Moore board to meet Wednesday

The board of directors of Moore Development for Big Spring Inc. will consider liability insurance when it meets Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. in the office board room, 215 W. Third St.

Moore directors are expecting to consider the purchase of insurance for themselves and the corporation, an item previously postponed for discussion. Other agenda items include standing committee reports and a report from Executive Director Ted St. Clair.

Death under investigation

A Big Spring Police Department spokesperson said the death of Jamie Leffler-Moreno remains a mystery today.

Police are awaiting autopsy results before attempting to determine if the shooting was intentional. Moreno, 22, was found dead in her home Thursday, believed shot in the stomach with a rifle.

Hang glider pilot dies of injuries

The hang glider pilot who was seriously injured in Big Spring early last week has died, hospital officials said today.

Karen Schenk, 26, of Los Alamos, N.M., died Thursday at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital, a nursing supervisor said today. She had sustained serious multiple injuries after her glider crashed on launch Monday at the airpark.

After brief treatment locally, Schenk had been transported to Lubbock for emergency surgery. She remained in the surgical intensive care unit all week as her condition worsened.

Forsan ISD trustees to meet

Trustees for the Forsan Independent School District will meet tonight at 7 p.m. in the board room for their regular July meeting.

New business will include insurance for the school buildings and cars, price changes for school meals and housing, relinquishing the entitlement for math and science programs and drug education programs to the Region 18 Education Service Center and purchasing a gang reel lawn mower for the football field.

Other new business will be calling for the special election Aug. 10, the sick leave policy and possible changes, contracting for re-inspection of the school buildings for asbestos and personnel changes.

Old business items the board members will discuss include playground equipment for Elbow Elementary, the 1991-92 school budget and new taxes to fund the budget.

City council to consider new alcohol proposal

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Staff Writer

Big Spring City Council members on Tuesday are expected to consider an eleventh-hour ordinance proposal to save alcohol sales in Comanche Trail Park.

The council will meet beginning at 5:30 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium, located on the corner of East Third and Nolan streets adjacent to City Hall.

A new ordinance to be considered, drafted last week at the request of Mayor Max Green, would allow for the sale of alcohol at areas of the park with a permit from the city and license from the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission. It would allow alcohol to be brought into the Moss Creek Lake area as well.

First-reading approval of the new ordinance would postpone an alcohol ban that was expected to begin Aug. 1. The ordinance banning alcohol, included on the agenda as well, would take effect with second-reading approval. Council members must approval all new ordinances two times.

Past ordinances providing for specific-use permits have failed to receive majority council support, but the alcohol ban was approved July 9 on first reading 5-1. Several members said they supported the ban because it was the only option that did not discriminate against groups of citizens.

In other business, the council will consider:

- Final approval of an ordinance reducing the cost of water use for area residents who live outside the city limits. Each connection will remain $22, while per-thousand-gallon charges will be reduced to $1.75, equal to the cost for city residents.

- Renewal of the lease agreement with the Corral, a treatment center for area residents.

- The mayor's appointment of two council members for a new committee, designed to scrutinize future planning at the city-operated correctional center.

- Change orders for construction.

Scwarzkopf gets medal

KUWAIT CITY — General Norman Schwarzkopf is presented the "Order of Kuwait" by the Emir, Sheik Jaber Al-Sabah, in a ceremony at Bayan Palace in Kuwait City today. The medal is Kuwait's highest honor and it was bestowed on the Gulf forces commander on the third leg of his Middle East tour.

County considers flood control

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners expressed no opposition today to authorizing an election for a flood control district on up to 1,000 square acres northwest of Big Spring.

County Judge Ben Lockhart said commissioners will take a vote on a petition for the taxing district, which is proposed in the Willards Draw area, at the next Commissioners Court meeting. The next planned meeting is Aug. 5 when budget workshops are expected to be held.

There has been "hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of damage at times" in that area due to flooding, said farmer Elbert Long, who requested that commissioners approve the petition. Long said the area is "prime, prime farmland."

"What we're proposing is to take this water and channel it to Beal's Creek without all that destruction. To do that you have to set up a stormwater district that has authority to take right of ways," he said.

Long said he is not sure if state law has set a property tax limit for flood districts.

Texas Water Commission officials recommended the district and said other districts in South Texas rice growing areas are "working beautifully," Long said. "The county as a whole will certainly benefit from it."

Precinct 3 Commissioner Bill Crocker commended the idea. "It's an effort on the part of the people in the area to work on their own problem."

Lockhart and Precinct 4 Commissioner Bobby Cathey nodded in agreement when asked if they would approve the petition. Precinct 2 Commissioner John Stanley did not indicate his position and Precinct 1 Commissioner O.L. "Louis" Brown was absent.

A majority of commissioners have to approve the petition, which would then be submitted to the state water commission. A majority of voters in the proposed district would have to approve it.

The petition could also be submitted to the water commission with 50 signatures from those of voting age in the proposed district. But Long said that would be time consuming. "For times sake, what I'm asking you to do is approve this rather than get the 50 signatures," he said.

"There's probably (only) 50 people."

Richards anticipates opposition on budget

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

SWEETWATER — Anticipating outcries from special interest groups, Gov. Ann Richards dubbed the upcoming state budget, now being written, as the "lobbyists' full employment act" and promised, "We are going to cut the fat in Austin."

But those cuts will not be haphazard, Richards assured about 700 people attending a banquet at the Nolan County Coliseum Annex Saturday. Relating a story of a citizen who questioned her about rumors of cuts to Future Farmers of America, Richards said the rumors are false and labeled them as scare tactics.

"When you tell the bureaucracy that it's time to cut back, they will use every single play that they can to scare the people," Richards said. "It really makes me furious that they use children and they use old people."

Praising a plan by state Comptroller John Sharp that suggests about $4 billion in savings through cuts and consolidation of state agencies and increased fees, Richards told the crowd that the issue of a state income tax is moot. "We can put all that business about an income tax behind us."

Richards did not mention a state lottery, which she pushed earlier this year and which is expected to be debated again as state legislators today went into the second week of a 30-day special session to write the next two-year budget. The state is facing a $4.8 billion deficit, according to Sharp, whose plan also seeks to bring in $400 million in federal funds.

Richards said the priority this session is to cut and consolidate first, write the budget and then look at needed revenue. "The cuts are going to be the biggest news item in the session," she said.

She reiterated earlier statements that the governor should be given control to hire and fire heads of state agencies, saying that the cuts will not do any good unless agencies are directly accountable to the governor. "We've got to do that and we've got to get results. I'm not going to tell you that it's going to be easy."

Richards also said the partisan politics do not have a place in the budget session. "We'll fight it out when election comes around."

The banquet was held in honor of Sen. Temple Dickson, D-Sweetwater, who is expected to run for a second term next year.

"He's one of the hardest working members of the Texas Senate," Richards said. "When you ask Temple Dickson for his help from A to Z, he's already at M when you expect him to be at B or C."

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) —

The U.S. government is stepping up its investigation of a photograph that purports to show three American fliers missing from the Vietnam War, sources said today.

The American sources said Assistant Secretary of State Kenneth Quinn will fly to Vietnam and Laos while a 10-man Defense Department team visiting Thailand investigates the photo, which was reported carried across the Thai border from Cambodia.

The grainy photograph, obtained by the Pentagon in September 1990, shows three men and a sign with cryptic wording. Relatives of one Navy and two Air Force airmen shot down in Vietnam and Laos say they are convinced the photo is real.

The photograph has rekindled hope among some that not all the 2,274 MIAs have died.

The three men appear to hold a sign with numbers that could signify the date May 25, 1990.

The photograph has rekindled hope among some that not all the 2,274 MIAs have died. They include 1,657 in Vietnam, 528 in Laos, 83 in Cambodia and six in Chinese coastal waters.

Quinn is to meet with officials in Hanoi and Vientiane, according to the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity. The schedule of his visit was not available.

A copy of the photograph was handed to Vietnam's delegation at the United Nations. All three In-dochinese nations deny holding any American prisoners.

Refugees, guerrillas and others have emerged from Indochina in recent years carrying bones, maps, letters purported to be from American prisoners. They hope to earn a cash reward or gratitude from the United States, and most of the material is found to be fraudulent.

But publicity generated by the photograph has forced the Pentagon and State Department to make extra efforts, although some officials are privately highly skeptical of its authenticity. The sources said about 50 staffers of the Pentagon's Defense Intelligence Agency have been mobilized for the task.

Meanwhile, a 25-member team of U.S. experts were in Vietnam to conduct the 14th joint MIA search with Vietnamese counterparts. A U.S. diplomat, who asked not to be identified, said the search was not linked to the photograph and had been scheduled at least two months earlier.

The latest search will include a general crash site investigation and one actual excavation at a crash site, the diplomat said.

The team includes experts from the U.S. Joint Casualty Resolution Center and the U.S. Army's Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii.

League will not oppose nominee

ATLANTA (AP) — The Urban League has become the first major civil rights group to announce it will not oppose the Supreme Court nomination of Clarence Thomas, but it also will not actively support him.

"I think it is important that we have a racially diverse Supreme Court, even if he is not my candidate," the group's president, John E. Jacob, said at a news conference Sunday.

The position, arrived at after a daylong debate by the Urban League's representative assembly Saturday, reflects the ambivalence liberal civil rights advocates feel about the nomination of Thomas, he said.

An estimated 15,000 people are attending the convention of the 81-year-old social service organization.

Bush named Thomas, a conservative, Republican federal appeals judge, to succeed retiring Justice Thurgood Marshall, a liberal.

"I compliment the president on the shrewdness of the appointment," Jacob said. "I think the president checkmated the African-American community with the appointment."

Jacob said the Urban League's position "is not to oppose him, not to be his advocate, not to be his defender, to simply let the Senate do its job."

Banks announce decision to merge

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NCNB Corp. and C&S-Sovran Corp. today announced they had reached a merger agreement that would create the nation's third-largest banking company with combined assets of about $118 billion.

The merged banks will be called Nationsbank, the two banking companies said in a joint statement.

It was the second huge banking merger announced in eight days, reflecting efforts by bankers to find added strength in size.

Last week, New York banking giants Chemical Banking Corp.

and Manufacturers Hanover Corp. announced they would merge to form the second-largest bank in the nation with $135 billion in assets.

The nation's largest bank, New York's Citicorp, has $217 billion in assets.

NCNB is the nation's seventh-largest bank with assets of $65.3 billion. It has 900 branches.

C&S-Sovran, created a year ago by the merger of Norfolk-based Sovran and Atlanta-based Citizens and Southern, has $51.2 billion in assets, making it the nation's No. 12 bank. It has 1,000 branches.

Siamese twins die 15 minutes apart

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — For seven years, Ruthie and Verena Cady were never alone. When Ruthie died, Verena, knowing she could not live without her Siamese twin, spent her final 15 minutes planning her funeral.

"Verena said to go get Daddy and she gave me a list of friends she wanted to give flowers to. She asked to be cremated because she didn't want to be in a box, she wanted to be free," said Marlene Cady, their mother. The twins died Friday.

"Ruthie died 15 minutes ahead of Verena," Mrs. Cady said. "Verena talked about the whole thing. She said, 'This is the time we're going to be dying.'"

Most Siamese, or conjoined, twins die at birth. Doctors had told Mrs. Cady and her husband, Peter, that it would be a miracle if the girls survived a year.

Ruthie's lungs deteriorated over the past several weeks, Mrs. Cady said. Mrs. Cady, who wrote a 1989 cover story about the twins for People magazine, said the girls lived a happy life.

Skydivers survive with torn chute

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A skydiving instructor and his student survived a 13,500-foot fall with a torn parachute after an emergency chute apparently opened inside an airplane and dragged them out.

The pair, linked for a tandem jump, landed in bushes Saturday near the Waynesville Airport in Warren County. The plane, which lost part of its tail during the incident, landed safely.

The Sky Sport's instructor, Mike Hussey, 51, of Columbus, was hospitalized in serious condition today. The student, Amy Adams, 21, of Sycamore, was released from the hospital Sunday.

Ms. Adams, a senior at Ohio State University, said she does not remember what went wrong. Hussey apparently cradled Ms. Adams and bore the brunt of the landing, breaking four ribs.

Magazine reports U.S. blocked jet sale to Iran

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The United States has blocked the sale of up to 50 passenger jets to Iran by British Aerospace because Western hostages held by pro-Iranian Shiite Muslims have not been freed, Flight International magazine reported today.

The aviation weekly, in an article made available to The Associated Press in advance of publication, said Washington was able to do so because the British-built BAe-146 aircraft contain U.S.-made components.

Its avionics are produced by the Honeywell Corp. and its four turbofan engines are manufactured by Textron Lycoming.

U.S. trade sanctions imposed on Iran in 1979 prohibit supplying the Islamic republic with U.S.-made aviation equipment. Only aircraft built outside the United States and containing less than 20 percent U.S.-made components can be sold to Tehran.

British authorities, who backed the British Aerospace deal, reportedly are angry at the U.S. move and have complained that Washington approved the sale of 12 Dutch Fokker 100 airliners to Iran last year.

The Dutch aircraft have few U.S.-built components. At least six have been delivered to Iran Air, Iran's national carrier.

Flight International, published in London, quoted sources close to the negotiations between state-run British Aerospace and Iran Air as saying the deal involves the purchase of an initial six BAe-146s with options on as many as 50 more.

The magazine said British Aerospace declined comment on the report. But aviation industry sources have been saying for months that the company was negotiating with Tehran on the sale.

Britain restored relations with Iran last September after an 18-month break. The United States broke relations with Tehran in 1979 and they have not been restored.

Flight International quoted a State Department spokesman as saying that Washington's decision to block the British deal reflected the "deep concern that even after a year of significant changes in the region, Iran has not ended support for terrorism and the Western hostages have not been released."

There are 13 Westerners missing in Lebanon and most are believed held by Shiite factions. The missing men comprise six Americans, four Britons, two Germans and an Italian.

Under President Hashemi Rafsanjani, the Iranian government has been building bridges with the West and the republic's Arab neighbors to end the country's political isolation.

Despite a significant drop in terrorist attacks by Iranian-linked Shiite groups over the last two years, Iran remains on the State Department's list of six states that sponsor international terrorism. The others are Iraq, Syria, Libya, North Korea and Yemen.

Iran Air has been seeking to rebuild and expand since the end of the 1980-88 war with Iraq.

Baker hopeful Israel will join talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III met with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir today and then expressed hope that Israel would accept the U.S. formula for a Mideast peace conference that has already won the endorsement of Arab states.

Shamir gave no immediate indication of Israel's response to Baker's latest country-hopping efforts, but Israeli radio reported that he told the weekly Cabinet session after meeting with Baker that "there is a revolutionary change in Syria's position." He referred to a stand now adopted by other Arab countries of a willingness to hold face-to-face talks with Israel.

Shamir quoted U.S. officials as saying they hoped to convene a peace conference in October. Baker, who was heading off to Malaysia for a meeting of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, had not said when he expected the long-sought Arab-Israeli talks to take place.

Baker told reporters that Shamir promised him an early answer on the proposal.

Following a 90-minute session with Shamir, Baker said the Israeli official had promised him an early answer on whether the Jewish state would endorse the U.S. proposal. The formula calls for Israel to negotiate directly with the Arabs on a settlement requiring Israel to relinquish territory in exchange for acceptance from its longtime enemies.

Officials move to lessen damage

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government scrambled today to contain damage from a scandal over its funding of the Inkatha party, and the police minister indicated he may resign to take responsibility.

The police official, Adriaan Vlok, had disclosed that the white-led government gave about $600,000 to Inkatha, bitter rival of the leading black opposition group, the African National Congress.

"My standpoint is that if I am an obstacle on the road to negotiations and the future of this country, I will reconsider my position," Vlok said on state television Sunday.

He said he would discuss his future with President F.W. de Klerk.

Today, De Klerk was to open three days of talks with his Cabinet on the funding scandal, among other issues.

Revelations of government funding to Inkatha pose a major threat to efforts to begin negotiations on power-sharing with the black majority.

The two leading black groups have been locked in a fierce power struggle that has claimed approximately 6,000 lives in the past five years.

The scandal has shaken de Klerk's claims the white government is impartial and espouses a settlement with all black groups.

De Klerk may suffer major political damage from the affair since few people will believe he was not aware of the funding. Yet his credibility is seen as vital to the future success of political negotiations.

Officials optimistic about oil spill

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Officials were optimistic today that Australia's worst oil spill — 5.9 million gallons of light crude just off the country's west coast — will not become a major environmental disaster.

The oil leaked into the Indian Ocean from the Greek tanker Kirki after the ship's bow snapped off in bad weather early Sunday.

Today, winds were breaking up the slick and causing it to drift south-southwest.

Also, the crippled ship appeared to be stable and there was little immediate prospect that the 17.7 million gallons of oil still aboard would leak into the ocean.

Shipping and Aviation Minister Bob Collins said officials hoped the 210-foot Kirki is stable enough to be towed to calmer waters and drained.

Grandparents grammar is painful to mom's ears

DEAR ABBY: As a first-time mother, I want to give our child the best. Since Nicholas is now 19 months old, he will soon be spending more time with his paternal grandparents. They crave all the time they can get with him, and he loves them dearly. It would also give my husband and me a much-needed break if Nicky could spend weekends and vacations with his grandparents.

Dear Abby

The problem is their grammar. It is atrocious! The double negatives, the "ain'ts," the sloppy way they speak ("It's gonna rain Sa-erdee"), etc., just drive me batty! I don't want Nicky to speak that way. And suppose he picks up incorrect grammar from his grandparents — am I to say, "Your grandparents are ignorant!"?

Compounding the problem is the fact that I'm raising Nicky to be bilingual. I speak to him in Greek, and thus far that's the only language he speaks. He is sure to pick up English from playmates and other sources.

In spite of the rubbish that exists around most children today, I am determined that Nicky will speak properly, so I am at painful odds what to do about his grandparents' speech. Can you help me? — NICKY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Developing a close and loving relationship with his grandparents will be of greater value to Nicky than any protection you can give him against exposure to sloppy grammar.

As the daughter of Russian immigrants who came to America as young adults with virtually no knowledge of the English language, I somehow managed to learn how to speak properly. And so did they. And so will Nicky. Trust me.

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor lives a few short steps from my back door; we have adjoining yards, yet she calls me on the phone intermittently all day long — just to chat. I wouldn't mind if she called once for a brief conversation, but she often calls three to four and even five times a day, just to ask me what I'm doing. She has invited me over for coffee, and I have invited her here — but once she's here, she stays too long.

She's 35 years old, no children, and doesn't want any. I work for my husband's business in my home, and this neighbor is getting to be too much for me. I got an answering machine, and she leaves messages for me to call her. Should I call her back or ignore her messages? I hate to hurt her feelings, but I don't know what else to do. I've even considered moving, but why should I move when I love this house? — STIFLED

DEAR STIFLED: You must tell your neighbor that just because you are home all day does not mean that you are not working; explain that you work for your husband during the day.

Suggest that she do volunteer work — there are numerous good causes in every community. And if she continues to leave messages, do not return her calls.

CONFIDENTIAL: To those readers who have tried without success to locate the Exchange Club Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse of Southern Minnesota, the address is: 285 18th St. S.E., Owatonna, Minn. 55060. Appeals court rules house legally haunted

NEW YORK (AP) — An appeals court has ruled that a riverfront house in Nyack is indeed haunted, clearing the way for the prospective buyers to sue to recoup their $32,500 down payment.

"As a matter of law, the house is haunted," the state Supreme Court's Appellate Division said in a 3-2 decision Thursday. The decision reversed a lower court's ruling.

Jeffrey and Patrice Stambovsky had been haunted by Justice Edward Lehner's ruling last year that "caveat emptor" — let the buyer beware — guides real estate purchases. This means the buyer must make sure he's getting a good deal.

But the appellate court said no amount of prudent inspection would have revealed the poltergeists that are supposed to occupy the 18-room Victorian house.

In his majority opinion, Justice Israel Rubin wrote that Helen Ackley, former owner of the house, should have told the Stambovskys about the house's "ghoulish reputation," since she made no secret of it to others.

Ackley, 64, said her family had seen the Revolutionary War-era ghosts in the house since they moved in 24 years ago.

"I feel they are very good friends," she said last year. "It's very comforting to have them around when you are by yourself."

Stambovsky, 38, said he doesn't

An appeals court has ruled that this riverfront house in Nyack, N.Y. is indeed haunted and a prospective buyer can sue to get his deposit back. The ruling allows Jeffrey and Patrice Stambovsky, now living about a mile from the house to try to get back the $32,500 deposit they paid. The house has since been sold for just under $650,000.

believe in ghosts, "but if my wife is influenced enough by that stuff to feel uncomfortable, that's a good enough reason not to sink our life savings into it."

"I guess now I can try to get back what's rightfully mine," he said. The house since has been sold for slightly less than the $650,000 the Stambovskys had offered, said Jeffrey Ellis, a lawyer for Ellis Realty, which listed the house.

Rubin said putting the burden on the buyer to detect ghosts "conjures up visions" of a psychic or medium routinely accompanying structural engineers and termite inspectors to houses offered for sale.

Baker-Finch wins British Open by two

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Ian Baker-Finch, so mechanical on the course, so emotional off, took charge of the British Open on the final day at last and floated away in a sweet blur of tears and champagne.

He cried when he hugged the trophy, cried more when he spoke to the crowd. He wept with his wife and daughter and mates from Down Under, who toasted him with bubbly and relished Sunday's 1-2 finish of Australians, neither of them named Norman.

Intrepid, efficient and accurate from the tee to the green, Baker-Finch learned from those failures and didn't repeat them as he shot a 66 to beat countryman Mike Harwood by two strokes with an 8-under-par 272.

way, denying him a chance to savor his stroll to the final hole. "I didn't really smell the roses until I got through the crowd," he said wistfully.

In truth, his ceremonial march began when he left the seventh green with his fifth birdie tucked away after a 15-foot putt and his first British Open title virtually assured.

From that moment on, no one threatened and Baker-Finch never seriously faltered. There was as little drama on the course as there was in the sky, with the breezes unusually tame on a warm, golden afternoon on the coast of the Irish Sea.

All along the way, though, Baker-Finch's caddy kept him pumped up, pushing him to go for the pins, not play safe, not let up.

"You're the champ, pard, you're the champ," said the caddy, Peter Bender, who wanted his man to get the feeling of being a champion and playing like one.

Texas trades for the Oil Can

MONTREAL (AP) — For someone who's usually very expressive, Dennis (Oil Can) Boyd did a good job of controlling his emotions after learning the Montreal Expos had traded him to the Texas Rangers.

Boyd, 'OIL CAN' BOYD who was dealt for minor-league pitchers Johathan Hurst and Joey Eischen and player to be named later, quietly cleaned out his locker after the deal was announced Sunday and offered a few words of encouragement to some of the Expos' young pitchers.

"They've got some good young pitchers with good arms and they're going to be all right," Boyd said. "I'm just sorry I won't be here when they put it together. I really liked it here, and I wanted to stay here. But this is part of baseball and you have to accept it."

Boyd, who was 6-8 this season, including a five-hit shutout over San Francisco in his last start on Friday, had a 3.52 ERA and joins a team that is in the midst of a pennant race in a league he was familiar with.

However, he said he would have rather remained in Montreal and that he would like to return to the National League when he becomes a free agent at the end of the year.

"Being here meant more to me than being in a pennant race," he said. "This league is better for me and I want to come back. But I'm happy to go to a team that wants me and feels like I belong."

Athletes' diets growing concern to NFL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It takes courage to tell a pro football player he can't eat what he wants.

But athletes' eating habits are a growing concern, a fact highlighted last week when San Francisco 49ers offensive tackle Bubba Paris was barred from practice for health problems — reportedly a cholesterol level between 280 and 400.

While Paris' high cholesterol level likely was inherited — his father died of a heart attack at age 39 — it was probably worsened by a diet of fatty foods. "There's still a lot of boys who think beefing up means, literally, eating beef," said Dr. Alvin Loosli with the St. Francis Center for Sports Medicine.

"And for one Bubba Paris on the 49ers, there may be six on other teams with high cholesterol."

Many teams have begun encouraging healthier eating habits, but change has been slow.

"Most teams have a nutritionist come in and speak to players before the season starts," said Dr.

Robert Albo, a team doctor for the Golden State Warriors and consulting surgeon for the Los Angeles Raiders. "They teach people how to eat better so they can play better."

But doctors say forcing rigid diets on million-dollar athletes is difficult: They can afford to eat what they want and usually do.

Paris, for example, was once sent to the Pritiken Institute in Southern California to follow a low-fat diet. The 49ers training table, which frequently carries chicken breasts and lean top sirloin, is considered one of the healthiest in the NFL, but Paris has been known to skip the training table for some fast-food fried chicken.

The real rub is that fatty foods don't provide the muscle most athletes are after.

"Fat remains fat," quipped Sherry Moore, a trainer at Gold's Gym in San Francisco.

The best way to bulk up, according to physicians, is to eat carbohydrates, such as pastas and grains.

None injured LONG POND, Pa. — Michael Waltrip (30) crashes his car into the wall and it catches fire on the third turn at the Pocono International Raceway Sunday. Waltrip was uninjured. Dale Jarrett (21), foreground, also escaped injury during the NASCAR Miller 500 race.

LeMond's chances for Tour win in jeopardy

ALES, France (AP) — The last week of the Tour de France is usually LeMond time. This year, time is running out for LeMond.

The three-time Tour de France winner usually gets stronger as the other riders weaken. He's won the last two Tours with last-day and next-to-last day efforts.

This time around, though, people are saying LeMond already has lost the Tour.

LeMond lost his shield of invincibility in the mountain stage last week when he faltered and lagged more than seven minutes behind in the second of two Pyrenees stages. That put him in fifth where he has stayed, 5:08 behind Spain's Miguel Indurain.

LeMond has found it hard to recuperate after his exhausting day and revealed that a blood test showed a higher-than-normal white blood cell count.

LeMond refused to call it an excuse.

"I don't want to make an excuse. (But) I felt too much too tired, given the hardness of (Thursday's) stage."

Prior to Sunday's 15th stage, LeMond brushed off reports about the blood count being a factor in his performance.

"I was fatigued and extremely dehydrated," said LeMond, who scurried past reporters to a car from his Z team following the stage.

Roger Legeay, the Z team director, denied that LeMond was sick.

"He's not ill," Legeay said. "He has no infections. Everything is normal. We are just trying to give him three days without pressure."

In an effort to avoid the morning rush, LeMond has missed the ritual sign-in procedure and has been fined about $67 by the organizers.

LeMond used that stage last year to make up time on Italian Claudio Chiappucci and even finished almost 12 minutes ahead of Indurain.

However, Indurain was in a different situation; he was riding for Spanish team leader Pedro Delgado and was used up in an effort to tire out the opposition. Now Delgado, currently 13th and 16:30 behind, is out of contention and must help Indurain.

Moreno Argentin of Italy won Sunday's stage with a long breakaway in the 146-mile leg from Albi to Ales. The trip was marked by five moderate climbs.

Chiappucci, currently fourth, tried to push the pace over the first three climbs while trying to pick up points to keep the "best climber's jersey." However the other leaders closed in on him after the summits.

Festival has fine performances, but not many fans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 11th U.S. Olympic Festival had its share of outstanding performances. What it didn't have was a whole lot of interest among fickle Los Angeles fans.

Organizers say attendance is only expected to be about 200,000 for the festival, which concluded its nine-day run Sunday.

That total projects to about $1.4 million in ticket sales, said Eli Primrose-Smith, president and executive director of the local committee. That in turn figures to leave the local group with a deficit of between $1.8 million and $2 million.

"In a market of this size, with the amount of promotion that we put out there, I would be Pollyanna to say we weren't disappointed," she said.

If attendance finishes at about 200,000 — it stood at 178,705 after Saturday — it would be the fourth-smallest total in 11 festivals. The last time attendance was so small was 1981 in Syracuse, when 180,000 turned out.

Primrose-Smith said the cost of advertising and promotions totaled nearly $5 million — one-third of the budget — including tradeouts and in-kind contributions. But that didn't translate into ticket buyers.

"In terms of coverage and promotion, I think the staff, with its budget, did an outstanding job," said Harry Usher, the festival chairman.

"But with all this advertising and promotion and publicity, in terms of getting fannies in seats, we did not succeed in terms of awakening the public interest in Los Angeles to the extent we had wished we had."

Why the huge deficit? She noted that the local committee had to pay about 135 percent more for venues than Minneapolis-St. Paul did a year ago. The cost of housing was 41 percent higher than last year, transportation cost twice as much, and general operations costs were up 30 percent, she said.

Even keeping administrative expenses an average of 35 percent lower than a year ago didn't help.

Usher cited the recession and the Persian Gulf War as possible reasons for the low figures. He also noted that the festival, after having good luck in the mid-1980s securing marquee athletes in sports such as track and field and figure skating, hasn't attracted big names in recent years.

"I suspect the athletes you do see here will become the athlete stars for 1996," Usher said. "But that isn't, in this city, the way in which you get people to come out."

This festival did have its share of memorable performances. The top U.S. amateur boxers competed in the festival, since it served to determine who would go to the Pan Am Games and the World Championships.

The local favorite, Oscar de la Hoya, cruised to the title in the 132-pound weight class and continued his quest to honor his late mother with an Olympic gold medal.

Two-time world champion Eric Griffin won easily at 106 pounds, as did current national champs Raul Marquez at 156, Chris Byrd at 165, John Bray at 201 and Larry Donald at super heavyweight.

Two national champions weren't as fortunate — Marine Sergio Reyes was disqualified in his semifinal round bout at 119 pounds and Vernon Forrest lost at 139 pounds in the first U.S. boxing competition to be judged with electronic scoring.

Experience translated into gold in the diving competition.

Names in the news

Madonna offers parental advice

LONDON (AP) — Madonna says parents who don't talk to their children about sex are partly to blame for teen-age pregnancies and the spread of AIDS.

"It should not be something we sweep under the rug and put in the closet. We should admit that our children are having sex at very young ages," she told BBC Radio 1 in an interview to be aired Monday. A transcript was released Friday.

"You have to talk to your children about those things because they exist, so what is the point in pretending that they don't?" she said.

Second guessing

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Andie MacDowell says that although the critics hate "Hudson Hawk," kids like it.

The film, in which she co-starred with Bruce Willis, "had so much bad press," she admitted in an interview being published Sunday in Parade magazine.

"But some people had fun. And kids like it. Maybe they should have had less cussing and aimed it at a younger audience, and it would have worked better."

Parker's lawsuit dismissed by judge

NEW YORK (AP) — Musician Gloria Parker's $15 million libel lawsuit against writer Oscar Hijuelos for his racy depiction of her in his Pulitzer Prize-winning novel has been dismissed by a federal judge.

The case was regarded as an important test of whether people whose names are used in fictional works can successfully sue for libel.
