Development board chooses director

Board members of Moore Development for Big Spring Inc. on Monday passed a motion to offer the position of executive director of economic development for Big Spring Inc. to Ted St. Clair.

After further discussion, the Chamber decided to reconvene Friday, 4:30 p.m. at the Colorado River Municipal Water District to discuss the issue of office space. Following this, the move was made to adjourn.

SWCID hosts in-service meeting

The Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf sponsored the Howard County Junior College District's professional development in-service meeting for all district faculty and staff professionals Monday.

"This was the first time the district professional in-service was held on our campus. In the past it's always been at the Howard College campus. We thought it might be helpful to provide the faculty at Howard College a view of our campus," said SCWID vice president Ron Brasel, adding that the meeting occurred in the new student center at SCWID.

Brasel said about 125 instructors and staff from both college campuses attended the meeting. Six sessions were offered on varying topics, and the participants chose two sessions to attend.

Brasel said the CPR session was possibly the most well attended, with more than 30 participants who spent most of the morning receiving CPR certification.

HC president Bob Riley gave the opening welcome to the faculty, and included announcements about college enrollment, the budget and history of the college, Brasel said.

"There was some difference with this in that we utilized the talents and skills of faculty and staff. All the sessions were conducted by the faculty and staff within the district," Brasel said.

"I thought this was a very successful and well-attended professional development and I'm looking forward to hosting another one in the future," he said.

Toastmasters to meet tonight

The Toastmaster Club of Big Spring will conduct a special meeting tonight at 6 p.m. in room 212 of the VA Medical Center.

The purpose of the meeting is to demonstrate the proceedings of the club's regular meetings. All persons interested in improving their speaking and listening abilities are encouraged to attend.

The Toastmasters normally meet at 6:45 a.m. on Tuesdays in the Day's Inn.

Washington braces for war

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush huddled with intelligence and national security advisers today as Washington braced for a Persian Gulf war. The Pentagon said it had moved more naval firepower closer to Iraq and Kuwait.

As time for diplomacy dwindled, the Pentagon said Saddam Hussein was showing no signs of withdrawing his troops from Kuwait and indeed was bolstering his forces.

Bush has U.N. authority to use force after midnight EST to remove Saddam from Kuwait.

"The Department of Defense is ready to execute any order we receive from the president," Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

The White House said earlier that Bush had not yet made a decision on launching an attack.

Williams said U.S. forces were training as usual but had taken unspecified security steps as the midnight United Nations deadline for Iraq's withdrawal approached.

"Obviously the forces can read the calendar," Williams said. "They know what the date is."

Williams said there were now more than 415,000 U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf. A fourth aircraft carrier, the America, entered the Red Sea today, bringing to six the number of carriers in the region and within range of Iraq.

Iraq continued to add to its forces, stretching its defensive lines westward from Kuwait into southern Iraq, Williams said. The Pentagon estimated that Saddam has 545,000 troops in the area.

White House grounds at dawn "just to reflect on the day," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Later, at a morning meeting with economic advisers, the president refused to answer reporters' questions about the gulf.

Bush had nothing on his public schedule to indicate that the country was on the brink of war, and official Washington sought to maintain the appearance of business as usual. However, security was noticeably tightened at major government buildings.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, offered what he called "diminishing hope" that Saddam Hussein would comply with a United Nations demand that he pull out of Kuwait.

"Maybe something will happen," he said on NBC's "Today."

Aspin said experts believe that if Saddam yields to international pressure "it will only be at the last minute."

Sheik Saud Nasir al-Sabah, the Kuwaiti ambassador to the United States, said, "I don't really believe we have any hopes at this stage to see any kind of peaceful solution to this problem at this last moment."

He was interviewed on the ABC show "Good Morning America."

Appearing with Aspin was Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., who said, "It may be that Saddam Hussein will not be convinced until a military strike occurs, until he has lost his air force, perhaps his chemical capability. . . . But at some point, he will be convinced." Williams said.

AUSTIN — Texas governor Ann Richards waves as she attended the pre-inaugural gala "Texas, Our Texas" Monday night in Austin. The event featured well-known entertainers from across the country.

Richards sworn in at noon

AUSTIN (AP) — Democrat Ann Richards became Texas' new governor today, the first woman to hold the post in more than half a century.

She said it was one for the history books.

"Today, the historians will record that a new administration, different from any in the past, began," she told thousands of cheering supporters. "Today, we have a vision of a Texas where opportunity knows no race or color or gender — a glimpse of the possibilities that can be when the barriers fall and the doors of government swing open."

Richards, 57, succeeded retiring Republican Bill Clements, whose eight years in office were the most ever by a Texas governor. She is the first woman to take the oath as governor since Miriam "Ma" Ferguson did so on Jan. 17, 1933.

As he left the Capitol, Clements said, "Well, it's goodbye and thank you very much."

Also sworn in was Democrat Bob Bullock, 61, who became lieutenant governor, succeeding 18-year veteran Bill Hobby. "We must set state government on a new financial course," Bullock said.

The noon ceremony followed an early morning prayer service for U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf and a "people's march" where Richards led thousands of triumphant supporters in a 12-block

County livestock show scheduled for weekend

Dondi Brewer, left, daughter of Don and Lana Brewer, had the opportunity last week to learn some show techniques prior to this week's Howard County Livestock Show. Dondi is picture with her entry, a Poland China spotted named "Wilbur". John Jenkins, center, a Vealmoor 4-H member, acted as show judge to point out errors to several area children who participated in the seminar.

Preparations are underway for the annual Howard County Livestock Show and Auction. The three-day event is scheduled Thursday through Saturday, Jan. 17 through Jan. 19, at the Howard County Fair Grounds, Howard County 4-H members and Big Spring, Coahoma and Sands Future Farmers of America will bring approximately 300 entries to the event, which is open to the public.

Entries are categorized by weight and breed, explained Don Richardson, Howard County extension agent. There are three breed divisions for cattle, four for sheep, and three for hogs. In addition, each division is broken down into light, medium and heavy weight categories. Weigh-in of all entries will begin Thursday at 3 p.m., and will be concluded by 6 that evening.

Judging will begin Friday at noon with market swine and capons. Friday's show will end with the lamb judging, which begins at 6 p.m. Saturday's judging begins at 8 a.m. with the heifers and steers. The final event is the premium livestock auction at 1:30 p.m.

Judging the swine will be Jake Colman of Meadow. Judging of market lambs will be conducted by Rex Jones of San Angelo. Capons will be judged by Chris Kountz of Lubbock, and all beef cattle will be judged by Max Stapleton of Haskell.

Each of the 250 participants has entered one to four animals in the show, said Justin Wood, 14, a 4-H club president. Cattle are usually purchased from 11 months to one year prior to showing, he explained. Lambs are raised for approximately 10 months, and hogs for about six months prior to showing. Some animals will go on to the larger state shows in Fort Worth, San Antonio and Houston. Others will be sold at the Premier Livestock Auction following the show, he said.

High-ranking PLO aides assassinated

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Police arrested several Palestinians today after a renegade bodyguard linked to terrorist Abu Nidal assassinated two top aides to PLO leader Yasser Arafat.

A senior Palestinian commander said the gunman was a former member of Abu Nidal's terrorist PLO faction, sworn enemies of Arafat.

But "we still don't know who he's working for," said the commander, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "He may also be working for the Israelis."

Israel emphatically denied involvement.

The gunman used an AK-47 assault rifle to kill Salah Khalaf, Arafat's second in command, and Hayel Abdel-Hamid, the Palestine Liberation Organization's security chief, at Abdel-Hamid's house outside Tunis late Monday, police said.

He also killed Abu Mohammed al-Omari, Khalaf's chief bodyguard, and held Abdel-Hamid's wife and teen-age daughter hostage for six hours, the PLO commander said.

Khalaf's death left Arafat as the

No need to panic about gas

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The rumors of $2 to $3 per gallon fuel price hikes are causing much more concern in other parts of Texas than they are here in Big Spring. According to an Associated Press report, panic is causing long lines at service stations in Brownsville and Harlingen.

The rumors, possibly precipitated by yesterday's jump of $3.50 for a barrel of crude and the threat of war in the Mideast, are having some effect on fuel purchases locally. Big Spring service stations are reporting brisk sales, but no long lines of panicked buyers. Vickie Ledesma of Bell Gas reported brisk sales yesterday and today, with only a 3-cent rise in this morning's fuel prices.

Scott Fisher of the Texas Oil Marketers Association said this morning, "A number of refiners have raised their price by 3 cents to 12 cents per gallon. This is not an across-the-board increase. It is mostly confined to the smaller 'unbranded' refineries that have no large reserves of crude oil."

A spokesman for the Railroad Commission said that supplies of crude oil in the United States are at a good level, and there is currently no problem getting oil to the refineries.

Texas Oil Marketers Association president E.W. Wehman told the Associated Press he expects consumers to feel the effects of rising wholesale prices soon, but a $4 a gallon increase is unlikely. Wehman did say, however, that if war breaks out, prices may rise by as much as 75 cents per gallon.

Leonard McCutcheon of McCutcheon Oil Co. said he looks for a sizable increase in the near future because many suppliers, particularly in the north-central part of the country, raised their prices by 5 to 12 cents yesterday.

McCutcheon said that while his prices to retailers had gone up by one-half cent yesterday, "we've been going up and down forever. I'd be surprised if we didn't have an increase today. We're waiting for more information and we'll probably see an increase this evening for tomorrow."

"Something people don't understand," he said, "is that there are a lot of people who control oil prices by buying and selling oil as a commodity." The oil companies are not completely responsible for price increases, he explained.

Kent Wood, manager of Petco Distributors, said his company has not raised prices yet because of existing stocks.

There was a run on gas stations yesterday because of rumors of higher prices, he said. "A lot of people were filling their tanks because of the rumors."

Wood said his prices to retailers would almost certainly increase tomorrow by at least 6 cents. "We'll hear tonight how much our prices will increase," he said.

Barge spews gas into ship channel

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Coast Guard officials today have closed a portion of the Houston Ship Channel after a freight barge rammed a tank barge, spewing 7,800 gallons of a gasoline additive.

Lt. Michael Debettencourt, of the Coast Guard Marine Safety Office in Houston, said the empty freight barge, handled by Econo-Rail Inc. of Houston, apparently broke loose from its moorings in the Sims Bayou area in stormy weather Monday night and drifted down the ship channel about 1:45 a.m.

"Our vessel traffic service saw the barge moving without a tug on its video cameras and shortly thereafter saw it smash into the other barge," Debettencourt said.

The cargo barge, owned by Dixie Carriers of Houston, was moored at Texas Petrochemical. Debettencourt said it sustained a hole in the cargo tank, spilling 7,800 gallons of methyl tertiary butyl ether, a gasoline additive, into the ship channel. About half its cargo remains aboard, Debettencourt said.

While the additive evaporates rather quickly, crews closed about a 2,000-yard section of the upper Houston Ship Channel, about 3 miles from the uppermost end, at about 2:30 a.m. as a precaution to possible ignition of the material.

"The barges are presently locked together and we are attempting to separate them," Debettencourt said. "The stuff is very flammable and there's still more in the cargo hold." Debettencourt said that the closure had stalled some ship traffic, but has not been a serious impediment to regular traffic.

College bonds to go on sale this month

AUSTIN (AP) — Tax-exempt bonds for a college savings bond program will be sold later this month in small denominations to give anyone the opportunity to purchase them for funding future college costs, the Higher Education Coordinating Board says.

Proceeds from the $25 million bond sale will allow the board to provide low-interest loans to college students in Texas.

The board said Monday that purchase price of the bonds will depend on the maturity value and interest rates at the time of sale. Minimum purchase price for the bonds, to be available in $1,000 increments, could be as low as several hundred dollars for small denomination bonds with long terms.

"Ordinarily, state bonds are available only in much larger denominations. This bond sale will give more Texans an opportunity to help meet the rising cost of higher education," said Higher Education Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth.

Congress quiet now after storm of war vote

By PETER ROPER
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The telephones had largely stopped ringing in the offices of Texas lawmakers Monday as Congress went back to work only 36 hours after the grueling, emotional vote to give President Bush the authority to make war on Iraq.

While there were prayer vigils and anti-war protests scheduled around town during the day, the atmosphere in the halls of Congress was quiet anxiety after being besieged Saturday by constituent mail and calls.

"Everybody is sort of on pins and needles right now, just waiting to see if there's going to be war," said Denise Crenweige, spokesman for Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford.

Stenholm, a conservative Democrat, was among the sponsors of the legislation giving Bush war authority. Crenweige said the office received only a few dozen calls Saturday and the people were evenly split on the issue of war on Iraq.

"We only had two calls today and both people said the president should send in the troops and get this over with," she said Monday.

The phones in Democratic Rep. Jim Chapman's office "were ringing off the wall" over the weekend, said his press aide, Sarah Anderson. The Sulphur Springs lawmaker had been undecided on the war resolution until last Friday, then decided to support the administration on Saturday's crucial vote.

"You'd put the phone down and it would ring. There were easily more than 30 calls and that's a lot on a Saturday," she said. A majority of the callers supported the Bush administration, but there were also calls urging the Congress to avoid war and endorse continued economic sanctions, she said.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, has made no secret of his support for using a swift military strike to end the Iraq crisis. Perhaps his reputation for being an outspoken "hawk" had discouraged callers earlier this month when the office was quiet. But that changed after Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot appeared on a national television show last week and urged the public to oppose the war.

"That started the flood," said Elaine Lang, a Wilson aide. "The mail started pouring in and the phone calls along with them."

Lang said none of the calls seemed orchestrated. "These seemed to be people who were genuinely responding on their own," she said.

Like Wilson, East Texas is known for its conservatism — especially on defense issues. Lang said about 60 percent of the calls and mail endorsed the Bush administration strategy of threatening war.

"I don't think we've had a call today about the crisis," she said Monday. "I think the public is just as exhausted as we are."

Tornado damages buildings

COLUMBUS (AP) — A rare January tornado injured 11 people Monday evening as it hit a mobile home park and blew several vehicles off a highway in this Southeast Texas town, authorities said.

The tornado, which touched down about 6:18 p.m., destroyed five mobile homes and temporarily trapped some people inside a mini-mart store, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Although DPS officials said only four were injured, Columbus Community Hospital said 11 people arrived at the emergency room for treatment.

Six were admitted to the hospital and five were treated and released, said a hospital employee who declined to give her name. None of the injuries were life-threatening, but the woman would not give any other details about the patients' conditions.

Several ambulances were summoned from nearby towns to Columbus, a town of about 3,800 some 55 miles west of Houston, said DPS spokesman Mike Cox.

"No one is trapped anymore. They did get into the mobile home park and everyone who had been there is accounted for. So we don't have anyone missing and no fatalities," Cox said.

DPS communications operator Betty Martin said four injuries occurred in the mobile home park. January is the least-common month for a tornado in Texas, according to the Texas Almanac. In almost 50 years, only about 40 tornadoes have been reported in January, compared with more than 1,350 for May, the most common month.

The National Weather Service said a dangerous combination of unstable air, abundant Gulf moisture and an approaching upper level disturbance in Western Texas spawned the tornadoes and severe thunderstorms across South Central and Southeast Texas.

The tornadoes won't linger long, the weather service said.

"A cold front located near a line from San Angelo to Del Rio will move across South Central Texas later tonight, ending the threat of severe weather," NWS said Monday in a statement.

Four of the destroyed mobile homes were in the park and another was in a separate location nearby. The garage of a home also was blown away.

The area damaged by the tornado is in an unincorporated area just south of the Columbus city limit and one mile south of Interstate 10, he said. The mobile home park and several businesses are in the area.

"It also blew some vehicles off of Interstate 10. One of them was an 18-wheeler," he said.

Westbound traffic on I-10 was halted Monday evening because of the accidents, he added. Traffic was diverted to another highway.

Steer sold

DENVER — Sheffield Wise, 18, of Brownwood, smiles as she leads her Simmental-Angus crossbred steer "Thumper" around the auction ring as the junior livestock champions were sold at the National Western Stock Show and Rodeo in Denver Monday night. Wise sold the steer for $30,000 and says that she will use the money for college, which she starts this fall.

Texans hold 11th-hour peace vigils throughout the state

(AP) Across Texas, people gathered in 11th-hour peace vigils and Gov.-elect Ann Richards begged everyone to "pray your hearts out" as the threat of war in the Persian Gulf loomed nearer and nearer.

The United Nations has given Iraq until midnight tonight to pull out of Kuwait or face attack.

"I ask one personal thing of you," Richards said at a pre-inaugural gala late Monday. "And that is not to forget tonight in your prayers to remember those men and women in the Middle East."

She added, "And pray your hearts out for peace."

A crowd of at least 800 assembled on the courthouse steps in Cleburne, where a candle lighting ceremony was held in support of the troops involved in Operation Desert Shield.

"We're not saying we're for one position or against another," Rio Vista Baptist Church pastor Don Smith told the group. "Only that we're here to show our support for our fathers and mothers and sons and daughters who are now in harm's way."

"May the Lord help them return home quickly and safely," he said. As the candles twinkled in the night, speakers lined up at the podium, some sobbing quietly as they asked for prayers for their family members deployed overseas.

Passing time

SAN ANTONIO — Specialist Paula Durand of Killeen, with the 94th General Hospital, writes a letter to her husband who is stationed with the Army in Saudi Arabia. The reservist was waiting to receive advance pay with the rest of her unit before shipping out to Germany in support of Operation Desert Shield.

"I ask one personal thing of you, and that is not to forget tonight in your prayers to remember those men and women in the Middle East."

"And pray your hearts out for peace."

More than 70 people crowded into a small, spiraling chapel at Thanks-Giving Square in downtown Dallas at noon Monday, seeking divine intervention to avoid war.

They wore strips of blue ribbon, the symbol of peace, pinned on them by Joyce Hall of the Dallas Peace Center. Scriptures from the New and Old Testaments and the Koran were read.

In a six-hour prayer vigil in San Antonio, Archbishop Patrick Flores asked worshippers to pray for God to enlighten the minds of world leaders. While lightning flashed through the stained-glass windows of Christ the King Church, Flores deplored spending tax money on "bombs and body bags" when it could be better spent at home on education and fighting poverty.

About 100 people, many of them high school students, gathered Monday night around the Water Gardens in downtown Fort Worth. They lit candles, and many held signs against going to war.

"I don't think anyone should be made to fight," said Todd McDonald, a student at Lamar High School in Arlington. "That's the main reason why I'm here. I don't think that I should be made to go and die or that I should be made to go and kill someone."

Hazel Hicks of Waco cried at a prayer vigil at the First Baptist Church in Waco as she thought about her son, Air Force Sgt. William Hicks, who is stationed in Saudi Arabia.

"I am with my son just as I know that God is with him," she said.

Barbara Cryer of Electra spent the day in a personal vigil in front of her television. Her son, Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Rodney Cryer, was sent to the Persian Gulf in September. She said she spent the day watching, listening and waiting for some sign that war with Iraq is not inevitable.

City sirens, prayer vigils and the tolling of church bells were planned today in Tyler.

Smith County Judge Larry Craig asked residents in the Tyler area to fly their American flags and to display yellow, red-white-and-blue ribbons as a symbol of community backing.

City and county officials in Tyler announced plans last week for the blaring of emergency sirens at 11 a.m. today in tribute to American troops participating in Operation Desert Shield.

In Waco, as radio and television newscasts reported the fading hopes of a peaceful settlement, Air Force Reserve Chaplain Don Smith prepared a sermon which called for prayers for peace.

"We are up against a very serious situation," Smith said. "As people of faith, we know that prayer is the only real answer."

Smith will lead a candlelight vigil at 7 tonight at the Peace Fountain at the Waco Convention Center.

"We plan and train to do what we hope we never have to do," he said.

Choice may be lottery or new tax

AUSTIN (AP) — State lawmakers faced with a $4.2 billion budget shortfall through fiscal year 1993 could get a $731 million cash infusion through a state lottery, according to figures from the state comptroller's office.

If approved by Texas voters in May, the first lottery ticket could be sold in January 1992, said Greg Hartman, state Comptroller John Sharp's executive assistant.

The figures, developed by a task force in the comptroller's office, are not keyed to a particular piece of legislation but assume the comptroller would administer the game, Hartman said Monday.

State Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, is sponsoring a measure that would give the comptroller authority to run the lottery.

Wilson said he thinks the proposed constitutional amendment is 10 to 12 votes short of passage in the 150-member House, based on incomplete polling.

A two-thirds vote is required to pass a constitutional amendment.

But Wilson said he thinks the measure will pass. He said he still must win support from the House's "Bible Belt."

"The only thing that will change... the minds of those who really oppose it, I think, on moral grounds is the fact that they're going to be facing a state income tax," Wilson said. "That's the only thing that's changed similar minds in similar situations across the country."

The state is facing an estimated $4.2 billion budget shortfall through the next two-year-budget period.

Gov.-elect Ann Richards has said passage of a lottery is one of her priorities. State leaders have not predicted passage of an income tax this regular session, although they have said other taxes and budget cuts would be examined.

Although there earlier was discussion of putting a lottery on an April ballot, Wilson and House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said May 4 would be the uniform election date.

State revenue from a lottery is 40 percent of gross ticket sales, Hartman said. The rest goes to prizes and administration.

Satellite detects quasar explosion

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A lucky reading by a satellite detected an eruption of energy equal to almost a million years of sunlight and gave astronomers new insights into the mysterious stellar objects called quasars.

Ronald A. Remillard of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology said the Japanese Ginga satellite just happened to be studying the quasar during the three minutes when the massive X-ray explosion occurred.

"It was serendipity," Remillard said at a news conference Monday at a meeting of the American Astronomical Society.

The astronomer said the energy was beamed outward from the center of a galaxy 2 million light years away and the path of the beam just happened to come in view of the Earth at the time the satellite instruments were focused on that part of the heavens.

Remillard said the energy burst was so astonishing that astronomers spent more than a year verifying the data.

The satellite was focused on an object Remillard called a "common, garden variety" quasar known as PKS 0558-504.

Quasars are little-understood celestial bodies that give off natural radio signals.

RIGA, U.S.S.R. — Latvians erect barricades outside the central telephone exchange Monday as a precaution against a possible crackdown by Soviet troops in the secessionist Baltic republic. The Latvian parliament met through the night to discuss the possible Soviet threat in the wake of Sunday's violence in Lithuania.

First AIDS vaccine proves safe

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The first AIDS vaccine tested on humans has proved safe, scientists said today. Now they have to find out how well it works.

VaxSyn was injected into 36 healthy adult volunteers at six hospitals in 1988, and side effects were few and slight, the researchers reported in today's Annals of Internal Medicine, published by the American College of Physicians.

Eight volunteers experienced a slight fever. Four said they had headaches or felt sluggish and two reported pain at the injection site, the scientists said.

Researchers are now conducting tests to determine just how effective VaxSyn might be in building up a person's immunity to the AIDS virus.

Scientists testing a new vaccine first determine its safety before proceeding to test its effectiveness.

During the tests to determine safety, all 36 volunteers showed some immune response, developing AIDS antibodies and "killer T cells" that were specific to the AIDS virus, the researchers said.

"This gives us some room for cautious optimism," said the study's lead author, Dr. Raphael Dolin of the University of Rochester. "We ought to be able to come up with a vaccine that will work."

Nominee would want to lower rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's pick to replace the advocate of supply-side economics for a seat on the Federal Reserve Board won't affect monetary policy during the recession but could make a difference next year, private economists say.

These analysts said they expected that Lawrence Lindsey, 36, would be a strong voice urging lower interest rates next year when other governors of the central bank may be trying to push interest rates higher to battle re-emerging inflationary pressures.

Bush on Monday announced plans to nominate Lindsey, a Harvard economist currently serving on the White House staff, to fill a vacancy on the seven-member Fed board of governors.

"He appears to be coming from the easy-money camp as opposed to those who think the Fed's only job is to fight inflation," said Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm.

LAWRENCE LINDSEY
The administration also announced that it would nominate current Fed governor David Mullins to the post of vice chairman.

Latvians urged to clear barricades from streets

RIGA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Latvia's president today urged supporters of his separatist government to clear trucks and barricades leading to a stadium in the Baltic republic where opponents of independence planned a rally.

In a broadcast address, Anatoljs Gorbunovs said he told the commander of the Baltic military district, Gen. Fyodor Kuzmin, that the situation in Latvia was tense, "but it was not necessary for rally by anti-independence activists at the sports stadium. Parliament was debating whether to order police to line the streets of the city's Old Town for the rally.

Lawmaker Anatoljs Aleksej from the pro-Moscow Interfront group, claimed today that "people are being fooled by the Latvian government."

He said that because of barricades in the narrow street approaching the parliament, "it's impossible to get to parliament in a peaceful way. For this parliament to exist, they need assistance from hooligans."

Earlier today, Soviet troops entered a Latvian police academy, seized weapons, then left 30 minutes later. Some students were "roughed up," but there were no serious injuries, a parliament spokeswoman said.

On Sunday, Soviet troops stormed a TV tower in the Baltic republic of Lithuania, killing 14 people and injuring 230. There had been indications Soviet troops would also try to establish control in Latvia and Estonia.

Moments before Gorbunovs began his address, a Soviet military helicopter circled the parliament building. The legislature was in session trying, in Gorbunovs' words, "to find a way out of the crisis."

Hoping to defuse tensions, the parliament voted to freeze a resolution passed Nov. 14 barring the delivery of services to military units in Latvia.

Riga prepared today for a major

Fearing a similar assault in Riga as the one in Lithuania, Latvians set up barricades of heavy trucks around the capital. Soviet troops shot out the tires of some trucks and firebombed others.

In his address, Gorbunovs said: "I very much appeal to the inhabitants of Riga to place no kind of obstacles to the procedure of this" anti-independence rally.

"Please do not hamper the movements of the columns. The least provocation could end dramatically."

Earlier, 25 to 30 elite "black beret" Soviet troops entered a Latvian police academy in the suburb of Agenskalns, said Tia Karkils, a spokeswoman for the Latvian parliament.

"Some of the students were a little roughed up, but there were no serious injuries reported."

Majority of Soviets admire Lenin

MOSCOW (AP) — A majority of Soviet people still admire Vladimir Lenin, the founder of the Soviet state, an opinion poll suggests.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda said 59.1 percent of 2,000 people polled "positively assess the personality" of Lenin, while 10.3 percent had negative feelings and 30.6 percent had no opinion.

Pravda said 76.1 percent of those surveyed gave Lenin's accomplishments a high rating, while only 9.5 percent were negative.

It also said that 56.3 percent of respondents preferred socialism,

7 percent endorsed capitalism and 7.7 were in favor of state communism. It did not say what the remaining respondents said.

No date for the poll or margin of error was given.

The newspaper said some categories of people were more critical of Lenin — 19 percent of scholars gave his work a negative rating, as did 15 percent of students, 13 percent of engineers and 36 percent of Muscovites.

Until recently, Lenin and Karl Marx, the father of modern communism, had remained honored figures in Soviet society, escaping the criticism heaped on Josef Stalin and Leonid Brezhnev.

Network of trains to connect cities

PARIS (AP) — The historic linkup of a tunnel under the English Channel is only one step in a larger plan to connect the great cities of Europe with a network of superfast trains.

Rail planners envision sleek trains rocketing through the French Alps, across German plains and, of course, under the channel.

On board, they hope, will be travelers fed up with Europe's congested airports and highways. By 2010, they could be riding from Madrid to Frankfurt in less than 10 hours, compared to nearly 24 hours now.

"Train will soon allow what only plane made possible," predicts Karel van Miert, the European Community's transport commissioner.

He recently introduced an EC plan to create a $205 billion Western European high-speed network over 20 years. The 15,500 miles of electrified track would carry trains running at 120 to 200 mph.

The channel tunnel, which linked up in early December, will join London and Paris with a 3½-hour train ride in 1993. It will enable a London banker, for example, to hop a train to Brussels, Frankfurt, Madrid, Milan or dozens of other cities.

Soviet foreign minister nominated

ALEXANDER BESSMERTNYKH

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev today nominated veteran diplomat Alexander Bessmertnykh, the Soviet ambassador to Washington, to be his new foreign minister.

Gorbachev told the Supreme Soviet legislature he chose the 57-year-old Bessmertnykh because he is a "great professional" and has participated in all recent major international negotiations.

Bessmertnykh would replace Eduard A. Shevardnadze, the longtime Gorbachev ally who announced his resignation Dec. 20 to protest what he said was the president's drift toward dictatorship under the influence of hard-liners.

Lawmakers were expected to vote on Bessmertnykh's nomination later today.

EAST WENATCHEE, Wash. — Moses George, center, an elder of the Colville Indian tribe, expressed concerns to archaeologist Michael Gramley last October at an East Wenatchee, Wash., site where 11,000-year-old spear points were found.

Archaeology dig interrupted by protests

EAST WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) — An angry archaeologist has a bone to pick about a bone not picked.

At least one rare and fragile bone tool was left in the ground at the end of a dig in an East Wenatchee apple orchard, and the director of the dig, Michael Gramly, says the controversy may be a precursor to greater Indian protests of archaeological digs.

The tool perhaps best illuminates the frustration of the month-long dig that was in some ways more a sideshow than an academic exploration.

The Colville Indians protested the dig, saying it might disturb the bones of ancestors. No remains were found, and Gramly said it was unlikely that humans from 11,200 years ago could be traced to the Colvilles.

But before it was over the dispute featured:

- Gramly wearing a bullet-proof vest while greeting a Colville medicine man through a chain link fence.

- The plastic surgeon who owns the apple orchard and the artifacts saying he would never allow another excavation.
- Tours by 10,000 visitors, in organized groups of 30, perhaps drawn as much by the controversy as the prehistoric tools.
- "I would never return to this site under the present law structure," Gramly said as the dig concluded late last year. "I doubt any other archaeologist would as well."
- But Colville tribal councilman Mathew Dick said the intrusion of Indian concerns was long overdue.
- "We hope it developed an awareness among the national archaeological community in regards to the Indian side of the story," Dick said.
- "Even though nobody found bones or gravesite remains, that's not saying they were not there before," Dick said. "We still feel it's a gravesite."
- In the face of threatened sit-ins, Gramly was forced to sign an agreement restricting excavation to areas that had already been dug and whose contents, originally thought to be 17 bone and stone tools, were known.

The abandoned tool was partially exposed just outside the permitted dig site. The tribe refused Gramly's request for permission to remove it. He argued that the tool could be destroyed within a generation by the acidity in the soil, irrigation water and the roots of the trees.

"We believe he excavated more than we agreed to begin with," Dick said. "To ask us to excavate more was a little bit beyond reason."

The tribe blames Gramly for the fate of that bone tool. "We told him to take precautions and not disturb any other tools," Dick said.

Washington is the only state with a law regulating archaeological digs on private land.

Gramly received the first permit under that new state law, and was surprised when the Indians protested just days before work was to start.

Machine gun ban not expected to affect assault weapons debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's refusal to allow private ownership of new machine guns will have little impact on congressional moves to ban semiautomatic, assault-style weapons, say people on both sides of the gun control issue.

"I think if we had suffered a setback, there would be serious misgivings about (curtailing) the assault weapons," said Rep. Bill Hughes, D-N.J., chairman of the House subcommittee on crime and a gun-control advocate.

The Supreme Court's action Monday "strengthens our position that what we're seeking to do is entirely constitutional," he said.

Without comment, the justices left intact a federal appeals court ruling that upheld a 1986 amendment to the Gun Control Act. The law barred possession or sale of machine guns not lawfully owned before then.

J.D. Farmer Jr., a Smyrna, Ga., gunsmith, supported by the National Rifle Association, contended that the ownership of machine guns is protected by the constitutional right to bear arms.

The NRA said the case will have little impact on legislation.

"I don't think it's going to make any difference at all," said Richard E. Gardiner, the association's director of state and local affairs. "The people who support gun legislation support gun legislation."

If the Supreme Court had heard arguments and issued an opinion, the situation might have been different, he said.

"Congress is going to be interested in something the Supreme Court did, but the Supreme Court failed to do something," Gardiner said. "There's no message that comes out of that to Congress."

Hughes said the machine-gun law, which concerns automatic weapons, and bans on production of domestically produced assault-style semiautomatic weapons are separate matters.

But a different Supreme Court decision could have hurt congressional gun-control efforts, he said.

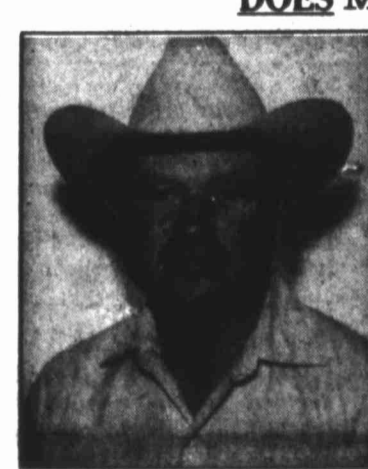

"There's no question but that if the NRA had succeeded in their effort to gut that law, that certainly would have given them a boost," Hughes said. The Supreme Court action "certainly sends the right signal as we begin a session where probably both the assault weapon and the Brady bills will be considered by Congress."

The Brady bill calls for a seven-day waiting period before a gun can be purchased, allowing time for background checks of prospective buyers. The House defeated the measure in 1988.

Assault-style weapons are semiautomatic, requiring one trigger pull for every shot fired; machine guns can spew out dozens of rounds with just one trigger pull.

Crime rate is still going up

For years, Americans have been told that longer sentences and more criminals in prison equal a lower crime rate. But it's becoming increasingly obvious that this anti-crime equation doesn't add up. Crime rates continue to rise even as American taxpayers pay billions of dollars to incarcerate more of their fellow citizens than any other nation in the world.

The latest tally by the non-profit Sentencing Project shows that, in the past decade, America surpassed both South Africa and the Soviet Union to top the world in incarceration rates. The title didn't come cheap. It costs $16 billion a year to house, clothe and feed those 1 million prisoners. Almost half that money goes to keep roughly one out of four black males behind bars.

All told, America has more than doubled its prison population since 1980. What effect did the crackdown have on crime? Apparently not much. During that same period, the crime rate dropped by only 3.5 percent and it's back on the rise now — up 14 percent in the past five years. Meanwhile, America continues to lead the world in a second category — murder rates.

So do investments in prison time pay off? Partially, at least. Many, if not most, prisoners now behind bars deserve to be there. Public safety requires it. But experts agree that many others don't. They caution that prison time should be viewed as only one item on the menu of sentencing alternatives.

Many offenders would benefit more from such things as mandatory participation in drug-treatment programs, community service work or placement in a secure halfway house where they can continue to interact with their families. Money saved by utilizing these less-expensive alternatives could be invested in programs with proven success rates. A dollar for prenatal care is paid back manyfold in a healthy child capable of pursuing a bright future. Expansion of Head Start programs guarantees needy youngsters a chance to excel at school. Increased education funding, particularly when targeted for at-risk students, broadens future employment opportunities.

These programs fight the roots of crime — poverty, unemployment, alienation. They aren't as immediately gratifying as slamming the door on a crook. But, ultimately, they will do far more to ease the crime crisis than the most ambitious prison construction project.

War brings rationing of precious commodities

War brings rationing of precious commodities. I was six when I began to realize the devastating effects of World War II. The young men of America were far away in Europe fighting the Germans, or in the South Pacific fighting the Japanese. Products that had been plentiful became scarce and housewives hoarded their coupons and stamps to buy sugar and shoes. Sugar and rubber were rationed, and without sugar and rubber, my bubble gum source dried up. When bubble gum became hard to get, I understood for the first time — war is hell.

Fleers Double Bubble had been a staple of my childhood. Wrapped in white paper with hot pink lettering that shouted FLEERS!, it was cylindrical in shape (one inch long and three-quarters of an inch round) and had a flavor that can only be attained by just the right blending of sugar and chicle. One piece was good for three days worth of chewing, blowing, and stretching wide between your fingers to twirl like a rope. There was no end to the pleasures bubble gum provided me, and suddenly it was all but a thing of the past.

The children in Big Spring developed a bubble gum grapevine. I spent one entire summer running from store to store where it had been rumored there was bubble gum to sell. The rumors were mostly rumors. At other times they were someone's idea of a joke. Often they were nothing but flat-out vicious lies. But once in a while I got lucky.

Tucked into a corner of a junk yard that advertised used car parts, I found an oil-stained wooden shack where the owner sold beer from the back room. From the front room, he sold car parts, Orange Crush, and three times that summer, Fleers Double Bubble Gum.

I went inside. I was hot and thirsty and the pennies I clutched in my fist were slick with sweat. Two men were drinking beer in a corner. The proprietor stood looking at me from behind a stained counter. Everything smelled of oil.

"Do you have any bubble gum?" I asked.

"Nobody's got bubble gum,

My word

girlie. There's a war goin' on." He gave me a hard look, as if I should be ashamed for having asked.

"I know," I said. I turned to leave and opened the screen door.

"Well, look here!" I heard him say. "What's this underneath my counter? Where do you reckon that come from?"

The two men leaned against the wall. One of them gave me a sly smile. I turned to see what was on the counter and there it was. A whole box of Fleers Double Bubble Gum. Stacked end to end, and three layers deep, there must have been fifty pieces of bubble gum in that box!

"I'd like to buy two pieces," I said.

I walked to the counter and put my two pennies beside the box full of gum.

"Oh! No ma'am," he said.

"This gum is rationed. Only one piece to a customer." He folded his arms across his belly, leaned back, and sucked his teeth.

I understood for the first time what my mother meant about hell having special places reserved for certain people. I paid for the piece of gum, picked up my other penny, and went home.

I went back to that store every other day for the rest of the summer. Only twice more was there any gum and each time the routine was the same.

By the next summer the war was over. Shoes, rubber, and sugar were no longer rationed, and any kid with a penny could buy Fleers Double Bubble Gum for the asking. But the company had changed it.

Now it came in little one inch squares, about a quarter of an inch thick, instead of the old familiar cylinder. It wasn't as pink as before, nor was it as sweet.

The bubble gum grapevine in Big Spring was gone, and I was reminded again that the scars of war are far-reaching and long lasting.

Word on the street

If Saddam Hussein does not withdraw from Kuwait, should we, or should we not go to war?

 "I support the president's policy. He (Saddam Hussein) is just like Hitler, and he has to be stopped. If we go to war, we need to do it fast and hard and get it over with." Yvonne Ivie Housewife	 "If we don't do something now, it's just going to get worse. If we do go to war, I think everyone should support the people in the field." Tommy Rawls Truck driver/student	 "Yes, something has got to be done. The man is a despot and a religious fanatic with chemical and biological weapons, and that is scary." Terry Brumley Plant operator	 "The fact that this (the Persian Gulf crisis) is more about economics than anything else stinks, but Saddam is an aggressor that cannot be dealt with and should be annihilated." Steve Shugrue Registered nurse
 "A lot of people are going to suffer if we go to war, and I pray that he (Saddam Hussein) will change his heart and leave (Kuwait), but I think we are doing the right thing." Sylvia Rodriguez Clerk	 "I've got no quarrel with the way Bush is handling this. I was disappointed that Congress was so divided, but I'm glad they voted to back the president. If Iraq doesn't leave Kuwait, I think we're well justified in going to war." Bob Horn Retired	 "Although I believe we are fighting for oil, we have to get Saddam out of Kuwait. If he gets the money from that oil, he can use it to build a bigger army. I do hope it's not a long drawn-out war, and that they don't have as many people killed as in Vietnam." Bryant Lane Contractor	 "I think it's the right thing to do. If we don't stop him, he will take over everything." Lucy Piper Clerk

Quotes

"My grandfather was a slave, and so my father told us things, and it made a difference in my life. It made me tell my children to stand up and be counted." — Rev. Virgie Brown, pastor of Church of God in Christ-Pentecostal, in Yuma, Ariz., on the celebration of Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday.

"Anti-war protesters enjoy that freedom to protest, savor that freedom. But that freedom wasn't won by protest. It was won through fighting." — Organizer Angie Downs at a Jacksonville, Fla., rally supporting the troops in the Persian Gulf.

"The manner of defense was decided by the commandant. I learned only in the morning, the early morning, when they got me up. When it happened, no one knew." — President Mikhail Gorbachev, denying responsibility for the bloody Red Army crackdown in Lithuania.

Committee gives partners the ax

When Shakespeare said, "Let's kill all the lawyers," he never thought they would do it to themselves. It used to be that during dark periods law firms fired associates and people who had only climbed halfway up the ladder. But lately the lawyers are firing their own partners.

How does a law office make the decision to force one of their own to walk the plank? Like this:

The Sudden Death Committee of Dubah, Doodah & Dipthong met secretly in one of the paneled conference rooms to decide whose heads to chop off for that week.

Grumbach said, "I say that in order to bring some financial order to the firm we push O'Toole out the window."

Sincere responded, "But O'Toole has been a law partner with DD&D for 40 years. He was a founder of the firm."

"Exactly. For 40 years he's worn the same tie to court. The man has no sense of fashion."

Bogley interrupted, "I have nothing against dumping O'Toole. He's always losing his men's room key. But I think if we're going for savings we ought to put the ax to Ladeeda. He entertains clients at the Downtown Topless Cafeteria."

Sincere added, "What I don't like about him is that he never

because it could be any one of us."

Bogley replied, "That's why we're all on the Sudden Death Committee — so it doesn't happen to us. And the responsibility is so great. It's no fun going to the office of a man that you've worked with for 20 years and saying, 'You can have one cigarette before emptying the drawers in your desk.'"

Comstock was irritated. "Enough of the hearts and flowers. The sooner we make our friends walk the plank, the less rent the rest of us will have to pay in '91."

Bogley agreed. "We'll be doing the fired partners a favor. Most of them are burned out anyway. Let's get the pink slips and hand them out."

"Why don't we make them into paper planes so we can toss them into their offices? There is no reason why people have to lose their sense of humor just because they're being dismissed," Comstock said.

"Are we canning Riverhaven or not?" Sincere asked.

"Why?" Bogley wanted to know.

"Because he has the best view from his office, and he promised me I could have it if anything ever happened to him."

Art Deco admirers assemble in Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Admirers of the pastels and streamlined forms of Miami Beach's Art Deco hotels and apartment houses came from around the world to learn from preservationists who helped establish the nation's first historic Art Deco district.

The weekend event was the first annual World Congress of Art Deco.

Delegates from Argentina to Australia discussed preservation tactics and Art Deco sites around the world. They also hoped to establish an international plan to conserve the style of architecture that got its name from the Exposition des Arts Decoratifs et Industriels Modernes in Paris in 1925.

Art Deco, a sleek, elegant style associated with wealth and sophistication, took hold as the nation entered the Depression. Blue and pink concrete "painted ladies" provided the backdrop for "Miami Vice" and helped popularize Art Deco all over again.

In 1979, a square-mile Miami Beach district of 800 Art Deco and Mediterranean revival buildings was put on the National Register of Historic Places. Leaders of the Art Deco Society of Western Australia told of demonstrations in Perth to protect Art Deco buildings. "It's been a battlefield of preservation," said society president Yvonne Geneve, who refers to developers as "the local Mafia."

Rivas said the poor economy in Argentina has blocked developers from tearing down many of the Art Deco buildings in Buenos Aires. Yet the lack of government funding has left many of the Art Deco theaters, office buildings and homes of the 1920s and 1930s in ruins.

In the quarter of San Telmo, many homeless people have moved into vacant Art Deco structures. "It's a complex social problem," Rivas said. "The owners don't want to conserve the buildings, and you must think of what to do with (the homeless)."

The problem is not unlike the one faced by the Miami Design Preservation League, founded by the "Deco Queen," Barbara Baer Capitman, who died in March after leading the four-year struggle that put the Art Deco buildings on the National Register.

Grieving mother has many questions for God

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am troubled with something a reader wrote: "What right do we mortals have to demand an explanation from God?" Abby, that writer has never known the gut-wrenching pain of losing a child.

In 1968, my beautiful 22-year-old daughter was killed by a drunk driver. At first, I screamed, "He not only killed her, he killed me too — only I can't die!"

I then got on my knees and begged God: "You can do anything. You can perform miracles. You can bring my daughter back to life. Please, God, let me trade places with her — please let me lie in that coffin, and let her out to live her life. She is only 22, God. She has never been married or experienced the miracle of being a mother. I am old. I have lived. I've had my chance at life, but she hasn't. Please, please, let me trade places with her. You can do it. You can make it so that all the people who thought she died won't be surprised that it's me in the coffin and not her. Please, God, let her have a chance to live. She didn't deserve to die!"

As you can see, Abby, I'm still here — and not because I want to be, either. Mostly because I didn't have the guts to pull the trigger or take the pills to get me out of the terrible pain and loss I live with every minute of my life. God didn't see fit to bargain with me. God doesn't plea-bargain like men do. The drunk who killed my precious daughter (and me, too) spent less than six months behind bars. Today, he walks in the sun while my little girl is in a dark grave — with no sun. And though I also walk in the sun, my heart and soul are in that dark grave with her. God didn't answer my prayers, and I resent being told that I have no right to question God. If there is a God, and if I ever get to meet him face to face, you can bet your life I will have plenty of whys for him to answer. I want to know why my little girl died and that drunk was allowed to go on living. I love her more than my life, and I miss her so. I am mad that I am having to live in a world where she no longer lives, and I want to know why. Why shouldn't I have the right to ask God?

Aren't we supposedly created in his image? If so, surely he has a heart and soul that are capable of hurting just as I hurt. Why would he not expect to be questioned if he has anything to do with miracles?

I don't fear the Lord. And I don't fear hell, either. I know what hell is like. I've already been there since the day my precious daughter was killed. Please sign me... A BEREAVED MOTHER

P.S. Compassionate Friends has helped me more than anyone or anything.

DEAR MOTHER: Believe me, my heart goes out to you and to every mother who has known the pain of losing a child. Millions of people will read this letter, and millions of mothers (and fathers, too) will relate to it, having experienced the loss and felt the pain you describe.

There are no easy answers, and since you know firsthand how comforting Compassionate Friends can be, your only other ally is time, which has a way of healing broken hearts.

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61064. If your youngster's Christmas presents included a new bike, we'd like to recommend a vital "accessory": a well-built helmet.

According to the American Academy of Pediatrics, children who wear helmets are 85 percent less likely to suffer head or brain injury in an accident. That sounds like good insurance odds.

Make sure the helmet you buy carries an approval sticker from either the American Standards Institute or the Snell Memorial Foundation. Cost starts at $35 to $50. White or bright colors offer extra protection because they're more visible to drivers.

Pre-schoolers may do better with an easier-to-wear soft-shell helmet, but the hard-shell model, which provides better puncture resistance, is best for older children.

The helmet should fit comfortably and have a snug chin strap. Some models have built-in adjusting pads for better fit. Be certain the helmet you choose does not interfere with vision or hearing.

Officials plan to fight claim of harassment

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — City officials will appeal a Jan. 3 Texas Employment Commission ruling that the former city manager can collect unemployment benefits because she was forced to resign, Mayor Jim Baum said.

Baum and all four City Council members expressed surprise last week that Brenda Hammond, who resigned Nov. 13, had filed a TEC claim saying she was "forced to resign due to harassment." No details were given in a TEC claim notice mailed to the city last month and Hammond, contacted Saturday, did not want to comment.

One councilmember who said he doesn't "have any regrets" over her resignation, Rex Thacker, said he did not know of any harassment and that she was not forced to resign. "It was really surprising," he said of the resignation.

"We're going to ask our attorney to appeal it. We don't know what will happen," said Baum, who rated Hammond's job performance as "very good to excellent in almost all categories."

On the harassment claim, he said, "I don't know what she's referring to."

Hammond told the Big Spring Herald shortly after her resignation that she quit because of a "lack of cooperation and the lack of support of city staff by some councilmen." She did not name anybody or any specific problems, but said, "Personal vendettas have no place on the City Council."

However, a copy of her resignation letter, obtained Friday through the Freedom of Information Act, said she was also harassed.

"My reasons for leaving are: a lack of cooperation and support, personal vendettas, harassment of myself and city staff, and violation of City Charter by SOME Council members," the letter states.

The Jan. 3 TEC ruling, without

Hammond said in November that any reason, stated, "It has been determined that you did not leave your last work voluntarily without good cause connected with the work. Therefore, you are not disqualified for benefits." Hammond is eligible for $5,824 over six months with a possibility for an extension.

Hammond, who is now running in the District 6 City Council race in the specially-called Jan. 19 election, did not want to comment further on her resignation or the TEC claim she made. "I can't at this time," she said.

Hammond, 46, turned in her resignation at the same meeting councilmembers were handed, for the first time in the eight years Hammond had been city manager, evaluation forms to evaluate her job performance. It was also a week after the second of two councilmembers resigned within five weeks of each other, prompting the special election.

Hammond said in November that the resignations of the two councilmembers, both of whom sat on the three-member city personnel committee, was a factor in her resignation. Eric White quit to take a job with an oil company in Quitman and Dee Hearn needed more time to take care of a grandchild after her son was deployed with U.S. armed forces to Saudia Arabia.

"They were good strong, solid councilmen who believed in abiding by the laws of the city charter," she had said.

Of three other councilmembers, Hammond got mixed reviews on her job performance.

Mayor Pro-Tem Bob Reiley rated her "overall good."

Asked about the alleged harassment, he said, "I know there were always people on the Council asking her for figures about this or that, but I don't think that's harassment in itself."

On her resignation, he said, "That was news to me."

Councilmember Gary Redwine, who said he is not sure how he would have rated Hammond, said, "There's certain questions that need to be answered. It wasn't harassment."

"All we tried to do was make her play ball like she should have been playing ball," he said. "We never called for her resignation. We were all taken by surprise by it."

Councilmember Brian Bassham said there were some areas "that could stand some improvement," but said, "She was capable of doing good work. There's no doubt about it."

"The fact that she resigned caught me by surprise but I'm looking forward to finding a city manager who has somewhat of a different approach," he said.

"We've got a lot of good applicants (for city manager)," Thacker said. "It's just time to move on and make things better."

point he's going to begin to negotiate."

The president late Monday signed the congressional resolution, passed over the weekend, authorizing him to use military force to drive Saddam from Kuwait.

"This resolution provides unmistakable support for the international community's determination that Iraq's ongoing aggression against, and occupation of, Kuwait shall not stand," the president said in a brief statement.

"We do not seek war, but if conflict is thrust upon us we are ready to meet it," he said.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told congressional leaders there are 410,000 U.S. soldiers in the gulf region now, up 40,000 from last week. Pentagon sources said U.S. troops were pouring into Saudi Arabia at the rate of 5,000 a day and that the goal was to have 450,000 in place soon.

The U.N. grace period for Saddam to withdraw his forces from Kuwait expires at midnight EST. After that, Iraq will be living "on borrowed time," Fitzwater said Monday.

"Everyone has to assume that military action could occur at any point" after midnight, he said.

The president "has consulted closely with the coalition members and, if the time comes, he is ready," Fitzwater said.

Congressional leaders who met with Bush late Monday said the president was grim and seemed determined to go ahead with force if necessary. They said Congress, despite earlier differences, would stand squarely behind him if war does break out.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., called on Bush to "take every opportunity in the coming hours and days to follow any reasonable course to avoid conflict."

But "if conflict comes, of course the Congress and the country will stand with our armed forces in the hope that the war . . . can be short and decisive with as little casualties as possible," Foley said.

"The spirit is we're all together now," said Senate GOP leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

Iraq gave no signs of pulling back United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who met in Baghdad with Saddam, said, "I don't see any reason to have real hope."

The administration showed little enthusiasm for a last-ditch plan by France calling for Iraqi troop withdrawal from Kuwait, the use of a U.N. peacekeeping force and an international peace conference on the Middle East.

White House spokesman Roman Popadiuk said the administration has seen press reports of the French proposal. "We have always maintained (that there be) no linkage of issues," he said.

Beyond the new French proposal, Yemen offered a plan aimed at resolving the crisis, and Algeria also was reported to be readying a peace mission.

"We encourage peace initiatives at any point," Fitzwater said. "We won't turn off anybody."

Thousands of antiwar protesters marched in front of the White House on Monday night. Police lined the tall, wrought iron fence and other officers were stationed on the lawn.

But a new ABC News-Washington Post poll said 76 percent of Americans approve the House and Senate votes authorizing war against Iraq and 58 percent favor an attack within a month after tonight's deadline. The telephone poll of 781 Americans, taken Sunday night, has a margin of error of four percentage points.

A New York Times-CBS News poll, meantime, found that 58 percent of respondents approved of Bush's handling of the crisis, while 33 percent were critical. The survey of 1,512 people was taken from Friday through Sunday, and carried a margin of error of three percentage points.

Livestock

All entries are subject to sale at some time during the show circuit. This enforces the point that these animals are livestock and not pets, according to Wood. After all, sooner or later, most entries become entrees. Wood, a veteran of about 36 shows, said, "My first year I was kind of upset when I had to sell, but it doesn't bother me any more."

Justin is the president of the Coahoma 4-H Club. This year he has three entries of different breeds entered in the steer contest. These include a Charolais, a shorthorn and a Chianina. Justin has made several strong showings at the larger state shows, including some first-place finishes.

When the animals are sold, the money is used to purchase next year's animals, feed, and other supplies, Wood explained. As in farming and ranching, market price is important. "In Fort Worth the prices are a little higher, you can get up to $3 a pound for a winning steer. A breed champion can bring as much as $25,000 or $30,000."

A barbecue, sponsored by the Howard County Junior Livestock Association, is planned for noon Saturday. The barbecue, which is open to the public, will continue until the auction begins at 1:30. Cost will be $5 a plate for the general public, and free for buyers.

For further information contact Ronny Wood, President of the Howard County Junior Livestock Association at (915)263-3382.

threats against Israel."

Israeli sources have acknowledged that Israel was responsible for the 1988 assassination outside Tunis of PLO deputy commander Khalil Wazir. Government officials never confirmed Israel was behind his killing.

In the Israeli-occupied territories today, Palestinians poured into the streets to protest the killings, hurling stones at soldiers and raising black flags of mourning. Arab reports said army gunfire killed two protesters and wounded at least 60.

"Who else is behind the killing . . . but the Israelis?" said al-Omari's brother, Ahmed, from his home in Gaza City. "Israel chose the time as the rest of the world is busy with the gulf crisis."

Mosques blared verses of the Koran in refugee camps in Sidon, Lebanon, and schools, restaurants and shops closed in mourning.

Arafat ordered thousands of guerrillas in Lebanon to go on alert to "face all military possibilities in the region."

Lady Hawks subdue Frank Phillips

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

The Howard College Lady Hawks overcame a cold-shooting first half and went on to down the feisty Frank Phillips Lady Plainsmen 80-67 Thursday night.

Howard College Lady Hawks freshman forward Desiree Wallace (40) hustles to grab a loose ball as referee Herman Evans watches the action Thursday night at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum as Howard defeated Frank Phillips.

With the victory, Howard protected its No. 4 national ranking and improved its Western Junior College Athletic Conference mark to 5-0 and its overall record to 18-0.

Frank Phillips, playing its first game since the Christmas break, fell to 0-2 in league play and 8-3 overall.

Niether team had much luck shooting in the first half as Howard led 30-27 after the first 20 minutes of play.

While they struggled from the floor, both teams shot well from the foul line.

Both teams did shoot the ball better in the second half, but the main difference in the contest was the improved play of Howard's inside people — and Kim Robinson.

Howard's inside personnel struggled miserably in the opening half, combining for only six points and eight rebounds.

Mike Tami and Desiree Wallace caught fire. They combined for 28 points and 13 boards.

"The first 20 minutes of the last two games we looked like we belonged at Denny's beside some sausage and eggs," said Howard coach Royce Chadwick. "We were lethargic, we were not moving offensively or defensively. In the first half we were trying to finesse them inside. We got cute and tried to shoot some turnaround jumpers and they blocked about four of them."

"In the second half we wanted to play power basketball, go hard to the glass, and we did. We stayed close enough until we started playing good basketball. This was their (Frank Phillips) first game back and their timing and shooting touch was not there. It will be hard to beat them at home."

Howard's guards carried the scoring load in the first half. Robinson, Cindy Williams and Julie Lempea scored all but six of the points. Williams, who made only one of her first seven shots, finished the game with 10 points. Lempea finished the night with 10 points.

game," HC coach Steve Green said after the game. "Harvey really pulled us out of the fire. He was scoring on one end and getting the rebound on the other."

Although pleased with his team's uncharacteristic win, Green added that he hopes the Hawks get back to doing what they do best — scoring inside.

"It's comforting to know that we can win a game in a different way," he said, "but it's also scary to know we can't keep winning that way... The way we played is not the way we're best suited for, and it won't take us very far."

On the other side of the coliseum, FPC coach Kelly Green, who has now lost to his older brother for the third straight time, said the Hawks' late run made the difference.

"A championship team is going to have to fight off those spurts," Kelly said. "They made one run at us, and we fought that off. Then they made another, and we fought that off, but we couldn't fight off the last one."

The first Howard run came in the game's opening minutes. McDowell, Pittman and Abrams keyed a Howard run that gave the hosts a 15-2 lead with only three minutes elapsed.

After a FPC timeout, however, the Plainsmen slowly rallied, nibbling at the Hawks' lead until Tony White hit a short jumper to tie the game at 45-45 with 4:24 left in the half.

Montana wins award again

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Montana says his San Francisco 49er teammates are largely responsible for his designation for the second straight year as The Associated Press Male Athlete of the Year.

JOE MONTANA

"It's a personal award, but it is also a team award," Montana said after learning of his selection Monday. "My teammates deserve a lot of credit, because without them I would not have been able to accomplish all that I have."

Montana became the fifth athlete to win the award twice and the fourth to win it consecutively, edging out Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan. Last week, Montana was named the NFL's Most Valuable Player for the second straight season by the AP.

Montana, 34, who passed for 274 yards and two touchdowns in San Francisco's 28-10 playoff victory over Washington on Saturday, received 33 of a possible 138 first-place votes and 259 points in the AP voting.

"It's a great honor... I'm surprised... shocked," Montana said in a statement issued by the 49ers. "There's a lot of great athletes out there and it's an honor to be thought of in that manner."

AP-member sports writers and broadcasters were asked to vote for three athletes, with a first-place vote worth five points, second-

Raiders, 77 points; cyclist Greg LeMond, 77; Cecil Fielder of the Detroit Tigers, 69; golfer Nick Faldo, 48, and Warren Moon of the Houston Oilers, 35.

Former 49er teammate Randy Cross spoke of the quarterback's intangibles. "He's special," Cross said. "He has an aura about him."

"It's an air. O.J. had it. Namath, Staubach, Graham, Luckman, guys like that."

"With Joe, you almost felt if every game were a Super Bowl, you'd be undefeated. It's almost not fair. He's never played a huge game that he hasn't won."

Montana, who already has led the 49ers to four Super Bowl titles, is the first man since sprinter Carl Lewis to win consecutively. Lewis won the award in 1983 and '84. Other two-time winners are pitcher Sandy Koufax (1963-65), golfer Byron Nelson (1944-45) and tennis player Don Budge (1937-38).

Montana is the 12th football player to win the award, although none other than Montana has won it since O.J. Simpson in 1973. The award, initiated in 1931, has gone to baseball players 22 times.

Montana started his career with the 49ers in 1979. Since then, he has been the Super Bowl MVP three times, last year setting game

Leading linkster named Female Athlete of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Beth Daniel, who has curbed her temper and tempered her golf game, today was named The Associated Press' 1990 Female Athlete of the Year.

BETH DANIEL

Daniel, 34, the LPGA's leading money last year with $863,578 and winner of the Vare Trophy for the second consecutive year with a low stroke average of 70.54, is the ninth golfer to win the honor since it was initiated in 1931.

She received 28 first-place votes and a total of 198 points in balloting by a national panel of AP-member sports writers and broadcasters. Voters were asked to cast ballots for the top three athletes, and points were awarded on a 5-3-1 basis.

Tennis player Jennifer Capriati, the teen-age sensation who made her professional debut last year, was second in the balloting with 21 first-place votes and 184 points. She was followed by tennis players Steffi Graf, the 1989 Female Athlete of the Year who received 17 first-place votes and 142 points, and Monica Seles, with seven firsts and 110 points. Golfer Betsy King was fifth with 10 firsts and 97 points.

Daniel, who nearly quit the tour in 1989 because she was frustrated at not winning, won seven tournaments in 1990, including her first major, the LPGA Championship. "Last year (1989) was a phenomenal year (four wins and $504,851 after a slow start), but this year (1990) surpassed even my own dreams," Daniel said recently after being named

Giants may be without kicker

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New York Giants may go to San Francisco for the NFC title game this weekend without leading scorer Matt Bahr, who sustained a neck injury in the third quarter of the Giants' 31-3 victory over the Chicago Bears on Sunday.

Bahr, who scored the only points for the Giants in their 7-3 loss at San Francisco on Dec. 3, was to undergo a CAT-scan to determine whether a line in his X-ray was a new fracture or an old one.

Frank Phillips was paced by guard Yelle Pierau and forward Paulette King. Pierau, who made four three-pointers in the game, led all scorers with 25 points. King scored 14 of her 18 points in the second half. Muriel Mitchell scored 12 to round out the Lady Plainsmen in double figures.

Frank Phillips led briefly in the second half. Pierau made a foul shot, giving the visitors a 37-36 lead with 14:40 left in the game. Then Howard made a run, fueled by four consecutive Frank Phillips turnovers, and timely shooting by LeAnn Heinrich and Cindy Williams. Howard led 46-40 at the 10:35 mark. Heinrich played a strong role in the second half. The freshman forward came off the bench to score 10 points.

Frank Phillips quickly came back on a basket by King and a turnover by Pierau. Then Howard's inside game really took control. Robinson fed the ball inside three straight times, resulting in baskets by Tosi, Wallace and Wells, giving HC a 54-47 lead at the 7:10 mark. A few minutes later Tosi converted a three-point play and Wells sunk a foul shot, giving Howard a decisive 62-51 lead with five minutes left. The rest of the game the two teams traded baskets and the Lady Hawks had their 18th consecutive win.

Howard gets a break from conference action and goes west to California for three games. Wednesday the Lady Hawks play College of Desert, Thursday they play San Jacinto College and Friday they play Chaffey College.

Seles wins quick match in 37 minutes

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Monica Seles breezed into the second round of the Australian Open today, making quick work of a bewildered German who couldn't get a break.

Seles, the women's second seed, took just 37 minutes to eliminate Sabine Hack 6-0, 6-0. The 17-year-old with the two-syllable grunts and the two-fisted groundstrokes allowed just 14 points in the match, including three in the only game Hack came close to winning.

"I lost once in my life at 6-0, 6-0, but in a way it makes you work harder," Seles said. "It's tough to lose love-and-love but I just can't give a player a game — I just really have to go for it."

It was the 16th time a women's singles match at the Australian Open has ended 6-0, 6-0. The last time was last year's first round, when Dinky Van Rensburg beat Petra Ritter without losing a game.

With the tail of his foreign legion cap flapping in the wind, Ivan Lendl blew through the first round, too. If his stomach hurt, the center court crowd didn't know it.

The defending men's champion used the usual strategy of groundstrokes and attacking tennis to beat Tarik Benhabiles, ranked 109th in the world, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3 in less than two hours. Benhabiles, from France, managed just three points off Lendl's serve in the second set and was plagued by backhand errors.

Top-ranked Stefan Edberg also won in straight sets, surviving a second-set assault by qualifier Dimitri Poliakov 6-1, 7-6, 6-2.

Jimmy Arias of the United States overcame leg cramps and a 2-0 deficit in the final set to post one of the day's upsets, beating ninth-seeded Andrei Chesnokov, last year's Italian Open champion, 6-0, 6-3, 4-6, 2-6, 6-4.

In a rematch of the near-brawl at last month's Grand Slam Cup, seventh-seeded Brad Gilbert, the top-ranked U.S. player in the men's draw, beat David Wheaton 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 7-6 (7-5). Gilbert served 21 aces to Wheaton's 16.

Australian Open

Although both players questioned calls, there was no repeat of the confrontation at the $6 million tournament in Munich, Germany, where Gilbert and Wheaton nearly came to blows during an argument over a call. Each player was fined $5,000 for the run-in.

At the end of this match, which took 3½ hours, they shook hands at the net before Gilbert pumped his fists in victory to the crowd.

Jim Courier of the United States, seeded 16th, beat Jan Gunnarson of Sweden 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, and Goran Ivanisevic of Yugoslavia, the fifth seed, beat Sergi Bruguera of Spain 6-4, 0-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Mary Joe Fernandez of the United States, the women's third seed and runner-up to Steffi Graf here a year ago, opened with a 6-1, 6-0 victory over Sara Gomer of Britain.

Arantxa Sanchez Vicario of Spain, seeded sixth, also had a quick and easy first-round victory, 6-0, 6-2 over Natalia Medvedeva of the Soviet Union.

Seles, playing here for the first time and seeking her second Grand Slam tournament title, had complained of mental and physical exhaustion last week when she decided to skip a warmup tournament and watch the World Swimming Championships in Perth, Australia, instead.

The record-shattering performances in the pool must have refreshed her. Seles hold serve at love in the first game and was never in trouble, not even when Hack — also playing Australia for the first time — went to 40-15 in the second game of the second set.

She double-faulted, made two errors on groundstrokes to give Seles break point, then double-faulted again. The victim of some questionable line calls through the early going, Hack won just two points from there on and a total of six in the set. She looked lost on the court and slunk to her chair at one changeover after one of many groundstrokes sailed long.

As one-sided as the result was, Seles said she could have played better.

The second day of the year's first Grand Slam tournament started under heavy clouds that cleared by early afternoon. But it stayed windy and chilly, more changes to add to the fickle weather of opening-day Monday, which went from 110-degrees on court to rain at night that forced officials to close the center court roof.

Lendl created his own whirlwind and with typical efficiency cooled any hopes Benhabiles had of an upset.

The baseball cap with the desert-fighter tail that Lendl likes to shade him from the Australian sun was in place, and so were the titleholders' pounding forehead and backhand winners.

He kept Benhabiles pinned to the baseline through the first two sets, and there was no sign of the stomach-muscle problems that forced him out of a tuneup tournament in Sydney.

Lendl never was extended by the 25-year-old from Paris, although he finally lost his serve in the eighth game of the third set. Lendl promptly broke back for the match.

It was a strong if not overpowering performance, and Lendl said that was just the way he liked to start a two-week tournament of best-of-5-set matches.

The crowd for the Lendl match was relatively subdued. Even his wife, Samantha, spent much of her time in a courtside seat chatting with friends, signing autographs and showing off pictures of their 9-month-old daughter, Marina. The crowd does not come alive for the dour suburban father from Greenwich, Conn., as it does for Edberg.

Hoosiers nab 13th straight

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

For 11 minutes, Eric Anderson, Calbert Cheaney and the chances of the Indiana Hoosiers were on the brink of disqualification.

The leading scorers on the nation's third-ranked team had both picked up their fourth foul in the opening minutes of the second half. They were then seated just a few chairs from coach Bob Knight as Purdue began a furious rally which turned a 14-point deficit into a four-point lead.

Re-enter Messrs. Anderson and Cheaney.

"As long as we stayed even or were ahead, we wouldn't have put them back in," Knight said. "We had a chance to lose it. That's why we put them back in."

Indiana (15-1) went on to a 65-62 victory, the Hoosiers' 13th in row and one that kept them perfect after three Big Ten games.

Anderson finished with 15 points, one more than Cheaney. White topped the Boilermakers with 17 points.

"I swear I don't know where the fouls were at," Anderson said. "Every time someone made contact, there was a foul. It got us in big trouble."

No. 12 Duke 89, Wake Forest 67.

Thomas Hill had a career-high 22 points and Christian Laettner added 21 as the Blue Devils (13-3, 3-1) led by 15 at the half and cruised to the Atlantic Coast Conference home victory. The loss was the 11th in 12 meetings with Duke at Wake Forest (7-5, 2-2), which came up with its only win in 1989 when Duke was ranked No. 1. Chris King led the Demon Deacons with 13 points.

Villanova 65, No. 19 Georgetown 56.

Villanova (9-6, 2-3) ended a five-game losing streak to the Hoyas by making 10 consecutive free throws over the final 2:04 at The Spectrum. The streak started just before 7-foot-2 center Dikembe Mutombo of Georgetown (10-4, 2-2) fouled out after having scored 19 points with nine rebounds and six blocked shots. Marc Dowdell broke the fifth and final tie of the last 12 minutes, 53-53, with two free throws with 2:04 left and Mutombo fouled out 13 seconds later. Lance Miller led Villanova, which last beat its Big East rival on Feb. 1, 1988, with 18 points.

Reggie Jordan, who entered the game shooting 49 percent from the free throw line, made five of six foul shots in the final minutes as the Aggies (12-1, 4-0) won on the road in the Big West. Jordan scored a career-high 29 points as New Mexico State rallied from a 12-point deficit early in the second half. Tod Bernard led Fresno State (7-8, 2-4) with 21 points.

Other Games

Kevin Bradshaw, the nation's leading scorer at 33.9 per game, had 59 points, but U.S. International fell to 1-18 with a 106-94 loss to Florida International. The 26-year-old Navy veteran was 19-for-40 from the field and grabbed 11 rebounds as the Gulls lost their 14th straight.

Illinois State, which was in the NCAA tournament last season, won its first game of the season after 12 losses, beating Indiana State 56-55 on Todd Kagel's 3-pointer with 3 seconds to play.

Morgan State remained one of three winless Division I teams — along with Marist and Chicago State — when the Bears (0-14) fell to Delaware State 87-79. Paul Newman led the Hornets with 46 points.

Louisville rallied from a seven-point halftime deficit to end a six-game losing streak and win its first Metro Conference game in five outings.

Microwave heats up; Pistons sink Mavericks

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's back to basics for Vinnie Johnson, just in time to keep the Detroit Pistons in hot pursuit of first place in the NBA's Central Division.

Johnson, shooting 38 percent from the field, decided to revert to the behind-the-ear shooting style that helped give him the nickname Microwave for his ability to get hot in a hurry.

"For some strange reason I went away from what got me here," Johnson said. "Recently, I decided to go with what's successful. My shot may be ugly, but it's sweet when it goes in. Tonight, it felt like old times."

The decision paid off Monday night when Johnson converted five of seven field-goal attempts in the fourth quarter, helping the Pistons win their 10th consecutive game, 89-81 over the Dallas Mavericks.

Johnson, held below double figures in 11 of his previous 14 games, scored 19 against the Mavericks.

Joe Dumars added 17 points for the Pistons, who won for the 12th time in their last 14 games to stay a half-game behind first-place Chicago. Rolando Blackman added 19 points for Dallas, which lost its third consecutive game and 21st in its last 29 starts.

Los Angeles, 1-6 on a just-completed road trip, won for only the fourth time in 20 games as Ken Norman scored five of his 31 points in overtime and reserve guard Winston Garland sank six free throws in the final 31 seconds.

The Rockets lost their third straight game despite 34 points by Vernon Maxwell, who matched his career-high set last March 3 at Denver but was held scoreless in overtime.

Bulls 110, Bucks 97

Chicago kept its narrow hold on first place in the Central Division, beating Milwaukee for its sixth consecutive victory and 14th in 16 games.

Scottie Pippen scored 20 of his 23 points in the second half, while Michael Jordan finished with 34 — his 10th straight game with 80 or more for the Bulls, 17-3 with 12 consecutive victories at Chicago Stadium.

The defeat, the fourth straight by the Bucks, dropped them 1½ games behind the Bulls.

Pippen, 9-for-13 from the field in the second half after going 0-for-4 in the first half, scored 11 points in the third quarter, helping the Bulls take the lead for good.

Chicago ended the quarter with an 11-4 run for an 80-72 advantage, then pulled away in the fourth period.

Ricky Pierce led the Bucks with 26 points, 17 of them in the first half, while Dan Schayes added a season-high 20.

Daniel

LPGA Player of the Year.

"They say athletes are cocky, but I think it is more a case of believing in ourselves and what we can do. But this year — I even surprised myself."

Daniel lost faith in herself in 1989 after going four years and four months without a title. Her confidence was shattered and she got the "yips" — meaning she often choked on the greens.

"I felt like I was going to have to quit," the fiery Daniel said. "I just didn't believe in myself anymore. It was the lowest point I've ever been at."

At that point, Daniel got help from short-game coach Dave Pelz of Austin, Texas; the late Davis Love II, a golf teacher and the father of PGA touring pro Davis Love III, and her older brother Tony, a sometime caddie.

The assistance paid off. In August '89, she won the Greater Washington Open. That victory restored her confidence, and she won three more titles that year and set a stroke average of 70.38.

The momentum carried into 1990, as Daniel dominated the tour.

Her seven victories last year were more than any woman pro since Nancy Lopez won nine in 1978 and eight in 1979.

"In the last couple of years, Beth has done what people expected of her earlier," said Judy Rankin, ABC golf analyst and winner of 26 titles from 1962-86.

The early expectations were fueled when Daniel won the Patty Berg Classic in 1979, her first year on the tour, and was named Rookie of the Year. The following year, she won four titles and $231,000, and was named Player of the Year.

But she didn't enjoy playing. She threw clubs, screamed at her caddies and glared at reporters when she thought they asked dumb questions. That kind of behavior didn't go over well with the other touring pros.

"We all wondered, 'Who is this girl coming out here being such a brat?'" fellow pro Vicki Ferguson, now one of Daniel's best friends, was quoted as saying.

"I had the attitude that 'I'm Beth Daniel and I belong out here, and I'm going to prove it,'" Daniel said.

This season, he led the 49ers to a 14-2 regular-season record and was the league's seventh-leading passer with an 89.0 rating, one year after setting an NFL record with a 112.4 rating. He led the NFC with a completion rate of 61.7 percent,

Last August, Montana signed a four-year contract extension through the 1994 season, when he will have played 16 seasons in the NFL.

"I've played for so long it's actually part of my life," Montana once said. "... Eventually, it's going to be over, and when it is over, there is no coming back to it."

Gary Shandling also won as best comedy series actor, and co-star Jessica Harper won as best comedy series actress. The Awards for Cable Excellence are given by the National Academy of Cable Programming.

Video uses psychedelics

NEW YORK (AP) — The video for Dee-Lite's hit "Groove in the Heart" explodes with psychedelic patterns not seen since the flower power of 20 years ago. The three-member group's singer, Lady Miss Kier, wears the flip hairdo of a vintage Barbie doll, a slinky cat-suit, false eyelashes and platform shoes. But the group, which also includes two somber-faced dancing disc jockeys known as Towa Towa and Dmitry, denies its inspiration comes from the past. "We would classify our style as individuality while retaining social awareness," Lady Miss Kier said in Spin magazine's January issue. "But other people see a '70s fashion revival. People jump to a lot of conclusions based on the way we look, but the music speaks for itself."

Band plans fund raiser

The Stanton High School Band will be sponsoring a Mexican dish supper Saturday Jan. 18, at the SHS cafeteria from 5:30 to 7 p.m. The meal will consist of a variety of main dishes, pinto beans, tossed salad, desserts and tea or coffee.

Tickets can be purchased in advance from band members or Kirke McKenzie at the SHS band hall. Adult tickets are $3.50 in advance, $4 at the door and a child's plate are $2.50 and $3.50 at the door.

The proceeds are needed to give the band extra spending money for necessary expenses incurred during the fall show and to also to help pay for any extras the band needs to purchase. The meal will be served during and after the Eldorado ballgames, according to McKenzie.

Gramm named to spending committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Sen. Phil Gramm has been named ranking Republican of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on military construction.

Gramm said he moved up two slots in seniority after a reorganization Monday of the Appropriations Committee. The reorganization also makes him the highest-ranking Republican member of the military construction subcommittee.

"With the immense (military) build-down slated for this spring and summer in defense spending, and with all of the facilities in Texas threatened by that process, this is an important position that will enhance my ability to work to preserve Texas's leadership role in providing for the national defense," Gramm said.

Gas plumes spotted extending in galaxy

AUSTIN (AP) — Two massive hydrogen gas plumes have been discovered extending from a disturbed galaxy, a University of Texas at Austin astronomer said.

Beverly J. Smith announced the discovery Monday at a meeting of the American Astronomical Society in Philadelphia.

Ms. Smith said the tails comprise about 70 percent of the hydrogen by mass that is associated with the galaxy, known as NGC 2782 in the constellation Lynx. Thus, most of the galaxy's mass lies outside its main body, a situation Ms. Smith said is unusual.

"The double-plumed structure and the difference in length of the plumes suggest that NGC 2782 is the result of a merger of two galaxies of unequal mass," Ms. Smith said. The main body of the enigmatic galaxy also is peculiar, Smith said. Within its disk are at least three bright "ripples."

Security tight in capitol as deadline approaches

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reflective President Bush walked the White House grounds at dawn today and then huddled with his intelligence and national security advisers as Washington braced for a Persian Gulf war.

With the midnight deadline for Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait just hours away, security was tight at the White House and Pentagon, and elsewhere in the nation's capital. Anti-war activists planned a day of demonstrations.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Bush had made "no decisions yet" on launching an assault against Saddam Hussein's forces.

Bush had nothing on his public schedule to indicate that the country was on the brink of war.

He walked the White House grounds alone, "just to reflect on the day," Fitzwater said.

Official Washington sought to maintain an appearance of business as usual. But as one State Department official noted at daybreak, "We're all conscious of what day it is."

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, offered what he called "diminishing hope" that Saddam Hussein would comply with a United Nations demand that he pull out of Kuwait.

"Maybe something will happen," he said on NBC's "Today."

Aspin said experts believe that if Saddam yields to international pressure "it will only be at the last minute."

Sheik Saud Nasir al-Sabah, the Kuwaiti ambassador to the United States, said, "I don't really believe we have any hopes at this stage to see any kind of peaceful solution to this problem at this last moment."

He was interviewed on the ABC show "Good Morning America." Appearing with Aspin was Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., who said, "It may be that Saddam Hussein will not be convinced until a

Bodyguard arrested in death of PLO aides

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Police arrested several Palestinians today after a renegade bodyguard linked to terrorist Abu Nidal assassinated two top aides to PLO leader Yasser Arafat.

A senior Palestinian commander said the gunman was a former member of Abu Nidal's terrorist PLO faction, sworn enemies of Arafat.

But "we still don't know who he's working for," said the commander, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "He may also be working for the Israelis."

Israel emphatically denied involvement.

The gunman used an AK-47 assault rifle to kill Salah Khalaf, Arafat's second in command, and Hayel Abdel-Hamid, the Palestine Liberation Organization's security chief, at Abdel-Hamid's house outside Tunis late Monday, police said.

He also killed Abu Mohammed al-Omari, Khalaf's chief bodyguard, and held Abdel-Hamid's wife and teen-age daughter hostage for six hours, the PLO commander said.

Khalaf's death left Arafat as the sole survivor among the three founders of Fatah, the first PLO group and its largest faction. Khalaf was behind the massacre of 11 Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

The assailant, Hamza Abu Zid, demanded a plane to fly to an unspecified destination before PLO guerrillas and Tunisian police stormed the house and detained him, the PLO commanders said. Abdel-Hamid's wife and daughter were freed unharmed.

A PLO communique described the gunman as "a planted agent, who undertook dealings with traitorous parties," an apparent reference to Abu Nidal. It called the slayings "cowardly."

Many Palestinians, however, blamed Israel for the killings.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens denied his country was

New coach hired by school board

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Stanton Independent School District Trustees met last night at the Administration Building and approved the hiring of a new athletic director, among other agenda items discussed.

The board approved the hiring of former Breckenridge head football coach Bill Grissom. Grissom accepted the position as Athletic Director and head football coach last night. Grissom and his wife, Sharon, expressed the desire to come down and live in the type of environment Stanton offered. "We are small town people and when I heard about Stanton looking for a head coach, I wanted to come and have a chance to work for a school district like this."

Coach Grissom had a 5-4-2 record this year. His team lost to Denver City on penetrations following a 24-24 tie in the bi-district game. He brings with him an excellent record in his 25 years of coaching.

Grissom began his coaching career at Breckenridge junior high. He then moved to Winters High School as an assistant football, JV basketball and head track coach. From there, Coach Grissom moved around the Panhandle to Floydada High School as an assistant. He got his first head coaching job at Hamlin. He spent eight years there and compiled a 62-27-1 record. While at Hamlin, Grissom won five district championships, four bi-district titles, one area playoff win and a regional championship.

As head coach for the Buckaroos since 1984, Grissom led his team to two district crowns, two runner-up spots and three playoff appearances. As AD for both Hamlin and Breckenridge, Grissom has won numerous district, regional and state titles in boys and girls basketball, boys and girls track, golf and volleyball. He also served as Region II director to Texas High School Coaches Association from 1987-90.

The board members were given a report by Martin County Chief Appraiser Delbert Dickenson concerning the status on collections, with a comparison with last year.

Stanton ISD Director of Curriculum, Morris Williamson discussed with the board the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test results. According to Williamson, the tests scores showed some weakness in the elementary grade levels, but improved from seventh grade and up. "The younger kids wanted to finish the tests by racing through it. That is our consensus, while our secondary level seemed to have gone through the testing fairly well."

AUSTIN — Texas Gov. elect Ann Richards greets members of the University of Texas Longhorn Band, as she moves backstage prior to Monday's pre-inaugural gala. Top entertainers performed at the "Texas Our Texas" gala.

Richards sworn in at noon

AUSTIN (AP) — Democrat Ann Richards became Texas' new governor today, the first woman to hold the post in more than half a century.

She said it was one for the history books.

"Today, the historians will record that a new administration, different from any in the past, began," she told thousands of cheering supporters. "Today, we have a vision of a Texas where opportunity knows no race or color or gender — a glimpse of the possibilities that can be when the barriers fall and the doors of government swing open."

Richards, 57, succeeded retiring Republican Bill Clements, whose eight years in office were the most ever by a Texas governor. She is the first woman to take the oath as governor since Miriam "Ma" Ferguson did so on Jan. 17, 1933.

As he left the Capitol, Clements said, "Well, it's goodbye and thank you very much."

Also sworn in was Democrat Bob Bullock, 61, who became lieutenant governor, succeeding 18-year veteran Bill Hobby. "We must set state government on a new financial course," Bullock said.

The noon ceremony followed an early morning prayer service for U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf and a "people's march" where Richards led thousands of triumphant supporters in a 12-block walk to the Capitol.

During the prayer service at Camp Mabry, headquarters of the Texas National Guard, officials and clergymen noted that today was the deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait or face possible attack.

"While our prayers are always for world peace, this service — as well as the services throughout the United States and the world — take on special significance at this crucial time," said Maj. Gen.

William Wilson, Texas adjutant general.

"Thank you God for our soldiers, the families making great sacrifices. Thank you for our soldiers who are putting their lives on the line," added the Rev. S.M. Wright of Dallas, one of several clergymen delivering prayers.

A spokesman for Richards, Chuck McDonald, said inaugural organizers were well aware of the possibility of war as they made preparations. "The American men and women in the Persian Gulf are going to be remembered throughout the day," he said.

"It's going to be impossible to cancel all of the events. But if war does break out, it will dramatically change the tone of those events," he said.

Wearing a white coat and white suit, Richards led the people's march that began at 10 a.m. But

Council approves request for demolition

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — The City Council voted Monday night to request bids to demolish four substandard houses after a year of efforts to get owners of 15 such structures to remove or repair them. The owners of the four houses will be billed for the charges.

Following notices first sent to owners in February, five of 15 houses have been torn down by owners and six others were fixed up or are now being worked on, said City Administrator Paul Lively.

But owners of houses at 700 E. Florence, 311 Broadway, 505 S. St. Theresa and 304 N. College have still not responded following three notices, two by registered mail, and a notice published last month in the Herald. The final deadline was Jan. 2.

"We've waited this long trying to give people a chance to do something," Lively said. "We've had some houses where people were really trying to do something."

One of the repaired houses now has people living there, he said. "They fixed it up that much."

Lively said the demolition proceedings are part of a larger effort by the City Council to clean up the town. That effort includes improving city parks.

In other business Monday, the Council:

- Agreed to withhold $892 owed to a Withita Falls computer company, CPS, in an effort to get a better response from company officials over city computer problems experienced in a switchover to another program.

- Accepted a $165,012 bid from Jones Brothers Dirt and Paving, Odessa, to pave about 6,000 feet of streets on the southside of the city.

- Granted a two-year permit to Cheryl Spinks to operate a day care

How's that?

Q. How would war casualties get to the Big Spring VA Medical Center for treatment?
 A. Tom Balderach, assistant to the director of the VA, said casualties would most likely be land-transported from Albuquerque or El Paso. Assistant city manager, Tom Decell, said the airport could handle planes up to the 737 size if necessary. These would be daylight landings only since there is no active control tower.

Richards

The celebrations started much earlier.

Texas Democrats held a two-hour "victory party" Monday night to celebrate recapturing the Governor's Mansion after four years of GOP control. Later in the evening, more than 1,000 performers took part in the "Texas Our Texas" gala that drew more than 14,000 spectators.

Lunch, for about 12,000, was offered in a dozen red-and-white and blue-and-white striped tents on the Capitol lawn.

Richards also planned to deliver an address to Texas schoolchildren via satellite television broadcast before the 3 p.m. formal inaugural parade, composed of some 100 units. Richards was to ride near the front of the procession in a horse-drawn surrey.

The dancing, at four different ball sites, was scheduled for tonight. Richards was to be escorted throughout the day by her longtime acquaintance, Austin author and screenwriter Bud Shrake.

Security was heavy, officials said.

Austin police were controlling downtown crowds and traffic with at least 65 officers. The Texas Department of Public Safety, which protects the governor and lieutenant governor, was "actively involved" but doesn't disclose the number of officers it assigns, said spokesman Mike Cox. Security personnel also were assigned by the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission and National Guard.

Entries sought for annual soup cook-off

By KATHRYN BURCH
 County agent/H.E.

The Second Annual Great Texas Soup Cook-off will be in Stanton, Texas, Saturday Jan. 26. Now, for all you 4-H and FFA stock show fans that's the weekend right after the County livestock show.

This is a soup cook-off, not a chili cook-off or a freeze-off or a bake-off. It will begin at 5 p.m. at the Martin County Community Center and conclude at 7 p.m. We need clubs, church groups, employee groups, neighbors, etc. to band together and cook up a pot of soup for the cook-off. Entries can be anything from a stew, to chili, to a clear broth. It can be an original recipe or Grandmother's favorite.

The event should be loads of fun and raise funds and community support to preserve the Convent. We would like to see everyone in Martin county either come cook soup or come judge soup. Everyone who comes will have a chance to judge the soups they taste, because everyone gets three votes with their $3 tasting pass. Of course, additional votes can be purchased at a cost of $1 each. Will husbands' vote for their wives? Will children charm you into voting for their soup? Will a friend give you a song and dance you can't pass up? Don't miss this one-of-a-kind Texas Splash — The Great Soup Cook-Off.

Besides having fun, soup is good food. All of the nutrients that cook out of vegetables are in the broth of the soup. To remove fats from soups, let them cool in the refrigerator and then scoop off the fat. You now have a low-fat version. Soups can be thin and clear or thick, chunky and creamy. Each has its own special flair.

We are hoping to have 20 soup entries in the cook-off. Soups should be brought to the Community Center already prepared. There are plenty of outlets to keep the soup warm, if you bring a warming device. Soup entries are due Tuesday, Jan. 22 at the County Extension office.

We have some early soup entrees. The Sheriff's Department, under the direction of Mike Welling, is planning "Handcuff Soup". There are rumors Dr. Miller's office is coming up with something to beat "Chicken Soup". Now for those of you who believe in "chicken soup" as a cure-all, don't miss this year's version. Fire-fighting gets pretty hot and soups are usually hot. There has been an information leak that the Fire Department will be making soup. Whatever your soup specialty is, we hope you and your family, friends and neighbors will all be at the "Great Texas Soup Cook-Off".

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

responsible. "The answer is definitely no, we had nothing to do with it," he told ABC-TV. "I think it was probably the work of some dissident faction in the PLO. We here are busy preparing ourselves just in case Saddam Hussein makes good on his threats against Israel."

Israeli sources have acknowledged that Israel was responsible for the 1988 assassination outside Tunis of PLO deputy commander Khalil Wazir. Government officials never confirmed Israel was behind his killing.

In the Israeli-occupied territories today, Palestinians poured into the streets to protest the killings, hurling stones at soldiers and raising black flags of mourning. Arab reports said army gunfire killed two protesters and wounded at least 60. "Who else is behind the killing... but the Israelis?" said al-Omari's brother, Ahmed, from his home in Gaza City. "Israel chose the time as the rest of the world is busy with the gulf crisis."

Mosques blared verses of the Koran in refugee camps in Sidon, Lebanon, and schools, restaurants and shops closed in mourning.

Arafat ordered thousands of guerrillas in Lebanon to go on alert to "face all military possibilities in the region."

Police in Tunis described the slayings as a settling of scores by rival Palestinian factions. They arrested an unspecified number of Palestinians, "all known to the PLO," Tunisian radio reported.

Israeli army radio reported 12 Palestinians were arrested in Tunis.

Cap Rock Connection

NANCY SWINK
 By PEGGY LUXTON
 Communications Advisor, Cap Rock Electric, Inc.

Nancy Swink

Nancy Swink is Payroll Clerk for Cap Rock Electric, Inc. She has worked for the company for 29 years. In addition to figuring payroll and issuing checks, she is responsible for the workmen's compensation insurance program, time sheets, vacation and sick leave and various other accounting functions.

Born in Kyle, Texas, Nancy has lived in Stanton since she was three years old. She is married to Bill Swink, Cap Rock's Distribution Engineer. The couple have one son, Brent, who is a freshman at Texas Tech University.

When Nancy went to work for the Co-Op, the company employed 35 workers, compared to the 92 it now has. Ray Simpson was office manager at that time, Sam Houston was bookkeeper and O.B. Bryan was manager. At that time, all accounting, including payroll, was done by hand. The entire system is now computerized.

Nancy has worked under four managers. She has seen many changes in Cap Rock. "The biggest change has been the growth," she says. "I've seen Cap Rock grow from a very small organization into a big-time corporation."

When she first went to work, Nancy was in charge of capital credits, the return to members of profit, or margin, after operational expenses were deducted. "Cap Rock has a very good record of returning capital credits," she said, "which is one indication of the businesslike manner in which the business is managed. We have returned capital credits every year, except one, since I've been here. I don't know of any electric cooperative that has a better record of returning capital credits."

Karen White

Karen White is CAD Operator for Cap Rock Electric, Inc. She is in charge of mapping and specification drawings for the System Engineering Department. Cap Rock has a GIS (Geographic Information System) interfaced with an AutoCAD system, which is an engineering/architectural graphics and software package.

The Co-Op system is a utility package specifically designed to address problems utilities face in keeping system maps accurate and up-to-date. The same system is used by the City of Weatherford, a county assessor's office in Colorado and for teaching drafting students at Kilgore Junior College. With this system, the company can digitize maps, conduct load studies for upgrades and it will eventually, after the addition of data banks, become a part of SCADA, the computerized co-op monitoring system. The System Engineering computers are an integral part of the complete computerization network of Cap Rock operations.

Jim White expressed his concern about his school's test scores. "We looked at these test scores and we could not believe our eyes. We are definitely looking for objectives to overcome this type of score. Even if we have to go back to the drawing board." High school principal Johnny McGregor felt that SHS students did well because it meant more to them than just another test. "Our kids knew that they had to do well and I'm proud of them."

In other topics, the 1991-92 school calendar was announced by SISD Superintendent Wayne

Mitchell. According to the calendar school will begin August 19 and will end May 21.

Business Manager Rob Roberson gave a report on the district health insurance program, from Blue Cross-Blue Shield. According to Roberson, the insurance company recommended a $10 increase which the district will absorb. "Being a semi-self insured entity, the district receives a recommended rate from the insurance company and the district will either go along with that rate or vote our own. They recommended a $167 per month for the employee rate and we settled with $165 total," Roberson said.

The last item on the agenda was personnel changes for the 1991-92 school year. According to school board changes in the system, Mitchell will need to replace Jim White at the elementary level. White will become the high school principal effective after the 1990-91 school year. First year high school principal Johnny McGregor will move into the Administrative position as Assistant Superintendent to succeed Mitchell.

Mitchell's contract was extended for another year and the trustees accepted the resignation of high school coach Rob Young.

Crisis

military strike occurs, until he has lost his air force, perhaps his chemical capability. ... But at some point he's going to begin to negotiate."

The president late Monday signed the congressional resolution, passed over the weekend, authorizing him to use military force to drive Saddam from Kuwait.

"This resolution provides unmistakable support for the international community's determination against, and occupation of, Kuwait shall not stand," the president said in a brief statement.

"We do not seek war, but if conflict is thrust upon us we are ready and we are determined," Fitzwater said earlier Monday.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told congressional leaders there are 410,000 U.S. soldiers in the gulf region now, up 40,000 from last week. Pentagon sources said U.S. troops were pouring into Saudi Arabia at the rate of 5,000 a day and that the goal was to have 450,000 in place soon.

The U.N. grace period for Saddam to withdraw his forces from Kuwait expires at midnight EST. After that, Iraq will be living "on borrowed time," Fitzwater said Monday.

"Everyone has to assume that military action could occur at any point" after midnight, he said.

The president "has consulted closely with the coalition members and, if the time comes, he is ready," Fitzwater said.

Congressional leaders who met with Bush late Monday said the president was grim and seemed determined to go ahead with force if necessary. They said Congress, despite earlier differences, would stand squarely behind him if war does break out.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., called on Bush to "take every opportunity in the coming hours and days to follow any reasonable course to avoid conflict."

But "if conflict comes, of course the Congress and the country will stand with our armed forces in the hope that the war ... can be short and decisive with as little casualties as possible," Foley said.

"The spirit is we're all together now," said Senate GOP leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

Iraq gave no signs of pulling back. United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who met in Baghdad with Saddam, said, "I don't see any reason to have real hope."

The administration showed little enthusiasm for a last-ditch plan by France calling for Iraqi troop withdrawal from Kuwait, the use of a U.N. peacekeeping force and an international peace conference on the Middle East.

White House spokesman Roman Popadiuk said the administration had seen press reports of the French proposal. "We have always maintained (that there be) no linkage of issues," he said.

Beyond the new French proposal, Yemen offered a plan aimed at resolving the crisis, and Algeria also was reported to be readying a peace mission.
