Howard/Glasscock old settlers reunion

The 67th Annual Old Settlers Reunion for Howard-Glasscock counties is scheduled for Aug. 2, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Howard County Fair Grounds. Events planned for this year include the traditional old fiddlers' contest for players 45 years old or older with five cash prizes. Awards for the most authentically dressed man and woman, couples married the longest, the oldest settler with the most children and the oldest man and woman will be given. The settler who traveled the farthest to reach the reunion will also be awarded. A dance beginning at 8 p.m. will feature Ben Nix and the Boys. Prizes will be awarded to the three best dance couples. Other scheduled activities after registration include dominoes and bingo. Settlers older than 65 will receive the barbecue luncheon free of charge, served at a special table reserved for them. The barbecue begins at noon and the cost is $5 per person. For more information about the reunion contact 398-5461 or 1205 11th Place.

Amarillo man dies in traffic mishap

Wayne Allen Covell, 47, of Amarillo, died Thursday from a heart attack while driving his pickup on U.S. 87 in Glasscock County, county Justice of the Peace Marilee Jost has ruled. Covell was northbound when his pickup went off the road at 4:45 p.m. about 5 1/2 miles southwest of Forsan, says a Texas Highway Patrol report. The truck went off the west side of the road and went through a barbed wire fence and into a pasture.

Harley poker run for MDA Saturday

The Harley Owners Group will have a poker run for the Muscular Dystrophy Association beginning at the Harley Davidson Shop in Big Spring Saturday around 9-11 a.m. The motorists will travel from Big Spring to Lake J.B. Thomas, stopping at stations to receive one playing card. Trophies will be given for the three best poker hands at the end of the run. Howard Walker, owner of the shop, said a barbecue will be served Saturday afternoon, free for the run's participants and $5 for the general public. A band, Full Auto, will also perform. There will also be door prizes. Tickets for a 50-50 drawing will be sold for $1 each or six for $5. The winner will receive half of the money, he said. All proceeds for the run and barbecue will benefit the MDA. Anyone may participate on a motorcycle or in an automobile, Walker said.

Continued rain predicted for area

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Between one-half inch to more than 1 1/2 inches of rain fell over Howard County and the surrounding area during a 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today, weather officials said.

The rain is good for cotton but not heavy enough to create enough runoff to appreciably dilute salt concentrations in lakes supplying drinking water, authorities said. No thunderstorm warnings have been issued and no flooding was reported. More thunderstorms are expected through Monday, with a 30 percent chance of storms tonight and a 20 percent chance Saturday, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Lubbock said.

"Oh, this is great!" said Bill Fryear, the research leader at the U.S. Department of Agriculture experiment station in Big Spring. "Most of the area crops were getting to the point where they were going to need some rain pretty quick."

The experiment station recorded 1 inch of rain in 24 hours by early today and 2 1/2 inches of rain since Wednesday. That brings rainfall for the year to 11.53 inches, which is higher than the normal rainfall of 10 1/2 inches by this time of year.

Three miles northeast of Big Spring, a half-inch of rain fell while 1.8 inches fell at Moss Creek Lake, according to measurements by the Colorado River Municipal Water District. Three-fifths of an inch fell at Lake Thomas in Borden County while slightly more than one-third of an inch fell in Midland County. The rains have not been heavy enough to affect drinking water quality, said water district Manager Owen Ivie. "We haven't gotten any reports from our drainage area that's going to contribute any sizable amount (of runoff)."

No flooding has been reported, said Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard. But if rains continue, there may be some this weekend.

"So far it's fared rather well," Standard said. "If it continues on then most likely we'll have some high water in low-lying areas of the county."

The rains are caused by a front that moved in from the north and is expected to remain stationary, weather meteorologist John Lipe of Lubbock said. Most rains have fallen from Midland through Big Spring, Abilene and up to Wichita Falls.

"A large amount of tropical moisture is moving up and over the front from the south, causing that rainfall," Lipe said.

Firemen asked to suspend holidays

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

A firefighter union representative has threatened legal action following the cancellation, at least for a "week or two," of holiday time for the Big Spring Fire Department. Holiday time is time equivalent to the legal holidays granted to city employees.

Fire Chief Frank Anderson said the cancellations, effective Thursday, are just temporary because of an emergency situation and would last about two weeks.

But Big Spring Professional Firefighters Association President Paul Brown said employees were told the cancellations were because of budget problems and they were not informed it was temporary.

"He told us he's out of money. He can't afford to pay the overtime, is what he's telling us," said Brown, who talked with Anderson Thursday. The order was not written down, Brown said. "It was all verbal to the captains."

Anderson said a manpower shortage has occurred because of a fireman being hospitalized and two others going on vacation. Also, two rookies are still obtaining driver's licenses, which is expected to take about two weeks, he said.

"There might be a week or two where firemen are being asked to temporarily give up a shift," Anderson said. "We expect everything in the next week or two to smooth back out."

Brown said he will discuss the situation with City Manager Hal Boyd on Monday when Boyd is expected back in Big Spring. If nothing is done, Brown said, a civil suit may be filed against the city.

"It's our contention that he's in violation of city policy and civil service law," Brown said. "It just affects the fire department, no one else in the city."

City Secretary Tom Ferguson said he is unaware of the holiday time cancellation and referred questions, including city budget

Absentee voting light in CED election

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

Absentee voting continues through Aug. 6, with 64 voters casting ballots at the Howard County Courthouse to date.

Two state constitutional amendments and three local school district propositions are being placed before Texas voters in reference to education in Texas.

Proposition 1, a constitutional amendment on the ballot, would allow the newly created County Education District to grant certain ad valorem exemptions for homesteads and would allow taxing of personal property. If it is passed, the education districts will have the power to grant the exemptions as well as impose taxes on personal property.

The school finance bill, passed during the last session of the legislature, created 188 county education districts composed of the school districts in each county. These CEDs are empowered to impose property taxes to be distributed to the school districts within each county education district.

"The constitutional amendments must pass state-wide before the others can pass. The other three propositions are strictly for the independent school districts."

Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray

"Proposition 1 will enable taxpayers in the CED to avail themselves of certain exemptions on their homesteads as well as open up the possibility of taxing certain tangible personal property," according to a press release from the office of the Secretary of State.

Proposition 2 calls for the sale of up to $300 million in general obligation bonds to fund the state's student loan programs for college. The Texas Higher Education Board requested the amendment to fund loans such as the Hinson-Hazelwood Student Loan program.

According to Harry Reasoner, board chairperson, loan funds will be exhausted without the passage of this amendment.

The school district's ballot provides public input on the exemptions and taxation voted for in Proposition 1. This allows voters within the district to choose to grant homestead exemptions and to vote separately on the issue of personal property taxes.

"The constitutional amendments must pass state-wide before the others can pass. The other three propositions are strictly for the independent school districts," explained Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray.

Personal property taxation is not a favored addition, according to most of the superintendents and school board members within the area.

Superintendent William McQueary, BSISD, earlier predicted that the personal property tax "is going to go down in flames."

Ray said she's working to make voting easier for the citizen. Along with locating both the county and school district's booths in her office, she plans to keep the booths open Aug. 3 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Voters can also stop and vote without bringing their voters registration cards, she said.

"We have a list and they can sign an affidavit stating they left their registration card at home and go ahead and vote. It's very simple," Ray said.

The Howard County Court House has election booths for the county and Forsan, Coahoma and Big Spring independent school districts.

Ray said a program will air on the Public Broadcasting Channel July 29 from noon to 1 p.m. to explain this election.

"Some people don't even know we're having an election, and this is important because homeowners will want a homestead exemption," she said.

For further information about the election, contact Texas' Secretary of State's Elections Division at 1-800-252-VOTE.

Poll: War ended too quickly

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven out of 10 Americans think that with Saddam Hussein still in power, President Bush ended the Persian Gulf War too soon, an Associated Press poll found.

Nearly three-fourths of Americans approve of Bush's decision to go to war Jan. 16, unchanged from an AP poll taken Jan. 23-27. But only 22 percent of Americans in the new poll agree with the decision to stop short of overthrowing the Iraqi president. Eight percent are undecided or had no answer.

A USA Today poll published today also found 60 percent agreed the United States ended the war with Iraq too soon, and 33 percent disagreed. That question did not mention Saddam Hussein remaining in power.

But when the USA Today poll asked people how concerned they were with Saddam's staying power, 74 percent said they were very concerned and 17 percent said they were somewhat concerned.

The newspaper's poll Tuesday and Wednesday of 610 people has a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

The AP poll taken July 17-21 by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., interviewed a random sample of 1,002 adults by telephone. The margin of sampling error is plus or minus 3 percentage points.

In the earlier AP poll, taken the second week of the war, 59 percent supported continuing fighting to force Saddam from power, and 38 percent opposed it.

When Bush declared Iraq's army defeated on Feb. 27, his cease-fire orders froze U.S. and allied forces in positions in southern Iraq more than 150 miles from Baghdad. Half of Saddam's military forces remained intact.

Toppling Iraq's president was never the expressed goal of Operation Desert Storm. But the anti-Iraq coalition hoped Saddam would fall under the weight of military humiliation, an economic embargo, suffering wrought by allied bombardment, and the Shiite Muslim and Kurdish rebellions encouraged by the United States.

Instead, the Iraqi president suppressed the uprisings and consolidated his power.

American commander Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf told an interviewer in April he had recommended the offensive continue beyond Feb. 27. He later apologized for any embarrassment his remarks caused Bush.

On July 8, Saddam's government acknowledged it was engaged in a preliminary program to build nuclear bombs, but it has balked at full U.N. inspection of its nuclear capabilities, leading the United States to threaten new military action.

In this atmosphere of renewed tension, disapproval of Bush's decision to go to war dropped to 19 percent, from 24 percent in the AP poll taken Jan. 23-27.

Most Americans consider the U.S. military effort successful, despite Saddam's nuclear program and the suffering of Iraq's Kurdish minority.

Twelve percent said the effort was completely successful, and 48 percent rated it mostly successful. About a third said it was only somewhat successful and just 5 percent said it was not at all successful.

Curfew passes in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — There will be a late-night curfew on teens in San Antonio, but City Council members say they will not file cases against violators until a legal challenge of Dallas' teen curfew is resolved.

Council members voted 7-4 late Thursday to impose the curfew on children younger than 17 between midnight and 6 a.m. unless they are accompanied by a parent or meet one of several conditions.

The council will not file cases against the offenders until a suit filed on behalf of a group of Dallas teenagers by the American Civil Liberties Union is resolved in federal court. U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders has said he will issue a ruling in that matter in about three weeks.

Council members say they realize the curfew will not solve all the city's problems concerning juvenile crime, but they believe it will help.

Lewis tired of lobbyists' input

AUSTIN (AP) — With the House debating major changes in state government, Speaker Gib Lewis says he is tired of special interest lobbyists feeding lawmakers proposed bill amendments.

Proposals to amend environmental legislation "seem to coming in the back door from the lobby," Lewis told lawmakers during Thursday debate on that measure.

He granted a motion to limit proposed amendments to those on his desk at the time.

Lewis has allowed similar restrictions in other debates this week, and he said during a break that it's because of lobbyists "feeding amendments in the back door."

"I've had a belly full of it," Lewis said. "It's been happening all week, and I've had it up to here."

Lobbyists are not allowed on the House floor while lawmakers are in session, but they generally congregate just outside the chamber's doors.

Caucus backs bill to help minorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Congressional Hispanic Caucus is sponsoring legislation to help educate the children of migrant workers and increase the number of Hispanic students receiving a high school diploma or a college degree.

The bill would cost $200 million a year, Rep. Solomon Ortiz, D-Corpus Christi, said Thursday in introducing the legislation.

"It's either pay now or pay later," said Ortiz, chairman of the caucus. "Hispanic education is in a state of crisis. We cannot allow this to continue. The future of the Hispanic community depends on helping our youth stay in school and go to college."

Ortiz, a former migrant worker and Nueces County sheriff, said Hispanics enter school later, leave earlier, and are less likely to finish high school or college when compared with all other segments of the U.S. population.

"What we are trying to do is initiate some type of preventive educational medicine," Ortiz said.

The legislation, the Hispanic Access to Higher Education Act of 1991, would provide outreach services to students as early as the fourth grade, help to retain and recruit minority teachers, improve federal data collection on Hispanics in education, and set up a mentor program for students from migrant communities.

Ortiz said the bill is the first legislation the caucus has introduced since its creation in 1976.

"The state of Hispanic education is miserable and unacceptable. We simply must do something about it," said Rep. Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio, another sponsor.

"Hispanics represent the fastest-growing minority in the United States. It is said that one out of every five workers in the 21st century will be Hispanic," Bustamante said. "We need to provide opportunity to such an important segment of our population, and this bill does that."

Cat lover

SAN ANTONIO — Glenn Glass hugs his new 500-pound African lion Samson. Glass, a self-styled animal lover, got the lion from its previous owner who could no longer afford the $125-a-month food bill. Samson also became lonely causing the cat to lose 100 pounds and patches of fur. Glass, who also owns a cougar and a tiger, says the presence of the other cats and some tender loving care will help Samson.

EL PASO — Mexican social worker Ana Lilia Torres holds "Susana" after the infant was turned over to Mexican officials at the Paso Del Norte International Bridge Thursday. ### Couple buys baby in Mexico

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A tiny, infant girl stared wide-eyed at clicking cameras while she was placed in the arms of Mexican officials who will try to find her mother and learn why the child was sold to a California couple.

The baby was handed over to Ciudad Juarez child welfare officials Thursday afternoon by El Paso immigration authorities who had taken her from the couple.

The couple said they paid the equivalent of about $528 for the rosy-cheeked girl with head of black hair, authorities said.

Authorities said the Wilmington, Calif. couple, permanent U.S. residents, had tried to obtain the documents at the immigration office at the Paso del Norte Bridge. The woman had said she delivered the child in Mexico.

"The baby had a Mexican birth certificate and the baby was born in Zacatecas, Mexico," said Al Giugni, Immigration and Naturalization Service district director. But he said the birth certificate appeared to have been altered.

The couple was never held in custody and was allowed to return to California, although some officials said they believed the couple still was in the El Paso area.

Giugni said no charges were filed by U.S. officials because the transaction took place in Mexico.

Miguel Robledo, a representative for the Juarez district attorney, said the child would remain at a shelter.

"We have to find out what the circumstances were when the mother sold her child, did she sell it believing they were going to adopt it? These are the questions we have to answer. We have to hear all sides of it," Robledo said.

Amarillo plant on superfund list

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is adding Pantex, the nation's final assembly plant for nuclear bombs and missile warheads, to a list of hazardous waste sites posing the greatest threat to human health and the environment.

Pantex was one of 22 sites nationwide that the EPA proposed adding to its Superfund National Priorities List on Thursday. With the addition of Pantex, Texas would have 29 sites on the Superfund cleanup list.

Located northeast of Amarillo, Pantex is a World War II-era ordnance facility operated by a contractor for the Energy Department. It sits atop the Ogallala aquifer, practically the only source of drinking water for Texas' largest irrigated farming region.

According to EPA, past and present waste practices at Pantex include burning of chemical wastes in unlined pits, burial of wastes in unlined landfills, and discharging of plant waste waters into on-site surface waters.

In 1988, an Energy Department contractor detected solvents and toxic heavy metals that included known and suspected carcinogens in waste waters discharged to unlined ditches and surface impoundments on the site, EPA said.

Solvents were also found in soil underlying a chemical burn pit and uranium was found in the soil underlying plant firing grounds, EPA said.

EPA said the solvent toluene is present at 329 feet below the surface in soils underlying the pit, while the Ogallala occurs at a depth of 390 to 420 feet beneath the site.

EPA also said surface water runoff from the plant is diverted to surface impoundments and freshwater wetlands. The Texas Tech Agricultural Research Station uses surface water from one of the impoundments to irrigate crops and for watering livestock.

Because Pantex is a federal facility, the Energy Department would be responsible for the cleanup, but the EPA would review and approve the cleanup plan, said EPA spokesman Roger Meacham in Dallas.

There was no immediate comment from DOE.

The EPA's decision to add Pantex to the Superfund list is the latest in a string of questions the federal government or congressional investigators have raised about safety, health and the environment at Pantex.

The General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, earlier this year said Pantex had one of the worst occupational safety records in the DOE weapons complex. In 1989, a DOE team of experts said it had found significant health, safety and environmental deficiencies, including problems with the plant's radiation protection program.

DOE and the plant's contractor, Mason & Hanger - Silas Mason Company Inc., have since taken action to improve safety guidelines and training for radiation staff.

Former bank officers sued

DALLAS (AP) — The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has sued 39 former officers and directors of the former First Republic Bank Corp. for $100 million in damages over their role in the nation's largest bank failure.

Alan Whitney, FDIC spokesman in Washington, said the suit was filed in Dallas late Thursday.

Defendants include some of the most prominent business figures in Texas.

The FDIC suit said the defendants "wrongfully and negligently failed to exercise that degree of care and diligence required" of bank directors.

First Republic was formed in the May 1987 merger of Republic Bank Corp. and InterFirst Corp. Its collapse in July 1988 has been estimated to cost taxpayers $2.9 billion, the worst bank failure in U.S. history.

EPA decides not to review report

NEW YORK (AP) — A government report concluding that cigarette smoke kills 53,000 non-smokers annually moved closer to final approval as Environmental Protection Agency science advisers decided not to review it.

The decision was a rebuff to the tobacco industry, which had demanded the review. EPA Administrator William K. Reilly had promised that the advisers would be offered an opportunity to review the report, but he did not guarantee that they would accept the offer.

Robert Axelrad, the director of the EPA's indoor air division, said officials would meet soon "to determine the appropriate next steps in the publication process." Axelrad said Thursday he did not know when the report would be released.

"I'm pleased that they stood up to the tobacco industry and made the right decision," said Stanton Glantz of the University of California, San Francisco, one of the report's authors.

"I hope that the document will be released as soon as possible."

The report, sponsored by the EPA and the U.S. Public Health Service, is not an official EPA policy document. It is a broad summary of research on the dangers of smoking.

The report's many conclusions include the finding that tobacco smoke is a substantial contributor to indoor air pollution, that it causes disease even at very low levels of exposure and that ventilation cannot adequately control it.

House lifts ban on tissue transplant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of fetal tissue transplants are hailing a vote in the House to lift the ban on the procedures. They say the move advances medicine and strikes a blow against right-wing ideology.

But opponents of the transplants, which have shown promise in treating several diseases, are taking heart because the chamber fell short of the votes needed to override a threatened veto by President Bush.

largest organization of medical researchers, said the vote was a message to Bush.

"Science should be conducted ethically on the basis of scientific merit and should not be banned on political or ideological grounds," Schwartz said.

"Medical research must go forward and must not be held hostage by a small, vocal anti-choice minority," said Kate Michelman, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League.

But Douglas Johnson, chief lobbyist of the anti-abortion National Right to Life Committee, called on researchers to pursue different techniques.

"It is unworthy of us, as a nation, to kill our unborn children and then cannibalize them for spare parts," Johnson said.

The House on Thursday voted 274-144 to lift a ban the Reagan administration imposed in 1988 on federally financed transplants using cells from most abortions.

J. Sanford Schwartz, president of the American Federation for Clinical Research, the country's largest organization of medical researchers, said the vote was a message to Bush.

"Science should be conducted ethically on the basis of scientific merit and should not be banned on political or ideological grounds," Schwartz said.

"Medical research must go forward and must not be held hostage by a small, vocal anti-choice minority," said Kate Michelman, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League.

But Douglas Johnson, chief lobbyist of the anti-abortion National Right to Life Committee, called on researchers to pursue different techniques.

"It is unworthy of us, as a nation, to kill our unborn children and then cannibalize them for spare parts," Johnson said.

Seven victims identified by police

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Police identified the remains of seven people they said were killed and mutilated by Jeffrey L. Dahmer, 31, who police say has confessed to the slayings, showed no emotion during a court appearance Thursday as he was charged with four counts of murder.

At the time of Dahmer's court appearance, only four victims had been identified. Authorities believe he is responsible for 17 killings over the last 10 years.

One of those who has been identified was the 14-year-old brother of a 13-year-old boy Dahmer was sentenced to prison for molesting in 1988. Dahmer was paroled after he wrote to a judge that he would never be involved in another such incident.

Police also were reviewing an incident in which a woman said

JEFFREY L. DAHMER police did not come to the aid of a boy who tried to escape from Dahmer on May 27.

Friendly waters again

KUWAIT CITY — Kuwaiti teenagers enjoy an early morning swim along Kuwait City's Persian Gulf shore Thursday. Heavily mined by the occupying Iraqi forces, this beach had been off-limits until June when it was cleared of explosives. Still the beach is not heavily used.

Four senators urge MIA investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Republicans spent a good part of Thursday morning, politely trying to talk the Senate into investigating whether Americans are still held prisoner in Southeast Asia.

Then one of them suggested that Defense Secretary Dick Cheney might consider resigning.

That's when everybody got mad.

Cheney has been basking in the glow of America's Persian Gulf victory. And maybe just as important, he's a well-liked former member of Congress.

"I think you have just destroyed a lot of the credibility of the people who are behind this by attacking Dick Cheney," Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, told former Rep. Bill Hendon, R-N.C., who had made the remark.

Hendon, now chairman of the Publicity Fund of POW Families, was joined in calling for the investigation by Sens. Bob Smith, R-N.H.; Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, and Hank Brown, R-Colo.

It was Hendon, who said Cheney had been too quick to rule out the possibility of Americans still being held captive. He said the defense secretary should resign if he does not read the intelligence reports available on the subject.

"Dick Cheney ought to read all 6,500 of the intelligence reports or he ought to resign," Hendon said.

A Democrat, Sen. Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, was the first to come to Cheney's defense.

"He can't read all the intelligence reports on Desert Storm," said DeConcini.

Then Rules Committee Chairman Wendell Ford, D-Ky., who was presiding over the hearing, gave Hendon a homespun sermonette:

"My mother told me back when I was a small child that the tongue is the only edged tool that grows sharper with constant use," Ford said.

Hendon didn't back down.

The call for an investigation is sponsored by Smith and has attracted 41 co-sponsors, about twice as many Republicans as Democrats.

It envisions a special Senate committee to do the investigating.

Smith says the Defense Department is too slow in processing intelligence data on missing Americans. He says it has an institutional bias against the idea that any of them are still alive and that too much of the information the Pentagon has is classified.

"If there are live Americans there, we need to get them and get them out," Smith said.

Israel may make some concessions

JERUSALEM (AP) — Foreign Minister David Levy today suggested Israel would grant some concessions to get peace talks started, but that a dispute over Palestinian negotiators posed the chief obstacle.

A poll published today said 78 percent of Israelis want the government to say "yes" to the U.S. proposal for Israeli talks with its Arab foes.

Seventeen percent said Israel should refuse, and 5 percent did not answer the telephone poll Tuesday and Wednesday. The poll, published by the Yediot Ahronoth newspaper, had a margin of error of 4 percent.

Israel radio, meanwhile, reported that the Jewish state is posing new conditions before it will accept the U.S. formula. It said Israel wants the goals of the negotiations to be spelled out in advance and that Jordan's foreign minister — not a Palestinian — speak for the joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation.

The report, however, did give the source of its information and Yossi Achmeir, a top aide to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, refused to comment.

The reported demands came a day after Syria's foreign minister insisted that President Bush had given his country assurances that Israel would withdraw from "all fronts," including the Golan Heights.

Gorbachev planning to fight decree

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev said today he would take whatever measures are necessary to reverse Russian President Boris Yeltsin's edict against Communist Party activity in factories, schools and offices.

Gorbachev, speaking on the second day of a Communist Party Central Committee meeting in the Kremlin, said he would issue a presidential decree, if necessary, to annul Yeltsin's decision.

He said the policymaking Central Committee had been deluged with mail protesting the abolishment of party cells in the workplace, which are the mechanism that has allowed the ruling Communists to keep tight control on workers, teachers and government officials.

The 410-member Central Committee formed a commission to draft a resolution condemning Yeltsin's decree, and Gorbachev told the meeting he would take steps "up to a decree of the president of the country" to reverse it, the independent Interfax news agency reported.

Yeltsin's July 20 decree ordered the dismantling of Communist Party cells in factories, schools, government offices and other workplaces.

Presidency seeking to end violence

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Fighting flared again today in secessionist Croatia as Yugoslavia's collective federal presidency sought to end the violence. The government allowed commercial flights over Slovenia, easing tensions there.

Stipe Mesic, Croatia's representative on the body and its current chairman, called the meeting to "discuss the situation in Croatia and the engagement of the federal armed forces in accordance with their constitutional role."

A Monday summit of the eight-man presidency with the individual presidents of Yugoslavia's six fractious republics failed to come up with a political solution.

The Westward-leaning republics of Croatia and neighboring Slovenia declared independence June 25 from the central government long dominated by Communist Serbia.

CROATIAN SOLDIERS GUARD DANUBE

Twenty people were killed in fighting in the republic Thursday.

Iran should be held responsible

President Bush has said, quite appropriately, that this country can't have normal relations with Iraq as long as Saddam Hussein remains in power. He should have been saying the same thing — and with equal emphasis — about the call of Iranian leaders, renewed again this year, for the faithful to murder author Salman Rushdie and others connected with the publication of his novel, "The Satanic Verses," which some Moslems regard as blasphemous.

The order to kill Rushdie, first issued by Ayatollah Ruholla Khomeini in February of 1989, continues to fester. On July 13, the Japanese translator of the book, Hiroshi Igarashi, a university teacher of comparative literature, was stabbed to death outside his office. That killing came nine days after the Italian translator of the book, Ettore Capriolo, was wounded in another stabbing by an Iranian who is said to have had connections to the Iranian embassy in Milan.

In neither case has anyone claimed responsibility, but there is circumstantial evidence in both that the victim's connection with the book was the reason. There had been death threats against the Japanese publishers, and Igarashi was for a time given bodyguards. There were demonstrations outside the offices of the Japanese publisher when the book came out in Japan last year.

There's no way to know whether a stronger Western response to the initial Iranian invitation to the Moslem faithful to kill Rushdie and others connected with "The Satanic Verses" might have had an effect in deterring the mullahs in Tehran from repeating it. Earlier this year Rushdie, who has been in hiding in England ever since Khomeini's order was issued, tried to apologize and declared that there would be no paperback edition of the novel and no further translations. But that attempt was rebuffed.

The murder of Igarashi and the assault on Capriolo make it clear that the rebuff was no abstraction. In June, Rushdie, who had been trying to emerge from hiding, was warned by British intelligence sources that a new hit squad had been sent to Britain to kill him.

In effect, the government of Iran is waging a terrorist campaign against citizens of other nations. For a while, the nations of the European Community withdrew their ambassadors from Iran. But that mild show of disapproval ended long ago.

Other than providing bodyguards and providing cover for Iran's targets, the West has sent the same message to Tehran that it sent to Baghdad before the invasion of Kuwait: We will do nothing.

Reasons for celebrating United States of America

Thirty reasons why I love my country during this, the anniversary month of American independence.

1. Soccer never caught on here. An English soccer promoter said to me in 1968, "One day soccer will be bigger in America than your football."

2. Wrong. Tractor pulls made it, soccer didn't.

3. I can still see reruns of the Andy Griffith show. My favorite scene remains the time a reporter came to Mayberry to do a story on the city with the lowest crime rate in the state.

4. The reporter found Barney alone at the sheriff's department and asked him, "How many are on the Mayberry force?"

5. Barney replied, "Well there's Andy and me . . ." then, he patted his holster and added, ". . . and the baby makes three."

6. Grilled hot dogs in steamed buns with mustard and chili on them.

7. Country music. We birthed it ourselves.

8. We don't put up billboards advertising vacuum cleaners that say "Nothing sucks like an Electrolux," which I swear I saw on a billboard in Scotland.

9. Speaking of Scotland, kilts haven't caught on here, either. But some men are wearing earrings now, so I may not be able to say that much longer.

10. You can have all those famous Old World golf courses like St. Andrews, Muirfield, and Bally Bunion, where they never cut the grass. I'll take Augusta National, where nature is groomed, not left to run amok and become places where errant drives go to die.

11. Johnny Carson . . . nobody, not Leno nor Letterman will ever be able to replace him.

12. We finally won another war. The White House at night.

13. Truck drivers. Without their Red Sovine would never have sung, "Giddyup Go" and "Teddy Bear."

14. Mike Royko, a perfect example of why freedom of the press was a terrific idea.

15. Tab. It's getting harder and harder to find it here. But it's basically impossible to find in other countries.

16. Baseball. None of the

players wear short pants like they do in soccer.

17. The civil rights movement in this country came off with minimal bloodshed when you compare it to cultural and racial conflicts elsewhere in the world.

18. We have the best toilet and bath facilities of any country on earth.

19. Our president, although he is commander in chief of the armed forces, doesn't think it necessary to wear a uniform.

20. The gulf coast of Florida. Find me more beautiful sand and water.

21. Oat bran. We care about our colons more than any other of the world's peoples.

22. We don't worship cows. At least I don't know anybody who does.

23. We drink our beer cold.

24. The American never-say-die attitude. Examples are a lot of us still hold a grudge against Jane Fonda while others still think the Atlanta Falcons will go to a Super Bowl one day.

25. Most American men refuse to wear those bikini-type swim suits like you see in the south of France.

26. If we ever have to go to war against Japan again, I'm sure we won't sneak in on a Sunday morning to attack them like they did us, although that's what they've got coming.

27. We don't eat dogs.

28. We must lead the world in charities.

29. The rest of us don't take California all that seriously.

30. If you won't move away from Chicago, you're free to do so.

31. Most of us are relatively safe from tidal waves.

32. Despite our growing diversity, our differences and our problems, most of us still feel like we're all in this together.

The writer's art Wench was on the Humvee

The Associated Press was right on the scene a few months ago, when allied forces entered Kuwait City. An AP correspondent bummed a ride with a Kuwaiti driver who found no opposition at the city limits.

"Ten minutes later, Ahmad's BMW and the dozen Saudi and U.S. Army special forces vehicles were at the entrance to Kuwait City's diplomatic sector. The wench on an American Humvee was pulling a barrier from the road."

Ah, those valiant women of the U.S. Army! Those hobbyists who hunt homophones love nothing more than to read of a hardworking wench, for surely a wench is more interesting than a winch.

There's also something to be said for another woman of distinction. The Seattle Times identified Leadville, Colo., two years ago as "the mother load of one of the state's most historic mining districts." The same gentlewoman turned up in a column by a sportswriter for the Chicago Tribune. At a press conference with the Bears, Coach Mike Ditka mused "a mother load of aggravation."

Homophones are the pitfalls and booby traps of prose composition. For the record, a homophone is one of two or more words that sound alike but have different spellings and different meanings. That mother was a mother lode.

Every language has its sound-alikes, I suppose, but surely no language offers more opportunities for confusion than our own. Let us examine a few horrid examples.

At one time or another, Reuters has reported "security breeches" in Europe and the Chicago Sun-Times has warned of "security breeches" in the Cook County jail. In Las Vegas, the Review-Journal reported last year that the former owners of the Tropicana Hotel won a bundle in a "breach of contract suit." A reporter for the Atlanta Journal and Constitution covered a trial in Miami. Before a policeman's pistol was put in evidence, the officer "checked the breach."

Well, we don't breach security or breach a contract. We breach them, that is, we break them. And guns don't have breaches, they have breeches. Little boys also have breeches, pronounced britches, and sometimes they get too big for them. How do aliens ever learn to write English?

Columnist Jack Anderson last year noted that abuses continue in Tibet, "even though China has lifted martial law." A correspondent for the Strongsville (Ohio) Sun Star reported in January that a newly opened shopping mall would have a gift shop, a beauty shop, and "a marshal arts school." The suspended law in Tibet wasn't the kind of law enforced by Marshal Matt Dillon. This was martial law, enforced by those who master the martial arts.

In the Dartmouth Review a couple of years ago, a book reviewer identified John Silber, president of Boston University, as "an imminent Kant scholar." The Savannah (Ga.) News-Press last year covered a case involving the city's power of "imminent domain." Something that is imminent is something that is immediately threatening. The power of eminent domain is a sovereign's power to take private property for public use.

Other splendid citations have come to hand. There was a concert in Savannah in the knave of the Lutheran Church. In Bloomington, Ind., a pet owner named Sandy offered in a classified ad to give away her cats; she was moving to an apartment "where pets are not aloud." The Winston-Salem (N.C.) Journal noted that comedian Andrew Dice Clay has been criticized as "just a demigod who panders to the worst instincts of humanity."

Some homophones merit special awards. I have cherished for several years an account of road construction on Bainbridge Island, Wash. After Sept. 8, Madison Avenue "will be for all intensive purposes impassable at all times."

The Greenville (S.C.) News reported the recovery of a 5-year-old girl who had survived a heart operation only to take a bad fall. Her mother thought the fall was the result of "all the pinned up energy she had."

In a magazine called Scene at the Movies, fans read that in making "The Long Walk Home," actresses Sissy Spacek and Whoopi Goldberg developed a strong rapport. "This must have helped when it came down to brass tax on the set."

In Veneta, Ore., a correspondent covered a spectacular wreck near Junction City. A truck driver from Tennessee lost control of his 18-wheeler on a mountain curve. He wound up "with the tail end of his rig nosed into the dirt bank and his front wheels a hare's breath from the canyon's edge."

Never mind that hare with halitosis! That driver was a hairsbreadth away from disaster.

Knife jockeys and their buddies

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

In a report issued by the American Medical Association, saliva has been shown to cause stomach cancer, but only if swallowed in small amounts over a long period of time (George Carlin, 1975).

We endure some of the most outrageous stuff in the name of medical care. Last week I was privileged to have a total stranger inject drugs into me until I went into a coma, while this other guy slit me open and prowled around my insides with a knife.

And it only cost me $2.7 billion dollars! Is this a great country or what?

So after these two knife jockeys and their henchmen (henchpersons?) finished, I was fortunate enough to regain consciousness in the lost room of the beeping machines.

That would have been weird enough, but the stuff they were giving me in my IV was making me see little green John Sununu riding monarch butterflies. I thought I had died and gone to a Beatles movie.

One of my favorite surgery party favors was this amusing little tube that wound its way up my nose and down my throat. I wondered if it was laying eggs in my chest like the creature in Alien.

Really one of the prime vacations of my life.

Then the real fun starts. This parade of strangers come at the rate of one per hour. Some want blood, some want to put things on you, some want to put things in you, but all want to annoy you.

This particularly painful little woman was intent on driving this hollow spike into my wrist. This was necessary to obtain the arterial blood needed for oxygen tests, she explained. This went on for a couple of days.

Then one day she messed up and couldn't get her nail in the right place, so she went to the other side and started digging around.

Finally I freaked. "Take that !#! needle and go tell Pontius Pilot, I ain't gonna take it anymore!"

"Mr. Shanks, this is for your own good."

"Look twisted sister, do you see this stupid pitcher hanging from my bed? If you don't get away from me, I'm gonna empty it on your head!"

She packed up her junior inquisitor's kit and made haste for the door. Sure enough, before long, Doctor Demento showed up. "Gary, we have to get those blood gases."

"I'm not having any trouble breathing and I have the right to refuse any part of my medical treatment and said refusal doesn't relieve you of the responsibility or liability for the rest of my treatment!"

Doctors and L.A. policemen really hate it when you know your rights.

The best advice I can offer is: If your doctor treats you like a child or is stoic about your pain, dump him. There are some out there who care. Many are younger and more current in their medical philosophy (paternalistic doctors will one day be a thing of the past), but some of the older ones are just naturally caring people.

Anyway, after about five days (or were they months?) I was discharged.

Linda Choate got to go to Jamaica on her vacation.

Mom fears radioactive letters

DEAR ABBY: I have a question that has been bothering me a great deal. I feel embarrassed to ask, but I must.

My teen-age daughter has been receiving pen-pal letters from a girl in Ukraine (U.S.S.R.) who happens to live a few hundred miles from the Chernobyl disaster in a city called Dnepropetrovsk. Because I'm a natural worrier, mother of five and pregnant again, every time she receives a letter, I can't help but wonder if it is safe (non-radioactive).

I realize it has been five years since that tragedy, and cleanup has taken place, but I don't know whom to ask. Please help me. — LOUISIANA WORRIER

DEAR WORRIER: Put your mind at ease. According to William Curtis, project leader at the Environmental Protection Agency's Office of Radiation Programs, there is nothing to worry about. (Mr. Curtis is an oceanographer who journeyed to Chernobyl last year to conduct surveys for the EPA on radiation levels in the Black Sea.) He assured me that if his word isn't enough to ease your worry, you may take the envelopes to be analyzed at any university that has a radiation department.

DEAR ABBY: I know you can help me. I have a son who's 14 years old, and he is terribly afraid of the dentist. I started taking him to the dentist when he was 3 years old, but each time it was a terrible experience.

He has not been to a dentist for a checkup for more than three years because he is terrified of shots. (He even complains about how painful it is to have his teeth cleaned.)

My question is: Are there any dentists in Michigan who treat patients who have a phobia about dentists? My son needs to have a couple of teeth extracted. — LIVONIA MAMA

DEAR MAMA: If your family

dentist cannot (or will not) refer you to a dentist who specializes in phobic patients, get in touch with your county dental association and ask for some referrals.

Please don't cave in on this very important issue, Mama.

DEAR ABBY: "Hurt in Indiana" remarked that whenever she went to her son's home, she noticed pictures of his wife's family prominently displayed all over the house, but not one picture of his family was in evidence. That reminds me of this story:

One of my lifelong friends remarried after her first husband died. Husband No. 2, whose first wife had died, kept a very large portrait of Eve, Wife No. 1, hanging over the fireplace.

Finally, my friend, one of nature's true noblewomen, who wouldn't hurt a flea if she could get out of its way, said to Husband No. 2: "I have a very good portrait of Clifford (Husband No. 1) that would look lovely beside Eve."

The next day Eve's portrait mysteriously disappeared. — AMUSED IN TULSA

What goes around, comes around: Now it's Kitty Kelly's turn

By CATHERINE CROCKER
NEW YORK (AP) — The tables have been turned on Kitty Kelly with a vengeance.

The go-for-the-jugular celebrity biographer is herself the subject of a Kitty Kelly-style bio that accuses her of the same kind of scandalous behavior that made her books on Nancy Reagan, Frank Sinatra and others best sellers.

In "Poison Pen: The Unauthorized Biography of Kitty Kelly," George Carpozi Jr. portrays Kelly as promiscuous and claims she stole dresses and perfumes — as well as other writers' words — and made up tales about the rich and famous.

"Kelly has been exposed internationally as a teller of inaccurate tales, manufactured scandal, and malicious mounds of made-up muck," Carpozi concludes in his book, which is due in stores next week.

The book's publisher, Lyle Stuart, was Kelly's publisher before the two had a falling out.

After giving Stuart her "Jackie Oh!" manuscript about Jacqueline Onassis, Carpozi writes, Kelly admitted fabricating an intimate bedroom conversation between Onassis and columnist Pete Hamill.

"So where did you get this conversation?" Carpozi quotes Stuart as saying.

"Kelly looked down at her shoes as if studying the condition of their shine," Carpozi writes. "I made it up," she said. When she looked up, her demure expression was that of a naughty little girl. "They won't sue," she repeated, almost imploringly.

Stuart said he ordered the invented scene deleted.

Kelly could not be reached for comment because she was en route from Los Angeles to Washington, said John Goldhammer, head of program development for MCA TV in Universal City, Calif. The entertainment company is preparing a syndicated talk-show series with Kelly as host.

A message left on Kelly's answering machine at her home in Washington was not returned.

Carpozi also claims in his book that Kelly borrowed heavily from Frances Spatz Leighton's book "The Search for the Real Nancy Reagan." By twisting the material, Carpozi claims, Kelly made it seem Mrs. Reagan and Sinatra were engaged in "lustful conduct" when they were only having lunch.

Author George Carpozi Jr. sits in the study of his home in Melville, N.Y. Wednesday with a copy of his new book, "Poison Pen: The Unauthorized Biography of Kitty Kelly," which is due in bookstores in about a week.

As for her own sex life, Carpozi reports that Kelly was known as "available Kitty" during the time she worked for Sen. Eugene McCarthy. One former acquaintance told Carpozi, "Often, all you had to do was ask."

Carpozi makes no effort to hide his dislike for Kelly. His text is filled with such descriptions of Kelly as "elfin-faced wicked word scribbler," "Lady Scornful," "enchanted," "wicked wordsmith," "fiction writer" and "crook."

Carpozi also takes Kelly to task for reporting supposedly verbatim conversations that he says she could not possibly have witnessed. But Carpozi does the same thing himself in reporting on her.

For example, Carpozi criticizes Kelly for reporting a purportedly verbatim exchange between Mrs. Reagan and her parents when she tells them she plans to marry Ronald Reagan. Carpozi himself reconstructs a conversation between Kelly's parents that purportedly occurred on the night they met in Spokane, Wash.

In a telephone interview, Carpozi, a former editor at The Star supermarket tabloid who has written biographies on Sinatra and Onassis, defended his use of quotes as "literary license, not like Kitty's dialogue." He said his sources for the book exceeded 400.

Kelly was born in 1942 to William Vincent Kelly, a lawyer, and Adele Martin Kelly. The oldest of five girls and a boy, Kelly became a surrogate mother to her siblings because of her mother's heavy drinking, Carpozi writes.

She attended the University of Arizona until 1962, when, according to Carpozi, Kelly was forced to leave after campus police found in her dormitory room perfume, jewelry, hosiery, clothing and a leather-bound volume of Shakespeare allegedly stolen from her Delta Gamma sorority sisters.

"Disgraced by the scandal, Kelly's parents apparently refused to let her return home," the author writes. She was sent off to live with her maternal grandparents in Seattle. "There she suffered a breakdown and was confined to a wheelchair for part of the time," he writes.

Deception followed her into her career, Carpozi's book claims.

When she was living in Washington, her publisher had to discard thousands of dust jackets for the book on Onassis because the text was based on Kelly's inflated resume, he said. She described herself as McCarthy's press secretary, he writes; in the senator's words she was "a letter-stuffer of sorts."

Religion

POLAND, Maine — Israeli Ori Cohen, left, 14, and Egyptian Mohammed Shawki, 15, enjoy each others jokes while balancing on a swing at the Samantha Smith World Peace Camp in Poland, Maine recently. The two boys say they are best friends after spending four-weeks together and hope to visit in each others homeland.

Friendships forged at peace camp

POLAND, Maine (AP) — It's an opening day ritual of summer camp that has been repeated thousands of times: young strangers meet on the basketball court, shoot a few baskets and start up a game. A friendship grows that can outlast the summer.

No matter that Ori Cohen, 14, is an Israeli and Mohammed Shawki, 15, is an Egyptian.

After four weeks at the Samantha Smith World Peace Camp, they have become best friends, promising to write and hoping they can visit each other's homeland and renew their friendship.

"If every Israeli could come to this camp, there would be peace," said Ori, musing about how wonderful it would be if Israel and Egypt were one country without decades of animosities to overcome.

Mohammed looks to the younger generation to work toward ending war and erasing the prejudices and hatreds nurtured by forebears.

"The future is in our hands. We can change everything," he said.

Emad Tawfic, a 16-year-old from Cairo, agreed. "Young people want peace more than old ones," he said.

Muhammad and Emad were among nine Egyptians and Ori was one of four Israelis at the camp along with about 165 other youngsters in their mid teens for a four-week session that ends Wednesday. Thirty were from the Soviet Union, one from Mexico, one from Peru and the rest from the United States. The camp is named for Samantha Smith, the Maine schoolgirl who wrote to Yuri Andropov, the former Soviet leader, expressing her fear of nuclear war.

Samantha's red carpet tour of the Soviet Union made her an international celebrity and propelled her into an acting career. But she was killed, at age 13, in a 1985 plane crash not far from the site of what is now the 120-acre camp.

Now in its third year, the non-profit camp features morning workshops designed to promote international understanding and cooperation. Campers learn about ways to resolve conflicts, protect the environment and enhance their communication and leadership skills.

Afternoons are dedicated to more traditional camp activities, such as swimming, water skiing and soccer.

Each summer's program is designed to reflect emerging world issues. The inaugural season focused on the easing of tensions between the two superpowers, bringing Soviet youngsters together with Americans.

Campers from Poland and Hungary attended camp last summer, reflecting the changes accompanying the end of Soviet hegemony in Eastern Europe.

This year, camp officials decided to shift the focus to the Middle East and arranged to host campers from Israel, Egypt, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Jordan, including Palestinians.

The Egyptians were selected from among about 100 English-speaking applicants who competed in essay contests; the Israelis have been living in the Boston area where their parents are temporarily employed.

The Egyptians arrived as scheduled, but the other Arabs stayed home.

"We had confirmatory letters as recently as four days before, and they just never showed," said Dr. Michael Wilkes, a UCLA professor who heads the camp's board of directors.

Wilkes said he suspects that the other Arab countries balked when they received a roster of those attending the camp and it became explicitly clear that Israelis were included.

While volunteer support for the camp remains strong, officials say financial contributions — particularly corporate sponsorship of camp tuition — have fallen short of expectations. Some attribute that to the economic recession and support for the war against Iraq.

"With the Persian Gulf conflict, the whole peace movement took a back seat for a period of time," said Karen Stager, co-director of the camp.

Despite the disappointment that other Arabs were unable to attend, Stager said the Israelis and Egyptians developed an understanding of what it's like to grow up in each other's country and how beliefs are shaped by the history books they read and the lessons they learn.

"They've learned that there's more than one perspective, more than one way to look at a situation," she said.

The workshops did not produce a formula for peace in the Middle East, but Stager says that wasn't the purpose.

"We're not trying to teach a solution. We're trying to teach a process," she said.

And any fears Stager might have had about how Egyptian and Israeli campers would get along vanished within the first hours as she glanced down at the basketball court.

"The kids have taught me a lot. I've learned that teen-agers are far more forgiving of history than adults are. And what I get out of it is tremendous optimism that there's hope for the future."

Objection to mascot

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — A minister's son says he will not play football for Devils Lake High School this fall because he objects to the team nickname "Satans."

"I really like to play football, but I don't exactly like the idea of being a Satan," said Duane Close, a 14-year-old lineman who stands 6-foot-2 and weighs 240 pounds. He attends In His Image Fellowship, a Christian church of about 75 members founded by his father, the Rev. Cliff Close.

"The coach has asked me to play varsity football this fall," Close said. "But it kind of disgusts me and makes me feel ashamed when the cheerleaders are out there yelling, 'Go, Satans, go' and 'Mighty, mighty Satans.'"

Graham has pull with world leaders

NEW YORK (AP) — American presidents are not the only world leaders who recognize the value of a meeting with evangelist Billy Graham.

During a recent visit to Moscow, Graham met with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, and was shown with him on a popular news show. He then received a surprise invitation on the final morning of his mid-July visit to meet with one of Gorbachev's rivals, Russian Republic President Boris Yeltsin.

Graham declined to reveal the details of either conversation other than to say the talks were primarily about spiritual and moral issues.

The popular evangelist was in Moscow to help conduct a School for Evangelism for nearly 5,000 church workers from throughout the Soviet Union.

You are never alone as long as God is in your life

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am completely alone, and no one cares about me. Even people at work don't pay any attention to me. I have tried to make friends in the past, but I know I'm not good-looking or personable or anything. Sometimes I get so lonely I wish I could just die. Can you understand how I feel? — R.H.

DEAR R.H.: Yes, I understand; we all have had moments of feeling alone, even in the midst of a crowd. Even the ancient Psalmist cried out once that "no one is concerned for me. I have no refuge; no one cares for my life" (Psalm 142:4).

But the writer of the Psalm I have just quoted did not stay lonely. Instead, he made a great discovery: God cared for him, and he was never alone because God was with him. "I cry aloud to the Lord. When my spirit grows faint within me, it is you who know my way. You are my refuge" (Psalm 142:1,3,5). Yes, the most important thing I can tell you is that God loves you and is always with you. How do we know that is true? We know it because Jesus Christ came to take away our sins so we could be part of God's family forever. By faith ask Christ to come into your life today.

He also wants to help you overcome your loneliness. For example, ask Him to help you be a friend to others — not for your sake, but for their sake. All around you — even at work — are people who are lonely. Let them know that you care about their concerns. For example, instead of waiting for others to smile at you or ask you how your day is, express an interest in them first.

I also urge you to get involved in a church where you can grow spiritually — and also meet other people who will accept you and care about you. Don't worry because you aren't perfect; God created you, and you are valuable to Him — and to others.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I know I am supposed to respect my parents, but how can I respect my father when I can never please him, no matter how good I do, and he doesn't bother with my brother and me very much because he is too busy with his job? Sometimes I wonder if he even loves us. — T.R.

DEAR T.R.: I suspect your father would be startled and surprised (and even hurt) to hear you say this — and the reason is because in his own eyes he is honestly trying to be a good parent, and loves you very much.

Think about it from his standpoint for a minute. One reason he spends so much time with his job, for example, is probably because he feels a strong need to provide for you and the rest of your family — not only now, but in the future when he will face massive expenses like college. Or again, his habit of correcting you and wanting you to excel probably comes from a genuine desire to see you do well in life, and he knows that anything worthwhile in life usually comes from persistence and hard work.

At the same time, I hope you can express your concern to your father, even by showing him this column. His goals for you are praiseworthy, but he is unintentionally hurting you by failing to be more positive. One of the most important things a parent can do is to encourage children by praising them and rejoicing with them in their achievements. The Bible commands, "Fathers, do not embitter your children, or they will become discouraged" (Colossians 3:21).

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How do you know there is life after death? Personally, I don't think we can really know, and anyway I don't see what difference it makes. As far as I am concerned the only thing that counts is what I am doing right now, and I don't want to think about the future. — Mrs. P.O.R.

DEAR MRS. P.O.R.: Do you plan ahead for anything in your future? Of course you do, because our lives are aimless and confused if we don't plan for the future. But if that is true, why not plan for the one thing which is absolutely certain for every one of us — and that is our death?

And in reality there is no need to bury your head in the sand, so to speak, and refuse to think about life after death. The reason is because we can know, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that this life is not all, and that someday we will go into eternity as conscious beings. But more than that, we can know that we need not fear death, because if we know Christ we know we will be secure forever in the presence of God in Heaven.

How do I know this? I know it because of one great historical fact: Jesus Christ died, was put in the grave — and then rose again from the dead. That tells us there is life beyond the grave. But more than that, it tells us that Jesus Christ was who He said He was: the eternal Son of God, who came down to earth to remove our sins and make us His children forever. I invite you to open your life to Jesus Christ today. Don't make life's biggest mistake — the mistake of thinking that it doesn't matter what you do with Christ and His salvation. God loves you, and

He wants you to share in the joy of His love forever through Christ.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Now that we have television and radio in almost every part of the world, is there really any need for missionaries? I mean, it seems to me that people in other countries can hear about Jesus just listening to radio or something, instead of going to all the expense of sending missionaries. Our church is raising money to help several missionaries, and I guess that is why I am raising the question. — F.H.

DEAR F.H.: I'm thankful for the opportunities God has given us to preach the Gospel by using new technology, including radio and television. More than ever before, Jesus' prophecy is being fulfilled: "And this gospel of the kingdom will be preached in the whole world as a testimony to all nations" (Matthew 24:14).

These can never be substitutes, however, for the personal work of those who go to other parts of the world as missionaries. There are many reasons for this. For one thing, radios are impersonal, but missionaries are able to show Christ's love in many, many ways — and often it is the Christ-like love of a person which speaks more loudly than their words.

Methodist women attend conference

Madeline Boadle, Sue Ann Born, Jacque Mauch and Nelene Wright women from Wesley United Methodist Church of Big Spring attended the Northwest Texas Conference Mission Education Events held July 12-14 and 15-17 at South Plains College, Levelland.

There was a time for worship, study, sharing, and fellowship. The studies for 1991-1992 are "The Gospel of John," "Japan," and "Living Values/Changing Times."

In the Gospel of John, the women encountered the living Christ as the source of their life and the grounds of their faith. The leaders of this study were Rev. Ron Henderson, Dallas, and Mary Lou Blakeman, Mandeville, Louisiana. In Japan, they reflected on the similarities and differences in their attempt to live the cultural realities of history, family, community, and nation. The leaders were Leora Trice, Dallas, and Ruth Prudente, New York City.

In Living Values/Changing Times, the women were drawn to the profound truth of their faith and to commit their lives daily by living the values in changing times. Barbara Ihne, Leslie, Arkansas, was the leader of this study.

Special activities for children were provided and led by Madeline Boadle, Big Spring.

Regina Henley, Childress, served as Dean of the school, with Peggy Wright, Floydada, serving as Assistant Dean.

No confirmation of S&L sale

The federal agency in charge of resolving insolvent savings and loan institutions refused to comment today on rumors that Southwest Federal Savings Association of Dallas has been sold.

Southwest has 68 offices in Texas, including branches at Big Spring and Colorado City. "We do not comment before any occurrence," said Teresa McUsic, spokesperson for the southwest regional office of the Resolution Trust Corp. in Dallas.

McUsic said Southwest has been up for sale since March 25, and the RTC has held the institution in conservatorship since May 18, 1990. One of the prospective bidders for Southwest is Guaranty Federal Savings Bank of Dallas, she said.

Southwest would be held in conservatorship until a buyer was found or depositors were paid off, McUsic said. Southwest's depositors are insured up to $100,000 by the federal Savings Association Insurance Fund, she said. Southwest has $3.9 billion in assets and $3 billion in deposits, McUsic said.

Economic recovery may be weakest ever

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, who has suffered through weak economic growth and a recession in his first 2½ years in office, is not likely to see his economic luck change anytime soon, private economists believe.

These analysts are forecasting that the upcoming recovery will be the most anemic in U.S. history, with growth rates about half what they normally are in the early stages of an expansion.

The U.S. economy started growing again in the spring, the government reported today, but the barely perceptible 0.4 percent annual increase raised new concerns over whether the recession is really over. The Commerce Department said that the gross national output, the country's total production of goods and services, expanded in the April-June quarter following two consecutive quarterly declines.

GNP fell by 1.6 percent in the October-December period and an even sharper 2.8 percent in the January-March period, meeting the classic definition of a recession as at least two consecutive declines in GNP.

While the Bush administration believes that a return to growth is a valid signal that the recession is indeed over, private economists are warning of the possibility of a "double-dip" recession in which GNP grows for a quarter or two only to slip back into the negative range as the recovery falters and the recession returns with full force.

Even if that scenario does not develop, analysts believe that a variety of problems facing the United States, from strains on the banking system to an overload of consumer debt, will make this expansion the weakest in U.S. history.

The administration, facing a presidential election next year, has kept up pressure on the Federal Reserve to boost economic demand by lowering interest rates.

However, the Fed has resisted recent pleas out of concern that inflation could get out of hand once the recovery begins. Last week, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan told Congress that he believed the possibility of a double-dip recession was low.

The 0.4 percent GNP growth rate in the second quarter was significantly lower than expected by analysts, many of whom were looking for the GNP to expand at an annual rate of 1 percent or better.

Given the small GNP increase, which could be revised away altogether in upcoming reports, and a string of other weak indicators recently, analysts said the possibility of a double-dip recession cannot be ruled out.

Analysts note that in five of the last eight recessions, including the last downturn in 1981-82, there was one positive GNP quarter followed by further declines before the recession was finally over.

The administration contends the positive GNP figure in the second quarter will mark the actual end of the recession. In a forecast released last week, the administration predicted that GNP growth will strengthen for the rest of the year and by 1992 the economy will be growing again at a healthy annual rate of 3.2 percent.

Medicare billing binge detailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — It takes nothing more than a telephone number to bilk the Medicare program, Martin Nordland says.

The former medical supply salesman Thursday told the Senate Budget Committee that unscrupulous billing companies use loopholes in the Medicare system to reap huge profits. Members of the panel said taxpayers could be losing tens of millions of dollars.

In testimony before the committee, Nordland said a billing company could set up shop with little effort or expense. The companies operate like middlemen, arranging the sale of equipment and supplies to nursing homes or home health-care agencies and billing Medicare.

Because of slack laws and loopholes they sometimes can sell products that patients may never use, Nordland said.

For instance, he said, in Pennsylvania "there is no specific term for the word 'supplier.' ... I can have a tent, a folding table, two Army cots, a field phone and tell them ... I'm a dealer."

"I saw the abuse of the system," Nordland said. "It's appalling."

Nordland said as many as 20 companies may be involved in suspect Medicare billing practices nationwide, operating in "gray" areas along the boundary of the law.

Nordland said unscrupulous companies typically are based in states that have few restrictions on their operations, such as Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Florida and Ohio. From there, they can direct sales throughout the nation.

He said doctors and nursing homes are usually unaware of what's taking place.

In some cases, billing companies will practice "unbundling," a tactic in which they charge Medicare for separate components of a piece of equipment.

cuts currently under consideration, to Boyd.

Several of 45 city firefighters, including 39 in the union, would be affected by the cancellation in the next two weeks, Brown said. Each firefighter receives five 24-hour shifts of holiday time per year, which is scheduled at the beginning of the year. In addition, there is a "use or lose" policy for holiday time, he said.

Anderson said firefighters will not lose any holiday time because of the cancellation.

Smith's attorneys want to stop more disclosures

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — William Kennedy Smith's attorneys want a judge to punish prosecutors and to stop them from further disclosures such as this week's report that three women claim Smith sexually attacked them.

And attorneys for the supermarket tabloid Globe, charged with violating an 80-year-old Florida law by naming the alleged rape victim, on Thursday asked that State Attorney David Bludworth be disqualified from the prosecution team so they can call him as a witness.

Smith, the 30-year-old nephew of U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, has pleaded innocent to charges of raping a 29-year-old Jupiter, Fla., woman at the Kennedy estate on Easter weekend.

On Monday, two weeks before the scheduled Aug. 5 start of jury selection for Smith's trial, prosecutors revealed they plan to call as witnesses three other women who claim Smith attacked them.

Smith's attorneys filed an emergency motion on Thursday asking Circuit Judge Mary Lupo to seal all future court filings in the case.

They attacked the prosecutors' tactics, claiming they were aimed at ruining Smith's right to a fair trial. They also predicted the allegations won't be admissible.

One woman claimed Smith raped her in Washington in 1988. The other two claimed he tried to rape them earlier but fended him off. None reported their allegations to police at the time.

The motion charged that the prosecutors' timing "was designed to poison the jury pool by having the public believe that Mr. Smith is a bad person with a propensity to commit sexual misconduct."

CIA probing any links to scandal-plagued bank

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA is conducting an internal review of whatever dealings it may have had with the Bank of Credit and Commerce International, which is at the center of a massive worldwide scandal involving fraud and money laundering.

News reports in London, meanwhile, alleged the bank may have transmitted funds to aid efforts by Argentina, Libya and Pakistan to obtain nuclear weapons.

The bank also was used by former White House aide Oliver North to set up accounts for covert operations, officials said here.

CIA spokesman Mark Mansfield said Thursday that CIA Director William Webster told the agency's inspector general to look into any possible CIA-BCCI links in the past. Mansfield would not say when Webster ordered the probe to begin.

The review "is not based on any evidence of wrongdoing," Mansfield said. "We are looking at the records so that a comprehensive report can be shared with our congressional oversight committees."

The bank was used by the CIA to transfer money to U.S.-backed guerrillas in Nicaragua and Afghanistan, law enforcement and congressional officials say.

The London Guardian, in today's editions, quoted unnamed intelligence sources as saying BCCI was used as a conduit for payments to nearly 500 Britons on the payroll of the CIA.

The Guardian also said BCCI ran a secret worldwide cash-transmission network to fund a joint effort by Argentina, Libya and Pakistan to acquire nuclear arms.

The newspaper, citing unidentified sources inside and outside the bank and interviews with dissident Pakistanis in exile, reported "The network operated for more than a decade, and was moving cash and gold around the world right up to when BCCI was shut down to provide huge sums for series of attempts, some successful and some not, to buy nuclear bomb components."

"BCCI also arranged air freight shipping and insurance for the components."

Robert Gates, whose nomination to head the CIA has run into trouble with Congress, wrote a report three years ago saying BCCI was involved in illegal activities, according to William Von Rabb, the former U.S. Customs commissioner.

Von Rabb, in an interview, said Gates once referred to BCCI as "the Bank of Crooks and Criminals."

BCCI was used by Saudi millionaire arms dealer Adnan Khashoggi to deposit money into the Enterprise — the name by which North's covert slush fund was known, former Senate Iran Contra counsel Arthur Liman said Thursday.

Enterprise money then was funneled to the Contras to circumvent a congressional ban on aiding the guerrillas.

In related developments: —The Guardian on Thursday said Kuwait had deposited $60 million in BCCI for the Abu Nidal terrorist group.

—A team of prosecutors in four U.S. cities is investigating the bank's activities, including allegations of bribery, fraud and drug money laundering. Regulators seized BCCI assets around the world this month.

CDC reports link between crack users, tuberculosis

ATLANTA (AP) — Forty-four of 354 people in a California county who were diagnosed with tuberculosis from January 1987 to June 1990 were also users of crack, the smokable form of cocaine, federal health officials said.

The discovery suggests a link between the drug and the disease, the National Centers for Disease Control reported Thursday.

"We suspect that this is a much larger problem than we have thought up to now," said Dr. Dixie Snider, director of the TB division at the Atlanta-based CDC. "There may be other areas, such as New York, New Jersey or Miami, where some (TB) is acquired in crack houses. We just don't know."

The cases, in Northern California's Contra Costa County, were reported between Jan. 1, 1987, and June 30, 1990.

The report comes as tuberculosis is on the rise in the United States for the first time in a decade.

Health officials say the rise is being fueled by AIDS infections that leave the body more susceptible to a host of diseases, including tuberculosis.

But the contagious lung disease may also have been transmitted through poor ventilation in crack houses, where the drug is smoked, officials said.

The CDC noted that crack use has been associated with impaired lung function and coughing, "which could facilitate transmission of TB" by people with active cases.

In the California outbreak, AIDS had been previously diagnosed in seven of the 44 crack-TB patients, and another six tested positive for infection with the AIDS virus. Fifteen of the 44 reported using injectable drugs — a risk factor for AIDS.

Hill holds one-stroke lead at seniors' Open

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — The tractor back home is going to have to wait. Mike Hill won't be mowing grass any time soon.

Hill, who knew only moderate success during his days on the regular PGA Tour, has found both wealth and happiness on the Senior Tour.

Hill has already won twice this year. He's second to Chi Chi Rodriguez on the money list with $447,543. And he took a one-shot lead into today's second round of the U.S. Senior Open.

Hill's 2-under-par 68 at Oakland Hills on Thursday gave him a one-stroke lead over Gary Player, the only other player to break par at the course Ben Hogan dubbed The Monster.

Defending champion Lee Trevino was at even-par 70 and several players, including amateurs Hunter McDonald and Dick Siderowf, were at 71.

Hill's play since turning 50 is remarkable for someone who earned only $573,724 with three wins during 20 years on the regular Tour. In those days, he played second fiddle to his older brother, Dave, and he didn't much like it.

"I can honestly tell you I didn't have much fun when I was younger," Hill said. "I was struggling with my game and I wasn't very successful. Plus, Dave was always beating up on me. I just wanted to be driving a tractor."

Hill opened a public golf course in Brooklyn, Mich., and came out on the Senior Tour looking mainly to make enough money to build another nine holes — only to discover his golf game had improved.

With that, his attitude improved, too.

Hill joined the Senior Tour in 1989. In his first two years, he won five tournaments and $1.3 million.

"When you're successful, it's funny," Hill said. "The better I played, the more I wanted to play. One thing led to another. But when it's not fun, I guarantee you, you'd better take a picture because I'll be gone again."

Player, seeking his second win of the year, has been aiming for this championship. He won nine majors during his days on the regular Tour and his goal is to match that number as a senior. So far, he's at five and counting.

"This is the most difficult golf course we play on the Senior Tour by a mile," Player said. "Hogan, when he shot his 67 (in winning the 1951 U.S. Open), really said it well. This course is a monster."

LA rallies to beat Philly — again

National League

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Maybe the Philadelphia Phillies should do what the Los Angeles fans do at Dodger Stadium: Leave after the seventh inning.

Considering the way they lost three straight games in LA, they might do well to follow the lead of the Dodger fans — who are notorious for leaving games early to beat the traffic.

For the third straight night, the Phillies lost to the Dodgers in the late innings as Los Angeles rallied for five runs in the eighth and a 5-0 victory on Thursday night.

In the two previous games, the Phillies led through seven innings only to lose — 6-5 in 10 innings on Tuesday night and 2-1 on Wednesday night.

"It was a very tough game because neither team was scoring runs," Dodgers righthander Ramon Martinez said after his five-hit, nine-strikeout performance. "But I was able to focus and concentrate in this kind of game because if you make a mistake, it could cost you the game. I felt I just needed one run, so I just kept working very hard."

Elsewhere in the National League, it was San Francisco 8, New York 1; Chicago 5, Cincinnati 4, and San Diego 6, Montreal 5.

Martinez (13-5) tied Atlanta's Tom Glavine for the NL lead in victories with his fifth complete game, his ninth shutout in 74 career starts and his fourth this season. He walked one and pitched two-hit ball over the first seven innings to snap a personal two-game losing streak.

"I've been pitching a lot of good games, but sometimes, we haven't been scoring a lot of runs," Martinez said after pitching the Dodgers' first complete game since June 28 and his first since June 5. "Finally, when we scored those five runs tonight, I said to myself, this time, it's my game." Kal Daniels' third hit of the game drove in a run and ignited a five-run eighth inning for the Dodgers off Bruce Ruffin (2-3), who had matched Martinez through seven shutout innings.

"Going in, I knew it probably would be a low-scoring game," said Ruffin, who had allowed more than one earned run in only one of his previous five starts. "You expect that when you go against a guy like him. He lived up to his end of it and I did for seven innings."

The victory increased the Dodgers' lead over idle Atlanta in the NL West to five games.

Giants 8, Mets 1

Trevor Wilson gave up one run in eight innings and hit his first career homer as San Francisco beat visiting New York for its fifth straight victory and a three-game series sweep.

The loss dropped New York to six games behind idle Pittsburgh in the NL East.

Wally Whitehurst (5-7) gave up four runs on six hits in losing his third straight start since the Mets traded Ron Darling to open up a spot in the rotation. Whitehurst, down 3-0 before getting an out, was struck in the upper right thigh by Kevin Mitchell's line drive and had to leave after 4 1-3 innings.

Wilson (6-9) homered in the second inning and allowed six hits before Bryan Hickerson pitched the ninth to earn his first career victory against the Mets. He was 0-2 with an 8.52 ERA in four previous appearances against New York.

"It's about time," Wilson said. "It was nice winning the game but it was a lot nicer with the home run. I'll remember this game for that hit. It was a great feeling coming around those bases."

Cubs 5, Reds 4

Right fielder Glenn Braggs dropped Andre Dawson's fly ball with two outs in the 13th inning, allowing Mark Grace to score the game-winning run for Chicago.

Cincinnati took a 4-3 lead in the top of the 13th on Billy Hatcher's run-scoring double.

Rick Wilkins opened the bottom of the 13th with a single and Chico Walker singled with one out to send pinch-runner Jose Vizcaino to third. Grace hit a comebacker to pitcher Tim Layana (0-2), who threw to second for a force but the relay from shortstop Luis Quinones was wide as Vizcaino scored the tying run. Ryne Sandberg walked, and Dawson then lifted a high fly to

Indians bombard Athletics

American League

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS — This year, nobody would be very surprised if Dennis Eckersley gives up a dramatic home run in the World Series.

But the way Eckersley is giving up homers right now, it's becoming increasingly doubtful the Oakland A's will make it that far.

Pinch-hitter Jerry Browne hit a two-run homer off Eckersley to cap a four-run eighth inning as Cleveland beat the visiting A's 8-7 on Thursday night. Eckersley (1-2) blew a save for the fifth time in 29 opportunities this season. Three of the blown saves have been against the last-place Indians.

Eckersley entered the game with a 7-4 lead and runners at second and third with two outs in the eighth. Mike Aldrete's bad-hop single scored two runs and Browne followed with his first home run of the season, ending the A's three-game winning streak.

"This is right there, for my whole career. I just feel so responsible," Eckersley said.

What about the 1988 home run by Kirk Gibson, the one that gave Los Angeles a Game 1 World Series win over the A's?

"That's one I've forgotten," Eckersley said. "The pain for me has gone away from that. This was the toughest game for me that I can remember."

Stoudt, Blake, offense impress in scrimmage

AUSTIN (AP) — Controlled scrimmages are drudgery to most players but Cliff Stoudt and Ricky Blake could be gainfully employed in the NFL this fall because of one.

The job-seekers for the Dallas Cowboys shined in a controlled scrimmage against the Houston Oilers Thursday night.

Stoudt boosted his chances to be the backup quarterback. His 40-yard scoring pass to rookie Damon Mays, a ninth-round pick from Missouri, gave the Cowboys a 30-30 tie with the Oilers in the scrimmage.

Stoudt is a 12-year veteran who has been a backup for Terry Bradshaw and Dan Marino in his long career. Dallas got him from Miami last year when the Dolphins gave Stoudt his release.

"Cliff performed well under pressure and I'm very impressed with him," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.

Stoudt hit 11 of 16 passes for 134 yards and had two touchdown passes.

Stoudt said he needed a good game as a confidence builder.

"It gives me motivation and it's a big confidence boost," he said. "I wanted a game with no mistakes. We made some crucial plays and it felt good being in a game."

Stoudt sat on the bench last year and didn't play a down.

"I like this offense," he said. "You can make some big plays."

Houston coach Jack Pardee was pleased.

He said "the guys looked like they did in practice. Warren Moon was great. We got what we were looking for."

Moon said "we executed well. Our offense is far ahead of where we were last year at this point."

Blake, who was the leading rusher in the World League of American Football for the San Antonio Riders, scored on a four-yard run.

AUSTIN — Houston Oilers running back Gary Brown (33) powers past Dallas defenders Ray Horton (20) and Vinson Smith (57) to score a touchdown on the first drive of Thursday's scrimmage between the two teams in Austin.

Steroid test prompts apparent suicide try

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers guard Terry Long was hospitalized and treated for an apparent suicide attempt after he learned he tested positive for steroid use, according to a newspaper report.

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution said in today's editions that Long, 32, was admitted to the emergency room at Allegheny General Hospital after ingesting what a law enforcement source described as rat poison. The Journal-Constitution quoted the source as saying there was "an extremely slim chance" the poisoning was accidental.

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reported today that paramedics were called to Long's home in Franklin Park, a Pittsburgh suburb.

Long faces a suspension from the NFL after tests revealed steroid use, according to teammates and newspaper and broadcast reports. The Steelers and an NFL spokesman both declined comment on Long's test results.

Police looking for Gastineau

PHOENIX (AP) — Police were seeking former New York Jets defensive end Mark Gastineau after tests disclosed that a package he allegedly picked up at Sky Harbor International Airport contained amphetamines, a police spokesman said.

Asked whether a warrant had been issued for Gastineau's arrest, Phoenix police spokesman Kevin Robinson said, "There's a likelihood Gastineau would be charged with possession of dangerous drugs, which is a class four felony, if located." A class four felony is punishable by up to four years in prison.

Gastineau was detained at the airport just before midnight April 9, after he allegedly took possession of more than 200 capsules believed to be amphetamines, Robinson said. He said Gastineau was interviewed and released pending testing of the capsules. The capsules turned out to be a type of amphetamine used to control the appetite, Robinson said.

Graf forced to withdraw

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — Two days after she condemned Monica Seles for a late withdrawal, Steffi Graf was forced to pull out of the Federation Cup.

But while Seles played in an exhibition and then skipped the Federation Cup to rest her aching shins, Graf pulled out a victory for Germany on Wednesday despite pain in her shoulder — and then flew home for treatment.

Meanwhile, the International Tennis Federation has given Seles until Aug. 5 to produce a doctor's note explaining her late withdrawal from the Federation Cup. If she does not turn in such a medical certificate, or if it is rejected by the ITF, Seles could be barred from the 1992 Summer Olympics.

CHICAGO — Chicago White Sox' Dan Pasqua (44) signals to the home plate umpire that he scored in the fifth inning as Toronto catcher Greg Myers looks on Thursday. Umpire Larry Barnett ruled Pasqua safe on the play, scoring on a fly ball to left field.

home runs this season in 44 2-3 innings, compared to two in 73 1-3 innings last year.

"Knowing that I was struggling, I thought Eckersley would come right at me with the fastball," Browne said. "I hit that one pretty good. It kind of surprised me. I wasn't going up there looking for a home run."

Mike York (1-2) got the win for getting two outs in the top of the eighth. Steve Olin pitched the ninth for his fourth save.

The loss dropped Oakland five games behind first-place Minnesota in the American League West.

Elsewhere in the AL it was Seattle 6, New York 3; Chicago 7, Toronto 1; Baltimore 8, California 4; Minnesota 9, Detroit 3; and Kansas City 2, Milwaukee 0.

Oakland had taken the lead with three runs in the eighth, leading the bases against Rudy Seanez on singles by Terry Steinbach and Willie Wilson sandwiched around a walk to Mark McGwire. Seanez, whose wild pitch had let the tying run score in the seventh, then walked Mike Gallego on a 3-2 pitch for a 5-4 Oakland lead. It was the seventh walk by Cleveland pitchers.

Ernest Riles followed with a grounder through the legs of first baseman Carlos Martinez, scoring two runs.

Jose Canseco hit a three-run homer in the first inning for the A's. It was his 25th home run of the season and 5th in his last 11 games at Cleveland Stadium.

White Sox 7, Blue Jays 1
Ron Karkovics drove in three runs with a double and knuckleballer Charlie Hough ended a personal three-game losing streak with his 101st career complete game as Chicago defeated visiting Toronto.

Karkovics' fourth-inning opposite field double against Todd Stottlemyre (10-4), was barely fair, striking the foul line and erasing a 1-0 Blue Jays' lead.

Dan Pasqua had a two-run triple in a four-run fifth, extending his hitting streak to 10 games.

Though (6-6), allowed eight hits, walked one and struck out four for his 192nd career victory.

Mariners 6, Yankees 3
Seattle's Jay Buhner hit a 492-foot homer over the left-field bullpen at Yankee Stadium and Harold Reynolds had a go-ahead two-run single in the fifth inning.

Bill Krueger (8-3) allowed four hits and three unearned runs in six innings for his third consecutive victory.

Seattle won for the 10th time in 14 games since the All-Star break and took the season series against New York 9-3.

Wade Taylor (5-5) lost for the third time in four starts, giving up six runs and eight hits in 4 1-3 innings.

Orioles 8, Angels 4
Baltimore won its first series in July while keeping California's Kirk Caskill (7-13) winless for the month. The Angels have lost 13 of their last 17 games.

Mike Devereaux, Randy Milligan and Cal Ripken each drove in two runs for the Orioles, who won two of three from the visiting Angels.

Baltimore was 0-3-3 in its previous series this month.

Winner Todd Frohworth (3-2) pitched three scoreless innings in relief of starter Roy Smith.

Twins 9, Tigers 3
Dan Gladden drove in four runs and Scott Erickson gained his major league-leading 14th win as Minnesota beat Detroit at Tiger Stadium.

Erickson (14-3) gave up three runs, two earned, on six hits in 5 2-3 innings. Scott Aldred (0-1) allowed six runs on six hits in 3 2-3 innings for Detroit.

Minnesota broke a 3-3 tie with three fourth-inning runs.

Royals 2, Brewers 0
Luis Aquino pitched four-hit ball over eight innings and Todd Benzing drove in his ninth run in the last three games, leading Kansas City over visiting Milwaukee for its season-best fifth straight victory.

Aquino (4-2), a part-time starter, struck out five and walked none before Jeff Montgomery finished for his 18th save. Jim Hunter (0-4) remained winless as the Brewers fell to 1-6 on a 10-game road trip.

golf, hit every green on the front nine, turned at 34 and got to 2-under with a birdie on No. 12.

"I got a little greedy on the back," Trevino said. "I started trying to drive a little longer and hit it a little closer to the pin."

He bogeyed the 13th and 14th. McDonald, a transplanted Scot, had an advantage — he's a member at Oakland Hills. McDonald has won the club championship 17 times and been runner-up five other times.

"It's a little help to know the course," McDonald said. "There's almost nowhere I've never been. I know where not to put the ball. But I can't always do that."

McDonald birdied the first three holes, but bogeyed four of the last five.

"I really felt I should have been able to post a 68 or 69," he said. "I'll try to get it back tomorrow."

right that Braggs dropped. Heathcliff Slocumb (2-1) pitched one inning for the victory.

"I thought I could catch it one-handed," said Braggs, "but I over-ran it. It hit my glove and fell out. I saw it all the way."

Dawson, who knows right field at Wrigley Field as well as anyone, said he thought Braggs might have lost it in the sun.

"It's a tough field to play at this time of the day in the wind and the sun," Dawson said.

Padres 6, Expos 5
Bip Roberts' first home run of the season, a two-run shot with two outs in the bottom of the ninth, lifted San Diego over visiting Montreal.

The two-run homer off reliever Barry Jones ruined Ron Darling's bid for his 100th career victory and first for the Expos since being acquired on July 15 from the New York Mets for Tim Lincecum.

Roberts hit a 3-2 pitch from Jones (3-7) over the left-field fence after fouling off five pitches with two strikes. Roberts entered the game with no homers in 294 at-bats this season.

The victory went to Mike Maddux (4-1), who pitched 4 2-3 scoreless innings in relief of starter Greg Harris.

"I was zoned out," said Roberts, who raised his average to .271 with a 3-for-5 game.

Schramm, Campbell head Hall inductees

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Tex Schramm isn't sure what his legacy will be, but he knows what his proudest achievement is.

"Twenty winning seasons, 18 playoffs and doing it with an organization that was looked upon as having style and class," he said. "The Cowboys personified what winning and what the National Football League is all about."

Schramm, a contributor to the NFL for 43 years, heads a five-man class that will be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame Saturday. Joining him will be guard John Hannah, running back Earl Campbell, offensive and defensive lineman Stan Jones and placekicker Jan Stenerud.

Schramm was one of the first people hired by owner Clint Murchison Jr. when Dallas was awarded an NFL franchise in 1960. After a slow start — 0-10-1 the first year — the Cowboys were molded into a team that won two Super Bowls and had 20 consecutive winning seasons.

Schramm, 71, never played or coached in the NFL. That's why his inclusion in pro football's hall of fame means so much to him.

"This is something that's very, very special," he said. "When you're working through the league, as I did for 40 years, you see people who in your mind are great, who you put on a pedestal. They're your idols, your heroes. Then all of a sudden, you come to the realization you'll be joining them and that there are people in this league who are going to be looking at you like I looked at those people."

Schramm was president and chief executive officer of the World League of American Football from the time he left the Cowboys in 1988 through 1990. Despite his innovations and contributions, he says he wishes he could do more.

"My only regret is I don't have more time to do all of the things I see coming in the future," he says.

Schramm sees even more

Earl Campbell, left photo, and Tex Schramm will be among a group of people inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio Saturday. Campbell is a former All-Pro running back for the Houston Oilers, while Schramm helped build the Dallas Cowboys into a NFL power in the 1960s and '70s.

growth, expansion and interest in the NFL.

"Growth of American football to Europe and around the world is going to be very exciting," he says.

Schramm will be presented by the man he hired as the Cowboys' first coach, Tom Landry. Two other players who Schramm brought to Dallas and played pivotal roles in the team's success — Bob Lilly and Roger Staubach — already are Hall of Famers.

Hannah spent all 13 seasons of his NFL career with the New England Patriots. The former University of Alabama lineman was named All-Pro for 10 straight years, 1976-85. He's the first Patriot to be inducted.

Campbell came out of the University of Texas to lead the league in rushing with 1,450 yards, winning Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player honors. In eight years with the Houston Oilers and New Orleans Saints, Campbell ran for 9,407 yards and 74 touchdowns.

Jones, the candidate of the seniors committee, spent 12 seasons with the Chicago Bears and one with the Washington Redskins from 1954-66. He played in seven straight Pro Bowls as an offensive lineman. Near the end of his career, he was asked to switch to defense and he helped lead the Bears to an NFL championship in 1963.

Stenerud, the second-leading scorer in NFL history, is the first pure placekicker to be inducted. He scored 100 or more points seven times during his 19-year career with the Kansas City Chiefs, Green Bay Packers and Minnesota Vikings and finished with 1,699 points, trailing only George Blanda.

Induction will take place on the front steps of the Pro Football Hall of Fame. After the ceremony, the Denver Broncos meet the Detroit Lions in the annual Hall of Fame exhibition game.

Hallet leads Hartford Open

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — Jim Hallet shot a 6-under-par 64 to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the PGA Tour's Greater Hartford Open.

Corey Pavin, Mark Calcavecchia, Scott Hoch and Dillard Pruitt, who won the Chattanooga Classic last week, were tied for second. British Open champion Ian Baker-Finch opened with an even-par 70.

A light rain fell throughout most of the day and there was no wind, creating ideal scoring conditions on the renovated 6,820-yard Tournament Players Club at River Highlands.

Hi, I'm Willard Weaver and I work for TU Electric. You may not know but often there are power lines buried underground, as well as overhead... sometimes even in your own yard! I'm telling you this because every year a number of serious injuries or deaths are caused by people accidentally digging into buried power lines.

Electrical safety is a priority.

These types of accidents can easily be avoided. If people would just think before they dig. Know the location of underground electric lines before you dig. If you're not sure, call us at TU Electric.

Strawberry meets Bart

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Darryl Strawberry and Jose Canseco, meet Homer and Bart Simpson. The voices of Stawberry, Canseco and several other baseball stars will be heard in an October episode of "The Simpsons," Fox Television said Thursday.

The episode, titled "Homer at the Bat," was recorded earlier this month. In it, several major league stars are recruited for Homer's company softball team after his boss bets $1 million on a game.

Despite the superstars' efforts, the score is tied in the bottom of the ninth when Homer comes to the plate with the bases loaded.

Jillian to be mother

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ann Jillian, whose public battle with breast cancer included discussing her mastectomy and making a TV movie about it, is pregnant with her first child.

The due date for the 41-year-old actress and singer is in February, said her publicist, Sandy Pollack. Jillian and her manager-husband, Andy Murcia, have been married for 15 years. They live in a Los Angeles suburb.

Close says role changed her style

NEW YORK (AP) — Glenn Close says her film role as the maniacal other woman in "Fatal Attraction" was more than a career breakthrough — it improved her wardrobe.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE:

Build your business or career brick by brick. Focusing on a partnership will make your associates feel more secure. Cement an important personal or professional tie in late summer. Marriage is possible in December. Know your own heart. Enrolling in high-tech classes in early 1992 will boost your earning power.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE:

baseball legend Leo Durocher, singer Bobbie Gentry, producer Norman Lear, figure skater Peggy Fleming.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Unexpected developments test your adaptability. A stubborn attitude could jeopardize certain ties. Meetings and discussions held now will speed decision-making in the future. Greater domestic harmony is possible.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Curb a tendency to turn snappy when things go awry. A positive attitude can turn almost any situation around! Do not let minor hassles make you fly off the handle. Love conquers all.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Loved ones may have their heads in the clouds where money matters are concerned. It may fall on your capable shoulders to bring them gently down to earth. Emphasize practical concerns.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Spend more time on at-home activities and domestic bliss will follow. You could be aroused by a controversy that seems to challenge your beliefs. Positive thought and direct action are advised.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A serious talk takes place today regarding jointly held funds or a longtime romance. You may be feeling more critical than usual. Avoid direct confrontations. A tactful suggestion will accomplish more than negative comments.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Partnerships and close ties are emphasized this weekend. Greater rapport is possible. Consult mate before accepting or regretting an offbeat invitation. Singles find romance when they least expect it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You will want to look your best today. This is an excellent weekend to entertain friends or go out. An overnight trip could figure in your plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You and mate draw closer together when you meet and surmount a challenge. Improved communication leads to deeper understanding. A change in lifestyle and a budget revision will help, too.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): People who think they know everything could make you irritable. Show a controlled reaction. Losing your temper will accomplish nothing. A tender, loving response is necessary with relatives.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Career ambitions could conflict with home life. A loved one may resent your preoccupation with your work. A candid chat is in order. Be more considerate when dealing with less experienced people.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New people, projects or ideas make this an especially enjoyable day. You may feel like inviting special friends over for a cozy evening at home. Keep the menu simple but delicious.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may be in an unpredictable mood today, eager to seek excitement through new people and places. Protect your hard-earned savings. Steer clear of get-rich-quick schemes proposed by a casual friend.
