TU Electric refund OK'd by Texas PUC

A refund to residential customers of TU Electric was approved Tuesday by the Public Utility Commission of Texas.

TU Electric district manager John Toone said customers who use 1,000 kilowatt hours will receive a one-time credit of about $12 on their June bills. TU Electric's fuel costs were lower than expected due to milder than usual weather over the winter months.

Under the Public Utility Regulatory Act, utilities are not allowed to make a profit or take a loss from the cost of fuel.

Big Spring's water line work went well

Construction on the city's main water line went "better than we had planned for," Assistant City Manager Tom Decell said today.

Workers replaced the old main line with a cement-lined iron pipe and installed some new equipment at the treatment plant. The plant's capacity will increase by 6 million gallons to 16 million gallons per day.

Decell said local residents had done a good job of conserving water Tuesday as he had requested. When construction finished at 2 p.m., more than 8 million gallons of water were left in reserve, he said.

The plant is fully operational today, he said.

Texas sales tax revenues up 10%

Texas sales tax revenues have increased by 10 percent so far this year, state Comptroller John Sharp says.

Big Spring, which voted to double its local sales tax beginning Oct. 1, 1990, has received 100.34 percent more in revenues so far this year, for a total of $1,269,784, Sharp reported.

Sales taxes total 8 1/2 percent in the city, of which 6 1/2 percent is returned to the state. The remaining 2 percent is divided between a program to lower city property taxes and the work of Moore Development for Big Spring Inc.

Airborne group calling for veterans

The 82nd Airborne Division Association is searching for veterans of Desert Storm who might be eligible for membership in the organization.

National membership chairperson Shirley R. Gossett says after the division returns to Fort Bragg, N.C., an All American Week of festivities will take place next Monday through May 26.

U.S., Japan still apart on war pledge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is haggling with Japan over about $1.2 billion of the $9 billion the Asian nation pledged toward covering the cost of the Persian Gulf War.

Officials of the State and Treasury departments testified Tuesday that the shortfall is due to a disagreement over the rate of exchange and Japan's contention that the payment must be made to all the allies.

David Mulford, treasury undersecretary for international affairs, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that the administration expects to resolve the problem of who receives the payment.

The issue of the exchange rate requires additional negotiations, he said.

Japan has pledged about $13 billion — $11 billion for the coalition's military partners and $2.6 billion in economic aid for Mideast nations hard hit by the embargo on Iraq and the war.

The United States has received about $36 billion of the $54.5 billion allies and other nations have pledged to cover the cost of Operation Desert Shield and Operation Desert Storm.

The eventual cost of the victory over Iraq is expected to range between $60 billion and $70 billion, the officials said.

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, said it was "quite clear that the administration has done a good job in pursuing these commitments."

Eugene McAllister, assistant secretary of state for economic and business affairs, said the administration would be "disappointed if it's not done by the end of the year."

Mulford also said Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates have been slow in paying the United States but that U.S. officials expect the Saudis to pay by early June.

The other countries are also expected to fulfill their obligations by Sept. 30, the end of the government's fiscal year.

The Arab nations, angered by Jordan's support of Iraq during the Gulf War, have refused to contribute to an assistance plan for the country financially strapped by the Mideast crisis.

The Gulf Crisis Financial Coordination Group is providing assistance to front-line nations hard hit by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and the United Nations sanctions imposed on Iraq.

Pledges for the group from August 1990 to the end of this calendar year total $16 billion, with $11.7 billion promised for Egypt, Turkey and Jordan. The group has received and distributed $8.9 billion.

Of the three countries, Egypt could receive $2 billion more than it needs.

Initial pledges to Egypt totaled $5.3 billion and to date, the country has received $3.4 billion in cash or in-kind grants. But recent estimates of the war's effect on Egypt have revised the figure to $3.3 billion.

Military gets few post-war recruits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Persian Gulf War was a public relations bonanza for the Pentagon, but it was a wash for military recruiters.

"There's no line outside the door," said Lt. Col. Joe Reich, head of the enlisted recruiting operations section at Marine Corps headquarters.

High school recruiting took a nose dive in the early days of the gulf crisis last summer, but recruiting interest swung the other way early this year. Patriotic Americans wanted to sign up for duty.

"I didn't have any second thoughts" about joining because of the war, said Army recruit Michael Creed, a high school senior from Arlington, Va. "It made me want to join more."

War fluctuations are gone now, and "it's back to business as usual," Barbara Sorensen, a spokeswoman for the Army Recruiting Command, said in an interview this week.

Recruiting levels are almost exactly where they were a year ago. From October to March, the months that spanned the buildup and war, the Army recruited 45,500; the Marines 15,400; Navy 31,900; Air Force 14,700. Those 107,500 recruits compared to 104,800 in the same period in fiscal 1990.

The armed services are meeting their recruiting goals, but it isn't easy.

The Pentagon is "building down" in the wake of the Cold War, cutting the size of the active-duty U.S. armed force by a quarter, to 1.6 million men and women by 1995.

Even so, the military still must recruit 200,000 new people a year to meet its needs.

The Marines' recruiting requirements will rise slightly next year. But there's no money in the budget for TV and radio ads touting "The few, the proud, the Marines."

So the Marines are calling on their returning veterans from the

Colorado City officials consider ways to improve water system

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — Officials here said they must decide how much of $5 million — twice as much as the city budget — they should spend for improvements to the city's water system.

A plan to increase water pressure and help remove discoloration and odors is broken down into four projects that city officials can choose from, according to a presentation by officials of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper Inc., an engineering firm with offices in Midland and Lubbock.

"I think we're getting ready to make great strides forward in our water distribution system," said Mayor Jim Baum, who added that the present system has some "real problems."

But Baum and some council members debated what a city of about 4,700 people and with a budget this year of $2.7 million can afford.

The council will find out how much in bonds they can afford to sell when its members talk with their fiscal agent, Joe Smith of Southwest Savings in Dallas, in the next two or three weeks, Baum said.

"That way we can see what our financial capabilities are as they pertain to our engineering needs," Baum said. "I'd say we're at least three to six months away before we would have a bond election." He

Moore group expected to move into new office

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

The board of directors of Moore Development for Big Spring Inc. planned for a move into new office facilities and discussed an upcoming seminar at its meeting Tuesday.

Executive Director Ted St. Clair said the renovated office space the corporation plans to share with the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce was almost complete. Moving was expected to begin today, he said.

"Our close relationship with the chamber will further solidify the work both of us will do," Moore board president Owen Ivie said. "We'll work closely but yet separate."

The office, located in the 200 block of West Third Street, has been renovated for joint occupation. The two groups will share a reception area and large conference room but will be housed in separate offices.

Board members approved expenditures of up to $8,000 for purchasing office furniture, including furnishings for a conference room planned for board meetings.

A public seminar on long-range planning was tentatively set for June 15. Officials from the boards of the Big Spring Independent School District and Howard College, the city council, the Howard County Commissioners Court, the chamber and the Big Spring Industrial Foundation would be invited.

Consultant Howard Putnam, hired by Moore to help market the McMahon/Wrinkle Airport, will conduct the day-long session, St. Clair said.

In other business, Ivie said St. Clair and the board members have been busy with industry and

Burleson dead at 85

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

ABILENE — Former U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson, who served in Congress for 32 years, died Tuesday night at an Abilene hospital. He was 85.

Burleson, a Democrat, represented the 17th District of Texas from 1947 until his retirement in 1979.

He was born on his family's farm near Anson in 1906, but had lived in Abilene since retiring from Congress in 1979. He was chairman of the House Administration Committee when he left office.

Burleson was secretary to U.S. Rep. Sam Russell of Texas in 1941 and 1942, and also served as general counsel for the Housing Authority of the District of Columbia in 1942.

He attended school in Anson, about 25 miles north of Abilene, and attended both Abilene Christian College and Hardin-Simmons University before graduating in 1929 from Cumberland University in Lebanon, Tenn.

He was admitted to the bar the same year and began law practice in Gorman, Texas. But he later returned to Anson, where he was elected county attorney of Jones County in 1931.

In 1934, he ran for county judge and held the job until 1940, when he became a special agent of the FBI.

Burleson left the FBI to enlist in the Navy during World War II. He served in the North Atlantic and South Pacific during his naval stint, which ran from December 1942 to April 1946.

He is survived by several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services are scheduled for Friday at the Anson Church of Christ.

"Omar Burleson not only served the people of Jones County and the rest of the 17th District, but the entire country," said Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Tx., who was elected to Burleson's vacated seat. "He was an inspiration to me and someone I wanted to model myself after because he was patient, car-

Sea World whale dies

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Officials at Sea World of Texas say it may be several weeks before they are able to determine the cause of death of one of the killer whales used to portray Shamu.

A security officer discovered the whale was dead early Tuesday. The animal, estimated to be 14 to 16 years old, had previously exhibited no apparent illness, officials said.

Results of the necropsy, a post-mortem examination of the animal that's similar to a human autopsy, were expected in four to six weeks after lab tests, Sea World officials said in a prepared statement.

The killer whale's companions, an adult male and adult female, reportedly appeared in good health.

"This whale exhibited no signs of illness or anything that would lead us to believe the whale was ill or was in any kind of distress," said Bob McCullough, Sea World of Texas public relations director.

Agency probes Methadone deaths

HOUSTON (AP) — Ten methadone-related deaths in a one-year period in Houston have prompted an investigation by the Texas Department of Health.

The city's drug-related deaths are more than the state had experienced in the 20-year history of the controversial drug treatment program.

"This is the first grouping of deaths we're aware of," Ken Davis, chief investigator for the Texas Department of Health's food and drug division, said Tuesday. "Historically, we've had only two or three cases of deaths (total) in Texas."

Officials say at least three people who died were patients of Dr. Tommy E. Swate, a physician who operates two Houston methadone clinics and whose federal permits for methadone treatment have been recommended for suspension or revocation.

Gambling bill lists in Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that would allow casino gambling on ships within Texas waters was listing in the Senate after a 15-15 vote that the sponsor said could virtually dash shipboard gambling along the coast.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, needed 20 votes Tuesday to bring his measure before the Senate.

He said he was surprised at the vote but attributed it to opposition from "dog track people" in the Corpus Christi area who do not want competition for tourist dollars.

Committee gives Bush nod on agreement

HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU
WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, led the Senate Finance Committee in giving President Bush approval Tuesday to conduct "fast-track" negotiations in reaching a free trade agreement with Mexico.

Denying claims from industrial-state lawmakers that manufacturing jobs will be lost, Bentsen said: "If I truly believed this would lead to a net exodus of jobs, I would fight it."

The committee voted 15-3 Tuesday to recommend that the full Senate not interfere with Bush's authority to negotiate with Mexico. At the same time, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 29-7 to do the same.

H. Ross Perot resists change in legislation

DALLAS (AP) — Billionaire Ross Perot, the architect of the sweeping education reforms of 1984, is back at the forefront trying to keep lawmakers from eroding the gains made by the state's no-pass, no-play rule.

Both Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Gib Lewis said Tuesday they would not support any change.

"He called me this morning and asked me how it was going, and I told him I doubted seriously that change would stay," Lewis said. "He said he figured that we would do the right thing."

"Personally, I am opposed to any change," the speaker said, referring to a Senate bill passed last week that would cut the suspension period under no-pass, no-play from six to three weeks.

Both Lewis and Bullock, who was then state comptroller, served with Perot on the blue-ribbon committee that recommended the no-pass, no-play rule and a host of other sweeping education reforms that were passed by the Legislature in 1984.

In what key senators called a major retreat from the 1984 school reform law, the Senate — with the backing of Gov. Ann Richards — voted Friday to ease the no-pass, no-play rule.

The rule, which is one of the toughest such requirements in the nation, prohibits students with one or more failing grades from participating in sports and other extracurricular activities. Coaches and other critics have long complained that it is too strict.

Under current law, a student cannot participate for an entire six-week grading period after he or she has received one or more failing grades.

Committee adopts ethics overhaul

AUSTIN (AP) — A House committee approved an overhaul of the state's ethics laws, but the reform measure still has a long way to go in a short period of time.

The bill approved 12-0 late Tuesday by the State Affairs Committee will be considered by the full House on Thursday or Friday, said Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center.

If approved there it will likely go to a conference committee composed of House and Senate members. The Senate passed a different ethics package in February.

Such a timetable would place the measure in competition with hundreds of other pieces of legislation being pushed in the final week of the legislative session, which ends May 27.

"No question time is getting short. It is getting very close to being in jeopardy at this time," said Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, presiding officer of the Senate.

The bill recommended by the State Affairs panel would create a commission to investigate ethics complaints and fine violators. The

The committee voted 15-3 Tuesday to recommend that the full Senate not interfere with Bush's authority to negotiate with Mexico. At the same time, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 29-7 to do the same.

Congress has until June 1 to pass legislation blocking the "fast-track" process. Fast track means that Congress agrees not to interfere with the trade negotiations and will simply approve or reject the final proposed agreement.

Bentsen said that Mexico already has greater access to U.S. markets and that U.S. manufacturers are currently building plants in Mexico. He said the trade agreement would lower Mexican trade barriers and restore more balance to U.S.-Mexican trade.

"For years I've watched Mexican leaders rail against the Yankee to the north. Now we have a leader in (Mexican President Carlos) Salinas who is committed to closer ties with the United States. That's an opportunity we must seize," Bentsen said.

Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Houston, said essentially the same thing in the House committee. Andrews said a free trade agreement would overhaul U.S.-Mexico relations and provide more mutual prosperity and understanding.

The most passionate objections were raised by Sen. Donald Riegle, Jr., D-Mich. Representing the state that is home to much of the U.S. auto industry, Riegle said the trade agreement would undercut American manufacturing by luring industry across the border for cheap labor.

He said that President Bush's new willingness to provide more money for worker retraining demonstrates the White House is aware of the impact the trade pact would have on manufacturing jobs.

"In this case, you really have Third-World wage levels put at an equal level with American jobs," Riegle said. "The average Mexican wage is 50 cents an hour. The average American manufacturing wage is $10 an hour. The logic is overwhelming."

Bentsen disagreed, saying freer trade would lead to a net gain in employment overall. Rep. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., pointed to the U.S.-Canada free trade agreement as proof of the potential benefits.

Ted Kennedy knew of rape charge

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy knew before he left Palm Beach on Easter weekend that his nephew had been accused of rape and that police wanted to talk to him, Kennedy's son told investigators. Patrick Kennedy also told police that his cousin William Kennedy Smith admitted having sex with the alleged victim. Smith has denied any wrongdoing but has not publicly indicated whether he had sex with the woman. The senator has repeatedly denied that he knew before leaving Florida on April 1 that Smith, his 30-year-old nephew, was accused of raping a woman on the lawn of the Kennedy estate March 30.

But Patrick Kennedy, a Rhode Island lawmaker, told police in a sworn statement released Tuesday that his father knew of the accusation. And the senator himself admitted in a sworn statement that he knew of calls from the police inquiring about a "serious offense" but did not return those calls.

According to the documents, Patrick Kennedy said his father learned of the rape allegation in a conversation the evening of March 31 with William Barry, a former FBI agent and chief of security for the estate.

Senator re-elected after jail time

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Voters returned to the state Senate a man sent to prison eight years ago for buying votes, posing a new ethical dilemma in this capital still reeling from a corruption sting that snared several lawmakers. Gene Carmichael was elected Tuesday in special balloting to fill the seat left vacant by the death in January of Jack Lindsay. The Democrat received 4,433 votes in the largely poor, rural district near the North Carolina line. Glenn Manning got 2,031 votes. Lindsay's son, Chuck, a write-in candidate, had 1,367 votes. The Republicans did not run a candidate. Under state law, Carmichael became eligible to run for office again when his five-year parole ended in 1989. But his campaign angered some in a Legislature still smarting from an FBI sting that has resulted in the arrests of 15 current or former legislators, most on bribery charges. The sting, Operation Lost Trust, began with the FBI recruitment of a former House member and lobbyist who agreed to go undercover. He offered cash to lawmakers for their votes on a bill to legalize horse and dog racing.

Fresh oil still found after two years

BAY OF ISLES, Alaska (AP) — Two years after the nation's worst oil spill, fresh pockets of sticky crude are still being discovered, and officials say they will never be able to clean it all up. Spring temperatures are melting the snow from the rocky beaches surrounding Prince William Sound, showing that many are recovering well from the March 24, 1989, spill of nearly 11 million gallons of crude. But with the warming come reminders of the calamity and its aftermath — pockets where oozy oil, gooey tar mats and hardened, asphalt-like residue remain. "There's going to be oil left. You can't clean it all up. The technology doesn't exist," said Ernie Piper, the state's on-scene coordinator for spill cleanup.

OIL POCKETS REMAIN

WASHINGTON — President Bush shows the art of horseshoes to Queen Elizabeth II at the White House Tuesday on the first day of her third state visit to the United States. The Queen was given a red carpet welcome at the White House, complete with a 21-gun salute.

Bush, Queen hit it off on first day of her visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — He joked about her stamina and her love of horses. She told a funny story about Blair House. It wasn't exactly the "George and Liz" show, but Queen Elizabeth II and President Bush seemed to hit it off Tuesday as well as their two countries' did during the Persian Gulf War. "During the gulf crisis your country and mine have together shown that freedom works," the queen said in her toast to Bush at a White House state dinner. "The free world has to thank you, Mr. President, for your clarity of vision and firmness of purpose." Bush toasted the "gritty resolution of your majesty's services" in the gulf, adding the military cooperation harkened back to former joint successes in World War I and World War II. The Desert Storm theme recurred, and recurred, throughout the first day of the monarch's 10-day official visit to the United States. In fact it was so prominent that VIP guests at the black-tie dinner swarmed Desert Storm commander Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf for his autograph. Despite the formalities, the 65-year-old queen adopted a relaxed tone in her toast. "The British have never felt America to be a foreign land," she said. "Here we feel comfortable and among friends." She recounted a "rumor" about why presidential guests stay in the Blair House across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House. The story goes that when Prime Minister Winston Churchill, a night owl, was staying at the White House over Christmas 1941, he tried to persuade Eleanor Roosevelt to let him talk to President Roosevelt very late one night "or more likely very early in the morning." "Mrs. Roosevelt is supposed to have decided then and there that henceforth the president's guests should be accommodated elsewhere," she said. Bush, who is a year older than the queen, joked about her stamina on a day when she planted a tree, watched Bush throw horseshoes and placed a wreath at Arlington National Cemetery. "Your long walks have left even the Secret Service agents panting away and I'm glad that my fibrillating heart was not taxed by a competitive walkoff," Bush said. Bush was briefly hospitalized last week for an irregular heartbeat known as atrial fibrillation.

Chinese official arrives in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Jiang Zemin, the first Chinese Communist Party chief to visit the Soviet Union since 1957, met with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev today and began talks expected to partially settle a border dispute. Jiang's four-day visit was expected to be a largely symbolic celebration of two years of increasing contacts initiated by Gorbachev's trip to Beijing in May 1989. The two Communist giants were allies in the 1950s but split in the 1960s over a border dispute and rivalry within the world Communist movement. China was irritated as being regarded the "little brother" to the Soviets. At a brief airport news conference in Beijing prior to his departure, Jiang said he expected to sign an agreement to partially settle the border conflict. Soviet Vice President Gennady Yanayev and the deputy chief of the Communist Party, Vladimir Ivashko, met Jiang at Moscow's VIP Vnukovo Airport. Jiang was then whisked by limousine to the Kremlin, where he met Gorbachev in the ornate St. George's Hall. The Chinese leader was accorded the highest diplomatic honors, including guest quarters in a 19th century Kremlin palace once used by visiting relatives of the Czars.

Guilt, innocence irrelevant to some

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Many people believe Winnie Mandela's trial on kidnap and assault charges was politically inspired, and say its outcome shows there is no justice for blacks. To them, her guilt or innocence is irrelevant. The government was in no hurry to jail the wife of black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela after her conviction and sentencing Tuesday to six years in prison on kidnap and accessory-to-assault charges. Mrs. Mandela was freed on $70 bail while her attorney appeals the case, a process that normally takes months. Because Mrs. Mandela's followers see her as a political martyr, the stiff sentence could put pressure on Nelson Mandela to take a harder line against the white-led government in talks on dismantling apartheid. It could also prompt President F.W. de Klerk to pardon Mrs. Mandela in the interests of social peace. De Klerk has been pursuing the talks with Mandela's African National Congress, but they are already threatened by black factional fighting that the ANC contends is encouraged by police.

U.S. aids Bangladesh relief effort

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — Five U.S. Blackhawk helicopters today ferried food and medicine to cyclone survivors along the southeastern coast, beginning an American relief effort involving thousands of troops. About 7,000 U.S. military personnel, some of them Persian Gulf War veterans diverted from voyages home, were to reach Bangladesh today in an eight-ship flotilla. Two U.S. C-130 cargo planes made three trips each from Dhaka to Chittagong ferrying stocks of relief goods that had piled up in the capital for lack of transport, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said. ### Pay-per-call phone service

"Hey, kids! I'm the Easter Bunny. Get a pencil and write down my secret phone number (for) great stories, filled with fun, magic and monsters (and) a free Easter Bunny gift."

This was the gist of an animated commercial enticing children to call a 900 number, at a rate of $2 for the first minute and 45 cents thereafter. It was cited recently by the Federal Trade Commission as an example of deceptive advertising specifically targeted to children by unscrupulous companies operating within the pay-per-call industry.

The FTC filed complaints against three 900-number telephone services for airing such commercials aimed at children. Two of the three settled out of court by accepting FTC guidelines for future ads. These new guidelines have the support of the pay-per-call industry and may very well become the unofficial industry standard for advertising to children.

The pay-per-call industry would much prefer to conform to the FTC's voluntary guidelines than be subjected to government regulation codified in law. Congress already is considering legislation that would bring 900 services under strict regulatory supervision. Industry leaders worry that regulation will impede pay-per-call's stunning growth.

Pay-per-call has been around since 1980, when ABC television used it to poll viewers during the Reagan-Carter presidential debate. The industry really took off four years later with the breakup of AT&T.

During the last seven years, pay-per-call has grown faster than virtually any other American industry. From less than $1 million in revenues in 1984, pay-per-call jumped to $100 million in 1988; $235 million in 1989; $690 million in 1990; and a projected $919 million this year. If this growth curve continues, pay-per-call receipts should grow to $6.5 billion by 1995.

It is this explosive expansion that has prompted a handful of fast-buck artists to set up 900 services. Their abuses reflect unfavorably on the entire industry, although most of the 7,000 companies providing 900 services are legitimate. Most 900 services charge reasonable rates to provide callers with such worthwhile information as weather reports, stock quotations, sports scores, legal advice and various kinds of over-the-phone entertainment.

The FTC has done a creditable job in setting down guidelines for companies that advertise 900-number services to children. Now perhaps it might consider developing voluntary advertising standards for the entire pay-per-call industry.

Alexander takes on evangelist's role

James J. Kilpatrick

WASHINGTON — Lamar Alexander, the new secretary of education, doesn't look much like an evangelist — he looks more like a tennis coach — but it's the evangelist's role that he's taken on. He is about to hit the sawdust trail in support of the Bush strategy for improving public education.

This is the old-time religion, and Alexander is well-equipped to preach it. As governor of Tennessee he took on the teachers' union and won some hard-fought reforms. Now his task is to convert the whole country to the sound doctrine of fundamental educational values.

Alexander has settled into his new quarters on Maryland Avenue and put his own stamp upon the decor. He is the only member of the Cabinet with three rustic rocking chairs in his office. Last week he settled into one of the rockers, invited a guest to take another, and began his sermon.

The president's program, he insists, is not a "program" in the usual sense of the word. It has certain specific aims — formidably ambitious aims — but the president makes no detailed recommendations for meeting them. This policy is deliberate. Bush wants educational reforms, but he wants state and local governments, working in conjunction with the private sector, to fashion their own reforms. They must "break the mold" of long established but unsuccessful practices.

Well, says the visitor, what's new about that? People have been preaching educational reforms since the day that Professor McGuffey published his first Eclectic Readers in 1836. How is the president's crusade different?

Alexander rises to the bait: The active involvement of a president, he says, is different. The fixing of world-class standards in five core

ON DIVERSITY: Bush News-Trend/Carley News Service

"I hope they revamp the U.S. education system. I want to be able to operate all the neat products the Japanese will be selling us in 20 years!"

subjects is different. National achievement tests are different. The prospect of a new generation of schools is exciting.

The visitor is curious. When the secretary speaks of a "new generation of schools," exactly what does the gentleman have in mind?

No, says the secretary, he can't say exactly what he has in mind, for then it would be his program, or the president's program, and it's not going to work that way. The general plan calls for 535 exemplary new schools, one for each of 435 congressional districts, plus two for each state. These schools won't necessarily be new in the sense of bricks and mortar; they will be new in the sense of ideas.

If the plan succeeds, these "new schools" will make a leap from candles to oil lamps, or in a better image, from buggies to airplanes. "Everything is on the table," says Alexander. The number of school days, the hours of instruction, the ratio of teachers to pupils, the use of new tools of classroom teaching — all these will be up for examination.

As a first step, Alexander will urge each community to take a fresh look at the educational needs of its children. Beyond certain fundamental goals in common, children have different needs. The needs of the poor differ from those of the middle class. Not every child requires college preparation. Old questions demand new answers: What should we teach? To what standards? Must all teaching be done by professionally certified teachers?

The president's goals for 2000 are ambitious goals. By the end of this decade, 90 percent of high school students should graduate. Every youngster must acquire competence in English, mathematics, science, history and geography. Bush wants U.S. students to be "first in the world" in science and math. By 2000 every adult American will be literate, and every school will be free of drugs and violence.

This is a tall order, but like every good evangelist Alexander is optimistic. Will industry contribute $200 million toward the radical new schools? Of course, says Alexander. No problem. Will the powerful teachers' unions cooperate with radical reforms? At the state and local levels, will the people pay the additional taxes that may be required?

Alexander sits forward in his rocking chair. The American people, he says fervently, are ready to embrace a strategy that will lead to markedly better schools. Teachers and principals will welcome the invitation to excellence. There is a new understanding, he believes, of the dangers that lie ahead. Where there is no vision, the people perish — and without a well-educated populace the United States will not be able to compete successfully in the next century.

Well, says the visitor, let us say amen to all that. Ambitious goals merit wholehearted response. Bring on the president's bill and let the revival begin.

Few women elected to Congress

By STEVEN KOMAROW Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — You still see those bumper stickers, "A Woman's Place Is In the House — And The Senate." But many years after they first appeared in the 1970s, it hasn't come to pass.

Congress still is very much a man's place.

Over two centuries, only 134 women have ever served in the House and Senate. The 29 in the 435-member House today is an all-time high; the two in the 100-seat Senate is one short of the record.

"If when I got elected (in 1972) someone told me that by '91 we'd have 29 women (in the House) . . . Nah, we'd have many more than that," said Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., the most senior woman in Congress.

That it hasn't happened "seems astounding," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder was one of 15 women in Congress when she was first sworn in. That was down from an earlier peak of 20 from 1961-1963.

Numbers, of course, don't tell the whole story.

A new book by the House Historian's office chronicles Congress' first 129 women, not including the five just elected last November.

The profile of congresswomen has changed over the years. They are, as a group, more skillful politicians than their predecessors. They made it politically on their own, while in earlier days most were place-holders, appointed to fill vacancies, sometimes due to the deaths of their husbands.

They made their marks as individuals, some as historical footnotes.

There was Rebecca Latimer Felton, D-Ga., the first woman to serve in the Senate. Appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sen. Tom Watson, her term lasted from Nov. 21 through Nov. 22, 1922. She was 87 at the time, still the record for the oldest person to begin Senate service.

Capitol report

She wouldn't have served even that brief stint — the shortest on record — had the determined suffragist not persuaded her elected successor to delay his swearing-in for a day.

Rep. Jeannette Rankin, R-Mont., was elected to Congress in 1916 before most women could vote.

She voted against U.S. entry into World War I, left office after her term, and then returned 22 years later just in time to vote against World War II — the only member of the House or Senate to oppose President Roosevelt's request.

Later, women such as Bella Abzug, Barbara Jordan and Margaret Chase Smith made their impact on the nation's consciousness.

But for all that, women as a group still find frustrations and indignities while functioning in a male-dominated institution. "I was one of those women candidates who was very concerned with being tarred with the stereotype of being concerned only with 'women's issues,'" said Rep. Marge Roukema, R-N.J., who was elected in 1980.

But after watching Congress in action, "I lost all my self-consciousness," she said.

She recalled how the Reagan administration eight years ago opposed a bill for federal enforcement of child support orders. The bill passed overwhelmingly — and with White House blessing — only after pollsters began talking about the "gender gap" among voters.

Roukema is still battling an administration of her own party on another issue: guaranteed family leave for childbirth and medical emergencies.

And it's not as though the male-dominated Democratic leadership of Congress is a far different story, congresswomen say.

"The response of this body is usually, 'Why don't you ladies pick out one thing you'd really like, preferably something that doesn't cost any money, and we'll try to get it through this session for you,'" Mrs. Schroeder said.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., even tried to close the only women's lounge near the House chamber. The men have facilities just off the floor, with a balcony overlooking the Capitol grounds.

Spittoons and snuff boxes still decorate the Senate chamber. Barbara Mikulski of Maryland, the first woman Democrat elected to the Senate, had to tolerate a male senator's joke about her underwear.

It all gets back to the numbers question.

"The women are active and they can do things," Mrs. Schroeder said. "But, to say there's any real power? No. And there won't be until we've got enough numbers."

There is at least one positive indicator on Capitol Hill. In the Senate gift shop, sales of pink "Future U.S. Senator" infant T-shirts have kept pace with the blue ones. Maybe parents know something that members of Congress don't.

Men should see past glasses

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old, reasonably attractive woman. I dress stylishly and wear subtle makeup. I am very nearsighted and wear glasses because I can't tolerate hard or soft contact lenses. (Believe me, I have tried.)

Abby, it infuriates me when men (whether they are dates or not), casual acquaintances or co-workers think I should feel complimented when they say, "You'd be much prettier without your glasses."

I am sometimes tempted to say, "And you'd be even more handsome with a little more hair on your head — or less padding around your middle." Or, "You'd be a much nicer person if you had better manners!"

Abby, please tell these oafs to look in a mirror before they start giving women fashion advice. Thanks. — FOUR EYES AND WELL-ADJUSTED

DEAR WELL-ADJUSTED: Resist that old saw, "The best defense is a good offense." Heed the wise words of author

Dear Abby

Letty Cottin Pogrebin: "Men who never make passes at women with glasses are asses."

Also consider the advantage for those who wear glasses: In a romantic situation, when the glasses are removed, it's a clear signal that someone is going to get kissed!

DEAR ABBY: Until late last fall, I was a registered voter in Clackamas County, Oregon. After you urged people to vote, I decided to re-register after changing my address to the local jail where I am being held pending trial, since address changes need to be recorded per Oregon law.

The response I received was a note attached to a photocopy that stated, "I am unable to process your registration until you have completed your sentence." It was attached to a copy of a citation of Oregon law that, in effect, stated that a person with a felony conviction loses the right to vote during the term of imprisonment.

As "Illinois Voter" stated (in your column), "If each community made it easier to vote, more people would vote."

It took letters to the Elections Division, assistant county attorney and Clackamas County Clerk, as well as secretary of state and then-Gov. Elect Barbara Roberts — but I continue to be a registered voter as of Dec. 17, 1991, as the laws of the state and the nation provide.

Civil rights for all! What do you say, Abby? — NO. 90-2316

DEAR "90": Convicted felons are denied the right to vote, but one is presumed innocent until proven guilty.

Speed up the dawdling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dawdling can do a woman a surprising amount of good, although walking faster is even better, a study says.

While aerobic walking can make a woman more fit, even slow walking can improve high-density lipoproteins, the "good" cholesterol associated with a lower risk of heart attack, the research found.

The study at the Institute for Aerobics Research in Dallas looked at 102 sedentary, moderately overweight, premenopausal women with normal HDL levels. Except for a control group that did not exercise, the women covered three miles, five times a week.

Some walked at 12 minutes per mile — a jogging pace. This placed their heart rates at an average 86 percent of their maximums, firmly in the aerobic training range, which is generally considered to start at 70 percent.

Others walked at a moderate 15 minutes per mile, with average heart rates of 67 percent. The rest strolled at 20 minutes per mile, nudging their heart rates to 56 percent.

The women who moved fastest got the greatest increase in cardiorespiratory fitness — 16 percent, the study said. The slowest women improved by 9 percent and 4 percent respectively, while the no-exercise control group became 6 percent less fit.

Exercise also burned calories, 900 percent more than the resting rate for the fastest group; 500 percent, and 400 percent more, respectively, for the slower groups, the study found.

There was no appreciable overall weight loss, but the women lost fat and gained muscle tissue, said the study's director, John J. Duncan, associate director of the institute's department of exercise physiology.

Marriage as a career move?

Single men looking for a raise or promotion should consider a serious option: Get married.

Married men earn an average of 30.6 percent more than unmarried men, according to a University of Michigan survey.

Husbands outearn bachelors in several other countries as well, said Robert Schoeni, a doctoral student at the school's Population Studies Center in Ann Arbor, Mich.

"The average earnings of married men were consistently higher than the earnings of their unmarried counterparts in all the countries we studied. The effect persisted even when education, age or experience, and race were taken into account," Schoeni said.

He thinks possible reasons are that employers perceive married men as more stable and community-oriented, that women tend to marry financially successful men, and that men feel more responsible, and therefore are more productive.

Long-distance calls and travel fares often need to be figured into wedding expenses, according to Modern Bride, whose December-January issue looks at the phenomenon of what it calls "long-distance weddings." The mobility of people today makes it unlikely that you'll meet, marry and settle down in your old home town, the magazine says. The publication advises you plan far in advance so relatives and friends in distant cities will have a better chance to come, provide travel information, arrange blocks of hotel rooms at discounted rates, and try to keep costs to a minimum for participants and guests.

Goodbye to those Barbecue Blahs

Just because the weather is heating up outside, doesn't mean your kitchen (and your temper) needs to as well. For special cookouts, picnics and everyday summer meals.

Here are just a few tips to make this season sizzle:

- Marinate cubed chicken or beef in Lite Soy Sauce for one hour; thread on skewers with pieces of red and green peppers, onions, cherry tomatoes and whole water chestnuts then grill. During last few minutes of cooking, brush with Sweet & Sour Sauce.

- Top grilled chicken sandwiches or hotdogs with a mixture of Sweet & Sour Sauce, drained, chopped water chestnuts and Dijon mustard for a zesty difference.

- For an Oriental accent on an American original, brush ribs with Teriyaki Marinade and sauce while grilling.

- Marinate your favorite cuts of beef or pork in Lite Soy Sauce and garlic powder for one hour before grilling.

- Stir a tablespoon or two of Soy Sauce or Teriyaki Marinade & sauce into ground beef before shaping into patties for grilling.

- Marinate poultry or fish in Teriyaki Marinade & Sauce for an hour (slightly less for fish) before cooking. For even more flavor, brush additional sauce on liberally when grilling.

- Tuna or chicken salad gets noticed when dressed up with drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts, a dash of Lite Soy Sauce and served on a bed of crunchy Chow Mein Noodles before serving.

Noodles.

- Pass a bowl of Sweet & Sour Sauce along for dipping with grilled shrimp, chicken wings or link sausages for a quick, tasty appetizer.

- For a quick appetizer, add crunch to store-bought onion, clam or spinach dip with drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts and season with a dash of Lite Soy Sauce. Instead of a dish, try serving it in a round, hollowed out loaf of bread with Crispy Wide Noodles for dipping.

- For a garden-fresh side dish or a light, meatless entree, thread your favorite summer vegetables on skewers (try chunks of eggplant, zucchini, yellow summer squash or even pieces of corn on the cob) with Whole Water Chestnuts and brush lightly with vegetable oil. Then, grill over medium heat while basting with Teriyaki Marinade & sauce.

- Spice up the all-too-familiar macaroni salad — your own or store bought — by sitting in a tablespoon or two of Sweet & Sour Sauce before serving.

- Sauté fresh green beans and drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts in butter, then season with a dash of Lite Soy Sauce before serving.

- Tired of the same old Three Bean Salad? Substitute a can of drained Chop Suey Vegetables for one of the cans of green beans and marinate as usual per your favorite recipe.

- Add some crunch to your potato salad by stirring in drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts. For even more crunch, top with Chow Mein Noodles before serving.

The scoop on skinny shakes

Americans are consuming more frozen yogurt than ever — yet another indication of the move toward healthier lifestyles. But frozen yogurt is not only great by the spoonful, it also makes delicious, low calorie shakes. Here are two recipes for frozen yogurt shakes to toast the first days of summer.

A smooth, rich-tasting Frozen Cappuccino Shake contains just 220 calories and three grams of fat per portion. It's simply made in an electric blender with a scoop of frozen vanilla yogurt, milk, powdered chocolate milk mix and some instant coffee granules. Pour into a tall glass and top with another scoop of the frozen yogurt.

An icy cold Orange Frosted can be made in a minute using a can of frozen orange juice concentrate. Combine the thawed o.j. with frozen vanilla yogurt and skim milk in a blender or food processor and whirl away. All this adds up to only 200 calories and two grams of fat per portion. And it's a real energy pick-up.

FROZEN CAPPUCCINO SHAKE
2 scoops (1/2 cup) frozen vanilla

lowfat yogurt, divided*
1/2 cup lowfat (1%) milk
1 tablespoon powdered chocolate milk mix

1 to 1 1/2 teaspoons instant coffee granules

In the container of an electric blender or food processor combine 1 scoop frozen yogurt, milk, chocolate mix and coffee granules; blend until smooth, about 30 seconds. Pour into a tall glass; top with remaining scoop of frozen yogurt.

YIELD: 1 portion about 12 ounces
Per portion: 220 calories, 3 gm fat

*Or substitute coffee-flavored frozen yogurt and omit instant coffee granules.

3 ounces (about 1 cup) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed (from a 6-ounce can)

1 cup frozen vanilla lowfat yogurt (from a 1 pint container)

1/2 cup skim milk

In the container of an electric blender or food processor combine orange juice, frozen yogurt and milk; blend until smooth, about 30 seconds. Serve over ice cubes in tall glasses.

Frozen yogurt tastes just as good through a straw as it does by the spoonful. This frozen cappuccino shake is made with frozen vanilla yogurt.

Update a classic potatoe recipe

Sometimes it's just a little twist that turns a good recipe into a great one. For twice-baked potatoes, lemon and dill make the classic recipe even better. For make-ahead convenience, prepare and stuff the potatoes the day before serving, cover, and refrigerate. Bake just before serving, allowing an additional 5 minutes baking time.

LEMON DILL POTATOES

4 large baking potatoes

1/4 cup margarine or butter, melted

1/2 cup dairy sour cream

2 tablespoons finely snipped fresh dill, or 1 1/2 teaspoons dried dillweed

4 teaspoons lemon juice

1/2 teaspoon garlic salt

1/4 teaspoon pepper

Paprika (optional)

Scrub potatoes thoroughly with a brush. Pat dry. Prick potatoes with a fork. Bake in a 425-degree F oven for 40 to 60 minutes or until tender. Or cook, uncovered, in the microwave oven on 100 percent power (high) for 14 to 17 minutes or until almost tender, rearranging once. Let stand for 5 minutes. Cut potatoes in half lengthwise. Gently scoop out each potato half, leaving a thin shell.

Place potato pulp in a large bowl. Add 3 tablespoons of the melted margarine or butter, sour cream, dill or dillweed, lemon juice, garlic salt and pepper. With an electric mixer on low speed, beat until smooth. Pile mixture into potato shells.

Place in a 12- by 7 1/2- by 2-inch baking dish. Brush potatoes with remaining melted margarine or butter. Sprinkle with paprika, if desired. Bake in a 425-degree F oven about 20 minutes or until light brown. Makes 8 servings.

Coffee-lovers cheesecake

For some folks, a meal isn't over until freshly brewed coffee splashes into their cup. If you're one of those java lovers, then this dessert is for you. Stir a whisper of your favorite instant coffee into both the filling and the sauce for a double-rich and creamy coffee-flavored dessert. And, yes, to make it even more delightful, serve it with a pot of steaming coffee.

CHEESECAKE AND COFFEE-PRALINE SAUCE

1 3/4 cups fine graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup finely chopped pecans
1/2 cup margarine or butter, melted

Two 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
1/8 teaspoon salt
3 eggs

Three 8-ounce cartons dairy sour cream
2 1/2 teaspoons instant coffee crystals

1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
3/4 cup water
1 tablespoon margarine or butter

For crust, in a mixing bowl combine crumbs and 1/4 cup of the pecans; stir in the 1/2 cup melted margarine or butter. Reserve 1/4 cup of the crumb mixture. Press remaining crumb mixture onto bottom and 2 1/2 inches up the sides of an 8-inch springform pan or 2 inches up the sides of a 9-inch springform pan. Set aside.

In a medium mixing bowl combine cream cheese, sugar, vanilla and salt; beat with an electric mixer on low speed until smooth. Add eggs; beat just until combined; do not overbeat. In a separate bowl, stir together sour cream and 1 teaspoon of the coffee crystals; stir into the cheese mixture.

Turn the mixture into the prepared pan. Sprinkle reserved crumb mixture on top. Bake in a 375-degree F oven for 50 to 55 minutes or until nearly set. (A 1-inch portion in the center will still jiggle slightly.) Cool on a wire rack. Cover and chill about 4 hours.

For sauce, in a saucepan combine brown sugar, cornstarch and remaining coffee crystals. Stir in water. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir for 2 minutes more. Add the 1 tablespoon margarine or butter; stir until melted. Stir in remaining pecans. Serve sauce warm over cheesecake. Makes 12 servings.

Dogs banned from dog museum

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Dogs are no longer welcome on the carpet at the Dog Museum.

The reason: too many canine accidents and too many fleas. It used to be that dogs on leashes could browse through galleries full of paintings, sculptures and photographs of dogs.

But then, "You'd walk into a gallery and you'd see a big wet spot there, and you'd say, 'Oh, great,'" said Gail Haynes, the museum's business manager.

Not only that, but fleas left behind by shaggy visitors were biting the ankles of museum workers.

Dogs and their masters can still visit the community room. That's where the videotapes on dog breeds and dog training are stored. That's also the room with the tile floor.

Goodbye to those Barbecue Blahs

Just because the weather is heating up outside, doesn't mean your kitchen (and your temper) needs to as well. For special cookouts, picnics and everyday summer meals.

*Here are just a few tips to make this season sizzle:

- Marinate cubed chicken or beef in Lite Soy Sauce for one hour; thread on skewers with pieces of red and green peppers, onions, cherry tomatoes and whole water chestnuts then grill. During last few minutes of cooking, brush with Sweet & Sour Sauce.

- Top grilled chicken sandwiches or hotdogs with a mixture of Sweet & Sour Sauce, drained, chopped water chestnuts and Dijon mustard for a zesty difference.

- For an Oriental accent on an American original, brush ribs with Teriyaki Marinade and sauce while grilling.

- Marinate your favorite cuts of beef or pork in Lite Soy Sauce and garlic powder for one hour before grilling.

- Stir a tablespoon or two of Soy Sauce or Teriyaki Marinade & sauce into ground beef before shaping into patties for grilling.

- Marinate poultry or fish in Teriyaki Marinade & Sauce for an hour (slightly less for fish) before cooking. For even more flavor, brush additional sauce on liberally when grilling.

- Tuna or chicken salad gets noticed when dressed up with drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts, a dash of Lite Soy Sauce and served on a bed of crunchy Chow Mein

Noodles.

- Pass a bowl of Sweet & Sour Sauce along for dipping with grilled shrimp, chicken wings or link sausages for a quick, tasty appetizer.

- For a quick appetizer, add crunch to store-bought onion, clam or spinach dip with drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts and season with a dash of Lite Soy Sauce. Instead of a dish, try serving it in a round, hollowed out loaf of bread with Crispy Wide Noodles for dipping.

- For a garden-fresh side dish or a light, meatless entree, thread your favorite summer vegetables on skewers (try chunks of eggplant, zucchini, yellow summer squash or even pieces of corn on the cob) with Whole Water Chestnuts and brush lightly with vegetable oil. Then, grill over medium heat while basting with Teriyaki Marinade & sauce.

- Spice up the all-too-familiar macaroni salad — your own or store bought — by sitting in a tablespoon or two of Sweet & Sour Sauce before serving.

- Sauté fresh green beans and drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts in butter, then season with a dash of Lite Soy Sauce before serving.

- Tired of the same old Three Bean Salad? Substitute a can of drained Chop Suey Vegetables for one of the cans of green beans and marinate as usual per your favorite recipe.

- Add some crunch to your potato salad by stirring in drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts. For even more crunch, top with Chow Mein Noodles before serving.

Help beat the barbecue blahs by adding a twist of excitement to everyday barbecue fare. Grilled chicken breast sandwiches get a flavor boost from sweet and sour sauce with Dijon mustard and drained, sliced water chestnuts (lower left); vegetable skewers are brushed with teriyaki marinade and sauce while they're roasting on the grill (lower center); add crunch to three bean salad with drained chop suey vegetables (upper left); and dip crispy wide noodles in a creamy, crunchy mixture of onion dip, water chestnuts and a dash of lite soy sauce (center right).

Goodbye to those Barbecue Blahs

Just because the weather is heating up outside, doesn't mean your kitchen (and your temper) needs to as well. For special cookouts, picnics and everyday summer meals.

*Here are just a few tips to make this season sizzle:

• Marinate cubed chicken or beef in Lite Soy Sauce for one hour; thread on skewers with pieces of red and green peppers, onions, cherry tomatoes and whole water chestnuts then grill. During last few minutes of cooking, brush with Sweet & Sour Sauce.

• Top grilled chicken sandwiches or hotdogs with a mixture of Sweet & Sour Sauce, drained, chopped water chestnuts and Dijon mustard for a zesty difference.

• For an Oriental accent on an American original, brush ribs with Teriyaki Marinade and sauce while grilling.

• Marinate your favorite cuts of beef or pork in Lite Soy Sauce and garlic powder for one hour before grilling.

• Stir a tablespoon or two of Soy Sauce or Teriyaki Marinade & sauce into ground beef before shaping into patties for grilling.

• Marinate poultry or fish in Teriyaki Marinade & Sauce for an hour (slightly less for fish) before cooking. For even more flavor, brush additional sauce on liberally when grilling.

• Tuna or chicken salad gets noticed when dressed up with drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts, a dash of Lite Soy Sauce and served on a bed of crunchy Chow Mein

Noodles.

• Pass a bowl of Sweet & Sour Sauce along for dipping with grilled shrimp, chicken wings or link sausages for a quick, tasty appetizer.

• For a quick appetizer, add crunch to store-bought onion, clam or spinach dip with drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts and season with a dash of Lite Soy Sauce. Instead of a dish, try serving it in a round, hollowed out loaf of bread with Crispy Wide Noodles for dipping.

• For a garden-fresh side dish or a light, meatless entree, thread your favorite summer vegetables on skewers (try chunks or eggplant, zucchini, yellow summer squash or even pieces of corn on the cob) with Whole Water Chestnuts and brush lightly with vegetable oil. Then, grill over medium heat while basting with Teriyaki Marinade & sauce.

• Spice up the all-too-familiar macaroni salad — your own or store bought — by sitting in a tablespoon or two of Sweet & Sour Sauce before serving.

• Sauté fresh green beans and drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts in butter, then season with a dash of Lite Soy Sauce before serving.

• Tired of the same old Three Bean Salad? Substitute a can of drained Chop Suey Vegetables for one of the cans of green beans and marinate as usual per your favorite recipe.

• Add some crunch to your potato salad by stirring in drained, Sliced Water Chestnuts. For even more crunch, top with Chow Mein Noodles before serving.

Help beat the barbecue blahs by adding a twist of excitement to everyday barbecue fare. Grilled chicken breast sandwiches get a flavor boost from sweet and sour sauce with Dijon mustard and drained, sliced water chestnuts (lower left); vegetable skewers are brushed with teriyaki marinade and sauce while they're roasting on the grill (lower center); add crunch to three bean salad with drained chop suey vegetables (upper left); and dip crispy wide noodles in a creamy, crunchy mixture of onion dip, water chestnuts and a dash of lite soy sauce (center right).

The scoop on skinny shakes

Americans are consuming more frozen yogurt than ever — yet another indication of the move toward healthier lifestyles. But frozen yogurt is not only great by the spoonful, it also makes delicious, low calorie shakes. Here are two recipes for frozen yogurt shakes to toast the first days of summer.

A smooth, rich-tasting Frozen Cappuccino Shake contains just 220 calories and three grams of fat per portion. It's simply made in an electric blender with a scoop of frozen vanilla yogurt, milk, powdered chocolate milk mix and some instant coffee granules. Pour into a tall glass and top with another scoop of the frozen yogurt.

An icy cold Orange Frosted can be made in a minute using a can of frozen orange juice concentrate. Combine the thawed o.j. with frozen vanilla yogurt and skim milk in a blender or food processor and whirl away. All this adds up to only 200 calories and two grams of fat per portion. And it's a real energy pick-up.

FROZEN CAPPUCCINO SHAKE
2 scoops (½ cup) frozen vanilla

lowfat yogurt, divided*
½ cup lowfat (1%) milk
1 tablespoon powdered chocolate milk mix
1 to 1½ teaspoons instant coffee granules

In the container of an electric blender or food processor combine 1 scoop frozen yogurt, milk, chocolate mix and coffee granules; blend until smooth, about 30 seconds. Pour into a tall glass, top with remaining scoop of frozen yogurt.

YIELD: 1 portion about 12 ounces
Per portion: 220 calories, 3 gm fat

ORANGE FROSTED
3 ounces (about 1 cup) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed (from a 6-ounce can)

1 cup frozen vanilla lowfat yogurt (from a 1 pint container)
½ cup skim milk

In the container of an electric blender or food processor combine orange juice, frozen yogurt and milk; blend until smooth, about 30 seconds. Serve over ice cubes in tall glasses.

Frozen yogurt tastes just as good through a straw as it does by the spoonful. This frozen cappuccino shake is made with frozen vanilla yogurt.

Update a classic potatoe recipe

Sometimes it's just a little twist that turns a good recipe into a great one. For twice-baked potatoes, lemon and dill make the classic recipe even better. For make-ahead convenience, prepare and stuff the potatoes the day before serving, cover, and refrigerate. Bake just before serving, allowing an additional 5 minutes baking time.

LEMON DILL POTATOES
4 large baking potatoes
¼ cup margarine or butter, melted
½ cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons finely snipped fresh dill, or 1½ teaspoons dried dillweed
4 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Paprika (optional)

Scrub potatoes thoroughly with a brush. Pat dry. Prick potatoes with a fork. Bake in a 425-degree F oven for 40 to 60 minutes or until tender. Or cook, uncovered, in the microwave oven on 100 percent power (high) for 14 to 17 minutes or until almost tender, rearranging once. Let stand for 5 minutes. Cut potatoes in half lengthwise. Gently scoop out each potato half, leaving a thin shell.

Place potato pulp in a large bowl. Add 3 tablespoons of the melted margarine or butter, sour cream, dill or dillweed, lemon juice, garlic salt and pepper. With an electric mixer on low speed, beat until smooth. Pile mixture into potato shells.

Place in a 12- by 7½- by 2-inch baking dish. Brush potatoes with remaining melted margarine or butter. Sprinkle with paprika, if desired. Bake in a 425-degree F oven about 20 minutes or until light brown. Makes 8 servings.

Coffee-lovers cheesecake

For some folks, a meal isn't over until freshly brewed coffee splashes into their cup. If you're one of those java lovers, then this dessert is for you. Stir a whisper of your favorite instant coffee into both the filling and the sauce for a double-rich and creamy coffee-flavored dessert. And, yes, to make it even more delightful, serve it with a pot of steaming coffee.

1¼ cups fine graham cracker crumbs
½ cup finely chopped pecans
½ cup margarine or butter, melted
Two 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
3 eggs
Three 8-ounce cartons dairy sour cream
2½ teaspoons instant coffee crystals
½ cup packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¾ cup water
1 tablespoon margarine or butter

For crust, in a mixing bowl combine crumbs and ¼ cup of the pecans; stir in the ½ cup melted margarine or butter. Reserve ¼ cup of the crumb mixture. Press remaining crumb mixture onto bottom and 2½ inches up the sides of an 8-inch springform pan or 2 inches up the sides of a 9-inch springform pan. Set aside.

In a medium mixing bowl combine cream cheese, sugar, vanilla and salt; beat with an electric mixer on low speed until smooth. Add eggs; beat just until combined; do not overbeat. In a separate bowl, stir together sour cream and 1 teaspoon of the coffee crystals; stir into the cheese mixture.

Turn the mixture into the prepared pan. Sprinkle reserved crumb mixture on top. Bake in a 375-degree F oven for 50 to 55 minutes or until nearly set. (A 1-inch portion in the center will still jiggle slightly.) Cool on a wire rack. Cover and chill about 4 hours.

For sauce, in a saucepan combine brown sugar, cornstarch and remaining coffee crystals. Stir in water. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir for 2 minutes more. Add the 1 tablespoon margarine or butter; stir until melted. Stir in remaining pecans. Serve sauce warm over cheesecake. Makes 12 servings.

Group sponsoring dance Friday

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
 Staff Writer

A Latino band from Midland, a springtime atmosphere and plenty of room to dance are just some of the attractions of Friday night's event sponsored by the Hispanic Women for Progress.

"We're having a fabulous band, Destino," said Melinda Hernandez, vice-president for Hispanic Women for Progress.

And Esther Lopez, president, said, "We're decorating in 'springtime' with multi-colored flowers, balloons, white table cloths and streamers."

The dance is scheduled for Friday from 8 p.m. to midnight in the Howard County Fair Barn. All proceeds will benefit the organization's funds for college scholarships.

This is the second year the group of women will give scholarships.

and this year there are plans to provide three $500 scholarships. A non-traditional student will receive a scholarship, member Martha Hernandez said, and graduating seniors from area high schools will receive the other two.

"A non-traditional student is someone who has been out of school for several years. Maybe they've passed their GED, and they're ready for college," Lopez said.

The awards, based on academic merit and financial need, will be given May 22 to students currently accepted at the college of their choice, Lopez said. Each applicant will be reviewed by the members of the organization. Applications are available at Big Spring High School and Howard College, she said.

Aside from their annual dance, Hispanic Women for Progress works in other community projects including tutoring, helping students fill out financial aid forms, sponsoring cheerleaders and seniors and providing parent education groups. More than 20 members belong to the group, now in its third year.

Beer may be bought at the dance but may not be carried into the Fair Barn. Identifications will be checked. Guests are welcome to bring other beverages. Security will be provided by police officers. Door prizes will be given away.

Tickets are available for $5 at the Chamber of Commerce, Jimmy Marin's Exxon at 310 E. Fourth Street and Tony Dominguez' Exxon on the Lamesa Highway. Also, all organization members will have tickets and will be selling tickets at the Fair Barn Thursday night from 7-9 p.m. The cost at the door Friday night is $7 per person.

"It's sure to be a lot of fun. We want everyone to come to the dance," Hernandez said.

FDA needs more money and power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government agency that regulates virtually all the foods and drugs Americans use is stretched too thin and shackled by too much red tape to do its job correctly, a federal advisory panel reported today.

It said the Food and Drug Administration needs more power, money and status within the federal bureaucracy to ensure it can protect public health.

But the 15-member advisory panel said it would be unrealistic to expect that FDA would receive a massive infusion of new money and stressed the agency's need to set priorities, streamline operations and improve management.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said the report shows "we are living too close to the edge."

"Each time confidence in the agency is eroded and FDA staff become more demoralized, the nation moves close to the very real possibility of a major health disaster," he said.

Kennedy's Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee was holding a hearing on the report today.

The FDA had no immediate comment on the report.

The report said that while there is no evidence the FDA's problems have threatened public health,

"there is genuine concern that if these problems are not squarely addressed, the agency will be unable to fulfill its vastly increased and critically important responsibilities in the future."

The report is the result of a yearlong study by the Advisory Committee on the Food and Drug Administration.

The advisory committee said it began its work "with shared doubts about the FDA's ability" to do its job. And it said those doubts were reinforced by witnesses who depicted the agency as "overextended, underfunded and shackled by bureaucratic constraints."

The panel included medical, pharmaceutical and legal experts. It was chaired by Dr. Charles C. Edwards, a former FDA commissioner who is president of Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation in La Jolla, Calif.

The FDA regulates products that account for roughly 25 cents of every consumer dollar spent in the United States. In addition to overseeing foods and drugs, the FDA regulates a variety of other products such as the nation's blood supply, vaccines, cosmetics, heart pacemakers, X-ray machines, microwave ovens and feed and drugs for animals.

ing and sincerely concerned about the people he represented while in Washington.

Burleson served on the House Ways and Means Committee, the Budget Committee, and the Foreign Affairs Committee. He had a 98 percent attendance record at roll call votes and was known as a progressive-conservative.

"I am deeply saddened at the passing of a man who was not only a great mentor, but also a friend," said Stenholm.

Court docket

Filings in Howard County Court indicate the following:

• Jessie Clyde McMahon Jr., 52, 605 N. Benton St., pleaded guilty Monday to driving while intoxicated. He was given six months probation and fined $500.

• Michael Don Gressett, 33, Box 2193, pleaded guilty to DWI. He was sentenced to 15 days in jail.

• Bobby Milton Sharp, 30, Abilene, pleaded guilty to DWI. He was sentenced to 72 hours in jail.

• Troy James Wrye, 24, 632 Caylor, pleaded guilty to driving while license suspended. He was sentenced to four days in jail.

• Billy Joe Boden, 54, no address given, pleaded guilty to trespassing. He was sentenced to five days in jail.

• Hollis W. Hardy Jr., 36, no address, pleaded guilty to theft. He was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

• An 18-year-old woman was treated at Scenic Mountain Medical Center after an accident about 1 p.m. Tuesday. Kasi Shea Moser apparently suffered a seizure causing her to veer from the road, reports said.

• A woman reported having been assaulted near the intersection of East 13th St. and Sheppard Lane.

• A forgery was reported at a convenience store in the 300 block of South Gregg Street.

• Theft of service — unauthorized use of a telephone — was reported at a residence in the 1100 block of Mulberry Avenue. The incidents occurred between March 8 and April 5, reports said.

• A 34-year-old man was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

• A disturbance at Big Spring State Hospital late Tuesday ended in the arrest of one man for public intoxication.

said in the meantime the city will be checking on possible grants to help fund construction.

The plan presented Tuesday includes some of the following priorities:

• Replacing an intake pump at Lake Colorado City and a 16-inch supply line to the water treatment plant. It would help increase water pressure and water quality. The cost, at 1991 prices, is estimated to be about $1.7 million.

• Improvements to the water treatment plant that would help keep it in compliance with new safe drinking water laws. The cost is $1.1 million.

• Construction of a new line from the water treatment plant to a water tower at 18th and Chestnut streets, as well as adding another water tower and a ground storage tank with a pump station. It would create better water pressure in the area near Interstate 20 where city officials hope to attract economic development. The cost is $1.8 million.

• Building sludge-drying beds that will be needed if the practice of draining sludge to a creek is discontinued. The cost is $310,000.

In addition, officials with Parkhill, Smith & Cooper said they could do a computerized analysis of the water distribution system for $48,800 that would point out pressure bottlenecks. As city workers replace pipes, the analysis would indicate the best size of pipe to use.

Hawks hoping to slay Dragons

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Howard College Hawks jump from the fire into the frying pan when the 9th Annual State Junior College Baseball Tournament starts Thursday at Tarleton State University in Stephenville.

That's because regardless of what Howard does in the first round, they'll meet a nationally ranked team in the second round. Coach Bill Griffin's No. 9 ranked Hawks take a 48-10 record into their opening game against the 27-23 Paris Dragons. The two teams square off at 1 p.m. The Hawks are in the top bracket of the eight-team, double elimination tournament, a bracket loaded with heavyweights. In the opening 10 a.m. game of the tournament, No. 10 San Jacinto and No. 6 McLennan Community College will play, meaning Howard will play the winner or loser of the contest.

Coach Griffin's logic is simple — "In the top of the bracket there are three of the top 10 teams in the nation," he said. "If you're going to win this thing, you're going to have to beat those teams anyway."

Griffin said it could be fatal to his team to lose early in the tournament. "If you lose, you get yourself into a situation where you have to play doubleheaders, and that's almost impossible to do because it drains your pitchers. Secondly, it's 90 percent humidity and 90 degree temperature, it makes it hard on any team going through the loser's bracket."

The Hawks, winners of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference, are currently on a seven-game winning streak. But it's been 11 days since the Hawks swept Odessa College in a three-game series. "I hope the layoff doesn't hurt us. We've had excellent workouts, two a day. All of the players that are going are well; there are no physical problems," Griffin said.

Striking gold at state meet

Sports Editor

The Crossroads Country didn't send a multitude of athletes to compete at state, but the results were probably the best it had in the last five years.

I don't recall at my six-year stint in Big Spring that the area ever had two double winners in track. I'm talking about Coahoma senior Sarah Hanks and Stanton sophomore Jeremy Stallings. Both won state gold in the 800 meters and 1,600 meters.

Then there was Big Spring senior Rocky Tubb, winning second place in the singles. Also Coahoma junior LaTisha Anderson finished sixth in the 100-meter hurdles and the Big Spring golf team of Charlie Garcia, Jon Sims, Eric Lusk, Bo Hodnett and Kyle Plumlee finished seventh.

Tubb didn't get the coveted gold medal that has eluded him for three years at the state tennis tournament, but he went down with dignity.

The Rock had to work for everything he got. After coming back in both sets to oust Jonas Redlin of Hallsville in the quarterfinals, things really got heated in the semis against Austin McCallum's Ash Ayers.

Rocky showed his character by overcoming a very talented Ayers, not to mention some very questionable out calls by Ayers, who evidently was used to having everything his way.

Tubb lost his first set to Ayers 7-5 and was down a break in the second set before rallying. "He had Rocky 5-3, 40-15 and was serving," said Big Spring coach Don Lawrence. "He couldn't put Rocky away. Part of it was Rocky caught his second wind. He played on sheer guts in the second set."

Trailing 6-5 in the tiebreaker, Tubb fought off match point and sent the set into a tiebreaker.

At 6-6 in the tiebreaker, Ayers suffered severe leg cramps, forcing him to the ground in pain.

When his coach came onto the court, Ayers received two penalty points because he had already received one for foul language in the first set. That gave Tubb an 8-6 win in the tiebreaker in the second set.

Ayers couldn't shake off the leg cramps and called it quits with it tied 1-1, sending Tubb to the finals against Trey Phillips of Austin Westlake.

Not only did Tubb show his character with his tennis game, he showed character from the mental aspect. It seemed earlier in the match Ayers made some very questionable out calls against Tubb. It got so bad that Lawrence went and got the tournament referee to watch the match. Eventually the tournament referee overruled another one of Ayers' calls.

"That's one of the reasons Rocky won. Everytime there was a dispute he (Ayers) was right there in the middle of everything. Rocky went over, sat down, ate a banana or drank some water," said Lawrence.

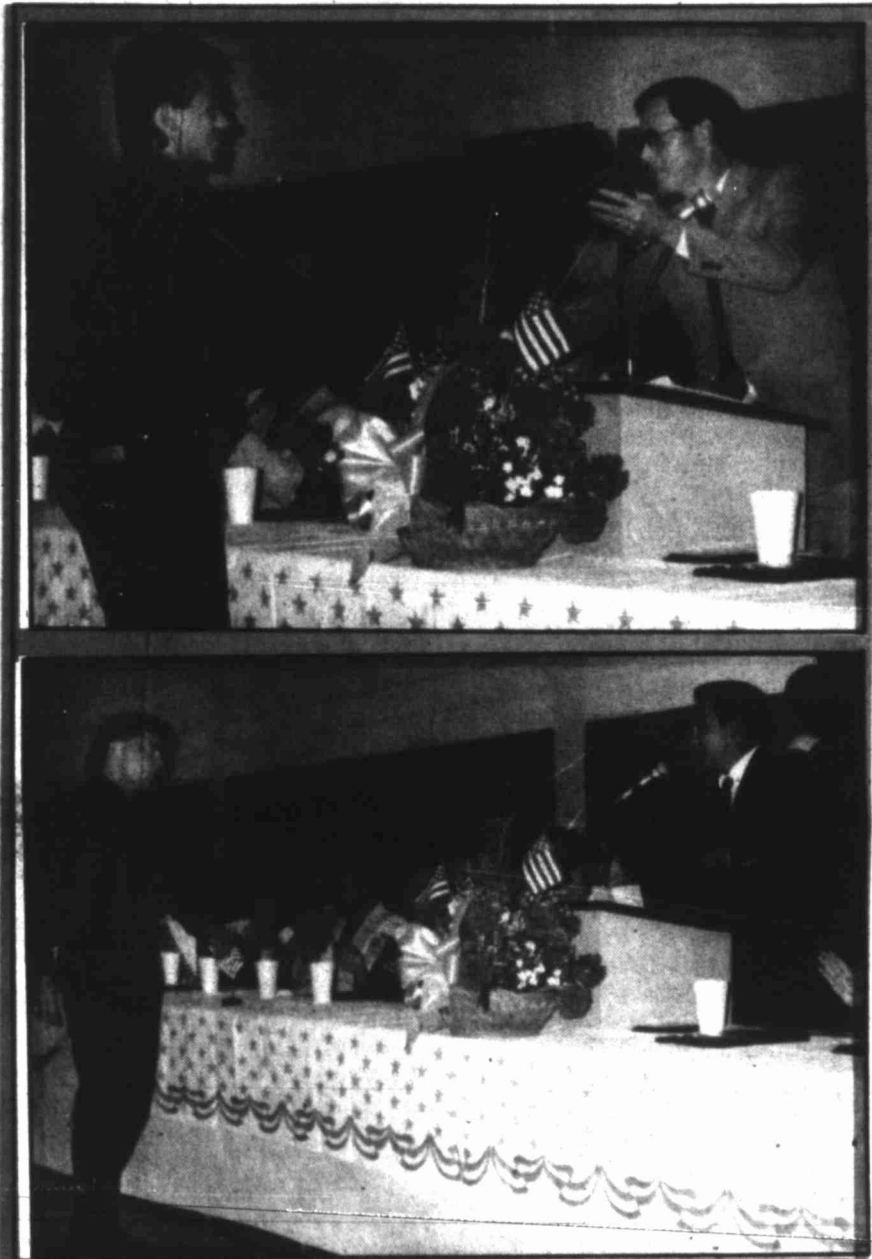

"Rocky kept his composure excellently. I had faced something like this in regionals one year and I lost my cool. That helped me, and I kept my cool. In a way it was poetic justice that he caught cramps. Rocky would've beaten him in the third set anyway. Our philosophy is if we can't control that kind of stuff, we can just control ourselves."

In the finals Tubb fell to Phillips 7-5, 6-4. Phillips had a mean serve and played a strong net game, utilizing his 6-foot-4 frame.

"I probably wasn't expected to win two games," Tubb said, calling Phillips the best opponent he's ever faced. "I just went out there and went all out."

How good is Phillips? He's ranked No. 1 in the state, regardless of class, by the United States Tennis Association.

Ryan will miss at least one start

ARLINGTON (AP) — Texas Rangers ace Nolan Ryan hopes to know within 48 hours whether he will miss more than one start.

In the meantime, he'll be getting plenty of heat, ice and massage on a right shoulder strained Monday night by what he calls "poor mechanics."

"Even Betty Crocker burns a brownie every now and then," said Rangers pitching coach Tom House, who termed his star pitcher's ailment "spring training shoulder."

House said Ryan was overpitching Monday against Detroit.

The 44-year-old is expected to miss his next start on Sunday against the Boston Red Sox.

Ryan, who pitched his seventh no-hitter just 14 days ago against Toronto, left with a one-hitter in the fifth inning as the Rangers went on to an 8-1 victory over the Tigers.

Ryan called the injury a "knot" behind his shoulder and said he'll know the extent of the injury within two days.

"My attitude now is I'll know within the next 48 hours what we're dealing with," Ryan said. "I only hope to miss one start at the best."

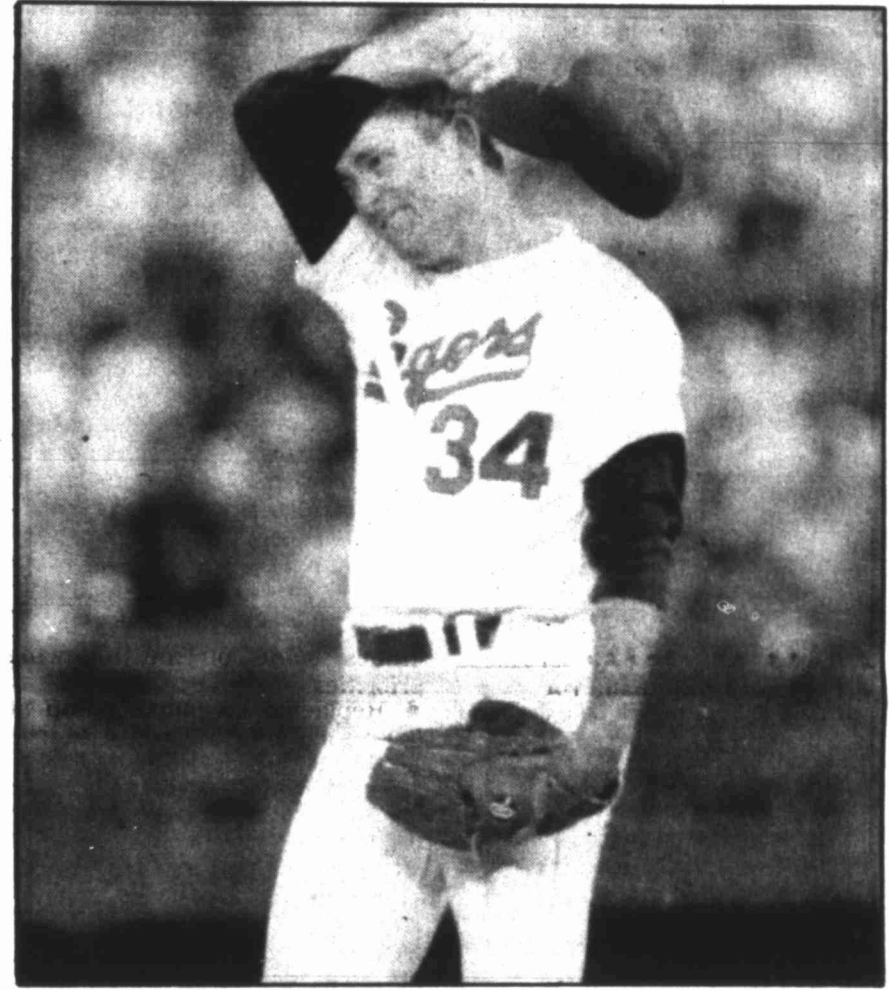

Ryan said he started getting discomfort five days ago in a 4-2 loss to Toronto.

"Three or four times a year I experience this kind of thing and it's because of improper mechanics," Ryan said. "It's sort of like tendinitis."

Ryan had back spasms in Toronto and altered his delivery.

"It's a lesson for everybody," House said. "Even as great a pitcher as Nolan Ryan can hurt when he has bad mechanics."

Ryan has never had a major shoulder injury in his 25-year major league career. And he said Tuesday he didn't think age had anything to do with the problem.

ARLINGTON — Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan wipes the sweat from his forehead in action against the Detroit Tigers Monday. Ryan strained his shoulder in the game and will miss at least one start.

"No, I don't think I've experienced any more problems here than throughout my career," he said.

Ryan said after he struck out former teammate Pete Incaviglia to start the fifth inning he just couldn't go on.

"I felt like I would take a chance where I'd tear it and I'd be looking at a two months recovery period," Ryan said. "I'd rather miss another start than miss an extended period of time."

It was in last year that Ryan's back problems caused him to be put on the disabled list May 21. He underwent rest and therapy before being activated June 6.

He was diagnosed as having a healing stress fracture in his back. He experienced tightness but didn't miss another start and even no-hit Oakland on June 11.

Bulls, Blazers and Lakers advance

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three-fourths of the NBA's conference finalists were determined Tuesday night as Chicago, Portland and the Los Angeles Lakers all advanced with 4-1 series victories.

Michael Jordan put up big-man statistics with 38 points and a career-high 19 rebounds as the Chicago Bulls knocked Philadelphia out of the second round in five games for the second straight season with a 100-95 victory.

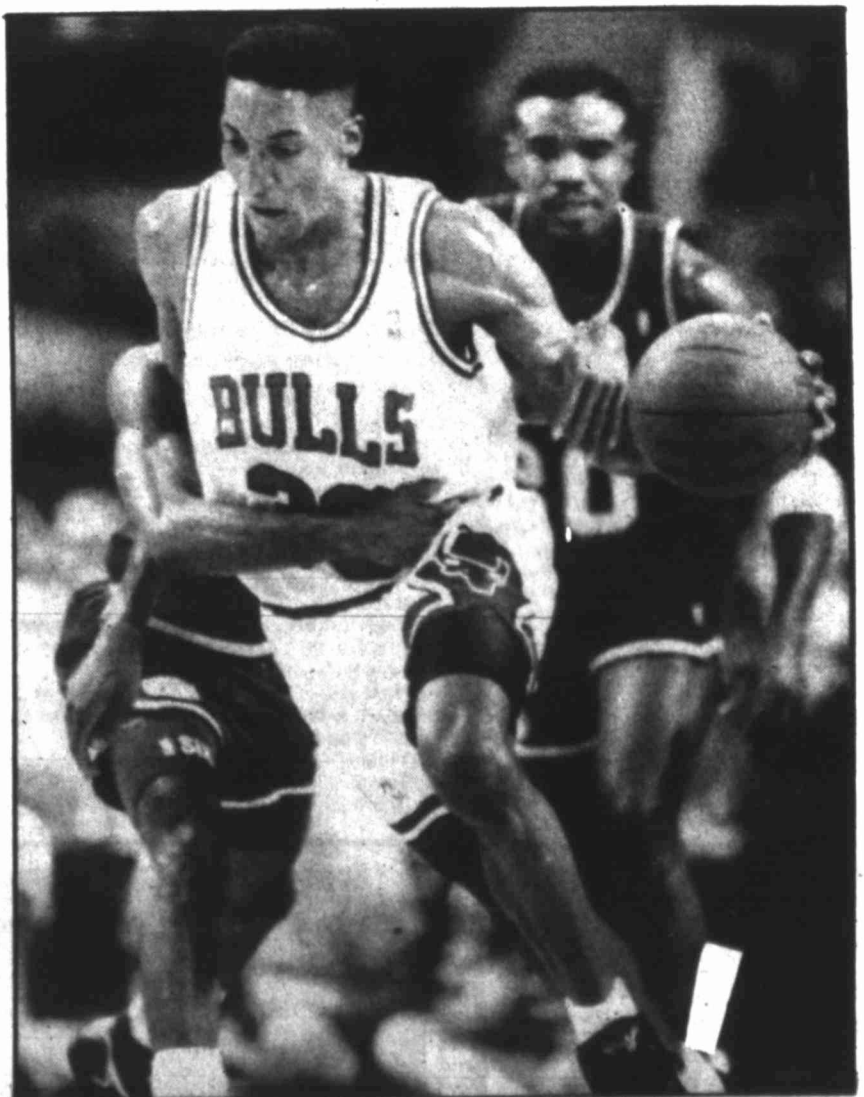

In later games, the Trail Blazers ousted Utah with a 103-96 win and the Lakers got seven points in overtime from James Worthy, including the tiebreaking jumper with 38 seconds left in a 124-119 decision over Golden State.

Jordan, a 6-foot-6 guard who had no double-figure rebound games in Chicago's first seven playoff outings, scored the Bulls' last 12 points and 25 in the second half as they broke away from a 92-92 tie to win the best-of-7 series 4-1.

Jordan said he took advantage of Sixers guard Hersey Hawkins' sore leg to take charge offensively and on the boards.

Chicago, which beat the New York Knicks and All-Star center Patrick Ewing in the first round, will meet the winner of the Boston-Detroit series in the Eastern Conference finals. The Bulls have lost to the Pistons in that round the last two seasons.

The 76ers, trailing by as many as CHICAGO — Philadelphia's Andre Turner hangs on as Chicago's Scottie Pippen tears down the court in second quarter action Tuesday night at Chicago Stadium. At right is the 76ers Ron Anderson.

13 points in the second half and 10 going into the final period, staged a last-gasp rally. Led by Charles Barkley and Armon Gilliam, they used a 14-5 run to close to 86-85, and then tied it 92-92 on a pair of free throws by Gilliam.

Jordan broke the tie with a pair of free throws, then stole the ball and hit a left-handed layup for a 96-92 advantage with 2:17 remaining. He scored the last two points from the free-throw line with 12 seconds left, keeping the Bulls safely in front.

Barkley led the 76ers with 30 points and Gilliam scored 21. Scottie Pippen scored 28 points, 24 of them in the first half, and Horace Grant grabbed 11 rebounds for Chicago.

Lakers 124, Warriors 119 OT
Worthy scored 21 of his 25 points after halftime for the Lakers, who will face Portland Saturday in the opener of the best-of-7 series.

Worthy gave the Lakers a 119-117 lead with 38 seconds left, then converted a foul shot with 28 seconds remaining for a 3-point advantage.

Tim Hardaway, who had 27 points and 20 assists for the Warriors, made a layup with 21 seconds to go, making it a one-point game.

Byron Scott gave the Lakers a 122-119 lead with two foul shots with 11 seconds left. After Mitch Richmond missed a 3-point attempt, Scott made two more free throws to finish the scoring.

Magic Johnson, 1-for-11 from the field in the first half, led the Lakers with 28 points, 14 rebounds and 12 assists. Sam Perkins finished with 19 points and 15 rebounds.

Chris Mullin and Richmond scored 26 points each for the Warriors, whose only victory in the series, in Game 2, snapped an 11-game playoff losing streak at the Forum.

Richmond's jumper from the top of the key with 6.3 seconds left in regulation gave Golden State a 106-106 lead, but Perkins tied it with 2.4 seconds on the clock. Then Richmond's desperation shot missed, forcing the overtime.

Trail Blazers 103, Jazz 96

Clyde Drexler and Terry Porter led a 16-0 outburst to start the third quarter for Portland.

Porter scored 22 points and Drexler, playing despite a sprained big right toe, finished with 22 points, nine rebounds and eight assists. He averaged 19.3 points, 10 rebounds and 9.6 assists in the series.

Karl Malone scored 26 points for the Jazz but was 4-for-13 from the field in the second half. Jeff Malone scored 20 and John Stockton had 19 points and 14 assists for Utah.

The Jazz, down by 15 in the third quarter and 10 at the start of the fourth, narrowed the margin to three on three occasions in the final 4½ minutes and had three chances to get closer. But Jeff Malone missed two jumpers and Karl Malone missed one.

Drexler found Buck Williams for a layup with 1:14 to go to boost Portland's lead to 100-96 and Porter sank a pair of free throws with 20 seconds to play.

Athletes honored at Grady banquet

LENORAH — The Grady Athletic Banquet was conducted Tuesday night and Grady High School athletes for the 1990-91 season were honored.

Heading the list were seniors Sherrie McMorries and Danny Valle. McMorries, who will play basketball at Odessa College next year, was named the Best All-Around Girl Athlete, and Valle was named Best All-Around Boy Athlete.

McMorries also received the Coaches Association Girls Basketball Award.

The Most Dedicated Girl Athlete Award went to senior Laurie Romine and the Most Dedicated Boy Athlete Award went to senior Baldomar Cortez.

The Fightin' est Wildcat Award went to senior Mike McKaskle.

A special award went to Francis Tate for her work with the Volunteers in Public Schools program. She was the coordinator.

Grady principal Richard Gibson was also honored. Gibson was named Texas Association of Secondary School High School Principal of the Year in Region 18.

Lawrence said the match drew so much attention, that everybody left the 5A finals to watch that match.

Lawrence said Tubb ended his prep career in style. "His last match he played at the state final was the best match he ever played. How many people get a chance to say that?"

Stanton's Jeremy Stallings could possibly be one of the greatest distance runners to ever come from the Lone Star state.

It's hard to believe he's already run a 1:53.90 in the 800 meters and a 4:24.2 in the 1600 meters, and he's only a sophomore.

Stallings used his kick to come from behind in both races, including a spectacular closing in the 1,600 meters where he caught Sammy Unberhagen of Little River Academy.

The 800 meter win was especially impressive since he beat defending champion Fred Yarbrough of Timpson.

At the rate he improved from last year to this year, by the time he's a senior Stallings would run a 1:49.800 and a 3:54.1.600. That's scary to think about.

If anybody deserved to win two gold medals at state, it was Coahoma's Hanks.

This young woman has paid the price for being good. She worked out just about every day over the year, which is one reason she won state with relative ease.

Coahoma coach Truman Meissner said not only is Hanks a good runner, she's a smart runner. At Austin she carried her game plan to perfection.

"We found out in the 800 that the girl from Van Alstyne (Bonnie Cate) was pretty much of a rabbit, she takes out and runs the first 150 real fast," said Meissner. "Sarah had been running ahead all year. We decided if the girl took off in a sprint, Sarah would run her normal race, stay behind her a little and not burn herself out."

"At the top of the curve of the second lap Sarah took over the lead and was pretty much in control." Hanks' time of 2:18.9 won by almost two seconds.

In the 1,600 meters Hanks was expected to do battle with defending cross-country champion Elizabeth Silva of La Villa.

"I told Sarah the girl from La Villa would probably be zapped after running the two-mile," said Meissner. "Sarah ran just about a perfect race. She ran the times on her laps that we had targeted."

"She had me a little bit worried in the first lap because three jumped in front of her. She told me, 'Coach I wasn't worried, I knew they couldn't keep up that pace.'"

Hanks took the lead on the second lap and was never threatened. Her time of 5:18.4 was six seconds better than the second place finisher. "She ran on her own after the second lap," said Meissner. "If she had had to, she could've run 5:10."

Yes indeed, the Crossroads Country was well represented.

Pitchers dominate hitters

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Welcome back, Pascual. You too, Mark.

And welcome back to the real Jack Morris.

The pitchers held a big edge over the hitters in the American League on Tuesday. Three reasons were Pascual Perez of the New York Yankees, Mark Gubicza of the Kansas City Royals and Minnesota's Morris.

Perez, appearing for the first time since April 25, 1990, allowed two hits in six innings as New York beat California 7-1. He had been inactive for nearly all of last season and underwent shoulder surgery in August.

Gubicza couldn't have been happy with Kansas City's 4-1 loss at Toronto. But he did OK in his first start since June 29, 1990. He was recovering from arthroscopic surgery to repair a partially torn rotator cuff.

He gave up three runs on seven hits in five innings.

Morris manages to stay healthy. His pitching was kind of sickly this season, though, until Tuesday, when he pitched a two-hitter.

Yankees 7, Angels 1

After Perez's strong outing, John Habyan pitched three good innings for his first save. Mel Hall, Matt Nokes and Jesse Barfield homered for the host Yankees, who have won four of five.

American League

With Scott Bailes pitching in the eighth, Hensley Meulens doubled, Nokes homered and Barfield also homered. Then Bailes, who threw six pitches in all, hit Randy Velarde in the left leg.

Velarde went down, then looked like he would charge the mound when he was grabbed by umpire Gary Cederstrom and escorted to first base. Bailes was ejected and did not argue.

There was no arguing with Perez's effectiveness.

Blue Jays 4, Royals 1

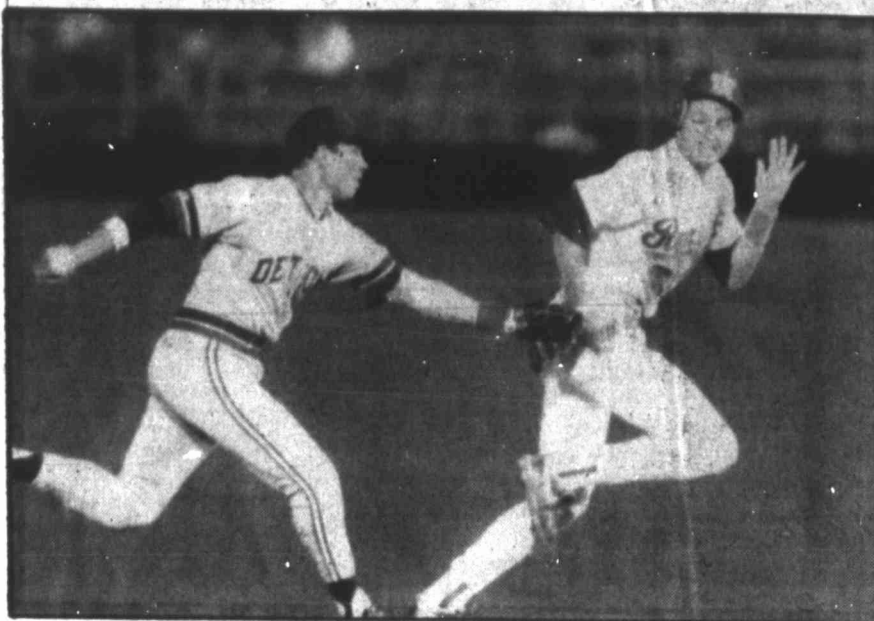

Gubicza was outpitched by David Wells, who won his fourth straight game. Wells needed relief from rookie Mike Timlin, who got into trouble in the eighth and ninth innings, but escaped both times for his first major league save.

Greg Myers had a two-run homer for Toronto.

Twins 5, Brewers 1

At Minnesota, the fans got to see why the Twins spent $3 million to sign Morris as a free agent. Morris allowed only a pair of doubles to Jim Gantner and fanned seven.

Chili Davis hit his fourth homer in three games to power the Twins to their fourth straight victory. The Twins moved two games above .500 (17-15) for the first time this season. The Twins are 15-6 since starting the season 2-9.

Rangers 5, Tigers 3

At Arlington, Rafael Palmeiro had a two-run triple in the fifth to break a 1-1 tie and Steve Buechele's homer in the sixth clinched the Rangers' victory.

Jeff Russell pitched the ninth for his seventh save, but did yield a home run to former Ranger Pete Incaeviglia.

Detroit has lost five in a row and Texas won its third straight.

The game was delayed 1 hour and 49 minutes by rain. The last time a Rangers home game was rained out was on July 2, 1989.

Orioles 6, Athletics 1

At Baltimore, Cal Ripken continued his tear as the Orioles got four solo homers. In addition to his ninth homer, Ripken singled and walked twice, raising his batting average to .358. He has seven hits and five walks in his last 14 trips to the plate.

Struggling Giants fall to Phillies

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The San Francisco Giants are making some progress against Terry Mulholland. They even had some hits this time.

Mulholland gave up eight hits and no runs in eight innings against his former team Tuesday night, leading Philadelphia past struggling San Francisco 9-0.

Mulholland, traded by the Giants to Philadelphia in 1989, pitched a no-hitter against the Giants last Aug. 15 at Veterans Stadium. He's 4-2 lifetime against San Francisco with a 1.44 ERA.

The way the Giants are going, they may wish they had Mulholland back. San Francisco has lost four straight games and 16 of its last 20. The Giants' 10-22 record is the worst in the major leagues.

Jim Fregosi, whose team is 12-8 since he became manager, said that Mulholland indeed had everything working for him.

John Kruk drove in three runs, Mickey Morandini had three singles and two RBIs and Von Hayes had three hits for the Phillies.

National League

The Phillies scored the only run Mulholland would need in the first inning when Darrin Fletcher's second-inning double off starter Kelly Downs (1-2) drove in Ricky Jordan, who had walked.

The Phillies led 2-0 in the ninth inning on Monday, only to come back for a 3-2 win in 11 innings. Joe Boever had no problem protecting the nine-run lead with a perfect ninth.

Reds 3, Cardinals 1

Norm Charlton (2-3) gave up one run in 7 1-3 innings as Cincinnati beat St. Louis at Busch Stadium.

The Reds entered the game trailing the major leagues with a .222 batting average, their lineup included four batters hitting .206 or less and two rookies, catcher Glenn Sutko and shortstop Freddie Benavides, with one major league at-bat between them.

Jaimie Moyer (0-4) took the loss. Cubs 5, Braves 4

with two outs in the eighth inning lifted Chicago over Atlanta at Wrigley Field.

Dawson's eighth homer of the season came on the first pitch from reliever Kent Mercker (1-2). Paul Assenmacher (1-0) worked 1 1-3 innings and Dave Smith got three outs for his ninth save.

Pirates 6, Astros 3

Left-hander Zane Smith gave up two runs in 6 2-3 innings to beat Houston for the fourth straight time for visiting Pittsburgh.

Smith (5-1) last lost to Houston on April 4, 1989, and is 4-0 in seven starts against the Astros since then. He gave up seven hits before Stan Belinda worked 1 1-3 innings and Bill Landrum finished for his fifth save.

Pete Harnisch (2-2) took the loss, giving up five runs and seven hits in five innings. Bobby Bonilla had a two-run double for the Pirates and Jay Bell added two RBIs.

Mets 6, Padres 1

Hubie Brooks hit his seventh career grand slam, his first with New York, as the Mets beat San Diego at Jack Murphy Stadium. Brooks homered off Eric Nolte (3-2) with two outs in the third inning for a 5-1 lead.

Brooks had no grand slams in his first four-year stint with the Mets and then hit six in five seasons with the Montreal Expos.

Wally Whitehurst (2-1), making his first start after three relief appearances, gave up three hits in five innings for the victory. Pete Schourek worked four innings for his second save.

Dodgers 6, Expos 2

Kevin Gross, breaking out of a slump, pitched six shutout innings to help Los Angeles beat Montreal at Dodger Stadium.

Gross (2-3) gave up two hits en route to his second straight victory. The right-hander has surrendered one earned run in his last 13 innings after his earned run average ballooned to 13.50 in his first three starts.

The Dodgers took a 2-0 lead against rookie Mark Gardner (0-1) on RBI singles by Darryl Strawberry in the first inning and Eddie Murray in the third. Los Angeles pulled away with a four-run fourth.

with five sophomores. Shortstop Frank Rodriguez, third baseman David Snyder and center fielder Efrain Contreras are the lone freshmen. The pitching staff is young, with Mike Copple being the only sophomore. Rodriguez and freshman Jesse Armandariz are the other two starters. Shane Ziegler and Edwin Corps come out of the bullpen, and both are freshmen.

Howard's pitching has been very consistent, however, especially the starting rotation. All three field earned run averages under 3.00.

"The freshmen are maturing and have played well," said Griffin. "You still depend on your sophomores for leadership. The freshmen are playing well because the sophomores are having exceptional years."

At the plate, the Hawks have been just short of awesome. They have hit a team record 104 homers and .366 batting average, also a team record.

Howard is familiar with some of the teams at the tournament. The Hawks split a two-game series with McLennan, swept a doubleheader from Ranger; beat Paris three of four and beat Odessa five of six.

"When you play these teams in February and March; you really can't use that as a measuring stick," said Griffin. "In a tournament like this, motivation is a tremendous factor. You see kids play above their heads; emotions run high. An average ballclub can beat a good ballclub."

Griffin said the odds-on favorite to win the tournament would probably be San Jacinto, a long-time baseball powerhouse, which won four national championships in the 80s. "San Jac has a tremendous amount of talent, and they always have a great pitching staff. Plus they've got a reputation for winning national championships. The next group that comes along thinks they can do it because the group before them did."

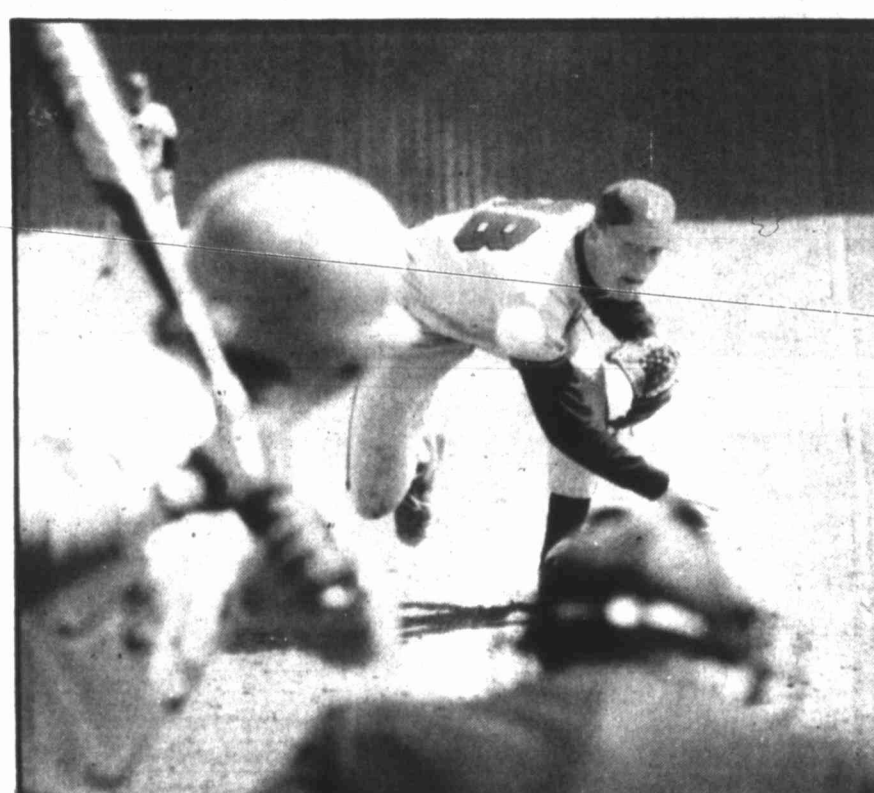

Griffin said the Paris Dragons were late bloomers this season. "Paris started out slow, but they finished on a high note," he said. "They finished second in the Texas Eastern Athletic Conference. On the last day they finished second and Panola finished first. They have two excellent pitchers and a very good defense; they hit fairly well."

Just like he has all year, Griffin said there's no need to try to motivate his team. "We're not trying to pump them up, they know what they have to do," he said. "To win this tournament you've got to have talent, a few breaks and a little luck. I think we're playing well enough to win."

Thursday's Schedule
10 a.m. — San Jacinto (41-14) vs. McLennan, (42-15).
1 p.m. — Howard (48-10) vs. Paris (27-23), statistics for the Howard College Hawks baseball team. The top five individuals in each category are listed:
Batting (minimum 100 at-bats) — Frank Rodriguez .476; Sean Teague .414; Jeff Schultz .412; Efrain Contreras .374;
4 p.m. — Panola (42-11) vs. Odessa (40-22).
7 p.m. — Ranger (30-24) vs. Lee (32-18).

No room for rabbit ears

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball officials want players to tune out the fans and ignore the taunts.

A day after Jose Canseco of Oakland confronted a fan at Yankee Stadium, American League president Bobby Brown said players should ignore insults.

"Any time you're a player and see and hear everything in the stands, you've got problems," Brown said. "That's always been a dictum that's been there."

Brown played for the New York Yankees from 1946-54, so he knows what it's like to hear cheers and jeers.

"That's just part of playing," he said. "You have to ignore what goes on in the stands. If you don't, then you have some difficulty."

Cleveland outfielder Albert Belle was suspended Monday for a week for hitting a fan with a thrown ball. Cincinnati's Rob Dibble was suspended May 3 for four games in a similar incident.

Commissioner Fay Vincent described Belle's action as a "very serious incident," but didn't want to pass judgment on Canseco's confrontation. It was clear that officials want players to ignore the customers.

"This is a concern and I'll talk to the league presidents," Vincent said. "To the extent that the league presidents think it's appropriate, we'll decide what should be done."

Monday's incident came in the first inning, when Kenny Shabs of Lyndhurst, N.J., allegedly taunted Canseco from the seats next to the Oakland dugout and Canseco walked over and started talking back.

Borg shoots for Wimbledon

ROME (AP) — Open is not in Bjorn Borg's comeback plans, Wimbledon may be.

"I'm definitely playing the French Open next month, I'll be there or not to enter Wimbledon before retirement next year ago."

The 34-year-old Borg works on speed for two hours a day. In the afternoon he has tennis lessons.

Since last week he has been training with Italian star Adriano Panatta, under the supervision of Prof. Antonio Di Pietro.

Borg shooting for Wimbledon

ROME (AP) — The French Open is not in Bjorn Borg's comeback plans, though Wimbledon may be.

"I'm definitely not going to play the French Open," Borg said Wednesday. "And over the next month, I'll decide whether or not to enter Wimbledon."

Borg won Wimbledon five times before retiring eight years ago.

The 34-year-old Swede took his comeback plans back to the drawing board after being eliminated in his first match back, at the Monte Carlo Open.

Since last week, Borg has been training with former Italian star Adriano Panatta. Also, under the supervision of Prof. Antonio Dal Monte of the Italian Sport Science Institute, Borg works on strength and speed for two hours in the morning. In the afternoon, he plays two hours against young Italian players.

"Adriano has been a great help to me," Borg said at the Foro Italico during the Italian Open. "I have been working out for nine months and am in excellent condition. Now I need someone to help me with the tennis."

Gastineau charged with assault

HEWLETT, N.Y. (AP) — Mark Gastineau admitted he punched a bar patron after the man kept harassing him and wouldn't leave him alone.

Nassau County police said. The former New York Jets defensive end surrendered to police and was charged with third-degree assault stemming from the incident early Sunday.

Gastineau, 35, told police he punched Eugene Galvin, 23, of Long Beach in the nose to stop Galvin from pestering him, according to Lt. Gary Engels.

Galvin sustained a broken nose and bruised an eye in the altercation. Gastineau was released on his own recognizance and is scheduled to be arraigned on the misdemeanor charge May 29 at First District Court in Hempstead.

The charge carries a penalty of up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

MSU coach on trial for rape

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University wrestling coach Phillip Parker was ordered to stand trial on a charge of raping a 20-year-old woman.

District court Judge Jules Hanslovsky said there was probable cause that a sexual assault had occurred and probable cause that Parker, 41, had done it. Hanslovsky bound Parker over for trial in Ingham County Circuit Court and scheduled a May 22 hearing.

Parker faces a charge of third-degree criminal sexual conduct. If convicted, he faces a maximum of 15 years in prison.

Rodman heads all-defensive team

NEW YORK (AP) — Two-time NBA defensive player of the year Dennis Rodman of the Detroit Pistons heads the league's all-defensive team.

David Robinson of San Antonio, Buck Williams of Portland, Michael Jordan of Chicago and Alvin Robertson of Milwaukee complete the first team.

Detroit's Joe Dumars and Houston's Hakeem Olajuwon, both first-team picks last year, made the second team with Scottie Pippen of Chicago, Dan Majerle of Phoenix and John Stockton of Utah.

LPGA sets anti-discrimination policy

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The LPGA announced an anti-discrimination policy similar to one adopted by the PGA Tour last summer and said that beginning in 1992 tournaments will no longer be held at clubs that exclude minorities.

LPGA commissioner Charles Mechem had pledged before he took office Jan. 1 that adoption of such a policy would be among his priorities. The LPGA said it will sever ties with clubs that discriminate on the basis of race, religion, gender or national origin.

Marvelous, magical Mario

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Minnesota North Stars' surprising dash to the Stanley Cup finals has been called marvelous, magical, miraculous. The Pittsburgh Penguins' walking miracle on ice wears No. 66.

He is Mario Lemieux. He is the No. 1 reason the Penguins are four victories away from the once unimaginable, the Stanley Cup. He is the Penguins.

He is also the leading scorer in the NHL playoffs with 32 points, a rather amazing feat considering how far Lemieux and the Penguins have come. This is a franchise that was flat on its back for years — and a player who was flat on his back only four months ago.

"People said he could never be a dominant player, that he might be done, that they should trade him," teammate Troy Loney said. "Mario's put all the skeptics to rest."

Asked once to describe Lemieux, All-Star Paul Coffey said, "There is hockey, and there is superstar hockey."

Still, it has been conveniently ignored by many hockey fans along the road to the Stanley Cup that Lemieux's very career was in doubt only a few months ago.

Sidelined for nearly a year because of back pain, surgery and a subsequent infection, Lemieux missed nearly an entire calendar year of hockey and didn't play in the Penguins' first 50 games this season. That he has returned to his near-legendary status as before, in a class with Gretzky, the Hulls and Howe, is remarkable.

"To see that big guy carrying the (Wales Conference) cup around the ice brought a tear to your eye," Penguins winger Phil Bourque said. "He probably saved hockey in this town."

Lemieux did that as a rookie in 1984-85, doubling the pitiful Penguins' dreadful attendance overnight and giving them the marquee player and legitimacy as a franchise that they'd always lacked.

In his first five years in the league, Lemieux set scoring standards reached previously only by Wayne Gretzky: 70 goals in 77 games in 1987-88, 85 goals and 199 points in 76 games a season later. But while Gretzky was surrounded by superstars in Edmonton, Lemieux's linemates were often wannabes, never-have-beens or discarded rejects.

But even as he threatened Gretzky's record 51-game scoring streak last season by scoring in 46 consecutive games, Lemieux's career was in jeopardy due to ever-increasing back pain. He finally hobbled off the ice in New York on Feb. 15, 1990, unable to stand the back pain any more, and played in only one more game that season.

He underwent surgery to partially remove a herniated disk last July. He was in severe pain when he reported to training camp in September and was barely able to skate. He skipped all contact drills and the start of season as doctors labored to learn the source of his pain.

Finally, they decided it was a disk space infection that occurs in only 1 percent of all patients who undergo back surgery and can cause debilitating, sometimes crippling pain. During one stretch of pain and doubt and discouragement, he didn't get out of bed for nearly three weeks.

"There were certainly (doubts about playing again) when I couldn't walk for a couple of weeks," Lemieux said. "I think that was normal for anybody to think that, the way I was."

His doctors insisted that rest, antibiotics and a rehabilitation program would put him back on the ice. He began skating in late December, returned Jan. 26 in Quebec and, after a brief reclamation period, has played like the Lemieux of old, not an old Lemieux.

He complained early in the New Jersey series of fatigue, but shook that off to produce 11 goals and 21 assists in 18 playoff games. He hasn't had a wondrous game like his five-goal, eight-point playoff show against Philadelphia in 1989 or his four-goal eruption in the 1990 NHL All-Star Game, but opposing coaches say his overall game has never been better.

Now he's in the Stanley Cup finals, and Lemieux is center stage in the biggest theater that hockey can offer. Born with a flair for the dramatic, Lemieux finally has a chance to upstage the critics who said he wasn't as good as Gretzky because he didn't win championships.

"Wayne has proved it every year, year after year," Minnesota general manager Bobby Clarke said in 1989. "Mario has mountains to climb before he approaches Wayne."

Top seeds bite clay in Italian Open

ROME (AP) — Pete Sampras, the only one of the top four seeds to make it past the first round at the Italian Open, was knocked out in the second round today. Sampras was beaten by Frenchman Fabrice Santoro 6-2, 4-6, 7-5.

"I just let the match get away from me," Sampras said. "I played some really careless tennis. He's not the kind of guy who's going to beat you. He's going to wait for you to make a mistake."

In another upset, South African qualifier Wayne Ferreira knocked off No. 15 seed Alexander Volkov 7-6 (7-2), 6-4. Jim Courier, the sixth seed, blasted past Sweden's Nicklas Kulti 6-0, 6-3.

Only seven of the top 16 seeds are still alive in the third day of the tournament.

"It's tough for me on clay," Sampras said. "My serve isn't as effective. And you have to have a lot of patience, which isn't easy when you're playing against a guy who's willing to stay out there all day."

The tournament received a blow Tuesday when top seed Boris Becker withdrew before playing a match. He said he was suffering from back pains which had troubled him since he played an exhibition 10 days ago at Lausanne, Switzerland against Stefan Edberg.

Andre Agassi, the No. 2 seed, didn't stay in Rome much longer than Becker, losing to unseeded German Eric Jelen 6-3, 7-6 (9-7) in the night match. And fourth seed Goran Ivanovic further thinned the field by losing to Holland's Paul Haarhuis 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

In his first round match, Sampras had to fight off an unexpected challenge from unknown Soviet qualifier Vladimir Gaborichidze before winning 7-6 (7-2), 4-6, 6-2.

Life has not been the same for Sampras since he defeated Ivan Lendl, John McEnroe and Agassi to win last year's U.S. Open. With the victory at Flushing Meadow and his $2 million triumph at the Grand Slam Cup in Frankfurt, Germany, the teen-ager from Bradenton, Fla., has won a share of glory but lost a share of control over his life.

"It's calmed down a lot after the U.S. Open," said Sampras, the No. 3 seed at Rome. "There are some experiences I'll never forget, however."

"One time, after an exhibition against Lendl, the crowd just flooded onto the court during the ceremony, pushing over the guards to get to us," he said. "It was like being a rock star. I thought I was going to get trampled."

A classic serve-and-volley player who has never been at home on clay, Sampras looked vaguely uninspired in his match against Gaborichidze. Unable to find his rhythm or to take the net, Sampras watched his hustling Soviet adversary run down nearly every shot he hit. It wasn't until the third set that Sampras started to look like a winner.

"It may have looked like I was bored," he said after the match. "But in fact I was frustrated. I thought that I should have beat that guy rather handily. And there I was, still out there on the court. I'm putting my all into it, even if it may not look like it."

Looking back, Sampras says he wouldn't want to return to being the young hopeful he was before winning the U.S. Open.

"I'm still happy, but it's different now," he said. "I've made a lot of money and I have a lot of fans. But being a celebrity is tough. Of course it's worth it in the end.

"And I'm happy about having achieved what I've wanted ever since I was very young. I'm just not too happy about losing my privacy."

Several other seeded players also tumbled out of the tournament on Tuesday.

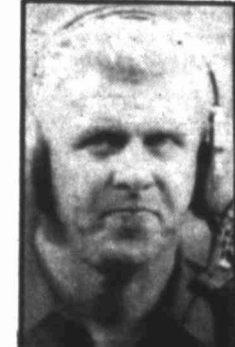

Mark Koevermans of the Netherlands ousted No. 10 Michael Stich of Germany 4-6, 6-4, 6-4; Christian Miniussi eliminated fellow Argentine Guillermo Perez-Roldan, seeded 12th, 6-7 (8-6), 6-4, 6-1; and Italian Massimo Cierro stopped No. 16 Karel Novacek of Czechoslovakia 6-0, 6-3.

Mats Wilander, once ranked No. 1 in the world, fell to 14th-seeded Magnus Gustafsson 7-6 (8-6), 6-1 in a battle of Swedes, while Yannick Noah of France, on the comeback trail, defeated Germany's Alexander Mronz 6-1, 6-3.

Rumors say Parcels leaving world champs

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — After guiding the New York Giants to their second Super Bowl title in five years, Bill Parcels reportedly will step down today as coach of the NFL champions.

"He's gone," Newsday reported a source as saying in today's edition.

The Boston Globe and the New York Daily News, citing sources close to the club, said Parcels has informed general manager George Young that he will not honor the final year of his contract. The Globe said the Giants would make an announcement today.

The club said that Parcels would hold an afternoon news conference, but the Giants did not say why.

"If I knew something, I wouldn't say because I'd be divulging a confidence, and if I didn't know anything, I still wouldn't say because it's not my place," the New York Times quoted Giants offensive coordinator Ray Handley as saying.

According to several newspapers, Handley, elevated last winter from running backs coach, is considered the front-runner to replace Parcels as head coach.

"I can't help you on this," Handley told The Associated Press Tuesday night.

When asked about reports that he would succeed Parcels, he said: "I've been reading that for a couple of months now."

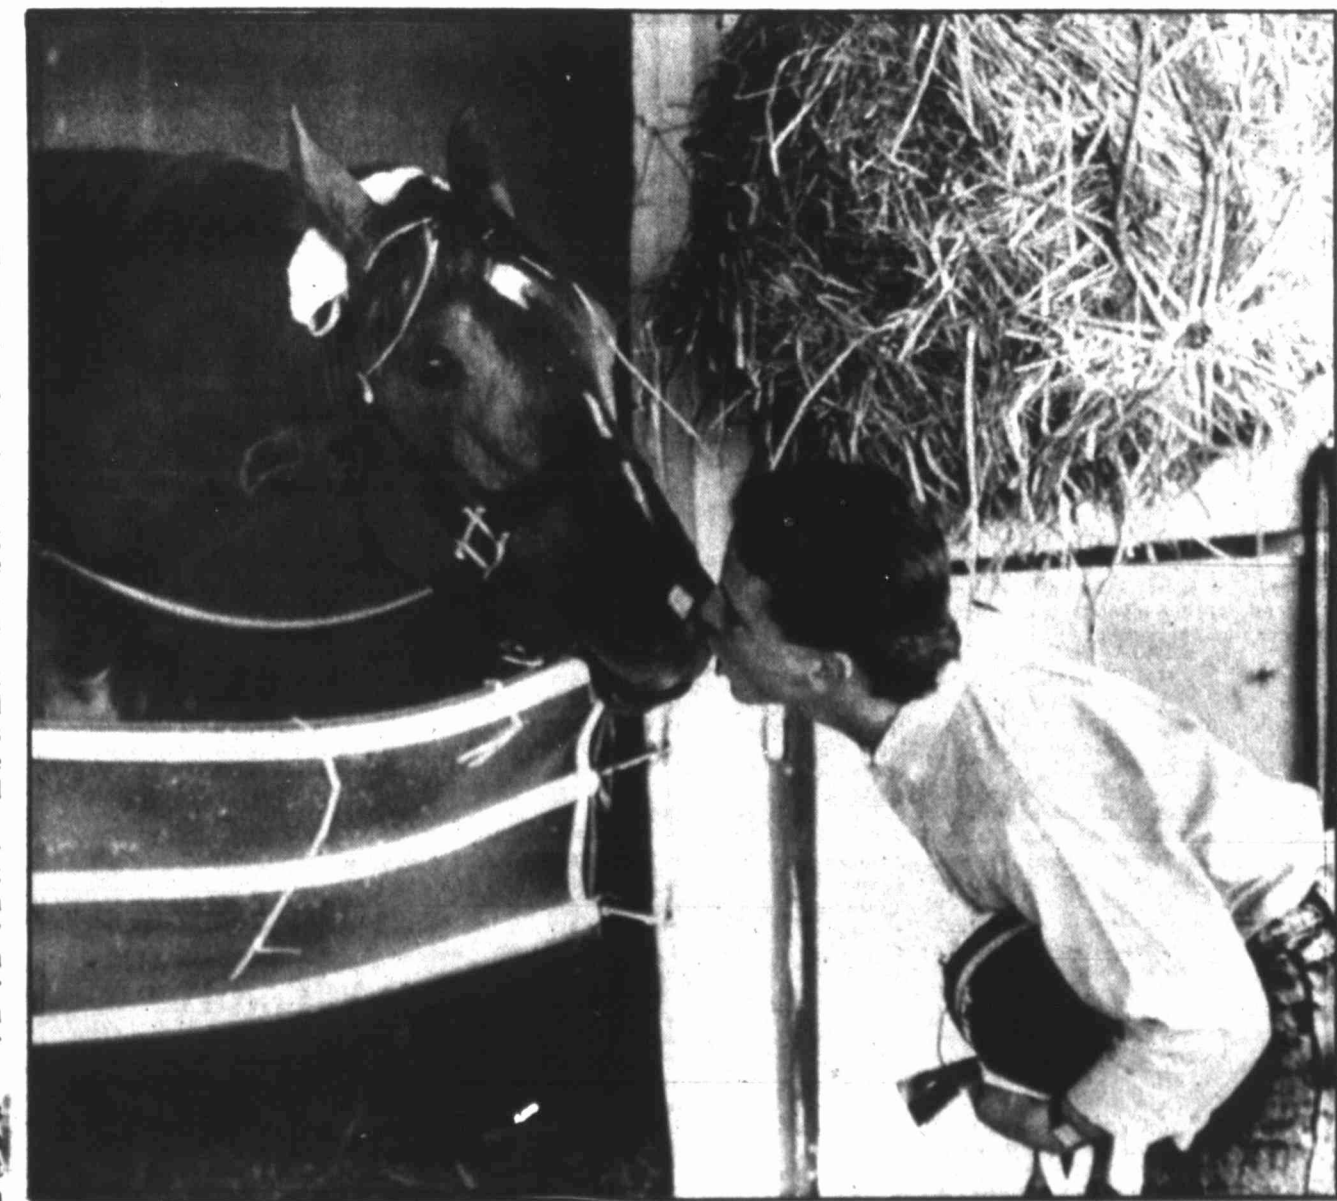

Attempts by the AP Tuesday night to reach Parcels and Young were unsuccessful. A representative in the office of Parcels' agent, Robert Fraley, would not confirm the report.

There have been recurrent rumors that Parcels, 49, would step down as Giants coach. He has reportedly said in the past that he would quit if his team won a second Super Bowl.

In a Newsday interview published May 5, Parcels said: "I'm not trying to create an air of suspicion or doubt. It's just that you're really uncertain which way to go. When you get to a certain point in your career, you have to decide. Are you going to go further or stop and alter your course?"

Prior to last season, Parcels said: "It's tough to be a head coach in this league for 10 years. I don't know if I can make it for 10 years in this league."

Parcels recently fueled speculation he was leaving by making an audition tape for NBC with the possibility that he would become an analyst on the network's pro football telecasts.

STAYING, OR GOING?

"Sometimes I think the media overacts to what Charles has to say. To trade a player like Charles Barkley, you have to get a great player in return. There's not too many players you can trade a Michael, Magic or Charles Barkley for." — 76ers owner Harold Katz on Charles Barkley's reported desire to be traded.

SPEAKING

"Our leader stepped up and hit a three and said, 'Hey, we're going to win this basketball game.' And everyone else sort of picked up the rope and said 'Hey, we're going to start pulling.'" — Buck Williams of Portland on Clyde Drexler, whose 3-pointer to open the third period Tuesday started a 16-0 run that sparked the Trail Blazers to a 103-94 victory.

Hockey Today

Thursday, May 16

No game scheduled. The Stanley Cup finals resume in Pittsburgh on Friday night.

STATS

Minnesota has played only one overtime game in this year's playoffs — winning 4-3 in its first opening-round game at Chicago. ... Pittsburgh is 2-1 in overtime this year. ... Minnesota is only the third team with a losing record to make the finals since the 1967 expansion.

STREAKS

Pittsburgh had missed the playoffs seven times in eight years before this year. ... This is the first time since 1982 that there is not a team from Alberta in the finals.

SLAP SHOTS

If the North Stars win the Stanley Cup, they will have the second-worst regular-season percentage of any NHL champion. Minnesota had 46 points in 80 games, a .425 percentage. Only Chicago (.385 in 1937-38) was worse.

STATUS

Petr Klima wants the Edmonton Oilers to trade him to a team in the United States, preferably the Detroit Red Wings — the team that spirited him out of Czechoslovakia in 1985. Klima has three years remaining on his contract and says the desire to move has nothing to do with the Oilers organization, or the economics of playing for Canadian dollars and paying heavy taxes.

SCOUTING

Brent Thurston and Pat Falloon each scored twice as Spokane beat Chicoutimi 7-1 Tuesday night to move closer to a berth in the final of the Memorial Cup major junior hockey tournament.

SPEAKING

"Hey, Minnesota is deadly. Their power play is awesome. They're playing with great speed and discipline. They've been the best team in the league from the end of the season on. With the personnel we have here, you know it was just a matter of time. You got to see Mario Lemieux in the Stanley Cup finals. What teams would have been better?" — Pittsburgh defenseman Larry Murphy.

SEASONS

May 16

1926—The Chicago Blackhawks and Detroit Cougars (later the Red Wings) are granted franchises. Thus, after adding the New York Rangers a month earlier, the NHL became a 10-team league with American and Canadian divisions.

1976—Montreal officially ended Philadelphia's two-year reign as Stanley Cup champions with a 5-3 victory over the Flyers, completing a four-game sweep. The Canadiens went on to win four straight Stanley Cups.

1982—The New York Islanders wrapped up what Charles has to say. To trade a player like Charles Barkley, you have to get a great player in return. There's not too many players you can trade a Michael, Magic or Charles Barkley for." — 76ers owner Harold Katz on Charles Barkley's reported desire to be traded.

1985—Edmonton's Jari Kurri scored three goals for the third time in one series, a record, as the Oilers routed Chicago 8-2 to wrap up the Campbell Conference finals in six games.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A mysterious newcomer will add glamour to your life. New career and financial gains are in the picture, beginning in October. Choose your confidants with greater care! A tired romance gradually fades away. Although your family responsibilities grow, you are untroubled. Children will bring special pride and pleasure in early 1992. Try to take a long-overdue vacation then.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: tennis stars Gabriela Sabatini and Yannick Noah.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Complications could arise on the home front. Someone asks a special favor you cannot grant. Stick to your guns; a matter of principle is involved. Offer to help out in other ways.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Show your vulnerability to a child and a new understanding will develop. Stay away from a lingering love who will not make a commitment. A successful reunion pleases you enormously.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A romantic relationship would benefit from greater give-and-take. Get ready to compromise with your mate. Athletic activities help disperse nervous energy. Cut unnecessary spending.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Home improvement projects may be high on your list of priorities. Try not to tackle too many things at once, however. A late-afternoon phone call brings you new hope about a financial matter.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Resolve to put some distance between yourself and problems from the past. Give greater thought to your future career or financial needs. A friend or relative offers assistance. Welcome it!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A long-sought career goal comes to pass, thanks to the help of an influential person. Put your worries behind you. Let go of the past and look ahead with confidence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Plans and relationships will flourish beautifully now. A job opportunity and the promise of prestige spark your interest. Weigh the pros and cons carefully. A newcomer's arrival is petetic. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The morning is highlighted by unusual events and forward-looking people. You feel a strong need for privacy and introspection this afternoon. Catch up on paperwork and administrative chores.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Family members can influence a business or educational choice. Partnerships are emphasized today. The support you give will be reciprocated threefold! Romance is fine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An excellent day to approach higher-ups about an innovative pet project. Other people are anxious to hear what you have to say. Greater emotional and financial rewards lie ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A financial change could catch you off-guard unless you plan ahead. Build savings. A willingness to accept high-tech equipment and fresh ideas will put your career back on the fast track.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep your relationships low-key. Anxiety and guilt can affect your health. Put the past behind you. If you issue ultimatums, romance will fly out the window. Wear your heart on your sleeve!

SEAFOOD SAVVY

SAVVY COOKS KNOW that broiling is one of the easiest, most versatile methods for cooking seafood. A few simple guidelines is all it takes - you'll never fish for compliments again! Whether the occasion calls for a simple meal for two or an impressive seafood feast for friends, broiling is a great choice to insure delicious results every time.

START WITH THE BEST INGREDIENTS, and with seafood, that means Alaska. From halibut to Alaska king crab, salmon to cod, the icy waters of Alaska produce seafood that is all natural and unparalleled in flavor. Seafood is the primary business of Alaska, and the fishermen know how to handle their fish right. Careful attention given to catching and processing Alaska seafood is the first critical step that ensures a superior end result.

THE CATCH OF THE DAY means Alaska salmon, halibut, Alaska king, snow and Dungeness crab, Alaska pollock and more. The vast waters of the Bering Sea, the Gulf of Alaska and the North Pacific are home to hundreds of varieties of fish and shellfish. There's no worry about what's in season and what is not. Most species of Alaska seafood are frozen so they are available all year 'round. Superior freezing techniques guarantee that the flavor and texture of freshly caught Alaska seafood is locked in until you are ready to use it. In Alaska, they say "Frozen is Fresher" and that's the reason why.

CHOOSING SEAFOOD is easy when you know what to look for. You'll find Alaska seafood either in the frozen seafood department, or at the seafood counter. When purchasing frozen seafood, look for solidly frozen packages, with no discoloration or freezer burns. When purchasing fresh-thawed seafood, let your eyes and nose be the judge. Good quality seafood smells ocean-fresh, has a moist appearance and firm texture. Good quality seafood should never have a strong odor.

BUY ENOUGH FOR DINNER and an extra package for your freezer. That's the beauty of frozen seafood—it's easy to keep on hand. Count on 6-8 ounces of fish steaks or filets per person. When buying Alaska crab in the shell, allow 14-16 ounces per person.

PROPER THAWING OF SEAFOOD is as important as proper cooking. It's best to thaw seafood slowly, in the refrigerator. Place the package on a plate or shallow pan to catch any liquid that escapes. Allow approximately 8-10 hours, or overnight, depending on the size of the package. Never thaw seafood at room temperature or place it in warm water to thaw. Both flavor and texture are lost that way.

PACKED TO THE GILLS WITH GOOD NUTRITION, seafood is a smart way to add high quality protein to your diet while cutting back on saturated fat and cholesterol. In addition, Alaska salmon, canned salmon and sablefish have the benefit of being high in omega-3 - type polyunsaturated fat, a substance believed to have a beneficial effect in lowering cholesterol and preventing heart disease. When you broil seafood, there is no need to add extra fat for cooking, making it even more healthful.

BROILING

The rule of thumb for broiling fish is simple. Measure fish steaks or filets at the thickest part, then broil for 10 minutes per inch of thickness. Reduce the cooking time accordingly for cuts less than an inch thick. You should not try to turn fish filets while broiling or they may break apart. Only thicker cut and firm textured fish steaks, such as salmon or halibut should be turned, but it is not necessary.

Alaska shellfish already comes fully cooked. It need only be broiled until heated through. Alaska King crab split legs, Alaska Snow crab clusters and cracked Dungeness crab take approximately 4 minutes to heat through. Place the cut or cracked side towards the heat source for extra flavor and browning.

DRY HEAT VERSUS MOIST HEAT

Alaska shellfish and the richer fish such as Alaska salmon and sablefish are best broiled with dry heat. Simply place the shellfish, fish steaks or filets on a broiling pan. Place the pan 4-6 inches under the preheated broiler and cook as directed above.

An option for broiling leaner fish such as Alaska cod, halibut and Alaska pollock is adding liquid to the pan before cooking. Place the fish steaks or filets in a pan. Add chicken broth, clam juice or a combination of either, mixed with white wine and herbs. You only need add a small amount of liquid, about 1/8-inch in the bottom of the pan. Place the pan 4-6 inches under the preheated broiler and cook as directed above. It is not necessary to use liquid when broiling these types of seafood; however, dry heat produces a delicious effect as well.

BRUSH, SPLASH AND SPRINKLE WITH FLAVOR. Many of the ingredients kept in the pantry can add extra zip to Alaska seafood without a lot of work. Keep it healthful—it's not necessary to use high-fat seasonings. All it takes is a little imagination.

- Brush with a flavored vinegar such as raspberry or white wine and tarragon. Try olive oil infused with garlic and crushed peppercorns.
- Splash with lemon juice and a flourish of ground pepper and herbs.
- Sprinkle lightly with a mixture of your favorite spices.
- Add a topping of nuts during the last minute of broiling.
- Spoon a simple sauce on just before serving.

Almond-Black Pepper Coating

- 3 Tablespoons sliced almonds
- 1 Tablespoon crushed black peppercorns

Mix together almonds and black pepper. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon mixture on top of each portion of fish during last minute of broiling. Makes about 1/4 cup (4 servings).

Tomato-Caper Sauce

- 1/2 cup chopped onions
- 1 Tablespoon olive oil
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 can (14-1/2 oz.) stewed tomatoes, coarsely chopped
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon dried basil
- 1/4 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1/4 cup chopped green olives
- 1 Tablespoon chopped capers

In a medium saucepan, sauté onions in olive oil over medium heat, 5-10 minutes, until soft. Stir in garlic, tomatoes and their juice, sugar, basil and oregano. Simmer 10 minutes until tomatoes are soft and sauce is thickened. Stir in green olives and capers; heat through. Makes 1-1/2 cups (6 servings).

Easy Salmon Gratin

- 1 can (15-1/2 oz.) Alaska salmon
- 1/4 cup chopped celery
- 2 Tablespoons chopped onions
- 3 Tablespoons nonfat plain yogurt

Drain and flake salmon*. Toss salmon with celery and onions. Mix together yogurt, mayonnaise, lemon juice and dill weed; gently fold into salmon. Combine remaining ingredients. Spread salmon mixture into a medium (2-cup capacity) gratin dish or 2 individual gratin dishes. Broil 4-6 inches from heat for 5 minutes. Sprinkle with bread crumb mixture; broil another 5-7 minutes or until bread crumbs have browned and salmon is heated through. Serve at once. Makes 2 servings.

*Note: The small amount of bones and skin are completely edible and an excellent source of calcium and omega-3 fatty acids. Simply blend skin and bones with salmon and other ingredients.

Creamy-Lemon Garlic Sauce

- 1/4 cup plain nonfat yogurt
- 1/4 cup light mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 clove garlic, pressed in garlic press

In mixing bowl, whisk together all ingredients until well combined. Chill until ready to serve. Makes 1/2 cup (4-6 servings).

Cajun-Style Seasoning Mix

- 2 Tablespoons paprika
- 1-1/2 teaspoons each dried oregano and dried thyme
- 1 teaspoon each onion powder and black pepper
- 1 teaspoon each garlic powder and salt
- 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper, or to taste

Mix together all ingredients until well combined. Sprinkle approximately 1/2 teaspoon spice mixture over the surface of each portion of fish or shellfish before broiling. Save remainder in airtight container for future uses. Makes about 1/4 cup.

Electronics specially-suited for trolling can help anglers be more aware of what is going on around — and under — them.

All season enjoyment Work and play with accessories — ATV's can do double duty

All Terrain Vehicles (ATV) are delivering all season enjoyment for their owners these days, according to Steve Molitoris of Yamaha Parts and Accessories.

"It used to be that people bought ATVs for one purpose," Molitoris said. "Farmers would use them as work-horses, hunters used them to venture deeper into the woods, and riders used them just for the pure joy of off-road travel."

But Yamaha's designers found that by adding a few accessories or features, they could offer their customers a machine that would do double duty. For example, the addition of a work light makes it more convenient for night or early morning use. And the 70,000 candle power light swivels 360° for convenience and is detachable for hand use.

A gun scabbard which safely stores the hunter's firearm, can do double duty in carrying fishing rods. Racks can be added for bigger, bulkier loads and even a trailer hitch is available. For pulling logs, or boats out of the water, a 1,500 lb. load limit winch by Warn Adding accessories to your ATV can make it do double duty.

Industries offers a remote switch for more convenient operation.

In the winter, chains and a snow plow attachment will help keep walks and drives clear. Even special turf tires are an accessory to help prevent lawn damage while turning.

So while youngsters may have their transformer robot toys that turn into airplanes or cars, adults can enjoy a similar versatility with their modern 4-wheel ATVs.

A weekend in the woods is a great way to reduce stress. But remember to make your outing as hassle-free as possible.

Leave the stress behind

Stress. It's a term of the 80's that seems to have become a reality of the 90's. For many Americans, stress is an every-day occurrence, both at home and at the office, and one that can affect a person's health, both mental and physical.

Experts have found that stress can lead to heart problems, ulcers, even cancer. Learning how to reduce stress may add years to a person's life and makes daily activities more enjoyable. An excellent way to reduce stress, say the camping experts at Camel Outdoor Products, is to change your environment.

"Pack up the tent, sleeping bags and other camping gear and head for the wilds," suggests Matt Bush, Camel's product manager. "Leave the phone calls, traffic and stress of every day life behind and get out and enjoy nature. Tent camping is an ideal way to escape to the outdoors, and enhances the relaxation that comes with the outdoor world."

"Taking a weekend camping trip takes your mind off all the headaches of your job and puts life into perspective," Bush said. "Spending hours beneath a star-filled sky, listening to the sounds of crickets, owls and the wind, makes even large problems seem small in comparison. Plus, with tent camping, the thrill of an overnight camping trip brings back many fond memories and creates new memories as well."

"Camping is an outdoor experience that can be tailor-made to the individual," Bush said. "Some people like to solo-camp in a small, inexpensive tent that can be carried into the wilderness and set up quickly and easily, while others prefer to camp as a family, requiring a larger tent. Today's tents are designed to be hassle-free, taking less time to set up and providing more time for the person to enjoy the outdoors." Camel makes a series of SST tents (Sixty Second Tents) that can literally be set up in a minute, as well as a full line of cabin tents for the larger group.

"No matter what type of camping he or she enjoys, today's stressed-out worker can leave the glass and asphalt jungle and enjoy the wilderness without giving up all the comforts of home."

Through the screened windows of a Camel cabin tent, you can enjoy the smell of bacon cooking on an open fire while listening to a robin sing to his mate. Most cabin tents have full floors to keep bugs and insects out, with large windows for proper ventilation.

New technology can make trolling easier

Both fresh and saltwater anglers know the benefits of trolling when trying to catch fish — covering more water quickly and getting the bait down to the feeding level of the fish. But to troll successfully, anglers must have the correct equipment and know how to keep the bait in front of the fish.

Two important pieces of trolling equipment are a fish finder and a downrigger or diving planer. The fish finder shows the depth of the fish and the bottom being trolled plus shows any changes in the bottom depth. A downrigger or diving planer can accurately put baits down to the feeding level of the fish, but must be set at the appropriate depth and adjusted according to the changing bottom contours.

All of these units rely on the captain at the helm and the anglers at the back of the boat to properly set them in accordance to the depth on the fish finder screen. But a communication breakdown often occurs, with the sound of the engine or the excitement of a hookup distracting the captain from calling out the depth information.

To supply anglers with appropriate depth information, when they need it, Edeco Instruments' Depth Talker, which is connected to the boat's existing fish finder, is specially suited for trolling. The Depth Talker uses a voice alert to keep the captain and anglers aware of the current water depth, or any preset depth allowing them to concentrate on the fishing at hand.

The Depth Talker works by actually interpreting the sonar signal it receives from the fish finder or depth gauge. For any boater that squints at standard depth finder screens or is puzzled by a sometimes glaring video display, he'll quickly understand the advantages of having the sonar signal interpreted and called out audibly. For trolling, the unit calls out the depth, letting everyone on board instantly know the bottom depth and if there is a need to raise or lower the downrigger lines.

Rather than having the depth constantly called out, the unit can be set to a "Depth Change-Delta Depth" mode that only calls out a change in bottom depth. If the Delta Depth feature is set for five feet, the unit will call out the actual depth only when a change occurs of five feet or more. For trolling ridges or canyons, the Depth Talker is silent as long as the boat stays on course along the ridge, providing peaceful fishing time. But if the boat strays off the ridge, the unit's "voice" calls out the change in depth, and course corrections can be made.

This water depth monitoring accessory is also helpful if the fishing action heats up and the captain is needed for pulling lines while an angler fights a fish, or netting a fish at the back of the boat. If the depth changes, the Depth Talker calls out the change, alerting the angler and avoiding any problems.

By using the Depth Talker, anglers can troll more confidently, knowing that the correct depth is as close as the speed of sound. For additional free information on the Depth Talker call toll free (800) 451-TALK.

Jerry Moon (L), coordinator of Shimano's Live Release boat, stands by to answer questions at a recent boat show. The Live Release boat is used at fishing tournaments throughout the country.

Every little bit helps Live release boat aids environment; enhances catch & release concept

On lakes and rivers throughout the country, more and more anglers are enjoying the fun and competitiveness of tournament fishing. While these events can bring recognition to the participants, the fact that the majority of these tournaments practice catch and release, the process of returning the fish to the body of water after being weighed, the nation's fisheries will also.

To enhance the concept and benefits of catch and release fishing at tournaments, one fishing tackle manufacturer, Shimano, has introduced its new "Live Release Boat," the company's latest program of environmental practices to benefit the nation's fishing future.

Shimano's Live Release Boat is a specially designed 24-foot pontoon with a built-in 300 gallon freshwater livewell — an "aquarium" ready to hold a tournament's daily catch. The water in the holding tank can be constantly recirculated, and a Ventura system adds oxygen to the water to further help fish survival.

In the tank, the caught fish can be monitored by fishery biologists for any signs of stress, and treatments can be added to replace any slime coat lost during handling, and to calm the fish, preparing them for release.

"One of the keys to the overall operation of the Live Release boat is that we can reduce the handling of fish," said Toyo Shimano, project coordinator. "We can keep actual handling of fish to a minimum, which can cause them undue stress and minor injuries that can lead to an unwanted high mortality rate."

Shimano's Live Release Boat is operated by Jerry Moon from Independence, Mo. Moon states that when it is determined that the fish are ready for release, the boat is driven out to a favorable habitat where the fish are released through two large drain tunnels in the bottom of the 300-gallon holding tank.

"By releasing the fish throughout favorable habitat all over the lake, instead of just at the weigh-in location," states Moon, "we are able to balance out the fish population of the lake."

The boat has also been used in state fishing stocking programs, where fish can be loaded on the boat at the hatchery, driven to the lake, and then the fish are released at various locations throughout the lake. The Arkansas Game and Fish Commission recently used the Shimano Live Release boat to stock tiger muskies in Spring River Lake near Mammoth Springs, Ark.

Shimano's Live Release boat is part of the company's corporate commitment to the nation's environment, adds Toyo Shimano. "As with other companies in the fishing tackle and marine industries, we have a goal to do our part to ensure that future anglers will be able to enjoy the same, or even better, sport fishing than we do now."

Tasty recipes Cook conservatively in your RV

Today 200,000 American senior citizens live full time, in homes-on-wheels. They comprise only a fraction of the estimated 5 million RVers in the U.S.A.

During the oil crunches of the 1970s and 1980s, the motor homes and recreational vehicles offered fat targets for self-styled energy critics.

It took a while for experts to conduct energy audits demonstrating that (on balance) recreational vehicles conserve energy: they efficiently shelter their full time occupants, and as often as not, use less energy in recreation than a family might consume during a weekend at home.

But whether as home-sweet-home or escape capsule, RVs spend most of their time parked, at energy costs ranging from low to minuscule.

In keeping with the RV energy-saving ethic, here are a pair of dishes cooked conservatively:

- Beef Stew Burros
- 4 8-inch flour tortillas
  - 2 Tbsp. butter or margarine, softened
  - 1 24-oz. can Armour Star Beef Stew
  - 1 small can diced mild green chiles
  - 1 cup Monterey Jack cheese
  - 1/2 cup diced green onions
  - 1 jar prepared Mexican salsa

Lightly brush tortillas with butter or margarine. Stack and wrap in aluminum foil. Stir stew and chiles together in microwave-safe dish. Cover loosely with plastic wrap, microwave 4-5 minutes, stirring once. While waiting, turn and warm wrapped tortillas a few minutes over an open flame. Quickly fill each tortilla with one-fourth of chile/stew mix, sprinkle with a little cheese and onions. Serve salsa on the side. Makes four servings.

- Creamed Chipped Beef
- 1 5 oz. pkg. of Armour Star Sliced Dried Beef
  - 1/4 cup butter or margarine
  - 1/4 cup flour
  - 2 cups milk
  - 1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
- Toast, or cooked rice, noodles or pastry shells

Separate and rinse dried beef in warm water to remove most of the salt. Chop beef into bite-size pieces. In a saucepan over medium heat, melt butter or margarine. Stir in flour. Slowly add milk and Worcestershire sauce. Cook, stirring constantly over low heat until thickened; add beef. Continue to heat for 5 more minutes. Season to taste. Serve immediately over toast or other base. Makes four servings.

Is the water safe to drink?

Water is one of the earth's most precious resources. But even in the most remote areas of the world it is difficult to find a stream or reservoir in which the water is not contaminated by some type of infectious micro organism.

A world-wide need exists for a safe and efficient method to make questionable water safe to drink. This need was recognized decades ago and extensive research produced no ideal product. Wisconsin Pharmaceutical Company, however, has satisfied this need with Potable Aqua water purification tablets. Wisconsin Pharmaceutical developed Potable Aqua from work started at Harvard University during World War II. Potable Aqua meets or exceeds the ideal criteria for a compact, exact dosage tablet that is a simple to use, fast acting water purification method. Potable Aqua is totally effective against Giardia lamblia, a protozoan which causes severe cramps and diarrhea in humans.

Extremely simple to use, a single tablet of Potable Aqua provides a uniform dosage that purifies one quart of water — and it leaves no objectional aftertaste. It is a safe and convenient method of disinfecting questionable drinking water. For years, the Potable Aqua formulation has been used by the military, disaster relief organizations, and the Red Cross.

- It is an absolute must for:
- Traveling in the U.S. or abroad
  - Camping and backpacking
  - Boating and fishing
  - First aid or survival kits

Bugs put the bite on outdoor fun

It's bad enough that outdoor enthusiasts have to put up with the pain, itching and swelling from mosquito bites, but, due to mild winters, we're faced with another problem, a major increase in the bee population.

There are some good insect repellants on the market to combat insect bites. Experts will tell you that if they contain 30%-55% of an ingredient called "DEET," they will protect you from most bugs. But, nothing works on stinging bees.

So what do we do if we get attacked by a bee. Your grandparents may tell you that household remedies are the only things that they found to work: ice cubes, meat tenderizer, alcohol, ice-scrubbers, or just plain toughing it out. Today, however, there are more scientific means available. There are a handful of products that have been developed to specifically treat the bite or sting of our outdoor enemies. One product, Sting-Eze insect bite relief, was developed by pharmacists in Wisconsin. It contains numerous ingredients that together work on every negative aspect of an insect bite or sting. The unique antiseptic Sting-Eze formula, when applied soon after a bite, begins to work immediately to counteract the pain, itching and swelling that torments us every summer. It even works on poison ivy and poison oak.

Unfortunately, bees, mosquitoes, ticks and poison ivy will always be there. But for now we can arm ourselves with the weapons needed to brave the outdoors that we so treasure.

A no-fuss, no-guilt, delicious multi-course meal

Leave it to Americans to become connoisseurs of fast food. We dine out in record numbers, favoring speedy chain restaurants where complete meals are served up on individual trays. At home, the trend continues, as a typical dinner and dessert combination is devoured in minutes.

But, there are alternatives to "hurry up" dining. Multi-course meals, long enjoyed by Europeans and Orientals, provide relief from the fast food syndrome. And, they are not more difficult to prepare than traditional American menus. The big difference is in the serving — one course at a time.

Nutrition-minded cooks will be happy to note that multi-course meals don't have to be calorie- or fat-laden. By selecting recipes with only a moderate amount of fat and by controlling portion size, multi-course menus can be healthy and satisfying, too.

Suggested menu

Italian and Mediterranean foods lend themselves to this type of presentation. A simple multi-course menu might include a vegetable platter served with crusty bread for starters, bowls of fresh-cooked pasta as the first course, a simple chicken recipe and steamed vegetable as the main course, and a large bowl of seasonal fruit served with cookies for dessert.

Surprisingly, this four-course meal is a cinch to orchestrate. Buy or make the cookies the day before. Prepare the vegetables and fruit well in advance of the meal, then refrigerate until ready to serve. Start the pasta sauce before you sit down, letting it simmer while you enjoy your appetizer. Next, cook the pasta and prepare the chicken, allowing the chicken to bake during the pasta course.

Healthy fare

An added benefit of this type of dining is the nutritional control it provides. For example, using the suggested menu and accompanying recipes, this meal contains a balance of nutrients with a moderate amount of fat — only about 25 percent. And, because the recipes are prepared with Bertolli Olive Oil, most of the fat is monounsaturated, the type recommended by many health professionals.

Receive a copy of Bertolli's new "Olive Oil Guidebook," a 32-page booklet filled with Mediterranean recipes and health information, by sending your name and address, plus $2.00 for postage and handling to: Bertolli's Olive Oil Guidebook, P.O. Box 426, Dept. R, Park Ridge, NJ 07656.

PINZIMONIO

serves 6 to 8

Choose at least 3 vegetables from the following:

- 1 or 2 bulbs fennel, tough outer stalk and fern-like tops trimmed, quartered
- 1 or 2 celery hearts with their leafy tops, trimmed and quartered
- 1 bunch pencil thin scallions, roots and tough tops trimmed
- 1 bunch of bag baby carrots, scrubbed and trimmed
- 1 bunch perfectly shaped tiny radishes with tops, rinsed, outer leaves trimmed
- 1 or 2 heads radicchio, separated into leaves, hearts quartered, rinsed
- 1 or 2 heads Belgian endive, separated into leaves, rinsed

Condiments:

- Bertolli Extra Virgin Olive Oil
- Red wine vinegar
- Coarse salt
- Freshly ground black pepper

Soak the prepared vegetables in a large bowl of iced water for 20 minutes to crisp before using. Drain well. Arrange all the vegetables in a shallow bowl or platter. Pass the olive oil, red wine vinegar, coarse salt and pepper mill; each person selects the preferred condiment for dipping the vegetables as they are eaten with the fingers.

PASTA TRICOLORE

serves 6

(Serendipitous as it appears the bright red tomato, deep green basil and creamy white pasta are the exact same colors found in the Italian flag.)

- 1/4 cup Bertolli Classico or Extra Virgin Olive Oil
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 small clove garlic, pressed
- 2 cans (14 ounces each) Italian-style plum tomatoes with juice or 3 cups peeled and chopped fresh vine-ripened tomatoes
- Salt and freshly ground pepper, to taste
- 1 tablespoon Bertolli Extra Virgin Olive Oil
- 1 pound penne or other tubular pasta shape
- 1/2 cup torn fresh basil leaves

Heat the oil in a large skillet; add the onion; sauté, stirring, until tender; do not brown. Add garlic; sauté 1 minute. Stir in the tomatoes (breaking up the canned tomatoes with the side of a spoon); heat to a gentle simmer.

Simmer, stirring occasionally, over medium-low heat until sauce is slightly thickened, about 25 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste. Stir in tablespoon of Bertolli Extra Virgin Olive Oil just before using. Cook the pasta in plenty of boiling salted water until al dente or firm to the bite; drain well. Add enough sauce to just lightly coat the pasta; add the basil; toss to blend. Spoon remaining sauce on top, if desired.

CHICKEN ROASTED WITH BASIL AND LEMON

serves 4

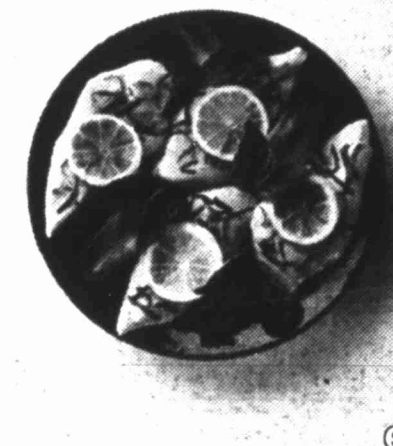

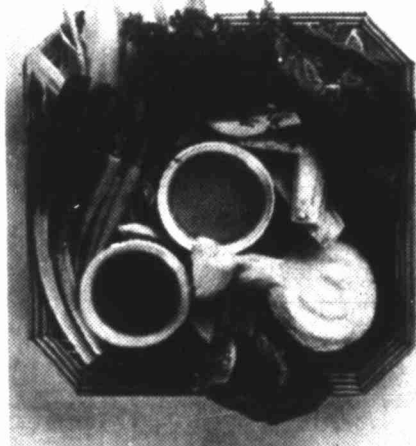

(Perfectly roasted chicken flavored with fresh basil and lemon — the essence of what is at the heart of eating — Italian-style.)

- 1 tablespoon Bertolli Classico Olive Oil
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Freshly ground pepper
- fresh basil leaves, cut into julienne strips
- 2 whole boneless and skinless chicken breasts (about 1 1/2 pounds)
- 4 thin slices fresh lemon

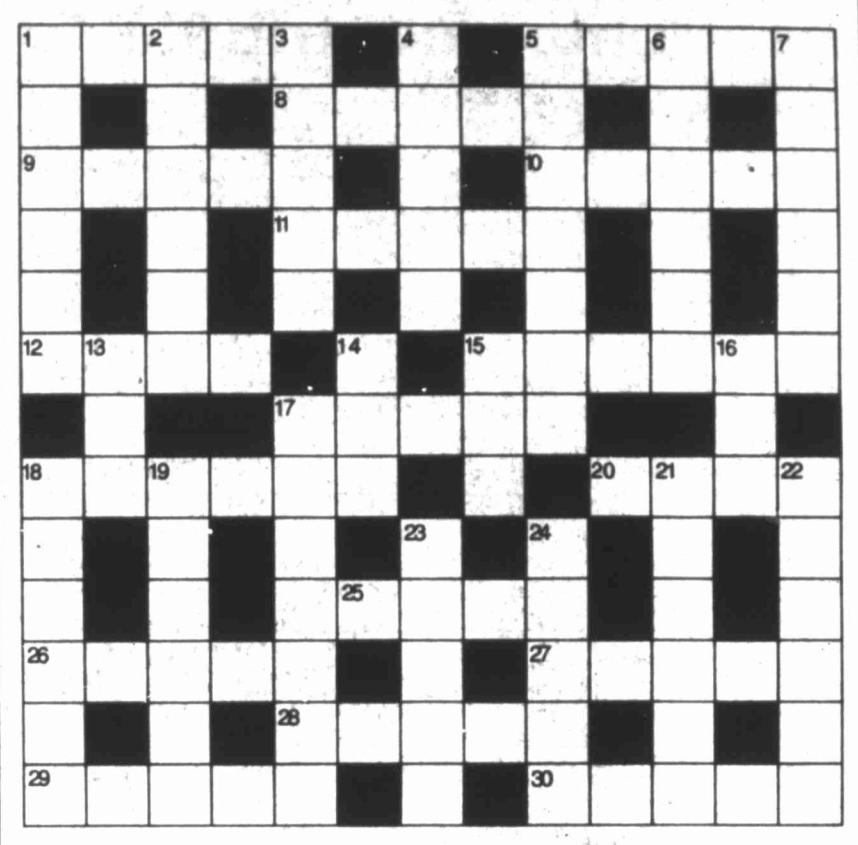

Heat oven to 400°F. In a heavy baking dish combine the olive oil, garlic, salt and a grinding of pepper. Rinse off the chicken breasts and pat dry; trim any fat. Roll the chicken in the oil mixture to coat; arrange in the pan; sprinkle with the pieces of fresh basil. Arrange the lemon slices around the edges of the chicken. Bake 8 minutes. Using tongs turn the chicken over. Place a lemon slice on each of the pieces of chicken. Bake 8 to 10 minutes longer or until cooked through. Serve warm or at room temperature with the pan juices spooned on top.

A SUGGESTED MENU for a no-fuss, multi-course meal includes: 1) Pinzimonio served with whole grain bread, 2) Pasta Tricolore, 3) Chicken Baked with Basil and Lemon served with steamed broccoli, and 4) fruit cup with pignoli cookies (not pictured). Believe it or not, this healthy combination contains less fat and calories than a typical fast-food meal of specialty burger, fries and shake. P6919694

JUST DESSERTS

By early fall, an abundance of grapes is available in local markets. The purple Concord, the green Thompson seedless and various other colors and varieties are ripe and ready to be enjoyed.

Of all the hundreds of types of grapes, a general distinction is made between wine grapes and dessert grapes. Wine grapes are small, very sweet, and tend to be tough-skinned, while dessert grapes are plumper with thinner skins. Wine grapes may be black, red or white, as may dessert grapes, which also range over a wide spectrum of color and quality.

Choosing the tastiest grapes

Like other produce, vine-ripening is essential for highlighting the tantalizing flavor of this fruit. This is an important factor to keep in mind when selecting grapes, although it is possible that ripe bunches on display actually may have ripened during shipping. If this is the case, the flavor of the fruit may be improved by exposing it to the sun for a brief period.

Bunches of grapes often are packaged in net bags to prevent damage during handling. This has the added advantage of preventing the loss of grapes which drop from the stalks when they become fully ripe.

The grape is probably the most widely cultivated fruit in the world, and there is evidence that it may have been cultivated in the Middle East and Europe as far back as prehistoric times.

Paintings in Egyptian tombs indicate that grapes were cultivated in the Nile Valley as early as 4,000 B.C., and the tomb of Tutankhamen (approximately 1350 B.C.) contained a jar marked "unfermented grape juice."

By the first century B.C., the Greeks were cultivating special varieties for the table, and the Romans also came to differentiate between grapes for wine and grapes to be eaten out of hand.

For Americans, grape jelly is a traditional favorite, and perhaps the most commonly produced foodstuff utilizing this fruit.

A variety of uses

There are, however, a variety of ways of incorporating grapes into the dessert repertoire of the home cook. The recipes below, culled from a variety of sources, serve as reminders that grapes are appropriate for far more than preserving, nibbling out of hand and tossing into fruit salads.

The recipe below for Grapes Juanita is easy and elegant. It is reproduced from Successful Parties: Simple & Elegant (Irene Chalmers Cookbooks, Inc.), by Martin Johnson and Gary A. Goldberg.

If prepared in the quantity directed, one batch will yield 24 servings; the recipe can be scaled down easily to accommodate family rather than party-size proportions. The authors advise that the

GRAPES JUANITA

Serves 24

- 1 1/2 cups instantized brown sugar
- 2 1-by-3-inch strips orange peel, dried and finely chopped
- 6 pounds green seedless grapes, stemmed, washed and dried
- 3 cups sour cream
- 3 navel oranges, cut into rounds

Place the brown sugar and orange peel in a food processor fitted with the steel blade and process until the peel is completely incorporated into the sugar. Combine the orange sugar with the sour cream and fold into the grapes. Chill. Serve in a large bowl decorated with orange slices, or in individual wine goblets with a round of orange perched on each rim.

Note: You may use the orange peel fresh or dried. If you are mixing fresh peel with the sugar, you must use it the same day; if you use dried peel, you can store the orange sugar for some time before using. To dry orange peel, leave it in a sunny spot for a day, or until it is completely dried.

An elegant-looking (and tasting) dessert, the recipe for Mango and Grape Mousse, below, is reproduced from Anton Mosimann's Cuisine Naturelle: Elegant Food for a Healthy Life (Atheneum). This mousse requires the advance preparation of quark, a simple curd cheese, but none of the steps are complicated and the result is well worth the effort.

MANGO AND GRAPE MOUSSE

Serves 4

- 1 large, ripe mango, about 1 1/4 pounds, peeled and diced
- 3/4 pound black grapes, washed, halved, and seeded
- 3/4 cup low-fat natural yogurt
- 3/4 cup quark (recipe below)
- 2 tablespoons superfine sugar
- 1 ounce slivered almonds, toasted

Reserve some mango and a few grapes for the decoration.

Add the remainder to a mixture of the yogurt, quark, and sugar.

Mix in well. Chill for about 2 hours. Stir in the almonds, then spoon into four individual glasses. Decorate with the reserved fruit and serve immediately.

Quark

Simple curd cheese

Makes about 1 1/2 cups

- 4 1/2 cups skim milk
- Juice of 1/2 lemon

Remove pan from the heat and let cool for a while.

Bring to the boil again, then let the milk cool once more. It will have curdled.

Line a colander with cheesecloth and place over a deep pan or bowl (so that the colander is suspended and does not touch the bottom of the container).

Place the curdled milk in the cheesecloth and let the whey drain away.

Tie the corners of the cheesecloth tightly with string and hang up over the container to ensure that the whey drains away completely.

This takes approximately 1 hour. Do not press the cloth because this affects the flavor, and the quark will become sticky.

For a sophisticated fruit salad, try the recipe for Cantaloupe, Pear, and Grapes with Sherry Orange Sauce.

It is reproduced from The American Cancer Society Cookbook (Hearst Books), by Diane J. Fink, M.D.

For an added fillip, this dessert can be topped with a dollop of yogurt sprinkled with brown sugar. Or try spooning the fruit/sauce mixture over sherbet for a refreshing variation.

ORANGE-GRAPE CAKE FIESTA

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons double acting baking powder
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 3 eggs
- 3/4 cup milk
- Creamy Frosting
- Toasted blanched almonds
- Fresh grapes in season

Sift together the first three ingredients. Next, stir together the orange and lemon rind, shortening and sugar until fluffy. Beat the eggs, one at a time, into the shortening mixture. Alternately add the milk with the flour mixture, beginning and ending with the flour mixture. Beat 20 strokes after all are added. Pour the batter into a well-oiled, lightly floured 9x3-inch tube pan. Bake 45 to 50 minutes in a moderate (350°) oven, or until done. Cool 10 minutes. Turn onto a wire rack to finish cooling. When cold, cover with Creamy Frosting. Decorate with toasted blanched almonds and clusters of fresh grapes.

Creamy Frosting

- 3/4 cup butter or margarine
- 3 1/2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
- 1/4 cup milk or half and half
- Pinch of salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Mix the butter until fluffy. Add the confectioners' sugar alternately with the milk until the mixture is of spreading consistency. Blend in the salt and the vanilla extract. Spread over top and sides of the Orange-Grape Cake Fiesta.

Extra hand on deck Electronics contribute to safe boating

As electronic gear becomes more affordable, the potential for safe boating increases. Statistics show that boating accidents have decreased in the last five years, while sales of fishing and navigational electronics have steadily risen.

Today's marine electronics, such as depth gauges, fish finders and Loran-C navigational units, help the boater and angler chart his course, avoid obstacles and even catch more fish. They are the extra set of eyes many boaters need to get them to their destination safely, be it a favorite, hidden fishing hole or a remote area miles offshore.

But, most marine electronics lose their value when the boater or angler is too busy or too pre-occupied to watch the screen, concentrating on a school of striped bass he's just trolled into, or the captain's navigating around. For the boater when the captain needs to direct his attention to one subject, a new dimension in marine electronics — audible alerts can play a vital role. By using an audible alert to keep the captain and crew informed of the present depth, or a preset depth, the Beede Depth Talker, an audio depth sounding accessory, allows the boater to concentrate on his business at hand.

For example, if the boat slowly begins to drag its anchor, the Depth Talker will audibly alert the boater that the anchor depth is changing. Because of the Depth Talker Safe Boating Council. "Both seeing the depth on a depth gauge and hearing it audibly called out provides an added margin of safety to the boater."

"A variety of situations can occur on a boat when it's important that the water depth is constantly monitored. When changing fuel tanks while underway, connecting a wire or setting lines when trolling or downrigger fishing, knowing the depth instantly, even if your head is in the bilge, can be important," Bolia said.

For trolling ridges and canyons, the Depth Talker can be adjusted to sound when the depth changes by a predetermined amount by using the unit's "Depth Change-Delta Depth" feature. The unit can also be set to audibly sound off the depth in four second intervals.

Marine electronics can act like an extra hand on deck. The most important use is that they make boating safer, and therefore more fun.

For serious anglers, knowing the water's depth when trolling or drifting across ledges, holes and other contours can contribute to fishing success. If fish are holding one foot above a ledge five feet deep, anglers can use the "change" feature to hail any change in depth of two feet or more. Then, if the boat drifts past the ledge and the bait is dangling uselessly in open water, the unit alerts the angler that he's off the ledge. The Depth Talker will also inform the angler when he has trolled back over the ledge.

"Audible alert capabilities can be a simple add-on to most boater's existing depth and fish finders," Bolia said. "And it adds an extra margin of safety for any boater who enjoys cruising unknown waters."

For boaters who have said they can use an extra hand on deck, the Beede Depth Talker may be speaking their language. For additional free information on the Depth Talker call toll-free (800) 451-TALK.

Why the human body needs its layer of skin

Have you ever wondered why we have skin? You probably just take it for granted, in the same way that you accept that you need ears, eyes, nose and mouth.

And if you have ever thought about skin at all, you probably thought it was there just to hold the rest of you together.

Well, in fact your skin has other uses. For a start, it enables us to sense touch, pain, cold and heat, which means we are able to take action to protect ourselves before any further damage is done.

In addition, skin is able to support hair growth, although the hair on a human being has little practical purpose. Most of the human body is covered by hair, although it is often so fine that you can see it only by using a magnifying glass.

Even with a magnifying glass, however, you won't find hair on the palms of your hands or the soles of your feet.

Cells

Skin consists of not one but many layers. The top layer — the stratum corneum — itself has about 20 layers of cells, the top one of which is continually flaking and being replaced by another below.

One of the skin's main functions is to warn us about changes in temperature. Your skin will begin to feel cold, for example, long before a fall in temperature will do the rest of your body any real harm.

Skin remains taut and supple for most of our lives, but begins to sag in old age when our muscles start to slacken.

K6910008

Eyelids

Skin also helps us to regulate our body temperatures by allowing us to sweat.

The skin on a normal human body varies in thickness in various places. The skin of our eyelids, for example, is less than one millimeter thick, whereas on the soles of our feet it can be up to three times as thick.

Skin is practically waterproof, which is why the insides of our body — which are mostly liquid — are able to live and survive

IN THE SWIM

Even a rabbit swims like a duck in water — if his life depends on it.

Naturalists have found that the most unlikely animals, ranging from giraffes to hens, can swim in an emergency.

Sloths of Central and South America, which drag themselves along the ground with hooked claws, can swim the back stroke. Lizards, mice, rats, emus and ostriches, which don't normally swim, have survived when trapped in floods.

Save the back-breaking work indoors

If you enjoy pounding the earth with a fly rod, hiking on mountainous terrain, or zipping through logs, trees and lily pads for hours in search of large game, fun in the outdoors can be enjoyed. And if you're an outdoors-

back-breaking work indoors.

ly by the aching back they've had on Saturday afternoon. Too much

to do in every day activities.

For that, the back fatigue that comes from a full day of fishing or hiking,

Valeo Inc., a Wisconsin based manufacturer of sports gear, has designed the

the outdoorsman. The Valeo belt

enjoy their time in the outdoors without the aching Monday morning backache.

The lightweight Valeo belt supports the lower back with a wide, washable strap of sturdy webbing and foam. The buckle adjusts easily for quick loosening and tightening, and a waterproof foam core helps insulate the muscles and conforms to the body for added comfort.

Pain in the lower back is a common

the Valeo belt, the stress placed on the

some of the pressure on the spine and allowing the angler to enjoy a full day

Valeo sports belts are available in a

and sizes XS to XXL, in three, four, five and six inch widths. For more

Valeo, W229 N 1687 Westwood Drive,

Suite A, Waukesha, WI 53186.

Use retreaded tires and help save oil

Every year millions of scrap tires add to the billions of tires already overflowing in our landfills. The use of retreaded tires can help to reduce this growing problem. And retreaded help conserve oil since tires are mostly petroleum based. Thanks to retreaded tires, America is able to save over 400 million gallons of oil every year.

Retreaded tires have the same safety and performance characteristics as comparable new tires, which is why retreads are used by every major airline, fire engines and other emergency vehicles, school buses, taxis, all kinds of trucks and millions of automobiles.

Here are some interesting facts you may not know from the Tire Retread

Information Bureau:

• Retreads are available in all radial sizes and designs.

• Retreads are an excellent investment and are widely used on 4x4's, pick-up trucks and recreational vehicles.

• Half the rubber on the road comes from new tires and nearly 100 percent is caused by misapplication (overloading and underinflation) and not by faulty workmanship.

• The Environmental Protection Agency now encourages the use of retreads by all government agencies and others who wish to help the environment.

When shopping for retreads, look for a dealer in good standing with the American Retreaders' Association, National Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association and/or the Tire Retread Information Bureau.

Once you have retreads installed on your vehicle, be certain the wheels are properly aligned and check the tire pressure regularly to add miles to the life of your tires.

For a free brochure about the Features and Benefits of Retreaded Tires, write to the Tire Retread Information Bureau, Box 374, ED, Pebble Beach, CA 93953. EE917966

MILK BOTTLES WERE FIRST USED IN NEW YORK IN 1879 BUT THEY DIDN'T HAVE ALUMINIUM FOIL TOPS UNTIL 1914 WHEN THEY WERE USED FOR THE FIRST TIME IN SWEDEN.

DUMBBELLS ARE THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN MADE ORIGINALLY USING CHURCH BELLS AS WEIGHTS BUT WITHOUT THEIR CLAPPERS SO THAT THEY WERE "DUMB"!

EVERY YEAR IN THE U.S.A. HALF A MILLION TONS OF MUD IS WASHED DOWN BY THE MISSOURI RIVER AND BUILDS UP ON THE SOUTH COAST, BECAUSE OF THIS THE COASTLINE IS NOW ABOUT 1000 MILES FURTHER SOUTH THAN IT WAS IN PREHISTORIC TIMES!

BUSINESS REVIEW

When you seek the unique, Inland Port 213

If you want to get them something special for a wedding, graduation, anniversaries or even Father's Day. Something really different that they would never expect or forget.

The only place in Big Spring (in West Texas for that matter) to find treasures from all over the world is Inland Port 213. Owner, Roy Peet has shopped the globe to assemble a wonderful collection of interesting gifts. The moment one steps into Inland Port it is apparent that this is no ordinary gift shop. You will find the shelves lined with beautiful jewelry, Italian rosewood tea carts, western collectibles by Michael Garman, clowns by Ron Lee and Pucci, Capodimonte music boxes, costume jewelry, clocks from Italy, fabulous handcrafted nativity scenes by Anri and crystal floor and table lamps from Germany and France. Not only is the variety of gifts enough to boggle the mind, but there is also a story behind almost every one of them. Terry, Iris and Roy can enlighten shoppers with stories about the Italian Capodimonte family and their age old craftsmanship. From the lightweight amber jewelry to the Russian chess sets, all have some interesting history behind them.

Inland Port is so much more than a gift shop. It is a place to acquire wonderfully crafted items from every culture. They also offer a layaway plan and they have free gift wrapping.

Inland Port is open from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. They are located at 213 Main, or call 267-2138. Roy, Iris or Terry will help you select something perfectly unique.

Faculty group supports tax

AUSTIN (AP) — A higher education faculty group announced its support for a state personal and corporate income tax, saying the levy is necessary to avoid devastating cuts in public colleges and universities. "The time has come for Texans to face the hard reality that our hodgepodge system of taxation is no longer adequate," Kenneth Margerison, chairman of the Texas Faculty Association's legislative committee, said. He said colleges and universities are facing a proposed $378 million, or seven percent cut under legislative proposals to balance the state budget in the face of a $4.6 billion deficit. "If such a Draconian cut is made, it will be a disaster for our students and for our state," said Margerison, a history professor at Southwest Texas State University.

Court reverses capital conviction

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today overturned the capital murder conviction and death sentence of Charles County, who was found guilty in a 1976 murder-for-hire case in San Antonio. County was convicted of fatally shooting Chere Buffington for remuneration or the promise of remuneration from James Buffington, her ex-husband. In his appeal, County said he made an agreement with prosecutors that if he provided information about two unindicted co-defendants, he wouldn't be tried for capital murder. "Since under the terms of the agreement, appellant would not be prosecuted for capital murder, harm is apparent and violation of the agreement constitutes reversible error," the court said.

Judge sets August trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A Channelview woman will stand trial in August on charges she plotted a murder to give her daughter a better chance to make the cheerleading squad. Wanda Webb Holloway, 36, is accused of soliciting the capital murder of Verna Heath, whose daughter was a chief rival of Ms. Holloway's daughter in the cheerleader competition. State District Judge George G. McKinney rescheduled the trial from June until Aug. 26 because the wife of Mrs. Holloway's attorney, Troy McKinney, is to have surgery next month. The new date was negotiated Tuesday by McKinney and prosecutor Alice Brown during a pre-trial conference. Investigators allege Mrs. Holloway asked her former brother-in-law to hire a hitman to kill Mrs. Heath, 38.

Five nominated for OTD award

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ Staff Writer

The Martin County Senior Citizens Center, in honor of Older American Month, is sponsoring the 16th Annual Older Texan Day in this area.

MCSC Director Sally Carroll received five nominees for the award from area churches, social organizations and businesses.

The nominees are Lora Bell Tom, Mary Louise Standefer, Alton Turner, Fay Jones Rhodes and Pauline Wood.

Tom, of 506 W. Third St. in Stanton, was nominated by the Friends of the Museum for her dependability. She willingly bakes cakes or furnishes handmade items for sale when they are needed, the group stated.

City ordinance to be enforced

HERALD STAFF REPORT

City Interim Danny Fryar said the city will begin enforcing its pet ordinance by the start of next week.

The ordinance, in effect since its inception in 1977, has never enforced to the fullest capacity, Fryar stated.

The ordinance calls for the city manager to appoint an animal warden to enforce the following ordinance sections:

Any dog or cat, regardless of vaccination or license tag will be treated as a dog or cat at large unless kept on a leash at all times or under the control of the owner or keeper.

It shall be unlawful to keep vicious or dangerous dogs or cats in a public place in the city.

Dogs or cats which have bitten an individual will be confined for 10 days and, after the completion of the confinement, will be released only by written permission of a health official or duly licensed veterinarian.

In the event the owner does not comply with these conditions, the dog will be impounded by the city at cost to the owner or keeper.

Any dog or cat running at large in the city will be picked up and will be properly taken care of by the warden so impounded.

The owner or keeper will have 72 hours to redeem, reclaim and receive possession of an impounded dog or cat upon payment to the city of a $10 fee. There will be an additional fee of $1 per day for each day the dog or cat remains impounded plus a license fee if the dog or cat has not been properly tagged.

Any dog or cat left unclaimed and unlicensed after the 72-hour deadline will be destroyed by the warden in a manner approved by

Auditors: Lender not monitoring farmer guarantees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration is acting more as a welfare agency than a banker in the way it runs a loan guarantee program for financially troubled farmers, congressional investigators say.

In many cases that have been reviewed by auditors, loans were guaranteed without credit checks or adequate documentation about the borrowers' farm plans, the General Accounting Office reported Tuesday.

FmHA, which is the lender of last resort for farmers, believes its purpose is to "move money out to the farmers," said John Harman, a FmHA, which is the lender of last resort for farmers, believes its purpose is to "move money out to the farmers," said John Harman, a GAO specialist on agricultural issues.

GAO specialist on agricultural issues.

"It's a question of whether it's a lending program or some sort of assistance program," Harman told the House Agriculture subcommittee on farm credit.

The GAO, an investigative arm of Congress, has identified the FmHA as one of the "high risk" areas of the federal government because of past losses in its loan programs.

FmHA Administrator La Verne Ausman said the loan guarantees had proven to be of less risk to the government than direct loans, which the Agriculture Department agency has cut back on because of budget cuts.

One percent of FmHA's portfolio of $4.1 billion in guaranteed loans is delinquent, compared with 17 percent of its outstanding direct loans, Ausman said.

"Guarantees help stabilize lending institutions in our rural communities, a benefit that ranks with the presence of grocery stores, service stations and other community essentials," he said.

FmHA is authorized to guarantee up to $21 billion in farm loans over the next five years. The government assumes up to 90 percent of the risk on the loans.

FmHA county offices did not monitor bank loan servicing in 48 percent of the guaranteed loans that were reviewed in 1990, the GAO said. Some 12,000 out of 15,000 loans reviewed by Agriculture Department investigators did not have credit checks on file.

Long-time Congressman Burlleson dies at age 85

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

ABILENE — Former U.S. Rep. Omar Burlleson, who served in Congress for 32 years, died Tuesday night at an Abilene hospital. He was 85.

Burlleson, a Democrat, represented the 17th District of Texas from 1947 until his retirement in 1979.

He was born on his family's farm near Anson in 1906, but had lived in Abilene since retiring from Congress in 1979. He was chairman of the House Administration Committee when he left office.

Burlleson was secretary to U.S. Rep. Sam Russell of Texas in 1941 and 1942, and also served as general counsel for the Housing Authority of the District of Columbia in 1942.

He attended school in Anson, about 25 miles north of Abilene, and attended both Abilene Christian College and Hardin-Simmons University before graduating in 1929 from Cumberland University in Lebanon, Tenn.

He was admitted to the bar the same year and began law practice in Gorman, Texas. But he later returned to Anson, where he was elected county attorney of Jones County in 1931.

In 1934, he ran for county judge and held the job until 1940, when he became a special agent of the FBI.

Burlleson left the FBI to enlist in the Navy during World War II. He served in the North Atlantic and South Pacific during his naval stint, which ran from December 1942 to April 1946.

He is survived by several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services are scheduled for Friday at the Anson Church of Christ.

"Omar Burlleson not only served the people of Jones County and the rest of the 17th District, but the entire country," said Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Tx., who was elected to Burlleson's vacated seat. "He was an inspiration to me and someone I wanted to model myself after because he was patient, caring and sincerely concerned about the people he represented while in Washington."

Burlleson served on the House Ways and Means Committee, the Budget Committee, and the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Sea World whale dies

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Officials at Sea World of Texas say it may be several weeks before they are able to determine the cause of death of one the killer whales used to portray Shamu.

A security officer discovered the whale was dead early Tuesday. The animal, estimated to be 14 to 16 years old, had previously exhibited no apparent illness, officials said.

Results of the necropsy, a post-mortem examination of the animal that's similar to a human autopsy, were expected in four to six weeks after lab tests, Sea World officials said in a prepared statement.

The killer whale's companions, an adult male and adult female, reportedly appeared in good health.

"This whale exhibited no signs of illness or anything that would lead us to believe the whale was ill or was in any kind of distress," said Bob McCullough, Sea World of Texas public relations director.

Agency probes methadone deaths

HOUSTON (AP) — Ten methadone-related deaths in a one-year period in Houston have prompted an investigation by the Texas Department of Health.

The city's drug-related deaths are more than the state had experienced in the 20-year history of the controversial drug treatment program.

"This is the first grouping of deaths we're aware of," Ken Davis, chief investigator for the Texas Department of Health's food and drug division, said Tuesday. "Historically, we've had only two or three cases of deaths (total) in Texas."

Officials say at least three people who died were patients of Dr. Tommy E. Swate, a physician who operates two Houston methadone clinics and whose federal permits for methadone treatment have been recommended for suspension or revocation.

Gambling bill lists in Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that would allow casino gambling on ships within Texas waters was listing in the Senate after a 15-15 vote that the sponsor said could virtually dash shipboard gambling along the coast.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, needed 20 votes Tuesday to bring his measure before the Senate.

He said he was surprised at the vote but attributed it to opposition from "dog track people" in the Corpus Christi area who do not want competition for tourist dollars.

Committee gives Bush nod on agreement

HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, led the Senate Finance Committee in giving President Bush approval Tuesday to conduct "fast-track" negotiations in reaching a free trade agreement with Mexico.

Denying claims from industrial-state lawmakers that manufacturing jobs will be lost, Bentsen said: "If I truly believed this would lead to a net exodus of jobs, I would fight it."

The committee voted 15-3 Tuesday to recommend that the full Senate not interfere with Bush's authority to negotiate with Mexico. At the same time, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 29-7 to do the same.

The committee voted 15-3 Tuesday to recommend that the full Senate not interfere with Bush's authority to negotiate with Mexico. At the same time, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 29-7 to do the same.

Congress has until June 1 to pass legislation blocking the "fast-track" process. Fast track means that Congress agrees not to interfere with the trade negotiations and will simply approve or reject the final proposed agreement.

Bentsen said that Mexico already has greater access to U.S. markets and that U.S. manufacturers are currently building plants in Mexico. He said the trade agreement would lower Mexican trade barriers and restore more balance to U.S.-Mexican trade.

"For years I've watched Mexican leaders rail against the Yankee to the north. Now we have a leader in (Mexican President Carlos) Salinas who is committed to closer ties with the United States. That's an opportunity we must seize," Bentsen said.

Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Houston, said essentially the same thing in the House committee. Andrews said a free trade agreement would overhaul U.S.-Mexico relations and provide more mutual prosperity and understanding.

The most passionate objections were raised by Sen. Donald Riegle, Jr., D-Mich. Representing the state that is home to much of the U.S. auto industry, Riegle said the trade agreement would undercut American manufacturing by luring industry across the border for cheap labor.

He said that President Bush's new willingness to provide more money for worker retraining demonstrates the White House is aware of the impact the trade pact would have on manufacturing jobs.

"In this case, you really have Third-World wage levels put at an equal level with American jobs," Riegle said. "The average Mexican wage is 50 cents an hour. The average American manufacturing wage is $10 an hour. The logic is overwhelming."

Bentsen disagreed, saying freer trade would lead to a net gain in employment overall. Rep. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., pointed to the U.S.-Canada free trade agreement as proof of the potential benefits.

H. Ross Perot resists change in legislation

DALLAS (AP) — Billionaire Ross Perot, the architect of the sweeping education reforms of 1984, is back at the forefront trying to keep lawmakers from eroding the gains made by the state's no-pass, no-play rule.

Both Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Gib Lewis said Tuesday they would not support any change.

"He called me this morning and asked me how it was going, and I told him I doubted seriously that change would stay," Lewis said. "He said he figured that we would do the right thing."

"Personally, I am opposed to any change," the speaker said, referring to a Senate bill passed last week that would cut the suspension period under no-pass, no-play from six to three weeks.

Both Lewis and Bullock, who was then state comptroller, served with Perot on the blue-ribbon committee that recommended the no-pass, no-play rule and a host of other sweeping education reforms that were passed by the Legislature in 1984.

In what key senators called a major retreat from the 1984 school reform law, the Senate — with the backing of Gov. Ann Richards — voted Friday to ease the no-pass, no-play rule.

The rule, which is one of the toughest such requirements in the nation, prohibits students with one or more failing grades from participating in sports and other extracurricular activities. Coaches and other critics have long complained that it is too strict.

Under current law, a student cannot participate for an entire six-week grading period after he or she has received one or more failing grades.

The shorter suspension period was approved as an amendment to an education bill that includes a series of proposed school improvements. The amendment was offered by Sen. Temple Dickson, D-Sweetwater.

The Senate-passed bill is pending in the House Public Education Committee.

Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, chairman of the committee, said that although she supports the change in the rule, she will move to strip it from the education bill when her committee votes on it this week.

Ms. Glossbrenner said the panel already has passed a separate bill that would shorten the suspension period under no-pass, no-play. That measure is pending in the House.

"If there is support for ... (a change in the rule), then it should be done through that (bill), and we should not jeopardize the education bill," she said.

The separate no-pass, no-play bill would still have to clear the Senate if it passes the House, and the chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Education Committee — Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, and Bill Haley, D-Center — oppose the idea. Both have called the proposal a setback to education reform in Texas.

Bullock said he was disappointed by the Senate vote and will seek to reverse the change in no-pass, no-play in the closing days of the legislative session.

Committee adopts ethics overhaul

AUSTIN (AP) — A House committee approved an overhaul of the state's ethics laws, but the reform measure still has a long way to go in a short period of time.

The bill approved 12-0 late Tuesday by the State Affairs Committee will be considered by the full House on Thursday or Friday, said Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center.

If approved there it will likely go to a conference committee composed of House and Senate members. The Senate passed a different ethics package in February.

Such a timetable would place the measure in competition with hundreds of other pieces of legislation being pushed in the final week of the legislative session, which ends May 27.

"No question time is getting short. It is getting very close to being in jeopardy at this time," said Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, presiding officer of the Senate.

The bill recommended by the State Affairs panel would create a commission to investigate ethics complaints and fine violators. The bill would also increase public disclosure on lobbyist spending.

"It's lot stronger than present law," said Laney, who chairs the State Affairs Committee. "I think it's probably stronger than the Senate bill in certain points. In certain areas the Senate will probably say theirs is stronger than ours."

Public watchdog groups disagreed with Laney, and said the Senate version is tougher.

Under the State Affairs bill, the ethics commission would not have as much power as it would under the Senate plan, said Suzy Woodford, executive director of Common Cause.

"The cornerstone of a strong bill should be the ethics commission," she said.

Under the Senate bill, the commission could initiate investigations, but the State Affairs plan limits the panel to starting a probe only after a complaint has been filed. The committee plan also allows the commission to resolve certain violations in secret during "informal hearings."

 Students at the Dance Gallery have been stretching, tapping and dancing as they practice for a recital to be conducted May 25. Included in the show is the preschool class, who will do both a ballet and tap dance routine. In the top photo, from left to right, Kyndra Watson, 4, daughter of Steve and Donna Watson, Gerrico Greenlee, 4, daughter of Garry and Nova Greenlee, Jessica Tipton, 4, daughter of Jim and Cathy Tipton, and Andrea Levario, 4, daughter of Angel and Sonia Levario, work on their tap dancing. Above, one of the youths put on their tap shoes. Kyrstin Parker, 4, daughter of Mike and Brenda Parker, strikes a pose at the beginning of one of the routines in the right photo. Below left, Cynthia Becerra, 4, daughter of Javier and Mary Becerra, watches the instructor as she does a ballet pose. Courtney Truhe, left, 4, daughter of John and Sharon Truhe, and Meredith McBride, 4, daughter of Dennis and Susanne McBride, finish a dance in the bottom right photo.

 ST. LOUIS (AP) — Dogs are no longer welcome on the carpet at the Dog Museum.
 The reason: too many canine accidents and too many fleas.
 It used to be that dogs on leashes could browse through galleries full of paintings, sculptures and photographs of dogs.
 But then, "You'd walk into a gallery and you'd see a big wet spot there, and you'd say, 'Oh, great,'" said Gail Haynes, the museum's business manager.
 Not only that, but fleas left behind by shaggy visitors were biting the ankles of museum workers.
 Dogs and their masters can still visit the community room. That's where the videotapes on dog breeds and dog training are stored.
 That's also the room with the tile floor.

Guard overcome in accident

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The Port of Beaumont was evacuated after chemicals used to control rats came into contact with water during a cloudburst, causing poisonous phosphide gas to form, officials said.
 A guard was overcome by the fumes caused by the chemical reaction Tuesday, officials said.
 Beaumont firefighters were called around 8 p.m. Tuesday when an exterminating crew noticed an unexpected chemical reaction. They had been working aboard an empty freighter, using a chemical to kill rats.
 When heavy rains began, the exterminating crew put the chemicals in the back of a pickup and drove to a warehouse, in an attempt to keep the material dry. Then the substance burst into flames.

Study: Soviets repeating past mistakes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's creaky agricultural machine is being threatened further by policy remedies that could repeat mistakes of the past, a new analysis by the Agriculture Department concludes.
 Moreover, despite its reform plans, Moscow has not come up with a breakthrough to improve the nation's battered economy.
 "Traditional interests have reassured control of agricultural policy," the report said Tuesday. "Their solutions are based on increasing the flow of resources to farms rather than changing property or financial relationships to improve resource use."
 Despite an increase in the amount of technology, machinery, seed and fertilizer used in food production, many of these were said to be of low quality and are being allocated inefficiently.
 "Increased input prices and disrupted supplies, aversion to holding monetary assets and government steps to support inefficient farms will blunt incentive and efficient gains," the report said.

 The report, by analysts in USDA's Economic Research Service, said Moscow's action last month to more than double consumer prices of meat, bread and most other foods "should cut excess demand" for those items and reduce consumer food subsidies.
 Also, as food demand is reduced, that will help offset agricultural production declines.
 USDA last week projected 1991 Soviet grain production at 210 million metric tons. Although still a bumper harvest by historical standards, that would be down 11 percent from last year's 235 million tons.
 Moscow has asked the United States for an additional $1.5 billion in food-aid credit, on top of the virtually exhausted $1 billion approved by President Bush last year.

Although no decision has been made, the main hangup has been the question of the Soviet Union's creditworthiness, its ability to repay large loans guaranteed by the U.S. government.
 Bush is sending a U.S. team of experts to the Soviet Union to analyze its food distribution system. It is scheduled to leave Friday and return about May 24.
 "The U.S.S.R. reform plans, entering summer 1991, still have not set a framework for a breakthrough in economic performance," the report said. "The plans proclaim the commitment to a market-based economy."
 It added: "However, they delay, or in some cases avoid altogether, the measures needed for change. The U.S.S.R. remains without an adequate blueprint for invigorating the Soviet economy."
 The outlook for repayment of long-term loans "depends upon whether later proposals provide a framework for a coherent economic system" for the Soviet Union and its individual republics, the report said.

 The Soviet Union "has great reserves to sustain its economy as it reforms, but the reform process will be complicated for this large, diverse society," it said.
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is seeking public comment on methods for calculating federal support rates for wool on unshorn lambs sent to slaughter and for mohair.
 The program relates to wool and mohair sold in the 1991 marketing year. Payments due growers would be paid in 1992.
 According to law, the support price for "pulled wool" removed from the pelt of a slaughtered sheep must be related to the support price for shorn wool. In the past, this has been based on the weights of live, unshorn lambs marketed.

 Mohair, from goats, also must be supported at a level relative to shorn wool. The shorn wool price is based on a formula in the law.
 Based on current indications, the department's Commodity Credit Corp. will support the 1991 price of shorn wool at $1.88 per pound, grease basis.
 Recently, wool producers received about $105 million in payments to help make up for low market prices received in 1990, when the support was $1.82 per pound. The average market price was only 80 cents per pound.
 Mohair producer got about $60 million for their 1990 sales. The market averaged 93 cents per pound, while the support was $4.53 per pound.
 Pulled wool makes up a small share of total U.S. wool output but is important to those who raise lambs for the slaughter market.

 the Historical Commission. She has been a board member of the Historical Museum since its inception.
 She is a past president of the Friends of the Museum and has helped with the County Fair booths, fund-raisers and does volunteer work at the Old Jail Museum and Visitors Center each Friday afternoon. She has logged over 1,000 hours of volunteer work since 1986.
 • Standefer, a resident at Country Meadows Retirement Home, was born Dec. 18, 1903 in Houston. She had three brothers and five sisters.
 Mary Louise Harper married Clearence Grady Standefer in the Dorn Community Oct. 15, 1922. They had five children.
 The Standefers came to Martin County in 1924 and moved away in 1925. They returned in 1937 and lived throughout the county until moving to Stanton in 1952, where she resides now.
 Standefer has many hobbies including sewing, music, singing, playing card games such as Skip-Bo, canasta and 42. She is active as a volunteer and has served in the PTA and other school related activities.
 Mary Louise participates in prayer groups, teaches Sunday school classes and has sang in the choir for 64 years.
 In 1923, Standefer broke her back when her home was destroyed by a tornado. In 1935, she lost her home to fire. Her philosophy of life is "to do what must be done and don't complain, take life as it comes and enjoy it to the fullest and, most of all, put your trust in God."
 • Alton Turner was born in Martin County on 1916. He married Imogene Morgan Dec. 29, 1934. The couple have two daughters, Sheila Williams of Houston and Deborah Locke of San Antonio.

 Turner served in the Army Air Force during World War II. He was in the grocery business for many years. He bought part ownership of the grocery business in 1944.
 Turner's favorite hobby is playing in the Senior Citizens' Center Old Sorehead Band. He is a deacon at the Church of Christ in Stanton.
 Turner's philosophy on life is to treat others as one would like to be treated.
 The MCCC is sponsoring Turner as their nominee for the Older Texan award.
 • Rhodes was born Jan. 14, 1910 in Stanton and has been a member of the Stanton Church of Christ since the age of 12.
 In 1949, the family purchased a clothing store which they operated until 1968. She continued her clothing expertise at Deavenport's Dry Goods.
 Rhodes has been labeled a person on the go, helping others less fortunate than her. She helps promote the Old Sorehead Band and other senior citizen programs as well as the town itself. She spent 10 years as a member of the Hospital Auxiliary.
 She is an active participant in the Old Sorehead Band, quilting, games, singing, and various fundraisers.
 Rhodes philosophy of life is "live everyday to the fullest."
 • Wood, the daughter of James and Annie Harrell, was born in Breckenridge. She graduated from Loraine High School and received her Bachelor of Science Degree from McMurry College in Abilene. She did graduate work at Hardin-Simmons University.

 Wood spent 45 years teaching music education in McCaulley, Hamlin, Sweetwater, Tulia and Stanton.
 In 1960, Wood was ordained by the Bishop of the Northwest Texas Conference as Music Director of the Methodist Church. She has held that position for 30 years.
 In 1974, she received the Girl of the Year award from her sorority chapter and in Woman of the Year award in 1975 from Beta Sigma Phi. In 1976, the Association of Texas Professional Educators named her Outstanding Teacher of the Year in Stanton schools.
 Pauline has been president of Martin County Teachers Association, president of her sorority chapter, member of Delta Kappa Gamma, a teacher member of the Eastern Star and its organizer for a number of years. She is Sweetheart of the Noon Lions Club, a position she has held for the last 20 years. She does volunteer work at the Head Start School once a week.
 Her son, Mike, lives in San Antonio. Mike is a graduate of the North Texas School of Music in Denton and holds a Master of Music degree from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.
 Pauline is now retired and travels a bit. She says, "I hope I have influenced pupils to the love and beauty of music. Having no grandchildren, I regard all my former students in this capacity and extend my love and affection to them. I hope in some small way that I opened the way for them to know the beauty and enjoyment of music."

Girl's dream coming true in royal visit

AUSTIN (AP) — A little girl's big wish is coming true: she will get to meet Queen Elizabeth II and won't have to pay a king's ransom for the privilege.
 Melanie Goerner, 7, will present the queen with a letter from the children of Texas when the monarch comes to the state Capitol on Monday.
 The freckle-faced first-grader, a British citizen, will accompany two other children at Gov. Ann Richards' side during ceremonies inside the Capitol, said Margaret Justus, Richards' press secretary.
 "The kids at school think I'm lucky," Melanie said. "I am lucky."

Persistence played a part too. Melanie, who was born in Scotland, wrote to Queen Elizabeth in February after hearing of the monarch's four-day Texas visit.
 Melanie invited the queen to visit her class at Valley View Elementary School in the Eanes school district.
 "She said she was too busy," Melanie said, displaying a letter from Buckingham Palace. "So I wrote the governor, and she said yes."
 The queen also plans to visit San Antonio, Dallas and Houston next week as part of her U.S. tour. She plans a barge ride Tuesday on the San Antonio River, a stop at the Alamo and more sightseeing before going to Dallas for a concert, reception and dinner.

 In Houston Wednesday, the queen will visit a church, a veterans hospital, and attend a luncheon and tour at the Johnson Space Center before a formal dinner. She will leave the state on May 23.
 Melanie wrote in her letter to Richards that the queen and the governor are "special people in my life." She said that her dream was to meet them both.
 "My mom says if we try, and wish hard, our wishes sometimes come true," she wrote.

Panel votes cut to SCC

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Appropriations subcommittee voted to spend $434 million on the super collider next year, slashing the president's request by almost 20 percent but attaching no strings to the controversial $8.25 billion project.
 Rep. Tom Beville, the chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee on energy and water development, said his panel unanimously endorsed the collider during a closed-door session on the fiscal 1992 energy and water budget.
 Despite the support for the collider, being built in Ellis County south of Dallas, Beville, R-Ala., said the committee could not meet President Bush's request for $534 million because of tight finances facing domestic programs.
 "There was not a dissenting voice on the project. ... Not one single objection raised to this amount of funding," said Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, a member of the subcommittee.

 "There was an enormous amount of pressure and correspondence and lobbying the subcommittee to eliminate the project entirely, to put all sorts of legislative constraints on it — caps on spending, mandate certain levels of foreign participation. None of that is in this bill," Chapman said.
 Beville said he hopes the superconducting super collider's final budget can be greater than the $434 million agreed to today by the subcommittee.
 "This is a tentative situation," Beville said, adding that there is "no question" the SSC budget will be changed.
