For more information about the seminar, call the Comptroller's Odessa Field Office at 915-367-7796.

CRMWD deliveries down for June

Successive showers during the last half of June produced runoff for Colorado River Municipal Water District reservoirs, but they all dulled deliveries, says information released from the district.

A municipal total of 1.7 trillion gallons was down 14 percent, but oil-industry demands of 135 million gallons were up 11.7 percent. Overall, deliveries were off 265.797 million gallons from June 1990.

The local delinquent tax collection attorney recommended to the Commissioners Court early today that the Hotel Settles should be sold at a foreclosure auction sometime this year.

Attorney Drew Mouton also told commissioners in his annual report that property tax collection efforts this year will concentrate more on unpaid taxes for businesses located on main streets coming through Big Spring in an effort to keep those streets spruced up.

In addition, the number of foreclosure suits have increased and may continue to increase. Mouton said he does not expect the Settles to sell for the minimum of $155,210 — the total of taxes, penalties and interest since 1978 that must be paid at a foreclosure sale if it were held now

However, he said, a foreclosure suit filed in late 1981 must be acted on within 10 years of the filing of the suit. Otherwise, another suit would have to be filed. "From a legal standpoint, I think you need to foreclose on it," he said.

The delinquent taxes and penalties on the hotel is "by far" the largest amount owed by a taxpayer out of a total of about $700,000 in unpaid late taxes due to taxing entities in the county, Mouton said.

If there is no buyer at a foreclosure sale, then ownership of the hotel will transfer from Cuadra Manufacturing Housing Inc. of San Antonio to the eight taxing entities in Howard County. "The entities can own that to the rest of time I suppose," Mouton said.

Members of Big Spring Main Street Inc. said earlier this year that if a plan and funds to renovate the hotel cannot be developed within the two-year redemption period that delinquent taxpayers have to purchase back foreclosed properties, then the hotel should be increase over the year before. demolished, a task that could cost half a million dollars.

In other efforts to spruce up the city, Mouton told commissioners of a plan to indentify all the properties on Gregg, Third and Fourth streets and run a computer list of those who have not paid taxes.

"It'll force those people to keep their properties up," he said. "People who don't pay taxes don't Mouton also said foreclosure suits may increase this year and next. More than 50 suits were filed in the past 12 months, which Mouton estimates is a 50 percent We "probably will see that much or more of an increase in 1991-92. Just because we're seeing a lot of taxpayers not living up to their agreements to pay the taxes out on a monthly basis," he said.

There are "several hundred" delinquent taxpayers making monthly payments in contract agreements, Mouton said. "There are thousands of delinquent accounts."

As of May 31, 1990, there were $471.511 in delinquent taxes owed to the county, according to the Cities facing financial problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recession and other problems have forced eight in 10 U.S. cities to raise taxes or fees in the past year, and pressed two-thirds of them to freeze hiring or cut their work forces, a survey released today

The study by the National League of Cities concluded that things look even bleaker for cities in 1991 than they did a year ago. Seven out of 10 municipalities predicted that it would be harder for them to meet their financial needs than it was last year.

"The fuse of deteriorating fiscal conditions is getting shorter and burning hotter in cities and towns everywhere," said New Orleans Mayor Sidney J. Barthelemy, president of the league.

With the federal government and many states reducing the aid they provide to cities, some municipalities may find themselves increasingly vulnerable to financial problems, the report said. But it added it was "highly unlikely" that other cities would follow Bridgeport, Conn., and take the rare step of declaring bankruptcy.

The survey, based on responses from 525 cities, found that more than one city in four -26.5 percent expected spending to exceed revenues by more than 5 percent this year.

A budget gap of that size is considered severe. Unlike the federal government, cities are required to balance their budgets by the end of their fiscal years.

Over the past eight years, no more than 12 percent of cities faced a deficit exceeding 5 percent of their total budget.

Overall, the study discovered that 60.9 percent of all cities expected to have to find some savings to avoid red ink - up from 45.5 percent in 1990.

The survey found that during the past 12 months, 84.6 percent of cities had raised taxes or fees or imposed new ones.

That solution was embraced most often in the recessionwracked Northeast, where taxes or fees were raised in 97.9 percent of , cities responding. In the West, where many laws limit tax increases, 75 percent of municipalities raised taxes or fees - the lowest percentage of any Nationally, 36.2 percent of cities froze hiring and 29.3 percent reduced their work force.

When asked what was responsible for their budget problems, 87.2 percent of the cities mentioned the skyrocketing costs of health benefits.

Just behind were the recession, mentioned by 69.5 percent, and increasing expenses of solid-waste disposal, listed by 66.3 percent of the cities.

Other findings include: • 71.5 percent of cities said they were less able to meet their budget needs this year than last. • 43.4 percent of communities increased property tax rates, 4.4 percent increased their sales tax and 1.1 percent increased their income tax. • 85.1 percent of Northeastern cities said they had increased property taxes, while just 20.4 percent

The Big Spring City Council will consider two ordinances dealing with alcohol use in city parks when it meets Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in building 1106 of the McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark.

A work session that had been scheduled tonight to consider the alcohol issue has been cancelled.

On the council agenda, one ordinance calls for prohibiting use of alcohol in all city parks. A second allows alcohol only in the Comanche Trail Golf Course and at Moss Creek Lake.

There is no provision for specificuse permits at any city park facility. The alcohol consumption issue was first presented to the council when promoters wanted to serve alcohol at a series of concerts at Comanche Trail Amphitheatre.

Among other business, the council is expected to consider:

 An ordinance lowering water costs for local residents who live outside the Big Spring city limits. The residents would be charged $22 per connection - twice the usual rate - and $1.75 per thousand gallons — the same per-thousand rate as city residents.

 Amending the current city charter or drafting a new charter. Closure of a street for a planned street dance Aug. 3. The street desired closed is not specified.

• Final approval of revised charges for use of the Comanche

Trail Amphitheatre. It would increase use fees to $250 per 24-hour period plus a $500 cleanup charge.

 Final approval for purchase of a computer system for the police department.

 Appointment of an auditor for city financial matters. Bid action is expected to include the following:

 A request to advertise for bids for winter jackets for inmates at the Big Spring Correctional Center. • A request to advertise for bids for fencing at the Big Spring Correction Centers I and II After recommendation of the planning and zoning commission, the council will consider designation of the John H. Myers Subdivision plat near Scenic Mountain Medical Center, where construction is planned for a dentist's Citizens can speak on any agenda item by signing a card found near the front entrance to the meeting room. All speakers are asked to limit their remarks to five minutes on each issue, and audience members are not recognized if they speak without signing up.

Citizen comment is also allowed at the "citizen's input" section of the meeting, placed near the end of the agenda. One must also sign up to speak during that section, and the council can take no action on items brought to its attention during citizen's input.

Two ordinances proposed for city council's approval

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

A planned city council work session to consider the controversial issue of alcohol in Comanche Trail Park was apparently cancelled early last week after a memo was circulated polling the council. Members were asked to check 'yes' or "no" answers to a series of questions about possible policies for alcohol sale and consumption, according to a copy of the memo obtained by the Herald today. The memo, dated June 27 and signed by City Manager Hal Boyd, included a draft of a proposed ordinance generated on request of Mayor Max Green. It would have allowed for special provisions to sell and consume alcohol in areas of the park that included the amphitheater, golf course and Cotton Mize Field. Members were asked to complete a series of questions on the memo and return it to Boyd by Tuesday, July 2. "In the event that we have a mas jority consensus on this issue, this will be in the form of an ordinance and brought before you on July 9th," the memo says. It asks, "If a consensus is reached, do you desire that we still have a workshop . . . (tonight)?'

All council members answered "no" to that question.

Boyd said today the memo was an attempt to resolve the issue. Mayor Max Green said he wanted to avoid another long work session that would end without an agreement. Green said he would seek agreement at the council meeting Tuesday and call for an open discussion

if agreement was not reached. According to a tally developed by the city manager's office after the memos were returned, the opinions of the council members were as follows: Max Green and Tim Blackshear would support a total ban of alcohol in all city parks. Ladd Smith, Mark Sheedy and John Coffee were in support of a ban that excluded the Comanche Trail Golf Course, although Coffee also supported a total ban. Corky Harris would support allowing alcohol sales in areas of the park with provisions, and Pat DeAnda would support allowing alcohol use, sale and consumption in the park with specific use permits and provisions. No such or-

GOP wants Main Street cleaned up

HOUSTON(AP) - GOPleaders say they want Houston to clean up the seedier side of South Main Street before the Republican Party brings its national convention here next

GOP officials told The Houston Post they are concerned for the safety of the party's volunteer staff who might have to room near the Astrodome, near an area of South Main Street known for prostitution and drug dealing.

Mayor Kathy Whitmire, who said she was unaware of the GOP's concerns, said the Main Street area is "something that needs to be dealt with regardless of whether the Republican convention or any convention is coming to town. Capt. C.A. Bullock, who heads the police substation in the area, said the criminal activity on South Main is perpetual.

Videotaping police becoming a trend

The trend of videotaping police officers will likely continue since media organizations often pay civilians to submit the tapes, some metroplex-area officers told The Dallas Morning News.

But some critics said videotaping can misrepresent a situation and prevent an officer from using necessary force. For example, critics say an attack on an officer may be missed and only the officer's response may be shown.

"Videotapes can be edited," one Fort Worth patrol officer said. "They can be stopped, and they can be paused. You can slant it any way.

Over 20 whooping cranes hatched

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) -At least 21 chicks have been produced by whooping cranes spending the summer in Canada, wildlife officials say Another six have been hatched under captive breeding programs in Maryland and Wisconsin and that's good news, an official at the endangered species' winter home near Corpus Christi says.

Only about 150 whooping cranes live in the wild and Tom Stehn, refuge biologist, said that although the 21 Canadian chicks are four fewer than the record 25 hatched in 1987, it's still good news.

"When we get more than 20 that's terrific," Stehn said in a recent telephone interview.

NAACP to consider endorsement of Thomas hasn't ruled out an endorsement of U.S. Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas, but the executive director of the nation's largest civil rights organization says the group is using a critical eye to review the judge's record.

Benjamin Hooks said Sunday the endorsement is one of the major issues before the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which has gathered here for its 84th annual national convention.

Gentry Trotter, NAACP national press secretary, said Sunday night he could not say when the delegates would vote on the endorsement. He said he did not know if the results of the vote would be made public in a 9 a.m. CDT press conference.

Hooks said the organization's board of directors would discuss delegates" Thomas' possible appointment in a appointment.

Drag racing task force wants to reclaim streets new drag racing task force created to slow down illegal racing in the Dallas area say they want to reclaim the streets.

But that may be easier said than done, especially since the offenders have cars built to outrun the patrol cars driven by the pursuing police

'They've got these fancy, highperformance cars that can really blow us away," said Sgt. Paul Fletcher Jr., who heads the task force. "If we had a dozen more officers out here, things might be different." The task force is designed to clamp down on illegal drag racing and the gambling, drug and alcohol abuse usually linked to the activity. The unit was formed after a shooting rampage at a illegal drag race June 30 that left five people wounded.

Meese disputes authority to probe

WASHINGTON (AP) -Former Attorney General Edwin Meese III is challenging Congress' authority to investigate whether the Reagan presidential campaign tried to delay the release of American hostages by Iran in 1980.

"There's no independent constitutional authority for the Congress to go off on investigative frolics of their own," Meese said on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" program Sunday.

Foreign minister coming to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House said today that Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev is sending his foreign minister to Washington on Wednesday in a redoubled effort to conclude a strategic arms treaty.

Gorbachev relayed that word on Sunday through his ambassador to the United States, one day after Bush sent the Soviet president an urgent message to try to bring the strategic arms reduction talks to a successful conclusion.

"President Gorbachev agreed with the president's view for the need to redoubled efforts at com-hostages," the former attorney general and campaign official said.

But Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind. appearing with Meese on the program, said there was "an enormous amount of conflicting testimony" on the question and Congress "should go forward with some kind of an inquiry." Meese said there was "no credible evidence that would even elevate this to the point where Congress should get involved."

Besides, he said, "there's a real question as to whether Congress has the constitutional authority to get into it, since it doesn't really fall into Congress' usual lawmak ing situation.'

They will meet with Secretary of State James A. Baker III on Thursday afternoon and Friday.

WASHINGTON (AP) - To the list of familiar reasons for the slow growth and social problems of poor countries can be added an often ignored but potent accomplice alcohol. Having a cold beer after a hard day's work seems like an innocuous habit in many parts of the world, but what happens in a country where the wages are meager and just two bottles of beer cost half a day's pay?

The result is that many households have no money left over for necessities such as food, and children must go to bed hungry. According to one estimate, onethird of the malnourished children of San Pedro La Laguna, Guatemala, are victims of booze.

In Burkina Faso, formerly Upper Volta, a study of men in one region showed that they spent an average of $84 a year on beer — 44 percent of the West African country's per capita income, a diversion of scarce resources that has contributed greatly to the impoverishment of that area.

The same is true of Papua New the average household spends 30 percent of its income on alcohol. Generally speaking, in countries where drinking is a problem, it is the men who imbibe and the women and children who pay. The consequences of alcohol consumption in poor countries are examined by Lori Heise in the July-August issue of Worldwatch magazine, published by the Worldwatch Institute, a Washington research center.

She points out that treatment of alcohol-related diseases forces hard-pressed governments to divert resources from other vital needs. In Mexico, for example, cirrhosis of the liver — a disease closely associated with heavy drinking — is the leading cause of death among men 25 to 54. In Trinidad, 47 percent of males admitted to the country's largest hospital have medical problems related to drinking.

Drinking is becoming an increasingly accepted pastime in the Third World, partly because sophisticated advertising campaigns establish close links bet-Guinea, where it is estimated that ween alcohol and social status.

ANC considers negotiating reform

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) -The African National Congress says sanctions, strikes and protests remain potent weapons to force reform, but the prospect of black-white negotiations also looms large on the horizon.

The ANC, the country's leading black opposition movement, wrapped up a week-long conference Sunday by reasserting its intentions to press ahead with confrontational policies such as backing international economic sanctions.

"Our position is very clear: sanctions must continue to be maintained," ANC President Nelson Mandela told delegates Sunday in this Indian Ocean city.

At the gathering - the ANC's first legal national conference inside South Africa - the group announced no major policy changes. But the conference, attended by more than 2,200 delegates, ran smoothly and was seen as an important milestone in the group's transition from an oftendisorganized liberation movement to a more coherent and focused political party.

"Our conference is more representative and has greater authority than the illegitimate ... Parliament,' which excludes blacks, Mandela told an enthusiastic rally that drew 30,000 supporters to a soccer stadium Sunday afternoon.

BRIONI, Yugoslavia (AP) -Slovenian and federal leaders agreed today on a formula that would give the republic limited control of its international borders and time to peacefully work out secession. But ethnic violence escalated in Croatia.

As an indication of good will, Slovenia released its last few federal army prisoners — fewer than 100 officers

In Croatia, which along with Slovenia declared independence in June 25, federal army tanks broke up a firefight between Croatian and Serbian forces marked by shelling and the firing of rocket-propelled grenades.

Socially irresponsible ads

What kind of people will buy a beer with the brand name "PowerMaster" on it? G. Heileman Brewing Co. is hoping it will be young black men, which is why they are doing their best to rope them in with a specially-designed advertising campaign.

What the company is doing is not illegal, but it is an outstanding example of a morally bankrupt corporation willing to engage in socially irresponsible behavior for profit at any cost. Especially when the cost is the future of a relatively powerless group of young people who need all the support and proper guidance they can get.

The last thing these young men need is directions to the nearest corner where they can get drunk on PowerMaster Malt Liquor.

What they need is directions to more productive avenues where they can benefit from the real power that exists in their minds and ideas.

They also need help developing job skills. And jobs where they can put those skills to use.

They need so many things but liquor is not one of them. Sometimes the drive to make a profit without regard to social consequences is a hard habit to break.

High priority put on ethics

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu has embarrassed his boss again, and this time he's not making a joke of Caught violating travel rules for the second time in as many months, Sununu is contrite, and rightfully so. Though President Bush is brushing off critics' suggestions that Sununu resign, his frustration — and that of the American people — is clear.

Chastened just two months ago for political use of expensive, taxpayer-funded military aircraft for personal and political travel, Sununu was called down again last week for providing inaccurate information to White House Counsel Boyden Gray's office about who paid for a flight he made to Chicago. As it turns out, Sununu solicited the flight himself, which is against White House ethics rules.

To keep Sununu from making more mistakes, Bush has ordered Sununu to make all travel arrangements through the Office of Administration. That's on top of the requirement issued last month that he get approval from Gray's

As Bush says, the rules aren't that complicated. It's almost as if Sununu thinks he's so busy with highlevel political intrigue that he can't be bothered with the details of proper, ethical behavior, that the nagging questions of reporters and others are beneath his notice because he's so important.

He'd do well to remember that he's only so important because the American people had faith in his boss, and his boss has placed a high priority on ethics and propriety.

Drug pushing is violent

Should one feel sorry for the person who, having gotten caught with a sizable load of dangerous drugs, draws a prison sentence of life without parole? Isn't this cruel and unusual punishment? Last week, the Supreme Court answered the latter question by ruling such sentences constitutional

In doing so, the court rejected the argument that possession of large amounts of drugs is not on a par with the crimes of violence that usually rate life sentences. . . . Hardly anyone carrying a really large quantity of dangerous drugs such as cocaine is carrying it just for his or her own use. Those drugs are meant to be distributed, and their distribution affects human beings in ways that acts of violence do.

Drugs cause injury and death, and they contribute to enormous emotional suffering among those who use them and those who know and love users. To judge from its ultimate physical and emotional impact, possessing drugs for sale truly can be called an act of violence. . . . In the case before the court, defendant Ronald A. Harmelin was found in possession of 672.5 grams of cocaine — about 1½ pounds — and sentenced to life without parole under a Michigan law.

(I)n a plurality opinion upholding the sentence, Justice Anthony M. Kennedy said ... it was "false to the point of absurdity" to suggest that possessing enough cocaine to yield 32,500 to 65,000 doses was a 'non-violent and victimless" crime.

Harmelin might not consciously have intended to harm anyone, but the fact remains that he could not separate himself legally and morally from the harmful consequences of his actions.

Muddled reasoning, sound decision

WASHINGTON - That interesting garment known as the G-string gained constitutional status last week, along with two other objects known to the striptease trade as "pasties." Thus adorned, said the Supreme Court of the United States, a dancer is engaged in protected expression. But performing mother naked in an Indiana bar, a dancer is merely indecent.

The case involved two adult enterprises in South Bend. Darlene Miller wished to dance in the nude at the Kitty Kat Lounge. Gayle Ann Marie Sutro wished to dance au naturel at the Glen Theatre bookstore. In a test case, they challenged an Indiana law that prohibits anyone from intentionally appearing in a state of nudity in a public place. The act defines nudity as the showing of a person's genitals, pubic area or buttocks "with less than a fully opaque covering." As for the female breast, it is indecently displayed "with less than a fully opaque covering of any part of the nipple.

The plaintiffs contended that nude erotic dancing is a form of expression protected by the "free speech" provision of the Constitution. The state of Indiana said nonsense, nudity in a barroom setting provokes anti-social behavior. On that oversimplified dichotomy the case made its way through the courts of the 7th Circuit. Some of the learned judges wrote "constitutional" on their slates, and some wrote "unconstitutional." After five months of praying over the matter, the Supreme Court came thundering down on June 21 with — not much of anything.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist wrote a wishy-washy opinion upholding the statutory exemption for G-strings and pasties, but only Justices Sandra Day O'Connor and Anthony Kennedy bought it. Justice Antonin Scalia and Justice David Souter concurred in the result, but for different reasons. The other four justices, speaking through Justice Byron White, dissented in the name of James Madison, the First Amendment, and the striptease. It was not the court's finest hour.

The chief justice agreed that nude dancing "under some circumstances" is entitled to First Amendment protection. Various state courts have ruled to the same effect. Nude dancing of the kind sought to be performed at the Kitty Kat Lounge, said Rehnquist, is "expressive conduct within the outer perimeter of the First Amendment. But there is such a thing as 'public indecency,' he added. At least 47 states have laws in this field. Indecent exposure was a criminal offense in English common law. Such statutes "reflect moral disapproval of people appearing in the nude among strangers in public places." The laws further a substantial government interest in protecting order and morality. Public nudity, the five judges agreed, is an "evil" that Indiana may rightfully seek to prevent. As for the G-string and the pasties, these are "modest" requirements and represent "the bare minimum necessary to achieve the state's purpose.'

In his concurring opinion, the usually articulate Scalia came down with the stammers. The First Amendment, he confidently began, protects oral and written speech. It does not protect "expressive conduct." Then he took it back: "This is not to say that the First Amendment affords no protection to expressive conduct.' But not to this conduct.

Whereupon Scalia rode off on a line of fascinating speculation in which 60,000 naked Hoosiers are crowded into the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis. His point was not altogether clear.

Justice Souter, concurring separately, conceded that nude dancing in a South Bend bar "is subject to a degree of First Amendment protection," but he had trouble defining the degree. "Pasties and a G-string moderate the expression to some degree,' he thought, "but only to a degree." Dropping the final stitch is prohibited, "but the limitation is minor."

What is one to make of all this? The court seems to have hung a constitutional principle on a Gstring, but the court's ultimate conclusion, whether express or implied, makes an uncertain kind of common sense. Adult "bookstores" unquestionably contribute to a seedy atmosphere, i.e., an atmosphere that encourages the kind of conduct that society historically has the power to suppress

To equate nude dancing at the Kitty Kat Lounge with a performance of Salome at the Met is pure sophistry. The argument trivializes the First Amendment. It falsely assumes that judges and legislators are incapable of making realistic distinctions. In this case, the court came ungracefully to a sound decision. I would let it go at that. Since when do those who do not enjoy something have the right to deprive those who do? I don't like soap operas or the T & A on "A Current Affair" so I exercise my freedom of choice and change the channel. Would I deprive those who enjoy such shows of their right to watch them? Certainly not. Our cable TV company feels rock & rollers are a minority and do not count. I encourage you to write TCA Cablevision at P.O. Box 139012, Tyler, TX 75713, and express your opinion at being deprived of your rights. To those who don't care one way or the other about MTV but would not deprive others who enjoy it, please express your feelings, too!

Admittedly, there are some lousy videos on MTV. But do those who complain only about the bad never see the good? One small example: Who can watch Michael Jackson's "Man in the Mirror" and not get misty-eyed at the sight of starving and homeless people and of the way we are destroying our planet? You can also express your opinion to MTV, 1775 Broadway, New York, New York 10019. The last time I looked, this was still America — the land of Freedom.

"Viva Las Vegas" was on the tube recently and I watched it. It carried me back nearly 20 years to the first time I saw it, the first time I really noticed Elvis Presley. It was love at first sight Don't ask me why he affected me as no entertainer has before or since, but my life began to revolve around him. I lived for the day when I could afford to buy another album, the day his next movie would come to the Ritz Theater, the day another movie magazine would feature stories and pictures of the King. If he had driven up to me on the streets of Big Spring and stopped, opened the door of his limousine and asked me to marry him, I would have gotten in and gone with him. Or, at least, that's what I did in all my fantasies. The flame flickered and died down with age, but it was still strong enough in August 1977 for me to remember where I was and how I heard about Elvis' death, just as I remember the moment I heard of Kennedy's assassination I couldn't believe it. He was only 42. How could the man who had everything be dead at only 42? With his kind of wealth, couldn't he have bought health?

And then bits and pieces of the truth began to leak out — his dependence on prescription drugs. health problems created by selfindulgence, his apparent inability to deal with life. Why had the lithe, energetic hero of my teenage fantasies turned into a bedraggled old man at only 42?

At the time of his death, someone compared Elvis to Pat Boone. I can't remember what that commentator said, but I had occasion to make comparisons of my own this week

Elvis was raised an only child by doting parents, whose whole existence seemed to revolve around their son. His childhood was marked by abject poverty in those Depression days of the 1930s, but poverty turned into lavish wealth when he rocketed into stardom. Either way, Elvis' whole world revolved around

Teenage: Time to set goals, grow

Elvis. As generous as he was with money, one thing he never gave (except perhaps to his mother) was himself. His only solution to marital problems, and to other opportunities life gave him to grow up, was to throw money at them.

Pat, 7 months older than Elvis, grew up with three siblings, loved by his parents, but not the focal point of their lives. Books by and about him reveal the emotional struggles he faced as a husband, as a father and as an entertainer. Instead of trying to buy his way out of his troubles, he worked through them with his family and friends. He allowed himself to mature. He gave himself away, perhaps not easily, but because he saw it was the only way to achieve the happy, productive life he desired.

In his book to teenagers, "Twixt Twelve and Twenty," Pat advises them to set goals for growth in six areas: spiritual, social, mental, physical, financial and work. He suggests that they take jobs nobody else wants; that they not only get educated but that they learn to think; and that they give, share and contribute.

Elvis died, old and fat, at 42. Pat, at 57, is lean and strong today, enjoying his wife, his four daughters and his grandchildren still living and loving, still giving of himself.

I thought about Elvis and Pat this week as I read the letters to the editor about MTV. I was saddened, but not surprised, at the attitude of teenagers who said there is nothing to do in Big Spring; and, without MTV, why would anybody want to stay here? But I was alarmed to hear parents saying the same thing.

It seems to me that if a television channel — no matter what the channel is - can have that kind of impact in a person's life, the person must have a pretty shallow existence. Sure, I like television, but I'm not always happy I grew up in the Age of the Tube. It's too easy to become a couch potato with the television set as life's centerpiece.

I agree with Pat Boone's book. The teenage years are a good time to be setting goals in all the important areas of life. If a person is growing in the spiritual, social, mental, physical, financial and work arenas of life, I don't know how he will have time to watch TV or worry about the size of his town

It seems the world consists of two kinds of people: givers and takers. A giver will stay busy and happy no matter where he lives. because the world is jam-packed full of needs to be met. A taker, whose life revolves around himself and his interests, will eventually grow bored and listless no matter how big the city he lives in. He could easily find himself dependent on TV — or drugs or alcohol or whatever — to stave off the tedium, because no one is so exciting, so dynamic, that they can spend all their energies on themselves without eventually sinking into hopelessness. Not even the King of rock'n'roll. If you ask me, one of the wisest kindest things parents can do is to help their children become givers. It's not something that happens automatically — we're all selfish by nature. But kids can be encouraged to do things like volunteer at a nursing home or the humane center, take lonely children on outings, or heip older and handicapped people around the home. The opportunities are endless and can be suited to the tastes of the teenager.

Motivating kids isn't the easiest thing in the world. Motivating them to care about somebody besides themselves is even harder. But it's worth it. It could mean the difference between life and death, as it did for Elvis

My husband asked if it was possible to have had this "sexually transmitted disease" for 14 years - or was there some other way of getting it? Also, wouldn't it be wise to run another test just to make sure?

The doctor insisted that his diagnosis was correct, then with a smirk he added, "I'm not suggesting that you run home and beat your wife, but you obviously got it from her.

Abby, no wife could be more faithful than I. I never even looked at another man in more than 14 years. My husband says he believes me, yet he's been having bad dreams ever since. I know I'd be accused of "protesting too much" if I confronted the doctor. This is a small town, and it could make matters even worse. Besides, I hear that this doctor thinks all non-churchgoers (like my husband and myself) are pretty much "scum" anyway. What can I do? I'm not taking this lightly. —

According to Dr. Willard Cates Jr., director of the Sexually Transmitted Disease Division of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta: "No diagnostic test is 100 percent accurate. The doctor who accused you unjustly is guilty of unprofessional behavior. He was also in error in refusing to perform more definitive tests. Report him to your county medical society.

Supreme Court confirmations not a sure thing

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush's new Supreme Court nomination comes on the heels of a reminder that the oft-cited tradition of Senate approval for all but the clearly unfit is really not a tradition at all.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., in his just-released second volume of collected speeches on Senate history, includes a revised chapter on Senate treatment of presidential nominees. Clarence Thomas, Bush's choice to succeed Justice Thurgood Marshall, would find little comfort there.

Since it first began confirmations in George Washington's first term, the Senate has killed 20 percent of all nominations to the Supreme Court. Some of those 26 were withdrawn, some rejected outright and some just never acted upon.

It is a fantasy of "White House spokesmen and their sympathizers" that "the Senate's role

The Senate was given its role of approving nominations in the Constitution as a check on executive branch powers. And Byrd argues that in the case of nominations to the courts, lawmakers have well demonstrated their independence, if not always for the best of reasons

President Grant's attorney general, Ebenezer Hoar, "insisted that the president make judicial nominations without prior senatorial clearance, thus violating a venerable tradition," and he "made few friends in Congress for the administration."

So later, when Grant suggested Hoar for the Supreme Court, "One can imagine the pleasure with which members of the Senate cast their votes to defeat Grant's

The rampant patronage, in executive branch positions controlled by the Senate, was cleaned up greatly by the creation of a professional civil service in the late 19th century.

Some remnants, though, continue to this day. For example, appointments to the federal court in a particular state are still made in consultation with the senators from that state, or the nomination can be in peril regardless of how well qualified the nominee might be.

President Reagan learned that lesson nearly a decade ago when he nominated Kenneth Starr to the federal appeals court in Virginia. Starr had not been cleared with Virginia's delegation, and Reagan was forced to send him to the District of Columbia court instead.

still helps to have friends.

Last year, Bush's nomination of Justice David Souter was greatly enhanced by Souter's friendship with Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H. Similarly, Thomas will benefit from support from his old boss and mentor, Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo.

The last nominee rejected by the Senate, Robert Bork, could have used more friendliness. Liberal groups fought Bork because of his conservative views, but Byrd concludes it was something in Bork's personality that ultimately led to his downfall. "It was his perceived ideological inflexibility and intellectual aloofness that seemed to separate him from the very human elements of the issues that daily face the court," he says.

Byrd doesn't say it directly in regard to Bork, but later in the chapter he cites a lobbyist's rule for nominees' behavior that Borkviolated.

"The Senate expects you to be suitably humble and deferential, not cocky," wrote Tom Korologos, who coached many Reagan administration nominees

The bottom line for many senators is that they will vote what makes sense politically for themselves. The early silence from many Democrats says it's a tough calculation in the Thomas case, but one that might become more clear in the upcoming hearings.

Byrd's advice to his colleagues is to take their time and find out everything they can.

"If serious character flaws or damaging information about a nominee's past are to be uncovered, better that they become public knowledge before the individual is confirmed rather than afterwards," he says.

Peace Corps helps new democracies Research shows Arctic Typical is Mary Irwin, 25, of Nashville, Tenn., who worked five Ocean ice cap receding years in the film and video field

NEW YORK (AP) — The massive floating canopy of ice that covers the Arctic Ocean receded over a nine-year period, possibly reflecting the effects of global warming, researchers

The canopy, which at times is 70 percent larger than the United States, drew back about 2 percent between October 1978 and August 1987, researchers said.

But scientists cautioned they do not know enough yet to blame global warming, the expected consequence of a buildup in the atmosphere of heat-trapping

Researchers will need 30 years of observation "before you can even think about saying anything definite about the climate," said study co-author Per Gloersen.

Gloersen is a physicist in the oceans and ice branch of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md. The work appears in Thursday's issue of the British journal Nature.

Researchers used satellite observations to track the extent of Arctic and Antarctic sea ice over the nine-year period. The Arctic sea-ice canopy is a collection of many small ice chunks, often connected by thin ice, that fills the Arctic Ocean and spreads into the Bering Sea, Baffin Bay and other nearby bodies of water in the wintertime.

In summer, it retreats to within the Arctic Ocean, Gloersen said. The 2 percent loss is in what scientists call the extent of the sea ice cover, which is the area enclosed by its edges. Scientists also found about a 3.5 percent drop in the amount of open water within the Arctic ice cover. No significant changes were observed in the Antarctic ice

The researchers said they did not know why changes seen in the Arctic did not occur in the Antarctic. But they said one recent computer simulation of global warming suggests the Arctic would warm quickly and the Antarctic only slowly.

Rocket Ismail grounded for now

TORONTO (AP) — The first flight of The Rocket may be delayed.

While his Toronto teammates prepare for their Canadian Football League opener, Raghib "Rocket" Ismail is in Los Angeles seeing a doctor about his injured left leg.

Ismail, who forsook the NFL and signed a contract worth $18 million with the Argonauts, won't return to Toronto until Tuesday night. The delay means it's unlikely the wide receiver-kick returner from Notre Dame will make the season opener in Ottawa on Thursday.

The Argonauts travel to Ottawa on Wednesday and conduct a informal workout.

Michael Stich it to Becker

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)

— He's the Wimbledon champion, a millionaire and one of the top four players in the world.

However, Michael Stich, the newest Grand Slam winner, may have to pay a price for his new fame and fortune.

"His life isn't going to be the same anymore," warned Boris Becker, the man Stich defeated 6-4, 7-6 (7-4), 6-4 on Sunday in the men's final. "He is the Wimbledon champion. He is a star now."

Stich was largely unknown outside his native Germany two weeks ago. But winning Wimbledon ensures an end to anonymity.

Becker, a three-time winner who knows all about the loss of innocence that accompanies a Wimbledon title, embraced his Davis Cup teammate at the net after the final point.

"I know how it feels. I know how important this day can be in a life," Becker said.

Stich, 22, had won only one tournament before Sunday. He had never played in a Grand Slam final.

By the end of the afternoon, that all had changed. His $384,000 winner's paycheck took him to nearly $1.2 million in career earnings and boosted him three spots to No. 4 in the world rankings.

Stich said he hopes he is prepared for his new role.

"What is a star? That's what you have to ask. It's tough to say for myself," said Stich, who slammed 15 aces past Becker and repeatedly pounded backhand winners on service returns.

"I hope I'm not going to be a different person to my friends and to my family. I just hope I can be like I am now. For sure there are going to be a couple of things that change, but I don't know what they are."

Becker cautioned that being a champion comes at a high cost.
"He's not going to realize it

"He's not going to realize it now, but maybe in a couple of years' time he'll realize the fact how much his life has changed and will change," he said.

"But it's up to him how he can cope with it. Now he's a star, but not everything that shines is gold.

Despite the loss, Becker remained No. 1 in the world — an honor he claimed two days earlier when Stefan Edberg lost to Stich in the semifinals. Becker and Edberg have been leap-frogging each other for the top men's ranking all year.

It may be dull, but it's effective

WIMBLEDON, England
(AP) — Michael Stich blasts a 100 mph serve, Boris Becker slams it back and Stich pounds a volley just wide of Becker's outstretched arm.

It may be effective, but it doesn't necessarily thrill the fans, especially when it happens point after point after point.

Former champion Arthur Ashe calls it the "Wimbledon waltz." Serve, return, volley, stop. He would like to see some more jazz on court.

more jazz on court.
Softer balls, which slow down booming serves, volleys and groundstrokes, may be the answer. So could forcing the server to stand further back.

Sunday's Wimbledon final, in which Stich upset the three-time champion Becker in straight sets, had some moments of spectacular action. But it was 80 percent serve-and-volley, with the 6-foot-4 Stich out-acing Becker 15-10. Few points lasted more than four exchanges.

Being tall is a big help to a serve-and-volley player, and Ashe, champion in 1975, fears that the championship could become a monopoly for players 6-2 and over.

He noted that two of the men's semifinalists were 6-4, one was 6-3 and the smallest, defending tithist Stefan Edberg, was 6-2.

"Success at Wimbledon is now survival of the tallest rather than the fittest," he said. "The committee could have seeded by height and still done a creditable job of anticipating the results.

"A wonderfully talented performer like (1989 French Open winner) Michael Chang has no chance to win here," Ashe said. "Pat Cash, the champion here in 1987, may be the last sub-6-feet winner we'll see for a long time."

Because serve-and-volley finishes each point so quickly, the fans see very little tennis.

"Something has to be done so we don't get a repeat of too many matches with points over in less than 2½ seconds," Ashe said. "That's not fun.

Umpire seriously hurt in good samaritan act

Durwood Merrill, an American League umpire who works with Palermo, said the bullet passed through Palermo and that Mann was shot three times. Police, however, wouldn't confirm that Mann had been shot more than once.

Merrill said it is in an umpire's nature to help someone in distress.

"Knowing him, he would just react and not think about getting hurt," Merrill said. "Our disposition is so fearless that you don't think about what might happen.

"It's in our makeup. We've been pounded on and beat on to where we think we're immune."

Rich Garcia, Palermo's crew chief, spoke with him after the two-hour surgery and said there was concern that Palermo might be paralyzed.

"He has some feeling in both feet on and off. He's in a lot of pain from the catheter they put in," Garcia said. "He had spasms in his back from lying still so long. He had pain in his back and in his buttocks and that's a positive thing at this

But Bauer said Palermo didn't show any signs of paralysis.
"He has no paralysis at this point," she said late Sunday.

April Nickleberry, a child care specialist at Buckner Baptist Children's Home, confirmed Mann had played for the Dolphins (1987-88) and Southern Methodist from 1983-86.

Mann is a child care specialist at the home for troubled foster children and abused children. Mann was not taking phone calls to his hospital room and requested that no information about his condition be released.

Garcia said Palermo and Mann didn't know each other.

Palermo was at Campisi's Egyptian Restaurant, a popular hangout for sports figures, for dinner after working third base in Saturday night's game between the California Angels and the Texas Rangers.

Norman blows five-stroke lead and Cochran takes advantage

LEMONT, Ill. (AP) — Russ Cochran now has an answer for his sons. Greg Norman has more questions.

"I have three boys. When we go to a Tour function and we're sitting with other players, the boys will ask me, 'Daddy, has Mr. Soand-so won?' And I say yes.

"Then they'll see somebody else and ask 'Has Mr. So-and-so won?' And I'll say yes. "Then they ask me, 'When are you going to win, Daddy?'

"Now," Cochran said Sunday after his 2-stroke victory over Norman in the Western Open, "I have an answer."

Cochran, a left-hander, scoredthe first victory of his 9-season
PGA Tour career when Norman blew a 5-shot lead with eight holes to go, playing the back nine in 40 and making bogey on five of the last six holes.

"I feel like I gave it away," Norman said.

Cochran could only agree.

"Right about at the turn, with Greg so far in front and playing so well, I was just trying to hang on for second place," Cochran said.
Instead, however, it was Norman who could not hang on. Frequently the victim of last-hole heroics by other players, Norman's undoing this time was by his own hands.

Four ahead with six holes to go, he reeled off a string of four consecutive bogeys and made another — this one without real meaning — on the final hole.

"I stubbed my toe a bit coming home," he said. "This is one I should have won."

He three-putted. Once he hit into the gallery, with the ball coming to rest under a woman's purse. Twice he hit deep into bushes and trees. One of these was unplayable. On the other, he emerged from the underbrush brushing twigs and leaves from his hair.

Cochran, meanwhile, was playing along steadily, hitting fairways and greens, getting the pars that became more valuable as Norman whittled away at his own lead.

LEMONT, III. — Russ Cochran of Paducah, Ky., blasts from the sand on the 17th hole during Sunday's final round of the Western Open golf tournament. Cochran overcame a five-stroke deficit with eight holes left to beat Greg Norman for the championship.

Cochran made up two shots by getting up and down from a greenside bunker for birdie-4 on the 15th while Norman was having one of his woodsy adventures.

He made up two more, vaulting into the lead, on the 16th where Norman's approach ended up under the purse and Cochran sank a 30-footer.

cochran won it was a closing round of 3-under-par 69 and a 275 total. Norman, still trying to snap a year-long non-winning string, struggled to a 71 for 277. Fred Couples, the winner last week in Memphis and the only other man in title-contention here, shot a 72 and came in at 278.

The three were tied for the lead going into the final round at Dubsdread at Cog Hill, but Norman quickly pulled away.

He opened up birdie-birdie, hit a 5-iron shot 179 yards and into the cup for an eagle-2 on the fourth and was 5-under for the day after five holes.

'To be honest with you,'
Cochran said, 'it was a little

"I feel very fortunate to come out on top against such great players," Cochran said.

Miller and Richard finished regulation with 8-under-par 205 totals on the 6,295-yard Highland Meadows course. Miller shot a 1-under 70 and Richard had a 68. Lynn Connelly closed with a 71 to finish third at 208. Laurie Rinker was fourth at 209 after a 67.

Oilers' coach ready for football

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oilers coach Jack Pardee already is excited about the upcoming training camp.

The Oilers are scheduled to report to Trinity University in San Antonio on July 15. And while his wife, Phyllis, got Pardee to take a short vacation to the Dominican Republic, Houston's coach can't wait to get back to football. "It's good to take a break, but I'm ready for the season," Pardee said. "I just love coaching football. I den't think I'm a workaholic, though There are times v:hen I can relax, but football's not just my job, it's my hobby, teo "I don't like to waste time. I'd rather spend my time and energy on a challenge. Foot-ball's a challenge. There's nothing boring about it. Every day, there are new problems to solve. And I never get tired of it," he said. Pardee's ego took a beating in the first two team outings.

Dave Winfield, 1-for-22 with 13 strikeouts lifetime against Ryan, ended the right-hander's bid for his second no-hitter of the season with a clean single to center to open the eighth inning.

"I wasn't going to get punched out again," Winfield said. "There was no way I wasn't going to swing. This is one of the better games you'll ever see pitched. One of the best games I've ever participated in. Unfortunately we lost.'

"I was trying to keep it off the plate, hoping that maybe he'd chase it," Ryan said of the 0-2 pitch that Winfield hit back through the middle. "But it came in over the plate.'

Gary Gaetti, the only starter who didn't strike out against Ryan, led off the ninth with a double to leftcenter and Ryan was removed after Donnie Hill lined out to first. "I think he was pretty spectacular tonight," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said after his club moved into first place in the AL West, five percentage points ahead of Minnesota.

The 44-year-old Ryan, who went to a hospital emergency room Wednesday when he thought pain from a pulled chest muscle might be a heart attack, had a perfect game until he walked Luis Polonia leading off the seventh. Polonia was erased when Wally Joyner hit into a double play.

Ryan said he never thought about a perfect game.

"Not with the history of control I have," he said.

The 1990 Cy Young Award winner, who lost six of his first seven decisions, improved to 8-8 by allowing five hits over seven innings on Sunday as the Pirates defeated the visiting Montreal Expos 6-1. He struck out a season-high 10 as Pittsburgh avoided its first four-game losing streak of the season.

Drabek, 22-6 last season, was 1-6 on May 11. But he has turned it around, winning six of his last seven decisions while lowering his ERA to 2.94.

"Considering where I was, I'm definitely glad to be at the .500 said Drabek, who also keyed a three-run fifth with an RBI single. "When I was 1-6, I was trying to go out and win two or three games in one night. The last few weeks, I've been able to get back into a groove, get some rhythm."

Ron Hassey gave the Expos a 1-0 lead with a home run in the fifth, but Drabek got the run back with his bat in the bottom half Oil Can Boyd (4-8) walked Mike

Geiberger breaks two-year drought

MASON, Ohio (AP) — To Al Geiberger, the ups and downs of tournament golf are a lot like life. Geiberger should know: He's had exultation and heartache in both.

"I like to do this with my career," Geiberger said after winning the $600,000 Kroger Classic on Sunday. "I like to play along well for a while and then I like to go into a slump and not win and then I like to go into a period where it feels like I'll never win again so that when I do win it's really exciting.

Geiberger, whose last Senior PGA Tour win came in 1989, shot a 3-under-par 68 on Sunday to overtake Dale Douglass. He finished at 10-under-par 203, one shot ahead of Larry Laoretti and two ahead of Douglass, Miller Barber and Harold Henning.

"I don't know why I do that to myself," Geiberger said. "It's been nearly two years since I won. My games been going up and down through that period. So has his personal life.

"I'm still fighting that because the grief stays with the parents for a long time."
Geiberger said therapy helped him regain emotional balance and a teaching pro in Palm Springs helped him tear down and rebuild his game. "I think golf helps me go through the tragedy more than my wife," Geiberger said. "When you play golf for a living for so many years, you understand good and bad breaks and what an accident is. "You can hit a perfect shot and hit a sprinkler head and, boom, you're gone. Or you can hit a terrible shot, like today, and something good happens. "After 30 years, you ought to learn something out of it."

The Geibergers have found some solace in their 6-month-old baby, Katie. Geiberger's 23-year-old son, John, has brought him good luck as his caddy.

"He's my best caddy and really a good traveling companion, too," Geiberger said.

"His game is identical to mine. He hits it the same distance, he hits exactly the same club — we look like clones if you watch us swing and he has a better set of eyes. I de-

On Sunday, Geiberger suc-cessfully talked himself out of collapsing after bogeying the 14th hole to briefly fall one shot behind Douglass.

"I thought, "This is it!" Andretti said after avoiding the wall and racing to his second straight victory, a 2.25-second win over Emerson Fittipaldi in Sunday's Cleveland Grand Prix.

Andretti, who also beat Fittipaldi to the finish line two weeks ago at Portland, Ore., has never had much good luck on the temporary road circuit at Cleveland's Burke Lakefront Airport.

Once he was leading going into a broke the ice. Maybe that's a good' pit stop and wound up out of the running after crashing into his father and teammate, Mario Andretti.

Last year, he took the lead on the first turn of the race only to have his engine die two turns later. He wound up finishing last.

In seven previous tries here, the best the second-generation racer had produced was a runner-up finish in 1984.

"It's nice to finally win this race because the last few years we've been having a little bit of a problem here," the younger Andretti said. "Cleveland hasn't been very good to me, but we finally won it and omen for the rest of the season."

His third victory this season moved Andretti from third to second in the standings, trailing leader Bobby Rahal 104-94 after eight of 17 events.

After starting second to Fittipaldi, a two-time Cleveland win-, ner, Michael trailed Emmo most of the way through the 52nd of 85 laps on the 2.37-mile, 10-turn circuit.

The only time he led during that stretch was on lap 29 when Fittipaldi made his first of two scheduled pit stops.

Then, on lap 53, Andretti, who had been stalking Fittipaldi on the slick surface, made his move.

He drove hard into the first turn, nudging his Lola-Chevrolet past Fittipaldi's Penske-Chevrolet for a moment. But Fittipaldi surged back in front as they came off the slow 120-degree right-hander.

On the short straightaway between turns two and three, Michael again took the intiative, this time racing past on the inside and holding off the Brazilian. He led the rest of the way.

But it wasn't a cakewalk. "I was kind of waiting for something to happen for a while, and it almost did," Andretti said.

The track, laid out on the concrete runways and taxiways of the small downtown airport, with some patches of asphalt, was breaking

Just four laps after passing Fittipaldi for the lead, Michael got into the "marbles" - pieces of broken concrete and small balls of asphalt - in turn eight and nearly slid into a concrete barrier that later claimed the car of John Andretti, his cousin.

"I thought, "This is it!" Michael said. "I just had no control. I was just hoping that the aerodynamics of the car would keep it down. Have you ever been on an ice patch? That's what it was like. Then, going into the next turn, I had all that stuff still sticking to my tires. Whew! I got lucky.

ficult moment, Andretti was sweating it out for more reasons than the temperatures in the mid-90s and high humidity.

Each time he began to pull away from Fittipaldi, a full-course caution flag would wave.

The track was under caution from lap 68 through 73 while some of the marbles were swept away by the safety crew and corner workers.

The field was also behind the pace car from lap 79 through 81 after John Andretti walked away uninjured from his battered car.

"That second caution is the one that scared me," Michael said.

Crazy — to a point

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) Patrick Swayze likes to perform his own stunts in movies, but he's no fool.

Swayze surfed and skydived in his latest movie, "Point Break." But he drew the line at throwing himself off a skyscraper. "Of course, I'm not going to do any of those wild things like jumping off a 20-story building or flipping a motorcycle over five times," Swayze said.
