Allied forces continue non-stop bombing raids

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) - The forces of Saddam Hussein, igniting the Middle East's lifeblood, blew up a Kuwaiti oil facility, the U.S. military said today. Two major Kuwaiti storage tanks also were ablaze.

In Iraq, two more men identified as captive American airmen were displayed on television and presumably will join the other prisoners of war who are being used as human shields at strategic sites.

The U.S. Patriot missile, meanwhile, Hashest into action, Diasting a series of Iraqi Scuds out of Saudi skies. The attacks were the latest in a series of fruitless Iraqi barrages with Scud-type missiles.

U.S. warplanes roared off runways again this morning at a foggy air base in eastern Saudi Arabia, continuing their nonstop bombing campaign against Iraq. And the air force of Qatar, Saudi Arabia's oilrich neighbor, joined the fray for the first time.

Navy planes attacked several Iraqi boats on Monday, according to Army Lt. Col. Greg Pepin. At a briefing today, Pepin said one Iraqi mine-layer was left dead in the water, another boat was sunk and two others were chased away in the northern Persian Gulf.

The Baghdad government, in a military communique carried by Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency, claimed today that residential areas in Baghdad and other cities had been hit by more than 20 allied air raids overnight. Daghdad radio also assailed what it called the affied "crime of a gression" against sacred Muslim shrines

Word that Kuwaiti oil facilities were ablaze was an ominous development. In September, six weeks after it seized Kuwait, Iraq had threatened to turn the region's oil fields into an inferno if it was challenged.

Ted St. Clair of Fort Worth has accepted the directorship of Moore Development for Big Spring Inc.

St. Clair, currently senior vice president of a commercial real estate firm, will report to Big Spring Monday to begin work as executive director of the economic development corporation.

The new director said today that he looks forward to his work here 'with excitement.

Reading from a statement he had prepared for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, St. Clair said, "Where there's a will, there's a way, and I sense there's a will among the people of Big Spring Together we'll find a way.

Board of directors chairperson Owen Ivie said the group had chosen St. Clair largely because of the strength of his past experience.

"He has had a lot of experience," Ivie said. "That was and is his drawing card as far as the board was concerned. He has knowledge of industry throughout the United States to some degree.

The son of a Seymour, Texas, farmer-rancher, St. Clair's career has included work with chambers of commerce in Lubbock and Fort Worth as well as economic development tasks with the office of the governor of Virginia. A graduate of Texas Tech, St. Clair has taken graduate-credit courses as well.

Ivie explained that St. Clair's position here would include work with local industries to explore options for expansion and growth. He will also try to contact outside businesses and industries about the possibility of locating here.

St. Clair said the first priority would be his work with existing industry.

'We want to see if we can help existing businesses grow," he said 'The first order of business is to be sure we are doing everything . . . that we can to help Big Spring companies.

Although no office space has been located for the corporation, Ivie said St. Clair would be "set up" in some temporary location until a permanent office can be secured.

One of the new director's first appearances will be at a Town Hall meeting sponsored by Moore Development Tuesday, Jan. 29 at 7 p.m. in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Board member Steve Fraser said the meeting will allow citizens to speak out regarding the corpora-

Big Spring commercial and residential properties could see an increase in fire insurance in February as a result of deficiencies Following a recent inspection of the Big Spring fire department, The State Board of Insurance recognized certain deficiencies that will increase the key rate for the Big Spring area. "The keyrate," explained Lee Jones of the State Insurance Board, "is a statistical tool that is used to assess fire insurance rates for a given area.

Joyce Brumley of Mancil Insurance in Big Spring said, "Right now, the key rate in Big Spring is 18 cents. A key rate increase of 5 cents will probably affect commercial rates. If it's more than that, it could affect residential rates."

The most notable deficiency is in the area of manpower, according to a letter to City Manager Hal Boyd by Andrew Whitney, an engineer with the State Board of Insurance. "Personnel deficiencies are based on there being three onduty firefighters for each required vehicle. Based on the minimum manpower per shift, the city is 20 percent deficient in personnel," said Jones.

Paul Brown, the local president major deficiency in the department," Brown said. "The first was an independant study, done in May, by the Fire Insurnce Bureau.'

When asked about the manpower shortage, City Fire Marshal Burr Lee Settles explained, "Due to the economy, several years ago there were cutbacks in many city departments and we lost some men.

Other problems described in Whitney's letter are: A deficiency in the coverage of the west end of town and the lack of a second fulltime fire prevention employee to conduct fire prevention inspections. In the report Whitney stated, 'The code enforcement officer postion should be filled, and adequate enforcement of the building electrical codes must be re-established to prevent further reduction of the related key rate credit.'

The report also stated that, because of the overlapping coverage of stations two, three and four, the central fire station at Fourth and Nolan streets is not required to satisfy state requirements

There was, however, a plus side in Whitney's report. The alerting system has been upgraded from the old phone system to a more reliable radio tone system. The insurance board also approved of the hiring of a full-time fire marshal. "We have a new fire truck com-

AG asks officials to remedy undercount

Ag officials say food generally safe

AUSTIN (AP) - State agriculture officials say many reports on the dangers of pesticides and hormones in food production are exaggerated or false.

On Monday, members of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service announced a drive to educate the public that the nation's food production system is safe.

"What we want to try to do is speak to these issues individually with the basic foundation of the science involved in order to remove as much emotionalism as we possibly can," said James Denton, an extension service spokesman.

The Agriculture Extension Service, which is part of Texas A&M University, will host a conference on food safety today at the University of Texas campus.

Denton and other agriculture officials said consumers are often alarmed by unscientific and politically-motivated reports on chemical use in food production.

Barry McBee, a deputy commissioner in the state Agriculture Department, said the agency endorsed the group's work as being "right on target.'

He said the agriculture industry is committed to safety

Cocaine seized

RIO GRANDE CITY, Texas (AP) — About 590 pounds of cocaine worth more than $18 million were seized from a pickup truck near the Mexican border, according to the U.S. Border Patrol.

Value of the seizure was based on a price of $2,000 per ounce, said Fred Rangel, an intelligence agent with the Border Patrol's McAllen sector office in McAllen

No one was arrested. A man driving the pickup escaped into nearby brush after agents pulled him over about 12:30 a.m. Monday, Rangel said.

Agents reported stopping the truck about 5 miles west of Rio Grande City and about three miles north of the Rio Grande Smugglers probably WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas Attorney General Dan Morales says the Census Bureau's "acknowledged failure" to include all Texans in its 1990 count is "a social disgrace and an economic blunder" that must be corrected.

"The potential loss of congressional representation and federal funding puts each Texan at a disadvantage," Morales told Attorney General Dick Thornburgh.

Morales also said he was serving notice on the attorney general and Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher, whose jurisdiction includes the Census Bureau, that he would "vigorously and personally" pursue a lawsuit that challenges the Census Bureau to correct its 1990 undercount of Texans.

'The Census Bureau has consistently undercounted minorities. undocumented workers, the homeless, those with little command of the English language, Texans who live in high-poverty or high-crime areas, and residents of our colonias - to say nothing of those households that were simply missed," Morales told Thornburgh in a letter Friday.

Texas last year joined the city of states. The undercount cost Texas New York in a lawsuit seeking to correct an undercount. In his letter to Thornburgh, Morales said he intends to "commit the full resources of my office toward ensuring that those Texans who have been chronically undercounted by the U.S. Census Bureau are included in the final tallies of the current census.

Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Morales, said Monday that the Texas attorney general's office was "keeping very close tabs" on grams, from highways and educa- the Census Bureau as it conducts tion to social services and law post-enumeration surveys.

"How can you get involved in a process using numbers that more than likely are inaccurate to begin a process that is very straining and cumbersome and complicated and technical and time-consuming, and then when you get the final accurate numbers you have to start all over again," Dusek said.

The Census Bureau is considering whether to correct its counts to adjust for an undercount - or overcount - and will publish corrected counts, if any, by July 15.

Dozens of Texas cities have also filed challenges with the Census Bureau over their population counts.

Dusek said the attorney general's office believes the 17 million total for Texas is below its estimates for the state's population.

TEA: No pass, no play rule too harsh

AUSTIN (AP) - The state may want to consider reducing the penalty for not passing a course from six to three weeks' enforced absence from taking part in extracurricular activities, the Texas Education Agency staff said.

In a preliminary report to the State Board of Education, the staff said students and faculty in a study supported the reduced penalty.

Under the no pass, no play rule, students must pass every course during a six-week grading period to participate in extracurricular activities, such as sports or drama, in the following six weeks.

The rule is one of several reforms studied by TEA staff to determine the impact on students considered at risk of dropping out. The staff is halfway through a fouryear study, said agency spokeswoman Jorjanna Price.

Italy to locate plant in Texas

HOUSTON (AP) - Officials of Italy's state-owned energy company are expected to announce next week that Baytown has been selected as the site of the company's first U.S. petrochemical plant.

The Houston Chronicle reported today that Ente Nacionale Idrocarburo, or ENI, has begun preliminary work on a new plastics and rubber plant that analysts say will likely cost at least $100 million.

The plant, which will be operated by ENI's EniChem Elastomers Americas subsidiary, will make synthetic rubber products, latex products and chemicals used in homes and automobiles.

The plant is expected to employ about 100 people, experts say.

ENI spokeswoman Tess Serranti declined to discuss details of the Texas plant. The decision to build in Texas is a major departure for ENI, which previously had resisted any move to locate its chemical plants outside of Europe, analysts say.

The holding company is owned by the Italian government and is responsible for all of Italy's energy needs, from oil and natural gas to petrochemicals.

Richards convenes education meeting

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards will convene a Texas School Assembly on Saturday.

It was earlier announced that the conference of educators, parents and students would be Feb. 9. But the governor's office said Monday its original announcement for the date of the conference was incorrect

The assembly, to be held at the University of Texas campus, was touted by Richards during her campaign when she pledged to make public school funding more equitable.

In 1989, the Texas Supreme Court declared the school finance system unconstitutional because of disparities in funding between property-poor school districts and wealthy districts.

After four special legislative sessions last year, lawmakers passed a school funding bill that a state district judge has since ruled unconstitutional. schools and a statewide survey of tion's capital today to mark the 18th anniversary of the Supreme Court's Roe vs. Wade decision.

The March for Life rally, which has become an annual ritual since the landmark 1973 decision that legalized abortion, was to begin at noon on the Mall in Washington, where this year's theme is a call to politicians for a firm anti-abortion stand. Roe vs. Wade originated in Dallas.

"The theme is no waffling on the life principles," march leader Nellie Gray said. "We saw candidates in the last couple of years who had been pro-life and they waffled and tried to take a moderate stand, and then no one trusted them. They lost their elections.'

Abortion rights advocates organized by the National Organization for Women planned to hold their own demonstration nearby Last year's anti-abortion marchers here numbered 75,000, according to the U.S. Park Police. Gray declined to project the size of this year's event, although she said 'there have been some cancellations because of the war situation" in the Persian Gulf. March coordinators invited President Bush to address the crowd, as he has by telephone hook-up in each of the two previous years of his presidency. The White House press office could not say late Monday whether Bush would address them this year. Activists on both sides of the issue have been holding events across the country for the past several days leading up to today's anniversarv In Pittsburgh, abortion opponents planted 26 white crosses in a cemetery on Monday, with each cross representing 1 million abortions. During the weekend, antiabortion activists formed a human cross in Anaheim, Calif., and created a 60-mile "life chain" along a stretch of Florida highway. Actress Holly Hunter was honored at a brunch in Beverly Hills, Calif., for her efforts on behalf of abortion rights. Today, the Utah state Legislature is debating legislation that would outlaw most elective abortions. Supporters said the measure could be sent to Gov. Norm Bangerter as early as Wednesday, while opponents promised a legal challenge if it is enacted. The National Right to Life Committee planned to commemorate the anniversary with a news conference to discuss abortion issues, including RU-486, the drug used by women in France to terminate pregnancy. Abortion rights activists have stepped up their campaign to bring this drug to the United States, while abortion opponents pledge to boycott any company that does. NOW officials said their demonstration would include erecting a "wall of names" 100 feet long and eight feet tall, displaying the signatures of more than 25,000 Americans who support abortion rights. The signatures represent only a fraction of the signatures that have been collected, NOW said. The Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights — a national group of 35 Protestant, Jewish and other denominations and faith groups was marking the anniversary with the release of a publication called 'Words of Choice," an abortion rights guide to terminology in the abortion debate.

Teen accidentally shoots his friend

HOUSTON (AP) - A13-year-old boy playing with a shotgun kept by a woman for protection against rampant crime in her neighborhood accidentally killed a 9-year-old boy, police said.

Harry Durell Johnson, 9, died instantly from a gunshot wound to the neck, police said.

Homicide investigators said the shooting was accidental and that Johnson was shot as he stood behind a bathroom door while his friend played with a 12-gauge shotgun.

The 13-year-old's mother had left the shotgun in the hallway while cleaning the house and had stepped outside for a few minutes when the shooting occurred, said Sgt. Roy Ferguson.

One city official said he thinks the trend for such tragedies is on the rise.

"Unfortunately, it's becoming more and more common to see shootings in this age group," said Paul Pepe, director of Houston's emergency medical services. "A lot of times it's because of guns left around the house.

Pepe cited a recent study showing that there were 65 children between infancy and 17 years old shot in Houston last year, with 80 percent of the shootings involving teen-agers.

Sen. Peggy Rosson, D-El Paso, said Monday that the PUC abdicated its responsibility and denied ratepayers due process in approving settlements requested by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and El Paso Electric Co.

Ms. Rosson said her bill "will ensure that ratepayers will be heard and that this return to the bad old days of deals being cut behind clos-

In the Southwestern Bell case, the PUC voted 2-1 to approve a settlement proposed by Bell despite the protests of many cities, the state's consumer advocate, and numerous private consumer groups

Bell said the proposal was worth $1.2 billion to ratepayers, but critics said it was much less. "Settlements such as the Bell case and El Paso Electric Co. case must not continue. When the various regulatory agencies were conceived the intent was that the people of Texas would be treated fairly and represented justly," Ms.

Rosson said.

But Tipton Ross, executive assistant to Commissioner Marta Greytok, defended the PUC's use of settlements, and said Rosson's comments were an "unfortunate characterization.'

He said settlements, such as the Southwestern Bell case, can save money for ratepayers by reducing attorneys costs that eventually passed on to the consumer.

'The process is very open. There is absolutely no denial of due process, and no informal disposition of any case that is a contested settlement," Ross said.

Video court saves time and space

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Officially, it's known as the Central Courts Video Program. But around the Municipal Court, they call it MTV, Marshal's Television, an effort to save time and space for the overcrowded judicial system. Defendants normally ride the bus from jail to the courthouse for arraignment. Now, they can be arraigned in a soundproof booth at the jail via a video broadcast to the courtroom. The judge, prosecutor, court reporter and public can see and hear the arraignment on TV sets.

As many as 250 defendants in felony drug cases have been arraigned on camera since the program began Jan. 7. It soon will expand to let police officers present criminal cases to prosecutors via video teleconference.

King holiday marked by rallies

ATLANTA (AP) - Too many black Americans have been sent to war in the Mideast and too few have jobs back home, followers of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. said on the federal holiday marking his birth. Calls for peace in the Persian Gulf and racial justice at home were heard throughout the country on the holiday Monday.

In Arizona, one of three states that has not made King's birthday a paid state holiday, about 20,000 people marched four miles and rallied in front of the state Capitol in Phoenix.

Dutch may abolish military draft

THE HAGUE, Netherlands for their members and the rights (AP) - The Dutch have had military conscription since Napoleon incorporated Holland into his empire, but many feel it should expire along with the Cold War.

A recent commentary in the leftist national daily Trouw said "Fear of spreading communism is no longer around to motivate the soldiers" and described the draft as "nothing less than forced labor.'

The Dutch military is known for relaxed discipline. Soldiers even have a union, which wants the draft to continue.

Rate rewards inefficiency

The U.S. Postal Rate Commission seems to think it has struck a blow for the American consumer. It has rejected a proposed 5-cent increase for first-class postage in favor of a 4-cent increase.

Meanwhile, however, rates under the commission's plan will increase by as much as 25 percent next month for certain types of postage. In addition to the 16 percent increase for first-class mail, express and priority mail will increase by 15 and 19 percent, respectively. Second-class items such as newspapers and magazines will increase by a whopping 22 percent. Third-class or bulk mail will increase by 25 percent.

These higher rates are expected to yield an additional $6.2 billion a year for the U.S. Postal Service, giving the quasi-public monopoly a total budget of $48 billion in fiscal 1992. Yet, for this generous 13 percent overall boost in revenues, American businesses and consumers cannot expect to see any improvement in service.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader put it succinctly and accurately — when he charged recently that the Postal Service is "riddled with mismanagement, waste, poor service, poor customer relations, and does not deserve an increase."

More important, the rate increase that is about to take effect provides no incentive for the postal'service to become more productive and cost efficient. In fact, it does just the opposite

The Postal Service needs to overhaul its wasteful operations before it receives any sizable rate increase. As it is, the agency's cost structure is way out of line. Of its $39 billion annual operating budget, 83 percent is consumed by labor costs. By comparison, Federal Express and the United Parcel Service, the Postal Service's biggest competitors in express and priority mail, spend less than 40 percent of their budgets on labor.

To its credit, the Postal Service has taken significant steps to automate its operations and thereby hold down costs and deliver the mail more efficiently. It has earmarked $5 billion for high-tech equipment that will sort mail through a nine-digit bar code similar to that used in grocery stores. Yet, even factoring in inflation, postal costs are rising rather than declining, despite the automation program.

The Postal Rate Commission has done American businesses and consumers a bad turn. By permitting the Postal Service to raise its prices by as much as five times the rate of inflation, it has ensured that the agency will continue to conduct business as usual.

World report

By BRYAN BRUMLEY Associated Press Writer MOSCOW (AP) — Bloody Soviet troop assaults in the Baltic republics of Lithuania and Latvia have not succeeded in toppling those separatist governments, but have deepened the rift in the nation's politics and threaten to shatter Mikhail S. Gorbachev's image as a reformer.

The attacks, which by dawn yesterday had claimed 20 lives, came as world attention was distracted by war in the Persian Gulf. Western governments condemned the hardline tactics, and the White House warned Gorbachev it might postpone the U.S.-Soviet summit scheduled in Moscow on Feb. 11-13.

The bloodshed has shocked and rallied Soviet reformers. Proindependence forces have barricaded streets in Lithuania and Latvia, and in Moscow as many as 300,000 reformers demonstrated Sunday, demanding that Gorbachev resign or curb the attacks

The assaults appear to mark a sharp escalation by Gorbachev to stop the Baltic independence movements. Declarations of independence by the three Baltic uhline last enring hagan an avalanche that by New Year's left all 15 Soviet republics in some state of autonomy from Kremlin control.

Gorbachev has not publicly declared that he has crossed the threshold from reform to reaction. He denied any advance knowledge of the bloodiest assault, in Lithuania eight days ago, but said it was justified.

It remained unclear whether he was personally responsible or was powerless to prevent the bloodletting, in effect a kind of Kremlin hostage to hardliners in the Communist Party, the Armed Forces, the KGB and Interior Ministry. Oleg Bogomolov, a prominent economist, told the huge Moscow

rally Sunday that "whether he knew or not, he justified this cruel violation of the constitution.

"The danger of dictatorship has become a reality," Russian Federation President Boris N. Yeltsin warned in a message to the demonstration. The hardliners, for their part, followed a scenario that Baltic peoples watched before, as the Red Army forcibly annexed their nations at the close of World War

The pattern became familiar to the world with the Soviet occupation of Eastern Europe in the 1940's, the invasions of Hungary in 1956 and Czechoslovakia in 1968, and the declaration of martial law in Poland in 1981

National Salvation Committees have issued statements in Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia over the past 10 days, calling for nullification of independence declarations passed by the democratically elected Baltic parliaments last year. The committees also are demanding dissolution of the Baltic parliaments and governments and want Gorbachev to impose direct Kremlin rule.

In Lithuania, the secret committee leadership condemned what it called "anti-Soviet" and "anticonstitutional" propaganda on Lithuanian television and radio

The Soviet military responded with a tank assault against the broadcast tower in the Lithuanian capital of Vilnius, killing 14, wounding more than 200, and leaving the main television and radio facilities in the hands of the central Soviet government. The separatist government of Lithuania, however, continued broadcasting from the city of Kaunas

In neighboring Latvia, "black beret'' commandos staged a series of shooting raids that killed a government driver on Wednesday and culminated in a ferocious assault Sunday night against the headquarters of police loyal to the separatist government. Five people, including two Latvian policemen, died. Latvia's government ordered its police to defend other buildings.

The battle lines were drawn for civil conflict between the Communist establishment and the reformers that Gorbachev encouraged during his first five years in power.

In 1976, when we lived in Peru, Indiana, the first snow that winter turned into the worst blizzard to come along in twenty-five years. The wind blew fifty miles an hour, thirteen inches of snow fell, and two of my son Mark's friends were stranded at our house for three days

We were snowbound

The boys, Scott and Danny, were Indiana corn fed teenagers. One was huge and the other was great big.

We played spades, slept all over the house, and ate everything in sight. By the end of the second day, when a neighbor rode by on his horse (on his way to the nearby town of Wabash to bring emergency supplies), I had become so addlebrained that all I could think to ask him to bring

We don't even buy butter. I use margarine. I recovered enough to scream, "Toilet paper!" as he rode out of sight.

By the third day we had stopped combing our hair, started eating out of the skillet, and the house smelled like socks. We were desperate.

Scott decided to walk through a field to meet his daddy, who was going to come as far as he could on a tractor. We urged him on.

Somebody on a snowmobile rescued Danny a few hours later

The snowplows came through the next day and opened up the Frances Slocum Trail. That was the road we lived on. We were free

Patriot makers boast of missile that was nearly canceled

BOSTON (AP) - From Florida to Texas, defense workers are cheering the Patriot missile - a weapon once nearly canceled and untested in battle until it proved itself with pinpoint accuracy at supersonic speeds in the Persian Gulf

The Patriot simply appears to do what it was designed to do. And that is no small achievement for an industry that has taken its lumps over large expenditures and doubts about such items as the B-1 bomber, the Apache helicopter, the Sgt. York air defense gun and the Bradley Fighting Vehicle.

The first Patriot fired in combat knocked an Iraqi Scud missile out of the air as it headed for Dhahran in Saudi Arabia last week. On Sunday and early Monday, Patriot missiles knocked out nine more Iraqi Scuds fired into Saudi Arabia. All troops that use the Patriot missile are trained at Fort Bliss in El Paso, Texas.

"There is a lot of pride in the plant here," said Doug McCurrach, a spokesman for Martin Marietta Corp.'s facility in Orlando, Fla., which assembles the missiles.

"I'm excited about the success so far and feel it's going to continue because of the workmanship and quality we've put into the warhead section." said Herb Fouch, missile mechanic in Martin Marietta's warhead section.

various places that had a hand in Raytheon Co., its parent company in Massachusetts, to research and development sites in New Jersey, Florida, Texas and New Mexico. The early track record of the Patriot has also given rise to cautious approval by more impartial defense experts.

Kevin Page, of the non-profit watchdog group Project on Government Procurement, said there is reason to cheer but that with such a complex system, "to break out the champagne is really premature.

Lior Bregman, an analyst with Oppenheimer & Co. in New York, said the success of high technology weapons such as the Patriot will certainly boost the defense industry in the short term and may bring even longer term public and private backing for development.

"They've proved pretty good, but T don't think it's a 100 percent system." said Rupert Pengelley, editor of International Defense Review, part of the authoritative London-based Janes Group of publications on the defense industry.

But compared with Soviet antiaircraft missiles that were 3 percent effective in the 1973 Arab-Israeli Yom Kippur War, "they are a great improvement," he said.

Patriot batteries were rushed to Israel last week after two volleys of Scuds were fired into that country. The shipment is believed to have helped persuade Israel to remain on the sidelines of the conflict for now

The missiles, which cost about Similar sentiments were heard in $500,000 each, carry high-explosive fragmentation warheads designed the missile's development - from to knock down attacking aircraft and rockets. Development continued through the 1970s under the leadership of Raytheon, based in the Boston suburb of Lexington. At one point in the middle of the decade, senior defense officials said they were worried the missile system might not work because of its complex technology.

The project was briefly put on hold so the missile could be tested. It passed, and the project continued, said David Harris, spokesman for the Army Missile Command in Huntsville, Ala., which oversees development of the Patriot system.

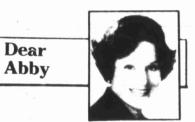

Production started in 1980, but the missile system continued to encounter technical glitches. "It took some time to get the bugs out, but we did," Harris said.

Then in the mid-1980s, the project changed directions again. By modifying the missile's technology, Raytheon turned Patriot back into an anti-missile system that also had the ability to hit aircraft. During trials at the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico, the Patriot successfully intercepted 15 out of 15 test missiles, but officials had never seen how the system would hold up in combat until last

BY KATHRYN HOLLINGSHEAD Elbow second grader Kendra Bearden lounges in a cushion-filled bathtub. Eyes riveted on her book, she carefully unwraps her chocolate mint and begins to nibble. All this, during library period at Elbow! Elbow librarian Joan Rock explains, "I'd like to encourage the kids to learn to read and relax in the middle of activity; to read for pleasure." Well, she's certainly been successful with Kendra. The reading tub is one of two centers in Elbow's library. A giant blue "cookie monster" presides over a desk equipped with cassette tape player and headphones, dubb-"the listening center." The ed reading tub center is just that: an old fashioned claw foot tub filled with pillows, surrounded by a lace curtain for privacy. "This gives the kids an opportunity to be independent readers," said Mrs. Rock. Two names are drawn each library period to determine who gets to enjoy the reading centers. 'The kids pray while I draw names," Mrs. Rock said. The rest of the class quietly choses their books for the week

"We had shelved 13,113 books by the end of November," Mrs. Rock reports. This is the first year Elbow has had a full-time library. The children are now able to check out books every day, with a limit of 5 a day, or 10 books during their weekly scheduled class library time. If a child has books out for more than two weeks, the student is not allowed to check out more until the overdue books are returned. "That's being inconsiderate of the other students that use the library," explains Mrs. Rock, adding, "Fines punish the parent, not the child."

What's in store next for Elbow's library? "I'd really like to have a stage" Mrs. Rock said, looking around speculatively. "The kids could tell what they've learned from their books" she said, "and maybe I could tell them some stories." I just bet she could!

potted tree, April "Mother Earth" Ferguson enters an Elbow Elementary classroom, dressed in a floppy hat and shawl, globe earrings dangling. Behind her trails 'Castaway'' Karen Bearden, dragging a bulging plastic garbage bag.

Ferguson and Bearden have teamed up to present the children with our planet's wasted resource problem, seeking to teach them Mother Earth's Three R's: Reduce, Reuse and Recycle. "The key to the future is to educate children," said Ferguson.

In a carefully prepared skit, "Mother Earth" invites the children to help her educate "Castaway" Karen, admonishing her, "You're throwing away my valuable resources." "Castaway" Karen presents garbage items one by one from her bag of trash, while 'Mother Earth'' explains which of her resources were used to make the product and how it can be reused or recycled. "Did you know it takes 17 of my beautiful trees to make one ton of paper?" she asks.

April Ferguson became interested in garbage after attending a seminar at Texas A&M on waste management as a Girl Scout leadership service unit. The seminar featured Dr. Roy Hartman and leading experts from different areas of the state. The seminar had two days of workshops, posing the waste problems and solutions, stressing educating the public as the key to solving Earth's waste problem.

Ferguson returned and implemented an "Earth Matters" focus for the girl scout troop she helps lead. The troop has visited "The Time Machine" recycling center in Odessa, Big Spring landfill and invited Bebe McCasland to speak to them about conservation.

"I would really like to see the city of Big Spring begin a recycling program," Ferguson admits.

"Other communities have begun programs where each family divides their garbage for pick-up. During their recent tour of Big Spr ing's landfill, a comment was made that greatly upset some of Ferguson's girl scouts. When asked about a recycling program for Big Spring, the girls were told, "We still have about 35 years on our landfill." Mother Earth would sadly shake her head and reply: 'You're throwing away our Mother Earth.'

Pee Wee basketball

practice underway

Elbow Pee Wee Basketball began Jan. 19 with team practices. The Elbow PAT Group is sponsoring four boys and four girls teams. Coaching the boy's teams are Wesley Thixton, John Gaston, Sammy Anderson and Barney Hise. Coaching the girls are Don Grewer, Scott Britt, Tena Henkel and Dale Humphreys. Teams will practice for two hours each, with the first games scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 31. Players need to be at the Elbow gym 30 minutes before their game starts.

Parent volunteers are needed to work the concession stand for 30 minute shifts. Please contact Dale Humphreys to schedule your work shift.

What is wrong with the longstanding, well-understood, less cumbersome words "waiter" and 'waitress''? Must we invent a new language? In some languages, every noun is either male or female gender, so why are we concerned that the few English words that refer to gender might offend someone? Class approved, fees set, bids awarded

The Colorado City Independent School board approved the microcomputer course at the middle school, approved the driver's education policy, and awarded the bids for the nutrition program in the regular meeting on Jan. 14, according to Superintendent Don Nimmo

"We've set the driver's education fee at $115. The first class begins in Febuary and we're set up and expect to have 90 students. We don't want to make money or lose money on the course, and we feel $115 is sufficent to carry the course," Nimmo said.

The baseball coaches, Gerald Epperson and Larry Hartwick, were officially approved by the board, an employee health insurance report was heard, and approval was given for a tax refund request, he said.

An amendment was added to Policy DEC (LOCAL) restricting personal leave for teachers from in-service and work days, and Nimmo's contract was extended through June of 1994.

in the past day. Twenty-four allied fliers are missing in action, including 13 Americans, the Pentagon says.

NBC and CBS today showed Iraqi television videotape of two more captured U.S. airmen. They were identified as Air Force Maj. Jeffrey Scott Tice and Capt. Harry Michael Roberts. Two airmen by those names were listed by the Pentagon on Sunday as missing in action

Interviews with the two captured airmen were played on Iraqi TV and radio. In Nicosia, where the indistinct broadcasts were monitored, one man could be heard saying he flew an F-16E, based in Doha, Qatar, and had been on a mission to attack an oil refinery near Baghdad.

President Bush responded with cold fury to Iraq's announcement Monday that it would scatter captured allied pilots at potential target sites in a bid to stem the allied air assault. "This is not going to make a difference in the prosecution of the war" against Saddam, he said.

The United States filed complaints about the abuse of allied prisoners with the U.N. Security Council

For U.S. pilots, word that their captured comrades were being paraded on Iraqi television and coerced into making anti-U.S. statements struck close to home. 'We will hit 'em harder and make him pay for every violation of decency," said Air Force A-10 pilot Capt. Mike O'Dowd of Bergenfield,

"Even with it's deficiencies, the city has a top quality department," Anderson said. "Because of our high-caliber personnel, the community is well protected, and we will upgrade as the economy allows.

"I'll be the first to tell you, not every witness will get on that stand and tell you the same thing," Hamby said. He added, "A man is dead, murdered when these four came into his home."

The defense lawyers declined to make any opening arguments.

About a dozen witnesses are expected to testify in the trial of Manuel DeLeon, 32, his brothers Daniel, 31, and Robert, 24, and Octavino Ramiriz, 31. Assistant District Attorney William Dupree said they are hoping the trial will be over this week.

The fatal shooting at 1508 S. Scurry, home of Talavera's brother Richard, followed an argument between one of Talavera's brothers and at least one of the DeLeon brothers, Hamby said. Testimony would include an incident which occured at the Brass Nail prior to the shooting, he said. Hamby indicated that the argument may have something to do with Richard's live-in girlfriend at the time, who apparently had once been the girlfriend of Manuel DeLeon. One of the DeLeon brothers, he said, made a pre-trial statement that they went to Talavera's home "either to make peace or get it over with.

The Bills have prided themselves on their ability to focus on the opponent immediately ahead and say that's part of the reason they were able to achieve an AFC-best 13-3 record during the regular season.

"I think that is the thing that we did better this year," strong safety Leonard Smith said. "We didn't overlook anybody until the following week and we stayed with the team that we had to play that week and took it no further than that."

There have been opportunities to look ahead, starting with the regular season opener against the Indianapolis Colts, who were heavy underdogs going against the Bills in Buffalo.

Football banquet set for Monday

The Big Spring Quarterback Club will honor all Big Spring football players during its foot ball banquet, set for 7 p.m. Monday in the high school cafeteria.

Tickets for the banquet are $5 per person and can be obtained at the high school office through Friday. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Guest speaker for the event will be Gary Gaines, assistant coach at Texas Tech and former head football coach at Odessa Permian. Dress will be casual.

Montana to have surgery SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) Joe Montana will undergo surgery on his broken right hand later this week and will not play in the NFL's Pro Bowl game on Feb. 3 in Honolulu, the San Francisco 49ers announced

The quarterback will have two screws placed in the fifth metacarpal bone, above the little finger, in his passing hand. He was injured in the fourth quarter on the 49ers' 15-13 loss to the New York Giants in the NFC Championship game Sunday.

The 49ers refused to be more specific about the day surgery is planned, and team doctors had no prognosis for how long it will take for the hand to heal was the key to our winning the game. We really got off to a great start and got the tempo in our favor," Ohio coach Randy Ayers said after his team improved to 16-0, 6-0 in the Big Ten.

Jamaal Brown, not known as a long-distance shooter, hit three 3-pointers in the first half and added the last five of his career-high 29 points in the final 1:35 for Ohio State.

"I thought Jamaal Brown played well on both ends of the court. He really shot the ball from three tonight," Ayers said. "It wasn't something we went into the game thinking about, but Jamaal took what they gave him and did a great job for us.

It was only the second win in 19 visits to Assembly Hall for the Buckeyes, and Indiana coach Bob Knight agreed that Ohio State's flawless first half left his team with too big a deficit to overcome.

"We had such a difficult time digging ourselves out of a hole that we got ourselves into in the first half," said Knight, whose team made it close in the second half even though the Buckeyes shot 70 percent (14-of-20) from the field.

"In the first half, Ohio State played about as well as anybody's played us in the last couple of years. They presented us with Associated Press phot

Dumars, Detroit keeps Celts winless at Palace

(AP) The Boston Celtics have won in Gardens, Arenas, Stadiums and Forums, but they still don't know how to play The Palace.

With Vinnie Johnson and Joe Dumars picking up the slack for injured Isiah Thomas, the Pistons kept the Celtics winless in seven trips to The Palace by beating Boston 101-90 Monday night.

It was a battle between two battered teams. Boston was without Larry Bird for the seventh straight game and also played without center Robert Parish. Detroit was without Thomas; Dumars had 26 points despite playing with a badly sprained big toe, and Dennis Rodman, Mark Aguirre and Johnson were aching after the first of a home-and-home series with Boston.

"Sometimes when things hap pen, you have to play harder," said Johnson, who had 18 points. "That's what we did tonight. Isiah's our captain. It's an adjustment to play without him. He brings the ball up the court for us.

As usual, the Pistons did it with defense. They allow a league-low 95.8 points per game and are 24-3 when holding opponents to less than 100 points.

'If we're going to stay in games or win games, we're going to have to get some easy baskets," Boston coach Chris Ford said.

Kevin McHale led the Celtics with 24 points, but had just six in the second half. Brian Shaw and Joe Kleine, Parish's replacement, each had 18 for Boston.

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Todd Marinovich, arrested for investigation of possession of cocaine, also allegedly was carrying a small amount of marijuana, police said Monday. A police spokesman said tests proved that the white substance allegedly found on Marinovich was cocaine.

Sgt. Andy Gonis of the Newport Beach police said that an envelope containing fourtenths of a gram of marijuana allegedly was found on Marinovich, the Southern Cal quarterback who recently was suspended from the team.

Marinovich, 21, was arrested for investigation of cocaine possession at 4:15 a.m. Sunday morning while walking down the center of a residential street in this coastal city 40

Graf bounced by Czech

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) - The last link is severed. An era is gone

Steffi Graf, once unbeatable and seemingly prepared to stay that way for a long time, is just another quarterfinal loser on a Grand Slam court she once called her own.

Graf's final tie to her dominating reign of women's tennis was cut at the Australian Open today by a fast-talking Czechoslovak with a revitalized game straight out of Prague by way of Aspen and Sanctuary Cove.

Jana Novotna, struggling to reach the top 10, glued herself to the net and pressured the world's top-ranked but fading women's player into mistake after mistake in a 5-7, 6-4, 8-6 victory.

It wiped out the final traces of Graf's Grand Slam kingdom.

The Australian - which she first won for the first of three straight times in 1988 to start her "Golden Slam" of the four majors plus the Olympic gold medal - was the last of her titles to fall, and the loss was the first she had suffered in 26 matches at the 4-year-old National Tennis Center.

Novotna, winning for the first time in 10 career meetings with Graf and reaching a Grand Slam semi for only the second time, said she just followed the advice of Hana Mandlikova, the former U.S. and Australian Open champion who is now her coach out of Australia's Sanctuary Cove resort. 'She taught me to play the right shots at the right time," Novotna said. "That sounds simple, it sounds like no big thing, but that's what I did today. In the semifinals Thursday,

Novotna will play sixth-seeded Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario-of-Spain, who turned the tables on Gabriela Sabatini and beat the fourth-seeded

Australian Open

U.S. Open champion 6-1, 6-3. Sabatini has been engaged in a program to turn her baseline game into a powerful all-court attack, but it was Arantxa the aggressor under the closed roof of center court Tuesday night.

The 1989 French Open champion charged the net and attacked constantly, breaking Sabatini's serve seven of eight times. Sanchez-Vicario won it on her first match point, a netted backhand return, and leaped into the air in victory. Graf, who failed to reach the quarterfinals of a Grand Slam tournament for the first time since the 1986 French Open, said she felt no added pressure in the final set as her championship hung in the balance through a string of fastpaced service breaks.

'You don't think about it at all during the match," she said.

Graf may have been the victim of the boxer's greatest fear - leaving it in the gym.

"In the morning, I played unbelievable during practice," she said. "I don't know. It just didn't come during the match."

Novotna and others said that vulnerability was making Graf, No. 1 for a record 180 weeks, an increasingly easy target for the power-bashing up-and-comers of women's tennis.

'Steffi's not as good in those close matches. I don't know why,' said Monica Seles, the No. 2 seed who rallied from 0-3 in the first set to beat Anke Huber of Germany 6-3, 6-1 and reach the semis against Mary Joe Fernandez of Miami.

Fernandez, the No. 3 seed and runner-up to Graf here a year ago, beat fifth-seeded Katerina

Maleeva of Bulgaria 6-3, 6-2. "I like playing here," said Fernandez, who reached her fourth career Grand Slam semifinal with the loss of just 17 games in the first five rounds. "It's one of my favorite places to play, and I'm getting better with every match." Fernandez, Seles and Novotna are members of the growing "Aggression Brigade" in women's tennis - hit the ball hard and finish points quickly; don't let a chance for a kill pass you by.

Fernandez and Seles play out this scenario from the baseline, with sharply angled groundstrokes that explode. Novotna can play baseline, too, but she's adapted her game to that old Martina Navratilova favorite, serve and volley.

The version on display before a prizefight-like crowd today would have been the envy of Navratilova, the nine-time Wimbledon champion who skipped the Australian to ski in Aspen, Colo., and practice with Billie Jean King in Chicago.

"I didn't try to beat Steffi from the back by hitting great shots or playing big rallies with her. I just prepared my shots into the net," Novotna said. "I know there is a weakness in the passing shots and Steffi's backhand, and when I went to the net, I never choked.

"That put a lot of pressure on Steffi. She knew I wasn't making any mistakes.'

Novotna's strategy gave her big leads in each of the first two sets -4-1 in the second, 4-0 in the second - before Graf came back. A couple of times, Novotna looked to be on the edge of cracking, but she stayed tough and stuck with her game plan.

Addition

After hearing and considering the evidence the Board makes the following findings of fact: These structures are in such an advanced stage of deterioration that they could not economically be brought up to the City Codes i.e., no plumbing or wiring, missing windows and doors, cannot be secured. Poses a fire hazard to surrounding buildings. All persons determined from official public records to have legal interest in the proper ties were sent a notice to abate by regular and certified mail, return receipt requested; that the person in charge of the properties failed to res-pond to said notice; that notice of this meeting was published in the Big Spring Herald directed to the owner(s) and all persons determined from of-ficial public records to have a legal interest in the properties. Now, therefore, the Board hereby finds that based on the evidence presented to the Board the above described structures are unsafe and pose immediate hazard to life and to the safety o the public and constitutes a nuisance and should nolished.

It is therefore, ordered that the above described structures be abated through demolition, and that the owners or persons having legal interest are

Actor attempts suicide

WESTLAKE VILLAGE, Calif. (AP) - Actor Robert Young, TV's ideal 1950s dad in "Father Knows Best," tried to kill himself and enlist his wife in a suicide pact, authorities said.

Officials disclosed during the weekend that Young, 83, entered a hospital for a 24-hour psychiatric observation after a dead battery prevented him from funneling carbon monoxide fumes into his car on Jan. 12.

A tow truck driver alerted authorities

"Mr. Young admitted he called the tow truck and admitted that he had attempted to end his life," Los Angeles County sheriff's Lt. Bob Barrier said.

Young's wife, Elizabeth, 81, told deputies the incident occurred after the couple had been drinking, Barrier said. Three attempts to contact Young at home Sunday were met with a busy signal. No one answered the telephone at Young's office. The psychiatric hospital would neither confirm nor deny Young was a patient there.

tradition of celebrity kings that reign over Bacchus, one of the most popular parades during Mardi Gras.

Guttenberg, who starred in "Three Men and a Baby," "Police Academy," and "Cocoon," will ride on the tale of an animated whale as Bacchus, the god of wine. The 85-foot float called "Baccha-Whoppa" is a new addition to the Feb. 10 parade, Bacchus captain Owen Brennan said.

The tradition of celebrity kings began in 1969 with actor Danny Kaye, and has included Bob Hope, Jackie Gleason, Charlton Heston, NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Actor Kirk Douglas, Billy Crystal and

Iraq torches Kuwaiti oil facilities

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) - The forces of Saddam Hussein. igniting the Middle East's lifeblood, blew up a Kuwaiti oil facility, the U.S. military said today. Oil industry sources said two major Kuwaiti storage tanks also were ablaze.

In Iraq, two more men identified as captive American airmen were displayed on television.

The million-dollar U.S. Patriot missile, meanwhile, flashed into action, blasting two Iraqi Scuds out of Saudi skies before dawn today. The attacks were the latest in a series of fruitless Iraqi barrages with Scud-type missiles.

U.S. warplanes roared off runways again this morning at a foggy air base in eastern Saudi Arabia, continuing their nonstop bombing campaign against Iraq. And the air force of Qatar, Saudi Arabia's oilrich neighbor, joined the fray for the first time.

'We do have evidence that Iraq is damaging or destroying some of these facilities," he said.

Oil industry executives in touch with their Kuwaiti counterparts said oil storage tanks were on fire today at a pair of major facilities, Shuaiba and Mina Abdullah, next to each other about 60 miles north of the border. The executives in Bahrain, speaking on condition of anonymity, speculated that the destruction could be a part of Iraq's preparations for an expected allied ground attack.

The official Iranian news agency, meanwhile, reported today that allied warplanes staged heavy air attacks Monday night and early to day on the strategic Iraqi city of Basra, site of Iraq's military head-• GULF page 6-A

Energy assistance program available

AUSTIN - Some low-income Texans may be eligible for help in paying heating bills this winter through the Home Energy Assistance Program, according to Texas Department of Human Services Commissioner Ron Lindsey. Lindsev said the one-time payment is available to many low-income households. Applications for energy assistance were mailed to households that received food stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, or Supplemental Security Income in December. Other low-income individuals may request an application by calling the toll-free number 1-800-252-8060 during the enrollment period of Jan. 28 through Feb. 28

Eligibilty is limited by gross income and resources. Aid is available for a one-person household having less than $628.49 gross income per month. The gross income limits are $842.49 for households of two persons, $1,056.49 for three, $1,270.49 for four, $1,484.49 for five, and $1,698.49 for six.

Households are eligible if the cost for heating is included in the rent payment or if the household pays a portion of its home energy costs.

The Food and Drug Administration "is about a year ahead" of USDA in nutrition labeling, he said. Meat and poultry are overseen by USDA, while the FDA regulates other food products.

Meanwhile, the European Parliament today suspended a $1 billion Soviet aid plan in reaction to the use of Kremlin troops to suppress independence movements in Latvia and Lithuania.

The Parliament will reconsider the aid in late February but "the repression in the Baltics has made impossible an immediate decision," its budget committee chairman, Alain Lamassoure of France, said in Strasbourg, France.

The EC already has postponed talks to establish closer ties with the Soviet Union after the crackdown began last week in Lithuania.

French and German foreign ministers in Paris today agreed to approach Soviet authorities about the use of government troops in the Baltics.

Few details were available on the 21/2-hour talk in Moscow between Gorbachev and Latvian President Anatolijs Gorbunovs, but a Latvian spokeswoman, Lolita Nikitorovo, said the possibility of presidential rule was not discussed.

The official news agency Tass reported that, "The Soviet president said he was ready to help improve the situation and work for civil peace and accord in Latvia and other Baltic republics."

Tass said Gorbachev, Gorbunovs and Latvian Communist Party

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev need to take emergency measures to alleviate the conflict and search Latvia a day after the republic's for political ways to strengthen law secessionist lawmakers voted to and order and normalize the situation.

Soviet parliamentarian Anatoly Denisov said Monday that Gorbachev might personally take control of the Baltic republic after talking with Gorbunovs.

The exact ramifications of presidential rule were not clear, but it could give Gorbachev the authority to disband the republic's parliament and scrap Latvian laws he considers in violation of the Soviet constitution.

The Latvia Parliament voted Monday to form the defense force and fortify public buildings to protect against possible attack by Soviet forces. The move was in direct opposition to an order by the Soviet prosecutor's office for republican governments to disband "illegal armed units."

The prosecutor's office also instructed the republics to suspend all legislation that contradicts the -Soviet constitution.

Lithuanian president Vytautas Landsbergis told his republic's parliament that the Baltic republics must be prepared to come to each others' aid. SOVIET page 6-A

Farmers provided with crop information

By NESTOR HERNANDEZ, CED

On Dec. 31, Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter announced 1991 crop wheat, feed grains, cotton, oilseeds, and honey provisions. The announcement provides farmers with basic information they will need to plan for the 1991 crops.

TRIPLE BASE

Refers to the; 1) Crop Acreage Base, 2) permitted acreage, 3) maximum payment acreage. ACR (set aside)

The acreage reduction program (ARP) requirements for the 1991 crops are: 1) Cotton — five percent of cotton base; 2) Wheat -15 percent of base; 3) Sorghum, Barley, and Corn - seven and a half percent of base. There is no percentage of the base in oats.

PLANTING FLEXIBILITY Flexibility allows the planting of crops other than the program crop: wheat, corn, grain sorghum, barley, oats, upland cotton, and rice on up to 25 percent of crop acreage base (CAB). This acreage will be known as "flex acreage." "Flex acreage" is divided into two parts. (not eligible for payment); Normal flex acreage (NFA)- First 15 percent of the tlex acreage; Optional flex acreage (OFA) — other 10 percent of flex acreage.

Permitted crops on flex acreage are: any program crop, any oilseed, any designated industrial or experimental crop, any other crop except any fruit or vegetable including potatoes, dry edible beans, lentils, peas.

The Secretary of Agriculture may, however, prohibit the planting of any crop on flex acreage and is required to make available a list of any prohibited crops. A request for public comments will be published in the Federal Register at a later date with regard to what crops, if any, in addition to fruits and vegetables including potatoes, dry edible beans, lentils, and peas should be prohibited from being planted on this acreage.

BASES AND YIELDS The farm program payment yield will be the same as those established for the 1990 crops. Base acres for 1991 will be caluculated as follows: Cotton - Average of each of the preceding three years, with the exception of those that were not participating in the program. Wheat and Feed Grains -Bases will be calculated by averaging each of the preceding five years.

The other 15 percent is known as "Normal Flex Acres", less the acreage which is required to be devoted to an acreage reduction program "acreage conservation reserve" or ACR. EX - Base x 85 percent - ACR Maximum payment acres. An exception to the payment reduction requirement applies to producers of 1991 crop of winter wheat that was planted in 1990. Anyone who falls in the category of having winter wheat and wish to participate in the program please contact this office.

0/92 and 50/92 PROGRAMS

The 0/92 program will be offered for wheat and feed grains. The payment rate is guaranteed to be no less than the projected deficiency rate for the crop. The program is similar to the 1990 092 program with some additional options of planting oil seeds on some of the CU for pay.

The 50/92 program will be offered for cotton. The program is comparable to the 1990 50/92 program, except that the deficiency payments paid on the acreage devoted to conservation uses, less an acreage equivalent to 8% of the MPA, will be guaranteed at not less than the estimated deficiency payment rate.

Cap Rock Connection

By PEGGY LUXTON Communications Advisor, Cap Rock Electric, Inc.

Larry Simer is a Meter reader for Cap Rock Electric, Inc. He has been employed there for three years. He worked for about a year in the Underground Construction Department before transferring to the Metering Department.

Born in Big Spring, Larry has lived in Stanton for three years. He is married to the former Patsi Rich of Stanton. They have two daughters, Randi and Rikki.

The hardest part of his job, according to Larry, is caused by rainy weather. He drives one of the two four-wheel vehicles used by the Metering Department and during rainy weather, he is kept busy pulling other trucks out of the mud.

Larry likes the freedom afforded by his job as meter reader. 'It's like being your own boss,' he said. "There is no pressure and no stress. I intend to retire from Cap Rock," Simer said. 'It's a great place to work, with good benefits and a great boss." Simer does not want to transfer to any other department. "I've got the best job in the company," he said. "I intend to be meter reader when I retire."

D. A. Stanley is a Service Lineman for Cap Rock Electric, Inc. He has worked for the co-op for 31 years, all but five years as a lineman.

The withering allied air strikes against Iraq - 10,000 combat and support sorties so far - are only the first stage of a battle that could later lead to a bloody ground war. Iraq has the fourth-largest army in the world, with 545,000 troops entrenched across southern Iraq and Kuwait.

U.S. officials have said that Iraq's military machine is far from broken despite the pounding by allied bombers. Saddam and the military command are "still in control of military activity in the country," Navy Rear Adm. John McConnell said Monday. A low-hanging cloud cover over have to call for help from all available personnel, as well as those of our contractors. There is just no way Cap Rock or any other electric cooperative can keep on the payroll all the people needed in an ice storm.

The worst ice storm Stanley can remember was in 1973-74. "Ice forms on the wire and puts so much strain on it that it finally breaks. You lose hardware, and the ice breaks the ends off the crossarms. Once a line starts to sag, it doesn't take long to come down.

D. A. said Cap Rock does more long-range planning, "We plan ahead now for ice breaks. We replace wire that we know is too small to hold ice. We are building load and the system is growing. The heavier the load and the far ther a load has to go, the bigger the wire you need. Now, the co-op replaces that wire and other material and we don't wait to lost it in an ice storm.

says, "Up until about three years ago, things had remained about the same as they were when I first came to Cap Rock, as far as working conditions and customer service. But new management has really changed things around. We have better equipment, which makes for better working conditions in the field and we have a much better customer service policy.

Stanley says the hardest part of a lineman's job is during bad weather. The longest period he ever stayed in the field and on the job without stopping was several years ago, during an ice storm. "I worked about 26 or 27 hours straight," he said. "Ice storms cause problems. If we had a bad ice storm right now, we would

The National Academy of Sciences recommended last fall that both FDA and USDA require nutrition labeling on all foods.

Silverglade said one possible contentious issue involves the amount of meat and poultry considered as a serving size or standard portion. The nutrition label would be expected to tell consumers how much fat, cholesterol and other ingredients would be in each portion.

The FDA, he said, opts for the actual size of food portions found to be favored by consumers. But there are some preliminary indications that USDA might choose the amount recommended daily for proper nutrition.

For example, according to Silverglade, a 3-ounce serving of steak might be recommended in a balanced daily diet. A label could reflect the fat and cholesterol in this size serving.

But actual servings favored by consumers might be 5 or 6 ounces, he said. And that could mean higher fat and cholesterol levels per portion than the recommended amount.

In any case, Silverglade said Congress should settle the matter and not leave it entirely for USDA to determine.

The move by the department was announced late last week by Jo Ann R. Smith, assistant secretary for marketing and inspection services, including federal inspection of meat and poultry.

Smith, who was the first woman president of the National Cattlemen's Association, said she had asked the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service "to seek input from industry, consumers and other interested parties" for the development of proposed standards for mandatory nutrition labeling of meat and poultry products.

"We recognize implementing mandatory nutrition labeling on meat and poultry products will not be simple," she said. "Meat and poultry present some unique challenges for nutrition labeling."

Smith said the agency soon will publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking so comments can be submitted.

Iraq has hampered the allied air attacks, and the Pentagon also says Iraq has been using wooden decoys to foil attacks on modified Scud missile launchers, a prime target.

Italy, one of the partners in the allied coalition, said its warplanes flew sorties at dawn today. It said their mission was a success but did not specify what they hit.

In the air campaign so far, 16 allied warplanes have been lost, including nine U.S. aircraft. Twentytwo allied fliers are missing in action, including 13 Americans, the Pentagon says

NBC and CBS today showed Iraqi television videotape of two more captured U.S. airmen. They were identified as Air Force Maj. Jeffrey Scott Tice and Capt. Harry Michael Roberts. Two airmen by those names were listed by the Pentagon on Sunday as missing in action.

Interviews with the two captured airmen were played on Iraqi TV and radio. In Nicosia, where the indistinct broadcasts were monitored, one man could be heard saying he flew an F-16E, based in Doha, Qatar, and had been on a mission to attack an oil refinery near Baghdad.

President Bush responded with cold fury to Iraq's announcement Monday that it would scatter captured allied pilots at potential target sites in a bid to stem the allied air assault. "This is not going to make a difference in the prosecution of the war" against Saddam, he said.

The United States filed complaints about the abuse of allied prisoners with the U.N. Security ouncil

For U.S. pilots, word that their captured comrades were being paraded on Iraqi television and coerced into making anti-U.S. statements struck close to home. 'We will hit 'em harder and make him pay for every violation of decency," said Air Force A-10 pilot Capt. Mike O'Dowd of Bergenfield,

But U.S. fliers were heartened by the daring rescue of a downed pilot from Iraqi territory on Monday. An Air Force search-and-rescue helicopter picked up the Navy F-14 Tomcat pilot who bailed out into a featureless expanse of desert after being hit by ground fire.

During the nerve-rattling rescue operation, an Iraqi army truck headed directly toward the stranded airman, but the ground support

The Pentagon, however, refused to discuss the incident, and made it clear it would become increasingly tight-lipped about other matters as well.

Defense Department spokesman Pete Williams said Monday the Pentagon will delay announcements about American planes being downed, because such announcements could make it more difficult for airmen to escape.

The military also said it would no longer release personal information or reveal the hometowns of missing service personnel. "Because of our experience in Vietnam, we found that this is stuff (captors) can use against them.' said Maj. Kathy White, a spokeswoman for the Tactical Air Command headquarters.

military officials would "fuzz it up a 'little bit'' regarding the number of Patriot missiles fired at Iraqi rockets - possibly because officials do not want the Iraqis to be able to calculate how many Patriots remain in the U.S. arsenal.

In addition to knocking out missile launchers, a chief aim of the allied air attacks is to inflict damage on Iraq's dug-in ground forces. Refugees crossing into Jordan from Iraq said Monday they saw heavy bombing of the elite Republican Guards in Basra over the weekend.
