Two file for council election

Two more people filed to run in the at-large city council election scheduled for May 4. City Council member Sidney Clark, and former county judge John Coffee filed Tuesday. They will be competing against Gail Earls, Chuck Condray and Mark Sheedy for three seats on the council.

Zoning Commission to consider changes

The city of Big Spring Planning and Zoning Commission will meet Thursday at 5:15 in the office of the McMahon/Wrinkle Airport to consider zoning changes. Property owners of several lots on the west side of Gregg Street are requesting the area, now zoned for parking, be changed to retail. H-E-B, a San Antonio-based grocery store chain, is reportedly considering locating in the area. The board will also consider designating a specific use for outdoor amusement in areas throughout the city.

Officials searching for escaped inmate

Officials are searching for a Mexican national believed to have escaped from the Big Spring Correction Center II Tuesday night.

Management official Chuck Haugh said Juventino-Guillen Constante, who arrived at the prison March 11, was discovered to be missing about 10 p.m. Tuesday. The inmates are counted each night at that time for safety reasons, Haugh explained.

"Basically, he was seen by staff at about 9 (p.m.) last night, but then when they went to do the count at 10 (p.m.), he wasn't in his room," Haugh said. "We assume he's escaped and we're out looking for him now."

Haugh said prison officials would be searching for Constante. The city police, who were alerted about the possible escape, might assist in detaining the prisoner if Constante is located.

Constante was beginning a 24-month sentence for "illegal entry" into the U.S. Many of the prison's inmates are illegal aliens.

The unit is the second of two city-owned prisons, which was completed and began receiving prisoners last month. It was constructed partially in buildings formerly used by the Webb Air Force Base.

City Manager Hal Boyd said he is not aware of any city liability in the matter. The prisons are managed under contract by Mid-Tex Detention Centers Inc., of which Haugh is chief executive officer.

Iraqi warplane shot down

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — An American jet fighter today shot down an Iraqi Su-22 warplane flying in violation of the informal Gulf War cease-fire, the U.S. Central Command said.

It was the first reported air engagement between allied and Iraqi forces since fighting ceased in the Gulf War Feb. 27.

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the incident did not mean a resumption of hostilities.

The engagement took place near Saddam Hussein's hometown of Tikrit in central Iraq, less than 100 miles from a key northern city Kurdish rebels claimed was being bombed by Iraqi aircraft today.

The United States has warned Iraq not to use its warplanes against insurgencies in the north and south. It was not immediately known whether the Iraqi plane shot down today was moving against rebels.

Lt. Cmdr. David Knox, spokesman for the U.S. Central Command in Riyadh, said the Iraqi jet fighter was one of two planes detected by an American AWACS early warning plane. The other Iraqi fighter "landed on its own after the engagement," Knox said.

He said a U.S. Air Force F-15C jet fighter shot down the Iraqi Su-22 at about 1:50 p.m. (5:50 a.m. EST) near Tikrit, 110 miles north of Baghdad.

"The Iraqi attempt to fly these two fighter aircraft is a violation of terms agreed with Iraqi military officials during talks at Safwan, Iraq, on March 3," Knox said in a telephone interview.

In a second round of cease-fire talks on Sunday, allied military commanders met with Iraqi commanders and warned them they cannot move their warplanes in Iraq for any reason.

Roundup set for weekend

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

Things that slither, coil and bite will be in plentiful supply this weekend at the Big Spring 29th Rattlesnake Round-Up.

Among the planned events are snake handling, skinning and milking demonstrations, a flea market, arts and crafts show and contests for area snake hunters. The weekend's headquarters will be the Howard County Fair Barns; up to 15,000 people are expected to attend.

The round-up is sponsored by AMBUCS, the American Business Club. The proceeds will benefit the group's scholarship fund and the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

Group president Wayne Pierce said the club considers the round-up its "civic duty." Plus, he added, it's a lot of fun.

"The first year we sponsored it, none of the AMBUCS were too wild about getting in with the snakes," he admitted. Now, however, Pierce counts himself among many group members who are experienced handlers.

Noel Hull, a member of a touring snake-handlers group, "Fangs and Rattlers," said dealing with the slithering, poisonous creatures is "just like anything else. If it's something you want to do bad enough, you'll do it."

Noel Hull, left, Ken McMurtry, center, and Wayne Pierce took time out recently to practice some of their snake-handling techniques in preparation for the Big Spring Rattlesnake Round-up, set to take place Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Howard County Fair Barns. The snake Hull is pulling from the box, captured by local citizen Jack Tonn, is expected to be one of the heaviest at the round-up, weighing eight pounds and measuring almost six feet in length.

Round-up organizer Ken McMurtry is one of the AMBUCS who will "get in the pit" with the snakes for the first time this year. Snake handlers demonstrate their skills and techniques at the show while working in a roped-off area containing at least 300 rattlers. "There's definitely a feeling you get, knowing they're deadly," McMurtry said. Pierce noted handlers usually wear protective gear covering their legs from knees to feet. The Big Spring Round-Up is one of the largest in the country, Hull said. He said it includes more stunts, demonstrations and related activities than any other.

Job begins smoothly for new city manager

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

The first two days of work for Buddy Foster, new city manager for Colorado City, have been routine and smooth, he says.

Selected from 61 applicants applying for the job following the resignation of Brenda Hammond in December, Foster, 42, accepted the job last month. He began work Monday at an annual salary of $31,320. He was the city controller in Pecos, a town of about 12,000.

On Monday, Foster met with about 50 city employees and on Tuesday night sat through an executive session of the Police Committee, which questioned officer Tim Atkins, and then attended a called City Council meeting. There were no surprises.

Foster was responsible in Pecos for all accounting and bookkeeping for an $8 million budget. He also functioned as the assistant city manager with 88 employees, but only directly supervised four employees as controller, according to his resume.

He will be overseeing a budget of about $2.3 million in Colorado City, population 4,700, but his supervisory responsibilities have increased. He described the meeting

Monday as a "normal routine staff meeting."

No action was taken Tuesday by the Police Committee, which last week fired Police Chief Bobby Sparks for "reckless use of his office." And the only decisions made by the Council were to distribute $25,000 from the 1990 hotel-motel tax to eight volunteer organizations and to approve a contract to purchase water from Lake Colorado City, which is owned by TU Electric.

"Nothing special," Foster said of the Council meeting. "It was a quick meeting."

One of Foster's foremost concerns right now is moving his wife Chris and their 11-year-old daughter and 9-year-old son to Colorado City. He said he has recently found a house, but has not moved yet.

"We'll be moved up here in a couple of weeks, at least in temporary quarters," he said.

Asked about his impressions of Colorado City, he said, "It's smaller of course, but it's not so isolated. It's a nice town."

Foster was chief financial officer for Pecos for 3½ years, according to his resume. Prior to moving to Pecos, he was a captain in the U.S. Army. In 1979-80, he was a college math instructor for Western Texas College, Snyder. He was a manager for a cassette tape publishing company since 1975. He graduated from Texas Tech University in 1972 with a degree in mathematics.

Lawyer calls for review board

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

The lawyer for Leslie Schulze, whose left arm was broken April 8, 1989, as she was being arrested for eluding police, said a review board comprised of police and private citizens should be created to oversee complaints about the police department.

Most policemen do a good job, said Big Spring attorney Bob Miller during a press conference Monday afternoon at his office on Scurry Street, but there are other incidents, although less serious, involving mistreatment of prisoners by police here in Big Spring.

"I personally believe that they need an outside review," Miller said. "I've had complaints as recently as the last three months of things that have happened." He showed a photograph of a large bruise sustained by one person.

Miller said he knows that city officials are aware of the complaints because he has written letters notifying them within a 30-day deadline as set for by a city ordinance. Police Chief Joe Cook, who was out of town Tuesday but was back at work in Big Spring this morning, did not return a phone call to the Big Spring Herald.

It is not the first time a citizens review board has been suggested in Big Spring. The City Council considered the idea in 1985 and again last year. At a March 1990 Council meeting, local businessman Raul Marquez said many Hispanics are dissatisfied with the way complaints are handled by the department.

At an April meeting, council members Gail Earls, Chuck Condray and Pat DeAnda said the present complaint procedures have not been given a chance to work. Mayor Max Green and Councilman D.D. Johnston said they favored creating a review board. Councilman Sidney Clark said they should keep a review board in mind.

Miller criticized a step in the present complaint procedure which requires polygraph tests, first by the complainant and then, if needed, by the officer. According to the procedure, when complaints are written out, a step which precedes the administration of polygraph tests, complainants are warned that "statements proven to be false can and likely will result in criminal charges."

That and a fear of retaliation keeps people from talking, including fellow officers, Miller said. "Some of these people are afraid of coming forth," he said.

Schulze, 27, testified in a July 1989 trial in Howard County Court that she fled from a police officer attempting to stop her for speeding April 8, 1989, because she was afraid of police as a result of a confrontation with patrolman Bill Arnold three days before. She claimed that Arnold told her that he would get her later.

Arnold, who apparently gave Schulze a verbal warning, testified at the trial that she had found the 15-20 minute confrontation "humorous and laughed a lot." Arnold also became involved in the April 8 half-hour chase over an

Texan buried at Arlington

WASHINGTON (AP) — A March wind, cold and gusty, tugged at the barren trees of Arlington National Cemetery as Tommy Don Butler, a 22-year-old Texan killed in the Persian Gulf, was buried in the muddy plot next to the fresh graves of four other soldiers. With jets rumbling across the sky, Chaplain Harry Gilman talked about the Amarillo native and Army specialist who died when a bomb exploded in the days after the cease-fire. "What Tom has taken, he's taken the love of those who gave him life, he's taken the friends and memories of growing up, being a brother, being a son," Gilman said Tuesday. Butler, a cannon crew member, was assigned to Battery B of the 3rd Battalion, 18th Field Artillery Brigade at Fort Sill, Okla. He joined the Army at age 19, and died less than a month after his 22nd birthday. Butler was one of 25 Texans killed in the Gulf.

Judge issues final order

AUSTIN (AP) — A district judge's ruling overturning the state's sodomy statute is a victory for Texas gays, said a group that helped file the lawsuit that led to the decision. Judge Paul Davis' written order means the state no longer can enforce the 112-year-old statute, officials said Tuesday. Davis on Friday issued the judgment confirming his Dec. 10, 1990, ruling that the sodomy law violates the Texas Constitution. "The estimated 2 million gays and lesbians in Texas have won the same right to engage in private, consensual sexual conduct that heterosexuals take for granted," the Texas Human Rights Foundation said Tuesday. "For the first time a Texas court, using Texas law, has invalidated this archaic, intrusive, and demeaning statute."

Two dead in airport shooting

EL PASO (AP) — Frightened travelers jumped over ticket counters at El Paso International Airport and dropped to the floor when a man distraught over a recent divorce fatally shot his ex-wife and then killed himself. Yong Hui Crockett, 34, of El Paso, died Tuesday when her ex-husband tricked her into meeting him at the airport and then shot her after a brief argument, police said. Quintan Lamont Hannah, 30, then put the .357 Magnum to his forehead and killed himself.

House: Bullock's tax stand lonely one

AUSTIN (AP) — Calling a personal income tax too unpopular to pass right now, House Speaker Gib Lewis says lawmakers must look at other taxes.

"The votes are not in the House at this point for a personal income tax. So if you do not have the votes, you don't sit there and just grind away. You start looking for alternative methods," Lewis said Tuesday.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who began the income tax push two weeks ago, said it's been lonely out in front.

"I found out that there haven't been many followers," Bullock said. "I think before long somebody will say, 'Wait, wait Bullock. Let me catch up. Let me lead this group.' I am looking for

"I found out that there haven't been many followers. I think before long somebody will say, 'Wait, wait Bullock. Let me catch up. Let me lead this group.' I am looking for that person in the ranks."

Bob Bullock

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said the personal income tax was "not a sellable item. I think he (Bullock) understands that."

Asked if the tax could be sold, Bullock replied, "It doesn't look like it at this time."

The lieutenant governor proposed starting both personal and corporate income taxes to help the state cover its projected $4.6 billion budget deficit and pay additional costs for schools, prisons and welfare services. The Senate leader said he was "somewhat disappointed" in business groups that had told him they would support a state income tax.

"As the old saying goes, talk doesn't cook rice. And they haven't cooked any rice yet," he said.

However, Bullock said, public opinion may change once taxpayers learn just how much the school finance reform bill now being written will cost.

He said early indications of its price were "astounding, shocking," but didn't provide specifics.

"The people of Texas at this point really haven't been given an option. The money either must come from local school districts or it must come from the ... (state) Treasury," Bullock said.

While a personal income tax may not be moving, the chief House tax writer said some form of business income tax may be enacted. Ways and Means Committee Chairman James Hury, D-Galveston, said he expects the House to pass a plan combining the franchise tax corporations pay on capital investment with an income-based tax on businesses which don't pay franchise taxes. That primarily would be service-oriented companies, he said.

"I believe the House will vote out combination franchise base-income tax," Hury said. "To those people that don't pay a franchise tax, that would be taxed under an income tax identifier."

Such a tax likely would exempt the first $45,000 of income, he said. Lewis said raising the state sales tax as high as 7 percent also is being studied, along with expanding the sales tax to include numerous items and services not now taxed.

Group begins hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Nominations Committee said he did not want to act hastily on Lionel Mene's nomination to be Texas' education commissioner.

LIONEL MENO

"This is a crucial appointment for the future of our state," said Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin.

The committee heard Tuesday from Mene, currently New York's deputy commissioner for elementary and secondary education. It plans a vote Thursday. Any recommendation would go to the full Senate.

If he is confirmed, Mene told senators, he won't bring a "cookbook" of school reform recipes from New York.

"I think that the best programs are home-grown," said Mene, 44.

He would start work July 1, if the Senate approves the nomination submitted by Gov. Ann Richards, Texas' former commissioner and Mene's mentor.

Mene said Texas has many of the same public education problems as other states, such as disparities between "haves" and "have-nots," and concern about how schools are governed. Lawmakers are facing a Texas Supreme Court order to equitably fund poor school districts. Officials also have voiced concern about dropouts and student performance.

Mene said the state should outline what it wants students to learn, and local school districts should be given flexibility in developing programs and be held accountable for student success. Flexibility in programs should extend to a review of the state's no-pass, no-play law, in which students currently must sit out extracurricular activities for six weeks if they fail a class, Mene said in response to senators' questions.

For example, a school district might have an innovative way to carry out the rule with a three-week suspension, he said. If so, he said, "We ought to look at that."

He also supported all students learning a second language, saying, "That can only empower them."

Mene said it is important for the Texas Education Agency to provide technical assistance and staff development to local school districts. He is a former school district superintendent in Syracuse, N.Y.

A state lawmaker has filed a bill to eliminate top TEA administrative positions, saying he wants to give Mene a chance to bring in his own team.

Mene said the State Board of Education has said it would support him in a review of the agency, and an effort to hire people who can do the job he wants.

"So I think that whether or not that particular piece of legislation follows, I'll have the kind of flexibility I need to put together a Texas state educational agency that'll do the job," he said.

Mene said he has discussed a $130,000 annual salary with the State Board of Education, which recommended him for the commissioner's post. The job now pays about $116,000 a year.

Berlanga jailed, released in jury battle

AUSTIN (AP) — State Rep. Hugo Berlanga said it was worth a few hours in jail to stand up for what he contended was a constitutional right to prevent a grand jury from looking at his records.

Berlanga, one of the state's most powerful legislators, spent about six hours in the Travis County Jail on Tuesday as he continued to challenge a grand jury investigating allegations of influence buying at the Capitol.

He was released on a personal recognizance bond at 5:25 p.m. under an order by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which agreed to consider Berlanga's appeal of the contempt citation.

Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said the records sought by Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle are personal and not subject to grand jury scrutiny.

"The question is principle in terms of whether or not this state, Mr. Earle in particular, has the right ... to obtain a person's personal privilege records," he said after being released.

"I had always contended from the very beginning that this was a matter of principle. It was worth being held in custody for a few hours," he said.

Berlanga's incarceration is the latest development in a tug-of-war between the lawmaker and the special grand jury investigating ties between state officials and lobbyists.

Late last year, the grand jury indicted House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, on misdemeanor ethics charges that he accepted a gift from the prominent San Antonio law firm of Heard, Goggan, Blair and Williams. Lewis has denied any wrongdoing.

Berlanga was subpoenaed by the grand jury March 12 and ordered to bring his business records of Berlanga Business Consultants, Federal Civil Process Inc. and Title USA.

He appeared before the grand jury twice but refused to submit the records, invoking his right against self-incrimination.

Federal Civil Process, a now defunct company that did most of its business for the Heard, Goggan law firm, allegedly gave Berlanga Business Consultants a $20,000 fee in 1988. Berlanga served on the House committee that later killed a bill that would have hurt Heard, Goggan's delinquent tax collection business.

Berlanga, one of the Lewis' top lieutenants, is chairman of the powerful Calendars Committee which decides which bills reach the House floor for debate.

Berlanga's lawyer, J.A. "Tony" Canales of Corpus Christi, said the lawmaker was required to go to jail so the appellate court would have jurisdiction to consider granting him relief.

War figure to join board of Houston company

HOUSTON (AP) — Lt. Gen. Thomas W. Kelly, who gained fame as a Pentagon briefer during the Persian Gulf War, is expected to join the board of directors at Enron Corp. later this month.

On March 4, Kelly, who had just retired daily with reporters during televised briefings, announced his retirement from the Army.

Kelly, 59, will be nominated for a seat on the Houston company's board during a May 7 shareholders meeting, Ed Segner, Enron senior vice president, told the Houston Chronicle in today's editions.

The general won't formally accept the nomination until he retires, Segner said.

Kelly has been director of operations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff since 1988, serving as the direct link between JCS Chairman Colin Powell and the heads of each of the armed services.

prestige and a special international management perspective.

Sharon Voros, a spokeswoman for Paul Ray & Carre Orban International, an executive recruiting firm in Fort Worth, said Kelly proved during the war that he's a good spokesman, performs well under pressure and has excellent management skills.

Kelly probably won't bring much commercial savvy to the company, "but what these boards really want is wisdom" to guide decisions, Orner said.

Segner said the company was "looking for his perspective on international and public affairs issues and the guidance he can bring."

Weapon costs could cancel savings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Savings from the Pentagon's anticipated troop cuts could be wiped out by new expensive weapons that would add more than $40 billion annually to future defense spending, the Congressional Budget Office says.

Robert F. Hale of the CBO told a House panel Tuesday that even if the Bush administration reduces the armed forces by 25 percent, the level of defense spending it proposes for fiscal 1995 "will not be enough to support the smaller forces in the long run."

The Defense Department, in its budget request for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, asked for $291 billion. It projected it will need $295 billion in fiscal 1995.

The CBO's analysis of the administration's defense plans found that the cost of the next generation of weapons far exceeds any savings from the proposed force reduction — the largest cut since the end of the Vietnam War.

The problem, which could mean an additional $40 billion in defense spending in the late 1990s or early in the next century, are the new weapons systems, the congressional agency said.

It singled out the B-2 stealth bomber — the costliest aircraft in history.

Foley sees no compromise in sight

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas Foley says no compromise is in sight with the White House on civil rights legislation and he expects a House vote on a Democratic-sponsored version this spring.

The House Judiciary Committee voted 24-10 Tuesday to approve the Democratic bill, similar to one President Bush vetoed last year. It rejected the White House's more modest alternative on a voice vote.

"We think it ought to be enacted in the early months of this session," Foley, D-Wash., said later. He said he expected a vote in April or May.

Foley expressed a willingness to reach a compromise that would avert another veto.

"If the administration showed an interest in moving in the direction of the bill that was vetoed last year, I think that we would be open to a discussion about that. But so far I know of no specific compromise in the works," he said.

Three Republicans on the Judiciary Committee crossed over to vote with the solid Democratic majority in favor of the bill.

The bill would roll back six Supreme Court decisions in 1989 that opponents say have made it more difficult to bring job-discrimination cases against employers.

Maxwell needs one more contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Maxwell, one union contract away from taking control of the Daily News, said he would try to squeeze $30 million more a year from the newspaper and would keep the publisher who has rankled striking unions.

Machinists were set to vote today on a cost-cutting contract with Maxwell. The paper's nine other unions have ratified new contracts with the British publisher.

Ratification by the machinists of their contract would allow Thursday's paper to be the first edition under Maxwell's ownership.

The New York Times today quoted Maxwell as saying he would retain publisher James Hoge, the target of great bitterness among employees.

When asked how the unions reacted to his decision, Maxwell said: "I didn't ask them. It's none of their business."

FORMER STRIKERS CELEBRATE
"It's Maxwell's paper, so he can do what he wants," said George McDonald, head of the union coalition. "But I think it's a colossal mistake. It's like George Bush appointing Saddam secretary of state."

BEIRUT, Lebanon — An instamatic picture of American hostage Jesse Turner was released by his captors in Beirut, Tuesday, along with a statement demanding the release of Shiite Muslim cleric and other Arab prisoners held by Israel.

Newspaper says all six hostages to be released

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A newspaper said today that Western hostages in Lebanon will be freed this week, including all six Americans believed held by pro-Iranian factions. It said the Americans would be in Syria on Saturday.

The front-page report in the conservative Ad-Diyar newspaper comes amid intensified cooperation by U.S., Iranian and Syrian officials aimed at securing the hostages' release.

The longest-held hostage, Associated Press chief Middle East correspondent Terry Anderson, 43, was seized on March 16, 1985.

The Ad-Diyar report said the Americans would be freed Friday at an unnamed hotel in Beirut in the presence of Interior Minister Sami Al-Khatib and the commander of Syria's military intelligence in Lebanon, Brig. Gen. Ghazi Kanaan.

The newspaper, which did not name its sources, said the Americans would then be taken to Damascus and handed over to the U.S. ambassador to Syria, whose army controls three-quarters of Lebanon.

The report came just a few hours after the pro-Iranian Shiite Muslim group holding two American hostages reiterated its preconditions for their release and Israel

Refugees harassed by Germans

LEISNIG, Germany (AP) — The brutal ransacking of a refugee home by angry eastern Germans has underlined the tensions caused by an influx of asylum-seekers sent by the west to the struggling east, where unemployment is soaring.

At the end of last month, about 20 Germans with iron bars and heavy sticks attacked the home, breaking down doors, smashing windows and injuring several of the 60 refugees in the process.

The ransacking sent the asylum-seekers fleeing again, this time back to the west. Inundated with refugees, western Germany has sent thousands of Iranian, Vietnamese, Pakistani and others to the poorer, eastern parts of the country.

"They gave us a warning: 'If you come back again, we will burn you and we will destroy you,'" said Ermas Mekasha Tase, a 29-year-old Ethiopian who was at the barracks-like Leisnig refugee home the night of the Feb. 24 attack.

A worker in at the home in this rural village 30 miles from Leipzig, Bernd Franke, explained the incident: "The attackers wanted to take out their frustrations... There are no jobs. There are money problems."

Milosevic to talk with other leaders

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Under increasing pressure to resign, Serbia's hard-line president has toned down his call for a military crackdown and agreed to talk with the presidents of rival non-Communist republics.

Today, Serbia's Communist-dominated parliament began discussion of who should be blamed for the crackdown 10 days ago that set into motion a series of events that have eroded the power of Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic.

Two people died and 120 were injured when security forces crushed the pro-democracy protest in Belgrade on March 9, which marked the first time Milosevic's rule had been seriously challenged.

In a rare public appearance by Milosevic at Belgrade University on Tuesday, students bitterly criticized the Serbian president for his recalcitrance.

"Do you really think that Serbia would be any weaker if you were to resign tomorrow?" asked one student.

A flustered Milosevic told the students that he would seek a peaceful solution to Yugoslavia's political crisis, in which the westward-leaning republics of Croatia and Slovenia are threatening to secede.

Milosevic said he would attend a meeting of the republics' presidents called for Thursday to discuss Yugoslavia's future.

Eight killed by car bomb in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded in a Christian suburb today as the defense minister drove by, killing at least eight people and hurling the minister's armor-plated car upside down onto the sidewalk, authorities said.

At least 21 people, including the minister, were reported injured.

The attack occurred a day before the deadline for Christian and Moslem militia groups to disband, part of the government's plan to secure the end of a 16-year-old civil war that has claimed 130,000 lives.

It appeared aimed at disrupting a meeting on the plan by the Syrian-backed government of President Elias Hrawi. Government sources said the Cabinet was expected to issue an ultimatum for the militias to lay down their guns.

Defense Minister Michel Murr, a Christian, suffered a slight neck wound in the blast. In a state-

Libya building second poison gas plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Libya is building a new plant to produce chemical weapons and also has been making large amounts of poison gas at another facility once thought to have been destroyed by fire, U.S. officials say.

The new facility is near the existing poison gas factory at Rabta, a town about 60 miles southwest of the Libyan capital of Tripoli, one official said. "Large scale" production of poison gas has been under way at Rabta since last summer, he added.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, declined to say how far the Libyans have come with the second plant.

"There is convincing evidence that Libya is continuing its chemical weapon program and may have begun construction of a second chemical warfare agent production plant in addition to the one operating at Rabta," said Rear Adm. Thomas A. Brooks, director of naval intelligence.

Brooks, whose comments appear in testimony prepared for a closed hearing earlier this month of the House Armed Services Committee, did not elaborate.

Libya keeps insisting the plant at Rabta produces medicines. Western reporters were invited to tour the plant in January 1990 but were not allowed in after being taken to the complex. They reported seeing surface-to-air missiles batteries, tanks and soldiers around the complex.

Libya announced last March that arsonists had set fire to the plant at Rabta, and accused Israeli, American or German agents of setting the blaze.

German companies were the main contractors for the Rabta plant.

The White House initially said it had concluded the plant had been rendered inoperable by the fire. But intelligence officials subsequently revealed the fire was a hoax perpetrated by Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi to preclude any possibility of a U.S. bombing attack to destroy the facility.

The United States bombed Libya in 1986 to retaliate for what it said

Saudis should take initiative

In the context of the chaos in Iraq, Secretary of State James Baker's Middle East peace mission almost seemed like an odd sideshow to a larger, more tragic drama. It's not, but until the situation in Iraq stabilizes, Baker's efforts seem unlikely to produce any real progress toward a permanent regional settlement.

There are other obstacles, of course, chief among them the deeply entrenched positions of the parties to the conflict.

That said, Baker's visits to Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Egypt, Israel and Syria were helpful, if only as a means of redefining U.S. objectives and calling on Middle East governments to take initiatives of their own. That ought to apply especially to Israel and Saudi Arabia.

Israeli reluctance to talk with Palestinians who sided with Iraq in the Persian Gulf War and cheered Iraqi missile attacks on Israel is understandable. So is Saudi Arabia's preoccupation with its own postwar security, its anger toward pro-Iraqi Arabia — in particular Jordan, the Palestine Liberation Organization and Yemen — and its traditional reluctance to get out in front diplomatically.

Yet if an Arab-Israeli dialogue along U.S.-proposed lines is ever to get started, the most promising avenue looks to be the one between Riyadh and Jerusalem.

Saudi Arabia has gained prestige and self-confidence from the war and now appears ready to take more responsibility both for its own security and for resolving regional issues.

And with the likelihood of a protective, long-term U.S. military presence in the area, the Saudis can more safely afford to become more assertive, rather than simply buying friends and buying off potential adversaries as in the past.

Riyadh's most useful first step would be an opening toward Israel, perhaps to discuss the possibility of ending the Arab boycott — anything that plausibly justifies such an opening.

By the same token, Israeli leaders are wrong to assume that Palestinians' behavior during the war justifies an even harder line against the concept of a land-for-peace accord with the Arab world.

While Baker apparently put little pressure on the Israelis during his visit, President Bush is already talking about possible cutbacks in military aid to Israel in the context of an effort to curb the regional arms race. If that doesn't inspire a revival, or even an expansion, of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's plan for limited Palestinian autonomy, it certainly ought to.

Syria remains a major question mark. Baker's generally upbeat description of his talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad was also very cryptic, suggesting that Damascus is unwilling to take any initiative toward Israel and that Assad either won't or can't do much to win the release of 13 Western hostages, six of them Americans, held by Iranian-backed terrorists in Lebanon.

That's neither encouraging nor surprising, which is a further argument for Saudi Arabia and Israel to take the lead.

In the meantime, the internal conflict in Iraq is very troubling, both in human terms and to the extent that it points toward greater regional instability, which would be a tragically ironic consequence of a war fought to achieve stability.

A resolution in Iraq, one that may require a clearer and more assertive U.S. role, is a vital counterpart to even the most sincere peaceful overtures elsewhere in the region.

Case of dog turning on master

WASHINGTON — They say it isn't news when dog bites man, but the maxim doesn't always work. At the Supreme Court last week, a beloved mutt named Principle turned on his conservative masters. The conservatives limped out of court with their pants torn and their feelings hurt.

The controversy involved a light-fingered fellow named Lemmie L. Ruffin Jr., a municipal worker named Cleopatra Haslip, and two insurance companies named Pacific Mutual and Union Fidelity.

When the dust settled, the faithless Ruffin was in trouble, Mrs. Haslip (and her lawyer) was in Fat City. Pacific Mutual was out a million bucks, and Union Fidelity was feeling no pain. The mutt Principle had triumphed and injustice had prevailed.

This was the story. In 1981 the town of Roosevelt City, a suburban community west of Birmingham, Ala., decided to offer its municipal workers an opportunity to buy health and life insurance. Presenting himself as a licensed agent for Pacific Mutual, Lemmie Ruffin made a deal. Union Fidelity would provide group health coverage; Pacific Mutual would offer life insurance.

So far, so good. But Union Fidelity agreed to send its monthly billings to Ruffin at Pacific Mutual's Birmingham office. The city clerk would send a monthly check, equal to payroll deductions, to Ruffin as agent for the two companies. In theory, Ruffin would then send Union a check, less his commission, for the health insurance coverage.

Alas, the rogue kept the premium payments and sent Union nothing. Late in 1981, Union sent a notice of lapsed health coverage to town workers in the group health unit, but Union sent the notices in care of Ruffin. It was not the most reliable mail service. Sad to say, Ruffin sat on the notices. He did not forward them. As a consequence, Mrs. Haslip did not know her coverage had been canceled. And in January 1982 she came down with a kidney infection.

Her hospital bill came to nearly $4,000. When Union refused to pay, the hospital referred the account to a collection agency. The agency obtained a judgment against Mrs. Haslip. Her credit was adversely affected. She brought suit against Pacific Mutual for damages, and at last we get to the tale of the mutt Principle and the wounded conservatives.

The trial jury awarded Mrs. Haslip $200,000 for out-of-pocket expenses and damage to her reputation. Then the jury added $840,000 in punitive damages, for a total of $1,040,000. (If you would meet the mother of ironies, note that Pacific didn't even write the health coverage. But Ruffin was its agent, and the legal theory of "respondeat superior" applied.)

Last week the Supreme Court voted 7-1 to affirm the judgment. (Justice Sandra Day O'Connor dissented; Justice David Souter did not participate.) The court had been asked to declare the punitive damages a violation of due process of law. The aggrieved company argued that the $840,000 figure had been fabricated from whim, caprice and very thin air, and indeed this was so. The entire business community rose to the side of Pacific Mutual. CBS, The Washington Post and the American Society of Newspaper Editors filed briefs in support of Pacific Mutual. Lawyers for the Church of Scientology and the Krishna Consciousness group chimed in. The court heard from Bethlehem Steel, the Chamber of Commerce, Price-Waterhouse and 30 others who spoke eloquently of the injustice of punitive damages.

The high court was not impressed. In the field of jurisprudence, conservatives have one principle they cherish above all others. That principle is the principle of judicial restraint. Judges, we hold, must not usurp legislative powers. Conservatives are in love with tradition; we revere the wisdom of the ages. The more ancient a custom, the more fiercely we clutch it to our breast.

Well, ho-ho. The high court's opinion of March 4 was a veritable paradigm of judicial restraint. Justice Antonin Scalia, concurring, went back to Magna Carta in 1215. You can't get much more ancient than that. If punitive damages are to be limited, said the court, it is up to the state legislatures to fashion the limits.

This is an exercise in federalism, a constitutional principle that we also adore, though not too warmly in this particular instance. The truth of the matter is that the court blew us up with our own ammunition. Unbridled punitive damages are dead wrong. They violate the judicial concept of "fundamental fairness." O woe, woe! Where are activist judges when we really need them?

Imagine life without imagination

By BILL AYRES
City Editor

A few years ago a company introduced a line of games very different from anything seen before.

These games had no board or pieces. The entire game was played in the minds of the participants. There was usually one player who controlled the direction of the game.

The game, "Dungeons and Dragons," caused quite a flap. Since the players fought monsters, naturally demons came into play. Several cities banned the game as satanic and even one book was written about college kids taking it too seriously and killing one of the players.

But the concept continued as different games were introduced. There were spy games, western hero games and even a space adventure game. All relied on the imagination of the players.

Imagination — the ability to create something out of nothing. Remember when your mother would look at you and say, "You're imagining that," or someone was accused of having a vivid imagination? Or that time the teacher accused you of day dreaming?

Little children possess the most active imaginations. They can sit for hours finding ways of amusing themselves without the help of adults or even other children.

One of my younger brothers, Kevin, was like that. You could give him a box full of odd pieces of lumber and before long he was creating something. Of course, what he saw wasn't always what we older people saw. To him there was a city, while to us it was nothing more than a pile of wood.

For what it's worth

One afternoon my brother was out in the yard playing. Mom and I were inside. Suddenly it got very quiet. We looked at each other and decided Kevin must be up to something; it was just too quiet.

We went to the kitchen and looked out the window. There lay Kevin in the middle of the yard, near the swing set. The first thought we both had was that Kevin had injured himself.

Out the door we rushed. When the back door slammed, Kevin sat up and looked at us wondering what he had done. After we determined he was all right, Mom asked him what he was doing.

"Nothing," he said. "Just lying here looking at the clouds." We asked why and were told, "There's clowns and elephants and stuff up there. It's like going to the circus."

Of course, we couldn't see it. But we both sat down next to him and began watching the clouds. Suddenly, I could see a mighty battleship sailing across the sky. My mom laughed and said she saw a sheep dog getting ready to jump on someone.

Before long all three of us were lying in the grass, just watching the clouds go by and imagining a host of things.

Imagination allows one to stretch the limits of his mind, to perceive things differently from the everyone else. Kevin could look at a blade of grass, imagine it a towering tree and he, the size of an ant, was lost in the forest.

Imagine where we would be today if Thomas Edison or the Wright Brothers had not imagined they could do something no one else had. Would we have the works of the great artists, if they had had no imagination? How many of us can look at a blank canvas or block of granite and see the "Mona Lisa" or "The Thinker"? Or how many of us could take the discordant sounds of several instruments and blend them into something as powerful as a symphony?

Imagination is the catalyst. It allows us to create something out of nothing, to improve on something already created or wonder what's on the other side of the galaxy.

So the next time your child invites his imaginary friend to dinner, set a place at the table. Who knows, that child might be the one who imagines himself the doctor who cures cancer and does it.

And that's for what it's worth!

Lewis Grizzard

Don't ask him to play hurt

Matt Young is a baseball pitcher with a bad arm. Three years ago he underwent corrective surgery.

Obviously it didn't take. His record last year with the Seattle Mariners was 8-18.

His lifetime record is 51 wins and 78 losses.

The Boston Red Sox have signed Young for this season. They gave him a three-year, $6.4 million contract.

That's about $2 million a year. The most games Matt Young ever won in a season was 12. That comes down to almost $170,000 per win.

And this: The Phillies are paying $6.3 million to a catcher named Darren Daulton. He hit .268 last year.

What's going on here? Back in the '50s, when baseball was my life, you hit .268 and they shipped you to the Three-I League. You went 8-18 and you got a bus ticket to Shreveport instead of a new contract for more than what the Louisiana Purchase cost.

I was wondering what the old-timers from my boyhood days think about this madness. I tracked down one of my heroes, Arnold "Moose" Scronski, a great right-fielder with the old Kansas City As.

I found him working in a service station in Brokeback, Texas.

"Back in '56," he recalled as he changed a tire, "I hit .341, had 43 homers, 118 RBIs and I played half the year with pneumonia and a planter wart on the bottom of my left foot."

"I was making $8,500. I went to the front office and asked for $10,000 to sign for '57. They said they didn't like the way I hopped when I rounded the bases after a home run and cut me to $7,500."

"But didn't that take away a lot of your desire the following season?" I asked. Some players today say they are insulted because the front office won't throw in an extra million or two for not spitting tobacco juice on the manager's head.

"Well," Moose went on, "I admit I didn't play as hard in '57 as I did in '56. I slumped to .334 and only 40 homers. Of course a lot of that could have been due to the fact I broke my ankle in May and got beamed in July and played the rest of the season with double vision."

"That's still a great year," I said to my old hero, who had finished changing the tire and was cleaning a carburetor. "Didn't management give you a raise for the '58 season?"

"No," he answered. "They said my 65 stolen bases was a disgrace and cut me another $500."

"What happened in '58?"

"I figured I'd better bear down," Moose explained. "At the rate I was going I'd wind up owing them."

"So I hit .375, had 51 homers, 130 RBIs, stole 85 bases and won the Most Valuable Player award."

"Then did they give you a raise?" I asked.

"They gave me back the original $8,500 and said they were real proud of me, especially since I didn't miss a single game despite the fact I broke my nose in Cleveland and came down with shingles."

"Moose," I said, "if you had a year like that today, you'd probably get $5 million a year."

"Yeah," said Moose, "but for that kind of money, they'd probably expect me to play hurt."

WASHINGTON — Carolyn Boccella Bagin shows off some forms in her office at the American Institutes for Research in Washington Tuesday. Bagin is a lonely crusader for plain English in a world that speaks gobbledygook. Her job is to transform the unintelligible paperwork of government and corporate clients into user-friendly models of simplicity and clarity.

U.S. losing technological edge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is losing badly to foreign competition in numerous high-technology fields considered crucial to the country's economic future and national security, said a study released today.

The Council on Competitiveness found that in areas from silicon production to robotics, U.S. industry is not expected to be a factor over the next five years.

"America's once-commanding lead in the critical technologies driving economic growth and national security is being seriously challenged by foreign competitors," the council, an organization composed of industry, labor and education executives, concluded in its two-year study.

The report surveyed nine technology-intensive industries, ranging from aerospace to telecommunications, and came up with a list of 94 technologies considered crucial for U.S. economic prosperity in this decade.

In a sobering assessment, it

"America's once-commanding lead in the critical technologies driving economic growth and national security is being seriously challenged by foreign competitors."

Council on Competitiveness found that in 15 of the 94 critical technologies, the United States is so far behind that it is not likely to have a presence in the world market through the mid-1990s.

Among these technologies judged lost are two — display materials and computer memory chips — considered vital for development of high definition television sets.

Other technologies listed in the lost column were computer circuit board technology and robotics and other automated equipment. In 18 other areas, the U.S. position was listed as weak, with American industries behind in technology developments or likely to fall behind in the next five years.

In this category were included such critical fields as advanced metals development, precision bearings and lasers.

George Fisher, chairman of the council and the chief executive officer of Motorola Inc., said the council recognized that its report was coming at a time when Americans were feeling more confident based on the technological prowess exhibited by U.S.-made weapons in the Persian Gulf War.

But he said much of that success was generated with technology developed in the 1960s and 1970s, when the United States still had a commanding lead in most fields.

"While impressive, America's performance in the gulf should not be interpreted as a sign of unassailable U.S. technological strength," Fisher said.

Check here if you understand this form, and sign three copies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carolyn Boccella Bagin is a lonely crusader for plain English in a world that speaks gobbledygook.

Her enemy is the growing avalanche of badly written forms, unintelligible letters and confusing documents that drive millions of Americans nearly bonkers every day. The enemy, she says, is everywhere.

College students can't understand the loan applications they're supposed to fill out. The elderly are stumped by insurance claims. Telephone bills are a puzzle. Sweepstakes entries are verbal jungles of legal jargon.

Think those Form 1040s from the tax people are a headache? Try tackling Form 171, the accordion-like federal job application that's a bureaucratic nightmare in small, green type.

"If you have the persistence to fill out this form, you ought to get the job anyway," Ms. Bagin says.

A former high school English teacher from suburban Philadelphia, Ms. Bagin is director of the Document Design Center at the private American Institutes of Research.

Her job is to transform the unintelligible paperwork of government and corporate clients into user-friendly models of simplicity and clarity. "What's wrong with being direct and clear?" she asks. "Why isn't simplicity the goal?"

The center has redesigned Pennsylvania Electric's customer bills and Citicorp's collection letters. One of its biggest projects was a top-to-bottom rewrite of the owner's manual for Ford Taurus automobiles.

That job was commissioned after a senior Ford executive couldn't understand the old manual's instructions for setting the digital clock in his new car.

His frustration is shared by many other Americans, especially the elderly, according to a survey Ms. Bagin conducted last year for Modern Maturity, the bimonthly magazine of the American Association of Retired Persons.

"The forms we now use would make the Marquis de Sade wild with envy," a Florida woman wrote about her insurance carrier's paperwork.

"I've reached an age when Chinese puzzles are no longer any fun," another respondent wrote.

Complaining of small type, one woman wrote: "I've just noticed a teeny-weensy statement in one margin that says something about a felony. When I'm arrested, maybe someone can read it to me along with my rights."

Some of the nearly 4,000 respondents sent examples of outrageous forms, including one from the Social Security Administration that was studied with boxes labeled "SAC" or "EMY" and carried such perplexing commands as "Enter COA in TID block."

Another, a Medicaid form, gave instructions in green ink that virtually disappeared in their green-colored boxes.

Ms. Bagin says many forms are incomprehensible because they are written for the convenience of their authors — lawyers, engineers, marketing executives — without regard for those who are answering the questions.

She has a suspicion that some form-writers deliberately avoid asking simple questions because they might look stupid. "So they cloud the issue to appear smart, complex and educated, and to add some mystery to their profession," she says.

How can they public fight gobbledygook?

"Complain, and complain loudly," Ms. Bagin advises. "Pick up the phone and argue about it. Speak to the people who gave you the forms, speak to their bosses, speak to the CEOs (chief executive officers). The worst thing is to do nothing."

Concerned citizens assist salamanders

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Spring doesn't officially arrive until later this week, but Amherst's salamanders are already on the move.

And in what has become a spring rite in this college town, about a dozen people gathered Monday night to ensure the spotted salamanders got safely through special salamander-scale tunnels under a road to their breeding grounds.

Before the town installed the tunnels in 1988, salamander supporters had stood guard, stopping traffic, to keep them from harm.

Thomas Tynning, a master naturalist with the Massachusetts Audubon Society, called it a good first night. About two dozen of the navy blue amphibians with yellow polka dots stepped out smartly — for salamanders — in the 44 degree temperatures.

It takes 10 to 15 minutes for a seven-inch long salamander to cross the road in warm rain, Tynning said. "If the temperature drops, they show to a crawl — that is, even more of a crawl."

All of the first wave were males, he said. Typically females wait until it's a tad warmer to begin easing out of their burrows, he said.

As many as 150 of the spotted salamanders winter on a wooded hillside near the road, he said.

The 18-inch wide, six-inch high tunnels are modeled after similar passageways for migrating toads in England. The tunnels are largely successful, Tynning said, but naturalists continue to work on the design.

"There are lots of roads around where the salamanders are getting squashed tonight," he said.

Red nosed bobby

LONDON — Gordon McGeechan, a Ministry of Defence policeman, gets in the spirit of Britain's annual "Red Nose Day" while on duty at Whitehall in central London, Friday. The Comic Relief group hoped to raise up to $48 million dollars for charities in Britain and Africa as thousands of Britons sported the red noses during the day.

Tearful Argentines visit Falklands

GOOSE GREEN, Falkland Islands (AP) — In the first journey by Argentines to these barren, windswept islands since the 1982 Falkland Islands war, relatives of soldiers slain in the conflict visited graves of the fallen.

Women fell to the ground on Monday beside the simple white crosses at the cemetery near Goose Green, site of one of the fiercest battles in the war.

Most of the 354 relatives carried flowers in the bitterly cold wind; one man picked some heather from the bleak moorland to make his own bouquet.

Two hundred thirty-five Argentine soldiers are buried in the cemetery, among the 750 Argentine and 255 British soldiers killed in the 74-day war.

The flight from Buenos Aires, the first since the war, was sponsored by the Red Cross and approved by Britain and Argentina. It took months to negotiate.

Both nations claim the South Atlantic archipelago, which Britain has ruled since 1833.

Argentina invaded the islands off its southeastern coast in April 1982, but a British task force recaptured the islands and forced Argentina's surrender.

The humiliating defeat, along with the reports that Argentine soldiers were not fed, clothed or armed properly by their military chiefs, undermined remaining domestic support for Argentina's military dictatorship and hastened the turnover to civilian rule.

But the scars of war remain. Under ground rules set by the Red Cross, the visitors were not allowed any contact with island residents and the British military was ordered to stay out of sight as much as possible.

Also, the Aerolineas Argentinas Boeing 707 was instructed to land not at the capital, Port Stanley, but 200 miles away at Mount Pleasant. Passengers' curtains were to be closed as the plane descended on Mount Pleasant and later left the island.

Photographers accompanying the relatives were told to hand over their cameras until the group arrived by helicopter at Darwin cemetery.

They were divided into four groups for the helicopter shuttle to the graveyard. Each group had a 20-minute religious service, and relatives had about 20 minutes to spend on their own at the graves.

Later, in a gesture of reconciliation before departing, many Argentines kissed, embraced and shook hands with the men and women British military personnel assigned to look after them on the visit.

Until two years ago, Argentina refused to formally declare a cessation of hostilities, or talk about renewing diplomatic relations unless the issue of sovereignty was included.

On that point, the British government of then Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher always Barriers reduce risk of infection

CHICAGO (AP) — Health-care workers who wear protective gear run a 62 percent lower risk of being infected with AIDS or hepatitis B by their patients, scientists reported this month.

The study is the first proof that precautions suggested by the federal Centers for Disease Control work, said its author, Dr. Edward S. Wong, an epidemiologist at the McGuire Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Richmond, Va.

The study in the Journal of the American Medical Association was designed to determine the effectiveness of those 1987 precautions.

Under CDC policy, health-care workers are advised to assume that all patients are infected with blood-borne diseases and should wear gear such as gloves, masks and goggles.

"Frankly, up until our study there really had not been any proof that (the policy) would do what it intended to do," Wong said.

A CDC spokesman said the agency had not studied the guidelines' effectiveness, and he was not familiar with Wong's findings.

According to the CDC, health-care workers face a slim chance of contracting the AIDS virus from patients. Forty such cases were documented as of December, said spokesman Chuck Fallis.

They face a higher risk of contracting hepatitis B, a sometimes fatal liver disease that strikes 300,000 people a year in the United States.

The study examined 277 physicians from the McGuire center and the Medical College of Virginia Hospital, also in Richmond, over a nine-month period beginning before the CDC policy was implemented.

Fifty-four percent of the doctors said they used protective gear before the policy, compared to 73 percent after.

Doctor challenges conventions

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Timothy Stamps revealed Zimbabwe's AIDS epidemic with a frankness that startled Cabinet colleagues. He scorns sycophantic lawmakers and sloppy bureaucrats, shuns his official limousine and answers his own telephone.

It is an uncommon style in African politics.

As soon as the 55-year-old white physician took office as health minister in April 1990, he ended nearly a decade of official secrecy on AIDS.

An estimated one in 10 of this southern African country's 9.5 million people is infected with the virus that causes the deadly acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The epidemic is expected to claim tens of thousands of Zimbabwean lives in the next five years.

In the past, zany health authorities kept the AIDS problem under wraps, fearing charges that they were unable to cope with the crisis.

Other officials feared revealing the prevalence of AIDS, which in Africa is spread mainly through heterosexual contact, would affect tourism. There is no evidence that has happened.

"Exposing AIDS was a calculated risk," Stamps said in an interview.

At first, some black legislators accused Stamps of being alarmist about AIDS and claimed his warnings about the virus, which they described as patronizing, disclosed a "colonial mentality."

"If having a colonial mentality means getting the job done, then I

"I was chosen for my technical ability, not for my politics. The old pecking order doesn't necessarily apply any more."

Timothy Stamps, M.D. Health minister guess I have one," Stamps said in the interview.

Many AIDS patients in Zimbabwe's main hospitals still are neglected, he acknowledges, and has described how some are left to die caked in their own blood, vomit and excrement.

Stamps said he inherited mismanaged health services and is determined to cajole, threaten and reward until the system is repaired.

"We have to get back to a situation where we can go into a hospital and think it is a hospital," he said.

The tall, lean Welshman immigrated to Zimbabwe in 1968, when it was the British colony of Rhodesia. He headed the municipal health department in the capital, Harare, and later entered private medical practice.

Even before President Robert Mugabe chose him as one of three white Cabinet ministers, Stamps often was seen as an eccentric and maverick.

As a private physician, he sued the health minister for negligence — and won damages — after lights in an operating room crashed onto his head as he performed a tonsilectomy.

MAGNOLIA SPRING (AP) — A 5-century-old tree that someone tried to cut down received intensive care with its trunk and air-conditioning round-the-clock guard.

While a court battle over ownership of the tree and air-conditioning festered for six months, it has become a celebration. About 30,000 people gathered, many leaving with T-shirts and the image of the tree.

The 65-foot-tall Magnolia Springs is located on an enclave on the Alamo. Its trunk is 25 feet in diameter and its branches spread across the area.

Last October, someone cut a chain saw cut a hole in the trunk, cutting off nutrients between the leaves. Law enforcement investigated but charges.

Forester Stan Rev spent his vacation grafting bark onto the tree, grafting bark onto the tree.

"As far as the tree's looking pretty good, but I'm not sure it's across that wound."

The treatment has stalling an irrigation system keeping the tree from humidity during the winter.

"If it lives through the winter, it has an 80 percent chance of surviving," Rev said. He is a horticulturist from the country about 10 miles from town.

A Save the Tree organization set up a tent at the tree's base, and the volunteer Stan Rev Fairhope said a friend was hired to protect the tree and a phone was installed.

"What we've tried to do is to get the tree to heal prior to the winter," Rev said.

But a bashful Jokko only whistled softly for the judge.

Andersen, who filed the complaint, claimed Jokko's shrieking contributed to his wife's ill health and kept them from enjoying their garden. He wanted the bird to be removed or kept inside.

Jan Erik Skog, Jokko's owner, called other neighbors as character witnesses for the bird. Most said she was sometimes noisy, but not a problem.

Ancient oak is under intensive care

MAGNOLIA SPRINGS, Ala. (AP) — A 5-centuries-old oak tree that someone tried to kill is in intensive care with its own furnace and air-conditioning system and round-the-clock guard.

While a court battle over ownership of the tree and its land has festered for six months, the tree has become a celebrity of sorts. About 30,000 people have visited it, many leaving with T-shirts bearing the image of the tree.

The 65-foot-tall oak near Magnolia Springs, a retirement enclave on the Alabama coast, is estimated at about 500 years old. Its trunk is 25 feet in circumference and its branches spread 150 feet across.

Last October, someone wielding a chain saw cut a ring around the trunk, cutting off the flow of nutrients between the roots and leaves. Law enforcement officials investigated but brought no charges.

Forester Stan Revis of Holt, Fla., spent his vacation treating the tree, grafting bark over the wound.

"As far as the grafts themselves, that's looking pretty good, but it's a bad injury," Revis said. "If the tree stays alive it will heal itself across that wound."

The treatment has included installing an irrigation system and keeping the tree at 100 percent humidity during the winter.

"If it lives through this summer, it has an 80 percent chance of living," Revis said. He said he's consulting with horticulturists around the country about treatment.

A Save the Tree Committee set up a tent at the tree and built a greenhouse around the trunk. Volunteer Stan Foote of nearby Fairhope said a full-time guard was hired to protect the property and a phone was installed for the guard.

"What we've tried to do is get the tree to heal prior to the stress of MAGNOLIA SPRINGS, Alabama — An intensive care unit greenhouse was built around the base of a 500-year-old live oak tree near Magnolia Springs, Alabama, after a chain saw attack last October. Foresters have grafted sprouts over the chain saw gash in the tree in an attempt to save it.

"If it lives through this summer, it has an 80 percent chance of living."

summer heat," Foote said. "There is a furnace electrically operated. The greenhouse is 78 degrees night and day. It's air-conditioned to hold it down to 78 degrees."

Some 30,000 people have visited the tree since the chain saw attack was reported.

Foote said about $30,000 has been donated, and most of that has been spent.

The committee's chairman, Wally Turner, who lives a mile from the tree, said Baldwin County has been trying to buy property around the tree for a park for several years.

"Last June or July, they passed a resolution to buy by condemnation," Turner said. He said the decision to go to court for condemnation proceedings was made because of the threat of a highway expansion that could imperil the tree's root system, which covers about an acre.

Then came the chain saw attack. The landowner, 72-year-old Mildred Casey, said only that she owned the tree and could do with it as she wished. She later sold the property to a Mobile businessman, Kenneth Arnold, who continued her court fight against the county.

On March 6, a judge ruled that the county could buy the 2.8-acre site for $18,000 — more than triple the county's first offer.

Arnold said the land was worth more than that and he would appeal "all the way to the Supreme Court." He said the land is part of a 30-acre tract he bought from Miss Casey for a reported $300,000.

Dinosaur fossils found on Antarctic mainland

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two hundred million years ago, Antarctica enjoyed a temperate climate, with forests, flowing rivers and dinosaurs.

Since then, the continent has broken away from other land masses, moved into the center of South Pole, and become permanently icebound.

Now scientists report new evidence of that warmer time in Antarctica with the discovery on a mountainside just 400 miles from the South Pole of dinosaur fossils from two different species.

William R. Hammer, a paleontologist at Augustana College in Rock Island, Ill., said last week that he and his team have recovered a fossilized skull, a shoulder blade, vertebrae, some ribs and four to five limb bones from one dinosaur.

"From the shape of the skull and the build of the femur, it looks like a moderate-sized herbivore (plant eater)," said Hammer. The animal, he said, was about 25 feet long, which makes it moderate in size, as dinosaurs go.

Amidst the bones, the scientist said, his team found a 2-inch-long tooth. Hammer said it has a sharp point and a serrated edge, which is characteristic of a carnivore, or meat eater, and suggests it came from a second type of dinosaur.

Hammer speculated that a meat-eating dinosaur lost a tooth while feeding on the carcass of the herbivore.

"This is the first dinosaur find on the Antarctic mainland," he said. "It could be different from species found elsewhere."

The fossils were embedded in a rock called mudstone that was laid down by a river. At some later point, the area was uplifted with the creation of a 15,000-foot peak called Mount Kirkpatrick.

Hammer said his team used jackhammers to crack away the fossil-bearing rock and then a helicopter flew large chunks to the Antarctic coast.

"The fossils are now among 4,000 pounds of rock on a boat in the middle of the Pacific," he said. Eventually it will be housed in a large laboratory at Augustana College, where Hammer and an assistant will spend up to two years slowly removing rock clinging to the fossils.

Hammer said it will take months before the species of dinosaurs can be identified.

Geologists believe that hundreds of millions of years ago Antarctica was part of a massive southern continent

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — When it comes to food, bears aren't particular.

"We know what bears eat, which is just about everything they get in their mouths. But we don't know what they require, or when they require it," said Charles Robbins, a professor of natural resource sciences at Washington State University.

Such knowledge might determine whether bears can tolerate disruptions caused by human intrusion into the wilderness.

The nutritional needs of black bears and grizzlies are being studied through four female grizzlies and four female black bears in a lab.

Making sure enough food is available, especially for females of reproductive age, is considered key to survival of grizzlies, a threatened species. "There are no other captive grizzlies being used for research anywhere in the world," Robbins said.

Bears' eating habits studied

The research complements work being done in the field, said Chris Servheen, grizzly bear-recovery coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"We're doing parallel studies to carefully measure the foods per acre in grizzly habitat," Servheen said. "At WSU, we're measuring the use of these foods, and the demands for food, per bear."

The $10,000-a-year program is paid for by Fish and Wildlife, the U.S. Forest Service, Chevron Oil Corp. and private donations.

The bears at the university roam in 10-foot-square, climate-controlled indoor pens and 10-by-20-foot outdoor pens.

Bears are drugged whenever they must be touched, Robbins said. The handlers, mostly students, have never been hurt.

The research has not drawn complaints from animal rights activists, Robbins said.

MALIBU — Some of a crew of nearly 300 workers wield absorbent booms in an effort to contain and remove a very light coating of oil from Malibu Beach Monday morning. The oil spilled Sunday when a tanker's anchor ruptured an undersea crude oil loading pipeline and was described by a Coast Guard spokesman as "like a bathrub ring a very thin line on the beach."

A festive Easter brunch

Easter heralds the arrival of Spring and the birth of a bright and happy new season. What better way to celebrate than with a colorful brunch.

To set the tone for a light and luscious menu, the National Broiler Council developed two recipes which are ideal for a festive springtime brunch. Both are easy to prepare and to serve, in keeping with the casual, relaxed nature which makes these meals so popular for weekend entertaining. Or, as just a special treat for the family to savor after the hectic pace of weekday mornings.

Chicken and Vegetables on Toast Points is colorful and delicious. It can be prepared to "broil stage" and then placed in the broiler at the last minute so it is hot when serving time is flexible.

Smoky Chicken Breast Fillets and Apples can also be partially prepared (season the chicken and refrigerate until cooking time) and then quickly completed when ready to serve. Put it in a chafing dish and let everyone help themselves.

Both of these recipes can be doubled if needed for extra servings. And they are both a great choice for that "something a little different" to make an Easter brunch a very special occasion.

CHICKEN AND VEGETABLES ON TOAST POINTS
Makes 6 servings.

1½ pounds broiler-fryer boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into 1-inch pieces

1 tablespoon butter-flavored margarine
1½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups dairy sour cream
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons white wine

1 package (5 ounces) frozen peas, pearl onions, mushrooms, cooked according to package directions

4 tablespoons freshly-grated Parmesan cheese
6 slices bread, cut into 4 triangles toasted

In 10-inch nonstick frypan, place margarine and melt over medium temperature, about two minutes. Add chicken in one layer; cook about four minutes. Turn all pieces and cook until light brown, about four minutes more. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Stir in sour cream, soy sauce and paprika; reduce temperature to low and cook until hot through, about four minutes. Stir in white wine and cook one minute more. Add hot cooked peas, pearl onions and mushrooms and pour all into greased 1½ quart shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and broil in oven until light brown, about four minutes. Serve on toast points.

Each serving has 375 calories; 32 grams protein; 18.8 grams total fat; 9.5 grams saturated fat; 18.2 grams carbohydrates; 99 milligrams cholesterol; and 557 milligrams sodium.

SMOKY CHICKEN BREAST FILLETS AND APPLES
Makes 6 servings.

6 broiler-fryer chicken skinless, boneless breast fillets

1½ teaspoons liquid smoke, divided
1½ teaspoons poultry seasoning
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon mace
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons clarified butter
3 cooking apples, peeled, sliced

Rub each chicken breast fillet with ½ teaspoon liquid smoke. In small bowl, mix together poultry seasoning, salt, mace, nutmeg, dry mustard and pepper; sprinkle on both sides of chicken and let sit for five minutes (chicken may be seasoned and refrigerated for later cooking, if desired). In 10-inch nonstick frypan over medium temperature, pour clarified butter and heat about two minutes. Add seasoned chicken fillets and cook about five minutes. Turn chicken and add apples, arranging so they touch bottom and sides of pan and lie on top of chicken; cook five minutes more. Rearrange so chicken is on top of apples; cook about four minutes more or until chicken and apples are tender.

Each serving has 237 calories; 26.9 grams protein; 9.1 grams total fat; 4.5 grams saturated fat; 11.1 grams carbohydrates; 89 milligrams cholesterol; and 318 milligrams sodium.

Chicken and vegetables on toast points (above) is a colorful and delicious dish to welcome Spring at a festive Easter brunch.

A new twist to a classic potato

Sometimes it's just a little twist that turns a good recipe into a great one. For twice-baked potatoes, lemon and dill make the classic recipe even better. For make-ahead convenience, prepare and stuff the potatoes the day before serving, cover, and refrigerate. Bake just before serving, allowing an additional 5 minutes baking time.

LEMON DILL POTATOES

Makes 8 servings.

4 large baking potatoes
¼ cup margarine or butter, melted
½ cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons finely snipped fresh dill, or 1½ teaspoons dried dillweed

4 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Paprika (optional)

Scrub potatoes thoroughly with a brush. Pat dry. Prick potatoes with a fork. Bake in a 425-degree Fahrenheit oven for 40 to 60 minutes or until tender. Or cook, uncovered, in the microwave oven on 100 percent power (high) for 14 to 17 minutes or until almost tender, rearranging once. Let stand for five minutes. Cut potatoes in half lengthwise. Gently scoop out each potato half, leaving a thin shell.

Place potato pulp in a large bowl.

Add 3 tablespoons of the melted margarine or butter, sour cream, dill or dillweed, lemon juice, garlic salt and pepper. With an electric mixer on low speed, beat until smooth. Pile mixture into potato shells.

Place in a 12- x 7½- x 2-inch baking dish. Brush potatoes with remaining melted margarine or butter. Sprinkle with paprika, if desired. Bake in a 425-degree Fahrenheit oven about 20 minutes or until light brown.

Nutrition information per serving: 183 calories; 3 grams protein; 26 grams carbohydrates; 8 grams fat; 4 milligrams cholesterol; 187 milligrams sodium. U.S. RDA: 11 percent vitamin A, 24 percent vitamin C.

Recipes appeal to nostalgia

NEW YORK (AP) — The recipes in Michael McLaughlin's new book certainly are not all healthy, but, as he says, they appeal to an irresistible combination of nostalgia and taste.

"The Back of the Box Gourmet" is a collection of recipes developed to market products, but, unlike thousands of others devised in corporate test kitchens, survived to become kitsch classics.

There's the Lipton onion soup dip, meatloaf made with Quaker oats, tuna noodle casserole that calls for Campbell's creamed celery soup, the Fluffernutter sandwich and, of course, Nestle's chocolate chip cookies.

"Taken together, the most popular of these back-of-the-box recipes provide a kind of unofficial record of one branch of recent American cookery, and it is rare, indeed to find someone who isn't inordinately fond of at least one of the recipes in this collection," writes McLaughlin, a self-confessed gourmet, who feels as tempted by this book's food as by the three kinds of olive oil in his cupboard.

"Sure, I make my own pasta and use fresh herbs abundantly and crave the occasional bite of wild mushroom, caviar and smoked salmon," he writes. "Food is important to me, but none more so than that which I ate growing up."

Many Americans also are likely to find a childhood treasure or two in "The Back of the Box Gourmet" (Simon and Schuster, $14.95).

HOW IT WORKS!

- The Big Spring and Stanton Herald Telephone Number Sweepstakes Contest will commence on Monday, March 4, 1991 and will terminate Sunday, May 12, 1991.
- Entry coupons for the Telephone Number Sweepstakes Contest will appear in the Herald and Crossroads Country Advertiser, as published by The Big Spring Herald, beginning February 24, 1991. Additional entry coupons will appear in the Herald and C.C.A. during the contest. Additional entry forms will be available at the participating contest merchants, beginning March 4, while the supply lasts. No purchase is necessary. A person may become a contestant by depositing or mailing their coupon to the Big Spring Herald, 710 Scurry St., P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. All entries being forwarded by mail must bear sufficient postage. The Herald takes no responsibility for any lost or misdirected entries.
- During the first 9 weeks of the Herald's 10 week contest, the Herald will publish at least 2 telephone numbers as chosen by random draw from all entries received, in the advertisements of at least 2 participating merchants on the Telephone Numbers Sweepstakes page each day from Tuesday to Sunday. The value of each of the numbers published from Tuesday thru Sunday, will be $10. Each Monday of the first 9 weeks of the contest, the Herald will also publish at least 2 telephone numbers also chosen by draw from all entries received. These numbers will appear in at least 2 of the merchant's ads on the contest page. The value of the numbers published each Monday during the first 9 weeks of the contest, will be $25.
- The 10th and final week of the contest will be known as Grand Prize Week. From Monday to Thursday of this week (May 6-9) 2 telephone numbers, as drawn from all entries, will be published in the advertisements of 2 participating merchants. The value of each of these numbers will be $50. On Friday, May 10, one number, as drawn from all entries received, will be published in the ad of one of the participating merchants. The value of this number will be $250. On Sunday, May 12, the final day of the contest, one telephone number drawn from all entries received will be published in this advertisement of one of the participating merchants chosen by drawing. The value of this number, known as the Grand Prize Number will be $500.
- All entries drawn during the contest, up to and including May 10, will be returned to the draw drum the day following the publication of the telephone number.
- The holder of a telephone number published in the Herald's Telephone Number Sweepstakes Contest from March 4 to May 12, must call the Big Spring Herald at 263-7331, by no later than 5:30 p.m. on the 7th business day following the publishing of the winning number. Contest Department hours are from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday to Friday. The contest office is not open on Saturdays, Sundays or Statutory holidays. Upon reporting a winning telephone number, the holder of the number will be advised of the steps to follow to claim the prize. Published telephone numbers reported to the Herald following the close of the contest department on the 7th business day following publication of the number, will not be accepted and will not be eligible to claim a prize.
- The holder of the Grand Prize telephone number as published on May 12, the final day of the contest, must call the contest department of the Herald at 263-7331 no later than 5:30 p.m. on May 23, 9th business day, following publication of the winning number. Business hours are shown in rule number 5. If the Grand Prize, relating to the telephone number published in the Herald on May 12, has not been claimed by the close of the contest department office on the 9th business day following publication, a 2nd Grand Prize number will be published on the 10th business day following the publication of the initial Grand Prize number. This process will be repeated, until the Grand Prize has been claimed.
- If a successful winner receives 8-day home delivery of the Big Spring Herald, by carrier, motor route delivery, or mail, this person will receive an additional cash amount, equivalent to their prize. The winner must receive home delivery the day the winning number appears in the Herald.
- It is not necessary to purchase the Herald to participate in the contest. Live telephone numbers will be posted in the main business office of the Herald, 710 Scurry St., and copies of the Herald are available for inspection during regular business hours.
- Published telephone numbers will not be given out over the telephone.
- By playing Herald Telephone Number Sweepstakes contest, contestants agree to accept these rules and to allow publication of their name and address and/or picture within the Herald. The decision of the judges appointed by the Herald will be final and binding.
- Anyone 18 years or older can play the Herald Telephone Number Sweepstakes contest, except employees and their immediate families of the Big Spring Herald and Thomson Newspapers Corporation.
- Any person without a telephone number can submit their address for contest participation.
- Photo identification is required to collect your prize.

Life Teaching rules

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN DEAR ABBY: I would like to respond to a recent letter I wrote from "Down and Underneath" which concerned children's rooms that look like the local landfill. I hope the local landfills may be too late for me but I may help parents who are younger.

Dear Down and Underneath: Where have you been for 12 years? I presume you are living in the same home as your children, right? I have an old and a teen-ager. For them they could understand the ground rules:

1. No clothes on the floor, draped over chairs, in the closet or a drawer.
2. Wastebaskets are emptied, they go into the trash.
3. No storage of anything under the beds. Captain's drawers underneath.

Style show to benefit Symphony

Fashions for the event will be modeled at the Symphony Guild's luncheon and style show on March 23 at the St. Paul Church parish hall.

"Springtime in Paris" theme for the event, women, men, teens will be shown from Dunlap's, Kid's Shop, Corner, Miss Royale Extra Boutique.

Men and children attend the event, according to spokeswoman, Guild will prepare a luncheon with flavor, and decoration a Paris sidewalk stroll.

Neighbor selection important

The selection of a neighborhood may be more important to you than the design choice of a new home.

After all, the neighborhood not only affects the market value of your home, it also shapes the quality of your homeowner lives, where you go to school, and how much time you spend commuting to work.

Consider these points when choosing a neighborhood:

- Neighborhoods with high schools that are appreciated, deterred, and stable.
- If a development is filled in with low-quality homes on the developed spot signs of deteriorating established neighborhoods.

• Community services, police and fire departments, transportation, and shopping centers add to the quality of life in the area.

• Consider these points when choosing a neighborhood:

- If there are children in the neighborhood, the local school should be able to provide a good education, class size, scores on achievement tests, and a safe environment.

• While the mortgage is the primary cost in home ownership, taxes will be a significant factor. Some areas figure past and present property tax on the year just past.

• A new home might pay anything but a lot of money for the local assessor to tax. If living in a new, expect property tax services are added.

• It's important to know how to build and building regulation some communities, are granted so regularly, it is difficult to accurately measure their nature of growth.

Teaching a few simple rules keeps rooms clean

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I would like to respond to a recent letter you received from "Down and Almost Out," whose 12- and 17-year-old children's rooms have begun to look like the local landfill. My advice may be too late for her, but it may help parents whose children are younger:

Dear Down and Almost Out: Where have you been for the last 10 or 12 years? I presume you've been living in the same house as your children, right? I have a 12-year-old and a teen-ager. From the time they could understand, these were the ground rules:

1. No clothes on the floor or draped over chairs. Clothes go in the closet or a drawer. If they are soiled, they go into the hamper.
2. Wastebaskets are emptied on a regular basis (and not by me).
3. No storage of anything under the beds. Captain's beds with drawers underneath are wonderful for storage, and nothing gets dusty. 4. Absolutely, positively, no food or drink in the bedrooms. (No exceptions!) We have a kitchen for eating.

Dear Abby

As for hairspray on the walls and ceilings, I guess you'll have to tell your children to work on better aim, or else they should scrub it off.

My teen-ager is neat as a pin, totally organized. My younger child is not as neat and needs more reminders, but when I see his room is starting to get out of control, he has to work on it. If it ever gets to the point I know it is beyond him, then I help him get out from under. I don't do it for him. My motto: "Put it away, give it away or throw it away." We use three bags: one for hand-me-downs for relatives, one for charity and one for garbage. Everything else is put back in its place.

Don't let your kids ruin your house. Take control right now and try to turn those bad habits around. Someone else is going to have to live with your kids one day. — CHICAGO

DEAR CHICAGO: Beautiful! Your kids are lucky, and so are those who are going to live with them one day.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WALTER IN WINNIPEG: It's not necessarily true, but the joke you refer to goes like this: "The difference between the Yiddish and the British is: The British leave and never say goodbye, and the Yiddish say goodbye and never leave."

100th birthday

Friends from the East Side Baptist Church helped Selma Lieske celebrated her 100th birthday Monday at Golden Plains Care Center where she lives. Her daughter, Hilda Paul, presented her with the beautiful birthday cake. Lieske, who was born March 18, 1891, in Atwater, Minn., said she moved to Texas 70 years ago. Due to a respiratory infection Lieske was unable to leave her bed, but well-wishers gathered in her room. She is the great-aunt of Justice of the Peace China Long.

Style show to benefit Symphony Guild

Fashions for the entire family will be modeled at the Big Spring Symphony Guild's annual benefit luncheon and style show at noon March 23 at the St. Paul Lutheran Church parish hall.

"Springtime in Paris" is the theme for the event. Clothing for women, men, teens and children will be shown from The Cottage, Dunlap's, Kid's Shop, Gentleman's Corner, Miss Royale and A Little Extra Boutique.

Men and children are urged to attend the event, according to a Guild spokesperson. Guild members will prepare a luncheon with a French flavor, and decorations will suggest a Paris sidewalk cafe.

Funds raised by the luncheon and fashion show will go toward support of the Big Spring Symphony Association.

Tickets are priced at $7.50 and are available from Guild members or may be purchased at the door.

Neighborhood selection an important step

The selection of a new neighborhood may eventually be more important to a homeowner than the design choices made in a new home.

After all, the neighborhood not only affects the market value of the home, it also shapes the way a homeowner lives, where children go to school, and how long the commute to work takes.

Consider these points from Better Homes and Gardens Building Ideas magazine when evaluating a potential site for a new home:

- Neighborhoods can be appreciating, deteriorating, or stable. If a development is being filled in with lower-cost housing, things are on the decline. Easy-to-spot signs of deterioration in established neighborhoods include run-down homes and many "For Sale" signs.

- Community services such as police and fire departments, public transportation, and recycling centers add to the convenience of the location. Note if a prospective area offers such services as a hospital, day-care center, or library.

- If there are children, consider the availability of good schools. The local school district office should be able to provide figures on class size, scores on standardized achievement tests, and the amount of money the district spends per student each year.

- While the mortgage payment is the primary cost in home ownership, taxes will be a big expense. Some areas figure property taxes on the year just past, so the owner of a new home might not have to pay anything but lot taxes (a few dollars) for several months. Ask the local assessor to estimate the tax. If living in a new development, expect property taxes to climb as services are added.

- It's important to the value of the home to know how local zoning and building regulations work. In some communities, exceptions are granted so regularly, it'll be difficult to accurately predict the nature of growth.

Homework policy submitted to board

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

A homework policy for the Big Spring Independent School District is in the making, to comply with Texas Education Agency requirements, and board members read the proposed policy, submitted by the administration office, in Tuesday night's meeting.

Key points of the policy include statements that prohibit assigning homework as punishment, or assigning an "inordinate amount" or "excessively long" homework assignments. The policy also states teachers may not assign work that restricts parental involvement.

Murray Murphy, assistant superintendent who worked on the proposed policy said, "This policy has been developed by the committee based on the philosophy of our district. This will become part of the campus plan." Principals in each school will modify and expand the policy to fit the needs of their campus, but the district policy will have ultimate authority, he said.

TEA will visit the district in early May, for an accreditation review, and board members were instructed by William McQueary, superintendent, to "brush-up" on their board member regulations because TEA will interview each one during its week-long visit.

All teacher contracts were renewed after an executive session, including those teachers on probationary contracts, and those without teacher certification. The executive session lasted about 80 minutes.

A resignation was accepted from Sharon Starr Dolan, the special education teacher for Moss Elementary, effective March 8. Alma Gonzales was employed as teacher at Rannels Junior High, at the salary schedule adopted by the Board of Trustees.

Members approved the proposed textbooks recommended by the committee. The books include the subjects of mathematics, career investigation, and science, plus science and math in Spanish, for grades first through eighth. Biology, computer programming, marketing, merchandising, microcomputer applications, construction graphics and systems, and manufacturing graphics and systems were adopted for high school classes.

The request from Keith Toomire, Howard County Tax Appraisal District, to retain surplus funds of $6,839.59 from the current budget, was passed 6-1. The money will be used to contract labor and pay overtime to employees to complete the tax appraisal by deadline. Employee health problems have slowed the work, according to the appraisal office.

Other business upon which the board members took action includes:

- The Gifted and Talented Program update was approved unanimously.
- Property and professional liability insurance for the district was awarded to Patterson Insurance for $45,677.
- A resolution to borrow $100,000, and a budget amendment to pay the interest costs on same loan was approved.
- Awarded Johnson Sheet Metal, Big Spring, a bid for 20 evaporative coolers, for a total of $12,637.
- Awarded Abilene Sheet Metal a bid totaling $19,389 for fan coil units and ventilators to complete Kentwood Elementary's system.
- Awarded Caprock Fire Alarm Inc., Lubbock, a bid for fire alarm panels and supplies. Total for the materials is $4,502.50.
- Awarded Johnston Construction, Big Spring, the bid for floor tile and supplies, at a total of $5,580.
- Hired William Paving and Excavation, Odessa, to complete the paving project at the bus barn, for a total of $6,989.
- Agreed to purchase 10 storage buildings from Mueller Supply Co., Ballinger, for a total of $8,105.
- Agreed to purchase football supplies for the 1991-92 school year from various vendors, for a total of $22,294.93. These supplies include helmets, chin straps, facemasks, thigh, knee, hip, jaw and shoulder pads, neck rolls, mouthpieces, chin straps, girdle shells, sweat tops and pants, T-shirts, work-out shorts, shoes, gloves, practice pants, belts, laundry bags, locks, a down marker and chain marker set, footballs and pylons.
- Agreed to purchase volleyball equipment for the 1991-92 school year, for a total of $4,013.16. These supplies include game tops and shorts, knickers, practice T-shirts and shorts, socks, shoes, volleyballs, weighted volleyballs, rule books, nets, knee pads, and locks.

District enrollment is down 56 students from last year's enrollment, with the most significant change at Marcy Elementary, where seven students were enrolled within the last month.

Is this the right city?

Basin Aviation could run into a navigational problem if they are directing air traffic to Big Springs. Basin Aviation, located at the McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark, signed a contract with the city in November to provide fixed-base services at the airpark.

Snakes

Hull and fellow "Fangs" member James White, Granbury, hold the world's record for the "sleeping bag stunt." The two get into a sleeping bag that is immediately filled with 121 rattlesnakes. Then they climb out.

How do they do it? "Very slowly," Hull said.

Hull promises the sleeping bag trick and other amazing stunts will be part of the weekend event. The Mi Mo Jo Snake People, a stunt and handling group, will be part of the rattlesnake excitement again this year as well.

Educational and safety demonstrations are a major part of the round-up, Hull explained. "We do some crazy stunts, but safety is always stressed," he said. He said the squeamish need not fear: there is no danger for spectators at the event.

The snakes needed for demonstrations are provided by a local contest. Area citizens are encouraged to round up as many rattlesnakes as they can and bring them to the fair barns Friday between 1 and 6 p.m. or Saturday between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

For a $10 entry fee, local snake hunters can compete for prize money for the heaviest snakes and the one with the most rattles. All snakes will be bought at the going rate ($5 to $5.50 per pound) for their meat and sold after the show to a vendor in Colorado.

Pierce asked snake hunters secure their specimens in a box with a lid, or a plastic trash can.

The roundup gets going Friday at 8 p.m. with the Rattlesnake Dance at the fair barns, featuring music from Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys. Admission is $15 per couple, $8 per single person.

Snake handling events, the flea market and craft show open Saturday at 10 a.m. Skinning demonstrations begin at noon, and the round-up closes at 7 p.m.

Events continue at noon Sunday, and trophies and cash prizes will be awarded at 5 p.m.

Although snake round-ups events throughout the country are drawing opposition from animal-rights groups, Pierce said there is no "calculated cruelty" involved in the events.

"Nature is the cruelest of all," he said. "Without this, a lot more would be wiped out some other way. It's part of life."

Hull said almost every part of the snake will be used after the round-up. From craft items to food to medical research, the snake skin, meat and venom are desired commodities.

AMBUCS presents facts about snakes

To prepare you for the 29th Big Spring Rattlesnake Round-up, the AMBUCS have provided some interesting facts about snakes:

- There are 2500 species and sub-species of snake; 250 of those are dangerous to people.
- About 116 species live in the United States.
- The rattlesnake is one of four classifications of poisonous snakes. The others are cotton-mouth, copperhead and coral snake.

The average number of deaths per year in the U.S. from snakebites is 14. Seventeen people die each year from bee and wasp stings.

A tongue's snake is not harmful to humans. It is used to sense heat and thus locate food or predators.

A rattlesnake shakes the rattlers located on the end of its tail when it is disturbed or frightened. The rattle is comparable to chattering teeth in a human.

Rattlesnakes change color to correspond with their environment.

Review

estimated 40 miles through Big Spring after Shulze's pickup crossed in front of him.

Arnold, who was off duty at the time of the chase, said he did not know who was being pursued when he joined in. After the pickup was stopped on Canyon Street using a three-car moving roadblock, Arnold said he broke the window and Shulze was dragged out to minimize potential dangers. A loaded .22-caliber rifle was found between the seats.

Shulze, who at 5-foot-2 weighed under 100 pounds, according to a suit she later filed, said she was pinned on her stomach by at least three officers when her arm was brought behind her and she saw it stomped on by a black shoe, causing it to break. Police denied the accusation, saying her arm snapped because she was struggling as they were handcuffing her.

A "lot of force" had to be "delivered rapidly" to break Shulze's bone, testified a doctor in the County Court jury trial in which Shulze was convicted on 10 charges. She was given a 60-day probation for eluding police and fined $225 for nine traffic violations.

A suit filed in behalf of Shulze in 118th Judicial District Court in March 1990 against the city and police officers Arnold, Drew Bavin and Bruce Morgan, was dismissed in January so it could be refiled in federal court, Miller said. However, at that time Shulze agreed to drop all claims in return for a payment of $8,217.

Shulze, contacted last week, did not want to comment. But Miller said the amount covers her medical expenses and a modest amount of attorney fees.

Miller said the only reason Shulze came to him in the first place is because the city would not pay her medical bills. He said she told him, "They won't even talk to me now."

Miller said that incident and inaction in other similar situations demonstrates that there is a lack of police department policy to prevent such incidents from occurring again. "The city knows because I have sent them letters on them," he said.

Wounded man listed in stable condition

Klaus Hugo Quernheim, 32, Big Spring, was listed in stable condition this morning at Scenic Mountain Medical Center after being shot through the right leg by a Permian Basin Drug Task Force officer Tuesday night on Hilltop Road.

No details of the shooting were released this morning. Task Force supervisors in Midland could not be reached for comment. The Howard County Sheriff's Department reported they are taking statements from officers involved and any witnesses.

Quernheim, suspected for possession of drugs and a suspect in the burglary of a drug store, was being watched by Task Force officers prior to the shooting, according to the sheriff report.

Wounded by a bullet which went through his right thigh, Quernheim was transported by ambulance to the hospital.

According to sheriff department records, Quernheim pleaded guilty in February 1989 in 118th Judicial District Court to robbery by threats and revocation of a probation for burglary of a building.

He was sentenced to 12 years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice for the robbery charge and five years for the probation revocation. Sentences ran concurrently. He was released from the TDCJ on Oct. 29.

Two blood drives scheduled in April

United Blood Services has two blood drives scheduled for Big Spring in the first part of April. The drives will be conducted on Monday, April 1, at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., and on Tuesday, April 2, at Howard College from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

United Blood Services would like to remind Big Spring residents that because of their response to the blood drives, anyone living in this town who needs blood at any hospital anywhere, can have United Blood Services replace the blood for them. Contact Paula Kenner at (915) 653-1307.

For more information on upcoming blood drives, call Ruth Leubner at Scenic Mountain Medical Center 263-1211, or Amy Birch at Howard College 267-6311.

Training in weather spotting to be offered

The Midland National Weather Service is sponsoring an Advanced Weather Spotter Training Session. The Big Spring/Howard County Emergency Management Office is cooperating with the weather service in the training session, which will be in building 1106 at the Big Spring Airpark tomorrow at 7 p.m. Anyone interested is welcome to attend. For further information call Emergency Management Assistant Coordinator Marg Churchill, at 263-1380.

Amendment is passed to pay interest on loan

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Independent School Board members passed an amendment to pay interest on a $100,000 short term loan in Tuesday night's meeting, and Bill McQueary, superintendent, said the money was needed to repay the tax office.

"Kathy Sayles sent us more money than we were entitled to. We invested it, and now we've got to give it back," he said.

"This was an error from the tax collector's office, and we've rectified it. This is the first time something like this has ever happened," McQueary said.

In an action item at the board meeting, an amendment was passed to pay $538 in interest for the short term loan. The board members chose not to cash in a certificate of deposit, at a loss of interest, but instead to borrow money and pay the interest.

Kathy Sayles, tax assessor-collector for Howard County, the City of Big Spring, Forsan, Howard College, Big Spring ISD, Forsan ISD and Coahoma, said the mistake was found when she did the monthly totals at the end of January.

"I paid them (BSISD) twice for one day because I did not post it. I pay everyone on a daily basis, and I failed to write down one day of payment," she said.

Warplane

U.S. Maj. Gen. Robert B. Johnston warned the Iraqis the use of warplanes would be a clear violation of the temporary cease-fire set by Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, the U.S. commander in the gulf, at the first round of talks two weeks ago in Safwan, near the Kuwait-Iraq border.

President Bush was informed by aides this morning that "we did shoot down an aircraft... an Iraqi plane," said Fitzwater. He noted Schwarzkopf told the Iraqis the allies would shoot down any Iraqi warplanes that continued to fly.

"Schwarzkopf said during the cease-fire discussions they could not fly fixed-wing aircraft. They did. We shot it down," Fitzwater told reporters at the White House. However, he said the single incident did not represent a resumption of the war against Iraq. "We're not resuming hostilities. We're not re-engaging," he said. "We're simply proceeding with the cease-fire as we outlined it to the Iraqis."

At the weekend cease-fire talks, the Iraqis requested they be allowed to move some of their aircraft within Iraq. Secretary of State James A. Baker III said Sunday the U.S. government had refused that request.

Baker admitted the prohibition had a "collateral effect" of hindering Baghdad from fighting rebels but insisted the U.S. aim was not to help topple Saddam's government.

Iraq today accused Iran of inciting the insurgencies in the north and south, in which thousands have been reported killed.

Howard hoops; Reggie's gone

By STEVE BELVIN

Spending a week at the regional women's junior college basketball tournament and the men's state tournament, I got a chance to see some of the top collegiate players in the nation.

One can't help but feel sorry for the Howard College Lady Hawks, who for the second consecutive season, played the tournament without All-American guard Kim Robinson. Just like last year the Lady Hawks were barely beaten in the second round by the eventual regional champion.

Last year South Plains beat the Lady Hawks 48-45. South Plains went on to finish fifth in the national tournament.

This year the Lady Hawks fell to Odessa College 57-55. The game turned out to really be for the regional championship, because in the finals, Odessa overwhelmed South Plains in the finals 79-65. Odessa controlled the game from start to finish. The Lady Wranglers jumped out to an early lead, forcing the Lady Texans to run with them, something very few teams can do.

I say with Robinson, the Lady Hawks could very well be heading to their second consecutive national tournament berth.

The Hawks came oh, so close, to going to the national tournament. If not for a spectacular shooting streak by Alvin Dolphins' guard Peter McKelvey in the second half, Howard might be in Hutchinson, Kan. at the national tournament right now.

There's no doubt in my mind Howard had the best team at the tournament. Coach Steve Green had assembled a talented group of players with depth running from the No. 1 to 11 spot.

Alvin was a team on a roll, the Dolphins were playing their best ball of the season at the right time. A good indication of that came in the semifinals when Alvin beat Texas Eastern Conference foe San Jacinto 74-73. It was the first time in 23 years Alvin had beaten San Jac.

I changed my tune about the Hawks this season. At first I thought of them as a bunch of talented lads who could beat by simply outscoring you. As the season progressed I saw the Hawks could be a blue-collar team, the kind that plays harassing man defense, and hit the boards well. The latter was really impressive since Howard started a 6-foot-5 and a 6-foot-5 player down low.

A good example of this year's Hawks team was reserve freshman guard Richie Campbell.

Campbell came to Howard from Buffalo, N.Y. as one of the most highly-regarded players from the New York area. The 6-footer from Burgard High School was a scoring machine. He was Player of the Year on the All Western New York squad. He finished his career as Western New York's all-time leading scorer with 2,337 points.

Last year Campbell averaged 44 points per game, seven assists and four steals per game.

This year with the Hawks the scoring machine turned into a defensive specialist. Coming off the bench, he was known for his quick hands. Oh he can still bomb away from the outside, but his defense is what captured everyone's eye.

When Howard defeated South Plains the first time in Big Spring, Campbell came through with six steals. When Howard beat Odessa in the state tournament, Campbell made the defensive play of the game late in the contest. Howard had trailed for most of the game, Campbell got a steal and turned it into a layup, and the Hawks tied the game at 89-89.

Campbell's determination to take on a different role for the good of the team is what makes good teams great.

Bulldogs christen field with win

By STEVE REAGAN

COAHOMA — The Coahoma Bulldogs have yet to name their new baseball field, but if Tuesday's results are any indication, they're already becoming attached to the place.

Mark Arguello pitched seven strong innings and shortstop Mike Hernandez delivered the big blow offensively as the Bulldogs made their debut at the new field a successful one, downing the Reagan County Owls 5-1.

Arguello turned in a fine performance on the mound, scattering five hits while striking out nine and walking three. He also pitched himself out of several jams in picking up his second win of the season.

Offensively, the Bulldogs struggled at the plate, collecting only two hits. As it turned out, though, one was all they needed: a three-run triple by Hernandez in the bottom of the fifth inning that broke a 1-1 tie.

Coahoma coach Phillip Ritchey said after the game that things finally went right for his team, now 2-5 for the season.

"We've had trouble getting runners on base," Ritchey said. "(In the fifth) we finally put the ball in play; that was a big hit by Mike. "Mark pitched a good game," Ritchey added. "He got himself in a few jams, but he worked out of them."

The first hit recorded at the new field is one the Bulldogs will likely want to forget. With two outs in the top of the first, Reagan County's Lalo Leija parked an Arguello pitch over the left field fence, giving the Owls an early one-run lead.

The Bulldogs struck back, however, for an unearned run in their half of the inning to tie the game. Leadoff batter Rusty Giannetti walked, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored when Reagan County right fielder Robert Barrera dropped Hernandez's fly ball.

Coahoma threatened to pad the lead, getting runners to third and second with no outs, but Leija, who pitched four strong innings for the Owls, struck out three consecutive batters to limit the damage to one run.

Arguello did a good job of fighting his way out of trouble as well. Five times during the game, Reagan County had runners in scoring position with less than two outs, but Arguello — with help from

Hawks gain another split with Hill

HILLSBORO — For the second consecutive day the Howard College Hawks and Hill Junior College Rebels split a doubleheader. In the first game it was the Hawks dominating, and the second game was all Hill.

Howard will be in action today at 1 facing Rose College, Okla. in a single game at Jack Barber Field. The Hawks are 30-5 for the season. Hill College is 19-10.

HOWARD 11, HILL 1

Frank Rodriguez won his fifth game without a loss firing a five-hitter at the Rebels. Hill's only run came in the second inning, and it was unearned.

Howard scored two runs in its first at-bat. Willie Olivas singled, and scored on Jeff Schulz's double. Schulz scored when Sean Teague grounded out.

Howard scored four runs in the third to take a 6-1 lead. Efrain Contreras doubled and scored on Olivas' single. Schulz then walked bringing Teague to the plate. On a 2-0 count, the Howard catcher slapped a three-run shot over the left field fence.

Howard added two more runs in the fifth. Teague led off with a single and designated runner Keith Cosby ran for him. Rodriguez followed with a single and Jose Gomez doubled, scoring Cosby. Daniel Pagan's sacrifice fly scored Rodriguez.

The Hawks added their final two runs in the sixth. Olivas singled and Rodriguez stroked his 12th homer of the season, a shot over the left center field wall.

Olivas led Howard, going four-for-four at the plate. Teague added three hits.

With two outs, Mark Donato

HILL 7, HOWARD 0

Matt Winklevoss did something no pitcher has been able to do this season — shut the Hawks out. Winklevoss scattered six hits and the Rebels took control of the game with five runs in the third inning. David Kelly took the loss for Howard.

Hill scored a run in the first inning and it stayed that way until the third. Juan Ayala led off for Hill with a walk. Next Melvin Roman bunted and a throwing error by the shortstop allowed Ayala to score and Roman to go to third.

With two outs, Mark Donato walked, followed by an infield hit by Jose Arguelles, scoring Roman. The final blow came when shortstop Trent Petrie blasted a three-run homer.

"We played well in the first game, but we didn't play worth a darn in the second game," said Howard coach Bill Griffin. "We were very flat. We never did anything offensively. We had the bases loaded once in the fifth inning and we hit into a double play. We never made a threat, we had one runner reach third base."

Instant replay here to stay

KOHALA, Hawaii (AP) — The NFL has officially stripped Arizona of the 1993 Super Bowl and ended the debate over the state's failure to enact a paid holiday on Martin Luther King's birthday.

But it's a debate that's likely to spring up again a year from now. On a day on which they approved instant replay for a sixth year by the 21-7 vote that has become customary, the owners ratified commissioner Paul Tagliabue's decision to take their showcase game from Arizona because the state's voters turned down a referendum to celebrate the King holiday.

It was awarded instead to Los Angeles and will be played at the Rose Bowl, which last played host to the 1987 game.

But they also tentatively awarded Arizona the 1996 game as the result of a compromise between Tagliabue and Arizona Gov. Fife Symington, agreed to in a long telephone conversation.

That, however, sets up the same kind of controversy that surrounded the referendum last fall, when proponents of the King holiday blamed NFL pressure to remove the game if it failed for the negative vote.

"I know we can support this important game and provide the amenities necessary for a gala on the scale of the 1984 Olympic Games," Los Angeles mayor Tom Bradley said of the game. "In addition, we can support the King holiday."

Player gets unsuspected to be put on waivers

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bo Jackson isn't the only name on the waiver wire. There's also Rick Leach, who was unsuspected just so he could be released.

Leach, 33, was placed on waivers Tuesday by the San Francisco Giants. He had been on the disqualified list since Aug. 6, when he was given a 60-day suspension for testing positive for drugs.

"That obviously entered my mind, but this was strictly a baseball decision," Giants general manager Al Rosen said. "We felt Mark Leonard surpassed Rick this spring and is ready to play in the big leagues. Leonard can do more things than Rick."

Leach, a former University of Michigan quarterback, was hitting 5-for-17 this spring. At the time of the suspension last season, he was batting .293 in 174 at-bats with two home runs and 16 RBIs.

"The Giants know me on a personal basis, and if I had a solid year people would know everything was all right," Leach said. "Things are a little fuzzy right now. Other teams don't know me like this club. The Giants told me to sit tight a couple of days and they would try to put me in touch with other clubs."

Leach had two days remaining on his suspension, but was reinstated by commissioner Fay Vincent. A player on the disqualified list cannot be released.

"This gives Rick a better opportunity to get another job instead of having us wait until the last minute to make a decision," Rosen said.

On the Bo front, no team placed an immediate claim on the outfielder. Jackson and his $2,375,000 contract will remain available to any team for a bargain basement price of $1 until Friday afternoon. If he isn't claimed by then, Kansas City must give him 30 days termination pay — $391,483 — and he becomes a free agent able to sign with any team.

Spring Training

On the rehabilitation front, Orel Hershey, who has had a tender right shoulder since pitching five innings in a camp game last Friday, said he was much improved.

In exhibition games:
Rangers 9, White Sox 0
At Port Charlotte, Fla., Nolan Ryan pitched four no-hit innings and struck out six. Last week, Ryan allowed one hit over five innings in his first spring outing.

"The biggest difference today was I was physically stronger," Ryan said. "It reflected in my velocity."

Rangers right fielder Juan Gonzalez left the game with a torn medial meniscus cartilage. He is expected to be out two to six weeks.

Pirates 6, Twins 0
At Bradenton, Fla., Doug Drabek allowed two hits in five innings, combining with three relievers on a seven-hitter.

Cardinals 11, Blue Jays 3
At Dunedin, Fla., Gerald Perry hit a three-run homer and St. Louis got 18 hits off four Toronto pitchers.

Astros 8, Royals 6 (10 innings)
At Haines City, Fla., Eric Yelding singled in one run off Archie Corbin and scored another in the 10th inning.

Dodgers 9, Braves 4
At West Palm Beach, Fla., Jose Gonzalez and Jeff Hamilton each singled in two runs in a six-run seventh inning off Doug Sisk.

Expos 11, Reds 7
At Plant City, Fla., Montreal, getting a homer and an RBI double from Jerry Goff, took advantage of six errors by Cincinnati.

Yankees (ss) 8, Orioles (ss) 4
At Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Gerald Williams' sacrifice fly broke a 4-4 tie and capped a three-run sixth inning.

Yankees (ss) 2, Mets (ss) 0
At Port St. Lucie, Fla., Dave Eiland, Greg Caderet and Lee Guetterman combined on a two-hitter. Don Mattingly went 2-for-4 with one run scored for the Yankees.

Little League signups going on

With Little League baseball just around the figurative corner, all three local league are busy registering players.

Sign-ups are continuing through Saturday. Sign-ups will be Monday-Friday from 5-7 p.m. and March 23 from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

National LL registration is going on at the National park south of town on Highway 87. Monday through Friday sign-up times are 5:30-7:30 p.m., and registration will conclude March 23 from 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m.

International Little League sign-ups are going on at the league park at the old Webb Air Force Base and will continue through March 23.

Slow-pitch softball tourney slated

The First Annual Snakefest men's slow-pitch Softball Tournament will be March 22-24 at Cotton Mize Field.

There is a 16-team limit and a $100 entry fee. Each team is guaranteed three games. There will be team trophies for the first through fourth place teams.

For more information call Chuck Martin at 263-4709 (day) or at 263-5279 (night).

Besides Green, there's also South Plains' coach Ron Mayberry, James Dickey, Tech's first year assistant coach, who's interim coach right now, and Rob Evans, Myers's top assistant for 15 years until he took a similar position at Oklahoma State last spring.

Other candidates are Arkansas assistant Scott Edgar, Dick Hunsaker, head coach at Ball State, Ricky Byrdson, head coach at the University of Detroit and Ronnie Arrow, head coach at South Alabama.

At the state JUCO tournament the question again arose if the National Junior College Athletic Association could expand the national tournament to include 32 teams.

It would also mean that some of the best teams in the country like the Hawks, South Plains and San Jacinto wouldn't have to stay home while lesser superior teams in other regions get to go.

Midland College is looking for a new basketball coach. Tuesday afternoon Reggie Franklin learned that at the recommendation of Midland College president Dr. Jess Parrish, his contract had not been renewed by the school's board of trustees.

In four seasons at the helm at MC, his teams compiled an 81-40 record, but Midland hasn't made it into postseason play the last two seasons.

Franklin said the feeling was mutual. "Sometimes you come to the point where you don't want a job," said Franklin who has been under fire the last two seasons.

"To be perfectly honest, I didn't want the job next season. I was going to leave this job no matter what."

You don't think basketball is big business in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference. How many coaches get terminated for having a 67 percent winning percentage?

Alvin romps in opener

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — William Paige and Markee James scored 17 points each Tuesday night and Mott, Mich., defeated Southeastern-Burlington, Iowa, 78-68 in the first round of the National Junior College Athletic Association basketball tournament.

Paige scored 11 of his 17 points in the second half as Mott broke open a close game with a 13-4 run. Mike Davis and Michael Hughes scored 18 points each for the Hawks.

In other opening-round games, it was Alvin, Texas, over Champlain, Vt., 86-64; Aquinas, Tenn., besting Polk, Fla., 68-62; Mississippi Gulf Coast beating North Greenville, S.C., 69-66; and Kankakee, Ill., topping Allegany, Md., 71-62.

Peter McKelvey scored 25 points to lead Alvin, Texas. Alvin had an 11-2 run midway through the second half to take a 52-42 lead with 42:54 left.

Ivan Patterson, Derrick Chandler and Afis Olajuwon added 13 points apiece for Alvin. Olajuwon is the brother of Houston Rockets star Hakeem Olajuwon. Polk hit only 28 of 85 shots in its loss to Aquinas.

Aquinas scored nine straight points to pull ahead 50-40 with 12 minutes left. Amos Gregory, a 6-foot-8, 250-pound freshman, led that rally with two baskets. Rico Beasley added a 3-pointer.

Gregory finished with 16 points, including 7 of 9 from the field. Polk got 20 points from Mike Green and 19 from Dwayne Hackett.

Mississippi Gulf got a crucial 3-pointer from Dale Brown for a 66-62 lead with 1:48 left against North Greenville.

Lakers take over first place

Portland by 8 1/2 games on Jan. 8, but the following night began a 16-game winning streak, the second-longest in club history.

Warriors 136, Trail Blazers 126 At Oakland, Calif., Mitch Richmond made his first 13 shots and finished with 40 points for Golden State, which won for the fifth time in seven games.

The Warriors shot 71 percent in the first half (32-for-45), taking a 29-point lead. Tim Hardaway scored 29 points and added 12 assists for Golden State, which went 2-3 against Portland this year. Chris Mullin scored 26 points.

Jerome Kersey scored 35 points for the Blazers and Drexler added 30. Rockets 98, Timberwolves 85 At Minneapolis, Houston got 25 points and eight blocked shots from Hakeem Olajuwon and tied a franchise record with its ninth consecutive victory.

The Rockets matched the record of the 1976-77 team, which went 9-0 to begin March of that season. Olajuwon scored Houston's first seven points — he had 13 in the first period — and the Rockets never trailed.

Minneapolis stayed in the game on the strength of 19 first-half points by Tony Campbell, who finished with 32, two short of his season high. Sam Mitchell added 26 points and 13 rebounds for Minnesota.

Olajuwon made 11 of 15 shots and had 14 rebounds. Kenny Smith added 20 points for Houston. Knicks 97, Hornets 79 At Charlotte, N.C., Patrick Ewing overcame early foul trouble

National JUCO Tournament

James Watson led North Greenville, scoring 10 of his teams' last 12 points. He finished with 19 points while Willis Johnson had 18.

Chris Black led Mississippi Gulf with 19 points, while Robert Polk had 16 and Pat Hawthorne 12. Kankakee, which owns the best record in the field at 33-1, got a game-high 18 points from Kenneth Williams to beat Allegany.

Kankakee took the lead for good with 6:42 left in the first half on reserve freshman Mark Atkins' tip in. Those two points came during an 11-0 run that took Kankakee from a 20-17 deficit to a 28-20 lead.

and scored 25 of his 41 points in the second half as New York won for the 10th time in 12 games.

Ewing, who had three fouls in the first half, totally dominated inside in the second. He scored 12 points in the third quarter and 13 in the fourth.

He made 18 of 25 shots, was 5 for 5 from the free throw line and led the Knicks with eight rebounds. He did not commit a foul in the second half.

Rex Chapman led Charlotte, which shot only 34.1 percent, with 22 points. Hawks 104, Celtics 92 At Atlanta, Spud Webb scored six points and Glenn Rivers five in a 19-6 fourth-quarter burst that created an 18-point lead for the Hawks.

The victory snapped a three-game homecourt losing streak for the Hawks, who had won a franchise-record 22 in a row in The Omni before the recent skid.

Webb scored 26 points, Dominique Wilkins 21 and Kevin Willis 20. Kevin Gamble scored 24 points and Reggie Lewis 21 for the Celtics, who lost for only the second time in nine games.

Bucks 101, Heat 88 At Milwaukee, Dale Ellis scored 17 of his 29 points in the first half as Milwaukee swept the four-game season series and sent the Heat to their fifth consecutive loss.

Willie Burton had 24 points and Glen Rice 19 in Miami, which lost its fourth consecutive road game.

COAHOMA — Coahoma Bulldogs junior hurler Mark Arguello gets ready to fire a pitch to home plate against the Reagan County Owls Tuesday afternoon.

Junior Sota relieved Leija in the fifth inning, and the Bulldogs greeted him with four runs to crack the game open.

Sota issued back-to-back walks to Greg Atkinson and Ginnetti and Arguello reached on an error to load the bases, setting the table for Hernandez. On the second pitch to the plate, he lofted a long fly to center that Pat Christen was unable to flag down, allowing three runs to score.

Kenny Lowery provided the final run of the inning when his sacrifice fly to center scored Hernandez.

The Bulldogs will try to increase their affinity for their new field Friday when they host the Clyde Bulldogs at 4 p.m.

Continued from page 1-B dition, the 1993 Super Bowl will provide an economic bonanza to the Southern California region as it embarks on the preparations for this incomparable event."

Bill Bidwill, the owner of the Phoenix Cardinals, said he wasn't worried about the "linkage" issue for next year's referendum.

"I believe the political situation in Phoenix has changed dramatically," Bidwill said. "I believe that the 1992 vote will pass."

Tagliabue said other factors would be involved in the final decision to give the game to Phoenix beyond the 1992 referendum. "Factors that go into our final decision will be determined when we make our final decision," he said, without specifying when that will be.

But Tagliabue said he was satisfied with what was done as a solution "to what was a difficult subject for everyone."

Asked if he thought the problem could be avoided, he replied: "That's Monday morning quarterbacking just as it would be if you questioned what was done in the league championship games."

The instant replay issue also will be next year after the owners once again approved it by the minimum vote of 21-7. A three-quarters vote is required on all major votes.

The vote went just about the same way as last season, with only two teams changing their votes — the Detroit Lions from for to against it; the Tampa Bay Bucs from against it to for it. The other "no" votes came from the regulars — Buffalo, Chicago, the New York Giants, Kansas City, Cincinnati and Phoenix.

"It's clear the fans are used to it," said Phil Krueger.

Carter to build homes

MIAMI (AP) — Former President Carter and his wife, Rosalyn, will take up hammers and join volunteers to help build 14 houses and a daycare center for the poor on what is now a weed-choked lot in Miami's Liberty City section.

Carter visited the inner-city area as president in 1980 in the aftermath of race riots that left 18 people dead. The three days of rioting followed the acquittal of police officers charged in the beating death of a black man.

CARTER LANSBURY

Lansbury, whose future on "Murder, She Wrote" was something of a mystery, will return for an eighth season this fall.

Miss Lansbury, 65, will make a full complement of 22 episodes of the detective show, CBS Entertainment President Jeff Sagansky said Monday.

"Like the other millions of 'Murder, She Wrote' fans, I was hoping Angela would change her mind about this season being her last, and I'm glad she did," Sagansky said.

Actress agrees to stay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Angela

Miss Lansbury has earned six Emmy nominations for her depiction of Jessica Fletcher, a mystery-novelist-turned-sleuth.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

THURSDAY, MARCH 21, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE:

You will enjoy travel offers, new acquaintances and exciting social events. Give your domestic responsibilities top priority in June. Child care arrangements could suddenly change. Your life becomes more stable in August. Although a business offer sounds tempting in September, you may do better by staying put. Travel for business next November. Fresh insights will lead to higher profits.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE:

actor Timothy Dalton, poet Phyllis McGinley, actress Sabrina LeBeauf, actor Matthew Broderick.

ARIES (March 21-April 19):

Keep a tight rein on your purse strings today. Ambitious pursuits enjoy highly favorable influences. The private moments you spend with a close friend will become cherished memories.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20):

Trust your intuition today — it will lead you to people who have valuable resources you can utilize. Joining forces will help you strike gold! Look before you leap where romance is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

Your powers of persuasion help you put on an amazing display and drum up support. A love relationship continues to grow. Take nothing for granted. Romance thrives on acts of kindness.

CANCER (June 21-July 22):

You may feel obligated to do something you would rather not bother with. Do your duty with good grace. Buy or sell, you can do well! Loved one makes an interesting request.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):

Alone, in touch with your feelings, you will be able to decide what to do next. Use your talents to best advantage. Private financial negotiations look promising. Avoid rocking the boat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

Again, handle financial matters in a careful fashion. Postpone non-essential purchases and take measures to firm up your key relationships.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

A super-duper day for friendships. Spending money on your chums makes you feel great. Be careful not to go overboard. At a social function, you are tops. Go slower in romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

An excellent day to show your appreciation for someone's efforts with a gift or special favor. Be imaginative. Secret financial transactions could lead to new profits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21):

Get down to business. A purchase or sale you have had your eye on can be clinched today. Private face-to-face talks begin to pay off. Romance soars to new heights.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19):

A debt deserves prompt consideration. Any frustration you feel today should be kept under wraps. This is no time to ask for a new deal. Plunge into a spiritual search with joyous abandon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18):

Trust your sixth sense when making investments. New profits mean greater peace of mind. A wonderful time to repay someone's kindness with a special present or meal.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20):

Follow your instincts today if a sales item or investment strikes your fancy. Doing something unusual could make your evening superb. Be willing to sacrifice for a loved one's happiness.

Club stresses

music education

The Stanton Music Club met recently at the home of Mrs. Tull Ray Louder and welcomed its special guest, 12th District Music President Mrs. Julie Capps of Odessa.

Club President Mrs. Ron Graves called the meeting to order and announced that a certificate for participating in the Soup Cook-off had been presented to the club. Members also were presented with a certificate for their yearbook, which was presented at the state convention in Houston recently.

Mrs. Alex Haggard introduced Mrs. John Wood, who gave a Texas program. Mrs. Capps spoke to the group and urged them to aid and encourage music education. Capps will be taking the story of her federated music class at Milam Magnet Elementary School in Odessa to the National Convention in Philadelphia in May.

The program at National will be under the direction of National President Mrs. Glenn L. Brown.

An announcement that "The Satin Strings" of Odessa will perform at the National Federation Music Club convention in Philadelphia was made. The string group will pay their own way to the meeting and will then be guests of the federation.

Cirkovic to visit SISD

Stanton Elementary School will host a meeting for parents with Dr. Herman Cirkovic, a Midland neurologist, at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the elementary cafeteria, according to Elementary Principal Jim White.

"Dr. Cirkovic will be speaking on dyslexia and related disorders and will be available for questions at the end of the meeting," White said.

"Generally speaking, dyslexia is any one of a number of conditions which may exist if a child is having difficulty with the alphabet, reading, reading comprehension, writing and spelling in spite of adequate intelligence, adequate school attendance and cultural opportunity," White added.

Interested persons are invited to attend the meeting, which is free of charge.

Pilot walks away from crash

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — The left wing of a rare 1930s plane was torn off when the pilot, who was executing a series of "touch and go" landings, crashed at Lafayette Regional Airport.

Red Lerille, the pilot and only passenger, suffered minor cuts in the crash and was treated and released from an area hospital.

Cabinet quits amid mounting criticism

KUWAIT CITY (AP) — Kuwait's government has stepped down after widespread anger over its failure to restore basic services and provide leadership in the aftermath of the Persian Gulf War.

Crown Prince Saad Abdullah al-Sabah, who is also prime minister, dissolved the Cabinet late Tuesday, three weeks after the U.S.-led military coalition returned his government to power.

Kuwait's emir, Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, was expected to instruct the crown prince to form a new government, and there was no indication the ruling al-Sabahs intend to relinquish any power.

A former government minister, who accompanied the emir today, said on condition of anonymity it could take up to two weeks to form a new Cabinet.

"This is the right time for a change," the crown prince said this morning at his residence, acknowledging that the government had done little planning in exile in Saudi Arabia during the seven-month Iraqi occupation.

A former government minister, who accompanied the emir today, said on condition of anonymity it could take up to two weeks to form a new Cabinet.

Besides being criticized for delays in restoring electricity, water and other services, and in providing food, the al-Sabahs have been under pressure both at home and abroad to implement democratic reform.

Sulayman al-Mutawa, the planning minister, conceded that the 22-member Cabinet resigned largely because of the criticism.

"Many people kept on saying, 'What have you been doing for the last seven months? We have not seen what you have talked about,'" he said.

The government's resignation

"may ease the pressure that is building up," al-Mutawa said. "Let us hope it speeds up the return to parliamentary elections." The ruling family has promised democratic reform, but has been vague on when it might come.

Reacting to the announcement of the Cabinet shakeup, a pro-democracy activist, Eman al-Bedah, said: "That's good news. Maybe something will get done now."

Another activist, Abasali Hussein Mohammad, said: "We want ministers who are from the people, who were in Kuwait during the Iraqi time."

The al-Sabah family dominates the government and has ruled Kuwait since 1759. Activists don't want the ouster of the emir, but they do want elections and a restoration of the Parliament the emir suspended in 1986.

Richards, Senate committee blast DHS

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards joined a Texas Senate committee in saying that the state welfare agency's board members should resign if they don't want to put in the time to cure the department's spiraling fiscal problems.

The Senate Finance Committee Tuesday approved a report saying the Department of Human Services' financial woes are "out of control," threatening both its clients and the state's fiscal health.

The panel said the Legislature "should undertake a complete reorganization of Texas' health and human services system, including the system's funding and service delivery."

"Frankly, I just don't think the present organization will work," said Sen. John Montford, chairman of the committee. "I think the committee sensed a very immediate need to get something done."

Montford, D-Lubbock, said the wide fluctuations in budgetary needs the agency had presented had been a sore spot with lawmakers, helping prompt the report. The state welfare agency has requested a $3 billion budget increase in 1992-93.

"I think the recommendations from the committee ranged all the way from empaneling a lynch mob, to a more tempered response," he said.

The committee charged the agency with failing to adequately control spending practices and possibly circumventing state spending laws. It called on members of the DHS board to resign.

Committee members said the three board members still on the board who served in 1990 should be replaced, charging that they had failed to maintain adequate scrutiny of the agency.

"I think the board needs to seriously consider where they are, and make a decision as to whether they're willing to give it the time and effort necessary," Montford said.

Richards concurred late Tuesday, releasing a statement that said, "DHS board members must take responsibility for the management of this agency. This task will require major commitments of time and energy. Board members who cannot make this commitment should resign."

The three board members remaining from last year are David Herndon of Austin, Ida Papert of Dallas and Maurice Barksdale of Arlington.

Herndon said he did not intend to resign from the board, and did not feel the committee had put pressure on him to do so.

"They're entitled to their opinion. I simply don't agree with them," he said.

Herndon said he could not comment on specifics because he had not seen the committee report, but said he did not agree that board members had failed to put in adequate time overseeing the agency.

Neither Barksdale nor Mrs. Papert returned telephone calls Tuesday from The Associated Press.

Board members scheduled to be sworn in today are Bob Geyer of El Paso, Yava Scott of Houston and Cassandra Carr of Austin.

DHS spokesman Mike Jones said Commissioner Ron Lindsey and other agency officials had not seen the report.

Police: 21 officers present at beating

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Twenty-one Los Angeles police officers — six more than authorities first admitted — were present when a black motorist was beaten in an attack captured on videotape, the Police Department said.

Meanwhile, the Los Angeles Times said today that arresting officers vastly understated Rodney G. King's injuries after the beating, describing them as minor cuts and bruises. The officers also reported they believed — contrary to medical evidence — that he was high on drugs or alcohol, the newspaper said.

Four officers, including a supervising sergeant, have been charged with assault in the March 3 beating. The 25-year-old Altadena man was beaten with nightsticks, kicked and shocked with a stun gun in an attack videotaped by an onlooker.

King's attorney, Steven Lerman, announced plans to sue for $56 million — $1 million for each blow inflicted. Lerman said at least 25 officers were present.

On Tuesday, Lt. Fred Nixon said, "It is our belief at this point that 21 LAPD officers were at the scene." Previously, the department said 15 LAPD officers were present. No explanation for the earlier figure was given.

The revised police department figure is consistent with Lerman's estimate because he was including officers from other agencies, including the California Highway Patrol and the Los Angeles school district police force, Nixon said.

Charged in the beating are Sgt. Stacey Koon and Officers Theodore Briseno, Laurence Powell and Timothy Wind. Others present face possible departmental discipline.

Citing confidential documents used by the grand jury that indicted the four officers, the Los Angeles Times reported that CHP officers were shocked by the ferocity of the beating.

CHP Officers Tim and Melaric Singer, a husband-and-wife team, said they tried to stop King because he was speeding at up to 100 mph.

She said King refused to stop. ● BEATING page 10-A Beating

 even after her husband advised him over their patrol car bullhorn: "Pull over to the right. We won't hurt you."

Los Angeles police joined the pursuit, which ended on a city street. The Singers said they saw the first half-dozen blows inflicted on King before turning their attention to two men traveling with King.

"I definitely was not a witness to what I saw on TV," Mrs. Singer told investigators. "I was shocked when I saw it on TV because I never saw that part of the beating happen at the scene."

Mrs. Singer said when King got out of the car, he appeared jovial and "heavily intoxicated." Koon wrote in his report that reinforcements were needed partly because King was thought to have been on PCP, a powerful hallucinogen.

"Officers tend to panic when things don't work the way they're supposed to," Koon wrote. "A back-up plan prevents panic, and it doesn't hurt to have lots of back-up, especially with PCP users."

Dr. Antonio Mancina, an emergency room physician who examined King shortly after the beating, said there was no evidence of drugs or alcohol.

When Mrs. Singer approached King, Koon told her, "No, no. Get back. We'll handle." She said Koon twice shocked King with a gun and King stumbled to the ground.

"Officer Powell ran up and struck the suspect on the right side of his head with his baton," she told investigators. "The suspect clasped his hands to his face and screamed with pain. He was bleeding. Powell then struck him five to six more times in rapid succession in the head and neck area."

She described the blows as "causing his face to split." King was taken away in an ambulance, but police wrote in reports that he suffered cuts and bruises "of a minor nature," according to the newspaper report.

In Use of Force reports submitted by Koon, Powell and Wind, they listed King's injuries as "contusions and abrasions." They also marked boxes King "attacked officers," "continued some resistance" and "increased his resistance."

King suffered a shattered eye socket and cheek bone, numerous skull fractures, a broken leg, a concussion, injuries to both knees and nerve damage that left his face partially paralyzed, authorities have said.

The videotape, broadcast repeatedly nationwide since the attack, does not show King offering any resistance.

Mayor Tom Bradley late Tuesday joined those urging that Police Chief Daryl F. Gates step aside. In Hawaii on city business, Bradley said, "It would help in (the) healing process if the chief retired."

California Assembly Speaker Willie Brown, the Los Angeles Times and the county's largest union have joined calls for the chief's ouster.

Gates has said he won't quit. "His decision to remain here and restore the luster is unchanged," Nixon said.

Lerman, who visited King at an undisclosed hospital earlier in the day, said he asked his client whether he felt the beating was racially motivated.

Lerman quoted King as saying, "I'm scared. I don't want to say yes. I don't want to start a riot."

Farm income estimate reduced by $2 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm income prospects have faded by about $2 billion from what the Agriculture Department was forecasting earlier this year.

While cash receipts are expected to remain near record levels, lower direct government payments and slightly higher farm expenses will pull down net incomes, the department's Economic Research Service said Tuesday.

Agency economists said important factors in the weakening of farm income prospects are the large supplies of some commodities and weak demand for wheat and milk.

Direct payments to farmers could drop 5 percent to 10 percent from last year's $9 billion, said economist Diane Bertelsen. But much will depend on farmer participation in 1991 crop programs, she added.

Farm scene

Net cash income was forecast in a range of $53 billion to $58 billion, down from $55 billion to $60 billion indicated earlier. Last year's net cash income also was reduced to $58 billion from $59 billion estimated previously but was still a near record.

As used by the research service, net cash income "measures the value of commodities sold in a calendar year plus government payments, less out-of-pocket costs." Some commodities sold actually may have been produced in earlier years and stored until marketed.

In another method of accounting, the report said "net farm income" may now be in the range of $42 billion to $47 billion, compared with $44 billion to $49 billion indicated previously. It was a record $49 billion in 1990.

Net farm income is used to measure the value of agricultural production in a calendar year, whether sold or stored, plus government payments, minus all costs, including depreciation and other allowances.

Retail food prices are still expected to rise an average of 2 percent to 5 percent this year, compared with a 1990 increase of 5.8 percent.

Consumer beef and pork prices "probably will rise more slowly in 1991 than in 1990," when they were at record levels, the report said.

"And retail prices of dairy and poultry products are forecast to average lower this year."

The report said the recession is "cutting demand for some agricultural products" and the economic slump probably "will continue for much of the first half of this year."

Farm exports in the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1 are estimated at $37 billion, down 8 percent from 1989-90, due largely to a decline in grain prices and shipments.

Cattle imports up

WASHINGTON (AP) — High U.S. beef prices attracted record numbers of live cattle imports from Mexico and Canada in 1990, and the Agriculture Department says the flow is continuing this year.

Imports of Mexican cattle were reported at more than 1.26 million head last year, up 44 percent from 874,000 in 1989. Imports from Canada rose to about 874,000 head, up 49 percent from 585,000.

About 98 percent of the Mexican cattle are feeder steers weighing 200 to 700 pounds, the department's Economic Research Service said. After some time on pasture, the lightweight cattle go to feedlots and then to slaughter.

"Prior to the autumn of 1988, Mexico restricted exports to steers from northern Mexican states," the agency report said. "Currently, steers from other parts of Mexico are allowed to be exported."

Mexico's cattle inventory is down because of drought, and consumption is declining because of reduced consumer purchasing power.

"Beef is relatively high-priced in Mexico and is consumed by only a small percentage of the population," the report said. "Most consumption is in the northern states."

Although imports of Mexican cattle probably will remain high in 1991, the report said reduced inventories and the possibility of some herd rebuilding could hold down shipments.

Activist concerned about WIPP

(AP) A nuclear safety activist says he's concerned that state Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Secretary Anita Lockwood may be secretly cutting a deal with the U.S. Department of Energy on the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant.

But Lockwood denies allegations by Don Hancock of the Albuquerque-based Southwest Research and Information Center that she may be railroading the state into a quick agreement with the federal government to hasten opening of the nuclear waste repository. She says she has consulted closely with Gov. Bruce King and other officials on the talks.

The DOE, in negotiating with the state, has proposed paying New Mexico $20 million a year in "impact money" for roads and other improvements in exchange for state permission to open WIPP in underground salt beds near Carlsbad.

A $20 million appropriation for the state was pending in the U.S. Senate today as part of a variegated spending bill similar to one which has already cleared the House. The full Senate had been scheduled to vote on the bill Tuesday but held it over for today.

Hancock and other activists contend New Mexico should receive its impact money up front, not spread over time as the DOE proposes.

State Sen. Lou Whitlock, D-Carlsbad, and others support a flexible approach. Whitlock defends Lockwood.

Lockwood has been negotiating with the DOE for months about the money, which would be used to build highway bypasses, road improvements and other WIPP-related projects.

But Hancock alleged Tuesday that Lockwood "has cut the public totally out of the process."

"Who is she working for? It sounds like she's working for the DOE and Lou Whitlock," Hancock said.

New Mexico has yet to agree to the federal proposal. Both King and Attorney General Tom Udall must sign any such agreement before it takes effect.

And John McKean, press secretary for King, said late Tuesday that such an agreement is unlikely until Congress votes to transfer control of the land from the Interior Department to the DOE, thus withdrawing it from public access, and until the state receives additional health and safety guarantees.

But McKean said the $20 million approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee last week is evidence of "progress being made on the subject of impact money."

"It's $20 million more than we've gotten in the past," he remarked. "This is for the current fiscal year, and it's designed to help New Mexico with roads and improvements to emergency response equipment and the like," McKean said in a telephone interview from his home in Corrales.

King has emphasized that such impact money "is only a part of what the Department of Energy needs to do to satisfy the state of New Mexico that the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant is ready for operation," McKean said.

He was asked whether, assuming all other needs were met, the $20 million a year would be enough money.

"That subject is being debated right now at various levels of state government. What people need to understand," he said, "is the state has significant ability to borrow money for highway improvements if it knows it is going to have money coming in to pay back those bonds."

"The issue is how reliable are the payments going to be," McKean said. "DOE has promised on three different occasions in the past to deliver a substantial amount up front, and they've never been able to deliver until now."

The emir did not return from Saudi Arabia until Thursday — and then received only a lukewarm welcome from his citizens, some of whom thought he should have returned sooner to take charge.

Members of the al-Sabah family also have returned from exile with large supplies of food and water for their private use, angering some of the Kuwaitis who suffered the occupation and now must wait in long lines.

Even now that the leadership has returned, most reconstruction work is being done by the allied military forces and private foreign organizations, and there is little sign of government activity in rebuilding.

Al-Mutawa said the massive destruction had made it virtually impossible for any government to lead effectively. He cited the 550 oil wells set alight by the Iraqis and the extensive sabotage of electrical power stations, ports, government offices and businesses.

U.S. Ambassador Edward Gnehm said, "I think we expected that there would be a government change when the government got back to Kuwait." He said the issue was discussed late last year when the Kuwait government was in exile.

The government dissolved Tuesday had been sworn in June, only six weeks before Iraq's invasion. Kuwait is under martial law as the government tries to re-assert its authority.

The crown prince has said security is the top government priority, followed by reconstruction, and political change. He said Kuwait is not a dictatorship and

Kuwait's emir, Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, was expected to instruct the crown prince to form a new government, and there was no indication the ruling al-Sabahs intend to relinquish any power.

Parliament will be restored, but gave no timetable for political reform.

Kuwait was one of the world's richest countries prior to the war, but its economy has been devastated. Damage to public and government property alone has been estimated at $100 million, but that figure is little more than a guess.

The governor of the Central Bank, meanwhile, said Tuesday Kuwait would reopen its banks Sunday and issue new money to replace more than $2 billion of gold and currency looted by the Iraqis.

Salem Abdulaziz al-Sabah said Kuwaitis would be entitled to the full amount in their accounts on Aug. 1.

Also Tuesday, Khalid al-Mudaf, a prosecutor, said Kuwait would seek to hang most of the 600 Iraqi, Palestinian and other prisoners held for alleged war crimes. He said Iraqi officers would be tried in absentia.

Negotiators near agreement on school finance

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislative negotiators on school finance are near agreement on a plan to meet the Texas Supreme Court's order for reform, leaders in the talks say.

House-Senate conference committee members on Tuesday looked at a proposed framework for shifting local property tax money from wealthier to poorer school districts within about 200 new taxing regions.

"There appears to be a good deal of agreement," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, who heads the House-Senate conference committee on school finance reform.

His House counterpart, Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, agreed. "I think we're 95 percent there," she said.

Staff members planned to draft a bill based on the framework, so that the conference committee could vote on a measure to present to the Legislature.

Ms. Glossbrenner, D-Alice, said she expected a vote to come today. Parker said he was unsure when the committee would meet again.

Conference committee members are trying to work out differences between so-called Robin Hood school finance reform bills passed by the House and Senate.

The Texas Supreme Court unanimously ruled unconstitutional the current $14 billion-a-year school finance system, which relies on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

Differences in local property wealth now lead to disparities in education funding. Justices said if lawmakers do not devise a reform plan by April 1, they will order a stop to state funding for schools.

Under the outline presented to lawmakers, funding disparities would be addressed by creating the estimated 200 education taxing regions, drawn largely along county lines.

Some local tax money would be redistributed among school districts within those regions, beginning in fiscal year 1993.

There would be a minimum local property tax rate of 60 cents per $100 valuation, rising to 90 cents in four years.

School districts also could raise taxes an additional 25 cents to enrich programs, and 20 more cents for construction projects, when the bill is fully implemented. Each school district would be guaranteed the same amount of money for each penny of tax.

On top of that, school districts also could levy additional property taxes to enrich programs. The school district would keep half the money, and the other half would be pooled within the taxing region based on districts' tax rate, wealth and number of students.

That extra enrichment tax could range from 15 cents to 35 cents per $100 property valuation.

About another $1.4 billion in state money would be required over the next two years.

Poor school districts that led the lawsuit over the school funding system earlier backed several reform proposals that they said would stop their long-running court battle. All the proposals differ from the framework presented to the conference committee.

Parker said even the poor school districts' endorsement would not mean an end to lawsuits over school funding.

Rich school districts, and a separate group of poor school districts, have said they would consider suing if the Legislature adopts a plan that does not meet their standards.

With less than two weeks before a Texas Supreme Court deadline to devise a plan to equitably fund poor school districts, the governor's staff also sent out mixed signals about its position on school funding.

Engineer: Too much water coming out of Pecos

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Too much water is being drawn from the Pecos River and something must be done about it, state Engineer Eluid Martinez said.

Martinez said his office will ask a court for authority to cut off water users along the Pecos with the least seniority — those whose rights were granted after 1947.

He plans to go to court some time between April and September to make the request, Martinez said in an interview Tuesday.

In addition, the state has begun negotiating to lease water rights, using $4 million the Legislature approved.

Both moves are aimed at getting more water into the river, so that New Mexico can be assured of meeting its legal obligation to Texas in the short and long term, Martinez said.

It isn't clear when or to what extent the state engineer would exercise the shutoff authority if a Chaves County state court were to approve it.

Under a federal court order, New Mexico must deliver annually to Texas the amount of Pecos River water guaranteed in a 1948 compact between the states.

If there's a shortfall in any year, New Mexico must make that up in the following year, and the engineer must have a plan to accomplish that.

There could be a shortfall by 1992, according to estimates by the engineer's office. New Mexico underdelivered 13,000 acre-feet of water in 1990, Martinez said. An acre-foot is nearly 326,000 gallons.

Because of previous overdeliveries, New Mexico still has 30,000 acre-feet credited to it. But that credit could be used up within a year or two, according to Martinez.

In addition to that short-term problem, New Mexico must begin a gradual return to using only the amount of water authorized at the time the compact was signed, Martinez said.

"The long-term obligation of the state engineer is to bring the river back into balance," he added.

The court request would be for the authority to curtail water rights dated after 1947, except for wells used for livestock and homes.

Users with the least seniority would be curtailed first, if the plan were enacted.

The office also may request permission to curtail earlier rights temporarily to allow paybacks of underdeliveries, Martinez said.

Owners of water rights could argue in court against the proposal.

When and to what extent the engineer actually would enforce the cutoffs would depend on several factors, including weather patterns and how much water the Interstate Stream Commission could add to the river by leasing, then retiring, water rights.

Even if the engineer did not have to enforce a water priority within the next few years, Martinez believes it will be inevitable because too much water from the river is appropriated.

"If you're the junior user, you will be curtailed," he said. "It's just a matter of time."

If over the next decade there were no underdeliveries and the state somehow came up with the estimated $60 million needed to retire enough rights to get the river in balance, curtailment might not be necessary, Martinez said. But he believes that's an overly optimistic scenario.

All the post-1947 rights involve ground water, Martinez said, and include 30 percent of all municipal and industrial uses within the Pecos River stream system.

New Mexico said Texas $14 million a year ago for breaching the Pecos River Compact from 1947 to 1986.

Improving your home's lawn and landscaping can add $6,400 or more to its selling price.

The answers to many environmental questions may be right under our feet

Under the growing pressures of pollution, noise, and urbanization, green grass and landscaping have become increasingly important to sustaining and improving our environment...and our lives. And, in these days of increasing environmental awareness, people should recognize the benefits received from grass in addition to its aesthetic value. Here are some of the other important benefits of grass:

The oxygen giver: Let's start with the basics. An ever-renewed supply of oxygen is essential to life itself. Through photosynthesis, grass plants remove carbon dioxide from the air and release oxygen. According to researchers at The O.M. Scott & Sons Company, "the lawn people," only 625 square feet of grass is needed to produce enough oxygen for one person each day during the growing season. This means that the average homeowner's lawn of 5,000 square feet can supply the oxygen needs of eight people.

Air purification: The leaves of grass plants absorb air pollutants. In a year's time, an acre of flourishing lawn can absorb hundreds of pounds of common atmospheric pollutants such as sulfur dioxide and carbon dioxide — the same pollutants implicated in acid rain and the greenhouse effect, respectively.

Soil erosion control: Grass is one of the most cost-effective ways to control wind and water erosion of the soil, as well as eliminate dust and mud problems. Essentially, grass controls erosion by trapping and holding runoff water. In the United States, nearly six billion tons of soil are washed or blown away each year, costing between $6 billion and $16 billion annually. A healthy lawn absorbs rainfall six times more effectively than a wheat field and four times better than a hay field. Is it any wonder that grass is used alongside highways and airport runways to stabilize soil, prevent dust, and control water runoff? Grasses bind the soil more effectively than any other plant.

Dust trapping: Grass slows the air and allows dust particles to settle on the leaves. Eventually, rain will wash the dust back into the ground. Grass traps millions of tons of dust and dirt released into the atmosphere in the United States every year. By reducing dust, we improve overall lung health, plus increase visibility (dust haze over our cities now reduces sunlight by as much as 15 percent).

Heat reduction: Every child knows that when it's too hot to walk barefoot on the sidewalk, the grass is a cool and inviting alternative. Studies have shown that when the temperature of a sidewalk or street exceeds 100°F, the grass surface remains at a cool 75°F. That's quite an air conditioning system! Compared to air conditioners, the front lawns on a block of eight houses have a combined cooling effect of about 70 tons of air conditioning.

Noise reduction: The harshness of unwanted noise is lessened by the sound-deadening qualities of grass. A grass-covered slope will deflect and absorb sound. When combined with evergreens or deciduous trees, grass can help reduce the roar of traffic to a distant murmur.

Pest control: Who knows what lurks in the tall weeds or deep woods? When properly mowed, residential lawns are unsuitable homes for pests like rodents, snakes, mosquitos, ticks, and chiggers. Also, by keeping weeds out, the levels of allergy-causing pollens are reduced. Mown grass does, however, provide birds with easy access to earthworms and other food.

Glare reduction: Grass plants filter glare because they reflect light diffusely, unlike smooth or hard surfaces like concrete or snow, buildings, streets and sidewalks. Glare is not only uncomfortable, but it can be hazardous for drivers and pilots. For these reasons, higher-cut grass along roadsides eliminates glare thereby allowing drivers to identify an emergency need to stop.

Recreational enjoyment and safety: Grass is, of course, beautiful as well as functional. While performing all of these practical services, grass is fun to play on. It feels good to walk on. Its resiliency helps keep athletes' legs healthy and reduces the likelihood of serious injury when used on playing fields.

Property enhancement: As for the homeowner, in a survey sponsored by The O.M. Scott & Sons Company, real estate agents from four regions of the country said that a well-maintained lawn would add an average of more than $3,100 (about four percent) to the resale value of a $70,000 to $90,000 home.

The future: As the availability of land shrinks under the rapidly growing population, it has been suggested that perhaps grass should be planted on rooftops to reduce temperatures, pollutants, and storm water runoff. Or perhaps as people begin to realize its value, grass will grow in planned "green belts" in new developments. But regardless of where it is found, grass will continue to benefit our lives in its quiet, efficient way. (G191623)

Beautiful, Durable And Simple Way To Decorate Outside And Inside

You can easily beautify your home interiors or exteriors with decorative brick and stone from Z-Brick Brands. Easy to install products from Z-Brick provide the consumer with the best of several worlds in a variety of current decorating textures and colors in products designed for the Do-It-Yourselfer.

Z-Brick decorative wall coverings provide a look of permanence at a fraction of the cost of traditional masonry while providing the elegance, ease of maintenance and durability. Recent product introductions like the Americana line of decorative brick are offered in colors and textures designed to coordinate with today's styles and colors.

The ease with which Z-Brick is installed is one of its greatest advantages. The adhesive is also the mortar which eliminates some additional steps required by other similar products. Simply spread the adhesive, press the brick or stone in place, and smooth the mortar lines with a brush supplied in the installation kit and your new "brick" or "stone" wall is finished. It will last a lifetime. For added protection and easier maintenance you can add a protective seal coat with Z-Sealer.

Z-Brick is also great for outdoors. You can give your home that added touch and style associated with brick and stone since all Z-Brick stone and brick can be used outdoors in all kinds of climates. All Z-Brick products are listed with Underwriter's Laboratories and have a Class I fire rating which indicates that they are safe to use around and behind today's wood burning stoves and fireplaces. All of the adhesive mortars are non-toxic as well.

All of these features are what have made Z-Brick the leader in decorative brick and stone products for over thirty years. Z-Brick products offer quality, selection, ease of maintenance, and ease of installation. See what you can do for your kitchen, bath, entry, family room, patio, or the exterior of your home at your local home improvement center or contact Z-Brick Brands, 7711 Computer Avenue, Minneapolis, MN 55435 for the dealer nearest you.

Today's aesthetic-minded homeowners also enjoy graceful styles like round tops and casements. And, like the owner of this home, they demand them longer and wider for maximum sunlight, according to Beverley Ellsley of Beverley Ellsley Interiors, a Westport, CT designer and builder of homes. Second best...but just as good for wildlife

By CRAIG TUFTS
 Many gardeners followed the lengthy battle over the selection of the national flower. In the end, the rose beat the marigold, but only, perhaps, by a nose. For wildlife and ecologically-minded gardeners, the marigold is every bit as desirable as the rose and surpasses it in a number of ways.

Yard patrol is one of my gardening joys. Armed with binoculars for spying on the avian and lepidopteran denizens of my quarter acre (and the common ground back forty), I spend hours of enjoyable meandering, checking out the monarch eggs on milkweeds, verifying that first ever mourning warbler back in the scrubby tangle that marks the property line.

Marigolds aren't finicky plants and roses are. Too many roses mean less meandering time. Therefore, I plant hundreds of marigolds. They thrive in full sun, average to poor soil, and provide continuous bloom if you keep seeds from forming. For the wildlife gardener, marigolds provide nectar for butterflies, seeds for juncos and sparrows, and if you choose your varieties carefully, offer a degree of nematode and insect control. Here is a brief evaluation of marigold species and some of my favorite varieties.

- French marigold (Tagetes patula): Despite the name, an American native, as are all other marigolds. Well over 200 varieties are available but for butterflies, choose single ones, such as Naughty Marietta or those just barely double. The size of the plant or flower is not important. Hybrids of this and the African marigold such as Burpee's Mules or Park's Hi-Gs offer almost nothing to wildlife but do sport incredibly large, long-lasting flowers. Thompson and Morgan offers the best line of single French marigolds.
- African marigold (T. erecta): Tallest of the clan but one with little wildlife value. Breeders took the wild single flowered form and bred out most of its nectar and seed producing capability.
- Signet marigold (T. tenuifolia): Although relatively unknown to many gardeners, this is a plant to try. The flowers are single and small but numerous. They attract some butterflies and many other beneficial insects. The seed is small and slender and of limited bird feeding value. Thompson and Morgan carry four varieties.

- Sweet-scented marigold (T. lucida): Not great in bloom and not a plant whose seeds a cardinal can feast on, but you can eat it! This is a perennial species and an herb grown by Native Americans in the southwestern U.S. With a small somewhere between anise and tarragon, it's worth a try!
- Irish lace marigold (T. filifolia): My source is a naturalized Nebraska population of this Central American flower, but you can find it in your Park's catalog. Grow it as a border for its lacy foliage which is sweetly pungent. The flowers will go nearly unnoticed but I'll bet it's a great insect repeller. Try it!

The environmentally-aware gardener's guide to controlling insects and other pests safely

For Sale: one garden complete with elegant evergreens, fruit trees, flowering shrubs, breathtaking blossoms, nutritious vegetables, and no added cost, caterpillars, slugs, aphids, grubs and a variety of other hardy pests.

Garden pests are a fact of life, but before you put the garden up for sale, take a quick course in pest control. The key word is "control." You will never be able to completely eliminate all pests from a thriving garden, but there are many methods for keeping them under control. Today's environmentally-aware gardener is becoming more knowledgeable about the options.

There will be times when the most effective solution for saving a favorite plant is a chemical pesticide, and other times when other alternatives are preferred. The Garden Council cautions that any pesticide, organic or inorganic, is designed to kill. Its misuse can be dangerous to "good" bugs, birds, pets, children and adults. Precautions should always be taken when using a pesticide. Read the label carefully and follow directions exactly. Don't overuse or underuse. Don't neglect follow-up treatment. Consider mild spray materials, such as insecticidal or fungicidal soaps and light garden oils.

Many successful gardeners begin their pest control program without pesticides using some simple tried and true defense techniques such as:

- Timing. Know which pests threaten your plant and time your planting season so that the plants get a good start before or after the bugs come into season.
- Selection. Try to select varieties that have been bred to resist common pests.
- Early prevention. Eliminate pests as you see them forming. Control the earliest arrivals while they are few in number.

- Traps. There are hundreds of types of traps for many pests ranging from crumpled paper or upside-down empty flower pots, to trap earwigs, to elaborately constructed traps, both homemade and commercially available at the local garden center. Pheromone traps help prevent insects from breeding.
- Nature. Encourage the "good bugs" to move into the neighborhood. Lady bugs, praying mantises, dragonflies, and wasps can be your allies along with the birds and frogs. They will thrive if you don't kill them off with unnecessary area-wide sprays.
- Companion gardening. Many people believe that plants such as onions and garlic discourage aphids. Planting radishes around squash and cucumbers may chase off the cucumber beetle, and marigolds can reduce nematodes in vegetable gardens.
- Sanitation. Discourage grey mold and other fungus diseases by giving plants good light and air movement. Avoid overcrowding or planting in dark, dark corners. Remove dead or diseased plants or foliage and other garden trash.

in different climates and from state to state. One of the safest pesticides is Bacillus thuringiensis, a good biological control for the organic gardener. Marketed under a variety of trade names, B.T. (as it is commonly known) kills only caterpillars with alkaline stomachs, such as canker worms and tomato worms. While it won't affect aphids, it also won't harm ladybugs, birds, dogs or people. Insecticidal soaps and light horticultural oils are safe and effective if used according to instructions.

When faced with an irritating pest onslaught, the Garden Council recommends contacting the local State Cooperative Extension Service. They are part of every state land grant university and will be able to advise as to the best solutions for specific pests, plants, climates and growing conditions. Many states now have master gardener volunteers to assist the extension staff.

There's always more than one way to get rid of garden pests, but if everything fails, the final solution is to find a different type of plant, one the pests don't like. (G191622)

EXCESS BODY HAIR?

The hormone testosterone in large amounts is responsible for facial and body hair distribution in men. Women produce much smaller amounts of testosterone in their ovaries and adrenal glands. Unfortunately, some women produce more testosterone than normal which results in excess hair on the face, breasts, lower abdomen and genital area. Attempts to permanently remove this hair will be unsuccessful unless the underlying hormone imbalance is corrected.

A careful history, physical examination, and some simple blood tests can determine the source of testosterone in most cases. When elevated male hormone levels are associated with infrequent menstrual periods, the patient is often unable to achieve pregnancy and is at increased risk for uterine lining cancer.

A variety of medical and surgical therapies are available to treat this condition. Sometimes significant weight loss is all that is required. If you or someone you love would like more information about the causes and treatment of this common problem contact our office for more information without obligation.

HAVING A ROOF that provides the best possible combination of beauty and durability will increase your home's value.

Common sense roofing for protection and beauty

Nothing provides more protection and beauty for your home than its roof. Finding the best possible roof will allow you to invest in your home and increase its value. Metal was recognized as a superior roofing product over 100 years ago and many old metal roofs still exist. With today's advanced technology in metals and coatings, the common-sense choice for your next roof is Rustic Shingle, manufactured of rust-proof aluminum. Rustic Shingle combines the prestigious look of wood shakes with the benefits of aluminum. It features

Glidden's three-step baked-on Ultraalst coating for weather resistance without deterioration. The metal and the coating, available in ten colors, carry a 40-year limited warranty. Because aluminum reflects radiant heat, Rustic Shingle is proven by the Florida Solar Energy Center to reduce home cooling loads by up to 34 percent, creating significant energy cost savings. Rustic Shingle also has Class A Fire Ratings. The strong roofing panels interlock on all four sides for maximum resistance to severe heat, high winds, rain, snow and ice. This makes Rustic Shingle very popular in such harsh weather areas as Texas, California, Florida, the Caribbean, and the snow-belt states. Rustic Shingle's exclusive design allows installation over most existing roofs. This, combined with aluminum's permanence, energy efficiency, and lack of dependence on oil products, makes Rustic Shingle an ecologically sound roof as well. Some shortcuts to fast cutting Recent design and manufacturing changes have brought new respect and greater utility to the hand saw, which has long been a reliable and trusted friend of do-it-yourselfers and professionals.

Today's hand saw may look a lot like the saw dad always used whenever he had to cut through a two-by-four or make two pieces of wood from one...but, in this case, looks are deceiving.

The new "space-age" hand saws, like Stanley's Short Cut line, cut 50 percent faster than conventional saws because each tooth is precision-set and bevel-ground with three distinct cutting angles that enable constant contact with the wood to be maintained. With more and more Stanley saws incorporating this faster, more aggressive tooth configuration, homeowners are using hand saws for an increasing number of cutting chores.

Following are some tips from the experts at Stanley Tools to help you select the hand saw most appropriate for your needs:

Because the majority of wood cutting projects involve cutting against the wood's grain, the crosscut saw is considered the most valuable all-purpose cutting tool. Crosscut saw teeth are like alternating rows of angled knife points — designed to crumble out wood. In addition to having bevel-sharpened teeth and the aggressive new tooth configuration, the crosscut saw also should be compact and lightweight. The number of teeth per inch dictates the speed and width of the cut. A crosscut saw with eight teeth (points) per inch can handle a majority of applications efficiently. Saws with more than eight teeth per inch deliver a fine and slow cut, and ones with less than eight tend to give a rough and fast cut. For hard wood, or thin wood, the experts suggest using a saw with more teeth per inch.

When you don't want to saw straight cuts, you can use a keyhole saw, which lets you start in the middle of a piece of wallboard and cut along irregular and curving lines, or a coping saw, which is ideal for intricate circles, irregular shapes, sharp angles and curves in thin wood, plywood and hardboard.

The rigid backsaw, with reinforced back, should be used when you need to saw the perfect straight line. It's ideal for picture frames, molding, trim, or anywhere wood must join flush and fit tightly together. Because of its fine teeth, the backsaw is a slower but surer way to make perfectly straight cuts on any angle, for making joints, or any precise woodwork cuts.

Nothing beats the rip saw for cutting down the grain. Because there is less resistance down than across the grain, the rip saw has big chisel-like teeth that easily rip down the grain of a piece of wood. SH916295

RIGHT SCREWDRIVER "DRIVES" HOME THE POINT

Selecting the right screwdriver for the right fastening job is not as easy as it used to be, according to the experts at Stanley Tools. That's because there are so many different fastening methods today...and so many more designs, sizes and shapes of screws, nuts and bolts available to the homeowner and professional. Make sure to select the proper tip configuration. They range from slotted to Phillips; from Pozidriv style to clutch head with hour glass shape; and from the Robertson square tip to the Torx star shape. SH916297

Thermal windows save money in every climate

A breath of fresh air should be an invigorating, not exasperating, experience. Windows that allow drafts to come through are a costly and uncomfortable nuisance, not just in the winter months, but also in the warmer seasons. The same leaky windows that allow heat to escape in the winter also provide a drain on air conditioning.

Air conditioning equipment must work harder to maintain a comfortable inside temperature and to compensate for the escaping cool air. Homeowners with inefficient windows suffer the consequences every time they pay their utility bills. "Installing storm windows over the existing prime windows is one solution if the budget is tight and the old windows are in good shape," says Dave Martin of Season-all, a leading window manufacturer. "In most cases, however, double or triple-pane replacement windows are the better, more convenient and attractive choice."

When choosing replacement windows, Martin recommends custom-made vinyl or aluminum units rather than stock-sized windows. "Stock sizes are okay for new homes, where the walls are easily adapted to the size of the windows," he explains.

"In existing homes, however, natural settling of the walls can change the size of each window opening — even where the windows were originally the same size. Custom windows are measured to each individual opening so that tiny gaps that cause air and water leaks are eliminated."

The cost of custom windows is often less than similar stock windows because expensive carpentry work for refinishing the walls around the window is usually not required. Because the old window is taken out and the new unit slipped right into its place, the process is usually quicker, too, notes Martin.

Free literature describing various window styles is available by writing: "American Living," Season-all, 1480 Wayne Ave., Dept. GS, Indiana, PA 15701. SH916308

CUSTOM-MADE WINDOWS are a better bet than stock-sized units for window replacement because they are measured exactly to fit the existing window opening. Photo courtesy of Season-all.

- Entry coupons for the Telephone Number Sweepstakes Contest will appear in the Herald and Crossroads Country Advertiser, as published by the Big Spring Herald, beginning February 24, 1991. Additional entry coupons will appear in the Herald and C.C.A. during the contest. Additional entry forms will be available at the participating contest merchants, beginning March 4, while the supply lasts. No purchase is necessary. A person may become a contestant by depositing or mailing their coupon to the Big Spring Herald, 710 Scurry St., P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. All entries being forwarded by mail must bear sufficient postage. The Herald takes no responsibility for any lost or misdirected entries.
- During the first 9 weeks of the Herald's 10 week contest, the Herald will publish at least 2 telephone numbers as chosen by random draw from all entries received, in the advertisements of at least 2 participating merchants on the Telephone Numbers Sweepstakes page each day from Tuesday to Sunday. The value of each of the numbers published from Tuesday thru Sunday, will be $10. Each Monday of the first 9 weeks of the contest, the Herald will also publish at least 2 telephone numbers also chosen by draw from all entries received. These numbers will appear in at least 2 of the merchant's ads on the contest page. The value of the numbers published each Monday during the first 9 weeks of the contest, will be $25.
- The 10th and final week of the contest, will be known as Grand Prize Week. From Monday to Thursday of this week (May 6-9) 2 telephone numbers, as drawn from all entries, will be published in the advertisements of 2 participating merchants. The value of each of these numbers will be $50. On Friday, May 10, one number, as drawn from all entries received, will be published in the ad of one of the participating merchants. The value of this number will be $250. On Sunday, May 12, the final day of the contest, one telephone number drawn from all entries received will be published in the advertisement of one of the participating merchants chosen by drawing. The value of this number, known as the Grand Prize Number will be $500.
- All entries drawn during the contest, up to and including May 10, will be returned to the draw drum the day following the publication of the telephone number.
- The holder of a telephone number published in the Herald's Telephone Number Sweepstakes Contest from March 4 to May 12, must call the Big Spring Herald at 263-7331, by no later than 5:30 p.m. on the 7th business day following the publishing of the winning number. Contest Department hours are from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday to Friday. The contest office is not open on Saturdays, Sundays or Statutory holidays. Upon reporting a winning telephone number, the holder of the number will be advised of the steps to follow to claim the prize. Published telephone numbers reported to the Herald following the close of the contest department on the 7th business day following publication of the number, will not be accepted and will not be eligible to claim a prize.
- The holder of the Grand Prize telephone number as published on May 12, the final day of the contest, must call the contest department of the Herald at 263-7331 no later than 5:30 p.m. on May 23, 9th business day, following publication of the winning number. Business hours are shown in rule number 5. If the Grand Prize, relating to the telephone number published in the Herald on May 12, has not been claimed by the close of the contest department office on the 9th business day following publication, a 2nd Grand Prize number will be published on the 10th business day following the publication of the initial Grand Prize number. This process will be repeated, until the Grand Prize has been claimed.
- If a successful winner receives 6-day home delivery of the Big Spring Herald, by carrier, motor route delivery, or mail, this person will receive an additional cash amount, equivalent to their prize. The winner must be receiving home delivery the day the winning number appears in the Herald.
- It is not necessary to purchase the Herald to participate in the contest. Live telephone numbers will be posted in the main business office of the Herald, 710 Scurry St., and copies of the Herald are available for inspection during regular business hours.
- Published telephone numbers will not be given out over the telephone.
- By playing Herald Telephone Number Sweepstakes contest, contestants agree to accept these rules and to allow publication of their name and address and/or picture within the Herald. The decision of the judges appointed by the Herald will be final and binding.
- Anyone 18 years or older can play the Herald Telephone Number Sweepstakes contest, except employees and their immediate families of the Big Spring Herald and Thompson Newspapers Corporation.
- Any person without a telephone number can submit their address for contest participation.
- Photo identification is required to collect your prize.

Delay auto maintenance at own peril, experts warn

With the cost of gasoline taking a bigger bite out of the family budget than it did last summer, prior to the Middle East crisis, many motorists have a ready-made excuse for ignoring routine vehicle maintenance and service. But that's a bad choice.

According to officials with the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE), a non-profit group which tests and certifies the competence of automotive technicians, failure to perform routine maintenance and service as prescribed by the owner's manual can greatly reduce the life of your vehicle.

Avoid breakdowns

Not only may preventive maintenance slow or reverse the damage done by winter driving, it can prevent annoying breakdowns in the dog days of summer.

The following tips have been prepared by the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence.

•Begin with the basics. Whether you are an experienced do-it-yourselfer or rely upon professional auto technicians, study your owner's manual and follow all of the recommended service intervals.

•Don't ignore early warnings. You probably know your car better than anyone else; you drive it every day and know how it feels and sounds when everything is in top working order. Among the signs to be aware of: unusual sounds, odors, drips, warning lights, smoke, etc.; changes in acceleration, engine performance, gas mileage, fluid levels; worn tires, belts, hoses; and problems with handling, braking, or steering.

•Find a good shop. Unless you plan to do all of the work yourself — few people do in this high-tech age — you will need to find a good repair shop.

Ask friends and business associates for their recommendations. Call your local consumer organization and inquire as to the reputation of the place of business in question.

Designed for the customer

Professionally run establishments are usually neat and well organized, with up-to-date equipment and polite service personnel willing to take the time to discuss your repairs. The customer waiting area is often used to showcase community and customer service awards as well as the professional affiliations of the shop and the individual mechanics. All shop policies should be posted or someone should be willing to explain them.

•Find a good technician. Competent technicians are the backbone of any repair establishment. Good technicians often build up a very loyal following. They have established reputations, especially in smaller towns.

Professional training

In addition to word-of-mouth reputation, technicians can often be judged by their professional training and certifications. Check out the customer service area for trade school and/or community college diplomas, certificates of advanced course work, and professional certification.

Certification has become increasingly popular among consumers since it offers a standardized benchmark of technical competence. The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence conducts the only technician certification program which is both national and industry-wide in scope. ASE tests the competency of automotive technicians through a series of tough exams in specialties such as engine repair, brakes, or air conditioning.

BE PREPARED. Summer driving can be more fun and worry-free if you have your car checked out thoroughly before hot weather arrives. Increasingly, motorists are discovering that ASE technician certification can take much of the guesswork out of finding a good mechanic. The non-profit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence conducts the only national, industry-wide certification program for working technicians.

There are over 250,000 ASE technicians across the nation. Dealerships, garages, and shops with ASE technicians often display the ASE outdoor sign and post technicians' ASE certificates in the customer waiting area. The technicians usually wear blue and white ASE shoulder insignia.

•Get ready early for summer driving. Check all major systems and components before hot weather sets in. Summer's heat, dust, and stop-and-go traffic can cause marginally operating systems such as a weak air conditioner to fail. Among ASE's summer tips:

The cooling system should be completely flushed and refilled about every 24 months to prevent overheating. The tightness and condition of belts and hoses should be inspected.

The engine oil and filter should be replaced according to the manufacturer's recommendations, more often if you do lots of stop-and-go driving or haul cargo.

Other fluids and filters should be replaced as recommended. Hard starts, rough idling, poor acceleration should be corrected. You will save gasoline and get better engine performance with a well maintained engine.

Summer's heat is tough on tires, so replace badly worn treads now. Rotate tires about every 5,000 miles. Keep them properly inflated. Examine the tires for cuts, nicks, and uneven wear.

Brakes should be inspected as recommended in the owner's manual, or sooner if you notice pulsations, grabbing, or noises.

Batteries and cables should be cleaned, even in the summertime. Make sure the windshield wipers are working properly and carry plenty of washer fluid.

The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence offers a free glove box brochure, "Getting Your Vehicle Ready for Summer Driving." For a free copy, send a stamped business envelope to: ASE, Dept. MC91, 13505 Dulles Technology Drive, Herndon, VA 22071. SC917018

Get a jump start on spring car care

Spring is the season of unpredictable weather. One day may be rainy and cool and the next day may be warm and sunny. With this in mind, car owners need to take precautions to help eliminate car problems.

Something as simple as replacing worn windshield wipers or changing the oil can prevent problems if taken care of in advance.

"Simple car maintenance can make a big difference on the road," says Jennifer Runyeon, president of Lifetime Automotive Products, Inc. "Being caught in a sudden downpour is not the time to realize you need new wipers."

Here are some preventive auto maintenance guidelines for spring driving conditions.

Ten tips for spring car maintenance

1. Rotate tires and have air pressure checked by a professional. Winter driving causes wear and tear on tire tread.

2. Check the brake fluid to ensure it's at the correct level. Your car's master cylinder, the heart of the brake system, contains a reservoir for brake fluid. Proper fluid level is vital to ensure brake performance.

3. Winter sludge can clog filters.

Therefore it's important to replace them with clean filters that will protect essential components of the engine and transmission from grit, dirt and other foreign matter which enter the engine from outside air.

4. Prolong your car's expensive finish and protect it from the sun's damaging rays by applying a sun protectant. Shade™ Auto Sunblock is guaranteed to protect the car's finish against fading for two full years.

5. Check hydraulic lifts on trunk, hatch and tailgate to make sure they are safe. Worn lifts allow hatches and hoods to fall, causing pain and injury, plus they're expensive to replace. The Lift Saver™ is an inexpensive alternative that safely braces worn-out lifts.

6. Inspect windshield wiper blades each time you clean your windshield. Windshield wipers are essential to your driving safety, especially during the rainy spring season. Tripleedge™ Lifetime Wipers will clean, clear and squeegee your windshield and are guaranteed for as long as you own your car. This eliminates the bi-yearly wiper replacement chore and expense.

7. Keep the windshield washer reservoir full. Use some solvent on a rag to clean off the wiper blades. Adding Jet Vision™ to your ordinary solvent will improve cleaning power for the clearer vision.

8. With the summer travel season approaching, make sure your car will get the best gas mileage possible. Lifetime Fuel Booster™ is a 100 percent petroleum compound that reportedly decreases gas consumption over 10 percent and improves engine performance. Lifetime Fuel Booster™ contains no synthetic chemicals which can clog engines.

9. With increasing gas prices, a tank of gas is a valuable asset. Protect your fuel supply from siphoning and tampering with the Spare Key Locking Gas Cap™. This handy gas cap also features a secret compartment for emergency cash and spare keys to prevent lockouts.

10. Check your car's ignition, carburetion and emissions components to ensure engine performance. A first class tune-up includes a thorough diagnostic check by a qualified technician.

For more information about the products mentioned in this article, contact Lifetime Automotive Products, Inc., P.O. Box 871179, Dept. MS, Dallas, TX 75287-1179 or call 1-(800) 552-5327. SC917164

Women's influence recognized by leader in automotive aftermarket services

The old saying, "It's a man's world," no longer applies in many spheres of life, including the purchase and maintenance of automobiles.

It is conservatively estimated that women make the buying decision on approximately 50 percent of the new cars, vans and light trucks sold annually in the United States. And the percentage is expected to increase steadily.

Automobile manufacturers have recognized this trend for several years, and aftermarket service specialists like Ziebart Tidy Car Centers have been quick to upgrade their product/service lines to meet the changing marketplace.

"Most people today, including a great number of working women with families, want their vehicles to look good, but they generally don't have the time or the experience to do the job themselves," says Dan Janssen, COO of North American operations for the Troy, Michigan-based specialty firm.

Ziebart International Corporation, which acquired the Tidy Car franchise system in 1989, offers a wide range of aftermarket appearance and detailing services specifically tailored to support the company's new one-stop shopping convenience program.

Ziebart Tidy Car detailing allows customers to select from services on an as-needed basis. New maintenance programs — Express Shine and Express Interior — feature professional interior and exterior vehicle services within 60 minutes while their owners wait.

Express Shine offers the customer a fast, prompt service while producing a superb shine. Express Interior reconditions the upholstery by using a combination of cleaners with an extraction process designed to lift out ground-in dirt.

The top-of-the-line detailing service,

Gold Care, highlights Protect-A-Shine, a tough protective paint coating that repels weathering and the sun's ultraviolet rays. Also included is Inner-Guard, interior detailing that thoroughly cleans and reconditions a vehicle's fabric and upholstery.

"Our outlets nationwide place extra emphasis on customer satisfaction by providing better and faster service to owners who may not have the luxury of time," says Janssen. "That's the name of the game today for just about every service-oriented business, and we intend to remain the leader in every segment of the automotive appearance and protection aftermarket industry."

Ziebart International Corporation has been the world leader in aftermarket car care services for more than 25 years. Including new Ziebart Tidy Car one-stop outlets, the company has 800 locations worldwide. SC917175

The wax can remove your car's shine

Many commonly-used wax products can actually dull your new car's reflective finish. They use a combination of wax or silicone and a harsh abrasive polish to remove oxidized paint. These abrasives can roughen the surface with thousands of tiny fine scratches.

The scratched paint can't reflect light as well as smooth paint. This results in an overall reduction in shine. These days, people are waxing more often to protect their cars from the almost-impossible-to-remove, water-spotting effects of acid rain. Frequent waxing with polishes containing abrasives causes unnecessary removal and deterioration of paint.

Your new car should not be exposed to these strong paint-removing abrasives. It just needs washing and a follow-up with a good abrasive-free wax. Older cars with paint already dulled will need a very mild polishing cleaner to restore the high gloss. Then apply a non-abrasive wax.

Many popular waxes that are supposedly non-abrasive in fact contain abrasives. If a manufacturer's wax promises to remove dirt, oxidized paint or small scratches, you can be sure it contains more than just wax.

Early car wax products were abrasive-free. If an abrasive polish was needed, it was sold separately and by the coarseness of the abrasive used, from strong rubbing compounds to extremely mild polishes.

The best waxes were made with imported Carnauba wax. Growing on a select group of palm trees in Brazil, the natural wax protects the tender leaves from the harsh sun and long rainy periods common in the rain forests.

As the costs of gathering and importing this wax skyrocketed, chemists created cheaper "wax-less" substitutes. Abrasives were mixed into their new formulations to aid in removing "dead" paint.

They were billed as the lazy man's one-step car polish. Unfortunately, they've never been able to equal the extreme high gloss and no-scratch properties of pure Carnauba wax. And when used often, the abrasives necessarily remove good paint and clear coat finishes.

Since the change from pure Carnauba to man-made synthetics progressed over many years, only the astute consumer realized he was getting less shine for his money. Only a side-by-side comparison of waxes will truly show what is best for your car!

Today it is indeed difficult to find an abrasive-free car wax containing the best grades of Carnauba.

Summer can be tough on vinyl and leather

According to First Brands Corporation, Danbury, Conn., manufacturer of STP Son Of A Gun! brand products, the first step in preparing vinyl, rubber and finished leather surfaces is to completely remove all the accumulated dust, dirt and mud.

A good all-purpose automotive cleaner like new STP Son Of A Gun! car cleaner can be used to clean dashboards, seats, floor mats, tires, and even glass. It contains fast-acting wetting agents and solvents to penetrate, loosen and lift dirt, oily film and dust quickly and safely.

Once your car is clean, apply a protectant to these surfaces to protect and beautify them, and to help bring out their natural luster. Products like STP Son Of A Gun! protectant are ideal. They help bring back vinyl, rubber and finished leather surfaces' original color, and restore lost luster.

After it's applied, a protectant also helps reduce static electricity, which can attract dirt and dust to the surface.

Many exposed automotive surfaces can benefit from the beautifying abilities of a protectant — vinyl and finished leather seats, head liners, dashboards, door panels, even automotive trim. When used regularly, a protectant can maintain a "just-cleaned" shine all year long.

The best way to keep a new car's interior surfaces looking new during summer is to conduct a regular automotive cleaning regimen that includes using a protectant and an all-purpose car cleaner. It can be an inexpensive and easy way to enhance a car's appearance and protect your investment. And, by doing the same for an older car, an owner can help increase its resale value. SC917046

BUSINESS REVIEW

Edited by Linda Choate

Com Shop can handle all your phone needs

President Travis Crow, right, and technician Clifford Crow are two of the reasons behind Com Shop's success. Com Shop offers the finest in equipment and service plus highly skilled technicians to take care of all your phone needs.

Com Shop began in 1985, and is founded on the old-fashioned principle of one company to handle all your phone needs. Two former employees of Southwestern Bell and AT&T saw a need for more personalized, and less expensive, telephone repair service and decided to fill the gap. With offices in Odessa and Big Spring, Jim Haas, president, and Travis Crow, vice president, incorporated Com Shop in 1986. Their technicians, Kenneth Crow, Clifford Crow and James Sides, have years of combined experience. Their secretary is Johnna Crow. "As a full service telephone company, Com Shop supplies everything but the dial tone," Travis said. "We do work hard to get the job done as quickly as possible." Com Shop sells and leases phones and systems, sells digital pagers, pay phones, fax machines, custom-made phone cords, calculators, paging systems, medical alerts, mobile telephones, and key equipment for multi-line systems needed in large or small businesses. Some of the other advantages Com Shop offers are pre-wiring buildings for telephones, TV and paging systems. They also offer maintenance contracts on existing equipment at a very competitive rate. Involved in projects around the Permian Basin, Com Shop has a contract with Ector County ISD, works with Furr's Supermarkets and has done work at Fina Refinery. As Asbestos Certified Technicians, they are able to go into many older schools and repair phone systems and do computer wiring. The folks at Com Shop have a master contract with Southwestern Bell Telcom. When the Bell technician needs help, he calls Com Shop. Com Shop technicians are continuing their education regularly by attending schools to familiarize themselves with the rapidly changing business. Wanted: Experienced technician for UHF, VHF & transmission satellite. Salary negotiable. Willing to travel. Call 267-2423.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR WHEN BUYING LAWN AND GARDEN TOOLS

What should you look for when selecting quality lawn and garden hand tools? "Start with a name brand manufacturer who has a reputation for making quality products and, if possible, buy tools that are made in the United States for ease in replacement," says Michael E. Deitsch, Sr., Director of Marketing for Ames Lawn & Garden Tools.

Deitsch suggests picking up the tool, before buying it to see how it would feel to use it. "The best tools," he says, "are well balanced and are comfortable in the hand. They also will have quality materials and workmanship. Cheap tools have poor painting or plating, rough edges and inferior materials." GT916284

Fascinating facts

•Did you know that lead pencils aren't made out of lead at all? The material that you see in the center of a pencil is actually a mixture of graphite, clay and wax.

•Everyone knows there are seven days in a week, but do you know the origin of each day's name? Sunday and Monday are named for the sun and moon (sun day and moon day).

Tuesday was named after Mars, the Roman god of war. The Old English name for Mars was Tiw ("Tiw's day").

Wednesday was originally "Woden's day." Woden was the chief god of the Germanic peoples.

Thursday was originally "Thor's day." Thor was the Norse god of thunder, war, and strength.

Friday was once called "Fria's day," after Fria (also called Frigg), the Norse goddess of the sky.

Saturday was named for Saturn, the Roman god of agriculture ("Saturn's day").

•Did you know that the highest point on the Earth's surface is Mt. Everest, which is 29,028 feet high? The lowest point is around the shores of the Dead Sea, at about 1,300 feet below sea level. K2910001
