Iraq reports civilian casualties

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Allied missiles slammed into a Baghdad bomb shelter early today, killing 500 civilians, Iraq said. The United States said the site was a bunker used as a military command center.

The number of deaths would be the single biggest loss of civilian life reported in the allied air war. The U.S. military command said the bunker had been recently painted in camouflage colors and was used by the Iraqi military command.

"We don't feel we attacked the wrong bunker," Marine Brig. Gen. Richard I. Neal told reporters in Riyadh today. "I can't explain, if there were civilians in there, why they were in there."

The deaths occurred during a 12-hour bombardment of Baghdad. One of the buildings hit — the Palace of Conferences — is across the street from the al-Rashid Hotel, where a Soviet envoy on a peace mission was staying. The diplomat met Tuesday with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

As the Persian Gulf War turned 4 weeks old, the Soviet diplomatic efforts to end it picked up with the announcement of plans for Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz to meet in Moscow with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Sunday's trip would be a followup to envoy Yevgeny Primakov's visit, the Kremlin said.

After meeting with Primakov, Saddam announced Iraq might be willing to talk. However, the White House noted he said nothing about the central issue in the conflict — ending the occupation of Kuwait.

U.S. military officials, meanwhile, said Iraq has managed to rig makeshift military communications and supply links despite allied bombing aimed at smashing them. They said Iraq was drawing on battlefield experience from the 1960-68 Iran-Iraq war.

The structure hit today also was a legacy of that war: It was one of five big air raid shelters built in the capital during that conflict. Neal said it had been upgraded to a hardened command and control bunker used for communications.

"If we thought that in fact there were civilians... absolutely no, we would not have attacked that bunker," Neal said.

"From a personal point of view, I'm outraged that civilians might have been placed in harm's way and I blame the Iraqi government and the Iraqi leadership for that," he said.

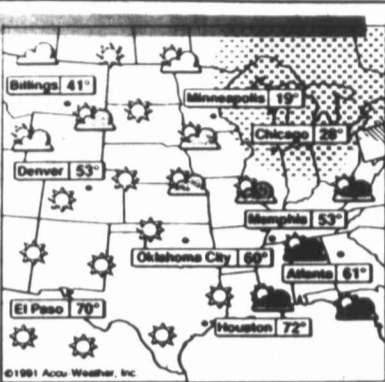

Iraqi witnesses said the shelter in the middle-class residential al-Amerieh district took direct hits from at least two missiles fired by allied warplanes. The missiles pierced 9 feet of concrete.

Rescuers clawing through the debris found eight survivors immediately after the bombing, AP correspondent Salah Nasrawi reported from the scene. The rescuers later said they retrieved more than 200 bodies, most of them charred and mutilated beyond recognition, Nasrawi reported.

Iraqi civil defense officials said lists compiled from residents indicated there were more than 500 people inside the structure when the warplanes struck before dawn. A senior civil defense official said scores of people remained buried in the rubble but there was no hope

Stenholm visit to cover health issues

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, will be in Big Spring Thursday and Friday to discuss health issues.

On Thursday he will meet with officials of the Big Spring State Hospital at 4:15 p.m. and on Friday with health professionals at 9:30 a.m. in the Tumbleweed Room at Howard College.

While in Big Spring Friday, he will speak to Howard College government and social science classes at 7:45 a.m. On Thursday night he will attend an invitation-only fundraiser in Stanton. He will depart for Sweetwater at 10:30 a.m. Friday.

Stenholm, who was recently selected as the National Rural Health Association's "Man of the Year," said in Big Spring last month that changes in rural health care will be a major concern of the 102nd Congress.

He is co-chairman of the House Rural Health Care Coalition and last month was appointed to the House Budget Committee. He is also chairman of the Livestock, Dairy and Poultry subcommittee and this year was again appointed as deputy majority whip for the House.

Flag to honor troops in gulf

A flag honoring the troops in the Persian Gulf will be raised at the KBYG studio in a dedication ceremony Saturday at 10 a.m. The radio station is located at 2801 Wason Road, near the Comanche Trail Park park entrance.

The flag, created by Errol Porter, bears the names of Big Spring residents serving in the gulf war. "It will fly until our troops come home," said Porter.

The ceremony will feature several guest speakers, including the Mayor and city council members. The VFW, American Legion and local support groups will be represented.

When the war is over, the flag will be donated to the historical museum, said Porter.

Citizen alleges use of explosives in city

By DEBBIE LINCEUM Staff Writer

The City Council of Big Spring considered a citizen complaint and declined to pay prisoner's medical bills in its meeting Tuesday.

Wayne Burns, who told the council he was appearing before them as a private citizen and not an attorney, alleged council member Tim Blackshear had used explosives in his demolition of downtown buildings.

Blackshear's company Earthco had been awarded a bid to demolish some buildings in the 200 block of Main Street for Big Spring Main Street Inc. Burns said his wife told him that after the demolition of a wall 25-30 feet tall, "there were literally bricks all over Main Street."

He noted bricks had damaged a car, owned by Cecil Raspberry, parked over 100 feet away. Damage to the car was later repaired at Earthco's expense.

"I think it is absolutely impossible that these bricks could have fallen and done the damage they did," Burns said. "If explosives were used, certainly that is terrible."

Member Corky Harris explained

he thought the bricks could have been blown out more than 100 feet by the force of the demolition and said he had experienced similar events.

"Each brick, each foot it is off the ground has that much more energy," he said.

Blackshear, who was not at the meeting, said today that "absolutely no explosives were used in the demolition of that building." He said the wall fell in a way the crew had not expected. People had been asked to move their cars, Blackshear said, and the area in front of the building had been barricaded.

Burns suggested the council members examine the Main Street area and consider his presentation to decide whether an investigation is necessary.

The council voted 5-1 against paying medical bills for persons who had been held at the Big Spring Police Department holding cell. Max Green voted against the council's decision.

Marvin Wise of Scenic Mountain Medical Center asked the council to pay the $3,947 in bills.

City Manager Hal Boyd explained

Suspect in custody after VA stabbing

By DEBBIE LINCEUM Staff Writer

A 73-year-old man was placed in the custody of FBI agents Tuesday after allegedly attacking a Big Spring VA Medical Center employee with a knife.

Bose Oliver Jones of Midland will appear before a magistrate in Lubbock today to face charges of assault, an FBI agent said.

Jones reportedly stabbed VA Medical Center employee Jesse Jones around noon Monday. When contacted about the incident, medical center officials refused to comment.

A spokesperson at the hospital said today Jesse Jones had been treated and released and is able to return to work.

Bose Jones was apprehended by Medical Center security and transported to a holding cell by the Big Spring Police Department, the agent said. He was listed on the department activity log Tuesday with charges of aggravated assault.

The agent described the stabbing incident as "bizarre."

"We took him to Lubbock yesterday, but the magistrate was unavailable," the agent said. "We'll take him back there today to hear the charges against him."

After Bose Jones is informed of the charges against him, the judge will decide whether to set bond or detain the defendant for three days before a hearing.

Paulina Jacobo, an assistant with the U.S. Attorney's Office, said Bose Jones would be charged with "assault with a dangerous weapon on the confines of federal property." She said indictment was likely.

Gulf mail slowed by supply movement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The need to move combat-related supplies and equipment is slowing mail deliveries to American troops in the Middle East, military officials say.

It takes an average of 13 to 17 days from the time a letter is mailed to the time it's delivered, Air Force Maj. Mark Rader said Tuesday.

"Competing priorities have caused less mail to be moved," said Rader, a spokesman for the Military Postal Service Agency.

"You have a lot of units moving around," he said. "Any time you pick up a whole unit from one part of Saudi Arabia and move it to another part, it's going to take some time to catch up."

There are 195 Army and Fleet Post Offices in the gulf area. "You have a finite number of trucks and planes to deal with," Rader said. "The transportation and supply lines and resources that are used to move that mail are also being used for combat-related supplies and equipment."

Shari Lawrence, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Total Army Personnel Command, said mail is a high priority, "but at this time we also have to move supplies and personnel."

"I don't know that 13 to 17 days is so long," she added. "That's from the time it leaves wherever it starts to the time it reaches the person."

Al DeSarro, a spokesman for the U.S. Postal Service, said mail generally is turned over to the military within three to five days of posting. As of a week ago, he said, the mail agency was handling 273,300 pounds of mail per day to

Ex lawmen enter guilty pleas

LUBBOCK (AP) — A trial of law enforcement in Eastland County has ended with the guilty pleas of the county's former sheriff and a Department of Public Safety trooper, the county's district attorney said.

"Law enforcement has been on trial here because of the sheriff," said Eastland County District Attorney Leslie Vance. "A lot of public distrust has built up. It's hopeful that we can regain a lot of lost confidence with honest peace officers in the future."

Former Eastland County Sheriff Dee Oseline Hogan and former DPS Trooper Acey Steel pleaded guilty Tuesday to federal charges accusing them of helping a West Texas drug ring.

The ring allegedly produced and distributed methamphetamine as far away as Florida. Four other suspects also pleaded guilty to charges in connection with the case.

Bill would shield performers

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposed bill would protect performers such as the controversial rap group 2 Live Crew from prosecution by overzealous district attorneys, the sponsor of the legislation says.

Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, discussed the bill Tuesday before the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee.

The measure would lower the penalty for live or recorded performances of songs or poetry containing obscene words from a third-degree felony or Class A misdemeanor to a Class C misdemeanor.

Wilson said the obscenity penalties should be weakened in part because they have been selectively enforced.

"It's only been 2 Live Crew and maybe some other rap groups" who have been charged with obscenity, Wilson said. "Let's get all of them or none of them. I don't think we ought to single people out because they sing a particular way or come from a particular area or happen to be a particular race."

Richards continues battle against board

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards has kept her sights on the State Board of Insurance, which she has claimed has failed to do a good enough job at protecting consumers.

On Tuesday, Richards demoted the current chairman and continued her push to place the agency under the control of a special panel.

Richards named her lone appointee to the Insurance Board, Austin lawyer Claire Koriath, as chair to replace James Saxton.

In her State of the State address to the Legislature last week, Richards called on Saxton and the third board member, Richard Reynolds, to resign by Friday.

Both Saxton and Reynolds, who are holdover appointees of former Gov. Bill Clements, have defended their performance and refuse to step down. Although no longer chairman, Saxton said he will continue to serve on the board.

"Two of the members of the board have been there for a while and we have not seen the kind of progress that we need to see," Richards said in designating Ms. Koriath the new board chairwoman.

Richards said the board has failed to warn consumers about financially ailing or fraudulent insurance companies, and has sided with the insurance industry in adopting rate increases.

"It's going to take people on that board who are really going to get busy about the matter of doing the things that we should have done a long time ago," she said.

Richards said she would continue to press for control of the mammoth agency that oversees the $30 billion per year insurance industry in Texas.

She has proposed placing the agency under the State Conservatorship Board. Placing an agency into conservatorship would require a finding of "gross fiscal mismanagement" by a committee composed of legislative leaders.

The Senate Nominations Committee on Tuesday recommended on a 5-0 vote the appointments of Georgina Gonzalez of Houston, former Texas Supreme Court justice William Kilgarlin of Austin and Joseph Phillips of Mission to that conservatorship board.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said he has not seen any evidence of wrongdoing that would trigger conservatorship of the insurance agency.

Report: Native American population growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Indians were Texas' second-fastest growing population during the 1980s, and one reason may be that they're proud to acknowledge their ancestry after decades of feeling ashamed of their roots, officials say.

"People are taking more and more pride in their ancestry and they are acknowledging the fact that they are Indian," says Alan H. Minter, an Austin attorney who has represented the Tigua Indians of El Paso and the Alabama-Coushatta of Polk County.

Minter said he can remember when Indians would not admit they were Indian "because that put them on a lower social scale, job-wise and living condition-wise, than even the poorest barrio Mexican-American population."

"Discrimination is no longer associated (with being Indian) as it once was. There's nothing wrong now with saying I'm one-quarter Indian," says Julio Frausto Jr., tribal administrator of the Kickapoo Traditional Tribe of Texas.

Another reason for the growth, officials say, is that Indians from

"They're a lot more educated now, have good jobs, bigger families, and they're not going to give up their Indian heritage. They maintain it and they guard it, and anything that helps them do that, they're going to seize on that."

surrounding states with large Indian populations and depressed economies, like Oklahoma and New Mexico, may have been drawn to Texas by job opportunities.

Third, some of the growth may be natural — with births exceeding deaths.

"It's a numbers gain — more survived, didn't die off from poverty, starvation, alcoholism," Minter said Tuesday. "They're a lot more educated now, have good jobs, bigger families, and they're not going to give up their Indian heritage. They maintain it and they guard it, and anything that helps them do that, they're going to seize on that."

According to Frank McLemore, Texas had 65,877 Indians, Eskimos or Aleuts, a 64 percent increase and intended for educators and social service providers, many of Texas' Indians live in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

A survey two years ago of people using a clinic operated by the Dallas Intertribal Center "easily identified between 19,000 and 20,000 American Indians in the Dallas-Fort Worth area," said McLemore, a full-blood Cherokee who also is teaching the Cherokee language at Southern Methodist University.

That survey, combined with a tally of 28 universities and colleges in the area and of 48 independent school districts, found Indians representing 131 different tribes, McLemore said.

The Dallas Independent School District alone had students from 117 federally recognized tribes enrolled last school year, McLemore said.

Dallas became a haven for American Indians in the 1960s and 1970s, when Indians from Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico, Louisiana, Florida and the Dakotas came or were forced to move to the city by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, which had a relocation office that provided job training, McLemore said.

According to Frank McLemore, managing editor of Dreamweaver Publication in Dallas, a monthly newspaper devoted to Indian issues

Phillips: more reforms needed

AUSTIN (AP) — Judges and lawyers can make some improvements in the judicial system, but major reforms are needed that only can be initiated by the Legislature, Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Thomas Phillips said.

In his State of the Judiciary address Tuesday to lawmakers, Phillips advocated changing the way judges are selected, full state funding for Texas courts, and ethics reform legislation setting high standards for judges.

"We need fundamental reform on many fronts before our state can realize its full potential of providing available, affordable and timely justice for all," Phillips said.

He said the courts and State Bar of Texas would do their part, including providing services to the poor. But the "most fundamental reforms," including changing the way judges are selected, are the Legislature's responsibility, Phillips said.

"Only you can initiate the procedure to replace an electoral system that is too partisan, too expensive, and possibly unlawful with a modern system of judicial selection that enhances accountability, independence and competence," Phillips said.

That echoed his first State of the Judiciary speech to the Legislature in 1989, when he advocated a system of appointing judges who would then periodically stand unopposed for election. The plan would require a constitutional amendment to be approved by voters.

Phillips, the first Republican elected chief justice, also said that ethics legislation should apply to the judiciary, calling that branch of government "most dependent on public confidence."

Defense system is five years away

WASHINGTON (AP) — A limited version of the Star Wars missile defense system that would protect against short-range attacks could be ready in five years at a cost of $9 billion, according to senior defense officials.

Henry Cooper, director of the Pentagon's Strategic Defense Initiative Office, told reporters Tuesday that the modified program would use ground-based missile interceptors.

The missile defense system, called G-PALS, or Global Protection Against Limited Strikes, would use a satellite tracking system for guidance, he said.

In a new twist, Cooper said his office also is considering adapting the anti-missile system for use aboard ships and aircraft to defend against short-range attacks.

Cooper said a more elaborate system designed to intercept long-range ballistic missiles could be deployed by the end of the decade at an additional cost of about $32 billion.

Congress cut the Pentagon's anti-missile budget for this fiscal year to $2.89 billion, far below what the Bush administration had requested. Cooper said that unless Congress provides additional money in future years, the G-PALS system would not be operational until the 21st century.

Last month, President Bush ordered that the Star Wars program, which originated in the Reagan administration, be refocused to concentrate on a defense against accidental or unauthorized launches.

Pregnant diabetics need education

CHICAGO (AP) — Diabetic women who receive a refresher course on how to manage their disease before they become pregnant can dramatically reduce their likelihood of bearing defective babies, said a study released today.

"Diabetes care has to begin before pregnancy," said the study's principal author, Dr. John L. Kitzmiller, a professor at the University of California, San Francisco.

Pregnant diabetics who don't get early treatment are about five times more likely to bear defective babies, the researchers said in the study published today in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Kitzmiller said diabetic women who begin getting care before they become pregnant have no greater risk of having babies with birth defects than do women without diabetes. But waiting only until the sixth week of pregnancy to start getting care begins increasing the risk, the study said.

From 10,000 to 14,000 infants are born to women with diabetes each year, said Michele Kling, spokeswoman for the March of Dimes. The most common defects they suffer are incomplete brain, spine or heart formation, she said.

The study compared the rate of birth defects in children born to women participating in a preconception education program with the rate in women who did not begin care until they were between six and 32 weeks pregnant.

Tammy Faye predicts vindication

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Jim Bakker eventually will be acquitted of his mail, fraud and conspiracy convictions, his wife predicted after a federal appeals court overturned the former televangelist's 45-year prison term.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Tuesday upheld Bakker's 1989 convictions but said the trial judge was influenced by his religious beliefs when he sentenced Bakker to 45 years and fined him $500,000 in October 1989. The three-judge panel ordered that Bakker be resentenced by a different judge.

"Everyone is excited and we're deeply grateful," Bakker's wife, Tammy Faye, said at her New Covenant Ministry Church near Orlando, Fla. "And I believe that before this is over, Jim is going to be totally exonerated of all wrongdoing."

Bakker, who founded the PTL network, was convicted by a jury of defrauding followers who bought partnerships in PTL's Heritage USA vacation park and retreat in Fort Mill, S.C.

During sentencing in Charlotte, N.C., U.S. District Judge Robert D. Potter said Bakker "had no thought whatever about his victims and those of us who do have a religion are ridiculed as being saps (for) money-grubbing preachers or priests."

Potter declined to comment on Tuesday's appeals court ruling.

Demand for flags is exceeding the supply

Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Gulf War triggers increased demand.

Hard-pressed suppliers struggle to keep up.

No, the commodity in question is not oil.

It is the American flag — and the middlemen are members of Congress.

A rise in patriotic feeling accompanying the outbreak of the war with Iraq has led to a rapidly increasing demand for one of the more unusual constituent services supplied by lawmakers.

At costs running between $7.69 and $15.35, lawmakers will arrange for flags obtained from congressional supply offices to be shipped to an out-of-the-way office. There, in a process repeated hundreds of times each day, they are raised up a flagpole and immediately lowered so that another banner can go up.

Lawmakers then supply constituents with the flag and a certificate that indicates the date Old Glory proudly waved over the Capitol — however briefly.

But the process has slowed in recent weeks as lawmakers have inundated the offices that supply the flags and track the banners that have flown over the Capitol.

Shelves in the House stationery shop where flags were stored were empty at one point last week. Stocks have been replenished somewhat but it will still be some time before supplies will equal demand, said Raymond Colley, a deputy in the House Clerk's office.

"We can't handle all the increase in order. But we will catch up," Colley said.

Flag fever has hit particularly hard in the Capitol's flag office, where seven workers type certificates and log flags flown over the building.

"After Jan. 16, we got busy, busy, busy," said a harried sounding Christine Benza, who heads the office.

Since the beginning of the year, she said, 17,388 flags have been flown over the Capitol — with all but 3,000 having been flown after the outbreak of the war.

On Capitol Hill, where fresh-faced pages and interns lugging large numbers of flag boxes through the hallways is a common sight, many offices are also facing a war-induced flag frenzy. "We have had a four-fold increase in our usual amount of flag requests," said Morgan Broman, administrative assistant for Rep. Richard Neal, D-Mass.

Delays in getting flags to constituents vary from office to office. Some staffers say they stocked up before the war broke out and are keeping up, while others report delays of up to three weeks in getting flags out to constituents.

Even in more peaceful times a turnaround time of two to three weeks is not unusual.

Bomb scare delays flight to U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — A U.S.-bound United Airlines flight was forced to return to Tokyo tonight after passengers brandished an object that looked like a bomb, Transport Ministry officials said.

United spokesman Sarah Dornacker in Chicago said, "It is unequivocally not a hijack," describing the incident as "a security-related matter." She said there were 296 passengers and a crew of 20 on board and that about two hours after departure the captain advised Tokyo he was returning to Narita Airport.

Dornacker said the San Francisco-bound plane is a Boeing 747-100, and "We expect a normal safe landing" within the hour, adding that the passengers are now watching an inflight movie.

A Transport official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said an unknown number of passengers on board United Flight 58 had been shouting and exhibiting the object.

United sources in Tokyo, also requesting anonymity, said the pilot had decided to return for "security reasons."

Security officers at Tokyo's international airport said, however, no hijack signal had been received from the plane's flight crew.

The flight left Tokyo at 7:45 p.m. (5:45 a.m. today), officials said. They said it was due in Tokyo at 12:40 a.m. Thursday (10:40 a.m. EST today).

Mulroney hopes for restructuring

TORONTO (AP) — Canada must be restructured, not dismantled, Prime Minister Brian Mulroney said Tuesday.

"Canada is not up for grabs," he said in a luncheon speech to the Empire and Canadian Clubs. "Either you have a country or you don't. You can't have it both ways."

His remarks come as debate continues over whether largely French-speaking Quebec, an economic powerhouse within Canada, will try to break from the Canadian confederation.

Mulroney said he's aware of the way some Quebecers feel about remaining in Canada, and is prepared to look at changes in the way confederation works, but added: "Several basic principles must be respected."

He said changes have to be economically sound. They must be practical, ensure pensions and health care and establish equal rights for all.

The prime minister said there is anger on both sides of the debate on separation.

"We have to be alive to the sense of deep rejection felt in Quebec at the failure to ratify the Meech Lake accord," he said of the measure rejected in June.

Two key witnesses refuse to testify

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Two key state witnesses refused to testify against Winnie Mandela today, saying they feared reprisal after another witness was kidnapped.

The witnesses, Kenneth Kgase and Tabiso Mono, appeared in the Rand Supreme Court but refused to give any evidence against Mrs. Mandela, wife of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela.

She faces kidnapping and assault charges for her alleged involvement in the abduction and beatings of Kgase, Mono, Gabriel Mekgwe and Stompie Seipei in December 1988.

Kgase, 31, glanced repeatedly at Mrs. Mandela and three co-defendants.

"I really like my life, I want my life," he said.

Children eat what they need

About once a week, the typical parent of a small child, surveying a plate of uneaten food, decides the little tyke is going to starve. It is about then that the action begins. For the 2-year-old, it is disinformation. "Hmmm, this (broccoli, spinach, green bean, cauliflower, tomato — name your poison) tastes better than cookies." For the 5-year-old, it is an early dose of social guilt. "Don't you know that there are homeless children going hungry?" And from the other side of the front lines comes the inevitable salvo, usually a variant on the famous New Yorker cartoon. "I say it's spinach, and I say the hell with it." The battle is joined.

For the combat-weary, research now offers reason for a dinner-time truce. In the study published recently in the New England Journal of Medicine, University of Illinois researchers put a variety of nutritious food, from breakfast cereal to broccoli to cottage cheese to ham to brownies, in front of kids aged 2 to 5 at three daily meals and three snacks. The children were allowed to eat as much — or as little as they wanted. The researchers then measured what the kids had eaten, meal by meal, day by day.

Although the kids' eating habits looked bizarre and highly individual — gorging at breakfast one day, picking at the waffles the next — none starved. To the contrary, the study found that the children were highly consistent in how much food they took in each day, matching their intake to their energy needs. It seems that young children, given a menu of good foods to choose from, will eat what they require, and only that. Where did the rest of us go so wrong?

And now a word from a private military expert

Every network covering the war — ABC, NBC, BBC, CBS, TBS, PMS, CNN, FNN, ESPN, L&N, DUI, DDT and even the Disney Channel — has a military expert to comment on how the fighting is going.

Not to be left out, this column finally has found a military expert of its own. Unfortunately, all the good ones were already taken, but, as Commander in Chief Bush reminds us, "it's never easy in wartime."

So, allow me to introduce you to Pfc. Arnold "Mophead" Duckworthy, currently assigned to the Tactical Custodial Strike Unit at the Pentagon.

"Welcome to the column, Pfc. Duckworthy."

"Make it fast. Got an overflow commode coming down."

"Pfc., what do you think of those Iraqi Scuds being fired at Israel and Saudi Arabia?"

"They're scudzy, them Iraqis. I'll agree with that. Scud's harder to pop off a floor than dog poop."

"Do you think the Patriots are doing a good job?"

"The Patriots? What were they, 2-14. They're worse than the Falcons."

"We seem to be having a bit of a communication problem here, Private, but let's go to another question. What's your opinion of the Stealth bomber?"

"I never seen one."

"Private Duckworthy, as you know, the Allies have launched heavy bomb strikes into Iraq. What do you think Saddam Hussein is saying to his aides?"

"What the hell was that?"

"I also know you can't tell us all you know to keep Saddam from getting information on Allied strategy, but what role has Diego Garcia, one of the first bases involved, played thus far?"

"Diego Garcia ain't no first baseman. He's the best outfielder Cleveland's had since Larry Doby. I thought you wanted to talk to me about the war."

"I do, Private. What can you tell us about chemical weapons?"

"All I know is what we use at the Pentagon. If Drano won't unclog it, then we strike with Liquid Plumb. That don't work, we still have a couple of options. There's Janitor in a Jar and Two Thousand Flushes. Pinesol Mist is used only for cleaning up purposes."

"Most interesting, but there are still more unanswered questions. Do you think Peter Arnett of CNN was correct when he said the Allied planes hit a powdered milk factory, or was it a chemical weapons plant as the administration claims?"

"Probably a 7-11. You knock them out and you paralyze the entire country. Where are you going to buy the necessities of life like Fritos and Bean Dip?"

"Most reports say we are controlling the skies over there. But exactly how much damage have we done to Iraq?"

"I can't be specific about on-going operations. All I can tell you is we've hit 80 percent of whatever we've hit."

"We're running out of space, Pfc. One last question: 'Is the war right on schedule,' as President Bush has said?"

"You'll have to ask CNN about that. They're the ones who have to work in the commercials between missile attacks."

"Thank you, Private Duckworthy."

"Up next, Peter Arnett's phone bill. Can Ted Turner afford it?"

Quotes

"Despite the economic events of 1990, we have reason for both hope and optimism in full measure as the nation approaches the next century." — President George Bush in his introduction to the "Economic

Report of the President."

"I am just delighted. I just talked to my husband and the whole prison was excited for him. He was in a no-smoking class, and they broke in on the middle of the class and said, 'Jim, Jim, you've won part of your appeal!'" — Tammy Faye Bakker.

Praising every culture except Western

James J. Kilpatrick

WASHINGTON — Let us examine, if you please, this postulate: Shakespeare's plays are good. In many college classrooms these days, such an examination would end before it had fairly begun.

This is because all white males are racist oppressors; Shakespeare was a white male; therefore, Shakespeare was a racist oppressor. On correct campuses, such racist oppressors as old Bill are held in contempt. Their writings may be studied, but only to reveal the bias they contain.

Did you suggest that Shakespeare's plays are "good"? What do you mean by "good"? Are you contending that some plays are "better" than other plays? Do you believe that Western moral and cultural values are superior values? If you hold such views, your views are not politically correct. You must attend classes in attitudinal adjustment.

The intellectual virus that has infected our institutions of higher learning evidently has reached epidemic proportions. In its special issue of Feb. 18, The New Republic performs a notable public service — all the more notable because of the magazine's long identification as a forum for predominately "liberal" thought. Almost the entire issue is given over to an exposure of such bizarre phenomena as the "Duke Vision" and the "Smith Design." In taking the offensive against this intellectual corruption, The New Republic's editors demonstrate true liberalism at its best.

If the situation were not so appalling, the whole business would be funny. One year for a Jonathan Swift, or a Franz Kafka. Where is the contemporary satirist to puncture these gassy balloons? There is something fundamentally ridiculous in the new orthodoxy of the politically correct. In today's academic groves, words do somersaults. "Diversity" means "sameness." Free speech carries a heavy cost.

The general idea in these intellectual zoos is that all cultures are equal. There no longer is such a value as "merit." The rule applies to language. It also applies to music, with the result that Mozart is no better than rap.

By the canons of political correctness, standard English is no better than black English because there is no such thing as good, better and best. The two languages are different, that is all. And students must be encouraged, or required, to study them equally and to accord them equal respect.

This lunacy is now taken seriously. Writing in The New Republic, Fred Siegel looks at multiculturalism as the virus has infected Duke University. Entering first-year students go through a brainwash in the fashion of a carwash. The purpose is to remove the grime of incorrect thinking. Perceptive students learn that "Duke's Vision" of multicultural equality is the school's official ideology, against which aberrant thoughts must be measured.

For Duke students, a preference for one system of values, based solely on any one culture, is "a denial of the humanity of others." At Stanford, the precepts of Newthink require that DWEMs be repudiated. These wretches are, of course, Dead White European Males — Plato, Ovid, Voltaire, Gibbon, Eliot.

At Smith College, the president is pushing an agenda of affirmative action that is nothing if not sweeping. The Office of Student Affairs distributes a bulletin that identifies forbidden attitudes. One offense is to be guilty of "ableism," that is, "oppression of the differently abled by the temporarily abled." Another offense is "lookism," involving standards of physical beauty.

On many campuses, students risk suspension or expulsion if they are heard voicing any "discriminatory" or "disparaging" remarks about another student's race, sex, religion, color, creed, disability, sexual orientation, national origin, ancestry or age.

Here and there a few courageous professors and deans have resisted the onslaught. Several institutions have revoked or diluted their original codes of correct speech. It is immensely gratifying to learn that students increasingly are rebelling against the absurdities of Newthink. Conservatives and liberals alike are rising to the defense of Western values.

Maybe the process of corruption will soon run its course, but don't bet on it. The academic dragons of Newthink are in the saddle, booted and spurred. It will take a major effort to unseat them. Those who love our Western inheritance had better get off their rumps and fight.

A little spark can light the way

For what it's worth

By BILL AYRES
City Editor

There have been numerous stories concerning the plight of the educational system in this country. America seems to be falling behind the rest of the industrialized nations in math and science.

Several states, including Texas, have instituted various types of tests to gauge what our students have been taught.

Considering the impact one person can have on another, it seems to me our educational system would improve if it allowed teachers to interact with their students.

Most people my age can remember a few teachers who have influenced our lives. These teachers were the type who, good or bad, shaped how a student reacted to learning.

There was one teacher I had in elementary school who was so well thought of that, when she announced her retirement, her students cried.

It was her goal to make education fun, as well as instructional. One afternoon, while we were studying the types of rocks and minerals that make up the planet, she turned a seemingly boring lecture into a surprisingly fun time.

At the end of the week she had all of us move our chairs into a circle. From beneath her desk she took a big box of dirty rocks and some strange type of light. One of the students closed the curtains and another turned off the lights. The teacher turned on the strange light, which we were later told was a black light, and suddenly ugly rocks exploded with color.

All of us were enthralled. In fact, when the bell rang at the end of the school day, none of us wanted to leave. It was a lesson that has stayed with me.

By the time I reached eighth grade, I was required to decide what I wanted to be for the rest of my life. In the state where I grew up the school system was structured in such a way that high school was pre-college.

That is, if you wanted to become a doctor or lawyer or something like that, it was pre-college. If you wanted to get out and get a job, other course plans were available.

My eighth grade teacher was a frustrated doctor. He was doing his internship when his family demands required he look at something he could do immediately. By the time I got to know him, his family had grown to seven kids.

Since I was an asthmatic, he saw in me the chance to fulfill the dream he missed. He coached me, directed me and, when the time came to select my high school courses, he even did that.

And at the time, I really believed that I wanted to study medicine.

Another thing about the school system where I grew up was that they kept a file on every student. This file followed the student from grade to grade. If a student was determined to be an underachiever, then so he remained. A student had to change his entire attitude to have an effect on his file.

Students, especially in the higher grades, were placed in classrooms by their status. It was hard to break out of the mold.

But, given direction and encouragement, I decided not only to become a doctor, but do so with honors. Grades became very important to me.

At last, they did until I met the teacher who had the profoundest effect on me.

He was an American History teacher. Now, history is my thing. I enjoy it almost as much as I enjoy good music. This teacher, not much older than the students he was teaching, had similar interests.

One afternoon he told us he wanted each of us to do a term paper. He said this would prepare us for our junior and senior class papers. He didn't expect it to be polished, but wanted some original concepts.

I jumped at the chance to impress this man with my knowledge. I decided to do my paper on how the U.S. military is forced by budget cuts to disarm to dangerous levels after every war.

The day he passed the papers back, he asked to see me after class. My paper had a "C", with a note saying it deserved better.

After school he told me if I would document the source of the items he felt I was incapable of writing, he would give me the higher grade.

Try as I might that day — and my mother the next day — I could not convince him I did the work. You see, he had seen my file and knew I could not do the work.

I decided at that point all I wanted was to get out. So I went to see the school counselor. After reviewing my file, he agreed I should take business courses in order to prepare myself for the outside world, because I wasn't college material.

He even suggested I consider joining the military after graduation. At least that way I would be guaranteed a living.

Regardless of what direction my life actually took, these people influenced me. And while not every teacher can inspire students to greatness, they need to be given the freedom to try.

A teacher must be allowed to wander outside the boundaries in order to spark a little creative thinking. If you look through the biographies of some of our great men, you'll find they were not great students. All admit that someone along the way supplied a spark.

And that's for what it's worth!

Serve a rich and romantic dessert

Never mind common red. This Valentine's Day, serve your sweetheart a dessert that is more refined, yet anything but dull. The Kahlua Tuxedo Torte is a simple-to-make confection with all the impact of Cary Grant in tails. A purchased pound cake is sliced thin, then layered and iced with rich Kahlua chocolate icing. The lingering taste is a hint of mocha that is warm and romantic.

Or consider Kahlua Zebras, small cheesecake-like squares with a beautiful marbled finish. The lover expecting a box of something rich and wonderful will remember these for months. Kahlua-Topped Coconut Mousse takes a little more time to prepare than the other, but for a formal evening there are few things that can match a mousse for elegance.

KAHLUA TEXEDO TORTE
Serves about 8
5 tablespoons Kahlua
1 (6-ounce) package semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1/4 cup powdered sugar
4 egg yolks
1/2 cup unsalted butter, room temperature
1 (11- to 14-ounce) prepared pound cake

In small saucepan, heat Kahlua over medium heat until bubbles form around edge. In blender, combine hot Kahlua and chocolate pieces. Process until chocolate is melted and moisture is smooth. Transfer mixture to bowl, cover and refrigerate about 1 hour or until spreading consistency.

Holding long, serrated knife parallel to working surface, carefully slice cake into six even layers. Place first layer on serving plate or tray and spread with chocolate mixture to form frosting layer about 3/8-inch thick. Add second layer of cake and continue to frost until all cake layers are used. Spread remaining frosting over top and sides of cake. Refrigerate at least 1 hour, or until ready to serve, up to 24 hours ahead.

KAHLUA ZEBRAS
Makes 18 bars
2 (3-ounce) packages cream cheese, room temperature

Serve your special sweetheart something deliciously rich and romantic this Valentine's Day, a Kahlua chocolate icing torte that has a hint of mocha.

3 eggs
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour
6 tablespoons unsalted butter, cut in small pieces, room temperature
1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup Kahlua

In bowl, combine cream cheese, 1 egg, 1/4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour and 2 tablespoons butter. Beat until light and fluffy. Set aside. Into separate bowl, sift remaining sugar and flour with cocoa powder, baking powder and salt. Stir in remaining butter and Kahlua. Beat until smooth. Beat in remaining 2 eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Transfer mixture to buttered and floured 9-inch square baking pan, spreading evenly. Spoon cheese mixture over chocolate batter, spacing evenly. Run knife through batters to marbleize. Bake at 325 degrees F., about 30 minutes. Cool on rack. Cut into 3-inches x 1 1/2 inch bars. Store in refrigerator.

KAHLUA-TOPPED COCONUT MOUSSE
Serves 8

Shortening
8 ounces semi-sweet chocolate
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
1/2 (16 ounce) can cream of coconut

2/3 cup flaked coconut
1 egg white
2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup Kahlua, or more
Place dab of shortening in each bottom of 8 muffin cups. Line cups with cupcake papers, pressing against shortening to secure. Set aside.

In top of double boiler, melt chocolate. Place about 1 tablespoon chocolate in bottom of each cupcake paper. Using small pastry brush, brush chocolate evenly up sides of cups to within 1/8 inch of top. Chill.

Place milk in small saucepan. Sprinkle gelatin over top. Place over low heat and stir until gelatin completely dissolves. Stir in cream of coconut and flaked coconut. Transfer to medium bowl and chill until the consistency of egg white, stirring occasionally.

Meanwhile, remove chocolate cups from muffin tins and carefully peel away papers. Set on small individual dessert plates or shallow bowls.

In small bowl, beat egg white until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar, beating until stiff glossy peaks form. Carefully fold egg white into chilled coconut mixture. Spoon about 1/4 cup coconut mixture into each chocolate cup and chill until ready to serve. To serve, slowly drizzle about 1 1/2 teaspoons Kahlua over mousse in each cup. Or, alternately, serve Kahlua on the side in glasses for guests to sip or pour as desired over desserts.

Easy decorations create lavish look

Enhance your best-loved Valentine dessert with a chocolate decoration to make it even more lavish. Nancy Byal, food editor of Better Homes and Gardens magazine, explains how to make six dazzling decorations:

CURLS
For curls, use a bar of chocolate that's at room temperature. Carefully draw a vegetable peeler across the chocolate, making thin, curling strips.

For shaved chocolate, using a vegetable peeler, make short quick strokes across the surface of a room-temperature bar of chocolate to make thin, irregular pieces.

To grate, rub a cool, firm square of chocolate across a hand grater.

CUTOUTS
Melt together 1 cup of semisweet chocolate pieces and 1 tablespoon shortening over low heat, stirring constantly. Or, to melt in the microwave oven, place chocolate and shortening in a 2-cup measure and cook on 100 percent power (high) for 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 minutes, stirring after every minute. Pour melted chocolate onto a waxed-paper-lined baking sheet, spreading 1/4 to 1/8 inch thick. Chill until almost set.

Firmly press hors d'oeuvre or tiny cookie cutters into chocolate. Chill.

At serving time, lift cutouts from baking sheet with spatula. Be careful not to touch the surface with your fingers;

TWO-CHOCOLATE LACE
Melt together 1 cup chocolate pieces and 1 tablespoon shortening over low heat, stirring constantly.

Line a baking sheet with waxed paper or foil. Using a pastry bag fitted with a writing tip or a heavy-duty plastic bag with a small hole cut in one corner, drizzle the melted chocolate over the waxed paper in a 2-by 1 1/2-inch lacy zigzag. Chill in the freezer 5 minutes or until set.

Meanwhile, finely chop 3 ounces white baking bar with cocoa butter and melt with 1 tablespoon shortening over very low heat, stirring constantly.

Using a pastry bag with a writing tip or a heavy-duty plastic bag with a small hole in one corner, randomly drizzle the white mixture on top of the chocolate design. Chill in freezer 5 minutes or until set.

Store in a dry, cool place (between 65 degrees F and 75 degrees F) until serving time.

LEAVES
In a heavy saucepan heat 2 ounces semisweet chocolate pieces over very low heat, stirring constantly until chocolate begins to melt. Remove from heat and stir until smooth.

With a small paintbrush, brush melted chocolate on the underside of non-toxic, pesticide-free fresh leaves such as rose, lemon or ivy. Carefully wipe off any chocolate that runs onto the front of the leaves.

Place leaves, chocolate side up, on a baking sheet lined with waxed paper; chill or freeze until set.

Just before using, carefully peel the fresh leaves away from the chocolate leaves.

Add an extra touch of intimacy

The quiet, simple pleasures of romance are in the air this year. The materialism of the 80's has been replaced by a return to intimacy and warm emotions. This Valentine's Day brings a host of simple moments, soft pastels and heartwarming pinks.

Below are a few ways to instill a spirit of romance in your Valentine's Day, compliments of the Blossom Hill Collection, a line of fine varietal wines from California featuring a romantic floral label.

Instead of Valentine's Day red this year, get in the pink. Fashion experts forecast that pink is in vogue. A popular, friendly color, pink has inherent emotional appeal.

Personal note-writing is back for the 90's. Rather than a store-bought card, compose a poetic love letter on scented-note paper for the object of your affections.

Take time out to enjoy a quiet, afternoon tea complete with heart-shaped scones and butter shortbread cookies.

Rather than splurging on a lavish night out, relish the single magic of sharing an elegant, candlelit meal at home.

PMS?

"In practice for life"

Pre-menstrual Syndrome (PMS) is a major problem for many women. While 20-40% of all women experience some degree of difficulty, only 5% report a significant impact on work or life style. The symptoms of PMS include breast swelling, abnormal bloating, increased thirst or appetite, headaches, craving for sweets, and emotional reactions such as anxiety, restlessness, irritability, depression, hostility, and a loss of self-confidence. All occur during the last 7-10 days of the menstrual and end abruptly or gradually with the onset of menstruation.

Since the cause of PMS is unknown, no current therapy has been proven to be superior but must be tailored to the patient's individual symptoms. Dietary modification, vitamin therapy, diuretics, progesterone, and certain anti-depressants have given women relief.

If you or someone you love is experiencing problems possibly related to PMS, call or write our office for more information without obligation. Consultation with a gynecologist is the first step.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: Don't tell me that tomorrow is St. Valentine's Day already — we just finished with Christmas. Well, it is, so be a sweetheart and call someone and say, "Hi, I love you." Make two or three calls — who said you can't love more than one person? In different ways, of course.

Be a sweetheart and go through your closets and part with all those clothes you've been saving until you lose 10 pounds. Your favorite charity can turn those good-as-new garments into cash.

Be a sweetheart and call someone who's lonely and say, "I'm thinking about you." Or better yet, say, "I'll be over tomorrow and take you to lunch, run some errands or give you a ride."

Arrange a date for some nice person who doesn't get many. Be a sweetheart and forgive an enemy, quit smoking, count your calories, return that book (and everything else) you've borrowed. Update your will, donate your eyes, your kidneys and all usable organs to someone who can use them after you're gone. Spay your dog, neuter your cat, toss some bread crumbs out for the birds, pay your doctor and your dentist. If you can't pay all your bill — pay part of it to show good faith. Hug your teen-ager, listen to a bore, vow to separate your trash, and recycle your paper if you're not already doing it.

Promise yourself to drive carefully, and if you're walking, thank God you're able to, and watch where you're going. Pray for the safety of all our men and women who are serving their country in all four corners of the world, and pray for their families at home who are doing without them. And don't wait until next St. Valentine's Day to be a sweetheart again. — LOVE, ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a man, and we are talking about getting married. We are both mature people and have been on several trips together, so we are not exactly strangers — ahem. I think you get my drift. There is one problem: I find it impossible to sleep in the same bed with him. I am a very light sleeper and need my full eight hours' sleep, but this man is not only a snorer, he constantly tosses and turns, and he talks in his sleep!

The idea of separate beds has entered my mind, but it is not a possibility for me because I love to fall asleep in his arms.

Is there a solution to this problem? — INSOMNIAC
DEAR INSOMNIAC: Go ahead and fall asleep in his arms, and when he starts to snore and thrash around, take your pillow and move to a quieter place.

DEAR ABBY: Last year, a woman (unmarried) who works in our office received flowers, candy and several valentines — all from imaginary "admirers." Everyone knew she had sent them to herself, but nobody let on, of course. She will probably be "remembered" by these same gentlemen friends whom nobody has ever met tomorrow when St. Valentine's Day rolls around again.

What do you think of a grown woman who would pull such a childish stunt? And how should we — who are not fooled — react? — THE OFFICE GANG

DEAR GANG: I think she's pathetic and sadly in need of attention. React as if she had put one over the home plate. You will have made her day, and it won't cost you anything.

Hundreds celebrate

CHAPMAN, Neb. (AP) — It wasn't time to celebrate the last day of school, but the 100th day of kindergarten at Chapman's District 9 School made it a good day for a party.

And everyone brought 100 of something.

It was all part of teacher Jan Blase's goal to teach her 19 students to count to 100 by year's end.

Ariel Pearce brought 100 pieces of candy — on Monday, a day early, as a precaution.

"My mom forgets all the time," she explained.

Ricky Johnson produced 100 Band Aids, and he said he planned to leave them at the school "for when we get hurt."

"It was the only thing we had 100 of at home," he added.

The group, bedecked with "100" paper necklaces and headbands, counted the items aloud.

Ms. Blase said about three-fourths of her students can already count to 100.

And of herself?
"I've survived teaching 100 days of kindergarten," she said.

Send early. Stay late!

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

• Two women are reported in good condition at Scenic Mountain Medical Center after a one-car accident late Tuesday on IH-20. Gina Kay Tonn, 30, and Terri Bradley, 38, both of Big Spring, sustained injuries when Tonn's vehicle struck a guard rail at a road construction site near Bowl-A-Rama. Police cited failure to pay attention, speeding and possible use of alcohol.

• A hit-and-run accident caused damage to a car in the parking lot of the Senior Citizens' Center shortly before noon Tuesday.

• A 37-year-old local woman reported an attempted aggravated robbery. A man with a gun reportedly threatened her, but she was able to escape. A 17-year-old Big Spring resident was arrested for attempted aggravated robbery.

• A car struck a school bus at the corner of Goliad and Sixth streets about noon Tuesday. No injuries were reported, but damage to the bus was evident, reports said.

• Two local residents were transported to hospitals by relatives after an accident at the intersection of IH-20 and Highway 87. A car driven by Lonnie Tellman Shoultz, 79, Forsan, struck a vehicle driven by Allen Wayne Hendrix, 19, Big Spring while attempting to turn. Shoultz was cited for failure to yield right of way.

• Both drivers involved reportedly left the scene of an accident in the 1700 block of Young Street. One driver called the police department an hour later, and the other called from the hospital, reports said. Officers could not diagram the scene nor determine who was at fault because of conflicting stories.

• A gas station at the intersection of IH-20 and Highway 350 reported $600 in damage to vending machines.

• Burglary of a vehicle was reported in the parking lot of a truck stop on IH-20. More than $700 worth of equipment was reported taken.

Parliament bans party defections

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's parliament has approved an electoral reform bill punishing legislators for defecting to other parties in return for payments, political power or other personal gain.

Uriel Lynn, head of the parliament's law committee, said the measure passed Tuesday is designed to end longstanding abuses of office by elected officials.

He denied the bill was rushed because of fears some lawmakers may leave the coalition government in disagreement over Israel's missile attacks.

The 120-seat parliament, or Knesset, approved the bill 82-2 with two abstentions.

Israel's politics have long been characterized by horse-trading and defections. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir formed his right-wing coalition by using political posts and public funds to lure defectors from the center-left Labor and ultra-Orthodox Agudat Israel parties into its ranks.

"For 42 years the problem existed and they didn't do anything about it, nothing," Lynn told Israeli television. "I have fought for nine months with the help of many legislators to get this law passed."

The new law imposes sanctions on any Knesset member who leaves his party for another. It forbids that legislator from being a minister or deputy minister in the current coalition, and receiving party funding as well as personal benefits.

"For too long there has been this phenomenon... where a Knesset member takes a mandate he received from the public, which doesn't belong to him and which he received in good faith, and sells it as if it was his own property," Lynn said.

Public disgust was aroused and an electoral reform movement began with a small group of hunger strikes shortly after the national unity government, made up of members of the Likud and Labor parties, collapsed last March.

Tens of thousands later joined public demonstrations and a half-million signatures, about 10 percent of Israel's 4.7 million citizens, were gathered in support of electoral reform.

ed the city does not pay for medical conditions of prisoners unless they are caused by officers. Chief Joe Cook said the bills were not the result of injuries caused by officers; Wise did not refute the statement.

The prisoners, although transported to the hospital by officers, were not the financial responsibility of the department, Cook explained. City Attorney Mike Thomas, who had been in contact with Wise, said the city was not responsible for prisoners because the police facility was a holding cell designed to house prisoners for short periods of time.

Gail Earls pointed out the situation might be a communication problem and suggested the department and hospital work out a policy so each knew who was responsible for medical bills.

After an executive session, the council took no action on an issue involving "back pay" for retired Municipal Judge Gwen Fair.

In other business, the council: Accepted recommendations from the traffic commission to place yield signs at 12th and Donley streets.

Agreed to order a speed study of FM-700.

Approved the use of $2,000 from the Moss Creek Lake "rock account" to fund construction of a boat ramp there.

Approved the sale of a lot to Roger and Debra Myers.

Also hit in the raids were telecommunications centers in the al-Jadrieh and al-Jamila districts, and the government's Palace of Conferences, Nasrawi said.

Iraq previously had claimed thousands of civilian casualties in the allied air raids. U.S. officials have said the Iraqi figures were probably inflated.

President Bush, speaking with reporters in Washington on Tuesday, described Iraqi statements on civilian casualties as a "one-sided propaganda mission cranking out myths and falsehoods."

However, the U.S. command has said civilian casualties are an inevitable byproduct of the strikes aimed at military and strategic targets.

With the war thundering ahead, Baghdad radio reported early today that Saddam told Primakov he is prepared to cooperate with the Soviet Union and other nations in a peace effort.

But there was no sign Saddam is willing to relinquish Kuwait as the United States has demanded.

At an average of five pieces per pound, that comes to well over 1.3 million items per day. The volume has been dropping since January when mail averaged 419,000 pounds a day in one week and 328,000 pounds another.

The Pentagon asked Americans last month not to send parcels and to limit mail to letters and cassette tapes.

Top officials are aware of the slowdown in the mail.

"We are doing everything we can to shorten the time... because Americans want to hear from their GIs and GIs want to hear from their families and other Americans," Gen. Colin L. Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff told the Senate Armed Services Committee last week.

He said there is nothing more important than getting the mail delivered.

Council will not consider disputed firing

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The City Council of Big Spring declined Tuesday to involve itself in the disputed firing of a police department employee.

Michael Stahl, a former officer with the department, was represented by attorney David Twedell at the meeting. Twedell told the council Stahl had not been treated fairly by department superiors.

According to Twedell's presentation, Stahl received a letter from Chief Joe Cook warning he was being considered for termination due to "insubordination." A hearing was set, which Twedell attended with Stahl.

The letter, Twedell said, "suggested (Stahl) should know (why he was considered for termination)" and offered no specific reasons. The situation involved some orders from a sergeant that Stahl had reportedly violated, although Stahl denied he knew of the orders.

Stahl's employment was terminated Jan. 17. He appealed the decision and was granted a hearing with City Manager Hal Boyd. Twedell said he thought Boyd should have forced the sergeant involved to appear at the appeal hearing, but Boyd did not.

Twedell asked the council to reopen the appeal process and allow Stahl a hearing with the sergeant present and to make the specific allegations known. In a 4-2 vote, the council elected to follow the recommendation of staff and not involve itself in the dispute.

Pat Deanda, who voted against the council decision, said she did not think the city had been "as fair as (it) could be" to the former officer. Sidney Clark, who also voted against the decision, expressed concern Stahl had not known the specific charges he faced.

"That was my whole argument," Stahl said in response to Clark. "There were specific orders they allege were given to me that were not given to me."

Boyd said Stahl "knew the reason he was terminated."

After the meeting, Twedell said Stahl's argument could be taken to court in the form of a suit against the city.

Stahl and Cook declined comment.

Area briefs

Board plans trip to Austin for members

The Grady School Board met Thursday and coordinated a trip to Austin for a budget balance school meeting for the school superintendent and three board members, Gerald Singleton, superintendent, said.

"We're going to see what's happening there. A couple of board members are also going to Lubbock," Singleton said. The meeting scheduled in Austin concerns the school finance system overhaul in Texas public schools.

The finance report detailed a $42 million increase in the tax base for Grady school system. Singleton said the increase came from mineral drilling in the area over the last year.

Grady basketball coach Johnny Tubb resigned from coaching to become the part-time business manager for the school. Tubb will continue to teach math. Singleton said Tubb resigned from coaching because he wants to become more involved in administration.

In other business, the board members considered improving the school bus driveway, but will wait until the summer to begin construction; decided to wait until the school finance system is worked out before approving the next year's school calendar; approved a $10,000 annual salary for an aide and hired Jackie Johnson for that position; decided to accept bids for building new restrooms at the football field; extended the principal's and counselor's contracts for another year.

The board meeting lasted about three hours, and all members were present, Singleton said.

Court votes to form health corporation

Commissioners Court on Monday voted to form the Howard County Health Facility Development Corp. to allow non-profit entities to finance projects through the issuance of tax exempt bonds. It will not create any liability on the part of the county or any political subdivision.

In other business Monday, the Commissioners Court:

Allowed the County Sheriff to fill two full-time deputy positions.

Approved a renegotiation with the city for the county to use Building 1101 at Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Air Park. The county will rent the building for $1,250 a month. The previous agreement required $15 for each vehicle brought to the building.

Accepted a bid of $500 for an 154-foot by 170-foot piece of property in Section 32, Block 33, which was seized for nonpayment of taxes.

Commissioners also approved several budget amendments, including:

Moving the county judge's secretary from step 3 to step 2. The pay increase will cost the county $1,064 a year.

Allowing pay increases already authorized by commissioners for a total of $3,600 a year to two employees at the senior citizens center.

Providing funds for bonds on the two new commissioners and the county judge.

Moving $100,000 from the general and road and bridge fund to the equipment operating fund.

HC hoopsters are for real

By STEVE BELVIN

I left Odessa Sports Center Monday night impressed with the Howard College Lady Hawks after a 64-62 loss to the Odessa College Lady Wranglers.

It's not the fact that they lost a close one; it's that they were in a position to lose a close one. In the two times Howard and Odessa have played, Odessa jumped to big leads and threatened to turn it into a blowout. Both times Howard had enough character to keep its composure.

I was impressed when they defeated OC 55-53 in Big Spring. I was more impressed when they played South Plains tooth-and-nail before falling 60-57 in Levelland. Now I'm really impressed after Monday night's game.

Coach Royce Chadwick and being telling me his team is maturing; I finally see the light. A team doesn't go to Levelland and Odessa and jump to big leads and threaten to turn it into a blowout. Both times Howard had enough character to keep its composure.

It took a low-percentage three-pointer by Sheryl Swoopes to beat Howard in Levelland, and two outside jumpers by a cold Shawn Thomas coming off the bench to beat Howard in Odessa.

Granted, both Swoopes and Thomas are all-American caliber, which kind of makes sense. You'd expect that from those type players.

But I wouldn't have thought that a squad of nine freshmen and three sophomores could give these teams all they wanted. The fact it did makes the Lady Hawks a worthy top-five team.

Howard is good because sophomores Kim Robinson, Cindy Williams and Mulu Tosi have fulfilled the job of being leaders. The freshman class has responded beautifully, especially post players Yolanda Wells and Desiree Wallace and point guard Julie Lempea.

Robinson is a bona-fide all-American. Williams is a pure scorer and emotional up-lifter, and Tosi is a force underneath.

Wells and Wallace have stepped in an dealt with the best players, whether it's a 6-foot-1 jumping jack like Swoopes or a 6-foot-5 intimidator like Odessa's Twanda Wilson. Lempea has withstood the pressure of some of the best defenses in the land. Then there's players like Rebecca Brown, Kelly Williams, LeAnn Heinrich and Kathy Mangram, who are getting better with experience.

The bottom line? The Howard College Lady Hawks are good because their players put as much heart into playing as their coach does into coaching.

Howard, Odessa and South Plains are about as close in caliber as any top-level teams in one conference that I've ever seen. Coach Chadwick made an interesting statement after the loss to Odessa. "We shouldn't have beaten them at our place, and they should've have beaten us tonight. I like our chances on a neutral court."

I agree with you coach. While on the subject of top level teams, how about those Howard Hawks? Coach Steve Green's team reminds me of the Runnin' Rebels of UNLV. You naturally think of them as an offensive team because they score so many points. You tend to overlook that the Hawks play pretty good defense themselves.

A good example was in the second half of Monday's game with Odessa. Howard had a dry run when it turned the ball over three times and missed three shots, a definite chance for OC to change the momentum. The Hawks' defense was so good OC couldn't convert in six trips down the court.

That's the stuff national championship teams are made of.

Ten-year playoff wait ends for Coahoma Bulldogs

By STEVE BELVIN

COAHOMA — It's been a long time coming, but the Coahoma Bulldogs are in the state basketball playoffs. The Bulldogs defeated the Forsan Buffaloes 68-60 Tuesday night, gaining entry to postseason play for the first time since 1981.

The Bulldogs are now 6-0 in the second half of district play and 24-7 overall. Coahoma concludes regular season play Friday in Ozona. Then the Bulldogs will have an extra game with first half champion Stanton to determine the district's number-one seed.

The loss dropped Forsan out of the playoff picture, giving the Buffs a 4-2 second half mark. Forsan is 16-11 overall, and will conclude its season by hosting Eldorado Friday.

The win was somewhat like David's triumph over Goliath — the Bulldogs won this one with their "little men." Coahoma had a starting lineup with only one player over six-foot, 6-foot-1 John Ed Ezell, but he went down early in the game with a knee injury; he came back a brief span in the second quarter but the knee gave out again. The extent of the injury was not known.

To make matters worse for Coahoma, Ezell's replacement, 6-foot-2 Matt Coates, got three quick fouls and ended up playing very little in the contest. So it was left up to Coahoma's little men to do battle with a Forsan team that have three starters over 6-foot tall.

The scrappy Bulldogs battled the Buffaloes on fairly even terms on the boards, and got a superb game from guard David Elmore to come away with the victory.

Elmore, a 5-foot-10 junior, led all scorers with 24 points, missing only four field goals while going a perfect six-for-six from the foul line. He also added nine rebounds and seven assists.

Also supplying firepower for Coahoma was Mark Arguello, who hit three three-pointers, finishing the game with 14 points. Rex Denton was the other Bulldog in double figures with 11.

A balanced Forsan scoring attack was paced by Stephen East and Clay Martin who scored 16 points each. East bombed in four "threes" and Martin was six-of-nine from the field. Josh Wooten and Joey Conaway added 12 points each.

Forsan coach Kurt White said Elmore was the difference in the game. "We did some things differently to stop their three guards, Elmore, Arguello and Ginnetti," said White. "I felt like we stopped their three-point shooting, but Elmore's penetration got to us. I'm proud of my kids, they played above their heads a lot of times this season."

Coahoma coach Kim Nichols said the main key is that his squad didn't panic without their big men. "John Ed went down and Matt got three quick fouls. We lost our height, but we didn't panic," said Nichols. "Rex, Jody (Carper) and Kenny (Lowery) came in and did good jobs. We felt like the main thing we had to do was keep Stephen East from the three-pointers, and keep them from getting the ball to Joey Conaway."

Coahoma began the game red hot, hitting its first five shots, including a three-pointer by Arguello. The Bulldogs led 11-6 at the 5:30 mark. The Bulldogs led 17-10 after the first quarter when Denton scored off an offensive rebound and Elmore made two foul shots.

Orioles show how much they like Davis

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles wanted to give Glenn Davis a reason for liking his new team, and they did — more than 3 million of them.

Davis and the Orioles settled Tuesday on a one-year contract for $3,275,000, the midpoint between his request and the club's offer in salary arbitration.

Thirty-seven players remain in salary arbitration. Seven other players in arbitration agreed to one-year contracts.

Texas outfielder Rafael Palmeiro quadrupled his salary from $345,000 to $1,475,000, while Cleveland outfielder Chris James doubled his salary from $620,000 to $1,367,500.

Boston left-hander Joe Hesketh, who went 0-4 last season with a 3.51 ERA in 12 games, still quadrupled his salary from $110,000 to $465,000.

Shortstop Walt Weiss and Oakland settled at $780,000, a $505,000 raise, while shortstop Alvaro Espinoza and the New York Yankees agreed to $610,000, a $325,000 raise.

Outfielder Dave Gallagher and California agreed to $367,500, a raise of $267,000, and catcher Nelson Santovenia and Montreal settled at $282,000, a $77,000 raise.

Davis, who made $1,985,000 last season with Houston, was scheduled to go to arbitration Thursday. The Orioles got the first baseman from the Astros for three players and hope to keep Davis, one of baseball's best power hitters, happy for awhile.

"We're pleased to reach terms with Glenn Davis rather than go through a hearing," Orioles general manager Roland Hemond said.

Tankers ready for district

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Big Spring High School swim teams will be trying to improve on last year's finishes when they compete in the District 3-4A swim meet Friday and Saturday in Pecos.

Last year, Coach Harlan Smith's Lady Steers and Steers both finished third in the district competition. Diving finals and swimming prelims will be conducted Friday. Swimming finals will be Saturday. Diving is at 11 a.m. and swimming prelims start at 2:30 p.m. Friday. Swimming finals begin at 1 p.m. Saturday. The top six finishers in each event in the six qualify to the regional swim meet in Lubbock, March 1-2.

Smith says he's been tapering off on his team's workouts the past couple of weeks in preparation for the meet. "We just wanted to get rested so their bodies can build up strength," said Smith.

In the boys race, Pecos is favored to repeat as district champions. "Pecos is strong; they've been beating everybody and have been in contention with the 5A schools," said Smith. "But anything can happen at the district meet. There are false starts, missed turns or overanxiety. The other kids are catching up to Pecos. They've (Pecos) been on a level all year long, while the others are improving. I don't think it's going to be a walk-away."

Some of the Steers' top hopefuls include senior backstroke Shane Hicks. "It's been kind of hard on Shane because he hasn't dropped his time like he thought he would. We worked on changing his stroke a little bit and he's brought his time down," said Smith.

Junior Ricky Grimsley is a leading candidate in the 100 yard breaststroke. "He's been around his best time (1:07) the last couple of times out," said Smith.

Smith is hoping David Doll will have the same results in the 200 yard freestyle as he did last year. "Last year David went from a 2:25 to a 2:18 at district to a 2:15 in regional. We're hoping for that same type of drop."

Smith is hoping freshman Frank Mancado can take four seconds off his time in the 100 yard butterfly. "We're hoping he can get down to 1:10, 1:09. That's not bad for a freshman. If he can do that, it could get to the finals," Smith said.

The girls team race is a tossup, according to Smith. "Pecos is favored, Monahans has depth and Pecos has speed. Big Spring and Andrews can also get in there," he said.

The Lady Steers' leading swimmer this year has been sophomore Christy Webb, the school record holder in the 200 individual medley and 100 backstroke. "Christy's done real well. She had injury problems to overcome; she's real strong mentally," said Smith.

Senior Sally Lopez is a four-year letterwoman. Smith calls her a hard worker who has her mind set on winning district in the distance races.

Sophomore Jill Fortner is a top candidate in the sprints as is freshman Shannon Korrell in the butterfly. Freshman Lee Ann Campbell in the breaststroke is another hopeful.

"We want to win, but realistically we want to improve our times and score as many points as we can," said Smith. "You look at the fact we've only got two seniors out of 14, you're looking a pretty good program for the next few years."

Let's play basketbrawl

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — Illinois State Redbirds' coach Bob Bender was proud of the way his reserves defeated Chicago State by staying on the bench.

Eleven Chicago State Cougars were ejected from Tuesday night's game after a fight, forcing them to forfeit to the Redbirds halfway through their contest.

"The first thing we tried to do was to make sure our bench didn't come out. We tried to separate our kids that were on the court," Bender said after his team came away with a 39-23 victory Tuesday.

The fight broke out with one second remaining in the first half. And when all but two Chicago State players were tossed out of the game, Chicago State was declared the loser.

No injuries were reported. One player for Illinois State (5-18) was ejected after the fray, which ended a first half that had seen two technical fouls against Chicago State (3-19) and a total of 25 personal fouls.

"From my perspective, the officials started the fight. I apologize for my team's behavior and I do not advocate fighting, but I also believe in standing up when someone is really (cheating) them," Chicago State coach Rick Pryor said.

Pryor said officials failed to call blatant fouls against the Redbirds.

Illinois State was called for 12 personal fouls during the first half and Chicago State for 13.

One technical foul was called against Chicago State's Reggie Burcy and another against Pryor.

Just before the halftime buzzer sounded, Illinois State's Scott Taylor and Chicago State's Derrick Van dived for a rebound at the corner of the court near the Redbirds' bench.

The pair went down with Van on top of Taylor and the fight erupted. A video replay showed Van grabbing Taylor around the neck, instigating the fisticuffs.

Referee Dan Chrisman said Van "committed a flagrant foul ... then two other Chicago State players who were in the game got involved and were subsequently ejected for fighting."

"The bench personnel from Chicago State left the bench area, which immediately disqualified them from further participation. As a result, only two Chicago State players remained eligible, and the game was suspended," Chrisman said.

Van was ejected for committing an unsportsmanlike act. Chicago State's Ernie Fullilove and Carnel Ross were ejected for fighting.

"The game was very physical, but whether officiating had anything to do with that I can't say," Bender said.

Sidelines

Steers tied for second in league

With one game left the Big Spring Steers are in a three way tie for second place in the District 3-4A basketball race. By virtue of its win over San Angelo Lake View Tuesday night, Sweetwater leads the district with an 8-3 record. Big Spring, Andrews and Lake View are tied for second at 7-4. Andrews and Lake View play Friday, and if Big Spring beats Fort Stockton Friday, and Sweetwater beats Monahans, then an extra playoff game would be needed to determine the district runnerup. Sweetwater would be the district champion, and Big Spring and Andrews would have to play to determine the second place spot. There's also a chance for a three-way tie for first, if Monahans defeats Sweetwater and Big Spring wins.

Player quits team under pressure

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Marco Lokar quit the Seton Hall basketball team and withdrew from the university today, saying he and his wife received threats after he refused to wear the American flag on his uniform to show support for troops in the Persian Gulf. Lokar said in a statement that he and his wife planned to return to his home in Trieste, Italy, so she could complete her pregnancy in "peace and tranquility." In his statement, the sophomore guard defended his decision not to wear the flag, saying it would have shown support for war, something which he said he cannot do as a Christian. Coach P.J. Carlesimo was not immediately available for comment. Lokar's home telephone was not answered.

Suns snap Lakers' winning streak

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Los Angeles Lakers' winning streak was so long that even the Portland Trail Blazers started looking over their shoulders.

Blazers coach Rick Adelman found his team watching the Lakers-Phoenix Suns game on television Tuesday night and told his players, "Let's worry about Portland. Let's not worry about Phoenix and the Lakers."

The Lakers, who made up 5 1/2 games in the Pacific Division standings during their 16-game winning streak, took a step backward against the Suns, losing 99-95 at Phoenix while Portland defeated Philadelphia 121-106.

Kevin Johnson scored 10 of his 35 points in the final 8:13 and Tom Chambers hit a tie-breaking hook shot with 28 seconds left.

The Suns previously stopped Portland's 11-game winning run on Nov. 27 and Detroit's 11-game streak Feb. 3. Both of those victories came on the road.

NBA Roundup

"I guess you can call us 'streak busters' now," said Phoenix center Mark West, who had 13 rebounds. "This was a real big one."

Jeff Hornacek added 23 points for the Suns while Chambers finished with 18, giving him 16,008 in his nine-year NBA career.

Sam Perkins scored 26 points and James Worthy 21 for the Lakers, who last lost 96-88 at Seattle on Jan. 8.

Trail Blazers 121, 76ers 106

Buck Williams scored 11 points and Terry Portland nine of his 22 for Portland in the decisive third quarter, which ended with a 31-9 surge against Philadelphia.

The win boosted the Trail Blazers' Pacific Division lead to four games over the Lakers.

Charles Barkley scored 27 points and Hersey Hawkins had 24 for Philadelphia, including 14 in the first quarter. Clyde Drexler had 21 points and Kevin Duckworth 20 for the Blazers.

Celtics 114, SuperSonics 111

Boston started a five-game West Coast trip with a win at Seattle as Reggie Lewis scored 24 of his 30 points in the second half, including the go-ahead basket with 3:32 left.

Lewis gave the Celtics a 103-101 lead with a 10-footer. Larry Bird's two free throws with 11.5 seconds to go made it 114-111, and Seattle rookie Gary Payton missed a 3-point attempt with four seconds left.

Seattle, which got 29 points from Eddie Johnson, led 56-45 at halftime.

Warriors 126, Timberwolves 105

Chris Mullin scored 30 points and Tim Hardaway 29, and Golden State opened a 27-point third-quarter lead before coasting over Minnesota.

Bulls 122, Hawks 113

Michael Jordan scored 32 points and Horace Grant 23 as Chicago beat Atlanta for its 14th consecutive victory at home.

The win was the third in a row for the Bulls, who are 19-3 at home. The defeat was the seventh in a row on the road for the Hawks, who have won 18 straight in Atlanta.

Dominique Wilkins scored 37 points and Spud Webb a career-high 30 for the Hawks, who rallied from an 11-point deficit midway through the fourth quarter to trail 107-105 with 4:35 left.

Spurs 102, Bullets 92

Willie Anderson scored 22 points and David Robinson 20, lifting San Antonio over Washington.

The Spurs outscored the Bullets 13-4 at the start of the fourth quarter for a 20-point lead after Washington cut a 75-55 deficit to 83-72 at the end of three quarters.

Ledell Eackles led all scorers with 24 points for the Bullets and Bernard King finished with 22 despite being held to one point in the first quarter.

Jazz 113, Rockets 92

John Stockton had 19 points, 11 assists and a career-high nine steals as Utah snapped Houston's four-game winning streak.

Seven of Thurl Bailey's nine fourth-quarter points came during a 21-6 spurt at the start of the period, giving the Jazz their biggest lead of the game, 103-79, and the Rockets didn't threaten again.

Vernon Maxwell led Houston with 32 points, including six 3-pointers, and Karl Malone had 26 points for the Jazz.

Hornets 100, Mavericks 92

Charlotte used an 11-2 run at the beginning of the second half to beat Dallas, snapping a four-game losing streak.

Johnny Newman scored 21 points and Mike Gminski had 18 points and 14 rebounds as the Hornets beat the Mavericks for only the second time in eight games.

Rolando Blackman scored 22 points and Derek Harper 21 for the Mavericks.

Coahoma

Midway through the second quarter the Buffaloes made a run keyed by the inside scoring of Martin, the outside scoring of East and Wooten dominating the boards. Dave Rundell grabbed a long rebound, dribbled the length of the court and scored, closing Coahoma's lead to 28-25 with three minutes left. But the Bulldogs finished strong, thanks to a steal and basket by Elmore and a jumper at the buzzer by Arguello at the buzzer. Coahoma led 39-32 at the half.

Forsan outscored Coahoma 8-2 in the first four minutes of the third quarter, pulling to within 41-40. Then Elmore keyed a 11-2 Coahoma run, giving the Bulldogs a 52-42 lead going into the final quarter. In the third quarter Elmore score six points and handed out three assists, two to Lowery. The Buffaloes got as close as 54-49 with six minutes left in the game, and 63-58 with 1:37 left. The Bulldogs hit some foul shots down the stretch to assure themselves of the win.

Nichols didn't seem to mind at all his team's drenching him in the locker room after the game. "I would've jumped in the shower if these guys had wanted me to," he laughed. "I'm proud of these kids."

Quakers nominate Carter

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Quaker organization has nominated former President Carter for the Nobel Peace Prize, praising him for his devotion to "public service on a global scale" since leaving office. The American Friends Service Committee, as a 1947 Peace Prize co-winner with its British counterpart, can offer a nominee every year. In the letter to the Norwegian Nobel Committee, AFSC Executive Secretary Asia A. Bennett praised Carter's mediation efforts in Ethiopia, the Middle East, Sri Lanka and Somalia as well as his work on the Nicaraguan, Haitian and Panamanian elections. Only two presidents, Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt, have won Nobel Peace Prizes. Both were in office at the time.

Iraq: Missiles kill 500

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Allied missiles slammed into a Baghdad bomb shelter early today, killing 500 civilians, Iraq said. The United States said the site was a bunker used as a military command center.

The number of deaths would be the single biggest loss of civilian life reported in the allied air war.

The U.S. military command said the bunker had been recently painted in camouflage colors and was used by the Iraqi military command.

"We don't feel we attacked the wrong bunker," Marine Brig. Gen. Richard I. Neal told reporters in Riyadh today. "I can't explain, if there were civilians in there, why they were in there."

The deaths occurred during a 12-hour bombardment of Baghdad. One of the buildings hit — the Palace of Conferences — is across the street from the al-Rashid Hotel, where a Soviet envoy on a peace mission was staying. The diplomat met Tuesday with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

As the Persian Gulf War turned 4 weeks old, the Soviet diplomatic efforts to end it picked up with the announcement of plans for Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz to meet in Moscow with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Sunday's trip would be a followup to envoy Yevgeny Primakov's visit, the Kremlin said.

After meeting with Primakov,

SAUDI ARABIA — A U.S. Marine M-60 tank and an amphibious tracked vehicle explode land mines during a ground warfare training exercise Monday in the Saudi desert. Land mines are a major concern for allied forces training for a possible ground war with Iraq.

Saddam announced Iraq might be willing to talk. However, the White House noted he said nothing about the central issue in the conflict — ending the occupation of Kuwait.

U.S. military officials, meanwhile, said Iraq has managed to rig makeshift military communications and supply links despite allied bombing aimed at smashing them. They said Iraq was drawing on battlefield experience from the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war.

The structure hit today also was a legacy of that war: It was one of five big air raid shelters built in the capital during that conflict. Neal said it had been upgraded to a hardened command and control bunker used for communications.

"If we thought that in fact there were civilians... absolutely no, we would not have attacked that bunker," Neal said.

Iraqi witnesses said the shelter

Center holds party, talent show

The Martin County Senior Citizens Center will hold a Valentine party and talent show at 7 p.m. Thursday night at Cap Rock Auditorium.

The group will serve turkey and dressing and everyone attending is urged to bring a side dish or dessert.

All senior citizens are invited to attend and participate in the get-together.

SISD, hospital to hold session

The Stanton Independent School District, in conjunction with Glenwood Hospital, will present a session on parenting skills at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the middle school cafeteria.

The speaker for the occasion will be Art Graf, who has been employed at Glenwood for one year and previously worked at family services in Midland.

The session is being offered in response to a needs survey completed by the parents of students enrolled in the SISD. All parents are invited and urged to attend.

Lions hear convent report

Stanton's Noon Lions met Tuesday with Convent Foundation treasurer Jim McGilvray as program chairman.

The club discussed trash pickup at the regular Lion site, north of Interstate 20, and other club projects such as the broom sale and the carnival set for May. Guests included Jack Crouse, executive vice-president of Stanton National Bank.

Program chairman McGilvray discussed ways the convent was being preserved and plans for making the convent an education center for youngsters.

Lawmaker to go down under

AUSTIN (AP) — State lawmakers, already facing a huge budget deficit, are literally going into the hole.

House and Senate members Wednesday have scheduled a group photograph in the 60-foot deep hole being excavated behind the Capitol.

The hole was excavated for future construction of an underground parking and office space extension to the 103-year-old Capitol.

When House Speaker Gib Lewis announced the trip down under, state Rep. Al Price, D-Beaumont, asked if there was any guarantee they could get out.

Work in the crater has been the focus of mild amazement since digging began in June 1990 and ended last month.

Trustee election date set for May

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Stanton Independent School District's Board of Trustees met Monday night in the Administration building to discuss and consider setting an election date and to amend the budget for purchases, according to SISD Superintendent Wayne Mitchell.

The budget was amended to purchase equipment and other items for the district. "Only parts of the budget was changed to purchase equipment for our libraries in the middle school and our high schools," Mitchell said.

The equipment and the new upgrading cost $11,000, according to Business Manager Rob Roberson. "We needed to upgrade our libraries and most of the cost went into our high school library and our middle school library."

The date for trustee elections will be May 4, and judges were appointed for the election. Francis Biggs will serve as election judge in the regular selection of the trustees, while County Clerk Virginia James will serve as absentee judge.

Elections will be held at Stanton Middle School from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. May 4.

School trustee training also was discussed at the meeting, Mitchell said. A trustee is required to have 20 hours of school board training and must have at least six hours each year from then on, he said.

Among other action taken by trustees:

- Term contracts for teachers were installed for a one-year period. Mitchell said that teachers hired before Monday night are exempt from this new program, but new faculty members hired as of Monday be subject to a term contract as compared to the old tenure-type contract.

- One-year contracts were extended to High School Principal Jim White, Business Manager Rob Roberson and Curriculum Director Morris W. Williamson. There were no resignations and the board did not hire anyone at the meeting.

Richards still pushing for state lottery

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards said she still is pushing for passage of a state lottery, but she doesn't know if lawmakers will heed her message.

"I've always said it's going to be real hard to pass, and I think it's a tossup at this point," Richards said Tuesday.

The governor has designated the lottery as emergency legislation, touting it as a way to meet part of an estimated $4.6 billion budget shortfall through fiscal year 1993.

Hearings have been set for Wednesday in the Senate, and Monday in the House, on the measure.

To put the proposed constitutional amendment establishing a lottery before voters, a two-thirds vote is needed in the 150-member House and 31-member Senate.

"I don't know whether we can win this or not," Richards said. "The important thing for me... is to be able to tell the people of this state that I have done every single thing I know to do to save money, to consolidate government and to raise revenue from sources other than taxes."

"And if the Legislature chooses otherwise, I will have done my part," she said.

Rep. Glenn Repp, a leading lottery opponent, maintains that he's counted enough votes in the House to keep the measure off a statewide ballot. He said he agrees with Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock that a lottery is a "sleazy" way for state government to raise money.

"It takes 51 (votes in the House) to defeat it. We've always had more than that," said Repp, R-Duncanville. "If anything, I'm confident that we're becoming stronger."

The Senate has passed lottery legislation in a previous session, but the measure never has found sufficient support in the more conservative House.

Eagles soar by Buffalos

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Stanton Buffalos traveled south to take on the Eldorado Eagles in District 6-2A basketball action, and the Eagles took a 64-61 win over the first half champions.

"We didn't play well," Stanton coach Keyv Allred said. "Slick (Kenny McCalister) was in foul trouble in the first period, but his play was very good. We are used to running a transition game, and without Slick we do not have our game going."

The Buffs had a chance to win the game with 12 seconds left in the contest, but Eldorado rebounded the missed shot and added a free throw to bring the score to 64-61.

Stanton was led by sophomore Jeremy Stallings with 20 points, followed by McCalister with 17. Grant Woodfin and Chris Barnhill

Texan would lead offensive

EL PASO (AP) — A former squadron leader of the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment will lead the U.S. Army ground offensive against Iraq using desert fighting techniques he helped develop at Fort Bliss.

Lt. Gen. John Yeosock, commander of the 280,000 Army troops in Operation Desert Storm, was a squadron leader with the 3rd Armored Cavalry in 1973.

The regiment had been transferred to Fort Bliss from Fort Lewis, Wash., a year earlier and was just starting to develop its desert strategy — the same maneuvers that could play a decisive role in the Persian Gulf war.

"Just like the rest of us, he learned a lot about desert operations at Fort Bliss. We were aware then we could possibly be drawn into a conflict in the Middle East because of threats to Israel," said Army Lt. Col. Frederick Lee.

Lee, who served under Yeosock at Fort Bliss, now is on the Pentagon staff of Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Yeosock, 53, now commander of the 3rd Army, is the top Army boss under Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, leader of all U.S. forces in the war. Under Yeosock's direction is one of the largest armored forces since World War II, including 2,300 M1A1 tanks and several thousand troop carriers and artillery pieces.

About 240 of the tanks and Bradley Fighting Vehicles are with the 3rd Cav.

The Pentagon's Lt. Col. Lee said he remembered one of the first desert exercises at Fort Bliss under Yeosock in which the 3rd Cav was pitted against a brigade from Fort Hood in Central Texas.

To get the advantage, Yeosock and Col. David Doyle, the regiment's commander, decided to launch a night attack — using night-vision equipment considered crude by today's standards.

Valentine's sweet deal for sugar interests

Farm scene

WASHINGTON (AP) — Buying candy to sweet-talk a loved one on Valentine's Day also brings smiles to the sugar industry, including those who grow raw sugar cane and sugar beets.

"Confectionery appears to be the driving force behind the rise in sugar deliveries," says Agriculture Department economist Peter Buzzanell. "Lower cocoa prices have allowed for lower candy prices."

Buzzanell said in a recent issue of Agricultural Outlook magazine that industry sources reported candy sales soared last year, with chocolate confectionery up 12.5 percent and sugar confectionery up 8 percent.

However, he added Tuesday in a telephone interview that higher peanut costs might have taken some of the edge from the gains.

"Chocolate prices have been very low, so that's helpful," Buzzanell said. "And people are still bullish on sugar use."

Officially, USDA is estimating total sugar "deliveries," or use, at 8.6 million tons in the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1, up from 8.51 million tons the previous year.

However, Buzzanell said that could be even higher when revisions are made soon.

Even so, 8.6 million tons is the most sugar consumed by Americans since 1983 and represents the fifth straight year of rising use. The peak was more than 11 million tons in 1977.

Buzzanell said sugar consumption declined after 1977 for nine years as high-fructose corn syrup gained favor in the soft drink industry. Sugar use bottomed out at 7.8 million tons in 1986.

About 80 percent of the nation's sugar needs are met by domestic production of cane and beets, which will account for about 6.8 million tons in fiscal 1991. Imports are regulated by a quota system.

The importance of candy and the traditions of Valentine's Day was not lost on the American Sugar Alliance, which represents producers.

Alliance chairman Carolyn Cheney said in a statement: "Traditionally, we associate Valentine's Day with hearts and flowers — and candy. That candy is made possible by our farmers who produce beets, cane and corn for nutritive sweeteners."

Cheney said sweeteners "play such a fundamental role in our food process" that they are sometimes taken for granted.

The alliance also cited statistics showing that the U.S. sweetener industry generates a total of $18.5 billion in wages and revenues annually, and that it creates 361,000 fulltime jobs.

Bee device invented

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department scientist has invented a "stingometer" to measure the anger of bees.

Entomologist Hayward G. Spangler of the department's Agricultural Research Service said in a report released Tuesday that the device can be useful in determining whether insects are ordinary honeybees or the more aggressive Africanized bees.

Spangler, who works at the agency's Carl Hayden Bee

Research Center in Tucson, Ariz., said the stingometer uses an electronic sensor in a small plastic bottle used as a target for stinging bees.

The device is hung in front of a hive entrance and records stings for 10 seconds after the bees are provoked by blowing air into the hive. The higher the rate of stings, the crankier the bees are.

And Africanized bees, which have been found in southern Texas last October as they swarmed across the Mexican border, can be cranky. They are known for aggressive behavior against intruders and are considered a threat to the U.S. honeybee industry if they become established in high numbers.

"We need the meter because it's impossible to tell domestic bees from Africanized bees just by looking at them," Spangler said.

War

 in the middle-class residential al-Amerieh district took direct hits from at least two missiles fired by allied warplanes. The missiles pierced 9 feet of concrete.

Rescuers clawing through the debris found eight survivors immediately after the bombing, AP correspondent Salah Nasrawi reported from the scene. The rescuers later said they retrieved more than 200 bodies, most of them charred and mutilated beyond recognition, Nasrawi reported.

Iraqi civil defense officials said lists compiled from residents indicated there were more than 500 people inside the structure when the warplanes struck before dawn. A senior civil defense official said scores of people remained buried in the rubble but there was no hope of finding anyone alive.

Residents crowded around the wreckage, looking for relatives and friends. Men beat on their chests and yelled "Allahu Akbar," Arabic for "God is Great," and women cried hysterically, Nasrawi said.

At a Baghdad hospital where the injured were taken, 17-year-old Omar Adnan, badly burned, said he was the only survivor of his family of six.

"I was sleeping and suddenly I felt heat and the blanket was burning," Adnan said. "I turned to try and touch my mother who was next to me but grabbed nothing but a piece of flesh."

Also hit in the raids were telecommunications centers in the al-Jadrieh and al-Jamila districts, and the government's Palace of Conferences, Nasrawi said.

Iraq previously had claimed thousands of civilian casualties in the allied air raids. U.S. officials have said the Iraqi figures were probably inflated.

President Bush, speaking with reporters in Washington on Tuesday, described Iraqi statements on civilian casualties as a "one-sided propaganda mission cranking out myths and falsehoods."

However, the U.S. command has said civilian casualties are an inevitable byproduct of the strikes aimed at military and strategic targets.

There were other reports of civilian casualties today. Jordanian refugees said 30 people were killed and about two dozen hurt when allied planes attacked the bus they were riding in near the Iraq-Kuwait border on Saturday.

"We heard the planes come and they dropped bombs. One fell in front, one hit the bus and one fell behind, said Shehadeh Ibrahim Shehadeh, who arrived at the Jordanian border post of Ruweishid today. "The bus caught fire and some were trapped."

With the war thundering ahead, Baghdad radio reported early today that Saddam told Primakov he is prepared to cooperate with the Soviet Union and other nations in a peace effort.

But there was no sign Saddam is willing to relinquish Kuwait as the United States has demanded.

"The deciding factor for us is: What does he say about getting out of Kuwait?" White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater asked in Washington.

At the United Nations, Cuba and Yemen were leading a push to keep the first U.N. Security Council debate on the war from being held in closed session. Both sides said today's vote could be close.

The closed session was sought by U.S. and British diplomats who maintain an open meeting with angry comments about the war would suggest the council did not stand by its resolutions to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait.

On Tuesday, Iraq said any ground war would be costly and bloody for the United States and its partners.

"If the Americans want to spare their sons from certain death, all they have to do is pull their losing forces out of the holy land of the Arabs and leave the Arabs to iron out their differences by themselves," Iraq's news agency quoted its parliament speaker, Saadi Mehdi Saleh, as saying.

But the allies signaled that it would be some time before they choose to wage an all-out ground war.

British Defense Secretary Tom King, who met with Bush in Washington on Tuesday, said there was "a need to see some significant reduction in Iraq's military capability" before any land assault.

"I think there's some work to be done," he said.

In large measure, that work is the air war. In eastern Saudi Arabia, skies were clear today as waves of warplanes roared off on bombing runs.

The French said their jet fighters carried out two raids this morning in southeastern Iraq and southern Kuwait, targeting aircraft bunkers with AS-30 laser-guided missiles and other Iraqi positions.

The hunt for targets in Kuwait has been complicated by big pits of burning oil that have been spewing smoke, obscuring about a third of the occupied emirate, said Maj. Vince Wisniewski, an F-16 pilot.

At the Pentagon, Rear Adm. Mike McConnell said Tuesday that there may be more than 50 oil field fires. He said Iraqis are suspected of placing charges on many wells, but that allied bombing may be responsible for some blazes.

Rains appointment still pending

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Secretary of State Jack Rains was already feeling lousy, with a bad cold. A Senate committee may have made him feel worse.

After grilling Rains for an hour, the Senate Nominations Committee refused on a 2-2 vote Tuesday to endorse his appointment to the Texas Department of Commerce Board of Directors.

Any vote but a tie would have sent Rains' nomination to the full Senate for confirmation, the committee clerk said.

Rains said he was unsure whether he could continue to serve on the six-member board. But Senate dean Chet Brooks said he could remain on the board until the full Senate acts.

Brooks, D-Pasadena, said another vote would be taken in an effort to advance Rains' appointment to the full Senate. Three committee members were absent and did not vote.

Brooks was joined by Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris, R-Dallas, in voting for Rains. Committee chairman Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, and Sen. Temple Dickson, D-Sweetwater, voted against Rains. Dickson questioned Rains about a $5,500 election night reception when Rains was secretary of state. Dickson asked if a Texas Supreme Court justice had been turned away at the door because he didn't have a ticket.

"I did not operate the front door, and I certainly would never have turned away a Supreme Court justice," Rains said.

"Just about everybody came down there... it certainly was not an exclusive thing," he said.

"But you had to have a ticket and had to be invited by you," Dickson said. "My wife didn't get in."

"I don't ever recall any tickets being printed," Rains said. "There was obviously a misunderstanding, and to the extent that you and your wife, or anyone else was offended, accept my public apology."

Dickson also questioned Rains about the Commerce Department's expenditures and possible conflicts of interest between Rains' law firm and his role with the department.

He also asked about a published statement in which Rains purportedly referred to certain judges as "clowns," including Harley Clark, who wrote the original decision in the current school finance case.

"I think he (Clark) overreached," Rains said.

Rains was appointed by then-Gov. Bill Clements to the board in August to fill the unexpired term of John Roach of Fort Worth, who resigned. The term ends Feb. 1, 1993.

Rains had lost a race for governor in the Republican Party primary in March.

Rains, who served as secretary of state from 1987 through 1989, is in private law practice in Houston.

A former chairman of 3D-International, Rains also has served as director of the Houston Chamber of Commerce and the Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Council. More recently, Rains served on the host committee of the Economic Summit of Industrialized Nations.

In other action Tuesday, the Nominations Committee approved the following nominees, by county: Texas Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation — Virginia Ernisse, Brazoria; Ann Utley, Dallas; Edward Weyman, Midland.

Texas Board of Health — Dr. Ron Anderson, Dallas; Dr. Susan Place, Collin.

Marshals seize Manges ranch

FREER (AP) — U.S. Marshals have seized the 100,000-acre Duval County Ranch owned by South Texas rancher Clinton Manges, authorities confirmed today.

Marshals moved onto the ranch Tuesday evening to carry out a foreclosure court order from a federal court in the state of Washington, said an official from the U.S. Marshal's office in Laredo, who declined to be identified.

Witnesses said officers escorted remaining ranch personnel from the property, and several people who had been escorted from the ranch remained in a parking lot in the Freer business district several hours later, observers said.

The ranch, which holds large deposits of oil, gas and uranium, was sold at auction Jan. 16 on the steps of the Duval County Courthouse in San Diego, Texas. It was sold to Seattle-First National Bank, which offered $21.59 million, the only bid, U.S. Marshal Deputy C.J. Villarreal said last month.

Manges, who sought federal bankruptcy court protection from creditors in 1989, was not at his San Antonio office today, said a woman who answered the telephone.

"He's moving around quite a bit today," said the woman, who declined to give her name.

Employees of a San Antonio moving company had been "packing and loading" at the ranch house since Tuesday night, said one of them who answered the phone.

Telephone calls by The Associated Press to the Freer office of the Duval County Ranch Co. were not answered this morning.

KBRA radio in Freer reported that a notice had been attached to the main gate of the ranch Jan. 17 notifying Manges that the ranch was being foreclosed.

On March 14, 1988, a federal court judge in Seattle issued an order allowing Seafirst Bank of Seattle to recover $52 million owed the bank by foreclosing on the ranch.

Manges had earlier agreed to settle a $100 million lawsuit filed against him by the Seattle bank for $47.8 million. The bank alleged that Manges had defaulted on oil and gas loans.

On Dec. 15, 1986, the bank alleged that Manges had defaulted on a $2.5 million interest payment.

WAKE UP, WORK OUT TIPS

- While skipping rope is an excellent form of exercise, you shouldn't skip breakfast. Breakfast can provide a super start to every day.
- Establishing a realistic goal is a prerequisite to an effective workout and diet plan.
- Aerobic exercises, like brisk walking (3.5 to 4 miles per hour), jogging, dancing and cycling use the leg muscles continuously, speed up your metabolism and burn calories.
- To make walking more intense, start by simply walking faster than your usual pace. By pumping your arms briskly, your entire body will get a workout.

- Jazz up your exercise routine by participating in more than one sport. Called "cross-training," it makes exercise more fun, accessible and effective.
- Find a workout partner — your spouse, a friend, or family member — who will encourage you on days when you don't feel like exercising.
- Build energetic activities into your daily routine—take the stairs, climb a hill, or walk through the park on your way to work or during lunch.

Now Hear This: Talking Home Security System Offers Safety, Savings, And Easy Installation

The most valuable improvement to be made to any home is the addition of a reliable home security system.

Security systems help protect persons and possessions from fire, burglary, and other dangers. And they also can save money, since a high-quality system entitles homeowners, and home renters, to annual insurance premium discounts as high as 15%.

Until recently, the high costs of equipment and installation have prevented most people from enjoying the benefits of a well-protected home or apartment. But things have changed. New high-tech electronic systems are now available that provide the protection of expensive, "professional" systems and can easily be installed by almost anyone. The savings in labor alone reduces the cost by at least half—with no compromise in home or personal protection.

Research indicates that most people install a security system only after they have experienced a burglary or fire," said Steven W. Chepa, president of Di-con Systems, Inc., Willowbrook, Illinois. Dicon is the world's second-largest maker of smoke detectors and a leading maker of electronic security systems.

"With crime rates again on the rise, people should be motivated to put in a security system before they're victimized. According to the FBI, homes with security systems are 15 times less likely to be robbed than those without. And the success of smoke alarms in saving lives and property is well-documented," said Mr. Chepa.

Dicon has recently developed a security system that offers professional-quality features, fast wireless installation, and a useful, unusual feature: it speaks.

In addition to watching over your house (or apartment) for fire, burglars, medical emergencies, or other threats, Dicon's new 9000 Home Security System has a voice which guides you in setting up and operating the entire system, step by step. It also identifies the specific detector which triggered an alarm, and voices many other commands, requests, and messages.

While the system's voice is its most remarkable feature, its electronic brain is its most important. The computerized central console, about the size of a telephone answering machine, has a built-in telephone dialer that, in the event of an alarm, will call up to eight local or long distance numbers and relay an emergency message in your own voice.

It also automatically dials different numbers in response to different emergencies, and delivers an appropriate message for each situation. When there's a fire, it can call the fire department first. During a burglary, the police or security service can be called first. Your office, a neighbor, or a relative could also be called, all automatically.

Using a fire and security system which calls out automatically for assistance usually qualifies a home owner or home renter for an annual discount on home insurance policy costs.

The insurance company may also consider the type and number of sensors used, whether the alarm system operates during power failures, and other factors.

The new Dicon system employs door and window switches, motion detectors, pressure-sensitive floor mats, smoke and heat detectors, and other electronic home monitoring devices. It can even warn the family if its basement is flooding, if the freezer goes on the blink, and in the event of other damaging, if not life-threatening, home emergencies.

Like professional systems, the Dicon 9000 automatically switches to back-up power when the electricity fails. It also uses its electronic voice to say when its back-up batteries need replacement.

To find out if an alarm system can help you save on your home insurance costs, contact your insurance agent. To find out more about how to install a home security system, call Dicon's toll-free consumer hotline, 1-800-387-2868. The company can be reached by mail at 631 Executive Drive, Willowbrook, ILL., 60521.

The end of the "ordinary" whirlpool

The product of years of research and testing, the Murlin 2001™, from ThermoSol, Ltd., is no "ordinary" bathtub. It is, in fact, the world's first self-cleaning whirlpool bathtub. That's right...self-cleaning!

Imagine the luxury of taking a relaxing whirlpool bath, and then not having to worry about cleaning it afterwards...or ever again.

The Murlin truly provides consumers with a glimpse into what the bathroom of the future will look like. Despite its futuristic abilities, the Murlin 2001™ is surprisingly affordable, creating strong consumer interest in Kitchen & Bath Showrooms nationwide.

However, the Murlin 2001™ is more than just a whirlpool bathtub that self-cleans. It's also a masterpiece of design. Available in standard and high-fashion colors, while measuring a roomy 74" x 44" x 25" deep, Murlin's sophisticated lines and elegant waterfall-fill system are the perfect complement for its state-of-the-art micro-processor "brain," which controls both the 8-jet hydro-massage as well as the self-cleaning cycle.

Within minutes after your bath, a rinse-wash-rinse process thoroughly cleans and disinfects the Murlin 2001™, leaving it fresh and ready for the next bath.

A simple touch on the control console as your bath begins activates Murlin's systems. Once sensors tell Murlin's "brain" the water has reached the proper height, the 8-jet Channel-One™ hydrotherapy system starts a 15-minute cycle. This cycle can be either increased or stopped at any time during your bath.

Once your bath is over, and Murlin's micro-processor "brain" senses the water has drained, the self-cleaning cycle begins automatically with a 30-second cold water rinse down the walls of the bathtub.

This rinsing action is performed by a series of tiny, but powerful solid brass spray nozzles located under the collar around the upper wall of the tub. The initial rinse effectively removes the soap residue left from the bath.

Murlin's wash cycle then activates immediately after the rinse, forcing a special solution of detergent, disinfectant and anti-spotting agents called Formula 2001 down the walls of the bathtub.

Formula 2001 is a specially developed cleaning solution which eliminates bath and body oils, kills staph germs, and allows the Murlin 2001™ to dry virtually spot-free. Once the wash cycle is finished, a final rinse completes the self-cleaning cycle.

Look for the Murlin 2001™ now on display at selected Kitchen & Bath dealer and distributor showrooms nationwide.

An informative five-minute video presentation describing Murlin's exclusive features and its quality construction, as well as the self-cleaning cycle in action, will be shown at each showroom.

To find your nearest Murlin 2001™ authorized showroom dealer, call ThermoSol Toll-Free at 1-800-423-2477, nationwide or (818) 362-7788, inside California. See for yourself why the Murlin 2001™ has put an end to the "ordinary" whirlpool...and an end to cleaning the bathtub...forever!

Covering that enhances old and new windows

Whether you are building or remodeling, you probably have already discovered that windows represent a large investment. What you may not yet realize is that the window coverings or treatments you chose may be almost as important as the windows themselves. The right choice of window covering will greatly enhance the comfort, enjoyment and energy efficiency of all types of windows or glass areas and can play a large part in how useful your windows will be year-round.

During the energy crunch of the mid-1970s, builders cut down on the size and number of windows and glass areas in many new homes. But, they quickly found out that people want windows, and the trend in recent years has been more and larger windows. In addition to windows, many new and remodeled homes now also include glass areas such as sunrooms or greenhouses. In fact, sunrooms are one of the most popular home additions.

Today, most new windows offer adequate insulation against winter cold, but far too often, little consideration is given to the sun's heat and glare. The sun's hot rays can quickly cause the area around your windows to become too hot, creating uncomfortable "hot spots." This heat causes annoying glare, extra work for your air conditioner and can cause unsightly fading of drapes, carpet and interior furnishings. Even in sunspaces or greenhouses, which are added to a home to allow more sun, some type of window treatment is necessary. The sun's rays, even in the dead of winter, can often become too much for a small sunspace, and these windows must be shaded in some fashion.

To be completely energy efficient and to afford the maximum comfort and enjoyment, some type of window covering, either exterior or interior, to the window is needed on virtually every window.

Exterior shading

The most effective way to control the sun's heat and glare is to stop it before it penetrates your window. Once the sun's rays hit the glass, they are absorbed and begin to radiate throughout the room in the form of heat. Much like a big shade tree, exterior shading can keep the sun from hitting your windows. This will reduce cooling costs, reduce the load on your air conditioner and help reduce glare and fading. There are several proven exterior shading products available, depending on the amount of shading required, the type and size of window, and the desired exterior appearance.

SunScreen® solar screening is a woven fiber glass mesh that is installed in the same manner as regular insect screening, often using the same frames. For those desiring a more heavy-duty mesh, SunTex® is a woven vinyl-coated polyester fabric. It is more desirable for skylights, greenhouses or areas where the sun's exposure is almost constant. Both products can block up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare but allow good outdoor visibility and improved daytime privacy. They are also available in a choice of several colors to blend with any type of exterior.

For maximum exterior protection, ShadeScreen® louvered aluminum can block as much as 87 percent of the annual solar heat gain. It is designed with a series of tiny louvers, stamped from a sheet of solid aluminum. The neutral black finish of ShadeScreen adds a smart look to the exterior of almost any style home or building and improves its energy efficiency.

Interior sun control

For many types of windows, controlling the sun's heat and glare on the interior is the most practical way. Interior sun control methods allow a variety of ways to control the sun and light, while at the same time, enhancing even the most sophisticated of interior decorating schemes.

Interior shading fabrics are designed for use in such standard installation methods as roll-up shades, Roman shades, folding shades, pleated drapes, and vertical blinds, drapes, sheers and screens. You can select from several ranges of shading or "openness factors" and from a wide range of weaves and colors.

Insect protection

For windows and doors positioned where the sun's heat is not a significant problem, protection against insects is usually needed. This is particularly important today due to the increased risk of contracting dangerous diseases carried by mosquitoes and other pests. Screening allows enjoyment of patios and porches even at night when insects are at their worst.

A popular remodeling addition is a pool enclosure of fiber glass insect screening which covers an entire swimming pool and patio area. This type of home addition adds increased living and entertainment space at a very affordable price. Several types and colors of aluminum and Phifer® insect screening are available, depending on the type of installation and the desired effect. A new black finish aluminum screening is now available which, because of its almost invisible appearance when looking out, is ideal for porches and screened-in additions.

How to select

To help homeowners decide what type of window treatment is best for them, a new free 16-page color booklet is now available. The booklet illustrates the many popular interior and exterior Phifer shading products as well as regular insect screening products. A comparison chart allows you to quickly compare all of the products and decide which one is best for your needs. The booklet also answers many common questions asked about window treatment products and helps you find a dealer in your area for the products selected.

For a free copy of the 16-page booklet, "A Guide To Selecting The Right Window Covering," send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Phifer Wire Products, Inc., P.O. Box 1700, Tuscaloosa, AL 35403-1700. For immediate response, you may also request the booklet by calling, toll free, the Phifer Consumer Hot Line at 1-(800) 874-3007.

Why do boomerangs come back?

Boomerangs are V-shaped devices, which open at an angle anywhere from 90 to 160 degrees, depending on their use. There are two types of boomerangs, returning and nonreturning. A returning type, thrown correctly, will come back to the thrower. The nonreturning type has been used as a weapon for centuries, especially by Australian Aborigines.

The returning boomerang comes back because of its shape and size, the air pressure and how it is thrown.

The bend in the middle gives it the shape of an airplane's wings. The top side is curved and the underside is flat, with one thick edge and one thin edge.

The thrower grips one wing tip and throws. As the boomerang flies through the air, it spins wing over wing. The air pressure below the boomerang is greater than the air pressure above it and that keeps it travelling. First it flies forward, then rises and then curves to one side to return to the thrower.

Be a book worm

Reading is usually one of those things you either like or dislike. However many people tend to dislike reading for the wrong reasons. A popular reason is that when you read you are sitting still for an extended period of time. Young people have a hard time doing this.

However, many young people will agree that when they do choose a book they enjoy, it is much easier to read for longer amounts of time. What's more, once you start reading something you enjoy, you soon realize you can't get yourself to put the book down.

So give reading a chance—it can be a lot of fun. There are books on almost every subject. It shouldn't cost you a penny to have a continuous source of reading at your fingertips.

Most towns have a library where you can go and spend time browsing through the shelves for the kind of books you like. Within most adult libraries, there's usually a special children's section.

The leaning tower

The leaning tower of Pisa is a marble bell tower in Pisa, Italy. Even though the tower has been leaning since it was under construction, it has stood for hundreds of years.

The tower was begun centuries ago in 1173 A.D. and after the first three of its eight stories were built, the ground started to sink and the tower began to lean. It has continued leaning, a millimeter each year, and now leans 14 feet out of line.

The leaning tower attracts thousands of visitors each year, who climb its 300 winding steps to the bell tower for a view across Pisa and the surrounding countryside.

Make The Most Of Quality Time By Hiring A Professional Insulation Contractor money on improving their current "investment" rather than looking for a new one.

To keep their homes up-to-date and efficient, without sacrificing quality leisure time, many homeowners have found that contracting out many household tasks is an appealing option.

Having the insulation levels in your home upgraded to today's new energy standards, for example, is an important project that can be handled easily by a professional insulation contractor. A professional will assure that your home is insulated properly so that it will be less expensive to heat and cool and more comfortable all year round. In addition, he can insulate the areas of a home that a do-it-yourselfer can't, like sidewalls and some attic areas.

Selecting a professional insulation contractor is an important process that requires finding an experienced professional who uses quality insulation products. He'll probably recommend a fiber glass blown-in insulation like CertainTeed Insul-Safe III®. It's noncombustible, noncorrosive and won't rot or decay. Plus, it's extremely thermally efficient.

Once you've identified a few contractors, you can easily determine their credentials. A good rule of thumb is to make sure they've been in business for at least five years. Look at the types of projects they've done in the past to see if they match your job, and ask for a list of customers in your area that you can contact. It's also a good idea to check all information with your Better Business Bureau.

Ask for a written estimate that lists the type, amount, and R-Value of the insulation to be installed, the total cost for materials and labor to complete the job, as well as a starting and finishing date. It's important to get the proper R-Value, not just inches, as the thermal efficiency of products vary. All job specifications, details for the method of payment and the contractor's warranty should also be included. To validate the contract, both you and the contractor need to sign and retain copies of it.

By hiring a professional contractor to install insulation in your home this winter, you can relax in the comfort of an energy-efficient home, without tapping into your leisure time. The cost of the job will probably be recovered through energy savings for your home in a few years.

For more information about working with a contractor, write for a free copy of "How to Choose The Right Insulation Contractor" from the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

DID YOU KNOW?

PLUMBERS GET THEIR NAME FROM ONE OF THE MATERIALS THAT THEY USE—LEAD. THIS IS BECAUSE THE LATIN WORD FOR LEAD IS "PLUMBUM" AND THE ROMANS USED LEAD PIPES FOR THEIR WATER SUPPLY AND DRAINAGE.

FOR MANY YEARS THE U.S.A. WAS THE WORLD'S LARGEST MOTOR CAR MANUFACTURER BUT IN 1980 IT WAS FINALLY OVERTAKEN BY JAPAN.

Compaction & Recycling

Trash is making headlines: landfills overflowing... refuse on the shores... the environment in peril.

It's an issue people are doing something about. You can help, by using a trash compactor to shrink the volume of your recyclable and non-recyclable waste.

Trash compactors don't take up a lot of space in the kitchen, yet offer a variety of quality features. For example, an 18-inch wide trash compactor produced by Michigan-based KitchenAid Inc. offers the following exclusive features:

"Litter Bin" door that allows small items to be loaded even while the compactor is operating.

Tilt away trash basket and basket release handle for easy trash removal.

Activated charcoal air filter and odor control fan with on/off switch.

One-half HP motor that provides 3,000 pounds of ram force, to reduce trash to about one-fourth its original volume.

It also lends style to the kitchen, in all-black, all-white or all-almond looks. Plus it helps eliminate unsightly and smelly wastebags.

Some consumers are investing in multiple trash compactors, to help separate and compact recyclable materials. As mandatory recycling becomes more common, trash compactors are more than just nice to have—it's right to use one.

Trash compactors are almost a necessity in any kitchen improvement project—a convenience to homeowners that also helps control the volume of household trash. Most trash compactors are designed for built-in undercounter installation, such as this model from KitchenAid. Exclusive activated charcoal air filter with odor control fan and convenient toe-bar opener make this unit a pleasure to use.

PMS?

"In practice for life"

Premenstrual Syndrome (PMS) is a major problem for many women. While 20-40% of all women experience some degree of difficulty, only 5% report a significant impact on work or life style. The symptoms of PMS include breast swelling, abnormal bloating, increased thirst or appetite, headaches, craving for sweets, and emotional reactions such as anxiety, restlessness, irritability, depression, hostility, and a loss of self-confidence. All occur during the last 7-10 days of the menstrual and end abruptly or gradually with the onset of menstruation.

Since the cause of PMS is unknown, no current treatment as proven to be superior but must be tailored to the patient's individual symptoms. Dietary modification, vitamin therapy, diuretics, progesterone, and certain anti-depressants have given women relief.

If you or someone you love is experiencing problems possibly related to PMS, call or write our office for more information without obligation. Consultation with a gynecologist is the first step.
