Public hearing scheduled tonight

STANTON — A public hearing is scheduled tonight on a petition to annex about a fourth of Howard County into the Martin County Underground Water Conservation District.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the MCUWCD office at 207 1/2 N. St. Peter, behind the First Bankers Trust & Savings Association.

The Howard County area under consideration is bounded by: the northwest corner of the county, the northeast corner of Section 25, Block 33, Township 3 North; the southeast corner of Section 19, Block 33, Township 1 North; and the southwest corner of Section 8, Block 34, Township 1 North.

The MCUWCD board of directors will meet at 8 p.m. tonight. If they approve the application, an election date will be set. The property tax rate for the district is 2 cents per $100 valuation.

BSIDS school board to name committee

The Big Spring Independent School District board of trustees will meet Tuesday at noon for a brief session.

At this time, the only agenda item is to choose the members of a Citizens Committee for School Improvement. The committee will advise the board on its new building project, a plan that may include the construction of two schools.

Hunters not donating meat

After three years of endeavor, Hunters for the Hungry became a viable alternative this season for deer hunters who like to hunt, but don't want to keep the meat. For a $15 fee, deer hunters may have their kill dressed by a state-licensed processing plant and donate the meat to the Permian Basin Food Bank.

But local hunters are not donating the deer to the food bank, according to Hubbard Packing and Chapman's Meat Market.

"(The hunters) are not coming in. They're not doing it. I thought we'd get some, but we haven't gotten any," said Tommy Hubbard, owner of Hubbard Packing.

Hubbard said he's had his regular customers bringing in deer for processing, but none have donated the meat to the project.

And Jimmy Stuteville at Chapman's Meat Market reports the same thing.

"So far we've had none. I feel like the people don't know about it," he said.

Dolly Neff, executive director of the food bank, said, "Red meat is always scarce at the food bank."

The food bank provides food for the hungry in 17 counties. Deer season began the first week in November, and will last until the first week in January.

Error caught due to new law

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

If it were not for a state law passed last year, the computer error reversing the Precinct 4 commissioner race might not ever have been discovered, said County Clerk Margaret Ray.

An unofficial recount Friday by Secretary of State officials gave Democrat Bobby Cathey 100 of 148 uncounted votes, putting him ahead of his opponent by one vote, 851-850. Because the election was already certified, Robert Crenshaw will remain the official winner pending a district court decision. Cathey indicated Friday he will file suit.

The counting error was discovered in precinct 402 by a clerk manually recording precinct absentee votes as required by Senate Bill 1050, passed last year to enable state officials to gather information for redistricting, Ray said.

"This is the first general election where we've done it," she said.

In order to protect voter privacy, only absentee totals are reported to the public and used in the canvass by commissioners, who certified the election Nov. 8.

But the total number of people not voting in each race is too large to detect small undercounts, Ray said. For example, the Nov. 6 results showed 1,299 people not voting for a state senator, 323 not voting for a county judge, 197 not voting for a Pct. 4 commissioner and 73 not voting for a Pct. 2

Warsaw Pact, NATO leaders sign arms treaty

PARIS (AP) — President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev joined European leaders today in signing a historic treaty that cuts conventional forces in Europe and pushes the Cold War deeper into history.

"It is the farthest-reaching arms agreement in history and it signals the new world order that is emerging," Bush said in a glittering signing ceremony.

The long-sought agreement to destroy tens of thousands of tanks, artillery and armored combat vehicles in Europe is the most sweeping arms accord in history. It was signed as prelude to a 34-nation summit originally called to discuss European security in the post Cold War era, but shadowed by the Persian Gulf crisis.

"We are putting an end to the previous age," French President Francois Mitterrand declared as he put his signature to the treaty documents. One by one the other leaders followed suit, with Gorbachev the last one to wield the pen. As the treaty was passed back to Mitterrand, the roomful of leaders applauded their work.

"This reduces to practically nil the tensions that have existed," said Bush.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas described the meeting as the most important international event since World War II and said it will "design the architecture of Europe for the century to come."

U.S. officials view the summit more modestly, describing the 34-nation forum primarily as a device for promoting political freedom, human rights and East-

George Bush signs arms treaty at the beginning of the 34-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation.

West cooperation.

With the extraordinary assembly of government leaders, French authorities mobilized rooftop sharpshooters, anti-terrorist units and 10,000 police officers to provide security — and to clear paths for convoys of limousines. Parisians braced for severe traffic disruptions.

Domestic political crises faced by some leaders offered a dramatic sideshow. Gorbachev left behind a country staggering under political and economic chaos. Prime Ministers Margaret Thatcher of Britain and Michel Rocard of France face Parliament votes that conceivably could topple them during the summit.

HCJCD's record enrollment expected to continue

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

Howard College's rapidly increasing enrollment has attracted attention statewide. The Texas Higher Educational Coordinating Board recently noted its growth, and mentions have appeared in major newspapers throughout the state.

College officials today attributed the growth to several factors, and expected it to continue.

According to a press release from the coordinating board, the Howard County Junior College District, which includes the four main campuses in Big Spring (including SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf), San Angelo

"... Kids who might have gone away in the past are staying here for a couple of years, and then going off somewhere. The bottom line is that they realize the quality of education here."

Dusty Johnston, dean of students and Lamesa and classes in Brownwood, Snyder and Junction, experienced a 41.6 percent growth this year, the largest percentage gain in the state.

Among the four college locations, the number of enrolled students climbed to more than 2700 during fall registration. In Big Spring, 1,514 students registered for the fall semester, the largest enrollment ever. There were 1,126 students enrolled in the fall of 1989.

President Bob Riley noted the many changes taking place on the local campus, including the newly renovated residence halls, the Harold Davis Fitness Center and changes to make the nursing program more useful for students seeking a career.

Riley said the fitness center has no doubt attracted "a lot of our community folks" as well as full-time students.

The fitness center has admittedly been a boon to the college in many ways. Participants who take 16 weeks of "Lifetime Fitness" are allowed the chance to take another three-hour class free of charge, and many of them take advantage of the deal.

Of 344 students enrolled in the fitness course for the fall semester, about 200 are either full-time students or have chosen to take an additional course for the same fee.

Dusty Johnston, dean of students, said the college's growth can be attributed to several areas.

"It's hard to say exactly who or what is responsible," he said. "I believe a portion of it is economics. Kids who might have gone away in the past are staying here for a couple of years, and then going off somewhere. The bottom line is that they realize the quality of education here."

Johnston said recruiting has been "aggressive," especially in the local area. Recruiters have visited high schools as far away as Austin and Kerrville, he added.

Bush seeks backing for U.N. resolution

(AP) President Bush today dismissed Iraq's promise to release all remaining foreigners by March as a cynical ploy and tried to win more support for a U.N. resolution authorizing an attack to drive Iraqi forces from Kuwait.

Some U.S. allies in the Persian Gulf crisis, including the Soviet Union and Germany, expressed concern that Bush was rushing toward war.

But Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain reiterated her support for Bush's position, saying that Saddam Hussein can avoid war only by withdrawing quickly from Kuwait.

"Most people understand evil has to be stopped. Either he withdraws, or the military option has to be used," she said after seeing Bush in Paris, where NATO and Warsaw Pact leaders signed an arms reduction treaty.

However, Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev said he was sure a way could be found to avoid war and that he would offer "new ideas" in a meeting with Bush today. Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany told Bush on Sunday that all options short of war must first be exhausted.

Also Sunday, Iraq announced that it would free the estimated

2,000 remaining Westerners stranded in Iraq and occupied Kuwait between Christmas and March 25 "unless something would take place that mars the atmosphere of peace."

Saddam has been releasing Westerners a few at a time, and another 136 arrived in London from Baghdad early today. Bush called the Iraqi announcement a bid to buy time.

"This cynicism of starting to release them on Christmas Day will be seen by the world as a total ploy," Bush said.

Earlier this month, Saddam invited relatives of hostages to visit them over the holidays.

Analysts have said a military strike against Iraqi forces is most likely in winter because of lower temperatures and regular spells of calm weather. Sandstorms usually occur in April.

Baker has met in the past week with foreign ministers from many of the 15 members of the U.N. Security Council, seeking support for the resolution endorsing a military assault if the U.N.-ordered embargo on trade with Iraq fails.

Some diplomats say the proposal could be made before the end of the month.

Atlantis will land this afternoon

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Atlantis' astronauts prepared to head for home today after putting a secret spy satellite in orbit and issuing a message to Persian Gulf troops wishing them "peace and a speedy return."

Landing was scheduled for 4:48 p.m. EST at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., in the Mojave Desert.

"During the last few days, we aboard Atlantis have circled the Earth many times," Air Force Col. Richard Covey, mission commander, said in a message released today. "Whenever we pass close to Saudi Arabia we cannot help but think of our soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines deployed there for Desert Shield."

"As the holiday season approaches, the multiservice crew of Atlantis wishes those brave warriors peace and a speedy return home. Our prayers are for them and their families."

The message was sent to Earth on Sunday evening, and NASA provided transcripts today. NASA spokesman Brian Welch said he didn't know immediately how the message would be relayed to the troops.

Atlantis had been scheduled to return between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. EST, but NASA decided to bring the shuttle home early because better weather is expected at that time. The space agency's main concerns were showers and high winds.

Major firm files for bankruptcy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Lavenoth & Horwath, the nation's seventh-largest accounting firm, has decided to file for bankruptcy court protection, published reports said today.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said today the firm's partners learned of the bankruptcy plan during a meeting this weekend in Houston, and said the filing was largely due to costly lawsuits. Among them is one alleging inadequate audits of the Jim Baker televangelism empire.

The New York Times said the firm's 350 partners had voted to file for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws and to disband the firm.

Thomas Derr, a spokesman for the Philadelphia-based company, refused to confirm that a decision was made to file for bankruptcy.

"A number of scenarios regarding both the short-term and long-term future of Lavenoth & Horwath were discussed at the partners meeting in Houston this weekend," Robert N. Levine, Lavenoth's chief executive officer, said in a statement released by Derr.

Keating senator defends himself

SEN. DENNIS DECONCINI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Dennis DeConcini today strongly defended himself against wrongdoing in his dealings with savings and loan owner Charles Keating Jr. and accused the Senate Ethics Committee's special counsel of relying on rumor and hearsay.

"I resent this man tying this senator... to bribery, to a crook," DeConcini said of statements by Robert S. Bennett, the special counsel who is presenting evidence about the relationship between Keating and the so-called "Keating Five" senators.

DeConcini, an Arizona Democrat, was the last of the five senators to offer an opening statement defending himself.

Blood test developed to identify chronic fatigue

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Researchers have developed a blood test to distinguish sufferers of chronic fatigue syndrome — or "yuppie flu" — from those feeling run-down for other reasons, a scientist says.

The test checks levels of white blood cells, AIDS researcher Jay Levy said Sunday at a national conference on the chronic fatigue syndrome. He led the group that developed the test at the University of California at San Francisco.

Levy said most of the 120 chronic fatigue patients tested at the university had abnormal levels of three types of white blood cells produced when the body fights a virus. No one virus was present in all the patients, but Levy said levels of those three cells were either consistently high or consistently low in most of the patients.

Therefore, he said, a check of those white blood cells, plus a review of the patient's medical history, could determine whether a person has chronic fatigue syndrome. None of the 80 healthy people studied had abnormal levels, Levy said.

Chronic fatigue syndrome is characterized by exhaustion, joint and muscle aches, fever and other problems that persist for more than six months and often for years. Its cause is unknown.

Tens of thousands of Americans believe they have chronic fatigue syndrome, although the extent of it is unclear. It was dubbed "yuppie flu" because it has been widely reported among well-educated women in their 30s and 40s.

The weekend conference, titled "Unraveling the Mystery," drew 400 people, including researchers and people afflicted with the ailment.

Most researchers now agree the illness stems from immune system abnormalities, not depression or other psychological factors.

"This is going to be the 10 years that we see the greatest advancement in understanding this disease," he said.

He suggested the name be changed to "chronic immune activation syndrome" because research indicates that patients' immune systems are chronically "activated."

Thatcher expects to be re-elected

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher displayed breezy confidence on the eve of a challenge to her leadership, saying in a newspaper interview published today that her work is unfinished "and it will be finished."

Mrs. Thatcher will be in Paris for the 34-nation summit on European security when the result is announced Tuesday night of a vote on her leadership of the governing Conservative Party — and hence the government.

The vote by the 372 Tory lawmakers in the House of Commons is routine each November under party rules. But this time Mrs. Thatcher is being challenged by a strong candidate, former defense secretary Michael Heseltine. With inflation and unemployment both rising, many Tories believe Mrs. Thatcher, 65, has become too unpopular to win an unprecedented fourth term for the Conservatives.

But before going to Paris, Mrs. Thatcher told the Times of London: "It is one of my great accomplishments that we have restructured our industry, got rid of so much overmanning, got the framework of law pretty well right."

In the interview, Mrs. Thatcher said her challenger would "jeopardize all I have struggled to achieve" and that his policies were "more akin" to some of the policies of the left-leaning opposition Labor Party.

Decree repealed to free Thai press

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The government has repealed a 14-year-old decree that allowed police to summarily shut down publications in the name of national security or law and order, state radio said today.

Police now need a court order. The decree was scrapped effective Sunday in an order issued by Thailand's constitutional monarch, King Bhumibol Adulyadej, and countersigned by Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan.

The repealed decree was issued on Oct. 21, 1976 by the government of Prime Minister Thanin Kraivichien. Journalists united to lobby for the decree's repeal after police invoked it in February to shut the Naew Na newspaper for publishing a sensationalist headline about the murder of Saudi diplomats in Bangkok.

Police had argued that the headline was damaging to Thai-Saudi relations.

"The Thai press has already been known as possibly the most free in Southeast Asia, a major plus for Thailand in the eyes of the international community," the Bangkok Post said in an editorial today.

Yeltsin demands input into plan

BORIS N. YELTSIN

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris N. Yeltsin, president of the largest Soviet republic, demanded today that Mikhail S. Gorbachev consult with leaders of the republics before implementing his plan to reorganize the national government.

In his first public comment on the Soviet president's proposals, Yeltsin told the independent Interfax news agency that he found some of them "disappointing," but did not specify which ones. He said he needed to study the proposals thoroughly.

"The president's suggestions are all aimed at strengthening the center," Yeltsin told Interfax.

Remains identified as Pierre Toussaint

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists have positively identified a skeleton exhumed from a New York cemetery as the remains of a Haitian slave who is a candidate to become America's first black saint, Cardinal John O'Connor said Saturday.

A team of archaeologists, forensic scientists and anthropologists determined that a skeleton dug up earlier this month was that of Pierre Toussaint, the cardinal said.

"The definitive identification was made of the bones, all of them in order, not a single one missing," O'Connor said at an archdiocesan conference on racial and ethnic issues. "This indeed is the skeleton of Pierre Toussaint."

Toussaint was born in 1766 and brought to New York at age 21 by his French owners. Still enslaved, he became a leading hairdresser in the city and was allowed to keep some of his income.

When Toussaint's owner died, he left an impoverished widow and child. In a typical act of generosity, Toussaint secretly supported them for 20 years. The widow freed Toussaint from slavery just before she died in 1807.

Once free, he bought the freedom of slaves and lavished money on charities, including an orphanage and the city's first school for black children. He also entered quarantined sections of the city to help yellow fever victims.

Toussaint was buried at Old St. Patrick's Church Cemetery in the city's Little Italy section after his death in 1853 at age 87.

He is considered the founder of Catholic Charities because he helped the needy for 66 years when no formal systems of assistance existed.

For decades, historians have been studying the life of Toussaint, whose last name means "all saints."

The examination of his remains is a preliminary step during the period of investigation of his life. The examination occurs before he is considered for beatification, and is only an early step in a process that could take years. Toussaint's remains will stay at Old St. Patrick's Church until they are moved to St. Patrick's Cathedral, where they will be kept with the remains of bishops and other holy people, Zwilling said.

"It will be a wonderful thing for the city of New York if a canonization process ultimately takes place," O'Connor said. "It will restore some pride in the city. It will be a great thing for the church. It will be a fine thing for the black community."

Opinion

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Opinions from across the U.S. Unreasonable regulations

Late last month the U.S. Supreme Court heard oral arguments on a case in which the verdict ought to be a foregone conclusion. At its heart is the Reagan-Bush administration's gag order that bars government subsidized family planning clinics from giving any information about abortion to their clients, even in answer to direct questions. It is the Bush administration's intent to block the option (of abortion) by trampling upon the priceless right of free speech and the priceless obligation of professional responsibility. The court won't find many easier cases than this one. It should throw those regulations into the Potomac River.

The Times, Trenton, N.J.

New troops justified

Whatever lies ahead in the Persian Gulf, the large new deployment of forces ordered by President Bush is justified. The magnitude of the force being built up in the gulf sends a necessary message, too, to all Americans: This commitment is irrevocable — and may be costly. War against Iraq would be no quick-fix intervention on the order of Grenada or Panama. It could be long and bloody. President Bush, who has handled many aspects of the gulf crisis with skill, has yet to level with the public about the possible sacrifice ahead.

Birmingham (Ala.) Post-Herald

Negotiations still possible

It would be reassuring if Bush toned down the rhetoric while he built up the armies, as well. There may yet be a diplomatic solution to this crisis. There have been suggestions that Iraq might be satisfied with better access to the sea, control of an uninhabited sandbar and an indemnity for Kuwait's well-documented theft of oil and its shenanigans in the oil cartels. With these conditions, Kuwait could be restored as an independent nation, perhaps with a U.N. peace-keeping force stationed there. If such a settlement is possible, it ought to be sought. It is far more attractive than the war. Saddam may yet reject it, of course. Then the consequences are on his shoulders. If it is not offered before thousands of lives are lost, the president will need to explain his failure as a diplomat to his people and to history.

Grand Forks (N.D.) Herald

Should Bush act alone?

Is President Bush preparing to invade Iraq and Kuwait, without asking Congress for a declaration of war, just as he invaded Panama without Congress' approval? Would he do it without a United Nations decision authorizing warfare? Questions like these hang in the air as Bush continues his bellicose tone and his military buildup in the Middle Bush contends that he is acting to deter aggression, to undo Iraq's seizure of tiny Kuwait. But that's window-dressing. No, America and other nations are acting strictly to protect the Mideast oil supply that sustains the industrialized world — an understandable goal. The nagging question is: does one man have the right, all by himself, to plunge America into a major war? We would feel less uneasy if he would promise not to send 400,000 young Americans into a blood bath without asking Congress first.

The Charleston (W.Va.) Gazette

We got what we asked for

An expert, as most people know, is someone who offers an opinion from far away. "Pork barrel" is used to describe government money that funds a project in somebody else's neighborhood. Now, Tuesday's national election figures have given us a new definition: "Bum" is somebody else's congressman. "Throw the bums out!" supposedly was the cry of the land, at least according to media prophets before the election. Wednesday morning, however, America woke up to find Congress almost exactly as it was before the vote — before the budget-tax debacle, before the savings and loan bailout, before the pay raise issue, before ethics inquiries, before any of the other decisions that supposedly inflamed right-thinking patriots. So, basically, on election day, we got what we asked for. We apparently are being duly represented.

The Marietta (Ohio) Times

Voters sent no messages

What the voters did on Nov. 6 should give neither the Republicans nor the Democrats much comfort. Neither major party really won or lost much. Although the returns gave a few members reason to worry because of the closeness of the tally, they set the U.S. on no new course. The state of the economy and events in the Persian Gulf will probably do more to shape politics in the next two years than did Election Day, 1990. If messages were sent to Congress they were that taxes are unpopular, perhaps even more unpopular than the Democrats believed. Despite the difficulty of this year's tax fight, and the voters' reaction to it, taxes will probably be an issue both in 1991 and 1992. The sour taste of the 1990 tax debate likely sets the stage for harder fights over budget cutting in 1991 and 1992.

The New Mexican, Santa Fe, N.M.

Carl Rowan: An American success

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Carl Rowan's autobiography came in the mail the other day. It is a cracking good book, destined for best-seller ranking, and it tells a story that would have enchanted the late Harry Golden. Golden, you may recall, was the editor, publisher and sole proprietor of the Carolina Israelite. He delighted in tales of success that could happen "only in America." Carl Rowan's life provides an inspiring example of what Harry Golden wrote about. It is impossible, Carl remarks, for Americans under the age of 50 to understand the world into which he was born in 1925. This was the world of McMinnville, Tenn., a "brutally racist community," but no more racist, perhaps, than the whole of the segregated South at that time. Carl and his family knew the kind of poverty that is thankfully rare today.

In their rat-infested house "we had not a single clock or watch." No electricity. No running water. No telephone. No radio. "Toilet paper was a luxury we did not know when secondhand newspapers were good enough for our outhouse." The Rowan children survived on navy beans, black-eyed peas, chitlins and "Hoover's ham." They learned to rub their mattress buttons with kerosene, the better to kill the bedbugs. Carl stole lumps of coal to keep their tiny house warm. Out of that milieu emerged a black boy who would go on to become a naval officer, a brilliant reporter, and a member of the Foreign Service during the Kennedy administration. Under Lyndon Johnson he became ambassador to Finland, then director of the U.S. Information Agency. He had a chair at Cabinet meetings. He moved easily between leaders of the black community and top people in the white power structure. When he left government, it was to become one of the most successful columnists in the pundit business. At every step along the way, Carl challenged the old ways of racial segregation. He has titled his life story "Breaking Barriers," and break them he did — at public restaurants, private clubs and bastions of government tradition. Nominated for membership in Washington's exclusive Cosmos Club, he was rejected by the racist membership committee of that day. Carl took the decision with devastating grace: "It is my understanding that this is Washington's club of intellectuals. If it is the intellectual judgment of the committee that I do not merit membership, I can do no more than note this judgment and wish the club well." Carl's story is rich in anecdotal material. He traveled around the world with Lyndon Johnson and survived the experience with his sense of humor intact. He provides the best brief summation of Johnson's mercurial character that I have seen anywhere: "Lyndon Baines Johnson was egocentric, domineering, imperious, mean, insecure, corrupt, unfaithful, crude. He was also generous, brave, a fighter for the little guy, loyal to friends and causes — and damned effective." In other vignettes he perfectly captures the fuzziness of Adlai Stevenson, with whom he served at the United Nations: "He was one of the most indecisive men I have ever met in high office." He recalls Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Secretary of State Dean Rusk. In a bitter chapter he assails the evil character of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, and he pulls together the circumstantial evidence suggesting that Hoover set up Martin Luther King Jr. for assassination. Unlike most autobiographies, which have the formal feeling of a studio portrait, Carl's book is shirt-sleeve stuff. Some public figures write with pens that have been dipped in library paste. Carl dips his pen in etching acid. It is not a pretty picture of Washington's Mayor Marion Barry that emerges. Carl's pool-cue assaults sometimes carry him away. He charges flatly that Richard Nixon "ordered" the Watergate burglary. This is nonsense. Nixon covered up, stonewalled, hunkered down and lied about Watergate, but the cockamamie break-in was the brainchild of Gordon Liddy and a spineless John Mitchell. Carl's judgment of Ronald Reagan also strikes me as unfair. Most of the blame he assigns to Reagan was abundantly shared by Congress — for example, the reduction in funds for public education — and whatever may be said about Reagan's character, there is not a racist bone in Reagan's body. "Breaking Barriers" comes from Little, Brown. In the sometimes stuffy world of high-level memoirs, it is a keen and cutting breeze. As Harry Golden used to say, enjoy! ## Hold Christmas until December

Each year I make note of the time and date I see my first television commercial for Christmas music. I do this for two reasons. First, I hate television commercials for Christmas music. They go on and on, like that stupid toy rabbit playing the drum on behalf of some company that makes batteries. Who comes up with these ideas for Christmas albums? There's always the Elvis-Isn't-Really-Dead-He's-Just-Sleeping collection of Christmas favorites. And what about the Alvin and the Chipmunks Louse-Up-Every-Christmas-Song-You've-Ever-Heard album? Or the Saddam Hussein collection, the only Christmas album you've ever heard sung in Arabic, only $19.95. The only good collection of Christmas songs is the one by Bing Crosby that includes "I'll Be Home for Christmas." The trouble is, you can't find it in a record store. I tried once. The 19-year-old bimette who waited on me wanted to know "Is he punk or heavy metal?" I also record the date of the first Christmas song television commercial sighting to help prove my point that the Christmas season gets longer each year.

Lewis Grizzard

Didn't the Christmas season used to start around the second week in December? Now it starts about the same time as the National Basketball Association's new season, which is about three days after the old one ends. If we're not careful they'll start pushing Christmas music during the World Series. And if you don't buy your tree by the first of October, all that will be left are those scrawly little anorexic ones. OK, here it is: I saw my first television commercial for Christmas music this year at 7:36 a.m., Nov. 7. That's 58 days before Christmas! Fifty-eight days! Is the gestation period for a reindeer that long? Wars have taken less time. The commercial was trying to sell me a collection of Christmas music performed by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir. It's barely past dawn, two weeks before Thanksgiving, and I'm already sitting through a commercial for Christmas songs, which always reminds me of skiing, which I used to do before I gave it up. It was too cold and too much work and my boots always killed my feet. The only good part about skiing, as a matter of fact, is the first cold beer after you've taken your boots off. But where I used to ski, you never knew if you could actually buy a beer. It might be Tuesday and there might be a law that says you can't buy a beer on Tuesday unless you're over 35, of Scandinavian heritage and left-handed. And now that we have broached the subject of law, there ought to be one that says you can't put a commercial on television for anything involving Christmas until at least Dec. 1, and if you do, you have to go skiing every day with boots two sizes too small. I have nothing against Christmas. But too much is too much. I don't want to turn on my television one morning in August and have to watch a commercial pushing 2 Live Crew's new collection of Christmas music featuring the dirty rap version of "Yo, Come All Ye Faithful." ## What our flag means to me

By STEPHANIE TALBOTT The flag means a sign of bravery to me. Whenever I see it, I feel proud to be an American. I feel so proud that sometimes it sends chills up my back. I stand up straight and tall whenever I see my flag, because I want people to know how proud I am of my country. My flag has thirteen stripes, seven red and six white. There is one stripe for each of the first thirteen colonies. Every morning I say the pledge of allegiance at school. I need to stop and think about the words and what they mean. "I pledge allegiance" means, I promise to stand and be true. "To the flag of the United States of America" means to my flag and to my country "and to the republic for which it stands" means and to the people that this country was created for. "One nation under God" means one country blessed by God. "Indivisible" means which should not be divided. "With liberty" means with freedom. "And justice" means and fairness. "For all" means for every person. Each one of the colors on the flag has a special meaning. Red stands for the courage and bravery of the men who have fought and died for America. Blue stands for truth. White stands for purity. Our country is not perfect, but is still the best country in the world. Yes, my flag is a grand flag. Stephanie Talbott, 11, won first place in the essay contest sponsored by the Veterans Administration Volunteer Services with this essay. She read the essay aloud at the Veterans Day ceremony Nov. 11.

Quotes

"If the world rewards naked aggression; if we ignore the proliferation of the technologies of mass destruction; if we conclude that these challenges are not everyone's concern — then we put at risk everything we have achieved." — President Bush during a speech in Speyer, Germany, in an apparent reference to German companies that helped Iraq develop chemical weapons.

D-FY-IT celebrates membership

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

Now in its third month the Drug-Free Youth In Texas Program celebrated reaching "50 plus one" percent membership by giving T-shirts to its Big Spring High School student members Friday.

Sgt. Drew Bavins, resource officer for BSHS, said there are now applications for more than 580 students seeking to join D-FY-IT.

He said giving the T-shirts is just one of many ways planned to recognize the students participating in the program. The students were treated to a lock-in night at the Big Spring Mall in September.

He said other incentives the D-FY-IT organizers are discussing include a street dance and a job fair. The job fair will teach students how to apply for employment and give employers an opportunity to meet drug-free students interested in summer jobs.

Bavins said long-range, he's hoping for a college scholarship to recognize students graduating from BSHS with four years of drug free membership.

"We're only limited by our imagination to what we can do with this program. We're not talking about rewards; these are the benefits to being involved. This is to recognize the kids who are not doing drugs as well as those who are," Bavins said.

Bavins noted that 50 percent enrollment in the program does not mean that the other students are using in drugs. He said fear of the system, not needing to prove anything or just wanting to see how the program succeeds before joining are all reasons students may not have joined.

"There's all kinds of excuses. There's always a group that stands back to see what happens," Bavins said.

Bavins said there have been procedural problems with the initial phases of the program. Testing all the applicants, a requirement for membership, proved to be time-consuming for the organizers and Scenic Mountain Medical Center, where the drug tests are performed.

"Now (the drug testing process) is about four times faster. Scenic Mountain contacted the chemical company where they get the chemicals for the tests and now they have two instruments to do the test.

"We're only limited by our imagination to what we can do with this program." Sgt. Drew Bavins plete the random testing will begin, with the same system of numerical assignments used, he said.

"The counselor will call those students in, and will tell each of them, 'your test was negative, yours was negative.' A positive test and the student is suspended (from the program) for 30 days and must give up his identification card right there. After the first positive the student will be allowed to seek (drug) counseling voluntarily. But if the same person has two positive tests it's mandatory he take counseling," Bavins explained.

Drug counselors from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin will provide services for the program free of charge.

Bavins said the tests will record all types of drugs, including caffeine and nicotine, as well as prescription and illegal drugs. But alcohol consumption is not being tested, although Bavins said alcohol use is the primary drug problem at BSHS. There is an honor system with the students to not use alcohol, he explained.

Many businesses in Big Spring allow discounts for D-FY-IT students who hold identification cards, and Bavins said other towns participating in the program recognize the cards and support the students with discounts, also.

"I tell the kids these cards are good in the state of Texas. After the Andrews football game, some of the kids stopped at a place to eat, showed their i.d. card and got the discount in Andrews," Bavins said.

Bavins said the D-FY-IT program began in Tyler about five years ago, and now there are more than 60 cities in Texas sponsoring the program. He said other cities are calling Big Spring to find out how to begin, and he said he's in touch with prospective programs in Cloudercroft, N.M., Brownfield and parts of East Texas, as well as Coahoma and Forsan.

"We're the first in West Texas to have it. There's not a how-to guide on how to do this. The smaller the community, it seems like the better this works.... This is a kids' program and it has to be run by the kids to go on," he said.

"This is just something Scenic Mountain did to help," he said. Bavins also said he praised the hospital for performing the drug tests free of charge. He estimated each test could cost as much as $35.

Only the high school counselor knows the results of the tests, he said, explaining that for the initial blanket drug test the high school secretary will call 100 students to come in, and they will be told to go the nurses office to give the urine sample. Bavins takes the samples to the hospital and each sample is tested by the number that's been assigned. No name is given.

Once the blanket testing is com-

Hyperactive children

(AP) — Scientists have discovered the first specific abnormality in the brains of people with hyperactivity, the most common psychiatric disorder of childhood, and believe it may be an underlying cause of the condition.

Their study found that parts of the brain essential for attention and controlling behavior do not work as hard as usual in hyperactive people. Experts described this as a potentially important insight into the sources of the mysterious ailment.

People have long suspected that some physical irregularity is at the heart of the disorder, which affects between 2 percent and 4 percent of school-age children.

Corporation tries hand at running school

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A new public school in a blighted neighborhood is being turned over to a corporation that will run it for profit, in its own unusual fashion: no grades, no desks and a phone in every classroom.

"We have an opportunity to change education in America, and we're going to use all the strength and love and energy we have to make it happen," Pat Parham, principal of the still-uncompleted South Pointe Elementary School, told an overflow crowd of about 150 teachers at a meeting last week.

Educational Alternatives Inc., which operates private schools in Paradise Valley, Ariz., and Eagan, Minn., plans to open South Pointe with 550 students next fall and run it for five years. Dade County school officials approved the plan this summer.

EAI Director Kathryn Thomas said the school will create an atmosphere that celebrates learning by reducing student-teacher ratios to 12-1, tossing out multiple-choice exams and letting students pursue personal goals at their own pace.

South Pointe won't have desks, but it will have computers. Classroom telephones will let students call their parents during school hours to share their successes.

"What we've done is try to empower children," Thomas said. "Learning becomes contagious when everybody is actively involved in the process."

Some local educators expressed skepticism about such a program in an area where about 95 percent of the families qualify for public assistance, many students come from broken homes and drug abuse and violence are common.

"I hope it's not as idealistic as it sounds. This area is tough," said Lourdes Fernandez, who teaches second grade at another local elementary school.

But Frank Petruzielo, Dade County's associate school superintendent, said there is no reason to believe that only traditional educational theories work.

"Everybody's got an idea and an opinion on how to improve public education," he said. "This was a novel opportunity to let people put their money where their mouth is."

EAI charges $4,500 tuition at its schools in Minnesota and Arizona.

South Pointe, which is being built with Dade County funds, will get no additional public funding. That means EAI will have to pay for extra learning materials and make its profit from the $450,000 it hopes to raise privately.

The school also has applied for a three-year, $230,000 Nabisco Foundation grant to face one of its biggest challenges: encouraging parents, many of whom speak no English and have little formal education, to get involved.

"We want our parents to learn how to be parents," Parham said. "We're trying to hire a person to go into the homes and train the parents on how to work with their children."

MIAMI — Second graders in Fienberg Elementary School on Miami Beach are seen in a crowded split classroom. These rooms are forced to take two complete second grade classes in a space designed for one class. The completion of South Pointe Elementary, operating as part of a profit-making corporation, should take some of the pressure off the crowded conditions.

Mike Williams led Big Spring in scoring with 23 points, followed by Louis Soldan with 19 points. Rod White added 11.

"At times we played hard, and at other times, we didn't play so hard," said Big Spring coach Tommy Washington.

"We had an eight point lead in the third quarter; then we did what we had to do to get beat. We threw the ball away and took some bad shots."

In the junior varsity game the Steers won 59-49, raising their record to 1-1. Mike Gamboa scored 17 points, and Troy Dixon added 14.

Big Spring will be on the road Tuesday against the Lamesa Tornados. Junior varsity starts at 6 p.m., followed by varsity play at 7:30.

Long jumper may get reinstated

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A three-member panel of The Athletics Congress has recommended that long jumper Larry Myricks, who was suspended for life after three positive tests for a stimulant, be reinstated in April.

The reinstatement panel of TAC's National Athletics Board of Review consisted of Curtis Stitt of Columbus, Ohio, Rose Monday of El Segundo, Calif., and John Knight of Ashland, Ore.

It conducted a hearing Nov. 13 and notified the national governing body Monday that it would recommend Myricks' reinstatement as of April 13, 1991. The date marks the one-year anniversary of Myricks' original three-month suspension.

Myricks, the 1988 Olympic bronze medalist in the long jump, tested positive for phenylpropanolamine, a stimulant, at the U.S. Indoor Championships at New York Feb. 24.

Hawk Classic action starts tonight

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Hoard College Hawks return to Dorothy Garrett Coliseum when the Hawk Classic begins its two-day run tonight.

Howard will play tonight and Tuesday at 8 p.m. Other teams in the Classic are Western Texas College, Wharton Junior College and Lamar College from Colorado.

Tonight's action begins at 6 p.m., pitting Western Texas, a Western Junior College Athletic Conference team, against Lamar at 6 p.m. Western Texas enters the tournament with a 6-2 record and Lamar goes into tonight's play with a 2-3 mark.

At 8 tonight, Howard, 8-0 and ranked No. 6 in the nation, will play Wharton, 2-3.

Western Texas and Wharton play at 6 p.m. Tuesday, followed by the Howard-Lamar game at 8.

Coach Steve Green's Hawks are coming off a three-game sweep in the Western Texas Classic last weekend. Howard got a forfeit win over Weatherford, then beat Ranger 117-94 and Temple 112-101.

In that tournament, post player Vernon Broughton averaged 21 points, followed by forward Johnny McDowell with 19 points; guard Antonio Valiengo with 17 and forward Harvey Petty with 16.

Coach Green said that balanced scoring has been a strong point for his Hawks this season. "Offensively we're futher along. Last year we depended on two people. We have about six guys night in and night out that are scoring in double figures," said Green. "I think the highest anybody's scored for us this year is 24. Last year Terrence Lewis scored once in the 50s, a 40 and some 30s. This year we've got very good balance."

The Hawks' leading scorer is McDowell, who's averaging 18.2 points per game. He's followed by Broughton at 16.8, Cecil Pittman at 13.2, Harvey Petty at 13.0 and Antonio Valiengo at 10.6 points per game.

The fast-paced Hawks are scoring at 120 points per clip, but Green sees some room for improvement on defense. "We're scoring a lot more points than I thought we would, and with the exception of Howard Payne,

Cowboys boot Rams, 24-21

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The teams' records are similar, but their coaches sounded anything but similar after their game.

"We're extremely proud of our guys," Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson said.

"What's happening to us is nightmarish," Rams coach John Robinson said.

Dallas' 24-21 victory over Los Angeles-Sunday was indicative of the Cowboys' improvement and the Rams' slide.

Dallas finished 1-15 last season; the Rams were 11-5 and made it to the NFC championship game before the 49ers knocked them out of the playoffs.

Now, Dallas is 4-7 while the Rams are 3-7.

The game was as close as the score would indicate, as Ken Willis' 23-yard field goal with 4:24 remaining provided the difference.

Troy Aikman and Emmitt Smith, both of whom had vented their frustration recently with the Cowboys' sputtering offense, helped crank it up against Los Angeles.

Aikman threw for 303 yards and three touchdowns for the Cowboys, who hadn't scored a touchdown in their last two games.

Smith accounted for 171 yards, 117 on four receptions and 54 on 24 carries.

"The offense was really opened up," said Dallas wide receiver Michael Irvin, who caught two scoring passes from Aikman. "We went deep, aired it out and that made it easier for our passes underneath."

"Hopefully some of those things can be put to rest now and we can go on and just play football," Aikman said of the questions and frustrations surrounding the Dallas offense.

"While winning gave the Cowboys a chance to feel good about their team, losing deepened the despair of the Rams.

"Our football team seems to be unable to do the things you need to do to win," Robinson said. "Whenever it comes down to it, we do whatever it is that adds to the negative part of the situation. I don't have an explanation for this."

"This is not an enjoyable time," said Jim Everett, who threw for just 137 yards, going 14-of-25 with no touchdowns and no interceptions. "... Granted we've proceeded to stink it up one way or another, but there's no hiding."

The Rams seemed to have the upper hand when, with the game tied 21-21 in the fourth quarter, they had the ball first-and-goal at the Dallas 3. But Cleveland Gary was stopped for a loss, then fumbled on the next play when he was tackled by linebacker Ken Norton. Norton fell on the ball at the 5-yard line and the Rams' final threat was over.

Aikman then drove the Cowboys down the field, helped by a short pass that Smith turned into a 44-yard pickup to the Rams' 27, and ANAHEIM, Calif. — Emmitt Smith (22) of the Dallas Cowboys races past the Los Angeles Rams defense en route to a gain of 57 yards on a pass from quarterback Troy Aikman Sunday at Anaheim Stadium.

CLEVELAND — Houston Oilers quarterback Warren Moon (1) scrambles away from Cleveland Browns defensive back Stephen Braggs late in Sunday's 35-23 win by the Oilers. Moon celebrated his 34th birthday by throwing five touchdown passes.

Moon celebrates birthday with five touchdown passes

CLEVELAND (AP) — Houston's run-and-shoot offense is a test even if your defense is at its healthiest. If your best cornerback is hurt, forget it.

Warren Moon threw touchdown passes to five different receivers and passed for 322 yards Sunday as the Oilers beat the Cleveland Browns 35-23.

Moon, celebrating his 34th birthday, took advantage of a Cleveland secondary that was without Pro Bowl cornerback Frank Minnifield, sidelined by a sore heel.

"It definitely hurt them a lot," Moon said. "Frank's a great corner. He's physical. He'll fight with you. He'll do whatever it takes to make the play. He's real scrappy and he's a leader out there."

Minnifield was on the active roster but did not get in the game. He had done limited practicing this week after injuring the heel in practice 10 days ago.

His replacement, Stefon Adams, is primarily a punt returner, and Adams was unable to keep up with Curtis Duncan in the frequent one-on-one situations presented by the Oilers' four-receiver attack. Duncan caught seven passes for a career-high 130 yards, including one of Moon's three fourth-quarter touchdowns.

"Stefon, that was his first time out there," Cleveland defensive back Stephen Braggs said. "He hadn't played DB for a year or two. You take a team like Houston and you really have to know your P's and Q's."

Cleveland kept it close for three quarters, taking a 16-14 lead on Jerry Kauric's 22-yard field goal in the third period. Kauric had missed an extra point following the Browns' first touchdown.

But former Brown Gerald McNeil started the Oilers' fourth-quarter flurry with a 26-yard punt return to the Houston 48-yard line.

Bears kicker makes good on second field goal try

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

As the undefeated 49ers and Giants keep right on winning, the almost-perfect Chicago Bears aren't taking a back seat to either.

The 49ers established an NFL record with their 18th straight victory, a ho-hum 31-7 affair against Tampa Bay. The Giants also moved to 10-0 this season with a humdrum 20-0 wipeout of Detroit.

At least the Bears, now 9-1, had the decency to make it interesting. They needed almost all of overtime for a 16-13 victory at Denver.

Chicago's win was one of six games that went down to the wire. In others, Dallas edged Los Angeles, Minnesota took Seattle and Green Bay beat Phoenix, all by 24-21 scores; Indianapolis defeated the Jets 17-14; and Philadelphia was a 24-23 winner over Atlanta.

Also, it was Houston 35, Cleveland 23, spoiling Jim Shofner's debut as Browns coach; Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 27-3; Buffalo blanked New England 14-0; Washington beat New Orleans 31-17; and Kansas City downed San Diego 27-10.

Tonight, the Los Angeles Raiders are at Miami.

Bears 16, Broncos 13, OT

The kicking game was decisive for Chicago, which has won six straight. But first, the Bears had to have a setback.

Kevin Butler missed a 41-yard field goal as regulation ended when the ball struck the upright.

"The first one missed by inches," said coach Mike Ditka, who was rather demonstrative on the sidelines when it happened. "He's entitled."

Butler said it is "a terrible feeling to miss a kick like that, but fortunately it hasn't happened much to me in my career. It felt like I hit coach Dan Reeves said. "We were backed up constantly, and we couldn't make a play to get out of it."

The 49ers joined the Bears of 1933-34 and 1941-42 and the Dolphins of 1972-73 with their 18th straight victory. The defense recorded seven sacks of Chris Chandler, with NFC leader Charles Haley getting two.

Joe Montana hit Brent Jones for two scores, completed 23 of 35 passes for 230 yards and two touchdowns and became the first player ever to eclipse the 3,000-yard mark seven times. His one interception was returned 65 yards for a touchdown by Wayne Haddix, who has returned all three of his interceptions this season for touchdowns.

"We really don't pay much attention to it at this point," Montana said of the winning streak. "It will be nice later to look back on, but right now it's no big deal. It's just something that's going along with us."

Names in the news

Roseanne's singing again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roseanne Barr isn't singing the blues over the discor surrounding her shrieking rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner."

In fact, the hit television comic says she wasn't even nervous when she warbled "I Enjoy Being a Girl" on Thursday night's videotaping of ABC's "Into the Night" show.

"You know, I got two standing ovations. So I think my career as a singer is back on track," she said in an interview.

But the star of TV's "Roseanne" won't be doing any "patriot songs" after the drubbing she took for the way she sang the national anthem.

Piscopo to marry again

NEW YORK (AP) — "Saturday Night Live" alumnus Joe Piscopo surprised everyone but himself when he popped the question to his son's former babysitter during a videotaping of "The Howard Stern Show."

Piscopo, 39, proposed to 20-year-old Kimberly Driscoll as the WWOR-TV program was taped at its Secaucus, N.J., studio, said station spokeswoman Ellen Morgenstern.

at a San Diego Padres baseball game this summer.

"Any anthem or something, I'm not going to sing them anymore," she said.

"This was not one of our planned segments," she said.

Piscopo had a jeweler deliver the engagement ring after the taping.

Leaders sign historic arms treaty

PARIS (AP) — President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev joined European leaders today in signing a historic treaty that cuts conventional forces in Europe and pushes the Cold War deeper into history.

"It is the farthest-reaching arms agreement in history and it signals the new world order that is emerging," Bush said in a glittering signing ceremony.

The long-sought agreement to destroy tens of thousands of tanks, artillery and armored combat vehicles in Europe is the most sweeping arms accord in history. It was signed as prelude to a 34-nation summit originally called to discuss European security in the post Cold War era, but shadowed by the Persian Gulf crisis.

"We are putting an end to the previous age," French President Francois Mitterrand declared as he put his signature to the treaty documents. One by one the other leaders followed suit, with Gorbachev the last one to wield the pen. As the treaty was passed back to Mitterrand, the roomful of leaders applauded their work.

"This reduces to practically nil the tensions that have existed," said Bush.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas described the meeting as the most important international event since World War II and said

Leaders from NATO and Warsaw Pact nations gather here Monday for the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe. The conference produced an arms treaty that leaders on both sides hailed as significant.

it will "design the architecture of Europe for the century to come."

U.S. officials view the summit more modestly, describing the 34-nation forum primarily as a device for promoting political freedom, human rights and East-West cooperation. With the extraordinary assembly of government leaders, French authorities mobilized rooftop sharpshooters, anti-terrorist units and 10,000 police officers to provide security — and also to clear paths for convoys of limousines. Parisians braced for severe traffic disruptions.

Domestic political crises faced by some leaders offered a dramatic sideshow. Gorbachev left behind a country staggering under political and economic chaos. Prime Ministers Margaret Thatcher of Britain and Michel Rocard of France face Parliament votes that conceivably could topple them during the summit.

Yet, the gathering gave Bush an opportunity to exercise his personal diplomacy to solidify support for his Persian Gulf policies. Officials said the president would seek backing for a United Nations resolution authorizing military action to force Iraq out of Kuwait.

Bush and Thatcher emerged from a breakfast meeting today warning that fighting might erupt unless Iraq's Saddam Hussein withdraws from Kuwait.

Bush demanded that Saddam "turn tail 180 degrees" and Mrs. Thatcher said the Iraqi president "has to be removed by force" unless he pulls out soon.

At a joint news conference with the British prime minister, Bush

Eta Master met Thursday in the home of Mamie Roten for its traditional Thanksgiving dinner. The chapter formed a circle around the dinner table and each member said what she was most thankful for. The appointments of the table were souvenirs of the hostess' recent trip on the "Fall Foliage Tour."

After dinner, Sammie Laws conducted a business meeting and several projects were finalized for the holidays. There will be a sequined table cloth to be given away in the spring and a table runner given before Christmas. Tickets are now available from chapter members. A ticket will give one chance for both of the projects.

Pauline Wood presented Mamie Roten, who spoke of her recent trip. Other members present included Helen Ruth Louder, Margaret Roueche and Mary Prudie Brown.

Bush seeks backing for resolution

(AP) President Bush today dismissed Iraq's promise to release all remaining foreigners by March as a cynical ploy and tried to win more support for a U.N. resolution authorizing an attack to drive Iraqi forces from Kuwait.

Some U.S. allies in the Persian Gulf crisis, including the Soviet Union and Germany, expressed concern that Bush was rushing toward war.

But Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain reiterated her support for Bush's position, saying that Saddam Hussein can avoid war only by withdrawing quickly from Kuwait.

"Most people understand evil has to be stopped. Either he withdraws, or the military option has to be used," she said after seeing Bush in Paris, where NATO and Warsaw Pact leaders signed an arms reduction treaty.

However, Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev said he was sure a way could be found to avoid war and that he would offer "new ideas" in a meeting with Bush today. Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany told Bush on Sunday that all options short of war must first be exhausted.

Also Sunday, Iraq announced that it would free the estimated 2,000 remaining Westerners stranded in Iraq and occupied Kuwait between Christmas and March 25 "unless something would take place that mars the atmosphere of peace."

Saddam has been releasing Westerners a few at a time, and another 136 arrived in London from Baghdad early today. Bush called the Iraqi announcement a bid to buy time.

"This cynicism of starting to release them on Christmas Day will be seen by the world as a total ploy," Bush said.

Air Force readying for gulf casualties

DARMSTADT, Germany (AP) — The U.S. Air Force is setting up four contingency hospitals in Europe in preparation for a possible influx of casualties from the Persian Gulf, the newspaper Stars and Stripes reported today.

The unofficial U.S. military publication said "teams from Air Force bases in Europe began getting the so-called 'turnkey' hospitals ready late last month."

"There's no beating around the bush about it," the newspaper quoted Col. Thomas M. Chester as saying. Chester is chief of medical readiness for the Air Force in Europe.

The newspaper said the contingency hospitals include a renovated aircraft hangar and a former German hospital. It gave their locations as three Royal Air Force bases in England — RAF Bicester, RAF Little Rissington and RAF Nocton Hall — and "one location in Zweibruecken, Germany."

According to the report, some 4,500 medical personnel will be needed if the hospitals are pressed into service.

The newspaper said that since many Europe-based medical personnel have been sent to the Middle East, the hospitals will be staffed by people sent from the United States, including active duty personnel, Air Force reservists and Air National Guard personnel.

AYER, Mass. — Tom, left, and Karen Stamulis embrace Sunday at Fort Devens as Tom, a member of the Army's 36th Medical Reservists Battalion, prepares to board a bus for transport to Westover Air Force Base, and then deployment to Saudi Arabia for duty in Desert Shield operations.

will be seen by the world as a total ploy," Bush said.

Board approves insurance hike

AUSTIN (AP) — State insurance officials today approved a 15.2 percent increase in the statewide average residential property insurance rates.

The increase, which will take effect April 1, is the largest property rate hike in at least 10 years.

The State Board of Insurance passed the increase on a 2-1 vote, with board member Jo Ann Howard dissenting, saying she wanted a smaller increase.

The increase means homeowners insurance rates will go up an average 15.8 percent.

Insurance Board chairman James Saxton said the increases were necessary to offset rising property losses and decreased property values.

Board members also divided the state into 21 rating territories, rather than the current practice of using four territories.

Comanche Peak plant shut down

GLEN ROSE (AP) — The operators of the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant shut it down early today after declaring an unusual event — the fourth since the facility was brought to full power in July.

The unusual event, the least serious of four levels of emergencies established by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, was declared after a piece of equipment used for backup electrical power to the plant could not be repaired in the time required by federal regulators.

TU Electric on-site spokesman Jerry Lee said the equipment problem posed no danger to the plant or its workers.

Today's shutdown is the 10th unplanned shutdown since the plant began operations about 40 miles south of Fort Worth.

The unusual event was declared at 2 a.m. when plant officials saw repair on an inverter was not going to be completed by 3 a.m., within a 24-hour deadline imposed by federal regulators, said Lee.

The inverter is used only when off-site electrical power to the plant is halted, Lee said. It converts the electricity produced by standby generators to AC power, he said.

"It has no effect on the plant under any normal conditions whatsoever," Lee said. "As far as safety or endangerment to the plant or the people, it's absolutely none."

Lee said the problem with one of the four inverters in the reactor unit was discovered at 3 a.m. Sunday.

"We were not going to make that 24-hour stipulation, so under those conditions we are required to bring the plant down in a controlled shutdown," he said.

NRC spokesman Joe Gilliland said the fact that the plant has had four unusual events since beginning operations was not out of the ordinary for a new plant.

"They're all for different reasons and we don't attach much significance to that," he said.

By 8:30 a.m., the plant was operating at 1 percent power. Lee said the repair should be completed later today. He said a specific timetable to bring the plant back up to power had not been established.

"They fix the inverter and then they go back up to power whenever they are ready," Gilliland said.
