Texas colleges face funding crisis

Howard College President Bob Riley, left, greets former Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby Monday in Lubbock. Hobby and other supporters of the Texas Foundation for Higher Education spoke to college officials to encourage support for a college and university funding plan that would increase state spending and tuition. The plan's goal is improved service to students, supporters said.

LUBBOCK - Higher education in Texas is facing a funding crisis that could severely reduce its effectiveness, members of a coalition told regional college officials, including several from Howard College.

Former Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Jess Hay, chief executive officer of Lomas Mortgage USA, addressed about 100 college presidents and staff members on behalf of the Texas Foundation for Higher Education at Texas Tech University Monday.

"Once again, higher education needs your help," said Hay, a former member of the University of Texas board of regents "Revenues are far short of the aggregate required, so higher education is facing a crisis.

Foundation representatives have developed a funding plan they said is superior to others under consideration by the Texas Legislature. It would require generation of more than $1 billion more than that required to fund House Bill 10, a plan under consideration to use available revenue in spite of the state's most serious financial crisis in at least 20 years, it is necessary to go beyond basic improvements.

The foundation plan recommends increases in the number of faculty and student services, as well as more minority recruitment programs, health programs and increased financial aid. Faculty salaries are not increased under the foundation's plan.

Under HB-10, colleges and universities throughout the state would sustain extreme cuts, foundation officials said.

Howard College could lose about $570,000 per year, according to foundation figures. Howard President Bob Riley, who attended the meeting, said actual losses could total about $2 million based on the college's plans for future development.

Without funding increases in accordance with its recent growth, the college would be forced to cut about 30 faculty positions and some support staff positions, limit class enrollment and eliminate programs, Riley said.

Texas Tech faces a $36 million loss that would devastate the university and Lubbock's economy, said President Bob Lawless

"There would be only partial bones left, less than bare bones, Lawless said. Cuts would total about 100 faculty, 400 staff members and 45 health science positions, he said.

"Student services would be at a level of 'unservice' we've never had before," Lawless said.

Hay said area community colleges are "reaching the limit" of taxing local residents. The foundation, he said, would support generation of additional revenues through other methods, such as a state-wide sales tax.

Foundation representatives advocated a tuition increase as well. Hobby said tuition should fund 25

Oil spill cleanup could cost millions

COLORADO CITY — Fina Oil & Chemical Co. officials said Monday they were about 50 percent finished with a $285,000 study to determine the extent of petroleum pollution near the Colorado River that is expected to cost millions of dollars to

The preliminary study, which began about a month before diesel fuel was discovered leaking from the river bank near U.S. 80 in April, is expected to be completed by November, Fina Big Spring plant manager Jeff Morris said at a public meeting in city council chambers. Seven private citizens attended the meeting. The fuel leak, most of which is being contained, is suspected to be coming from an abandoned refinery purchased by Fina in 1963. Fina still owns 132 acres of the approximate 155-acre site. "I think it would be naive to say it's not coming from some area in here (at the refinery site)," Morris said pointing to a map.

No dates have been set for a cleanup of the refinery site, pending the outcome of the preliminary study and a probable final study, Morris said.

Concerns were raised at the meeting by a member of the Mitchell County Texans Against Pollution group that some diesel fuel continues to go into the Colorado River, which feeds a lake providing drinking water for about 500,000 West Texans, including the population in Big Spring.

"So we'll just have to live with this (until it is cleaned up)?" asked Molly Bruce.

"We want to do it right. But we have to limit it to the certain mechanisms that we have," Morris said. "I wish I could tell you otherwise. I wish I could tell you the oil sheen would go away tomorrow."

But not enough petroleum is coming downstream to appreciably affect drinking water quality, said Owen Ivie, the Colorado River Municipal Water District manager in Big Spring. "I don't think that there's enough mission spokesman in Austin.

there that it could affect us in any

Meanwhile, tests of the leaking diesel fuel by Fina and tests last year along the river by the Texas Water Commission have so far not uncovered any substances classified as hazardous, officials

A commission investigation last vear identified several petroleum seepages leaching into the river within 20 feet of the diesel leak, according to a March 1990 report. Substances checked for in tests included benzene, lead and other heavy metals.

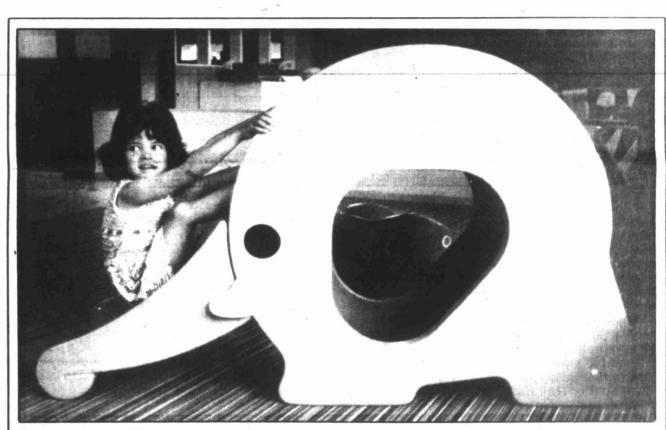

Morris said the company does not expect to find hazardous materials at the refinery site either. "It's going to be quite unlikely that we're going to find any hazardous soil," he said. Soil and water tests taken so far at the refinery site were not yet complete.

As far as cleanup costs, Morris said Fina and commission officials were working to identify former owners of the refinery for liability purposes. "I'd say it's going to be in the millions," he said of the cleanup costs.

The refinery was built in the early part of the century and was owned by Col-Tex Refining until 1958 when it was sold to Cosden Petroleum Co. Fina later purchased the plant but dismantled it in Fina later sold about 25 acres nearest the diesel fuel leak to the Colorado City Industrial Development Team, and the property has been sold three more times since then. The owner since 1983 is Terry Gould of Corpus Christi. Gould has not paid property taxes since making the purchase, and attempts to reach him have been unsuccessful.

A disclaimer in the title deed, saying there are waste products on the property that the seller cannot be held liable for, does not nullify state law that says previous owners of land when pollution occurred, as well as current owners, are liable for cleanup, said a com-

Deaf teachers exempt from taking TEA competency test

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislation signed into law by Gov. Ann Richards will exempt hearingimpaired teachers from a competency test required for all Texas teachers because the exam has been found to be discriminatory to deaf people.

The bill was introduced in response to a class-action lawsuit filed last year on behalf of several teachers at the Texas School for the Deaf who had failed the competency exam several times.

Advocates for deaf people said they were concerned that Texas may end up with few deaf teachers. The new law prohibits the Texas Education Agency from administering competency tests to hearing-impaired teachers until the tests are found to be fair.

Dog owner unable to save animals from city pound

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

Two dogs belonging to a Big Spring woman were destroyed by city animal control officers without being held for 72 hours as provided for in the city code

Vellene Paul, who lives in the 1000 block of East Thirteenth Street, awoke Friday morning to find two of her dogs missing, she

"Ebony and Baby were missing. I walked three blocks in either direction looking, calling and asking everyone I saw (if they had seen the dogs)," she said.

Paul had been keeping the animals in front of her house, she said. By keeping the mother on a chain, she was able to secure both dogs to her satisfaction, however the mother apparently pulled out of the slip chain and escaped.

Paul had picked the animals up as strays and had been treating them for mange. She did not want her other two dogs infected, so the diseased dogs were kept outside while undergoing treatment, she

Paul said she called the pound and was told that two dogs matching the description had been picked up and she was then told that she had 72 hours to claim

As the animals had no tags or collars, the dogs would have to be release. Paul began getting the necessary money together, but when she contacted animal control the next day, she was told that her dogs had been euthanized immediately upon arrival at the pound

Paul said that Animal Control Officer "Smitty" Smith told her "They (the dogs) were ate up with mange and ticks.

According to Big Spring Police Captain Melvin Fowler, who also serves as animal warden, the issued city licenses upon their animals were immediately "put to sleep" because they were suffering, had no tags or identification and could not be kept in the kennel without infecting the other dogs.

Beverage panel faces more charges

AUSTIN (AP) — The retirement of the chief of the Texas Alcohol Beverage Commission comes as the embattled agency faces new allegations of selective enforcement against minorities and sexual harassment of female employees.

On Monday, TABC administrator W.S. "Sherman" McBeath, 66, announced his plans to retire as head of the 735-employee agency.

The unexpected move came just days after a top aide to Gov. Ann Richards advised McBeath that new complaints had been lodged, some involving him personally.

Richards previously criticized the agency about its hiring practices and allegations of nepotism. At least 30 TABC employees are related to one another.

McBeath wasn't available for comment, his office said. But Joe Darnall, TABC's general counsel, said McBeath denied the allegations and that the accusations had no bearing on his decision to retire.

"There is no foundation or validity to those allegations as to him personally. An absolute, flat denial," Darnall said.

In a one-page letter delivered Monday to TABC commissioners, McBeath said he will retire July 31.

Baptist minister given probation

The Rev. David Lee Hill Jr., 43, was given four years probation Monday

Testimony in his tax trial showed that he solicited funds from wealthy Dallas followers for cancer research that he actually used for himself. One donation amounted to $62,000.

U.S. District Judge H.F. "Hippo" Garcia also ordered Hill to pay any taxes, interest and penalties he owes and to live in a halfway house for 120 days of his probation. He also ordered Hill to participate in a mental health program and substance abuse program if his probation officer orders it.

Hill decided to plead no contest to the misdemeanor charges after his trial on the misdemeanor charges had started.

The minister comes from a prominent local family. His grandfather, P.B. Hill, was a captain with the Texas Rangers and pastor of the First Presbyterian Church and his father, David "Tex" Hill, was a founder and leader of the Flying Tigers during World War II.

Ruling draws fire from trial lawyers' group

DALLAS (AP) - Employers are for pain and suffering. leaving the Texas workers' compensation system in large numbers because of a loophole, strengthened by a federal judge's ruling, allowing them to provide less expensive coverage with less protection to employees, the Texas Trial Lawyers Association says.

The Texas program is among the most expensive in the nation, but companies that don't provide reimbursement for lost wages and medical expenses run the risk of potentially ruinous negligence suits, including large jury awards

Mayor calls for calm after bloody weekend

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Mayor Nelson Wolff wants this city's residents to "settle down" and help curb an outburst of violence that claimed eight lives over the weekend.

Wolff said he and other city leaders are considering a youth curfew as well as several other anti-crime measures. One of those, a special six-person police team to crack down on gang violence, got underway Monday.

"Let me first make a plea to parents to watch your children this summer, and keep them off the streets at night," Wolff said Sunday. "A second plea is to everybody to settle down in this community.'

In an exasperated voice, Wolff added: "Try to cool it a bit in these disputes that are happening here in the city of San Antonio.

The mayor, who held a news conference with police homicide Lt. Albert Ortiz, said the city is in for a "tough summer," and the police official agreed.

"The days of getting into a fist fight for the fun of it are gone," Ortiz said. "The best way now is to avoid a confrontation if you wish to avoid being a victim.

Their warning came as the city endured a violent weekend in which eight people were killed, including a 36-year-old man found stabbed to death Monday morning.

The man, who had been stabbed in the chest, was discovered in the parking lot of a city swimming pool about 7:30 a.m.

Other victims included a man found slain and dumped near a major intersection; a body found in a housing project; a woman killed with a brick and found in an area known for drugs and prostitution; a gang-related slaying; a man and his mother killed in a neighborhood argument; and a man killed at a pool hall when he accidentally bumped another man with a pool cue and didn't apologize.

San Antonio has recorded 95 slayings so far this year, compared with 81 at the same point last year, Wolff said. In 1990, San Antonio set a record for killings in a single year with 218

The mayor said he is trying to battle the violence with innovative

Police group severs ties to Shriners

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin Police Association has severed ties with the Ben Hur Shriners, saying the group has discriminated against women and blacks.

Shriners officials said they hadn't been aware of any problems with the police organization.

The Shriners' membership policy became an issue during an association meeting last week that involved about 150 police officers. Until then, the association had planned on spending $7,500 to buy 1,500 Shrine Circus tickets for officers and their families.

Several association leaders questioned whether police should be working with a group they contend discriminates.

"We cut them off because they are segregated," said Senior Patrol Officer Randy Malone, a police association board member. Senior Officer Billy Sifuentes, president of the Hispanic Police Officers Association, Amigos in Azul, added the amendment to sever all police association ties with the trade agreement between the United States and Mexico could lead to more snarled traffic along the Rio Grande, a new report says.

Border communities already are paying a price for strong growth in commerce between the United States and Mexico, according to a General Accounting Office study released Monday

"It would be foolish to reach an historic agreement designed to boost trade only to realize that the effort has been hamstrung by inadequate border facilities," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who requested the GAO study.

'We can't let the potential benefits of increased commerce get held up in traffic," Bentsen said Monday in releasing the report by Congress' investigative In its report, the GAO said existing U.S. border inspection facilities cannot adequately handle the flow of traffic.

And despite President Bush's plans to negotiate a free trade agreement with Mexico, which could lead to increases in commer-

> Bentsen said he was disturbed that there has been no long-range planning to meet the demands of increased trade. He is asking GAO to assess the immediate needs along the border and to make recommendations on how to begin a long-term planning process.

> Mexico's decision in 1986 to liberalize trade has already increased trade substantially between the two counties, but the U.S. Customs Service and the Immigration and Naturalization Service staff have not kept up with the corresponding increases in traffic.

> As a result, commercial traffic entering the United States from Mexico encounters long and frequent delays at border inspection facilities, GAO said.

U.S. Customs officials note, however, that efforts to speed processing across the border must be balanced against other needs, such as preventing illegal drug smuggl-

Police assailed after strip searching female suspects

PAMPA (AP) — City officials are defending Pampa police officers' strip search of several female suspects during a drug raid last month.

But Felicia Smith, director of Amarillo's High Plains Center for Constitutional Rights, contends that the search amounted to a sexual assault of the five females whose body cavities were probed. Pampa Police Chief Jim Laramore said Monday that female members of the police department conducted the searches, out of view of male officers.

He refused to say whether the "trained police personnel" were "Upon entrance into the residence, officers observed several suspects amidst a cloud of smoke which they believed to be from marijuana and some in-

But Pampa lawyer Mark Bużzard said, "It is ridiculous for the police to attempt to justify this conduct on the basis that they claim someone swallowed something.'

Ms. Smith said the officers searched the body cavities of the five female suspects, but did not conduct similar searches of the seven male suspects also at the residence.

Since the body cavities of the male suspects were not searched, the females were obviously singled out, Buzzard said.

The search lasted from 11:30 p.m. until about 3 a.m. and turned up drug paraphernalia around the house, but none of the strip searches produced any drugs, Hackler

Three arrests, all on misdemeanor drug charges, were made following the May 10 search.

Bridgeport raises property taxes

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Bridgeport homeowners were slapped with a 5 percent property tax increase that could go as high as 18 percent as Connecticut's biggest city struggled to stay afloat after filing for bankruptcy protection.

The Common Council approved the 5 percent increase in a 9-8 vote on Monday. Residents of Bridgeport, with a population of about 140,000, already pay the highest taxes in the state. Mahesh Reddy, city finance director, said that without the increase, the city would go broke before the end of the 1991-92 fiscal year. It faces a $12 million gap in its $304 million budget.

Historic sites may be lost for lack of funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new list of endangered U.S. historic places includes Independence National Historical Park in Philadelphia, President James Madison's estate in rural Virginia, the downtown post office in Franklin, Tenn., and Detroit's Tiger Stadium.

All were first-time additions to the endangered list published annually by the National Trust for Historic Preservation, a nonprofit organization chartered by Congress to help local communities protect their historic places from decay or destruction.

The National Trust said the square-mile national park in downtown Philadelphia that includes Independence Hall, the Liberty Bell and other treasures of the nation's founding is slowly deteriorating for lack of maintenance funds.

Montpelier, Madison's 2,700-acre estate at Orange, Va., was acquired in 1984 by the National Trust, which says funds are urgently needed to stabilize the mansion, lace its coppe rehabilitate 135 adjacent buildings and acquire Madison's widely dispersed furniture and

The stadium where American League greats Ty Cobb, Hank Greenberg and Al Kaline made baseball history already was listed on the National Register of Historic Places, administered by the National Park Service

Neighborhood activists and members of the Tiger Stadium Fan Club have urged renovation and expansion of the old stadium, but Wayne County officials rejected all such plans last week

Man vandalizes Lenin mausoleum

MOSCOW (AP) — A man from the Irkutsk region of Siberia has been arrested for throwing two bottles of ink at Lenin's mausoleum on Red Square, news agencies say.

The man stepped over the railing in front of the marble structure where the preserved body of Soviet founder Vladimir Lenin is displayed under glass.

He tossed the bottles of black and blue ink and succeeded in partially staining the inscription 'Lenin' over the portal before police seized him, the Postfactum News Agency said Monday.

The agency identified the man as A. Yastko, a Zima resident, and said he was taken to a psychiatric hospital.

Acts of protest at Lenin's Mausoleum, the holiest of Soviet shrines, are uncommon

The last publicized incident was in March, when a youth defaced the bust of Josef Stalin that marks his grave on Red Square, knocking off its nose to show his hatred of the dictator.

Hussein suffers irregular rhythm

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) - King Hussein has been hospitalized in satisfactory condition, the roval palace announced today.

The announcement, carried by state-run Petra news agency, said the 54-year-old monarch was admitted to the kingdom's army hospital, Hussein Medical City, at 10 p.m. Monday.

"His Majesty The Hashemite King Hussein, may God protect him, was admitted to hospital . . . because he suffered from a case of irregular heart beats," the announcement said. It said Hussein's condition was 'satisfactory and he is recovering."

Palace officials were not immediately available to comment with an irregular heartbeat and is on the exact heart condition for which Hussein was hospitalized.

The Jordanian monarch had a similar occurrence in May 1990 and has had periodic heart checkups Doctors have said Hussein was asked to quit smoking after the May 1990 incident and complied. However, the monarch resumed smoking in the early days of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Doctors have also said that Hussein was asked to go on a diet last year, which he did. Royal palace officials have said that Hussein lost 37 pounds between June and September.

Yeltsin leads polls on election eve

MOSCOW(AP) — On the eve of elections in the Soviet Union's largest and most populous republic, candidates basked in celebrity endorsements, bickered in the media and checked with pollsters in a Western-style scramble for votes.

In the race to become the Russian republic's first popularly elected president, the target of many last-minute barbs in Kremlin-run media was the frontrunner: reform-minded parliamentary leader Boris N. Yeltsin.

Today, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda claimed Yelstin was responsible for the republic's economic woes.

At the same time, it published a Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov, the Communist-backed

Families need gentler policy

Poverty stereotypes can be misleading

For example, of more than 12 million American children living in poverty, only one in three is black; only one in 56 is a black inner-city child, born to a teen-age welfare mother. More than half of all poor children don't even live in central cities. And 63 percent of very lowincome families include one worker.

The current recession has made the plight of these children — rural and suburban children as well as city kids - more precarious. It has triggered the biggest expansion in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program in the past two decades.

But the same economic downturn has aggravated state and federal deficits. At the very time the poor need most help, the public coffers are emptiest.

To help find a solution to this problem, the National Commission on Children, created by Congress four years ago, is about to publicize its comprehensive report for assisting youngsters. Some suggestions — for instance, health insurance for all pregnant women and children are good ideas, but probably unrealistic this year given

The best prospect for immediate action is a proposal for a new children's tax credit. It has the political support of both Republicans and Democrats in Congress, as well as the National Commission on Children and the Children's Defense Fund, which recently completed a study of poverty trends.

The commission reportedly wants a $1,000 tax credit for each child. Those so poor that they pay no taxes would get $1,000 per child from the government. The tax credit would provide direct relief to working poor families.

A tax credit is no panacea for poverty. But $1,000 means a lot to a struggling parent. A country that spends only $1 of every $12 of government assistance on its poor families could use a kinder, gentler children's policy

To the editor

The request by Volunteer Services of Big Spring State Hospital Or used eye glasses was answered in an impressive, ad

To the editor:

This is just a note of appreciation to the Big Spring Herald for having such a fine, capable and wellprincipled staff writer as Betty Johansen. She brings balance of thought to an "out-of-balance" world through documented, wellresearched articles. Soap operas: Bubbles went bust

By EUNICE CHOATE For the Herald

My grandmother Mama Brummett introduced me to soap operas in 1945. Every morning at 11:45, we heated up the coffee and turned on the radio on the kitchen table. We drank our coffee, ate our lunch, and listened to her stories: "Helen Trent," "Big Sister," "Young Dr. Malone," and, my favorite, "Our Gal Sunday." Sunday was a foundling who was dumped in the laps of two old miners out West. She grew up and married Lord Henry Brinthrop, "England's wealthiest and handsomest young nobleman," who badgered and beleaguered our gal for years. Mama Brummett would cluck her tongue and tell me. "Let that be a lesson to you, Little Eunice.

But Lord Brinthrop wasn't completely to blame. According to a psychology professor from Sarah Lawrence College who wrote about radio soaps, "The characters consist of three moral types: the good, the bad and the weak." It seems the characters got their comeuppance according to type Clothes don't make a man.

Starr (the bad — scheming wife on radio's "Ma Perkins") died of TB. Young Dr. Malone (the weak), was confined to a wheelchair for six months and came down with amnesia to boot.

Physical afflictions haven't changed much since soap operas made the transition from radio to television. "Mountain Rash" gave way to Lyme Disease, but the characters still come down with diabetes, hepatitis, and unexplained high fevers. Pneumonia is rampant; and paralysis of the Blindness (often preceded by bad headaches and dizzy spells) is almost always caused by a brain tumor. The tumor surgery is often the cause of the paralysis. Both blindness and paralysis can be temporary, permanent, or fatal, depending on how good, bad, or weak the character is, and whether or not his contract is to be renewed.

Killing off a person is no problem. In soap operas, all ailments are potentially fatal. Or someone may simply come down with amnesia and wander away somewhere. One little boy on "All My Children' was sent upstairs to his room about 15 years ago and never came down again.

I started watching "All My Children' in 1972 because of a character named Phil, who was lost in Vietnam. I wanted to see how TV handled that story line. They let Phil stumble around in the woods for about a year. He was finally brought home in the throes of chills, fever and flashbacks, and harbouring jungle parasites that popped up to plague him until he left the show. It was real depressing. His sweet little wife Tara thought so too. Especially when she found out some of his flashbacks were about a pretty little thing called Wing, or some such nonsense.

Soap writers seem overly fond of exotic names like Starr, and Tara, and Wing. Or bird names like Robin, Raven, and Lark. Even dogs' names like Tad and Scorpio. Only if a character is weird or off the wall, are they given down-to-earth names. Take Opal and Billy Clyde. Opal came along about the time I was getting fed up with the whole show. Opal was a gum-chewing garter snapper and did all the things I'd been wanting to do. She got that old snob of a socialite Phoebe Tyler thrown in jail. (Phoebe staged a riot and banged the bars with a tin cup). She called Palmer Courtland a bum, and told Nina to stop sniveling just because she had diabetes and went into a coma on occasion. Opal was ill-mannered and overdressed, and I loved her.

Biffie Clyde was a slug but I loved him too. He was a stringyhaired cracker with a sly smile. When the town's troubled waters calmed down, Billy Clyde would ooze by like an oil slick and muck them up again. When he was written out of the show, the laughs went with him, and I stopped watching.

James Thurber once said of radio soaps, "The lack of humor is so complete as to reach the proportions of a miracle of craftsmanship." That goes for television soaps, too. I haven't watched them in years and I don't miss

But there are times when I'd like to have a cup of coffee with Mama Brummett — and listen to "Our Gal Sunday.

Nixon's alter ego returns

Back in the days when the Watergate scandal was really fun, someone discovered that there were two Richard Nixons — the old Nixon and the new one. The old Nixon was a terrible rogue who resorted to every dirty trick in the book to protect his administration. The new Nixon was Washington's original Mr. Nice Guy. He was honest, kind, noble and a credit to his political party.

When the old Nixon was given the boot, the new Nixon, who had done nothing, was also thrown out on his keister onto Pennsylvania

What happened after that is interesting. The new Nixon decided to make up for the old Nixon. He went to China and Russia, wrote best-selling books, appeared at friendly fund-raisers and everyone forgot the trouble in the White House. He became so popular that he was even interviewed by Barbara Walters.

While this was going on, the old Nixon hid out in a cave eating catsup and bitterly digesting Herblock cartoons.

Then last week, under a court order, the government released a battery of Nixon tapes from the White House days. They showed the worst side of the old Nixon a vindictive and bitter person, a man willing to destroy anyone in order to save his own skin.

As soon as the contents of the tapes were published, the new Nixon went to the old Nixon's $4 million bunker in New Jersey and cried, "How could you do this to

The old Nixon shrugged, "I tried to stop them from releasing the cassettes, but they wouldn't listen. It's not my fault that they got out.

"I want to know why you made the tapes in the first place?" the new Nixon asked.

"What could I do? Bebe Rebozo gave me a Sony for Christmas. If I had known that the stuff would ever be played in public, I'd have put some Frank Sinatra music to

"You always thought of yourself never of me," the new Nixon charged.

"Why are you so shaken up?" "I was on a roll until the tapes came out. People regarded me as a great statesman, a phoenix risen from the ashes. Now everyone thinks that I am the cheap, petty, scheming rotter they always thought you were.'

The old Nixon seemed agitated. "I didn't do anything. It was the left-wing, Commie media that took my voice and made me into a heavy,

The new Nixon scoffed, "Are you going to tell me once again that you weren't involved in the Watergate cover-up?

The old Nixon said, "They were my guys and someone blew it. The commander-in-chief does what has to be done when it comes to torching the other political party. This incident will blow over. Everything bad that happens to me always does." So now what do I do?" the new

Nixon asked. "The old Nixon replied, "That's not my problem. '60 Minutes' wants me on this week.'

"Why you?" the new Nixon wanted to know. "An old Nixon is much more fascinating to the public than a

Hugs are too much from brother-in-law

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-yearold girl. I have a sister who is 19 and has been married for a year. One day last week, her husband told me how beautiful he thought I was and how much I had developed lately.

Later he gave me a ride to my girlfriend's house to pick up my bike. On the way back it was quite dark. All of a sudden he stopped the truck and asked me for a hug. I thought, "What the heck, he did me a favor to drive me to pick up my bike, so it's no big deal to give him a hug." Well, it was a real long hug, and he wouldn't let me go. Then he asked me for a kiss, and I said, "No way ... no, NO!" He knew I really meant it, so he let me go. Neither one of us said a word until he dropped me off at my house.

DEAR SISTER: You were very, very wise. Thanks for sharing your experience as a warning to other young girls who could be taken advantage of by a relative or close friend. DEAR ABBY: We got a good chuckle out of "Very Disappointed" who spent her wedding night on a fold-out couch in a fancy hotel. Your advice to doublecheck reservations was very good, but it doesn't always work. Dear Abby

Here's our story:

We had arranged the "honeymoon package" at the then brand-new Hilton in Erie, Pa. We arrived late on our wedding night and were warmly welcomed at the front desk. When we got to our room, we found the promised bottle of champagne and a very lovely large room — but no bed! It seems one of the couches was a fold-out bed with one pillow and a set of sheets (no blanket)! When we telephoned downstairs, we were informed that the hotel was full and "housekeeping" was closed for the night, so we were out of luck.

When we folded out the bed and sat on it — it collapsed!

But what the heck? We've had many laughs over that story through the years. We've often said that a couple without a sense of humor could have broken up over such a series of incidents. Let's hope the honeymoon couple in that classy Dallas hotel survived their disappointment.

BELLE FOURCHE, S.D. (AP) helped smother Gibbs.

He said Christenson "sat in the kitchen while Jerome and Darlene went into the living room and did in Walter Gibbs."

Gibbs was 58 when he first married Christenson, who was 18 at the time. They were divorced about 10 years later, and he married Darlene. Another divorce, two remarriages to the twins and one other marriage brought his total to five marriages.

Pandas rental concerns

FRONT ROYAL, Va. (AP) — Some conservationists fear that giant pandas will be commercially exploited, to the detriment of efforts to save the breed, under new government rules permitting American zoos to resume renting the rare animals from China.

The rules were discussed at a conference of 76 panda experts from 11 nations, which was winding up today at a hilltop youth education center outside Front Royal, about 60 miles west of Washington, D.C.

Devra G. Kleiman, assistant director for research at the National Zoo in Washington, who organized the conference, said delegates were interested in how the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will implement the rules, which end a three-year freeze on panda

The sessions were closed to outsiders and not publicized. Jinett Hemley of the World Wildlife Fund, who attended, said Chinese delegates were "very quiet" on the issue, but the consensus of other delegates was that "we don't want to see these temporary exhibition loans start happening Kleiman declined to take a position on the guidelines, saying, "I think we will have to wait and see. Just because they have a policy doesn't mean that all of a sudden pandas will flood into this country.

A Fish and Wildlife official argued that the guidelines are necessary to regulate panda imports. Critics said the guidelines would permit people to make money by exhibiting pandas that should be used for breeding.

China, the only place where pandas are native, has 1,100 to 1,500 of the large black and white mammals in the wild. The giant panda is listed as an endangered species under U.S. law and international treaty.

because of poaching and human encroachment. In zoos, there has been difficulty getting the animals to reproduce.

The National Zoo has two pandas that were a gift from China. The Chinese stopped giving pandas to foreign zoos in the 1970s but began exporting them on loan in return for payments that generally ran around $300,000 to $500,000 in equipment, cash and other

In early 1988, the World Wildlife Fund sued to stop a planned panda loan to the Toledo, Ohio, zoo. A federal judge let the loan go ahead but ruled that a proposed extra $2 admission fee would violate U.S. regulations against commercial use of endangered animals.

In June 1988, the Fish and Wildlife Service put the freeze on so it could reconsider its policy.

The American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums and the International Union for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources, a United Nations agency, urged that the moratorium be continued until a worldwide plan for management of pandas in captivity was agreed

Fish and Wildlife, however, put the new guidelines into effect March 14 and said it would resume considering applications to import giant pandas for temporary exhibition loans.

No applications have yet been received, said Charles Dane of the Fish and Wildlife Service. Donald Bruning, director of the Bronx Zoo, said by telephone from New York, on the other hand, that the guidelines could make it possible to "take an animal just when it is ready to breed and take it out and ship it halfway around the world and put it on display and prevent it from

Women marrying later in life than ever before are getting married later than at any time in the past century. It's not that they don't want to get hitched. It just they can scarcely find the time.

"When I finished college, I wasn't sure what I wanted to do,' said Jan Pearlstine-Lipov, an Annapolis, Md., businesswoman who married this spring at 31. "I moved to Washington where I started my career. . . I was so busy, I didn't want to get married right back

In median figures for 1990, women were nearly 24 years old when they first got married and men were just over 26, the Census Bureau said Thursday. That's three years older than 20 years ago. Median means half were younger, half older.

The study also found the proportion of women in their early 30s who had never walked down the aisle nearly tripled, from 6 percent in 1970 to 16 percent in 1990.

Sociologists say the demands of education and career force people to postpone nuptials.

'We have a longer, more com plex work life," said Martha Farnsworth Riche, director of policy studies at the Population Reference Bureau, a Washington research group. "We have a lot more occupations now, and each occupation changes rapidly. It looks like we don't really settle down very fast these days or for very long. Ms. Pearlstine-Lipov said she hasn't missed anything by delaying arriage. "I think I've gained," views with 57,400 people.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Women she said. "The experiences I had when I was single and doing the things I wanted to do, I think, were irreplaceable.

The Census Bureau started keeping records on marrying ages in 1890, when men wed at the median age of 26 and women at 22. But people starting heading to the alter earlier and earlier in life and by 1956, the first-time groom was six months over 22 and brides were barely 20.

Since then, the median marrying age has risen steadily to the 1989 high of 26.2 for men and the 1990 high of 23.9 for women.

Some other survey findings: -Young adults were putting off the day when they left their parents' homes. One-third of people in their late 20s who had never parents in 1990. -In 1990, 73 percent of the nation's children lived with two parents. Twenty years earlier, 85 percent lived with both parents.

-There were 2.9 million unmarried couples living together, up 80 percent from 10 years ago.

-There were 36 million unmarried men and 43 million unmarried women. The numbers included people who had never married or who were widowed or divorced. -Eight percent of adults were divorced and had not remarried at the time of the survey -Five percent of children lived with their grandparents. The survey was taken in March 1990, the month before the census.

permit the ordination of practicing homosexuals

The United Church of Christ is Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) the only mainline Christian denomination that permits ordination of homosexuals

The Presbyterian leaders acknowledged that the debate over sexuality is sure to continue. They directed the denomination's Theology and Worship Ministry Unit to develop a plan to encourage congregations to study the theological and ethical issues

"We tried to find as much common ground as we could without blowing the family apart," said Gordon Stewart, chairman of the General Assembly's Committee on Human Sexuality

A separate group, the church's Special Committee on Human Sexuality, issued the report that rocked the denomination and other mainline churches with its challenge to nearly two millennia of Christian teaching that sex should be reserved for marriage.

"It may be said simply: Where there is justice-love, sexual expression has ethical integrity. That moral principle applies to single, as well as to married persons, to gay, lesbian and bisexual persons, as well as to heterosexual persons," the report said.

Stars win tourney opener

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

It may have not been the most opportune time for Danny Wilson to make his first start of the year, but he definitely made the most of the situation.

Wilson limited the National League Rangers to five hits while the American League Stars rapped out 12 hits en route to an 11-1 victory in the first round of the city Little League action at the AL park Monday night.

The game was called at the end of five innings because of the 10-run

In other tournament action, the National League Cardinals beat the International League Royals 2-1, and the American League Longhorns beat the International League Longhorns 23-1.

If Wilson was nervous in his first start, he definitely didn't show it, scattering five hits while striking out five and walking only one. Rangers starter Trey Harrel gave up 11 hits, 10 runs and walked two in four innings work.

"We've got a good-hitting ballclub," Stars coach Tommy Tune said. "We've really hit the ball well all season, and that's been the key to our winning . . . This is the first time Danny's pitched for us this season. We wanted someone who could get through the game for us, and he did a good job.

The Stars gained command early, striking for four runs in the bottom of the first. With one out and a runner on second, Ricky Perez brought the first run home when his double to left scored John Lawdermilk

The next batter, Justin Cotton, promptly brought Perez home with a double to left and scored on Ehren Tune's single. Tune went to second on the throw home, took third on a wild pitch and scored the final run of the inning on Wilson's groundout to short.

The Stars added a run in the second on Lawdermilk's sacrifice fly before the Rangers scratched for infield hit, went to second on a to make the score 7-1.

American League Stars' Jeff Gregory rounds first base in the first inning after hitting a single against the National League Rangers Monday night at American League field. Rangers' first baseman is Devon Swafford.

passed ball and scored on Brandon Marino's single up the middle.

The hosts cemented matters with reached second on an error, went their only run in the third. Leadoff to third on Lawdermilk's infield hit hitter James Clements beat out an and scored on Perez's sacrifice fly

Cotton then reached on an error that scored Lawdermilk and scored himself when Tune lined a four runs in the fourth. Lane Corley double to the right field wall. One out later, Gil Grawunder hit another double to right, scoring

The game was called in the bottom of the fifth when Perez's single up the middle scored Corley to give the Stars their 10-run margin.

The Stars will be in action this afternoon when they play the International League Yankees at 5:30 p.m. at the IL park. The Rangers drop into the loser's bracket and will play their next game at 5:30 p.m. Thursday against an opponent to be determined

Big George wants shot at Iron Mike

HOUSTON (AP) -Heavyweight George Foreman says he's still considering a match against Mike Tyson, but efforts to schedule a fight with Alex Garcia in three months have failed.

"(Tyson adviser) Don King, or one of his people, is supposed to come to Houston next week to meet with us, Foreman's younger brother and manager, Roy Foreman, told the Houston Chronicle Monday. "They still want to fight George.

King reportedly has offered Foreman $15 million to face Tyson, who would receive "about $20 million," Roy Foreman said.

But that fight depends on the outcome of a lawsuit Tyson, King and the World Boxing Council have filed against undisputed heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield.

Tyson is trying to force Holyfield to fight him before meeting anyone else. A decision in that case could come Tyson also seeks a 55-percent45-percent split of the purse with Holyfield receiving the lion's share. That would be a deviation from the standard 75-25 split paid in most world title bouts.

Meanwhile, Roy Foreman said efforts to have George meet Garcia in late August or early September fell through last weekend.

"They don't want to take the fight for any amount of money," he said.

Foreman is considering three other potential opponents: Glen McCrory of London; Derrick Williams, the European heavyweight champion; and James Pritchard, a 30-year-old journeyman from Louisville,

The fight would be staged in late September

Denver, Miami may get National League teams

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Officials from the four cities rejected by the National League expansion committee are now scurrying to come up with alternate plans to bring a baseball team to their Commissioner Fay Vincent confirmed Monday that the committee has recommended Denver and Miami for entrance into the National League in 1993.

Approval from the major league ownership committee is expected when it meets Wednesday in Santa Monica, Calif. However, the 26 club owners may not vote on final approval at the meeting.

The cities need approval from nine NL owners and eight AL owners. If it does not happen at this week's quarterly meetings, it could take place in a telephone conference call or a mail ballot.

The expansion committee's decision leaves Buffalo, N.Y.; Orlando, Fla.; St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Washington, D.C., still searching for a team.

"My gut reaction is we're going to get a baseball team, and I think we're going to get a baseball team in the next two or three years," St. Petersburg mayor David Fischer said. "I think St. Petersburg, or Tampa Bay, was really the logical site. ... I think baseball recognizes that we were a strong, strong entry and it's just a matter of time before we get an existing team.'

downtown St. Petersburg has a • TEAMS page 2-B capacity of 43,200. At least $37 million in improvements are needed to equip it for baseball, with about $23 million of that coming from a financial package approved by the state legislature.

'Frankly, we met the criteria going away with respect to the demographics, the TV market. Tampa Bay unity, the state-of-theart facility, 22,697 preseason reservations sold in 30 days and another 3,000 sold thereafter," former St. Petersburg mayor Robert Ulrich said. "We met the criteria in every way except that expansion group the ownership group — and that was out of our hands.

St. Petersburg and Buffalo have stadiums ready for baseball. Now, they're hoping to perhaps snag a franchise on the decline, such as Montreal or Houston.

Robert E. Rich Jr., the millionaire businessman who would have owned Buffalo's expansion team, is not giving up. "I'm a free-trader and I've always felt that the market will dictate (actions)," he said. "If a team is for sale ... then so be it." Vincent, however, doesn't want cities without teams to start going after the cities in trouble.

"I have been opposed, in principle, to moving franchises," Vincent said. "I think the history of baseball shows that moving franchises has not been a wise policy. I don't think I'd say a franchise The Florida Suncoast Dome in could never move.

Spurs coach given permission to talk to college

Antonio Spurs have given coach Larry Brown permission to talk with South Carolina officials, and Brown said he may decide today whether to interview for the college

Spurs owner Red McCombs gave Brown permission Monday for the interview. Brown has two years remaining on his $3.5 million contract with the NBA team.

"I'm thinking about whether I should talk to them or not," Brown said Monday night. "But I'm not going to drag it out if I do decide to talk to them.

Brown returned from a 10-day vacation in France Sunday. Before going, he said he would "listen with interest" if the school wanted to

One reason Brown is interested in the job is that his two daughters live in Charlotte, N.C., which is about an hour from Columbia.

"I want to be close to the kids," Brown said. "That's real important to me. South Carolina is a unique situation, though, ... because of (ex-coach) Frank (McGuire), and I'm familiar with them and them going into the SEC.

South Carolina officially becomes a member of the Southeastern Conference on July 1. South Carolina is nearly a month into its search for a coach to replace the fired George Felton, and a member of the search comBrown.

Asked how serious South Carolina officials were about him, Brown said: "I don't think they're prepared to make me an offer. I told Art if they did in fact want to talk to me, I didn't want to get into a situation of competing against a whole bunch of people for the job.

Sources told The State newspaper in Columbia that South Carolina's list of candidates has been reduced to 10.

"It's a bunch for me," Brown said. "But they've got a job to do, and they've got to get the best

One sticking point for Brown may be his salary. He has two South Carolina, his base salary years left on a five-year $3.5 million contract. If he came to would be no more than $100,000, although with perks he could make at least $250,000 and possibly more. One sticking point for South Carolina is Brown's history. Not only has he moved from job to job frequently, but his problems with the NCAA when he was at Kansas and UCLA might work against bation shortly after he left, but the NCAA cleared him of wrongdoing.

The only violation associated with Brown came when he paid airline fare for one of the Kansas players to return home to visit a dying grandmother. An NCAA spokesman said the infractions committee was satisfied with Brown's explanation.

"That's another reason I'd want to go back into college coaching, he said. "A lot of that stuff wasn't talked about. But if I ever get an interview with South Carolina, the first thing I want them to do is talk to the NCAA.

"It's important to me it's cleared up. That was a real tough situation. I wouldn't have left Kansas if I'd known that would happen.

CONROE (AP) - Star defensive back Lawrence Williams, who quit the Conroe High School football squad along with a dozen teammates over a dispute of cheerleader elections, said he plans to transfer to Willis High to resume his football career

Williams told the Houston Chronicle Monday that he believed most of the 13 black players who quit the team in April will transfer to the Aldine school district, Willis, or Montgomery.

The players quit after two blacks who were candidates for junior varsity cheerleader were not elected by the student body. The defections left just two blacks on the football

Williams, who led District 15-5A in punt returns last season and was projected as one of the state's top defensive backs this fall, said he plans to apply in about three weeks to attend school in Willis and has been told he can try out for the football team.

"I was told I could come. back to the (Conroe) team but wouldn't be able to start and I would sit on the bench,' Williams said. "I just decided it (transferring) would be best for me, but that still doesn't change my stand (on the cheerleading dispute)"

Williams currently lives with his grandparents but plans to move in with his mother, who he said will rent a house in Willis.

University Interscholastic League rules contain provisions against students moving for athletic purposes. UIL spokesman Peter Contreras in Austin said Williams' case eventually must go before the league's waiver officer. Bob Young, for a ruling.

"He must prove that he isn't moving for athletic purposes, that he is doing it for more than football," Contreras said. "That (racial) accusation is such a sensitive one.

Nuggets trade guard back to Bullets

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Nuggets today traded point guard Michael Adams back to Washington for the Bullets' first pick in the NBA draft, which is the eighth choice overall.

The Nuggets also gave up their No. 19 pick in the first round and future draft considerations

The deal gives the Nuggets the fourth and the eighth choices in the first round — the highest two choices Denver has ever had in its NBA draft

Adams, who starred for the Nuggets for four seasons, led the team in scoring (26.5), assists (10.5) and minutes played (35.5) this season. He was acquired from the Bullets in November 1987 with Jay Vincent in exchange for Darrell Walker and Mark Alarie.

"We appreciate all the contributions Michael Adams has made to this franchise, and we wish him all the best," Denver general manager Bernie Bickerstaff said. "We are in the process of rebuilding the team, and this gives us two early first-round picks.

"With our own pick, No. 4, and Washington's No. 8, we should be able to land two good young players.'

Consistent Dodgers rout Cubs, 13-5

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are signs that the pennant races might be over early in the National League this season.

The Pittsburgh Pirates have a comfortable six-game lead over New York in the East, and firstplace Los Angeles has moved 10 games over .500 in the West to open a 21/2-game margin over surprising Atlanta.

Certainly there's a long way to go, but the signs are there.

The Dodgers, for instance, are winning without much offense from Darryl Strawberry. When he gets hot, they just may run away and Pittsburgh's 35-19 record is the best in baseball, and the Mets keep tripping over themselves and giving games away with shoddy defense and poor relief pitching.

Back to the Dodgers. They have Orel Hershiser again and he's looking strong. On Monday, Strawberry returned, but Los Angeles really didn't need him as it turned out.

Lenny Harris highlighted a sixrun fourth inning with a grand slam as the Dodgers routed the Chicago Cubs 13-5 at Wrigley Field. Los Angeles took three of four games in the series and have won 17 of 22 at Wrigley Field since 1986.

"We've been winning without Darryl Strawberry," Harris said. "I think he shocked everybody by coming back so soon. But that's the type of guy he is: He wanted to come back. That's the kind of ballclub we have. Everybody wants to participate.

Strawberry had been sidelined with a sore shoulder as a result of running into the right-field fence at Dodger Stadium last month.

"My shoulder feels pretty good," said Strawberry, who went 2-for-4. "The time I've had an opportunity to rest has really helped me, especially the treatment I've received. It's nice to be back in the lineup though and it feels real Astros 6, Mets 4 Jeff Bagwell's two-run double and Rafael Ramirez's gamewinning, two-run single off reliever John Franco in the eighth inning rallied Houston over New York. It was a disappointing end to a 13-game road trip for the Mets, who started the journey with four straight wins but finished only 7-6. Curt Schilling (3-4) pitched one inning for the victory.

Cardinals 3, Giants 2 Milt Thompson's two-run triple tied the score in the seventh inning, and Pedro Guerrero won the game with a sacrifice fly to lift St. Louis over San Francisco at Busch Stadium. The Cardinals salvaged the finale of a 13-game homestand in which they were 5-8.

They can put some runs up there in a hurry just like we can. Mark McGwire said Monday after the Athletics downed the Detroit Tigers 12-6. "They've got a good offense."

On this day, Oakland had a great offense. McGwire was a key figure. He drove in five runs with two homers, including a three-run shot to cap a six-run rally in the eighth.
