Registration set for drivers ed

Driver education will be taught this year at Big Spring High School. Registration is Saturday from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. in the cafeteria. Students interested in enrolling in the course should bring their birth certificates and Social Security cards. The cost for the course is $110. For more information contact James Collinsworth at 264-3641.

CISD to postpone appointment

COAHOMA — The school board of trustees have called a special meeting tonight at 7 p.m. to approve a homecoming dance request and approve local school policies. The agenda also states that trustees will approve the resignation of board member Jim Mathison who was transferred to Midland. Trustees will not consider another member appointee to the board, said Jim Wright, president, because trustee Benny Fishback cannot attend tonight's meeting. Wright said he was unaware Fishback was working the evening shift when he called the special meeting. Trustees have three options, according to Wright — have a special election which he said is not feasible due to the cost, appoint another person chosen by the trustees to the board, or allow the seat to remain vacant until the next election in May.

Jury convicts Tidmore of rape

An Oklahoma man was convicted of rape in a jury trial in 118th Judicial District Court Tuesday. The jury deliberated about 15 minutes to return the verdict against Gary Tidmore, 40, of Valiant, Okla., who was indicted in March for the August 1990 rape of a Midland woman at a rest stop on Interstate 20 between Big Spring and Stanton. Tidmore, a truck driver, could receive two years to 20 years in the punishment phase of the trial, which began this morning. The jury began deliberating about 9:50. During the one-day trial, Tidmore testified that the woman, who was 22 years old at the time, voluntarily had sex with him after she accepted a ride in his truck from Weatherford to Midland. Her car had broken down in Weatherford. The woman testified that Tidmore, whom she had met the first time when her car broke down, had offered the ride and assured her mother in Midland in a telephone conversation that he would bring her home safely. However, he later forced her to have sex, she said.

Hearing set today for ruling on referendum election date

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer
 Fraternal Order of Police attorney David Twedell will be seeking a court order this afternoon to force the Big Spring City Council to schedule the FOP-sponsored charter amendment election on Nov. 5. A hearing has been set for 2:30 p.m. today on a petition filed by Twedell. The council voted to postpone the election until Jan. 18, in a surprise move during Monday's special council session. The special sessions for Monday and Tuesday had been scheduled to read an ordinance calling for the Nov. 5 election date. Twedell is currently petitioning for a writ of mandamus, which will, if issued, command the city council to hold the charter amendment election on Nov. 5, he said.

"We'll be filing (today) in the (11th District) State Court of Appeals in Eastland," said Big Spring police officer and FOP spokesman Stan Parker. This court was chosen by Twedell since it has recently decided a similar kind of case, said Parker. The judge there is already familiar with pertinent case law. Attorney for the Secretary of State/Election Division, Austin Bray said he is uncertain whether or not there is sufficient time between now and the Nov. 5 uniform election date to ensure the vote will be legal according to the U.S. Department of Justice's interpretation of the Voting Rights Act. "With only 30 days (prior to the election), it might open the election to disapproval by the Justice Department," said Bray. However, Bray said the Voting Rights Act is concerned with not diluting minority voting strength, which is not an issue in a city-wide election. Many such elections proceed without prior Justice Department approval, which may take 60 days, said Bray. If the Justice Department does not approve the election at a later date, the results could be voided by court action. Twedell is seeking the court order from a state court, since he believes there is no reason to suspect the Justice Department will disapprove the election. The city council cancelled the special session for Tuesday and will have the second and final reading of the proposal for the Jan. 18 election at the regularly scheduled meeting on Oct. 8. The election must be set by the city council before Oct. 5 to meet the 30-day state requirement, said Twedell.

Iraq aided in nuclear program

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — A senior member of the U.N. team detained in Baghdad last week said today that documents it seized show many foreign countries, mainly European, helped Iraq develop its secret nuclear weapons program. Data gleaned from the 25,000 pages of documents will be made available to the governments concerned — but it will be up to them to name the rogue firms, U.N. Special Commission Deputy Chairman Robert Gallucci said. "There are a lot of foreign companies involved," he said in an interview. "This is not simply an indigenous Iraqi program." Gallucci was the No. 2 man in the 44-member nuclear weapons team headed by David Kay that was held in a parking lot for five days last week in a dispute over documents on Iraq's nuclear weapons program. U.N. inspection teams are operating under terms of the Gulf War cease-fire, which calls for elimination of Iraq's Scud missiles and chemical, nuclear and biological weapons and production facilities. Iraq has denied trying to develop nuclear arms, but U.N. officials said the documents uncovered in records buildings in Baghdad proved the Iraqis were working to produce nuclear warheads. "There is a lot of indigenous work in the program, but there are a lot of foreign companies whose pieces of equipment one sees as one moves from building to building," Gallucci said. Asked if these included European and American firms, he replied: "Certainly European." He added, "I, myself, have not seen specific pieces from the United States." He refused to identify the companies that cooperated with Iraq either by name or nationality. "Our policy is to inform governments rather than the public," Gallucci said. "If the governments wish to make it public that's their business." New reports have suggested several European companies, and

Collection date set for recyclable waste

By MARTHA E. FLORES Staff Writer
 With only days remaining until Big Spring's first community-wide recyclables collection day, the Howard County Coalition for the Environment is taking care of small details and continuing to get the word out. The collection site will be located at the north parking lot of the Herald offices. The entrance and exit will be located on Scurry Street with autos making a U-shaped drive through the collection site. Volunteers will be on hand to help people unload. Collection will be between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. If residents in Coahoma wish to dispose of recyclable trash, they may take it to the First Presbyterian Church in Coahoma. "The church's youth group will collect the recyclables between 9-11 a.m. and then transport them to the Big Spring site," said Walt Lee, one of the co-ordinators. The following will be accepted: PLASTICS Plastics are made with a variety of resins and must be treated differently in the recycling process. To distinguish one plastic from another, many manufacturers are labeling the containers with the recycling symbol and a number in the center.

The group will be accepting No. 1 and No. 2 plastic at the present time. This includes plastic milk and water jugs and soft drink bottles. Many detergent, shampoo and other household containers also fall within this category; check the bottom of the container for the symbol and number. Remove the lid and discard, since it is often a different type of plastic. Rinse the container and smash it as much as possible. STEEL Most canned foods come in steel cans. A magnet will stick to steel cans. Rinse the can and remove both ends. The cans should also be checked with the magnet because occasionally a different material will be used. Smash the can as much as possible. It is not necessary to remove the paper labels from the cans. ALUMINUM Soft drinks, beet and some pet foods come in aluminum cans. Aluminum tends to be shiny and a magnet will not stick to it. Rinse the can and smash as much as possible. It is not necessary to remove both ends or to remove any labels. ## Not everyone believes dismal reports about schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — Getting Americans to believe the flurry of reports berating the nation's education system may be the biggest challenge facing educators, governors and other leaders, a private research group says. Jean Johnson, vice president of the Public Agenda Foundation, says most Americans have been reluctant to embrace the economic and educational reforms preached by President Bush and other leaders because they don't have a clear sense of what is needed to compete in the world economy. "The American public, while concerned about the schools, really don't understand the impact of the schools on the economy," Johnson said in an interview Tuesday. "People hear a lot of news reports about schools, that they are really besieged by academic and other problems such as poverty, teen pregnancy and drugs. But for most people in most neighborhoods, the schools are not terrible. They are mediocre." A new Louis Harris poll underscores the point. It found that on 15 common objectives of elementary and secondary education, only 30 percent of employers were able to rank as positive the overall preparedness of recent students to hold down jobs in their businesses. Sixty-six percent gave them negative marks. By contrast, among recent students asked the same questions, 70 percent were positive about their education, as were 65 percent of their parents. The telephone survey was conducted in the first three weeks of September with 2,446 employers, college and vocational school educators, recent students, parents and the general public. The poll was jointly sponsored by the Committee for Economic Development and The Business Roundtable, and was endorsed by the National Education Goals Panel and the National Council on Education Standards and Testing. In the case of those students who went on to higher education, 70 percent of the students and 77 percent of their parents felt their higher school preparation was terrific. Only 36 percent of the higher educators gave the students positive marks, while 62 percent gave them low grades. The margin of error was plus or minus 2 percentage points. "There is only one conclusion to be reached from this enormous chasm that exists," said Louis Harris. "At least by the standards and perceived needs of employers and higher educators, the products of our high schools and their parents are simply deluding themselves. Sadly, they and the whole country are paying a heavy price for it all." Johnson's group joined the Business-Higher Education Forum in writing Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle that the administration's education reform program, America 2000, will be in jeopardy unless Americans understand the impact of educational mediocrity. "Unless these misunderstandings and misconceptions about education and the economy are corrected, Mr. President, your crusade to turn around American education will not move beyond square one," said the letter, signed by Daniel Yankelovich and Colby Chandler. Yankelovich, a public opinion analyst, is president of the Public Agenda Foundation, which he

Rep warns of cholera threat

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez says a congressional committee should hold a hearing on the threat of a cholera epidemic spreading from Latin America to Texas.

"Disease does not respect the border, and I believe that there is a clear and present danger in our country," the San Antonio Democrat told U.S. Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Subcommittee on Health and the Environment, in a letter.

The hearing should be held, Gonzalez said, to educate "the medical community as well as the general public to prevent the spread of the disease."

More than 275,000 cases and 3,000 deaths from cholera have been reported this year in Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Mexico, Chile and Brazil, state health officials say.

In Mexico, 900 cases have been reported in a nine-state region including Veracruz, 220 miles south of the Texas border, officials say.

Officials expand bee quarantine

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The Africanized honeybees have claimed a little more South Texas turf, prompting agriculture officials to expand their containment zone.

Duval, Jim Wells, Kleberg and Nueces counties on Tuesday joined 12 others already under a quarantine restricting the movement of commercial bee operations, said Paul Jackson, chief of the Texas Apisary Inspection Service.

The apisary service is the regulatory agency for state bee laws.

Beekeepers are not allowed to move hives out of the quarantine area, an expanding zone devised by officials attempting to prevent the assisted spread of the so-called "killer bees."

Valley cotton yield beats '90

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Nature didn't cooperate with Rio Grande Valley cotton growers in 1991, leaving them with a higher crop yield than last year but still short of their expectations.

Summer rains, a spring flood and an infestation of crop-devouring whiteflies ensured the Valley fell short of the 425,000 bales it was expected to produce this year. A bale is 500 pounds of cotton.

Lewis jailed, released after legal tug-of-war

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorneys for indicted House Speaker Gib Lewis have asked that a state district judge who ordered Lewis jailed be taken off the case.

On Tuesday, Lewis, D-Fort Worth, was jailed for about 3½ hours after failing to appear at a pre-trial hearing on his misdemeanor ethics charges.

A new hearing was scheduled for today.

After Lewis was released, the speaker's attorneys filed a motion to have State District Judge Bob Perkins removed from the case.

The motion says that Perkins is seeking election to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, and is a friend of Lewis' prosecutor, Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle.

"Although (Lewis) does not allege that this judge would be consciously affected by such concerns in the conduct of this case, such circumstances may influence the court and result in appearance of impropriety or partiality," the motion by attorney Bill Wilms states.

After his incarceration in the Travis County Jail, Lewis said, "I think a lot of things unusual have happened about this whole case for the past 12, 18 months."

"I would not tell anybody to run for public office. I think it is absolutely ridiculous what public officials are subjected to," he said.

Lewis has been dogged for nearly a year with charges of ethical abuses, mostly spawned from a

Stenholm probes response to cattle rustling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today's cattle rustlers no longer wait for new moons and inky night skies to rope an unsuspecting herd.

Instead, they have dropped their chaps and lariats to engage in a lucrative white-collar crime with phony investment schemes, bad checks or illegal sales at livestock auctions.

They even use cattle sales to launder drug money, an investigator says.

Producers and investors may be losing millions of dollars, according to ranchers, law officers and a lawmaker who is investigating the apparent increase in modern-day cattle rustling and the government's response.

"We've still got the old rustling — that may be glorified in the West of the past — but in addition, we've got the white-collar crime and a certain amount of this new activity with laundering drug money by buying cattle," said Jack Sedgwick, administrator of the brand enforcement division at the Montana Department of Livestock.

"All of a sudden, we have more of this white-collar fraud," added Jody Henderson, special assistant to the general manager of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

A case announced this week by the Agriculture Department's Packers and Stockyards Administration illustrates the kind of money at stake.

The agency's deputy administrator, Calvin W. Watkins, said three partners in a Texas company were charged with failing to pay for more than $640,000 worth of livestock. They were accused in a federal administrative complaint of using bad checks.

Henderson said authorities in Texas and Oklahoma recovered $1.8 million in stolen cattle last year and $4 million in 1989.

The Packers and Stockyard Administration, which celebrated its 70th anniversary last month, is responsible for enforcing the Packers and Stockyards Act, an antitrust, fair trade practice and payment protection law. It is designed to assure free and open competition and to prevent unfair and deceptive practices in the marketing of livestock, meat and poultry.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture subcommittee on livestock, is investigating the agency's ability to protect producers and investors from today's swindlers.

He believes a cattle-rustling case now under investigation could show a "breakdown" in the regulatory process.

"I hope to be asking questions on what we think happened... why the protections we have in place were not adequate," Stenholm said.

Harold Davis, director of the livestock marketing division at the

Cleanup process could take years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Long after three Texas military installations have been shuttered — felled by the budget ax — the waste and by-products generated by those facilities will remain behind.

Although Carswell Air Force Base, Bergstrom Air Force Base and Chase Field Naval Air Station are expected to be closed by late 1993, environmental cleanup and monitoring will continue for several more years.

In a preliminary report issued Tuesday, the Defense Department said 16 sites need to be cleaned up at Carswell, 11 at Bergstrom and four at Chase Field.

The sites range from radioactive wells to fire training areas, where combustible fuels were set aflame so crews could simulate extinguishing airplane fires.

The cleanup at Carswell, located near Fort Worth, will continue beyond 1997, the report said. Targeted sites include landfills, a fire training area, drainage ditch, stream, pesticide rinse area, fuels handling area and a site where drums filled with waste were buried.

Also targeted for cleanup at Carswell are a tank farm, gas station and radioactive well, said Strategic Air Command spokesman Maj. Don Planalp, stationed at Offutt AFB in Omaha, Neb.

"I don't have much information, except I think it is low-level radioactive hospital waste, as in radium," Planalp said Tuesday.

The cleanup should begin in 1993, with monitoring and additional work to continue for at least a decade.

"Many cleanup operations take time. It's not a matter if you throw money at them you can do it faster," Planalp said. "I do know some procedures there's a time element involved that can't be sped up."

Bergstrom, near Austin, has a radioactive waste area, landfills, fuel spill sites and a fire training area that need cleaning up, said Lt. Tom Wessels, Bergstrom spokesman.

The cleanup will continue beyond 1997, the Defense Department estimated.

Wessels said only a small quantity of radioactive waste needs to be removed.

Chase Field, near Beeville, has two landfills and two firefighting burn pits contaminated with hazardous or toxic materials.

Carswell, Bergstrom and Chase are among 34 military installations nationally recommended for closure by the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission. President Bush in July approved the independent panel's recommendation to close the bases and realign 48 others by 1997.

Woman's campaign stirs AIDS awareness

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas police are checking reports of a woman who claims to be deliberately spreading the deadly AIDS virus through her sexual encounters, but are not actively looking for her.

A letter published in the September issue of Ebony magazine said a woman identified only as "C.J." was getting revenge on the man who infected her with the acquired immune deficiency syndrome through a sexual encounter.

A clerk in the Crimes Against Persons unit said the department has received numerous calls from people who say they know who C.J. is. But every one has identified a different person, the clerk said.

Police spokeswoman Eva Romero said the department is not looking for C.J. because no one has stepped forward saying they were infected by her.

But health workers are staffing phones and forgoing paperwork to keep up with requests for HIV tests and information from worried men.

Since Dallas radio personality Willis Johnson read the letter over the air, health workers said they have seen greater public interest in preventing the disease, especially in minority communities.

"The ones who have been following C.J. closely, we noticed when we go out to conduct outreach, many times they would bring up C.J. and say, 'When are you guys going to catch C.J.?' "

Alban Alfaro

C.J. has made the threat of acquiring the fatal disease seem "much more real" to several Dallas residents, said Alban Alfaro, education coordinator for the Dallas County Health Department.

"The ones who have been following C.J. closely, we noticed when we go out to conduct outreach, many times they would bring up C.J. and say, 'When are you guys going to catch C.J.?' "

Dallas County Health Department spokesman Michael Smerick says clinic staff has informed him that phone calls have dramatically increased since the article first appeared.

"The thing with C.J. is this person is very vocal," Smerick said. "We know this person is out there, but how many silent C.J.'s are out there and how many silent C.J.'s are out there that don't know they have been infected with the disease?"

Dallas County reported 3,182 AIDS cases through July 31. The first case was reported in 1981. Statewide, 13,170 AIDS cases have been reported.

AIDS is a fatal disease that is transmitted through sexual contact, use of contaminated syringes and needles by drug abusers and transfusions of blood or blood products. It also can be transmitted from mother to child at or before birth. There is no known cure.

C.J.'s notoriety has prompted radio stations to ask health department officials to be guests on talk shows. Church groups, especially traditionally black churches, and youth groups also have expressed increased interest in AIDS seminars, Smerick said.

"Education to me is the way (to fight AIDS) and we've hit stonewall after stonewall 10 years after the fact," Smerick said. "We still have schools that won't let us come in and talk about condoms. We still have groups that won't let us come in and talk about cleaning your needles."

CIA tensions glimpsed in hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Confirmation hearings for Robert Gates to head the CIA are offering a rare public glimpse at tensions within the agency, as witnesses recall heated battles over the nature and seriousness of the Soviet threat.

The Senate Intelligence Committee saw a replay of bitter intra-agency fights that have led to charges that Gates "cooked" intelligence assessments to suit hard-line Reagan administration policies.

Jennifer Glaudemans, a former CIA Soviet analyst scheduled to appear before the panel today, told in testimony released Tuesday how Gates had once "stormed" into an analyst's office to take issue with a paper concluding that economic sanctions against Libya would be ineffective.

"How can you say this when this is inconsistent with administration policy?" Gates shouted, according to Glaudemans.

But another former agency official, Graham Fuller, defended the CIA's analysis process as one that reached out to include views that diverged from the agency's conventional wisdom, even though some inside the CIA felt threatened by such solicitations.

He described Glaudemans' reaction to one such outreach effort as "paranoid," and criticized the "inverted character" of the CIA's intelligence directorate.

The new controversy over manipulation of analyses threatened to further extend the nomination hearings, already into their third week.

Name change

ST. PETERSBURG, U.S.S.R. — Soviet workers replace the Leningrad street sign with a St. Petersburg sign on the highway leading into the city Tuesday. The official name of the city was changed Tuesday to its former czarist name.

U.N. steers clear of internal affairs

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council's inaction on the coup in Haiti underscores a reality of U.N. diplomacy: Nothing in the U.N. Charter explicitly sanctions intervention in the internal affairs of nations.

And many member countries oppose setting any precedent of intervention that might some day lead to interference in upheavals or civil war at home.

The charter authorizes the Security Council to speak out or intervene only when a conflict between two states jeopardizes regional peace and security, as in Iraq's invasion of Kuwait last year.

The council acted with unusual unity and swiftness in actively opposing the Iraqi occupation, but inaction is the more usual course.

Haiti's case is a good example.

Ambassadors on the 15-member council talked informally Monday and Tuesday about whether to convene an emergency session to discuss the overthrow of Haiti's democratically elected president, Jean-Bernard Aristide.

But after hours of talks, the council members couldn't agree on whether to hold the session requested by Haiti, or even whether they should meet as a body for private consultations.

There was no consensus because China — a permanent member with veto power — and other council members, including India, opposed any consultations.

China and India, facing secessionist movements and restive minorities in Tibet and Kashmir respectively, want the council to stay out of internal strife.

The council does reserve the right to intervene or issue appeals in extraordinary circumstances when internal strife threatens peace and security, as in the case of Yugoslavia. But in virtually all cases, the Security Council requires the consent of nations involved before it intervenes.

Thus it took two months for the council to hold a meeting on Yugoslavia's civil war, and it waited until last week to impose an arms embargo on that country — at the urging of the European Community.

The council never met on Liberia's civil war, leaving action to neighboring West African nations.

The only outcome of hours of diplomatic wrangling over Haiti were brief statements by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar and the Security Council president, Jean-Bernard Merimee of France, expressing hope that democracy would be restored.

Haitian Ambassador Fritz Longchamp was incensed. "The U.N. Charter is clear. When a member state makes a request for a meeting, that request should be granted," he said.

ANC might not honor foreign loans

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A government run by the African National Congress might not honor foreign loans made to the current white-minority government, a newspaper today quoted the ANC's secretary general as saying.

Cyril Ramaphosa said Tuesday that the black opposition group would reserve the right to review foreign loans made to the existing government and would "not be keen" to repay such loans, the Star reported.

Ramaphosa told a news conference the ANC "expects quite a lot of assistance" from foreign governments if it comes to power, the report said.

The remarks were likely to cause new concern about how an ANC government would handle the South African economy. Critics contend the ANC is wedded to outmoded leftist economic policies that have wrecked many African economies.

An ANC refusal to honor loans to the existing government would make foreign governments and banks reluctant to advance new loans to an ANC government.

ANC officials say they may not want to repay the existing loans because those funds have helped support the apartheid government.

ANC President Nelson Mandela recently reaffirmed his commitment to nationalizing key sectors of the economy despite the failure of such policies in other nations.

The ANC says the economy must be changed to redistribute wealth and end massive black poverty.

Soviets plan to match nuclear cuts

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is taking steps to match President Bush's announced nuclear weapons cuts as well as secure central control over a nuclear arsenal increasingly threatened by republics' moves toward autonomy.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's spokesman said Tuesday "it would be a sin" to miss the historic opportunity to scrap nuclear arms.

Also Tuesday, a Soviet military official was quoted as saying the Kremlin will slash its army by roughly half in the next three years and may oppose efforts by the republics to create their own armies.

The nuclear situation seemed to be summed up in a commentary on the Russian television program "Vesti," which warned that some republics may see nuclear weapons on their territory as a guarantor of independence.

The Kremlin must quickly reduce the numbers while it still has some control.

"Bush's unexpected move among other things gives Moscow an opportunity to keep control of nuclear weapons before it is too late," the newscast commented.

Gorbachev spokesman Andrei Grachev said Bush's announcement Friday of unilateral U.S. cuts in short-range and other nuclear weapons offered "a historic chance for a new breakthrough in nuclear disarmament."

He said Gorbachev had instructed government officials to clarify certain points of the American proposals.

Regulations on chemicals needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government doesn't give enough attention to what chemicals found on factory floors and under kitchen sinks may be doing to the next generation, congressional investigators say.

In fact, the agencies in charge of protecting people from chemical hazards don't take into account how exposure may make it more difficult to have a baby or for a baby to grow up normally, a General Accounting Office report said.

"Decision-makers examined reproductive and developmental data in fewer than half of the regulatory decisions," the GAO, an investigative arm of Congress, said in a report Tuesday to the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

Regulatory agencies were called ed to appear before the committee today to discuss what the government has done to protect people from exposure to toxic chemicals.

"I intend to ask these agencies why the government has apparently been lax in reducing exposures to such well-known developmental toxins as methyl mercury, PCBs and lead," said Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, the committee's chairman.

Glenn said the report leaves little doubt that Americans aren't sufficiently protected against those toxins.

The GAO said reproductive problems were given a low priority, information was limited and people assumed things were being taken care of by other regulations.

Bono announces Senate candidacy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sonny Bono, opening himself wide to one-liners from the late-night talk show comics, has entered the race for U.S. Senate.

"It's no joke," the mayor of Palm Springs said Tuesday in announcing his candidacy for the Republican nomination.

"I may have to wear that Sonny and Cher thing for a while, but I'll overcome that. I just think that if I talk to people, I'll overcome that."

Bono, 56, is vying for the seat held by retiring Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston and enters what is shaping up to be a colorful GOP primary race featuring TV commentator Bruce Herschensohn and U.S. Rep. Tom Campbell.

The one-time impresario and comic foil of the '60s duo Sonny and Cher has served nearly four years as mayor. But support within the GOP is minimal.

He supports abortion rights and a U.S. energy policy that would make immediate offshore oil drilling in California unnecessary.

Cars banned as air pollution rises

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Air pollution reached a record level in Athens Tuesday, prompting the government to ban private cars from the city center for a second day.

The official PERPA environmental agency reported that nitrogen dioxide had reached a record level and other pollutants such as carbon monoxide and ozone also were at high levels.

A brown pollution cloud, known in Athens as the "Nefos," forms when vehicle and industrial emissions combine with warm, still weather in this mountain-ringed capital of about four million people.

The independent PAKOE environmental agency reported that 647 people sought medical treatment for heart and breathing problems exacerbated by the pollution.

Food survey was botched

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has botched its national food survey, according to a recent report from Congress' General Accounting Office. That's important because the department's analysis of what Americans eat is conducted only once every 10 years; the results are used to set a wide range of health standards as well as the flow of billions of dollars in federal assistance.

USDA's Nationwide Food Consumption survey is used to set rules on how much pesticide residue can be left on fresh fruits and vegetables. It helps the government determine which foods to provide through food stamp and school lunch programs. It provides the basis for labels on packaged food that tell how much nutritional value there is in an "average serving." And it's the grist from which advertisers, health experts and food processors fashion their recommendations for new products or other changes in the American diet.

The GAO discovered, however, that the company the government hired to conduct the survey — National Analysts, Inc., in Philadelphia — collected $6.2 million for its efforts but received very few questionnaires.

In fact, the response rate to the survey was so low that the GAO says there's no reason to think the results are in any way representative of the population. And even USDA's own nutrition information service recommends against using the data.

Part of the problem, particularly for a survey that focuses to a large extent on low-income households, is that the questionnaire the analysts were using took three hours to fill out. Many of the questions required people to keep a detailed record of what they ate over several days. And those who bothered to complete the form only got $2 for their trouble.

The GAO doesn't want the government to spend more millions doing the survey all over again. Instead, it proposes attaching a strongly worded warning to any document that uses this data. And for the future, it suggests that the Agriculture Department should try to do things right the next time. That's certainly something the bureaucrats in Washington could chew on.

Everyone can imagine own sequel

Lewis Grizzard

Frankly, my dear, I think we could have done quite well without a sequel to "Gone With the Wind."

If Margaret Mitchell had wanted to take the story any further she wouldn't have stopped writing when she did. An author instinctively knows when his or her book is finished. It's when he or she has nothing left to say.

Regardless of what I think, of course, there is still a GWTW sequel, "Scarlett: The Sequel to Margaret Mitchell's 'Gone With the Wind.'"

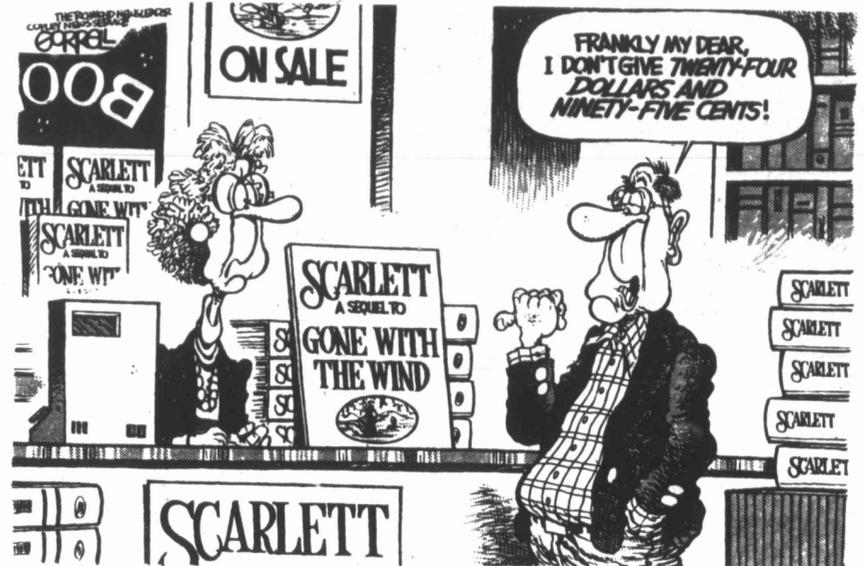

It was written by Alexandra Ripley, believe it or not, and, according to the report I read, will be launched in 40 countries at a cost of $24.95 a copy, pretty steep for an ad-on.

But I think I'll pass on it. Nothing against Alexandra Ripley, but I thought the end to Margaret Mitchell's Old South epic was quite tidy. When Rhett dismissed Scarlett and walked away into the Georgia sunset, I thought, what a great place to end a novel.

If there were to be sequels, I think they should have been conjured by the minds of millions who fell under GWTW's spell.

I know I have my own version of what happened after Rhett's departure and I'm satisfied with it. Mine fits me and yours fits you. Too bad it couldn't have been left like that.

What happens in Alexandra Ripley's sequel written in these days and times? Scarlett runs for Congress? Opens a health spa and leads aerobic classes?

Not that anybody gives a damn but me, but just for the record, here's how I see what took place after the war for Scarlett and Rhett.

I had just about had it with Scarlett by the time the original GWTW ended, the spoiled little twerp.

I don't think she was all that great-looking in the first place. Go to any of Atlanta's internationally acclaimed nude dancing parlors and you can find a dozen ballerinas who would turn Rhett's eyes away from Miss Tiny Waist.

Secondly, Scarlett was a great pain in the old wazoo. Always crying, pouting, and being the "B" word she most certainly was.

In my mind's sequel, Scarlett gets what she deserves. I see her growing old, living alone with a bunch of cats and drinking gin all day. It serves her right. Rhett loved her, was good to her, and would have bought her a new Mercedes convertible if she would have just hushed occasionally.

But, nooooo. She pushed him and pushed him, and as much as I'm against a man physically abusing a woman, I wouldn't have been that upset if Rhett had given her a little kick on the shin when he did his Hank Snow and moved on.

Rhett, in my sequel, returns to Charleston and becomes a successful real estate developer, building beachfront condos and golf courses.

He marries a sweet woman named Priscilla or Betty Lou Anne Sue, and they have a son, Brett, who grows up to play the outfield for the first professional baseball team in Charleston, the Carpetbaggers.

Brett's great great grand-son, as a matter of fact, follows in his namesake's footsteps and becomes the starting centerfielder for the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1991.

Several years after Rhett left Scarlett, by the way, the South seceded from the Union again, but this time there was no war.

For its independence, the South agreed to give the North Hilton Head Island, S.C., which to this very day is a popular resort for Northern tourists who are afraid to go to Miami Beach anymore.

Prissy, meanwhile, becomes a noted gynecologist.

That's my sequel and I'm sticking to it.

Everyone involved with police issue

To the editor:

I attended Tuesday night's city council meeting. Most of the speakers were dismissed as "not important" by our mayor because they were somehow involved with our police department. I believe this mayor thinks anyone who does not agree with his views is not important. Frankly, Mr. Mayor, everyone in this town is involved with this police department. They are responsible for protecting each one of us. There are close to 900 signatures on the petition that was circulated through town. I suppose those people were "not important" either.

Mr. Ladd Smith believes the citizens of Big Spring are out of bounds with this petition. Unfortunately several members of the city council are not listening to the citizens they were elected to serve.

Mr. Green, I do not understand why you feel it is unconstitutional for the voters to decide this issue. Isn't that what a democracy is all about?

I, for one, am proud that we have an excellent police force.

This is not Mayberry RFD. We do not have one town drunk who is on foot all the time. We usually have several intoxicated drivers on the road each night and they come fully equipped with cars.

According to the editor's note in the Big Spring Herald last week (below a letter written by Chawndra Freeman), there is no plan to close the facility which holds intoxicated drivers. Come on — one holding tank is not the equivalent of a city jail. I suppose you think you could put the ocean in a goldfish bowl, too.

I have taught my daughter to call 911 if she needs help. If we need a police officer, I do not want to be told that there are no units available. My children will be brought up in a town with an adequate police department. If the mayor has his way, Big Spring will not be that town.

Can Big Spring afford to lose citizens and businesses?

We want to build new schools because we want to attract new businesses to the area. They will not move to Big Spring unless they can be reasonably assured of police protection.

The Big Spring Police Department needs our help and support. Raise your voices, Big Spring. Let the officers know we care! They place their lives on the line every time they respond to a call or stop someone for a traffic violation. They support our children in groups like D-FY-IT and the adopt-a-cop program.

Call your city council members; call your mayor! It's doubtful he will listen, but it's worth a shot, anyway. Let them know they cannot get away with this. Let them know that on November 5 you will go to the polls and vote Yes for the Police Department.

The last day to register is October 4 if you are not a registered voter, register today.

Vote for a safe Big Spring.

VICKI AND JERRY PARNELL
403 Dallas

Editor's note: After this letter was written, the city council voted to postpone the proposed Nov. 5 charter amendment referendum until Jan. 18. The Fraternal Order of Police is seeking a writ of mandamus in order to keep the Nov. 5 date.

Letters

Letters to the editor on issues of general interest always are welcomed by the Big Spring Herald and always are printed if these guidelines are followed:

Letters should be typewritten if possible, and double-spaced. If not, the handwriting must be legible to reduce chances for mistakes.

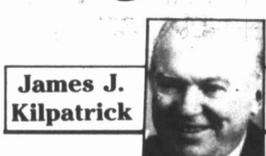

Letters are subject to editing, but the essence of the writer's message will not be altered. Long letters may be cut because of space limitations.

Bush's stunning announcement

WASHINGTON — Remember when they called him a nerd? When he was mocked as the gutless wonder? Does everyone recall those days in 1988 when critics said George Bush was indecisive? The caricature came back to mind Friday evening, when the real George Bush stood up.

James J. Kilpatrick

His pledges of nuclear disarmament are stunning. They also are unconditional. These are not qualified proposals, hanging upon the contingency of complementary Soviet response. The president is acting unilaterally, on his own, as commander in chief.

"I am therefore directing that the United States eliminate its entire worldwide inventory of theater nuclear weapons... The United States will withdraw all tactical nuclear weapons from its surface ships and attack submarines... I am directing that all U.S. strategic bombers immediately stand down from their alert posture... I am terminating the development of the mobile Peacekeeper ICBM..."

It is a fair assumption that before announcing these steps, Bush privately had obtained assurances from Mikhail Gorbachev and Boris Yeltsin that the Soviet leaders would respond in kind. The threat of nuclear holocaust has not ended — in some degree it will never end — but overnight that awful, awesome possibility has been greatly diminished.

In this cynical city, cynical motives at once are assigned to Bush's initiative. Since the pinnacles of Desert Storm, the president's approval rating has been steadily dropping. Meanwhile several Democrats have announced plausible candidacies against him in 1992. To regain the spotlight, and to emphasize the inexperience of his prospective opponents, Friday's address was a useful political ploy.

It is further objected that the key proposals really are old stuff. Paul Nitze was trying to sell Ronald Reagan and Caspar Weinberger on naval nuclear disarmament six years ago. The mobile ICBM already was in trouble on Capitol Hill. Bush just got in front of the wave. Remembering how he was criticized for timidity in recognizing the Baltic nations, Bush in this instance wanted to show his leadership. And so on.

A simpler explanation is much closer to the mark. Bush felt the time had come to match the dramatic events in the Soviet Union with a dramatic response here at home. He wanted to maintain what he once called the "Big Mo," i.e., the Big Momentum. The Soviet people are in for a rough winter, both literally and metaphorically. If their morale can be lifted by lessening the tensions of nuclear arms, so much the better. When Americans are surfeited with bad economic news, it makes sense to take to the TV tube with some good news.

Bush's directives are indeed good news. These nuclear artillery shells, these nuclear missiles, these shipborne nuclear bombs are not merely to be withdrawn. For the most part they are to be dismantled and destroyed. Many nuclear weapons will remain — the exact numbers and descriptions will not be made public — but these weapons will be "secured in central areas where they would be available if necessary in a future crisis."

Perhaps that point should be emphasized. Bush's unilateral decisions will not leave the United States naked to nuclear assault. The atomic bomb that destroyed Hiroshima in 1945 was a pathetic little popgun. Its destructive power was roughly the equivalent of only 18,000 tons of TNT; it killed only 98,000 persons and wiped out only a single city. Our nuclear arsenals are now thought to contain the rough equivalent of 4 billion tons of TNT. After Bush's terminations, it will be half as much. Maybe 2 billion tons. Surely the remaining nuclear weapons are enough — more than enough! — for any foreseeable mission. It never has made sense for the United States and the Soviet Union to maintain nuclear arsenals of sufficient power to destroy the planet Earth. Once the president's initial steps have been completed, work should begin toward further reductions.

Bush anticipated that his decisions would set off a renewed cry for a "peace dividend." Eventually there will be savings from a reduced level of nuclear arms, but the savings will not be immense. Significant savings would come from cancellation of such needless ventures as the $2 billion super-submarine Seawolf.

Some of the soundest advice ever given to a leader was given to the fearless maid in Spenser's "The Faerie Queen": "Be bold! Be bold! Be not too bold! Friday evening George Bush acted perfectly on that advice. Let us rejoice.

Eat right Give your heart a break

The American Heart Association along with local board member and dietician Marcia Merrell want us all to eat heart healthy by following a diet low in fat and cholesterol.

Last week was the American Heart Association's Food Festival.

The American Heart's Food Festival is a week long nutrition awareness program to increase public awareness of the relationship between nutrition and heart health through education.

Two local business women participated in keeping track of their menus for three days.

Justice of the peace China Long and business woman Johnnie Lou Avery wrote down every item they consumed during the three day experiment. Administrative dietician Marcia Merrell looked at the ladies' diets and analyzed them for percentages of fat and calories.

"Overall both ladies ate good balanced diets," said Merrell.

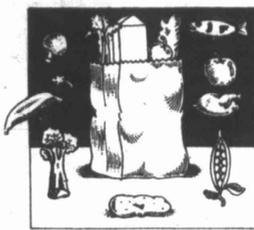

"Avery might need a little more fruit in her daily intake," said Merrell. "She ate a few foods that were pretty high in fat. She should limit those type things to once a day."

"China Long doesn't seem to eat very much," said Merrell. "Although her calories from fat are very close to what the Heart Association recommends, she lacks a few things in her diet."

"She is such a little person that her body may be able to maintain itself on the little bit that she eats but as a woman she definitely needs to take in more calcium and protein."

Information on eating heart healthy can be obtained through the American Heart Association by writing P.O. Box 15186, Austin, TX. 78761.

Eating a healthy diet is not as boring as it used to be. There are plenty of good recipes that are easy to prepare. The recipes listed below all come straight from the American Heart Association. So eat, it can't hurt.

Kids need calories

WASHINGTON (AP)—Children have barely a chance of eating nutritiously, given the onslaught of unhealthy food from manufacturers and advertisers, but parents are not powerless, says the editor of the surgeon general's report on nutrition and health.

"Somehow, we have abandoned control over children's dietary intake," said Marion Nestle, now chairwoman of the food, nutrition and hotel management department at New York University.

"Our children deserve a more nutritional start," said Nestle, who was staff director for nutrition policy when she edited the 1988 government report.

To provide that, Nestle made several suggestions at a recent conference sponsored by the Center for Science in the Public Interest:

— Governments, schools and parents should work together to make sure schools serve healthier meals.

— Adults should insist that manufacturers improve food marketed to children and that food chains provide nutritionally balanced meals for children.

— Adults should insist that government support meaningful nutritional education and regulate television ads.

A society that cares more about good health than profit would oppose advertising designed to increase children's consumption of junk food, Louis W. Sullivan, Health and Human Services secretary, said at the conference.

"I am not proposing that we try to legally restrict this type of advertising, but it is appropriate for us to question the wisdom behind it, and to ask the food industry and advertisers to act more responsibly," Sullivan said.

His comments followed a report last month from CSPI which said that of 222 food ads recorded during four hours of Saturday morning children's shows on five stations, just nine were for products considered nutritious.

"Ninety percent were for exactly the kinds of foods we wish children were not eating," Nestle said. "The only fruit is in the Fruit Loops and Fruity Pebbles."

Children ages 1 to 5 eat more calories, drink less milk and more soft drinks and eat more snacks than children did in 1977, Nestle said. And children now have more influence on food buying.

Half of junior high school students in one study said they, not their parents, decide what they'll eat, she said.

children choose junk food," she said, because they choose foods that are familiar — what their parents and peers eat, what they eat at school, and what they see on television.

Victoria Leonard of CSPI's Children's Nutrition Project said there are some positive signs in efforts to improve school lunch programs and day care center meals, as well as in home economics classes, where high school students are being taught nutrition and about good-tasting healthy foods.

But many adults, she said, don't realize how poorly their children are eating.

"You'd never start a meal with a kid with two candy bars, but people do start a meal with soda pop, and it's the sugar equivalent," she said.

She suggests parents talk to their children about what they eat, and make rules such as no snacking while watching television. Parents also should set aside a place in the refrigerator for healthy snacks their children like, such as fruit, sandwiches, yogurt, or cut-up vegetables and dip.

But parents shouldn't worry, however, about the fact that their children eat between meals, said Dr. Ronald Kleinman.

Credit card holders beware

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Ellen," whose 75-year-old friend was out $4,000 (her credit cards were stolen and she was duped by a phone call into not reporting it), and anyone else who has in their possession even one credit card: Read your credit agreement!

Your maximum liability for unauthorized use is $50 per credit card. Prompt reporting also helps, as you cannot be charged for any purchases made with that card after you have notified the card issuer. That could mean even less than $50.

The sob stories about people who have lost "thousands," with all due respect to this elderly woman, make me ill. Was she carrying 80 cards? Otherwise, her liability could nowhere approach $4,000. More likely, she just didn't know her rights and responsibilities. And shame on Ellen for merely reporting her plight instead of finding out what her friend's rights were.

Also, those other "wonderful" folks who offer (for a sizable fee) to keep records of all your credit cards and notify the issuer if the cards are lost or stolen are a rip-off. You can do the same thing yourself for nothing if you'll just keep a record of each card number and the telephone number to call in the event of loss, etc. The numbers are usually toll-free and are printed on your credit agreement and on the card itself. Just make sure you write it down and file it, because you won't have the card to refer to after it's stolen. — HOME ECONOMIST IN WOODRIDGE, ILL.

DEAR HOME ECONOMIST: I'm sure the woman who unnecessarily paid out $4,000 because she did not know her rights/responsibilities would have been grateful to have had your reminder at the time.

But credit card registries perform a real service for people who are not as well-organized as you — and might be too shaken by their loss to think clearly. For a small annual fee, one telephone call is all a person has to make. And for some, that can be very reassuring.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had the pleasure of attending two lovely church weddings recently. We arrived early to ensure getting aisle seats so we could get a clear view of the bride and wedding procession as they came down the aisle. (You can probably guess my question at this point.)

A few minutes before the ceremony was to begin, the usher brought some late arrivers to our row and we were then forced to move down to the middle of the pew. How rude! Abby, please inform the young or ignorant for me what is proper and courteous. I have looked in your wedding booklet and cannot find the proper way to handle this. — M.L.B. IN MIDLOTHIAN, VA.

DEAR M.L.B.: When an usher asks you to "move down, please," tell him (or her) politely and quietly that you arrived early to get an aisle seat, thank you. Then stand up and allow the latecomers to walk past you to the middle — or end — of the pew.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Puzzled in Florida" who couldn't decide how to list her daughter's race, since she is half-white and half-Chinese.

I am a white American; my wife is a black Jamaican. When I filled out the census form, I, too, was puzzled. Our sons are neither white nor black — certainly not Oriental — and much more is implied by "other."

Our oldest son resolved the problem by saying, "Dad, we are 'biracial.'"

A group of similar kids and teachers in his high school formed a "biracial" social club and coined the term. It is an obvious and correct answer. Sign me as... BILL K., STATEN ISLAND, N.Y.

Small boat owners fighting new fee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roger Thiel is an easygoing guy with a small printing business and a 43-foot houseboat. But ask about the $100 annual fee the government has slapped on his beloved "Doo-wop" and suddenly he's an angry political activist.

"It's an unfair tax," Thiel, 40, said last week as he touched up the paint job on his boat at a Potomac river marina that features a partial view of the Washington Monument.

Thiel is one of 367,000 recreational boaters who have paid the fee, which Congress approved last year but which only now is being collected. He's also a member of a group lobbying to have it repealed. Millions of boaters are holding their breath. Beginning Tuesday, their assistance — or ignorance — will be tested.

The Coast Guard will begin collecting owners of boats without a decal indicating payment of fees ranging from $25 to $100. The larger the boat, the higher the fee. Vessels 16 feet and under are exempt.

The maximum penalty is $5,000, although the Coast Guard says in most cases it probably won't be that high. Officials are still working out enforcement guidelines for hearing officers who will levy fines on a case-by-case basis.

"I'd guess in most cases it won't be above $1,000," Coast Guard spokesman Tom Heflick said.

The Reagan administration tried repeatedly to levy fees on pleasure boats, but Congress never went along. Little attention was paid, however, when lawmakers slipped the provision into the $500 billion deficit-reduction package last fall.

Even now, many boaters may be unaware that the fees exist.

"I don't know anybody who's gotten a decal," said Jack Henderson, another patron at Thiel's marina. He has paid the fee for one of his three boats and says he'll keep the other two out of the water until next spring. "I don't think most people know about this," he said. "Nobody is taking it seriously."

But enough boaters do know about the fees to have flooded Congress with irate demands for repeal.

Bills to cancel the fees are pending in the House and Senate, and a recent non-binding House resolution calling for repeal passed overwhelmingly.

Boat Owners Association of the United States, a group claiming 785,000 members, filed suit in July to have the fees declared unconstitutional. No hearing has been scheduled.

WASHINGTON — Roger Thiel poses aboard his 43-foot houseboat named "Doo-wop" last weekend at the Gang Plank Marina on the Potomac River in Washington. Thiel, who owns a printing business, is angry about a new $100 annual fee slapped on recreational boat owners. Thiel is one of 367,000 recreational boat owners who have paid the fee, which Congress approved last year, but only now is being collected.

"It's arbitrary, it's unfair, it's contrary to the interests of the Coast Guard which will be taxed with collecting it," said Michael Sciuella, the association's vice president. "It deserves to be jettisoned and be buried at sea with all deliberate speed."

The Coast Guard opposes repeal. Rear Adm. Robert T. Nelson, the service's chief of staff, told a House subcommittee the fee "is intended to require that recreational boaters bear a larger share of the cost of existing Coast Guard programs from which they benefit."

However, opponents point out that money earned from the fees goes directly into the general federal treasury and isn't earmarked for navigational assistance or other boating programs.

Under the deficit-reduction law, no taxes or fees can be cut without offsetting spending cuts or revenue increases.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Mich., sponsor of the House repeal bill, has proposed charging users of the Federal Maritime Commission's computer data base. But that plan has drawn opposition as well. The bill is bottled up in the Ways and Means Committee as staffers search for an acceptable way to make up the lost revenue, Davis said.

"There's massive disapproval of the (fee) and everyone's pretty much agreed to get rid of it," he said. "The offset is the problem."

That leaves boat owners to decide whether to pay up or refuse and gamble that they won't get caught.

Coast Guard spokesman Jack O'Dell said the law will be enforced the same way as other maritime regulations. "We're not putting out special patrols, just running routine operations," he said. "If a team observes a vessel without the recreational fee decal, they'll issue a citation."

Enforcement may prove to be a bureaucratic headache.

The Congressional Budget Office originally estimated the fee would apply to 4.1 million boats and would raise $120 million a year. But the Coast Guard drew up regulations saying the fee would apply to boats "operated on navigable waters where the Coast Guard has a presence."

Setting priorities

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Poor nations would be more willing to protect their environment if rich ones would stop their glutinous consumption of resources, a Pakistani environmental expert said last week.

"You go into Western restaurants, the food wastage is appalling," said Parvez Hassen, a delegate to a regional conference leading to the United Nations' "Earth Summit" in Brazil next year.

Developing nations are aghast that Western families leave air conditioning running when no one is home, he said.

The way poor countries see it, "We'll stop burning our rain forests when you turn down your air conditioner," Hassen said.

He said poor countries feel "there has to be some adjustment of excessive consumption levels in the West" before poor countries will concentrate on environmental problems.

Poverty is the biggest obstacle to protecting the environment.

"You can't talk about environment unless grinding poverty is removed first," he said.

Former U.S. Attorney General Elliot Richardson said the Brazil conference next year is important since it is the first of its kind.

While it won't result in a detailed environmental code, it could set voluntary guidelines.

AIDS is spreading in prisons

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal study of AIDS in prisons demonstrates an urgent need for ways to stop the virus, including handing out condoms and clean needles behind bars, its authors say.

The study, conducted in Illinois state prisons by the Centers for Disease Control, confirms the long-held suspicion that inmates are becoming infected with the virus while incarcerated.

The researchers found that 9 percent of inmates who were found to be infected after a year in prison had caught the AIDS virus, or HIV, behind bars. They were assumed to have contracted the virus largely through homosexual encounters or drug abuse.

"This demonstrates an urgent need to increase HIV prevention," said Dr. Kenneth Castro of the CDC, who directed the study. Castro presented the findings Monday at a meeting of the American Society for Microbiology.

Castro recommended that inmates be given condoms, allowed to exchange dirty needles with clean ones and taught how to clean needles with bleach.

He said some prison officials oppose such measures because they might seem to condone illicit behavior.

"It's a catch 22 situation," Castro said. "Prison wardens say that if we distribute condoms, that means sex is going on, and it's not supposed to."

He said that while his proposed ways of dealing with AIDS in prisons are controversial, "if you are serious about prevention, we have to be able to discuss these things."

Company working on world record

FREMONT, Neb. (AP) — How does a pasta company get ready for an assault on the world record for the largest lasagna?

It prepares a much smaller one — 13 feet long, 7 feet wide and with enough cottage cheese to please Garfield, the pasta-devouring cartoon cat.

Workers at Shade Pasta Inc. in Fremont, 30 miles west of Omaha, spent two hours and 45 minutes putting together their experimental pan of lasagna last month.

It contained 120 pounds of ground beef, 100 pounds of cottage cheese, 72 pounds of mozzarella and 14 pounds of Parmesan cheese. It also had 32 sheets of precooked lasagna and more than 360 pounds of pasta sauce.

The company aims to make the largest-ever lasagna on Oct. 26. Cornell University students in Ithaca, N.Y., will prepare one measuring 7½ feet by 63½ feet that could feed 5,000 people, said Barbara Berry, the company's director of special projects.

A 5-foot by 50-foot pan of lasagna made in Dublin, Ireland, in May is listed in the Guinness Book of Records.

Tammy Bennett compared sprinkling the precooked hamburger to a farmer tossing feed to his chickens. She and other workers later plunged their hands into cold plastic tubs of cottage cheese and scattered it in the pan.

Wearing bright red shirts that read "No Toil . . . With No Boil," a handful of employees spread thick tomato sauce across the pan, then added 67-by-40-inch sheets of precooked noodles.

BOB AND BILL THOMAS

Armadillo returned from 4,000-mile trip

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Bob the wandering armadillo is back where he belongs following a 4,000-mile journey that brought him to Wyoming by truck and returned him home by jet and limousine.

The armadillo, nicknamed "Bob Dylan" by a Tallahassee radio station, was taken to a Florida wildlife preserve last week in a white stretch limousine after being flown from Cheyenne.

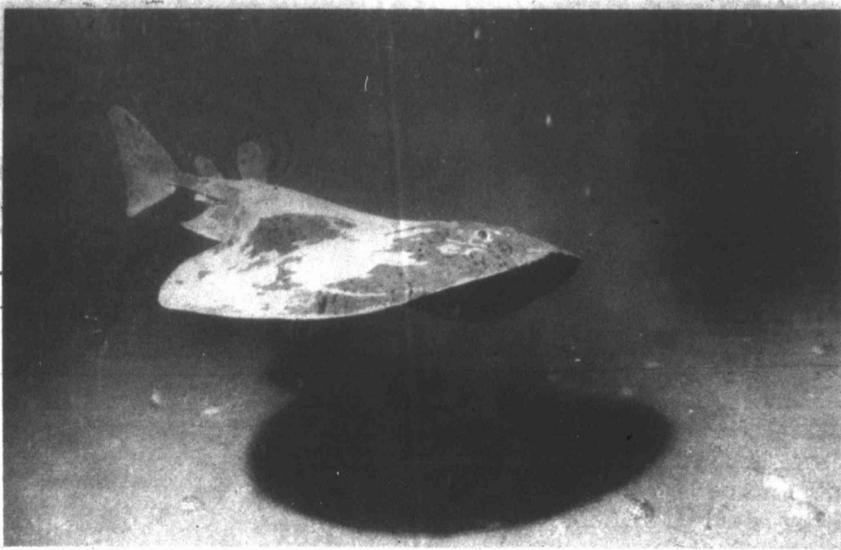

"He's ready for his ordeal to be over," said Bill Thomas, program manager for WHKX-FM, which publicized the 12-pound creature's plight. "I think he's ready to be as far away from human beings as possible."

Thomas drove to Atlanta on Tuesday night to pick up Bob, where the armadillo arrived by plane with Cheyenne veterinarian Robert Farr. Farr took care of Bob after he was discovered Saturday hiding in a batch of tires shipped by tractor-trailer from Orlando.

The truck never stopped long enough to open its trailer doors, leaving little doubt as to the armadillo's origin. Farr said the armadillo, a relative of the anteater, could not have survived in Wyoming's cold climate and didn't have the right kind of bugs to eat.

A Pacific electric ray glides through the night off the coast of Southern California in search of a meal. Electric rays are found in oceans worldwide. The largest can deliver shocks equal to household current.

Electric rays command respect

By DONALD SMITH
National Geographic
For AP Special Features

LONG BEACH, Calif. — They glide through the night-dark water, silent and nearly invisible, wings primed with deadly lightning bolts. Woe to the fish or human that finds itself the target of an electric ray.

"They're the stealth bombers of the deep," says biologist Richard N. Bray of California State University, Long Beach, holding up photographs of a ray and of the radar-evading warplane. "They even look alike."

Long the object of wonder and speculation, these mysterious nocturnal creatures only recently have begun to be studied in their natural habitat, the open ocean. Scientists like Bray, using sophisticated electronic equipment and videotape, are continually surprised by what they're seeing.

"We're learning about their attack patterns," says Bray. "We used to think their movements were pretty limited. Now, by tracking with telemetry, we find that they range over large distances."

This information could be of special interest to divers. The largest electric rays can deliver shocks equivalent to household current. They're known to zap people as well as fish. Although no fatalities are documented, rays are suspected in some cases in which divers have died unaccountably in areas where the animals are found.

"They aren't normally aggressive toward humans," says neurochemist Stanley Parsons of California State University, Santa Barbara. "But they are naturally curious. They've been known to follow divers just out of sight, above and behind. When the diver starts to rise to the surface, he may rise right into the ray's stomach." Which could be like sticking one's head into a large light-bulb socket.

Ancient Greeks used electric rays as torture devices. In the early 19th century, physicians experimented with them as a form of shock therapy.

Today they are proving to be a valuable tool for biomedical research. Because of the peculiar structure and properties of their electricity-generating organs, they are yielding vital information about such maladies as Parkinson's disease, muscular dystrophy and Alzheimer's disease.

Electric rays are one of several kinds of fish that make their own electricity. Another well-known shocker is the electric eel.

They're found in every ocean. One species, the Atlantic's gigantic Torpedo nobiliana, grows as long as 6 feet and weighs up to 200 pounds.

Ever since Charles Darwin published his theories of natural selection in the mid-1800s, scientists have puzzled over how and why certain fish evolved electricity-producing organs. The prevailing theory is that they first were used for navigation.

Some species of fish still use relatively weak electrical discharges for that purpose. At some point, electric rays and eels made the jump to using the discharges as weapons, both for hunting and as a defense.

"To our knowledge electric rays have no predators, including sharks, which are extremely sensitive to electrical fields," says Bray, whose work is supported partly by the National Geographic Society. "The only kind of fish that will attack an electric ray is a dumb fish."

Smart fish, Bray believes, learn by experience to leave electric rays alone.

"One time I was diving in an area off Santa Barbara," he says. "I saw an electric ray swimming along. At the same time a harbor seal swooped down playfully to see what I was doing. The seal saw the ray and did a double take. It took one look at it and then disappeared."

The physiology of electric rays and their electricity-producing organs have been studied extensively in laboratories. Organs — actually, modified muscles — are located on either side of the ray's disk-shaped body.

Each electrical discharge lasts only five-thousandths of a second. But during a predatory attack lasting four or five seconds, an animal may discharge as many as 150 times a second at 40 volts each before tapering off.

Bray recalls accidentally swimming up into a ray. It rewarded him with three quick shocks to the top of the head.

"It really hurt," he says. "But what really discouraged me is that it was one of the smallest electric rays I'd ever seen at that reef, maybe only 18 inches across."

Once a fish has been stunned in a full-fledged attack, the ray wrestles it into its mouth — which, though relatively small, is very elastic. Rays dine on everything from tiny anchovies to large bass.

One story that has found its way into electric-ray lore concerns a dog that lived along Cape Cod, Mass. It was trained to help surf fishermen retrieve their catch. One day the dog tangled with an electric ray that had been hooked by accident.

After much howling, the dog retreated to the shore. It never went near the surf again.

Alcohol often linked to family breakups

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alcoholism and problem drinking appear to play an important role in the breakup of American families, a new government survey finds.

Separated and divorced people are three times as likely as those with intact marriages to say they were married to an alcoholic or a problem drinker, said the survey, released Monday.

Also, nearly 56 percent of separated or divorced people said they had been exposed to alcoholism in their families at some time in their lives, compared with 43 percent of married people.

"Although many marriages survive the effects of alcoholism, either because the alcoholic seeks help or because the family accommodates to the alcoholic drinking, it is clear that a large number of marriages dissolve in the face of alcoholism," the study said.

The survey was conducted by the National Center for Health Statistics and the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism. The survey found that overall, 76 million Americans — about 43 percent of the adult population — had some contact with alcoholism in their family.

About 18 percent said they had lived with an alcoholic or problem drinker while growing up.

These estimates may be too low, researchers said, because they do not include exposure to non-blood relatives unless the respondent grew up with them and because many families with alcoholics tend to deny the problem until it becomes unmanageable.

The survey also found that nearly 10 percent of adults have been married to or had a marriage-like relationship with an alcoholic or problem drinker.

About 38 percent of American adults have at least one blood relative who was ever an alcoholic or problem drinker, according to the survey.

The economic costs of alcoholism are also large.

Studies: AIDS spreading among poor teens

CHICAGO (AP) — The AIDS virus appears to be spreading quickly among poor teen-agers, particularly dropouts, and is reaching especially alarming levels among girls, studies show.

Experts say they have detected a dramatic increase in the level of infection among teen-agers over the past year or two.

One study in Washington found that over 1 percent of the city's adolescents are now infected, and the disease appears to be spreading through heterosexual encounters in these youngsters.

"It's a surprise and a concern," said Dr. George A. Conway of the Centers for Disease Control.

Research presented by Conway and others Tuesday at a meeting of the American Society of Microbiology documents increasing rates of infection with HIV, the AIDS virus, in all racial groups, but especially blacks.

The largest amount of new data comes from the Job Corps, a job-training program for poor young people, many of them dropouts. Participants, who range in age from 16 to 21, are required to take AIDS tests.

The CDC analyzed results of tests on 51,358 females and 118,086 males from cities and rural areas across the country.

They found that between 1988 and 1990, the infection rate doubled among females and declined slightly among males. Young females are now one and a half times more likely than males to carry the virus.

Conway said the figures show "high and increasing levels of HIV infection" in poor young women.

Overall, the infection rate among female Job Corps recruits rose from 0.21 percent in 1988 to 0.41 percent in 1990. Infection among males fell from 0.36 percent to 0.27 percent.

Conway said these infection rates are about three times higher than those seen among military recruits who are the same age but better educated.

The problem appears to be especially great among blacks. More than 1 percent of black Job Corps recruits were infected by age 21. In this age group, black women are 10 times as likely as whites to be infected and men are three times as likely.

In the Washington study, Dr. Lawrence G. D'Angelo of Children's Hospital estimated AIDS infections among District of Columbia teen-agers from anonymously drawn blood samples of emergency room patients.

Blood from more than 11,000 youngsters has been tested. The infection rate grew from 0.4 percent in 1987 to 1.3 percent now.

"We may be facing a heterosexual epidemic," he said.

Until now, AIDS in the United States has spread primarily in three ways: through homosexual acts, through sharing dirty needles and from male drug abusers to their female sexual partners. Now, however, D'Angelo said it appears that teen-age boys in Washington are catching the virus from sex with girls and then infecting other girls, who pass it on again.

"These kids are not doing anything that we would usually identify as high-risk behavior," he said. He said that most of the youngsters tested were poor, and 90 percent were black.

However, Dr. Noni E. MacDonald of Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario said the same risk exists for youngsters of all races across the United States and Canada.

She surveyed sexual habits among dropouts in Canada and found that many teen-agers have had several sexual partners. Nine percent of dropouts who live at home and 25 percent who live on the streets have been treated for sexually transmitted diseases.

The community has been extremely receptive, said Linda Frazier, chairman of the coalition's by-laws committee. "We keep hearing things such as 'it's about time,' and 'I am so glad this is taking place. I have been wanting to do something like this.'"

The coalition's success at the Howard County Fair and the success of Mother Earth's city-wide appearances is a strong indication that the Big Spring community is eager to support projects focused on aiding the environment.

"At the fair we had more than 100 entries in our contest," said April Ferguson. "I also have been making daily appearances, sometimes twice a day, as Mother Earth at schools, civic clubs and church organizations."

At the fair contestants were asked to enter a name, logo, slogan of mascot for the coalition to use during their Oct. 5 recyclable collection.

The winner was Donise Coonrod of Ira with the acronym, HOPE, which stands for "Helping Our Precious Environment." It will be on display Saturday during the collection.

The coalition is anticipating a good show on Saturday and has tentatively set the day for the next collection as Nov. 2.

possibly American ones, were involved in Iraq's efforts to develop nuclear weapons. Israeli reports have named Yugoslavia, Algeria and Pakistan as countries that aided Iraq's program.

Gallucci noted that the collected data were still being analyzed at the International Atomic Energy Agency headquarters in Vienna. He stressed his remarks were based on what he saw personally.

The chairman of the U.N. Special Commission, Ambassador Rolf Ekeus, is to fly to Baghdad on Friday seeking better cooperation with U.N. inspectors.

Gallucci said he expected Ekeus to discuss the documents as well as the U.N. team's detention.

U.N. experts also are searching for the mastermind of Iraq's $10 billion nuclear weapons program. U.N. officials have reportedly said they believe there were one or more masterminds behind the program — possibly foreigners.

Asked about that, Kay said in a brief encounter with reporters at his hotel: "I really have no idea. It's an open question we are looking into..."

"It is one of the reasons we are interested in looking at the administrative structure and getting the records, names, educational background of the people to find out who was in charge."

Promoters want Big Spring dirt

An unusual state-wide campaign will hit Big Spring Wednesday when promoters from "The Great Fiesta Texas Dirt Roundup" will dig a shovel of dirt from the Howard County courthouse lawn to be added to dirt gathered from counties around the state.

Fiesta Texas ambassadors 'Davy Crockett' and 'Gregorio Esparza' will gather the earth to be used in "The Texas State Square" at Fiesta Texas, a $100 million musical showpark in San Antonio. The park is scheduled to open next spring and will feature history, music and culture of Texas in four themed villages — Los Festales (Hispanic), Crackaxe Canyon (Western), Rockville (Nostalgic 1950s rock 'n' roll) and Spassburg (German).

The 200-acre showpark will highlight more than 60 live musicals daily on seven theater stages, both air conditioned and open aired. A variety of rides, children's attractions, restaurants and retail shops will also reflect the theme of the park.

The ambassadors will be digging at 1 p.m. during a special ceremony at Pocket Park next to the Annex on Main Street.

All counties in Texas are being visited and excavated by the ambassadors. Promoters include Chevrolet, Coca-Cola and Diamond Shamrock. The park is a partnership between La Cantera Group Inc. and Hospitality and Leisure Management Co., a subsidiary of Opryland U.S.A.

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor Since things are going so well, how about a little Big Spring Steers football trivia?

Before this year, when was the last time the Big Spring Steers began the football season 4-0? It was in 1965 under coach Don Robbins.

Another interesting fact about Steer football: Big Spring beat Odessa Permian three straight years — 1962-64.

Maybe we'll talk about the not-so-happy times in later editions. Thanks, Craig Fisher. Troubled times in Red Raider land where Texas Tech has slipped to a 1-3 record.

Both the New York Giants and San Francisco 49ers have 2-3 records, Dykes said Monday.

Those teams have a way of not going into the tank or throwing in the towel when they get down, and I don't think this (Tech) team will. I think this team will respond," said Dykes.

Tech played a masterful three quarters against the unbeaten Horned Frogs.

The fourth quarter did Tech in, however. A controversial pass interference call led to the Horned Frogs' go-ahead touchdown drive.

The Red Raiders had rebounded from lackluster losses to Oregon and Wyoming by playing their best three quarters of football against the Frogs.

Over the past three years, Tech has been known for having an offense more than adept at scoring points.

It doesn't get any easier Saturday. The Red Raiders play Texas A&M at Lubbock.

A plus for Tech is the return of wide receiver Rodney Blackshear, who was injured in the season-opening win over Cal-State Fullerton.

The bad news is that Tech's defense has allowed four touchdowns per game in the three losses. The A&M defense has 13 quarterback sacks in three games.

For all you loyal Tech fans, here's hoping the Red Raiders can put together four quarters of football.

Tuesday's key district tennis match between Big Spring and the Andrews Mustangs turned out to be a trip around town.

Andrews made a strong move toward unseating Big Spring of the district championship by defeating Big Spring 9-7 Tuesday night.

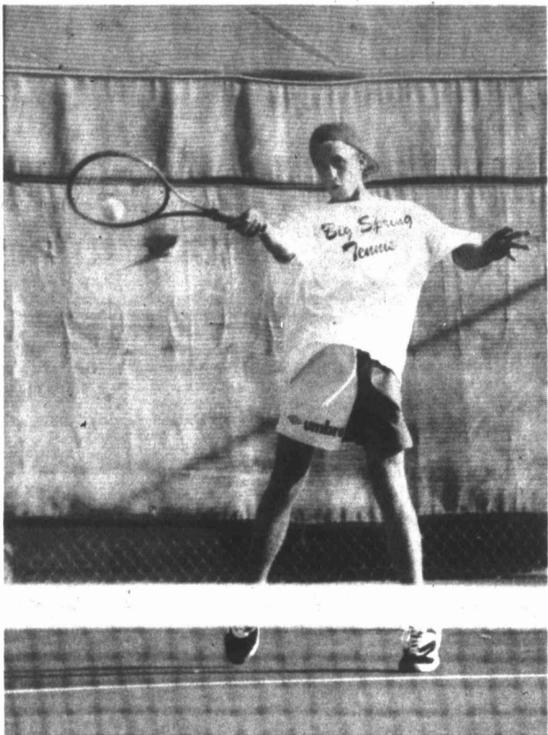

It was a closely contested match which lasted nine-and-one half hours and took the teams on voyages in town.

The match was switched to the VA center because of darkness. Figure Seven Tennis Center has lights, but no electricity.

Nothing changes between Braves and Dodgers

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

If the Los Angeles Dodgers and Atlanta Braves are feeling pennant pressure, they're sure not showing it.

With four games to go for both teams, Los Angeles still leads by one game in the NL West.

All Atlanta did Tuesday night was rally from a 6-0 first-inning deficit against Cincinnati's Jose Rijo, who hasn't lost a game at Riverfront Stadium all year.

"Any time you're in first place or fighting for it, you've got to have games like this," said Braves manager Bobby Cox, who repeatedly shook his head in disbelief.

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, the Dodgers took the field for the third straight night knowing they needed a victory to keep sole possession of first place.

"The main thing for us to do is win ballgames," Strawberry said. "We have four games left, we're playing good right now. If we win the next four, it will be ours.

Of the Braves' four last-inning comeback wins, this one faced the longest odds of all.

The Braves fell behind 6-0 in the first, highlighted by Joe Oliver's first career grand slam.

But Atlanta used a couple of ragged plays by Mariano Duncan,

Blue Jays clinch tie for divisional championship

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

A lot of people have been waiting a long time for what could happen tonight in Toronto.

"We're almost down to the final say-so," Carter said after the Blue Jays clinched a tie for the AL East title Tuesday night.

"It's something I've been waiting for my whole career. It's just a matter of getting it done."

Like Tom Candiotti. "I think any pitcher here would wish he had the chance," said Candiotti, who will start this evening against California.

"I just feel fortunate that it happens to fall on my turn."

The Blue Jays have enough advance ticket sales for tonight's home finale at SkyDome to become the first team to reach the 4 million mark in attendance.

The Red Sox lost to Detroit 8-5 Tuesday night, cutting Toronto's magic number to one. The Blue Jays lead by 4 1/2 games and have just four games left, while Boston has five remaining.

American League

Candiotti, Carter and Alomar are new to Toronto this season.

Guzman (10-2) gave up one run on five hits in seven innings. His winning streak surpassed the mark of nine straight victories set by Dave Stieb in 1988.

"I try not to think about Rookie of the Year or breaking the record," Guzman said. "I just want to get hitters out."

Kelly Gruber hit a pair of RBI singles off Mike Fetters (2-5). The Blue Jays scored three runs in the fifth for a 4-0 lead, capped when Pat Borders bowled over catcher Ron Tingley with an elbow to the face, knocking him out of the game.

"I wish my catcher had dumped the runner. He had a perfect chance," said Angels manager Buck Rodgers, a former tough-guy catcher. "You dip your shoulder and flip him on his back and he doesn't wake up until tomorrow morning. That's something we're going to have to work on in spring training."

Tigers 8, Red Sox 5 Roger Clemens lost for the first time in eight weeks and Boston fell for the seventh time in nine games.

Pete Inavaglia hit a three-run homer. Dave Bergman hit a two-run drive and Travis Fryman had a solo shot, just the third time in Clemens' career that he has given up three homers in a game.

Clemens (18-9) lasted only five innings at Fenway Park and left trailing 6-0. The Red Sox tried to rally against Frank Tanana (12-12), finishing him with three unearned runs in the sixth.

Wade Boggs' second double of the game set up Jody Reed's two-run in the ninth. But Detroit reliever Mike Henneman closed it out, and almost closed out Boston's season.

Athletics 4, Royals 0 Jose Canseco hit his 44th home run, moving one ahead of Cecil Fielder for the major league lead, as Oakland won in Kansas City. Canseco hit a solo home run in the fourth inning. Mark McGwire later added his 22nd homer, helping Mike Moore (17-8) win his fifth straight decision.

Moore gave up five hits in 7 1/3 innings and extended his scoreless streak to 24 1/3 innings. Joe Klink and Dennis Eckersley completed the shutout, with Eckersley getting his 43rd save. Mark Gubicza (9-12) was the loser.

Twins 3, White Sox 2 Kirby Puckett's solo home run broke an eighth-inning tie and Minnesota won in Chicago.

Puckett hit his 15th homer off Melido Perez (8-7). Reliever Mark Guthrie (7-5) was the winner and Rick Aguilera got his 41st save.

Carlton Fisk ended an 0-for-30 slump with an RBI double, his 2,300th career hit, for the White Sox. Shane Mack singled home a run in the seventh off Chicago starter Wilson Alvarez, tying it at 2.

Mariners 8, Rangers 1 Jay Buhner hit his 26th homer and Greg Briley lined a three-run triple as Seattle won in Texas. Dave Burba (2-2) allowed three hits in six innings. Calvin Jones pit-

Lady Steers play better in losing effort

SEMINOLE — Big Spring Lady Steers coach Lois Ann McKenzie found some positive things in Big Spring's 15-6, 15-13 loss to Seminole Tuesday night.

McKenzie said she was worried about the timing of the game. "I was kind of worried playing a non-district game in the middle of district," she said.

"The first game wasn't as bad as the score sounds. We had some breakdowns. We nearly pulled off the second game and we should have, but we played better."

One out later, Justice came to bat and pulled his 21st homer deep over the right-field wall, only the fourth homer that Dibble has allowed this season, to keep the heat on LA. For Dibble, it was his fifth blown save in six chances.

"I think somebody wants us to win this thing other than our teammates," Braves catcher Greg Olson said.

Pirates 2, Mets 1 John Smiley became a 19-game winner in a relief role as Pittsburgh beat New York at Three Rivers Stadium.

Smiley (19-8) came into a 1-1 game to relieve Zane Smith in the fourth inning by design. The Mets' Howard Johnson stole a base to reach the 30-30 club for the third time in his career.

Cardinals 3, Expos 1 Lee Smith set an NL record with his 46th save as St. Louis beat Montreal at Busch Stadium. Smith, who got the last three outs, broke the mark of 45 set by the Cardinals' Bruce Sutter in 1984.

Phillies 6, Cubs 5 John Kruk's run-scoring single with two outs in the 13th inning lifted Philadelphia past Chicago at Veterans Stadium.

Public Notice

EXHIBIT 1

Notice of Intent by Glasscock Commissioners Court to Reapportion County Commissioners Precincts

The Federal Voting Rights Act requires county commissioner courts to meet certain requirements and in order to be in compliance with the Federal statute Glasscock County Commissioners Court has determined that new commissioner precinct lines need to be established.

The County plans to provide opportunity for all persons in the community to participate in the process by which the final boundary lines will be drawn. Comments, suggestions, and proposed plans are welcome. A public hearing on reapportioning commissioner precincts will be held on October 8 at 10:00 a.m.

Maps showing the boundaries preliminarily proposed by the County are available for No charge. These maps may be obtained from or examined at the Judge's office at Courthouse.

Any persons or group that wishes to submit a proposed redistricting plan for the commissioners court's consideration should submit the plan to the county clerk on or before October 7, so that the plan may be inspected prior to the public hearing to be held on October 8. The following criteria will be used by the commissioners court in assessing plans for adoption:

1. Any plan should not operate to dilute the voting strength of racial or language minority citizens.
2. Any plan should not fragment minority communities or pack them into districts in concentrations greater than needed to elect minority representation.
3. Any plan should be drawn to conform with geographic boundaries utilized by the Bureau of the Census in the 1990 census to the extent possible unless other reliable sources are used.
4. Any plan should be based on 1990 census data unless it can be shown that other more reliable sources were used.
5. Any districts should be composed of territory that is contiguous and reasonably compact.
6. Any plan, to the extent possible, should preserve historical boundaries, and should recognize clearly identifiable economic or community interests.

These criteria should be followed in any redistricting plans submitted for the County's consideration.

If anyone or groups would like to submit a plan or make comments or suggestions, the County is very much interested in receiving them for consideration during the redistricting process. Please feel free to call W. E. Bednar 354-2382 if you have questions about the redistricting process.

Wave bye-bye

DETROIT (AP) — The white, crystal-beaded glove worn by Michael Jackson during his "Thriller" tour has been stolen from the Motown Museum. "It's irreplaceable. We want to recover it no questions asked," said museum spokesman William Baran. "It's a one-of-a-kind piece." Jackson donated the glove along with a hat and $125,000 in 1988. The glove was stolen Tuesday from a locked case in the Michael Jackson room of the museum, situated in the house where the Motown music empire was founded in 1959. The theft took place while eight employees and two visitors were in the museum, Baran said. Jackson's 1982 "Thriller" is one of the most popular albums of all time, with more than 50 million copies sold.

Cleese takes over

NEW YORK (AP) — The

Smothers Brothers are out and comic actor John Cleese is in in new commercials for Magnavox electronic products.

The Philips Consumer Electronics Co. said Tuesday it has signed the British comedian to a two-year contract as a spokesman.

The Smothers Brothers appeared in the ads for four years. Magnavox ad director Michael Keel said the pair helped transform the brand's stodgy image into a more contemporary one with the "Smart. Very Smart" campaign.

But indications were that consumer awareness fostered by the Smothers Brothers ads had stalled.

Cleese was a member of the Monty Python comedy troupe.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE:

Look for employment opportunities to open up in travel, public relations, foreign affairs and communications. A former boss or client offers assistance in late fall. A financial venture will be successful by Christmas. Join professional organizations in January and February of 1992. Forgo making a major change next May. Late summer of 1992 is the best time to buy a new car or home.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If legal issues arise, seek the best counsel available. Luck will come through friends who are either powerful or wealthy. Self-restraint is vital. Be careful not to overindulge in food or drink.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): New creative challenges inspire you. Maintain a winning attitude in love. Physical activity tones your mind as well as your body. Practice your tennis or golf stroke. Romance begins to heat up.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can find new ways to achieve your goals now. Acting self-righteous could alienate a loved one. Be tolerant and stay in contact with old friends. Give yourself credit for a job well done.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Important choices must be made on the home front. An informal chat with your loved ones could lead to something big. The answer to a recurring question will come in the night.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Make good use of an effective communications system. Attend group events if possible. The people you reach can help raise funds or boost your social standing. Be wary of love on the rebound.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Organizing a social function boosts your popularity. Share your ideas to establish meaningful rapport with higher-ups. Stay calm when under fire. Fancy footwork puts you in the driver's seat!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Snap decisions could box you into a corner; take your time when asked to make a choice. Correspondence linked to rules or the law should be carefully assessed. Spend more time on your own.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do not be afraid to take chances! A problem can be solved if you face it squarely. Keep better tabs on your spending. A teen-ager needs tender loving care; be more supportive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A sense of humor will help you roll with the punches. Tackle a persistent problem from another angle. A fresh approach works wonders! Do not refuse an offer of help. Teamwork is favored.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Have more confidence in your speaking or writing ability. A health problem could be aggravated by worry. Check with trusted advisers before signing papers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be on the lookout for interesting financial opportunities. New work duties could lead you to the winner's circle. Make home repairs before they get more extensive. A last-minute plan pays off.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be careful what you say or write today; your words could return to haunt you. Look at the world from a loved one's eyes before passing judgment. Great tolerance is needed at home.
