks an additional 320 parole officers and 700 probation officers. Any total figure would have to include the cost of feeding and guarding and hopefully educating those 37,000 more prisoners.

This program would cost a bundle, maybe a bundle and a half. Someone will have to pay for it. Will those who complain about early releases also complain about the added cost?

Living inside the Beltway

President Bush spent a long, hard week just before the elections campaigning for the Republican candidates. Now he is in his helicopter with the White House Chief of Staff, John Sununu.

"Where are we, John?" the President asked, peering out the window.

Sununu said, "We're inside the Beltway, Mr. President."

"Oh, my God. How did we get there?"

"The White House is inside the Beltway, sir. We're going home."

"But there are terrible people inside the Beltway — liberals, abortionists and pundits. I don't want to be any place where the citizens do nothing but tax and spend, tax and spend."

"You're right, Mr. President. But we can't get you home without crossing the Beltway markers. Why don't you close your eyes as we fly over the National Press Building?"

"Whose idea was it to take this chopper inside the Beltway?"

"No one's. The White House is down there. If you want to sleep in your own bed tonight, you must stop worrying about all those folks who are trying to ram an equal rights bill down your throat."

"Everybody knows that I hate Washington, and I would prefer to spend my time with real Americans in Iowa."

"I understand, sir, but the campaign is over now and it doesn't matter if you run the country from the Okefenokee Swamp. We have to go inside the Beltway because that's where the Rose Garden is."

"I don't understand why you are so insistent."

"Because I need clean socks and fresh underwear, Mr. President. No matter what you think of South Dakota, the only place where you are going to get someone to do your laundry right here in Washington."

"What's that building down there that's all lit up?"

"That's the Capitol, sir."

"Is that within the Beltway, too?"

"Yes, and it's filled with Democrats."

"Maybe if we located it beyond the Beltway, we could get our own people inside."

"I don't think that we have the votes to do it. I believe that we should land on the White House lawn and forget that we are part of a highway system we never made. The Beltway system belongs to all Americans, whether they are rich or well-to-do."

"I wonder if Barbara knows that she's living inside the Beltway?"

"Not only does she know it — so does the dog, Millie."

"How can the dog know?"

"Barbara had to buy her a D.C. dog tag."

"What I like about living in Maine is that there are no beltways."

"Or left-wingers — or a do-nothing Congress that is screwing up your programs."

"If it weren't for the Beltway, I could drive my golf cart all the way to Camp David."

"We're going down, Mr. President."

"In the helicopter?"

"No, sir. In the polls."

All together now: What is the world coming to?

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Random notes while winterizing my lawn (i.e. totally ignoring it while the weeds die):

***
The following will probably only serve to further convince people that the world is heading for hell in a handbasket.

After three years of scanning through the Associated Press wire on a daily basis, I thought that I was just about inured to random violence, until I read a brief from the town of Lille, France.

It seems that a 6-year-old boy became so put out when his mother denied him a Coca-Cola that he went into the bedroom, loaded his father's shotgun and seriously wounded his mother in the abdomen.

That's right, folks. A 6-year-old boy, probably not much different from any such tyke walking the streets in this country, almost killed his mother over a stupid Coke.

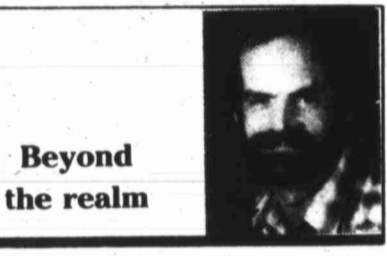

All together now: What the heck is this world coming to?

Granted, this is just an isolated incident (at least I hope so), but it's still enough to send a chill down your spine and make you wonder what can of kid would shoot his mom over something so trivial.

His mother is expected to recover, but for the time being, the boy has been placed in temporary custody of a children's home.

Makes you wonder what kind of welcome Junior will receive when and if he ever comes home, doesn't it? How will Dad react to this near-killing? How would I react if my boy shot my wife? How would you react?

As Arsenio Hall would say:

Beyond the realm

Hmmmmmmmm.

Now, let's shift to less ominous news...

Getting paid to put my thoughts in print has always struck me as just about the ideal way to cash a paycheck, but I do feel empathy toward the subject of my ramblings, especially my wife and family.

My wife, God bless her, has more or less resigned herself to the fact that most — if not all — of her comments will eventually find their way to my column.

My boy, Jeramy, on the other hand, thinks it incredibly neat that I've made him a minor celebrity of sorts.

I don't quite know how our cats feel about the subject.

Keyko and Sylvester have, after a brief adjustment period, pretty much taken over control of the household. Although they have fairly well confirmed my darkest fears about cats, I have to admit the furry critters are most entertaining.

Keyko, the white runt, has had a hard life in his first few months. He was mauled by a dog while practically a newborn, and has had nearly every sickness a kitten can have since that time.

Since we got him from the Humane Society, we've had to treat him for tapeworms, ringworms, viruses, an eye infection and fever.

He seems to have recovered from all of that in fine fashion. I make that claim because he has begun to show an absolute fondness toward eating and scratching every bit of clothing in the house.

We are seriously considering having him de-clawed, but an acquaintance told us our purposes would be served just as well if we merely clipped his claws with a nail clipper.

However, having spent the last few weeks cataloguing the various scratches on my arm from trying to feed Keyko his medicine, I do not look upon my friend's suggestion with any degree of confidence.

Stay tuned for further developments.

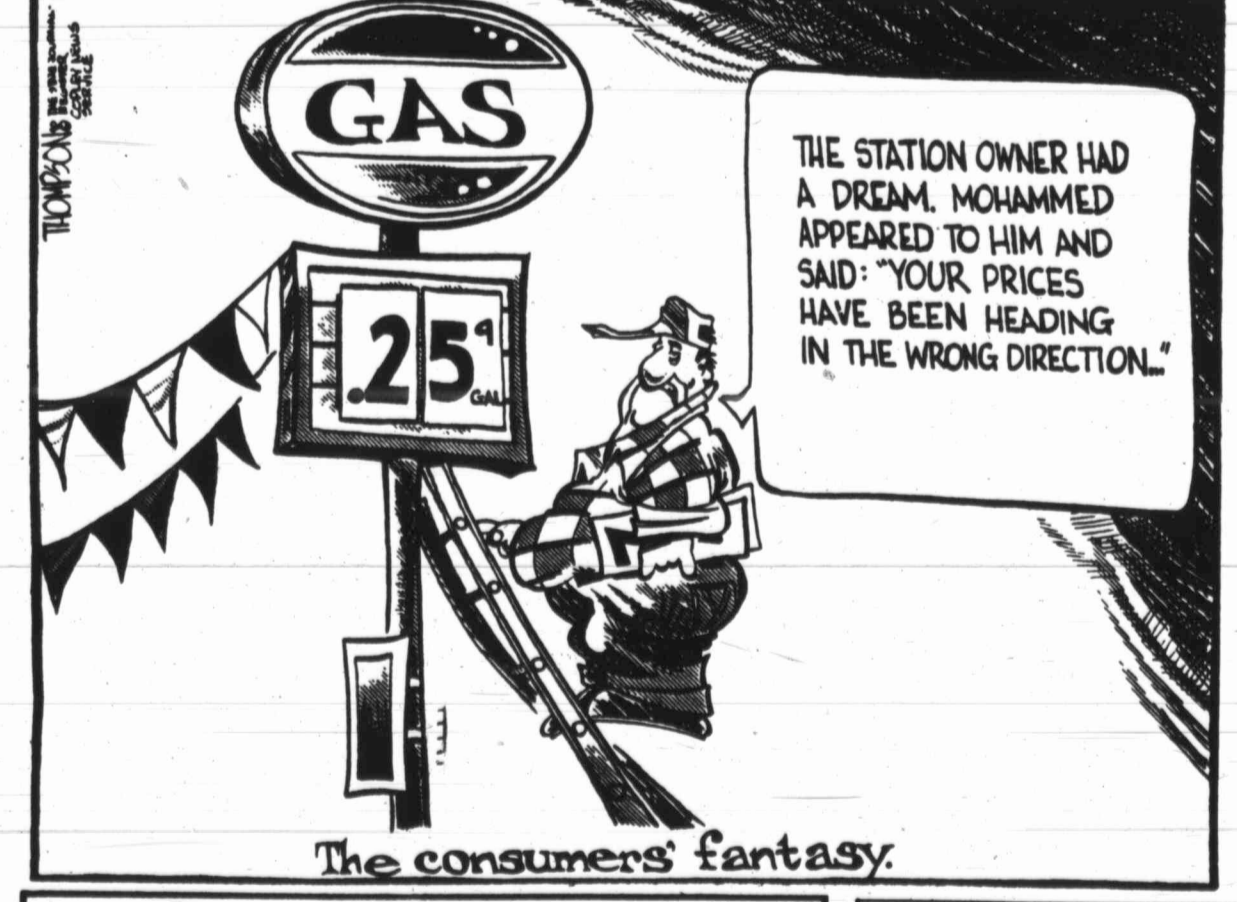

As for Sylvester, our black glutton, he seems to have adjusted to his role of master of all he surveys with great magnanimity.

His favorite thing to do — besides eat us out of house and home — is to perch atop the TV set or couch and peer at us as if to say, "And what can your king do for you today, loyal subjects?"

I hate to admit it, but with his shiny black coat and mysterious eyes, he does look very regal while giving us the once-over from his lofty throne.

He is, alas, a distant ruler, only occasionally descending from his mountaintop to commiserate with his subjects. He is not the most affectionate cat around, but he still eats our food, so I guess he finds some worth in us.

Oh well, as long as he doesn't edit my columns, I guess we can live together.

State clerk saves money but loses job

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A state clerk's suggestion to use a machine to count pages may win him $10,000, but it already has cost him his job.

George Arroyos of Georgetown is one of seven finalists for the first prize in the governor's Productivity Suggestion Awards. The winners are to be announced Thursday.

His entry explained a way to save money for the Texas Workers Compensation Commission.

But the money saved was his own $10,428-a-year salary.

"In only four months, I succeeded in eliminating my job," Arroyos said.

"I got hired as a mail opener and page counter," he said. "Whenever anyone needs copies of cases on file, (the agency) has to print up the copies. My job was to count the number of pages reproduced."

He said he counted so many pages he thought, "There has to be a better way of doing this."

After checking several copier services, Arroyos discovered a $6 page counter that attaches to most copying machines.

Kitten lives through hair-raising event

SOUTHINGTON, Conn. (AP) — A kitten survived the hair-raising experience of being sucked up by the 175 mph force of a vacuum hose on a leaf-collector truck.

Instead of being cut by the machinery, the homeless orange-and-white kitten landed safely in a pile of leaves inside the collection bin Friday.

Workers who realized the machine had sucked up a kitten, and petrified that they might have killed someone's beloved pet, decided to see how the animal had fared.

They dug about 4 feet into the collection bin — and saw nothing. Then they dumped the leaves out and carefully poked around with a rake. Expecting to see a ghostly sight, they were relieved to find the kitten unharmed but visibly shaken.

"It looked like one of those Halloween cats with its hair standing straight up," Taylor said.

Actors get married in a movie theater

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (AP) — The groom wore a theater usher's uniform, a kazoo band performed the wedding music and guests threw popcorn instead of rice as two aspiring actors tied the knot at a theater.

Mark Moriarty, 32, and Lucinda Gray, 30, tried to evoke the theme of an old-fashioned Hollywood premiere during their marriage ceremony Saturday at the Rees Cinema in northern Indiana.

"We were talking about the theater being our church. And that we considered it religious" in a sense, Moriarty said.

Moriarty, a Plymouth native, donned an old-style theater usher's pillbox hat and uniform. He waved a flashlight to escort theatergoers to their seats.

The wording of the marriage vows also was non-traditional.

The groom intoned, "Lucinda, I promise to obey. To ask directions when lost in the car. To obey. To keep you in a manner that you've grown accustomed. To obey. To love you. To keep you close to my heart. And to obey. And obey."

She responded, "Mark, I promise to carry all your children and to be cheery at Christmastime... and love you... with all my heart."

Mother, daughter are in labor together

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — In one weekend, a 43-year-old woman became a mother for the third time and a grandmother for the first time.

Connie Jackson and her 21-year-old daughter, Reena Bochner, delivered babies one day apart at Kaiser Hospital.

Jackson and Bochner were in adjoining rooms.

"I've been here 10 years and this has never happened," said hospital spokeswoman Mary Jane Watt. "I think it's a happy coincidence."

Jackson delivered a month early, giving birth Saturday to Josette, a 4-pound, 14-ounce girl. On Sunday, Bochner delivered 6-pound Mason.

"Having another daughter makes me feel young," Jackson said. "And having a grandson makes me feel wonderful."

Mercury poisoning is a growing danger

MIAMI (AP) — Poisonous mercury is spewing unregulated out of the nation's smokestacks and reaching dangerous levels in soil, plants and animals.

Twenty states from Florida to Minnesota to California have limited or banned consumption of fish from some lakes and streams.

One of the highest mercury concentrations in the country is poisoning the once-pristine Everglades, and has been blamed for the death of at least one endangered Florida panther.

Scientists and environmental groups are pointing the finger at two mercury emission sources left unregulated by the Environmental Protection Agency — coal-fired energy plants and the fastest-growing threat, trash-burning municipal incinerators.

"In the past, we would take our mercury wastes and bury them so they would contaminate the ground water in just one place," said Gary Glass, an EPA mercury researcher in Duluth, Minn. "Now we've gotten smarter — we're blowing it into the air so it can go everywhere."

Washington-based Clean Water

In humans, mercury can damage the brain, liver, kidney and blood, and is often characterized by tremors and confusion. It also causes deformations in fetuses. . . .

Action, using data supplied by industry and the EPA, reported last month that 187 incinerators nationwide emit almost 75,000 pounds of mercury each year. Ninety more incinerators are planned.

Massachusetts, New York, Florida and Ohio led the list, but all but four states have incinerators emitting mercury; those four are planning facilities.

"Mercury emissions have doubled in the last decade and will probably double again if all planned incinerators are brought on line," warned Henry Cole, who helped write Clean Water Action's study.

Mercury comes from a variety of sources in trash, including batteries, paints, dyes, electronics, fluorescent lights, plastics — and even yard cuttings, which have picked up the contaminant from previous airborne pollution.

Municipal garbage-burning plants spread the indestructible mercury by heating it into a vapor that can travel 200 miles, said Paul Connett, a chemistry professor at St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y.

The mercury ultimately settles in soil and water. It accumulates exceptionally well in moist peat, helping to explain the high Everglades readings. But a California study found forest canopies can collect mercury even under drier conditions.

The poison moves up the food chain, concentrating more at each level, a process called biomagnification. From soil it travels to plants, fish, and on to raccoons, otters, eagles and other predators — including people.

Concentrations found in fish at one Minnesota lake have increased 5 percent a year since 1970, according to a Minnesota Pollution Control Agency study.

MIAMI, Fla. — Members of the Greenpeace organization display banners from two municipal incinerator stacks in Miami, Fla., Oct. 16th. Greenpeace alleges that these stacks are a major source of mercury emissions in South Florida and in the Everglades.

Environmentalists warn that pollution control is not enough. Mercury, they note, cannot be destroyed and remains in the environment forever.

City wants to evict sea lions from harbor

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — The Monterey harbor has become a sort of Sea Lion Motel where the sardines are plenty and the living is easy. But the pinnipeds may soon face eviction as officials renew their fight to roust the mammals.

City officials hope to drive away the mammals by enforcing a proposed amendment to a 1972 federal law that protects sea lions from harm. The change, which could go into effect early next year, would make it illegal to feed marine mammals, putting an end to concessionaires selling sea lion snacks that tourists have used to lure the animals to shore.

"To the average Joe, the sea lions look like something out of a Walt Disney movie, but until you go down to the docks and stand right next to one of these monsters, it's hard to understand what the city is dealing with," said Mitch Whippert, administrative assistant for the Monterey Public Facilities Department.

Most of the hundreds of sea lions who gather off the Monterey coast sun themselves on rocks about a football field away from the harbor. But tourists have lured dozens of the animals to the wharf and on-to floating boat slips — to the dismay of city officials and fishermen.

A dozen of the 300- to 800-pound mammals recently climbed on a tugboat and sank it. Others have prevented some boat owners from docking. The city has spent $40,000 so far this year repairing sea lion damage at the docks.

Whippert said city officials have tried to scare away the sea lions by spraying them with high pressure hoses, banging together garbage cans, hitting brooms against the docks and using an ultrasonic whistle.

"If we had a guy out there with a hose all day we could keep them off, but if you leave for a minute they come right back," Whippert said.

Man needs to learn to have compassion

DEAR ABBY: I am an older gentleman who loves to dance. When I go to dances, I am constantly pestered by older women who want to dance with me. I turn them down, politely, of course — because most of them are terrible dancers! I go to public dance halls to show off my dance skills. When I dance with a woman, I make her look like a professional dancer, so women half my age are willing to date me. Therefore, I don't waste my time with older women.

Last year I took a job teaching ballroom dancing at $25 an hour. I made excellent money — but I was dancing with older women and fat young women, which I hated. I quit because it was punishment to dance with poor dancers.

There are some older women who dance well, and I get plenty of requests to escort them to fancy functions. Some of these women are widows with fortunes and big homes. I would marry one of these older women on the condition that the house would have to require two maids, and I would be in charge of hiring and firing those maids.

Meanwhile, I am living comfortably and am faring well dating younger women. What more does a man need in life? — THE BIG DIPPER IN LAS VEGAS

DEAR B.D. IN L.V.: How about a little compassion and humility?

DEAR ABBY: For the third or fourth time this year, I have received a chain letter. I throw them in the trash basket, but I have known several people who get terribly upset about not answering them. Some of them have been people who could not really afford the stamps to do so but were afraid of the threats of terrible things that would happen to them.

I am tired of being told I will die immediately or lose my job if I don't send this on, none of which has happened because I believe only the Lord knows when my time is up. But other people go to pieces over this. I would turn them in to the post office if there was an address, but there isn't. What can we do about this stuff? I won't sign my name because I'd be sure to get a dozen more. — END OF THE CHAIN

DEAR END: Please do not discard a threatening chain letter. Chain letters are clearly in violation of the law. Send them to your postmaster with the envelope in which they were mailed. The postmark may provide a clue in locating the sender.

To get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Friendly vampire's story continues

Book review by Cindy Appel

Book three in the continuing saga of "The Vampire Files" begins with friendly vampire, Jack Fleming, under some not so friendly interrogation.

It seems the police need some explanation as to what actual happened in the bloody melee that occurred at the climax of book two, "Lifeblood." Why exactly was a shriveled corpse found sprayed with wooden bullets and not the usual metal kind?

Jack, finding a plausible reason difficult, uses his hypnotic powers to cover up his vampire heritage. Under Jack's influence, the cops accept his story allowing him to leave town in order to do some investigating of his own.

"Bloodcircle" chronicles Jack's attempt to find his missing vampire lover, Maureen Dumont. He and his companion, Charles Escott, ex-actor now private investigator, follow her faint trail to Long Island.

The clues lead them to the palatial estate of one Emily Fran-

'Pacific Heights' director is fan of Hitchcock style

NEW YORK (AP) — John Schlesinger lately has been thinking a lot about Alfred Hitchcock.

Actually, he hasn't had much choice. Schlesinger's latest film, "Pacific Heights," is a psychological thriller with irresistible connections to the master of suspense himself. Questions are bound to arise.

Based on a true story, "Pacific Heights" stars Melanie Griffith and Matthew Modine as a young couple who purchase a large Victorian house in San Francisco and plan to rent rooms on the ground floor.

But they are nearly ruined when smooth-talking Carter Hayes (Michael Keaton) occupies one apartment and refuses to pay, manipulating the legal system so Griffith and Modine end up on the wrong side of the law.

Hitchcock would have loved it. He specialized in making a little mayhem with "ordinary" lives, turning an advertising executive into a fugitive in "North by Northwest" and placing a dead body in a small New England town in "The Trouble With Harry."

Schlesinger fans will spot some of the director's own touches in "Pacific Heights," a sense of understatement, an insistence that all ends remain loose, and an ever-observant camera that cases a room, item by item, like an electronic house detective.

Schlesinger, born in London in 1926, was a character actor for stage, film and television and also made documentaries; "Terminus" won the Golden Lion for best documentary at the 1961 Venice Film Festival.

cher, millionairess and hermit, and into the office of her "private secretary", Jonathon Barrett.

Barrett's late hours are a "dead" give-away as to his and Jack's shared condition. He tells that Maureen, also his former lover, came to him five years ago seeking help to hide from her evil and insane sister, Gaylen.

But after only one day's stay at the Francher estate, she mysteriously left without a word. He had assumed she was still hiding safely somewhere, but Jack isn't so certain: the trail stops cold at a ferry crossing at the north end of the island.

Why would a vampiress who loathes to cross flowing water even consider catching a ferry? And who is Laura, Emily's young ward, and why does she seem so infatuated by Barrett? Could Barrett have some other plans for the Francher fortunes?

"Bloodcircle" mixes detective fiction with the age-old fascination of the vampire tale and succeeds as both mystery and fantasy. The humor is being a vampire in modern times (1930's) is also a plus — just what do you do when you are found unconscious by the side of the road and it is discovered you have no pulse or respiration?

How will you explain to the mortuary director when you wake up that you are still alive? And then there's that continuing problem of never being able to catch a matinee... The sympathy the reader has for Jack despite his "condition" is never forced and makes him an unexpectedly attractive hero to cheer on.

"Bloodcircle" is a satisfying addition to "The Vampire Files."

How's that?

Q. Is a person entitled to unemployment compensation if they resign from their job?
A. According to Commissioner Nabers, Commissioner Representing Employers on the Texas Employment Commission, this is a common misconception. Employees do not pay into the unemployment insurance system. Only employers do. Therefore, there are disqualification provisions which prevent the payment of benefits to people who are somehow responsible for their own unemployed status.

Living standard has declined for Hispanics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1980s was a time of declining incomes and deteriorating living conditions for Hispanics in cities across Texas and the rest of the country, according to a study.

The independent, non-profit Aspen Institute, in a report Wednesday, said overall conditions for Hispanics improved in only one major metropolitan area — Miami — and remained relatively stable in only one other city with a large Hispanic population — San Diego.

But for Hispanics in 11 other cities, the "parity gap" with Anglos widened over the past decade, the report said.

The 13 cities studied are home to two-thirds of U.S. Hispanics. While some of those cities were in regions

"While the rich got richer and the poor got poorer, did Hispanics get poorer than Anglos? They did."

Aspen Institute report

suffering economic downturns in the 1980s, the report said it found that when things got worse for everyone in a local market, they got even worse for Hispanics.

"While the rich got richer and the poor got poorer, did Hispanics get poorer than Anglos? They did," the report said.

Between 1979 and 1987, the real median family income of Hispanics fell in all but four of the 13 areas — New York; McAllen, Texas; Miami; and Phoenix, where it remain unchanged.

McAllen saw the biggest surge in real median family income, which the study attributed to a partnership between the United States and Mexico that is boosting the local economy.

With the exception of McAllen, the greatest declines occurred among Hispanics in Texas, where the economy was hit hard by the oil price shocks of the 1980s, the study found.

In Dallas, Hispanics' median family income fell from $23,274 in 1979 to $19,000 in 1987, while the percentage of Hispanics living in poverty grew from 20 percent to 30 percent over the past decade.

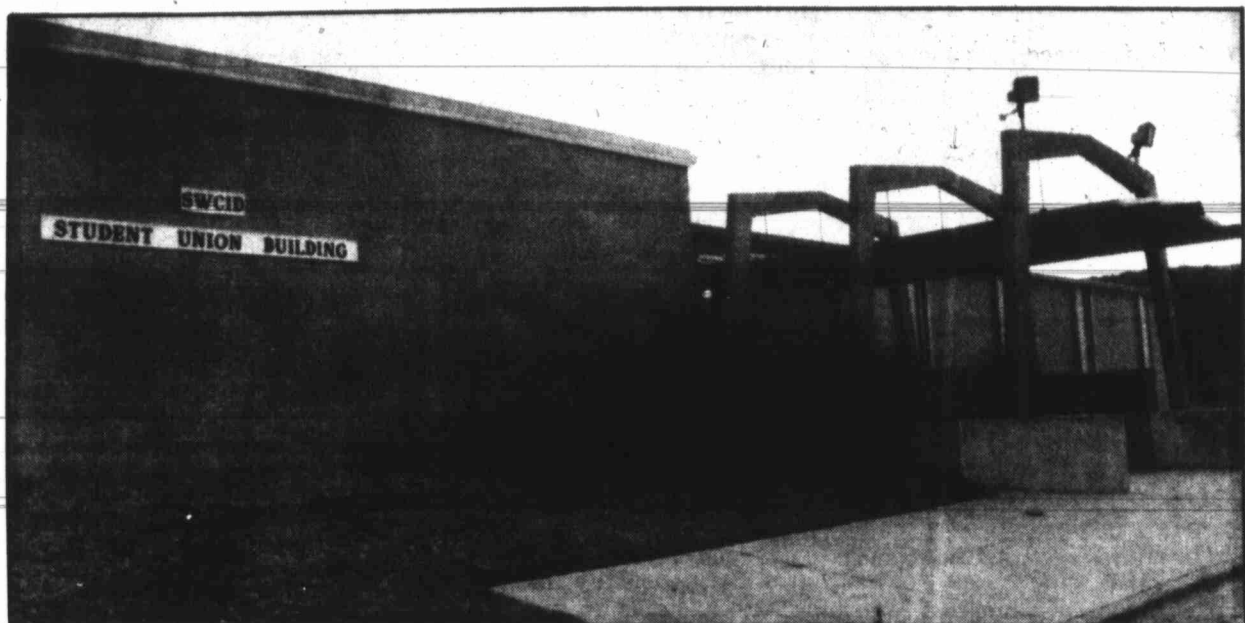

In Houston, Hispanics' family income fell from $25,281 in 1979 to $19,000 in 1987. At the beginning of the 1980s, 19 percent of Hispanics were living in poverty, at the close of the decade, 30 percent were considered below the poverty level.

Hispanics' median family income also fell in San Antonio over the decade, from $19,638 to $16,000, while those under the poverty level grew from 27 percent to 34 percent. In McAllen, median income grew from $15,493 to $20,710, while the percentage of poor Hispanics fell.

In El Paso, however, family income dropped from $18,176 to $15,075, while the percentage of Hispanics in poverty rose from 29 percent to 43 percent.

"The nation's competitive position cannot be maintained if a sharp division continues between stable leadership isolated in the suburbs and poor workers and an underclass isolated in deteriorating inner cities," said Solomon D. Trujillo, vice president and general manager of US WEST Communications.

Although the land transfer was only recently completed, SWCID already has their name on the new Student Union Building adjacent the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf campus.

Riley said no money was budgeted for the building this year, but money can be used out of the general maintenance fund. Brasel expressed his hope that state funding can be applied to the project.

"This will provide us with additional space we've needed for a long time," Brasel said. He added that planned uses include a student activity center, additional office and storage space.

"There will be opportunity for future growth with this facility," he said. Work will be completed "as time permits," especially during the holiday seasons while students are away.

Kohl promises supplies to Soviets

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl said today that Germany is ready to send the Soviets emergency supplies in case of a food crisis, and a newspaper said Washington is drawing up plans to provide food and medical aid.

There is concern that the Soviet Union could face serious shortages of food and other essentials this winter, causing extreme hardship and possibly provoking civil unrest.

Kohl, in a speech to Parliament, said Eastern European nations also could face severe problems this winter and that he would like wealthy industrial states to be ready to help out.

The German leader said that in his talks last weekend with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, he promised that Germany would assist the Soviet Union financially "to the best of our powers."

He said Germany will be sending a group of "high-ranking experts" to advise the Soviets as they attempt the transition from a socialist command economy to a free-market system.

Kohl noted that Germany has already promised massive amounts of assistance for the Soviets — so far about $19.5 billion. He promised that Germany will send emergency shipments of food to the Soviet Union "in case of acute supply crises."

The chancellor said that in his talks with President Bush this Sunday at Kohl's home in Oggersheim, he will urge that all Western industrial nations be ready to help out the economically embattled former Soviet bloc.

"I will discuss with President Bush how the Western industrial lands can effectively and jointly support the reform processes" in Eastern Europe, "especially in view of the severe winter standing before the reform states," said Kohl.

Manager

almost all categories," said he needed to appoint two more councilmembers to the committee but the point is moot now. Mayor Pro Tem Bob Riley, who suggested having the evaluation, probably would have been one of those appointed, he said. He was not sure who the other councilmember would have been.

When Hammond leaves her $28,785 a year job the city will have $926,000 in its coffers, compared to a loan of $100,000 when she took office in 1984.

She praised the city staff of 70 employees, all of which she hired except six. "Our staff represents 270 years of experience," she said.

Meanwhile, Baum said they have begun advertising in area publications for a new manager and they have been advised by Texas Municipal League officials that it takes an average of 2-3 months to find and hire one.

"She's going to be hard to replace," he said. "She has done a good job for us. There have been some improvements made."

As far as the future, Hammond, a Colorado City native, said she will do some consulting work and mentioned the possibility of running for District 6 on the City Council in a special election Jan. 19 to fill the two vacant Council positions.

"City business is in my blood and I loved every day of it," she said. "Only the politics is a distraction."

The special election was approved by the Council Tuesday. It will be the first time Council positions are elected from single districts, a result of an agreement reached in a voting rights suit filed in December by the League of United Latin American Citizens. District 1 is a designated minority district with a majority of Hispanics.

Hammond was elected to an at-large position on the Council in 1984 before becoming city manager for a second time. She resigned as city manager in 1981 after two years of service when her daughter became ill with cancer. Before that she was city secretary from 1975-79.

Mideast

Americans would have no patience for leaving troops in place through 1991.

That is "far beyond the time frame I thought appropriate," said House Republican Leader Robert Michel of Illinois. Such a long wait would require "shoring up the American public's attitude" toward the gulf deployment.

Senate GOP Leader Bob Dole of Kansas added: "If the American people are frustrated already, after three-plus... months, what are they going to be a year from now?"

The administration and Congress also clashed over the president's obligation to seek permission before undertaking any offensive military moves. Lawmakers reiterated their constitutional right to declare war. Baker said Bush would follow the Constitution, but pointedly added, "It's a question of what the Constitution requires."

With House and Senate hearings on gulf policy scheduled as early as next week, the idea of calling Congress back into an emergency session appeared to have fallen from favor.

Meanwhile, a nationwide poll of 1,020 Americans that was commissioned by arms control advocates found that most oppose going to war with Iraq even if the standoff continues early next year.

The poll, conducted by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., said 44 percent favor continuing the sanctions and 14 percent want U.S. troops withdrawn from Saudi Arabia. An additional 30 percent would choose war, but only if allies and the United Nations approved first; and 8 percent chose war even without approval.

The poll, financed by the Professionals' Coalition for Nuclear Arms Control, was conducted Friday through Tuesday and had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Suspension law may not help in drug war

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new law requiring states to suspend the driver's licenses of all convicted drug offenders or lose some federal highway funds may not help the war on drugs, an official of the National Governors' Association says.

There is no data proving that mandatory license suspensions, imposed first in New Jersey, prompts people to turn away from drugs, said Nolan Jones, staff director for the association's justice and public safety committee.

"It sounds like a good idea, but let's see if it's working" before forcing every state to enact similar rules, Jones said.

The measure, included in the fiscal 1991 transportation appropriations bill, applies to all states and all illegal drugs, including the 10 states where possession of small amounts of marijuana has been decriminalized but is still considered an infraction of the law.

The legislation drew little attention when it was approved during a flurry of activity Oct. 27 as Congress rushed to leave town. President Bush signed it into law Nov. 5.

The bill calls for withholding 5 percent of federal highway funds starting Oct. 1, 1993 from states that fail to require six-month driver's license suspensions for everyone convicted of any drug offense. The cut would increase to 10 percent on Oct. 1, 1995.

"Numerous states have driver's license revocation laws, but they don't go as far as this calls for," Jones said in an interview. "That points to why we are against the whole issue of mandates when looking at this sort of problem."

About half the states allow suspension of drug offenders' licenses.

most of the congestion is, is in the seven major metropolitan areas."

The Greater Dallas Chamber of Commerce pledged its support Monday for the 10-cent gas tax increase but Montford recommended to Chamber members here that they may want to wait until after the Legislature convenes in January before action on any endorsement.

"I would say 'wait until the Legislature gets in session' to get some direction on this," he said. "Before there's any increase in the motor fuels tax, I think it needs to be thoroughly massaged in the House and Senate."

Although the state may be facing a funding shortfall of $3.5 billion when the legislature meets next year, Montford said there may not be a tax bill passed next year.

"I don't want to be quoted as saying we don't need it but I don't think we're going to have a tax bill, at least for another year," he said.

Fraser predicted afterward that the gas tax increase will not be approved. "There's too many tax problems," he said.

Chamber Vice President Adolph Jancza said, "I guess it just depends on how bad people want highway miles built. If that's the trade-off, it may get some support."

As far as the Chamber taking a position, Jancza said, "I don't know. We'll have to study it. We might support it, agreeing there may be compromise before any action is taken."

Steers ready for rested Loboes

Thursday notes

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

Before the season started, everyone thought Friday's regular-season finale between the Big Spring Steers and Monahans Loboes would decide the district championship or a playoff spot. Neither will be at stake Friday night at Memorial Stadium.

But as far as Steers coach David Thompson and Monahans coach Bren Holland are concerned, there will be no intensity letdown for the contest. The Loboes head into the contest with a 3-2 district record and 6-3 overall mark, having lost league games to Sweetwater 7-3, and Andrews 34-26. In both games Monahans led the statistical battle but lost the war.

The Steers, 7-1 overall and 5-0 in district play, clinched the district title last week by downing Andrews 10-8.

Coach Thompson feels it's going to be everything championship battles are made of. "Monahans has a good football team, and we do know this — they'll play us awfully hard," said Thompson.

"I haven't noticed much of a letup in the kids (Steers); maybe a little bit Monday. This is a typical Monahans football team. They're scrappy, plus they think they should've beat us in the quarter-finals last year. I know we better be ready to play."

Thompson views it an advantage to play such a talented team right before the Steers enter the state playoffs. "I think it's good to play a tough team like Monahans. It's time to hone up and get ready for the playoffs."

Holland said his team, which had an open date last week, will be in the right frame of mind to play.

"The open week really helped, just to give us time to heal up," said Holland.

"We'll give it our best shot Friday night. I wouldn't think that this game will lack intensity. Sometimes Texas-OU is played for the national championship; sometimes it's for nothing but pride. There'll still be some head-knocking going on. It's going to be a good football game."

The Loboes have been plagued by injuries, especially on offense.

Miller still on team

Rumors have circulated this week that tailback-linebacker Jermaine Miller is no longer on the team. Steers coach David Thompson said today that Miller is still on the squad, but won't play against Monahans.

Thompson said that there will be a team meeting today to discuss Miller's status.

Miller is Big Spring's leading rusher, with 199 carries for 1,045 yards.

He is being highly recruited by several major colleges, including Texas A&M and Oklahoma.

Awards will be given to the overall male and female finishers, and top three finishers in each age group. The overall male and female finisher will also win a turkey. The first 100 entrants will receive T-shirts.

Coahoma youth hoops tryouts

Tryouts and draft will be Saturday for the Coahoma Youth Basketball League.

Tryouts will be at the Coahoma Junior High gym, for youth ages 9-12. Girls will tryout at 10 a.m. and boys will tryout at 1 p.m.

Former Steers in playoffs

Former Big Spring Steers Abner Shellman and Danny Williams, are headed to the playoffs for Greenville College. Greenville, a National Intercollegiate Athletic Association school, is making its first-ever playoff appearance. The Panthers, 8-1, and ranked No. 13 in the nation, will play the No. 1 team in the nation, Central Washington.

The two teams will lock horns Saturday at noon (2 p.m. Texas time) in Seattle.

Williams and Shellman are the starting cornerbacks for the Panthers. Williams is tied for the conference lead in interceptions with four. Shellman has two thefts.

In a telephone interview this week, Williams said: "We feel real confident; we feel like the Cinderella team, playing the number one team in the nation. I think they (Central Washington) think it will be easy. If we win we'll have our heads up, and if we lose we'll still have our heads up, because we'll know we played our best."

YMCA swimmers at Lubbock meet

The Big Spring YMCA youth swim team competed in Lubbock last weekend, with one relay team faring well.

The eight and under 100 yard freestyle relay finished second. The team members were Daniel Beauchamp, Richard Key, Jeremy Pchoa and Jordan Partee.

In the eight and under 50 yard freestyle, Melissa Sheedy placed fifth.

The group's next swim meet will be December 8 in Lubbock.

Final soccer meeting scheduled

The final soccer meeting for the year will be tonight at 7 p.m. at the YMCA.

All coaches need to attend to receive trophies and pictures. Also interested parents are invited to help elect officers and discuss changes for next year.

Big Spring cowboy finishes fifth

The final results of the Coors World Finals Rodeo in El Paso are in and Big Spring cowboy Mike Giannoble finished fifth in the bull riding events. Winning first place was Wade Berry of Carter, S.D.

Giannoble earned the right to compete by qualifying in a regional rodeo.

Hogs, Sooners crush opponenets

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Billy Tubbs is taking the trip he didn't want to make.

Oklahoma will play at Arkansas in the second round of the Big Apple NIT after the two ranked teams destroyed first-round opponents on Wednesday night with the fullcourt pressure defense both programs have been built on.

There is a big difference. The 15th-ranked Sooners have as many new faces on the roster as Tubbs has one-liners, while No. 2 Arkansas has three starters back from last season's team which advanced to the Final Four.

Oklahoma, No. 1 in the final regular-season poll last season, beat New Orleans 95-65 and Arkansas crushed Vanderbilt 107-70 to set up one of the four second-round matchups. In other games, it was Boston College 82, Memphis State 78; No. 6 Duke 87, Marquette 74; No. 3 Arizona 122, Austin Peay 80; and East Tennessee State 83, Brigham Young 80.

The first round will be completed

Top Defensive Players — LB Herm 173 tackles, 2 ints.; DE Riddle 118 tackles, CB Cowley 101 tackles, 2 ints.; S Rhodes, 4 ints.

What Roemisch Said — "Ira is going to run about four of five different sets. Their major set is the unbalanced with a split end."

"James Sturdivant is a good receiver. Mike Hughes is a good running back and so is Dave Holmes. He's also their best defensive end. "I think we better rear up, keep our heads on our shoulders; keep things in perspective. We can't think it's going to be easy. We're going to have to get after it."

Top Defensive Players — DE Valle 158 tackles, 2 ints.; LB Gilbert Cortez 88 tackles, 4 ints.; DE Mike McKaskle 93 tackles, 1 int.

What Gonzales Said — "This is the third time we've played. We played them in a scrimmage and beat them 4-2; and we played them in a game and won 26-8. They are a vastly improved team; a lot better with Jimmy Rios in the lineup.

"Rios will be effective as a runner, and he's one of the best safeties in this part of the country. We're not expecting to go over there and run over them. Our kids have a challenge, and I think they'll accept it."

"Everytime you play a team, it's always a new game, a different situation. The key to stopping their running game is to stop Rios, we may not stop him, but we must contain him."

"We have to stop Cole Vestal as a receiver. We are really keyed up, ready to play. I think it will take 42 points to win it."

BORDEN COUNTY COYOTES Coach — Bobby Avery. Record — 7-3, 5-0 (dist.); District 5-A champs.

Kincheloe, 15 receptions, 2225 yards, 2 TDs.

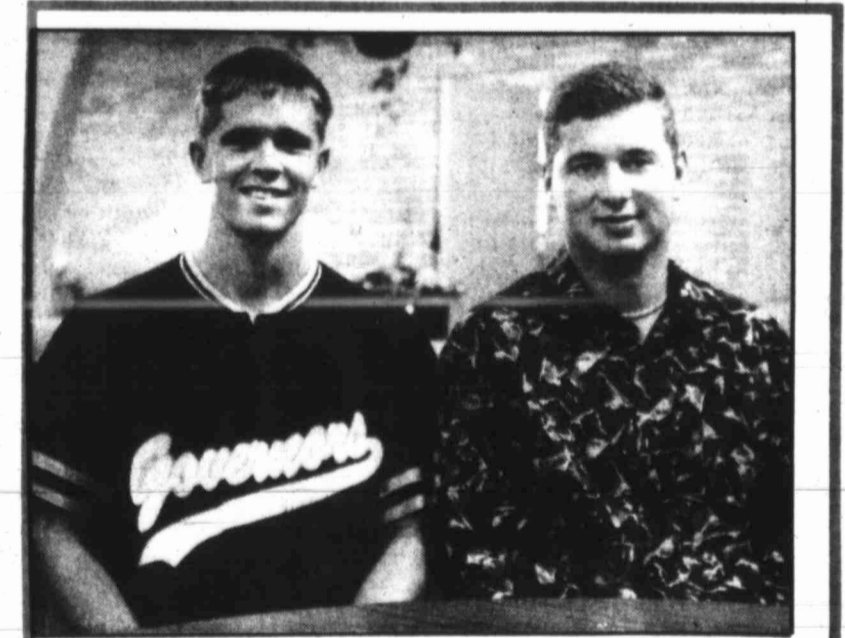

Top Defensive Players — MLB K. Kemper 120 tackles, DE Vestal 110 tackles; DE Paul Sturdivant 100 tackles; CB Rod Jeter 73 tackles; S Rios 65 tackles.

What Avery Said — "We're a lot better team than when we played them before. Without Jimmy, we'll be hurting, but as long as the guys believe, we have a chance."

"We might be hurting more defensively than offensively without Jimmy; he's one heck-of-a safety."

"I expect Grady to go to the spread. I think they feel they're a lot quicker than we are, and that they can't run up the middle against us. They want to make me take out my big men and put in some quicker ones."

"Anybody that runs the spread is a big play team. They've got our film and we've got theirs. You throw those other two games out the window. I think you'll have to score from 30 to 40 points to have a good chance of winning."

Pittsburgh pitcher tabbed tops in National League

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Doug Drabek has a nice-guy, aw-shucks image. But he can be just as nasty on the mound as any of Cincinnati's Nasty Boys.

The league's winningest pitcher on the league's winningest team, Drabek was a near-unanimous choice as the National League's Cy Young Award winner, earning 23 of 24 first-place votes in balloting by the Baseball Writers of America Association.

Drabek received 23 of 24 first-place votes and 118 of a possible 120 points. Ballots were cast by two writers in each National League city.

Ramon Martinez, the Los Angeles Dodgers' hard-throwing first-year pitcher, was second with one first-place vote and 70 points. Frank Viola of the New York Mets was third with two second-place votes and 13 thirds for 19 points.

"Win something like this? I never let myself think about it, even after the season was over,"

Drabek said. "I realized that this was just one of those years that may never happen again. Maybe it was just meant to be that I won this season."

"I've got to try to pitch next season like it never happened."

Drabek feigned shock Wednesday after winning an award that was all but conceded to him after his 22-6 season. Pirates manager Jim Leyland, campaigning for him since the middle of May, wasn't surprised at all.

"He was the best pitcher in the league — no doubt, no question," Leyland said. "We didn't have an Eckersley, but we did have Cy Young."

The right-hander won 19 of his last 22 decisions and was 14-2 in July, August and September as the Pirates (95-67) won their first division title since 1979. At his best when the Pirates were at their worst, the former University of Houston pitcher was 12-3 when pitching after a loss.

"I've had two Cy Young Award winners and six or seven 20-game winners, but I've never had anyone pitch as consistently in big games as Drabek," said pitching coach Ray Miller.

"This was the most consistent year I've had, but I had a lot of run support and the bullpen was outstanding behind me," Drabek said. "I had a lot of confidence when I came out of a game with the lead."

Permian officials will meet Friday

ODESSA — A University of Interscholastic League official met with Odessa Permian officials Tuesday and came to a conclusion that it could be a violation of UIL rules for any postseason television show to pay a coach.

Bonnie Nortcutt, assistant to the director for the UIL, said any money that rewards a coach for reaching the playoffs could be a violation.

Former Permian coach Gary Gains was paid for the coach's show during the Panthers' 16-0 state and national championship season.

Ector County Independent School District Superintendent Gene Buijngier will meet with District 4-5A Executive Committee on Friday in Big Spring to present the results of the investigation into allegations of UIL rules violations, by both Permian and Odessa high schools, including accusations players were recruited.

Player, cheerleader beat up woman

McLEAN (AP) — A cheerleader and the star player on the state's No. 4-ranked six-man high school football team have been suspended from extra-curricular school activities because of a Sunday night altercation in which a 24-year-old woman complained of being beaten up.

Gray County Deputy Wayne Carter said Dennis Hill, 18, who is considered the best player on the team, was arrested Tuesday and arraigned on charges of assault with bodily injury.

The same charge was filed against his brother, Dwayne Hill, 19. The charges were pressed by three McLean residents who said they were attacked by the two brothers when they came to the aid of a woman who was being beaten.

AHS edges Bulldoggettes in tourney opener

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

The Abilene Eagles scored 19 unanswered points at the start of the second half, then withstood a Coahoma rally to take a 66-61 victory over the Bulldoggettes in the first game of the Howard College Crossroads Tournament at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum this morning.

Sharon Green led a trio of Eagles in double figures with 24 points. Lakeita Richardson had 14 points and Amanda Horton added 13 for Abilene, now 2-0 for the season.

The Bulldoggettes, who suffered their first loss in two tries this season, were led by Kim Willborn, who pumped in 21 points. LaTisha Anderson had 17 points and Kim Gee 10.

Coahoma coach Truman Meissner said a lack of defensive intensity and a failure to break the Abilene press doomed the Bulldoggettes.

"We weren't very good passing early," Meissner said. "We got down a little bit, they started hitting their shots, and we missed ours. We just couldn't get anything going."

"We had a couple of little streaks, but we never started playing the way we wanted to," he added. "We know to play good defense, we've got to help each other, and we weren't."

The game was played on even terms in the first half. Abilene scored the game's first five points before the Bulldoggettes rallied to tie things at 12-12 at the end of the first quarter.

Coahoma grabbed its first lead of the game when Willborn and Anderson each scored a basket and Amy Lawhorn added a free throw to give the Bulldoggettes an 18-12 lead with seven minutes left in the half.

The Eagles, however, came back. Green hit on a layup, Richardson canned a three-point shot and LaRhonda Kendrick added a free throw to tie the contest at 18-18 with 4:49 left in the second quarter.

The Bulldoggettes regained the lead on a pair of Anderson free throws and baskets by Willborn and Sara McMahon and led, 24-18, with 2:19 left in the half. But Abilene went on a 9-2 spurt to take a 27-26 lead at intermission.

The roof caved in on Coahoma at the start of the third quarter. Green started things with a short jumper, Horton added a three-pointer, and the Eagles were off to the races.

By the time Willborn put in a short jumper with 3:05 left in the quarter, Abilene had ballooned its lead to 46-28.

Green sank a jumper to give the Eagles a 20-point cushion a few moments later, but the Bulldoggettes responded with a rally of their own, fueled by Willborn and Anderson. The duo combined for eight of 10 unanswered points to cut the lead back to 10 entering the final eight minutes.

Richardson canned a three-pointer to start the final quarter, and Green and Tonya Walker added baskets to give the Eagles a 57-42 lead with 6:36 left, but Mandi Walling and Sarah Hanks combined for six straight points to knock the deficit back down to single digits a minute later.

Unfortunately for the Bulldoggettes, they could get no closer, as Green scored eight of her points in the last four minutes to help keep Coahoma at bay.

The Eagles now advance in the winners' bracket of the tournament to face the winner of the Big Spring-El Paso Parkland game at 6 p.m. Friday. Coahoma will face the loser of that contest in the consolation bracket at 10:30 a.m. Friday.

NIT

No. 15 Oklahoma 95, New Orleans 65

Oklahoma forced 32 turnovers to hide a 44-percent shooting effort. The turnovers came quick at the start as the Sooners went on an early 16-0 run for a 21-4 lead. The Sooners led by as many as 25 in the first half before settling for a 20-point halftime lead.

Terrence Mullins and Kermit Holmes had 16 points each as six Sooners scored in double figures.

Tank Collins led New Orleans with 14 points and nine rebounds.

No. 2 Arkansas 107, Vanderbilt 70

Next season this will be a conference matchup as Arkansas leaves the Southwest to join Vanderbilt in the Southeastern.

The Razorbacks forced 12 turnovers in the first half and led 47-22 at halftime and Vanderbilt, the postseason NIT champion last season, never got closer than 21 points.

Boston College 82, Memphis St. 78

The Eagles, 8-20 last season, rode the scoring of three freshmen to the upset victory. Memphis State led 49-33 at halftime but the young Eagles turned in a strong second half.

Rookie guard Howard Easley scored 16 of his 18 points in the second half, while classmates Malcolm Huckaby had 12 points and Billy Curley added 16 points and eight rebounds.

Steers

Fullback Joey Munoz has been slowed by a badly sprained ankle, and quarterback Steve Ward has been bothered by bruised ribs. Munoz played a short time against Andrews, and Ward played the entire game. Holland said Munoz is questionable for Friday's game.

Holland said it has been somewhat of a rebuilding year for his team, mainly on defense, where the Lobos had to replace 10 starters. Offensively however, Monahans had eight starters returning.

"We knew we had to rebuild around our young kids, and they got better as the season progressed," said Holland. "We've lost some tough games, but that's the way it goes in the game of football. The young kids have done a good job; the inexperience has shown at times, but we should have pretty experienced next year."

Holland said he knows his young defense will be put to the test against the league's top offense. "Big Spring has an extremely strong backfield. Their experience is something to behold. They pretty much dictate what they want to do, and that's a mark of a good team. They don't let you keep them from doing what they do best," said Holland.

Last week the Steer offense rushed for 102 yards and passed for 166 yards. Tailback Jermaine Miller went over the 100-yard mark, and quarterback Gerald Cobos completed 10 of 12 passes. Thompson said that center Jon Downey had a good game, as did left guard Lance Reeves.

"We'll work some on our passing game," said Thompson. "It's going to come a time when we'll have to use it. We'll try to do what we've been doing, only do it better."

Last week the Andrews rolled to 495 yards total offense against the Steers, the first time a district team had gained more than 100 yards against the Steer defense. Steers defensive coordinator Dwight Butler wasn't overly thrilled with the performance.

End Frank Garza and outside linebacker Miller led the way with 12 and 11 tackles, respectively. Middle linebacker Felipe Saiz, free safety Freddy Rodriguez and end Fernando Alvarez all made 10 tackles. Defensive back Nick Roberson intercepted his second pass of the season.

"I wasn't satisfied with the defense, we didn't play disciplined ball like we have in the past," said Butler. "The effort wasn't the problem."

"It was kind of helter-skelter, when we play as a unit we're good, when we've got five or six out there who want to freelance, we're not very good." We played like we could in the third quarter. If we play like that, we're pretty good."

Although Monahans fields a balanced offense, Butler thinks his defense stop the run first. "They (Monahans) likes to throw and they like to run. At the first of the year they were predominately a running team, like they've been in the past," said Butler. "The longer the season went they reverted to passing. I think a lot of it had to do with Munoz's injury. I think they're going to try to establish the run first."

Butler said outside linebacker Kevin Rodgers, who suffered a bruised sternum in the Sweetwater game, might see some playing time Friday.

Kickoff is set for 8 p.m.

Birdman scores 45; Celtics sink Bucks

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS
One night after a game that was for the birds, Larry Bird was flying high.

During the surge, Coles fed Seikaly for one basket and passed to rookie Willie Burton after a steal for 2 of Burton's 24 points. Coles, who had 13 points and nine assists, concluded the run by stealing the ball again and hitting a layup. Derek Harper had 30 points for Dallas.

"I took a lot of shots and that's why I got a lot of points. I haven't been taking that many shots recently," Bird said Wednesday night after rebounding from a seven-shot, 5-point effort against Milwaukee a night earlier to score 45 in the Boston Celtics' 136-125 victory over the Charlotte Hornets.

Cavaliers 113, Pacers 95
Rookie Danny Ferry hit two quick baskets and passed to Craig Ehlo for a third during a 24-5 run in the second quarter as Cleveland built a 22-point first-half lead. The Cavaliers had seven players in double figures. Indiana has lost 14 of its last 15 in Cleveland.

Bird made 18 of 28 shots as the Celtics connected on 63.4 percent of their field goals to 52.7 percent for the Hornets. Boston's second-half percentage was 73.5. Boston's 116-101 lead with 7:35 remaining dropped to 122-117 with 4:21 to play, but Kevin Gamble made two free throws and the Hornets came no closer than five points the rest of the way.

Nets 112, Bucks 95
Rookie Derrick Coleman scored 20 points, his high as a pro, and Mookie Blaylock got 8 of his 18 in the fourth quarter as New Jersey snapped Milwaukee's five-game winning streak. The Bucks missed their first 11 shots and shot only 32 percent.

Bird added eight assists, eight rebounds and five blocks. He has career totals of 5,001 assists and 19,876 points. The only NBA players with 20,000 points and 5,000 assists are Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Oscar Robertson, Jerry West and John Havlicek.

Clippers 108, Suns 102
Charles Smith scored 27 points and Ken Norman added 20 points and two key blocks down the stretch as Los Angeles beat Phoenix for the first time in 10 tries. Benoit Benjamin added 19 points and 16 rebounds to help the Clippers end their four-game losing streak and Phoenix's three-game winning streak. Tom Chambers paced the Suns with 24 points.

Heat 105, Mavericks 93
Rony Seikaly had 30 points and 21 rebounds, and rookie Bimbo Coles sparked a decisive fourth-quarter spurt as Miami posted its first-ever victory over Dallas. Miami, which lost its first eight games against Dallas, trailed 76-74 early in the final period, then went on a 14-2

After a pair of missed free throws by Benjamin, Mark West cut the Suns' deficit to 104-100 on a slam dunk with three minutes to play.

Bono may run for Senate

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Sonny Bono says he is exploring a run for U.S. Senate.

The pop singer-turned-mayor of this desert community said Tuesday he is contemplating a run in 1992 for the seat held by Democrat Alan Cranston, who is battling prostate cancer, has said he won't run.

SONNY BONO

A hidden problem

Bono, a Republican, was the "I Got You, Babe" teenybopper idol of the '60s and the butt of former wife Cher's gibes on their TV show in the '70s.

"I'm sure there's going to be some staunch Republican conservatives who ... may view me as a rock 'n' roller," Bono said. "I'm going to have some things to confront that may be difficult from an image viewpoint."

"Hopefully, we can flip the coin on that."

A hidden problem

Miss Vincent, of Oak Park, Ill., was crowned in September.

"People are afraid to talk about it," Miss Vincent, a 26-year-old law student at Duke University, said Monday. "I hope to get more people to recognize what a problem it is."

The shelter she visited is operated by the Roman Catholic St. Vincent de Paul Society. It houses six women and their 10 children.

MC seniors offered glaucoma testing

The Sheets Eye Foundation will be conducting free glaucoma tests Friday between 9:30 and noon at the Stanton Senior Citizens Center.

Glaucoma is one of the leading causes of blindness in the United States. There are no symptoms and only with the finding of increased intra-ocular pressure is the diagnosis made.

The central vision is not affected until very late in the disease, so the patient may look, see, and feel completely normal until it is too late.

The key to preventing blindness or visual loss is to seek periodic testing like the one being offered free at the Stanton Senior Citizens Center by the Sheets Eye Foundation.

Glaucoma is not curable, but may be controlled with lifelong therapy. The primary treatment is medical, using eye drops, and only late in the disease, if eye drops fail to control the pressure, is surgery performed.

For more information contact, Sally Carroll at 756-2791.

Information center open to veterans

Veterans, widows and dependents are eligible to take advantage of a Department of Veterans Affairs mobile information center Friday between 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. at the north side parking area of Highland Mall, Big Spring.

Those in need of assistance and information about benefits are invited to visit the unit. An accredited claims representative will be available to provide information to any veteran, widow or dependent concerning benefits which may be available through the Veterans Administration or the state of Texas.

Demos: 18 months of sanctions before war

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats are counseling President Bush to give international sanctions against Iraq as much as 18 months to take effect before considering military moves in the Persian Gulf crisis.

At a White House meeting Wednesday, House Speaker Thomas Foley and others asked Bush to be patient. Foley suggested that the economic embargo may take many months longer to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, according to a senior congressional source.

Afterward, House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., issued a statement calling for "a policy of patient strength, permitting the economic sanctions... to work."

But Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebr., said, "I'm terribly worried about the direction they're going" in the administration.

The sanctions were imposed with broad international support following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. They have largely shut down commerce in food, oil, weaponry and other goods.

In separate closed-door briefings, senators and House members heard from Secretary of State James A. Baker III and from Defense Secretary Dick Cheney. But some left with fears the administration is edging ever closer to war.

Rep. David Obey, who attended the White House meeting, said, "I'm pessimistic about the possibility of avoiding war, based on the tone of conversation coming from administration officials."

"If we're going to be the champions of impatience, we're going to send our kids into a lot of bloody battles," Obey, D-Wis., added.

Sen. Wendell Ford of Kentucky, the newly elected No. 2 Democratic leader in the Senate, said war would only split America apart. "I think there's no question about it. This is not a Grenada or a Panama. It's a Vietnam with sand."

Ford added: "I would prefer to let (the sanctions) run for a year and win without bloodshed."

Baker said the sanctions "are beginning to bite." But asked whether they would be enough to force Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw from Kuwait, he answered, "I don't think we can say that today with certainty."

Analysts say Iraq's civilian fac-

LONG BEACH, CALIF. — With sons Blaine, 4, and Terene, one month, Kathy Williams can't hold back the tears as she says goodbye to her husband, Robert, aboard the USS Missouri Tuesday in Long Beach. Williams is one of 1,500 sailors and Marines on the battleship that set sail to join the Desert Shield forces in the Persian Gulf. The Williamses are from Cincinnati, Ohio.

tory production has been sharply curtailed and some food shortages are occurring, but sanctions have been slow to affect the military. They point out that Iraqis, having just lived through an eight-year war with Iran, are used to finding substitutes for goods in short supply and making do without.

Following the briefing by Baker and Cheney, Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., said the embargo appears to be holding but is taking longer than expected to show signs of impact.

"The embargo is not a quick solution," Sasser said. "My counsel is patience, that we continue the sanctions with the full realization that it may take months, perhaps even a period of a year or two."

But some Republicans balked at such a long commitment, saying Americans would have no patience for leaving troops in place through 1991.

Senate GOP Leader Bob Dole of Kansas added: "If the American people are frustrated already, after three-plus... months, what are they going to be a year from now?"

Montford suggests nickel jump in gas tax is a possibility

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A suggestion to boost the state gasoline tax — by 10 cents a gallon, a 67 percent increase, to help fund highway projects — may be realistic up to 5 cents, Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, told Big Spring Chamber of Commerce members Wednesday afternoon.

"I'd say the most realistic state goal is a nickel. I don't think that's enough for the projects that we've got on the board but that's the most realistic," said Montford, who was introduced at the Chamber office board room by Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring.

Fraser, who said he may not support the increase, said he is concerned that it would benefit large metropolitan areas such as Dallas and Houston more than it would rural areas.

"I would only support it if it were for total miles and not by the population," Fraser said. "If the taxpayers out here, if they're going to pay the tax, they should end up getting the benefit."

State Department of Highways and Public Transportation officials say that only 38-40 percent of $25.5 billion in approved projects will have funding available in the next seven to eight years. Not funded in Howard County is the 10-foot widening of four 26-foot bridges on Interstate 20 at a cost of $2.4 million.

"With the proposal we would be able to meet about 65 percent of those identifiable projects," said Don Clark, the director of the highway department's travel and information division.

The proposal calls for increasing the state tax from 15 cents to 25 cents a gallon. The federal gas tax will increase from 9 cents to 14 cents on Dec. 1.

Clark said he is not sure how many of the identifiable state projects are in metropolitan areas, but said, "Of course that's where most of the congestion is, in the seven major metropolitan areas."

The Greater Dallas Chamber of Commerce pledged its support Monday for the 10-cent gas tax increase but Montford recommended to Chamber members here that they may want to wait until after the Legislature convenes in January before action on any endorsement.

"I would say 'wait until the Legislature gets in session' to get some direction on this," he said. "Before there's any increase in the motor fuels tax, I think it needs to be thoroughly massaged in the House and Senate."

Although the state may be facing a funding shortfall of $3.5 billion when the legislature meets next year, Montford said there may not be a tax bill passed next year.

"I don't want to be quoted as saying we don't need it but I don't think we're going to have a tax bill, at least for another year," he said.

Chamber Vice President Adolph Janca, said, "I guess it just depends on how bad people want highway miles built. If that's the trade-off, it may get some support."

As far as the Chamber taking a position, Janca said, "I don't know. We'll have to study it. We might support it, agreeing there may be compromise before any action is taken."

Stanton girls open with win

The Stanton varsity girls' basketball season got underway Tuesday in Rankin as the Lady Buffs traveled to Red Devil to take on Rankin and came home with a 50-43 win.

"We were very fortunate to come home with a win. For a young team, we played very well. Rankin is a good team, they have been in the playoffs the past few years. The only problem I see wrong at this point is that we played a good first half and the second half we hustled just enough to win and we need to work on our free throws. We only hit 13 out of 41 from the free throw line and that's a weakness," Stanton girls' basketball head coach Rob Young said.

Jolynn Graves was the key to the ballgame, she shot the ball very well. Mitzi (Koonce) came off the bench and scored nine points and five rebounds. Brandi (Bundas) and Melissa (Scurlock) played a tremendous defense for us. They blocked well and passed the ball around to the open player and assisted in a number of scoring baskets. They also played an important part in the man-to-man press that we showed Rankin. The one thing that helped us and will be an asset this year is that we have talented depth on our bench. When anyone of these girls step out on the court, I feel that they can play with anybody that we will face this year. With these 12 kids that I have the opportunity to work with, I feel that we are going to make some noise this year," Young said.

The Lady Buffs will face a strong challenge tomorrow as they prepare to take on the

Wildcats win; Grady girls fall

GRADY — Grady basketball got underway Monday night for the junior high boys' and girls' teams as they traveled to Gail to take on the Borden County Coyotes. The BC girls outlasted the Lady Wildcats 32-18, while the Wildcats came from behind to beat the Coyotes 39-25.

Girls' game
"We didn't block well and couldn't handle the press in the first half. The second half we did better, we were able to break the press that Borden County used to trap us," Grady junior high coach Randy Peel said.

He added, "we were outmanned because BC had girls taller than our team. We only allowed 11 points in the second half, even though we are a young club we looked real good."

The leading scorer for the Lady Wildcats was Sherry Odom with nine points and eight rebounds.

Boys' game
The Wildcats trailed the Coyotes in the first half as BC led 18-14. "Our boys had many turnovers and missed shots off the break," assistant boys coach Randy Peel said.

In the second half, Grady outscored its opponent 25-7 to come from behind to beat BC. "The fast break began to work as we started to get on the boards and rebound missed shots and we ran the ball well," Peel said.

Timmy Garza led Grady with 14 points, while teammate Tommy Hewttly was the leading rebounder with seven. "Tommy (Hewttly) and Timmy (Garza) played very well and showed potential along with Matt Hale. Vance McMorries has come along very well. He is looking to be a big part of this team," Peel said.

Grady varsity girls
GHS varsity girls put on a tremendous show and left off from last year's strong showing in the playoffs with a 53-29 win over the hapless Garden City Lady Bearcats.

Leading the way for Grady was senior all-state Sherry McMorries. • BREAKERS page 8-A

FmHA eyes 'Just Kids' safety plan

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), an agency of the United States Department of Agriculture, has selected the Farm Safety for "Just Kids" program as its public service project for 1990-1991, through its Wellness Program's Public Safety Campaign, according to Ron Bruton, FmHA County Supervisor for Martin County.

Farm Safety for "Just Kids" is a non-profit organization dedicated to educating parents and children about farm injury prevention. This organization stresses raising awareness levels regarding on-farm hazards. Each year, farm accidents result in the death of 300 young people and 5,000 serious injuries.

The primary age group affected is 5 to 14 years old, according to FmHA representative.

Bruton stated, "FmHA involvement in the program will enable Farm Safety for "Just Kids" to reach a national audience for the first time." Educational material including a film, safety fact sheet, warning decals and children's workbooks will be distributed by FmHA personnel throughout Texas.

A Cornell University study reveals that children bear the brunt of farm accidents when the injury rate is adjusted to account for the time each worker is in the workplace. In 1988, 35.6 percent of farm accident victims were children, ranging in age from 5 to 14 years.

How's that?

Q. Is a person entitled to unemployment compensation if they resign from their job?
A. According to Commissioner Nabers, Commissioner Representing Employers on the Texas Employment Commission, this is a common misconception. Employees do not pay into the unemployment insurance system. Only employers do. Therefore, there are disqualification provisions that prevent the payment of benefits to people who are somehow responsible for their own unemployed status.

Plains cotton growers' weevil program ends

Plains Cotton Growers

LUBBOCK — It's not over 'til it's over. While the weather was cooling down the end was nearing for Plains Cotton Growers 1990 Boll Weevil Control Program. The mercury dipped below 32 degrees Fahrenheit across the area Nov. 4, and snow flurries and frost nipped at the few remaining green plants. A final application was made Monday, Nov. 5, to a total of 5,751 acres of dying cotton. This included 2,506 acres around Post located in Garza County. The remainder of the fields sprayed were between Matador in Motley County and Afton in Dickens County.

Cotton talk

Two aircraft, supplied by contractor Perryton Aviation were used to complete the final phase of this year's program. The treatment cut off the retreat of the last few remaining skinny boll weevils as they prepared to scamper off into hibernation in an attempt to survive the approaching winter.

This was the fifth and last spray application in a small, but effective, program. A total of 114,051 acres were treated this year to prevent boll weevil from entering diapause and moving in to their overwintering habitat. This compares with 240,416 acres treated in 1989 and 663,311 acres in 1988.

This year's treated acreage was the fifth smallest since the program's inception in 1964. The largest number of acres treated was in 1965, the second year of operation, when 1,512,548 acres were sprayed.

Lower weevil pressure had been indicated throughout this year by the pheromone traps set up along the Caprock edge between Silverton and Vealmoor. In 1989 these traps averaged 10 weevils per trap per week from August through the end of October. This year, over the same period, the traps averaged just one weevil per trap per week.

The lower weevil pressure was also evident as visual surveys of cotton fields within the control zone were made in September and October. Only 30 fields above the Caprock, totaling a little over 3,000 acres, were found to be infested with weevils. This indicates that the program is successfully achieving its objective which is to prevent the westward movement of weevils from the Rolling Plains onto the High Plains of Texas.

Early estimates put the calendar year cost of the 1990 program at around $900,000. The lowest calendar year cost program was 1979, which ran $381,495.

The program is a cooperative venture between Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. PCG employed 133 people during the 1990 operation. Three USDA employees were directly involved in the field activities. Funding for the program is 30 percent from federal appropriations and 70 percent from cotton producers in the PCG 25-county area. The grower contribution is collected by area compresses through a 25-cent per bale checkoff.

State Representative Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, watches as state Senator John Montford, R-Lubbock tells Big Spring Chamber of Commerce members an increase in the state gasoline tax may be necessary to help fund highway projects. Related story, page 1-A.

Report: Hispanics regressed in 1980s

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1980s was a time of declining incomes and deteriorating living conditions for Hispanics in cities across Texas and the rest of the country, according to a study.

The independent, non-profit Aspen Institute, in a report Wednesday, said overall conditions for Hispanics improved in only one major metropolitan area — Miami — and remained relatively stable in only one other city with a large Hispanic population — San Diego.

But for Hispanics in 11 other cities, the "parity gap" with Anglos widened over the past decade, the report said.

The 13 cities studied are home to two-thirds of U.S. Hispanics. While some of those cities were in regions suffering economic downturns in the 1980s, the report said it found that when things got worse for everyone in a local market, they got even worse for Hispanics.

"While the rich got richer and the poor got poorer, did Hispanics get poorer than Anglos? They did," the report said.

Between 1979 and 1987, the real median family income of Hispanics fell in all but four of the 13 areas — New York; McAllen, Texas; Miami; and Phoenix, where it remained unchanged.

McAllen saw the biggest surge in real median family income, which the study attributed to a partnership between the United States and Mexico that is boosting the local economy.

With the exception of McAllen, the greatest declines occurred among Hispanics in Texas, where the economy was hit hard by the oil price shocks of the 1980s, the study found.

In Dallas, Hispanics' median family income fell from $23,274 in 1979 to $19,000 in 1987, while the percentage of Hispanics living in poverty grew from 20 percent to 30 percent over the past decade.

In Houston, Hispanics' family income fell from $25,281 in 1979 to $19,000 in 1987. At the beginning of the 1980s, 19 percent of Hispanics were living in poverty, at the close of the decade, 30 percent were considered below the poverty level.

Hispanics' median family income also fell in San Antonio over the decade, from $19,638 to $16,000, while those under the poverty level grew from 27 percent to 34 percent. In McAllen, median income grew from $15,493 to $20,710, while the percentage of poor Hispanics fell, from 41 percent to 39 percent.

In El Paso, however, family income dropped from $18,176 to $15,075, while the percentage of Hispanics in poverty rose from 29 percent to 43 percent.

The report warned that the growing gap between Hispanic and Anglo Americans must be closed.

"The nation's competitive position cannot be maintained if a sharp division continues between stable leadership isolated in the suburbs and poor workers and an underclass isolated in deteriorating inner cities," said Solomon D. Trujillo, vice president and general manager of US WEST Communications.

Trujillo is also chairman of the Aspen Institute's Hispanic Americans and the Business Community Program, which issued the report.

The country's Hispanic population is estimated to be 34.8 million in the year 2000, up from 20.1 million in 1989.

Driver's licenses

Some doubt suspension will help drug war

"Numerous states have driver's license revocation laws, but they don't go as far as this calls for. That points to why we are against the whole issue of mandates when looking at this sort of problem."

Nolan Jones

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new law requiring states to suspend the driver's licenses of all convicted drug offenders or lose some federal highway funds may not help the war on drugs, an official of the National Governors' Association says.

There is no data proving that mandatory license suspensions, imposed first in New Jersey, prompts people to turn away from drugs, said Nolan Jones, staff director for the association's justice and public safety committee.

"It sounds like a good idea, but let's see if it's working" before forcing every state to enact similar rules, Jones said.

The measure, included in the fiscal 1991 transportation appropriations bill, applies to all states and all illegal drugs, including the 10 states where possession of small amounts of marijuana has been decriminalized but is still considered an infraction of the law.

The legislation drew little attention when it was approved during a flurry of activity Oct. 27 as Congress rushed to leave town. President Bush signed it into law Nov. 5. The bill calls for withholding 5 percent of federal highway funds starting Oct. 1, 1993 from states that fail to require six-month driver's license suspensions for everyone convicted of any drug offense. The cut would increase to 10 percent on Oct. 1, 1995.

"Numerous states have driver's license revocation laws, but they don't go as far as this calls for," Jones said in an interview. "That points to why we are against the whole issue of mandates when looking at this sort of problem."

About half the states allow suspension of drug offenders' licenses, but only four require such suspensions for drivers of all ages and only New Jersey has a six-month minimum, according to the American Legislative Exchange Council. The minimum is four months in Georgia and three months in Colorado and Pennsylvania.

The legislation does have a way out for states that want all their federal highway funds but don't want to require license suspensions: their legislatures must vote specifically against requiring the suspensions and their governors must go on record in agreement with that position.

"This forces the states to be accountable," said a Bush administration source, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "We're not going to force you, but if you don't want to do it, you'll have to be public about it."

In states where they can't agree — for example, the governor wants to suspend licenses but at least one chamber of the state legislature does not — the federal highway funds would be cut.

The measure's sponsor, Rep. Gerald B.H. Solomon, R-N.Y., said his main targets were New York and California, which have decriminalized minor marijuana possession.

Both states also have splits in party control: In California, the Democrats control the legislature and the governor is a Republican; in New York, the governor is a Democrat and his party controls the state assembly while Republicans control the state senate.

"Seventy-five percent of the drug purchases in America are done by casual drug users, and that's white, upper-middle-class Americans that drive their Pontiac Firebirds into the ghetto and buy these killer drugs," Solomon said.

"You don't see the murders take place out in the suburbs, but it's the casual drug user who supplies the demand for these drugs," he said.

"If you do away with the demand for drugs, then the drugs will dry up in this country. . . . When it starts to affect their livelihoods, maybe then they'll stop using these drugs."

We held Garden City for six points in the third period. In the final quarter, we had too many mistakes trying to force the ball to the basket," Grady girls basketball head coach Randy Peel said.

He added, "our defense was very impressive for three quarters as well. We executed the press well, but we need to work on our passing and coming into the middle of the paint on offense."

 In junior varsity action, the Garden City Lady Bearcats clawed their way to a win over the Grady JV with a 40-23 score. Leading the way for the Wildcats was Tandi Peugh with 13 points.

"I was really pleased with the efforts that the girls gave. We looked good on defense in the first half and the second half, but we could not capitalize on missed shots that we got off the boards," JV coach Randy Peel said.

Insurance rates face deregulation

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's consumer counsel for insurance says a proposal to deregulate property and casualty insurance rates would be devastating for homeowners.

On Tuesday, one of the leading state senators on insurance reform said he is considering a proposal to end state regulation of property and casualty insurance rates, including homeowners' coverage.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, said he is "persuaded at this point that that might be the best solution to getting affordable rates for the consumer."

Montford is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, co-chair of a special committee studying insurance regulation and wrote major insurance reform legislation last year.

But Kay Doughty, counsel at the Office of Consumer Protection, said she opposes removal of regulation and warned that lifting them would cause rates "to go through the ceiling."

Letting insurance companies set their own rates, Doughty said, "would hurt consumers enormously" and is "totally unacceptable." Montford's proposal appears to run counter to Gov. elect Ann Richards' stance of tighter regulation of insurance companies.

The Joint Special Committee on Insurance Regulation will consider the deregulation proposal and up to 44 other measures at a Dec. 5 meeting, Montford said.
