Parole office changing locations

The Howard County Office of Pardons and Paroles is in the process of moving into the Sparenberg building. Officer David Harman said the new of fice is necessary to accommodate an expanding workload.

"Our workload got to be such that we needed a third officer, he said. "They've built us three offices here, and we're hiring an additional officer.

He said their current location, 110 West Third, is not large enough for the staff. The office was moved out of the now-vacant Permian Building earlier this year.

Cathey files suit for commissioner post

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

A suit contesting the results of the Nov. 6 general election was filed Tuesday afternoon in 118th District Court by a lawyer representing Bobby Cathey, candidate for commisioner, Precinct

The action was the result of an unofficial recount Nov. 16, after the discovery of a computer counting error, which indicated Cathey beat Republican Robert Crenshaw 851-850. Crenshaw was orginally declared the winner by 51 votes.

Since the original election results giving Crenshaw 802 votes to Cathey's 751 were certified by the Commissioners Court, Crenshaw will remain the Pct. 4 commissioner-elect pending the suit's outcome. No other races were affected by the margin of the counting error.

The suit asks that absentee votes the Big Spring High School area be taken into account and Cathey be declared the winner. The suit also requests that if the winner cannot be determined, then the election be voided and a new election ordered.

Auditors from the Secretary of State's office recounted the Pct. 402 absentee ballots after an employee in the County Clerk's office discovered that as many as 154 of 168 votes had not been counted by the computer. The recount showed that Cathey received 100 of the actual 148 uncounted votes cast in the Pct. 4 commissioner race.

'We want the Democratic process to work where all votes are discovered uncounted in Pct. 402 in counted," said Cathey's attorney, Robert Miller. "That's the way the system works. We're doing what the state laws say.' Cathey could not be reached for comment. Crenshaw, who has 10 days to answer the suit after being served with a copy of the complaint, said he has already talked to a lawyer and is ready to proceed. "We're ready. Let's get it settled and get on with our lives," said Crenshaw, the second person ever to be certified as a Republican winner to the Commissioners Court. Miller said, "We'd like to get this resolved by Jan. 1." Newly elected commissioners take office in

On Tuesday afternoon 118th District Judge Bob Moore, who is automatically disqualified by law from hearing a local election contest suit, began efforts to obtain a visiting judge. He has contacted 32nd District Judge Weldon Kirk, Sweetwater, who presides over the 7th Administrative Judicial Region, to begin the process needed to appoint a judge to the case.

"I don't want to go past this week without someone being appointed," Moore said. "We will do something pretty quickly.'

Witnesses differ on who was drunk

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Witnesses offered contradictory testimony in 118th District Court as to whether Johnny Mack Brown, 46, accused of fatally running over Virginia Ryan, 43, last year, was drunk before the incident.

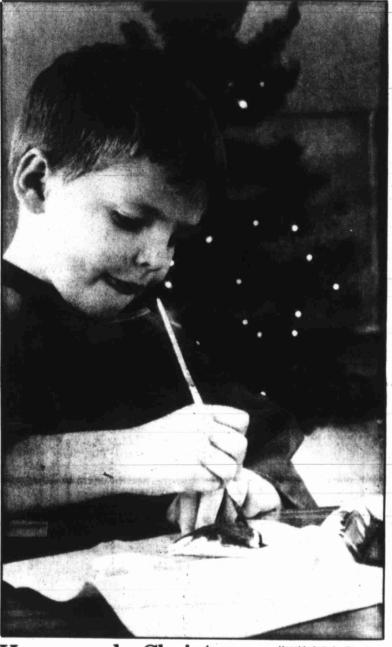

Three witnesses in Brown's trial for involuntary manslaughter this morning said both Brown and Ryan were intoxicated to a degree and another said Brown was intoxicated before the couple left the Brass Nail together in the early morning of Dec. 2. One said Brown was not intoxicated while Ryan was. A fifth witness said she did not

Ryan was also reportedly emotionally upset the night she died Before leaving the bar, she was seen crying in a bathroom by three women, one a friend of hers. Another witness said she saw Ryan hitting Brown with her fists as they left. Between 1 and 3 a.m. that morning Brown was seen kneeling by Ryan's body on the 3600 block of Parkway. Brown's pickup was next to her body. Hernando Rodriguez testified that he was driving by when he saw them. He said he stopped and Brown simply looked at him and said, "She's dead."

Asked by Assistant District Attorney William Dupree if Brown appeared intoxicated and, if so, new much, Rodriguez said, "I would say very." However, Brenda Jones, who

Iraq boosting troop strength in Kuwait

(AP) Baghdad is sending more troops into Kuwait, the Pentagon says, as the United Nations prepares to vote on a U.S.-sponsored resolution demanding that Iraq withdraw from Kuwait by Jan. 15 or face possible attack.

At the same time, Iraq's deputy foreign minister said today in Baghdad that President Bush should initiate talks with Saddam Hussein to restore peace in the Persian Gulf, although he did not offer concessions regarding Kuwait.

Iraq has called for dialogue with the United States previously, but U.S. officials have said there is nothing to discuss as long Iraq refuses to free all foreign hostages and withdraw unconditionally from Kuwait.

Another Iraqi official denied today that Baghdad was preventing Soviets from leaving the country. On Monday, the Soviet Foreign Ministry accused Baghdad of breaking a promise to allow Soviets in Iraq to leave and threatened a "tougher attitude" if they were not granted freedom. On Tuesday, the White House faced criticism in its drive for a U.N. resolution authorizing force. Senate Democrats questioned the need for swift military action and demanded more say in gulf policy decisions.

Relatives of Americans held by Iraq also urged a more cautious approach by the Bush administration.

China's foreign minister, Qian Qichen, said in Beijing today his country would not vote for the U.N. use-of-force resolution. But he refused to say whether China would veto the measure, which it could do as one of five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council.

U.S. officials say the Chinese have promised not to oppose the resolution.

Qian was to meet with Secretary of State James A. Baker III tonight and may be seeking concessions in return for abstaining during Thursday's U.N. vote.

China wants Washington to lift economic sanctions it imposed following the June 1989 military crackdown that crushed China's pro-democracy movement. Qian's is the first official visit by a Chinese minister since the crackdown.

The Pentagon estimated on Tuesday that Iraq has 450,000 troops in Kuwait, up 20,000 from last week. About 230,000 U.S. soldiers are in the region as part of the 330,000-strong multinational force.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said any Iraqi build-up in the region is a further indication Saddam has no intention of complying with U.N. demands that he withdraw. Iraq seized Kuwait Aug. 2 in a dispute over oil, land and money

Library open house marks anniversary

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

Moments from the past will help Howard County Library officials and patrons celebrate a 20th anniversary.

The library has been in its current location for two decades, and to commemorate the anniversary, an open house will take place Saturday from 1 p.m to 4 p.m. with refreshments, exhibits and door

Librarian Donna Jackson said several reminders of the past would be on display at the event.

"We'll have some old pictures from the move (into the current building," she said. "And some of the different events that happened around that time. We'll have some original Herald photos up, too."

Rose von Hassell, acquisitions librarian, said the library sent out about 400 invitations to frequent library supporters, local businesses, schools and county and city officials.

'Hopefully we will not have forgotten anyone we should have invited," she said. "But we may have. We hope anyone who wants to come out will.' According to library information compiled by Rebecca Taylor, the library is housed in a building that was the post office. Near the current library location, the first school in Howard County had been built in 1882 and moved about fifty years later to build the new post.

The post office kept the site until the late sixties, when it moved into the current Federal Building at Fifth and Main streets. In 1970, a letter-writing campaign by local citizens and officials was successful in obtaining the Scurry Street location for the library.

The library moved from the Dora Roberts home, and its new building was formally dedicated in November 1970. The ceremony was attended by about 150 citizens as well as state and local officials.

The mural, "O Pioneer . . . " by artist Peter Hurd, painted when the building was the post office, had been part of a federal program to encourage the arts, Taylor discovered. At the open house event an exhibit of other murals produced under the same program will be on display.

The library, now bursting its seams in the current building, may be allowed to expand soon, Jackson

"(The County Commissioners). while looking at Courthouse renovation, have considered the library as well, and we are grateful for that," she said. "Right now . . . we are looking at stages of changes that we can do over time." Expansion will probably begin with utilizing the basement, she

Texas retailers report higher weekend sales

DALLAS (AP) - Texas retailers Retailing Studies at Texas A&M, sive electronic and jewelry items gave thanks this week for steady or slightly higher Thanksgiving weekend sales while stores around the country experienced dropoffs.

Sales results were mixed in Texas during the year's busiest shopping weekend. But that gave a boost to retailers who have been braced for consumers to cut back on holiday purchases because they fear a recession and war in the Persian Gulf.

'This was an encouraging week for retailers," Larry Gresham, associate director of the Center for said Tuesday. "They had people in the stores this past week ... but buying less expensive things."

A survey by the Texas A&M center and the Arthur Andersen accounting firm of 250 stores in Texas' three largest metropolitan areas showed sales were above the expectations of most retailers last week. But less than half of the stores' reported higher sales compared to the same week last year.

Moderately-priced items sold the best last week, the survey found, while sales of clothing and expenwere down.

Telecheck Southwest Inc., the Houston-based clearinghouse for checks, said the amount of money it processed over the weekend was up 4.1 percent compared to last year. But the average size of each check in Texas this weekend was down 0.7 percent to $107.55 compared to last year.

The amount of money spent this weekend through checks jumped the most in Houston, 5.3 percent, Telecheck said. The amount of money spent by check jumped 3.5

Housewares and cosmetics sold the best in Dallas-Fort Worth, the Texas A&M-Arthur Andersen survey found. Electronics and men's apparel sold best in Houston and electronics and cosmetics sold best in San Antonio.

Former sheriff guilty of organized crime

GREENVILLE (AP) - A former Rockwall County sheriff could face up to life imprisonment for his part in a marijuana and bail bonds scheme.

A jury will decide on punishment today for John David McWhorter, 37, who was found guilty of engaging in organized crime Tuesday.

Bail bondsman Jimmie Charles Cook and former Chief Deputy David Knight testified that McWhorter approved the removal of more than 90 pounds of marijuana from the department's property room. He was also accused of sharing in the profits from the drug's sale and entering in a bail bond scheme for profit.

Under Texas law, a jury had only to find McWherter guilty of one of 22 "overt acts" cited in the indictment to convict him.

McWhorter denied any wrongdoing and testified that the marijuana was burned with the permission of a district judge.

"I'm satisfied," said District Attorney Ray Sumrow, who prosecuted the case. "I think the jury followed the law and evaluated the evidence.'

The jury returned to the Hunt County courtroom at about 4:40 p.m. Sumrow said. Deliberations lasted 11/2 days.

Greenville is a city of 21,000 about 45 miles northeast of Dallas. Prosecutors also alleged that McWhorter entered into a bail bond scheme from which he shared

Cook and Knight testified that inmates were pressured to use Cook's A-1 Bail Bonds, with the understanding that McWhorter and Knight would split 25 percent of the company's profits.

State on track for train

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas may be on the fast track toward construction of a 200 mph train, officials say.

And if such a line were built. the head of the Federal Railroad Administration said Tuesday, the state could become an international transportation leader.

The train system being considered by the Texas High Speed Rail Authority "may become a real world leader ... for the United States," said Railroad Administrator Gilbert E. Carmichael

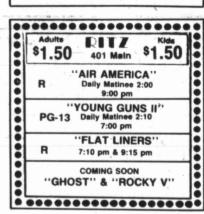

Carmichael likened a 200 mph train line linking the state's major cities to the first stretch of turnpike built by Pennsylvania, which eventually became the current interstate highway

"This nation is watching Texas. You're one of the leading states ... Where Texas goes and California goes and Florida goes, the rest of us tend to go,' he said.

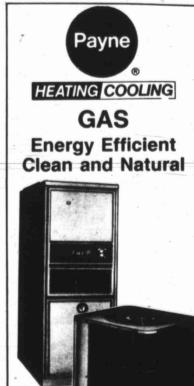

Two groups are vying to build a Texas rail system that officials said is to be constructed with private funds

High Speed Rail Authority Chairman Charles Wyly said Tuesday that final proposals for the project must be submitted by Jan. 16, 1991. The panel hopes to choose a winner by mid-May.

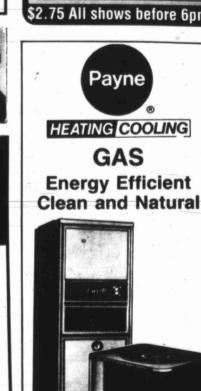

"We're moving along on a pretty fast track" toward awarding the franchise, Wyly said.

Bush promises Mexico he will oppose barriers

Bush cautioned U.S. and Mexican business leaders Tuesday that protectionist sentiments may spread with the downturn in the U.S. economy.

'As the gigantic U.S. economy slows down — it may slow down even more — it concerns me that some in our country and some in our Congress might turn inward to what you properly label as a protectionist mode," Bush said.

But protectionist measures will not become "a major problem," Bush said before returning to Washington Tuesday night from a two-day trip to Mexico. "This president will continue to veto protectionist legislation.

"I think most Americans realize that if we are going to export, we better not be protectionist," Bush said. "You can't have it both ways. We shouldn't want to have it both Bush's main reason for his visit to Monterrey, Mexico, was to discuss with President Carlos Salinas de Gortari the prospects for a free-trade agreement between the two countries. Bush has asked Congress for the green light to begin negotiations.

"I don't think as we go forward on a free trade agreement it's going to get caught up in the evil vise of U.S. protectionism," Bush said Monday before Salinas hosted the president and his wife, Barbara, at state luncheon.

In a joint statement, the two presidents expressed "shared concern about the cases of violence on both sides of the border." The issue is a sensitive one in Mexico. Concerns have been expressed about violence in the United States against Mexican immigrants. The presidents directed their aides to develop recommendations on stopping such incidents.

They also agreed to develop a plan to deal with environmental pollution along the border, including hazardous wastes produced by Mexican industry.

Accumulating excess weight

Humans may be biologically fated for fat thighs and bellies, but the overweight can take comfort in the fact that they are not alone. In a recent series of studies, researchers have found that almost all mammals horses, rabbits, bears, camels - put on pounds in pretty much the same places humans do and for many of the same reasons. The belly on males and thighs on females are particularly prone to accumulations of quivering quantities of excess flesh.

Among all mammals species, females are generally chunkier than males, probably because of the presence of reproductive hormones. Studies show that fatty deposits on female thighs particularly provide long-term storage for energy needed for child-bearing. So both humans and horses get saddlebags.

Belly fat in males has been found to be responsive to stress-related hormones like adrenaline. When these hormones are present, abdominal fat releases quick energy to muscles. Scientists suspect that in early man such a response would have been useful in dangerous hunting situations where man had to be ready either to fight or flee. Since modern men are rarely called upon to face down anything as threatening as a mammoth, belly fat tends to pile up.

The one thing other animals, at least in the wild, seem better able to do than humans is shed the fat when it is no longer needed. Thus bears and woodchucks can fatten up quickly just before they hibernate in winter, but still manage to stay slim in the spring and summer when food is abundant.

What's different among humans is that so few of them have the self-control to resist overeating, something that their four-legged cousins are biologically programmed to do. Unlike them, many of us act as if we were getting ready to hibernate the year around.

Hey Pres. — don't forget West Texas

By BILL AYRES

I heard a report on the radio the other day saying that the nation, believe it or not, is in the middle of a mild recession. But don't worry, the report was positive the recession would end by April.

My question is, does that mean everywhere or just the big industrial areas?

After all, West Texas has been in a recession since the oil bust in '86. Things may be a little better now than they were than, but for most of us working-class people, the recession seems more than just mild.

Not too long ago Lubbock received national attention when President Bush, discussing the state of the nation's economy, made the comment that everything was all right in that

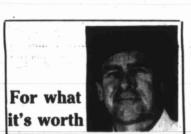

It was nice to have someone in authority actually admit that rural America exists, let alone acknowledge the fact that anyone lives there.

At the time the President made his comment, I was living in a much smaller community, one that had been hit hard by the oil bust. I thought that perhaps then the nation would take notice of the problems facing rural Americans and begin to take steps to help alleviate the situation.

I keep forgetting: if you don't have the numbers, you don't have the power and without the power, you don't have a voice.

This is not to say that our state and federal representatives aren't trying to help their constituents. But they are only small fish in big ponds when you compare them to the booming voices of the big cities and other big states.

If there is any doubt about what kind of recession exists in West Texas, just drive around. All of the small communities, like Stanton or Coahoma, have felt the effects. Businesses have closed, property values have decreased, but prices and taxes have increased. The cost of living in a small community continues to rise, putting the "Mayberry" image in jeopardy.

Medium communities, like Big Spring, have weathered the storm better, but have still felt the effects. The larger communities of West Texas haven't escaped either. In fact, the recession that hit in '86 was wide spread devastating the entire region nearly as badly as the dust bowl

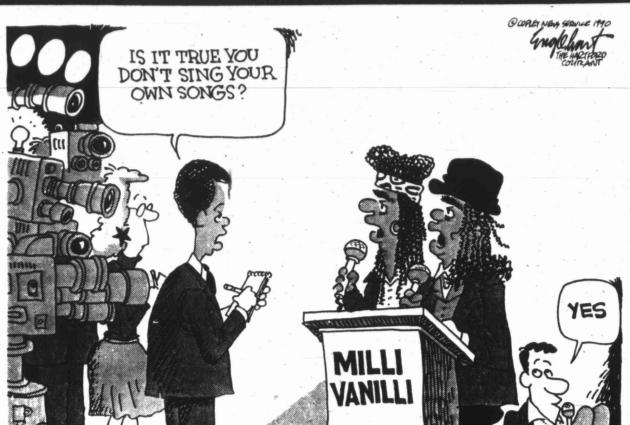

If the figures of this year's census are correct, and there is some doubt about that, West Texas lost another precious asset. According to the preliminary figures, the majority of communities in West Texas had decreases in their population.

The state employment commission has estimated that the majority of the losses came from the work force segment of the population, which would explain why unemployment figures are dropping in the area. It's not that the economy is doing better. Our number of available workers is dropping, and that affects the unempolyment rate.

One of the great things about living in West Texas was that the area was always a few years behind the rest of the county. When problems, like a recession or even drugs, hit the rest of the country, recovery was well on the way before it took hold here.

The problem, as I see it now, is that if we are still in a recession, and the country has just moved into a recession, will we be part of the recovery in April or will we be left behind?

All I can say is - "Hey President Bush, next time call Big And that's for what it's worth!

A lesson in running for Congress

WASHINGTON — A tantalizing letter came the other day. A young Republican wanted some sound advice, and like every other pundit in the pundit business, I am full of sound advice. I offloaded a good deal in his direction.

This seeker after truth is determined to run for Congress in the elections of 1992. At this stage of the game, I will not identify him further. Premature publicity might embarrass him, though come to think of it, if he is easily embarrassed he probably has no business in politics at all.

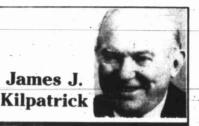

The odds against his winning are formidable. His district's seat in the House has been held by a Republican in the recent past, but it now is held by a Democrat with good name recognition. His prospective opponent, seeking reelection, is a former city councilman, a former member of the state legislature, a mildly seasoned politician with at least some campaign experience under his belt. It won't be easy to knock him off.

It is the deficit that primarily concerns my ambitious friend. In his view, "the deficit is a greater threat to our security than any foreign power." He would like to do his bit toward changing attitudes in Congress, so that less money would be wasted on such frivolous causes as the restoration of Lawrence Welk's boyhood home. Good for him.

"I am especially interested," he wrote, "in any book you can recommend which best describes what goes on in the Congress.

Well, this is a tall order. Right off the bat I suggested Tip O'Neill's "Man of the House" and Christopher Matthews' "Hardball." I have sent the gentleman an extra copy of Dick Cheney's

@90 Daylond Beach News: Journal

"Kings of the Hill," along with two volumes of practical campaign advice by Arnold Steinberg, a former aide to Sen. James Buckley of New York. That should hold him for a while.

But I doubt that an aspiring candidate for the House is going to learn what he needs to know by reading a book. Sure, all of us can learn from books. In politics, we learn more from people If we are to discuss political warfare, I must accord my friend a nom de guerre. Call him Will. His first obligation is to consult with Republican leaders in his district. Have they blessed another prospective candidate already? If so, are they truly happy with their choice? If not, could he count on their support? A primary rule of politics is never to take an establishment by surprise. Political quarterbacks, like other quarterbacks, hate to be sacked by a blindside assault.

Let us assume that Will survives this first hurdle. He ought then to talk with friends who will tell him what he wants to hear: "Run, Will, run!" This will boost his morale, which will need plenty of boosting as time goes on.

Before long, my friend must make the acquaintance of political reporters and editorial writers in his district. He must learn the art of the leak, so that the papers will speculate that Will will challenge the Democrat in 1992. There is not much to the leaking art. Politicians learn it with their firstgrade primers

Money. I hesitate to offer this counsel to so idealistic a prospect, but yes, Will, we must talk about money. To mount an effective campaign against an incumbent you will need bundles of money, and you must be careful how you raise it. It will take $300,000 to $500,000 to play in this risky game, and the time to get started was the week before last.

Issues. Regrettably, it has to be said that Will's big issue is a bore. Not one person in a hundred could describe the 1990 deficit within $5 billion or $10 billion either way. People can be aroused by specific examples of wasteful spending, in the fashion of William Proxmire's Golden Fleece Awards, but as a general proposition the deficit makes eyes glaze over. Will will need to find out where his people want to go. Then he can get out front and try to lead them. Remember Rule 6, I would say to the gentleman. The rule is not to take ourselves too damn seriously. An imaginative campaign, characterized by good humor, will play better than a sober series of position papers. And keep it clean. People are increasingly fed up with mudthrowing on the hustings. Challenge your opponent's voting record. Tie him to Ted Kennedy if you plausibly can — but hit fairly above the belt.

As for reading material, which is what Will asked about, my advice is to steer clear of the Congressional Record. If the gentleman discovers what a bunch of gasbags he would be joining, he may decide not to run after all.

One good hoax after another

There was a photograph in the papers the other day of Milli Vanilli, the rock duo that won Best New Artist Grammys for their best-selling single and album, "Girl You Know It's

Now they're singing the blues since it was all a fraud. Milli Vanilli were moving their lips and Milli Vanilli were making a few million smackers, but somebody else, whose name escapes me, was doing the singing.

I studied the photograph at length. Sideways, too. The question occurred to me, which of these birds was Milli and which was Vanilli?

They both had long hair and soft features — a nice way of saying either could pass for a girlperson in a dimly lit room. But I decided the one on the left was Vanilli and the one on the right was the other one Milli sort of reminded me of a pagan dancer in one of those old biblical movies. That and a fortune teller named Madame Ruth I once visited to see if there would be anything left of my fortune after the divorce trial.

This is not to say I didn't also have some doubt as to just how high Vanilli's testosterone level goes, but if I had to go out with one of them or die, I'd pick Milli and go someplace very crowded. Like Istanbul, where I don't know

To be perfectly honest about it, the fact that Milli Vanilli musicmaking was a hoax (which would be an even better word were it pronounced ho-axe) doesn't bother me at all.

First, before the news about the chicanery broke. I had never heard of Milli Vanilli

Asked to identify Milli Vanilli at previous time. I would have been like most middle-aged individuals — who think all music made since 1962 is the work of bedwetting subversives - and guessed, the Italian version of Haagen-Dazs?

Second, I like an occasional hoaxe and if the truth be known, the public likely has been hoodwinked in this manner lots of times. What if:

 Johnny Carson isn't really that funny and Ed McMahon is a master ventriloquist?

 Two Live Crew are actually Bible-thumping, polite, nerdy intellectuals who want to reveal their true selves, but their agent won't let them, fearing drops in album sales?

 Rocky V is Rocky II played backwards?

• Wrestling isn't really fake? It's just a bunch of loud no-necks who don't know how to fight very • Jesse Helms is gay?

 Saturday Night Live is taped Thursday morning? Saddam Hussein is actually a pussycat? The Bush administration was behind the whole Milli Vanilli thing in an effort to shift focus to somebody else whose lips got them into serious trouble? Think about it. The president's dog is also named Millie (the "e"

That's what researchers at Penn State are discovering in a study of 50 children. Fortunately, parents can short-circuit problems by following some sensible guidelines, reports Better Homes and Gardens.

Ear infections often lead to a build-up of fluid within the middle ear, causing a temporary hearing loss. Lynne Feagans and Ingrid Blood, leaders of the day-care study, liken the effect to plugging the ears with fingers. Older children can continue to understand spoken language because they are skilled in filling in the blanks. Young children haven't yet developed that ability, and can get lost in conversation. If ear infections are frequent enough, these children may be late in developing listening skills, and be at risk for early school problems.

Younger children may develop speech problems, as well. Unlike the listening problems, however, speech difficulties usually fade once infections become infrequent, around age 4, according to Feagans and Blood.

The researchers tell parents to keep these precautions in mind:

• Treat infections promptly. Untreated infections can damage organs of the ear and lead to permanent hearing loss

Storing decorations

(AP) - Because many Christmas decorations are fragile, it's important to store them properly and carefully.

Christmas paraphernalia should be well packed and safely stored during the year but well marked and easy to find for the holiday season, says Christmas Ornaments 1990. These tips will help keep Christmas clutter organized and safe until the following season.

Save large, sturdy cardboard boxes from previous Christmases for storing bulbs, ornaments and lights. Boxes should be fairly shallow but large enough so two or three boxes hold all of the tree ornaments. Mark the contents on the outside of each box, and fill the box with the same items from year to year. Time used packing the boxes carefully is well spent when it comes time to get out the ornaments for the next Christmas.

Designate an area in the basement, attic or garage as Christmas storage. Use the same space every year so finding the decorations isn't a problem. Keep the boxes off the floor to keep moisture out. Clean the storage area thoroughly each year before returning decorations to storage.

Wrap fragile bulbs and ornaments in tissue paper. Stack the remaining ornaments (from heavy to light) on layers of tissue paper or newspaper. Use angel hair and tinsel between the ornaments for added protection. Remove hooks and hangers from each ornament and store the hangers separately in a small box or envelope.

Check and replace burned-out bulbs before storing Christmas tree lights. To store, gather the lights carefully so they don't

DEAR ABBY Some time ago, you advised a loving couple who had been living together for several years in a committed relationship to get married, since a baby was on the way. (They didn't think "a piece of paper" was important.)

The tools of the beauty trade at the medium-security Florence-Crane Women's Facility are nothing special, but they're of some concern. Scissors, electric razors and chemicals can be dangerous - especially in the hands of convicted criminals.

Some of these women are locked up for life. Some can receive no visitors. But still, inmates say, the prison beauty shop serves an essential purpose.

"Everyone feels better, even if they've had a bad day," said beautician Diane Carter, serving 20 years on drug and escape charges. "It's just like going shopping - you get depressed and you go shopping.

Now the American Lung Association of Connecticut is delivering its own message with a no-tech, lowbudget counter-exhibition of the revered document.

"It's not an established right for someone to blow smoke in my face," said John E. Zinn, the lung association's executive director in Connecticut. "What they're trying to do is perpetuate this myth where smoking is a right and polluting other people's air is a right."

Philip Morris Cos. borrowed Virginia's copy of the Bill of Rights for a 16-month tour that began Oct. 10 to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Visitors at the lung association's exhibition on Monday were divided over the Philip Morris tour.

"I'm against smoking, but the fact is, nobody's asking people to smoke just because they come see this," said Peter Ottaviano, a Hartford insurance agent.

"It's their right to sponsor it, but think their motives are questionable," said Val Pajer of Durham. "Something like this, something that's part of our heritage, should not be connected with a profit-making motive.'

County Judge John Coffee agreed, but said the matter has been out of the commissioners' iurisdiction since they certified the election Nov. 8. "The Commissioners Court has lost complete jurisdiction," he said.

Otherwise, results of absentee ballots in individual precincts cannot be released, Ray said.

Greenspan to discuss impact of Gulf crisis

A recession, defined as at least a six-month contraction of economic output as measured by the gross national product, is political poison.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush calls it a "downturn" while chief economic adviser Michael Boskin terms it a "lull."

Politicians hate the word recession. But it may prove hard to avoid today when Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan appears before a House Banking Committee hearing on the economic impact of the Persian Gulf crisis. Thus far, Greenspan has been cautious in describing the state of the economy, even though the Fed cut interest rates twice this month.

forecasters and finding threequarters of them believe the downturn has already begun. In a congressional appearance in mid-September, Greenspan said the jump in oil prices following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait from an average $20 a barrel in July to around $33 now — had increased the threat of both higher inflation and a recession. He warned of "new and substantial risks" to the economy.

The central bank's actions since then show that it has clearly been more concerned about the recession risk than the inflation risk. It cut the federal funds rate, a key interest-rate measure, twice this month, each time by a quarter point. The rate, now at 71/2 percent, is what banks charge each other for overnight loans.

The central bank's strategy is to raise the rate to dampen inflationary pressures and to cut it when the economy needs a boost.

The oil shock has sent inflation soaring, but the fallout so far appears to be confined to energy prices. The prices of other items are behaving as before.

"I think the Fed has to be pretty convinced by now that there is a recession going on," said economist David Wyss of DRIMcGraw Hill, a Lexington, Mass., forecasting firm.

LONDON (AP) — John Major, whose up-by-the-bootstraps life epitomized the type of Britain that Margaret Thatcher hoped to create, was taking over the reins from her today as Britain's prime Thatcher's 111/2-year tenure was the longest by a British prime minister this century. Major, 47, will be the youngest prime minister of this century and the first leader of a major European power with no memory of World War II. The new prime minister, That-

Thatcher was to leave 10 Downing Street for the last time today to hand her resignation to Queen

Major was to then go to Buckingham Palace for a private audience with the queen before being confirmed as prime minister.

As he grapples with the creation of a new government, his first key decision may be whether to offer a Cabinet post to Michael Heseltine, the challenger who precipitated Thatcher's downfall.

Derided as Thatcher's "poodle" by the opposition, and picked by worried Tories as their new hope of keeping power, Major was elected in a secret ballot by the 372 Conservative legislators. He fell two votes short of the re-her chancellor of the exchequer, or winner after Heseltine and Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd conceded defeat.

"It is a very exciting thing to become leader of the Conservative Party and particularly exciting, I think, to follow one of the most remarkable leaders the Conservative Party has ever had," Major Minutes earlier, Thatcher embraced Major. "I'm thrilled and delighted that John Major is to succeed me," she said in a statement.

Lady Hawks start league play

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

According to Howard College Lady Hawks coach Royce Chadwick, all the records may go out the window when the Lady Hawks begin Western Junior College Athletic Conference play by hosting the Western Texas Dusters Thursday.

On paper the Lady Hawks, 11-0 and ranked 14th in the nation, appear to be a solid favorite. But Chadwick is expecting a hardhe's expecting a tough contest is to be ready Thursday. that Dusters' coach is dad Kelly Chadwick.

Father and son aren't strangers in going against each other. Royce currently holds a 4-0 advantage in head-to-head competition.

Royce says his team has looked a little sluggish of late. Monday they defeated Weatherford 60-43, a team they had beaten 105-55 earlier. "We didn't play very well, we've been off five days and we were kind of fought game. One of the reasons sluggish," said Royce. "I expect us ference. Howard is picked second post player Merry Brown (5-10).

When we play Western Texas you throw the records out the window. This is for the Governor's Cup. I think they'd rather win this game than any other game, and my team feels the same way. I don't know why, but they really get up for this one."

In trhe preseason polls, defending regional champion South Plains, currently ranked No. 2 in the nation, is picked to win the con-and Odessa College is picked third. They are followed by Frank Phillips, New Mexico Junior College, Western Texas and Clarendon.

The Dusters return guards Kelsey Koester (5-8), Jill Forrest (5-10) and post player Tracy Edmunds (5-10) from last year's 17-11 squad. Newcomers that could help the cause are guards Becky Hinojos (5-5), Melissa Sutton (5-8), for- play a halfcourt game like we did ward Kristi Risinger (5-10) and • Lady Hawks page 2-B Royce Chadwick says Western Texas is a squad that plays better when in its halfcourt game. "They are well disciplined, they don't take bad shots," said Royce of his dad's squad. "They will fundamental you to death. It's not the most talent they've ever had at Western, but they're very solid. They don't make mistakes.

semifinals. Sands Mustangs are one win away. All play Friday. The Steers play Burkburnett at 8 p.m. Friday at Shotwell Stadium in Abilene; the Bearkats play Axtell at 7:30 in Brady and the Mustangs play McLean at 7:30 in Plainview. All three teams had tough times with opponents this past week. Sands won its second sixman game, a 38-34 victory over Marathon. Sands was in control most of the game, but had to withstand a furious final minutes rally by Marathon.

In one of the best opening round matchups of the Class A playoffs, Garden City beat Santa Anna 21-14.

Big Spring and Sands are alike in that both teams rely on defense to win games. The defense always keeps them in the contest, and the offense is just good enough to score enough to win.

Garden City is a team with a high-point potential offense. The defense is relatively new, with all the changes coach Sam Scott has made, but it is adequate.

Ironically, it was defense that saved Garden City in its game against Santa Anna. The game pitted two high-scoring offenses with great tailbacks. Santa Anna's Herbert Jackson and Garden City's James Soles.

The Bearkat "D", playing without starting middle linebacker and leading tackler Eric Seidenberger, limited Jackson to 137 yards on 23 carries. Jackson is no small-school legitimate college prospect. In fact, two college that have shown interest in the senior are the University of Texas and the University of Los Vegas. Soles, a junior, rushed for 182 yards on 25 carries. He's moving in toward being the first area rusher in a long time to gain 2,000 yards in a season. Soles needs 79 yards to reach that lofty goal. The college scouts have to be drooling.

Speaking of great defensive efforts — how about the Steers? They took Hereford's running game from them. All-state running back candidate Matt Bromlow only gained 20 yards in 48 carries. He had a respectable first half, gaining 39 yards in 13 carries. The second half speaks for itself. The Steers offense has the uncanny knack of running the right plays when the times call for it - or, as Coach David Thompson put it, "we take what they give us." What Hereford was giving in the first half was open lanes in the Steers' passing game. Quarterback Gerald Cobos did a good job of working the Herd secondary In the first half alone, Cobos completed five of nine passes for 109 yards, and also made a couple of nifty scrambles for plus yardage when the heat was on. Even better was that the passes went to four different

Another intresting note about the Garden City Bearkats-Axtell

Longhorns regional clash: This is the last hurrah for Axtel veteran coach Joe Wyatt, who's calling it quits after 35 years of coaching. This has been a dream season for the Longhorns. They were picked to finish in the lower division of District 16-A, but finished second behind Valley Mills, who's also still in the playoffs. The Longhorns finished 3-7 last year and returned just 10 lettermen and three starters on each side of the football. Wyatt said he knew his team had a chance back in two-a-days when they never complained about going through rigorous workouts in 115 degree weather.

Now everthing else is just desert for the team nobody gave much of a chance. "I waited 35 years to retire," said Wyatt. 'Now I hope somebody doesn't pinch me and wake me up."

Patient Snyder Tigers outplay Steers, 61-51

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

Talk about an about-face -Saturday the Big Spring Steers played a strong game, defeating Pecos 97-42. Tuesday night the Steers did just the opposite, dropping a 61-51 decision to the Snyder Tigers at Steer Gym.

While the Steers may have had their offense running on all cylinders Saturday, they certainly did not against the Tigers. Big Spring rarely showed any signs of an offensive attack, fell behind from the start, and could never catch up. Steers coach Tommy

Washington wasn't very happy with what he saw. "We didn't get after it, we let them control the game defensively," said Washington, watching his team fall to 1-6 for the season. "I don't know how to get it into kids' heads to make them get after it; I asked a million coaches. They've got to want to do it."

LSU hires Hallman

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) -Curley Hallman knows he will be under intense fan scrutiny when he takes over Louisiana State's football team, and is not making any outlandish promises.

"It's going to be a football team that plays hard ... I'm not going to promise a number of wins. If I could do that, I'd be Curley the Greek," Hallman said Tuesday after he was named the Tigers' head coach.

The LSU Athletics Council unanimously approved Hallman's hiring after a closed meeting with him, athletic director Joe Dean and LSU chancellor William "Bud" Davis.

. "I'm happy. I'm excited. I hope to coach for a long, long time," said Hallman, who led Southern Mississippi to two bowl games in the past three years. "I hope I can retire at this university.'

The 43-year-old Hallman will receive a five-year contract paying him $85,000 a year. The hiring still must be approved by the LSU Board of Supervisors, which is considered a formality.

Hallman replaces Mike Archer, who resigned earlier this month after reports surfaced that he was about to be fired.

"I know the school," Hallman said. "I know the potential. The potential is unlimited."

Lady Steers drop close contest

LUBBOCK — A Lubbock Dunbar basket with about five seconds left capped a secondhalf comeback and gave the Panthers a 52-50 victory over the Big Spring Lady Steers here Tuesday night.

Dunbar improved to 5-3 with the win, while Big Spring dropped to 1-4 with the loss. The Lady Steers were led by Bernie Valles, who chipped in 13 points, and junior post player Amber Grisham, who added 10.

BSHS coach George Martin said the Lady Steers, who led 32-24 at the half, had too many turnovers in the game.

"We'd do a good job of getting the turnover on defense, then we'd turn it over ourselves," he said. "That's a sign of an inexperienced team . . . But we're still progressing. We're doing some things right.'

LPGA names new commissioner

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Charles S. Mechem Jr., a retired Cincinnati television executive, was named today as the fourth commissioner of the Ladies Professional Golf Association.

Mechem was introduced at a news conference by LPGA president Judy Dickinson at Indigo Lakes Resort in Daytona Beach, where the LPGA is headquartered. "Charles Mechem is not only a highly successful businessman, whose background is perfectly suited to the needs of the LPGA, but he is a first-class, wellrespected, quality individual," Dickinson said.

Mechem, 60, replaces William Blue, who was fired Aug. 21 after serving less than two years of a five-year contract.

The new commissioner recently retired as chief operating officer of Great American Communications in Cincinnati. Great American was a co-sponsor of the LPGA Championship at Kings Island, Ohio, from 1978 to 1989.

"I am both honored and excited to undertake this position. I believe my background and experience will be helpful to me in the job as commis-sioner," Mechem said.

Olson makes Pats pay

BOSTON (AP) - Lisa Olson and the New England Patriots finally found something to agree on: now that the NFL has spoken, let's close the book on her alleged sexual harassment by several players.

NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue on Tuesday fined three Patriot players a total of $22,500 and the team $50,000 in the wake of a locker-room incident involving Olson, a Boston Herald reporter.

Tagliabue levied the fines, but issued no suspensions after studying special counsel Philip Heymann's 60-page report of the Sept. 17 incident and its aftermath. Zeke Mowatt, who earlier had been fined $2,000 by the team, was fined $12,500, and Michael Timpson and Robert Perryman were fined $5,000 each.

The report, released Tuesday, cited discrepancies between the accounts given by Olson and several players of the events allegedly involving naked players and suggestive remarks.

But both sides indicated they were willing to go along with Tagliabue's request that the furor be left behind.

"I reiterate my strong belief," the commissioner wrote in a letter to Patriots owner Victor Kiam, "that the Patriots' organization and its players have learned a hard lesson from this episode and that everyone involved will best be served if this controversy now comes to an end without further recrimination.

In a prepared statement she read at a news conference, Olson, who now covers the Boston Celtics, because they "never vigorously said, "it is time to move on. Perhaps the greatest lesson of happened," Tagliabue wrote in his

The school's football program, the book and Odessa residents with opposing views concerning the program were featured last Sunday on the CBS-TV show "60 Minutes.

The Permian booster club member said that the cash paid to Gaines and apparently to John Wilkins, his predecessor as head coach at the nationally famous high school football power, came from advertising proceeds from the coaches' weekly television show broadcast on a local station.

Wilkins, who coached the Panthers from 1973 to 1985 and is now athletic director for the Ector County Independent School District in Odessa, said Tuesday that the payment question had been settled at the Nov. 16 UIL district committee meeting.

"That's behind us," Wilkins said. "We're looking toward the future, not anything in the past. The amount of money was brought forward at the district meeting. It was all taken care of.

'As far as we're concerned, it's a dead issue. It's a moot issue and we're not going to discuss it anymore," Wilkins said.

Ector County School Superintendent Gene Buinger said the Permian program has been "out of compliance for a number of years" because of the booster club payments.

'This was turned up as part of our investigation," the superintendent said. "It was brought to my attention by our athletic director, and we immediately notified the superintendents of District 4-5A that we were looking into these allegations and we would be reporting ourselves to them at a future meeting."

'There are people that already feel that there has been a coverup," Buinger said. "I know that there wasn't one. As far as the school district is concerned, it is a matter that is closed.'

"Dr. Buinger has agreed to address all problem areas and take appropriate action to guarantee compliance with UIL regulations,' said School Board President Lee Buice. "Therefore, I support the superintendent's position.

District Judge Gene Ater was among school boosters defending the payments.

"This has been something that has been done every year for years," Ater said. "The television money has always gone to the Ater, who said he never knew exactly how much money the coaches were given by boosters, nonetheless considered the payments just reward for their ong hours during the season.

"Let me explain to you how many hours those guys put in to make it a successful season," Ater said. "They work all weekend. They work late at night, and of course they teach during the day.'

Jerry Young, Permian booster club president in 1989, said Tuesday that on two occasions he delivered cash generated by the television show that year to Gaines, but that the total was less than $15,000.

Doug Hendrick, booster club president in 1988, would not comment on the payments.

UIL rules prohibit annual gifts or bonuses to coaches in excess of $300 from any source, including booster

B.J. Stamps, assistant director of the UIL, said coaches may earn outside income, including talent fees from television stations in excess of that amount, but payment in that instance must come directly from the station and a booster club may not be involved in the program.

The amount of cash payments allegedly made to Permian coaches "strikes me as one of the greatest allegations that has been made concerning violations of this rule," Stamps said.

 Continued from page 1-B was eight-of-nine from the floor, scoring 18 points. He finished the contest with 25 points, four assists and five rebounds.

About the only Steer that had his shooting eye was senior guard Albert Smith. Smith came off the bench in the second half and bombed in three 3-pointers. His spurt helped the Steers make a minature run at the Tigers. But just when Big Spring seemed on the verge of turning the momentum the other way, the Tigers would answer with scoring from Wortham, guard Eric Braziel or forward Eric West. Braziel scored nine second half points and West added six.

Late in the third quarter Big Spring made a charge. Louis Soldan sunk two foul shots, Smith hit a free throw, and came back with a "three", which was followed by another "three" by Rod White, cutting the lead to 42-30. But Braziel answered with a three-point play. Snyder led 47-32 going into the fourth quarter.

The Steers made their final charge midway though the last quarter. Smith hit a couple of 'threes' from the corner and Soldan scored inside, cutting the deficit to 53-44 with 4:07 left. But that's as close as Big Spring would

HERALD STAFF REPORT

A Shop Stanton First open house will be sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce from 2-4 p.m.

"The open house is being participated in by businesses around Stanton to give the people of this community a chance to shop Stanton first and get an early jump on Christmas shopping," Stanton Flowers owner Sue Christon said.

"It also gives the merchants a chance to put on display items that the community businesses have available," Christon added.

We have many Christmas items available here in our community. If the people of Stanton gives us a chance and come and visit our store, they may be surprised what we have," she added. "This open house gives us a chance to show off our items to our own people."

Along with the open house, refreshments and door prizes will be available for customers who come in and browse, according to chamber members.

Businesses participating in the open house are Haislip's, Linda's Last Chance, Susan's Flowers and Gifts, Gift Basket Originals and Stanton Flowers and Gifts.

Bell's case on the line

AUSTIN (AP) - It's up to thePublic Utility Commission to decide whether Southwestern Bell's proposed rate settlement is a good deal for its customers.

The PUC's examiners, the state's consumer representative, consumer groups and 109 cities served by the telephone company say it is not.

The proposed settlement will give customers $1.2 billion in benefits over the next four years, according to Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Parties that support it include the PUC general counsel, long-distance companies and a number of cities.

The PUC was scheduled to consider the settlement today.

"The benefits to our customers are unprecedented," Bob Digneo, a spokesman for Southwestern Bell, said Tuesday. The company serves 4.2 million customers in Texas.

But consumer groups and a coalition of cities say the $1.2 billion figure is exaggerated and that Southwestern Bell has overcharged its customers about $1 billion during the 22 months this case has been considered.

C. Kingsbery Ottmers, the public counsel for residential and small consumer ratepayers, said if the PUC agrees to the settlement, "Bell will continue to take excessive profits from Texas and invest them in its other ventures throughout the world. And the regulatory process for telephone companies will basically have ended.

If the PUC rejects the settlement and opens a full-blown rate case, the consumer representatives want Southwestern Bell's rates to be lowered at least temporarily until the case is concluded.

Major embarks on post-Thatcher era

The new prime minister, Thatcher's protege and most recently her chancellor of the exchequer or treasury chief, said he wants "a better quality of life for all its

"I don't promise you that it will easy, and I don't promise you that it will be quick," Major said, standing with his wife, Norma, outside the prime minister's official residence, 10 Downing St.

Major had gone to Ruck Palace this morning after the departure of Thatcher, his patron and Britain's longest-serving prime minister this century.

The new prime minister won his seat in Parliament in Thatcher's first election victory of 1979. She elevated him to the Cabinet in 1987, and backed him as her successor after determining she could no longer hold on to power.

In a 30-minute audience in the palace, Thatcher handed her resignation to the queen.

Hundreds of people, many clapping and cheering, had pressed to the railings of Buckingham Palace as Thatcher arrived. She left with her husband, Denis, in a private Conservative support for Thatcher eroded as a result of economic troubles, a 16-month lag in the polls, a new per capita local services tax that replaced a real estate-based levy and her resistance to British integration into the European Community.

Major inherits a land plagued by 10.9 percent inflation, 6 percent unemployment and 14 percent interest rates. Thatcher, leaving 10 Downing St.

for the last time before resigning, stood by her free-market policies, which dismantled the welfare state and sold off public industries. "We leave the United Kingdom

Court to again hear school finance case

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court, which last year declared the state's school finance system unconstitutional, will hear arguments on whether lawmakers have done enough to improve public education funding.

Poor school districts want the court to rule that the revised system is unconstitutional.

They say they still aren't fairly treated under the school finance plan, which continues to rely on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money

The state says school funding changes approved this summer constitute "a good faith effort" by the Legislature. The revamped system should not be held unconstitutional, the state attorney general's office said in a brief.

The court was scheduled to take up the matter today.

As lawyers make their arguments, the court's proceedings are to be recorded by television and still cameras. Supreme Court Clerk John Adams said this is first time he knows of that the court has allowed such coverage

The Supreme Court is hearing the case after State District Judge Scott McCown of Austin ruled in September that the $14 billion-ayear system still violates the Texas Constitution.

The revised system doesn't give all schools "substantially equal" access to funds for a similar tax effort, McCown said.

"In short, what the rich districts spend creates educational opportunities for their children that are denied the children of poor districts. Under Senate Bill 1 (the reform plan), the rich districts are left rich, the poor districts poor," McCown said.

He gave lawmakers another year to change the school finance system, leaving the current system in place for the 1990-91 school year. The Legislature meets in regular session beginning in January.

It took four special sessions for Democratic leaders and Republican Gov. Bill Clements to Supreme Court unanimously declared the system unconstitutional in October 1989.

Taxes were raised to add $528 million for public schools in 1990-91, in what officials called the first step toward equity.

Major

Major said he hoped to build on Thatcher's 'enormous achievements" in the years ahead. "I certainly hope in those years to build a society of opportunity.

As he grapples with the creation of a new government, his first key decision may be whether to offer a Cabinet post to Michael Heseltine, the challenger who precipitated Thatcher's downfall.

Even before Major took office, Transport Secretary Cecil Parkinson, a close Thatcher aide, resigned today from the 22-member Cabinet.

Derided as Thatcher's "poodle" by the opposition, and picked by worried Tories as their new hope of keeping power, Major was elected in a secret ballot by the 372 Conservative legislators.

He fell two votes short of the required 187 votes, but was declared winner after Heseltine and Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd conceded

The son of a onetime circus performer, Major was raised in the rundown Brixton section of London and left school at 16. He was briefly on welfare and worked as a laborer before becoming a successful banker.

Major arrived in the House of Commons in 1979, the year Thatcher won power, but was quickly plucked from obscurity and entered the Cabinet in 1987, as treasury secretary and later, briefly, as foreign secretary.

While Major said during his campaign that he would stick to Thatcher's policies of tight spending and privatization, he said he would review Thatcher's unpopular per capita "poll tax" for local services and would be liberal on social issues The opposition disagreed.

"John Major is a Thatcherette – that is how he sought election and that is how he got elected. It means that the policies that brought the poll tax, recession, heavy mortgages and rising unemployment will go on," said Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock.

Yeutter urges awareness of European role

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Soviet Union buys a lot of U.S. grain, but Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter says policies of the European Community also have had a major effect on the incomes of American farmers.

Yeutter said Tuesday that Russia is a huge and valued customer of the United States and could become even more valuable in the 1990s

But Yeutter said that "what has happened in the last decade outside the Soviet Union has had a greater impact — a far greater impact on farm income here in the United States, and we need to understand

Simply in terms of grain programs, he said, EC policies have resulted in the shifting of 50 million metric tons of grain in international trade.

"A decade or so ago the European Community was an importer of between 20 and 30 million tons of grain per year," Yeutter said. "Now the community is an exporter of between 20 and 30 million tons of grain per year.'

Yeutter said this shifting has

practices" followed by the EC in its farm policy structure. And that has meant tougher times for American farmers in international markets.

Next week world trade negotiators will reconvene in Brussels in hopes of concluding the Uruguay Round of talks aimed at reforming global trading rules under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Agriculture has been an obstacle in the talks, and Yeutter is pessimistic about reaching an agreement.

Yeutter and U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills recently visited European leaders to urge compromises on agricultural issues confronting Uruguay Round negotiators.

"I came back very pessimistic about the outlook, and I'm still pessimistic," Yeutter said. "It seems to me the position of the happened because of "distortive European Community is so far from that of, essentially, the rest of countries wanting more market ac- Export value to drop the world that I see no way to bridge that gap in the few days that remain.

Japan, which wants to continue protecting its domestic farmers by banning rice imports, is "the only country that is at all supportive" of the EC position, he told the Agriculture Department's annual outlook conference.

The EC members are Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Britain, Spain and Portugal.

Yeutter said the United States wants a 75 percent reduction in trade-distortive internal supports and a 90 percent cut in export subsidies over 10 years.

The EC has offered a 30 percent cutback in internal supports, based on 1986 levels, but has not made any specific commitment to reducing export subsidies. Yeutter said nearly half of the 30 percent reduction in EC supports has occurred since 1986, leaving only about 15 percent to be carried out in the next 10 years.

Further, he said, the EC has not offered any net gains for those cess to the bloc.

If the talks fail and everyone goes home without liberalizing global trading rules, it will mean a full-blown reappraisal of U.S. policies

"We'll have to determine how best to protect our own interests," Yeutter said. "In essence, we'll have to determine how to get the most bang for the buck in a more confrontational environment in international trade in agriculture, and perhaps in international trade in all the other spheres of economic activity as well.

Yeutter said he hoped such a gloomy development does not emerge and that "we're certainly going to go to Brussels next week with an open mind."

But he added: "We're not going to negotiate with ourselves in Brussels next week. We're not going to come back with an agreement that we do not believe is in the best interests of this country. And I'm certainly not going to come back with an agreement that I do not believe is in the best interest of American agriculture.'

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new forecast by the Agriculture Department says the value of U.S. agricultural exports is expected to drop 4 percent this fiscal year to

Export value rose to a nine-year high of more than $40.1 billion in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30. The volume of shipments also will drop 6 percent to around 139.5 million metric tons, as sales of corn and other coarse grains decline, the department's Economic Research Service said Tuesday.

Although the decline in 1991 had been indicated by the agency for some time, it was the first official forecast to include specific values and quantities.

'Lower world grain trade is expected following larger harvests by traditional grain importers, and the U.S. share of world grain trade is expected to fall following increased competitor production,' the report said.

Corn exports will drop largely because of a one-third cutback in the Soviet Union's corn import

Her husband said attitude is about 90 percent when a transplant is considered. "We both felt good about it. I thought this will work. I knew it would.

But it was scary too.

His wife was concerned that if she couldn't keep the kidney, he would have lost it for nothing.

The transplant on Aug. 10 apparently was a success, and the Daniels are getting back to family life with their son.

"We missed a lot of Allen's basketball and football games, and now we can spend more time with him. We can concentrate on a family life now," Shirley said. 'It was disruption to his life, and think little kids worry more than adults think they do. Now he's enjoying school more. This had made a big impact on his life," Jack said. Shirley has also enjoyed a baked potato and fruits and vegetables, something she couldn't eat before. She has been a diabetic since she was 11 but kidney problems didn't hit her until two years ago when doctors discovered she was losing kidney function. Eventually she had to undergo kidney dialysis for six months. "Dialysis," Daniel said, "is definitely a life saving effort, but that's the only benefit. There are side effects such as when they used a 15 gauge needle in her arm. It made Shirley feel yucky all the time and the dialysis changed her body chemistry. It's great we have the machines but I'm glad she's off

Shirley went into an Amarillo hospital in October, 1989, and then again in December when she spent time in the intensive care unit for several days. Then she was back in the hospital in January and "We started in March on blood

The couple had to do three different cross matchings in blood, and Daniel had to take a physical and a kidney x-ray also. The last test he took was a kidney function test, which meant he had to have 100 percent function. "If not 100 percent," he said, "I couldn't have done it.

Then they had to have six weeks of blood transfusions of each other's blood, to see if the antigens could be formed.

'We did three of them over a six week period before we could go to Dallas for the transplant," Shirley

The Daniels had heard it would take about seven months to get all the work done before the transplant could be done, but it took about a year. It took two to three months before the financing was approved by the insurance company.

The couple also underwent psychological evaluation. On the day of the transplant, Daniel was taken into surgery first. "Shirley was scared about the transplant," he said. "but not as bad as I was. I had never had surgery before except for tonsils when I was two years old. The day we got there, I was really hyper. I had to have an arteriogram right before the transplant. After they did it, it was not so bad.' "We spent the night in recovery," Daniel said, "and stayed till about 3 or 4 p.m. By Saturday, Shirley came down to

Iraq will have until Jan. 15 to withdraw its troops from Kuwait before facing the prospect of U.N.-authorized military action, Soviet U.N. Ambassador Yuli M. Vorontsov said on Tuesday. Soviet and U.S. diplomats fixed the deadline in the last 24 hours, Western diplomats said on condition of anonymity.

The resolution, expected to be voted on Thursday, authorizes "all necessary means" to get Iraq out

Ramadan indicated, however, Iraq had not softened its position on Kuwait, saying it was intent on ousting "aggressors and traitors" from Arab land.

Panel derides telescope's makers mally expressed outside this

WASHINGTON (AP) — The manufacturer of the Hubble Space Telescope ignored three test failures and did not consult its own experts in building the defective $1.5 billion instrument, a NASA investigation concludes. Hughes Danbury Optical Systems,

"There was a surprising lack of participation by optical experts with experience in the manufacture of large telescopes during the fabrication phase," the investigative board said Tuesday in its final report

The manufacturer, Perkin-Elmer, relied on tests with a single instrument called a null corrector for grinding the 94.5 inch-diameter mirror and that "should have alerted knowledgeable people in Perkin-Elmer and NASA" to the need for independent validation, the report said.

'There were at least three cases that a problem was developing and it was missed all three times," said Dr. Lew Allen, director of the space agency's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., who directed the study. Perkin-Elmer, now called

A similar lack of communication was cited as a contributing cause to the Challenger space shuttle acci-

The telescope, launched last April from the space shuttle Discovery, cannot be focused properly because its 94.5-inchdiameter primary mirror is too flat in the center. "Perkin-Elmer should not have

Christmas, that wonderful time of the year when the joy of giving becomes such an integral part of our holiday festivities. Gifts, entertaining, family snacking—all are traditions of the season.

If you don't have time for baking holiday cookies, why not plan a "Cookie Exchange" with your friends and neighbors? The Cookie Exchange is a great opportunity for an informal get-together. It gives you time to share holiday cheer with friends, and everyone goes home with a variety of cookies on hand for parties and spur-of-the-moment snacks.

Planning a Cookie Exchange is really quite simple. Once your guest list is completed, ask each guest to bake enough cookies for everyone else to take home a dozen. Then ask that each guest bring an extra half-dozen or so for sharing at the exchange. The basic idea is that your guests take home the same number of cookies they made. Don't forget to ask guests to bring along their recipes and containers for their take-home cookies.

Some delicious cookie ideas are the crunchy Double Chocolate Walnut Cookies and colorful Festive Foldover Treats. Your Cookie Exchangers and your family will all love the Yuletide Fudge made with "M&M's" Chocolate Candies, Cheery Chewy Date Bars and Raspberry Pinwheels. Holiday Gingerbread People and Santa's Sandwich Cookies are ideal treats for kids of all ages.

Capture the loving spirit of Christmas by sharing homemade gifts from the kitchen. Happy Holidays!

An expert's paint removal primer: Tips on technique

Your latest trip to the flea market turned up a perfect oak dining room table. But there's one small hitch: The beautiful wood is hidden under an awful coat of avocado green paint.

If your first thought is to by-pass the table, think again. Removing the paint from furniture (or "stripping") can be easier than you think, if you know a few professional secrets. Homer Formby America's best-known authority on wood care and refinishing, offers these bints for paint removal projects. • The moderate temperatures of fall. are ideal for paint removal projects. Paint removers work best when the temperature is between 65° and 85°F. Higher or lower temperatures interfere with the action of the chemicals in the remover. · Be certain you work in a well-ventilated area, with a constant supply of fresh air. Formby recommends working product helps make the job easier. "Look outdoors if possible. Be certain to wear heavy rubber gloves, purchased at the hardware store. (Rubber gloves made for dishwashing aren't meant for this job.)

 Don't use a "painting" stroke to ap-ply a paint remover. You'll fan the gases that do the work into the air, cutting down on the effectiveness of the product. Instead, apply paint remover by dragging a filled paintbrush across the wood about four inches. Stop, refill the brush, and make another four inch stroke. Once you've applied a layer of paint remover, don't touch it until all the bubbling action

 If you're working on a piece that's heavily carved or has hard-to-reach areas, you may want to try an aerosol paint remover. Brush-on paint removers are best for most horizontal surfaces.

Formby adds that choosing the right

'The can should be very heavy when you pick it up. Shake the can. It should sound like molasses, not like water in the can. Thick paint removers are easier to control, and you use less product in the Formby himself has developed a paint remover that has been proven superior to other products in independent tests. Formby's paint remover, designed especially for use on wood, takes off old paint without harming the wood or stripping the "patina" (the glow that wood takes on as time passes). It's available in hardware stores, home centers and some mass merchandise outlets.

When it comes time to remove the softened paint, Formby has more advice to make the job "come off" smoothly.

 Use a plastic putty knife, rather than a metal tool, to lift off the loosened paint gently. Have an empty box nearby, and sling the loosened paint into the box. If some spots of paint don't come up.

do not try to scrape or gouge them off. You could damage the wood. Instead, apply another coat of paint remover, and let it do the work for you.

Formby does not recommend using paint removers that are rinsed off with water. Water can cause extensive damage if allowed to sit on wood.

• Don't expect one coat of paint remover to remove three or four coats of paint. If you have a piece with several layers of paint, you'll probably need to repeat applications of paint remover. Once you've completely removed the old paint, immediately wash the wood with Paint Remover Wash. This is a product that removes any remaining paint pigments and prepares the wood hidden under an old coat of paint.

Malthough fall is an ideal time to garden, many gardeners should take a few moments and prepare for the winter season. Here are two tips from the Garden Council to think about while

"tooling" around the yard: · Fall is an excellent time to test winter power equipment. Better safe than sorry once the snow sets in.

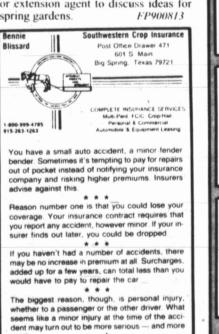

• Try not to use ice-melting pellets on sidewalks or driveways where the snow will eventually be shoveled or blown into the yard. The salt residue can damage the lawn.

READ UP FOR SPRING

Minter is the perfect time to catch up on your reading -especially all the gardening catalogs that you've received throughout the year.

What better time to browse through nursery catalogs and select diseaseresistant plants for next year's yard and garden, and make sure the plants are hardy to your region. Don't forget that items from catalogs make excellent holiday gifts as well.

Also, fall is an excellent time to talk with your local lawn and garden center or extension agent to discuss ideas for spring gardens. FP900813

faces," he says

Furthermore, because contact lenses increase vision range compared to glasses, a child's performance in sporting activities-especially those which require peripheral sight, such as tennis, soccer, baseball and football—can improve. Children who wear soft contact lenses may also reduce the risk of sports-related injury to their eyes, because lenses won't fall out or get knocked off during active play.

"Now kids have an option," says Donald S. Teig, O.D., Bausch & Lomb In Vision Institute member and a specialist in prescribing contact lenses for children at the Institute for Sports Vision. "With the new, comfortable lenses, and especially with the convenience of disposables, contact lenses are great for many children.

At what age can children wear contact lenses?

Contact lenses are now being prescribed in certain cases for infants, toddlers and preschoolers. Vision care professionals usually limit soft contact lens prescriptions for very young children to those who have pediatric aphakia, a condition which is treated by removing cataracts from one or both eyes.

Young children with one eye significantly more nearsighted or farsighted than the other may also wear contact lenses to avoid the lopsided feeling from eyeglasses that have a thicker prescription on one side. However, many eyecare professionals like Dr. Teig routinely prescribe contact lenses for children as young as five years old. The most prevalent problem in

"Ask if the eye doctor prescribes contact lenses for children," says Dr. Teig. "Because the concept is relatively young children is myopia, or nearsightnew, many doctors are not familiar edness," Dr. Teig says. "The condition with children's special needs, so it's important to establish the doctor's level of comfort with prescribing contact lenses for children," he says.

Commitment is a key factor

Together, the parents and the eye doctor should assess the child's readiness for contact lens wear. "It might be interest on the part of the child-either for sports, school, or simply because he's seen both parents use contacts," says Dr. Teig. "Essentially, the doctor must help the child and the parents decide the appropriate time for contacts. If the child feels uncomfortable with inserting the lenses, it may be a good idea to wait a year or two until the child is more at ease," he explains.

Disposable contact lenses, like Bausch & Lomb's SeeQuence, provide a healthy option for children, as they are worn for up to one week, as prescribed, and then discarded for a fresh pair. "Disposables are often the best lenses for children, since kids often don't have the dexterity or the maturity to properly care for lenses on a daily basis," according to Dr. Teig. Because disposable lenses do not need to be cleaned, there is less likelihood of neglecting proper contact lens care.

Disposables are also convenient for parents, as they can eliminate the need to monitor the child's daily cleaning regimen. And, a lost contact lens is not a problem, since there's always a spare pair of lenses on hand.

Disposable lenses are available in both near- and farsighted prescriptions. For those children who have astigmatism, another common vision condition, toric soft contact lenses are a good choice. Designed to correct the vision problems associated with the astigmatic eye, soft toric contact lenses are available in more than 30,000 prescriptions for a custom-made fit.

Unlike disposables, though, toric soft contact lenses must be removed and sterilized frequently, so it's important that a child understand the process of cleaning and disinfecting the lenses. "I've found that kids sometimes follow directions better than their parents do-children are very literal and can follow instructions to the letter," says

Factors to consider for children

· Here are factors to discuss with an eyecare professional when considering contact lenses for a child:

 Is the child mature and responsible enough to follow directions and care properly for his or her contact lenses? He or she should not consider them just another "toy" to tire of.

· Is the child motivated? Does he or she really want contact lenses, or is it more important to the parents?

· Does the child wear glasses all the time? People who see well enough to get by without their glasses seldom find the time to maintain the proper cleaning routine and may want to try disposable lenses, which require little maintenance.

· Does the child consistently misplace his or her glasses? Again, disposable lenses may be the answer as there's always a spare pair on hand.

The choices regarding contact lens es should be a mutual decision involving parent, child and eye care professional," says Dr. Teig. The Bausch & Lomb InVision Institute recommends consulting a pediatric eye care practitioner for children's routine vision examinations. SKI WHERE THE PROS SKI... Five members of America's most successful ski team, the U.S. Freestyle Team, take a break between training runs at Breckenridge, in Colorado, to pose for the camera.

THE GOOD, THE BIG AND THE FUN AT SNOWMASS

In the skier's vernacular, "intermediate" usually means somewhere between a hacker and a hero. At Snowmass, in Aspen, Colorado, intermediate means high-performance adventure at the level of your choice. This giant of a mountain boasts over 2,000 skiable acres served by 16 lifts which can carry approximately 20,000 skiers per hour to a 3,600-foot vertical drop. And there are more than 350 certified ski instructors on hand to help you get the most out of all of it.

Snowmass is famous as an inter-mediate mountain, offering two distinct levels of adventure. The first level is for highperformance fanatics. The other level is for the easy rider bunch in search of mile after mile of gentle cruising. "Work" is not in their vocabulary, but the word "fun" gets bandied about a bit. The nearby elk herds have adapted with good humor to the strange "yahoo" sound of this colorful and playful species which shares their mountain each winter.

Relentless uniformity makes many intermediate ski areas seem almost tedious. Snowmass, however, has shape and character—a wild jumble of rollovers, gulleys, cirques, hanging valleys and false summits. The strictly blue-square trails at Snowmass tend to roll, dip and twist through gulleys and glades, over ridges and humps and across old forest burns like a gentle roller-coaster ride

Snowmass is split into four selfcontained areas, each with its own lift system and restaurant. To help you find your way around, each area is colorcoded on the trail map and trail signs: The Big Burn in orange, High Alpine in blue, Elk Camp in yellow and Sam's Knob in white.

The Big Burn is said to be the site of a large forest fire set by the Ute Indians to discourage settlers in the late 1800's. Today, its wide open slopes are a skier's delight. Alpine Springs and High Alpine are two distinct areas in themselves. Alpine Springs' trails flow and change constantly with the natural terrain. while High Alpine is sprinkled with black-diamond runs.

The Elk Camp area consists of five superb cruising runs designed with a minimum of tree-cutting. And, at Sam's Knob, the trails dive from the top through the trees at a fairly steep pitch, finally leveling off to the blues and greens at the base of the mountain.

The double black-diamond runs at Snowmass—the Cirque and Hanging Valley-boast the steepest pitches to be found in the Snowmass and Aspen area. These places offer 462 acres of ungroomed natural terrain for experts only. They give Snowmass the right to claim that from hacker to hero, this mammoth of a mountain is truly for SK905156 everyoné.

Drive carefully.

The future is bright for one of the most desirable home improvement features

Skylight sales in new and existing there are many differences between homes have gone through the roof, industry sources report.

Steve Bechtold, president of Ventarama Skylight Corporation, Hicksville, N.Y., says, "Skylights were once considered an oddity or the expression of an eccentric homeowner. Not any more. Industry-wide, installations have more than doubled in the past five years - and there's no sign of a slowdown in sight.' Harvey B. Oshins, president of National Realty & Development Corp. of Greenwich, Conn., agrees. "There's no question in our minds that skylights have become a highly desirable feature, no matter what kind of home you build today, be it traditional, colonial or highly contemporary," he says.

Product performance standards developed by the American Architectural Manufacturers Association (AAMA) have given consumers reason to feel more confident about the quality of today's skylights. Still, notes Bechtold.

The company's Model VG insulated glass unit offers weatherproof ventilation plus high performance "low E" glass.

Besides the improved performance that has had an impact on the popularity of skylights, some manufacturers have concentrated on making the products more convenient to operate.

"One major breakthrough has been the introduction of the motorized sky-light," says Bechtold. "We developed a very quiet, completely concealed motor over 20 years ago. It's operated from a wall switch, eliminating the need for a hand pole.

Now is the time to secure your house against the vicious elements of winter

Mild autumn days offer homeowners the opportunity to prepare for the winter thead. In addition to raking leaves and laying in a good supply of firewood, wise homeowners will examine the exteriors of their houses and other buildings for cracks, crevices and other openings

These should be sealed against the damaging effects of winter's vicious elements-cold temperatures and rain,

Although freezing and sub-freezing temperatures create special problems in the northern United States and Canada, he lower temperatures and increased precipitation of the winter season also present perils for those residing in southern states. In either case, the objective of good home maintenance is to seal heat in and the moisture out

The loss of heat is costly in terms of the energy needed to replenish the loss and maintain a comfortable living enviconment within the home

Moisture, however, is even more insidious, It often enters, undetected through cracks and crevices, and attacks the structure over a period of many years.

Freezing and sub-freezing temperatures merely exacerbate moisture's damaging effects. As water turns to ice, it expands and exerts enormous pressures on the surrounding surfaces. Hence, moisture within a crack or crevice will cause additional cracking and breaking.

To avoid such damage, homeowners should make a thorough inspection of their property. Red Devil*, Inc., the Union. New Jersey, based manufacturer of chemical products and tools for the do-ityourselfer, offers the following suggestions to put your home in tip-top shape.

Start at the top, if possible, and work your way down. Check roofs for loose or missing shingles; look for openings in and around vents, stacks, chimneys, valleys, flashing, gutters and downspouts.

Then, make a complete tour around your house, inspecting all joints between the siding and other parts of the house, such as window and door frames, window sills, porch or deck attachments, eaves and trim.

Don't overlook those spots where objects pass through the siding from the in-probably the most durable of all exterior building materials. However, the mortar joints which hold them together do require occasional maintenance. Look for cracks and crumbling mortar, and repair immediately

Concrete patios, walks, driveways and garage floors also are prone to cracking and crumbling, allowing water to enter and causing further damage.

Once you've located problem areas, most repairs can be accomplished easily with a few inexpensive tools and the proper materials. For roofing repairs, an asphalt-based compound is recommended.

Red Devil Blacktop and Roof Repair, for example, is excellent and is available in tubes to fit standard caulking guns. In addition to fastening loose shingles, it

Crevices in the walls of a home, and openings around doors, pipes, windows Brick, stone and cement blocks are and wires, should be sealed with a good quality caulk, such as the Red Devil Lifetime™ Brand Siliconized Acrylic Caulk.

Cracks in mortar between bricks or stone, and in cement surfaces such as driveways and patios, can be repaired using a pre-mixed mortar repair product such as Red Devil Concrete and Mortar Repair, which comes in plastic tubs.

And if your home is made of a stucco material, cracks and crevices in the walls can be repaired easily with a new lightweight, pre-mixed formula made especially for repairing stucco walls - Red Devil California Lite™ Stucco Repair.

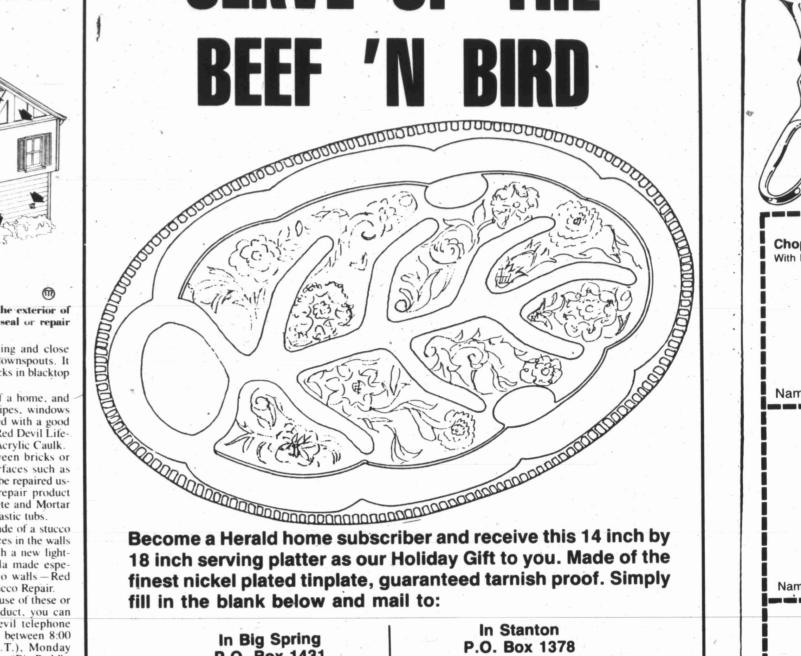

For information on the use of these or any other Red Devil product, you can call the toll-free Red Devil telephone number (1-800-247-3790) between 8:00 AM and 4:00 PM (E.S.T.), Monday through Friday, and ask for "Big Red."

The longest words

Perhaps you thought that antidisestablishmentarianism was the longest English word, but it only has 28 letters. Or perhaps you guessed supercalifragilisticexpialidocious. That, however, is only a made-up word from the film, Mary

Now get ready to twist your tongue if you want to pronounce some of the real ongies. The Oxford English Dictionary lists a 29 letter word as its longest: floccie paucinihilipilification, which means "the action of estimating as worthless."

Webster's Third International Dictionary tops that one with a 45 letter word, pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanoconiosis, which is a disease of the lungs found in miners.

But the longest word ever is a 182 letter word translated from a 170 letter Greek word:

Lopadotemachoselachogaleokranioleipsanodrimhy-potrimmatosilphioparaomelitokatakechymewnokichlepikossyphophattoperisteralektryonoptekephalliokigklopeleiolagoiosiraiobaphetraganopterygon.

This word is the name for a food which is made of 17 sweet and sour ingredients including brains, honey, mullet, vinegar, pickles and the Greek liqueur, Ouzo.

The history of stamps

A classified advertisement in The Times of London in 1841 led to the popular hobby of philately, popularly known as stamp collecting. The advertisement was placed by a young woman interested in wallpapering her bedroom with postage stamps! It inspired other people to start collecting

Only a year earlier, in 1840, at the suggestion of Sir Rowland Hill, Great Britain had issued the world's first postage stamps. They were called "Penny Blacks" and had the head of Queen Victoria on them.

Before these stamps were issued, people took their letters to the Post Office and paid the postmaster a fee for sending them.

The postmaster then wrote the word "paid" on the envepeople could buy their postage in advance, and simply mail letters in public letter boxes that were set up throughout the country.

Today stamps are available with dozens of different pictures. The next time you go to the post office, ask to see some of the different kinds of stamps. This could be the start of an exciting hobby!

Obtain greener grass through lawn care

@While the novice gardener may think fall signals the end of the growing season, the seasoned gardener knows better-especially in the area of lawn care. In most regions, lawns slow down in summer and then revive in fall. According to the Garden Council, the gardener who wants the grass to be greener on his or her side of the fence will be found tending to the lawn this fall. Fall's moderate temperatures encourage the grass to grow, making this a good time to plant a new lawn or reseed problem areas. The new growth then has fall and next spring to get a good start before summer's heat, advises the Garden Council. Also, fall offers less competition

For a new lawn, the gardener has a choice of sod or seed. Sod is best when instant grass is wanted or needed, or on slopes where seeds could wash away. Seed is generally selected for large areas and for spot lawn repairs, and is less expensive.

Think of grass from two angles, top and bottom-blades and roots. Blades are the manufacturing center, producing food and energy through photosynthesis. The roots are the plant's anchor, absorbing nutrients and storing food. The height of the blade is proportionate to the depth of the root system. The general rule for healthy lawns and easy maintenance is to keep the blades long and the roots deep

Mowing

A general rule for mowing at any time of year is to cut no more than one-third of the blade. Mowers set at three inches for summer cutting in northern climates should gradually be lowered to no less than 11/2 inches for the last fall cutting. This will discourage lawn diseases from taking hold, and allow enough light and oxygen to keep the lawn healthy. Clippings, if short, can be left on the grass to recycle nutrients—an effective natural fertilizer.

Watering

Water is critical for grass to absorb nutrients. If nature doesn't deliver drenching rains, make sure your hoses do to promote a deep root system and a healthy lawn.

Fertilizing

Fertilizing can help improve soil structure and add nutrients. A healthy lawn may not need much fertilizer, but soils vary by geography and mainte-nance level. Your local lawn and garden retailer can advise you on soil conditions, pH levels of your soil, and fertilizers appropriate for your area.

The Garden Council recommends an early and late fall fertilizing to encourage root growth, which is necessary for a good lawn, and food production before dormancy. The late fall fertilizing is most important, and you can then do away with an early spring fertilizing. The results of this advance planning will be a beautiful lawn in the spring. However, one application with a slow release nitrogen would also be acceptable. Again, check with your local garden retailer or lawn maintenance contractor for more specific information in your area.

Aerating

For lawns with thatch build-up, a fall aerating is the start to recovery. Punch holes one-half inch deep into soil (and pull plugs), about four to six inches apart. The holes should be about one-fourth to one-half inch in circumference. Fertilize and water immediately after aerating. Aerators can be rented from garden centers or rental supply companies. A power rake may also work on a light thatch, and for heavier thatch, a thatching machine can be rented. Fall is the perfect time to do this, as the machine doesn't work well in the wet spring ground.
