Texas state fair ends Oct. 20

Big Tex, the four-story tall Texas cowboy, is making his 40th appearance at the annual State Fair of Texas. The fair, currently underway in Dallas' Fair Park, will last through Oct. 20. There will be cook-offs, a carnival, exhibits and livestock shows. Free concerts by the Oak Ridge Boys, 38 Special, the Commodores and Vince Gill are included with the price of admission. Special performances for this year include an air rodeo and bungee jumping exhibition, a dazzling laser show in the Cotton Bowl choreographed to music of "Route 66" and "God Bless the USA," and an amazing show of daredevil bike riders. For more information call 1-800-452-9292.

Social Security number required

Dependents claimed on this year's tax return who are at least one year old by the end of 1990 must have a taxpayer identification number, according to the Internal Revenue Service. The number is available from local Social Security offices by asking for Form SS-5, called "Application for a Social Security Number Card." If the number does not arrive by filing time, the return preparer should write "applied for" in the space provided for the number, IRS reported. Also, those intending to claim the child and dependent care credit must provide the name, address and taxpayer identification number of the care provider. Dependents 13 years or younger may qualify for the credit. Form W-10, "Dependent Care Provider's Identification and Certification," must be completed by the provider and the information transferred to the appropriate tax form being filed. Recall petitions on hold pending legal clarification

By MARTHA E. FLORES and GARY SHANKS Staff Writers

Support is said to be strong for the recall petition of two city council members, but petition organizers are attempting to strengthen the petition before proceeding further.

"The support has been great," said Mike Hughes, petition organizer and local businessman. "I have had people tell me that this is the recall that will work."

The petition seeks to recall Council members John Coffee and Ladd Smith for failure to respond to the citizens of Big Spring, failure to consider opposing opinions and misrepresenting the decisions of the city council.

"It has been condensed down to verifying some of the legal work," he said. "We are making sure all the affidavits are legally binding, to make sure the petition falls under the city charter guidelines and to find a binding definition of dereliction of duty."

"As soon as we find answers to these questions, we will proceed or completely drop the petition," he said. "We know it is going to be challenged, so we are attempting to make the case as strong as possible."

The petition is being circulated by several people, including Hughes. There are currently seven petitions filed, each citing the same reasons but with slightly different wording.

The city charter states that when a petition is being circulated by a number of people, each must file an affidavit for their own petition, said City Secretary Tom Ferguson. "There is some confusion as to whether the stated reasons in the affidavits are valid reasons under the city charter," he said.

Under the city charter, the petitions can be used in unison to force a recall election if the language of each indicates dereliction of duty by the elected officials, he said.

Hughes said, "We are confirming that they all fall under the same petition and can not be deemed as seven different petitions."

Petitioners are also seeking to define dereliction of duty, which is not defined in the city charter.

"As far as a definition for the dereliction of duty goes, I can make everything fit and they can make everything unfit," said Hughes.

Mayor Max Green said, "To be quite truthful, I do not believe the petition is valid because it is supposed to state a reason for dereliction of duty by council members John Coffee and Ladd Smith."

When asked what might constitute a dereliction of duty, Green said, "All you have to do is refer to a regular dictionary or legal dictionary to find the definition of dereliction. It is basically a stronger word for irresponsible, and Coffee and Smith have acted very responsibly."

Mike Thomas, city attorney said, "The city has taken the position that whatever a citizen wants to call dereliction of duty, that is what we will file a petition for."

"The city does not feel it is its

Therapists promote profession

By MARSHA STURDIVANT Staff Writer

Tom Farquhar works with physical therapist Kaki Morton at Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. Farquhar was electrocuted at work, resulting in loss of mobility in his arms, and has been in physical therapy for the past 23 years.

One man in Big Spring credits his life to physical therapy and, although he misses the activities he treasured before he was injured, he praises therapy for the activities he enjoys today.

"I don't think I'd have been around if it weren't for therapy. They kept me going and I couldn't move my arms if it weren't for therapy," said Tom Farquhar, a 23-year patient of Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

Farquhar, 83, was electrocuted while working atop a 12-foot scaffold at a 3-M plant in Brownwood. His injuries have resulted in more than 25 surgeries and daily physical therapy since he regained consciousness in the Brownwood hospital in 1967.

"They started therapy the next day and the doctor said I'd be doing it for the rest of my life. It keeps my arms from freezing up. If I don't do the therapy, they have to break it loose with surgery," Farquhar said.

At one time he was in therapy 14 times each week, but now he works with the center here three times a week. "I'm a lucky man. I don't remember the fall from the scaffold but they said I hit the cross beams going down."

"I was a patient (at Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center) when Kaki came to work, and she's mean as an old maid," Farquhar said.

He's talking about Kaki Morton, his therapist at the center. Morton has been at Dora Roberts for 20 years, and she said she's often called names by her patients.

"I take a lot of ribbing. I go along with them and tell them I can add to their repertoire of terms, but we still have to work."

Court ruling could complicate catalog shopping

NEW YORK (AP) — The mail-order industry hopes the U.S. Supreme Court won't force it to collect state and local sales taxes from its far-flung customers. It says the move could make catalog shopping more costly and complicated.

The high court said Monday it would settle a North Dakota dispute over whether a state can force out-of-state mail-order companies to collect taxes on purchases.

A ruling, expected by July, could affect mail-order businesses as well as companies selling merchandise by television, telephone or computer. It also could affect millions of consumers, possibly forcing them to pay as much as $3 billion in taxes on the estimated $45 billion in mail-order merchandise purchased annually.

The justices will consider whether to overturn a 1967 Supreme Court ruling that prohibited states from making businesses with no "physical presence" within their borders — such as offices or warehouses — to collect taxes.

One problem, retailers say, is that each state and municipality has its own tax rates and rules.

"The burden on direct marketing companies would be incredible," said Chris Armentante, a Direct Marketing Association spokeswoman. "They would be forced to collect taxes for 46 different states and over 7,000 different localities."

Mail-order businesses already collect taxes in states where they have offices or distribution centers. Others must collect taxes in states where they have stores.

Williams-Sonoma Inc., a kitchenware company that has stores in 26 states and handles taxes on mail-order merchandise in those states, already knows the mechanics of tax collection.

"It's very cumbersome," company spokesman Pat Connolly said. "You have a state tax, but with the local taxing authorities, it's very difficult for us to know what the appropriate tax is."

Steve Ashley, an analyst who tracks the catalog industry for Cleary Gull Reiland and McDevitt Inc. in Milwaukee, said tax collection would require mail-order businesses to buy expensive computer software.

Companies also would have to hire more people to handle the workload, Ms. Armentante said. She said added costs would force businesses to increase prices.

"There's so many things going into the pricing of the merchandise," she said. "It would be one of many factors."

In the case before the high court, North Dakota officials asked a state court in 1989 to declare Quill Corp. a retailer maintaining a place of business in the state. North Dakota wanted Quill to pay taxes on sales dating to 1987.

A state judge, citing the U.S. Supreme Court's 1967 decision, ruled against North Dakota. But the North Dakota Supreme Court decided in the state's favor and called the 1967 ruling an "obsolescent precedent."

Settlement would revise state Senate district plan again

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Two area state senators do not like the results of a redrawing of Senate districts as part of a recent out-of-court settlement between Hispanic groups and the state.

The settlement changes the redistricting plan passed in May by the Texas Legislature.

The new plan shifts more than a third of the district represented by Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, into Bexar County, making the district more predominantly Republican. "I think it's absolutely terrible," said Sims, who would also lose about one-fourth of San Angelo to Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock. Sims, whose district included southwest Texas before the May plan was passed, would not represent any area west of Tom Green County under the proposed plan. Sims, unhappy that more than 40 percent of his district, about 220,000 people, would end up in Bexar

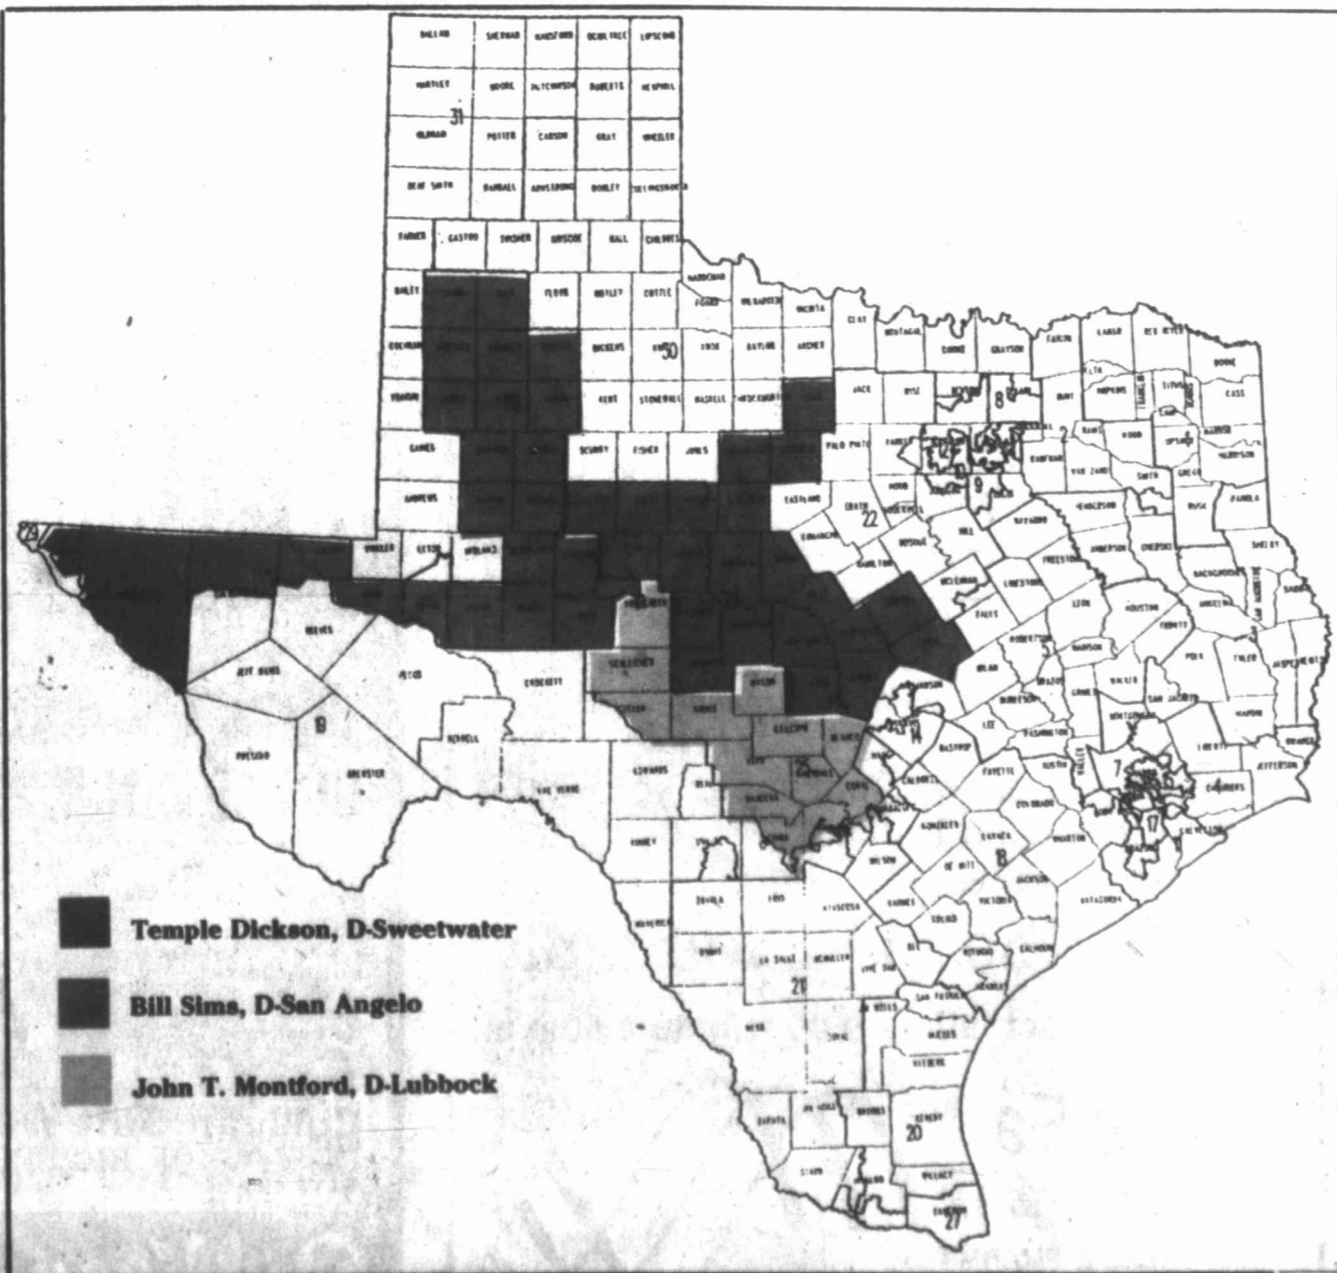

County and that San Angelo would be split, said he and Rep. Rob Junell, D-San Angelo, are checking to find out whether a plan not considered by the Legislature or the Legislative Redistricting Board has legal validity.

Junell, an attorney, said the select group of senators headed by Sen. Robert Glasgow, D-Stephenville, lawyers for minority groups and the Texas Attorney General's Office, have no "official standing" to redraw the districts, and criticized the effort for not including any public input or public hearings.

"It's not right to the people of Tom Green County," Junell said. "I am doing everything I can to help Sen. Sims. We've been on the phone gathering information."

Glasgow, who is chairman of the Senate Redistricting Committee, did not return a phone call Monday or this morning. But Gray McBride, spokesman with the Attorney General's Office, said the plan is legal. He argued that it has been signed by 19 of 31 senators and the lieutenant governor and eliminates Hispanic opposition to a Senate plan, although

The district of Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, will be shifted to the east if the Senate redistricting plan approved in an out-of-court settlement is OK'd by the Justice Department.

Man fifth to die at center

DALLAS (AP) — A 53-year-old man has become the fifth patient in as many months to die at the Dallas County Mental Diagnostic Center. But officials say there was nothing apparent that they could have done to save the latest victim.

Ronald Jackson collapsed Sunday morning after suffering an apparent heart attack and was taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital, where he was pronounced dead less than an hour later.

The man had been at the center more than a week, said Sheryl Howard, chairwoman of the Dallas County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center Board.

"Everything possible was done by the MDC staff to respond to this emergency," Ms. Howard said in a written statement. "Any death is tragic, and our hearts go out to this man's family and friends."

First race in decade possible

AUSTIN (AP) — House Speaker Gib Lewis' spokesman says Lewis hasn't revealed his re-election plans. But names of possible successors have begun to surface in what could become the first real speaker's race in a decade.

"He has not informed anyone. He said ... that he would make a decision by Jan. 1, which is his normal timetable for that decision," Lewis' press secretary John Bender said Monday.

The Fort Worth Democrat, who faces two misdemeanor ethics charges, last week said he had made up his mind about running again but wasn't making his decision public yet.

"I'll let you know," he told reporters.

Sierra Club against swap

HOUSTON (AP) — A decision by the U.S. Forest Service to swap national forest land for what the Lone Star Sierra Club says is less desirable land owned by internationally known gymnastics coach Bela Karolyi "does not make any sense," a club official says.

The Forest Service is swapping healthy, forested lands for essentially ecologically degraded pasture owned by Karolyi in Sam Houston National Forest, according to George Russell, state forest practices chairman for the club.

Court hears arguments in FRB-MCorp dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board usurped authority from bankruptcy court in its dealings with MCorp, an attorney for the former Texas banking giant told the Supreme Court.

But government attorneys said Monday if the high court finds in MCorp's favor, the Fed will be deprived of a "critically important" enforcement tool in its arsenal of policies to safeguard the nation's banks.

At issue is whether federal regulators may force bank holding companies to pump money into ailing banks they own under a Fed "source of strength" policy created in 1984 and 1987.

The high court decision may come too late for Dallas-based MCorp, which has been in bankruptcy litigation since filing for Chapter 11 in March 1989. Once the owner of 25 banks, MCorp is down to one bank. That branch, MBank in New Braunfels, is for sale.

The disputed policy requires a bank's parent company to "provide adequate capital funds to subsidiary banks during periods of financial stress or adversity."

Alan B. Miller, a New York attorney for MCorp, told the justices Monday that the policy would "eviscerate" a holding company's assets, siphoning them off to prop up shaky bank subsidiaries.

But government attorney Jeffrey P. Minear said the Fed was seeking in its May 1989 source of strength ruling to divert only $21 million of MCorp's $1.5 billion assets to prop up some of its remaining banks.

Miller questioned the figures. "I don't know who they come up with the $1.5 billion. If we had that much money, we wouldn't be in Chapter 11," he said after Monday's hearing.

MCorp had assets of less than $400 million and liabilities of $500 million when the Fed brought action, Miller said.

The Fed also was seeking guarantees that future losses by the banks would be absorbed by the holding company, Miller said. "So, it was a bottomless pit," he said.

After the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. took over 20 of MCorp's banks in March 1989, they were sold to Banc One Corp. of Ohio. The estimated $2 billion bailout was one of the nation's largest commercial bank rescues ever.

The case began in 1988 when the Fed alleged that MCorp was engaged in unsafe and unsound practices linked to capital problems at many of its 25 banks.

Twenty of the banks were declared insolvent before the Fed filed formal charges, saying MCorp failed to act as a source of strength to its five remaining banks.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last May that Congress never authorized the Fed to impose its source of strength policy. That ruling undermined regulators' ef-orts to stave off bank failures in Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi, which comprise the 5th Circuit, government attorneys said.

"Absent the source of strength regulations, bank holding companies could ... routinely draw profits away from subsidiary banks in good years, but then allow them to slip unaided into insolvency in lean years," the justices were told.

But Miller said in 40 years, the Fed only twice tried to use the source of strength policy.

"Isn't it strange that in 40 years this enormously important weapon, without which the entire banking system was in jeopardy, was only attempted to be used twice?" he said.

Udall hopes to sue DOE

SANTA FE (AP) — New Mexico will try to convince a federal judge that it will be irreparably harmed if nuclear waste is sent to an underground repository near Carlsbad, Attorney General Tom Udall said.

Udall scrambled Monday to prepare a lawsuit he said could be filed as early as today in U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C. He said the state will ask the court to act immediately to ban shipments of plutonium-contaminated trash to the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant.

Then representatives of his office will "camp out on the doorstep of the federal judge" to await an answer, Udall said.

The state is trying to beat a U.S. Department of Energy plan to begin waste shipments as early as this week. The DOE has said the first, partial load from Idaho National Engineering Laboratories could reach WIPP as soon as Thursday.

The agency wants to begin tests at the site, where the waste would be buried in caves carved 2,150 feet deep in salt beds.

Udall said his office was interviewing scientists and other experts about the possibility the waste could be prematurely entombed by a rock fall and be irretrievable.

The attorney general said he had not determined whether to make so-called interim status for WIPP an issue in the lawsuit.

The DOE maintains WIPP has interim status — that is, authority to begin disposing of hazardous waste on an interim basis while its application for a permit under the federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act is pending.

But the state Environment Department, which has jurisdiction over the matter, made a preliminary determination in July that WIPP did not qualify for interim status.

Udall pressed Environment Secretary Judith Espinosa to make a final determination before he filed suit, saying it would strengthen the state's case.

But Espinosa is not ready to do so, Deputy Environment Secretary Ron Curry said Monday. The secretary said last week she was awaiting information from the DOE had promised her in August.

"I think we would have a much better chance of getting a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction if we had a final decision on that issue," Udall said.

In Washington, meanwhile, the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee scheduled a meeting Oct. 16 to discuss and vote on the WIPP land transfer bill sponsored by New Mexico's senators, Republican Pete Domenici and Democrat Jeff Bingaman.

It was after negotiations on that bill broke down last week that DOE announced it had administratively taken control of the WIPP site and would open it.

No agreement has been reached on the sole remaining issue in dispute in the bill: how much waste the DOE should be allowed to place at WIPP during a test phase, spokesmen for the senators said.

The bill specifies 0.5 percent of the facility's 900,000-barrel capacity, or 4,500 barrels. The DOE said that was too limiting and sought a 1 percent ceiling.

Domenici offered a last-minute compromise last week under which DOE could go to 1 percent if it justified the increase in writing, submitted that to state and federal agencies for review and got permission from the Environmental Protection Agency

Family reunited after 10-year separation

SAN ANGELO (AP) — What would she say to her daughter?

Hue Nguyen shook her head and stared at the empty Mathis Field runway.

"It's been so long," she said quietly. "I have no words."

Ten years ago, she and her husband, Than Van Nguyen, left their home in Communist-controlled Vietnam.

"We escaped," Nguyen said simply. "We wanted to gain freedom."

But, to find freedom, they lost a 9-month-old daughter.

"She was so tiny," said Nguyen, shaking his head.

A fisherman, Nguyen captained a boat filled with 50 refugees from his home to Indonesia.

"We had to be quiet," he said. "If the Communists found us, they would kill us. We could not tell the baby to be quiet, not to cry. We had to leave her behind. It was a terrible sacrifice for me. For my wife. But we wanted freedom so much."

They left the baby with Nguyen's parents in Phuoc Tuy, South Vietnam, while the Nguyens and an older daughter travelled with the "boat people" to Indonesia.

Their third child, a son, was born in an Indonesia refugee camp where they spent 16 months.

In 1982, the family found a sponsor who brought them to San Angelo.

Gradually, they adapted to American life.

The parents found work. Both have jobs at Ethicon Inc.

The children attended school. They learned English, discovered American food, took classes, saved money.

He became a local hero, pulling a stranger's baby from a burning car in 1987.

"San Angelo has been good," Nguyen said. "Here, we learned freedom."

They never forgot their

They exchanged letters with her. And photographs.

But they were never able to see her, speak to her.

Then, in September, Nguyen became a naturalized U.S. citizen. It was time, he said, to send for her.

"Once I am a citizen, it is easier to sponsor her, to bring her over," he explained, waiting in the airport Friday night.

Nguyen's other children, daughter Cuc, 13, and son Hoang, 9, sat silently while waiting for their sister to arrive.

Cuc said she looked forward to having a sister.

"My brother's a brat," she said, frowning. "He always goes out and plays with his friend. I don't have a friend near our house, but now I'll have a sister."

Cuc said she and her brother will be able to speak to their sister in Vietnamese.

"She won't have any trouble," Cuc said. "When we came here, I didn't have any trouble, and I had to learn by myself. She's lucky. She'll have me."

The flight from Dallas arrived almost an hour late.

Friends and neighbors of the Nguyens crowded the waiting room at Mathis Field.

At about 10:30 p.m. Friday, Phuong Thi Kim (her name means "Flower in Summer Time") uncertainly stepped out of the plane and walked down the stairway with an airline employee.

Tiny and looking very tired and serious, she wore a yellow pantsuit and neatly made jacket and clutch-ed a small black bag.

She walked quickly into the terminal.

And, into the arms of her mother. Who held her for the longest time, without saying a word.

Principal won't face penalty

DALLAS (AP) — A junior high school principal won't be disciplined for authorizing a bogus announcement that President Bush had been assassinated. The hoax was part of a project on student reactions to shocking news.

Principal Lora Folsom realizes it was a mistake to allow the announcement and she has apologized to students and teachers, said Carrollton-Farmers Branch Superintendent B.L. "Buddy" Davis.

The fake announcement by assistant principal Dara Stewart was made Oct. 4 over loudspeakers at Charles M. Blalock Jr. High School in suburban Carrollton.

Students in several classes had been studying the historic 1938 Orson Welles radio play "War of the Worlds," which created hysteria by saying Martians had landed in New Jersey.

Ms. Folsom agreed to let a similar startling announcement be made after teachers were briefed to expect a shock. The phony report infuriated students, teachers and parents.

About 50 shaken students, some of them in tears, walked off campus in protest after learning in a second announcement, about four minutes later, that the report was false. Ms. Folsom apologized to the students when they returned to their classes.

"No one is hurt more than she is, and there is nothing I could do to punish her more than what she is feeling," Davis said.

Drive safely. Don't wreck your life.

Bush may ease loan regulations

More than 100 hurt in bus wreck

MYERSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A garbage truck slammed into the back of a caravan of buses taking students to a fair, setting off a chain reaction that injured more than 100 people, police said. Most injuries were minor.

One of the buses cut off the garbage truck, leaving the truck's driver short of time to stop at a red light at an intersection, state Trooper Dominic Visconti said.

Most of 102 students and six adults injured were treated at hospitals and released. A 14-year-old girl was hospitalized with undisclosed injuries at Hershey Medical Center, officials said.

Gaffney has tested positive for the HIV virus that causes AIDS. He is now hospitalized for lymphoma, a form of cancer that sometimes occurs because of the AIDS infection.

"I'm fighting for my life here," Gaffney said Monday. He said the appeal process was "using up more of my valuable time, and as you can see I'm running out of it."

Specter said he wanted to talk to Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole and other senators about delaying the vote.

Hill, also appearing on "Today," questioned the way the Judiciary Committee handled her allegations. "I don't believe that they were necessarily taken seriously," she said.

"I can only say that I think this is part of the frustration that I am experiencing and a lot of women are experiencing — that these kinds of claims and statements are not taken seriously, that this is not an issue that men can deal with necessarily without a lot of different supporting documentation, and that just does not happen in most cases."

She called it "unfortunate" that no one from the committee or the full Senate questioned her.

"Nothing was done by the members of the committee to talk to me and that is part of my concern, that this was not given full consideration," she said.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., who provided an important vote for Thomas on the Senate Judiciary Committee, today suggested a delay in this evening's scheduled vote, although he still believed Thomas would be confirmed.

"As I have slept on the matter and think it through, another 24 hours wouldn't make a lot of difference," Specter said on NBC's "Today" show.

"I'm giving more consideration to the possibility there perhaps should be a hearing. I don't believe it's going to change my vote. I felt comfortable voting for Judge Thomas because I confronted him, looked him in the eye.

"But now there's a question perhaps of taint of the Supreme

Cuba's Communists meet in secrecy

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cuba's ruling Communists, their economy shattered by shrinking Soviet and eastern European trade and aid, convene a much-delayed party congress this week behind a wall of secrecy.

It appears Cuba's increasing lonely status as a one-party Communist state with a centrally planned economy will not change.

foreign eyes, party officials began warning Cubans not to expect much.

"We must ... not think that the Congress will resolve everything," Politburo member Jose Ramon Machado Ventura told Cuban television recently.

Some analysts interpret the secrecy as a sign there could be unusually vigorous discussion about how to confront Cuba's crisis.

"I don't think it's going to be a rip-roaring debate," Gunn said. "That's not the way the Cuban political system works. But it's not going to be as fully pre-cooked as previous party congresses."

Economic issues are high on the agenda.

The party is expected to issue a ringing endorsement of Castro's drive to attract foreign investment. It may also endorse limited private enterprise such as self-employed plumbers, barbers or bicycle repairmen.

But most analysts say it is highly unlikely the congress would introduce free enterprise on the scale of the farmers' markets that Castro abolished in 1986, when the last party congress was held.

The sudden decision to bar both foreign delegates and foreign reporters was made in the aftermath of the failed Soviet coup. Weighty policy changes — such as the endorsement of limited private enterprise — may be in the offing.

It appears Cuba's increasing lonely status as a one-party Communist state with a centrally planned economy will not change.

President Fidel Castro has repeatedly said Cuba will tread the orthodox path until his — and the nation's — last breath.

Yet the 1,800 delegates gathering Thursday in Santiago de Cuba must chart a course for Cuba in a world where communism is unraveling at a dizzying pace.

"They have to do something about the food situation that will give people hope," said Gillian Gunn, a Cuba expert at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in Washington, D.C.

The import-dependent island has been on short rations since last year, and the bad news from Moscow grimmer since a failed coup in August.

The Soviet Union reportedly now plans to halt grain shipments to Cuba, tighten up even further on loans and make drastic cuts in military sales.

The Fourth Party Congress has been a focal point for Cuba's political life for more than a year. The party held 80,000 citizen assemblies, urging people to air their ideas and complaints — as long as they didn't challenge Castro, central economic planning or the one-party state.

But events seem to have overtaken Cuba in recent weeks. After delaying the congress several times, then closing it to prying

Doubt cast on Aristide's return

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Prospects for Jean-Bertrand Aristide's return appeared bleak today after menacing soldiers stormed Parliament and forced lawmakers to name a Supreme Court judge to replace the exiled president.

No one in the meeting was hurt, and the Organization of American States delegates resumed their discussions. Later, the delegates angrily left for Washington, having failed in their third trip to Haiti to gain Aristide's reinstatement despite threatening harsh sanctions.

Lawmakers said they agreed to install a provisional president only at gunpoint, throwing the question of Haiti's leadership into greater confusion. A spokesman for Aristide's political party urged foreign military intervention.

Japan approves loan to Soviets

TOKYO (AP) — Japan announced today it will loan the Soviets $2.5 billion — the first major Japanese aid package ever for the Soviet Union.

Japan long has withheld major aid from the Soviets because of a dispute over small islands off northern Japan that were seized by Soviet troops at the close of World War II. Last month, the Russian Federation offered a speedy resolution of the dispute in exchange for aid.

The European Community on Monday approved a $2.4 billion aid package for the Soviets and called for similar aid from other nations. However, a Japanese Foreign Ministry spokesman maintained it was "sheer coincidence that the amount matches the sum reportedly asked by the European Community."

The Foreign Ministry official, who briefed reporters on condition of anonymity, also said the decision on help the Soviets was unrelated to the territorial dispute.

Eighteen die in faction violence

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Heavily armed police patrolled black townships today after gun battles that claimed 18 lives and prompted Nelson Mandela and President F.W. de Klerk to accuse each other of inciting violence.

De Klerk has let loose his hounds against the people. If he does not want the violence, why do the police act with such impunity?" Mandela told a rally late Monday.

The fighting Monday in Tokoza and other townships left a dozen people wounded and was the worst political violence since the government and black groups signed a peace pact on Sept. 14.

Mandela, the African National Congress president, accused de

De Klerk launched a bitter attack on the ANC, saying it was trying to seize power by destabilizing South Africa.

Bush's blind spot on rights

The regrettable truth about the civil rights bill is that President Bush doesn't want one. Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., sadly is right. The White House is playing "race politics."

If Bush doesn't see the light following the Senate's expected approval of Danforth's compromise bill this week, the first override of a Bush veto will be an embarrassing one.

Danforth, along with eight other GOP senators, has been trying to craft a bill that Republicans and Democrats, the White House and civil-rights groups all can accept. The bill, written in response to a 1989 Supreme Court decision, would outlaw discrimination against women and minorities in the workplace, without adopting racial quotas.

That is not a difficult proposition. Discrimination and quotas are both bad, and the bill rejects both.

But Danforth now ominously suggests that Bush does not want any civil rights bill, even one without quotas. "I know," Danforth says, "that there are Republicans who believe that the art of politics is the art of developing so-called wedge issues, issues that divide the populace."

If Bush prefers an issue for the 1992 campaign over a civil rights bill, he's wrong. GOP moderates like Danforth's group and Rep. Tom Campbell, R-Stanford, who is running for a California Senate seat, want him to sign on. So do we.

In an effort to win Bush's support for his compromise, Danforth lifted the precise language from a bill signed by Bush last year that outlawed discrimination against the disabled. Still the White House would not agree. Said Danforth: "It is incomprehensible to me to argue that the same civil rights protection available to the disabled is not available to women and minorities."

There is not a lot more Danforth can do. This respected politician — the richest man in the Senate, a former state attorney general, an Episcopal priest — is no left-wing agitator. He has crafted a bill that has the approval of reasonable people of both parties and of the business community. They have met a stone wall. The White House wants to play politics.

It's bad politics. In addition to not helping women and minorities, it will not help Republicans. If Bush is smart, he will take Danforth's advice on civil rights, just as he took it on nominating Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court.

If Bush does not, then Congress should override his veto. It would be the first override of a Bush veto, and it would not be a glorious moment for the president.

It is typical of a government bureaucracy that when it decides to do something, it doesn't take the time to consider the consequences. The latest example of this is the President's decision to dismantle nuclear weapons.

On paper it sounds like a dandy idea, but no one addressed the problem of where to dump the weapons once we decided to break them up.

Winston Simon, in charge of a trash dump just outside the Capital Beltway, was beside himself when Bush made his speech. He told me, "I don't have any room for empty beer bottles. Where does Bush intend to bury all this junk?"

"I'm certain that he must have some idea. You can't have a nuclear disarmament policy without a disposal program to go with it."

"If he has, he hasn't told me. You know atomic warheads are not biodegradable. Some of them go 'click, click, click' on a Geiger counter for 3,000 years. Even if I bury them underground, they still go 'click, click, click' for an eternity."

"Can't you smash 'em up like they do old automobiles?"

"It doesn't work like that. The more you push an atomic weapon around, the more likely it is to go off. Do you see that hydrogen bomb sitting there on those used tires? Every time we breathe on it, it goes 'click, click, click.'"

"So, what can you do? We have to reduce our nuclear capability to show the Iraqis that we are sincere."

He said, "We have to take atomic waste seriously. We must separate it when we throw away a weapon. The plutonium goes in one garbage bag, the atomic fuse in another and the rocket parts in a third."

"But people are not used to separating their nuclear trash. Neither is the government."

"Then we'll fine them for each atomic weapon that has not been placed in the correct bag. I run a good trash dump, and I'm not going to endanger my law-abiding garbage with nuclear missiles that are hazardous to people's health."

"Maybe Bush will decide to dump the weapons into the sea."

"That's not a great idea because then the fish we fry will go 'click, click, click.' What we have to do is put the waste in somebody else's back yard — like the Colombian drug cartel's property in South America. The Russians have a big advantage over us when it comes to getting rid of their weapons. Their nukes are now spread around in 15 republics, so Moscow can tell those governments that since they wanted their independence, they have to dispose of their own bombs."

"Suppose you announced to President Bush that you only intended to pick up atomic trash on Mondays and Thursdays. Would that slow down proliferation of nuclear waste?"

"It would help, but it wouldn't solve the problem. The environmentalists would complain that every time one of our trucks went through their neighborhood it went 'click, click, click.'"

"You have the toughest job in the entire disarmament picture. They don't consult you, and then when they make a decision they put all the weapon trash in your lap. Is there any way of solving the nuclear weapons' waste problem once and for all?"

He replied, "We have to make stronger garbage bags."

Candidate Clinton's goal: win back the middle class

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — To hear Bill Clinton tell it, remembering the middle class is the best way to overcome the Democratic failures of presidential campaigns past.

There's ample evidence to suggest he's right — that the demise of the Democrats in national elections in the 1980s coincided with the defection, in droves, of white, middle-class voters to Ronald Reagan and George Bush.

There's also plenty of evidence that Democrats face a hard time regaining the support of these voters. Democrats may still call these folks disaffected Democrats, or Reagan Democrats, but they've voted Republican in the past three presidential elections, and they show few signs of changing course.

Clinton is determined to try — and to get a head start on any Democratic rivals who might try a similar approach.

So as he kicked off his presidential campaign on Thursday, the Arkansas governor repeatedly promised to be the champion of "the forgotten middle class." And in a speech far more substantive than most campaign announcements, he laid out his ideas on the issues these voters worry about most: the economy, education, health care and taxes.

"This is not just a campaign for the presidency," the five-term, moderate governor said. "It is a campaign for the future, for the forgotten, hard-working middle-class families of America who deserve a government that fights for them."

Clinton promised to propose a national health care plan in his first year as president, to fully fund preschool programs, to give and spend too much of their money on health care," Greer said.

Clinton is careful not to go overboard bashing the wealthy. Indeed, like many people in the middle class, he says he wouldn't mind being rich.

Yet his announcement speech included a semi-populist attack on the 1980s as a decade of greed, and he accused Bush of failing to use the power of the presidency to set a moral tone for the nation.

"When Salomon Brothers abused the Treasury markets, the president was silent," Clinton said. "When the ripoff artists looted our S&Ls, the president was silent. In a Clinton administration, when people sell their companies and their workers and their country down the river, they'll get called on the carpet."

Clinton's message to the middle class is one that his advisers have tested in polls and focus groups. It's one they believe will sell as well in New Hampshire as it will in the South and Midwest, where defections of white, suburban moderates have hurt the Democratic Party the most.

Possession of political dirt is like university tenure

Capitol report

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a secret, locked-door, senators-only meeting, a senior Democrat spoke in support of President Reagan's CIA director, William Casey.

Back in the senator's office a few minutes later, the telephone rang. It was Casey, thanking him for the kind remarks — and, without uttering another word, reminding that senator of something else.

There's more to power in Washington than just titles, money and votes. There's power in information. And, more specifically, dirt.

By definition, dirt spends most of its time underground. After all, a secret isn't worth much if it's widely known. But recent events on Capitol Hill serve as a reminder that this unseen force is at work.

First, there was the revelation that Casey's CIA intercepted conversations between the leftist leaders of Nicaragua and some House Democrats who opposed Reagan's backing of the Contra rebels trying to overthrow that government.

House Republicans, looking for a scandal to hurl at the Democrats, are asking President Bush to make those transcripts public.

But some of the Democrats involved in the Nicaragua fight, including former Speaker Jim Wright of Texas and former Rep. Michael Barnes of Maryland, say they already knew about their existence. The Reagan administration had tried to coerce them with the threat of public release years ago, they say.

There's no national policy debate in the revelations surrounding the House bank. But the fact that dozens of House members, without penalty, routinely over-drew their checking accounts at the facility has provoked a new round of public outrage against the perquisites of office.

The fact that House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., won't release the names means that there's plenty of dirt potential. Clearly, the career of a congressman or woman could be ruined if it were disclosed he or she were a check kiter.

Dirt is so valuable that people fight over the ability to collect it.

Foley and other top House officials are battling to make sure notification is given them if the Capitol Police cooperate in any investigation initiated by an outside law enforcement agency, such as the FBI.

It's a constitutional matter, they say, just protecting the separation of powers between different branches of government. But the dirt potential is enormous as well, and they don't want the executive branch controlling the action.

Given its clandestine nature, the uses and abuses of dirt often don't become known for years. It has been discovered since his death that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover gathered more than even his harshest critics imagined.

Like Hoover, those in the best positions to collect dirt are senior bureaucrats. They also have a motive: possession of dirt can be like university tenure.

It certainly seems that way in Congress. While announcing his crackdown on the abuses at the House bank, Foley took great pains to express to reporters his total confidence in the people in charge there.

These folks had failed to follow Foley's earlier directives to clean things up. Indeed, House Sergeant at Arms Jack Russ, who oversees the bank, himself bounced a $10,000 check there, according to The Washington Post.

But Foley, who says he doesn't use the bank himself, is giving the bank crew, who know which lawmakers bounce checks, another chance.

Politicians like to play it safe in these cases, like the senator who got the call from the now-deceased Casey years ago — and still doesn't want his name used.

Dark ground floral prints give a touch of fantasy to girls' party dresses for the holidays. Rare Editions' floral dress of "Celebrate!" acetate features a basqued, tight-fitting bodice, and is accented with satin loops at the neck. Made in the U.S.A.

Holiday dresses for little girls

The holidays are the season for family gatherings and joyous celebrations, a time of the year when little girls dream of dressing up in their hearts' fantasies for that special party.

And for this year's holiday festivities, the dream becomes real in party dresses of "Celebrate!" acetate fiber that capture those fantasies with luxurious fabrics and special touches for the special little girl.

Children's wear designers have taken many of the important trends that have filtered down from women's evening wear, and incorporated them into girls' party dresses for Holiday 1991-92:

- Fantastic touches on what are basically smaller versions of women's pouf dresses accentuate the waistline with cinches, sashes and basqued, tight-fitting bodices.

- Luxurious fabric combinations, such as gold-striped taffeta paired with black velvet, are made even more luxe with novelty satin trims, loops and bows.

- The color palette is also particularly luxe, with jewel brights — emerald green, sapphire blue, ruby red, for example — being the strongest; printed floral patterns take on a more luxurious tone on dark grounds.

The result is a very romantic feeling for holiday dresses in "Celebrate!" acetate from children's wear firms such as Sylvia Whyte and Rare Editions. These companies offer simple younger styles for girls' sizes 4-6x and two-piece outfits for an older sister's companion dress in sizes 7-14.

They're perfect for that special party or the holiday family portrait, and there's a bonus: Some of the florals are bright enough to be worn right into spring, which is perhaps every mother's fantasy of the little girl's party dress.

The newest thing in handbags

PARIS (AP) - A new wave of chic handbags is sweeping this city.

"Hand" is the clue. They have little to do with those roomy shoulder-bags, almost overnight-bag size, which so many of us are used to wearing.

It was a pleasant surprise a couple of seasons ago when fashionable mannequins at Christian Lacroix came tripping out with the most adorable hand-held bags.

In their shapes of heart, oval, feedbag and other clever outlines, nailheaded or studded with metal motifs, the bags and clutches became fashion items for the cognoscenti.

Now it seems that everybody is hopping on the smaller, shapely and/or hand-held bagwagon. They are also adding color to the bag wardrobe. Fashionable Princess Diana goes for colorful, geometric envelope clutches.

Hermes has staged a comeback of the so-called Kelly bag. This trapezoid shape fastened with a couple of leather straps, hand-held, was so named because it was a favorite of Grace Kelly.

Little "pop" bags in lunch box shapes, purses with cane or bamboo handles dangling from the arm, also tend to add to this '60s revival.

They reinforce the current fashion fad harking back to the starring years of Jackie Kennedy and Audrey Hepburn.

Many designers and manufacturers are showing shoulder or hand-held bags large enough for practicality, and the search for novelty also means inventive use of color.

Readers debate seat belt controversy

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from "J.C. in Gainesville" who wondered if he was wrong for ordering his passenger to "buckle up or get out!"

If he was writing from Gainesville, Fla., he should know that buckling up is the law in Florida. He could receive a ticket if he or his passenger does not have on a seat belt.

Recently a father was arrested in Florida when his unbuckled child died in a car accident. It is the driver's responsibility to make sure that everyone in his car is buckled up! J.C. definitely did the right thing. — M.P. IN FORT LAUDERDALE

DEAR M.P.: Read on for an opposing view:

DEAR ABBY: In regard to your column on Sept. 12, "Buckle Up or Bail Out": The person who didn't want to use a seat belt may have had a serious phobia about it. I wish the do-gooders would use their own seat belts but keep their noses out of other people's lives. There have been cases of UN-belted survivors who would have been killed if they had been belted — but that information is withheld from the average citizen.

I have done enough investigating on my own around here and have found that when nothing is said about a traffic fatality being belted or not, they were belted. Regarding the state trooper who said, "I have yet to unbuckle a seat belt from a dead person." I have also heard that only medical personnel can remove a body from a car. (Maybe that varies from state to state; I don't know.)

I prevented an accident some years ago while I was a front-seat passenger and the driver fell asleep at the wheel. I couldn't have acted in time had I been belted. If the driver demands the passenger use a seat belt, then the passenger has the right to demand that the driver obey every law and rule, too! It's possible to be belted and dead.

I'd feel a whole lot safer on the road if the seat belt zealots put as much effort into preventing accidents as they do in protecting their great god and savior, the Seat Belt Law!

This letter is not intended to stop anyone from using his belt. I'm not opposed to healthy diets, either. But I don't think anyone would want a law enacted and enforced that would penalize everyone who has gotten overweight or let his blood cholesterol get too high — even though such a law might save lives. — H.O. IN SUMNER, IOWA

DEAR ABBY: Your column on "faking it" created a big stir in Mesa, Ariz. A radio station in our town asked women over the age of 18 to call in and tell listeners whether they "faked it" or not. The results were: Out of 100 women, 58 said they did not fake it, and 42 said they did. — NOT FAKING IT IN MESA

DEAR ABBY: Last summer my son nearly died as the result of a car accident. Please print this letter to help ease a mother's conscience for not having said these things to the appropriate people some time ago. Do not disclose my name or city. Let those who have done similar deeds believe that these words are meant for them, because they are:

To the couple who stopped to call the police: Thank you!

To the paramedics who faced that gruesome scene willingly, and worked tirelessly in the middle of the night: Thank you!

To the emergency nurse and receptionist who held my son's hand: Thank you!

To the surgeon who skillfully set his broken bones and tediously stitched each laceration: Thank you!

To the eight people whose blood flowed through my son's veins for a few precious hours: Thank you!

To the intensive-care nurses who sustained his life, and made him a part of theirs: Thank you!

Clothing designed specifically for the older woman's figure

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Experts around the country are sizing up the shape of things to come, measuring as many as 10,000 women with rulers and ribbons in an effort to develop better-fitting clothes for the 55-and-up set.

The industry project is the first step toward ready-to-wear clothing designed specifically for the older woman.

"Just because they are older does not mean they are larger. Other things change, like muscle tone and bone structure," said Ellen Goldsberry of the University of Arizona. "But the clothing industry has absolutely no data about their figures."

More than 17 million American women are 55 and up. Many older women endure clothing that's too tight here and too loose there. And many would be willing to pay a little more for the perfect fit, Goldsberry said Wednesday.

She and colleague Naomi Reich are coordinating the measuring project for the American Society for Testing and Materials, which develops standards for everything from tire cords to clothes.

At the Cooperative Extension Service office in Champaign County on Wednesday, women slipped into light blue body suits criss-crossed with ribbons to mark measuring points.

Volunteers used rulers and other tools to record 57 measurements, including the slope of the shoulders and the roundness of the abdomen.

"I think when they get all done,

Carolyn Swope, left, and Michelle Saxon of the Cooperative Extension service take body measurements on Lora Mae Kester in Champaign, Ill. About 10,000 women 55 and older are being measured in the national project aimed at defining the older body so clothes can be made to fit better.

we'll have better clothes," said 79-year-old participant Orlena Leischner of Fisher. "It really is hard to find a one-piece dress that fits in all places."

The $180,000 project is being funded by the garment industry.

Now, sizing is based on measurements taken in the 1940s. Most of the women used for those measurements were in the Army, and only 2 percent were over 50.

Among them was flight nurse Elberta Morse of Champaign, who was measured in 1946. Morse, 69, decided to be measured again Wednesday to help older women find better-fitting clothes.

"I noticed a change in clothes in the early '50s after the last project," she said. "I began to buy the new juniors. I could see the difference. They fit me."

Rachel Eggen, specifications-quality manager for intimate apparel at Sears' Chicago headquarters, said the study could help the industry offer a better fit.

"These women are conscious about how their clothes look and fit — their appearance," said Eggen. "They diet and exercise, but still the biological clock ticks, and certain changes happen as they grow older."

The point of the shoulder rolls forward, for instance. The chest area narrows, the upper back widens, and the spine compresses, reducing height. The derriere flattens, and the abdomen protrudes.

Goldsberry and Reich will continue collecting measurements through January, then they'll analyze their findings and eventually make them available to the garment industry.

Safe eye beauty tips

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Contact lenses and eye makeup can be compatible, says a contact lens specialist at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center.

Dr. Joseph Phillips, an optometrist, offers some advice about makeup to contact lens wearers:

- Put your contacts on first, making sure your hands have been washed with an oil-free soap. Soft lenses will absorb oil, dirt or cosmetics, which can cause eye irritation.

- Take your lenses off before removing makeup. Or, if you have extended wear lenses, close your eyes tightly and use a water-based makeup remover applied with a non-fibrous pad, such as a sponge or makeup squares. Rinse thoroughly with water.

- Use pressed powder rather than a liquid or cream eye shadow. Never used pearlized or frosted types, which contain a chemical which can stain lenses.

- Use water-based, water-resistant mascara designed specifically for use with contact lenses or by those with sensitive eyes. Two thin coats of mascara will cause less flaking and irritation than one thick coat.

- A soft pencil eyeliner won't flake off, as will liquid or powdered versions. Apply only to the outside lash line to avoid blocking ducts that line the eyelids.

- If you use aerosols — hairspray, deodorant or cologne — spray before you put lenses on. Otherwise, close your eyes tightly and immediately walk away from the area, since spray remains in the air for several minutes.

Phillips adds that contact wearers should never share makeup products or apply cosmetics to red, swollen eyes. Cosmetics should not be exposed to high temperatures, and applicators for mascara or eyeliner should not be reused. Don't use saliva or tap water to "stretch" cosmetics.

Don't use a straight pin to separate lashes, and don't put makeup on in a moving vehicle.

And, he adds, don't use more than one new product at a time if you are prone to allergies. Avoid those containing thimerosal, lanolin, or fragrances. In general, he says, avoid oily and creamy items.

Electrical short cause of fire that destroys home

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

An electrical short and some lint in a central heating unit combined to completely destroy a Forsan home and its contents Monday, the county fire chief said.

The fire burned for as much as 20 minutes before it was noticed, contributing to the destruction, said Howard County Volunteer Fire Chief C. Roy Wright. The fire was not noticed until it reached the attic area, he said.

The owners, Ray Cobb and his wife, were not home when the fire started. There were no injuries reported.

The home, located at 401 E. Eighth, is appraised at $22,785 by the Howard County Appraisal District, but Wright estimated total damages at more than $50,000. Cobb could not be reached this morning for comment.

"The motor shorted out and, of course, all of our central heating units have lint," Wright said of the cause of the fire. "The lint got it going and then it got into some plastic duct work."

There are some preventative measures that home owners can take to help avoid such fires, Wright said. "The main thing people need to do is have their heating unit serviced by a qualified individual or take their vacuum cleaners and vacuum out all of the lint that they can safely get out."

The fire was reported at 11:27 a.m. and about 15 firefighters responded from Forsan, Tubbs, Silver Heels and the city of Big Spring fire departments, Wright said.

"The roof was fully involved upon my arrival," Wright said. "It took about an hour, I'd say, to get the fire under control. Just the roof and the walls and everything were still standing."

Several citizens helped extinguish the fire, Wright said. "There were quite a few of the citizens that jumped in and helped."

FORSAN — Firefighters work to extinguish a fire that completely destroyed a home Monday. It is believed to have started in a central heating unit of the home from a short in a motor.

Former First Western employees plead guilty

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Four former employees of the closed First Western Savings and Loan Association in Colorado City pleaded guilty to bank fraud charges in federal courts.

Neva C. Turner, former chief executive officer and executive vice president, pleaded guilty Sept. 27 in U.S. District Court in Dallas to bank fraud and conspiracy to commit bank fraud.

Pleading guilty the same day in Dallas on the same charges was former director Katy Byrd. Her husband, Roy Byrd, pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit bank fraud.

Former employee Marilyn Roberts pleaded guilty Friday in U.S. District Court in Lubbock to conspiracy to commit bank fraud.

Sentencing for Turner and the Byrds was set for Nov. 15 but will likely be postponed, said an official with the Bank Fraud Task Force in Dallas.

All four have agreed to cooperate with a continuing investigation of the bank, the official said. "There may be more indictments."

Katy Byrd and Turner face up to 10 years in prison and fines up to $500,000 or twice the gain or loss caused. Roy Byrd and Roberts face up to five years in prison and fines up to twice the gain or loss caused.

From March 1985 to July 1987, Turner and others employed or associated with First Western defrauded the association of more than $500,000 by using overdrafts to purchase stocks and then concealing the scheme by floating overdraft checks and making false journal entries, a federal investigation uncovered.

Also being investigated is an alleged scheme to create fictitious companies to assume loans, the official with the Bank Fraud Task Force said. "They're unrelated," the Bank Fraud Task Force official said of the two schemes.

In June 1988, First Western reported insolvency with a negative regulatory capital of $767,000, according to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington. By December, 1988, when the association was sold to CFSB Corp Inc. of Phoenix, regulatory capital was $31.6 million in the red. Assets totaled $85.1 million and liabilities $116.7 million.

Both branches of First Western, in Colorado City and Sweetwater, now operate as Bluebonnet Savings Bank.

Young dads more likely to pass on Alzheimer's

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study suggests that children of young fathers have a higher risk of late-developing Alzheimer's disease than do those fathered by middle-aged men.

Lindsay Farrer, a Boston researcher who presented the study at a conference here Monday, said children born of 15-year-old fathers were found to be five times more likely to develop Alzheimer's disease late in life than were children born to fathers who were 50.

"The younger the father, the more likely the child was to have Alzheimer's," a disease that causes mental deterioration and eventually death, said Farrer.

He said the connection between the father's age and development of the disease, however, applied only to patients who developed Alzheimer's late in life. The mean age of the patients in the study was 67.

Farrer, a researcher at both Boston University School of Medicine and Harvard Medical School, said the reason why young fathers produce more children who later have Alzheimer's is not known.

He speculated, however, that it could result from a change in chemistry in the sperm-producing cells that somehow affects the genes that the male contributes to conception. Farrer said the plan for the study was to investigate the suspicion that the age of the mother could be a risk factor in Alzheimer's. He said it is well-established that a woman past age 35 is at increased risk of giving birth to a baby with Down's syndrome, a disorder that shares some clinical features with Alzheimer's.

Farrer said the expectation was that there would be some connection between older parents, either mother or father, and the risk of Alzheimer's.

"We were going into the study thinking that if there was anything, it would be that the mother's age was a factor," he said. "We were also expecting that older paternal age could be an increased risk."

Instead, he said the researchers found that the mother's age was not a factor and that it was the younger, rather than the older, fathers whose children were at increased risk.

The study was based on an analysis of 237 patients at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston who were diagnosed as having Alzheimer's disease late in life. Each of those patients were matched by gender and age with five subjects in the famed epidemiological study in Framingham, Mass.

He was born Jan. 3, 1915, in Terlingua and married in 1945 in Big Spring.

Senate

it fails to resolve disputes involving the House plan. Gov. Ann Richards let the legislative plan approved in May pass into law without a signature.

The proposed plan, which will be submitted to the U.S. Department of Justice for approval, creates two more Hispanic districts, in San Antonio and Houston, McBride said. Lawyers for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund and the Texas Civil Rights Project helped draw the plan.

Concerning a suit still pending in federal court in Austin that was filed by Republicans and contests the plan approved in May, McBride said. "The state will contend that under the federal Voting Rights Act there is no basis for partisan challenge."

Montford, who did not sign his approval for the new plan, said he is concerned about the expansive senatorial districts that would be left in West Texas. Besides picking up part of San Angelo, Montford's district would also be stretched west to El Paso.

"I think we have to be particularly careful about spreading us too thin in West Texas," he said. "I'm delighted to have part of Tom Green County but they've been adequately represented by Bill Sims."

Sims said he is not happy that he would have such a large portion of representative responsibility in San Antonio. "I got in there to represent the people of West Texas."

He said he expects the change to make his district more Republican, but did not say that is necessarily a concern. "Quite frankly, it's already a Republican district, but it'll probably be more of a Republican district."

"The Bexar County residents would be switched from the district of Sen. Cyndi Krier, R-San Antonio, whose district would become a minority district, according to reports.

Sims also complained that it is unnecessary to split San Angelo. "Tom Green (County) is so small it shouldn't be cut up."

The proposed plan makes no changes from the legislative plan passed in May for other counties in this area.

Mitchell County would still be in the district of Sen. Temple Dickson, D-Sweetwater, who, under the May plan, would acquire that county from Sen. Steve Carraker, D-Robey.

Montford would keep Howard, Martin, Glasscock and Borden counties. Montford acquires Glasscock County from Sims under the plan passed in May.

responsibility to define dereliction," said Thomas. "We are not going to get into the business of interpretation — that is up to the citizen and the courts."

"As far as the language of the different petitions, the petitions will be considered as one as long as the statements do not get far apart from each other," he said. "I have not heard of it being a problem in past local recalls."

Council members Smith and Coffee have not been vocal regarding the accusation and the recall petition.

"The petition was not well thought out, but other than that, I have no comment," said Smith.

Whereas Coffee replied, "I have nothing to say to the Herald. Until you can publish both sides of what goes on in the city council, I have no comment."

As of now, the petition's future is uncertain.

Petitioners hope to verify the language as soon as possible, and city officials think a quick solution is in the best interest of the city.

Green said, "The sooner we can put this thing to bed and continue with business as usual, the city will be better off," he said. "We all need to pull together in one direction."

Therapy

They can cry or they can give up, and I tell them we're not going to give up," said Morton.

Morton said she can see her patients' pain, but she can't feel it, and the difference is what makes her role possible.

"We don't have to inflict the pain we once did due to the ravages of time and wasted muscles. Doctors are more aware today and surgery is better. The procedures are so much better, so it's not so traumatic," said Morton.

She said physical therapy technology has also changed greatly since she entered the profession. Electric nerve stimulators, work simulators and work-hardening machines are just some of the new equipment that has helped her profession.

"Physical therapy was once torture, pure torture. Now there's technology I couldn't even dream about — it was beyond my comprehension."

"Today there's no such thing as knee-joint replacement. With knee surgery, they laid the entire knee open and then the patient was in a cast for six to eight weeks. The bending that was required was quite grisly to get the knee going again. Today they make a tiny incision, so when we get them they've only lost a few degrees of range of motion and the strength's not lost at all," she said.

Morton said physical therapy is rewarding and frustrating work, and very seldom boring. She works with adults as well as children who possess all varieties of physical disabilities from disease, accidents or birth defects.

"I do get discouraged. Some of my patients are doing well and some aren't, but the ones who are doing well keep me going. We work as a team. If they won't work on my side, it's really hard to fight them if they're working against me," she said.

Sammy Dennard, the coordinator of rehabilitation medicine at the VA Medical Center, said he works mostly with geriatric patients and the problems associated with aging.

"Sometimes there's not a lot of significant change I can make. I push, coach and encourage in a caring, concerned way. Most of my patients realize that. It's really great when they come back to see me to show how well they're doing," said Dennard.

He said sports medicine, preventive medicine and wellness programs have increased the knowledge and realm of the profession since he became a therapist 18 years ago.

National Physical Therapy Week, founded 10 years ago by the American Physical Therapy Association, works to educate the public about the need for therapists and the ways therapy makes a difference in a person's life.

Morton defines physical therapy as, "the treatment of disease, pain and paralysis using physical means such as heat, light, cold, exercise and electricity."

Crossroads Chalk Talk

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Crossroads Country teams had their first losing week this season, winning four and losing five.

Heading the list of winners were state-ranked Garden City and Sands. Garden City beat Roscoe 48-7 and Sands defeated Ira 54-6. The other two winners were Borden County, a 55-22 winner over area team Klondike, and Grady, a 48-0 winner over Hermleigh.

Coming out on the losing end were Coahoma, a 28-19 loser to Wall; Colorado City, which was blanked by Wylie 34-0; Stanton, a 35-22 loser to McCamey; and Forsan, which was beaten by Iraan 49-0.

Here is what area coaches had to say about last week's games and this week's encounters:

Jan East, on the loss to Iraan and this week's game against Coahoma — "I think Iraan's better than they were last year. I think they're better defensively and they still run the power sweep real well.

J. EAST

When they wanted to move the ball they just ran the sweep.

"I think they'll (Iraan) win it this year. That's what make them better, they don't depend on Riley Malone.

"We'll be outmanned against Coahoma. I thought the kids did some things better last week. The effort is still there. Injuries are still killing us though."

Grady coach Leandro Gonzales, on the win over Hermleigh and Saturday's game with Oak Trail Christian Academy — "The youngsters were ready to play. They were fired up. Having the one win against Loraine really helped the team spirit.

"Hermleigh is a young team and they've got better things coming. Believe it or not — it may be a small part, but it's an integral part of football — we made four consecutive PATs and we haven't done that in a while.

"I don't know much about Oak Trail Christian Academy. I only got a tape on them, that's all I know."

Borden County coach Bobby Avery, on the win over Klondike, and this week's district-opener with Hermleigh — "We played a pretty good football game, with the exception of that first possession or so. I think their first gain was about 25 yards. We buckled up, we just have hard time getting started. I just kind of contribute it to being young and not getting mind ready. We're going to have to get better at it. Because we can't let good team come out and strike first.

B. AVERY

"Hermleigh is big. There's not that many of them though. I think they just have one kid that's swift afoot. I think they'll try to play power football and I kind of expect them to run the spread, too."

Coahoma coach Steve Park, on the loss to Wall and this week's homecoming game against Forsan — "I guess the key was them getting a couple of third and long situations. Everytime they would score we would come back and go ahead. They just had the ball last.

"We had the lead with about seven minutes left and we couldn't stop them and they scored with four minutes to go. Then we missed on fourth down and they scored again with about a minute left.

"Forsan is awfully young and they don't have a lot of kids. Our kids can still have a good season, anything can happen. We just have to go out there and get after it."

Sam Scott, Garden City, on the win over Roscoe and this open week — "In the first half we played like we were there for the homecoming dance. We acted like the rest of people in stands — we showed up to watch a football game instead of play one.

"In the second half we executed well. It was homecoming week and it was hard to keep from getting distracted. It's hard to get yourself ready to play.

"We've got to get some bumps and bruises healed. Mario Aguliar will have his knee scoped this morning (Monday). Wesley Glass will get rehabed, he's got stretched ligaments in his knee. They'll be out for at least two weeks. The open week is coming at a good time."

Stanton coach Bill Grissom, on the close loss to McCamey and this week's game with Ozona — "At times we played well. We played well early. The kids came out fired up ready to go. We were down by a touchdown and had to drive ball in. We had a good drive in fourth quarter to tie the game.

B. GRISSOM

"The kids showed a lot of character. We had a lot of momentum at that time, then the bottom fell out.

"The blocked punt for a touchdown was a big play, a major factor in turning it around. It put us in a pressure situation to score. They got good field position and scored again late in the ballgame.

"Ozona is a really aggressive type of football team. They do things well for the personnel they have. They don't have a lot of great athletes, but they're really scrappy."

Tom Ramsey, on the loss to Wylie and this week's district-opener against Crane — "I think Wylie played the best game they've played all year. Everything went right for them and we broke down in some critical situations.

"We moved the ball as well as they did in the first half. We had three scoring opportunities in the first half and didn't get it in. In the first half our punter dropped the ball and they tackled us on the five. We fumbled the opening kickoff at our 25. That's two easy touchdowns we gave them.

"We had two players get injured. Cade Proctor (linebacker) broke his arm and Mark Monroe (defensive back) injured the same knee he hurt last year.

"Crane has some big kids. They've got six kids over 6-feet tall and one kid is 6-foot-5, 280 pounds. We haven't figured what we're going to do with them. I think they'll line up and try to overpower us."

Randy Roemisch, Sands, on the win over Ira and this week's district-opener with Wellman — "They (Sands) got after it. They (Ira) had one of the top-rated offenses around and we shut them down for 83 yards. Most of their yards came on a 56-yard scoring pass.

"Wellman is the one we've got to beat if we're going to win district. They run four or five different offenses. Most of their big plays come from the wing-T. They like to run Wade Roughton. He's a good back."

Chiefs scalp Buffalo Bills

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City's defense gave Buffalo's no-huddle offense no hope.

The Bills, averaging more than 32 points and 450 yards in winning their first five games in defense of their AFC championship, suffered six quarterback sacks, five lost fumbles and their most lopsided defeat in four years Monday night as the Chiefs romped to a 33-6 victory.

Christian Okoye, following two Buffalo turnovers, scored two touchdowns two minutes apart as the Chiefs took complete control in the third quarter.

The Bills, who haven't been held without a TD since Dec. 4, 1988, suffered their worst defeat since a 47-6 loss to Indianapolis by replacement players during the 1987 strike. Derrick Thomas had four of the Chiefs' sacks, with two of them causing fumbles.

Okoye ran for 130 yards, setting a Chiefs record with his 13th 100-yard game, and rookie Harvey Williams rushed for 103.

The Bills, held to 210 total yards, still were in the game when Thurman Thomas took a pass from Jim Kelly deep in Buffalo territory and was immediately hit by Lonnie Marts, who knocked the ball loose for Kevin Ross to scoop up and run 13 yards to the Buffalo 17.

Steve DeBerg hit Robb Thomas for 12 yards to the 5, then Okoye went over on the next play for a 23-6 lead with 2:52 left in the third quarter. A moment later, Thomas sacked Kelly, knocking the ball loose, and Dan Saleaumua recovered on the 11. On fourth and goal from the 2, Okoye knocked a defender backward into the end zone.

A fumble by Don Beebe on the ensuing kickoff led to Nick Lowery's 22-yard field goal. Lowery also kicked a 41-yarder in the first quarter, a 40-yarder in the second and a 24-yarder in the third.

Thomas, the Bills' leading rusher, left the game late in the quarter with an apparent ankle injury.

Adding to their miseries, even the officiating went against the Bills. Officials placed the ball 5 yards away from where they should have after replay officials overturned a Buffalo pass completion in the third period.

DeBerg, after faking to Okoye, hit Pete Holohan with a 1-yard touchdown pass on the second play of the second quarter.

The Chiefs sacked Kelly four times in the first half and harassed him on almost every passing down.

Buffalo got a 44-yard field goal in the second quarter from Scott Norwood and then a 25-yarder after wasting a first down on the Chiefs 11 after Okoye fumbled into the arms of Buffalo's Leonard Smith on the Chiefs 34.

A roughing-the-passer call against Bill Maas two plays later moved the Bills 11 yards to the 11, but the Chiefs' defense, which came into the game allowing an AFC-low 12 points per game, refused to yield.

Twins hope crowd comes into play

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — In 1987, there were 55,000 most valuable players in the Minnesota Twins' incredible conquest of the baseball world.

Will the 55,000 fans who fill the Metrodome for the American League playoffs be able to turn the facility into the Thunderdome again?

"It was definitely our number one advantage in 1987," Dan Gladden said. "As of up to now, we haven't seen it this year. They'll have to get cranked up."

Game 1 of the first all-dome postseason series in baseball history is tonight (8:39 p.m. CDT), when the Twins host the Toronto Blue Jays.

In the 1987 AL playoffs and World Series, the Twins went 6-0 at the Metrodome. They won the World Series even though they couldn't win on the road, outscoring St. Louis 33-12 in four games at the Metrodome.

Every time the Twins did something good, the din was deafening. Even when the Twins were losing in a game, the crowd would begin cheering and motivating the players.

"It does get loud in here," Twins shortstop Greg Gagne said. "The last time, they were comparing it to jet sounds and rock and roll. It's up to us to keep focused and not get carried away with the excitement."

Mike Pagliarulo, who joined the Twins this year, hasn't experienced that postseason drama. But he remembers the playoff-like atmosphere at the Metrodome during an August series against three-time defending AL champion Oakland.

"I got a hit to tie the game and, when I got on first base, (coach) Wayne Terwilliger was saying something and I couldn't hear him," Pagliarulo said. "He was standing right next to my shoulder and I couldn't hear a word he was saying."

Many of the cheers in 1987 were for Kirby Puckett, who batted .357 during the World Series. He said to expect more of the same.

"If we do anything with our bats, the noise will be astronomical," Puckett said.

The Blue Jays are determined not to be intimidated.

"No way," Toronto manager Cito Gaston said. "The people who complain most about this place are from the National League. And I hope they don't get a chance to complain about it this year."

But he admitted that the noise can cause problems.

"As far as trying to hear a guy yelling for cutoffs or relay throws, you're not going to hear that," Gaston said. "You've got to make quick decisions." Defense. Therein lies another problem for the Blue Jays.

Unlike the gray, beamed ceiling in Toronto's SkyDome, the Metrodome's teflon-coated fiberglass ceiling is translucent. When light from the outside shines in or the ceiling reflects light from the inside, it can be difficult to locate airborne baseballs.

"It's tough here," Toronto right fielder Joe Carter said. "White on white doesn't work too well in baseball."

Runnels B team wins again

SWEETWATER — The Runnels B volleyball team continued its winning ways by defeating Sweetwater 15-0, 15-12.

Charlene Angel served 15 straight points in the first game. Charlene Barganier served nine points in the second game.

The Runnels A team continued to struggle, losing to Sweetwater 15-7, 15-6. Sarah Wetzel was top server in the losing cause.

Runnels will play in Snyder Monday.

Mavs picks may go elsewhere

DALLAS (AP) — The agent for Dallas Mavericks No. 1 draft pick Doug Smith threatened that his client may play overseas if the team doesn't sign him soon.

But John Caponigro refused to reveal the names of the European teams he said he has contacted concerning Smith's services.

Smith, a 6-10 forward out of Missouri, was the sixth pick in June's draft. Talks between Caponigro and Mavericks general manager Norm Sonju have been unproductive.

"Our preference would be to play in Dallas this year," Caponigro said. "But if things can't be worked out, we will pursue other alternatives."

Such threats have become common, used by top draft picks and their agents to speed the negotiating process.

Two years ago, first-round draft pick Randy White, the eighth overall pick, had a serious offer from a team in Greece before signing a five-year contract with the Mavericks.

McWilliams knows UT-OU

AUSTIN (AP) — It's "Big Red time" in Texas, as the Longhorns and Oklahoma Sooners prepare to meet at a neutral site in Dallas before a sellout crowd and regional television audience.

"It's kind of a fist fight where you just have to keep fighting and keep fighting, knowing that you're going to earn every single yard of ground that's in the Cotton Bowl," Texas coach David McWilliams said Monday.

McWilliams should know. Saturday will be the 24th Texas-Oklahoma contest for McWilliams as a Longhorns player, assistant and head coach, tying former Texas coach Darrell Royal, who also was an Oklahoma quarterback. Former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer coached in 23 Texas-OU games.

McWilliams' teams are 2-2 against Oklahoma but 2-0 against coach Gary Gibbs' Oklahoma teams, upsetting the Sooners 28-24 in 1989 and 14-15 last season on late touchdown passes by Peter Gardere, who returns as a junior.

Since 1946, Texas holds a 22-21-2 edge in the series, which started in 1900.

This year Oklahoma (4-0) is ranked No. 6. Texas (1-2) is unranked.

McWilliams said the Sooners defense has no weaknesses.

"I don't think there's any question that it's the best we've seen ... pretty much guys who have been playing for three years. Nobody's really moved the ball consistently on them," he told his weekly news conference.

McWilliams said the Oklahoma offense has changed.

With sophomore Cale Gundy at quarterback, Oklahoma throws the ball better than any other OU team he has seen, McWilliams said.

"They're catching the ball very well, too," he said. "Gundy is scrambling very well. ... They keep you spread out more and put pressure on the front four and linebackers."

McWilliams said sophomore running back Butch Hadnot, who got Texas started on the winning drive against OU last year, is still hobbling by an ankle injury even though he was in for two plays in the Longhorns' 28-7 victory over Rice Saturday.

Quarterback-running back Jimmy Saxton suffered a slight separation of the right shoulder and offensive tackle Chuck Johnson hurt his ankle. Running back Adrian Walker's back is still sore, and place kicker Jason Ziegler is questionable with a torn leg muscle.

Ziegler's replacement, Jason Post, has yet to attempt a field goal in a college game.

If Saxton cannot play quarterback, redshirt freshman Chad Lucas, who has been in for one play, would back up Gardere.

Kickoff is at 2:36 p.m., CDT.

Oilers haven't forgotten last year

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston quarterback Warren Moon won't talk about his contract but he will talk about revenge.

Houston goes on the road Sunday to play the New York Jets, who won last year's matchup 17-12 in a game the Oilers were favored to win. The loss helped remove them from title contention in the AFC Central Division.

Will the Oilers be seeking revenge?

"I guess you try to use anything you can when you go on the road," Moon said. "That was one of those games you figure if we'd won, we'd probably won our division."

"We're going in with the proper respect because they did beat us last year and they are playing well right now."

The Jets (3-3) beat the Oilers' rival Cleveland 17-14 Sunday. The Oilers are 4-1 and hungry to improve their road record.

"I don't think there's any magic potion or recipe to get ready, we just have to try and do the same things we do at home, whatever that might be," Moon said. "We'll have to motivate ourselves more. When we get up emotionally, we play well so that'll be the key."

Beating the Jets shouldn't require revenge, said defensive end William Fuller, who had three sacks in the Oilers' 42-14 victory over the Denver Broncos Sunday.

"It's just a game we need to win," Fuller said. "The last time we played them we got our behinds kicked. If it takes revenge to get motivated, okay. We just need to go up there with our guns cocked and come back with a victory."

Moon was less talkative about his reasons for abruptly leaving the locker room after following Sunday's game. He apologized Monday for his quick exit but refused to say why he ducked out.

"It was just the way I felt at the time, it has nothing to do with any member of the media here," Moon said. "It was something personal, something I want to keep to myself. I just felt I had to get out of the environment."

Moon has been quarreling privately with Oilers management over a clause in his contract that gives him a bonus above his $1.5 million 1991 salary based on the average salaries of the top three quarterbacks in the league in passer ratings.

Because the Oilers and Moon's agent, Leigh Steinberg, don't have access to recently signed contracts, they haven't been able to agree on Moon's bonus figure.

Woman says Cone raped her

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police are investigating allegations by a New Jersey woman who claims New York Mets pitcher David Cone raped her in a hotel last weekend.

Police would not identify the woman's alleged assailant, but Mets spokesman Jay Horwitz confirmed Monday that club officials were aware the allegations concern Cone, according to The Philadelphia Inquirer. Horwitz would not comment further.

The 24-year-old woman said the alleged incident occurred Saturday evening at the Hilton Towers downtown. She reported it to police early Sunday and police took her to Thomas Jefferson University Hospital shortly after 9 a.m.

"Our understanding is that she was previously acquainted with the alleged attacker," police spokesman Ed Tenuto said. "As of now, it is an investigation of an allegation, and is not being handled as a rape."

A source involved with baseball commissioner Fay Vincent's office, who said police informed him of the incident, gave the Inquirer this account of the woman's allegations:

"They met at a bar. Based on their previous acquaintance, she felt comfortable going to his room. There was a good deal of consensual activity," the source said.

"She agreed to give him a massage, and it ... culminated in forcible intercourse. She says she was attacked and he forced himself on her."

According to the source, the woman angrily confronted Cone at the hotel bar about 11 p.m. Saturday.

A Hilton spokeswoman, Karen Matlini, referred questions to police.

Tyson not worried about anything

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Mike Tyson says he doesn't worry about a rape charge against him, and refuses to worry about Evander Holyfield.

The former heavyweight champion opened his training camp to the media for the first time Monday and calmly predicted he would triumph both in the ring against Holyfield and in an Indianapolis courtroom on the rape charge.

"I'm looking forward to it being over with," Tyson said of the trial, scheduled for January. "I'm very confident about the outcome."

Tyson dismissed suggestions he might be distracted by the rape charges when he fights Holyfield on Nov. 8 for the undisputed heavyweight crown.

"Even though the situation occurs to me at a crucial time, I'm not dispirited or disheartened," Tyson said. "The job comes before the legal situation. I can't worry about that when I have a job to do."

Tyson continued Monday to prepare for that job with a light workout of a little more than an hour in a hot gym near the downtown area.

"I'm going to win the title, there's no doubt about that," said Tyson, who held the title before losing it in a shocking upset to James "Buster" Douglas in February 1990. "This is important. It is very serious."

Tyson appeared relaxed and upbeat despite the legal difficulties that escalated last week when the mother of his son sued him for allegedly renegeing on a deal to support her and the child.

Baseball Today

Tuesday, Oct. 8

SCOREBOARD
On the 35th anniversary of Don Larsen's perfect game in the World Series, the AL playoffs begin. Tom Candiotti (13-13) starts for Toronto and Jack Morris (18-12) pitches for Minnesota.

SORROWS

Leo Durocher, a feisty and controversial manager for nearly four decades and one of baseball's most colorful characters, died at 86 of natural causes on Monday. Durocher managed the Brooklyn Dodgers, New York Giants, Chicago Cubs and Houston Astros, retiring in 1973 with 2,008 victories, sixth all-time.

STUMP
Stump Merrill was fired as manager of the New York Yankees, becoming the ninth manager to be canned this season. Merrill, with the organization

16 years, led the Yankees to a 71-91 record, four games better than 1990.

SIGNINGS
Andy MacPhail, the Twins' vice president of player personnel, signed a new 3-year deal with Minnesota on Monday. ... Johnny Oates, who took over as manager of Baltimore from Frank Robinson on May 23, received a 2-year contract after the Orioles finished 87-95.

STATS

Every team in the AL West finished at .500 or better. It's the first time each club in a division wound up at break-even or above.

SWINGS
The California Angels (81-81) finished last in the AL West despite having a 19-game winner (Mark Langston), two 18-game winners (Jim Abbott and Chuck Finley) and AL save-leader Bryan Harvey (46).

SLUGGERS

Cecil Fielder and Jose Canseco tied for the major league home run lead with 44. Fielder homered just once in Detroit's last 15 games and Canseco connected only once in Oakland's last nine games. ... The St. Louis Cardinals hit 48 homers in 1991, seven more than Roger Maris had 28 years ago.

STARTERS
Frank Tanana beat Baltimore 7-1 Sunday in the Orioles' final game at Memorial Stadium. Tanana opened the season by pitching Detroit to a 16-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox in their first game at the new Comiskey Park. Tanana also spoiled Saito's debut at the Kingdome in 1977 while pitching for California.

STOPPERS
Toronto relief ace Tom Henke pitched one scoreless inning Sunday against Minnesota. He had not pitched since Sept. 17 because of shoulder tendinitis until working one shutout inning Friday night against the Twins, the Blue Jays' opponent in the playoffs.

Names in the news

Bad childhood

NEW YORK (AP) — Sinead O'Connor says she and her siblings were victims of daily beatings while growing up.

"I was beaten up every day ... very, very badly. I lived my life in a state of terror," the Irish-born singer said in the November issue of Spin magazine.

Dylan offers advice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Dylan has two pieces of advice for songwriters: make your songs meaningful and get some music education.

"If nobody wrote any songs from this day on, the world ain't gonna suffer for it ... unless someone's gonna come along with a pure heart and has something to say," he said in an interview to be published in the October issue of SongTalk.

The magazine is the journal of the National Academy of Songwriters.

Brenner abducted

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Rivers

will show photographs of comedian David Brenner's abducted son on her TV program until the boy's mother returns him, a producer of the program says.

Cole Brenner, 9, was kidnapped last week by his mother, Charisse Brody, Brenner's former girlfriend, hours after a judge awarded custody of the boy to the comedian.

Marlaine Selip, supervising producer for Rivers' weekday program, said pictures of Cole and his fugitive mother would be televised beginning today.

Brenner's lawyer, David Ettinger, said he will ask a judge on Wednesday to order Brody arrested.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE:

Forget past mistakes. In late fall, an older person offers you excellent career advice. Learn to delegate time-consuming tasks. A creative venture begun early in 1992 could bring lasting fame and fortune. Put in those extra hours that will make your work truly outstanding! Investing your money wisely next June will bring improved dividends.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE:

"Beatle" John Lennon, singer Jackson Browne, author Bruce Catton, baseball's Brian Downing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19):

Wake up and recognize what is really important to your mate's happiness. Material possessions count for less than affection and understanding. Become a better listener. Discretion is essential.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20):

Avoid looking to other people for motivation. Find it within yourself. The business and employment outlook will improve soon. Do not jump off into the unknown. Stick to the safe and familiar.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1991

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

You deserve better friends than those you are associating with now. Widen your social circle. A bonus is not the whole answer to your financial worries. Look for another source of income.

CANCER (June 21-July 22):

Be aware of what is going on behind the scenes at work. You need all the information you can get to negotiate a profitable business deal. Your family's financial security is involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):

A phone call or letter triggers a bright idea. Do your research now, but postpone making a presentation until you have the attention of those in authority. Remain both objective and prudent.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

Wait a little longer before popping an important question. Some news regarding a family dinner proves very interesting. Cheer up someone who is feeling under the weather.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

Recognize that there are no shortcuts to success and you will be ahead of the game. A work problem is not nearly as serious as it seems. A good evening for entertaining.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

A close relationship becomes more rewarding. A period of relaxation will help you return to work feeling refreshed. You feel like a new person! Let others discover your great sense of humor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21):

Stay the course. A positive attitude is the key to winning a competition. If concentration is difficult, take an occasional brief break. Romance needs more time to grow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19):

A chance meeting with an old love leaves you feeling full of vigor. Take care to finish all business projects on time. An evening shopping expedition could uncover some real bargains.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18):

The emphasis now is on finishing what you start. Tackling too many things at one time could land you in hot water. Establish your priorities and stick to them. Persistence pays off!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20):

A friendship may be more valuable than a current romance. Performing a favor for someone will work to your advantage. Keep a tight rein on your personal spending. Get together with friends tonight.
