PTA endorses alcohol bills

Two bills introduced to the Senate and the House of Representatives in Washington D.C., March 14, requiring health and safety messages for alcohol advertising, have been endorsed by the National Parent and Teachers Association.

The Sensible Advertising and Family Education Act, sponsored by Senator Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Representative Joseph Kennedy, D-Mass., also has the support of senators Albert Gore, Tenn., and John Glenn, Ohio.

The House sponsors include 15 representatives, according to Maribeth Oakes, policy analyst for the National PTA. Texas legislators have not sponsored the bill yet, she said.

The five messages, similar to the tobacco warnings, would state: alcohol could cause birth defects during pregnancy; alcohol impairs one's ability to operate a car or machinery; alcohol may be hazardous if used with prescription, over-the-counter or illicit drugs; alcohol may be addictive; and purchasing alcohol for persons under 21 is illegal.

Oakes said the SAFE Act will assign a toll-free number for all print advertising to answer questions and offer advice to consumers. She said there is still work to be done before it's finalized.

It was introduced in response to the 26-member commission established in 1988 by the Anti-Drug Abuse Act, which examined, for Congress, the status of drug use and abuse, particularly among school-aged youth. One conclusion of the committee was that alcohol is one of the two most abused drugs by underage youth, and one of the most prevalent in schools, according to the National PTA.

City offices closed Friday

Big Spring city offices will be closed Friday in observance of Good Friday. There will be no trash collection.

The city landfill will be open at its usual hours and all emergency personnel will be available. Normal city operations — including trash collection — will resume Monday, April 1.

'Desert Victory' coming to town

Union Pacific's Desert Victory locomotive will be coming through Big Spring tomorrow between 10a.m. and 1p.m.

The diesel-electric engine was painted in desert camouflage by workers in Little Rock Arkansas as a symbol of their support for fellow workers who have been called to active duty in connection with the Gulf War.

U.S. close to establishing base in Gulf

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf says the United States is closer than ever to establishing a permanent land base on Arab soil — a goal governments in the region had blocked for many years.

The U.S. commander in the Persian Gulf War told reporters Sunday that the base would not include American ground forces.

He also said that the American troops who remain in the gulf will go home after a permanent cease-fire is signed with Iraq. However, a published report said today that U.S. armored forces had driven deeper into Iraq.

In another development, Iraq's government newspaper, Al-Jumhuriya, on Sunday denounced the cease-fire terms set by the allies as aimed "at usurping Iraq's sovereignty, mortgaging its will and holding its wealth hostage."

The U.S.-led coalition, which halted hostilities last month after driving Iraq from Kuwait, says it will not sign a permanent cease-fire accord unless Baghdad destroys its chemical, biological and nuclear arsenals and agrees never to resume production of the weapons, among other conditions.

A Red Cross official in Riyadh said 1,000 Iraqi prisoners of war traveled to the Saudi border post of Arar on Sunday and were handed over to Iraqi officials. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Also Sunday, hundreds of Kuwaiti soldiers who spent months in Iraqi prisons returned home to their war-wrecked nation, where they were greeted by weeping

Pistoleers fire away for center

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Scores of local pistol enthusiasts came to the Western Sportsman Club Sunday to participate in a benefit shoot for the Rape Crisis Victim Services Center.

The benefit raised $540 for the center. "We'll have more for you next year," said Woodie Howell, a coordinator of the event. Lisa Brooks of the center said, "We've had to change locations this year, and we don't have money budgeted for the electric bill. This will keep the lights on for months."

In addition to the entry fees for the match, proceeds from a raffle for a $25 gift certificate and a hunting vest from Dibrells Gun Shop, and a $25 gift certificate from Walmart went to the center.

The warm sunny weather made the donation of soft drinks by the Coca Cola Bottling Company and ice from Third Coast all the more appreciated.

The competition included three shooting stations. One was styled after a Police Pistol Course. In the PPC, contestants fired 12 rounds from the hip at six feet, and six rounds right hand and six rounds left hand from 12 feet. For the benefit shoot, 30 seconds was allowed instead of the usual 12. This is so people not in the club, and used to the tight time constraints, would be able to compete.

Ronni Kamradt concentrates as she prepares to shoot a "bad guy" without harming the "hostage" at the benefit pistol shoot for the Rape Crisis, Victim Services Center. The event was sponsored by the Western Sportsman Club.

Another event was a "combat" style match. In this, the shooter bursts through a doorway and fires 12 rounds at three silhouette targets; 12 rounds also are fired from standing and kneeling positions at a wall.

This includes firing six times at the hostage target (a poster of a man holding a woman in front him). The officials reminded contestants that they lose all points for the target if they shoot the hostage.

The final event was the bowling pin shoot. Bowling pins are used because their deceptive shape makes them difficult to hit.

Members of the Western Sportsman Club volunteered to supervise the stations and to see that all shooters followed the safety rules.

Contestants were paired in teams made of one "lawman" and one civilian. Each team's score was a combination of the two individual scores.

First and second place trophies were given for each of four events and for the overall winners. The first place overall finishers were John Lubner and Norman Wright. Don Blackburn and Hector Cantu placed first in both the PPC and Bowling Pin events. The team of Walter Lee and Gary Shanks won the "door kick" and Art Dehlinger and Keith Whiteside won at the "wall."

Coordinators are already making plans for next year. Since the turnout was so good, they plan to increase proceeds with the addition of a barbecue. The event was designed so that people who do not get a chance to shoot much can still safely compete. Coordinators promise a day of family fun, and the knowledge that one's money is going to a good cause.

Fraser: Bill will restrict districts

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

The five smallest of 10 Crossroads Country school districts will still lose funding according to a school refinance bill passed by a state Senate-House legislative committee last week. But the phase-in will be less severe than earlier proposals.

However, the bill still makes it too difficult for small districts to raise needed enrichment funds which they can keep, said Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, who was the only one of 10 legislators on the committee which voted no. Also, he said, the bill may not be able to pass a House vote, which is expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

"I didn't feel like the bill coming out is fair to West Texas and I also didn't think it'll pass the House," Fraser said Friday. Earlier wire reports that Fraser had abstained from voting were mistaken. One other committee member was absent during the vote.

Because of an April 1 deadline under a Texas Supreme Court order to devise a finance plan which is fair to poor school districts, Fraser said he may reverse his position and vote for the bill when it comes up for consideration in the House.

Otherwise, it could be left to a district court to devise a plan, Fraser said. Since a court cannot appropriate money, that could mean forced consolidation of school districts, which Fraser said he opposes because there would be a loss of local control.

"The court has very few choices of what they can do," he said. "My feeling is that the bill is wrong, but if I vote no on the bill, I run the risk that the state may move to consolidate the smaller school districts." Friday, he polling the 22 superintendents in his district to get their opinions.

"Ultimately I don't think it should have to go into the hands of the court," said Borden County Independent School District Superintendent Jimmy Thomas, who is concerned about keeping his school open under the proposed plan. "I think it's just real, real similar to playing Russian roulette," he said of a possible rejection by the House.

Water rates, zoning changes on agenda

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council will consider the second reading of a resolution increasing water rates and several resolutions for a street closure and zoning changes at its meeting Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. at the office of the McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark.

The monthly charge for water would increase by $1.50 to $10.50 per connection under the proposed plan. The charge per thousand gallons of use would remain the same at $1.63 per thousand.

The plan under consideration Tuesday was developed by city officials working with Council member Corky Harris, who had questioned the fairness of a previously-approved plan.

Several resolutions and a public hearing are on the agenda concerning some lots on Gregg Street in the 20th and 21st block. H-E-B announced that it is considering building a store in the area, and the plan would require the closing of a section of 20th Street as well as rezoning for retail.

Related items were approved Thursday by the Planning and Zoning ing Commission, and will be recommended to the council for approval.

Other council agenda items include:

• A resolution that would increase taxi rates and designate all extra charges that may be added to a bill. It includes no extra charges for wheelchairs.

• A presentation about Christmas in April, from Bob Noyes.

• A presentation about the Big Spring Police Department, by Danny Heckler.

• Budget revisions for the Howard County 911 Communication District.

Suspect nabbed at radio station

TEXARKANA (AP) — A vehicle theft suspect being chased by police asked the wrong person for a cigarette when he made his way to a radio station.

KKYR disc jockey Andy Lockwood happened to be outside the studios, smoking a cigarette, when the suspect crawled to the doorstop. Lockwood said he gave the man a cigarette, told him to calm down, then went inside and called police.

The man was arrested without incident. Charges were pending today against the man, police said.

The Sunday night chase by Texarkana, Texas, police began after a report that a truck was stolen. The man driving the alleged stolen vehicle crashed it on the Arkansas side of the city.

Police searched a wooded area with dogs for about two hours before the man turned up at the radio station.

Father allegedly sells son to dealer

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas man was arrested for allegedly selling his 4-year-old son to a drug dealer for $40 worth of crack cocaine, police say.

Officers said the child's mother, aided by a neighbor, got the boy back by forcing their way into the dealer's home Sunday morning.

The man, who was not identified, was being held for investigation of the sale of a child and on an assault charge.

The woman told officers that her husband and the boy left their home Saturday night. The man returned early Sunday and told his wife that the boy was sleeping at one of his friend's homes.

The woman went to the home of the drug dealer with a neighbor, who asked not to be identified.

"They pushed me around a little bit, but I got him," said the mother. "They wanted the money or their stuff, but I didn't have it. I just didn't have it."

The neighbor said she grabbed the child while his mother was talking to the man in the apartment.

92 cars destroyed in fire at benefit

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A benefit staged by firefighters for victims of house fires turned into an inferno that destroyed 92 cars, damaged 17 others and caused some minor injuries, officials say.

The fire erupted beneath one car in a parking lot at the 3rd Annual Bush's Canned Foods South Texas Menudo Cookoff Sunday and quickly spread to other vehicles parked on a freshly mowed field.

Several firemen and a few spectators were treated for heat exhaustion and smoke inhalation, but Emergency Medical Services paramedics said they did not need to take anyone to a hospital.

Damages will exceed $1 million, according to Bexar County Fire Marshal Carl Mixon.

Plumes of black smoke were visible for more than 15 miles away, witnesses said.

"It looked like Kuwait out there," said Tex-Mex singer Joe "King" Carrasco, who was performing at the event.

Business active in schools, quiet in debate

Tom Luce

DALLAS (AP) — Texas businesses have taken great interest in the state's classrooms in recent years but are playing a quiet role in the current school finance debate.

Lobbying by business has been spotty on ways to erase the spending gap between rich and poor school districts, reflecting, in part, the confusion and complexity of the problem.

The Legislature must pass an equalization bill by April 1 to meet a Supreme Court order. Legislators received Thursday from a conference committee a compromise bill that shifts hundreds of millions of dollars in property taxes from rich districts to poor ones and raises state spending on education by at least $1.4 billion.

Like many Texans, business leaders believed a sweeping reform law in 1984 would improve the state's educational performance and its economic attractiveness.

When it became clear that the changes weren't enough, business leaders created mentor, vocational help and other programs, viewing their role in Texas' schools as an investment in the future work force.

"One of the things that makes me most optimistic that we're going to restructure schools is the change in attitude by the business community since 1984," said Tom Luce, a Dallas attorney and 1990 GOP gubernatorial candidate who helped craft the education reform law known as House Bill 72.

"Gradually, every year, they have realized the education system is having a direct impact on their business. Now they're getting involved because it's in their self-interest," Luce said.

If such activity gave the business community more muscle in Austin on school matters, it hasn't been flexed in the finance debate.

That's because of confusion over the effects of the bill and the widespread disbelief that equalized financing will improve the quality of Texas education, lobbyists say.

"We view this quality problem as a long-range thing that's not going to be solved once a school finance plan is put in place," said Dane Harris, president of the Texas Association of Business.

"Simply reallocating money or putting more money into the system is not going to address the central problem in education," he said.

"We've got to be convinced that ... we are spending our dollars as wisely as possible," said Larry Zilner, president of the Texas State Chamber of Commerce.

The Legislature's plan aims for per-student annual spending that is about $800 below the U.S. mean of $4,900 but will likely cost Texans millions in new taxes and ultimately force a restructuring of the state's tax code.

Business leaders interviewed last week said they want to be sure inefficiencies are filtered from the school system before spending more money on it.

"There's sort of a dichotomy here," said John Moore, education professor at Trinity University. "On the one hand, most people believe it is scandalous that some Texas school districts spend $6,500 per student per year and some can only spend $2,400. I think that means they're generally for equity."

"But there's not one person I know in the state's business leadership that believes we need to spend more money on schools," he said.

Pilgrims share beach with spring breakers

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) — Officials on this resort island say they expect few problems when students on spring break party side-by-side this week with Mexican tourists celebrating the Holy Week leading to Easter.

Families from northern Mexico visit the South Texas island annually for a quiet "Semana Santa" (Holy Week) getaway.

"One group is more family-oriented, obviously, and one is here for spring break," said Gerri Wilson, public relations manager for the South Padre Island Visitor and Convention Bureau.

The tourist bureau considers the Mexicans important customers. It doubled its advertising budget for northern Mexico this year, but also made a point to inform people that Holy Week 1991 coincides more than usual with spring break.

Several thousand Mexican nationals are expected to spend at least part of the week at the island. Easter is next Sunday.

"Everybody from Monterrey comes here to this island," said Ramon Oziel Hinojosa Galvan, 45, who arrived Friday with his family. "The atmosphere is fine."

Jose Trinidad Vargas, 44, who visits the island every year with his wife and children for Holy Week, said he never has had problems with the students.

"They make some noise, but they bring business to the merchants," Vargas said in Spanish. "You should never forget what it was like to be young."

When Easter comes in April as it usually does, there are far fewer of the rowdy spring breakers sharing the beaches, hotels and condominium complexes with the Mexican families.

Although crowds of students are smaller than they were a week or two ago, thousands of new breakers have arrived this week mainly from schools in Texas, the Midwest and Louisiana.

"The students come here to have a good time," Ms. Wilson said. "It's not the den of debauchery that a lot of people think it is."

Some 200,000-250,000 students were expected to spend their spring breaks at the island over a period beginning in late February and ending in early April.

Police Chief Ed Sanders said he expects a few calls, but nothing serious.

"We'll have complaints from the Mexican nationals about the rowdiness of the spring breakers. We always do, mostly asking us to keep down the noise by the spring breakers, because this is a holy time for them."

Chief condemns L.A. beating in open letter

DALLAS (AP) — Police Chief William Rathburn, responding to the recent beating of a black motorist by Los Angeles police, says physical abuse of citizens by officers will not be tolerated in Dallas.

Rathburn, who served as a deputy chief in Los Angeles before becoming the top Dallas police officer in February, has written an open letter to all Dallas officers condemning the March 3 beating of Rodney G. King by Los Angeles police.

In the letter, printed in the March 22 issue of the Dallas Police

News, Rathburn called the officers' actions an example of "gross criminal misconduct" and said that "physical abuse of any kind cannot and will not be tolerated" here.

Twenty-two law enforcement officers, all but four of them from the Los Angeles police department, were at the scene as at least three colleagues pummeled King with nightsticks. King suffered multiple injuries, including 11 skull fractures.

Four policemen were charged in the attack, the three who allegedly did the beating and the supervisor who is accused of failing to stop it. The others are still under investigation.

The beating was taped by the resident of a nearby apartment building. The video, shown repeatedly on network television, has prompted a federal investigation and spurred calls for Los Angeles Police Chief Daryl Gates to resign. Gates, 64, has vowed not to quit.

Dallas police spokesman Jim Chandler said Rathburn wrote the letter to share his philosophy on how officers here should conduct themselves. Earlier this month, a copy of the videotape was played for the entire department.

Rathburn also condemned "less overt acts of abuse," noting that "any type of verbal abuse, racial slurs included, cannot and will not be tolerated."

The chief concluded: "Please know that this organization's commitment to basic decency starts at the top, in my office. I pledge to lead by example — to treat everyone with dignity and respect and to be fair and impartial in all my actions. I simply ask that you do the same."

Investigator nips contracts in the bud

HOUSTON (AP) — Gary Johnson has spoken to dozens of people who want to hire him to kill their spouse or business partner. They never want to back out, he says, although he tries to talk them out of it.

Whether they back out or not, he gives a recording of their conversation to his boss — the Harris County district attorney.

A dozen such callers have gone to prison in the past two decades for having such recorded conversations with Johnson, a lieutenant of investigators at the district attorney's office.

Johnson usually gets his clients by referral from area police agencies. Word of someone wanting to find a hit man gets around, and a police undercover officer will put that person in touch with Johnson.

"Ninety percent of the time it's done for money. Usually it's for an insurance collection or control of a business," he said. "They're greedy. Very seldom is it revenge — those people do their own; they can't wait."

By the time they finally meet, usually after several phone calls, Johnson will know precisely what his chances are of getting his latest customer formally charged with the felony crime of soliciting capital murder.

All Johnson needs is money in his palm to file the case, and occasionally he's gotten so tired of waiting that he'll take a sum as paltry as $100. Accepting a trivial sum doesn't shorten the prison term a jury can return.

"By the time people have reached the stage of frustration that they're looking for a hit man, you can't talk them out of it. They're going to do it," Johnson said. "If I don't do it, they'll get somebody else."

"Sometimes I try to talk them out of it, but nobody ever backs out," Johnson said.

"I'm one of the few people on Earth who's found an occupation they really enjoy," the hit-man poseur told the Houston Chronicle. "I look forward to coming to work every day. The day I quit working, I'll die."

Harris County Courthouse, carefully avoiding witnesses, jurors and trial spectators. After all, any of them might someday get angry or greedy enough to ring him up with murder on their mind. It wouldn't do for them to remember seeing him with a badge pinned to his belt.

As unusual as Johnson's job is, so is his office decor. The room features an aquarium filled with plastic skulls.

Five hand-held radios are getting their batteries recharged — three of them in a small storage room crammed with large and small microphones, video cameras, tape recorders and amplifiers and filing cabinets full of "bugging" paraphernalia.

High on another wall is a list of Johnson's "Standard Operating Procedures." They include:

- If you don't want it recorded, don't say it.
- Faith is a tombstone with (your name) written on it.
- Three people can keep a secret (only if two of them are dead).

Funeral director wants drive-thru window

LANCASTER (AP) — A North Texas funeral home owner is taking the lead from such places as California and Florida in his plans for a drive-thru window at his funeral parlor.

Ray Williams is converting a restaurant into a funeral parlor that will allow motorists to view caskets without leaving their vehicles.

"So many people are offended if they have to go inside and be around people, and this is for them," Williams told the Dallas Times Herald. "It will also benefit those who are in a hurry, or elderly people or people in wheelchairs."

House fire kills children

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Three children died and a fourth was critically injured when fire swept through a residential home mentally retarded youngsters, fire officials said.

Officials said two of the victims were 7-year-old boys and the third was a 5-year-old girl.

The names of the victims of Sunday's fire were not released immediately.

A 6-year-old girl was reported in critical condition early today in the burn ward at Brooke Army Medical Center.

Officials said the bodies of the two boys were found inside the one-story house. The 5-year-old girl was pronounced dead at Wilford Hall USAF Medical Center.

There were six children in the home at the time of the fire.

Betty Avant, acting director of Texas Department of Human Services' Child Protective Services office in San Antonio, said the home, named Harbour House, is a private group home for developmentally disabled children who are in the permanent or temporary custody of the state for a variety of reasons.

Iraq denounces cease-fire, more fighting reported

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Opposition groups in Iraq say Saddam Hussein's troops have battled protesters in the streets of Baghdad and that Shiite Muslims had revived their rebellion in the south.

Also on Sunday, Iraq denounced terms set by the United States for a permanent Persian Gulf War cease-fire.

The rebellion in the south, and one in the north by Kurds, began after the U.S.-led allies drove Iraqi troops from Kuwait late last month.

A permanent cease-fire has not been signed yet, and the United States says it will not agree to one unless Iraq destroys all its chemical, biological and nuclear weapons-grade materials under U.N. supervision.

The United States also wants Iraq to pledge that it will never again build such weapons and to turn over part of its oil profits to pay for damages caused by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent war.

Iraq's government daily newspaper Al-Jumhuriya wrote Sunday that the American demands were aimed at "usurping Iraq's sovereignty, mortgaging its will and holding its wealth hostage."

In the face of the fighting at home, Saddam shuffled his Cabinet on Saturday but kept in place his hard-line ministers of interior and defense to direct the crackdown on dissent.

Saddam gave up the job of prime minister but remained as president, and there was no indication he had given up any power.

In a move that appeared an attempt to appease the rebels in the south, Saddam appointed Saadoun Hammadi, a member of Iraq's Shiite majority, as prime minister. Saddam is a member of the Sunni Muslim minority.

But Shiites did not respond to the government changes, and dissident groups said fighting continued over the weekend in the war-battered country — from the south to the north, where Kurds are demanding autonomy.

There also was significant fighting reported in Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

State-run Iranian television quoted an Iraqi refugee, Yasin Khalaf, as saying dozens of people were killed in recent clashes with security forces in the city. The report said Yasin entered Iran on Sunday.

Tehran Radio said other refugees accused the government of attacking protesters with napalm, phosphorous and poison gas.

That report, like those from Iraq, was impossible to confirm. Few reporters have been able to reach the fighting.

Iranian radio quoted an unidentified opposition official as saying several rebel groups were positioned around Baghdad in preparation for an attack.

The Supreme Council of the Islamic Revolution in Iraq said in a statement issued in London that there were reports of loyalist tanks heading north toward Baghdad from Amara, apparently to reinforce troops in the capital, "where heavy fighting is taking place."

The council is an umbrella group for Shiite Muslim dissidents.

Most of the reported fighting was far from the capital, however.

NEAR UM QASR, Iraq — Lt. John Bartlett of Pocatello, Idaho, an interpreter for the 3rd Armored Division, questions a suspected member of the Iraqi secret police while checking a list of known members. The suspect was determined not to be on the list and was released.

Beating puts police in the spotlight

(AP) The videotaped beating of a Los Angeles motorist has put police departments in the spotlight around the nation and prompted a new examination of some old questions:

How common is police brutality? How many officers are punished? Which cities have the most rogue cops?

The answer: It's hard to say.

There are few reliable nationwide figures on police brutality, and an Associated Press survey of selected U.S. cities shows no real pattern in the rate of complaints against police over the past five years.

The most striking thing about the statistics may be how much they vary, suggesting the colossal proportions of the task facing the U.S. Justice Department. The agency was ordered by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh in the wake of the Los Angeles incident to review the use of force by police nationwide.

"There are so darn many variables... I don't think there is a national standard," said Gerald

The FBI does have national statistics on the number of police brutality cases it has handled over the past few years — 2,501 cases in fiscal year 1988, 2,556 in 1989 and 2,427 in 1990. But those represent only a fraction of all complaints.

Williams, police chief of Aurora, Colo. Williams is president of the Police Executive Research Forum, a national organization of police brass.

The FBI does have national statistics on the number of police brutality cases it has handled over the past few years — 2,501 cases in fiscal year 1988, 2,556 in 1989 and 2,427 in 1990.

But those represent only a fraction of all complaints. In general, the FBI gets involved in only the most serious cases.

The figures that are available from local law enforcement agencies for the past five years only prove the futility of jumping to any conclusions about trends in police brutality.

There has been a rising number of complaints by residents of Cincinnati, Honolulu, Chicago, and Rochester, N.Y. There have been fewer complaints in San Francisco and New York. And the number has fluctuated or held steady in Miami; Minneapolis; New Orleans; Pittsburgh; Baltimore; Richmond, Va.; Oklahoma City, and Boise, Idaho.

The Rodney King beating, captured on video by an amateur, instantly made police brutality a national issue, and police beatings elsewhere in the past few weeks have received far more attention than they might have otherwise.

In Columbus, Ohio, the American

Civil Liberties Union said it has been getting double its usual number of complaints about police since the videotape first aired. Atlanta's ACLU said complaints rose from two or three a week to two or three a day after the tape was broadcast.

In some parts of the country, however, police brutality was a high-profile issue before the King incident.

In Miami, violent confrontations between police officers and civilians have been blamed for race riots five times in the last 11 years. The worst occurred in 1980, when the acquittal of five officers in the beating death of a black motorcyclist set off three days of rioting.

Tampa, Fla., was the scene of two days of rioting in 1987 when a black assault suspect died after officers used a controversial chokehold on him.

Two months earlier, New York Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden, who is black, was beaten by Tampa officers during a scuffle.

Colorado is on the verge of passing a law specifically enabling growers to sue when their products are falsely disparaged.

"I'm very serious about this," said state Rep. Steve Acquafresca, a freshman Republican and apple grower from western Colorado whose Disparagement of Perishable Food Products Law has passed the House and Senate.

Newspaper columnists and editorial writers are having a field day with it.

"Don't slam the ham, Sam," some have said. "Don't rap our scallions," others teased.

Gov. Roy Romer, who will be sent the bill if the House agrees to minor modifications the Senate made last week, said he hasn't decided what to do.

"I think there already are laws on the books that would allow civil suits for slander of this type," he said.

But Acquafresca said the law would fulfill a serious need. He said apple growers wrongly lost hundreds of millions of dollars when a consumer group reported two years ago that Alar, a chemical sprayed on apples to improve appearance and increase shelf life, raised the risk of cancer in children.

"Having this statute on the books will encourage food safety critics to get their facts straight."

Although growers contend Alar was never proved dangerous, its maker, the Uniroyal Chemical Co., voluntarily pulled it from the market.

Aurora visible in southern states

Southerners overnight got a rare chance to check out the Northern Lights, a strange, colorful glow in the northern sky also known as the aurora borealis.

"I saw a round, faint red ball that was huge, about the size of the bowl of the Big Dipper," said Bob Nederman, a former president of the Astronomical Society in Kansas City, Mo., who saw the phenomenon while near Parker, Kan.

"At first I thought it was a forest fire. Within five minutes the whole sky was lit up."

National Weather Service offices in Georgia, Alabama and Kentucky received numerous calls Sunday night about the phenomenon, seen as far south as the Gulf of Mexico.

It was also seen farther north, in such states as New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

The Northern Lights can appear in shimmering red, yellow, blue, green or white. They result when atomic particles from the sun meet the Earth's magnetic field, causing gas atoms to glow.

The aurora borealis usually can be seen only near the Arctic Circle. The lights can be visible farther south when large solar flares dump large amounts of the energized particles and they overflow the polar region.

Crackdown on clubs was a success

NEW YORK (AP) — Inspectors had tried to close the Happy Land Social Club for more than a year because it had no fire alarm, no sprinklers and one exit. But their orders were ignored until a fire there killed 87 people.

A year later, authorities say the blaze, which was believed to have set, has spurred a crackdown that has closed nearly 400 clubs.

The result, officials say, is that they can no longer find any social clubs operating in New York City with dangerous fire hazards.

"We're going back but we're not getting any hits," said Harvey Robins, who heads a Social Club Task Force created by Mayor David Dinkins in the aftermath of last year's tragedy. "The task force continues to visit around 60 or so premises each night, but most of them turn out to be closed, as they should be."

Officials say the task force — made up of police officers, firefighters and safety inspectors — is scaling back its activity.

And police will soon be replaced by fire marshals who are armed, empowered to make arrests and trained in crowd control so they can evacuate unsafe clubs.

Robins acknowledged that the city "can never eliminate the potential for tragedy." But he said that unlike what happened with Happy Land, inspectors now visit trouble spots again and again to ensure they don't reopen.

Advocates for the poor say safety has been achieved at the expense of closing many non-profit centers that provided recreation for poor and elderly people but cannot afford fire-safety improvements.

South Carolina enacts burning ban

BENNETTSVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Outdoor burning has been banned in rural areas of South Carolina, where hundreds of forest fires — many started by arsonists and some through carelessness — have blackened thousands of acres.

Since Tuesday 343 fires have charred 3,061 acres, said state Forestry Commission spokesman Ken Cabe. Fire officials said dozens were started by arsonists, but some were the result of careless burning.

The worst of the fires, in Marlboro County in the northeastern corner of the state, had burned more than 2,000 acres and was only about 50 percent under control by late Sunday, officials said.

Cabe said the blaze was moving so quickly that every time firefighters built fire breaks "the fire just swept right across them."

On Sunday, state Forester Jack Gould banned all outdoor burning outside incorporated town or city limits. Violators can be fined up to $100 and imprisoned up to 30 days.

Cabe said dry conditions and high winds were making it difficult to fight the fires.

"If we don't get some rain and we continue to have wind and low humidity, sooner or later we're going to have a bad one," he said.

He said more than 30 fires had been ignited around the state Sunday.

On Saturday, firefighters battled 80 fires, at least half believed started by arsonists. Seventy-six fires were reported on Friday, 51 believed caused by arsonists.

Iacocca asks Bush to limit Japanese share

DETROIT (AP) — Two of the Big Three automakers could go under if the government doesn't restrict Japan to its current share of about one-third of the U.S. auto market, Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca told President Bush.

Bush did not immediately respond to Iacocca's comments, contained in a March 6 letter. But the Treasury Department said the administration believes the U.S. auto industry will be stronger in the long run if competition is kept as open as possible.

The department also said the Japanese have begun voluntarily to reduce some of their exports to the United States. And Treasury officials added that some Japanese automobiles sold in this country are now also built here.

Japanese automakers sold 3.24 million vehicles in the United States last year, 31 percent of the U.S. market.

Without restrictions, Iacocca said, Japanese sales could soon account for 40 percent of the market.

"At a Japanese market share of 40 percent in a depressed industry, Chrysler is gone and Ford could be mortally wounded from a competitive standpoint," he told Bush. "Even (General Motors Corp.) is at risk."

Chrysler spokesman Steve Harris refused to elaborate on the letter, whose contents were disclosed by The Detroit News on Sunday.

"It was a private letter between Mr. Iacocca and the president," Harris said.

Chrysler and Ford are trying to cut $3 billion each from their budgets, while GM is continuing a program that has trimmed $13 billion in costs since 1987.

Chrysler, the Big Three automaker hit hardest by dwindling demand, barely broke even last year. Analysts have said the company could lose up to $280 million this year.

Several weeks ago, Standard & Poor's lowered its credit ratings on much of Chrysler's debt to below investment grade, or junk bond status.

Record number leave military

TOKYO (AP) — Nearly a fifth of the graduating class of Japan's only military university have opted out of the armed forces, reflecting the growing unpopularity of military service since the Persian Gulf crisis.

A record 94 of the 494 students who graduated Sunday from the National Defense Academy in Kanagawa prefecture west of Tokyo decided not to join the armed forces, said an academy official.

official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

University graduates are not required to stay in the armed forces, even though they receive free room and board and a monthly stipend of $600 during their four-year military education.

Thirty-two of the graduates who decided not to join the military said they did not find the option attractive, said the academy official.

Li: Free market to be expanded

BEIJING (AP) — Premier Li Peng told legislators today that the role of the free market will be expanded in China over the next decade, but stressed that state ownership and planning will remain dominant.

"A planned economy and market regulation must and can be combined," Li said. "The question now is not whether we should or are able to combine them, but how well we can combine them."

The economy was the central theme of Li's nearly three-hour speech, which opened the annual session of China's legislature, the National People's Congress. The congress chiefly approves decisions already made by the ruling Communist Party's leadership.

Applause from the more than 2,660 delegates gathered in the Great Hall of the People was typically brief and perfunctory. Li, not a charismatic speaker, read with his head bowed over the text.

Depardieu shunning Oscars

PARIS (AP) — French officials have rallied behind film star Gerard Depardieu, blaming the American media for a scandal surrounding the nominee for the best actor Oscar who is shunning today's Academy Awards.

A spokesman for Depardieu, Claude Davy, said the actor's decision not to attend tonight's ceremony had "nothing to do" with the controversy surrounding an affirmation by the actor that he took part in a rape at age 9.

The remarks, featured in a Time magazine article last month, have been denounced by the National Organization for Women in the United States, which has called for a boycott of Depardieu's films.

On Sunday night, a French woman's group, breaking ranks with the broad-based support by his countrymen, demanded an explanation.

42 dead in bloody township fighting

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — In the bloodiest clash of a weekend in which 45 people were killed in township unrest, police battled several hundred African National Congress demonstrators near a rally by a rival group.

Fourteen protesters and a police sergeant were killed in Sunday's battle in the Johannesburg township of Daveyton. Police said they opened fire on the crowd after being attacked with knives, spears and firebombs.

Police said today an investigation had been ordered into the clash between police and about 200 ANC supporters.

Tax reform damaged IRAs

IRAs (Individual Retirement Accounts) were a good idea that should never have been tampered with. We are glad to see the U.S. Senate is trying hard to undo the damage.

IRAs gave Americans one of the best means ever devised to plan for their futures.

Why, then, did the Congress place restrictions on IRAs in the 1986 tax "reform" legislation? We think that, in seeking ways to close tax loopholes they tried too hard to boost revenue at the expense of economic vitality. Savings boost investments, which in turn boost payrolls and profits, and, ultimately, the amounts paid in taxes. The American economy, involving public and private sectors, is an interlocking system in which gains from one sector are almost always reflected in the other.

The new legislation even adds some improvements. For example, it would allow penalty-free withdrawals from IRA accounts for such things as college educations, enormous medical expenses and down payments on first homes. We think the measure would be good for just about everybody, including the government, and we hope it is passed by Congress.

Census shows ethnic shifts

The figures for the 1990 census are now out, and they have many observers buzzing about the size and significance of changes in the nation's ethnic complexion. We suspect that more analytical dispassion and a greater sense of historical perspective may now be in order.

Let's begin with the changes of the past decade. Non-Hispanic whites continue to be the predominant group, but whereas they were 80 percent of the population 10 years ago, they are now 75 percent. Minorities increased their share from 20 percent to 25 percent, primarily due to shifting immigration patterns. Blacks experienced relatively modest growth; but with 12 percent of the population, they remain the largest minority group. However, Hispanics are catching up rapidly, now constituting 9 percent of the total. The biggest jump during the decade (a doubling) was among Asians, who are now 3 percent of the population. And Native Americans are nearly 1 percent.

All of which is interesting, but this is not the first such shift in the nation's pattern of ethnicity.

While the process of mutual accommodation has never been free of difficulties and setbacks, the transitions have generally been accomplished successfully — and there is no good reason that cannot happen this time as well.

Wearing, burning flags

If there was ever any doubt that a flag can be a potent — even inflammatory — symbol, consider the following: More than 100 white students at a high school in Duncan, S.C., have been suspended for wearing the Confederate flag or protesting the principal's decision to ban it at the school.

A professor at the University of Wisconsin-River Falls burned a small American flag in class to illustrate the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that flag burning is a protected form of speech. A few days later, about 250 students waved flags and sang the national anthem outside the professor's classroom.

Could there be two more graphic lessons in the meaning of the First Amendment, and why attempts to tighten its limits are so often futile? In the South Carolina school, which is 23 percent black, the principal doubtless thought he was doing the right thing by enforcing the school's dress code, which prohibits, among other things, "racially intended or provocative" garments.

The wearing of the Stars and Bars was, at best, insensitive; to many blacks — and to many whites, as well — the Confederate flag represents slavery and bigotry. Even so, the Supreme Court has ruled that such expression, unless it is disruptive, is constitutionally protected. Ditto, the River Falls flag burning.

Sure, you might fault Professor Jeffrey Gerson for choosing an offensive way to make his point; as with the Confederate flag displays, what's permissible isn't always wise.

But the First Amendment wouldn't mean much if it protected only those opinions that everyone agreed with. The best antidote to disagreeable speech is more speech. Gerson's critics made that point well by waving their own flags. We suspect that was the lesson he intended to teach in the first place.

The Milwaukee Journal

Saddam's promises empty

Anyone who believes Saddam Hussein's offer to introduce democratic reforms once the Iraqi rebellion stops would make a good buyer for the Brooklyn Bridge. Any leader of the opposition who believes Hussein would be a good candidate for a cemetery plot.

Back in 1970, the Iraqi strongman visited the top Kurdish rebel leader, Mustafa Barzani, and signed an accord promising Kurdish fighters full autonomy in an effort to stop their open rebellion. Later that year he tried to kill Barzani's son by having his car machine-gunned. Next, Hussein went after Barzani himself.

So the rebels won't stop fighting because of Hussein's promises.

The only slim chance Iraq has for democracy is if the rebels prevail and start creating democratic institutions. That would be a believable first step toward an Iraqi democracy.

Rewriting the Constitution

WASHINGTON — Poor old Constitution! Look at what congressional doctors are proposing. As of March 15, no fewer than 88 resolutions of constitutional amendment had been introduced, and two of them actually have been approved by a subcommittee in the Senate.

Lust, that's what it is — a lust for innovation. By my tally, 24 resolutions would mandate a balanced federal budget. You could trade the whole lot of them for 24 old ticket stubs and a copy of the Congressional Record. Seven would give a president the power of a line-item veto; seven others would punish desecration of the flag; six would deal with abortion; and five would authorize prayer in schools and other public buildings.

That is only the beginning. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., have resurrected the old proposal to say that equal rights under the law — whatever that means — shall not be denied on account of sex. That particular turkey flopped around for 10 years before it collapsed in 1982.

Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., and Rep. Alan Wheat, D-Mo., would perform major surgery on Article II. They would abolish the whole system of presidential election through state electors. They would provide for direct election by the people.

Several resolutions deal with the sensitive matter of congressional salaries. Rep. Robert Lagomarsino, R-Calif., would delay any increase in the members' pay until after an intervening election to the House. This is not exactly an innovation. The same amendment was approved by Congress in 1789. It failed.

Time has come to make the picture right

By BETTY JOHANSEN

Birds fly south for the winter. Salmon swim upstream to spawn. And siblings fight.

One summer day my nephew asked me, "Would you take me swimming tomorrow and not take (my sister)?" The question agitated me more than a little and, to make a long lecture short, I told him no.

I don't understand sibling rivalry. The fact I rivaled relentlessly with my own brother is no help. I didn't fight with him just because he was there. No, I fought with him because he was a brat, and he drove me crazy. (Fortunately, he doesn't get equal time.)

But in the case of sibling rivalry, proximity is always adequate provocation for a confrontation. Proximity, that is, and the hope of influencing some important adult. My first real insight into the subject came the first night I babysat my nephew (then 2½ years old) and niece (then 6 months old) together. They climbed all over me all evening, both demanding my full attention.

From some book I read on the subject once, I took this note: "Sibling rivalry has two goals: 1. Make self look better (get more attention, more approval) and 2. Make sibs look bad."

It's very interesting, I think, how perfectly that analysis applies to the church. I know it does because I spent many years of my life trying to figure out how I could get God to love me more than He loved everybody else. And it's a rare church that doesn't think God loves "our denomination" a little better than He loves all "those others."

It was an important day for me when I realized nothing I could do ed to win ratification at the time, but the proposal is still actively pending. Thirty-two states reportedly have ratified, leaving only four to go before we could have a merry time in the federal courts.

Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., has introduced a cryptic resolution. Its purpose is "to repeal Clause 11, of Section 8, of Article I of the Constitution." That is all it says. By my count, Clause 11 is the clause that permits Congress to declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water.

And thinking of repeal resolutions: Republican Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan wants to get rid of the 22nd Amendment altogether. This is the amendment that limits a president to two terms.

On the matter of term limitation: Half a dozen resolutions are in the hopper. One would limit a president to six years with no chance to seek a second term. Another would limit members of the House to three terms of four years. Rep. Phil Crane, R-Ill., would amend the Constitution to say that no person could be elected to the Senate more than once. The Crane amendment's chances in the Senate are not regarded as especially hot.

Rep. Jack Fields, R-Texas, would require that federal judges be reconfirmed by the Senate every 10 years. Rep. James Sensenbrenner, R-Wis., would cut through the red tape of impeachment by authorizing the U.S. Supreme Court to remove a judge for cause.

Some other notable resolutions are kicking around. Rep. William Dickinson, R-Ala., would write into the Constitution an amendment requiring that only the English language could be used for official proceedings. Rep. Bill Emerson, R-Mo., has a proposal that requires a little syntactical attention. He would prohibit "compelling the attendance of a student in a public school other than the public school nearest the residence of such student."

There are lots more. One proposal deals with presidential pardons (these could be granted only after conviction). Another resolution would require the government to guarantee everyone a job. Several proposals deal with financing congressional elections.

Thus far, only two proposals of constitutional amendment have gone anywhere. A Senate subcommittee has reported two proposals to mandate a balanced budget, one from Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., the other from Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa. During the last Congress, the Senate Judiciary Committee approved a similar resolution of ~~foolishness and folly~~.

The resolution never made it to the floor. A couple of old conservative principles apply. One of them teaches us that if it is not necessary to amend the Constitution, it is necessary not to amend the Constitution. The other is to the same effect: If it ain't broke, don't fix it.

Champ is out of his league

The Holyfield v. Holyfield divorce bout gets better and better every day if you like a good divorce squabble like I do.

I first became interested in messy divorces when I began making it a habit of going through one every seven or eight years myself.

None of my divorces ever cost me what Evander Holyfield's will cost him, if and when it finally happens.

The paper ran a story on the heavyweight champ and his estranged wife recently, and get this, sports fans:

Wife Paulette's lawyer says their old divorce settlement, which put $4 million in her corner, is void now because she and her husband had sexual relations.

"Under the law," the attorney explained, "parties who have filed for divorce and have sexual relations, or do what they call cohabitate, then it legally puts an end to the divorce. Then, if the parties want to (divorce) they have to start from scratch."

It just gets juicier. Paulette Holyfield went to visit her husband in Houston, and that's when the fooling around allegedly took place.

But the champ says it was a clever hoax on his wife's part so that the old agreement would not be valid any more and she would go for a settlement calling for even more than the paltry $4 million.

"I know this was a setup . . ."

said the champ. Ah, the wily female. Ever since the Holyfields' initial split, it's been, what's going to happen next?

Evander's lawyer up and quit him. Then, Paulette's quit her because they said she refused to pay them $74,000 in unpaid fees.

And now they're going to have to start over again? Obviously Paulette's no dummy. The $4 million, the house and the two late model luxury cars she got in the first agreement were nice, but think about this: Evander is going to bring home $20 million for his fight with George Foreman, and as I've heard many a wife say in many a lawyer's office, "How much of that do I get?"

The going rate seems to be half as in, "Half of that is mine. I deserve at least half for all I've done for you," and "Either you give me my half or I'll tell my lawyer to go for it all."

What's a man to do?

I lost a real nice stereo in a divorce. Another wife got my dog. I gave another the house, a car and some cash, but she let me keep my clothes. All I can say to the champ is, "You're going to lose this fight. When it comes to divorce settlements, wives are pretty much undefeated and most of them go for the knockout."

This time, pal, you're Buster Douglas.

Couple's breakup may be a blessing

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a financially stable 25-year-old man, and the young lady I have been seeing for almost a year is a 20-year-old college student. We are very much in love — not superficially, but deeply. She is a very mature and unique human being with a strong love for her family.

The problem: religion. Her parents object to me because they do not want their Catholic daughter involved with a Protestant man. Her father dislikes me intensely because of my faith, and doesn't even want to get to know me as a person.

I had no intentions of trying to convert their daughter. I happen to love her and she says she loves me, but she has decided to end our relationship because she can't handle the turmoil and controversy it's creating between her and her parents.

What should I do? — DEEPLY HURT IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR HURT: Thank God for your good fortune! Had you been able to persuade this mature, unique human being with a strong love for her family to choose you instead of her family, your chances for a happy, lasting marriage would have been small.

Either she didn't love you enough — or the "little girl" in her still desperately needed parental approval. I think you lucked out.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns a problem I have never seen in your column. What do you do when a man you have hired to do some construction work in your home asks to use your bathroom?

I can't stand the idea of strangers using my bathroom, but I don't know how to deal with it.

Recently, I had two men here laying carpet. One man asked to use the bathroom, and what could I say? I have asked my friends how they deal with it, and they all have said, "I don't like it either, but what can you do?"

My dad was an electrician, and he said he would never ask to use a customer's bathroom. When he would drive to a new customer's house, he would look the area over and locate the nearest gas station, and if he needed to use the facilities while working, he would tell the customer he had to return to the shop to pick up a tool or something, but he wouldn't charge them for the time he was gone.

Maybe employers should tell their people to follow that example. How would you handle it, Abby? — A READER, ARVADA, COLO.

DEAR READER: One's need to use "the facilities" is essential. So I could not find it in my heart to deny anyone that necessity. There are many disinfectants available for bathrooms that should be used daily, so an occasional workman should present no problem.

I dealt with the problem five years ago when a reader waxed poetic by responding:

"Dear Abby: "That housewife who begrudged her latrine

"Is the stingiest I've ever seen. "She deserves some compunction

"And a bladder dysfunction "Then she might be less high and pristine

"— Sylvia Swain Rummel, Fulton, Mo."

Right on, Sylvia!

DEAR ABBY: I am an 88-year-old woman, and although I have read your column for years, this is my first time to write you a letter, but now I must.

On a cold Friday evening before Christmas, I went grocery shopping.

I took a pie out of the freezer, then I carried it to the cashier and asked her how much it was because it wasn't marked and it was the only one of its kind in the freezer. After I learned the price, I put the pie back in the freezer because I thought I should not be eating too many sweets.

As I turned and started up the aisle, a tall, elderly gentleman approached me and handed me a folded $20 bill. He smiled and said, "Now, please go back and get that pie." Then he walked down the aisle and out the door!

I was so shocked, I couldn't utter a word. He must have been near the checkout stand and heard me ask how much the pie was, and when he saw me put it back in the freezer he thought I couldn't afford to buy it.

Abby, that's one of the nicest things that has ever happened to me. — A LITTLE OLD LADY IN LITTLE ROCK

DEAR LADY: And yours is one of the nicest letters I've ever received. Today, when we hear so much about man's inhumanity to man, learning about an anonymous kindness does the heart good. Thank you for sharing it with me so that I may share it with others.

Howard College to host one-act plays

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
 Staff Writer

Howard College will host the University Interscholastic League One-Act Play district contest at the Big Spring High School auditorium, Tuesday, beginning at 2 p.m. Admission is free, but the audience will be required to stay in the auditorium throughout the 40 minute performances, as a courtesy to the players. Two plays will be selected to advance to area competition.

Big Spring High School theater department's play, "The Crucible," advanced to the district competition, along with Sweetwater, Fort Stockton and Monahans. Tim Haynes, theater teacher at BSHS, said two schools from four in the West Zone in the District 3-AAAA division were selected to advance to district. Lakeview and Andrews were not chosen.

Individual awards were given to six BSHS students. Best Actor was awarded to John Paul Stevenson. Marci Weaver and Sunny Fraser were chosen for the All-Star Cast. Honorable mention for the All-Star Cast went to J.P. Shanks, Jason LeGrande and Brandy Bedell.

Fort Stockton will perform "The Caucasian Chalk Circle," Monahans will present "The Diary of Anne Frank," and Sweetwater students are performing the play, "Who's Life is it Anyway?" COAHOMA ADVANCES TO DISTRICT
 Coahoma's U.I.L. play, scenes from "The Trojan Women," also advanced out of the District 6-AA North Zone, and the cast and crew will travel to McCamey Tuesday, to compete against Ozona, Iraann, and Wall.

Blaine Buchenau, theater teacher in Coahoma, said five students won individual awards for their performances in the zone contest. Best Actress was awarded to Denise Walker and Best Actor was awarded to Cody Wells. David Scott and Stephanie Mauch were named to the All-Star Cast, and Leah Mathison was named Honorable Mention for the All-Star Cast.

Ozona will perform scenes from "Curious Savage," Iraan will present scenes from "Harvey," and Wall will perform "The Little Match Girl."

 more than $600,000 in the next four years under the plan, reducing money per student from $8,257 to $5,829 after raising its tax rate 70 percent, according to figures provided by the Texas Education Agency.
 Thomas said he is worried that the district may not be able to raise more money next year under the plan than it did this year. That would be a problem because one quarter of the district's $2 million budget this year was taken from savings, which are almost depleted.

"If we don't have access to more money, then we're in trouble," he said. Officials he has checked with in Austin do not know if the bill would allow them to raise the needed funds next year. "There's too many unknowns right now," he said.
 Slated to lose $2.2 million in the next four years is Forsan ISD, which would have funding per student reduced from $6,720 to $5,248 if their tax rate is dropped 11 percent.

Forsan ISD Superintendent J.F. Poynor said it will be detrimental but the district could still operate. It could be worse if the courts devised a plan, he said, citing the same reasons as Fraser. "I'm in favor of the Legislature handling it," he said.

According to the bill, taxes would be set at a minimum of 60 cents per $100 valuation next year and increase to 90 cents by 1995. School districts could tax another 25 cents for enrichment and 20 cents for construction but the funds would be shared equally with other districts. Another 35 cents can be added, which would not be shared, for enrichment at the local level.

Fraser said he wanted local enrichment to begin at a tax rate of $1.10 instead of $1.15. He also wanted a transportation allotment added to the bill.
 He said he was happy that other provisions for small schools that he supported were included.

 relatives and celebratory bursts of machine-gun fire.

Since Kuwait was liberated on Feb. 27, some U.S. forces have begun helping the Kuwaitis rebuild their nation. Other American soldiers are occupying part of southern Iraq, where they are keeping an eye on Saddam Hussein's troops.

Schwartzkopf said the soldiers are not expected to remain in Iraq after a permanent cease-fire. But a permanent truce has been complicated by the rebellions by Kurds in northern Iraq and Shiite Muslims in the country's south.
 Schwartzkopf said U.S. logistics troops could be in the gulf as long as eight to 10 months to help load up equipment, but that the vast majority of soldiers will be home before then.

Nearly 100,000 of the 540,000 American troops sent to the gulf in Operation Desert Shield have departed, the Central Command

Those include adjustments for small-sparse school districts and districts which are necessary because of isolation and a hold-harmless clause to prevent districts, such as Borden County ISD, from losing money the first year if their tax rates increase or remain the same. The small-sparse adjustment would funnel state funds into all five area school districts which would lose funding. Districts in this area which would lose money include:

- Garden City ISD, which would lose $1.6 million over four years. Spending per student would drop from $6,459 to $5,312 over four years with its tax rate increasing 25 percent.
- Grady ISD, which would lose $1.6 million over four years, decreasing per student spending from $7,778 to $4,855 after a 17 percent drop in its tax rate.
- Westbrook ISD, which would lose $1.6 million in four years, decreasing per student spending from $6,818 to $4,814 after a 32 percent increase in its tax rate.
- Those gaining money include:
 • Big Spring ISD, which would gain $2.4 million over four years, increasing per student spending from $3,554 to $3,754 after a 4 percent drop in its tax rate.
 • Coahoma ISD, which would lose $79,000 over four years if the tax rate dropped 10 percent. However, CISD would gain funds by 1995. Per-student spending would increase from $5,177 to $5,425.
 • Martin County ISD, which would gain $1.2 million over four years, increasing per-student spending from $5,100 to $5,700 after an 11 percent tax rate decrease.
 • Mitchell County ISD, which would gain $1.3 million over four years, increasing per student spending from $3,958 to $4,247 after a 2 percent increase in the tax rate.
 • Loraine ISD, which would gain $1.2 million over four years, increasing per student spending from $5,194 to $7,071 after a six percent increase in the tax rate.

says.
 The command, now based in Riyadh, plans to return soon to its headquarters in Tampa, Fla. But Schwartzkopf said Sunday: "There's a possibility we will be moving a forward headquarters element of Central Command - not the entirety - someplace over here on the gulf."
 "But there's an awful lot of negotiations that have to go on, the locations have to be accepted and all the arrangements have to be made - we're certainly much closer to that now than we've ever been before."

The Washington Post, meanwhile, reported in today's editions that U.S. Army troops have driven deeper into Iraq. It said heavy armored units drove 60 miles north to the Euphrates River valley over the weekend in a major repositioning apparently aimed at intimidating Saddam.

Ferguson unveils funding plan

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
 Staff Writer

City Secretary Tom Ferguson has unveiled a plan to enlist citizen support for special projects in the community. He said he is hopeful that local pride will encourage people to participate.

Under the new plan, by "rounding up" water bill payments to the nearest dollar, or adding a donation onto the bill payment, citizens will be able to contribute to a fund for projects. At first, money collected will go towards renovations at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

The center is badly in need of roof repairs as well as heating and cooling systems and interior work. The Parks and Recreation Board recently appointed a committee to study the renovation plan, and study of what is needed is currently underway.

Ferguson said citizen contributions would be placed into a designated account in the hotel-motel tax fund.
 "Several other cities are doing this," he said, explaining that he learned of the idea at a recent seminar. "I thought it sounded like something we could try here."
 Requests will be printed on the back of all city water bills mailed to residents. Ferguson said he may start the new program with the next mailing.

The largest variable in the project, the amount of money citizens will actually contribute, is impossible to estimate, Ferguson said.
 "There's just no way to know how much we would get," he said. "I'm hoping to keep... (local media) updated on the donations as we go, so we can see how it works."

He said he expects the community center project to take a year or two to fund and complete. If it is successful, the city may utilize the program to fund other projects.
 "I even thought if we don't know what we want to use it for, we could ask people to call in with ideas," Ferguson said.

In a memo to the City Council, Ferguson says "a tangible result should be realized as soon as possible" to keep the project working. People should "see" where their money is going, he explained.
 A presentation about the plan appears on the agenda for Tuesday's council meeting, although Ferguson said implementation does not require the group's approval.
 "I'm hoping to get their comments," he said. "If they object, we might take another look at it."
 Council member Gail Earls, who lists the parks board as one of her strong interests, said the plan "sounds like an excellent idea."

"I know Tom (Ferguson) said most of the other communities (who have implemented the plan), have not had any problem with getting the money," Earls said. "I know I would prefer (donating) that way... It's your choice how much you give."

Assistant City Manager Tom Decell said the plan presents an opportunity for people to donate whatever they can afford. If every person with a water connection in the city added only 50 cents, for example, Decell said the total would be about $4,500.

He said the project is one of many that could boost the quality of life in our community.
 Earls said it represents a commitment to cleaning up Big Spring. "You know, if you drive through town right now, you'll see people painting their houses and doing something to clean up their area," Earls said. "The more we stress cleaning up your area, the more people will do that." The community center project uses the same idea on a city-wide scale, she added.

Decell said he expects a report by the end of this month from architects and engineers on exactly what is needed at the center.

County employee asks for supervisory job

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
 Staff Writer

Howard County Commissioners Court this morning decided to continue a discussion this afternoon concerning a complaint by an employee in the road and bridge department who wanted to be considered for a vacant supervisory job.

J.C. Fortenberry, of the International Union of Operation Engineers Local 826, addressed the Court saying that he wanted to make sure the employee, Robert Ramirez, was not being denied the position because he is a minority.
 County Engineer Bill Mims said that three supervisory positions have been left vacant since 1989 because current employees have enough experience that they do not need extra supervision.

Ramirez was scheduled to meet with the Court at 1 p.m.
 "That's a lot of supervisor positions to be done away with in such a short time," Fortenberry said. "It seems to me that you need a lead person or someone out there helping out."

But, Mims said, the supervisory positions were needed at one time because a group of new employees lacking experience were hired at about the same time. Now they have the experience to do their job without tight supervision.
 "They don't need someone supervising them all the time," he said.
 Upon questioning by commissioners, Mims said that a grader operator coordinates road construction activities but does not act in the capacity of a supervisor. A grader operator makes $262 a year less than Ramirez, who earns $23,085 a year as a loader operator.

Mims also said that there were three or four other employees with more seniority than Ramirez who would apply for a supervisory position if it were to be filled. "We've always gone by seniority," he said.
 Fortenberry said Ramirez "felt like no one wanted those jobs down to him."
 "I don't want to see a man stopped just because he's a minority person," Fortenberry said. "It looks like that could possibly be part of the cause."

The two supervisors in the 30 employee department are not minorities, Mims answered when asked by Fortenberry.

Deaths

Zebbie Sumpter

Zebbie M. Sumpter, 83, Big Spring, died Saturday, March 23, 1991, at a local hospital after a lengthy illness.

Services are 11 a.m. Tuesday at Myers & Smith Chapel with the Rev. Tim Thornton, associate pastor of First Baptist Church in Big Spring, officiating, and assisted by the Rev.  The Steers will compete in the San Angelo Relays Friday and Saturday.

Netters fare well in Carlsbad

CARLSBAD, N.M. — The Big Spring High School tennis teams competed in the Carlsbad tennis tournament over the weekend and the Steers won the tournament while the Lady Steers finished fourth.
 Finishing second behind Big Spring was Carlsbad, N.M. Odessa Permian was third. Permian won the girls team title, finishing ahead of Andrews and Carlsbad.
 The Big Spring boys got three first places in singles play. Rocky Tbb won the battle of No. 1 seeds; Chris Ficke won the fourth seed and Robert Lee won the fifth seed.
 The Lady Steers were led by second place finishes from No. 1 girls doubles team Kristen Sevey and E.D. Barnett and No. 3 doubles team of Danane Moore and Jana Haney. Also Sevey, Melena Martinez and Brandy Willis finished third in their respective singles divisions.
 Steers coach Don Lawrence called it the team's best tournament of the year. "The first day I thought we played exceptionally well, the second day we didn't play nearly as well," said Lawrence. "The girls played Andrews head-to-head six times and we won four matches, and they beat us. So you can see the draw pretty well harmed us. But I thought the guys played exceptional and the girls played good."
 Big Spring will compete in the Lubbock Open Friday and Saturday.

ACC teams make it to Final Four

NC survives Macon and Temple

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Mark Macon has a habit of saying 'Good' whenever he takes a shot that he believes is going in.
 The four-year starter said he said it on the final shot on his Temple career, but this one fell just short, ending Temple's bid for a Final Four berth from the 10th seeding position in the East Regional.
 Macon scored 31 points and went 12-for-23 from the field in Temple's 75-72 loss to top-seeded North Carolina on Sunday.
 After King Rice's two free throws with eight seconds left gave the Tar Heels a three-point lead, Macon drove downcourt while guarded by North Carolina's best all-around player, Rick Fox.
 "I've never guarded anyone other than Rodney Monroe that has so much confidence in his shot," Fox said. "He's definitely one of the best shooting guards in the country."
 "They wanted to stop me or slow me down, but I made a spin move to free myself," Macon said. "My body went one way and they went the other. I thought it was going in."
 "It was amazing that he would say, 'Good,' and whenever he said it, the ball would go in," Rice said.
 Fox said he didn't hear Macon say his final shot was good, although the Tar Heels' Hubert Davis said, "I thought it was going in. I had a clear view and it was dead on line."
 Fox said his greatest fear in the final seconds was fouling Macon while he took a 3-point shot.
 "From 15 feet away, he was going to make them," Fox said.
 Macon, voted the most outstanding player in the regional despite the defeat, shared a tearful farewell with Temple coach John Chaney in the locker room.

 "It's a dream of every coach to make the Final Four," Chaney said. Then his voice broke as he added, "I wanted the players to get there, especially Mark, because he was a special player. He meant so much to so many people. I'm a little selfish because I hate to see him leave. I wish every coach could have a young man like him."

 "The last four years have been the best of my life," Macon said. "I cried, but tears didn't fall. It was a cry of happiness because I gave my all and my name is with something that can always be cherished, and something that I'll never have to give back."
 "I can't imagine playing basketball without him," teammate Mik

Kilgore said. "You have to let him go his way and welcome the next group of people who come."
 Chaney said his team, trying to become the second double-digit seed to reach the Final Four, came together as a group during the tournament.
 "Basketball has a lot of individual skills like shooting and dribbling," Chaney said. "But things like passing and defense are what you do as a team."

 Temple (24-10) defeated Purdue, Richmond and third-seeded Oklahoma State to reach the final eight for the second time in Chaney's nine-year career.
 "To get as far as we did required a special feeling for each other," Chaney said.

Blue Devils earn fourth straight trip with impressive win

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Bobby Hurley, wretched and retching in last year's Final Four, is ready to show America what a healthy Hurley can do.
 And the Duke Blue Devils, who have set standards for NCAA tournament excellence — and Final Four failure — are ready to show America's best team what they can do with a poised, prepared and peppy point guard.
 "Last year Bobby wasn't there for us and that really hurt," Duke's Brian Davis said. "This year, he's always been there and he's very excited about having another chance against UNLV. He's a better player and he proved that (Sunday). Bobby had the best game of his career."

 Hurley led Duke in points (20), rebounds (seven), assists (four) and steals (four) and committed only one turnover in 36 minutes in a 78-61 victory over St. John's for the Midwest Regional championship.
 The sixth-ranked Blue Devils (30-7) are back in the Final Four for the fourth straight season, earning another shot at top-ranked and unbeaten UNLV — which embarrassed Duke 103-73 in last year's title game.
 Hurley, then a flu-stricken freshman, scored only two points in that game. Now one of the nation's super sophomores, he's hoping to make UNLV sick.

 "Last year, I was overwhelmed. I couldn't swallow much. I was taking medication that inflamed my stomach," Hurley said.
 "I'm in much better shape this year. I'm not rundown. I took care of myself. I've been to the Final Four. Now I want to go out and win it."
 Davis, one of Duke's leaders, said a victory over UNLV in Saturday's national semifinals in Indianapolis shouldn't be considered miraculous.
 Duke took a 40-27 halftime lead with outstanding defensive play and on Hurley's 3-point shooting (4-for-5) and court leadership. And the Redmen never threatened. Duke is 28-0 when leading at halftime.

 "We played them both last year and this year," said Lou Carnesecca, whose Redmen led most of the way before losing 76-72 in last year's second round. "They are better than last year. They are quicker."
 "They've always been known for their defense, but they get you with their offense. They spread you out, they break you down, they get you one-on-one and they get you into foul trouble."

 His point guard, Jason Buchanon, was hounded by Hurley both offensively and defensively and spent most of the first half on the bench after getting three quick fouls. Center Robert Werdann played only 12 minutes because of a pulled calf muscle. And leading scorer Malik Sealy missed six of nine shots and committed two turnovers in the first half.
 St. John's committed 26 turnovers and Duke set a regional final record with 17 steals.
 And with Werdann out of the game, 6-foot-11 Christian Laettner dominated, scoring 19 points.

World League of American Football draws appreciative foreign crowds

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — The European report card for the first weekend of the World League of American Football reads like that of a typical first-grader: Good ideas. Shows potential. Needs improvement.
 From a crowd of 23,169 on a crystal clear Saturday night in Frankfurt, Germany, to a drenched assemblage of 19,223 in Barcelona, the one consistent thing about the WLAFF was its fans — loud, gung-ho and ready to learn.
 They gave a standing ovation to fireworks and cheerleaders as the London Monarchs defeated the Frankfurt Galaxy 24-11 in Saturday's debut of the 10-team league.
 They ignored torrential rain to chant fight songs and wave Catalonian flags in Barcelona as the Dragons defeated the New York-New Jersey Knights 19-7 in pro football's first trans-Atlantic game on Sunday.
 And, most of all, they had fun — even if they didn't always know exactly what they were watching.
 "It seemed just like a college game," said Jack Bicknell, former Boston College coach and now the Dragons' mentor. "The crowd seemed to learn as the game went on. It sounded just like in the States. And then they started singing, and that was exciting."
 Fans yelled "Ole!" at good plays and spurred on their team with cheers of "Vamos!" Spanish for "Let's Go!"
 "I thought it was great, I felt like a little kid," said Barcelona defensive end Bruce Clark, 32, a veteran of eight NFL seasons. "I haven't had that much fun in a long time."
 While the fans, cheerleaders and pep bands gave the games a college atmosphere, the players performed on a variety of levels.
 The league's very first play, in Frankfurt, resulted in an offensive penalty for illegal movement. And that game needed nine series to produce the WLAFF's initial first down. The teams then settled down to a level similar to that of small-college football.

Despite the rain, the level of play was higher in Barcelona. Quarterback Scott Erney put on an excellent show for the Dragons, completing 9 of 18 passes for 122 yards. ● Football page 2-B

Ammaccapane garners first LPGA tour victory

PHOENIX (AP) — Not even a sore wrist could keep Danielle Ammaccapane from her first LPGA victory.
 Ammaccapane shot a 4-under-par 69 Sunday to win the Standard Register-PING tournament by two strokes over Barb Bunkowsky and Meg Mallon.
 The previous best finish for Ammaccapane, a Phoenix native and former Arizona State standout, was two second-place ties last year.
 She tapped in a one-foot putt on the 18th hole, pumped her right fist in victory and then choked back tears as she was hugged by family members on the green.
 The 25-year-old Ammaccapane jammed her left wrist two weeks ago and played all week here with it wrapped for extra support.

 Ammaccapane, who started the day with a one-shot lead over Bunkowsky, Michelle McGann and Colleen Walker, finished the $550,000 tourney with a 9-under 283 total and won $82,500.
 Mallon and Bunkowsky each took home $44,000. Walker was alone in fourth place at 288 and got $28,875.
 Mallon, who won the Oldsmobile LPGA Classic on Feb. 3 for her first tour victory in five seasons, carded a final-round 67.
 Bunkowsky, whose lone victory of her nine-year career came at the 1984 Chrysler-Plymouth Charity Classic, shot 70 Sunday.

Rodriguez Vintage winner

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (AP) — Two victories in the California desert have sent Chi Chi Rodriguez to the top of the PGA Seniors money list.
 His 15-foot birdie putt from just off the green on the final hole gave him a one-stroke victory Sunday in the Vintage Invitational and $229,169 in season earnings.
 Rodriguez collected $75,000 from a $500,000 purse on the strength of a final-round 3-under-par 69 at the 6,800-yard Vintage Country Club. Three weeks earlier, he won the Senior Tour event at Ojai.
 The shot kept him out of a sudden-death playoff with Don January and Mike Hill, who were already in the clubhouse with 2075. Hill closed with a 68, January with a 67.
 Bob Charles, who shot 70, tied

Seniors
 Gibby Gilbert (69), Bobby Nichols (68), Terry Dill (72) and Jimmy Powell (72) for fourth. They finished at 209.
 Dill and Powell entered the final round tied with Rodriguez at 7-under.
 Rodriguez saved par on the par-3 17th after his tee shot went into the back bunker. His sand shot stopped within three feet of the hole.
 Rodriguez played a bogey-free final round, making three birdies. "Ten pars in a row gets boring," he said, referring to the fifth through 14th holes. "I kept plugging and plugging and it happened at 15."
 Rodriguez knocked his third shot, a sand wedge, within 10 feet of the hole on the par-5, 526-yard 15th.

Runnels tracksters win Snyder meet

SNYDER — The Runnels Yearlings tracksters won the 400 and 1600 meter relays, propelling the Yearlings to the team championship at the Snyder track meet Saturday.

The 400 meter relay team of Michael Vanderbilt, Dustin Waters, Joe Franklin and Donald Vanderbilt ran a 48.93 to win first. The 1600 relay team of Donald Vanderbilt, Michael Sizenbach, Franklin and Waters ran a winning time of 3:51.00.

A double winner for the Yearlings was Timmy Rigdon who won the 110 hurdles (17.1) and 300 hurdles (45.18). Other first place winners were Franklin in the 400 (55.9), Mario Cavazos in the shot put (41-4) and Frankie Martinez in the high jump (5-4).

Howard cowgirls finish fourth

ODESSA — The Howard College rodeo team started the spring season by competing in the Odessa College rodeo which concluded Sunday.

The Howard women finished fourth, scoring 88 points. Texas Tech women won the rodeo with 200 points, followed by Vernon Regional Junior College with 190 and Odessa College with 135.

Leading the HC women was Jody Heath who was second in the short go barrel racing, and second in the average. Julie Driver split third and fourth in the short go goat tying, and was fourth in the average. Jamie Beam was third in the long go in the barrel race.

Odessa College won the men's division, scoring 335 points. Tarleton State University was second with 220 and New Mexico Junior College was third with 180 points.

Scoring for Howard was Juan Flores, who was fourth in the short go and fourth in the average in calf roping. Shane Criswell was first in the long go of saddle bronc riding, and Shawn Miller was third in the long go of the steer wrestling.

Howard will be off this week and then will host the Howard College Rodeo April 4-7 at the Howard County Rodeo Bowl.

AL needs managers to coach teams

The American Little League needs three managers for Pee Wee teams and maybe two managers for Minor League teams.

Pee Wee is for youth ages 6-8 and Minor League is 9-12. The teams can't be assigned until they have managers, and managers are needed by Thursday.

For more information call Richard Wright at 263-8781 before 5 p.m., or come by the American Little League field, located just east of Howard College, after 5 p.m.

Miller heads All-Decade team

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — Cheryl Miller of Southern California was selected as the captain of an all-decade women's NCAA basketball team announced Monday to celebrate 10 years of the women's championships.

Louisiana Tech placed two players on the team, Janice Lawrence and Teresa Weatherspoon.

Also picked for the honor squad were Clarissa Davis of the University of Texas and Bridgette Gordon of Tennessee.

The team was selected by a panel of media and former and current members of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee.

Selection criteria required that the player have played in a Women's Final Four.

Miller was named to the all-tournament team in the three years she played in the Final Four — 1983, 1984 and 1986 — and was the only player voted the championship's most outstanding player twice, in 1983 and '84.

Rangers drop five players

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) — The Texas Rangers dropped five players from major league spring training camp and added another.

Outfielder Kevin Belcher, infielder Monty Farris and catcher Bill Haselman were optioned to the Rangers' Triple A team at Oklahoma City. Pitcher Gary Mielke was reassigned to the minor league camp.

Rested Magic leads Lakers

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Magic Johnson, who sat out the Los Angeles Lakers' last game with tendinitis in both knees, made the most of the extra rest.

He scored 14 of his 33 points in the third quarter Sunday night and added 11 assists as Los Angeles beat the Seattle SuperSonics 113-96.

Johnson, who missed Friday night's home loss to Milwaukee, had a 3-pointer, two free throws and a dunk during a 14-4 run to extend the Lakers' eight-point halftime lead to 74-56 midway through the third quarter.

"Magic just took care of business tonight," Seattle coach K.C. Jones said. "He was leading the break, passing and rebounding. When he is playing like that, the Lakers are hard to stop. He rested a couple of days, came in and did just what he always does. He took over the game."

Johnson spent some time alleviating the soreness in his knees with weightlifting exercises and electro-massage.

"The whole thing is to just go out and do my job, whether it's 30, 35, 38 or 40 minutes," Johnson said. "I can't dictate what's going to happen because we're in a race. You push yourself no matter what and go out and play. The longer you go, the looser you get and the better it feels. I had to maintain the tempo of the game, and that was a key for us."

The Lakers remained one game behind Portland in the NBA's Pacific Division.

In other games Sunday, it was San Antonio 85, Detroit 78 and Portland 117, Charlotte 102.

Shawn Kemp scored 21 points for the Sonics, who have lost six of eight games. The defeat was Seattle's 10th straight regular-season loss at the Forum.

Sedale Threatt of the Sonics was ejected with 3:23 left in the third period after punching James Worthy under the chin. Worthy made the technical free throw and added a short jumper to give the Lakers an 82-64 lead.

Threatt said Worthy's aggressive play provoked him.

"I was in front of him and we were holding each other," Threatt said. "Then he threw elbows in my ribs. I don't play dirty, but when you poke me in the ribs like that, I'm going to come at you."

The Lakers took their biggest lead at 89-68 with 54 seconds left in the period on A.C. Green's jumper. Seattle never got closer than 13 points thereafter.

Johnson and Worthy paced Los Angeles to a 54-46 halftime lead with 14 points each. The Sonics, who never led, tied it at 36 on a slam by Michael Cage with 6:26 left in the second quarter.

But the Lakers responded with a 16-6 run, highlighted by Byron Scott's 3-pointer, to take a 52-42 lead with 37 seconds left before halftime.

Seattle center Benoit Benjamin had just 11 points after scoring a season-high 28 in his previous game against the Lakers.

"He's a big body," Lakers coach Mike Dunleavy said. "And if he gets the ball enough, he's going to score some points."

Bucs trying to sign Bonilla

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The agent for Bobby Bonilla said the Pittsburgh Pirates are not serious about signing the slugging outfielder.

But the Pirates said they plan to discuss a possible long-term contract with the right fielder's representative, perhaps as early as today.

"If he's got an offer to make, he has my home number, he has my office number," agent Dennis Gilbert said Sunday. "Let him call and make it me and I'll respond accordingly."

Bonilla, who has played for the National League in each of the past three All-Star games, is eligible to become a free agent at the end of the season.

Football

He threw a 43-yard touchdown to Gene Taylor and ran 6 yards for another score.

The league still has a lot of glitches to overcome in Europe — the game clock operators need training, the end zones in Barcelona are only seven yards long instead of 10 and the system by which coaches speak to quarterbacks via walkie-talkies and special helmets has yet to work properly.

Maybe everyone can learn from the fans.

"They don't know a whole lot about American football yet, but the support they gave us out there was unbelievable," Erney said. "You cannot imagine how much it helped us."

In the United States, nearly 53,000 fans watched Montreal's 20-5 victory at Birmingham, Ala., Saturday night. The fans saw Birmingham enter its third professional league, following the World Football League and the United States Football League.

The game featured a fire-breathing performer in the stands and a halftime show in which Jerry Lee Lewis sang "Great Balls of Fire."

Kevin Sweeney passed for a touchdown, Elroy Harris ran for one and Bjorn Nitto kicked two field goals for the Machine.

Montreal built a 13-0 lead before the Fire got its points, on a 35-yard field goal by Win Lyle and a safety, both in the final quarter.

In Sacramento, Calif., Paul Frazier's 1-yard touchdown with 3:47 left in the fourth quarter propelled the Surge to a 9-3 victory over the Raleigh-Durham Skyhawks. A crowd of 15,126 attended in wet and muddy conditions.

Bush's house on market

DENVER (AP) — Neil Bush, who has been mired in a savings and loan scandal, is selling his half-million dollar home, his attorney says. James Nesland, who is representing the president's son in the fiasco involving his directorship of the failed Silverado Banking Savings and Loan, confirmed on Friday the home is for sale.

NEIL BUSH

"I know they put their house on the market," Nesland said. "I don't know if (they are moving) to a different area or another place in Denver."

The Bush home was purchased for $550,000 in November 1989 in the name of Bush's wife, Sharon.

Bush served as a Silverado director from 1985 until about the time of the S&L's collapse in December 1988. He has become a high-profile target for federal regulators trying to unravel the regulator's failure. Bush also is named in a $200 million lawsuit filed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Office of Thrift Supervision is considering sanctions against him for breaking conflict-of-interest rules.

Singer thanked for song

says he'll never forget the mail he received from soldiers in the Persian Gulf thanking him for his hit song "Don't Give Us a Reason."

Williams, known for hit records like "All My Rowdy Friends" and "Born to Boogie," released the tune just days after Iraq's Saddam Hussein ordered an invasion of Kuwait last Aug. 2.

In the song, Williams warned Saddam against pushing the United States too far. As the American buildup in the Persian Gulf increased, so did the mail Williams received from the armed forces.

Williams, the son of the country music legend, said the song turned out to be prophetic in predicting public support for American forces in the region.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE:

Your career accomplishments inspire friends and competitors alike to redouble their own efforts. In October, you will have the Midas touch in money matters. Beware of hangers-on as 1991 draws to a close. You will be very vulnerable in affairs of the heart. Choose a romantic partner who loves you for what you are. Marriage is best postponed until early 1992. Next Valentine's Day should be very special.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE:

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, actor James Caan, author Erica Jong, superstar Diana Ross.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Delegate more authority now and you will soon share in increased profits. A new romance is a blessing for someone stuck in a rut. Your optimism is justified where vocational challenges are concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your mind is crystal clear today. You know precisely what to begin or complete. Clean up your own act before playing amateur psychologist. Domestic affairs go extremely well. Have fun this evening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): To ensure continued success, you may have to make certain sacrifices on the job. Reopen the lines of communication with erstwhile business associates. It is time to forgive and forget.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Financial gains can be made through confidential channels today. Postpone signing contracts. You sense what needs to be changed and the best way to proceed. Home life begins to feel right again.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You can shine on the job today. Do not let silly doubts hold you back. Have patience with higher-ups, keeping any irritation you feel under wraps. Go your merry way after office hours.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can cultivate a valuable alliance behind closed doors today. Private talks prove very enlightening. Socializing with your colleagues is fine so long as you do not spend too much.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go with the flow today at work. Other people will assist you, even financially! Cultivate a calm manner to offset any worries about a romantic partner. Keep in close touch with parents.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New financial gains are possible today. Keep business negotiations strictly confidential. Make overdue changes in your work environment. Romance holds several pleasant surprises.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Turbulent forces are at work; it would be unwise to make a hasty decision about a relationship. Emphasize your desire for stability. Business people express admiration for your expertise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Retain your enthusiasm for an idea; do not give up easily. To win support, you may have to take people aside and turn on the charm. An older person offers valuable financial advice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Romance looks rosy. Give loved ones a well-deserved pat on the back. Domestic tensions fade. Greater diplomacy is the key to getting along with difficult work associates.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Efforts to beautify your home will increase its value while giving you a sense of deep satisfaction. Face any domestic problems head-on. "Playing-ostich" will only add to feelings of tension.

Middle East base site being negotiated

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf says the United States is closer than ever to establishing a permanent land base on Arab soil — a goal governments in the region had blocked for many years.

The U.S. commander in the Persian Gulf War told reporters Sunday the base would not include American ground forces.

He also said American troops who remain in the gulf will go home after a permanent cease-fire is signed with Iraq. However, a published report said today U.S. armored forces had driven deeper into Iraq.

In another development, Iraq's government newspaper, Al-Jumhuriya, on Sunday denounced the cease-fire terms set by the allies as aimed "at usurping Iraq's sovereignty, mortgaging its will and holding its wealth hostage."

The U.S.-led coalition, which halted hostilities last month after driving Iraq from Kuwait, says it will not sign a permanent cease-fire accord unless Baghdad destroys its chemical, biological and nuclear arsenals and agrees never to resume production of the weapons, among other conditions.

A Red Cross official in Riyadh said 1,000 Iraqi prisoners of war traveled to the Saudi border post of Arar on Sunday and were handed over to Iraqi officials. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Also Sunday, hundreds of Kuwaiti soldiers who spent months in Iraqi prisons returned home to their war-wrecked nation, where they were greeted by weeping relatives and celebratory bursts of machine-gun fire.

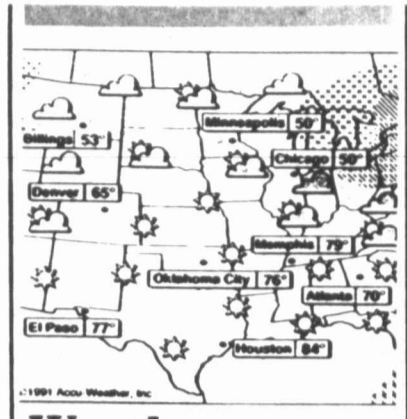

Since Kuwait was liberated on Feb. 27, some U.S. forces have begun helping the Kuwaitis rebuild their nation. Other American soldiers are occupying part of southern Iraq, where they are keeping an eye on Saddam Hussein's troops.

Schwarzkopf said the soldiers

VA benefit handbook updated

The Federal Benefits for Veterans and Dependents handbook has been updated for 1991. Information included in the booklet covers eligibility and timetable for benefits, where to apply, as well as education, training, vocational rehabilitation, and employment assistance. Other sections have information for life insurance, health care, disability benefits, Agent Orange exposure, death benefits and survivors benefits.

The locations of all VA cemeteries, as well as hospitals, nursing homes, clinics, VET Centers (where counseling is available for Vietnam era veterans), and drug and alcoholism treatment centers are included in other sections. Information for VA appeals, discharge records, how to correct military records, and medals and awards is also included.

PTA endorses alcohol bills

Two bills introduced to the Senate and the House of Representatives in Washington D.C., March 14, requiring health and safety messages for alcohol advertising, have been endorsed by the National Parent and Teachers Association.

The Sensible Advertising and Family Education Act, sponsored by Senator Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Representative Joseph Kennedy, D-Mass., also has the support of senators Albert Gore, Tenn., and John Glenn, Ohio.

The House sponsors include 15 representatives, according to Maribeth Oakes, policy analyst for the National PTA. Texas legislators have not sponsored the bill yet, she said.

The five messages, similar to the tobacco warnings, would state: alcohol could cause birth defects during pregnancy; alcohol impairs one's ability to operate a car or machinery; alcohol may be hazardous if used with prescription, over-the-counter or illicit drugs; alcohol may be addictive; and purchasing alcohol for persons under 21 is illegal.

Oakes said the SAFE Act will assign a toll-free number for all print advertising to answer questions and offer advice to consumers. She said there is still work to be done before it's finalized.

It was introduced in response to the 26-member commission established in 1988 by the Anti-Drug Abuse Act, which examined, for Congress, the status of drug use and abuse, particularly among school-aged youth. One conclusion of the committee was that alcohol is one of the two most abused drugs by underage youth, and one of the most prevalent in schools, according to the National PTA.

Learning experiences enriched minister's life

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

Following in the footsteps of three generations, J.B. Shewmake, the owner of the Little Dutchman grocery store in Tarzan, entered the Southwest Theology Seminar in 1966 to become a minister.

Shewmake said he left a lucrative career in the lumber business to join the ministry, but he never regretted his decision.

"I've never been afraid of failure. Of course, I've tried things that didn't work, but the learning process always gave me experience."

J.B. SHEWMAKE

I believe there's no way you can lose, as long as what you're doing is right and moral," Shewmake said.

Shewmake's great-grandfather was ordained as a minister in 1857, in Pleasant Run, Alabama. His grandfather came to Athens, Texas, to minister at a Baptist church and his father was minister for the Tarzan Baptist Church. Shewmake ministered at the Lenora Baptist Church until he retired in October, 1990.

"I resigned after 14 years. I just felt like everybody needed a change. This is the first time I've been without a church since 1968, and I feel I'm on a sabbatical, for a year," Shewmake said.

Born in 1934 in Brownfield, Shewmake was the baby of 11 children. He said at one family Christmas dinner, over 70 Shewmakes and descendants attended. "It was a sunny gorgeous day in Abilene. The newspaper came out and covered it. We set all the food up on large tables and served buffet style," he said.

"My dad was a very resourceful, determined individual. I guess that's where the Dutchman comes in," said Shewmake, adding that his father received his ordination in 1926.

J.B. married Patsy Wheless Feb. 14, 1954. The couple had three daughters in the 1960s, and later a son, Toby. Patsy died in 1986. Toby, an eighth grader at Grady, and J.B. live in a trailer near the store.

Robby, the oldest daughter, and her family live in Missouri. Another daughter, Jenny, teaches school in San Angelo. Shana is attending college in McKinney and plans to be married soon. Shewmake said Toby, "Keeps me young."

"I've had a hard life, but it's been very interesting. I saw on a T-shirt something that fits me: Life is too important to take seriously. My life has been real full, and I don't regret the adversity life puts in. I don't regret moving about, because moving educated me and helped me. I consider life an adventure," Shewmake said.

Fraser: Bill will restrict districts

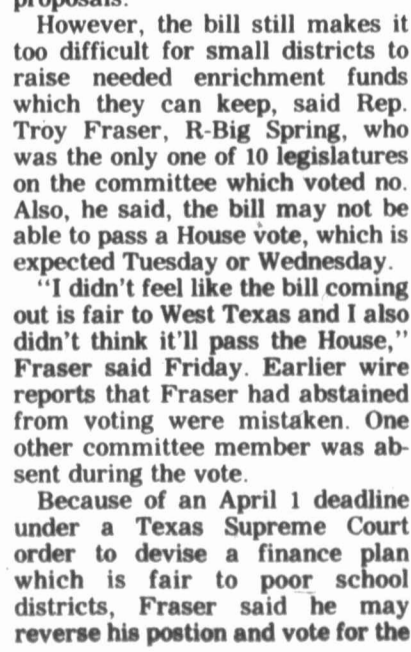

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

The five smallest of 10 Crossroads Country school districts will still lose funding according to a school finance bill passed by a state Senate House legislative committee last week. But the phase-in will be less severe than earlier proposals.

However, the bill still makes it too difficult for small districts to raise needed enrichment funds which they can keep, said Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, who was the only one of 10 legislators on the committee which voted no. Also, he said, the bill may not be able to pass a House vote, which is expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

"I didn't feel like the bill coming out is fair to West Texas and I also didn't think it'll pass the House," Fraser said Friday. Earlier wire reports that Fraser had abstained from voting were mistaken. One other committee member was absent during the vote.

Because of an April 1 deadline under a Texas Supreme Court order to devise a finance plan which is fair to poor school districts, Fraser said he may reverse his position and vote for the bill when it comes up for consideration in the House.

Otherwise, it could be left to a district court to devise a plan, Fraser said. Since a court cannot appropriate money, that could mean forced consolidation of school districts, which Fraser said he opposes because there would be a loss of local control.

"The court has very few choices of what they can do," he said. "My feeling is that the bill is wrong, but if I vote no on the bill, I run the risk that the state may move to consolidate the smaller school districts." Friday, he polling the 22 superintendents in his district to get their opinions.

"Ultimately I don't think it should have to go into the hands of the court," said Borden County Independent School District Superintendent Jimmy Thomas, who is concerned about keeping his school open under the proposed plan. "I think it's just real, real similar to playing Russian roulette," he said of a possible rejection by the House.

Borden County ISD will lose more than $600,000 in the next four years under the plan, reducing money per student from $8,257 to $5,829 after raising its tax rate 70 percent, according to figures provided by the Texas Education Agency.

Thomas said he is worried that the district may not be able to raise more money next year under the

Synthetic fertilizer use needed to boost crop yields

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers have used synthetic fertilizers for many years to boost crop yields, and an Agriculture Department analyst says the practice will continue, even if it means boosting imports of the chemicals.

Gary Vocke of the department's Economic Research Service said while some advocates of organic farming would like to see manure and other natural waste replace the chemicals, the idea is off base.

"Fertilizers will continue to be important to maintain soil fertility for cash grain farming," Vocke said. "That grain is critical to feed the world's expanding production of pigs and poultry, and to supply foodstuffs to the world's growing urban population."

Vocke said the recycling of nutrients back to the soil where crops are grown "is prohibitively expensive because transporting bulky, organic waste materials back to the farm requires too much energy."

Environmentalists criticize the practice of using commercially produced fertilizers on crops for contributing to ground water pollution and chemical runoff into streams and lakes.

Except for a small minority of farmers who do not use chemicals at all in the production of organically grown food, fertilizers figure in just about every other kind of farming operation.

An example is the "low input, sustainable agriculture," or LISA, concept in which farmers do as much as they can to protect and enhance natural resources through a variety of measures such as crop rotation, proper tillage and selective use of pesticides.

As Assistant Agriculture Secretary Charles E. Hess put it last year at a National Academy of Sciences conference on sustainable agriculture:

"Let me stress again that we are not seeking to eliminate the use of important chemicals and fertilizers. We are, however, seeking ways to reduce their usage and increase their effectiveness in order to improve and maintain environmental and economic sustainability."

The use of fertilizers and other chemicals is so widespread in U.S. agriculture that only a small acreage of some crops is produced without them.

USDA reported last week on results of the first comprehensive survey of fertilizer and pesticide use by farmers on some major crops.

The report include figures for the three basic components of commercial fertilizers — nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium.

Corn, the largest and most valuable U.S. farm crop, is a huge user of fertilizers, the report showed. Last year, it said, nitrogen was used on 96.1 percent of the total acreage, phosphorous on 83.3 percent and potassium on 74.1 percent.

Vocke, whose comments were reported in a recent issue of Farmline magazine, noted how world populations upgrade diets as incomes rise, consuming more meat, usually pork and poultry.

Texas farmers receive exemption

Nestor Hernandez, Martin County ASCS, stated the Texas State ASC Committee today exempted Texas from the fifty percent cover crop requirement on Acreage Conservation Reserve (ACR) acres according to Jerry Harris, Chairman of the Texas State ASC Committee. The Food, Agriculture and Conservation and Trade Act of 1990 required that half of the acreage set-aside under the commodity programs be planted to a cover crop. The legislation also allowed for the exemption of those areas determined to be arid by USDA. The determination to exclude Texas was based on meteorological data North Dakota through Texas. All states east of the line are not considered arid and must comply with the fifty percent cover requirement. Most states west of the line are considered arid and do not have to comply with the fifty percent cover requirement. "Since this line runs through Texas, the Texas State ASC Committee determined to exclude all of the state from the fifty percent cover requirement," Harris said.

PUBLIC NOTICE

THIS IS A 5% ACROSS-THE-BOARD RATE INCREASE REQUEST ONLY. CAP ROCK ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE, INC. NOTICE OF RATE CHANGE REQUEST. Cap Rock Electric Cooperative, Inc., on the 1st day of April, 1991, and pursuant to Sections 16, 17, 37 and 43 of the Public Regulatory Act (Article 1496c, V.A.C.S.) and the Public Utility Commission of Texas Substantive Rule 23.22(c) will file a statement of Intent and Petition for Authority to Change Rates to be effective on June 1, 1991 with the Public Utility Commission of Texas and all cities exercising original jurisdiction over its rates and tariffs. Prior to filing, copies of the proposed revised tariffs and other pertinent data may be inspected at the Office of Cap Rock Electric Cooperative, Inc., P.O. Box 700, West Highway 80, Stanton, Texas 79782, Telephone (915) 756-3381. Upon filing, copies of the proposed revised tariffs and supporting testimony and other pertinent data may be inspected in the office of the Cooperative and at the office of the Texas Public Utility Commission, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. All of Cap Rock's customers will be affected by the proposed change. The proposed change will increase Cap Rock's test year revenues by $1,465,643 or five per cent (5%). This translates into the following changes by class: For the 9,109 customers in the residential rate class, the proposed increase will be $367,707, a 13.62% base revenue change, and a 5.04% change in total revenue. For the 2,132 customers in the irrigation rate class, the proposed increase will be $247,799, a 22.50% base revenue change, and a 4.90% change in total revenue. For the 5,498 customers in the commercial rate class, the proposed increase will be $591,308, a 14.40% base revenue change, and a 5.04% change in total revenue. For the 418 customers in the industrial service rate class, the proposed increase will be $234,466, a 16.36% base revenue change, and a 5.04% change in total revenue. For the one customer in the large commercial HV rate class, the proposed increase will be $13,820, a 19.97% base revenue change, and a 5.01% change in total revenue. For the 2,908 customers in the security light rate class, the proposed increase will be $10,743, a 9.59% base revenue change, and a 5.01% change in total revenue. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify Cap Rock immediately at the above listed address and telephone number or the Commission. The deadline for intervening will be 45 days after April 1, 1991. The request to intervene, participate, or for further information, should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission, Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 456-0256, or (512) 456-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf. Waterway plan pleases most parties

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Environmentalists, homeowners and timber companies may be ready to agree on a compromise plan to include a waterway in East Texas's Big Thicket National Preserve. The waterway, known as Big Sandy Creek in the north and Village Creek in the south, has been a magnet to homeowners who would "own a little bit of heaven" and a point of contention between timber companies and environmentalists who want it included in the 84,600-acre preserve. Earlier this month, U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin — who once vowed to fight enlargement of the preserve with his last drop of blood — filed his fourth plan in four years to protect the waterway. Observers believe the way may be clear for adding more than 9,000 creekside acres to the preserve. Wilson also proposed a 1,476-acre addition to the Upper Neches River Corridor Unit, and a 750-acre addition in Orange County to the Lower Neches River Corridor Unit. Wilson also would add a 3,592-acre cypress swampland at the Texas-Louisiana state line. By exempting small landowners from surrendering their property for inclusion in the preserve, Wilson has pacified his most vocal opponents. The Big Thicket, once an impenetrable morass that covered much of East Texas, is a mystical biological crossroads where swamp plants are often neighbors to cacti, roadrunners scamper beneath eastern bluebirds and orchids bloom near insect-eating plants. Wilson's first three attempts to enlarge the preserve foundered because of small property owners like Jerry McKinney of Hardin County, who was loathe to surrender his "little bit of heaven." He and about 250 other landowners formed Citizens to Save Village Creek to battle Wilson. While Wilson tried to assure local homeowners that no homes would be taken into the preserve, Brenda Wright, president of the citizens' group, said she and others feared that they would no longer be able to do such things as ride their horses along the creek. "We feel better about owning the property now," Wright said of the new Wilson bill. "We feel like it will be protected. This newest bill is something we can live with." After initial balking, timber companies, which own 80 percent of the affected land, fell into line as well. Their property along the creeks often floods, isn't very accessible and has a mixture of hardwoods, brush and pines that is less profitable than managed pine plantations. It's also poor public relations for any of the big companies to severely cut timber near such a scenic stream. Under Wilson's plan, timber companies would receive land from national forests in East Texas in exchange for land taken for the preserve. The swap would be based on dollar values of the respective property, meaning timber companies would receive less forest acreage for their Big Thicket land.

 plan than it did this year. That would be a problem because one quarter of the district's $2 million budget this year was taken from savings, which are almost depleted. "If we don't have access to more money, then we're in trouble," he said. Officials he has checked with in Austin do not know if the bill would allow them to raise the needed funds next year. "There's too many unknowns right now," he said. Slated to lose $2.2 million in the next four years is Forsan ISD, which would have funding per student reduced from $6,720 to $5,248 if their tax rate is dropped 11 percent. Forsan ISD Superintendent J.F. Poyner said it will be detrimental but the district could still operate. It could be worse if the courts devised a plan, he said, citing the same reasons as Fraser. "I'm in favor of the Legislature handling it," he said. According to the bill, taxes would be set at a minimum of 60 cents per $100 valuation next year and increase to 90 cents by 1995. School districts could tax another 25 cents for enrichment and 20 cents for construction but the funds would be shared equally with other districts. Another 35 cents can be added, which would not be shared, for enrichment at the local level. Fraser said he wanted local enrichment to begin at a tax rate of $1.10 instead of $1.15. He also wanted a transportation allotment added to the bill. He said he was happy that other provisions for small schools that he supported were included. Those include adjustments for small-sparse school districts and districts which are necessary because of isolation and a hold-harmless clause to prevent districts, such as Borden County ISD, from losing money the first year if their tax rates increase or remain the same. The small-sparse adjustment would funnel state funds into all five area school districts which would lose funding. Districts in this area which would lose money include: Garden City ISD, which would lose $1 million over four years. Spending per student would drop from $6,459 to $5,312 over four years with its tax rate increasing 25 percent. Grady ISD, which would lose

$1.6 million over four years, decreasing per student spending from $7,778 to $4,855 after a 17 percent drop in its tax rate. Westbrook ISD, which would lose $1.6 million in four years, decreasing per student spending from $6,818 to $4,814 after a 32 percent increase in its tax rate. Those gaining money include: Big Spring ISD, which would gain $2.4 million over four years, increasing per student spending from $3,554 to $3,754 after a 4 percent drop in its tax rate. Coahoma ISD, which would lose $79,000 over four years if the tax rate dropped 10 percent. However, CISD would gain funds by 1995. Per-student spending would increase from $5,177 to $5,425. Martin County ISD, which would gain $1.2 million over four years, increasing per-student spending from $5,100 to $5,700 after an 11 percent tax rate decrease. Mitchell County ISD, which would gain $1.3 million over four years, increasing per student spending from $3,958 to $4,247 after a 2 percent increase in the tax rate. Loraine ISD, which would gain $1.2 million over four years, increasing per student spending from $5,194 to $7,071 after a six percent increase in the tax rate.

"I didn't feel like the bill coming out is fair to West Texas and I also didn't think it'll pass the House." Troy Fraser

 not the entirety... someplace over here on the gulf. "But there's an awful lot of negotiations that have to go on, the locations have to be accepted and all the arrangements have to be made... we're certainly much closer to that now than we've ever been before." The Washington Post, meanwhile, reported in today's editions that U.S. Army troops have driven deeper into Iraq. It said heavy armored units drove 60 miles north to the Euphrates River valley over the weekend in a major repositioning apparently aimed at intimidating Saddam. The New York Times, quoting U.S. and Bahraini officials, today reported the United States was close to signing an agreement with Bahrain to base part of the command in the island nation off Saudi Arabia.

The newspaper also said hundreds of Iraqi tanks and armored vehicles that had been arrayed against the allies are now combating the Iraqi insurgents. The report quoted American officials as saying 700 of Iraq's estimated 4,550 tanks in the south escaped — 100 more than previously believed. Several Shiite Muslim rebel groups as well as refugees quoted over Iranian state television and Tehran radio, said there were large weekend demonstrations in the Iraqi capital, which they said were ringed with loyalist troops. The dissidents claim troops killed anti-Saddam Hussein demonstrators in Baghdad and used napalm, phosphorous and poison gas. The claims could not be verified. Several Shiite groups claimed fighting had broken out in southern cities recently controlled by the

Teen runs for school board

WACO, Texas (AP) — Patricia Sappenfield wants a seat on the school board for her birthday. She turns 18 on Saturday, but she won't know about her birthday wish until the May 4 election. "I've always been interested in education," said Miss Sappenfield, a Waco High School senior. "I've always wanted to help people who have not understood things that sometimes I have understood." But she will have some opposition for the at-large seat. Terry Irwin, the incumbent, said Tuesday he plans to run again and facing a young upstart is nothing new to him. "The first school board race I ever ran for, in Hurst, had an 18-year-old on it," he said. "And I won." Charles Thornal, Waco Independent School District's community liaison, said he believes Miss Sappenfield is the youngest school board candidate in the history of the district. However, Miss Sappenfield does not consider that a disadvantage. "I'm still here, and I see all the things that go on during school during the day," she said. "Right now I am living it. I am living the decisions that the school board has made previously and I know the teachers' problems and I understand the students, so I feel that that's a big advantage to running." She said she hopes she can convince those who question her credibility and experience. "For those people, I hope that I can prove them wrong, and I hope that they can see through all that and see me for just another candidate and not see me for my age difference because I could bring a lot of fresh, new ideas to the school board," she said. And what are those new ideas? "I like the year-round school idea, and I hope it can become part of the regular system here in Waco," she said. "I see that as a big advantage, while students who are not as educationally mature as myself would see that as a problem because they won't get the three months off all together." She said she sees good and bad points in two proposals now before the board that deal with, among other things, neighborhood schools and open enrollment, which allows parents to choose their children's schools. "I think it's a good idea, just a little, but some of the things I still think I see some negative consequences," she said of open enrollment. "I feel that there might be some racial segregation because all the Hispanics will want to go to one school and all the blacks will want to go to another school and all the whites... I just don't feel that it will be an integrated school system anymore." She also addressed discipline issues. "I see a lot of disciplinary problems within the district," she said. "I'm not really sure what it is, but my guess is that they are afraid of parents coming in and telling them, 'My kid's not doing this. You'd better stop this.' I feel that they have become so afraid of parents that they're afraid to discipline children, and that has interfered in the teaching." Miss Sappenfield says she is committed to education, but she does not plan on a teaching career. During the summer, she will begin work on a physics and engineering double major at Baylor University. Eventually, she wants a doctorate in astro-physics. "I'm going to go all the way," she said.
