Officials dispute amount of spill

An oil company official and a state investigator have disagreed about how much liquefied gas and water escaped from a broken pipeline over the weekend about 20 miles north of Big Spring.

Texas Water Commission investigator Ralph Johnson of Odessa said Tuesday about 135 barrels of gas condensate, which did not include any oil, and water were vacuumed up from the leak that occurred Saturday.

He also estimated that another 65 barrels were removed with contaminated dirt taken to a landfill near Gail. (A barrel contains 42 gallons.) However, Texaco Inc. spokesman Charles Rentz of Midland said about 110 barrels were spilled from the pipe, which carried natural gas from a well to a treatment plant near Vealmoore.

Also leaked from the pipe was about 1.5 million cubic feet of natural gas, Rentz said.

The rupture affected about 20 feet of the 12-inch steel pipe, which was under 550 pounds of pressure and buried about 4 feet underground, Rentz said. Cleanup of the area was finished last Saturday, and 160-feet of new pipe was installed.

Higher oil prices gaining support

AUSTIN (AP) — Congressional support is mounting for legislation to set a $20-per-barrel floor price for oil through an import fee, U.S. House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt told oil industry officials.

Gephardt, speaking to the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association, also said President Bush's national energy strategy falls short of helping the economy or reducing U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

He said a fee on imported oil to set a floor price is crucial for the nation's economy and security.

Herald open house set at Stanton office

The Big Spring Herald has scheduled an open house at its Stanton office, 210 N. St. Peter St., Thursday from 4 to 6 p.m. "We will be publishing a weekly Stanton Herald newspaper beginning Thursday," said Managing Editor Karen McCarthy. "An open house seemed to be an appropriate way to introduce this product and to give people in Stanton a chance to meet us. It will also give us an opportunity to answer questions people may have about the new paper."

Publisher Pat Morgan, Circulation Manager Dale Ferguson and Stanton Manager Marcellino Chavez will also be present at the open house. The public is invited to stop by and visit.

Civil rights bill

Democratic bill passes House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today passed a Democratic civil rights bill despite a veto threat from President Bush, who has attacked it as a prescription for racial employment quotas.

The bill was approved and sent to the Senate 273-158, more than a dozen votes below what would be needed to override a veto.

"We must not ever allow the clock to be turned back on race relations in this country," House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said before the vote. "Now is the time for courage ... for doing what is simply right."

The House bill is designed primarily to overcome a series of 1989 Supreme Court rulings that have made it more difficult for minorities to win job discrimination suits.

It also would change job discrimination laws to expand the rights of women, religious minorities and the disabled to collect monetary damages if they are victims.

On final passage, the Democratic leadership managed to match the support given the bill last year. An initial vote immediately before final passage won approval, 264-166.

Democrats denied that the bill would result in quotas. But Republicans countered that Democrats should heed Bush's warning and modify their bill before it's sent to the president's desk.

"We think it is extraordinarily important to get beyond the hard language of the past few days," said House GOP Whip Newt Gingrich, R-Ga. "Let's write a civil rights bill the president can sign."

The debate-ending speeches by Gephardt and Gingrich were less partisan than the two days of sometimes biting rhetoric that centered on the politics of race as much as on the measure itself.

"This is a shame and a disgrace that in 1991 we're still debating whether we should protect our fellow American citizens from discrimination," said Rep. John Lewis, D-Ga., an organizer of sit-ins and freedom rides in the civil rights movement of the 1960s.

But Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., led the Republican contention that the Democrats' legislation would force employers to use hiring quotas to avoid lawsuits. "This bill codifies racial preferences ... a quantum leap back from Martin Luther King's dream," he said.

After the Bush alternative and a liberal plan were defeated Tuesday, the Democratic proposal was cleared for House passage today.

Both sides watched for how close it would get to 288 votes, the two-

Civil rights bill at a glance

The Brooks-Fish version of a civil rights bill is backed by the House Democratic leadership and civil rights groups, and is sponsored by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, and Rep. Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y.

It would reverse the effects of six 1989 Supreme Court decisions that increased the burdens of proof on plaintiffs in job bias cases. It also would apply civil rights laws to foreign operations of U.S. businesses.

It would permit women, the disabled and religious minorities to collect monetary damages in job-bias cases. But they would be subject to a limit on punitive damages of $150,000 or an amount equal to the compensatory damages, whichever is greater. Victims of racial bias would continue to be eligible for unlimited damages under a separate, Reconstruction-era law.

In the "disparate impact" cases, the bill would establish a standard that employers would have to show a challenged hiring test or practice bears a "significant" and "manifest" relationship to a worker's success on the job.

It includes language saying the bill does not permit quotas and states that they amount to an unlawful employment practice.

Street lighting to change

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

Big Spring streets may soon be taking on a yellow glow in an effort to save energy.

City officials have announced a plan to convert all 1,870 mercury vapor street lights to a less costly, brighter-burning sodium vapor lights such as those now lining Gregg Street. Assistant City Manager Tom Decell said the plan will save energy and money without compromising safety.

"There's an improvement in the light, and less shadow cast by these lights," Decell explained. Of the yellow tint, he said "those on Gregg Street now have been there more than a year and you kind of get used to it."

High-intensity sodium vapor lights, although lower in wattage, produce more lumens, making them brighter, Decell explained.

The city's 175-watt mercury vapor lights, which produce 7,900 lumens, will be replaced with 100-watt sodium vapor lights that produce 9,500 lumens. Mercury vapor lights of 400 watts, which produce 21,000 lumens, will be replaced with sodium vapor of 200 watts that produce 27,000 lumens.

Suspended fireman doesn't plan appeal

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

Suspended Big Spring Firefighter Mark Settles said today the disciplinary action against him for his involvement in a fire truck accident is too severe.

However, the 20-year-old rookie firefighter said he will not appeal the suspension.

Settles was driving the department's mini-pumper on an emergency run May 25 when it collided with a Moore Development for Big Spring Inc. vehicle driven by the development group's executive director, Ted St. Clair, according to accident reports.

Fire Chief Frank Anderson suspended Settles Tuesday for three 24-hour shifts for what he called a failure to follow instructions. Settles said the suspension period begins Thursday.

Anderson said Settles, after being told to slow down, did not. The rookie, son of Fire Marshall Burr Lea Settles, was in his 10th day as a firefighter when the accident occurred.

"I did slow down," Settles said today. "I got to the intersection (of Fourth Street and Birdwell Lane) and the light was red; all the cars were stopped. I had their attention."

Settles said several cars were stopped at the intersection when the car driven by St. Clair passed through. The fire truck flipped upside down after impact and sustained heavy damage.

The Big Spring Police Department has not completed its investigation to determine how the accident happened, an official said today. Lt. Jerry Edwards said patrol officers assigned to the case have not been able to contact all witnesses.

"We can't decide who's at fault," Edwards said. "But we can make a determination of what factors led up to the accident."

Edwards said by law an emergency vehicle can proceed through a red light at an intersection, but the driver must use "due caution." St. Clair was issued a citation for failure to yield the right of way to an emergency vehicle.

A municipal court hearing on the accident has been scheduled June 20.

Reports apparently differ as to who gave Settles the order to drive the truck, according to fire department officials and representatives with the Big Spring Professional Fire Fighters Association.

Also, Anderson has refused to discuss other possible disciplinary actions related to the accident. The Jury to question slaying suspects

PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Kenneth Olsen was scheduled to go before a grand jury today for questioning in the April shooting death of Winford "Punkin" Allen, District Attorney Rick Hamby said.

Olsen, 65, is charged with murder and is free on a $100,000 bond in connection with the April 17 shooting of Allen at Martha's Hideaway, a bar owned by Allen's mother. Allen died in a hospital the next day after undergoing surgery.

A family member said the shooting may have involved a former girlfriend of the victim. Olsen was arrested at the bar and a .32-caliber pistol, which police believe to be the murder weapon, was recovered, according to police.

"We feel secure in going ahead and presenting this to the grand jury because of the number of eyewitnesses," Hamby said.

The case will take priority over other cases if an indictment is handed down, he said. A trial could probably be set later this year or early next year.

Voters reject graffiti tax

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — An unidentified graffiti artist adds his signature to a wall covered with graffiti in downtown Los Angeles. Voters Tuesday rejected a proposal to tax aerosol paint cans and marker pens to raise money to pay for cleaning up graffiti in the city. The graffiti tax would have added 10 cents to each aerosol paint can and 5 cents to each marker pen.

Nation

Fundamentalists win presidency

ATLANTA (AP) — Fundamentalists demonstrated their control of the nation's largest Protestant denomination, electing a president by acclamation and cutting off support to a lobbying group criticized for liberal stands on church-state issues.

Morris H. Chapman, pastor of First Baptist Church in Wichita Falls, Texas, was re-elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention Tuesday after urging the fundamentalist-controlled convention to "just say no" to those who do not believe in the literal truth of the Bible.

His election marked only the second time that a fundamentalist candidate ran unopposed since 1979, when conservatives began a string of 12 straight presidential victories to win control of the 15-million member denomination. Another Texas pastor, the Rev. James Draper, ran unopposed as an incumbent in 1983.

"I would hope the struggle is over," Chapman said.

Conservatives, who have gone from being a feisty religious movement that derived its strength from opposing an entrenched bureaucracy to assuming the mantle of the establishment, showed little desire to compromise with the church's moderate faction.

Space shuttle roars into orbit today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The shuttle Columbia roared into orbit today with seven astronauts and 2,507 jellyfish and rats on an unprecedented quest for answers to the medical mysteries of space travel.

The 100-ton spaceship blasted off with the four men, three women, 2,478 tiny jellyfish and 29 rats at 9:25 a.m. EDT. It rose from the pad on a pillar of flame into a overcast sky, then headed out over the Atlantic Ocean.

The twin solid rocket boosters burned for two minutes before falling empty into the Atlantic, where ships waited to pick them up. Then, 8 1/2 minutes into the flight, Columbia reached an 184-mile-high orbit on the thrust of three main engines.

It was the third launch attempt for the biomedical research mission, postponed twice during the past two weeks by faulty shuttle parts. Low, dense clouds delayed today's liftoff nearly 1 1/2 hours.

A new equipment concern arose Tuesday. Workers noticed a small patch of insulation on Columbia's external fuel tank had loosened, and technicians repaired the section. Tests were conducted through the evening to see whether the glue would be dry in time for liftoff.

Man goes gunning for ex-bosses

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A laid-off computer technician shot his way into his old workplace, set off bombs and hunted for his old bosses, killing two men.

The man, identified as Larry Thomas Hansel, 41, fled on a bicycle and later drove his pickup 135 miles northeast to Palm Desert, where he surrendered to Riverside County Sheriff's deputies.

Hansel admitted to the killings, San Diego Police Lt. Dan Berglund said. Sheriff's deputies seized a rifle and shotgun.

Company employees said Hansel was after three men, one of whom was killed.

"He knew what he was doing. He had a mission, and his mission was to shoot a couple of people," said Chris Kelford, chief financial officer of Elgar Corp.

Kelford tried to clear the building after the shooting started and found himself facing the gunman.

"He looked at me straight in the eye and told me to get out."

Fleeing lava flow

SHIMABARA, Japan — A fire engine drives away on a road in Kitakoba community in Shimabara, southwestern Japan, as a massive flow of lava, molten rocks and ash roar down from Mt. Unzenake, which erupted Monday afternoon. The volcanic flow swept the community, killing 28 people and destroying 50 homes.

President declares state of emergency

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — President Chadli Bendjedid declared a state of emergency today and postponed the country's first multiparty parliamentary elections in a crackdown on a growing challenge from Muslim fundamentalists.

Armored vehicles were sent into the capital after nearly two weeks of demonstrations by supporters of the fundamentalist Islamic Salvation Front became violent on Tuesday.

Armored vehicles were sent into the capital following nearly two weeks of demonstrations by supporters of the fundamentalist Islamic Salvation Front.

The president also announced the resignation of his prime minister, Mouloud Hamrouche, who had overseen a gradual dismantling of the hard-line Marxist system in this country, which won independence from France in 1962.

The announcement, read over national television, said a new government would be formed following consultations with political parties.

The Islamic Salvation Front had called a general strike that widened this week and had suggested voters boycott the elections, which had been set for June 27.

The demonstrations turned violent Tuesday when tens of thousands of people filled the streets. At least seven were killed and dozens wounded in clashes with security forces, who opened fire on groups of protesters.

More violence broke out today as police firing tear gas clashed with bands of demonstrators, some tossing fire bombs made from bottles.

Algeria had been moving toward democratization since riots crippled its staunchly Marxist-Socialist one-party government in October 1988.

The violence renewed doubt over the position of Bendjedid.

Warplanes fly third raid into Sidon

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked guerrilla bases around Sidon today for the third time in 48 hours, killing three guerrillas and wounding nine.

The raid came a day after Israel's biggest attack on targets in Lebanon since the Jewish state invaded its neighbor in 1982.

The overall toll in this week's attacks was 22 killed and 82 wounded.

Today's raid targeted Palestinian and leftist militia bases in hills overlooking the eastern flank of this southern port.

Police said the air strikes were evidently aimed at destroying the bulk of the Palestinians' armor around Sidon.

Israel says the bases are used to stage attacks on northern Israel.

At least three major ammunition dumps and two depots of military vehicles were demolished in today's raid, said a police spokesman who cannot be identified under standing rules.

The spokesman said Israeli-backed militiamen of the South Lebanon Army and Palestinian gunners fought a one-hour artillery duel in the area after the air raid, but no casualties were reported.

Student protests carried too far

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The public humiliation of the prime minister — punched, kicked and pelted with eggs and flour — has pushed public tolerance to the limit after six weeks of nationwide anti-government protests.

For middle-class Koreans, many of whom were silent through weeks of violence and political turmoil, the student attack on Prime Minister Chong Won-shik was the last straw.

As a result, President Roh Tae-woo's government, for the moment at least, appears to have a clear public mandate to arrest radical leaders and put an end to anti-government rioting.

Broad public support for a crackdown — expressed in editorials, speeches, thousands of phone calls to newspaper and television offices — may effectively defuse Roh's most serious political crisis since he took office in 1988.

It comes as the government faces local council elections on June 20, the first in a series over the next 18 months including presidential elections.

Dissidents and students vow to continue their fight against the government, but without a credible new issue the number and size of protests seems likely to dwindle.

Nobel speech used to appeal for aid

MIKHAIL S. GORBACHEV

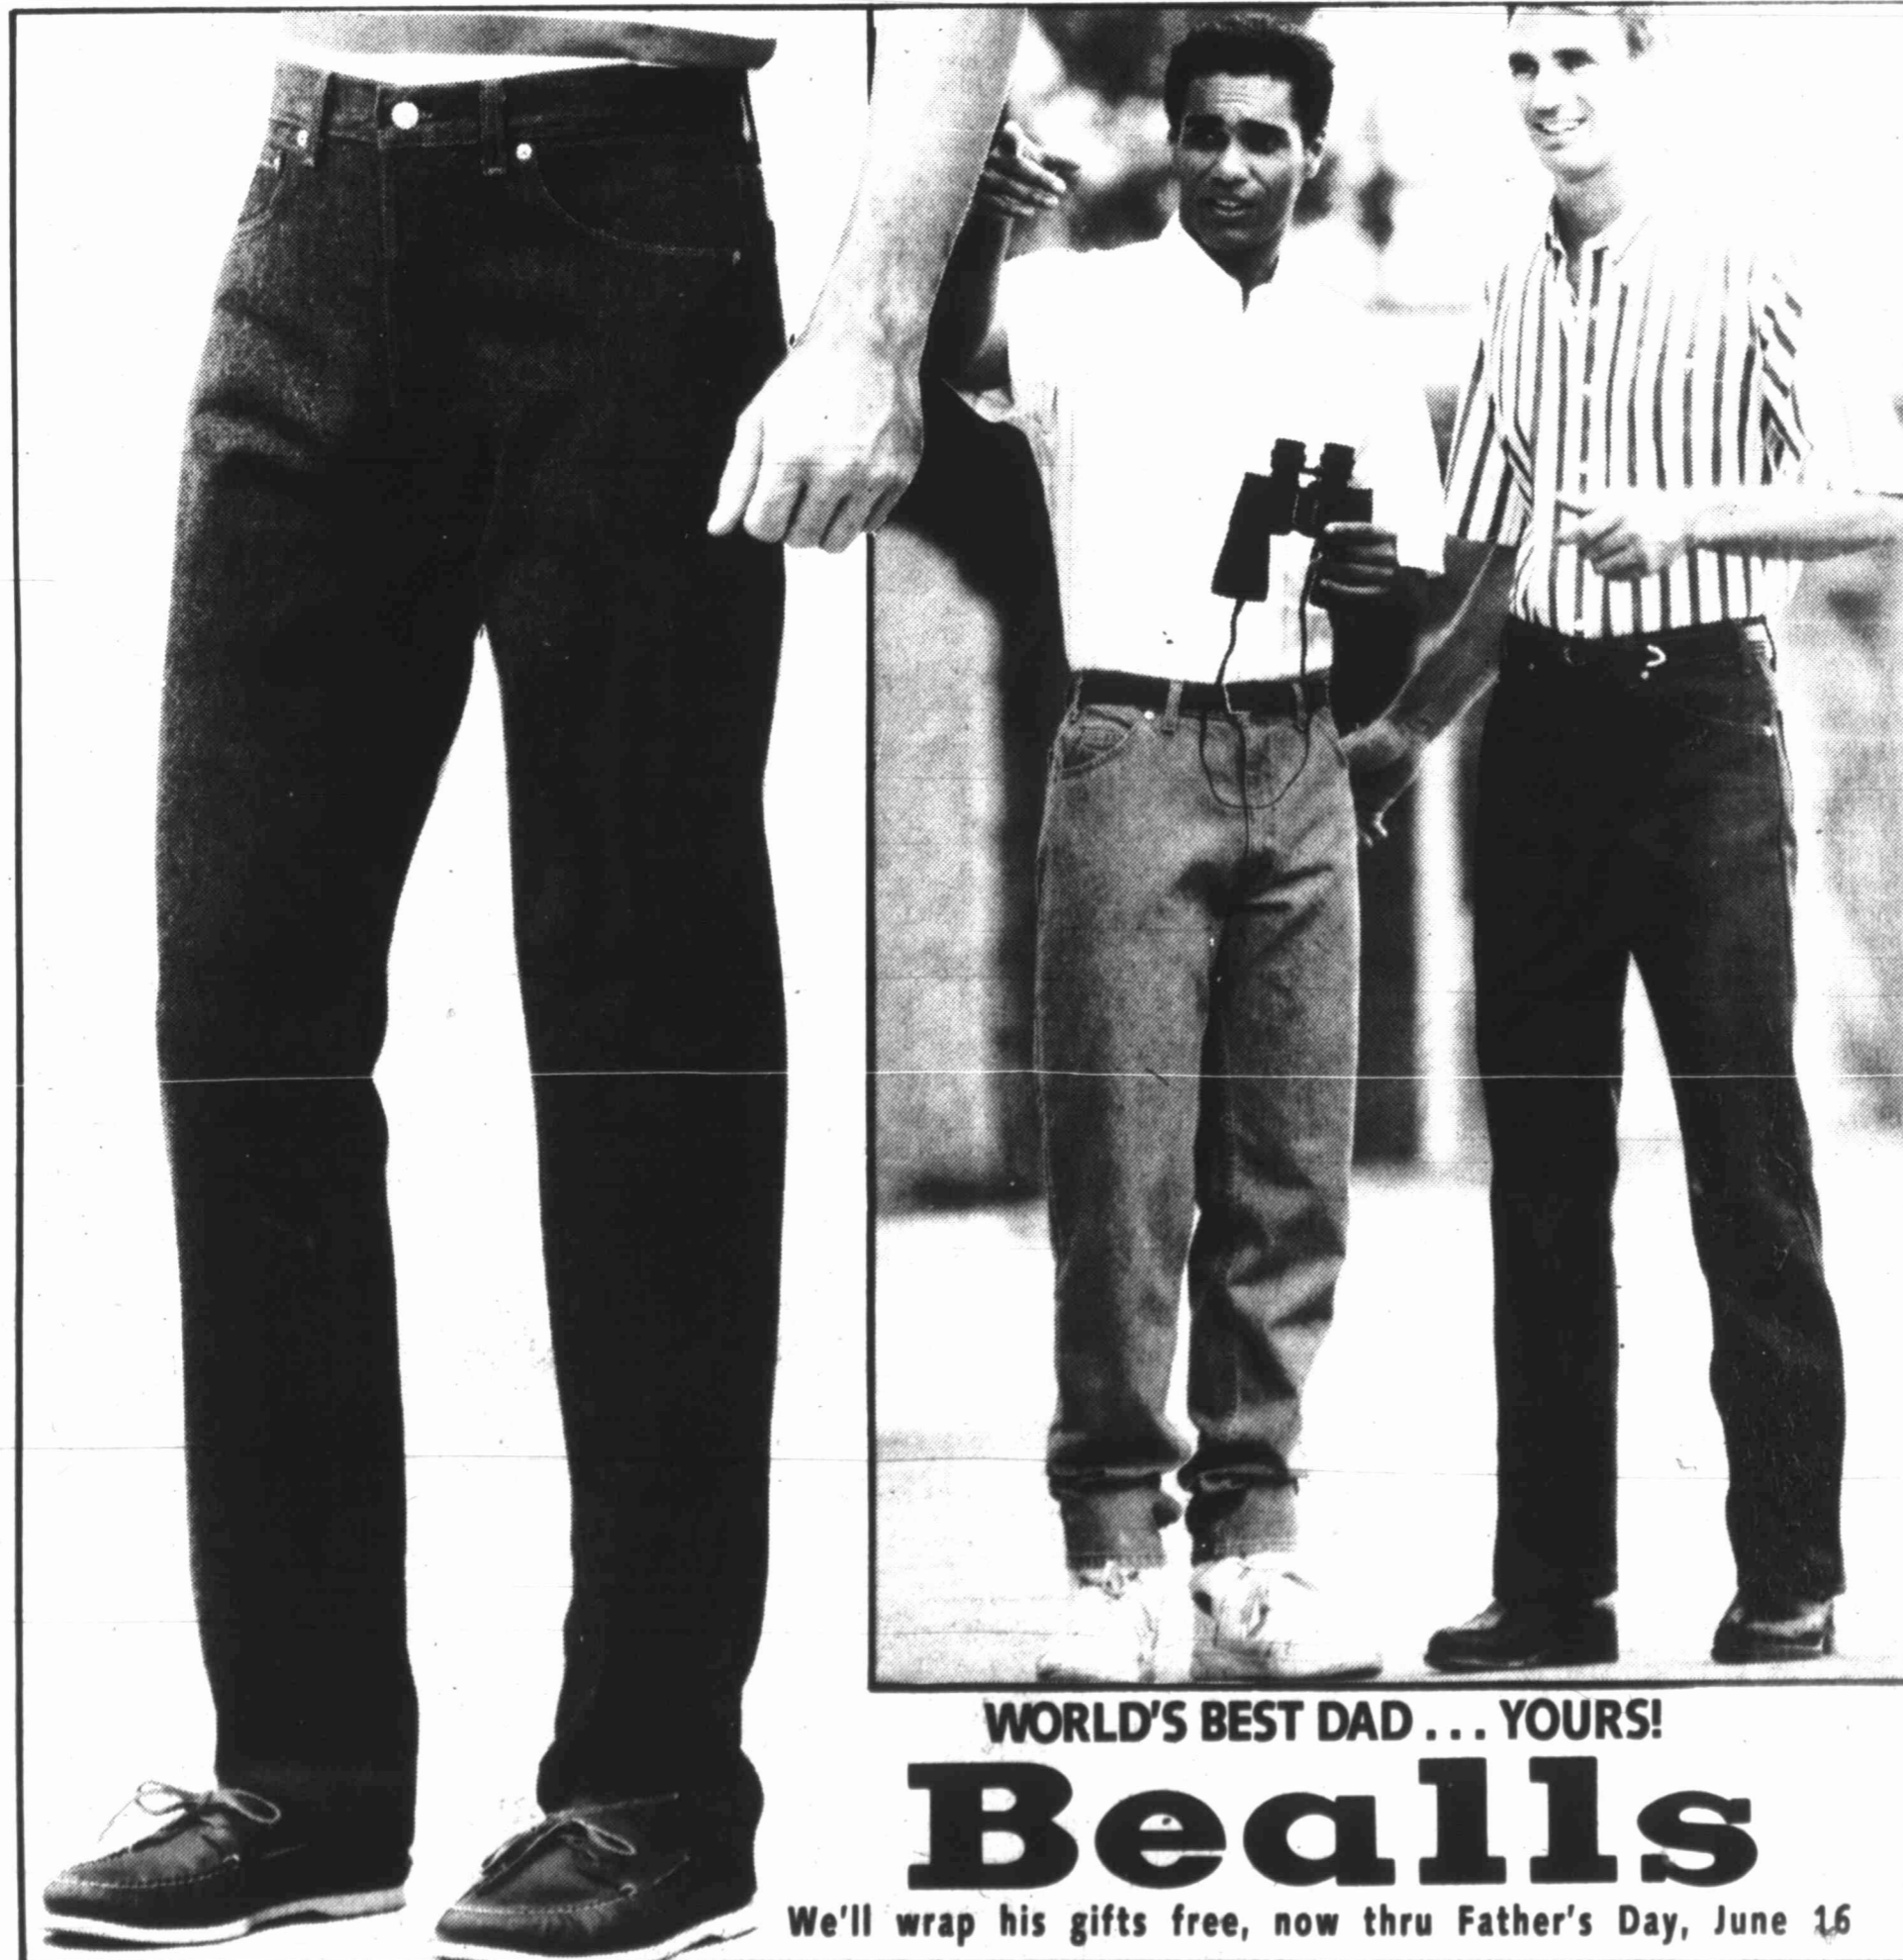

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev, delivering his Nobel Peace lecture, appealed today for Western aid to bolster his endangered reforms, saying their failure would jeopardize "a new peaceful period in history."

The address, delivered at Oslo City Hall, was the Soviet president's most cogent appeal yet for Western help to integrate his country into a peaceful new world order.

While not mentioning the independence-minded Baltic republics directly in his address, Gorbachev said ethnic and political conflicts could rip the country apart.

The speech, which had been delayed since Dec. 10 by ethnic, nationalist and economic crises in the Soviet Union, was interrupted twice by hecklers.

The Soviet president seeks a summit with President Bush by the end of the month and wants to participate in a Western economic summit in London.

Real beauty comes in all sizes

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, "Amy," is having a terrible time because although she is a beautiful girl, she's short. At 17, she's only 5 foot 1 inch, and she feels as though she is being left out of the modeling world because the agencies will not hire girls her size. She feels less than beautiful, and it is hurting her self-esteem.

Do you know of any modeling agency that will take a girl of Amy's petite size? — AMY'S CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your daughter needs to know that beauty comes in all sizes, and there are careers other than modeling.

I spoke to Nina Blanchard, owner of one of the top modeling agencies in the country, and she agrees with Amy; there is no market in modeling for a girl who is 5 foot 1 inch. (Even "petite" models are 5 foot 4 to 5 foot 6.)

Blanchard said: "Tell Amy to dry her tears and learn to act because there is no height requirement in acting or commercials. And the rewards are just as good and sometimes better."

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, my boyfriend beat me up. He said he was sorry, so I gave him another chance. The second time it happened, I made him move out. A week later, he came after me.

Fearing for my life, I ran outside, thinking I was safe with so many neighbors around. (I lived in a mobile home park.) I was wrong. Nobody helped me. He started beating on me, and I ran from trailer to trailer with him chasing me as I screamed at the top of my lungs, "Somebody, please call the police!" He caught me, knocked me to the ground and beat me unconscious. It was a summer day and everyone had the windows open. I was screaming so loud, I could have been heard a block away.

Abby, I wasn't asking people to risk their lives. I just wanted someone to pick up a phone and call the police. One neighbor even closed his door because my screams disturbed him! When I confronted him later, he said, "I didn't want to get involved."

I still have nightmares about that terrible experience — not the beating, but pleading for help while everyone looked the other way.

To make a long story short, I pressed charges against the man.

He was put away for two years and ordered not to return to this community. — ILLINOIS VICTIM

DEAR VICTIM: I would like to believe that people are basically good, but there is too much evidence to the contrary to accept that theory. What a sad commentary on the nature of mankind. "Man's inhumanity to man" — "Makes countless thousands mourn!"

— Robert Burns, 1759-1796

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Rubies for research

NEW YORK — Elizabeth Taylor holds a five-strand pearl choker with diamonds, rubies and onyx that she donated to be auctioned off to benefit the American Foundation for AIDS Research. "Glitter and Be Giving" will be two events of fine jewelry auctions and dinner dances to benefit the cause in Beverly Hills in the fall of 1991 and New York in the spring of 1992. Taylor is the Honorary Chairman of the Auctions.

Veterans benefits handbook available

One of the governments most widely distributed publications, "Federal Benefits for Veterans And Dependents," has been updated for 1991. This handbook contains up to date descriptions of the wide range of benefits available to veterans and their dependents. Eligibility requirements for entitlement to benefits, the important timetable for benefits and where to apply are described in detail.

Education and training benefits for veterans including the GI Bill, job training, vocational rehabilitation, and employment assistance are covered extensively. Other major sections describe VA loans for home-buying vets, life insurance, disability benefits, health care, what to do about Agent Orange exposure, death benefits, and benefits for survivors. All VA facilities where veterans should go for assistance including VA hospitals, nursing homes, clinics, vet centers where counseling is available for Vietnam era veterans, and treatment centers for alcohol and drug dependence are listed.

The location of all Veterans Administration National Cemeteries is also provided.

Information on the new U.S. Court of Veterans Appeals is provided.

This handbook is a must for all veterans and their dependents.

Cook-Free salads make cool and light summer meals

When it's too hot for hot food and too hot to cook, turn to cooling cook-free main dish salads. Head for the deli department for the cooked meats, seafood and poultry that make such super salad starters, then pause at the produce section for the season's freshest vegetables. Toss them with a quickly mixed dressing boasting bold and vibrant flavors, and your cool summer salads will become steamy-day menu mainstays.

Two great tasting new main dish salad recipes from the Pace Picante Sauce Test Kitchens will point the way to summer-perfect cook-free fare. Quickly assembled and ready to chill in just a few short minutes, each salad boasts bright colors, crisp and contrasting textures and a lively dressing with the spicy, garden-fresh flavor of picante sauce. A versatile enhancer for all manner of summer salads, it adds Texas-size taste to any bottled dressing.

Caribbean Shrimp and Black Bean Salad, inspired by popular island fare, is perfect for casual warm-weather entertaining or family meals. Colorful and appealing, it combines shrimp, black beans and fresh vegetables with a spicy-sweet honey-lime-picante sauce dressing to blend and balance flavors.

Picante Pepper Steak Salad teams deli-cooked roast beef, bright bell peppers, mushrooms, celery and scallions with a lively dressing of picante sauce, bottled teriyaki sauce and fresh ginger. Served over thinly sliced Chinese cabbage or romaine lettuce, it brings the zesty flavors of the Orient to the table in no time.

CARIBBEAN SHRIMP AND BLACK BEAN SALAD

1 lb. cooked, cleaned and deveined medium shrimp
1 can (15 ounces) black beans, rinsed and drained
1 small green pepper, cut into short, thin strips
1/2 cup thinly sliced celery
1/3 cup very thinly sliced small red onion rings
2/3 cups picante sauce
2 tablespoons chopped cilantro
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 tablespoons honey

Shredded peel and juice from 1 lime (1 teaspoon peel and 2 tablespoons juice)
1/2 teaspoon salt

Lettuce leaves
1 cup cherry tomato halves

Combine shrimp, beans, green pepper, celery and onion in large bowl. Combine remaining ingredients except tomatoes and lettuce; mix well. Pour over shrimp mixture; toss lightly to coat.

Cover and chill at least 2 hours or up to 24 hours, tossing lightly occasionally. Spoon salad on to lettuce-lined serving platter; garnish with tomatoes. Serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 6 servings.

PICANTE PEPPER STEAK SALAD

3/4 lb. deli-cooked rare roast beef, cut into 1/2x1 1/2-inch strips
1 small red bell pepper, cut into short, thin strips
1 small yellow or green pepper, cut into short, thin strips
1 1/2 cups thinly sliced mushrooms

1 cup diagonally sliced celery
1/2 cup sliced green onions with tops (1/2 inch pieces)
1/2 cup picante sauce
1/4 cup bottled teriyaki sauce
1 to 2 teaspoons finely shredded fresh ginger, as desired
4 cups thinly sliced Chinese cabbage or Romaine lettuce
1 tablespoon toasted sesame seeds (optional)

Place beef, peppers, mushrooms, celery and onions in plastic bag. Combine picante sauce, teriyaki sauce and ginger, mixing well, pour into bag. Fasten bag securely and refrigerate 2 to 3 hours, turning bag occasionally. Drain and reserve marinade. Place cabbage on serving platter or in salad bowl; top with meat and vegetable mixture. Sprinkle with sesame seeds, if desired.

Colorful and appealing Caribbean Shrimp and Black Bean Salad is ideal warm-weather fare. Fuss-free and cook-free to fix, it begins with cooked shrimp purchased from the deli or freezer department, canned beans and a mix of the season's freshest vegetables. Its spicy-sweet homey lime dressing relies on picante sauce, in the cooks choice of mild, medium or hot, to blend and harmonize flavors.

The "eat-as-much-as-you-want" diet

By MARY MacVEAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There can't be any diet around these days — for health or weight loss — that doesn't call for cutting fat. But a new study suggests that you can at least get your fill of everything else and still drop pounds.

Researchers at Cornell University allowed two groups of healthy women to eat as much as they wanted, with only the fat under control. One group ate a diet 20 percent to 25 percent fat, the other got 35 percent to 40 percent of their calories from fat.

After 11 weeks, the low-fat eaters lost 5 1/2 pounds, twice as much as the control group.

"The fact that they found a difference is fairly powerful evidence. You would expect people would screw up and eat high fat foods," said Dr. Richard L. Atkinson, associate chief of staff for research and development at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Hampton, Va.

"What it means is that rather than count calories, the only — and it's not so easy — thing you have to do is to eat foods containing low fat," said David A. Levitsky, one of the study's authors and a professor of nutrition and psychology at Cornell. "Consume as much as you want and the necessary consequence is that you consume fewer calories."

What's behind this is caloric density: A gram of protein or carbohydrate has four calories, while a gram of fat has nine. So, as Atkinson said, eating a pound of fat-free watermelon makes you feel different from eating a pound of high-fat cheesecake.

Levitsky said his research asks, "How long can you keep tricking the body" by providing it with fewer calories? It doesn't completely answer.

By the end of 11 weeks, participants had made up for 35 percent of the "missing" calories, according to the study, published in the May issue of the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition and funded by Bristol-Myers Squibb, Mead Johnson and the National Institutes of Health.

Levitsky plans another study, to last up to a year, to find out whether the body's metabolic rate decreases with the calorie decrease, thereby slowing the rate of weight loss.

Health authorities have consistently admonished Americans that their diets are too fatty: Guidelines suggest a diet with no more than 30 percent of calories from fat. But while surveys show people know this, they are not eating as if they do.

"If I had to choose one thing, if you dramatically reduce the amount of fat in your diet, that covers a whole lot of other sins," Atkinson said.

Levitsky's advice: "Be aware of the fat content of foods, and try to minimize it. Don't count the grams of fat. Just choose the foods that have the lowest fat. Read labels. Minimize meat and meat products. Don't eliminate them, because then you'll crave it."

Such cravings — and denying them — contribute to Americans' inability to cut down on fat, Levitsky said, despite awareness that too much fat contributes to obesity, heart disease, diabetes and cancers.

But in his study, because participants could eat as much as they wanted, they did not crave high-fat foods, he said.

"There was no specific craving for Haagen-Dazs ice cream, as opposed to the low fat ice cream that was available," he said. "As long as you keep yourself satisfied with a reasonable volume of food, and let your body determine how much you want to eat, there are no specific desires."

The study did not use foods made with fake fats. Both groups ate the same menus, with one group getting low fat versions. Menus included cookies, muffins and pizza among other foods.

The low fat group ate about 200 fewer calories a day than the control group's 2,000 or so calories.

The 13 participants were assigned to one of the two food groups for 11 weeks, and after a seven-week "cooling off period," the groups were switched. They ate only food from the Human Nutrition Research Unit at Cornell, but could eat when and how much they wanted.

"The results are reasonable, and they're consistent with what other people have proposed and what has been shown in rats," said Karen Segal, an associate professor at Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York.

Levitsky said he did not test his theory on himself, because he already eats very little fat. "Being a vegetarian helps," he said.

Segal agreed: "Those people who traditionally take a high carbohydrate diet seem to be thinner. You don't really see fat vegetarians."

West Texas hotels: Historic pride

MARFA — The inner courtyard of the El Paisano Hotel in Marfa shows the distinctive style of architect Henry Trost. The hotel remains at the center of the town's activities, providing the site for dances and weddings.

ODESSA (AP) — Years ago, an architectural firm in El Paso designed a series of fancy hotels built across Texas and New Mexico.

Most of those buildings have since been torn down or are being used for different purposes. The company that built them is no longer in business.

But in three small towns strung along a remote stretch of U.S. 90, the grandeur of '20s-style architecture remains.

The Holland in Alpine, the Gage in Marathon and the El Paisano in Marfa all bear the distinctive touch of architect Henry Trost. Though they differ in size and style, the hotels lend a certain elegance to these small West Texas towns, as well as an air of permanence to tiny communities determined not to falter. Loving restoration has made them at least partly usable by the public and fostered renewed civic pride in their communities.

The Holland Hotel
On a street leading into downtown Alpine that seems to house mostly factories and storefronts on one side and railroad tracks on the other, the careful driver will notice an older building with lions' heads plastered onto the facade in strategic places.

Beneath these friezes are etched glass windows. This is the Holland Hotel, compliments of owners Carla and Michael Williamson. Henry Trost wasn't the original architect for the Holland, but he obviously had the most input.

The first building was constructed in 1912 and was made of wood. It burned at least once before Trost entered the picture in 1928. He constructed a three-story brick building next to the original structure.

According to Williamson, ranching was Alpine's economic mainstay in the 1920s, and so the Holland became sort of the financial center of town.

The Holland rents 10 rooms from $35 to $60 a night. Most rooms have microwaves and refrigerators stocked with juices and continental breakfast at no charge. Downstairs is McFarland's Restaurant and a private club. For information, call (915) 837-3455.

The Gage Hotel
Many people view the Gage Hotel as the jumping-off point to Big Bend National Park. Co-owners Bill and Laurie Stevens view it as an escape from the vagaries of the oil business.

The Stevens became partners with pal John Bryan, who already owned the Gage. Though their jobs may seem idyllic compared to the hectic pace of a 9-to-5 lifestyle, Stevens said it's not all fun and games. "Everybody thinks of us as being sort of like Bob Newhart," he said. "But we have 23 full- or part-time employees on the staff."

The hotel is named for Alfred Gage, who came to West Texas in 1883 and built a ranching empire that extended from Marathon to Marfa, covering 500,000 acres.

When the Bryans bought it in 1978 they found the basic structure was in good shape. However, cosmetic changes over the years had all but obliterated the hotel's original beauty. Over time, the rooms have been furnished with rustic reminders of the West Texas frontier.

The Gage has 20 rooms priced at $38 for rooms without bathrooms (down-the-hall baths are available) and $52 for rooms with private baths. It also has a restaurant and bar. For information, call (915) 386-4205.

El Paisano Hotel
Like its sister hotels, the El Paisano has seen its ups and downs. Unlike them, it's managed to avoid closing its doors altogether, although it has certainly seen hard times.

The hotel, like other Trost properties, was named after a landmark (in this case, Paisano Pass.) When construction began in 1927, Marfa was hoping for continued boom times.

But by the time it opened in 1930, the Great Depression was slowly whittling away at Marfa's prosperity. The cavalry post, established to contain border disputes, was closed. The hoped-for oil boom never materialized.

Falls, petrified tree unique to U.S., world

ADA, Okla. (AP) — We have all heard those there-is-only-one-of-these-in-the-world type stories, but did you know there are two such stories for this area? Well, almost.

Turner Falls, south of Davis, is unique to the United States because of the material and the way it is formed, and the giant piece of Callixylon on the East Central University campus is the largest example of the petrified material in the world.

Doug Kreis, an ecologist at Robert S. Kerr Environmental Research Laboratory, said the case with most streams that flow through limestone areas in the Arbuckle Mountains, calcium carbonate is dissolved away and the stream bed slowly erodes away. But the falls area is different.

"The water that flows through that particular area (the falls) deposits calcium carbonate in the form of travertine," Kreis said.

He said travertine is a deposit that consists of a spongy, textured limestone.

"What happened then is the thickness of the travertine gradually increased with the passage of water over it until the falls reached a maximum height of 150 feet," Kreis said.

He said about 15 to 20 thousand years ago increased rainfall caused Honey Creek, the creek forming the falls, to cut a chasm in the platform and the falls was reduced to half of its former height.

"The falls is now in a stage that it accumulates about as much deposits as is washed away during floods," Kreis explained.

The falls, then, instead of being washed away by the creek such as the case of other falls, is continually built up by the deposits in Honey Creek.

The piece at ECU is the largest example of callixylon, or primitive wood, from the Devonian period known to exist, part of what was once a gigantic semitree. Estimates of geologist set the period at about 350,000,000 years ago.

This piece is almost five feet around and more than eight feet high. In its petrified state, it weighs several tons.

CWS turns into a conference thing

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The College World Series semifinals have a decided conference look.

Florida All-American John Burke outdueled Fresno State All-American Bobby Jones in a 2-1 pitchers' showdown, while Steve Hinton powered Creighton over Long Beach State 13-4 in elimination games Tuesday night.

That set up rematches of conference rivals.

Fifth-seeded Florida (51-20) meets Southeastern Conference foe No. 4 Louisiana State (53-18) tonight at 6:37 p.m. CDT, and seventh-seeded Creighton (51-21) will face Missouri Valley Conference rival No. 3 Wichita State (65-12) in Thursday's 6:37 p.m. semifinal.

Wins by LSU and Wichita State would put them in Saturday's televised championship game on CBS. Losses would force a second semifinal in either bracket, those games to be played on Friday.

In Tuesday's opener, Burke (9-5) scattered seven hits over the first six innings and gave up one run and one walk while striking out seven. Rob Bonanno pitched two innings of scoreless relief and John Pricher hurled the final inning for his 12th save.

Both Gator runs came in the sixth inning off Jones (16-2). Ted Rich and Dave Majeski singled before Brant Killen doubled them home.

Now Arnold and company get to see LSU once more. Five of their seven meetings have gone to LSU, including an 8-1 Tiger win in last Friday's first round.

Creighton also focused in a hurry Tuesday night, jumping on Long Beach starter Dennis Gray (3-3) with a nine-run second inning. Hinton started the inning with a single and came home on Mike McCafferty's two-run double. Scott Stahoviak also had a two-run single before Hinton ended the scoring with a three-run homer.

"The game got away from us really early," Long Beach coach Dave Snow said. "That inning we just couldn't get them stopped. Coming in, I thought Creighton was a little flat coming off a big loss. That big inning got the crowd back into the game and gave them a lot of confidence and we just couldn't catch up."

"Mike McCafferty's double down the line really gave us a boost," Hinton said. "The home run was an 0-2 fastball. He didn't really get it up in the zone line he wanted to and I got lucky and hit it."

The Jays added two runs in the seventh on Bobby Langer's bases-loaded single and on Ryan Martindale's two-run homer in the eighth.

Freshman Eric Maloney (4-5) allowed only three hits in his six innings of work, but gave up seven walks and had two wild pitches that led to a run in the third.

"I knew the bats were going to come around sooner or later," Maloney said. Of his early wildness, the right-hander said, "That's a typical outing for me, to be honest."

"People don't realize he's just a freshman. ... He's still growing and still learning," coach Jim Hendry said. "He's probably a year away from greatness and command."

The Jays came back from their heartbreaking 3-2, 12-inning loss to Wichita State Monday night, but now must beat the Shockers twice after having failed to claim one win in seven previous meetings this season.

Steve's stuff

A superb series in the making

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Now that my emotional high has finally worn off from the Howard College Hawks winning the Junior College World Series, let me get back to a more present issue — the NBA finals.

Not since the battles of Wilt Chamberlain and Bill Russell have two superstars made the finals as glamorous. We all know it's a team thing, but everyone's talking about Michael-Magic Mania.

A friend of mine feels the series won't even be close — the Bulls will win handily. "The Lakers might be able to win one game," he said. I asked him if he felt any differently after the series' first game Sunday.

"The Bulls need to put Scottie Pippen on Magic and let Michael help him if he needs it. They need to just let Michael jam on those other guys," he lamented. But he quickly went back to his old perky self and said, "Just you wait and see, the Bulls had all those days off and they were sluggish. ... plus they didn't get any calls Sunday. I've still got my money on it, they'll still win."

I forgot to ask him if it would still be in five games.

If game one was any indication of what's to come, this is going to be a great series. The up-and-coming Bulls against the veteran Lakers. The Bulls are young, quick and aggressive. There's not anyone on this planet that can stop Jordan, and Pippen is one of the best all-around players in the game — plus the Bulls have young legs. The Lakers are smart and mature. Show Time is now Slow Time, and it works.

I think I'm one of the few who expects this to be a close series. One reason is LA's experience. The Bulls are playing in their first finals in the 25-year history of the club. None of their players have played a minute in a championship-round game. In fact, the only one on the bench with championship experience is coach Phil Jackson, who played on the '69 championship New York Knicks squad.

On the other hand, this is the Lakers' ninth appearance in the finals in the last 12 years. Johnson is in his ninth final, James Worthy in his seventh, Byron Scott in his sixth, A.C. Green and Michael Thompson in their fourth. You can't buy that kind of experience.

But back to game one. It was reminiscent of the Chicago Bulls of five years ago. The Bulls would always lose to the Detroit Pistons or Boston Celtics in the playoffs. Michael Jordan would carry the burden alone.

This season, things have been different. Jordan was brilliant as the Bulls were 11-1 in the playoffs, but he was getting plenty of help from his teammates.

The Bulls reverted to their old form Sunday in a 93-91 loss on their home court.

Jordan had 36 points, 12 assists and eight rebounds. Pippen, a giant earlier in the playoffs, scored 19 points but missed 12 of 19 shots. No one else on the Bulls had more than six points.

Like Michael, Magic was at his best, pulling off his 29th career playoff triple-double with 19 points, 11 assists and 10 rebounds. Only Magic's supporting cast was much more efficient. Worthy and Sam Perkins scored 22 points each, and Vlade Divac added 16 points and 14 boards.

It was a superb opening game, and I can't wait for tonight's game. There are so many questions. Will Michael finally get his long-awaited crown? Will Magic's superior court knowledge and the Lakers experience prevail?

I wonder if my friend is still willing to wager the Lakers will win only one game in the series?

Germans ease way into French Open semis

PARIS (AP) — Michael Stich joined fellow German Boris Becker in the semifinals of the French Open today by defeating Franco Davin of Argentina 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Stich, the No. 12 seed, played aggressive serve-and-volley tennis and overpowered Davin's baseline game.

Stich's advance gave German two French Open semifinals for the first time in the tournament's history. Stich will play the winner of today's remaining quarterfinal between top-seeded Stefan Edberg and American Jim Courier, the ninth seed.

The other men's semifinal was set Tuesday, when Becker and Andre Agassi demolished their quarterfinal opponents. Agassi routed Jakob Hlasek 6-3, 6-1, 6-1 in 75 minutes, while Becker said he played "almost perfect" in a 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 victory over 1989 champion Michael Chang.

Stich, an occasional practice partner of Becker but not a close friend, said he would rather play Becker rather than Agassi if he makes the final.

"His game is a bit easier for me to play than Agassi," Stich said. "An all-German final would be great for German tennis."

Stich said he, like all other players in his country, can't help but feel they are in Becker's shadow.

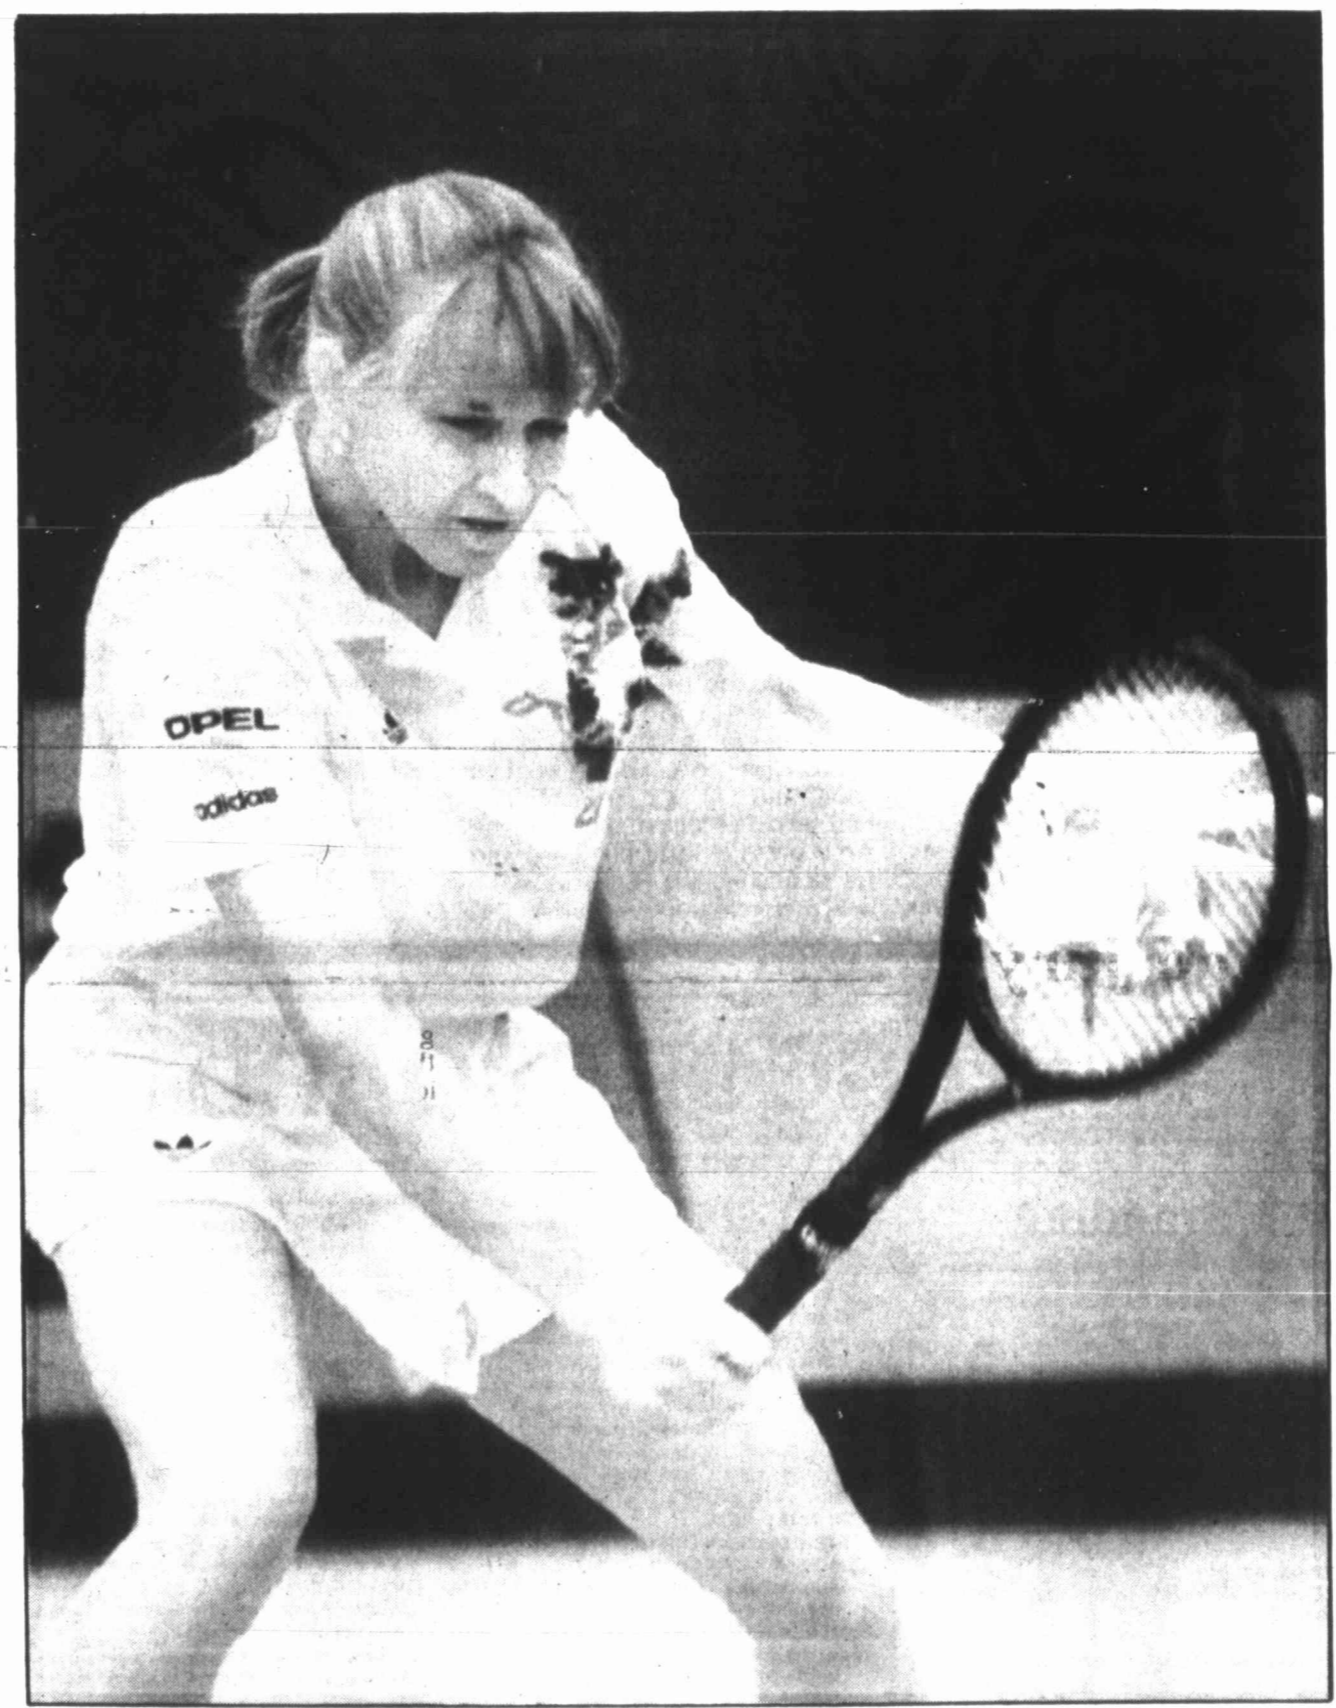

"He's just better than all the other players," Stich said.

Stich's route in the draw was made easier when Ivan Lendl withdrew on the eve of the tournament after hand surgery. Lendl's spot was given to a low-ranked "lucky loser" from the qualification round.

That opened up Stich's section of the draw, and he has reached the semifinals without playing a single seeded opponent. His highest-ranked foe was 18-year-old Fabrice Santoro of France, No. 50 in the world, who was stricken with stomach problems the night before their fourth-round match.

For both Stich and Becker, a victory at Roland Garros Stadium would be their first title ever on clay.

The women's semifinals, scheduled for Thursday, involve perhaps the four best clay-court players in the world, and all four are eager for the showdowns after many easy matches in the early rounds.

PARIS — Germany's Steffi Graf hits a backhand against France's Nathalie Tauziat during the French Open tennis tournament at Roland Garros stadium Tuesday. Top-seeded Graf defeated 13th seeded Tauziat 6-3, 6-2.

"When I get to the semis, it's a relief," said Monica Seles, the top seed and defending champion. "I know from here on in I have to play great tennis." First in line for Seles is one of the two women aiming for her No. 1 ranking, third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini. Each has lost only one set in the first five rounds.

Steffi Graf, also in the hunt for No. 1, plays Arantxa Sanchez Vicario in Thursday's other semifinal. It's a battle of two former French Open champions, neither of whom has lost a set thus far.

The only semifinalist who hasn't won the tournament before is Sabatini, owner of the best won-lost record on the tour this year.

"I have a very tough match," Seles said. "If I win, I have another tough match."

Sabatini had the toughest prelude to the semifinals. Twice a point from defeat against Jana Novotna, she battled to a 5-7, 7-6 (12-10), 6-0 victory, winning 10 of the last 11 games in what she described as one of her greatest comebacks.

Sabatini trailed 5-2 in the second set before rallying, and she twice saved match points in the tiebreaker. That seemed to demoralize Novotna, the sixth seed, who succumbed meekly in the final set.

"I gave everything in the first two sets," Novotna said. "I felt there was not much left mentally to fight for."

Sabatini, like the other semifinalists, said she was looking forward to the upcoming showdowns.

"Now, it will be the big matches," said the Argentine, whose match record this year is 40-3.

Seles won 6-0, 7-5 over seventh-seeded Conchita Martinez of Spain, who dropped the first set in 23 minutes but battled gallantly in an hour-long second set.

Graf improved her career record against France's Nathalie Tauziat to 14-0 with a 6-3, 6-2 victory. Sanchez, seeded fifth, overpowered fourth-seeded Mary Joe Fernandez 6-3, 6-2.

Sanchez, who as a 17-year-old beat Graf in the title match here two years ago, said she felt no qualms about a rematch.

"I have nothing to lose," she said. "I'll go out and play my game."

Graf also was asked about the 1989 final.

"People will always remember it," she said. "But I'll try to make the memory change and do better this time."

Braves fans honor long-time hero

ATLANTA (AP) — A crowd of 30,165 waited through a 90-minute rain delay to pay tribute to Dale Murphy, a local hero coming home in a visiting role.

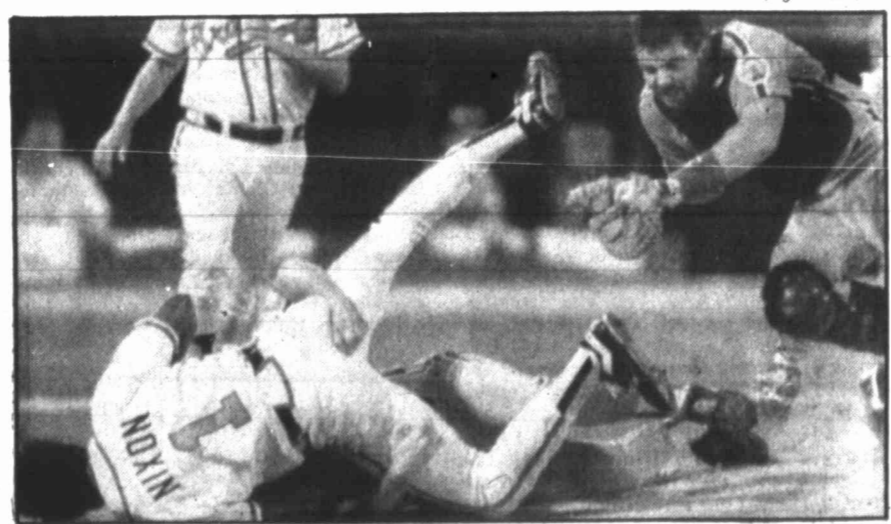

"It was a memorable evening," Murphy said Tuesday night after his old team, the Atlanta Braves, defeated his current team, the Philadelphia Phillies, 9-5.

"I'll never forget it," he said. "That's what made it so special, to have people here who have meant so much in my life," he said of the gathering of friends and family members brought in by the Braves to honor Murphy. It was his first appearance in Atlanta since last Aug. 3, when he was traded to the Phillies.

"When you're young, you take things for granted," he said. "Not that I'm all that old now, but I'm 17 years older than when I started out with this (Atlanta) organization. I think a lot about how lucky I've been, and how blessed."

There were some gifts, not the normal showering of extravagant items that usually go to athletes on their night. There was a portrait, a glass etching showing Murphy swinging a bat and his No. 3 Braves jersey, framed by his former teammates.

The 25-minute ceremony began with filmed highlights of Murphy's Atlanta career, shown on the huge television screen hanging from the upper deck in center field.

Murphy watched it from the Philadelphia dugout, smiling during one play that showed him stumbling to the ground and crawling in safely at third base.

He drew a lengthy standing ovation before broadcaster and former Braves pitcher Ernie Johnson introduced Murphy as "one of the nicest guys, both on and off the field." "I know I will be a visitor tonight, but this will always be my home," Murphy said.

On the field with him were his wife Nancy and their six sons. Another baby is due in September. Murphy said they already know it will be a boy, adding, "We're running out of names."

Murphy's parents, his sister and his in-laws were also by his side, along with former high school coaches and teammates from Portland, Ore., representatives of the Mormon Church and former Braves teammates Barry Bonnell, Luis Gomez and Bruce Benedict.

Johnny Bench, the former Cincinnati Reds' star, gave a video salute, congratulating Murphy on recently attaining 2,000 hits and in advance for "when you pass me in home runs."

Murphy has 385 career homers, two behind Dave Winfield and four behind Bench, who ranks 25th on the all-time list.

Murphy's voice cracked only once during his brief remarks — when he thanked the Braves for "a special night by bringing in some special friends and some family members."

"I would like to thank you, the fans," Murphy said. "I know every night I played here at Atlanta wasn't exactly like those highlight films you just saw. I've probably got the Atlanta Braves record for strikeouts, too."

During his career with the Braves, Murphy had 1,901 hits, 371 home runs and 1,143 RBIs. He holds the Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium record for homers (203) and RBIs (603).

Georgia Gov. Zell Miller presented Murphy with a proclamation and said, "Thank you for what you have meant to the game of baseball and what you have meant to the human race."

Bulls ready to speed up tempo

CHICAGO (AP) — The standing around is over. The Chicago Bulls are ready to run.

They spent the last two days in the shadow of a 1-0 deficit in the NBA Finals, two days of preparing to even the score and considering the dire consequences if they don't.

Los Angeles' James Worthy, recovering from an ankle injury, may be the only player who welcomed the long break between Sunday's 93-91 victory and tonight's second game.

"These guys had too long to think about" the loss, Bulls coach Phil Jackson said. "We've had too much time to coach."

"I'd much rather have played today," Chicago's Michael Jordan said Tuesday.

His Laker rival in this superstar series, Magic Johnson, also was eager to return to the enemy's court where he directed his team to victory with poise and precision.

"You'd always rather be playing than sitting around," he said Tuesday. "We'll be happy because we're playing and you (reporters) will be happy because you'll have something to write about and you won't have to keep asking us the same questions over

Tark will meet with UNLV officials

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Jerry Tarkanian says he plans to meet with UNLV officials this week to discuss his future with the school. Sources say the embattled basketball coach will leave after the 1991-92 season.

Three sources who spoke on the condition of anonymity said Tuesday that Tarkanian will coach the Rebels one more year while a search is undertaken for a new coach.

Tarkanian denied Tuesday that a deal had been finalized and said he planned to meet "in the next day or two" with UNLV president Robert Maxson to discuss his future.

However, The National, in today's editions, said Tarkanian told the newspaper he might resign as early as this week because of the strain the recent negative publicity surrounding his program has had on his children.

"I'm tired of looking at the hurt in my kids' eyes," The National quoted Tarkanian as saying. "I love coaching and being associated with the kids, but I'm tired of being hit over the head. I look at what my kids are going through and it bothers the hell out of me."

"Lois wants me to quit right now," he is quoted as saying about his wife. "I haven't decided what I want to do, but within a week I'll do something."

The newspaper quoted Tarkanian as saying "I don't want people to say I'm leaving because I lost five starters."

The Nevada Regents met for five hours with Tarkanian on Monday at his request, then later said Maxson had full authority to handle the Tarkanian matter.

"I'm very torn up inside," Tarkanian said of recent problems, including the publication of photos showing three players on his 1990 national championship team with a convicted sports fixer.

Sources said in interviews with The Associated Press on Tuesday that keeping Tarkanian for another year will allow UNLV "an orderly transition."

Player's filing could change game

FORT WORTH (AP) — A workers' compensation claim filed by a former college football player who was paralyzed in a game could have far-reaching effects on the relationship between universities and student-athletes on scholarship.

Former Texas Christian player Kent Waldrep, paralyzed in a 1974 game, has filed for medical benefits he claims are due him under the state's workers' compensation law.

The claim was filed last week with the Workers' Compensation Commission of Texas in Dallas.

The heart of the question is whether scholarship athletes are certified by the commission as employees of the institutions that award them scholarships.

Waldrep was injured Oct. 26, 1974, at Legion Field in Birmingham, Ala., against Alabama. The spinal cord injury left him a quadriplegic.

PGA won't monitor TV broadcasts

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — The PGA Tour will no longer monitor telecasts for rules violations, commissioner Deane Beman announced.

Beman said the Tour's Policy Board ruled unanimously "that the players be fully responsible for their actions and scores."

In effect, it puts the administration of the rules of golf and the calling of penalties back in the hands of the players themselves. The action was fully supported by the game's touring pros, the great majority of whom have objected to the use of the television for rules enforcement.

Bruins named new head coach

BOSTON (AP) — Rick Bowness, who coached the Maine Mariners of the American Hockey League for the past two seasons, was named coach of the Boston Bruins, succeeding Mike Milbury.

Bowness, who had a nine-year career as a player in the NHL, had a 65-72-3 record for the Mariners. Last week, Milbury relinquished his coaching job to concentrate on his duties as assistant general manager.

Finley two-hits struggling Red Sox

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

If California's Chuck Finley wasn't very sharp in pitching his second two-hitter and striking out nine for the third time this season, somebody could be in for a humiliating night when he is.

"Finley got tougher as he went along," Boston manager Joe Morgan said after the Angels beat the Red Sox 3-0 Tuesday night. "But I think I've seen him a lot sharper than he was tonight."

Doug Rader, whose Angels handed the Red Sox their ninth loss in 12 games, didn't buy that.

"I think he was extremely dominant," Rader said of Finley. "He pitched great."

Finley (9-2) became the American League's first nine-game winner. It came about 90 minutes after another left-hander — Atlanta's Tom Glavine — did so in the National League.

Lance Parrish had three hits for California, including a two-run single to make it 3-0 in the fifth. Dick Schofield had an RBI single in the fourth against Tom Bolton (5-3).

Royals 4, Rangers 1

Danny Tartabull returned from injury with a decisive homer and Mike Boddicker again baffled Texas as Kansas City ended the Rangers' seven-game road winning streak.

Tartabull, in his first game since being hit in the hand May 27, broke a 1-1 tie by homering off Jose Guzman (0-2) in the seventh inning. The loss was the first for Texas on the road since May 11.

Boddicker (4-4) gave up four hits in eight innings for his first victory since May 12 while raising his lifetime record against Texas to 13-4. He retired the last 16 Rangers he faced. Jeff Montgomery got his 10th save.

Yankees 5, Blue Jays 3

Mel Hall's run-scoring single snapped a sixth-inning tie and Don Mattingly returned from an injury with a key homer as surging New York rallied to win.

Scott Sanderson (7-2) gave up eight hits in 6 2-3 innings, retiring 11 in a row at one point. Steve Farr got his fourth save.

White Sox 4, Indians 1

Jack McDowell took the league lead in complete games and Frank Thomas had two RBIs as visiting Chicago ended Cleveland's four-game winning streak.

McDowell (6-3) allowed four hits while striking out eight and walking one in his fourth complete game.

Red Nichols (0-4) allowed eight hits in 3 1-3 innings. Thomas finished Nichols with a two-run single in the fourth.

Mariners 8, Tigers 6

Henry Cotto hit a two-run homer and scored four times as visiting Seattle handed Detroit its seventh straight defeat.

The Mariners won for the fourth time in five games and Brian Holman (6-5) got his second straight victory. Mike Jackson got his sixth save.

Twins 4, Orioles 3

A pinch-hit single by slumping Randy Bush with two out in the 10th inning gave surging Minnesota the victory at the Metrodome.

Orel doesn't get win, but pitches strong game

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Orel Hershiser's surgically repaired shoulder is fine. Now all the Los Angeles Dodgers' right-hander has to work on is his luck.

Hershiser's comeback from a shoulder operation last year took a giant step forward on Tuesday night when he pitched 6 1-3 shutout innings in St. Louis, allowing only two hits. He left after his right hamstring tightened up, but was still in line for his 100th career victory before the Cardinals' Milt Thompson hit a game-tying sacrifice fly in the ninth.

After Mike Sharperson's RBI single in the top of the 11th gave the Dodgers a 2-1 lead, Thompson came through again, hitting a two-out, two-run triple in the bottom of the inning to give the Cardinals a 3-2 victory.

"This was a big outing for me," said Hershiser, who gave up four runs and nine hits in his return, an 8-2 loss to Houston last Wednesday. "I'm not going to say that I'm all the way back. I'm working on reminding myself that my stuff is good enough."

Thompson, for one, was impressed.

"He did a great job. He mixed his pitches up," Thompson said of Hershiser. "He was in and out. He was throwing breaking balls away on me, fastballs on me."

Hershiser struck out five and walked three. He threw 81 pitches, 45 for strikes, and retired 11 in a row at one point after loading the bases in the second inning.

Hershiser strained his right hamstring running out a fifth-inning double and left when it began to tighten after he retired Todd Zeile on first baseman Eddie Murray's throw to start the seventh.

Singles by Chris Gwynn, Kal Daniels and Lenny Harris in the fourth accounted for Los Angeles' first run. St. Louis tied it in the ninth off Jay Howell when Ray Lankford singled, stole second, went to third on Zeile's one-out single and scored on Thompson's fly ball to medium-deep right field.

Sharperson's pinch-hit RBI single off Lee Smith (3-2) gave the Dodgers the lead in the top of the 11th, but Lankford's single and a walk to Zeile preceded Thompson's game-winning triple off Jim Gott (0-1).

Expos 4, Astros 1

Tom Rynnless got a win in his debut as a major league manager as Montreal won at the Astrodome. Delino DeShields' two-run homer in the sixth off Pete Harnisch (3-4) put Montreal ahead to stay and enabled the Expos to snap a five-game losing streak. Houston has lost five in a row.

Mark Gardner (1-2) allowed five hits in 7 1-3 innings. Barry Jones pitched the ninth for his third save.

Giants 5, Pirates 3

Will Clark snapped the Pirates' nine-game winning streak by snapping out of a personal 3-for-36 slump with a three-run homer and four RBIs.

Clark's homer in the first off Zane Smith (7-3) gave the Giants the lead, and his RBI single in the fourth snapped a 3-3 tie after Barry Bonds' two-run homer in the third pulled Pittsburgh even.

Bulls

Questions like: — Where did the Bulls' running game go?

— And, can they win the series if they lose the first two games at home with the next three on the road?

With outstanding open court players like Jordan and Scottie Pippen and strong spot-up shooters like John Paxson, the Bulls are best when the pace is quick.

The Lakers, a fastbreak team in the 1980s when they won five titles, have switched to a slower pace. They controlled the tempo in the opener of the best-of-7 series, using a deliberate post-up attack.

"We want them to take long outside shots," Chicago's Horace Grant said. "Hopefully, we'll get the rebound and get the ball to Michael, John or Scottie to push it up against their transition defense."

"If Magic has the ball in his hands, he's great at doing what he wants and getting it to people who can score," Paxson said. "Maybe we'll press a little bit more and try to make other (Lakers) make decisions on the run and get it more of a frenetic pace."

"That (fastbreak) game suits them, so we'd rather not get into it," Johnson said. "But we can still play that way, too, if we have to."

Chicago lost the opener by just two points. Had Sam Perkins' 3-pointer not gone in with 14 seconds left, the Bulls would have been ahead by two. Had Jordan's open jumper with 4.9 seconds to go dropped through, they would have been up by one.

It was a back-and-forth battle that neither team dominated for long.

"I don't think there was anything wrong with our game Sunday except they stopped the clock a little bit too early," Jackson said.

The Bulls said they can run better if they improve on the defensive boards, creating turnovers and playing tighter defense that forces the Lakers to put up low percentage outside shots.

Chicago players said they must improve their low-post defense against Worthy and Perkins. They drew single coverage there for most of the first game and led Los Angeles with 22 points each.

"We will definitely double-team some," Grant said, "make them give the ball up more."

When they can't run, the Bulls plan to rely more on their own low-post game. Grant and Cartwright, the players who would fill those spots on the floor, each scored just six points on 3-of-8 shooting in the opener.

"We've got to go down low to guys like Bill (Cartwright) and Horace," Pippen said. "We never established our inside game."

Chicago, which had its NBA record 15-game home playoff winning streak broken Sunday, is in danger of becoming the first team to lose the first two games at home in the Finals.

Brown was running scared

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Soul legend James Brown, who served two years in prison after a run-in with police that included an interstate chase, says he empathizes with Rodney King.

Brown, promoting his first concert since his Feb. 27 parole, was asked Tuesday about King, the Los Angeles motorist whose beating by police was videotaped by a bystander and broadcast nationwide.

Brown said he and King had similar experiences.

"I shared it in 1988 — and people thought I was crazy because I

Ali goes from punching to preaching

DEER LAKE, Pa. (AP) —

Muhammad Ali strolled memory lane at his former training camp and said he'll be as great an evangelist as he was a boxer.

Ali first won the world heavyweight boxing title in 1964 and later regained it twice more before Larry Holmes captured it in 1980. He retired from the ring in 1981.

Parkinson's disease has left his speech slurred and his body shaky.

But Ali's face lit up as he neared Deer Lake on Tuesday.

"It's just like old times," said Ali, 49.

"Boxing was my field mission, the first part of my life," said Ali, a Muslim.

THURSDAY, JUNE 6, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Although the road to success is not always easy for those born on this date, you will eventually reach the top. The year 1991 may be the best you have had for some time where romance and business are concerned! Extra effort will pay off in your personal life, beginning in October. Frequent trips away could cause your loved ones to complain of neglect. Be patient. A career change in early 1992 will bring new emotional and financial security.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: tennis star Bjorn Borg, patriot Nathan Hale, shortstop Bud Harrelson, author Thomas Mann.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): New developments appear to complicate an already tough situation. It is best for you to remain neutral in office disputes. Schedule important meetings and make key phone calls.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You feel optimistic. Mate or partner shows greater inclination to go along with your ideas. Be certain you have all available information before making an important decision.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do not let vague suspicions cloud your judgment. A positive attitude works wonders with a skeptical partner. You receive the go-ahead for a special project. Friends show new interest in your goals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take the bull by the horns and sort out a difficult personnel situation. Your co-workers will applaud your efforts and integrity. Spur-of-the-moment social engagements are apt to be fun. Relax.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Employment matters come under closer scrutiny. You get a chance to prove your worth. Be certain to fulfill your obligations to an older friend or associate. Higher-ups do not want to hear excuses.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Financial strain will result if you continue to be extravagant. A candid talk with your mate or partner could inspire a budget revision. Look for less expensive ways to entertain.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Hard work and diplomacy will help you win influential friends. An employment situation begins to improve. Be careful when around heavy machinery and electrical equipment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A good day for signing legal documents. You get a golden opportunity to expand your horizons. Think about your long-range plans when setting a savings goal. Be careful about romance on the rebound.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Play your cards close to the chest. Important lines of communication are reconnected. The ideal romantic partner will have a sense of humor and fun.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Luck continues to play a key role in your business dealings. Potential clients may come into sight at a social function. Plan major purchase with care. Your cash flow could slow down.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Financial speculation would worsen rather than improve a situation that is troubling you. Go to the top for help. Employers can be unusually understanding when the chips are down.

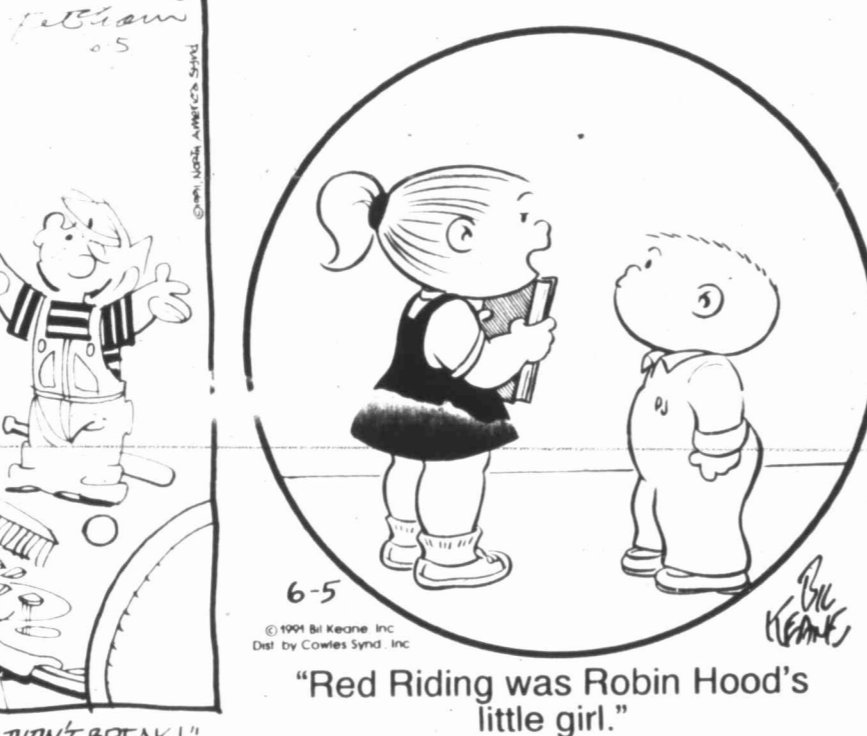

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take out your magnifying glass and examine every detail of a project. Use your contacts to prevent someone from encroaching on what is rightfully yours. Romance could have its rocky moments.

Here Comes the Bride

Legend has it that the first bridal shower took place in Holland after a father forbade his daughter's marriage to a poor miller because he didn't approve of her choice of husband. The daughter, determined to marry her true love, was "showered" with gifts by her friends so that she would be able to set up housekeeping despite the lack of a traditional dowry.

Today, bridal showers don't take place under such dire circumstances. Instead, a shower is a happy prenuptial festivity that often provides a welcome respite for the bride in the hectic weeks before the wedding. If you are responsible for planning a bridal shower, try to make it a relaxing and leisurely occasion while retaining a special and elegant atmosphere. One way to do this is by designing the shower as an afternoon tea party. The bride and guests will be pleasantly surprised and charmed by this stylish touch! Here are some ideas to get you started.

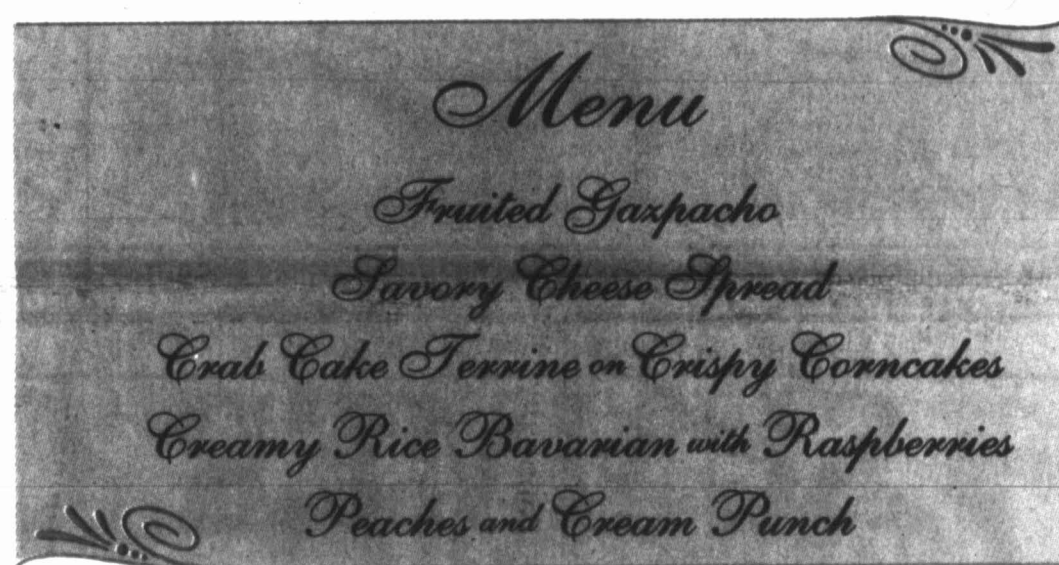

Create the proper ambience; set out your finest china and prettiest table linens. An arrangement of fresh flowers provides the perfect centerpiece.

Tea, of course, is mandatory. Whether you choose loose tea or tea bags, always brew the tea in a teapot. Don't limit guests to hot tea; tall glasses of iced tea will provide cooling refreshment. (Tea has a history of involvement in prenuptial rituals. In ancient times in China, a young woman's prospective in-laws would give her a gift of tea when she and their son were about to become engaged. If she accepted the tea, it was an indication that she was also ready to accept a marriage proposal!)

A typical teatime menu includes something savory, something sweet and all delicious. The recipes below will make a sumptuous spread.

One bridal shower tradition calls for a pink cake with a thimble or ring baked into it to be served. Supposedly the next bride will be the woman whose piece of cake contains the trinket! Creamy Rice Bavarian with Raspberries breaks with this tradition but includes as a main ingredient a traditional wedding food: rice. A symbol of fertility in ancient times, rice was originally thrown at the bridal couple to wish them many children.

While teatime treats are usually sinful, high-caloric concoctions, these recipes are lower in fat and cholesterol than their traditional counterparts. This is achieved by using low-fat dairy products and Knox® Unflavored Gelatine. Knox is an all-natural ingredient ideal for lighter recipes because it gives a smooth, luscious consistency to many recipes which generally rely on fat and sugar for their creaminess.

Fruited Gazpacho

Offer guests fresh fruit with flair!

- | | |
|--------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 1 envelope unflavored gelatine | 2 cups cut-up cantaloupe, pureed |
| 1/4 cup cold water | 1 teaspoon grated lime peel |
| 1/4 cup sugar | Suggested Fresh Fruit* |
| 1-1/2 cups orange juice | |
| 3/4 cup tomato juice | |

In small saucepan, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over cold water; let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 3 minutes. Stir in sugar until dissolved. In medium bowl, blend orange juice, tomato juice, pureed cantaloupe and lime peel. Gradually add gelatine mixture, stirring until blended. Chill at least 2 hours. Stir in Suggested Fresh Fruit and serve. Makes 8 servings.

*Suggested Fresh Fruit: Use any combination of the following to equal 2 cups - cut-up pineapple or melon; sliced oranges, strawberries, peaches or nectarines; blueberries.

Savory Cheese Spread

This savory offering combines the texture of cheesecake with an herb and garlic crust.

- | | |
|--|---|
| 2 cups fresh bread crumbs | 1 container (16 oz.) 1% milkfat cottage cheese |
| 2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh parsley | 1/4 cup cholesterol-free egg substitute |
| 1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic | 1/2 cup skim milk |
| 2 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil | 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese |
| 1 envelope unflavored gelatine | 2 tablespoons fresh or 2 teaspoons dried basil leaves |
| 1/4 cup cold water | |

Preheat oven to 375°.

Line bottom of 8-inch springform pan with wax paper. Spray sides and bottom with non-stick cooking spray; set aside.

In small bowl, combine bread crumbs, parsley, garlic and olive oil. Press onto bottom and sides of prepared pan. Bake 10 minutes; cool.

In small saucepan, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over cold water; let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 3 minutes.

In blender or food processor, process cottage cheese, egg substitute, milk and Parmesan cheese until smooth. While processing, through feed cap, gradually add gelatine mixture and process until blended; stir in basil. Pour into cooled crust and chill until firm, about 2 hours. Serve with assorted crackers or breads. Makes 12 appetizer servings.

Crab Cake Terrine

It tastes like a crab cake, but it's a pâté! This recipe's flavors are nicely balanced when served with open-faced tea sandwiches made with cucumber, watercress and piped cream cheese.

- | | |
|--|---|
| 2 envelopes unflavored gelatine | 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce |
| 1/2 cup cold water | 12 ounces fresh, canned or imitation crabmeat |
| 1 cup skim milk | 1/3 cup finely chopped green onions |
| 3/4 cup fresh bread crumbs | 1/3 cup finely chopped red pepper |
| 1 container (8 oz.) plain low-fat yogurt | Crispy Corncakes (recipe follows) |
| 1/2 cup reduced calorie mayonnaise | |
| 3 tablespoons Dijon-style prepared mustard | |

In small saucepan, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over cold water; let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 3 minutes.

In medium bowl, combine milk with bread crumbs. Stir in yogurt, mayonnaise, mustard and Worcestershire sauce until well blended. Slowly drizzle in gelatine mixture, stirring constantly until blended. Fold in crabmeat, green onions and red pepper. Pour into 4-cup terrine mold or 7-1/2 x 3-3/4 x 2-1/4-inch loaf pan; chill until firm, about 3 hours. Serve with Crispy Corncakes or assorted crackers. Makes 4 cups spread.

Crispy Corncakes

The crunch of cornmeal in these corncakes provides a pleasing contrast to the creaminess of the Crab Cake Terrine.

- | | |
|---------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 1/2 cup boiling water | 1/2 teaspoon salt |
| 1/2 cup yellow cornmeal | 1 egg, beaten |
| 1/2 cup all-purpose flour | 1/2 cup milk |
| 2 teaspoons baking powder | 1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted |
| 1 teaspoon chili powder | |
| 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin | |

In medium bowl, pour boiling water over cornmeal; cool.

In medium bowl, combine flour, baking powder, chili powder, cumin and salt. Mix egg, milk and butter with cornmeal mixture; stir into flour mixture until blended. Mixture will be runny. On heated griddle or skillet sprayed with non-stick cooking spray, drop mixture by tablespoons. Cook over medium heat until bottom is crispy brown and top looks dry; turn and brown other side. Makes 3 dozen corncakes.

Note: If batter thickens, add milk to thin to original consistency.

Peaches and Cream Punch

This pretty tea punch is a festive party beverage!

- | | |
|---|--|
| 4 cups boiling water | 2 cups Champagne or seltzer, chilled |
| 6 Lipton Flo-Thru Regular or Decaffeinated Tea Bags | 2 cups (1 pt.) frozen low-fat vanilla yogurt |
| 4 cans (12 oz. each) peach nectar, chilled | |

In teapot, pour boiling water over tea bags; cover and brew 5 minutes. Cool. In chilled 4-quart punch bowl, blend peach nectar with tea. Add Champagne. Top with scoops of yogurt and garnish, if desired, with fresh peach slices. Serve immediately. Makes 24 (4-oz.) servings.

Nutrition Information Per Serving: Calories 77, Protein 1g, Carbohydrate 14g, Fat 0g, Sodium 20mg, Cholesterol 1mg

Creamy Rice Bavarian with Raspberries

The true star of the tea table will be this centerpiece dessert. For best results, don't pour the sauce until you are ready to serve.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1/2 cup uncooked long grain rice | 1-1/2 cups skim milk |
| 2 cups cold water | 1 teaspoon vanilla extract |
| 2 envelopes unflavored gelatine | 1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg |
| 1/2 cup cholesterol-free egg substitute | 2 cups (12 oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed |
| 1/2 cup sugar | Raspberry Sauce* |

In medium saucepan, combine rice with 1-1/2 cups water; bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer covered 30 minutes or until very tender; cool. In small saucepan, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over remaining 1/2 cup water; let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 3 minutes.

In blender or food processor, process egg substitute and sugar until sugar is dissolved, about 2 minutes. While processing, through feed cap, gradually add milk and gelatine mixture and process until blended. Pour into large bowl; stir in vanilla and nutmeg. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon, about 5 minutes. Fold in cooled rice, then whipped topping. Pour into 6-1/2-cup mold or bowl; chill until firm, about 3 hours.

Unmold and serve with Raspberry Sauce. Garnish, if desired, with fresh raspberries and strawberries. Makes 12 servings.

*Raspberry Sauce: In small bowl, combine 1 package (12 oz.) frozen unsweetened raspberries, thawed, pureed and sieved, 1/3 cup black currant liqueur and 3 tablespoons sugar; chill. Makes 1-1/2 cups sauce.

Nutrition Information Per Serving: Calories 217, Protein 4g, Carbohydrate 32g, Fat 8g, Sodium 38mg, Cholesterol 1mg

How to Brew a Perfect Pot of Lipton® Tea

- Start with freshly drawn cold water. Cold water is aerated (full of oxygen) and brings out the full character of tea.
- Bring the water to a full rolling boil to release the full flavor and fragrance from the tea leaves.
- Preheat the teapot by filling with hot water and swirling around before emptying.

- Use one Lipton Tea Bag per cup to achieve maximum flavor, color and body.
- Pour boiling water over tea bags; cover and brew for 3 to 5 minutes.
- Squeeze tea bags gently and remove. Serve, if desired, with sugar, milk, lemon or honey.

Open-faced tea sandwiches can be prepared the morning of the shower, covered and refrigerated. To give sandwiches a nice sheen and prevent them from drying out on the serving tray, try this "Spritz."

Knox Gelatine Spritz

- 1 envelope Knox Unflavored Gelatine
- 1 cup cold water

In small saucepan, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over 1/4 cup cold water; let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 3 minutes. Stir in remaining water.

Fill spray bottle with gelatine mixture. Spray onto surface of prepared open-faced sandwiches until lightly coated.

Unused gelatine mixture in spray bottle will gel; set in hot water to soften.

The Tournament Pros Talk About New Marine Propulsion System Introduced Their Favorite Fishing Knots

One of the favorite topics at any fishing clinic or seminar is knots; which ones are best in specific situations, which are easiest to tie, which have the strongest hold.

Ask the professional tournament fishermen their favorites and the answers are both varied and many times similar.

Denny Brauer, a DuPont Pro Staffer and winner of over eight national tour titles plus '87 Angler of the Year honors, uses the improved clinch a majority of the time.

"I've tried it on the knot strength testing machine at the DuPont booth at consumer fishing shows," Brauer said. "It may not be the strongest knot but it's easy to tie with any lure and I can do it quickly, because in bass tournaments it's important to have your line in the water to catch the fish. The improved clinch is a hard knot to mess up and go wrong with."

"Some knots are stronger but easy to mess up," Brauer said. "Certain knots because of the way they are tied actually can weaken if tied slightly incorrect or when you tie it in a hurry."

"On the water we don't examine the knot that much. It's repetition in tying them, so we have to be confident in our choice of knots."

Brauer said many pros use the Palomar or the Uni as their first choices of popular all-around knots to use.

"Both are good knots but I'm satisfied with the improved clinch and haven't had to learn anything else," Brauer stated.

"The only time I'll use another knot is to give a special lure, like some top water lures, a little more freedom. I use a half-inch loop type knot to give more play and motion, sort of a walking the dog effect," he said, gesturing with his hands.

Another popular DuPont Pro Staffer Shaw Grigsby says he uses a double improved clinch knot as his primary knot with a Palomar and a king sling in special situations.

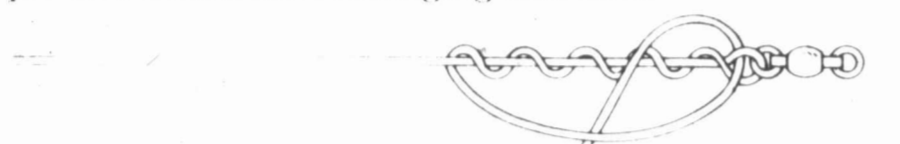

"It's tied the same way as the improved clinch, but you double your line," Grigsby explained. "It's not easy to tie for some people but it is for me. It's my power knot for use with a heavy bait and in heavy cover. I learned it at 15 from a tarpon fishing guide that used it."

"For quite a while I was one of the only persons in bass tournaments using it but it's gotten more recognition. It has 98% knot strength when tied properly. I feel it's right above the Palomar. For some it may seem bulky but it holds up in deep cover and around rocks and submerged trees."

"I use it when flipping 30 lb. test in 'power fishing' situations to set a hook hard while worm fishing. I even use it

Improved Clinch Knot

This is a good knot for making terminal-tackle connections and is best used for lines up to 20-pound test. It is a preferred knot by professional fishermen and angling authorities.

1. Pass line through eye of hook, swivel, or lure. Double back and make five turns around the standing line. Hold coils in place; thread end of line around first loop above the eye, then through big loop as shown.

2. Hold tag end and standing line while coils are pulled up. Take care that coils are in spiral, not lapping over each other. Slide tight against eye. Clip tag end.

with 8 lb. line in clear water," he added.

His second choice especially with ultra-light line of 6 lbs. is the Palomar. He uses the king sling for special top water action "spook" lures and crank baits.

"The Palomar has a small knot for keeping presentation down where the action of the specific lure won't be impeded," Grigsby said, adding it's an easy and fast knot to teach young fishermen to tie because of its simplicity.

Brauer and Grigsby agree fishermen don't need to know how to tie that many knots. The key, no matter what knot you tie, is to develop confidence in it and learn to tie it consistently. And they both emphasized that using quality fishing lines like 'High Impact, Stren, Magnathin or 'Prime Plus' adds to the lines' strength and the confidence of the fisherman.

Outboard Marine Corporation (OMC) has introduced a new propulsion system that was designed to power the new Sunbird Eurosport 190. According to Charles Hall, OMC's chief engineer, technology, the OMC Quiet Rider propulsion system allows the Eurosport 190 to offer the performance of an outboard powered craft coupled with the styling of a stern drive powered boat, without the crowded interior.

"In developing the propulsion system, one of our goals was to be able to offer the performance power today's boat buyer wants," said Hall. "We chose two-cycle power because it offered the optimal power to weight ratio needed to achieve the best performance from the rig."

The OMC Quiet Rider propulsion system features an oil injected, two-cycle engine rated at 90 horsepower or 67.1 kilowatts. The engine was selected for this application because of its ability to provide the low-end torque necessary for pulling skiers up and to get the boat on plane, quickly.

Since the OMC Quiet Rider system is designed to be an integral part of the boat's stringer system and hidden from sight, it is not mounted to the hull in the conventional manner. It is mounted to the boat's stringers by a unique bracket engine, which is at a point located between the upper and lower engine covers. Since this center is located near the engine's center of gravity, the unit can be structurally weighted about this axis. This structural weighting reduces the load on the bracket assembly, hydraulic trim cylinders and shock absorbers, even if the unit is trimmed up to its maximum position.

The bracket assembly consists of two tubular struts attached to mounting brackets and is designed to support the powerplant away from the transom.

Mounting the unit to the ends of the stringers coupled with an isolation system reduces engine noise and propeller vibration transmitted from the power system to the hull and cockpit area.

This bracket assembly allows the engine to rotate within its own profile as the unit is trimmed. Whether being trimmed in or out, it will not exceed an arc 15 inches from the point of pivot. This keeps the trim/tilt clearance envelope at a minimum to allow improved styling of the signature lines and the boat's rear deck.

Rotation of the engine within its own profile is achieved by positioning the pivot point at the geometric center of the

It's time to reduce, reuse and recycle

In the 1990s, there are certain "buzz words" that will mark this decade. Among them are the three R's...reduce, reuse and recycle.

The average person throws away about 3 1/2 lbs. of garbage per day. At that rate, it has been estimated that most current U.S. landfills will be filled to capacity by the mid '90s.

What goes into the typical landfill? Here's how the trash stacks up by weight:

Paper and paperboard	34%
Yard wastes	20%

Metals	8%
Food waste	9%
Plastics	9%
Glass	7%
Other	13%

Plastic is one of the most energy-efficient materials to make and to recycle. Plastics are recyclable, and as technology matures, more and more communities will be involved in plastics recycling. Because of the inherent characteristics of plastic, it can be reused over and over again, making it quite practical for recycling.

Best Camping Tips

Eureka! offers some top tips for a safe, successful, and most important, relaxing camping vacation. Always remember the fragile environment and treat it gently for the generations to come.

- Make a checklist of what you need to bring and plan your meals. Test all gear before you leave and know how to set up your tent.
- Remember, clothing and sleeping bags keep you warm; tents keep you dry. Seam-seal your tent at home and use a separate plastic groundcloth to help keep rain out.
- Be prepared for rain; bring rain coats and a variety of clothing for changing weather temperatures.
- Use established campsites if available. Don't pitch tents beneath dead trees or especially tall trees. Choose an area that is flat or gently graded, free from large rocks, sticks and heavy brush. The door of the tent should face downhill.
- Bring along a First Aid kit. It should contain remedies for insect stings, sunburn, poison ivy, cuts and burns; bandages, antiseptic ointment and a reference card.
- Freeze meats and poultry before packing them for the trip. By the time you get to the campsite the first night, they will be ready for

When buying a tent, choose one that suits your camping style and one that's bigger than what you think you'll need.

- cooking. Also, pre-chill food and drink.
- Block ice stays longer, but crushed ice cools faster. As a recycling and cost-saving tip, freeze water in plastic litre bottles from pop or milk and use them as block ice. Food will stay cool for a longer time.
- Keep coolers of food in the car at night, or if you're away from the campsite during the day. Never leave food in the tent.
- Bring a utility kit with: light nylon cord, screwdriver, pliers, ax, saw, pocket knife, extra matches.
- Use a cardboard box for all kitchen equipment, and a variety of ziplock bags for storing food, wet dishrags and bar soaps.
- For environmental purposes, use biodegradable soap, don't make new trails through the woods and leave your campsite cleaner than you found it.

Quick Tips For Fishing Knots

"The number one problem with most anglers in catching fish, is not their fishing ability," said nationally known fishing pro Denny Brauer. "It's the lack of effort or of education not to retie the knot."

"So many fishermen are under the impression that once the knot is tied that's it," adds fellow fishing pro Shaw Grigsby, "but that loses fish."

Grigsby and Brauer, both DuPont Pro Staffers, offered these quick tips on tying knots:

- Pick two or three knots that have good ratings for not only strength, but use in various situations such as "power" fishing, and for use with action and specialty lures. (Their suggestions for all-around knots to choose from are the improved clinch, the double improved clinch, the Palomar or the Uni.)
- If a knot is too time consuming and difficult for you to tie consistently, pick another knot.
- Practice! When not fishing, practice tying it quickly and correctly. On the water you want to spend as much time as you can fishing than taking extra time to tie a knot.

When To Retie A Knot

- Retie after fighting a fish in heavy cover. The knot may be fine but the several feet of line above the lure may have come in contact with and been nicked by underwater obstructions or stretched in the fight. Take several feet off and retie.
 - Retie the knot after catching every fish. Bass for instance have sandpaper teeth and can fray the line in their fight. You never know when that "lunker" may strike and you lose it on a weakened knot from a previous fish.
 - Retie after you've made a number of casts. Some heavy lures put a strain on the knot, and the contact of the line to the metal eye on the lure, swivel or hook also weakens the knot. Brauer says in tournaments he religiously reties every 15 minutes.
- Grigsby and Brauer point out it only takes a few seconds to retie a knot and it could mean the difference in taking a trophy sized fish ... or losing it.

All-Around Performance Found In New Watercraft Introduction

High performance has always attracted the attention of boaters.

This year for watercraft enthusiasts who want all-around performance, Sea-Doo has introduced the Sea-Doo XP model.

A leading watersport magazine, Water Scooter, reported: "With a top speed of 45 mph, traditionally impressive Sea-Doo handling and flashy graphics, the XP is like nothing else on the market today."

The new Sea-Doo XP watercraft has a top speed of 45 mph.

A Designated Driver in Boating Makes Sense

Everyone knows a Designated Driver, but did you know that boaters can be Designated Drivers too? More and more people are designating one member of each party who will not drink alcoholic beverages in order to drive home and make sure everyone gets home safely.

The Designated Driver concept has gained widespread public acceptance among automobile drivers, but many boat drivers still continue to take the helm under the influence of alcohol.

To increase awareness of the Designated Driver concept among boaters, the National Marine Manufacturers Association (NMMA), and the Miller Brewing Company have produced a public service campaign to promote the Designated Driver concept on the water.

They encourage everyone to designate a driver who will not drink for the safety and welfare of all passengers.

Some people who wouldn't consider driving a car while intoxicated think nothing of taking the helm of a boat in the same condition.

Just because there are no roads or traffic signals on the water does not mean driving a boat is easier. The lack of these things can make it even more difficult, especially while intoxicated.

Only one third the amount of alcohol that makes a person legally too drunk to drive on the road is enough to rob the boat driver of his critical judgement on the water.

Boating is a national pastime enjoyed by more than 70 million Americans on close to 20 million boats on our nation's waterways. Alcohol is involved in at least 60 percent of all fatal boating accidents and is a contributing factor in many more non-fatal accidents.

Most people think boating is a relaxing activity, but it is actually stressful to the body. The boat's vibration, noise and motion, combined with sun, wind and glare, cause boating fatigue.

Studies show that the combination of alcohol and boating fatigue dramatically reduces the boat driver's judgement, coordination, stability and ability to react — a dangerous combination!

So remember that a Designated Driver makes sense, whether you're on the road or on the water.

Turkey Made Easy

Free Pamphlet Available

Although patience is a rare virtue in today's hurry-up society, it may be the most important ingredient of successful turkey hunting. Often, the hunter who sits the longest is the one who bags a gobbler every season.

Fanny fatigue is an affliction the turkey hunter may have to endure if he is to take a bird. But veteran hunters agree that a quality constructed turkey vest like the Browning Turkey Vest, which features a cushioned seat and a cushioned backrest, will relieve fanny fatigue and increase their odds for bagging gobblers.

A turkey vest also aids in carrying an assortment of calls which is helpful when a longbearded bronze baron is selective in responding to calls. A hunter may have to use a variety of different types of calls before he determines which call the bird prefers.

TURKEY HUNTING TIPS

If you're hunting hard, a duel with a tom may continue until well after lunch. Then your need for food may replace your desire to take a turkey. Wearing a vest with ample room to store your lunch definitely makes turkey hunting easier.

In many magazines, we see the proud hunter pictured with a 20 pound plus gobbler slung over his shoulder walking out of the woods. However, this method of transporting a turkey becomes inefficient after walking 50 yards. With all the bird's weight on your shoulder, your muscles will begin to cramp, your arms and back will ache, and you quickly will realize a better way must exist to get a gobbler out of the woods. Putting the bird in the game bag of a turkey vest will distribute its weight more evenly across your shoulders, back and waist and enable you to carry the trophy much further, and more comfortably.

Because a turkey hunter needs not only calls, a lunch and game bag but also insect repellent, a headnet, gloves, a compass, matches, a knife, shells and possibly a lightweight raincoat and a space blanket, a turkey vest is helpful for carrying equipment into and out of the woods. You'll find gobbler chasing easier, more fun and more efficient when you wear a turkey vest to store and carry your gear and to sit on when hunting turkeys.

For free information on turkey hunting, send a self addressed, stamped envelope (S.A.S.E.) to Browning, Route 1, Morgan, UT 84050-9749 to receive the pamphlet, "10 Secrets of the Turkey Hunting Masters."

Energy efficiency and conservation begin at home Ecologically sensitive areas are using recycling toilets

By AVIAN ROGERS

Ⓢ An energy-efficient home is a more cost-effective home, particularly since heating and cooling costs are still on the rise.

Your home, like your car, is a total system that runs more efficiently when it is properly tuned-up for the changing seasons. "Weatherizing" your home is an inexpensive investment that could cut as much as 30 percent from your yearly energy bill, according to Texaco Inc., one of the nation's largest suppliers of home heating oil.

Improving your home's energy efficiency can be as basic as turning down the thermostat just four degrees during the day, lowering the temperature in your water heater from high to medium, using fluorescent instead of incandescent light bulbs, closing doors and heating vents in unused rooms, and shutting fireplace dampers when not in use.

There also are larger investments you can make to save energy, such as installing tight fitting storm windows, upgrading the furnace, or purchasing energy-efficient appliances.

Insulating

One important way to increase your home's energy efficiency is to make sure you have the properly rated insulation for your attic, ceilings, walls, floors, pipes and ducts. The attics and walls of most homes are insulated, but if you are not sure yours are, investigate.

Add insulation where you need it. Floors are typically uninsulated and adding it can make a tremendous difference. Also, increase the amount of insulation wherever it is below standard. Check with your local home center or lumber yard for the proper codes or requirements (described in terms of resistance or "R-values") for your area.

Remember, the initial expense of adding insulation usually pays for itself in less than five years.

Test for drafts

Among the simplest measures to save energy and costs that homeowners and even apartment dwellers can undertake are weatherstripping and caulking to seal air leaks and retain heat.

Test your windows and doors for airtightness by moving a lighted candle around the frames and sashes of the windows. If the flame flickers, you definitely need weatherstripping.

Outside air will seep into your house through the cracks between doors and windows unless they are weatherstripped. Caulking also should be applied to the fixed cracks on the exterior of the house to further restrict drafts. Sealing those leaks by weatherstripping and caulking could increase energy savings by up to 10 percent.

Weatherstripping

You can prevent air from escaping through cracks around the edges of loose-fitting windows and doors by installing weatherstripping. Double-hung or casement wood windows are usually the worst offenders. Weatherstripping should be applied along the jamb or frame of the window, as well as where the two windows meet in the middle. Aluminum windows are usually well-sealed but have low heat resistance due to their metal frames.

Four types of weatherstripping are suitable for windows: 1) spring-bronze weatherstrip; 2) tubular vinyl with adhesive backing; 3) V-shaped plastic; and 4) foam-filled vinyl with a flange for nailing.

Doors use the same type of weatherstripping as windows, but the more rigid spring-bronze, V-strip or tubular vinyl weatherstripping with stiff edges usually hold up the best.

Finally, a great deal of heat is lost through the cracks between doors and thresholds. The best solution is a wood or aluminum threshold with a rubber gasket that fits snugly against the bottom of the door. More simply, a vinyl strip can be attached along the bottom of the door to close this crack.

Caulking

All gaps and cracks should be filled, no matter how small a hairline crack it is. Door and window frames are the most obvious offenders, but also check other areas of the house: along floorboards; by baseboards; along foundation walls; around vents; pipes and holes made by cable and phone installations; or any other extrusions that penetrate the exterior wall.

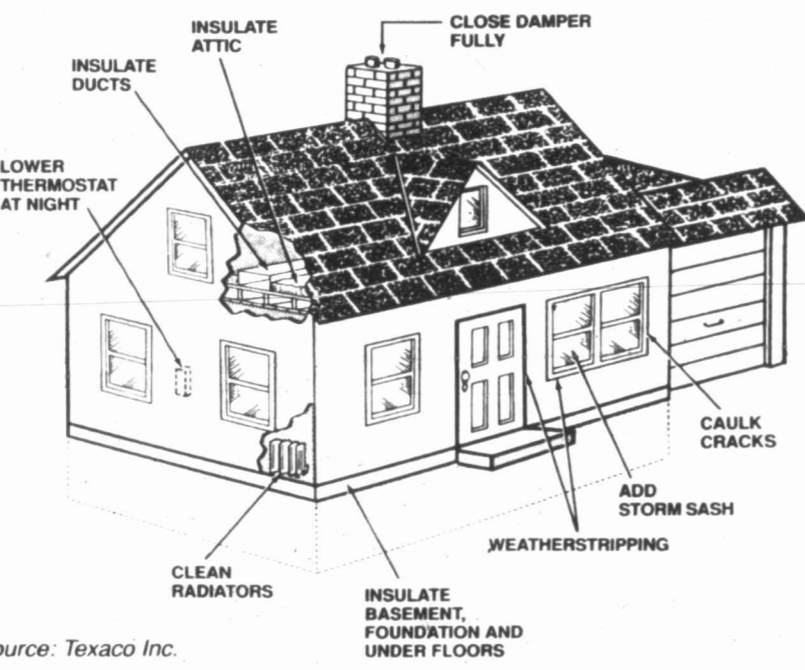

Caulking also provides an important added benefit — it will prevent water from seeping into cracks, thereby protecting your house from costly water damage. Durable caulking costs an average of $3-$5 per tube, with a total job costing $20-$30.

All of these simple energy saving projects will result in long-term comfort and cost-saving. They will not require a major investment of your time and can generally be accomplished on a weekend afternoon. EE917833

The wonders and plight of the world's tropical forests

"Tropical Rainforests: A Disappearing Treasure," an exhibition that explores the diversity of life and the threats to the delicate ecology of the world's rain forests, will be on view at the American Museum of Natural History in New York from Friday, March 8 through Sunday, June 2.

According to a report released by the United Nations in 1982, an area of rain forest five times the size of Manhattan is destroyed every day. Each year an area nearly the size of New York State is lost, and every 10 years an area the size of the northeastern United States is destroyed. It is estimated that at the present rate all of the world's rain forests could be destroyed by the year 2081.

"Tropical Rainforests: A Disappearing Treasure" will explain what is at stake if the rain forests are destroyed, and examine the tremendous biological diversity of some of the lushest environments of the world.

Researchers estimate that nearly half of the world's plant and animal species live in tropical forests. "Tropical Rainforests" will examine this concentration of life, and explain why it exists. A life-size model of a gigantic buttressed fig tree, a crucial link in the tropical forest ecosystem, will demonstrate the complex interdependence of life in the rain forest.

The exhibition will examine the cultures of the peoples who live in the rain forests, exploring the lifestyles of tribes indigenous to these regions, and of recent settlers. "Tropical Rainforests" will illustrate the ties that widely varying cultures, including our own, have with the rain forest.

Many human activities take their toll on the rain forest: timber operations, cattle ranching, war, poorly planned agricultural practices and development projects, the world debt crisis, and human population growth. The complicated issues surrounding each of these problems will be examined in the exhibition.

Case studies will be presented of the immediate consequences and long-term global results of rain forest destruction: climate change, soil erosion, massive extinctions, loss of genetic diversity, disruption of the water cycle, famine, and even economic collapse of governments.

Possible solutions for preserving the rain forest, including establishing large parks and reserves, careful forestry and agriculture, revision of public policies, and restoration and reforestation will be discussed also.

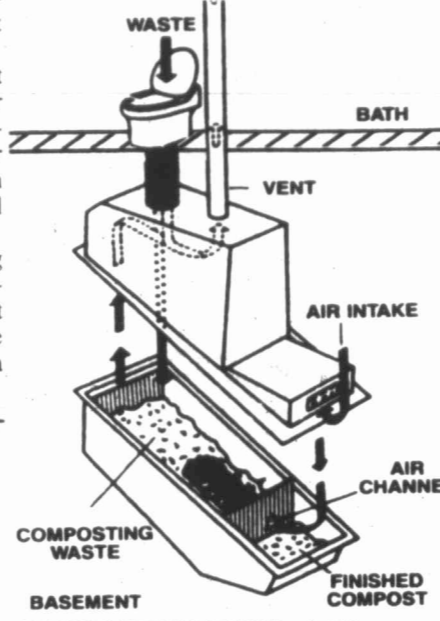

In an interactive video game that predicts the short and long-term outcomes of different management policies, visitors will have the opportunity to put into practice their own conclusions about the best ways to protect the rain forest.

"Tropical Rainforests: A Disappearing Treasure" was organized by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibitions Service (SITES) in cooperation with the World Wildlife Fund. EE918334

Ⓢ A waterless, odorless toilet that recycles human waste into humus for the garden is being used in more and more ecologically sensitive areas.

Developed in Sweden 40 years ago, the composting toilet is manufactured and sold in the U.S. by Clivus Multrum Inc. More than 2,500 units are already in use, about 1,500 in national and state parks and public facilities, another 1,000 in homes.

The Clivus system, according to COMPOSTING TANK of Clivus waterless, odorless toilet is installed in the basement underneath conventional-looking toilet unit. It requires no water or sewage connections and protects the environment.

company president William Bennet, is socially responsive to the country's environmental needs. "The septic system, as we know it," Bennet says, "is systematically polluting our water supply. Clivus both conserves water and protects the environment."

The toilet is conventional looking, except that it needs no water tank or flushing lever. Wastes go directly into a large plastic composting tank in the basement below the toilet. It requires no sewage connection.

Waste deposits are quickly converted by natural biological forces to odorless, non-hazardous water vapor and organic nitrate compost.

A new "low flush" model is available to users who prefer that option. About one gallon of water (versus five or six in the conventional toilet) is used per flush. Waste water is evaporated by the system.

Clivus units are especially popular in public facilities such as national, state and county parks, roadside rest areas, little league ball fields, fishing access ports and military installations. Units are already installed in the Grand Canyon, Yosemite Park and Girl Scout World Headquarters at Edith Macy Environmental Center.

People who live in homes located near lakes or streams or where septic systems are not possible or desirable have found the recycling toilet very practical.

Special filters and soil beds are available to treat the "greywater" from sinks, showers and washing machines to provide entirely sewage-free public facilities or homes.

The only maintenance required is the periodic addition of an organic material, such as wood shavings, and the occasional removal of the compost. Cost is competitive with a traditional toilet and septic system.

A free booklet on the Clivus system is available from Clivus Multrum, 21 Canal Street, Lawrence, MA 01840. EE917969

How to choose a home water treatment system

With the green movement in full swing, the public has become increasingly knowledgeable about water quality both outside and at home. This has translated into a 20 percent growth in residential drinking water equipment in the past five years. There is, however, confusion over how to choose a system. The following are tips on what to consider when shopping for a home water treatment system:

Tip #1: All water treatment devices are not equally effective. Look for a reputable company and make sure the product claims are validated by reputable labs. For example, Shaklee Corporation has a complete line of carbon filtration and reverse osmosis purification systems that have been tested by independent laboratories.

Tip #2: It's a good idea to buy a water treatment system from a company that will help you assess exactly what you need. The salesperson should be knowledgeable and be able to answer questions about what your water pressure is and the level of total dissolved solids in your water. Both of these things will affect the way a treatment system works.

Tip #3: Do your homework. There are so many kinds of water treatment systems on the market now that the selection process can get very confusing. For example, treatment systems that only use a carbon filter do not always effectively remove heavy metals, asbestos, nitrates, salts, and bacteria. Distillation can make your water taste flat.

For a free brochure on water treatment systems, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Shaklee Corporation, 6100 West 73rd Street, Bedford Park, IL 60638. EE917251

ELIMINATING TOXINS FROM YOUR DIET

In the middle ages, poison was par for the course in court intrigue. If you held, coveted, or stood to inherit any power at all, it was in your interest to have an unfortunate servant taste your food before you ate it.

But in the modern, democratic world, we're free of such worries. Right?

Wrong, says David Steinman, author of Diet for a Poisoned Planet (Harmony Books), who has analyzed more than 400 common foods and beverages and found almost all of them to be poisoned to some degree. Virtually no food is free of pesticides or industrial residues, according to Steinman, some of whose findings come from the Environmental Protection Agency.

Though processed foods are more likely to be harmful than fresh or organic foods, not all manufactured products are equal. The book divides foods into three categories — green light, yellow light and red light. Apple pie — in the green light category — has 29 industrial residues, while milk chocolate — in the red light category — has 93.

"Americans have unknowingly been ingesting harmful pesticides and toxins for years, resulting in a great physical and environmental toll in cancer and other diseases," says Steinman, who began his research after discovering the fish he caught and ate off the coast of California were laced with DDT and PCBs. He then tested blood samples of local bay fishermen who ate their catch. He found their DDT and PCB levels to be six to ten times higher than normal.

With Diet for a Poisoned Planet, readers can identify the most and least dangerous foods and begin to detoxify their diets and their bodies. EE917798

Tips On How To Pick A Good Outdoor Boot

Backpackers, hikers and campers for years have known that the proper footwear is a critical ingredient in their enjoyment of the out-of-doors. Birders and turkey hunters not only must have a quality boot like other outdoorsmen, but their boots must be quiet and camouflaged so as not to scare game.

If you're shopping for a boot, here's some qualities to look for in outdoor footwear.

- Choose a boot preferably without deep lugged-soles. The tractor tire-looking soles of a boot will trap and hold mud, which is often found in abundance in wet spring woods, and will make the boot much heavier.

- Select a boot with lightweight construction. The less weight on your feet, the easier walking will be. Over the course of a full day of hunting, an additional six ounces in a pair of boots will result in your feet lifting more than 3,500 lbs. of additional weight.

• Pick a boot with a liner which will wick moisture away from the feet to keep your feet dry, warm and comfortable. Unless perspiration moisture is wicked away, your feet will get cold more easily and be more prone to blisters.

- Choose a boot that has a controlled orthopedic innersole or foot bed to add even more comfort and support to the foot.

• Wear a boot that is camouflaged on the upper portion of the boot so game does not see you.

• Select a boot appropriate for spring and summer wear that also can be worn hunting or hiking in the fall before extreme weather occurs.

• Pick a boot from a reputable manufacturer who will stand behind the quality and workmanship of the footwear you select.

• Choose a boot with insulation to match the conditions you will be encountering. Thinsulate from 3M is a very thin yet highly efficient micro insulation that is available in several weights for varying climates. Many premium boots today incorporate W.L. Gore's Gore-Tex fabric construction which renders the boot waterproof yet breathable. In addition to Gore-Tex construction you should be sure all boot upper materials are treated for water repellency.

One of the boots that fills many needs for all types of outdoor activities is Browning's Gore-Tex Cordura boot, the Nomad.

Avid outdoorsmen may log almost as many miles in their boot as a marathon runner covers in his running shoes. Shoes that are comfortable, functional and lightweight are very important.

To learn how to receive more information on clothing and footwear for all types of outdoor uses, write to Browning, PR Dept., Route 1, Morgan, UT 84050-9749.

No matter whether it's backpacking, hiking, camping or hunting, a quality boot is essential to the enjoyment of the outdoors.

How To Check Your Fishing Line and When To Change It

Fishing line... it's that critical connection between you and the fish. But according to tournament professional Denny Brauer it's hard to convince some people they need to monitor the line and be concerned with it the most.

"You wouldn't believe how much abuse fishing line like the 'Stren' and 'Magnathin' take from underwater debris in some of the areas where we fish," said the popular pro.

Every angler has his or her favorite method for checking their fishing line for nicks and abrasions. Typically it's a questionable section usually several yards above the bait which may have come in contact with line-damaging submerged objects.

The easiest way to check for worn areas which can weaken the lines strength is running it between your lips or between your thumb and forefinger. Backlashes also create nicks in the line reducing its strength and that can occur up above where you normally check.

Brauer says the pros on the bass circuits will change their line every day.

"I usually carry over a dozen rod and reel combinations on my boat, each with a specific purpose. I've been using my flipping rod for several hours in the tournament, and casting with another I'll respool both before the next day of fishing.

"With the others I'll make a judgement call depending on other factors such as heat, cold, color of the water, as to my need to load on fresh line," he said.

"The lighter the line the more often you need to respool. The heavier lines have a bit more tolerance so use your judgement when to change based on how much fishing you have done," he continued.

Brauer also notes that the more time the fishing line is left on the spool especially soaking wet, the less distance you will get. It develops a memory so you aren't casting as far.

In cold temperatures the line gets stiff fer, and hot weather and direct sunlight weakens it as well.

"For the average three or four times a month fisherman, I suggest respooling new line on at least every two months and get into a regular ritual of doing it. If you are just using one rod you'll want to change it more often," he emphasized.

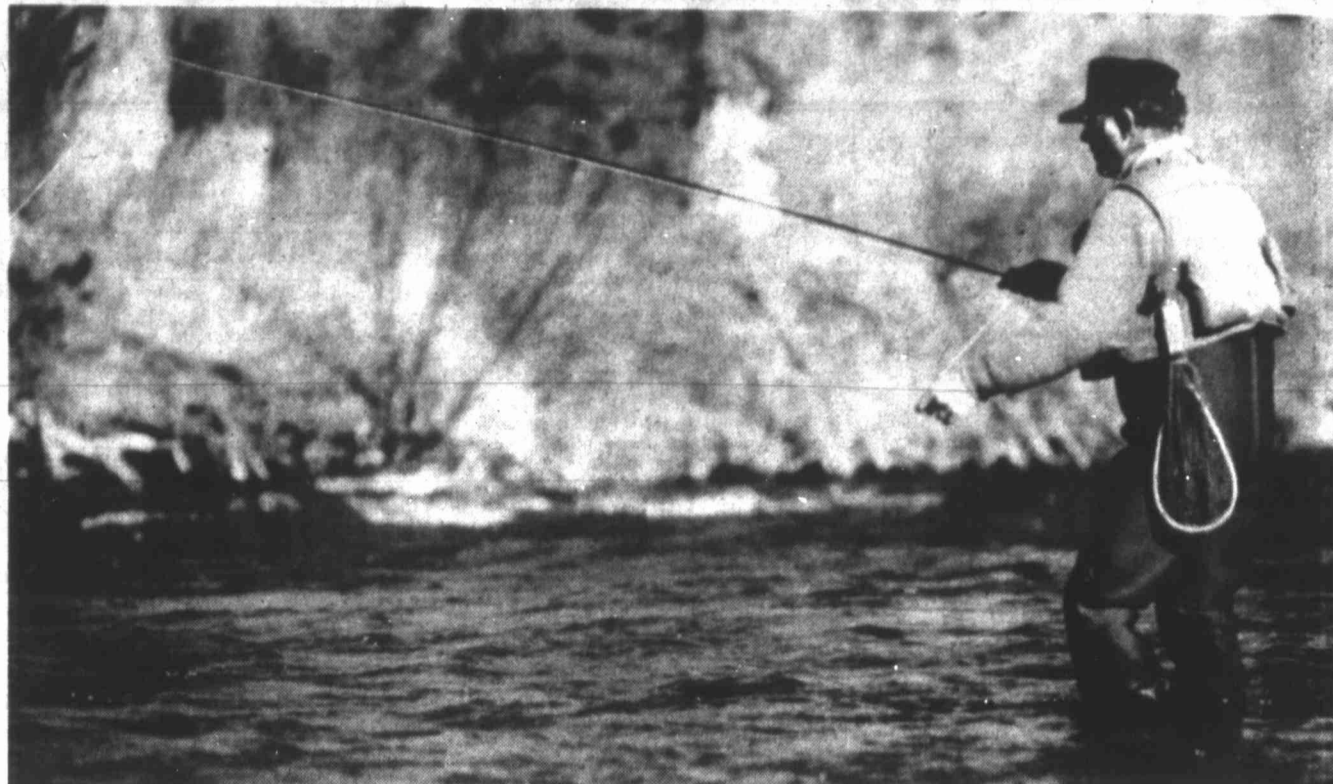

"It also really depends on how serious you are. If you're out for the relaxation and enjoyment waiting two months shouldn't hurt. But if you're real serious about getting trophy size fish, you should consider respooling more often," he said.

Brauer reiterated that fishing line is the most critical part of the outfit. You can have the most expensive rod and reel in the world and have cheap line that can lose that next prize-winning fish, he said.

"Besides, a spool of quality line like 'Stren, Magnum or Prime Plus' is less expensive than many fishing lures on the market," Brauer said.

"Think of it this way," Brauer added with a smile, "you could be losing both that prize fish and your expensive lure."

A wading shoe or a boot foot wader with felt soles provides superior traction on rocks.

Bassin' with the pros

Tips For Purchasing a Bass Boat

"Your major consideration when purchasing a new bass boat should be the size of the water you'll be fishing, as well as the type of fishing you plan to do."

That's the advice of well-known tournament angler Denny Brauer, a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff who has fished from dozens of different types of boats over the years.

"The size of the water you're going to fish should be a major factor in determining the size of the boat you purchase," he says. "If you're going to be out on large impoundments where storms and rough water can be a problem, you want to get a larger boat."

"They're safer, more stable, and easier to maneuver, and once you get caught in really rough water, you'll also realize big boats are worth every penny you spend for them."

"On the other hand," Brauer continued, "if you prefer to fish smaller lakes, you certainly don't need a larger boat."

It is also important to determine how you want to use a boat, adds the Evinrude pro. If you intend to fish national bass tournaments and travel across the country, certain details deserve attention. The same is true if you intend to use your boat for purposes other than fishing, such as skiing or cruising.

"Most tournament bass boats range from just over 17 feet to nearly 20 feet," explains Brauer. "They have dual livewells, raised casting decks, closed tackle storage, and a 12/24 volt electrical system that requires three batteries."

"They are specialized machines just like automobiles, and you can spend as much as $20,000 for one."

If fishing is only one of the uses you plan for your boat, says Brauer, a different interior design might be considered. Many family boats have dual consoles, for example, that are favored by non-fishing passengers.

The size of the boat you purchase will also determine the size of the outboard engine you use. Brauer feels it is just as bad to underpower a boat as it is to overpower one.

"My recommendation is to stay as close to the boat's horsepower rating as possible," he says. "Few marine dealers will overpower a boat today, due to the liability, so that isn't much of a problem."

"Underpowering, however, can severely affect the boat's handling. Hulls are designed to give optimum performance at certain power ranges, and if your small engine doesn't provide enough power, the boat will not run efficiently."

The Evinrude pro strongly suggests purchasing any new boat from a reputable manufacturer, and getting a trailer from that same manufacturer to make certain that it fits the boat.

"Most major boat manufacturers make their own trailers now," says Brauer, "so you know you're getting the proper package. A trailer that doesn't fit the boat will eventually ruin that boat."

Wader Selection For Fly Fishing

Fly fishing's recent surge in popularity has prompted many fledgling anglers to go shopping for waders.

The right wader can make a fly fishing expedition more enjoyable and successful. To help determine the "right" wader, consider the following questions and tips.

- How deep is the water?
Hip waders provide dependable protection in waters below the knees. Chestwaders are designed for high water levels.
- What is the water temperature?
Some waders are more suited to relatively warm waters, while others are for cold-water use. When fly fishing in icy mountain streams, neoprene waders such as James-Scott's AirDry model are often the best choice. Neoprene material can cause the wearer to perspire; the AirDry wader is designed to prevent perspiration build-up, even in mild weather. Non-insulated waders can be converted into insulated waders by wearing special boot socks, such as Red Ball's Thermax boot socks.

- Will the bottom be rocky or muddy?
A wading shoe (for use with stocking foot waders) or a boot foot wader with felt soles generally provides superior traction on rocks. Cleated soles are most often recommended for mud.
- Does the wader fit properly?
Make sure the wader is neither too tight or too loose. When trying on a wader, wear the same clothing that will be used out in the field. After putting on a wader, lift one leg onto a chair to test range of movement. Some waders, such as Red Ball's Flyweights in 200-denier or Supplex® models, are specifically designed for flexibility and comfort. Women often prefer waders made from neoprene because the material comfortably fits the feminine form and makes for a more flattering appearance. Red Ball is the only manufacturer of waders that offers a wide range of true woman-sized waders.

- In what field conditions will the wader be used?
Waders made from a tough material such as 500-denier Cordura are designed to withstand hard wear in rugged country. If a long hike is necessary to reach the fishing spot, a lightweight wader that folds into a small pouch may be the best choice.

Other factors may enter into the wader selection process. For expert advice, consult your local sporting goods dealer.

The size of the water you're going to fish should be a major factor in determining the size of the boat you purchase.

Women's Fishing; We've Come A Long Way Baby

Women's professional fishing has changed dramatically over the last 14 years. Some of today's lady professionals have lucrative contracts ranging from agreements with fishing tackle, boat, and motor manufacturers to television deals and personal appearance contracts. So what's the big deal?

The big deal is that a lot more women are fishing and enjoying it more. Interestingly too, is a recent Sport Fishing Institute study predicting that by the year 2025, the average weekend angler in the United States will be female. Women's involvement in fishing, one of the top-rated participatory sports, is growing at a rapid rate. Why? There are several reasons.

First, in a single-parent family only one adult is available to take the kids fishing. And that one parent, in most cases, is Mom. She's learning to fish in order to teach her children. In the process, a lot of women realize they really enjoy fishing, and even decide to invest in the equipment that would increase their angling success.

Probably more important than any other reason is the fact that fishing is — or should be — a family sport. Fishing is a sport that husband and wife can enjoy together, with or without the kids. And as women have increased their fishing skills, many have decided that fishing can be a most appropriate social outing. And as more women fish as a recreational sport, more and more are turning professional and are successful at it.

"The sport is receiving the type of recognition it deserves," says Penny Berryman, a member of Zebco/MotorGuide's professional advisory staff. "The numbers of women fishing professionally have exploded over the last decade as the sport gained credibility because of the professional ladies out there fishing and working hard."

Berryman, of Dardanelle, Arkansas, maintains that the image of professional fishing has changed over the last decade because pro fishermen have worked diligently to improve the sport, and the nation has taken notice. She maintains that fishing has lost its "lazy sport" image as professional anglers, both male and female, have encouraged others to take up the sport.

"Fishing is hard work," Berryman says. "People in the industry have gone that extra mile to present a more polished image and to promote fishing as good family fun."

Texas Kathy Magers, who also serves on the Zebco/MotorGuide advisory staff, agrees that women are earning new respect in a sport that used to be dominated by men.

"The female angler is more educated in her sport today," Magers says. "Twelve years ago we were just learning."

Women professional anglers like Kathy Magers have helped fishing become a family sport.

Today sponsors and large companies are asking women, not just men, to become part of their teams.

"Women don't have to beat down dogs anymore, nor do we have to convince people that we are not just housewives who fish on the weekends. We fish for a living," she says.

Berryman and Magers agree that television has played an active role in the growth of women's professional fishing. With the organization of the Lady Bass and Bass N'Gal tournament circuits, the sport for women has become competitive, and with big television contracts at stake, both groups have worked to keep it that way.

Lady angler Teresa Wynn contends that women's professional fishing tournaments are run more professionally than in past years.

"The technology is better, techniques are better, and the confidence levels of lady pros are at an all-time high," Wynn says. "The Kentucky angler fished 'just for fun' before joining the professional ranks four years ago. She entered a tournament a half mile from her home on the lake.

"Fishing has always been part of my lifestyle because we do live on a lake. The tournament was so close to my home, I just couldn't resist it." So on the spur of the moment, Wynn entered. The event was her first opportunity to see pro lady anglers in action. "I went to a couple of the weigh-ins and found it very interesting," she says. "I was hooked."

Berryman and Magers also started their fishing careers after entering tournaments close to their homes. Before turning pro, they both fished "just for fun," getting out on the water at every opportunity.

Berryman's father and husband both fished professionally, so the transition to fishing professionally seemed natural to her. She came back from her first tournament hooked.

"This is great!" she recalls saying to her husband. "I caught fish both days of the tournament and had a ball." Berryman formed a local ladies fishing club, and they fished four or five tournaments a year. Then seven years ago, Berryman gave the national level tournaments a try.

"Fishing on the national level was quite challenging," she says. "It also gave me a taste of the wonderful lakes across the country and the opportunity to fish with great people."

Most pro lady anglers maintain that their success is due to determination and a lot of support from home. This support is vital, since they spend the majority of their time on the road. In addition to the seminars and other speaking engagements, both Berryman and Magers will fish at least 10 major tournaments this year, along with local tournaments and the Bass N'Gal Classic and Lady Bass Classic, if they qualify through those organizations. Wynn fishes the Lady Bass circuit and will compete in six major tournaments and local events.

All three women agree that the only thing they would change about their profession is being away from their families. But the excitement and gratification they receive from winning a tournament or at least finishing "in the money" makes it worthwhile — that, and being a part of lady anglers making their mark in the history books.

Sharpening Your Knife in Three Easy Steps

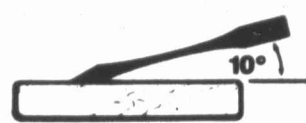

Free Knife Know-How Booklet Available

Every knife needs sharpening from time to time. Here are three simple steps from the experts at Buck Knives for sharpening your knife on a stone to create the proper edge.

To keep fine grains of steel from embedding themselves in the stone without lessening the cutting action, use Buck Honing Oil. Do not use ordinary lubricating oil; it will clog the pores.

1. Establish The Correct Angle and Keep It.

The ideal angle for sharpening your knife is 10°. The diagram is a handy guide. The closer you stay to this proper angle, throughout the sharpening process, the better the edge you will achieve. With a little practice, you'll find it's easy to do.

2. Use An Even, Circular Stroke and Slight Pressure.

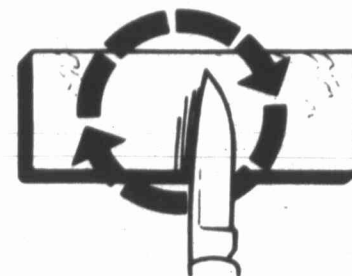

An even, circular motion produces the most consistent edge. Also, you will find it's best if your blade never leaves the stone, and it's easier to maintain the correct angle. Make several full rotations in a counter-clockwise direction first. Count them!

3. Turn Blade Over and Repeat The Same Process.

Then turn the knife over, as shown, and make the same number of smooth, circular rotations in a clockwise direction, again keeping the blade on the stone throughout. This avoids a burring effect. Repeat this paired action until you have the edge you want.

Remember! A Dull Knife Is Often More Dangerous Than A Sharp Edge!

When your knife has a proper edge, it's actually safer than a dull one because it cuts easily where you want it to, with no forced or awkward motions.

For a free booklet with more information on the many uses of knives, write to: Knife Know-How Booklet, Buck Knives, Dept. DO, P.O. Box 1267, El Cajon, CA 92022.

BUSINESS REVIEW

Com Shop can handle all your phone needs

Com Shop began in 1985, and is founded on the old-fashioned principle of one company to handle all your phone needs.

Two former employees of Southwestern Bell and AT&T saw a need for more personalized, and less expensive, telephone repair service and decided to fill the gap. With offices in Odessa and Big Spring, Jim Haas, president, and Travis Crow, vice president, incorporated Com Shop in 1986. Their technicians, Kenneth Crow, Clifford Crow and James Sides, have years of combined experience. Their secretary is Johanna Crow.

"As a full service telephone company, Com Shop supplies everything but the dial tone," Travis said.

"We do work hard to get the job done as quickly as possible."

Com Shop sells and leases phones and systems, sells digital pagers, pay phones, fax machines, custom-made phone

President Travis Crow, right, and technician Clifford Crow are two of the reasons behind Com Shop's success. Com Shop offers the finest in equipment and service plus highly skilled technicians to take care of all your phone needs.

cords, calculators, paging systems, medical alerts, mobile telephones, and key equipment for multi-line systems needed in large or small businesses.

Some of the other advantages

Com Shop offers are pre-wiring buildings for telephones, TV and paging systems. They also offer maintenance contracts on existing equipment at a very competitive rate.

Involved in projects around the Permian Basin, Com Shop has a contract with Ector County ISD, works with Furr's Supermarkets and has done work at Fina Refinery. As Asbestos Certified Technicians, they are able to go into many older schools and repair phone systems and do computer wiring.

The folks at Com Shop have a master contract with Southwestern Bell Telcom. When the Bell technician needs help, he calls Com Shop.

Com Shop technicians are continuing their education regularly by attending schools to familiarize themselves with the rapidly changing business.
