Moore Community schedules reunion

The 29th annual Moore Community Reunion is scheduled for Saturday, April 27, in Garrett Hall of the First United Methodist Church, 400 Scurry St., from 2 to 5:30 p.m. All current and former residents, ex-students and anyone who was affiliated with the community are invited to attend. The Moore Community is located approximately 5 miles northwest of Big Spring. The reunion period is from 1906 to 1949, when the former school building burned. Sixty-one teachers served during the 43-year period. "Teachers, board members, former students, their families and descendants have managed to keep the spirit of the community alive," said Lawrence Adkins, reunion president. A brief program will be presented. Other activities include singing, visitation and refreshments.

Absentee voting begins today

Absentee voting in area city council and school board elections for May 4 began today and will continue through April 30. City council positions are contested in Big Spring, Coahoma and Stanton. There are contested school board seats up for election in the Coahoma Independent School District, Forsan ISD and Grady ISD. Polls will be open May 4 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

PAC receives excellence award

Jackie Henry, director of the Personalized Achievement Center for Big Spring Independent School District, received a $20,000 check for the school, a certificate of appreciation and recognition, and an Excellence Flag from Gov. Ann Richards in a special ceremony Saturday in Austin. PAC and BSISD were rewarded, along with 37 other Texas schools, for its student retention and drop-out recovery program by the Governor's Excellence Award committee in March. Henry said the ceremony lasted about one and half hours, and a reception followed in the Rotunda at the Capitol. She said the district is considering purchasing computer programs, hardware and software, for PAC. And there are plans to purchase a sign for the center. "This will go directly back into the student programs. Except for the sign, but we feel it's important for people to know where we are," Henry said. The center is located at 421 Main St.

HAJ ORAMAM PASS, Eastern Iraq — Kurdish refugees fleeing from Iraq walk in an endless line along the Haj Oramam pass towards Iran and safety. Hundreds of thousands of Kurds are heading for the Turkish and Iranian borders on foot or in any vehicle they can find.

Severity of attack against Kurds surprised officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration is acknowledging it failed to anticipate the severity of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's response to an uprising against him by his country's population of Kurds. "One of the things we perhaps did not anticipate was the severity of Saddam Hussein's attack against the Kurds, with possibly the intention of solving his Kurdish problem by driving them out," President Bush's national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, said Sunday.

Entire villages of Kurds began leaving northern Iraq in late February after Kurdish rebels failed to defeat Saddam's forces. Since then, tons of relief supplies have been airdropped and trucked to an estimated 2 million Iraqi Kurds huddled along the Turkish and Iranian borders or fleeing toward those nations. "What we could have done is perhaps preposition more supplies in Turkey," Scowcroft said on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley" television program. "Perhaps we could have marginally improved that." Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., said on CNN's "Newsmaker Sunday" that the administration's "very serious mistake... was to totally misjudge events subsequent to the cessation of hostilities." Meanwhile, Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" show that the relief effort should eventually be taken over by an international agency. "We clearly are not going to withdraw and end the effort in a

Local schools go smoke-free fall semester

By MARSHA STURDIVANT Staff Writer

Big Spring Independent School District goes totally smoke-free, beginning in August, 1991. The Region 18 Service Center applauded the efforts of the district, along with three other school systems, and presented William McQueary, superintendent, with a certificate of recognition Monday.

Cathy Harris, Region 18 school health specialist, said the certificate is in honor of the district promoting positive health behavior in students and staff.

"This shows us they are concerned with prevention of disease in students during their formative years, both by promoting positive health behavior in the classroom and with the school staff. The staff is being an influential role model for those positive health behaviors for their students," Harris said.

Bill McQueary, superintendent for BSISD, said the district conducted a survey early this school year, to determine the opinions of all employees concerning smoking on the campuses.

"We received a substantial amount of the surveys back, about 65 percent responded. When we tallied, we found we had a consensus of employees who wanted to go smoke-free. Across the nation, as the movement ground-swells, to include hospitals, schools, public places, we felt like the time had come," he said.

He said the survey also found non-smoking employees sympathetic toward persons addicted to nicotine, and recognized the hardship of kicking the habit. In answer to this understanding, the district started its first stopsmoking program Monday night. "We felt it was imperative to begin a smoking cessation program at the school board's expense. The board felt moved about this, and passed a resolution, and by next August, a program must be set up," he said.

The Smoke Enders program from Midland Memorial Hospital was chosen by the board to be offered to employees free of charge. Spouses have also indicated interest in participating, at their own cost, and more than 40 employees are expected to take part in the first program, McQueary said. "They (Midland Memorial Hospital) said they will open this up to the general public, because they felt this sort of thing has been neglected in our area," McQueary said.

Blankenship and Memorial stadiums will not be smoke-free. The board decided trying to eliminate smoking in outdoor facilities was too hard to control. "But that is the only exception," he said.

McQueary said one of the reasons for the smoke-free environment is the need for teachers to provide role models for students. In 1984, the state eliminated smoking areas for students, and he pointed out the disparity between the two rules.

Monahans, Midland and Ector County ISDs were also recognized by Region 18 for no-smoking policies beginning in August.

The first class for Smoke Enders meets in the Big Spring High School library at 6:30 tonight. For more information about the program, including cost, length, and payment plans, contact the representative there.

If you haven't filed it's almost too late

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attention dawdlers, laggards, procrastinators and everyone else who has a very good reason for not yet filing a tax return: your time's about up.

If you don't intend to burn the evening oil tonight, better ask for an extension. But take comfort. Those smug early filers will have to work just as many days this year as you will to pay all your taxes — a record 128.

Tax Freedom Day will come May 8, the private Tax Foundation announced today. That is the latest date on record for the mythical point in the year at which the average worker is estimated to have earned enough to settle accounts with federal, state and local tax collectors.

That date last year was May 5. The three-day lengthening was the largest since 1976 and could get worse, the foundation predicted.

"The combined pressures of a persistent federal budget deficit, demands to expand funding for new and existing programs, budget crises in numerous states and the slowdown in income growth could easily make Tax Freedom Day even later on our calendars in future years," the foundation said.

Meantime, the Postal Service and Internal Revenue Service prepared to receive as many as 27 million returns this week — many of them being dropped into collection boxes close to tonight's midnight deadline.

In many areas, the IRS' toll-free telephone lines were open extra hours to handle last-minute questions. Many post offices stationed clerks at curbside to receive returns from motorists. In other places, the enterprising attempted to turn the unpleasant chore into a social event.

A brass quintet was ready to serenade late filers at the main post office in Cincinnati. A radio station promised free stamps in front of the main post office in Houston. In New York City, the Postal Service offered longer hours and announced that painkillers and antacids would be available in front of the big James A. Farley post office.

Freedom day later and later

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is how Tax Freedom Day has changed over the years.

The day is the Tax Foundation's way of dramatizing how Americans are affected by federal, state and local taxes. For 1991, the date is estimated to be May 8, meaning that if every dollar earned during the first part of the year were earmarked for taxes, the average worker would be paid up on May 8.

The figures assume individuals pay all taxes, including those collected from corporations.

Jet on list to tear down

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

The Jet Drive-In movie theater will be among 19 properties to be considered for abatement by the Big Spring Board of Adjustments and Appeals at a meeting Tuesday at 4 p.m. at City Hall.

The theater, located at 2710 Wasson Road, is owned by the Mary Hathcock and Lee Otis Rogers Estate of Midland, according to city information. Trustee Dr. Glen Rogers, a Midland orthodontist, said today that there are "no plans" for the structure at this time.

Assistant City Manager Tom Decell said no cost estimates have been prepared for demolition of the drive-in, but the process is expected to be very expensive.

At a recent meeting with city staff, Rogers and a developer said they are working on a "marketing plan" for the Jet, Decell said.

When contacted at his office this morning, Rogers said, "We really have no plan. We don't know what we're going to do with it."

"The developer and owner indicated they need some time," Decell said. The two are expected to speak to the board at the planned meeting.

Asbestos panels were used in construction of the structure. The panels, known as "regulated nonfriable" asbestos, are not as easily crumbled and are less likely to expose workers to the reportedly carcinogenic dust. The panels do present possibility of contact when broken, Decell said.

Although there have been some potential ideas expressed for use of the structure, Decell said it will probably be demolished.

"It's a symbol of a bygone era," he said. The theater's closure date is uncertain, although city estimates are the early 1980s. Howard County tax records show the value of the structure's improvements valued at $92,000 in

Public invited to see one-act play

The public performance of the Big Spring High School one-act play, "The Crucible," is scheduled for Thursday, April 18 at 7:30 p.m., Tim Haynes, drama teacher, announced Friday.

Admission to the Regional-bound University Interscholastic League play is $2 for adults and $1 for students and children. These student performers have advanced in each round of UIL competition thus far this year, and will attend the regional competition in San Angelo April 19.

The public is invited to view the play and support the students before their next competition, Haynes said.

Houston's lawyers may be out of order

HOUSTON (AP) — A state Supreme Court justice says Texas lawyers are getting a little too rowdy and need to learn some manners.

In Houston, a lawyer accused an opponent of stealing a notebook containing his strategy for their trial. Two lawyers screamed at each other during a deposition. Another grabbed his adversary by the throat and threatened to toss him through a window.

Texas Supreme Court Justice Eugene Cook is traveling around the state, lecturing on proper courtroom decorum. "We're trying to get lawyers to get away from these Rambo, hardball tactics," Cook said. "L.A. Law" is not our role model.

Cook said the legal profession has lowered its standards of conduct in the courtroom and during trial preparation. "They think if they can be the meanest, rudest, ugliest kid on the block, they'll get more business," Cook said.

In a non-scientific poll conducted nationwide last year, 56 percent of 1,018 lawyers questioned cited obnoxiousness as the quality they liked least in their colleagues. Another nationwide poll in 1988 revealed that 95 percent of 200 state and federal judges surveyed thought lawyers used the discovery process to intimidate or up the ante for their opponents.

Jurists like Cook have devised a variety of methods for handling unethical, overzealous or rude lawyers.

The lawyer accused of notebook-stealing offered to withdraw from the case. U.S. District Judge Norman Black accepted the offer. The lawyer said the item was accidentally put among his files, but Black said he would consider imposing monetary sanctions after the lawsuit was resolved.

State District Judge Dan Downey ordered the two attorneys who yelled at each other during the deposition to submit handwritten essays on professionalism.

Preparation starts to defend school bill

AUSTIN (AP) — As the clock ticked away today to the latest, and probably last, court-ordered deadline, legislators hoped their newest plan to equalize school funding in Texas would satisfy court criticisms.

Gov. Ann Richards signed the bill into law today just 30 minutes before attorneys were due in court to present the plan to state District Judge F. Scott McCown.

Two weeks ago, the last time the state was in McCown's court, he issued a stern warning: Reform the school finance system so that all children are treated equitably. In case the state failed to come up with a plan, McCown told a state education official to be ready with a revised plan developed last year by a court-appointed master.

Faced with the ultimatum, the Legislature on Thursday adopted a plan that shifts hundreds of millions of dollars in local property tax revenue from wealthier to poorer school districts.

The plan is estimated to cause a $400 million increase in local property taxes, and cost the state an additional $1.3 billion over the next two years.

It's a new step, and a frightening one for some Texans, and it's not guaranteed that the approach will pass court muster because it still allows wealthier districts to supplement the minimum levels.

Some critics have called the plan socialistic, a claim that ruffles Senate Education Committee Chairman Carl Parker.

"It just crawls all over me for somebody to describe that as socialism," he said.

"Socialism is where the state owns the means of production, and tries to make everybody equal in what they have," said Parker, D-Port Arthur.

"What this does, it takes the wealth of the state as a whole, and tries to give every citizen an equal shot or opportunity to have the same level of education."

The Texas Supreme Court has

"It just crawls all over me for somebody to describe that as socialism. Socialism is where the state owns the means of production, and tries to make everybody equal in what they have."

State Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur

twice, unanimously, ruled the school finance system unconstitutional and told lawmakers to even out education funding available to rich and poor school districts.

The current $14 billion-a-year school finance system relies on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money. School districts' reliance on their own local property tax revenue results in huge discrepancies in available funding.

The bill approved last week by lawmakers would set a minimum tax rate and shift local property tax revenue from wealthier to poorer school districts within new education regions drawn largely along county lines.

The redistribution of local tax money is difficult for wealthier school districts, although they do not have to share money they raise over the minimum tax level.

The state makes up the difference if poor school districts taxing higher than the minimum cannot raise a certain amount of money to enrich programs.

But without substantially more money from a state tax increase — difficult to come by when the state already is facing a multibillion-dollar state budget shortfall — lawmakers said they could not equalize school funding without redistributing local property tax revenue.

Intruder shot dead

DALLAS (AP) — A man brandishing a knife terrorized worshippers at a Dallas church before a congregation member fatally shot him.

Members of Afrikan Bible Fellowship Church said the assailant visited the church several times Sunday before the unidentified member fired a shotgun shortly before noon, shooting the man in the head as the intruder forced his way into the building.

The church member was questioned by police and released. The case will be referred to a grand jury, said police, who would not release his name.

The man who was shot to death was identified by police as Howard Rivers Jerry, 40, of Dallas, a cab driver.

"This kind of insanity characterizes our community," said the Rev. Patrick Williams, minister of the church. "That's why we're here. That's why we're not leaving."

The incident began about 10 a.m. Sunday when the knife-wielding man entered the church and began menacing people sorting groceries for the congregation's food cooperative, said church member Deborah Williams, the minister's wife.

The man had left and returned several times before church services began about 11 a.m. But when he attempted to return after the service began, congregants tried to block the church entrance.

That's when the intruder allegedly pulled a knife and lunged at church members. As he leaned forward, he was shot.

Neighbors press issue of day care

HOUSTON (AP) — Some homeowners in Houston are complaining that operators of in-home day care centers are invading their neighborhoods and disrupting their lifestyles.

But others say residential child-care services are preferable to institutional surroundings and that children are anything but a disruptive force in the neighborhood.

City officials are embroiled in a debate over whether family homes registered to provide child care should be permitted to operate in neighborhoods where deed restrictions bar businesses.

The Houston City Council deadlocked last week when it tried to decide whether to back proposed state legislation granting the homes an exemption from deed restriction.

The argument boils down to a highly sensitive political question: If a choice has to be made, should protecting property values or providing child care take precedence?

Worried about creeping commercialism, various neighborhood associations have been moving to crack down on operators of family homes registered to provide child care. In most cases, the operators are women who keep children for parents who work outside the home.

The associations are trying to enforce deed restrictions intended to protect the values of their homes and the residential character of their subdivisions. The restrictions range from governing the types of improvements homeowners may make in their houses to barring the operation of businesses in homes.

In the absence of zoning, deed restrictions have served to protect neighborhoods. But in perhaps half of Houston's subdivisions, deed restrictions are no longer in effect.

That's where such homes should confine their operations, say spokesmen for the forces who want to keep these services out of their neighborhoods.

But Kathleen Rowland, executive director of Initiatives for Children Inc., said, "we've found that people much prefer to have their children cared for in their own neighborhood with children they'll go to school with later."

Gail Williford, president of the Houston Homeowners Association, however, said, "I think the sentiment of the majority of our members is clearly that they're real leery of something that allows businesses in neighborhoods."

"We understand the societal need for child care, but we have tremendous concern after a long-fought battle to allow us to protect our residential communities."

'47 Texas City tragic disaster to be recalled

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — A new park and historical monument will be dedicated on the 44th anniversary of the chain of blasts that killed hundreds and still ranks as one of the worst industrial accidents in U.S. history.

The monument, which will include a huge, jagged propeller salvaged from the wreckage of the SS High Flyer, the second of two ships that exploded in the Texas City Port in April 1947.

Officials will dedicate the park and monument on Tuesday.

"The city approached us with the idea of putting up a park in the area," said Ken DeMaet, president of the Texas City Terminal Railway, which owns the port. "We hope it will be completed within the next 30 days. We've been working like beavers for the past couple of weeks."

The Galveston Historical Commission several years ago decided to seek a state historical monument to place near the site where more than 500 people were killed and thousands were injured. Property damage was estimated at more than $200 million.

The High Flyer's 18-foot-tall, 29,500-pound brass propeller is being moved to a new perch on the park site. The propeller was found in a Louisiana scrap yard several years ago and brought back to Texas City, where it was dedicated as a memorial to the victims in 1987.

The historical marker is being erected beside the propeller. DeMaet said.

Report: Confusion in FmHA appeals

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high level of disarray and confusion plagues the Farmers Home Administration's handling of loan appeals, congressional investigators reported today.

Rep. Bob Wise, D-W.Va., who released a General Accounting Office report on FmHA appeals procedures, said the agency's problems extend from its Agriculture Department headquarters to county offices throughout the United States.

"It is obvious that the management of the appeals process at FmHA is in disarray from top to bottom," Wise said. "With thousands of appeals being filed in a multibillion-dollar portfolio, it is absolutely essential that the FmHA get its act together."

The GAO study involved just three states — Arkansas, Mississippi and Texas — in which about half of the decisions by FmHA field offices were reversed or modified upon appeal.

In all, the GAO looked at 1,369 appeals of farm and housing loan decisions in the three states from July 1988 through December 1989. It also checked the appeals record of minority clients.

Minorities accounted for 350 of the appeals, and non-minorities 1,019. As of April 1990, hearing officers had issued decisions on about 52 percent of the minority appeals and 58 percent of the non-minority.

"Overall, the data indicate comparable rates of reversals for minorities and non-minorities," the report said. "Hearing officers reversed about 43 percent of the prior loan decisions for minorities and about 50 percent for non-minorities."

According to the GAO, the investigative arm of Congress, the agency frequently used outdated or "otherwise inaccurate" appraisals of land and equipment used as collateral by farmers seeking FmHA loans.

The second main reason for reversal was said to be FmHA's failure to service borrowers' loans properly, such as issuing timely or accurate delinquency notices.

Wise, chairman of the House Government Operations subcommittee on government information, justice and agriculture, said the FmHA's total loan portfolio last fiscal year was about $43.3 billion, with more than one-third delinquent.

King depressed since being beaten

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Since his much publicized beating by police, Rodney King fears for his life, is dejected by the damage to his looks and avoids television reports about the incident, his ex-wife and doctor say.

"He's depressed. He's scared," Dennetta King said.

"He's depressed because they beat him like that and he feels that his manhood has been taken, and he's scared because he doesn't know if they're going to try to beat him up again or kill him or what."

Ms. King said she speaks with her ex-husband, who has since remarried, about twice a week.

King, a 25-year-old construction worker, has stayed at a series of private homes since the March 3 beating, which was videotaped by a plumber trying out a new video camera. The tape was broadcast nationally and caused a furor.

King, in the meantime, has filed an $83 million claim against the city.

King's attorney, Steve Lerman, hired security guards to watch out for King, who limits his outings to medical visits, and then with a cane and wheelchair.

Lerman said he has refused to allow reporters near his client.

Implant makers must prove safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — Manufacturers of silicone breast implants have until early July to prove they are safe as regulators await results from a study of a possible link between two widely used brands and a cancer-causing agent.

Results of a laboratory study on implants made by Surgitek and marketed under the trade names Meme and Replicon are expected to be available within a week or two, a spokeswoman for the Food and Drug Administration said Sunday.

The product consists of silicon coated with a polyurethane foam to avert development of painful and unsightly lumps.

The FDA study concerns the potential breakdown of the polyurethane coating to a chemical known as 2-toluene, or TDA, which causes liver cancer in rats.

Skinner to meet with union leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner is meeting with leaders of railroad unions before asking Congress to intervene and head off a crippling coast-to-coast strike.

Aides said Skinner was to meet with the unions today after marathon bargaining sessions convened over the weekend by the National Mediation Board proved fruitless.

"No deals were struck over the weekend," said a source close to the negotiations.

Skinner, who said last week the Bush administration would ask Congress to intervene to head off a crippling rail freight strike if the talks fail, had met previously with representatives of the railroads.

Gun control debate

dominates convention

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Debate over proposed federal gun control legislation dominated the National Rifle Association annual convention, where the powerful lobbying group tried to generate support for a handgun bill it prefers.

As an alternative to the so-called Brady bill, which would require a seven-day waiting period before handgun purchases, the NRA is backing a bill requiring immediate criminal background checks and no waiting period.

"We oppose the Brady bill because we feel it violates Americans' constitutional right to purchase a firearm and have it when they may need it," association spokesman Tom Wyld said.

The bill was named for former White House press secretary James Brady, who was seriously wounded during the 1981 assassination attempt on President Reagan. Spearheading the push for its passage is Handgun Control Inc., led by Brady's wife, Sarah Brady. Reagan, an NRA member, recently endorsed the Brady bill, much to the chagrin of the organization.

The association claims more than 2.5 million members and has long been among the strongest lobbies in Washington. Despite that strength, a House Judiciary subcommittee last week approved the Brady bill.

The bill the NRA supports is sponsored by U.S. Rep. Harley Stagers, D-W.Va., and is patterned after a Virginia state law. The federal bill would establish a toll-free telephone check system using Justice Department information.

The NRA's 120th annual meeting, which ended Sunday, was attended by about 20,000 members and more outsiders than usual monitoring the convention because of the gun control debate.

As always, the convention featured appearances by Hollywood celebrities, including Charlton Heston, a longtime NRA supporter.

Pan-European bank inaugurated

LONDON (AP) — Leaders of 30 nations gathered today to inaugurate the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development, which is dedicated to uniting East and West Europe in a free market system.

The London-based bank will function as both a development and a commercial lending institution. It plans to use 60 percent of its $12 billion in capital to finance private sector projects and the rest to the public sector.

After 18 months of planning, the bank can begin lending money to rebuild the economies of Eastern European countries committed to democracy.

The bank's grand mission has won it many admirers, but there also are skeptics who predict it will hardly make a dent in what is a trillion-dollar, highly complex job.

Prime Minister John Major and President Francois Mitterrand of France were to speak at the inauguration ceremony.

Also attending were Soviet Prime Minister Valentin Pavlov, European Commission President Jacques Delors, Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel and Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir of Israel.

Inadequate gas masks distributed

JERUSALEM (AP) — One-third of the gas masks distributed to Israelis during the Persian Gulf War did not provide sufficient protection against chemical attack, a state comptroller's report says.

Among the inadequate masks, which were defective or improperly fit, were many issued to infants and children, the report says.

State Comptroller Miriam Ben-Porat criticized both the army and government for their failure to protect the population and called for an independent inquiry into the nation's gas mask supply.

Her conclusions were made public in mid-March, but the full report was kept secret until its release on Sunday.

After the report was released, Israel swamped radio talk shows to voice their anger. Several said they felt betrayed by the government.

Georgia creates strong presidency

ZVIAD GAMSAKHURDIA

TBILISI, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Georgia has moved ahead of the other independence-minded Soviet republics by creating a presidency with sweeping powers that its leader says will strengthen its international standing.

The parliament of the southern republic voted Sunday to create the post and it elected Zviad Gamsakhurdia, its current leader, to serve as president until a May 26 election.

It was the first concrete step taken since Georgia declared its independence from the Soviet Union on Tuesday.

The bold step moves Georgia further along the road away from Moscow.

Congress debates fuel economy, highway safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saving oil vs. saving lives.

As Congress considers whether to require automakers to dramatically improve the fuel economy of new cars the debate is expected to focus less on energy conservation and more on highway safety.

"We need not, and should not, choose between safety and fuel economy. We can have both," insists Sen. Richard Bryan, D-Nev., chief sponsor of a bill that would require new cars to have an average fuel economy of 40 miles per gallon by 2001.

His views are echoed by many environmentalists and some leading auto safety advocates. They contend that fuel efficiency can be improved dramatically without making cars smaller and that whatever reductions there are in size can be compensated for by new safety devices and tougher federal safety standards.

But auto industry executives and Bush administration officials argue that the only way to meet Bryan's fuel efficiency standards would be to make cars smaller and lighter, compromising their safety.

Since the late 1970s, the government's Corporate Average Fuel Economy requirements have resulted in a doubling of new-car fuel efficiency from an average of nearly 14 mpg to about 28 mpg for each automaker's product line. Many lawmakers see the potential for additional fuel savings in the decade ahead — if Detroit is prodded by Washington.

Bryan's legislation requiring a 40 percent boost in fuel economy is awaiting Senate floor action after clearing the Commerce Committee by a 19-5 vote. Similar bills are before the House.

Opponents are focusing on the safety issue in hopes of derailing the legislation.

Energy Secretary James Watkins has dubbed the Bryan bill the "National Highway Death Act" and Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner maintains it would "undermine this country's progress in highway safety."

President Bush has said he opposes any unrealistic fuel economy increases and is being advised to veto the Bryan legislation if it passes.

Meanwhile, studies showing a link between fuel economy and safety are being circulated on Capitol Hill.

"My heat pump's so efficient it saves money. And it's a clean system. I like what it means for the environment."

—Elta Chandler
Park Board Member

Elta Chandler cools and heats her home with a heat pump because it saves money and energy. And since it's electric, it's "wonderfully clean."

A heat pump uses the energy in the air to keep her home comfortable all year. Even on cold winter days there's heat in the air. A heat pump captures that heat and uses it.

And it costs less to operate than a gas furnace. It's so efficient that for each unit of energy it uses, it creates two to three units of heat.

In the summer a heat pump becomes a high-efficiency air conditioner, capturing the heat inside the home and removing it.

For more information, call a heat pump dealer or TU Electric. It's your chance to save more than money.

War not over in Iraq

It has been a month since the war in the Persian Gulf ended, and yet for much of the dissident population of Iraq, the war rages just as furiously as it ever did. For ethnic Kurds in the north of Iraq and Shiite Muslims in the south, perhaps the war is worse now than it was during the 100-hour allied ground assault and the weeks of bombing from the air, ground and sea that led up to the ground battle.

Today, thousands of Iraqis, members of these groups that oppose Saddam Hussein's Baath Party, are dead, killed by weapons turned on them by Iraqis. Hundreds of thousands are near starvation on the borders of Iran and Turkey.

What has the United States done to help these people? Nothing. Read George Bush. "I feel frustrated any time innocent civilians are being slaughtered, but the United States and the other countries in this coalition did not go there to settle all the internal affairs of Iraq," he said.

Largely as a result of Bush's success, the Kurds and Shiites in Iraq had been afflicted with hope for the first time in a long time.

The United States and the United Nations did not create the problem, but we and they created the instability that led to this slaughter. We bear responsibility. To fail to respond to the despair of these people now is callous and illogical.

The Westerly (R.I.) Sun

Bush should be surprised

President Bush says he is surprised at the criticism his administration is getting for not rushing to the rescue of Iraq's Kurds, whose rebellion against Saddam Hussein is being crushed so brutally. So, apparently, is Secretary of State James A. Baker III, who got a firsthand look at the human tragedy unfolding in Kurdish refugee camps as a result of the latest outrage perpetrated by the Iraqi regime.

Bush and Baker shouldn't be — and neither should the many other administration officials who, in the weeks and months leading up to the Persian Gulf War, went to such great lengths to demonize Hussein in countless official statements and anonymously sourced news stories. The most vivid — but by no means only — examples were Bush's constant comparison of Hussein to Adolf Hitler.

No doubt Bush and his aides still believe they had legitimate reasons for using such powerful language in denouncing Iraq's dictator. They were trying to prepare American opinion for a war they had concluded was inevitable but which they feared could be bloody. But sometimes when things are said for the benefit of American public opinion, others are also listening outside the country, and react according to their own perceptions and hopes. That's what happened with the Kurds. Did (the Bush administration) really expect them to understand the nuance of diplomatic double talk?

Administration officials are correct when they point out that the record clearly shows that no U.S. spokesman ever promised this country would help overthrow Hussein. But let's be realistic: When you compare a man to Hitler and leak news stories that state flatly how glad we'd be if he were ousted from power, that's little more than the proverbial wink-and-nod. It was a signal that somebody should take this ruler out, with the arguable implication that we'd be there to help if push came to shove.

But if the history of this war-torn century teaches anything, it is that all wars — even when they are as relatively brief and successful as the liberation of Kuwait — have unintended consequences. Americans can only be sadly thankful we are not suffering as painfully as the Kurds.

Poisoning the groves of academe

WASHINGTON — Let this much be conceded to the racists who are promoting remedial racism at American colleges and universities: Our institutions of higher learning have indeed been remiss in teaching cultures other than Western culture. No other concessions need be made.

These comments are occasioned by the appearance in March of the most important work of non-fiction in many months. It is "Illiberal Education: The Politics of Race and Sex on Campus," by Dinesh D'Souza. The book is restrained, temperate and devastating.

D'Souza's purpose is to expose corruption. He examines intellectual rot at four representative institutions, but his observations could be widely extended. He looks at Stanford University, Howard University, the University of Michigan and the University of California at Berkeley. He finds patterns that are deeply disturbing — patterns of deceit, self-deception, unwarranted guilt and the very best intentions.

Let us stipulate: The intentions of the deceivers are good intentions. They wish to protect black students (and Jewish students, Asian students and women students) from the harm that is done to them by "insensitive" remarks. Because they perceive many political positions as wrong, they would impose new positions that are politically correct.

The reformers desire to replace traditional courses in part with untraditional courses — with courses that would place heavy emphasis upon the cultures of Africa. They would send many dead white male poets into exile, and replace them with writers of obscure reputation or no reputation at all.

All this would be done in the name of "diversity" or "multiculturalism." The restructuring of curricula would be accompanied by a restructuring of the student body itself. At Berkeley this has taken the form of unabashed racial discrimination: Highly qualified white and Asian students are rejected so that less qualified blacks may be enrolled. Administrators make no bones about it. The policy is deliberate. Quotas must be met according to the color of one's skin. If this be racism — and it is — then let critics make the most of it.

D'Souza defines the movement as "a new cultural imperialism."

The noun stems from the Latin root of imperare, to command, and it is in this spirit of dominance that the corrupters have gone to work. If there is insufficient authentic African culture to meet the demands of self-esteem, then culture must be borrowed from ancient Egypt. No black pharaohs? A few must be invented. Not enough first-rate women poets? Let second-raters be taught instead.

The inevitable consequences of this lunacy are as regrettable as the misguided motivation. Sadly, the principal victims are the black students themselves. Those who are genuinely qualified for college work are lumped with blacks who are there solely by reason of their race. Which are which?

Damage also is done to the whole concept of higher education. The theory is to expose inquiring young minds to the experience of knowledgeable old minds, and together to let students and their professors pursue truth to its lair. At its best, this is an exciting experience, but the process will work only in an atmosphere of reason and civility. When student radicals break down the door to the dean's office, reason and civility fly out the window.

D'Souza makes another damage assessment. A part of the rationalization for discriminatory admissions is that whites should learn to get along with aspects of black culture. But one lamentable consequence of the new imperialism is that racial incidents seem to occur more frequently than ever. Black students tend to cling together. The manifest hostility of black radicals, fueled by the notion that all whites are inherently "racist," is bound to inflame white students.

This is the third book in two years to treat the same problem. "Tenured Radicals," by Roger Kimball, offered dismaying insights into the politicalization of the humanities. "The Hollow Men," by Charles J. Sykes, covered the ground with particular attention to Dartmouth. D'Souza's work encompasses the whole field.

Nothing is wrong, and a great deal is right, about "diversity" and "multicultural" teaching. As the planet shrinks, all of us will have to deal in some fashion with alien cultures. True diversity has great appeal to those who love individual freedom. But first things first. When Milton is exiled because Milton is a sexist, students of English literature are being shortchanged.

Writing tickets not the best solution

To the editor:
To me, the many parking violation tickets that were issued to visitors to the Arts and Crafts exhibits at the Dorothy Garret Coliseum is another typical example of the irresponsibility of our city management. These tickets were issued to motorists who unknowingly parked on the north side of Kentucky Way. That the "no-parking" signs are not readily seen at many locations was obvious by the solid line of cars parked there most of the time. Issuing a large number of tickets to the cars already parked there certainly didn't solve anything other than making motorists irate. How much better it would have been if our city management had used common sense or even intelligence! Had an officer or two gone there early and for the rest of the day immediately told motorists that started to park there to please find another location, the problem could have been avoided.

When I was chairman of the traffic commission, this same complaint was brought to us by those living on the north side of Kentucky Way. We explained that to alert motorists, especially at night, we should at least paint the curbing red. It was our understanding then that residents didn't want this. Their main concern at that time was motorists blocking their driveways, with little if any help from the police. However, since this law was passed, and if it must be enforced, let's do so with some sense to achieve the end result desired. As a bare minimum, we should paint the curbing along the north side of Kentucky Way a bright red. When you enter Kentucky Way from the west, you are usually looking south for parking. Therefore, let's put up some large signs here reading, "No parking on the north side of this street." During times of congestion, bright orange cone markers could be placed in the street where cars are not supposed to park. In other words, there is a right way and a wrong way to approach any problem. Just writing tickets can be, as the saying goes, "a cop-out!"

A woman can choose to say 'no'

By BETTY JOHANSEN
Copy Editor

When I was in fifth grade, I was required to memorize the poem "Your Flag and My Flag" by Wilbur D. Nesbit. I remember pacing up and down alongside Mother's clothesline and thrilling to the words I was memorizing.

The second verse says, "Your flag and my flag! To every star and stripe/The drums beat as hearts beat/And fifers shrilly pipe! Your flag and my flag./A blessing in the sky./Your hope and my hope —/It never hid a lie./Home land and far land/And half the world around./Old Glory hears our glad salute/And ripples to the sound."

I loved the poem. I loved the flag. And I loved the country it represented. So it was a rude awakening 12 years later when the Supreme Court of this incomparable nation decreed women could legally kill their preborn babies.

I used to lie in my bed at night, staring at the ceiling, trying to understand how a woman could destroy her own helpless child, how she could want to destroy her child. Then I would get up and wander around my bedroom, trying not to think about mothers aborting babies. And the pain in my gut was almost unbearable.

I was in medical school in those days. One of my courses was embryology, the study of the developing human being. One thing I learned is that life is a continuum from conception to death. There is no sudden beginning of life at some point five or six months into a pregnancy. Conception marks the beginning of each new person.

Abortion proponents like to refer to the developing person as a "fetus," as if fetus is a term that excludes humanity and dignity, but fetus refers to the stage of life from eight weeks to birth. It is a term like "baby" or "adult," which describes a period of development, not an exclusion of humanity.

If you ask me

And much is made of the fact that the baby couldn't live outside its mother's womb. I couldn't live either if I were suddenly thrust onto the bottom of Moss Lake and restrained there. But taking me out of my natural environment wouldn't make me any less human. And the fact that a developing baby can't live outside its natural environment doesn't change its essential nature.

After saying all that, you might be surprised to hear that I'm pro-choice. Well, I am. I'm a patriotic American. Choice is an important part of the American way of life. A woman who doesn't want a child can choose to "just say no." Or she can choose to use contraceptives. But once a human being is conceived within her, choice is no longer an issue.

When has protection of privacy or convenience been an excuse for murder? If we're worried about privacy, let's kill the two-year-olds. Who ever had convenience or privacy with a toddler around?

And I have another question. Why is it that a woman would abort a four-month fetus she doesn't want, then grieve later in life over the miscarriage of a four-month fetus she does want? I understand she didn't want the first child. But whether someone wants a child or not doesn't define his humanity, his right to exist. At least, it didn't until Roe vs. Wade.

Pro-abortionists accuse pro-lifers of being heartless, of not caring about pregnant girls. On the contrary, abortion is the cruel decision for at least two reasons. First, it reinforces the irresponsibility that is usually involved in unwanted pregnancies, because it implies that consequences can be swept neatly under the rug. I admit we live in an irresponsible society — healthy employees call in sick, parents refuse to pay child support, wage-earners lie on their income-tax returns — but we don't help anyone by encouraging them to imitate the worst elements in our society. We would help more girls if we gently helped them face up to the results of their actions and take a few steps toward maturity.

Second, abortion cruelly sentences a girl, if she possesses any sensitivity at all, to a lifetime of guilt for killing her child. Yes, feminists will tell her it's OK; it was only a glob of tissue, not a person. But many women's hearts will tell them otherwise, and that tiny life will weigh on their consciences as long as they live.

Abortion proponents like to mock pro-lifers, characterizing us as flakes or fanatics. But they might as well understand that, just as whale-lovers struggled to guide Humphrey out of the Sacramento River into the ocean in 1985, just as all our hearts go out to the Kurdish people in Iraq, pro-lifers are compelled to fight for innocent lives.

I should think abortionists would respect our taking a stand for our heartfelt convictions. If we did otherwise, we would be contemptible.

Marriage ceremony should be equalized

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended a lovely wedding. That is, except for the ending when the priest pronounced the couple "man and wife." Almost every television and movie script is written the same way. It is very annoying, it sounds as if the woman has just been married, but the man is still single.

Abby, please publish this so that clergy and everyone else who perform marriage ceremonies will say, "I now pronounce you husband and wife" — instead of "man and wife." Or else, say, "I now pronounce you man and woman," which would make them more equal. I work in a church and really think the words spoken at a wedding should be equitable for both partners. — JUDY WEAVER, DIACONAL MINISTER, UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

DEAR JUDY: I agree. Following a marriage ceremony, the appropriate pronouncement would be, "I now pronounce you husband and wife."

"I now pronounce you man and woman" would be appropriate only when spoken by a surgeon following a sex-change operation.

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, as part of a group of about 100 tourists, I found myself in Kiev, Russia, in a large dining hall. One member of our group, Gene, who was a wonderful organizer, initiated group singing in the spirit of international friendship. He circulated between the long tables and asked for suggestions as to which songs could be sung by the largest number of our group.

We began with "I've Been Workin' on the Railroad," and I've been amused ever since wondering how any translator could explain that song to a foreign audience. A group of Jordanians responded lustily with a stirring Jordanian song. Then some other groups, no doubt some of them Russian, contributed to the entertainment. We couldn't understand the words, but the spirit of nationalistic pride was evident in every measure.

When our turn came, we sang "America the Beautiful," and a few others, which has me wondering — of all the folk and camp songs we have collectively heard, which are the most widely known among our entire population? — PEG NICHOLS, OLATHE, KAN.

DEAR PEG: A few that come to mind are: "Nothing Could Be Finer Than to Be in Carolina in the Morning," "My Blue Heaven," "Row, Row, Row Your Boat," "White Christmas," "Jingle Bells" and "Silent Night." (And for those who can't remember all the words, "La, la, la" is perfectly acceptable.)

Readers can write to Abby at P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Dear Abby

contradiction!

I pulled up behind a station wagon in traffic the other day, and on the bumper were three stickers that said: "I am pro-life, Prevent child abuse and Have you hugged your child today?"

And yet, standing up in the middle of the backseat was a preschool-age boy!

Abby, when will people get the message that one of the best ways to be pro-life, prevent child abuse and love your kids is to secure them into seat belts or child restraints?

Will we ever learn? — MAD IN ALABAMA

DEAR MAD: Some people will learn after they have experienced a tragic loss for failing to heed the above.

DEAR ABBY: I'll get right to the point. I am 45, female, divorced, no children, and I've been told that I am very good-looking. I live in Beverly Hills, Calif., but will travel anywhere for the right opportunity. All I want is a decent man — age is no object as long as he's ambulatory, but he has to have MONEY. Any suggestions? — LOOKING FOR DADDY WARBUCKS

DEAR LOOKING: Gail Sheehy said, "The best way to attract money is to give the appearance of having it." Trust her.

DEAR ABBY: Why all the fuss about being addressed by one's first name instead of "Mrs. So-and-so"?

In biblical times, apparently there were no last names — and if Matthew, Mark and Luke and Mary and Sarah and Ruth were good enough then, it's certainly good enough for me now.

Also, with so many women in executive positions, I'm sure they are all on a first-name basis with their co-workers. To me, it just seems friendlier. — TRUDY IN INDIANA

DEAR TRUDY: Most — but not all — business and professional women (like men) have no objection to being addressed by their first names. However, it is presumptuous to assume that such familiarity is acceptable to everyone. When in doubt, and especially on first being introduced, it's wise to ask, "And what shall I call you?"

Readers can write to Abby at P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Ysidro Hernandez, 22, apparently lost control of the vehicle, struck a guard rail and flipped over several times. At the scene, he reportedly told officers he was not the driver although he was the only person there. He remains in good condition at the hospital, a nursing supervisor said today.

Hispanics, Blacks are majority

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Hispanics and Blacks now comprise the majority of the populations in Stanton and Ackerly, according to 1990 U.S. Census Bureau figures.

In Stanton, Hispanics account for 49 percent and Blacks 3 percent of the 1990 population of 2,567. Hispanics are 55 percent of the 243 Blacks were counted. In Martin County as a whole, Hispanics and Blacks total 41 percent of the 4,956 population.

While Stanton grew by 262 people since 1980, an 11 percent increase, the Hispanic population grew by 343, to 1,261, which is a 37 percent increase, census figures show. In 1980, Hispanics comprised 40 percent of the population.

The Black population decreased slightly, to 66, which is 3 percent of the total. Whites, numbering 1,225, are 47 percent of the population and other races, at 24, account for less than 1 percent.

Government officials in Stanton are not surprised.

"There seems to be more Spanish around here," confirmed Aurora Sanchez, director of the Martin-Glasscock Neighborhood Center and Headstart. "I would say that we have more low income than we used to before. That's one thing that we noticed," she said.

"It really doesn't surprise me," said Councilman Lester Baker, who is running unopposed for mayor. "The thing that surprises me is that we're increasing in population but there's more houses for sale. It's alarming."

Housing units increased by 131 since 1980, to 999, which is 15 percent, census figures show.

"Just a few years ago there wasn't a house available. You had a problem moving into a house. Now there's an abundance," Baker said.

Sanchez and Baker both said that Hispanics should become more involved in politics and the community.

"I don't see too many Hispanics running for office and I don't see many of them in places of authority. Not just Hispanics but Blacks," Sanchez said.

Only one of the six City Council members, James Jenkins, who is black, is a minority. Of four candidates running for mayor and two at-large Council positions up for election May 4, none are minorities. Jenkins' seat is not up for election this year. Also, none of the five members on the Martin County Commissioners Court are minorities.

"It's only right that they get involved in the city and the community," Baker said.

Sanchez said she would like to see that happen too. "I have great hope for that," she said. "But I don't see it right now."

Meanwhile, in Ackerly, which sits in both Martin and Dawson counties, 133 Hispanics now comprise 55 percent of the population, census figures show. The Hispanic population only grew by 9 people but the overall population dropped by 74. Besides whites and Hispanics, no Blacks or other races were counted in Ackerly.

Martin County as a whole increased by 272 people, a 6 percent increase. The Hispanic population in the county grew by 340 people, to 1,960, and are now 39 percent of the population while the Black population decreased slightly, to 87, which is 2 percent. Whites, at 2,881, are at 58 percent and other races, at 28, are less than 1 percent.

As far as any possible undercount, Sanchez said she had heard that a "few" people had not been counted but she did not say the problem appeared widespread. "There might be a few out in the county that just weren't counted," she said.

The state of Texas and the League of United Latin American Citizens are parties in a suit citing an undercount, which was filed last year against the Census Bureau.

Texas emerges as big winner in military shifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas emerges as a big winner from Defense Secretary Dick Cheney's list of proposed military base closings and realignments, but three of its Democratic House members come up losers.

While financially strapped Massachusetts — specifically the district of Democratic Rep. Chet Atkins — could suffer the loss of 3,830 jobs, Texas would gain 4,103.

Cheney was testifying today before the Base Closure and Realignment Commission on his recommendation to close 31 major domestic bases and 12 minor installations while scaling back 28 other facilities.

The commission must decide by July 1 whether to approve or amend the Pentagon list before forwarding it to President Bush and Congress for their final say on the package.

California would be the biggest potential loser, seeing 26,869 military and civilian jobs disappear if the Pentagon list is accepted. Florida would lose 18,850 jobs and Pennsylvania 12,943, including 7,733 at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard.

As the list was made public Friday and communities nationwide got the bad news, it was also clear by the rhetoric who the winners and losers were.

"It's just a malicious act on the new England economy," Atkins said of the plan to close Fort Devens, home to an Army intelligence school, in his district.

"I don't know what those people are thinking about, but it almost looks like the Democratic strongholds have been hit the worst," said Rep. Joe Moakley, D-Mass.

Cheney strongly denied that partisan motivations entered into the list, which contained bases in more than a dozen Republican-held House districts.

Texas' potential net job gain through realignments was greeted by Republican Sen. Phil Gramm, who offered little sympathy to lawmakers who opposed military spending and now are suffering through base closures.

"I get a little tired of congressmen who voted to slash defense spending, and then when they're cut, they whine," Gramm said.

Despite the overall prospect of more jobs, Texas would lose three major installations under Cheney's plan: Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth, Chase Field Naval Air Station in Beville and Bergstrom Air Force Base in Austin. All are in Democratic districts.

Hardest hit is Fort Worth, which has suffered through Cheney's decision to cancel the A-12 stealth attack plane, reduce F-16 jet fighter production and terminate the V-22 Osprey tilt-rotor aircraft.

Weak gun laws fuel New York trade

DALLAS (AP) — A stream of guns migrating northward from Texas is giving New York law enforcement officers a new set of problems to deal with.

Texas is one of the top five states where handguns are purchased and then illegally transported to New York, one of the toughest places to buy a gun in the nation, a newspaper reports.

Currently, New York police are investigating at least three cases that involve the smuggling of more than 300 Texas handguns.

Federal agents estimate about 7.5 million retail firearms transactions are made each year. Of those, about one-half of one percent of those transactions may be illegal.

U.S. Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, is pushing for a computerized federal registry system for gun sales.

Schumer backs the passage of the so-called Brady bill, which requires a seven-day waiting period for handgun purchases.

"A black market dealer will think twice before submitting to seven days of police scrutiny," Schumer said in a report last November.

But the National Rifle Association opposes such measures.

Last year, New York police seized 17,000 illegal guns, with an estimated 96 percent of those coming from outside New York. New York police and federal firearms agents have assembled a joint task force to investigate the growing smuggling problem.

So far, 83 arrests involving 786 guns have been made, including the seizure of about 200 guns shipped to New York from the Dallas-Fort Worth area. The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday. The guns were labeled as auto parts.

Figures compiled by the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, show that most guns smuggled into New York come from Virginia, Florida, Georgia, Ohio and Texas.

Unlike New York, which requires up to a six-month waiting period prior to a gun purchase, Texas has no such waiting period.

"In Texas," says New York City Police Commissioner Lee Brown, Houston's former police chief, "one can theoretically be released from an institution for the criminally insane and then go lie about it and buy a weapon."

the bill at the West End post office in Richmond, Va. IRS volunteers moved into the lobby of the main Milwaukee post office, offering to fill out the simple returns and give advice on others.

The IRS expects a record 113 million returns to be filed this year, and 80 percent of them will qualify for refunds. Almost 67 million had been received by April 5.

Five million or more couples and individuals are expected to escape the filing deadline rush by getting an automatic four-month extension simply by mailing a Form 4868 before midnight. This form must be accompanied by a check for any outstanding balance.

A two-month extension is available without asking for those whose home and main place of business are outside the United States and Puerto Rico.

Military personnel, accredited journalists and support personnel who served in the Persian Gulf area at any time since last Aug. 2 have at least an extra 180 days to file. Most have automatic extensions of up to 285 days.

Failure to file on time can make a taxpayer liable for stiff penalties and interest — if any tax is owed. There are no penalties for those who are due refunds but do not file on time, although an extended delay could result in criminal charges.

From the IRS' perspective, one of the biggest success stories of the year has been that more than 7 million electronic returns have been filed. These returns, sent directly into an IRS computer by authorized operators, result in fewer errors, considerably lower processing costs and much faster refunds.

The Tax Foundation created the Tax Freedom Day gimmick several years ago to dramatize effects of government spending.

Viewed another way, the foundation said, a typical worker will have to toil 2 hours and 49 minutes of each eight-hour workday to pay 1991 taxes, five minutes longer than in 1990.

Turkish officials say that 160,000 refugees are gathered in the Iskyveren area, which is at an elevation of 7,200 feet.

About 500,000 Iraqi refugees, mainly Kurds, fled to the Turkish border after a failed rebellion in Iraq. Iran says it has taken in 1 million of Iraq's 4 million Kurds.

"In the next few days, the ordeal of thousands of Iraqi refugees, living under the worst conditions, will end and they will start living in a place equipped with every facility," Kozackioglu said.

Little man wins the big one

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The Masters is still under the grip of a foreign player. Only the overseas address has changed.

Ian Woosnam of Wales, who stands slightly taller than his golf bag at 5-foot-4½, was the American killer in the 55th Masters.

For the fourth consecutive year, the first-place crystal will travel back across the Atlantic to the British Isles.

Nick Faldo of England failed in his bid to win a third consecutive Masters, instead putting the green jacket on Woosnam. In 1988, Sandy Lyle of Scotland birdied the last hole to win.

Woosnam withstood challenges Sunday by Americans Tom Watson, Lanny Wadkins, Jodie Mudd, Ben Crenshaw and Steve Pate, and a fellow Ryder Cup teammate, 25-year-old Jose-Maria Olazabal of Spain, to earn his first major championship.

Faldo made a brief run with an early eagle and three consecutive back-nine birdies, but was too far back, shooting a 70 to finish five shots behind Woosnam.

"It just wasn't to be," Faldo said. "I shot myself out of it in the first two rounds."

Woosnam won it the hard way, making a putt about as long as his body for a par on the 72nd green after Watson and Olazabal had fallen victim to the uphill 405-yard, par-4 18th.

Woosnam, ranked the No. 1 player in the world, battled two-time Masters champion Watson and an unruly crowd around "Amen Corner" on Augusta National Golf Club's tricky and treacherous back nine.

A spectator yelled at Woosnam: "This isn't a links course, this is 'Amen Corner' at Augusta National."

Woosnam, a former amateur boxer, got mad and came out swinging on the 14th tee.

"A few people were trying to give me a hard time, get to me," Woosnam said. "A European player has won the last four Masters. At the moment Europe is better. I guess you've got to expect that (behavior) from the crowd."

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Ian Woosnam from Wales reacts to his putt for par on 18 as the ball just drops into the hole to win the 1991 Masters Sunday at the Augusta National Golf Club. Tom Watson and his caddy David Musgrove look on.

Watson said "the crowd was very partisan in my favor. I told Woosie a little story to try to cool him down."

Woosnam said the story was about how Don January used to razz Watson and Watson would say back to him: "Thank you very much."

"So I hit my drive down the middle, then turned and said, 'Thank you very much,'" Woosnam said. "The more aggressive I get, the better I play."

Woosnam was so mad at the treatment he had received from the pro-Watson fans that he told them after he hooked his tee shot in Rae's Creek on 13: "I hope you're all happy I hit it in there."

The 33-year-old Woosnam, who finished second in the 1989 U.S. Open, shot a final-round even-par 72 for a 72-hole total of 277 for the $243,000 first-place money.

Olazabal made it a 1-2 finish for Europe with a bogey on the last hole for a 70 and 278.

Watson, 41, double-bogeyed the last hole for a 73 and a four-way tie with Wadkins (71), Crenshaw (67) and Pate (65).

Watson, who hasn't won a major since the 1983 British Open, gave it a gallant try with two eagles on the homeward par-5s.

But Watson double-bogeyed the 155-yard, par-3 No. 12, then pushed his tee shot on 18 into the trees, setting up a second shot that ran into the front bunker. He sand-wedged long and three-putted.

"It was a great disappointment," Watson said. "In 1978, I lost the Masters to Gary Player with a bad tee shot at 18."

Watson said Woosnam "is a winner, a tough competitor, young and strong."

Asked for his explanation of four consecutive foreign winners at Augusta, Watson said, "I guess they are better players."

Although Woosnam had the world No. 1 ranking, he felt he wouldn't truly deserve it unless he won a major.

"I had said I felt I was the best player in the world," Woosnam said. "I felt I had to prove what I said. I tended to get myself worked up under the pressure in the majors. Now, maybe I will be more relaxed when I play in them."

Woosnam built up his arm strength by driving tractors when he was young. He honed his game by playing on the African tour. "I gave it five years, then I would get a club job," he said. "I finished second in the 1982 Italian Open and that got me going."

Woosnam said he has never felt such pressure at Augusta.

"I was wishing that the day would get over with because I wanted to know the result," Woosnam said. "It felt like we were out there 10 hours."

Olazabal, fast becoming the successor to Seve Ballesteros as Spain's best player, got into two bunkers on 18 to fall a stroke short.

"It's the biggest pressure of any tournament I have been in," Olazabal said. "I just wish I had my tee shot back. It caught the fairway bunker."

Woosnam, who slipped on a size 40 short green jacket, said he had admiration for Watson after their 36-hole duel the last two days.

Spurs take over first place

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Phoenix blocked the way for San Antonio to keep sole possession of first place in the Midwest Division. The short-handed Suns, however, didn't have the points or rebounds to complete the job.

Playing without Kevin Johnson and Dan Majerle because of injuries and with Tom Chambers still slowed by back spasms, Phoenix set a franchise record with 16 blocked shots on Sunday, but it wasn't enough as the Spurs defeated the Suns 109-101.

The victory put San Antonio one game ahead of idle Utah in the Midwest standings and 1½ games ahead of third-place Houston.

"We needed this one pretty bad," said Spurs center David Robinson, who had 23 points and 15 rebounds. "The loss to Seattle the other night really hurt us. We had a little cushion before that. Now our backs are against the wall. I think we were a lot more focused in this game and a lot more ready to play."

Phoenix played its fifth straight game without Johnson and Majerle, while Chambers, who sat out the previous three Suns games, was held to just four points on 2-for-15 shooting.

"My team played as hard as it could play. We just didn't have enough weapons to beat them," Phoenix coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. "For some reason, we've always had people hurt whenever we've played the Spurs the last two years. Maybe we'll face them in the playoffs this year and everybody will be healthy and we'll have better luck against them."

"They were hurting, which was obvious," San Antonio coach Larry Brown said. "But they have the character that they're not going to give up. It was a really sensational game."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Boston 115, New York 102; Minnesota 96, Philadelphia 88; Washington 101, Miami 96; Indiana 125, Detroit 107; and Portland 139, Orlando 119.

Willie Anderson scored 25 points and Terry Cummings had 24 points and 10 rebounds for the Spurs, who won their fourth straight game in Phoenix and are 9-1 against the Suns since Robinson joined the NBA two years ago.

Rookie Negele Knight scored 27 points and Jeff Hornacek 20 for the Suns. Mark West blocked six shots and Andrew Lang five. The previous club best was 15 blocks, set Jan. 25 against Seattle.

INDIANAPOLIS — Detroit Pistons guard Vinnie Johnson (15) makes the pass through the lane after getting past Indiana Pacers Reggie Miller during NBA action Sunday.

"West surprised me with some of his blocks," Robinson said. "He was very active and was on the boards real well. But the Suns are a jump-shooting team and there were times where they hit nothing. We just held them off this time."

The Spurs, who never trailed, led 51-43 at halftime and 71-53 with 5:34 remaining in the third quarter. But Phoenix closed out the period with a 13-4 run, closing the gap to 78-70.

Knight's jumper made it 82-78 with 9:04 to play, but Robinson's dunks started and ended a 10-2 spurt that put San Antonio up 92-80 with 5:44 left.

Phoenix got no closer than six points from there, losing for the fourth time in six games. "We played extremely hard, but we could never get the lead on them," Knight said. "They kept getting easy baskets on second shots."

Trail Blazers 139, Magic 119
 Portland won its 14th consecutive game and clinched the homecourt advantage throughout the playoffs by winning at home against Orlando.

None of the Trail Blazers starters played in the final period, but Clyde Drexler managed 23 points and 11 rebounds, while Terry Porter had 16 points and 14 assists.

Portland, which led 73-57 at halftime, tied a franchise record by making nine 3-pointers, including their first seven attempts. Their winning streak is the second-longest in the NBA this season, behind the Los Angeles Lakers' 16-game string, and is one short of

Sabatini makes strong case for being top dog

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Gabriela Sabatini is playing better than anybody else these days, but she refuses to be drawn into a debate over who's No. 1 in women's tennis.

Monica Seles is No. 1, Steffi Graf is No. 2 and Sabatini will move up to No. 3 when the computer rankings are released by the Women's Tennis Association today.

"We're all very close. We're all playing well," said Sabatini, who battled from behind in both sets Sunday to beat Graf and win the Bausch & Lomb Championships.

"I think I'm on the right way," she added. "I have more confidence in my game. I feel I'm getting closer (to the top)."

The 20-year-old Argentine has made the final of her last five tournaments, winning four of them. She's 4-0 against Graf in 1991 and has won six of their last eight meetings in the hottest rivalry on the tour.

"I've beaten her before, so I knew I could do it again," Sabatini said of her 7-5, 7-6 (7-3) clay court victory. "It's great to be feeling this confident and playing the way I am."

Sabatini assured herself of moving up to No. 3 in the world rankings by reaching the final. She improved her record to 29-2 this year and has won 25 of 26 matches since losing to Arantxa Sanchez Vicario in the Australian Open.

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. — Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina celebrates her victory over Steffi Graf in the Bausch & Lomb Championships.

The only setback during that stretch was a loss to Seles in the final of the International Players Championships, a defeat Sabatini looks forward to rectifying.

"I played her and had a good chance (the last time)," Sabatini said of Seles. "I think my tennis is there and I can beat her."

Graf took command in both sets, only to falter before the pressure tactics of Sabatini.

Young Unser cruises to win

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Al Unser Jr. may buy a piece of land in downtown Long Beach and drill for oil. He'd probably hit a gusher in his backyard because the second generation Indy-car driver can do no wrong here.

Sunday, the defending CART PPG Cup champion cruised to his fourth straight victory in the Grand Prix of Long Beach, a race seemingly fraught with the peril of menacing concrete walls and treacherous turns for everyone else, but a piece of cake for Unser.

"Now, no way. It was a long day," Unser insisted when asked if the 95-lap, 158.65-mile race was as easy as it looked. The evidence would indicate otherwise.

Unser, who now owns 16 Indy-car victories — 14 of them on road courses, led all but two laps Sunday — the first and the 37th (when Unser pitted), both led by pole-winner Michael Andretti. Then, after Andretti went out of the race in a bizzare pit road collision with Emerson Fittipaldi, Unser easily held off Galles-Kraco teammate Bobby Rahal over the last 16 laps.

Unser showed his muscle early, driving his Chevrolet-powered Lola past Andretti's car cleanly in the first turn of the second lap on the 1.67-mile, 11-turn temporary circuit.

Once he was on top, Unser moved steadily away, building leads up to 15.28 seconds

A's overcome big deficit to beat Mariners

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS
Could it be? Dave Stewart actually losing a game to Seattle in April?

AL
Nah.
Stewart entered the game with 20 consecutive April victories and a 16-2 lifetime record against the Mariners, including 14 straight wins.

For a time it looked like Seattle might finally beat Stewart as the winless Mariners held a 5-0 lead over Oakland after two innings Sunday night.
Oakland rallied, but the Mariners chased Stewart in the sixth and held a 6-4 lead.
However, it still wasn't quite good enough as the A's tied the score in the bottom of the sixth and won it 7-6 in the ninth on Mark McGwire's RBI single. So Stewart got a no-decision and his April streak lives.

"I was happy they were able to get enough runs to get me off the hook and eventually win the ball game," Stewart said. "I tell you, this is a good month for me."
McGwire's single to left field off Mike Jackson (0-1) scored Dave Henderson, who started the ninth with a single. After Jose Canseco flied out, a wild pitch by Jackson allowed Henderson to move to second and Harold Baines was then intentionally walked. Terry Steinbach struck out before McGwire delivered the game winner.

Jay Buhner hit his first homer of the season to open the sixth inning, giving the Mariners a 6-4 lead.
Two outs later, Joe Klink came on in relief of Stewart, whose streak of 20 straight April victories dating to 1987 was preserved when the A's scored twice in the bottom of the inning.
Henderson doubled to score Walt Weiss, who singled. Henderson moved to third on the throw to the plate and came home when the relay from second baseman Harold Reynolds got past catcher Dave Valle.

Seattle took a 2-0 lead in the first inning and added three more runs in the second.
But the A's came back with four runs in the third inning off Hanson. Baines delivered a one-out bases-loaded double to score two runs and two more runs scored on a grounder by Steinbach and Willie Wilson's fielder's choice grounder.
Rangers 15, Orioles 3
Nolan Ryan beat Baltimore for the first time since April 20, 1976, allowing two hits and striking out nine in seven innings as Texas routed Baltimore in Arlington.

Ryan (1-1) got off to a shaky start, giving up a three-run homer to Sam Horn in the first inning. But he settled down and allowed only Glenn Davis' third-inning single after that as the Rangers broke a season-opening four-game losing streak.
Jeff Robinson (0-1) lost his first start for Baltimore, giving up five runs on five hits in two-plus innings.

Padres complete sweep over LA Dodgers

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS
The all-mighty Dodgers, who would roll to victory in the National League West behind Darryl Strawberry and Brett Butler, are missing.
Instead, Los Angeles has lost

NL
three in a row and dropped 2 1/2 games back following Sunday's 5-3 loss to San Diego, which completed a three-game sweep.
Mike Morgan (0-1) gave up three runs and five hits in 6 2/3 innings, but the runs were unearned as the Dodgers made four errors.

Ed Whitson (1-0) allowed three hits in six innings, walked none and struck out four, retiring his final 17 batters. He fell behind 2-0 in the first on Juan Samuel's two-run homer.
Pat Clements pitched 1 2/3 innings and Craig Lefferts finished the five-hitter for his second save.
Stan Javier, playing first for the injured Eddie Murray, dropped shortstop Alfredo Griffin's throw in the second inning as Benito Santiago scored from third and pulled the Padres to 2-1.
San Diego went ahead with two runs in the seventh. Garry

Templeton reached on Javier's second error at first base, Shawn Abner reached on a fielder's choice and Morgan's errant pickoff attempt sent Abner to third.
Tony Fernandez followed with a game-tying single and Bip Roberts doubled off the glove of Kal Daniels as the left fielder attempted an over-the-shoulder catch on the run.
Braves 12, Reds 1
Tom Glavine beat Cincinnati for the ninth time in 11 career decisions and Rafael Belliard had three hits and drove in three runs for the visiting Braves, who sent the Reds to their third straight loss.
Glavine (1-0) allowed five hits in six innings, walked two and struck out six.

Greg Olson also had three hits for the Braves, who had 16 hits off four pitchers. Tom Browning (1-1) allowed four runs and seven hits in seven innings.
Mets 7, Expos 1
Hubie Brooks and Rick Cerone hit two-run singles in the first inning and Frank Viola (1-0) pitched a five-hitter at Shea Stadium.
The Mets drew seven more walks, including Brooks and pinch-hitter Dave Magadan in the seventh inning. In seven games, the Mets have walked 55 times, twice any other team's total in the majors.

Kevin Elster, making his first start since Aug. 3, 1990, hit a solo home run in the eighth, his third hit of the game.
Chris Nabholz (0-1) allowed eight hits and six runs in six innings.
Astros 7, Giants 2
Ken Caminiti hit a three-run homer and Jimmy Jones (1-0) allowed five hits in 7 1/3 innings and struck out six. Craig Biggio matched a career high with four hits.
The visiting Giants, who got 19 hits in a 16-2 victory Saturday night, didn't get their first hit until the fourth inning and didn't score until the eighth.

John Burkett (0-1) gave up six hits and four runs in four innings.
Cubs 6, Pirates 4
Stan Belinda (0-1) walked Chico Walker to load the bases in the eighth inning and walked Doug Dascenzo to force home the go-ahead run at Wrigley Field. Mark Grace followed with an RBI groundout.
Cardinals 11, Phillies 7
Felix Jose drove in four runs with a homer and a bases-loaded double for the visiting Cardinals.
Bryn Smith (2-0) allowed six hits and six runs in seven innings, but two of the runs were unearned because of errors.

franchise record.
Dennis Scott scored 28 points for the Magic, who are 0-6 against Portland since joining the league.
Pacers 125, Pistons 107
Indiana won at home, scoring more points against Detroit than any team this season.
Reggie Miller scored 24 points and improved his NBA-leading free-throw percentage to .917 by converting all 11 of his attempts. The Pacers were 34-for-37 from the line.
Detlef Schrempf came off the bench for 23 points and 13 rebounds, while LaSalle Thompson had 18 points and 14 rebounds for Indiana, which took the lead for good with a 13-0 third-quarter run. Williams, who helped limit Isiah Thomas to 11 points on 5-for-18 shooting, had 15 points and 12 assists.
Vinnie Johnson scored 24 points for the Pistons, whose previous high for points allowed was 122 by Charlotte on Feb. 22.
Celtics 115, Knicks 102
Boston moved within a game of Chicago in the race for the Eastern Conference lead by defeating New York.
The Celtics, 56-22 with four games left, have already clinched first place in the Atlantic Division, but needs to overtake the Bulls to have homecourt advantage in the conference playoffs.
The Knicks lost their 20th consecutive regular-season game in Boston since last winning on Feb. 29, 1984. New York's only victory at Boston Garden in its last 29 games came in the deciding game of last season's first round playoff series.
The Celtics, who swept their five-game season series against New York, were led by Kevin Gamble with 28 points, Robert Parish with 23 and Reggie Lewis with 20. Larry Bird missed his fourth consecutive game with back spasms.
For New York, Patrick Ewing had 33 points and Trent Tucker added a season high 18.
Bullets 101, Heat 96
Washington handed the Miami Heat its 12th consecutive road loss as Ledell Eckles scored nine points in an 18.5 fourth-quarter spurt.
Eckles scored 16 of his 17 points in the second half and Harvey Grant had 18 of his 26 in the final two periods, including six in the pivotal surge that gave the Bullets an 87-77 lead with 4:24 left.
Sherman Douglas scored 26 points for the Heat, which led 72-69 after three periods.
A tip-in by Pervis Ellison and a three-point play by Grant started the 18.5 spurt. After two free throws by Tony Seikaly tied it 74-74, a basket by Grant and Eckles' three-point play put the Bullets ahead to stay.
The Bullets then scored eight of the next 11 points, six by Eckles, to pull away.
Timberwolves 96, 76ers 88
Tony Campbell scored 23 points and Doug West added a season-high 17 against Philadelphia as Minnesota snapped a seven-game road losing streak and won for the second time in 21 road games.
The Timberwolves led by as many as 19 points in the third quarter and still held an 84-71 advantage with 7:34 left.
The 76ers closed it to 90-86 with 1:08 left after a 15-6 spurt, but Philadelphia committed a turnover and Rick Mahorn was whistled for a flagrant foul. Scott Brooks made two free throws to give Minnesota a 92-86 lead with 22 seconds remaining, sealing the victory.
Hersey Hawkins led Philadelphia with 30 points. Ron Anderson had 17 of his 27 in the third period for the Sixers.

Gere helps Tibetans

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Richard Gere, still on a hot streak after the huge success of the 1990 movie "Pre-ty Woman," makes a clear distinction between his life as a Hollywood star and his spiritual inclinations. But the 41-year-old actor, a devoted Buddhist, acknowledges that stardom has helped him draw attention to the cause of Tibetans, who have been under Chinese occupation since 1950.

Gere was in San Francisco over the weekend with the Tibetans' god-king, the Dalai Lama, to celebrate the opening of a Tibetan art exhibit — "Wisdom and Compassion: The Sacred Art of Tibet" — that he has spent four years helping to organize. Being a Buddhist helps to make life as a movie star tolerable, Gere said. "It gives you a little more sense of humor about it all and makes it possible," he said.

Moore Community schedules reunion

The 29th annual Moore Community Reunion is scheduled for Saturday, April 27, in Garrett Hall of the First United Methodist Church, 400 Scurry St., from 2 to 5:30 p.m. All current and former residents, ex-students and anyone who was affiliated with the community are invited to attend. The Moore Community is located approximately 5 miles northwest of Big Spring. The reunion period is from 1906 to 1949, when the former school building burned. Sixty-one teachers served during the 43-year period. "Teachers, board members, former students, their families and descendants have managed to keep the spirit of the community alive," said Lawrence Adkins, reunion president.

Cancer Society crusade set tonight

The Martin County unit of the American Cancer Society is asking everyone in Stanton to turn on their porch lights tonight for a very special cause. The American Cancer Society asks residents to have their checks ready and welcome friends and neighbors who will be coming to your door between 6-8 p.m. with an important message about cancer. Volunteers will meet at 5:30 p.m. for a short briefing before starting the "Lights On" crusade at 6 p.m. Anyone wishing to volunteer two hours to help fight cancer meet at the TU Electric Reddy Room at 5:30 p.m., Helen Louder said. "When residents contribute money to the fight against cancer, the funds are used effectively. Most of the money the society raises in Texas is used to support the ACS research, rehabilitation programs and service for cancer patients," she said. "About 40 percent of the money raised by the local unit volunteers will go toward work in Martin County. Twenty percent will be used for statewide programs and research, and the rest will support national programs and research," Louder said.

HAJ ORAMAM PASS, Eastern Iraq — Kurdish refugee women carrying children walk in an endless line along the Haj Oramam pass toward Iran and safety. Hundreds of thousands of Kurds are heading for the Iranian border on foot or in any vehicle they can find.

Scowcroft says administration failed to foresee problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration is acknowledging it failed to anticipate the severity of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's response to an uprising against him by his country's population of Kurds. "One of the things we perhaps did not anticipate was the severity of Saddam Hussein's attack against the Kurds, with possibly the intention of solving his Kurdish problem by driving them out," President Bush's national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, said Sunday. Entire villages of Kurds began leaving northern Iraq in late February after Kurdish rebels failed to defeat Saddam's forces. Since then, tons of relief supplies have been airdropped and trucked to an estimated 2 million Iraqi Kurds huddled along the Turkish and Iranian borders or fleeing toward those nations. "What we could have done is perhaps reposition more supplies in Turkey," Scowcroft said on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley" television program. "Perhaps we could have marginally improved that."

Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., said on CNN's "Newsmaker Sunday" that the administration's "very serious mistake... was to totally misjudge events subsequent to the cessation of hostilities." Meanwhile, Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" show that the relief effort should eventually be taken over by an international agency. "We clearly are not going to withdraw and end the effort in a way that leaves those people vulnerable or results in more deaths than might otherwise occur," Cheney said. But he reiterated the administration's resolve not to be drawn into a civil war in Iraq. Turkey today began moving thousands of Iraqi refugees out of a settlement in the snowcapped mountains to camps with water, electricity and medical supplies. The refugee transfer marked a shift in policy for President Turgut Ozal's government, which initially tried to bar the Kurds, or failing that, to keep them at the border. The refugees today trudged three miles down a dirt road to a plateau where they boarded dump trucks to be carried to buses at the foot of the mountain. "We are feeling better," said an Iraqi electrical engineer who identified himself only as Subhi. "My wife is 5 months — what-do-you-call-it?" he said, gesturing to her swollen belly. "Maybe we are going to a better place." "We had a lot of suffering while we were in that wretched camp — no water, no just distribution of food... I thought I might rather be in a prison," said another refugee, Abur Asgar. Turkish officials say that 160,000 refugees are gathered in the Isikveren area, which is at an elevation of 7,200 feet. About 500,000 Iraqi refugees, mainly Kurds, fled to the Turkish border after a failed rebellion in Iraq. Iran says it has taken in 1 million of Iraq's 4 million Kurds and another million are waiting to enter. Many Kurds walked to the border to escape Saddam Hussein's army, and many refugees died of hunger or starvation en route. Relief has been slow in coming. Iraq claimed today that some Kurds were returning to northern Iraq, but gave no figures. The report carried by the official Iraqi News Agency could not be verified independently. Associated Press correspondent Alex Efty reported from northern Iraq on Sunday that the Kurdish rebels had repulsed repeated efforts to take a mountain stronghold near Suleimaniyah. Iran's official radio, meanwhile, reported the Red Crescent relief society was running out of supplies for Kurdish refugees. "Red Crescent forces have mobilized in five border provinces and there is currently nothing in our warehouses," the radio quoted Red Crescent head Vahed Dastjerdi as saying. An amphibious force of 2,100 Marines and 1,400 sailors docked in the port Sunday to join the relief effort. Crowley said U.S., British and French transport planes were continuing airdrops, with U.S. and British helicopters ferrying aid to refugees in inaccessible areas. Hayri Kozakcioglu, governor of Turkey's southeastern border region, said two mobile hospitals, each with 200 beds, would be established at Silopi. "In the next few days, the ordeal of thousands of Iraqi refugees, living under the worst conditions, will end and they will start living in a place equipped with every facility," Kozakcioglu said. "We are not claiming to have done a good job," he said.

Filing deadline at hand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attention dawdlers, laggards, procrastinators and everyone else who has a very good reason for not yet filing a tax return: your time's about up. If you don't intend to burn the evening oil tonight, better ask for an extension. But take comfort. Those smug early filers will have to work just as many days this year as you will to pay all your taxes — a record 128. Tax Freedom Day will come May 8, the private Tax Foundation announced today. That is the latest date on record for the mythical point in the year at which the average worker is estimated to have earned enough to settle accounts with federal, state and local tax collectors. That date last year was May 5. The three-day lengthening was the largest since 1976 and could get worse, the foundation predicted. "The combined pressures of a persistent federal budget deficit, demands to expand funding for new and existing programs, budget crises in numerous states and the slowdown in income growth could easily make Tax Freedom Day even later on our calendars in future years," the foundation said. Meantime, the Postal Service and Internal Revenue Service prepared to receive as many as 27 million returns this week — many of them being dropped into collection boxes close to tonight's midnight deadline. In many areas, the IRS' toll-free telephone lines were open extra hours to handle last-minute questions. Many post offices stationed clerks at curbside to receive returns from motorists. In other places, the enterprising attempted to turn the unpleasant chore into a social event. A brass quintet was ready to serenade late filers at the main post office in Cincinnati. A radio station promised free stamps in front of the main post office in Houston. In New York City, the Postal Service offered longer hours and announced that painkillers and antacids would be available in front of the big James A. Farley post office. Free postage and pizza were on the bill at the West End post office in Richmond, Va. IRS volunteers moved into the lobby of the main Milwaukee post office, offering to fill out the simple returns and give advice on others. The IRS expects a record 113 million returns to be filed this year, and 80 percent of them will qualify for refunds. Almost 67 million had been received by April 5. Five million or more couples and individuals are expected to escape the filing-deadline rush by getting an automatic four-month extension simply by mailing a Form 4868 before midnight. This form must be accompanied by a check for any outstanding balance. A two-month extension is available without asking for those whose home and main place of business are outside the United States and Puerto Rico.

Texas a big winner in job shift

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas emerges as a big winner from Defense Secretary Dick Cheney's list of proposed military base closings and realignments, but three of its Democratic House members come up losers. While financially strapped Massachusetts — specifically the district of Democratic Rep. Chet Atkins — could suffer the loss of 3,830 jobs, Texas would gain 4,103. Cheney was testifying today before the Base Closure and Realignment Commission on his recommendation to close 31 major domestic bases and 12 minor installations while scaling back 28 other facilities. The commission must decide by July 1 whether to approve or amend the Pentagon list before forwarding it to President Bush and Congress for their final say on the package. California would be the biggest potential loser, seeing 26,869 military and civilian jobs disappear if the Pentagon list is accepted. Florida would lose 18,850 jobs and Pennsylvania 12,943, including 7,733 at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard. As the list was made public Friday and communities nationwide got the bad news, it was also clear by the rhetoric who the winners and losers were. "It's just a malicious act on the New England economy," Atkins said of the plan to close Fort Devens, home to an Army intelligence school, in his district. "I don't know what those people are thinking about, but it almost looks like the Democratic strongholds have been hit the worst," said Rep. Joe Moakley, D-Mass. Cheney strongly denied that partisan motivations entered into the list, which contained bases in more than a dozen Republican-held House districts.

Texas' potential net job gain through realignments was greeted by Republican Sen. Phil Gramm, who offered little sympathy to lawmakers who opposed military spending and now are suffering through base closures. "I get a little tired of congressmen who voted to slash defense spending, and then when they're cut, they whine," Gramm said. Despite the overall prospect of more jobs, Texas would lose three major installations under Cheney's plan: Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth, Chase Field Naval Air Station in Beeville and Bergstrom Air Force Base in Austin. All are in Democratic districts. Hardest hit is Fort Worth, which has suffered through Cheney's decision to cancel the A-12 stealth attack plane, reduce F-16 jet fighter production and terminate the V-22 Osprey tilt-rotor aircraft. ● BASES page 6-A

Myrick returns from Persian Gulf

After nearly eight months in the Middle East crisis, Mary and Reggie Myrick's son John said he was ready to come home — but not without questioning the decisions to quickly end the fighting. "I can only say what I feel, and I think we stopped too early. We should have marched into Baghdad. We had civilians that did not want to fight and the Iraqi soldiers were giving up and they didn't want to fight either. If we could have kept going we could have cleaned up the mess that is going on now over there. But it sure is great to be back home," Myrick said. Myrick was stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C., before the conflict, he graduated from Stanton High School and attended Midland College for a year. He said he plans to continue his education and will not re-enlist after he completes four more months of Army life. "I'm going to go back to school and continue my education. I would like to go back to college and become a physician's assistant or a doctor," he said. John added, "I was a line medic specialist for a company, which consists of three platoons with 44 men in each platoon. I worked under a senior medic officer. With experience like that it would help me if I continue my medical training." Myrick was also involved in the Panama crisis, and after these two tours of duty he feels he has done and seen enough. His training has included learning to parachute with the Army's 82nd Airborne Division.

"We're trained for rapid deployment. We're called the parachute infantry because we wear light armor, and we're used mainly when things happen, to go behind the lines," Myrick said. "In Saudi Arabia, I was stationed near Riyadh. We were part of an anti-terrorist group for Central Command. "The one thing that kept us pumped up and ready for anything was the support we got from people back home. You don't realize how much one can miss home and just being with people that one knows until you have to go somewhere like the Persian Gulf. We could not have done it without everybody's support. It made our life and job easier. And I would like to say thanks to everyone, I will never forget it."

Hispanics, Blacks majority in 2 cities

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
 Staff Writer

Hispanics and Blacks now comprise the majority of the populations in Stanton and Ackerly, according to 1990 U.S. Census Bureau figures. In Stanton, Hispanics account for 49 percent and Blacks 3 percent of the 1990 population of 2,567. Hispanics are 55 percent of the 243 population in Ackerly, where no Blacks were counted. In Martin County as a whole, Hispanics and Blacks total 41 percent of the 4,956 population.

While Stanton grew by 262 people since 1980, an 11 percent increase, the Hispanic population grew by 343, to 1,261, which is a 37 percent increase, census figures show. In 1980, Hispanics comprised 40 percent of the population.

The Black population decreased slightly, to 66, which is 3 percent of the total. Whites, numbering 1,225, are 47 percent of the population and other races, at 24, account for less than 1 percent.

Government officials in Stanton are not surprised.

"There seems to be more Spanish around here," confirmed Aurora Sanchez, director of the Martin-Glasscock Neighborhood Center and Headstart. "I would say that we have more low income than we used to before. That's one thing that we noticed," she said.

"It really doesn't surprise me," said Councilman Lester Baker, who is running unopposed for mayor. "The thing that surprises me is that we're increasing in population but there's more houses for sale. It's alarming."

Housing units increased by 131 since 1980, to 999, which is 15 percent, census figures show.

"Just a few years ago there wasn't a house available. You had a problem moving into a house. Now there's an abundance," Baker said.

Sanchez and Baker both said that Hispanics should become more involved in politics and the community. "I don't see too many Hispanics running for office and I don't see many of them in places of authority. Not just Hispanics but Blacks," Sanchez said.

Only one of the six City Council members, James Jenkins, who is black, is a minority. Of four candidates running for mayor and two at-large Council positions up for election May 4, none are minorities. Jenkins' seat is not up for election this year. Also, none of the five members on the Martin County Commissioners Court are minorities.

"It's only right that they get involved in the city and the community," Baker said.

Sanchez said she would like to see that happen too. "I have great hope for that," she said. "But I don't see it right now."

Meanwhile, in Ackerly, which sits in both Martin and Dawson counties, 133 Hispanics now comprise 55 percent of the population, census figures show. The Hispanic population only grew by 9 people but the overall population dropped by 74. Besides whites and Hispanics, no Blacks or other races were counted in Ackerly.

Martin County as a whole increased by 272 people, a 6 percent increase. The Hispanic population in the county grew by 340 people, to 1,960, and are now 39 percent of the population while the Black population decreased slightly, to 87, which is 2 percent. Whites, at 2,881, are at 58 percent and other races, at 28, are less than 1 percent.

As far as any possible undercount, Sanchez said she had heard that a "few" people had not been counted but she did not say the problem appeared widespread. "There might be a few out in the county that just weren't counted," she said.

The state of Texas and the League of United Latin American Citizens are parties in a suit citing an undercount, which was filed last year against the Census Bureau.

Water under the bridge

DALLAS — Eric Nelson and Clark Hyse wade through chest-deep flood waters under an overpass along Central Expressway in Dallas this weekend. Heavy rains hit the North Texas area for the third day in a row Saturday causing some flash flooding.

Official: No new fire teams needed

HOUSTON (AP) — Wild Well Control Inc. says no facilities are available for the firefighting teams the Kuwaiti government wants to add to the American units already on site dousing hundreds of burning Kuwaiti wells.

Pat Campbell, a project manager for Wild Well Control, said Sunday that facilities for the firefighters working now are sparse and could not accommodate others.

"You'd have to go into town and drag a mattress back with you if you want to stay with us — that's just the way it is," he said.

Campbell also said it was taking time for the Kuwaitis to establish accommodations and water supplies for the firefighters because of "the most difficult conditions after the extraordinary damage inflicted to the country during the Iraqi occupation."

On Saturday, Kuwaiti oil minister Rasheed al-Amiri said Kuwait's oil-field inferno was too big for four North American companies to handle. Al-Amiri said he planned to hire teams worldwide to try to put out more than 500 fires in seven months.

"Well, that's the oil minister and he didn't sign my contract," said Campbell.

As of early Saturday, two fires had been put out, and 23 wells that were spewing oil had been capped. In all, about 600 oil wells were blown up by Iraqi troops before their defeat in late February, including about 520 that caught fire and about 80 that spewed oil without burning.

Cap Rock connection

By PEGGY LUXTON
 Communications Advisor Cap Rock Electric Inc.

An in-depth study has shown certain departments of Cap Rock Electric could be operated more efficiently and more economically by working four 10-hour days each week rather than the traditional five eight-hour days.

Beginning last Monday, the co-op departments — construction, engineering and SCADA as well as the warehouse personnel — began working 10-hour days. Personnel in these departments will rotate on their days off, so a full complement of employees will be on duty all five workdays of the week.

Cap Rock management believes the 10-hour days will cut back on required overtime. If a construction crew, for instance, was working on the edge of the service area many miles from headquarters, with a 10-hour workday they would be able to finish many jobs without payment of overtime or leave an unfinished job just to drive the many miles again the following day.

The co-op's metering department has been working on four-day workweeks for almost five years. This aided greatly in facilitating the co-op's billing program. With cycle billing, which includes four billings each month, readings obtained by meter readers could be downloaded into the computer system and bills calculated hours later. On 10-hour days, the meter reader is often able to cover the entire area served by a substation in one day, being ready to move to another location the following day.

For other departments of Cap Rock, it is not feasible to implement a four-day workweek. There are no plans to close any department in the co-op on Fridays. The only difference co-op customers will realize will be a shorter length of time to complete several cooperative functions.

The Cap Rock headquarters office, fully manned, will remain open eight hours each day and five days each week. Ulen North, the co-op's director of administration and operations, said Cap Rock was trying the new hours strictly on a trial basis.

"We will look frequently at the benefits this new schedule offers our members," North said.

"Other co-ops in the state have tried it and it works for some and didn't work for others. We think it will save time and money for our customers. If it doesn't, we will return those personnel to traditional hours."

Spelling honors

More than 29 spelling bee participants covering four counties competed for top honors in this year's Fourth Annual Spelling Bee Contest sponsored by the Midland Reporter Telegram. Cory Flanagan, a fifth-grader at Stanton Elementary placed fourth at the meet. The contest was held at the Allison Fine Arts Auditorium at the campus of Midland College recently. Flanagan won a Webster's thesaurus and a trophy for his efforts. The counties participating were Midland, Glasscock, Upton and Martin.

Court denies man's appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas man sentenced to six months in jail for passing out anti-abortion and pro-family literature at a Houston area high school lost a Supreme Court appeal today.

The justices, without comment, let stand rulings that Donald J. Treshman Jr.'s criminal-trespass conviction did not violate his free-speech rights.

Treshman, convicted for his actions at Mayde Creek High School on Jan. 21, 1988, now faces having to begin his jail term and pay a $1,000 fine.

Treshman was one of three people who distributed literature on the high school's campus as students emerged from buses at the beginning of the school day.

Treshman, who had not applied for or received permission to be on the campus for such activity, refused to leave when told.

"My heat pump's so efficient it saves money. And it's a clean system. I like what it means for the environment." —Elta Chandler, Park Board Member

Elta Chandler cools and heats her home with a heat pump because it saves money and energy. And since it's electric, it's "wonderfully clean."

A heat pump uses the energy in the air to keep her home comfortable all year. Even on cold winter days there's heat in the air. A heat pump captures that heat and uses it.

And it costs less to operate than a gas furnace. It's so efficient that for each unit of energy it uses, it creates two to three units of heat.

In the summer a heat pump becomes a high-efficiency air conditioner, capturing the heat inside the home and removing it.

For more information, call a heat pump dealer or TU Electric. It's your chance to save more than money.
