Man sentenced on indecency charge

An 118th Judicial District Jury sentenced Victor Garza Sr., 61, 507 Douglas St., to five years probation this morning after he pleaded guilty to a charge of indecency with a child.

After a guilty plea was entered, the jury heard testimony from one character witness for the defense and one witness for the state.

The charge, a second-degree felony, is punishable from two to 20 years in the penitentiary and/or a $10,000 fine. Garza, who was not fined by the jury, had no previous felony convictions, said Assistant District Attorney William Dupree.

Senate approves smoking measures

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has voted to prohibit smoking, except for designated areas, in state buildings and at state public meetings.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said state agency heads already have authority to designate smoking areas but his bill sets uniform standards. The bill specifies that a common work area divided only by partial walls is not suitable for a designated smoking area.

Senators on Wednesday also approved a bill that restricts locations for cigarette machines. The machines would be allowed in bars, lounges or private facilities, according to a written bill analysis.

Both measures were sent to the House on voice vote.

A third bill forwarded to the House on voice vote provides for appointments in the temporary absence of a county judge or commissioner.

Environmentalists blast amendment

AUSTIN (AP) — A state Senate committee approved a bill tightening restrictions on hazardous waste permits, but an amendment placed on the measure essentially killed the whole effort, environmentalists said.

Sen. Steve Carriker, who authored the bill, said Wednesday he would fight to remove the amendment by Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria.

Carriker's original bill would have placed a moratorium on hazardous waste permits until the Texas Water Commission establishes new rules on the permit process.

Those new rules, as outlined in Carriker's bill, would have given local communities more say in where the waste dumps are located, and required permit applicants to prove they are financially and environmentally sound.

Gov. Ann Richards has been a strong supporter of such a moratorium.

Under Armbrister's amendment, however, all pending applicants prior to Sept. 1 will not have to abide by the new restrictions, said Carriker, D-Roby.

U.N. awaiting Iraqi response to peace terms

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. diplomats say they're confident the burden of trade sanctions will compel Iraq to accept their tough cease-fire terms, and have turned to considering how to protect Iraq's rebellious minorities.

The resolution for a permanent cease-fire in the Persian Gulf War, overwhelmingly approved by the Security Council on Wednesday, is unique in U.N. history because the world body has never before set peace terms after a war.

Iraq's ambassador, Abdul Amir al-Anbari, called the resolution "outrageous" and a violation of international law that would destabilize the region. But he did not reject it.

He said a formal response would come in several days from Saddam Hussein's government. The decimation of Saddam's army in the war over Iraq's invasion of Kuwait makes further Iraqi military adventures unlikely for years to come.

The cease-fire resolution would provide additional insurance against Iraqi aggression by forcing the country to destroy its chemical and germ weapons, nuclear capability and most of its ballistic weapons.

It also would exact compensation from Iraq.

As Iraq implements the resolution's provisions, the embargo on trade with Baghdad would gradually be lifted. A U.N. ban on conventional arms sales to Iraq would, however, remain in force.

U.S. Ambassador Thomas R. Pickering called the resolution "tough, but fair," and said it was Iraq's self-interest to comply.

If Iraq does not comply, there will be no formal cease-fire, no

Expert hired to market airpark

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Staff Writer

Officials of Moore Development for Big Spring Inc. hope an aviation consultant can help them take a "rifle" approach to marketing the Big Spring McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark.

Howard D. Putnam, former chief executive officer of both Braniff International and Southwest Airlines, will work with the economic development corporation "as needed," said executive director Ted St. Clair. The five-member board of directors agreed to hire Putnam at a meeting Wednesday.

"We think (the airpark) is marketable," St. Clair said. "And we want him to take a 'rifle' approach to marketing it." Rather than just "shooting and hoping to hit something," the corporation prefers to "take aim" directly at targeted industry, he explained.

The corporation, with Putnam's help, will identify industries that might be interested in locating at the airpark, as well as identify alternate uses for the facility.

"We need his contacts," St. Clair explained. Putnam, CEO at Braniff from 1981-83 and Southwest from 1978-81, earlier served as group vice president for marketing at United Airlines.

A Plano resident, he is a speaker and author on values and ethics in business. His first book on the subject, "The Winds of Turbulence," will be published this fall.

St. Clair said he became acquainted with Putnam while living and working in the Fort Worth

Suspect sentenced for store burglary

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Klaus Hugo Quernheim pleaded guilty Wednesday to a March 18 burglary of the Carver Drive-In Pharmacy in Big Spring and was sentenced to 15 years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. He had been on parole for robbery since Oct. 29.

Quernheim, 33, was shot in the thigh when officers from the Permian Basin Drug Task Force and the Howard County Sheriff's Department arrested him March 19.

A Task Force officer may have accidentally discharged his gun prematurely when he shot Quernheim, but he had intended to fire anyway because the man made an "overt move" after being told to stop. Texas Ranger John Billings said today. Billings said Monday the shooting appeared to be accidental.

Quernheim, charged with possession of drugs and burglary after he was arrested on Hilltop Road north of Big Spring, denied he prompted the shooting by putting his left hand inside his jacket. Billings said.

A report of the investigation into the shooting is expected to be presented to the next grand jury in Howard County, Billings said.

District Attorney Rick Hamby said a grand jury is tentatively scheduled next month. If the case is ready, it would probably be presented, Hamby said.

The officer who shot Quernheim had information that Quernheim was armed and had ordered him to stop twice before drawing his gun, Billings said. The officer's name has not been released, but he is not from Howard County, he said.

"I think it went off a little bit early on him. But his intentions were to fire it because he feared for his

Airlines plan airfare hike for interstate travelers

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

After holding air fares down to cure the gulf war air-travel jitters, carriers are raising prices next week.

Intrastate travel from the Midland Airport will not be severely effected due to the competition between American and Southwest Airlines, according to Tim Smith of American Airlines.

"Intrastate fares from Midland do not fit the typical pattern because of the competition from Southwest, but once you get away from the short haul, the fare structure becomes more normal," said Smith.

American Airlines has announced that there will be a "fare restructuring" to take effect April 9. Airlines have been cutting prices in order to cure the travel slump brought on by the flagging economy and fears resulting from the gulf war.

Although Southwest Airlines spokespeople will not admit to a price increase, expert are predicting that they will raise prices.

"We will be watching American's (fare restructuring) very carefully," said Southwest spokesperson Ginger Shearburn.

Flyers have until Monday to purchase tickets at the current level. By Tuesday, interstate travel will likely be biting deeper into travel budgets.

"Experts said the increases were inevitable with airlines losing billion of dollars since the Persian Gulf crisis, and the economic downturn cut deeply into the industry's revenues," the Associated Press reported recently.

Cheaper fares will still be available for those who can book their flight 21 days or more in advance. "We found that we were already booking many people 21 to 30 days in advance, and when we give these financial incentives, we expect that number to increase," said Smith.

Again, advanced bookings will not affect intrastate travelers from the Midland Airport. Fees for travel from Midland to Dallas, Houston, San Antonio and Austin have always been dependent on a 3-day or 21-day notice.

Most of the nation's air-fare prices depend on a seven or 14 day advance notice. These will be most effected by the price increase, with the less expensive 21 day prices being offered as an alternative, explained Smith.

Special reduced prices, such as Southwest's "fun fares," for the weekend vacationer will remain in effect, explained Shearburn. These require a three-day advance purchase and a Friday or Saturday stayover, she said.

Weather only launch concern

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — High wind and low clouds in Friday's forecast appeared to be NASA's only concern as the countdown clock ticked toward the launch of Atlantis with an observatory that will hunt for hot cosmic rays.

Atlantis is scheduled to blast off at 9:18 a.m. EST Friday. It will be the 39th shuttle flight and the first of 1991.

The weather appeared to be the space agency's only concern. No problems were reported with the shuttle or its 17-ton cargo, the Gamma Ray Observatory.

"The shuttle system has been good to us this time," NASA test director Mike Leinbach said today. "We've had a real clean countdown to date."

Leinbach said meteorologists were predicting a 60 percent chance of favorable weather at launch time. The weather was expected to improve later in the morning.

DA's office to continue probe

DALLAS (AP) — A prosecutor says the investigation into the near-fatal attack almost four years ago on the wife of a former Dallas minister will never be closed until the case is solved.

"As far as I'm concerned, the case will never be closed until it's solved," Norman Kinne, first assistant district attorney, said Wednesday.

FBI agents and Dallas police had asked prosecutors to re-examine all evidence in the 1987 choking attack on Margaret "Peggy" Railey and conclude whether a criminal case could be made against anyone, including the woman's husband, Walker L. Railey.

Railey, 43, is the former senior pastor of First United Methodist Church of Dallas. He has not been charged in the April 21, 1987, attack that left his 42-year-old wife in a vegetative state, though police have called him a key suspect in the case.

Railey says he is innocent.

Family members plead guilty to scam

DEL RIO (AP) — Seven members of an Eagle Pass family have pleaded guilty to operating an elaborate scheme to file and collect unemployment claims in 22 states for migrant workers who had since returned to Mexico and were waiting for the money.

Prosecutors said Wednesday that they were able to prove only $15,000 in fraudulent claims in this case, but they said that others have operated variations of the scam from El Paso to Brownsville.

Panel OKs jail measure

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that would allow Texas prisons not to accept state convicts housed in county jails would mean hikes in local property taxes to cover the inmates' costs, county representatives told a House committee.

The Corrections Committee voted 5-4 Wednesday to send the bill on to the full House.

Under the measure by Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, state prisons would not have to accept prisoners from county jails if doing so would violate court orders. A federal mandate aimed at halting overcrowding caps the number of inmates housed in the Texas prison system.

Stiles received special permission from the House to introduce his bill Tuesday, one day after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that Texas must pay Harris County $750,000 to move state prisoners out of its jail to other less-crowded facilities.

A similar measure previously passed the House but failed in the Senate.

Representatives of several individual counties, including Harris, Tarrant and Dallas, and county government associations testified against the measure Wednesday. A better approach, they said, would be for the state to work with them to solve the state's criminal justice crisis.

"I believe Rep. Stiles' bill is awful public policy and another example of trickle-down taxes," said Travis County Judge Bill Aleshire. Rep. Dalton Smith, R-Houston, said Stiles' bill would require local taxes to pay for state mandates.

"What you're trying to do here is in effect have the ad valorem taxes of the taxpayers in each of the counties to pay for an expense of the state, and in effect having a state ad valorem tax," Smith said.

But Stiles said his bill could save Texans at least $500 million, assuming other counties as well as Harris County are awarded state payment for housing prisoners in local jails. Fourteen counties have joined in a lawsuit against the state seeking such payment.

"If the House doesn't pass the bill, we've got to pay the counties simple," Stiles said.

Lewis: Courts may have to write plan

AUSTIN (AP) — House Speaker Gib Lewis said although he hasn't given up trying for a compromise on school finance reform, politics may prevent the Legislature from doing the job.

"This issue is so complex, there's a possibility that a democratically elected body can't make that decision because of the politics involved. This is a political system, and that's what we're dealing with," Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said Wednesday.

Senate Education Committee Chairman Carl Parker said prospects for passing a school finance reform plan before the next court hearing are "getting a little dimmer every day."

Lawmakers missed Monday's Texas Supreme Court deadline for devising a reform plan, triggering an order to shut off state funds to schools. The impact of the order is not immediate because the next state checks are not due to be sent to school districts until April 25.

Few Texans get jobless benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Less than one-fourth of all jobless Texans received unemployment benefits last year as the U.S. economy entered the recession, according to a study released today.

Nationally, the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities said the economy entered the recession with a weaker unemployment system than at any time since the end of World War II.

In Texas, only 23 percent of the unemployed received benefits last year, compared with 37 percent of jobless workers nationally who received benefits in an average month in 1990, the study said.

Approximately 400,000 unemployed Texans lacked benefits in an average month, the study said, basing its figures on an unemployment rate of 6.2 percent in 1990.

Texas also had 140,000 jobless workers who exhausted their benefits but had still not found work in 1990, the third-highest level of any state, the study said.

The report cited studies indicating unemployed people who are not receiving unemployment benefits are much more likely to be poor than those who do receive benefits, and that the erosion in unemployment insurance protection over the past decade has led to higher poverty rates.

"For some previously middle class workers, this deterioration in unemployment protection may mean not only a further decline in their standard of living but also that they sink into poverty," said Marion Nichols, a co-author of the report.

In Texas, the state is already fighting a "rising tide of poverty" and its social service programs are already overburdened, according to recent comments by Human Services Commissioner Ron Lindsey.

Texas Employment Commission Chairman Jim Kaster said the new study looked at all jobless Texans, rather than at only those who qualify for aid, such as those who work a minimum amount of time and lose their jobs through layoffs or other acceptable reasons.

If only the jobless who qualify for assistance are considered, Kaster said the percentage of those covered in Texas would be far higher.

But the study includes such unemployed Texans as youths who drop out of school and have never worked, which would not qualify them for jobless assistance, or women who drop out of the workforce to stay home with their children, Kaster said.

The state is currently paying out $20 million a week in unemployment insurance, up from recent weekly totals of $17 million or $18 million, Kaster said.

Senate, would have shifted hundreds of millions of dollars in local property tax revenue from wealthier to poorer school districts.

Lewis met Wednesday with lawmakers who voted against the bill to see if it can be modified to meet their concerns. Richards also has called lawmakers in an effort to change votes.

The Supreme Court has twice unanimously ruled unconstitutional the current $14 billion-a-year school finance system, which relies on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

Differences in local property values now result in large disparities in education funding available to school districts.

Study questions treaty claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — A free trade agreement with Mexico could result in a significant shift in U.S. production to Mexico and a weakening of U.S. environmental, health and safety standards, a report shows.

The report by the Economic Policy Institute, a liberal think tank devoted to economic issues, comes on the eve of Sunday's meeting in Houston between President Bush and Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari. The two leaders are expected to discuss negotiations for a North American free trade agreement that will also involve Canada.

Released Wednesday, the report claims the free trade agreement as currently envisioned could result in a net loss of income and employment to substantial numbers of working families in the United States.

The Economic Policy Institute said its findings dispute Bush administration claims that the free trade agreement would benefit most U.S. workers by increasing the demand for U.S. goods in Mexico. The group's report said most Mexicans, however, are too poor to consume many American-made products, and that the export gains from the free trade agreement would also be small because most trade between the two nations is already free.

Campaign funding reform debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats and Republicans are trying to undercut each other's strengths in raising and spending money as they maneuver under the banner of campaign finance reform.

Both parties say they want bipartisan reform, but both are reluctant to make concessions that could cost them seats at election time. The issue could hit the Senate floor as early as next week.

The Democrats insist on sharp restrictions on election-campaign spending, but such limits are anathema to Republicans.

GOP leaders say their only chance to regain control of Congress is to provide candidates with enough money to overcome the name-recognition and other campaign advantages of Democratic incumbents.

Other issues blocking a compromise include the idea of using tax dollars to subsidize spending on congressional campaigns — a concept pushed by Democrats but vehemently opposed by Republicans.

On the other hand, Republicans want to attack the "soft money" advantage historically held by Democrats. This refers to unreported money, often spent by unions, that provides Democrats with valuable voter-education assistance.

Bush, Kaifu to discuss gulf, trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush intends to thank Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu at their brief summit in California for helping bankroll the Gulf War, but caution him about growing U.S. resentment of Japan's trade policies, officials say.

Bush was flying to Los Angeles this morning for the meeting after attending a memorial service for former Republican Party chairman Lee Atwater at the National Cathedral.

Bush and Kaifu will squeeze in almost three hours of talks, a working lunch and a news conference during their rendezvous at the posh Four Seasons Hotel in Newport Beach, Calif.

The Japanese leader, concerned about polls and news reports showing Americans upset with the sideline role Japan played in the war against Iraq, also was hoping to make his case directly to the American public through television interviews.

Kaifu, facing political challenges at home, pressed for the quick California summit after the war forced Bush to postpone plans to visit Japan. He also was eager to see the president before hosting Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on his first-ever visit to Tokyo on April 16.

Kennedy's nephew accused of rape

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — William Kennedy Smith, a nephew of Sen. Edward Kennedy, is suspected in an alleged rape at the family compound, a newspaper reported today. Smith has denied any wrongdoing.

"Any suggestion that I was involved in any offense is erroneous," the 30-year-old medical student said in statement Wednesday.

The Palm Beach Post quoted an unidentified source as saying Smith is listed in a police document as the suspect in the alleged rape of a 29-year-old woman. The newspaper said Smith's photo will be among those shown to the woman.

'Dallas' not returning next season

NEW YORK (AP) — It's not a dream — Bobby, J.R. and the rest of the Ewings won't be back next season.

CBS said Wednesday that "Dallas," the nighttime soap opera depicting intrigue among the Texas big-oil set, will end its 13-year run this season.

The finale will be a two-hour special May 3.

Executive producer Leonard Katzman said the episode will pose the question, "What would the 'Dallas' world be like had J.R. Ewing never been born?"

It will be similar in format to the Christmas movie classic "It's a Wonderful Life," Katzman said. Larry Hagman plays J.R. Guest stars will include former "Dallas" actors Mary Crosby, Linda Gray, Steve Kanaly and Jack Scalia, and "Knots Landing" stars Ted Shackelford and Joan Van Ark, Ewings who were spun off to their own show.

Joel Grey will play an angel.

"Dallas" made its debut on April 2, 1978. It was the No. 1 show in 1980-81, 1981-82 and 1983-84.

The "Who Shot J.R." episode on Nov. 21, 1980, was the most-watched single show in TV history until the final episode of "MASH" on Feb. 28, 1983.

CARLSBAD, N.M. — Caver Emily Mobley smiles and is congratulated by her rescuers as she's loaded into an ambulance just after leaving Lechuguilla Cave early Thursday morning. Mobley broke her leg Sunday while on a mapping expedition in the cave.

Explorer pulled out of cave this morning

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — An explorer with a broken leg was pulled from the nation's deepest cave early today after a four-day ordeal, yelling "Yee haw!" as she emerged.

"Oh, the stars are out tonight," Emily Davis Mobley sang after her aluminum and mesh stretcher poked up from the 1,565-foot-deep, 54-mile-long Lechuguilla Cave just after 1 a.m.

She immediately telephoned her husband, William, in Schoharie, N.Y.

"This is your loving wife, coming up from the depths of the Earth to see you," Mobley said.

"I'm wonderful. It was made a lot more of a big deal than it was," she told him.

The 40-year-old woman was taken to Guadalupe Medical Center in Carlsbad, her leg in a splint.

"She's in real good spirits, her vital signs real stable," nursing supervisor Katie Hardin said.

Mobley's husband, reached at the couple's home, said: "She isn't exhausted. She's in great shape. She's an absolutely incredible person. She can't be very comfortable being in there."

"I feel like calling everybody. I called her parents. I called one of our closest friends in Tokyo," he said. "I feel great."

The rescue effort drew some of the nation's top cave rescue experts to the cave in Carlsbad Caverns National Park.

Mobley, a 22-year cave explorer and expert in cave rescues, was about 1,000 feet down and two miles into the cave Sunday when an 80-pound rock she had been holding onto gave way and fell on her, breaking her left leg below the knee.

"This (rescue) was tougher than most," said Don Coons of Rutland,

Ill., with the Lechuguilla Cave Project. "She was so far back in the cave, and there were a lot of obstacles."

Steve Sontag, an Albuquerque paramedic and member of the Albuquerque Mountain Rescue Team, said: "We're just kind of riding out the top of the wave — just a real good feeling of success."

About 20 people welcomed Mobley at the top. She had earlier requested pizza, but when it was offered she asked that it be given to her rescuers "down below."

During the rescue, the woman hobbled when there was space to stand upright and was carried or slid on stretchers elsewhere. Rescuers used a network of ropes and pulleys to get her through a treacherous labyrinth of chambers, narrow passages, sheer rock faces and wide chasms.

A doctor with her in the cave gave her painkillers.

The rescue went more quickly than expected Wednesday night after moving in fits and starts since Sunday.

The undeveloped cave in a remote area of the park is closed to the general public. The National Park Service lets a limited number of experienced cave explorers in to explore and map it. Mobley was part of a mapping expedition.

Iran opens borders, requests help

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran said today that it has opened its border to refugees from Iraq's civil war and that 1 million Kurds have gathered at one Iranian frontier town. The government pleaded for international assistance.

"Our borders are open to all refugees, be they Afghan, Iraqi or Kuwaiti," Tehran radio quoted Iran's foreign minister, Ali Akbar Velayati, as saying in Tehran after meeting with visiting European envoys.

The country's official Islamic Republic News Agency said 1 million Kurds had crowded into Iran's western border town of Nowsoud in the past 48 hours, hoping to be allowed into the country.

It said thousands more were waiting at crossings farther north, with long lines of cars and other vehicles stretching into Iraq. The agency said many refugees were ill.

The Iranian news agency quoted border officials in the town southeast of the Iraqi city of Suleimaniyah — the last major Iraqi city to fall to Saddam loyalists — as saying all the refugees might be allowed in.

Velayati also called for assistance from the United Nations and the International Committee of the Red Cross to help the refugees.

Yeltsin granted increased powers

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris N. Yeltsin was granted sweeping new powers today as leader of the Soviet Union's biggest republic, escalating his confrontation with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

After heated debate, a special session of the Russian Congress of People's Deputies voted 588-292, with 23 abstentions, to adopt a resolution that broke an eight-day stalemate between reformers and conservatives.

The compromise resolution gives Yeltsin power to rule by decree, with subsequent oversight by the Russian Federation's working legislature, the Supreme Soviet.

It also takes some powers away from the Congress, the legislature's larger parent body, and transfers them to the legislature.

In today's vote, the Congress approved Yeltsin's new powers in principle. Details of the powers are now to be hammered out.

The new powers would be in effect until a constitutional amendment creating a new presidency is adopted.

Yeltsin and Gorbachev have clashed repeatedly, and the new powers given to the Russian leader are likely to increase the confrontation.

Britain announces airlift, funding

LONDON (AP) — Britain announced today it was granting $1.77 million in emergency relief for Kurds fleeing the civil war in Iraq and would begin airlifting tents and blankets to Turkey.

But Kurdish exiles based in Britain derided the grant as "an insult."

"That amounts to 33 pence (58 cents) a person," said Latif Rashid of the Kurdistan Front, a coalition of Kurdish political parties. "That won't buy them a cup of tea."

He added that instead of sending help to Turkey, where many of the refugees have fled, Western powers should set up a "corridor of help" airlifting aid directly into northern Iraq.

Up to 3 million Kurds have fled their homes in northern Iraq after forces loyal to Saddam Hussein crushed the Kurdish insurgency.

Democracy gains foothold

It's fashionable — or to use the proper buzz words, "politically correct" — to condemn U.S. policy in Latin America as hopelessly dedicated to keeping despots in power by force, paying only lip service to the cause of democracy. Fashionable — but as results of the recent election in El Salvador show, hardly accurate.

True, the right-wing Arena Party retained the most seats in the new legislature elected March 10. But it lost its majority: it will govern only by forming a coalition with two smaller, allied parties.

What's most remarkable is that the left, the Democratic Convergence — an alliance of three socialist parties — won representation for the first time, taking eight seats. Since the left had previously boycotted elections in El Salvador, that is a tremendous showing — and would hardly have been possible if Arena had rigged the outcome, as critics of U.S. policy claimed it would.

Does El Salvador have a perfect democracy? Of course not. But progress toward true self-determination is being made — and would not have been, without U.S. assistance.

Silver Snout Award given

In keeping with the new state order of frugality and accountability, state Comptroller John Sharp is fashioning silver sows' snouts from the silver linings of state agency fiscal excesses.

Sharp conferred the first "Silver Snout Award" — an adaptation of former U.S. Sen. William Proxmire's Golden Fleece Awards — upon the Teacher Retirement System of Texas for spending more than $700,000 for art, furniture, china, a greenhouse and exercise equipment.

As recipient of the initial award, the retirement system is the first to feel the satiric sting of a program designed to expose practices that go "above and beyond the bounds of common decency in the expenditure of public money," according to the comptroller's office.

By presenting profligate agencies with the plaques — a ceramic pig with a painted silver snout — Sharp has introduced a humorous means of illustrating misguided financial waste. That's good, because taxpayers have precious little these days to laugh about.

If nothing else, agencies will be on notice that someone is watching the trough to keep an eye on piggish behavior.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Throwaway athletes

Anyone who still labors under the delusion that major league colleges care about the academics of their athletes should wake up. The athletes are not graduating at the same rate as the non-athletes, and the situation is particularly bad in the Southwest Conference.

This news comes from a study by the Chronicle of Higher Education, which checked the entering class of 1984 to see what percentage of students had graduated within five years. It compared that figure to the percentage of athletes who graduated within that same frame.

Among the big-time sports schools that play in Division I-A, the SWC finished seventh out of nine. (The Atlantic Coast Conference finished first and the Southeastern Conference finished last.)

Among the SWC schools, almost half — 49.3 percent — of all students graduated, but only 40.6 percent of the athletes did. In football the figure was 32.5 percent. In men's basketball it was a scant 23.5 percent. Among the freshman recruits of '84 who played basketball for Baylor, UH, Texas, Texas A&M and Texas Tech, there was not one single graduate. Within the conference, Rice had the best percentage of graduating athletes. UH had the worst.

Schools give a lot of lip service to the "student athlete" and the "priorities of a good education," but these figures show such posturing to be poppycock. At too many schools... kids are used and tossed away.

Hispanics must participate

Hispanics in the Houston area are underrepresented at virtually every level of government, and some Hispanic leaders are looking to the redrawing of district lines to correct that shortcoming. Even if the lines are redrawn to their satisfaction, however, Hispanics may be disappointed in the outcome.

The federal Voting Rights Act forbids the drawing of district lines in a way that dilutes the voting strength of any minority. But the act specifically states that the law does not — indeed it cannot — guarantee racially proportionate representation.

According to the 1990 Census, for instance, Hispanics already constitute a majority in the inner-city congressional district of Rep. Craig Washington, a black. If racial majority alone determined elections, Hispanics have only to field a qualified opponent in order to achieve their end.

Unfortunately for them and for the community, Hispanics as a group tend to register to vote and go to the polls in disproportionately small numbers.

In one of his earliest speeches, Abraham Lincoln said, "True democracy makes no inquiry about the color of the skin, or the place of nativity." Lincoln's proposition can best be tested when Hispanics in every district increase their participation in the democratic process.

Getting priorities right in dugout

The baseball season is about to begin, and the voice of salaries can be heard throughout the land.

Never have players been paid as much or have revenues from product endorsements been as high. The numbers are so large that many newspapers are seriously considering taking baseball off the sports pages and having it covered in their business section instead.

Has big money changed the game? You better believe it. Just listen in on the conversation from the dugout of the Los Angeles Bandits.

Jim Akers, the manager, tells his team, "Everyone be sharp today. The Fatfree Diet Powder Company is going to do a TV commercial in the dugout, and I don't want any screwing up while my contract renewal is on the table."

He looks down at the players, "McMurtry, you're first at bat."

"I can't, boss. I have to see my broker this afternoon. He wants me to get out of Treasury notes and into something more comfortable."

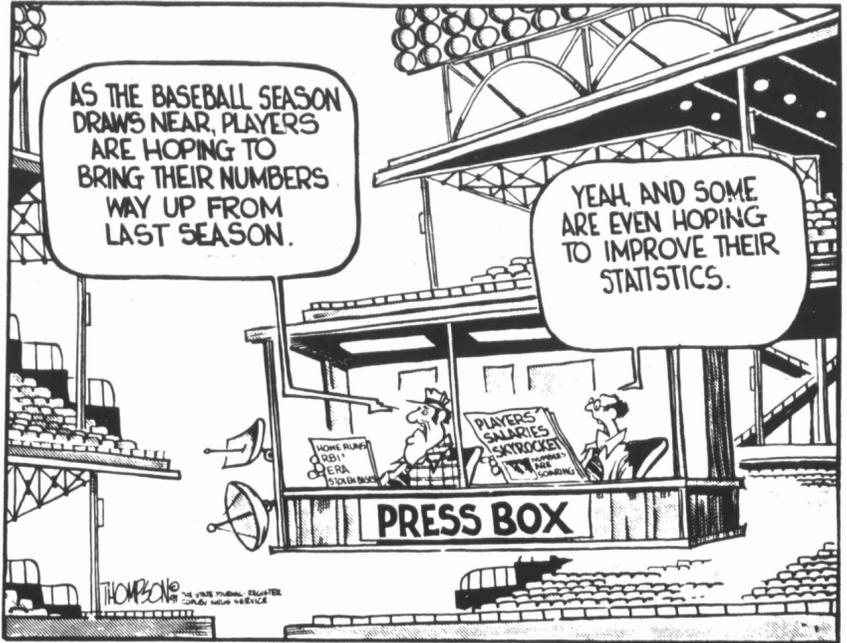

"Damn it, McMurtry, you should have done that this morning."

"I was buying apartment houses this morning. Heck, I only have two hands."

"Boss, my lawyer wants to know if he can stand next to me at short-stop to discuss a suit we're filing against a thrift that went bankrupt last weekend."

"That's a stupid question, Bowditch, and you know it. Lawyers aren't allowed on the field during the game."

"Part of my contract with the team is that if I hit 40 home runs, they have to make me one of the Fortune 500."

Potsdam said, "I'm only batting .220 on the Dow Jones average. I should never have listened to my brother-in-law when he advised me to invest in Iraqi war bonds."

"Paine Webber wants me to merge my steak house chain with the Kansas City Royals," Taicher told him.

Learning humility in newsroom

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

Random thoughts while counting down the days until my vacation:

We have a new colleague in the newsroom. This in itself is not exactly earth-shattering news — in an upwardly mobile world such as ours (the author deludes himself into believing) personnel changes are quite commonplace — but watching this person get her sea legs reminds me of my first few days as a reporter.

If it is true that God wants us to be humble, I can think of very few occupations that can keep us in the fold as well as journalism.

Sure, there are exceptions to every rule, but for every rampant ego set loose in a newsroom, there is a quiet soul who wants nothing more than to get the job done right without offending too many people.

And the quietest of all these is the novice reporter — or "cub" reporter, if you get most of your jargon from Mickey Spillane novels.

Most of us newsroom types go through years of schooling to arrive at this point, but there's something about the first few weeks on the job that would make a longshoreman break down and cry like a baby.

First off, there are the introductions when you get to meet all the folks who have survived what you're about to go through.

Usually, they will smile and say something like, "Great to have you on board!" What they really mean is, "Whew! Less work for me to do."

Beyond the realm

If that isn't intimidating enough, you then become familiar (Hah!) with the equipment — and I'm not talking about the trusty ol' pad and pen. I mean the video display terminal (or "That worn-out piece of #@!$%*!&$#!" in newsroom jargon).

Maybe it's just me, but I firmly believe that unless you're some sort of natural at the computer keyboard, you stand a better chance of winning the Reader's Digest sweepstakes than you do of learning how to work this confounded machine with a minimum of hair-pulling.

I've been doing this for three years now, and there are still times when I want to yank this darned machine out of its socket, toss it in to the nearest wastebasket and go outside, sit on the curb and mutter "#@!$%*!&$#!&#."

Then, once you have been introduced and become familiar (again, I say "Hah!") with the equipment, it is time to get your feet wet and actually work on a story.

Abandon hope, all ye who enter here.

If, by this time, you're not sufficiently humbled, trying to interview someone who has better things to do than talk to some nosy reporter will definitely turn the trick.

It's not that all your interview subjects are rude; some are actually glad that a newperson has taken the time to hear their side of the story. But others grant interviews with the same reluctance that they pay their electric bills — very, very, grudgingly.

So, let's review: You have been introduced to your colleagues, taken a few minutes to try to familiarize (Hah!) yourself with a gadget that the guys at MIT still haven't figured out and then interviewed someone who may or may not treat you as if you're an IRS auditor.

What's next?

Why, you have to go back to the office and (snicker, snicker) write your story onto the same computer that had you crying earlier in the day and hope the computer gods won't frown on you and make your story disappear into the ether.

Welcome to the newsroom. Well, maybe I have exaggerated a bit. This job, for all its pratfalls, can be enormously rewarding. And the folks you work with (who, I should point out, are reading this) are regular salt-of-the-earth types.

So, welcome to the newsroom, Linda. We are sincerely glad you're here and we sympathize with any and all problems you might encounter. And don't worry, you'll be familiar with the VDT in no time at all.

Then again, maybe not.

Heritage Museum

Ribbon Cutting - Festivities
Thursday, April 4, 1991
6:30 - 9 p.m.
Texas Black Tie

Local residents are invited to help the Heritage Museum celebrate the completion of its new home on the range — a $500,000 addition hailed as Big Spring's "newest star."

Museum curator Angie Way said the sights, sounds and tastes of a cinema premiere will greet guests at tonight's opening ceremony.

At 6:30 p.m., host Joe Pickle will christen the museum building at a ribbon-cutting ceremony, recognizing the many local contributors and supporting foundations. Then the doors will open for the community's first view of the expansive, modern addition.

Finger foods, champagne and punch will greet guests entertained by continuous piano music. (Go ahead, requests are welcome.)

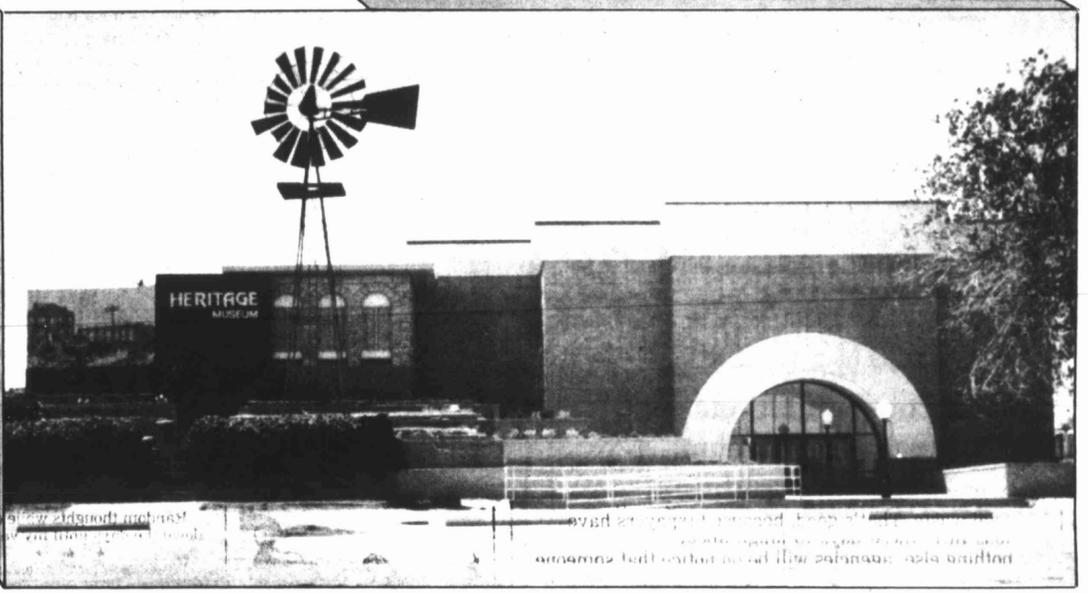

Also on the first floor of the new building, cinematic hits from the past will be projected on various screens. Guests will have a chance to "get closer to the stars" with a celebrity auction.

A drawing will be held for two round-trip tickets anywhere Southwest Airlines flies. Every guest can register to win.

Artists from all over the state will be showing their western paintings, carvings and sculpture on the second floor. Big Spring artist

Coy McCann will show some of his original works. Other local talent will include actors performing vignettes from "Greater Tuna," a Texas comedy.

Tickets, $10 per person, will grant the holder access choice of the evening's festivities as well as valet parking at the entrance, now located on Scurry Street. Dress is "Texas Black Tie," described by museum officials as "comfortable enough to enjoy yourself, but dressed to drink champagne."

We are proud to have been part of the construction and expansion of the museum.

Confused about Texas black tie?

HERALD STAFF REPORT

So what is "Texas Black Tie" — the specified dress for the Heritage Museum's opening celebration? Museum curator Angie Way has said she wants guests to "feel comfortable enough to enjoy themselves, but dressed right to drink champagne."

Big Spring retail personnel agree: an event like this calls for some creativity.

Gaylan and Gwen Harding of Bojangles said the theme seems to indicate that "nice western wear" is what's needed.

"Well, 'black tie' to me means a tuxedo — an elegant affair," Gwen Harding said. She said the "Texas" part of the phrase probably means boots and jeans and hats.

"Denim is fine, but I'd go with black denim," she said. "I'd say men don't necessarily need to wear a tie, or they could wear a western tie."

For women, Mrs. Harding suggested a (black) denim dress with boots.

Don Oliver of Gentleman's Corner said he's had a couple of requests for western ties to be worn to the event, which need to be ordered.

"I think the dress is pretty casual other than that," he said.

Anita Newell, owner of A Formal Affair, said men could wear their "boleros" with a dress shirt, jeans and boots. Women, she suggested, could choose between "dressey western" and just "dressey" or formal.

Jackie Knight of Connie's said "casual evening wear" would be her guess.

"I'd go with ties and sportscoats for the men, ladies in after-five dresses," she said. She said men could wear jeans with sportscoats and ties, and women might try a denim dress with boots.

Since spring has sprung and Easter's over, she said basic black is not necessary, and color might even be better.

Melody Dicky and Natalie Ann Bowers examine some of the antique household items on display at the Heritage Museum in this file photo taken last year.

Trustees proud of new addition

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

For trustees of the Heritage Museum, the newly-complete addition is the realization of years of work, representing an opportunity for a brighter future.

The work of many reached fruition recently with the completion of the modern, expansive building, funded with grants and support from the Dora Roberts Foundation, the J.E. and L.E. Mabee Foundation, American Petrofina, Marie Hall and Olive Ruth Cowden as well as donations of members and other supporters.

Kyle Choate, treasurer of the trustee executive board, said "We've been working on building this thing for four or five years. . . . It's nice to see it ready to go after so much time."

Choate, secretary-treasurer at Choate Company, said he sees the museum's mission as restoring and preserving history in the community.

"It can also be a nice place for visitors from out of town to learn about our community," he added.

Current board president Wade Choate said the museum has a special meaning for him — holding onto his roots. Choate, president of Choate Company, said he feels very close to local history because his great-great grandfather was the first permanent settler in Howard County.

"The new facility represents the heritage of this community," he said. "We are really so grateful to the gracious people who have provided the funds for this addition. For our size city, it's a real prize."

Vice President Janice Rosson said the new building will be a "beautiful addition to downtown Big Spring aesthetically." The additional space, she added, will allow the museum to display more items of local heritage.

"It's going to allow for more attractive and meaningful (displays and exhibits) to give a more complete picture of the history of the area," she said.

Rosson, principal at College Heights Elementary School, said the expansion is a "tribute to the civic-minded who have contributed to the museum, as well as the realization of a vision" for several committed volunteers. Rosson named among them past board president Katie Grimes, trustee Joe Pickle and current president

Wade Choate.

In her work with the museum board, Rosson said she has learned "how especially attached" local people are to their heritage.

Board secretary Robert Buckner, vice president at State National Bank, said he has long recognized the museum as a great asset to the community. That quality will only improve with the addition, he said.

"It will really aid in allowing us to display more of what we have," he said. "The problem with (the current building) was that we had run out of room." The addition, he noted, will allow display of currently-stored items as well as booking of traveling exhibits and shows.

Katie Grimes, past president of the board and a volunteer for more than eight years, said the museum is the community's "link to the past."

"(Work there) gets more and more interesting as you get into it," she said. With the completion of the addition, Grimes said she hopes the museum can accept more historical items that are offered to it.

"We'll really have the room to show these things," she said.

Grimes credited curator Angie Way with "opening up" the museum to children.

"She's got so many programs going where they can see more than just the textbooks. . . . They can see how history is alive and part of their heritage," Grimes said.

For now, Grimes said the board will likely focus on helping the museum staff get the permanent exhibits arranged in the new space. Then, they will begin to use the facility for some traveling shows, and look toward the future of the preserving the local past.

Other current museum trustees are: R.H. Weaver, Pat Hardison, Skipper Driver, Darlene Dabney, Pattie Horton, Kay McDaniel, Sara Reid, Ernie Boyd, Martha Hernandez, W.A. "Dub" Moore Jr., Tim Haynes, Sue Partee, Jake Glickman, Jane Thomas, Wofford Hardy, Susan McLellan, Jean Lancaster and Joe Pickle.

Next term, executive board members will be as follows: president, Janice Rosson; vice president, Robert Buckner; treasurer, Katie Grimes; secretary, Martha Hernandez; and past president Wade Choate.

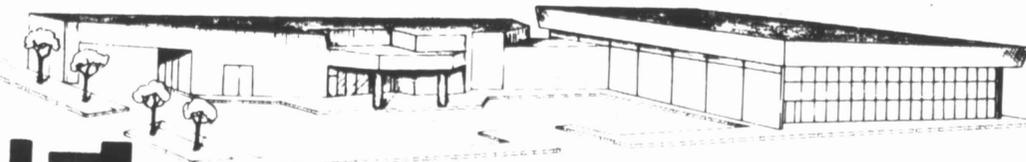

New trustees will be Flynn Long, Robert Hill, Don Newsom, Sara Beth Warren, Dorothy Wheeler and Carla Walker.

Railroad featured in planned exhibit

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Exhibits planned in the addition to the Heritage Museum will deal with factors that influenced the growth of Big Spring through history, including the railroad, the oil business and West Texans themselves.

One of the exhibits will feature "the town that the T&P built," and will depict the impact of the Texas and Pacific railroad on this area. "We will have panels that talk about the earliest people involved... how this was just a tent city before the T&P," said Museum Curator Angie Way.

Because West Texas was so sparsely populated, Big Spring became the railroad's main station between Fort Worth and El Paso.

A replica of one of the first buildings constructed by the T&P will be in the exhibit, Way explained.

Visitors can also look inside a machine shop from the turn of the century, a replica of the shop where steam locomotives were repaired. The huge tools necessary to work on a locomotive will be part of the display.

One wall will have a talking mural. "When you step up to the platform in front of each of four characters, they will tell you about their job on the railroad. These are geared primarily for children," said Way. The Big Spring Women's Club has donated $1,000 for this display," she added.

An extensive, vintage photo display will also be in the exhibit, including many pictures of train wrecks and other unfortunate accidents in this area.

The Ruth Johnson Hardy Temporary Exhibit Hall, in the upstairs portion of the new building, will be used to showcase traveling exhibits from museums around the country.

"During the year, the museum will host traveling exhibits from throughout Texas and all over the country," Way said. "During times when there is no traveling exhibit, we will display our wonderful collection of 48 antique phonographs."

The museum will also house an exhibit depicting the economic and cultural impact of the oil business on West Texas.

"This is not going to be just about drilling for oil. It's going to show how the oil business caused an economic and cultural movement in West Texas," she explained.

Way said a wall will be devoted to people who played a major role in the building of Big Spring.

Volunteers provide valuable extra hands

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Staff Writer

Joy Dugan works each work at the Heritage Museum, filing records, addressing envelopes and cataloging historical items — and she doesn't even get paid.

"I guess I like it because I'm interested in the history," Dugan said. She and other local citizens, many of them members of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, give of their time regularly to the museum's work.

"Everybody's so friendly," she said. "Sometimes I just get to visit with (museum-goers) and I like that part of it so much."

Curator Angie Way said volunteers do work that "would take huge amounts of (the staff's) time." With the museum's small staff, volunteer work is a great help, she explained.

"It frees us up to do other things. Without them, we'd be stockpiled with work we couldn't get done." Some volunteers work a regular schedule, while others are used on an on-call basis.

The volunteers never complain about their tasks, and they are thorough, dependable workers, Way said.

Dugan, an RSVP volunteer, said she's looking forward to working in the newly-constructed addition as well.

"That should really be attractive, and so much more room," she said. "I just went over to see my (personalized) brick." RSVP volunteer Libby Dirks said her work identifying historical items and artifacts can be tedious, but is always interesting.

"I take things people have donated and measure it, describe it, that sort of thing, so they know what they have," she explained. "I love it. I'm kind of an antique buff myself."

Dirks said she started volunteering at the museum several months ago "for something to do," and found the work fascinating. Although not a native, she said she's developed a strong interest in the history of the area.

"Sometimes I identify photographs and that sort of thing. Since I've lived here since 1954, I can help them with that."

RSVP coordinator Joy Decker said her museum volunteers are some of her happiest.

"I'm sure as the new part opens, they'll like it even more," she said. "They find it so interesting."

Dirks said she enjoys the staff, the work and the atmosphere at the museum.

"I think one has to like antiques and history in order to really do it, but I always enjoy it."

Decker said she is "constantly recruiting" for senior volunteers to work at places like the Heritage Museum. For information on volunteering, call the museum at 267-8255; seniors can call RSVP at 267-2589.

The museum offers a variety of activities for children, including costume parties and family nights with pioneer themes as in this file photo. The idea is to allow children to experience living history, said curator Angie Way.

Addition to include much-needed storage

The Heritage Museum's expansion will be of great benefit to the Howard County Historical Commission as well. The group plans to use some of the museum space for much-needed storage.

Commission Secretary Josephine Dawes said "quite a bit" of historical material is now stored in various locations throughout the area — including member's homes.

"I think we'll have a little bit more of a home for that," Dawes said. "It's somewhat scattered now."

Museum Curator Angie Way told the group, chaired by Polly Mays, that it could use some of the current museum office space for storage. Way said storage space will be made available when the museum's research material is moved into the addition.

With the two groups sharing a building, many items of the area's history could become more centrally located. The expansion will allow the commission's collection of historical photographs to be more permanently stored, Dawes said. "We get a lot of requests for information and photographs for researchers," Way said. "With the two collections together in the same building, this means that there's more possibility of finding what they need."

At the museum, the historical material will be much more secure as well, Way added.

The commission will also use the addition's spacious meeting room. Projects the Howard County Historical Commission undertakes include the recently-published history book of Howard County and the location and marking of historical sites.

"They work very diligently to recognize the important historic buildings, people and events of this area," Way said. "Their historical markers are a fine example. They are really like nothing I've seen anywhere else."

Commission members do the research and placement of local historical markers, as well as supervising placement of state markers.

Museum displays include many household items in common use in the past, such as this old sewing machine, flatiron and wash tub.

Congratulations Heritage Museum on your expansion.

Expanded museum exhibits will offer much for children

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

Children will find a host of new ways to enjoy themselves and learn at the Heritage Museum this year, said Curator Angie Way.

"We're going to expand the programs we already have in place for our junior membership, and we'll add to our summer programs," she explained. "Because we'll have more space, we might be able to bring in some experts in unique fields, like paleontology."

In the new space, all exhibits will be geared for both children and adults. Aspects such as written material on the panels will be geared toward adults, while more interactive aspects will be geared toward children.

The museum often has a child supervision problem now, Way said, mainly attributed to the somewhat cramped quarters. "The perfect example is the (collection of) phonographs. Over there, the parent literally has to hold the hand of a younger child because they want to go under the guideline," she explained.

Way said she thinks serving the needs of children is a priority at "any museum that's interested in serving all of the community." The expansion will allow the Heritage Museum to reach more local citizens, including children, she added.

"History is not just something you read from a textbook," she said. "So many things are better demonstrated in the museum atmosphere. They don't just read about how Edison invented the phonograph, ... they can see how and why."

The collection of longhorns is another good example of the theory, Way explained.

"When you see a room full of them, and you can really look at them, you can better understand their influence on the area," she said.

The museum's summer programs, geared to offer something for everyone, included origami, kite-making and a course on Egypt last year. The staff is in the process of planning this summer's offerings.

"We've had a lot of requests for the Egypt class again," she said. "That's always nice to hear. We want to know that the (children) are enjoying it and getting something out of it."

Junior members of the museum receive a regular newsletter as well as opportunity for special projects during the summer. For more information, call the Heritage Museum at 267-8255.

Museum never boring to curator Angie Way

Since the rainy day in August, 1986, when she took over as curator of the Heritage Museum, Angie Way said she has had a variety of rich experiences as well as a lot of fun.

"I get to practice everything here," said Way, a Waurika, Okla., native. "It's not so large that I'm stuck in a room and never get to work with people. I get the chance to be involved in so many aspects of what we're doing."

Way, a graduate of Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls, earned a master's degree in "Southwestern history museum studies" at Central State University in Edmond, Okla., in May of 1986.

She trained working under a curator at a Guthrie, Okla., publishing house, then worked in both a history museum (like the local facility) and a historic site similar to the Potton House.

At the Heritage Museum, "I get to work with everything," Way said. The tours museum employees conduct for schoolchildren are one of her favorite projects.

"Sometimes we have 100 kids or more," Way said. "It's always a lot of fun."

In the local area, interest in the past is a strong influence on the way of life, she said.

"I think part of the reason the area has such a close tie to history, is that 'history' is actually fairly recent," she explained. "We have photographs up now that people will come by and say, 'Oh, there's Dad,' or even, 'There I am.' History is not so many generations old that people have lost touch with it."

Museum curator Angie Way performs a wide variety of tasks every day, including dusting the Longhorn collection occasionally.

Gift shop offers books, unique mementos

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Educational gifts for children and adults can be found in the Heritage Museum's gift shop — soon to be expanding with the completion of the addition.

Retired curator Gerri Atwell said the museum has been selling mementos almost since its inception. In the early days, she explained, books and artwork were offered for sale. As interest grew, a space was set aside as a gift shop.

Curator Angie Way said the museum tries to offer a lot of reasonably priced items in the gift shop. A current favorite is the mini-rock-collection pencil. The pencil has a vial containing various small rocks from around the world.

"The gift shop is one of the things the kids enjoy most," Way said. "We try to keep things that are unique and educational."

The gift shop keeps many books dealing with history and local color and flavor, Way said. "We're planning to get some specialty T-shirts and craft items from the area," she added.

Some school teachers use the shop to buy incentive gifts for their students. Many of the gift items deal with dinosaurs as they seem to be a perennial favorite of children.

"We have dinosaur gliders and a dinosaur panorama. . . . It's a kind of three dimensional model that they can cut out and put together," explained Way.

A dinosaur "stained glass" coloring book is a big seller. The pages in the book are clear plastic and children use special markers to color them. The finished drawing has the appearance of stained glass when placed in a window.

Most of the inventory, however, is in the form of books. Many are from Texas Monthly Publishers, Eaton Press and Dover publishing, according to Way. "We have books from local authors. We serve, a little bit, as a book store," she said.

The money raised in the gift shop goes into the budget and helps ease the operational funding burden of the museum.

Lovesick Wife's affair brings cycle of despair

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a married man. He has four children. I am also married with two children. I have a great job and appear to be very happy. In truth, I am under great stress, break into tears for no reason at all, can't sleep or eat, and feel that my life is on a roller coaster.

Dear Abby

From the first, we agreed that neither of us would ever leave our spouses and we would not let our affair interfere with our marriages. Of course, that's impossible.

Is it worth it? Of course not. But I'm terrified at the thought of not having him in my life — and I don't know why. We both have loving, caring spouses, so it's not as though we are lonely, abused or sex-starved. Some days I feel as though I'm coming apart at the seams.

How can I break this cycle? "Just break it off" sounds so easy, but I just can't do it. I see him often because we have mutual friends and community activities in common. Please help me.

Sign me... MESSED UP IN MICHIGAN

DEAR MESSED UP: This may sound like a broken record, but you are sick! Lovesick. And the only cure for that is psychotherapy. Yes, counseling. I have long maintained that love is a "mental "disease" — and people can actually become lovesick. You need a therapist to help you become better acquainted with your emotions, and learn how they are tied to your physical desires (love, lust or whatever you want to call it).

You can regain your sanity if you really want to and try hard enough. I wish you well.

DEAR ABBY: You have printed several letters pertaining to this subject, but please print this as a reminder:

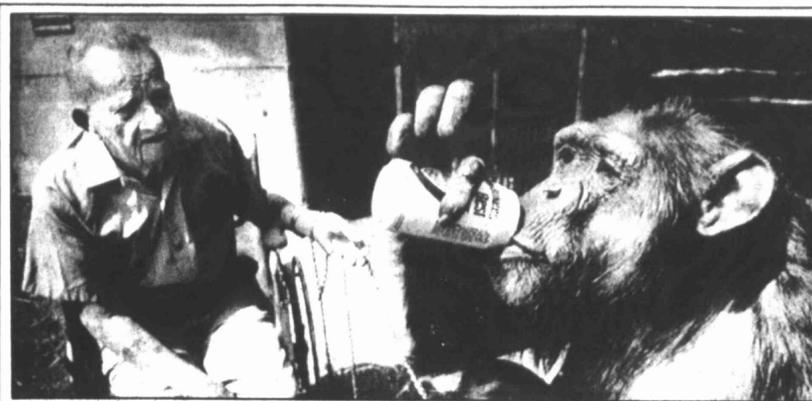

Please, if you are a stranger, do not touch my baby. If you see us walking on the street and you want to see him, do so. Do not grab his hands and play "pat-a-cake"; do not touch his head or try to pick him up. You are a stranger; I do not know you. I do not know if you have any diseases — not just the obvious ones; you may have poison ivy, a cold, you may not have washed your hands, and heaven knows where they have been.

You may admire him, ask me how old he is, smile at him and talk to him, but please do not touch him! I would hate to have to be rude to otherwise friendly well-wishers, but this has been bothering me for quite a while, as I am sure it bothers other mothers. — A FRIENDLY BUT CAUTIOUS MOMMY

DEAR FRIENDLY BUT CAUTIOUS: Your problem is one that has bothered mothers for years. Save the speech. When someone admires your baby and moves toward touching him, quickly and firmly say, "Please don't touch the child. Thank you." And if the would-be toucher is hurt and annoyed, that's his or her problem.

A CHUCKLE OR A GROAN? "Happily, good things come to those Kuwaits." — June Foray Donovan, Woodland Hills, Calif., in The Wall Street Journal.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed two separate applications with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to introduce two new optional directory services. One service is Directory Assistance Call Completion (DACC) and the other service is Multiple List Directory Assistance (MLDA).

DACC is an optional service that provides customers the option of having their Directory Assistance call completed to the requested number (when they call Directory Assistance for a number) by either the Directory Assistance operator or a mechanized audio response system.

The proposed rates* for fully-automated DACC calls are: $.30 if the call is sent paid or billed to a calling card, $1.00 if the call is collect or billed to a third number and $.25 from a coin telephone.

The proposed rates* for semi-automated (operator assisted) DACC calls are: $.85 for calls that are sent paid or billed to a calling card, $1.20 if the call is collect or billed to a third number and $.20 for a person-to-person call.

Multiple List Directory Assistance (MLDA) allows the customer to request more than two listing requests per call to Directory Assistance. Customers can either call "demand" and receive up to 10 listings, or schedule an "appointment" and receive the assistance of a Directory Assistance operator for as long as required. The rates for "demand" MLDA are $.30 per listing request (after applicable allowances), with a maximum of 10 listing requests per call. The rates for "appointment" MLDA are $1.00 per minute, with a 15-minute minimum.

The optional services DACC and MLDA are intended for use by both residence and business customers. Those persons who qualify for exemption of Directory Assistance charges because of visual or physical handicaps will be able to use DACC and "demand" MLDA free of charge. If approved by the commission, DACC and MLDA will be available beginning May 13, 1991. First-year projected revenues for DACC are approximately $9.6 million. First-year projected revenues for MLDA are approximately $1.7 million.

Persons who wish to comment on these applications should notify the commission by May 3, 1991. Requests for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or you may call the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Southwestern Bell Telephone

*The charges for DACC are in addition to the charge for the Directory Assistance Listing (if applicable) and/or any local or intralATA toll charges that would apply to the completed call.

Art competition scheduled at BSHS

The Charles Stenholm Art Competition is scheduled for Tuesday, April 9, from 6:30-7:30 p.m. at the Big Spring High School. Judges will be the Big Spring Art Association, and the first place winner will exhibit in Abilene. Second and third place winners, and the honorable mention winners will compete in the Big Spring Art Association contest, May 4-5.

The BSHS Art Club will also present ribbons, said Revae Pool, art teacher. She said all kinds of art work, including paintings, prints, and drawings of freshmen through senior high school students are eligible to enter.

Students, parents invited to 'college day'

Angelo State University will sponsor a "College Day" April 6 for prospective high school students and their parents. Registration will be at 9 a.m., and the program begins at 10 a.m. and runs through 3 p.m. Registration costs $5 per person and covers the cost of the program and lunch in the university's Food Service Center. For more information, call 915-942-2117.

Big Springers picked as intern finalists

Two Big Spring residents were chosen as finalists for the Intern Programs in Washington D.C. Tamera Jo Burnsed was interviewed in Abilene as one of 10 finalists, but not chosen to be an intern, and Peggy Stiles, a science teacher at Big Spring High School, was chosen as an alternate for the program.

Teacher job fair will be April 25

The annual University of Texas of the Permian Basin Teacher Job Fair is scheduled for April 25, from 4-6 p.m. The Fair provides an opportunity for prospective teachers to talk with area school representatives. For more information, call 915-367-2125.

How does it feel to be hungry?

By PAT SCHUDY and DAVID WOLFF

PAT AND DAVID: You know what it's like to be hungry. How good a hamburger with pickles and onions and mustard sounds when you skipped breakfast and you have a late lunch schedule. How you can't wait some afternoons for hot nachos or a crunchy taco. How your mouth waters for a cool, sweet chocolate swirl.

Five and a half million kids in the United States also know what it feels like to be hungry. Not just because they have late lunch hour, a meeting after school, or are trying to starve off five extra pounds. According to a report issued last week by the Food Research and Action Center, which conducted the extensive study, these kids are hungry primarily because of poverty.

The report targeted children under 12 years of age. It did not indicate how many 13 to 19-year-olds also suffer from lack of food. But that doesn't mean that hunger ends at age 12.

TALK TO US went to high schools in two Midwestern cities to ask students about their experiences with hunger. One of the cities has an urban population with neighborhoods recognized as being at or near the poverty level. The other city, a few miles from abundant wheat and corn fields, has a small population of what sociologists are calling the "new poor." Here's what students from those two cities told us:

15F: No breakfast. Lunch at school, whatever is available on the free lunch ticket. At home most of the time, (I eat) macaroni and cheese. Sometimes nothing. Two to three times a week I go without meals. It's been like this for months. It's embarrassing. You don't want others to know that you're not like them, and you have problems they don't. It's a pain in the gut, knowing that tomorrow you may not get anything.

16M: Hunger leaves a nasty taste of nothing in your mouth and (your) stomach is always turning. I'm still here.

HIGH SCHOOL JUNIOR, MALE: Hunger makes you desperate. Sometimes you'll take anything. It almost makes you want to steal from a store. If you're smart enough, you won't get caught, but it all depends on how b a d y o u w a n t something. ... Everyone says go get another job, but for me it's hard. I don't have a car, and besides no one teaches me how to cook. So I have to go to my best friend's house. He taught me how to make macaroni and he says it's real good.

17F: I usually eat dinner at home whatever is available, sometimes nothing. I go without meals 3-4 times a week. (There's) not enough money to buy more groceries, and I lost my lunch ticket. Getting enough to eat has been a problem for six years. I feel uncomfortable knowing that other people are going out to eat all the time and getting regular meals when I have to go hungry just because I don't have the money to pay for it. What does hunger feel like? Mostly emptiness, sometimes pain in the stomach. But it usually goes away eventually, and I just feel sick for awhile. I'm eating pretty well most of the time now that my family has moved to a house. But I do remember going for weeks at a time on nothing but peanut butter. No one should have to live that way!

18F: I am lucky enough to get food stamps, so I usually buy my own dinners. I usually have Hamburger Helper or something like that. I've learned to make a chicken last a whole week. Usually toward the end of the month I run out of food stamps, so I buy just enough food for my 2-year-old son and I go without, usually not more than 4-5 days, though. I try not to think about (being hungry), but it makes me feel like I'm subhuman, and I don't feel like I have anything to offer, like I'm not as good a person as other people.

I used to think I was hungry when Mom would not let me have in-between snacks when I was a little girl, but now when I say "hungry," it's when the base of my head hurts and I feel like sleeping all of the time, and I get weak, and when I stand up too long, I get dizzy. My stomach hurts and if I don't drink enough water, I start spitting up stomach acid. ... I was raped by my stepfather. I am white. ... He is now in prison. ... Sometimes I wish I was the one in prison with three meals a day, but since I do have my son, I know that I have to stick with it for his sake. My name is (name withheld). P.S. I am homeless.

PAT AND DAVID: What do you guys think about this?

Are you surprised that millions of young people are apparently going hungry in our country?

Do you have friends who are going hungry because they don't have enough money for food? Are you going hungry?

Why do you think this problem exists and what do you think should be done to help?

Shelly Duvall predicts kid's TV boom

NEW YORK (AP) — Imagine bringing together 100 teachers and giving them a television channel. Imagine 200 pedagogic eyes peering into millions of living rooms, looking for homework in actual homes.

A nightmare to many, but a dream to Shelley Duvall. And dreams have a way of coming true for Duvall, the actress-turned-kid-TV maven.

"Why not take the 100 most enlightening and wonderful teachers in our country and put them on television?" asks Duvall.

Television "could become a ver, educational and enlightening babysitter instead of a boob tube. It's happening. It really is happening."

This is news to anyone who has been force-fed Teen-age Mutant Ninja Turtles while keeping a sleepy, watchful eye on would-be Donatello each Saturday morning. But Duvall says the 150-channel cable systems that could make a teacher channel reality are on their way.

And if quality children's programming is the wave of the near-future, Duvall is likely to be riding the crest.

The Shelley Duvall Kiddie Juggernaut began with "Faerie Tale Theatre," a Showtime series of 26 stories like "The Three Little Pigs" and "Rumpelstiltskin" featuring stars she knew from her years as an actress.

Then came "Shelley Duvall's Tall Tales and Legends," a series of nine one-hour stories from American folklore, also starring big names such as Danny Glover, Jamie Lee Curtis and Ed Asner, and also produced for Showtime.

Students place in UIL meet

In the sixth, seventh and eighth grade invitational UIL meet in Lamesa on March 9, Runnels student Mindy Mason placed first for the dictionary skills. Ami Vasanawala, Runnels, placed first and Jennifer Green, Runnels, placed fifth in seventh grade spelling, and Matt Adams, Runnels, was named top scoring individual overall for the seventh grade. The next UIL meet is scheduled for Friday.

Sixth-graders explore in homemade spaceship

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Becky Butscher's sixth-graders in San Angelo are navigating the final frontiers of science aboard their own spaceship.

Butscher's Fort Concho Elementary School classroom is the permanent homeport for the U.S.A. Concho, which students constructed themselves out of sheets of plastic and a fan.

Her students take turns crewing the vehicle when the Concho sets out to reach other students on teaching missions.

"When students pass by, they always want to come in and see the spaceship," said sixth grader Jimmy Yruegas.

"The little ones ask us if we would go out in space with them," added classmate Marc Valdez. Jimmy, Marc and their fellow team teachers, Jessica Echavarría, Monica Rubio and Mario Alamiz, also ran the ship operations for Janet Stastny's first-graders.

The sixth graders discussed such topics as space, stars, planets, space food and how gravity affects a person's weight on different planets.

The sixth grade students calculated students' individual weights on different planets and handed out sheets showing the younger students how to complete the math problems by themselves.

One 55-pound first-grader let out a gasp when he found out he'd be a hefty 137 pounds on Jupiter.

"Most people go to planets where they weigh less, so they wouldn't weigh so much," Jessica said.

The program was a good review for the first grade students, most of whom took a field trip to the Angelo State University Planetarium, Stastny said.

"I liked it. We went up to Mars," said first-grader Angela Rodriguez, as her teacher hugged her.

"We've never been in a spaceship before," said another first grader.

The spaceship has become a dominant part of the sixth graders' program, Butscher said.

The entire class meets in the spaceship for science classes, and one table of students studies in the spaceship each day.

In addition, students get a chance to team-teach science concepts to other students, putting in practice what they've already learned.

"We get to let little kids know things about space that they don't know," Monica said.

VA scholarships available

The Department of Veteran's Affairs has scholarships available for nursing, occupational therapy, or physical therapy students for the 1991-92 school year. These awards are for students in their final year of a two year nursing program, as well as third and fourth year baccalaureate and master's degree students in these programs.

Recipients receive tuition, educational expenses and a monthly stipend of $621. The students agree to serve as a full time registered nurse, occupational therapist or physical therapist at a VA hospital for one year for each year of scholarship support. The maximum length for a scholarship award is two years.

Applications are available in the various departments or the financial aid office at schools with accredited programs. Deadline is May 23. Contact Clyde Hubbard at 264-4822 for basic information, or write the VA Health Professional Scholarship Program, 810 Vermont Ave. NW, Washington D.C., 20420 or call 202-733-3652.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone (SWBT) has filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to offer a new optional service called Family Space Listing.

Family Space Listing is a new optional service designed for residential customers. It will give customers the option to list the names or nicknames of household members within a customized space in the white page telephone directory.

The proposed monthly charge for this service is $7.00. No charge to set up the service is proposed. Customers electing not to subscribe to this optional service will continue to receive their non-discriminatory directory listings at no charge. SWBT anticipates this new service will generate sales of approximately $63,000 in the first year that the service is available. If approved by the Commission, this service will be available beginning May 6, 1991.

This new service will not affect the directory listings that existing residential customers have in SWBT's white page telephone directories.

Persons who wish to comment on this application should notify the Commission by April 26, 1991. Requests for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or you may call the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at 512-458-0256 or 512-458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

MCT sets farce opening Friday

Midland Community Theatre presents Run For Your Wife, a London sex farce by Ray Cooney about a bigamist taxi driver, opening Friday.

The hokum plot with the usual quota of sexual situation comedy includes a mugging incident, two amusingly different plainclothes cops (Chuck Hendrickson and David Whitaker), a newspaper reporter (Dusty Miller) and a variety of mistaken identities. It's astonishingly ingenious in its juggling of misunderstanding piled upon misunderstanding and white lie heaped upon white lie.

On May 3, 4, and 5 the annual Globe Renaissance Fair will be held in the Courtyard at the Globe Theatre, 2308 Shakespeare Road, Odessa.

This family fun fair brings to the Permian Basin traditional Renaissance games, puppets, food and handicrafts. Fourteenth Century costumed Lords and Ladies, Knights and Dames will host the fair featuring Jousting, feats of bravery and archery, booths of food and drink, and handmade arts and crafts. Booth space is available for exhibitors. Contact Mike Gieb, Chairman 332-1586 for additional information.

Three day admission tickets are $4.00 and $2.00. Group rates available.

Midland sets eighth art show

The eighth annual Celebration of the Arts Festival promises to be Midland's largest art show May 3-5. More than 70 artists from throughout the Southwest will exhibit work for show and sale.

Work for the event, according to the sponsoring Arts Assembly of Midland, includes fine art and hand-crafted items in a variety of media. A preview party to introduce the artists will be held Friday, May 3 from 6:30-9:30 p.m.

The festival will occur in and around Midland Center Saturday, May 4 from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. (with a country and western street dance continuing through midnight), and Sunday, May 5 from 12 until 6 p.m. The festival promises a host of children's art activities, including the challenging Human Maze.

'Doctor Who' star Davison attends Dallas fest

By C.A. APPEL
For the Herald

"Whofest '91," now in its second year, brought Peter Davison, star of the 27-year-old BBC series "Doctor Who" to Big D recently.

Sponsored by public television station KERA, the fest drew fans of the long-running show from all over the world to the Dallas Park Plaza Hotel.

But for the "Anglophile" not necessarily interested in "Whovian" fandom, this year's special guest was world renown British actor Davison, most familiar to American audiences as the sometimes bumbling but always loveable veterinarian Tristan Farnon on A&E's "All Creatures Great and Small."

After getting his feet wet in TV there was no going back as better roles came along, including Tristan, playing opposite actor Robert Hardy, well known for his portrayal of Winston Churchill. Hardy enjoyed the interaction of his character Siegfried Farnon with his younger brother Tristan, so Davison's role grew.

When asked how the "realistic" scenes of the country vets delivering cows and doctoring horses, pigs and other livestock were filmed, Davison replied "because it was the real thing."

Filmed mostly on location, local farmers consented for their animals to be used for the production — sometimes the actors and crew would race to a remote location to catch a calf's birth, only to miss it by a few minutes.

Producer John Nathan-Turner had worked with Davison during his "All Creatures" days, and when the much coveted part of "Doctor Who" came open in 1981, Davison was his first choice.

Davison was at first reticent, feeling he was too young at 30 to take over a role that up until then had been played by middle-aged or older actors.

He accepted the part, however, portraying the Doctor as a heroic, but not infallible meddler in the affairs of time and space.

After three very successful years with the popular program, Davison felt it was time to move on before he became stereotyped as the alien time-traveler.

His most recent television role seen in the U.S. has been the PBS filming a British one, Davison was quick to note that there are "differences" but that one method is not necessarily better than the other.

Peter Davison, star of long-running BBC series "Doctor Who" speaks to audiences at the Dallas festival celebrating Whovian lore.

He was pleasantly surprised by some differences in American and British filming practices, including the budgets. Another difference is the use of "stand-ins" in American filming. The usual procedure is for the actors to do a run-through of the scene, then the lights and camera angles are set up with the actors' stand-ins and then the actual shooting begins.

Davison pointed out that British actors have to endure all the technical setups with the respite of a stand-in, but that he preferred it that way. He was quite surprised when Tom Selleek and John Hillerman ran through the scene once, then sat down in their "star" chairs and went through the scene with each of their "personal assistants." Davison was left to sit alone, without another rehearsal, waiting for them to do the take.

"Doctor Who" has been running continuously for the last five years at 10 p.m. Saturday nights on KERA (cable channel 5).

critically acclaimed series "Mystery!" where he has played the ongoing role of the enigmatic sleuth, Albert Campion.

Davison has been in other detective dramas, such as the Miss Marple mystery "A Pocketful of Rye," as the murderer. He may be most recognized in this country in a guest role on "Magnum, P.I." When asked how filming a popular American TV series differs from

Traffic accident claims second life

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Aaron Mitchell, infant son of Russell Mitchell, died today of injuries received in the accident that took the life of his father.

The boy was pronounced dead at 1:30 this morning, according to officials at Shannon Medical Center in San Angelo. He had been in the hospital's intensive care unit since Sunday's accident.

Aaron was in a safety seat, behind his father at the time of the accident. Mitchell's car was struck on the driver's side in a head-on collision with a two-ton truck.

Russell Mitchell died at the scene, and 2-year-old Aaron was transported to Shannon Hospital with severe head injuries. The boy's mother, Tamara, and his sister, Thekla Louise, were treated for various injuries and released. Funeral services for Russell Mitchell took place Wednesday.

The driver of the truck, Kelly Gene Russell, has been charged with involuntary manslaughter and driving while intoxicated. He has been released from the Tom Green County Jail on $5,000 bond.

Funeral services for Aaron Mitchell have not been scheduled. The body was taken to Johnson's Funeral Home in San Angelo.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

• A sexual assault was reported to have occurred on the north side of town. Police were called to Scenic Mountain Medical Center shortly after 10 p.m. where a woman said she had been assaulted. She was not injured, according to a press release.

• Criminal mischief was reported to a white pickup. The vehicle had been marked on with a blue marker in the 1200 block of Dixie Avenue.

• Credit card abuse was reported by a business in the 1500 block of East Fourth Street. More than $180 worth of gas and items were apparently bought with the card, although it was not issued to the user.

• Two guns — a Remington 410 shotgun and a Winchester 20-gauge shotgun — were reported stolen from a home in the 500 block of NW 11th St.

• A theft was reported in the 2600 block of Langley Drive. Tools, a pickup hood and tires were among items taken. Total value of missing property is more than $930.

• A 45-year-old man was arrested for driving while intoxicated, felony offense.

• A 47-year-old woman was arrested on a simple assault warrant.

• A 31-year-old local resident was arrested for driving while intoxicated and revocation of probation.

• A 41-year-old man was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

• A 28-year-old local resident was arrested on a warrant for burglary of a habitation.

• A 25-year-old man was arrested on a theft warrant from Llano.

• Black, aluminum louvers were reported stolen from a vehicle in the 100 block of Marcy.

No-stop toll system planned

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Some day in the near future, motorists in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania will be able to zoom nonstop down highways, over bridges and through tunnels without having to fumble for change for tolls.

Seven highway authorities in the three states Wednesday announced plans to install compatible, electronic fare-paying systems.

The systems, being tested on some bridges in New York and New Jersey, use an electronic card on the motorist's windshield that sends a radio ID signal to toll booths. The toll is then deducted from the motorist's prepaid account.

Cameras will photograph the license plates of motorists who drive through the toll lanes without an ID card. They will get a bill for the toll, plus a ticket.

"No longer will motorists have to worry about finding exact change or waiting in long lines at toll booths," said Michael C. Ascher, president of the Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority, which is testing the system.

The agencies involved said an added benefit would be reduced air pollution because vehicles would not have to idle on line waiting to pay tolls.

The automatic system is expected to be offered to the general public on New York City's bridges and tunnels in 1992. When fully implemented, the system will allow three times as many cars to pass through toll booths in the same amount of time, officials said.

The multimillion-dollar cost will come out of capital budgets at no additional cost to motorists, officials said.

The agencies planning to implement the system serve 37 percent of all toll traffic in the United States.

They are: the New York State Thruway Authority, the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, the New York State Bridge Authority, the Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority, the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, the New Jersey Turnpike Authority and the New Jersey Highway Authority.

area. "I believed he was a very highly respected and competent man," St. Clair said. "He has contacts both nationwide and internationally."

Moore has been working for several weeks to establish a contract with Putnam. The consultant will be retained for a six-month period, and paid on an as-needed basis.

"Either we call him about something, or he calls us when he sees an opportunity," St. Clair explained. The consultant may come to Big Spring at times and will probably be in frequent telephone contact with St. Clair.

City Manager and Airpark Manager Hal Boyd said he was pleased with Moore's decision to utilize Putnam. Boyd, St. Clair and Putnam met Wednesday at the airpark offices.

"I think it's good anytime you can call in the expertise and experience of someone of his caliber," Boyd said today. "It can do nothing but help."

St. Clair said industrial options for the airpark include, but are not limited to, small aircraft manufacturing and maintenance.

"But it might not even be unrelated," he said. "There are many, many possibilities."

The corporation decided to use a consultant for the airpark because it is one of Big Spring's strongest assets, he explained. He said Moore's use of consultants likely will not be frequent.

"We want to focus on actual economic development," he said. "We're more result-oriented."

life," Billings said. "Quernheim made an overt move" by putting his hand inside his jacket, he said. "Of course, he said he never made the move."

Quernheim was carrying a one-liter soda bottle in his right hand and a mug in the other hand, but after being ordered to stop twice, he switched the mug to his left hand and then stuck his left hand inside his jacket, Billings said.

"Probably, what we think, he was going for a couple of hypodermic needles found in the right pocket of the jacket," he said. "Probably, his intention was to get rid of those hypodermics."

Also, just before the confrontation, Quernheim had left a car, which had been pulled over by a sheriff's deputy, and had headed toward a house that the officer did not know belonged to Quernheim's parents, Billings said.

"They didn't have any idea whose house it was. Basically, he wanted to avoid a hostage situation."

The officer and another "Task

Force officer with him had gotten reports Quernheim was armed, Billings said. "They had information that he had a gun. He was making statements that he was going to kill someone and he had something for the police too," he said.

Asked if the Task Force officer had intended to shoot to kill, Billings said, "There isn't any planning to it. All you're doing is just reacting." Quernheim, a passenger in the car, was stopped by a sheriff's deputy at the request of two Task Force officers who arrested him for possession of drugs and burglary. A one-gallon mustard jar containing pharmaceutical drugs was found near the vehicle. A woman driving the car was allowed to drive away, authorities said.

Days after the shooting, Quernheim asked local attorney Bob Miller to look into possible violations of civil rights or negligence in connection with the shooting. Last week, Miller was retained to represent Quernheim on the criminal charges as well.

said. It said the Navy should conduct "a platform-by-platform analysis to determine which can be appropriately opened to women."

Serving at sea, the cornerstone of advancement in the Navy, has been available to women since 1978.

But the most significant expansion of women's opportunities occurred in 1988, when logistics craft such as oilers, ammunition ships and combat stores ships were opened up to them. Women serve on 23 logistics ships.

One problem is that many ships where women serve face the ax in Pentagon budget cuts, Hazard said at a news conference.

But some shipboard opportunities are opening up, she said. Women are barred from serving on Navy frigates, but some frigates are being converted to training craft, allowing women to serve, she added.

More of fleet needs to be open to women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy should open more of the U.S. fleet to its 53,000 enlisted women, whose careers suffer unless they serve at sea, an internal study concludes.

Navy women face "three major problem areas," said the report issued Wednesday by the Navy Women's Study Group. "Their acceptance, their utilization and the equality with which they are treated."

Some 2,500 Navy women served in the Persian Gulf during Operation Desert Storm and "by all reports... their contributions have been significant," said Rear Adm. Roberta Hazard, who chaired the study group.

About 8,200 enlisted women serve aboard 56 of the Navy's 530 ships.

Under federal law, women may not serve on vessels engaged in combat missions. But the Navy can expand career opportunities within that framework, the study group withdrawal of allied troops from southern Iraq and the region and no lifting of economic sanctions.

Earlier U.N. resolutions still in place leave open the possibility of continued allied military action, although that is considered unlikely.

The United States has made it clear that it is anxious to remove its troops from the region and have them replaced by a regional security force and U.N. peacekeepers.

Council members were to meet privately today to discuss calls from France and Turkey to help Iraq's Kurdish and Shiite Muslim minorities, who have faced repression after having postwar uprisings launched from their ranks crushed.

The Kurds, concentrated in Iraq's north, are largely in flight and have massed by the hundreds of thousands on the Turkish and Iranian borders in hopes of crossing. They face severe hardship and lack adequate food and shelter.

The United States has openly encouraged the Iraqi people to overthrow Saddam, and intelligence sources in Washington said Wednesday that President Bush had authorized the CIA three months ago to aid the rebels.

But the White House has refused to supply the insurgents with military aid, even after widespread reports of Iraqi army atrocities against Kurds and Shiites. U.S. officials worried that Iraq could be split apart by the insurgents.

"I do not want to see us get sucked into the internal struggle in Iraq," Bush said Wednesday in Florida.

France has proposed a U.N. resolution that would condemn Iraqi military attacks on Kurdish rebels, demand an end to repression and insist on immediate political dialogue with the Kurds and other Iraqi minorities.

Turkey also was said to be drafting a resolution to help Iraqi refugees. Turkey on Wednesday

Dogs huddle with child lost overnight in woods

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — A 3-year-old girl who wandered away from her home was found safe after spending the night in the woods with the family's two dogs, who provided warmth and companionship.

Katherine George was located, along with the dogs, Wednesday about 1 1/2 miles from her home near the Patuxent Wildlife Refuge.

"The oldest dog — Kaiser — that we found with her appeared to be keeping her warm," said volunteer searcher Tim Craig, Kaiser, a German shepherd, is 14 years old, deaf and partially blind, family members said.

"All she had on was a light jacket," said Capt. Ron Siarnicki, spokesman for Prince George's County Fire Department. "The fact that she was with the dogs, and the dogs maybe huddled with her, that's part of the reason she's all right."

The girl suffered from apparent exposure, but was otherwise unharmed, said county police spokesman Cpl. Mark Polk. She was treated at Children's Hospital in nearby Washington, D.C., and released.

Overnight temperatures had dipped into the low 30s.

Firemen, military personnel and other volunteers combed the wooded area between the farm where the child lives with her family and the refuge.

Katherine wandered away Tuesday afternoon as her father, Ken George, was working in the barn.

She was found asleep 12 hours later beside a fence encircling a landfill.

Cathey out with injury

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Coahoma cowboy Wacey Cathey is having a tough year of it so far on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. Cathey, a 13-time qualifier for the National Finals Rodeo in bull riding, got off to a slow start. His luck got even worse when he suffered a broken collarbone during a ride at the Camrose (Alberta, Can.) Coors Chute Out Rodeo.

Big Spring bowler places in tourney

Big Spring bowler Phillip Ringener keeps earning money on the Professional Bowlers Association tour.

At the $200,000 PBA national Championship at Imperial Lanes in Toledo, Ohio, Ringener placed 16th. He averaged 215.8 per game and in match play he won 12 and lost 12. He earned $2,400 for his effort. Norm Duke of Albuquerque, N.M. defeated fellow Albuquerque native Mike Miller 218-214 in the finals. Miller on $35,000 and Duke won $18,000.

Ex-Lady Hawk has great season

Former Howard post player Shannon Lawson and her new teammates at Stephen F. Austin University had a great year.

The Lady Lumberjacks finished 26-5 and were eliminated in the second round of the NCAA tourney by Virginia, 74-72. Tennessee beat Virginia 70-67 to win the NCAA title.

Lawson, playing a reserve role, averaged eight points and five rebounds. She shot 51 percent from the field and 79 percent from the foul line. SFA finished the season ranked 14th in the nation.

Howard hoopsters in all-star games

Odessa College will host the second annual Junior College Women's All-Star basketball games Friday and Saturday at the OC Sports Center.

The best junior college women's players from Texas and New Mexico will meet in games at 6 and 8 p.m. Friday, the 5th, and at 1 and 3 p.m. Saturday, the 6th. Howard coaches Royce and Lisa Chadwick will coach the West squad. Also playing on the team are Lady Hawks post player Mulu Tosi and guard Cindy Williams.

Saturday night in Midland at 7, two Hawks will be playing in the Texas vs. USA All-Star game at Chaparral Center. The contest will match the best Texas JUCO sophomores against the best sophomores from the other schools in the country.

Representing Howard will be post player Johnny McDowell and guard Harvey Petty. For more information call 335-6431.

Workday scheduled at NL diamond

This Saturday there will be a workday at the National Little League baseball field starting at 9 a.m.

All coaches, managers and parents are asked to come out and help get the field ready.

White Sox take chance on Jackson

NEW YORK (AP) — If Bo stays healthy, he could earn as much as $8.15 million over three years plus award bonuses from the Chicago White Sox.

But if the 28-year-old outfielder doesn't come back from his hip injury, the White Sox are obligated to pay him only $700,000 under the deal agreed to Wednesday.

According to contract information obtained by The Associated Press, Jackson would make $1.5 million in 1991, $2.9 million in 1992 and $3.75 million in 1993 if he earns all the performance bonuses available in the deal.

Richard Woods, Jackson's agent, said he was approached by approximately 12 teams.

"It wasn't important to Bo that this wasn't an auction," Woods said. "Money was not the first thing we were concerned with."

Chicago general manager Ron Schueler said "he'll be reimbursed very, very well" when he plays, and the contract includes "shared risk by both parties."

In 1991, Jackson can earn $10,000 for each game available up to 80 (Jackson is not expected to play during the first half of the 162-game season). The club option for 1992 is for his 1991 earnings less $100,000, and includes bonuses of $10,000 for each game available up to 150. The 1993 option is for his 1992 earnings plus bonuses of $10,000 for each game available, with a $3.75 million maximum.

The 1992 salary would become guaranteed if Jackson is available for 40 games this season, including

Howard cowgirls hoping to make their move

By GARY SHANKS

The Howard College Womens Rodeo Team is getting in some last minute practice before the regional rodeo tonight.

Returning powerhouse Jody Heath, from Lorena, is the only member of the team that competed last year when the Howard College team took second in the nation.

Heath joins Jamie Bean and Julie Driver, both freshman, to form the competing women's team for Howard.

Heath currently holds the number three spot in the region in barrel racing. Driver, a native of Greenwood, is fourth in the region in goat tying. Bean, of Fort Hancock, is tied at the number five spot in barrels.

Other women on the Howard College team will be competing individually. They are: Aimee Medlock from Iola, Cheryl Kallina from El Campo, Kippy Kuykendall from Valley Springs, LaDawn Puckett from Sweetwater, Molly Mauch from Taft and Angie Pendlly from Leakey.

Big Spring is host to the sixth regional rodeo in this year's 10-rodeo, regional circuit. The Howard College team will be going up against such teams as Eastern New Mexico University, Vernon Regional Junior College, Tarleton State University, Texas Tech and Odessa College.

This rodeo is crucial to the team. Although they are ranked sixth, the title is still up for grabs with half the season remaining. Points are tight in the top ranks for the women's race. "One good rodeo, and we could be right up there," said Howard College Rodeo coach Bobby Scott.

The Howard College team competes with 19 other schools for the Southwestern Region Title. Heath will compete in the barrels, goat tying and breakaway roping. Driver does the goat tie and breakaway and Bean competes in barrels, breakaway and the goat tie.

Fans will likely see some intense rodeo action as the Howard College team must come out swinging if they are to gain the lead in the Southwestern Region.

There will be four rodeos after this one. When the points are tallied, the top two teams, and the top two riders from each event will go to the national finals in Bozeman, Mont.

The rodeo begins tonight at the Big Spring Rodeo Bowl at 7:30 and will conclude Sunday afternoon. Tickets at the gate are $3 for adults and $1 for children.

And the walls came tumbling down

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox' one-time Field of Dreams is being turned into a parking lot.

Speedway Wrecking Co. crews on Wednesday began the task of knocking down the walls of the oldest stadium in major league baseball to provide parking for the newest park, also named Comiskey, across 35th Street on the city's South Side.

Boos resounded from scores of fans — clad in business suits, work clothes and even a clown costume — who showed up at 10 a.m. for the first swing of the wrecking ball against the outer right-field wall of the 81-year-old stadium.

Then the crowd broke out in the familiar Comiskey ditty, "Na-na-na-na, Na-na-na-na, Hey, hey, hey, goodbye!" from the song by the band Steam.

The old stadium, named after former White Sox owner Charles Comiskey, who built the ballpark in 1910, is a treasury of memories — the first exploding scoreboard, the majors' first All-Star Game, Babe Ruth's home runs.

It was home to Shoeless Joe Jackson and controversial club owner Bill Veeck, who dreamed up the scoreboard exploding with fireworks. Joe Louis fought there for the heavyweight title in 1937. The Beatles banged out tunes in 1965.

"I'm saddened. My grandfather brought my dad here, my dad brought me here, and I brought my kid here," said Ray Janisch, 35, a Chicago plumber.

Accountant Ted Kramer, 54, said he and the old stadium have been through a lot together.

"I've been coming here since the 1940s," he said. "We've both suffered through all these years."

On Wednesday, a sign reading "Speedway Wrecking. The Hardest Hitters of All Time" hung over the main entrance of old Comiskey Park. It will take the heavy hitters six to eight months to complete the job.

CHICAGO — Unidentified souvenir hunters use any means available to break up and carry away bricks from an exterior wall at Comiskey Park Wednesday. The 80-year-old park is being torn down prior to the White Sox opening the 1991 season in the new Comiskey Park located across the street.

But some souvenir-hunting fans tried to help the demolition along by using sledgehammers and poles to loosen bricks on the top of a back wall that wasn't being watched by security people. They were chased away by an angry Speedway official.

The demolition job began on the same day two-sport superstar Bo Jackson signed a contract in Sarasota, Fla., to play for the White Sox if he is able to come back from a serious hip injury.

As the destruction of the old Comiskey's walls began, members of the media got a tour of Comiskey II, a $150-million, state-of-the-art facility receiving the final touches before the April 18 home opener against the Detroit Tigers.

Since March 1, Speedway has been tearing down the inside of the old park, leaving little more than the walls.

The seats are long gone, selling for $250 apiece, with the proceeds going to charity.

The grass is at a city park. The infield dirt is across the street at the new park.

Some community groups tried in vain to save the original Comiskey from the wreckers, and efforts are still under way to salvage a part of it for a small memorial plaza and park on the site.

"Their precious parking lots are all saved," said Mary Connell, 44, of the grassroots group known as Save Our Sox Field of Dreams. "Just because we're building a new ballpark doesn't mean we have to obliterate every trace of the old one."

But the players are not all that choked up about moving to a new park.

"The old Comiskey was old," Carlton Fisk said. "It just didn't provide things players and fans want and that progress has allowed. This new park has the proper facilities for the baseball team and the fan who comes."

Deion, dad sharing the spotlight

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Mims Sanders, father of Atlanta Braves and Falcons star Deion Sanders, bit a detective's finger before police removed a small piece of crack cocaine from his mouth and charged him with possession of the drug.

Sanders, 48, was ordered held on $5,000 bond and remained in the Lee County Jail Wednesday, Lee County Sheriff's spokeswoman Geraldine Poole said. His arraignment was set for May 3.

Sanders was arrested Tuesday night after detectives spotted him riding with another man who was driving his van erratically through a known drug-trafficking area, Poole said.

At the same time the elder Sanders made his first court appearance, his son Deion was making big news. The Braves announced Deion "Prime Time" Sanders will be their starting left fielder and leadoff hitter, making him only the second pro athlete to play football and baseball in the same city, on the same field.

Deion Sanders was not immediately available for comment on his father's arrest.

After the two men were stopped, detectives went back to the motel where the elder Sanders was staying for a pad-down search, Poole said.

The other man, who was not identified, was not carrying cocaine and was released. However, a sheriff's sergeant noticed a small amount of cocaine on Sanders' tongue and ordered him to spit it

Richardson will stay put

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Basketball coach Nolan Richardson said today that he is staying at the University of Arkansas.

Richardson met with Tulsa officials on Wednesday night. Richardson coached at Tulsa for five years before succeeding Eddie Sutton at Arkansas six years ago.

"Last night I looked at the situation at Tulsa," Richardson said in a release from the UA sports information office. "I owed it to myself and my family to take a look. Tulsa's presentation was very good but in what I am looking for in coaching and administration, I'm convinced Arkansas is where I will be."

"We have wonderful memories of our days at Tulsa and the fans there were very good to us but we have had tremendous support at Arkansas. The fans and administration at the school have been very supportive of us."

"After having time to think about what I wanted to do, the people of Arkansas played an important part in my decision. Looking at the Tulsa job had nothing to do with Arkansas. My appreciation for the fans at Arkansas and their support of the program has never changed."

Richardson's meeting in Tulsa ended shortly before 8 p.m. and he drove back to Fayetteville. After the meeting, he said no offer was made.

"I just feel that it is time for me to go back to Fayetteville and just have a good night's sleep, a few prayers, and then let everybody know what Nolan's going to do."

Foyt ready to get back on race track

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt is putting the pedal to the metal for the first time since nearly losing his legs in a crash last September.

Foyt was to test his nerve and strength today with a few spins around the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where he plans to compete in his record 34th consecutive and final Indianapolis 500 in May.

"It seems like it's been forever," Foyt said Wednesday. "I'm here not to try to break any speed records. I'm here just to ride around."

Foyt hopes to convince himself that he can still handle the 2½-mile oval at speeds of more than 200 mph. He has ordered the track closed to the public and media today and Friday. He'll go public with another test Saturday.

A.J. FOYT

"If it's not a go, it's just not a go," Foyt said. "We're not going to cry over spilled milk."

"I just hope we run well. I know we've got a lot of catching up to do."

Making a comeback at 56 was the last thing Foyt had in mind when his brakes failed in a race last September at Elkhart Lake, Wis.

His car slammed into an earthen embankment and broke in two. The accident shattered his legs and convinced many observers his career was over.

"After looking at the car, I can't believe I've still got both legs and both feet," the four-time Indy 500 champ said.

"There's no way I shouldn't have lost one or the other. No way."

The injuries left him with "by far the worst pain I've ever had in my life," and Foyt said it still hurts to drive a car on the highway.

Since Foyt's legs were put back together by Dr. Terry Trammell at Methodist Hospital here, he does five to six hours of therapy a day at his Houston home. After testing at the Speedway, he will head to Phoenix to attempt qualifying for the Valvoline 200 Indy-car race on April 21. If successful, it will be his only race before returning to Indianapolis.

Although he has said the May 26 race will be his final Indy 500, he doesn't like the reminders.

"This is just another race to A.J. Foyt, not my last race," he said. "Naturally I hope I can win the damn thing and walk away and say the hell with it, but there's going to be 32 other guys that got the same idea."

His comeback is more to ensure his physical well-being, Foyt said, than for the money or the attention.

"It's been an awful lot of hard work," he said.

Texas Relays underway

AUSTIN (AP) — Kym Carter of Oregon International collected a record 3,669 points Wednesday to grab the early heptathlon lead during the first day of the 64th annual Texas Relays.

Henrik Dagard, who is competing unattached, rolled up 4,140 points to take the lead in the decathlon.

Carter dominated Wednesday's field events, winning both the high jump and the shot put. Her shot put effort of 48-10¹/₄ was a Texas Relays record and was good for 854 points. Carter was also fifth in the 100-meter hurdles and seventh in the 200-meter dash.

Brigham Young's Anu Kaljurand was second to Carter with 3,526 points while capturing the hurdles.

Rockets blast Mavericks; pull closer to division lead

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hakeem Olajuwon was brilliant throughout, while Mark Eaton had just one shining moment, further squeezing the tight Midwest Division.

Olajuwon keyed Houston's 102-86 victory over Dallas Wednesday night with 22 points and 22 rebounds. Karl Malone had 39 points and 12 rebounds for Utah in a 99-97 win over the Los Angeles Clippers that wasn't sealed until Eaton, who was scoreless, blocked Ron Harper's shot in the final seconds.

The two outcomes left first-place San Antonio with a half-game edge over both the Rockets and Jazz in the Midwest. The winner of the division will get the second seed in the Western Conference playoffs, while the second- and third-place finishers probably will not even have homecourt advantage in the first round.

"We're stacking them up one by one," Rockets coach Don Chaney said of Houston's 15th victory in 16 games. "Things are going good. We've got a stretch coming up now that will be tough. As the games get tougher, maybe our players will get tougher."

"I'm happy with my game. Our whole team has made it easier for me by the way they are playing," said Olajuwon, who had 17 points and 12 rebounds at halftime and then helped the Rockets put down a 20-6 spurt by the Mavericks in the third quarter.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Cleveland 95, New York 84; Philadelphia 107, Indiana 104; Seattle 106, Sacramento 91; and Golden State 127, Miami 114.

Olajuwon got 20-plus rebounds for the sixth time this season and Vernon Maxwell led Houston in scoring with 27 points. Dallas lost for the 12th time in 15 games and extended its road losing streak to seven games.

The Rockets, who never trailed, led 52-35 at halftime after leading 41-21 in the second quarter.

"They're an extremely big team inside now," Dallas center James Donaldson said of the Rockets. "The reason they're playing well is they are not worried about missing shots. They get the offensive rebounds and their fast tempo gives them easy opportunities."

Houston increased the lead to 62-41 with 8:47 to go in the third quarter before the Mavericks, who got 20 points from Rolando Blackman, outscored the Rockets 20-6 to close to 68-61 with 2:21 left in the period.

Jazz 99, Clippers 97
 At Salt Lake City, Malone scored the last five points of the game in the final 2:07 as Utah rallied to snap Los Angeles' five-game winning streak.

The Clippers led 97-94 on a jumper by Charles Smith with 2:24 left, but Los Angeles didn't score again. Malone tied it with 2:07 to go with a three-point play after he was fouled by Smith, then broke the tie with a jump hook with 1:36 left, the final points of the game. The Clippers rebounded the ball with six seconds left to Harper, whose baseline jumper was blocked by Eaton.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Utah Jazz forward Karl Malone (on floor), collides with Los Angeles Clippers Winston Garland (12) while fighting for a loose ball in NBA action Wednesday night.

Eaton said Jeff Malone, Harper's man on defense, was screened away from Harper, leaving him in the corner alone.

"I hesitated for a second, but he looked like he was going to put it up," Eaton said. "I just tried to get out there and get a hand in his face and bother him a little, and I managed to get a little bit of the ball."

The loose ball was retrieved by Karl Malone, preserving the victory that snapped a three-game losing streak.

Jeff Malone scored 22 points for Utah. Harper led the Clippers with 26 points, including four 3-pointers. "We aren't playing as well as we should be," Jeff Malone said. "But we can't worry about it. We have to keep scratching and fighting. We have some crucial games coming up in Dallas and Houston."

SuperSonics 106, Kings 91
 Seattle brought Sacramento within one loss of the NBA record for consecutive road defeats as Shawn Kemp and Eddie Johnson scored 20 points apiece and Kemp grabbed 14 rebounds as the Sonics outrebounded the Kings 58-36. Antoine Carr scored 29 points, keeping the Kings, 1-36 on the road with 33 consecutive losses this season, in contention through three quarters.

The NBA record for consecutive road losses is 34 by the New Jersey Nets in 1989-90 and 1990-91. Sacramento would tie that mark with a loss at Los Angeles against the Clippers on Sunday, and the Kings' next road game after that is April 15 at Minnesota.

The Kings led 66-64 on Duane Causwell's dunk with 5:25 left in the third quarter. The SuperSonics then took control with a 16-4 spurt that gave them an 80-70 lead early in the fourth period.

Warriors 127, Heat 114
 At Oakland, Golden State clinched a Western Conference playoff spot as Chris Mullin scored 12 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter and Tim Hardaway had a career-high eight steals against Miami.

The Warriors clinched only their third playoff appearance since 1977, but second in three years since Don Nelson became head coach. They are 8-0 in three seasons against the Heat.

Miami, trailing by 20 points at halftime, closed to 104-102 with 6:25 remaining. But the Warriors responded with an 11-2 spurt for a 115-104 advantage with 3:05 to go.

Hardaway finished with 20 points with 13 assists for the Warriors.

Spotlight

Continued from page 1-B out, according to the arrest report. Sanders allegedly refused, saying "No, I've already swallowed it," the report said. But the sergeant saw a small piece remained on his tongue and tried to grab it out of his mouth. Sanders then bit his finger and detectives wrestled him to the floor before recovering the cocaine, the report said. Detectives also found a rock of crack and a pipe for smoking the drug inside a black 1990 Corvette registered to Deion Sanders and parked at the motel, Poole said.

The Corvette was released to Deion Sanders' mother, Connie Knight, because authorities couldn't determine who owned the crack and pipe, the spokeswoman said.

The elder Sanders' record includes three previous drug-related arrests, as well as three counts of grand theft and several counts of passing bad checks, according to the Naples Daily News.

Jackson

Continued from page 1-B 30 after Aug. 31. If not, the White Sox have until March 10 to exercise the option, or Jackson has until March 15 to convene a panel of three doctors who will certify he is able to play.

The 1993 salary would become guaranteed if Jackson plays 125 games in 1992. If not, the White Sox have until Dec. 20, 1992, to exercise the option.

"Late over the weekend Bo told me what he wanted," Woods said.

"We talked concepts and language with the White Sox on Monday." In addition to his salary and performance bonuses, Jackson can earn the following award bonuses: — $50,000 for election to the All-Star team ($25,000 for selection). — $100,000 for Most Valuable Player ($90,000 for second, $80,000 for third and down in $10,000 increments to $10,000 for 10th). — $75,000 for Most Valuable Player of the playoffs. — $100,000 for MVP of the World

Reba with new group

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Reba McEntire performs tonight in Cleveland with her new group in their first concert since seven band members and her tour manager were killed in a plane crash. McEntire and two band members were not aboard the private plane that went down March 16 in California after a concert in San Diego. McEntire, voted female vocalist of the year four times by the Country Music Association, sang last week on the Academy Awards show, but without her new band. Her current album, "Rumor Has It," has sold 1 million copies.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

FRIDAY, APRIL 5, 1991

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Strong allies and a feeling of freedom boost your spirits. Be patient with an inexperienced person. Let other people follow their own paths. Romance must be allowed to develop at its own pace.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your financial fortunes should take a turn for the better. Your well-known charisma gains your attention you want for your innovative ideas. Romance will be on a smoother course next fall. Listen to your heart. Greater harmony at home will let you make swifter progress at work. Employment prospects brighten next December. Do not let an excess of modesty prevent you from achieving your full potential.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can pursue your plans more forcefully now without jeopardizing a professional relationship. Making a definite commitment to a team effort will both brighten your day and fatten your pocketbook.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Keep a low profile today. An old grievance at work is finally resolved. Do not let a financial disappointment get you down. A loved one's attitude cheers you up. Stay home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lay the groundwork for a promotion or a raise by showing more initiative at work. You can get an important project off the ground with minimal interference. Call your loved ones regularly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The financial picture shows decided improvement. You can overcome a roadblock and forge ahead with a special professional or personal project. Travel may be part of your day's plan.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An injustice will outrage you. Take action. An artistic project you complete on your own helps dispel the blues. You reap new psychological rewards. Trust your instincts in romance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Someone may try to pull a fast one. Postpone signing a long-term agreement until more facts are available. Get better organized so you can participate more fully in collaborative financial ventures.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make a special effort to complete old projects before initiating new ones. Take an indirect approach with a difficult customer. Far-off friends will appreciate a newsy letter.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An upsurge in energy is indicated. You should be able to acquire some valuable financial assistance. Keep a closer watch on everyday spending. Not a good day to sign long-term agreements.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not throw away recent gains for vague possibilities. Finish old business before launching new ventures. Examine your beliefs and values. You must not compromise your principles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Maintain a low profile and keep an eye on long-term investments. It may be time to jump off the romantic merry-go-round for some fresh air. Widen your circle of friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your ability to concentrate is enhanced by someone's absence. Talks concerning joint investments, bills and businesses are likely to go well today. A romantic partner's decision could surprise you.

Scouting topic of Monday meeting

Residents are invited to attend a meeting Monday at the Martin County Community Center to discuss the possibility of bringing a Boy Scout program to Stanton.

The meeting is set to begin at 7:30 p.m., with a representative from the Buffalo Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America on hand to explain what is involved in beginning and maintaining a scouting program.

Refreshments will be provided.

Senate approves smoking measures

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has voted to prohibit smoking, except for designated areas, in state buildings and at state public meetings.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said state agency heads already have authority to designate smoking areas but his bill sets uniform standards.

The bill specifies that a common work area divided only by partial walls is not suitable for a designated smoking area.

Senators on Wednesday also approved a bill that restricts locations for cigarette machines. The machines would be allowed in bars, lounges or private facilities, according to a written bill analysis.

Both measures were sent to the House on voice vote.

A third bill forwarded to the House on voice vote provides for appointments in the temporary absence of a county judge or commissioner.

Environmentalists blast amendment

AUSTIN (AP) — A state Senate committee approved a bill tightening restrictions on hazardous waste permits, but an amendment placed on the measure essentially killed the whole effort, environmentalists said.

Sen. Steve Carriker, who authored the bill, said Wednesday he would fight to remove the amendment by Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria.

Carriker's original bill would have placed a moratorium on hazardous waste permits until the Texas Water Commission establishes new rules on the permit process.

Those new rules, as outlined in Carriker's bill, would have given local communities more say in where the waste dumps are located, and required permit applicants to prove they are financially and environmentally sound.

Gov. Ann Richards has been a strong supporter of such a moratorium, and of tightening rules on permits.

Under Armbrister's amendment, however, all pending applicants prior to Sept. 1 will not have to abide by the new restrictions, said Carriker, D-Roby.

Midland man: Growth to help area economy

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ Staff Writer

A Midland city official said Tuesday that his city's growth will have beneficial effects on the Stanton economy as well.

Assistant City Manager Rick Manchaca told the Stanton Noon Lions that the 1990 census report shows that Midland is in a growth period that will also help the Stanton economy.

Manchaca made the comments at the Lions weekly meeting at the Martin County Community Center.

"With Midland's growth, Stanton and other communities will stand to gain because people that move to Midland want and look for that small-home town environment," Manchaca said.

"Many people moving to Midland see Stanton as a place to get away from the traffic congestion and larger schools... but at the same time they like to stay close enough to a larger town," he added.

"Stanton is in a perfect spot to benefit from this type of population increase we have enjoyed," Manchaca said. "The community will attract tourists who enjoy museums and historic sites."

Manchaca stated that he is involved in two important projects. One is the expansion of the Midland-Odessa Airport from four gates to six.

"With just two more gates added to the airport, we will be able to bring more airlines to service the area, thus bringing more people to the area and more jobs as well, which will benefit the entire area," he said. "Stanton will tend to gain more than other areas because of its close location to Midland-Odessa."

Bill repealing state taxes tentatively approved

AUSTIN (AP) — Just talking about taxes won't hurt, says the sponsor of a bill tentatively approved by the Senate, which would repeal all state taxes on Sept. 1, 1994.

Sen. Carl Parker said his measure "would force us to have the courage to talk about taxes, would force us to put it out there in the cold light of day."

Wednesday's tentative approval, 22-9, was viewed as a move by the Senate to gain attention from the House and taxpayers for a broad review of taxes, which could include promotion of a personal or corporate income tax.

Parker said he would not seek final Senate passage immediately because of questions raised by some senators, including the impact of the bill on Texas' billion-dollar bond market.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, noted that the Legislature would meet again in regular session in 1993 before the bill would become effective.

He said the proposal should send a "strong message to the House and a strong message to the people of Texas that the time has passed for not having an effective tax policy in this state — it's time... that we looked at the whole picture all at once."

Parker told reporters the repeal would extend to some city taxes, but would not cover local property taxes.

He said a tax equity study committee had been created that is "well-suited to tell us what taxes can stand alone on merit and which can't, and whether or not we can state."

But Brooks, D-Pasadena, asked, "Members, are you ready for a $31 billion tax bill in 1993? Are you ready for the collapse of the bond market, and it will occur."

Brooks also said tax repeal, without substitute taxes in place, would cut off federal matching funds for such programs as Medicaid.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, said Parker's proposal "is one of the most demagogic ideas of all time," and would cause the bond market "to drop out of sight."

Parker, however, gained support from Sen. John Montford, chairman of the Finance Committee, who described Texas' current tax system as being from the "horse and buggy" era.

"This is a rare opportunity to catapult this state into the next century with a tax system that adjusts and grows with the economy," said Montford, D-Lubbock.

"I think it's a gutsy idea," he told Parker.

U.N. awaits response to resolution

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. diplomats say they're confident the burden of trade sanctions will compel Iraq to accept their tough cease-fire terms, and have turned to considering how to protect Iraq's rebellious minorities.

The resolution for a permanent cease-fire in the Persian Gulf War, overwhelmingly approved by the Security Council on Wednesday, is unique in U.N. history because the world body has never before set peace terms after a war.

Iraq's ambassador, Abdul Amir al-Anbari, called the resolution "outrageous" and a violation of international law that would destabilize the region. But he did not reject it.

He said a formal response would come in several days from Saddam Hussein's government. The decimation of Saddam's army in the war over Iraq's invasion of Kuwait makes further Iraqi military adventures unlikely for years to come.

Man indicted on fraud charges

AMARILLO (AP) — The former president of First State Bank of Miami has been accused in a 22-count federal indictment of conspiring to embezzle more than $40,000 of life insurance commissions.

Max Ray Faulkner was indicted Wednesday on two counts of conspiracy, one count of bank fraud, nine counts of embezzlement and misapplication of bank funds, as well as 10 counts of making false entries in bank records.

If convicted on all counts, Faulkner, 58, would face a maximum penalty of 110 years in prison, fines totaling $5.5 million and more money in restitution.

The indictment culminates an investigation begun in 1989 by the FBI, authorities said.

According to the indictment, between 1983 and 1986, while a director and president of the Panhandle bank, Faulkner and Eugene Hobart Fatheree, another bank director, defrauded the bank through a series of loans to customers.

Faulkner allegedly caused loan proceeds to be paid to Fatheree for his personal use.

Terms

The cease-fire resolution would provide additional insurance against Iraqi aggression by forcing the country to destroy its chemical and germ weapons, nuclear capability and most of its ballistic weapons.

It also would exact compensation from Iraq.

As Iraq implements the resolution's provisions, the embargo on trade with Baghdad would gradually be lifted. A U.N. ban on conventional arms sales to Iraq would, however, remain in force.

U.S. Ambassador Thomas R. Pickering called the resolution "tough, but fair," and said it was in Iraq's self-interest to comply.

If Iraq does not comply, there will be no formal cease-fire, no withdrawal of allied troops from southern Iraq and the region and no lifting of economic sanctions.

Earlier U.N. resolutions still in place leave open the possibility of continued allied military action, although that is considered unlikely.

The United States has made it clear that it is anxious to remove its troops from the region and have them replaced by a regional security force and U.N. peacekeepers.

Council members were to meet privately today to discuss calls from France and Turkey to help Iraq's Kurdish and Shiite Muslim minorities, who have faced repression after having postwar uprisings launched from their ranks crushed.

The Kurds, concentrated in Iraq's north, are largely in flight and have massed by the hundreds of thousands on the Turkish and Iranian borders in hopes of crossing. They face severe hardship and lack adequate food and shelter.

The United States has openly encouraged the Iraqi people to overthrow Saddam, and intelligence sources in Washington said Wednesday that President Bush had authorized the CIA three mon-ago to aid the rebels.

But the White House has refused to supply the insurgents with military aid, even after widespread reports of Iraqi army atrocities against Kurds and Shiites. U.S. officials worried that Iraq could be split apart by the insurgencies.

"I do not want to see us get sucked into the internal struggle in Iraq," Bush said Wednesday in Florida.

France has proposed a U.N. resolution that would condemn Iraqi military attacks on Kurdish rebels, demand an end to repression and insist on immediate political dialogue with the Kurds and other Iraqi minorities.

Turkey also was said to be drafting a resolution to help Iraqi refugees. Turkey on Wednesday said it closed its borders to most of the refugees.

Iran said it was accepting both Kurdish and Shiite refugees — and asked for international assistance to help provide for them.

U.N. intervention in Iraq's domestic strife is prohibited by the U.N. Charter.

But U.N. diplomats said that the massing of 200,000 Kurdish refugees on the Turkish border and the spillover of refugees into Iran and Turkey could represent a threat to international peace and security — the only condition which legally justifies U.N. intervention.

The cease-fire resolution was adopted by a vote of 12-1, with two abstentions. Cuba voted against it and Ecuador and Yemen abstained.

It was supported by the United States, Britain, China, France and the Soviet Union — the permanent council members with veto power — and Austria, Belgium, Ecuador, India, Ivory Coast, Romania, Zaire and Zimbabwe.

The resolution is the 14th adopted since Iraq invaded Kuwait last Aug. 2. It is the longest and most detailed resolution ever adopted by the council, which on Nov. 29 authorized the use of force to drive Iraq from Kuwait.

The resolution gives the United Nations unprecedented power to oversee the destruction of Iraqi armament.

It empowers the United Nations to guarantee the 1963 Iraq-Kuwait border, which Iraq now rejects, and to help demarcate the border. It also calls for U.N. military observers to patrol that border.

The resolution holds Iraq liable to pay compensation for all the human, property and environmental damage caused by its occupation of Kuwait.

The United Nations would administer a compensation fund into which Iraq would pay an unspecified portion of its future profits from oil exports.

Extension news

 County Extension Agent/HE

Martin County Extension Homemakers are hosting a Home Tour from 2-4 p.m. Sunday in Stanton. Tickets are on sale for $3 at the county extension office and from club members and can be purchased at the homes on the day of the tour. Proceeds will go to purchase a stove and refrigerator for the 4-H program.

Homes to be featured are the residences of Ricky and Laura Fleckenstein (404 Mason); Johnny and Carla Peugh (South of FM 846); and Robert and Janie Hunt (North of FM 846). Maps are available at the county extension office.

The Fleckenstein home is a new three bedroom, two bath, double car garage home. The decor is charming, especially the Mickey Mouse nursery.

The Peugh's home is a new multi-level log home. Built into the side of a hill, the house is partially below ground level, thus maximizing prairie construction. The Peugh's are hog farmers, so Carla has chosen to use a country decor that features the irresistible "pig."

The home of Ricky and Laura Fleckenstein, shown here, will be featured during the annual Stanton Home Tour Sunday from 2-4 p.m.

You will not want to miss the Hunt's home. They have done a fabulous job of remodeling. Janie's pride and joy is her kitchen. The play room and sun room are done in Southwest decor while the rest of the house is European Country.

Won't you join us on the Home Tour? Help the 4-H'ers and at the same time have a wonderful time as three families share their home with you.

Programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages, regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

CR cover requirement changes

The rule was that producers participating in the Acreage Reduction Program for a program crop were required to plant 50 percent of the required ACR by June 1.

This rule has been rescinded and you do not have to plant your cover on ACR acres by June 1. The county committee strongly recommends that you plant a cover on ARC, CU and CU for Pay Acres.

Land designated as ACR must have been devoted to row crop, small grain, perennial, biennial or another annually planted crop in one of the last five years. Land chosen for ACR must also meet some size and width requirements:

The minimum unit is five acres and should average at least one chain, 66 feet wide. However, entire permanent fields of less than five acres may be designated for ACR, and one area per farm which is smaller than the minimum may be designated to complete the balance if an ACR requirement.

Haying and grazing provisions

Haying and grazing of ACR and CU for Pay is allowed in Martin County from Sept. 1-March 31. Haying and grazing of ACR and CU for Pay is not allowed during the period of April 1-Aug. 31.

1991 small grain certification

Do not forget the final date to certify all small grains is May 1, regardless of the use. Farms with a small grain base and no small grains planted, need to certify to zero acres to protect your bases.

Small grains may be left standing, if, before the disposal date of May 1, you pay a minimal fee of $10.

Tolerances

There is no tolerance on measurement service. Tolerances is the larger of 1.0 acre or 5 percent of the reported acreage, not to exceed 10.0 acres.

Payment limitation

The basic limitation for deficiency and diversion payments is $50,000 per person. Other payments for benefits such as the portion of deficiency payments attributable to a reduction in the statutory loan rate ("Findley" payment), loan deficiency payments and gains from marketing loans, except honey, are limited to an additional $75,000 per person.

The total payment limitation is $25,000 per person. May 1 is the date for determining the status of individuals for entities in applying in 1991 maximum payment limitation requirements.

Program contracts binding

Contracts signed by program participants are binding after the sign-up period and provide for liquidated damages for failure to comply with program requirements. Liquidated damages are compensation for damages to Commodity Credit Corporation for the producer's failure to comply with the terms and conditions of the applicable wheat, feed grain, cotton, and rice program contracts.

Reminders

CRP producers are reminded that they need to look at their CRP land and determine if weed control will need to be carried out on their contracts. If there are weeds coming up that will blow on neighboring farms or will suppress grass growth and establishment, some type of weed control will need to be carried out this year.

For those CRP producers who will be seeding grass this year, you are reminded that the grass must be seeded by June 1. You might consider applying chemicals for weed control ahead of seeding. Please turn your bills in to our office as soon as possible following seeding.

Eligibility for participation in all programs administered by ASCS is established under law without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex, marital status, mental or physical handicap.

Plant officials report contamination

PAMPA (AP) — Officials at the Hoechst Celanese chemical plant in this Panhandle city have released test results showing that benzene, a cancer-causing chemical, has been found in the Ogallala Aquifer just below the plant.

Jim Thompson, a field operator with the Texas Water Commission, said Celanese officials notified him

Wednesday that benzene levels of 500 parts per billion were found in a monitoring well on the southeast side of the plant.

Thompson said the reading is 100 times higher than the level considered safe for drinking water (five parts per billion).

But Thompson said the benzene site was not near any drinking water wells.
