Star Wars launch postponed again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The launch of an Aries rocket carrying Star Wars experiments was postponed a second time early today because of a technical problem, Air Force officials said.

The launch attempt, set for 5:53 a.m. EDT, was scrubbed when the rocket's telemetry unit malfunctioned, said Air Force Capt. Ken Warren. The unit monitors the rocket's performance during flight Technicians from rocket maker Orbital Sciences Corp. planned to remove the unit and would try to repair it in time for another launch attempt Tuesday, Warren said.

The rocket's intended Aug. 23 launch was called off because its twin had to be destroyed three days earlier when it veered off course. That problem was traced to a computer programmer's error.

The Aries rocket is to carry secret experiments for the Pentagon's Strategic Defense Initiative organization.

The 29-foot, single-stage Aries is supposed to reach an altitude of about 300 miles before plunging into the Atlantic after a nine-minute. 90-mile flight.

Major visits China after Soviet stop

BEIJING (AP) - Prime Minister John Major of Britain today became the first Western leader in more than two years to visit China, now the world's last major Communist nation

He was welcomed by Premier Li Peng at a ceremony outside the Great Hall of the People. After a 19-gun salute, the two leaders reviewed an honor guard.

They then held brief talks during which Li and Major commented on the need for dialogue and exchanges.

"We live today in a changing world in which events are moving very rapidly, very speedily and sometimes in the most unexpected way," said Major. "I think that argues very strongly for the closest possible consultation.'

Li gave a banquet immediately after the talks.

Major arrived from the Soviet Union, where the Communist Party has collapsed in the wake of a failed coup against President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Major came to China to sign an agreement on a new airport for Hong Kong.

International human rights groups have criticized the trip, saying it improves the image of China's authoritarian government

In Moscow, Major offered the Soviets modest economic aid and pressed for concrete market-oriented reforms. Such reforms have stalled in China since 1989, when the Chinese army crushed pro-democracy

Labor Day different these days

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

When the first Labor Day parade occurred Sept. 5, 1882, in New York City, there was a deep chasm between workers and the wealthy industrial barons of the time.

It is different today for many Americans, where living standards are among the best in the world.

American workers in 1882 were concerned with child labor, sanitation and safety in factories and the biggest issue of the day — an eight-hour work day, says author William Cahn in "Pictorial History of

But those concerns will not be in the forefront for many Americans today as they hold their family barbecues or watch the San Francisco '49ers battle the New York Giants on television. Rising living standards and more ownership and management of companies and capital by workers have contributed to the gradual disappearance of the class gap between owners and workers, says Pete Silas, chairman of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

"More than once, and I speak from personal experience, labors' financial clout has proved decisive in turning back hostile takeover attempts which would have put worker and manager alike on the street," said Silas, who is chief executive officer of Phillips Petroleum.

"Marx and Lenin would be dumbfounded by an economy like ours where workers, through their pension plans, own a majority of the stock in American companies, and thus the means of production."

Citizens group backs passage of bond issue

By MARSHA STURDIVANT Staff Writer

The Citizens Committee For Kids has formed and registered with the Big Spring Independent School District to support passage of a $12 million bond issue in a special election Sept. 28.

Chairperson for the group, Lana Schooler, said, "We hope to build a new junior high school and a new elementary school to replace some of our old, worn-out schools.

Absentee voting for the bond issue begins Friday. Building a new junior high school to replace Runnels and a new elementary to replace College Heights, as well as repairing the roofs on several other school buildings requires the $12 million in construction and repair costs, according to administration officials.

Sherri Smoot, treasurer for the committee and secretary at Runnels Junior High School, said, "I'm 100 percent in favor of the bond issue. And I'm in favor of raising taxes to improve Big Spring.'

Smoot said placing the fifth- and sixth-grades together "is a wonderful idea. It will be an elementary school and that would be good for my child.

This is for the education of our kids. (New schools) will provide a better learning environment than what we have now. It's important that we have things fixed in our schools," she said.

Although the committee has not had a meeting, Schooler and Smoot are planning one this week, Smoot said.. Money for funding flyers and other campaign expenses is already available, she said.

Schooler said the trustees for the district will speak before a Parents and Teachers Association meeting to explain the bond issue and how the money will be used. The date of that meeting has not been set.

"The cost difference between building a new (junior high) school and renovating (is close.) My feeling is if it costs as much to renovate as to build then we should build a new one "And I've heard that (Runnels) is in bad shape, a fire bazard, and I cannot recommend having kids in it. I don't want my children there,

Life endangered by Severe intoxication

DENTON (AP) - A University of North Texas student has been hospitalized for alcohol intoxication after a suspected fraternity hazing incident, police report.

Michael Brown, 20, was listed in good condition early Monday at Denton Community Hospital, Denton Police Department officials reported.

Brown, a freshman pledge at the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, began drinking Sunday at 2 p.m. and continued until 11 p.m., said Sgt. Tom Woods.

Brown's percent blood alcohol content was .45 when he arrived at the hospital. Medical staff pumped the man's stomach, but his blood level continued to rise, Woods said

"He was close to death," said Woods.

University officials are investigating the incident.

"It's a common thing this time of a year," Woods said. "There's no other reason for someone to ingest that amount of alcohol other than if it's a

Teen suspects videotape drive-by shooting

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Prosecutors say they don't know whether a tape recording of a drive-by shooting can be used against two teen-age suspects.

But they say one thing is for sure there seems to be a growing disregard among teen-agers toward life and property

Authorities said a car of teenagers opened fire on a 38-year-old driver July 28 as he exited Interstate 35. A slug from a .22-caliber handgun lodged in the driver's side door, narrowly missing the man's head. He was shaken, but not injured.

Soon after the shooting, police found the suspects' car at a drive-

There are no Hispanic city council members, county commissioners, justices of the peace, constables or community college trustees. Only one state district judge on the 37-member Dallas County bench is Hispanic, and two of nine Dallas school board members.

That's in spite of rapidly shifting demographics which saw Hispanics grow from 12 percent to 21 percent of the Dallas population between 1980 and 1990.

Released sex offenders now required to register

DALLAS (AP) — A new law goes into effect this week requiring convicted sex offenders to register with local police departments upon their release from prison.

Law enforcement officials say the new law will help curb sexual offenses, but civil rights advocates say it violates personal privacy.

The new law, sponsored by state Sen. Judith Zafferini, D-Laredo, requires convicted sex offenders, including those on probation to register with police departments in each city or town where they intend to reside for more than seven days

Sexual offenses include indecency with a child, incest, indecent exposure, sexual assault and aggravated sexual assault. The sexual assault category includes rape.

Zafferini says the law is long overdue and protects victims of sexual offenses rather than the offender

Chinese military placed on alert

HONG KONG (AP) - China placed its military on alert following the collapse of the Soviet Communist Party, reports said Sunday quoting a high-ranking Chinese military officer.

Lt. Gen. Fu Kuiging said security was particularly high among units stationed along China's border with the Soviet Union and at airports. Air, naval and ground forces of the People's Liberation Army were all involved, he said.

His remarks were reported in two Hong Kong papers, the English-language South China Morning Post and the independent, Chinese-language Ming Pao. Both papers identified Fu as the political commissar of the world.

TOKYO(AP) — The sun that helps turn your home into an oven in summer also may power the air conditioning to cool it down, Sanyo Electric Co. Ltd. says.

The Japanese company, a leader in solar cell technology, says it has developed solarpowered air conditioners that can cut electricity demands in hot weather and reduce dependence on fossil fuels.

The air conditioner uses a 54-square-foot solar panel that generates up to 500 watts of electricity, Sanyo says. The panel can be mounted on a roof or balcony. The company is shipping 20 samples this month to electric power companies for evaluation, Sanyo said. The samples cost about $10,900 each, but the price should decline after massproduction begins sometime next year, it said. The company did not say when the air conditioners would go on sale to the public or what the retail cost would be.

The air conditioner can use regular house current to supplement the electricity generated by the solar panels on overcast days, at night or when maximum cooling power is desired, such as when the machine is first turned on in a hot room, the company

Border guards on trial for shooting

BERLIN (AP) — The trial of four former East German border guards in the fatal shooting of a would-be escapee opened today in Berlin, the first such case to come to court since the Berlin Wall came down in late 1989.

The four are accused in the Feb. 5, 1989, shooting of Chris Gueffroy, the last person known to have died trying to flee over the The 20-year-old waiter was shot

Heavy freeze cancels Arctic cruise

The heaviest Arctic freeze in a decade has put the vacation goal of more than 100 people who tried to sail through the Northwest Passage on ice until at least next

The 360-foot luxury cruise ship Frontier Spirit, which set sail from Dutch Harbor in Alaska's Aleutian Islands on Aug. 18, turned around Sunday and headed back west after its captain determined the ice was too thick to continue.

"At this stage, we have to give up the transit of the historic Northwest Passage," Capt. Heinz Aye of Germany said by phone. "The ice took the decision against us." Ave said the vessel was expected to reach Point Barrow, 250 miles to the west, in two to three days. From there it will travel on to Vancouver, British Columbia. Passenger Jennifer Merin of New York said by phone that the captain warned the 193 passengers and crew that the ship might have difficulty with ice packs as it heads She said the captain ordered an ice breaker to continue further passengers over the weekend to 'shower with a friend and drink your whiskey with ice only" to save fuel and water. The ship's desalination equipment uses fuel.

The passengers paid as much as $26,000 each for the trip and won't receive refunds. The Arctic water route from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific Ocean was first traversed from 1903 to 1906.

"The messages from the Canadian Coast Guard and ice breakers were rather persuasive that we should not continue and apparently there's little we can do about it.'

said John Howard, of Tulsa, Okla. The ship's journey had been stalled several times by what authorities said was the worst early season ice buildup in 10 years, but Aye had hoped to continue slowly toward Saint John's, Newfoundland. The ship originally was due to arrive there on Sept. 16. The Frontier Spirit is "icestrengthened "which means it can move safely through ice up to three feet thick. But Aye said it needed east and that one was not available. Passengers found various ways to pass the time while the ship was stalled. Several took inflatable rafts to Point Barrow last week to watch Eskimo dances and visit with residents of the nation's northern-

Later, when the ship anchored off Flaxman Island, some hearty travelers set up tables and chairs on ice floes and served wine.

Aye said some passengers were already signing up for another Northwest Passage crossing next year, this one from east to west. The first passenger ship to complete the trip was the Lindblad Explorer, in 1984. An ice breaker led Bill Gannett, of Hopedale, Mass. one of six passengers on the Frontier Spirit who were on another ship that tried and failed to traverse the passage five years ago, said he would be back. 'We'll try it a third time," he said. "The third try never fails.

Opinions from across the U.S.

Tom Harkin. Paul Tsongas. Bill Clinton. Tweedledum. Tweedledee. Unless other candidates enter the field, one of those men will be the Democratic opponent for George Bush in 1992. If so, the "D" by the candidate's name on the ballot won't just stand for Democrat. It will stand for

Moyers: A man with vision

"Doomed."

The party would do better to look outside the politics-ismy-life crowd and nominate a small-d democrat whose vision for America is based on an understanding deeper than a pollster's charts. The Democrats should draft Bill Moyers. The present leaders of the Democratic Party cannot blame Republican presidents for the nation's domestic ills, for the Democrats are accomplices in the reign of inept governance that has produced those ills. They are, for the most part, equally in debt to fat-cat contributors, equally hobbled by special-interest blocs, equally drawn to the paths of least resistance.

What sad shape such politics has left America in. Our national debt is staggering. Our financial system is teetering. States and cities are fiscally strapped - crushed by the recession, the decline in federal assistance and the skyrocketing costs of federally mandated programs. Our infrastructure is crumbling. Our health care system is shockingly expensive and grossly inequitable. Education is in crisis. The gap between rich and poor is widening. Racism is resurgent. The level of national morality as evidenced in business, politics and the professions

The Democrats would do well to remember Ronald Reagan. He was not twice elected president because of his mastery of the minutiae of governance. He was elected because he was able to inspire the voters with his vision of America. To beat George Bush, the Democrats must offer their own version of Ronald Reagan — a candidate who can communicate a vision of America that captures the imagination of the voters, and can com-Bush to produce a GOP plan for meeting the nation's domestic needs. Perhaps one of the virtually unknown Democrats can do that, but it's a long shot.

Since his service as a top aide to President Lyndon Moyers has become an informed, compassionate critic of the moral and political doldrums in America. The Democrats need his vision in 1992.

Hysteria distorts the facts

Hysteria about acquired immune deficiency syndrome distorts the facts and distracts us from the goal of changing the behavior that spreads the disease.

We need facts about AIDS. We don't need name-calling. We don't need people pandering to public fear.

That fear has been heightened by the angry letter written by Kimberly Bergalis, who apparently contracted AIDS from the late David Acer, a dentist who practiced in Her rage is understandable, but calling the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services officials "bastards" in her letter leaves the impression that those officials did not do their job to stop Dr. Acer from practicing. And that is not true. The point is that state of ficials could not break a Florida law that forbids health officials to divulge that another person is infected with the AIDS virus.

There would be no argument for mandatory testing without the Acer case. Certainly, health care workers performing invasive procedures should have themselves tested and, if infected, stop those procedures

But the fear of contracting AIDS from a health worker is far out of line with the statistical probability. To forget what medical science knows and act on what is not known is to give in to hysteria

Taking the fun out of cause

Once upon a time, being an environmentalist was simple. All you had to do was wear a few buttons on your tiedved shirt that read "Save the Earth" and "No nukes," and make herbal tea on your wood-burning stove.

It used to be that if you hiked and communed with nature, you were an environmentalist. Today, that just makes you a yuppie. Instead, you must file suit against a developer, quote from environmental impact reports and cite legal precedent to win over a federal judge.

Perhaps environmentalists' change from passive treehuggers to political combatants has been necessary to stave off a worldwide ecological onslaught. In some respects, it has been quite a success. Environmentalism is now so socially popular it's even used to market laundry detergent.

But it's no fun anymore. Oh, for a Whole Earth Catalog and a pair of Earth Shoes.

Address was temperate commentary

WASHINGTON - First off, it was not a "tirade." That is how the National Law Journal described Vice President Quayle's recent speech the American Bar Association. On the contrary. Quayle's address was a temperate commentary on some longfestering wrongs in our judicial system. Good job, Mr. Quayle! Manifestly most of the lawyers who were present in Atlanta did not think it a good job at all Lawyers are the most thinskinned of all professionals except for newspapermen, who are the most thin-skinned of all. The lawyers sat impassively as the vice president asked, "Does America really need 70 percent of the world's lawyers?" Quayle wondered if it is healthy for our economy to have 18 million new lawsuits every year. He commented upon the "staggering expense and delay" that characterize the system.

To these sensible reproaches, the ABA's president John J. Curtin made a stupid reply. Accompanied by quavering violins, he asked his own rhetorical question. If the supply of lawyers should be drastically reduced, "Who will protect the poor, the injured, the victims of racial discrimination and the victims of violence?' There was scarcely a dry eye in Curtin's dumb response merits no response. Nearly 800,000 persons now are accredited as "lawyers" in the United States. The breed is not about to become extinct. Some law firms cheerfully accept their pro bono obligations. Others are not such happy The spat regrettably obscured Quayle's main purpose. He was seeking the bar's support for certain vitally needed reforms in the system. He addressed himself specifically to the abuses of "discovery," to the merits of the "English rule," and to the perils of unbridled punitive damages.

The process of unlimited "discovery" is a process by which the big guy can drive the little guy into bankruptcy before a word of evidence has been taken in court. Pre-trial interrogatories and depositions, as every litigant knows, can send legal expenses skyrocketing. In one study 77 percent of the responding lawyers confessed to abusing the system. Under reasonable limitations.

the English rule should be adopted in American jurisprudence. It is a model of simplicity: The loser must pay the winner's costs. No procedure could be better drafted to cut down on the frivolous suits that make a travesty of litigation in America. Federal judges now have authority to impose sanctions upon lawyers who abuse the law — an authority that judges themselves sometimes abuse but the principle is sound.

Assume that A sues B on some trivial matter, and thereby puts B to hundreds or thousands of dollars in legal costs. The case at last goes to trial and B wins hands down. Of course A ought to pay and pay through the nose

Quayle was relaying recommendations of a study group headed by Solicitor General Kenneth Starr. On the matter of punitive damages the group's modest recommendation deserves careful thought. State legislatures should require that such damages be subject to three steps:

(1) A trial jury would first decide, on the basis of clear and convincing evidence, whether any punitive damages should be awarded at all.

(2) If the jury says, yes, punitive damages are in order, the trial judge alone would determine the amount.

(3) The amount of punitive damages could not exceed the full amount of compensatory damages

Points 1 and 2 make good sense. I am not so sure about the proposed limit under Point 3. There may be cases of such willful and egregious wrong that truly harsh punitive damages may be justified. In the case most recenty decided by the Supreme Court, Pacific Mutual v. Haslip, an Alabama jury awarded the plaintiff $200,000 in actual and compensatory damages, and then added $840,000 in punitive damages against the insurance company for the misconduct of a crooked

The Supreme Court in March upheld the award. Justice Harry Blackmun observed that punitive damages, intended to punish a malefactor and to deter a repeated offense, have been part of American common law for 200 years. The high court. demonstrating its capacity for restraint, would not upset tradition.

nor, in lonesome dissent, warned that punitive damages, imposed indiscriminately, "have a devastating potential for harm." She pleaded for meaningful standards that would prevent juries from acting maliciously or capriciously

This is all the vice president was urging. If the organized bar does not understand the need for these reforms, something is sadly wrong with the organized bar. Copyright 1991, Universal Press

Labor Day salute to the keepers of the springs

By BETTY JOHANSEN Copy Editor

Recently my pastor Gary Smith went home to Tennessee for a visit. While he was there, he thought about the spring near his home where his family used to put their milk to keep it cool. There was always a dipper at the spring and, when they plunged it deep into the pool, they would come up with a cold, delicious drink of water

BE HURT. "

This summer he walked to the spring and found it still flowing, but the pool was dirty and trashy. It wasn't at all appetizing like the sweet waters he remembered.

As soon as I heard him tell that experience, I remembered a sermon titled "Keepers of the Springs" preached by the late Peter Marshall, former chaplain of the Senate. Speaking in an analogy, Marshall said a town once grew up at the foot of a mountain range. The town's water was supplied by mountain springs, which were patrolled by the Keeper of the Springs, a man whose job was to patrol the springs and keep them clear of silt, leaves, mud and mold "so that the water which bubbled up through the sand ran down clean and cold and pure. It leaped sparkling over rocks and dropped joyously in crystal cascades

"Millwheels were whirled by its rush. Gardens were refreshed by its waters. Fountains threw it like diamonds into the air . . . and children laughed as they played on its banks in the sunshine

But one day the city council was making budget cuts, so they fired the keeper of the springs and built a reservoir instead. The reservoir's water grew stagnant with green scum on the surface, and slime soon clogged up the machinery of the mills. Then a disease organism polluted the water and an epidemic raged in the town

HE STOPPED GROWING A COUPLE OF YEARS AGO. WE KEEP

LOWERING THE MEASUREMENT SO HIS FEELINGS WON'T

At that point, the city fathers decided to rehire the keeper of the springs, and life returned to its former happy state.

It's a simplistic story with a poignant point. Mothers, said Marshall, are the keepers of the springs for society. Even at that time, in the 1940s, women were already talking about throwing off the shackles of femininity and becoming more like men, demanding, "the right to have an alcoholic breath, the right to smoke, to work like a man, to act like a man.

Marshall warned that if no one was willing to tend those young springs of life in the nation's children, we would be doomed. "The breakdown or home life and influence will mark the breakdown of the nation," he said.

Today we stand in the midst of a disintegrating nation, wringing our hands and searching for answers as if the answers were hidden. Legislators want to raise taxes to build more schools and day care, so younger children in larger groups can be herded together like calves to be groomed for market. I'm not denying that schools and day care are doing the best they can. The problem is the nature of those establishments, which must match one adult with many

Thus, the child is just one of the crowd, rarely singled out for individual attention unless the parents make the time and find the energy to do it after work. And I think everyone needs to feel special to someone important to them. Erma Bombeck expressed it beautifully in one of her writings, which had three sons attending their mother's funeral. Each son had a letter in his pocket that began something like this: Don't tell anyone else I said this, but I always loved you best. Each letter explained why that son was so special to the mother and ended by repeating: I always loved you best

I think growing children are hungry to hear those words from their parents, "I love you best." And that desire fuels the everpresent problem of sibling rivalry But these days, many children are so devalued and neglected, they are fortunate if they feel loved at Reader's Digest once published an excerpt by Linda Burton from the book "What's a Smart Woman Like You Doing at Home?" Burton said she had never thought of giving up her career to stay home with her children, so shortly after her first son was born, she turned her attention to child care.

She spent two years searching and researching her options and gave birth to s second son. Finally, she settled on home-based day care, and left her children with a highly recommended sitter who claimed to care for only five children. One day Burton found her day-care provider asleep on the sofa while 11 children milled around a blaring TV

That experience highlighted another of Burton's worries, namely that "my boys' bright inquisitiveness might be dulled by a caretaker who . . . did not respond adequately to them.

"I came to see that the raising of children does not represent simple custodial upkeep. Rather, my children were learning lessons, making choices and being guided by the repetition of small human interchanges. Here, I began to worry, indelible impressions might be implanted about their place in the world, their relation to other people, and their own value.

And then another revelation hit this mother who had planned for plenty of quality time in the evenings and on weekends. "Also, I'm embarrassed to say," she wrote. "when I left work harassed and tired, I did not want to hear about additional problems from my

And so, Burton finally made her decision. "I had wanted someone who was loving and tender, with a sense of humor and an alert, lively manner — somebody who would encourage my children's creativity, take them on interesting outings, answer all their little questions and rock them to sleep. Slowly, painfully, I came to a stunning realization: . . . I had desperately been trying to hire

I think Labor Day is a good time to honor you parents, faced with an 18-year, no-holiday job, who have made the same analysis Linda Burton did and have realized that only you can provide your children with the spiritual and emotional nurture they need to grow into whole, mature adults.

It's probably the most exhausting job in the world, but it's also fulfilling and desperately important. As W.S. Ross said: ... the hand that rocks the cradle Is the hand that rules the world.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine who lives in Phoenix lost her wallet while she was shopping one Saturday. The next day she got a telephone call from a man who told her he had found her wallet in a garbage can in a small town 20 miles from Phoenix. He said there was no money in the wallet, but her checkbook and credit cards were

My friend offered to drive down to get it (she's 75 years old), but the man insisted that she "allow him the pleasure" of returning it to her Monday morning on his way to work. She was very grateful.

Naturally, she didn't report her credit cards lost or stolen. You can guess the end of the story - the wallet was never returned, and she was out over $4,000 between the credit charges and checks that were cashed. Abby, please warn your readers so they can protect themselves against scams like this.

Dome house offers many alternatives

ZABCIKVILLE, Texas (AP) — Welcome to "the biggest igloo in

At least that's what Paul Huber calls his father's 5,500-square-foot dome house.

But no ice house ever sat between grain fields off of Texas Highway 53, east of Temple between Seaton and Zabcikville. Nearer to the dome, similarities between this house and an ice-block dwelling disappear. The home's exterior is slightly rough concrète, painted a soft white. Even the garage and covered driveway have domed shapes, with accents and archways of natural stone. "You can't tell a lot (about the house) from the outside," Huber, who built the structure with a crew of local and other craftsmen, said. "You have to experience it.

"It's like tasting a new kind of fruit," he said. "You can explain it to somebody, but until you taste it for yourself, you can't really tell (what it's like).

Indeed, the futuristic exterior of the home doesn't prepare one for the homey interior. Even though it's still apparent that the home is circular in its floor plan, the use of earth tones in the carpet and stone accents and an abundance of green plants soften the stark appearance of the painted concrete.

An entryway made of sliced rock formations from a local cave continues the circular motif, as does a circular staircase and decorative archways made of fieldstone. On the second-floor landing, a semicircular "bridge" affords a view of the downstairs living area.

The Rev. and Mrs. Walter Huber, occupants of the house for seven years, have furnished their living space with a combination of antiques and newer furniture, including a "Texas-sized couch" specially built to fit along the curved outside wall.

But architectural oddities aside, the Hubers' dwelling is obviously a home, and its unusual shape is merely a conversational

When the dome was being constructed in 1982, area residents weren't sure exactly what it was.

The first step in construction was the inflation of a vinyl "balloon" to provide a form for the concrete dome. To allow nighttime work, Paul Huber installed lights inside the balloon which reflected an eerie luminescence through the translucent bubble.

One night as he arrived to work on the home, he said, he noticed a Texas Highway Patrol cruiser stopped on the road. It turned out that a passing motorist, not knowing what the glowing bubble in the in the field represented, had reported sighting an Unidentified Flying Object.

The public's interest in the dome continued as Huber sprayed a four-inch layer of polyurethane foam onto the interior of the bubble, followed by layers of concrete blown onto the walls from a gunite gun.

In order to provide the strongest structure possible, Huber said, the concrete was mixed to twice its usual strength and small steel rods were blended into the liquid.

Once the shell was complete, in approximately six weeks, Huber peeled away the vinyl bubble and sprayed a thin layer of concrete on the exterior to protect the foam and provide a paintable

He then found that he had made a mistake.

All of the home's electrical and plumbing work had been either placed in the concrete slab or carefully planned so that the proper holes and channels would be left in the dome

"But I forgot to leave a hole for the dryer vent," Huber laughed. It took him the better part of a week, using a jackhammer drill, to make the proper channel through the concrete and foam shell.

Even the home's five four-foot skylights and windows had to be planned before the shell was constructed. A laser was used to project a straight line on the bubble's walls for the windows, which Huber then copied with a grease pencil to provide guide marks for the spraying crew.

Only one of the thermal-paned windows scattered through both levels of the house can be opened, however. That's because the home's seamless exterior, combined with state-of-the-art air circulation and purifying systems, make outside air unnecessary.

Summer activities

The daughters of David and Shiela Armstrong of Vealmoor, have had a busy summer Heather, 17, Bobbie and Chrissey, have been hoeing for their grandpa, Joe Don Zant, to earn money for their 4-H lambs. The girls hope to do as well or better than 1990 when Heather and Bobbie placed fourth and Chrissey placed sixth with their fine wool

Bobbie and Chrissey flew to Dallas August 8, to visit their former stepmother, Amanda Stewart, returning Sunday evening, Aug. 11. Mrs. Stewart took them to a huge shopping mall, then to a flea market on the west end of Dallas where they purchased beautiful hand painted pant suits with T-shirts and shorts to match at remarkable prices.

The three took in Six Flags where the girls enjoyed the Texas Giant, swam in the Roaring Rapids and rode the Flashback. They viewed the bright lights of Dallas at night.

The three girls are now glad to be back in school at Sands and are continuing their hoeing chores each evening.

Labor Day, another chance to celebrate

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans from coast to coast flocked to beaches and mountains, held backyard cookouts and even watched pigs race as they squeezed in one last weekend of summer fun during the Labor Day holiday.

Riverboat regattas, state fairs, crafts festivals and generally pleasant weather gave people across the nation an opportunity to start celebrating the holiday early.

Hundreds of thousands flocked Saturday and Sunday to such events as state fairs in Michigan and New York, jazz and folk festivals in Massachusetts, the Kansas City Spirit Festival, Seattle's Bumbershoot Festival, an African-Caribbean festival in tend colleges and universities, Asheville, N.C., and Oklahoma City's State Chili Championships. Similar events were scheduled

For some, the celebration was bittersweet, as people pondered the approach of winter and school "I'll still do some summertime stuff after this weekend, but basically this is the end," said

14-year-old Tori Chisholm of Cross Lanes, W.Va. For some students, Labor Day was shaping up as truly a day of

In the Boston area, where more than a quarter-million students atstudents jammed streets Sunday with fleets of rented moving trucks as they rushed to get their belongings into apartments and dormitories. Fifty-thousand door keys were expected to change hands on Sunday alone.

The Revival for Christ Club of Moore, Okla., also worked over the weekend, setting up shop at Interstate 40 rest areas to offer free coffee and doughnuts to weary

While other people are out at the lake, we're out trying to save lives, 'said Robert Chitwood, the group's administrative vice president. He said drivers are much safer if they stop for a rest. Resort operators also kept busy, with many well aware this was their last chance for a big weekend during a summer dampened by a sluggish economy. "I call it a yo-yo summer, some good days and some bad, with the good really good and the bad really bad," said John Crosby II, owner of the BB Bombers surf shop in Ocean City, Md. It was shaping up as a good summer for the Michigan State Fair, with organizers saying Sunday that attendance was up 10 percent over

The more than 350,000 people who had visited the fair by Saturday took part in singing contests, ponytail competitions and cookoffs. Some just sat back and watched the pig races.

Attendance also was heavy at the 12th annual Riverfest in Lansing, Mich, which featured riverboat rides, craft demonstrations and basketball games.

Highways across the nation were also crowded, but not always by people rushing to one event or another.

In Georgia, several hundred people were taking part in The Great Georgia Road Race, a 1,000-mile auto trek across the state's back roads. The race, which ends Tuesday, offers $25,000 in prizes.

However, not everybody has it as good as Americans, says John P. Mohrbacher of CARE, a worldwide relief organization. The average American works 2,122 hours to make more than $21,000 a year, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. But the average person in developing countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America works at least 3,000 hours to make $500 a year.

In Ethiopia, the average income is $130 a year and falling, Mohrbacher says. The country's gross national product fell 1.6 percent from 1980 to 1987.

'In our work, we never lose sight of just how good Americans have it," said Phil Johnston, president of CARE. "In many parts of the world, being a success means just surviving and it requires an exhausting daily effort.

Creating jobs is a problem, Mohrbacher said. "Thanks to a growing population, maintaining even today's inadequate employment level in the developing world will require 800 million more jobs by the year 2000 than it does today.'

Farming remains the most common job in the world, he had made a "good statement" over the weekend in acknowledging the right of Soviet republics to choose their own form of government. Today, Gorbachev was working with officials from 10 of the 15 Soviet republics to re-form the Soviet system to shift fundamental government authority to the republics and away from the Kremlin.

Bush was asked today if he planned to recognize independence for any other republics - Moldavia and Georgia have started well down the path and along with the Baltics were not among the 10 working with Gorbachev

"We've got to know first what kind of relationships these republics want to have with the center," Bush said, adding that it has always been clear that the Baltic states were different.

Though today's announcement on the Baltics was inevitable, it was seen as an important step by Baltic officials. Bush said that there will be separate U.S. diplomatic missions to each of the states

Acquittal major blow to Brazilian feminists

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) - Brazilian feminists are dismayed by the second acquittal of a man who argued he killed his wife and her lover in a legitimate defense of honor.

For years, feminists have attacked the defense tactic, saying it perpetuates widespread violence against Brazilian women.

The nation's Supreme Court had cheered women last March when it annulled the man's previous acquittal, saying the "honor" defense was invalid. But a state court in southern Brazil allowed the defendant to use the "honor" defense in his latest trial. "This case is a barbarity, an aberration to the hard-fought advances women have made in recent years," said Rosemarie Muraro, a prominent author and leading feminist. "This should cause a national outrage. Though the "honor" defense is not part of Brazil's legal code, it is commonly accepted by courts, especially those in tiny, rural towns in the interior. Scores of men have been acquitted of killing wives or lovers using the defense. The issue returned to the spotlight Thursday when a jury in Parana state court acquitted Joao Lopes, a bricklayer who caught his wife with another man in a hotel in Apucarana, a small city in Brazil's southern farming belt.

Lopes admitted he stabbed both to death. But he was acquitted by an all-male jury after a trial in which the defense attorney was allowed to argue Lopes "acted on moral impulses.

The defense argument defied the 3-2 ruling by the Supreme Court in March that decided Lopes killed for revenge. The high court ordered a new trial and a new jury, and it abolished the use of the 'honor'' defense in Lopes' case.

The "legitimate defense of honor" cannot be used in murder cases "because honor is a personal value that cannot be restored with the blood of an unfaithful wife," the Supreme Court said.

State Judge Luis Fernando Araujo said he permitted the use of the defense because it was "essentially the heart" of the case. "One decision by the Supreme Court does not necessarily form a national precedent," Araujo said in a telephone interview from Apucarana. "Unless the defense's strategy is completely absurd or irrelevent, I can do nothing to im-

Lady Steers fall in consolation

AMARILLO - Coach Lois Ann McKenzie is still searching for the right combination.

McKenzie thought she might have had the right combination but she was mistaken as Canyon Randall defeated the Big Spring Lady Steers 15-7, 15-12 in the consolation finals of the Amarillo tournament Saturday The Lady Steers reached the finals via defeating Pampa 15-5, 15-6 and Perryton 15-1,

"I thought I finally had the lineup like I needed it, but I was wrong," said McKenzie. "We had played them (Canyon Randall) in pool play and we knew exactly what they were going to do. We looked real good in the last game of pool play and our first two matches Saturday. Then we play like we had never played next to player next to us before. "We missed a lot of serves, we killed ourselves. We missed five serves in the last game of the last match alone. The Lady Steers made a strong rally in the second game, falling behind 8-2 and then 12-4. Big Spring battled back to tie the contest at 12-all before Randall scored the last three points.

The Lady Steers, 4-3 for the season, will host the Bronte Longhorn-Honeys Tuesday at Steer Gym. Freshmen action gets underway at 5 p.m., followed by junior varsity and varsity play.

Quarterback Club to meet Tuesday

The Big Spring Quarterback Club will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the high school planetarium.

Coach Dwight Butler and his coaching staff will show films from last week's scrimmage with Frenship and give a scouting report for Amarillo Caprock. A short business meeting will follow Butler's presentation. All Steer football fans and boosters are invited.

Cowboys control Browns, 26-14

CLEVELAND (AP) — As the preseason progressed, the Dallas Cowboys felt better and better about the offensive system installed by new offensive coordinator Norv Turner.

They like it even more now.

"This was important to us from a believing standpoint," Michael Irvin said after he caught nine passes for 123 yards and a touchdown Sunday as the Cowboys beat the injuryriddled Browns 26-14.

Dallas balanced its efficient, short-range passing attack with the slashing running of Emmitt Smith, 'who rushed 32 times for 112 yards. The Cowboys improved their NFLbest record in opening-day games to 24-7-1 and ruined the head coaching debut of Cleveland's Bill Belichick.

"It was our first game with this new offense," Irvin said. "Now we can say, 'Hey, this works!' I think you'll see better from us.

Troy Aikman picked apart a Cleveland secondary that was thin at the start and got thinner as the game progressed. Two starters and two key backups in the defensive backfield already were out because of training camp injuries, and starting cornerback Raymond Clayborn missed the second half because of an ankle injury.

Clayborn was to be examined further at the Cleveland Clinic, but the Browns did not disclose details of the injury.

Novacek and Irvin. Ken Willis kicked four field goals, including a wind-aided, 54-yarder in the fourth quarter that tied the team record set by Toni Fritsch in 1972.

"It looked to me that they were really geared in to trying to stop Emmitt," Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson said. "That's partly why we were able to go to our receivers. We stuck with our game plan today. I don't think we will ever try to go into a ballgame and try to be one-dimensional.

for both teams.

Dallas scored on all four of its first-half possessions and led 20-7 at halftime, letting the Browns run longest in a Browns opener since just 17 plays in the entire half.

Cleveland, though trailing badly in the statistics, made a game of it in the third quarter. On the first play from scrimmage, Bernie Kosar found Webster Slaughter wide open down the right sideline for a 62-yard touchdown pass, the quarter action Sunday. It was the season-opener

"They really made it difficult on us running the ball," Kosar said. "We had gotten to the point in the first half where we were basically only throwing the short game. All their DBs (defensive backs) were really starting to play close on us, making the short game difficult. We had to loosen them up.

Cleveland got the ball back twice with a chance for the lead, but one drive stalled at the 50 and the next ended in Matt Stover's missed 45-yard field goal. Dallas then clinched it by driving for field goals on its first two series in the fourth

The Cowboys limited the Browns to 32 yards rushing, including Kevin Mack's 1-yard touchdown run on Cleveland's first possession of the game. The Browns were ranked last in the NFL in rushing in 1990, when they compiled a franchise-worst 3-13 record, and they have been ranked 21st or lower each of the last five seasons.

"He (Belichick) told us when we first met that in this league, you need to have the ability to run the ball," offensive lineman Dan Fike said. "The defense has to stop the run. You need to convert third downs. If you don't do those things, you won't win, and that's basically what happened.

Dallas has not allowed an opponent to gain 300 yards total offense in its last seven regular-season games, and has not allowed an opposing quarterback to throw for 300 Reggie Rucker caught a 69-yarder yards in 20 straight games.

Oilers start season off on right foot

HOUSTON (AP) — It took the Houston Oilers just one game to accomplish a major goal for the 1991 season — getting off to a fast start.

Warren Moon passed for 250 yards, including two touchdowns, and ran for another, and Allen Pinkett rushed 144 yards as the Oilers beat the Los Angeles Raiders 47-17. The victory was in part due to an assist from the defense, which contributed three turnovers that produced 21 points.

There won't be an embarrassing 0-2 beginning like 1990 when the Oilers lost to Atlanta 47-27 and Pittsburgh 20-9.

"We needed to get off to a fast start because we didn't last year and it hurt us," defensive end William Fuller said. "Last year was our first under a new system and we weren't sure about things. Now we believe in the system.

The Raiders believe in it too after being steamrolled by the balanced Oilers run-pass attack.

Pinkett had 48 yards rushing on eight carries in the first drive of the game, establishing the Oilers' ground game more firmly than any time last season.

"They played us weird, they tried to take away the pass and the run," said Moon, who hit 18 of 33 passes. "When you get them like that, you can spread the field out."

The Oilers jumped to a 16-7 halftime lead on an eight-yard run by Pinkett, a one-yard dive by Moon and Ian Howfield's 34-yard field goal. The Raiders had the ball for only 1:17 of the first quarter and didn't score until Jay Schroeder's it was 16-7 I thought we were in the John Elway is having fun even as he increases his workload.

Calling his own plays for the first time in a nine-season career, Elway ran and passed the Broncos to a stunningly easy 45-14 romp over the Bengals as the NFL opened the regular season on Sunday.

On a day when the Eagles' Randall Cunningham likely had his season ended with torn knee ligaments and the Seahawks' Dave Krieg had his at least severely shortened by a broken thumb, the NFL got a big day from one of its biggest names.

NFL Roundup

"That was as much fun as I've had in a game in a long time,' Elway said after reaching into his bag of tricks and coming out with two touchdown passes, two TD runs and 471 yards. What made it more fun was that the Broncos had averaged a mere 10 points and 225 yards a game in exhibition play.

In a league that treasures its quarterbacks, Elway's performance was one of the few brights

The Eagles didn't seem to miss Cunningham against the Packers, however. Old pro Jim McMahon threw for two touchdowns and the defense did the rest in a 20-3

The Seahawks got a lift from their sub quarterback, Jeff Kemp, after rieg went out with a broken thumb on his right hand. But the Saints edged the Seahawks 27-24 behind the late heroics of Bobby Hebert, who was making his return after sitting out last season in a contract dispute.

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Philadelphia Eagles quarterback Randall Cunningham looks down at his left knee as he is taken from the field following an injury in second quarter action Sunday against the Green Bay Packers.

Taylor with 1:11 left won it. Kemp had a late touchdown pass wiped away when receiver Tommy Kane was ruled out of bounds, and a 15-yard penalty for arguing that call pushed kicker John Kasay back just far enough to miss a 37-yard field goal attempt that would have tied it.

CONTEST RULES

RULES: Pick the team you think will win from each advertiser' block. The score is only necessary in the last "Tie Breaker" box. Write your picks in the center box. Each contestant must pick from each block. Do not miss any games.

Winners will be announced in the next Tuesday Herald. Winners may pick up prize money at the Herald office, 710 Scurry, Big Spring, Tx. Prizes will be awarded in "Herald Football Bucks" which can only be spent with the merchants on this page. Herald employees cannot participate. Must be 18 or older to play. Only 2 entries per person, per week. Must be entered on original contest entry form.

In the event of a tie, a drawing will be held to determine the winner. When using the tie-breaker: the closest guess to the winner's score will be judged the winning entry.

White Sox club Indians

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS On the first day of the NFL season, there were hard hits in baseball, too Frank Thomas homered and went over the 100-RBI mark in his first full season in the big leagues. Cecil Fielder drove in his 112th run, most in the majors. And the Twins tied their season high for runs, helped by homers from Chili Davis, Brian Harper and Paul Sorrento.

At Comiskey Park on Sunday, the day before Bo Jackson's return with the White Sox, Thomas starred again. His 29th home run sent rookie Wilson Alvarez and Chicago to a 6-1 victory over the Indians.

Thomas is batting .325 with 102 RBIs, and he leads the majors with 113 walks. Last season, he played 60 games for the White Sox and batted .330 with seven home runs and 44 RBIs.

Carlton Fisk hit a three-run homer in the first inning and Thomas connected for a three-run shot in the second. That was plenty for Alvarez, who won for the first time since pitching a no-hitter Aug. 11 in Baltimore.

Alvarez (2-2) pitched a fourhitter. He struck out three and walked four in his second career victory

In three previous starts since his no-hitter, Alvarez was 0-2 with a 6.43 ERA

Fisk hit his 14th home run off Greg Swindell (8-13) after Tim Raines singled and Robin Ventura walked. A double by Ozzie Guillen and another walk to Ventura set up Thomas' shot.

"I was looking to drive the ball to center field, just to try and get the run in," Thomas said. "It was kind of inside-out, and I got a good swing on the ball. But I was surprised it

In his last 38 games, Thomas is batting .385 with 13 homers and 41

Carlos Martinez hit his third

American League

homer in the fifth for Cleveland's only run.

Twins 14, Orioles 3 Jack Morris won his 16th game and Minnesota backed him with 16 hits at the Metrodome. Morris (16-10) gave up three unearned runs in seven innings and beat Baltimore for the third time this Chili Davis hit a three-run homer, his 27th of the year and first since Aug. 6, a span of 78 at-bats. Brian Harper and Shane Mack each had three hits as the Twins tagged rookie Arthur Rhodes (0-2).

Chito Martinez hit a three-run homer for the Orioles in the sixth after a two-out error by third baseman Scott Leius

Tigers 5, Athletics 2

Cecil Fielder singled home a run in the first inning and Mark Leiter went on to outpitch Bob Welch in Oakland.

Leiter (8-2) won his sixth straight decision. He retired 16 consecutive batters and shut out the Athletics on two hits until giving up two runs in the eighth inning.

Jerry Don Gleaton pitched the ninth for his second save. Welch (11-10) lost for the fourth time in five starts. Travis Fryman hit a two-run homer in the Detroit ninth off Gene Nelson Rangers 6, Royals 4

Bret Saberhagen lost his bid for another no-hitter on Kevin Reimer's home run in the second inning, then lost the game later.

With the score tied at 3 in the bottom of the eighth, Texas loaded the bases with one out. After Saberhagen (10-7) struck out Dean Palmer, Mike Magnante relieved and gave up a two-run single to pinch hitter Mike Stanley. Saberhagen pitched his first Texas, who is at .335.

Monday against Chicago. He gave up nine hits in 7 2-3 innings against the Rangers. Reliever Terry Mathews (2-0) won in relief and Jeff Russell allowed an unearned run in the ninth in getting his 26th save.

George Brett's two-run homer, his eighth, put Kansas City ahead 3-1 in the fifth, but Saberhagen could not hold the lead Yankees 4, Blue Jays 2 Matt Nokes tied the score with a two-out RBI single and Kevin Maas followed with a two-run double, rallying New York in the eighth inning at Yankee Stadium.

Steve Sax drew a leadoff walk from Mike Timlin and reliever Bob MacDonald (3-2) walked Roberto Kelly with two outs before Nokes and Maas delivered.

Lee Guetterman (3-2) blanked Toronto on one hit in the final three innings for the victory.

Brewers 3, Angels 1 Jaime Navarro pitched a fourhitter, coming within one out of a shutout, and Milwaukee sent California to its seventh straight Navarro (13-10) walked none, struck out six and did not let a runner get past first base until Wally Joyner hit his 21st home run with two outs in the ninth inning.

two-run first inning and hit his 16th homer in the seventh off Chuck Finley (16-8). Finley gave up seven hits in his fourth complete game. Red Sox 13, Mariners 2

Wade Boggs had four hits to move into the lead in the AL batting race for the first time this season as the Red Sox beat the Mariners It's the first time since Aug. 29, 1989, that the five-time AL batting champion has led the league in hitting. Boggs singled four times in six at-bats to raise his average to .338 and move past Julio Franco of

Dodgers pull even with Braves

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS Four days in second place was enough for the Dodgers. "We hope this is a good sign for the month of September," said Los Angeles manager Tom Lasorda following Sunday's 12-3 win over the Cubs that boosted LA back into first in the NL West. Technically, they're sharing it with the Braves, but that's no big deal as far as Lasorda and the Dodgers are concerned. They held first for 105 days before they were usurped by upstart Atlanta last Wednesday. "It's good to be even again," Lasorda said. "We dropped two games behind them real quick, and then we picked them back up in these two days. That just goes to show you what can happen if you worry about what your team is doing, and not worry about what anybody else is doing. The Braves had something to do about the circumstances, of course. On Sunday, they lost to Philadelphia 5-4 in 10 innings, their second straight loss.

The pitching of Ramon Martinez and the hitting of Eddie Murray and Kal Daniels led the Dodgers. Martinez (16-9) allowed six hits over seven innings with five strikeouts and three walks. Murray and Daniels each had a solo homer, three hits and three RBIs in the game at Dodger Stadium. Loser Frank Castillo (5-3), who beat Martinez 2-1 with a threehitter last Tuesday at Wrigley Field, failed to complete the first inning as the Dodgers sent 10 men to the plate and scored five runs on five hits. As usual, Martinez was the recipient of the Dodger fireworks. He has received 5.3 runs per game in his 27 starts and was on the mound the day the Dodgers scored their National League season-high 13 runs in Chicago. Phillies 5, Braves 4 John Morris' first home run of the season leading off the 10th inning boosted the Phillies over the visiting Braves. Morris' homer off Mark Wohlers (1-1), the fourth Atlanta pitcher, was his first hit since the All-Star break after going 0-for-17.

It was the Phillies' 18th victory in their last 20 games at home. Padres 7, Pirates 4 Benito Santiago turned boos to cheers with a three-run homer in the third inning as the Padres beat the Pirates and ended Pittsburgh's five-game winning streak. Tim Teufel added a two-run homer and an RBI single, and Fred McGriff went 3-for-4 with one RBI. The loss cut Pittsburgh's lead in the NL East to seven games over the Cardinals.

Santiago, whose throwing error allowed the tying run to score in the top of the third, was booed as he came to bat following singles by Darrin Jackson and McGriff. But Santiago hit the first pitch from Zane Smith (12-10) over the rightfield fence at Jack Murphy Stadium for his 14th homer and a 5-2 lead. Ricky Bones (2-3) was the

Expos 6, Astros 1 Chris Nabholz pitched a fourhitter and struck out a career-high 11 to win his first game in more than three months as the Expos defeated the visiting Astros, completing a season sweep at home of Nabholz (3-7) broke a personal four-game losing streak as he gained his first victory since May 27 against Philadelphia. Nabholz walked four in his first complete game since last Sept. 20 against the

Darryl Kile (6-9) lasted only four innings, giving up six hits and four runs to take Houston's sixth loss in as many games in Montreal this Andres Galarraga hit his fifth homer to tie it in the second, before the Expos sent nine men to the plate and scored three runs to take the lead for good in the third. Mets 9, Reds 4 Howard Johnson continued his demolition of the Reds, hitting his 29th homer to take the NL lead as the Mets beat Cincinnati. Johnson, who had homered twice Saturday in the New York's 10-inning victory, drove in three runs with a home run, double and an infield out and scored three times. Sunday's win, the first for Wally Whitehurst (6-10) since July 4, completed a three-game sweep at Riverfront Stadium.

Felix Jose hit two home runs and drove in five runs and Ray Lankford also homered twice as the Cardinals snapped a four-game losing streak behind Bob Tewksbury's seven-hitter. Jose had a run-scoring single in the third, a sacrifice fly in the fourth, a two-run homer in the sixth and a solo shot in the ninth to trigger a four-run inning. The homers were Jose's fourth and fifth of the season. Lankford, snapping a 2-for-21 slump, hit a pair of solo homers for the visiting Cardinals, the fourth and fifth of the season for the rookie. Tewksbury (9-9) blanked the Giants on four singles until Matt Williams hit his 26th homer with one out in the seventh. John Burkett (9-9) was the loser.

Record

 Continued from page 1-B rell's time of 9.90. Five others finished under 10 seconds, including Burrell in 9.88. It was the first time Lewis had won an event by setting an individual world record.

In the sprint relay on Sunday, he took the baton from Dennis Mitchell and in a few strides had pulled away from the French team by three meters. The U.S. team, which also included Andre Cason and Burrell, clipped a substantial .17 off the mark set in Zurich on Aug. 15 by another American team featuring Mike Marsh instead of Cason.

Lewis also pushed Mike Powell to a mind-boggling 29 feet, 41/2 inches in the long jump, erasing the oldest world record in the books. the 29-21/2 jump by Bob Beamon at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City. Lewis was second at 29-234 with the greatest series ever in the event, but not enough to win the gold medal.

may have been the true winner at The Soviet Union led in total medals with 28, including nine

With 10 gold medals, along with the three world records, the U.S.

golds, to 26 for the Americans and 17 for Germany, with five golds. But the U.S. medal count could've been even better, if not for some baton fumbling for the two women's relays and a hamstring injury which stopped heptathlete Jackie Joyner-"We swept the 100, we won the 200 and we set the world record in the relay," Lewis said. "We reestablished the dominance and focus that American sprinters have had in the past. Everyone in the last 1½ or two years has criticized the Americans for having poor baton exchanges and not winning. Not this time.'

All indications are that the Americans will be tough to beat in the Barcelona Olympics next

The championships also provided some old trends and some big surprises. The Soviet Union managed to remain a strong contender despite the political turmoil at home, but Tokyo could very likely be the last appearance for a com-petitive and united Soviet team, as more and more of the country's republics seek independence. "Next year in Barcelona I'll be jumping for the gold medal, no matter under which flag," was how star pole vaulter Sergei Bubka, from the Ukraine, summarized the athletes' position on the team.

Three Baltic republics -Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia -are expected to be given independent recognition this month by the International Olympic Committee. Others are expected to follow the trend before the 1992 Olympics.

A united German team was disappoining and, as many had predicted, merging two good teams produced more tensions and setbacks than successes.

At the 1987 World Championships in Rome, East Germany collected 31 medals, to 25 for the Soviet Union and 19 for the United States. West Germany had three. Putting the two teams together meant going from 34 medals to 17, a substanial dropoff Athletes from African nations dominated the men's distance races and began emerging as a force among the women and the sprinters.

Olmos takes challenge

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Edward James Olmos has proved his versatility playing a tough but quiet cop on TV's "Miami Vice" and an inspiring calculus teacher in the movie "Stand and Deliver.

He's taking on another screen challenge in "American Me," a film about Hispanic gang life. Not only is Olmos a lead actor, he's also producing and making his debut as a director.

"This is Eddie's 'Dances With Wolves," said Floyd Mutrux, who wrote the screenplay Olmos had to get clearance

JAMES OLMOS MACAULAY CULKIN from gangs to use their East Los Angeles turf, where he was born 44 years ago. "I want to show that there's a cancer in this subculture of the

with this movie.' I say to them,

'Either you treat the cancer or it'll eat you alive.

Culkin to be in video

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) - "Home Alone" star Macaulay Culkin, George Wendt of "Cheers" and Bart Simpson all appear in Michael Jackson's new video.

The eight-minute video for the song "Black or White" was directed by John Landis. It debuts Nov. 7, TV Guide said.

Jackson, whose "Dangerous" album is scheduled for release in October, will share his voice with "The Simpsons" this fall, the magazine said.
