Thomas refuses to withdraw nomination

WASHINGTON — Judge Clarence Thomas listens on Capitol Hill. Thomas said of the charges of sexto his wife Virginia during a break in hearings ual harassment, "I would have preferred an before the Senate Judiciary Committee Saturday assassin's bullet to this kind of living hell."

Republican senators attacked the credibility of Anita Hill on Saturday, and Clarence Thomas said defiantly, "I'd rather die than withdraw" his Supreme Court nomination in the face of her charges of sexual harassment.

"I never cry uncle," Thomas said, nearing the end of a long day of testimony in which he denounced allegations against him as racist lies. Struggling to regain his composure, he said, "I died" upon learning that the charges would be made public.

The Senate is scheduled to vote Tuesday on Thomas' nomination to the nation's high court, rendering its verdict in what has become a spectacle of sex and power that has transfixed the nation.

Hill, a University of Oklahoma law professor, was not present for Thomas' testimony. On Friday, she testified at length that Thomas had harassed her in the 1980s when she worked for him at two federal agencies, describing pornographic movies, bragging about his sexual prowess, boasting about the size of his penis and pressuring her to date

"I felt that implicit in the discussion about sex acts was the offer to have sex with him," she testified.

Republican members of the committee sought to turn the proceedings on Day 2 of the hearings into a debate of her credibility. Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, suggested that some of the more lurid details of Hill's account of harassment originated in the Exorcist, a book about driving out the devil.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., accused Ms. Hill of giving testimony that was "flat-out perjury" when she told senators on Friday that she could not recall ever being told by a Senate aide that her allegations could prompt Thomas to withdraw his nomination.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said Specter had taken the entire incident "out of context." Sen. Joseph Biden. D-Del., called Hill an "incredibly credible witness.

"Anita Hill has offered to take a polygraph test. That offer stands," said Emma Coleman Jordan, a member of her legal team.

Charge and rebuttal under the glare of television lights, it was a drama unlike any the nation had ever seen.

The panel had been expected to hear Saturday from character witnesses for both Thomas and Hill, but unexpectedly adjourned for the night without hearing their testimony. Biden announced it was his "hope but not full expectation" that the hearings could be concluded with one more day of testimony on Sunday.

Thomas denied all for the second day in a row, and said, "I would have preferred an assassin's bullet to this kind of living hell."

He said he never discussed pornographic movies with Hill or anyone else in the workplace. Asked a broader question, he said he wasn't going to "discuss my sex life or my private life."

He accused Hill, a former aide. of labeling him with the "worst stereotypes about black men." Both are black.

'God is my judge, not you, Sen. Metzenbaum," he said to the Ohio Democrat who has been one of his most persistent critics.

Asked what impact the hearings had on him, Thomas said, "This has heightened my awareness of the importance of those protections, in theory, privacy, due process, equal protection, fairness.'

Plans underway for model train exhibit near railroad plaza

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

A love of railroad history is all donations and we're gothat is required for those wishing to help build a model railroad exhibit near the Railroad Plaza on Main

Supporters hope the museumtype display will draw tourists into the downtown area.

"We're going to need donations and we're going to need help," said W.B. (Doc) Hardy, who is coordinating the effort to build the 18-foot model railroad exhibit in a building at 123 Main St.

Hardy is organizing a club for those who enjoy "H-O" sized model trains. "That's about medium sized," he said of this particular train and track size.

Model trains come in various sizes, or guages, the largest of which are G-guage. The G-guage trains have cars and engines a foot or more in length. Smaller are Oguage trains, which are the most common size trains for children.

The H.O. trains are next in size, but larger still than N and Z-guage trains, which have finger-sized engines and cars. Hardy himself has never been employed with a railroad company. Two members of the club, however, have experience working on the railroad, he said.

Club members are not expecting the display to be completed until next year and, at present, are renovating the building before the actual model work begins.

"It's going to be a timeconsuming thing. The scenery, the trees, laying the track is slow," he said.

"The Boy's Club is helping us we're really glad to have them. The railroad club is seeking all kinds of railroad memorabelia such as uniforms and other equipment, said Hardy. Anyone wishing to help build the railroad and scenery, or make donations to the exhibit should call the exhibit building at 264-6003, Big Spring Main Street Inc. at 267-4801 or Hardy at 263-4884.

Scholars, veterans honored at homecoming

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

The 19th Annual Big Spring High School Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony, which recognized two diverse groups of former students, was declared a success Saturday by those involved.

Inducted at a ceremony in the high school cafeteria were previous National Merit Scholars and former students who served in the Persian Gulf War. There were 39 scholars inducted and 94 veterans. About 250 people attended.

"It's kind of the brawn and the brain this year," said Assistant Principal Craig Fischer, an organizer of the event.

Inducting the veterans made the ceremony a little different this year since usually related groups are inducted, Fischer said. Last year's inductees included those who excelled in art, entertainment, literature and drama.

'This was kind of a last-minute thing," Fischer said of the decision to induct the veterans. "It's timely," he added. Four-year reserve Marine Corp. Dean Gartman, 26, said he appreciated the recognition, especially after the pressure he and his family experienced while he was in the Persian Gulf.

'It was really good to come back and be accepted by everyone," said Gartman, who had driven supplies to troops on the front line. 'The whole thing that the school did, that was very nice."

"I was moved by the ceremony. It was very well done," said Elizabeth Crenwelge," who accepted plaques on behalf of her sons Bret and Wayne Crenwelge. Both are in the Air Force. Bret is currently on assignment in England and Wayne is stationed in Germany.

Several veterans wore their uniforms at the ceremony, but Gartman was the only one wearing a Marine uniform.

'It gave me a proud feeling," said Gartman, who is a Big Spring air conditioning and heating contractor. "I was the only Marine there in a uniform. They're (Big Spring residents) used to seeing Air Force."

Gartman said he also met some old classmates, but added that he saw more old acquaintances at the football game Friday night. "It was neat. I saw some people that I hadn't seen since I graduated," he

Letter may lead to change in law

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

A recent letter to the Herald, in which a local man complained he paid a 12-month fee for a vehicle license plate that was good for only 11 months, could lead to a change in state law

Current law says a new registration must count the whole month in which the registration is requested, regardless of whether it is issued at the beginning or end of the month. Renewed registrations, which can be applied for two months in advance, are not affected unless they are prorated to subtract nondriving time. Proration is done by months, not days.

In a letter to the editor published by the Big Spring Herald Wednesday, Jack Taylor of Big Spring complained that on Sept. 30 he paid for a 12-month Texas registration on his 1976 pickup but nis new expiration date is Aug. 31, 1992. Taylor, who just moved back to Big Spring from Washington state, said he had not registered his pickup in Texas for four years.

'I'm not sure why this has been overlooked but it's ridiculous," said Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, who received numerous calls from private citizens following the publication of the letter. "It's something that needs to be corrected.

Fraser said he may introduce a bill next year to change the cutoff date from the end of each month to the middle of each month. Registrations in the latter half of the month would get credit for the whole month while those in the first half would still be billed for the whole month.

"I think that would be the compromise," Fraser said. "It's not impossible that what will be discussed in the legislation is give ing the consumer the whole month (regardless of the application

If the governor calls a special session in January, Fraser said he will file the bill then.

Meanwhile, Howard County Tax-Assessor Collector Kathy Sayles said she had received at least one phone call concerning Taylor's

'We have to collect for 12 months. It's based on months, not days," said Sayles who referred to Article 6675a-3 of Vernon's Civil Statutes.

"I don't mind paying for 12 months but I'd like to get what I pay for," Taylor said.

Companies recall chili, bean products

(DALLAS) - Two food companies today began voluntarily recalling 16-ounce and 15-ounce cans of Wolf Brand Chili and Van Camp's beans.

The companies found a processing problem in a small number of cans that could lead to harmful spoilage bacteria. Quaker Oats Co. and Stokely-Van Camp Inc. said no il-Inesses have been reported from the products, which were processed at a plant in Dallas. The recall applies to five varieties of Wolf chili, sold in nine Southwestern states, and six varieties of Van Camp's beans, sold nationwide. Cans with a product code that begins with "D" or "O" are affected. The two-line product code is stamped on the top or bottom of each can.

Officials say customers who find that code on the can should return the beans or chili to the grocery store where it was purchased for a full refund.

Mayor objects to play's name

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP) A theater company is willing to alter the banner promoting its fall musical to read "The Best Little Blankhouse in Texas' if it'll keep everyone happy. "I understand the mayor's position. I'm willing to compromise," said Beth Myers, promotions director for the Glens Falls Community Theatre.

The company's production of 'The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," scheduled to run Nov. 7-10, is not what's causing the Glens Falls Mayor Francis X. O'Keefe initially denied the group's request to hang the banner across a street, saying the title of the musical was too provocative.

"It's because of the wording of the banner" said O'Keefe, whose city 50 miles north of Albany has a population of about 17,000. "I'm concerned with the churches, the PTAs and other people who may take that the wrong way.

However, Myers said she contacted O'Keefe on Wednesday regarding his decision and was told a final ruling would be made by the Common Council at its Oct. 17 meeting.

"He's a political person. He's got to weigh everything in how people see him," Peter Snyder, the musical's director, said of the mayor.

The players argue that while the musical is about a brothel in Texas, it is actually a delightful, lighthearted work.

"You can't judge the show by its name," said Don Cornell, who does set work and performs bit parts. "Personally, I think the word, in this day and age, is acceptable. People are more sophisticated.'

Emergency construction fund short

AUSTIN (AP) — The $50 million provided by lawmakers for emergency school construction grants is "minuscule" compared to the need, which an ongoing study has so far pegged at twice that amount, a State Board of Education member said Saturday.

"It won't even wet the bottom of the bucket," said Will Davis of Austin, chairman of the board's school finance committee.

The survey by the Texas Education Agency includes information from 831 of the state's 1,052 school districts. Based on those districts, it would cost more than $100 million to replace school buildings that are in poor condition.

The inventory does not yet include Houston and Dallas, the state's largest school districts. In addition, the study said, it would cost another $1 billion to replace portable buildings with permanent ones.

The inventory of school facilities was ordered by lawmakers to use in deciding allocation of state funds for construction.

A group of poor school districts has said the new school finance law, passed in response to a court order to equalize funding, does not include sufficient state money to address the problem.

The issue is part of the debate on equitable school funding. Because school districts have footed the bill locally for building classrooms, poor schools cite that as an area in which they are at a disadvantage.

A group of poor school districts has said the new school finance law, passed in response to a court order to equalize funding, does not include sufficient state money to address the problem. Bob Aikin of Commerce, vice chairman of the Education Board, said that even the $100 million figure would be "at best, a down payment.'

Based on past spending, new construction and renovation will cost at least $1 billion over the next several years, he said.

There's a pretty good-sized construction and major repair backlog out there," Aikin said.

In the school districts surveyed, more than 95 percent of the rooms were in fair or good shape. The area of the state with the highest percentage of below-average buildings was the Lower Rio Grande Valley, it said. On other matters:

- The board approved a resolution in support of a proposed constitutional amendment to allow the sale of up to $300 million in statebacked bonds for loans to Texas college students. The proposal is on the Nov. 5 ballot.

The Texas Center for Educational Research reported that the weighted average tax rate for the state's new county education districts is estimated at 82 cents.

The 188 districts, made up one or several counties, are part of the school finance reform law. The measure is designed to shift hundreds of millions of local property tax dollars from wealthier to poorer school districts within the new taxing regions.

Each county education district must set an effective 72-cent property tax rate per $100 property valuation — based on 1990 property values — and redistribute that revenue among its school districts. School districts may tax more without sharing the revenue.

Actual rates vary from the 72 cents because of changing property values, new exemptions and collec-

 The board gave its final approval to a plan for reorganizing the Texas Education Agency.

Immigrants rush to mail cards

BOŠTON (AP) — At 12:01 a.m. Monday, a window will crack open for thousands of immigrants looking to become legal residents of the United States in a rare, mail-in lottery that's creating a mad rush in Boston's Irish community.

The offer of green cards on a first-come, first-served basis has hundreds of people trekking to Virginia to drop off their applications at a post office in Arlington, the only one handling the lottery.

Other people are mailing hundreds of applications to ensure they are among 40,000 qualified applicants to be chosen.

The cause for hope is a section in the 1990 Immigration Act that provides for 40,000 cards for foreigners who were put at a States illegally.

Redd Foxx dies of heart attack

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Redd Foxx, the X-rated comic who gained national fame as the irascible junk peddler of TV's "Sanford and Son," died of a heart attack Friday after collapsing during a rehearsal of his new show.

REDD FOXX He was 68. The bow-legged, raspy-voiced comedian was a frequent headliner in Las Vegas before starting work on "The Royal Family," in which he co-starred with Della Reese as a retiree forced to take in his grown daughter and her three children.

He played cantankerous junk dealer Fred Sanford on "Sanford and Son" from 1972 to 1977.

Born John Elroy Sanford on Dec. 9, 1922, in St. Louis, Foxx began performing as a child on a washtub bass. He ran away from home at age 13 to join a street band, then began working as a comic in the 1940s

He broke into television in the 1960s, and later made movies like "Cotton Comes to Harlem" and Harlem Nights

In later years, Foxx encountered serious financial troubles. In February 1983 he filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection, citing mounting debts and tax problems.

Tough Mideast issues hinder peace mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight months after it all began, the Middle East peace mission of Secretary of State James A. Baker III is still short of its goal and the calendar is bearing down on him.

The hope that a new spirit would arise in the region from the defeat of Iraq in February — and that it would bring Israel, the Arab nations and the Palestinians to the peace table - remained an unproved theory as Baker flew to Egypt on Saturday for another round of shuttle diplomacy

Israel remains suspicious of Syria and the Palestinians, and the feeling is mutual.

And yet, the trip could be the

if he does not hammer out the final details in Egypt, Jordan, Syria, Israel and with the Palestinians, Bush and Gorbachev may issue invitations anyhow in the expectation the guests would find it impossible to turn them down.

Toward the end of the trip, Baker plans to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Boris Pankin to coordinate the next steps with Moscow.

The most positive sign would be a declaration by the Palestinians that they are ready to attend. The most helpful might be Soviet diplomatic recognition of Israel.

This is Baker's eighth trip since February, and while he has tentative approval from Israel, Syria and Jordan for a peace conference, many of the same issues and attitudes that dogged him at the start are still in his way

The Palestinians, with whom he met at the State Department on Thursday and Friday, are resisting, maneuvering for terms that offer hope for self-rule on the West Bank and Gaza and might even hint at eventual statehood.

The Palestinian problem is Baker's biggest headache. But there are others traceable to 40 U.S. officials say he is closer to years of Arab-Israeli conflict and taking only different forms as Baker resolves one only to have another crop up.

Fire shuts down Chernobyl reactor

MOSCOW (AP) — A fire at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant destroyed part of the roof but did not cause a radiation leak or injuries, the government said Saturday.

The accident was certain to have political repercussions, intensifying calls to shut down the plant, where the world's worst nuclear disaster occurred in 1986.

The blaze Friday night, which also forced the shutdown of a nuclear reactor, was the worst accident at the Ukrainian plant since the 1986 disaster, which spewed radiation worldwide.

The fire in a turbine room at the Ukrainian plant is likely to renew debate over the safety of Soviet reactors nationwide.

The plant's director, Mikhail Umanets, told reporters he saw no reason to shut down the station, which produces 30,000 kilowatts of electricity a day. He said it would take 30-45 days to repair the damage.

Surrogate mother gives birth to grandchildren

Winter

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) Twins were born Saturday to Arlette Schweitzer, the first American woman to bear her own grandchildren as a surrogate for her daughter.

"They are really sweet," said Dan Schweitzer, grandfather of the boy and girl, Chad Daniel and Cheisea Arlette. "I can't describe it. They're just like two little miracles.

Mrs. Schweitzer, 42, carried the babies for her daughter, Christa Uchytil, and son-in-law, Kevin. Mrs. Uchytil, 22, was born without a uterus, which made it impossible for her to have children.

Charges against Thomas disturbing

What is happening to Supreme Court nominee Clarance Thomas is both alarming and disturbing.

Two former employees, both female, have accused Thomas of improper behavior, one using the term sexual harassment, the other, annoying and obnoxious behavior Thomas denies, absolutely, that there is any basis to the

Anita Hill, now a law professor at the University of Oklahoma, testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee that Thomas pressured her for dates, boasted of his own sexual prowess and described X-rated movies to her while she was working for him at two government agencies between 1981 and 1983.

A second woman, Angela Wright, now an editor at the Charlotte, N.C., Observer has been summoned to testify before the committee about statements she has made of Thomas pressing her for dates and talking about sexual subjects while she was in his employ during 1984 and 1985.

There are valid reasons to reject Thomas for the Supreme Court, not least of which is his lack of qualifications as a legal scholar. But how much attention should be paid to unsubstantiated allegations of acts that took place six to 10 years ago?

It's a disturbing question, and one that Big Spring residents were confronted with recently when allegations of misconduct and brutality were made against police

Objectionable and illegal acts do occur, and frequently take place without witnesses. On the other hand, people not only lie for their own ends, but, less maliciously, distort or exaggerate acts, or misinterpret them. And all newspapers are familiar with the way any public statement generates similar stories from the public.

Without witnesses, there is always an element of doubt. If true, these allegations are seriously damaging, but without concrete evidence, is it fair to use them as a basis to reject Thomas' nomination?

Another factor to consider is how much treatment of women in the workplace has changed in the past several years. Few women who have worked for more than five years would not have their own horror stories to tell. Women have been subjected to rude, obnoxious, unthinking, unfeeling behavior on the job for years, to say nothing of out and out sexual harassment.

Is it reasonable to apply today's standards, the result of years of aggressive behavior modification efforts by women, to something that happened several years ago?

A large number of people have been glued to the television set as the Thomas hearings heat up. Whether the charges are true or not, they are casting a shadow on a man who may not be ready for the Supreme Court but who nevertheless has an honorable history of government service behind him.

Focus on multi-cultural contributions

Jesse Trevino

A decade after the first news stories about its changing demographics began appearing, the country now realizes that population forces have the potential to change the country's

Suddenly, the word becoming has come into vogue as the country watches its population churn. Over that churning hangs an air of uncertainty and worry: what is this country becoming? The Public Broadcasting System's recent telecast of "America Becoming" explored the idea, which comes simultaneously with the advent of planning for next year's quincentennial celebration of Christopher Columbus' epic voyage to the new world.

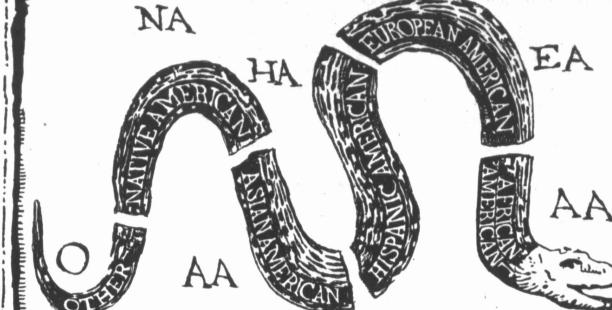

Little did Columbus know that the part of the New World he discovered would one day be called the Third World and that the other part, which includes the United States, would hold the kind of vast wealth he was pursuing 500 years ago.

The developed world the United States belongs to holds such power that it does not go by its presumed moniker, the First World. It doesn't have to: it defines the standards by which the rest of the world is measured. Such dominance brings with it the power to interpret history at will and to construct educations for the world that obviate facts.

The fallout of that reality — the division between rich and poor and the power of dominant cultures to control how history is written — forms the backdrop for the debate over how to celebrate Columbus' journey. To some he was an exploiter and destroyer; to others he was a heroic explorer and builder.

The exploiter-explorer debate camouflages the real question: What do we teach ourselves and subsequent generations about America and the origins of its history? The answer to that question answers the question of what the country becomes. Therein lies the emotion of the debate.

Critics of the proposed celebration seem to view the upcoming celebration as a test of one's selfidentity, ethnicity quotient and morality.

The critics' critics do not want to listen to the true history of the events and consequences of Columbus' journey.

Both are wrong. Neither understands the importance of the celebration: that it signifies the inauguration of a second new world, in which the world's cultures grow closer and come into more frequent contact.

Some Latinos and other minorities who form the vanguard of the country's demographic change are torn between the two warring camps because many see themselves as remnant pieces of the colonial subjugation of the western hemisphere by the Europeans.

Many Latinos — specifically, Mexican-Americans — are among the poorest Americans, a legacay that many can trace to the destruction of the old cultures of Mexico by the explorers Columbus unleashed. Valid or not, that connection underlies the doubts about the celebration aired by the

Many of those doubts are cast in rhetoric approaching a Marxist-Lenninst philosophy.

Yet that is not what should be viewed as important as the world prepares to remember an event that changed the course of history.

The Columbus debate is providing the world, and the United States in particular, an opportunity to focus attention on the multicultural debate that now engulfs, in addition to this country, the nations of Europe and

The ethnic turmoil now loose in Germany, Britain and parts of the former Soviet Empire sharpen the need for the world to understand the new Multicultural Age that is a logical extension of the transoceanic, transcultural travel Columbus inaugurated. We live, after all, in an age of emerging trading blocs that are hemispheric in scale and of free trade agreements that will bind not just countries but continents.

commemoration ironically underscores the need for the new education we all need to adjust and adapt to the new world around us. Many Americans, for example, do not think of Spain as part of Europe, despite the geographic fact. The emphasis given to the British origins of American history relegates Spain to a secondary status. There is reason to believe Spain understands that misshaped view permeates much of the western world. Indeed, it seems the Spanish intend to use the Olympic and Columbus celebrations next year to try to undo what history has wrought.

Thus the world should take its cue from Spain, as it did almost 500 years ago, and explore how to use the Columbus anniversary as a celebration of the future, of the New World still forming — not about the sins or ommissions of our forefathers. The re-education of the world to

Columbus' voyage, his deeds and his legacy so parallel the inception of this new Multicultural Age so as to almost personify it. The Columbus quincentennial is not an occasion to reconstruct a story of cultural destruction. Rather it is an opportunity to incultural age that Columbus truly

To focus on the negative aspects of the Columbian chapter or to only revel in misguided attempts to glorify his exploits is to miss the point entirely.

'Thanks for laughs'

To the editor: I live in Coahoma which is a quiet, friendly place. Of late, the best claim to fame this little town has is that it is down the road from Big Spring. As recently as last week, someone asked me where I lived and I used Big Spring as a reference for Coahoma. The person asking laughed and commented on the "most screwed up group of politicians this side of Austin." As a former resident of Big Spring, I took offense at this comment. After reading the paper that night, I began to think back upon the activities of the city council in the past year and I realized that some of the activities of the city council admittedly have been childish and embarrassing.

Most people would be able to conduct themselves in a more professional and unbiased manner when entrusted with the business of running a large town. The most flagrant example of childish behavior that comes to mind is that of making fun of a citizen's name in a public meeting. To publicly make fun of a person's name, or even read a paper during a presentation, is a prepubesent schoolboy prank. These behaviors are not becoming of an elected public official. Getting into a heated discussion and completely ignoring a citizen at a council meeting is inconceivable. Gentlemen and ladies, I believe you should remember how you got

Big Spring Independent School District underwent a Texas Education Agency accreditation visit in May, and the report from that office was submitted to the trustees during the regular board meeting Thursday night.

Murray Murphy, assistant superintendent for personnel, said, "We received 35 commendations and eight corrective actions. That's not bad. The Dallas Independent School District received 108 corrective actions, if my memory is right."

District-wide, the review board credited administration and trustees with recruiting minority personnel, operating a quality instructional program and community and parental involvement in the educational processes.

Each campus was given specific commendations. Anderson Kindergarten Center was praised for principal John Slaten's effective leadership and an effective school climate. More than 18 areas of education were cited for commendation on this campus.

Bauer Magnet School was praised for the extended day program, the exemplary performance award for the state testing, and the team effort, involvement and committment of the teachers and principal Jean Broughton at that campus. Specifically, the TAAS test scores were praised, as Bauer students mastered the third-grade scores in reading, writing and mathematics at more than 95 percent. College Heights Elementary received praise for principal Janice Rosson and her innovative efforts to recognize teachers, students and parents. She was credited with several newsletters for parents and programs highlighting teachers and students for their efforts.

Kentwood Elementary received commendations for parent volunteers and principal Andre Clark for involving teachers in the administration process of the school. Self-pride for the students was also credited.

Marcy Elelmentary received commendation for staff development meeting and the accessibility of principal Rey Villarreal to his teachers and students. He was also credited with supporting the needs of special students.

Mainstreaming special education students was one area that Moss Elementary received commendation. Principal Ronnie Moss was praised for his teamwork and campus activities as well as the appearance of the school.

Washington Elementary principal Wendall Ware was credited for his after-school computer program. Campus safety and parental involvement were other areas of commendation.

Goliad Middle School received commendation for its Chapter I program with computer check-out for students. Two teachers were credited with exemplary instruction programs and several individuals were recommended for accomplishments

Runnels Junior High School was credited with an excellent science program that includes writing as well as science. The building was said to be "well maintained and pleasant, although very old."

The high school received praise for daily tutorials, remedial instruction, a strong home and school relationship and a quality science program. Honors courses and a high level of positive expectations from students were also commended.

The Personalized Achievement Center was praised for working with the Job Training Partnership Act and for keeping classroom instruction within the essential elements. The staff was commended for quality performances and well maintained facilities.

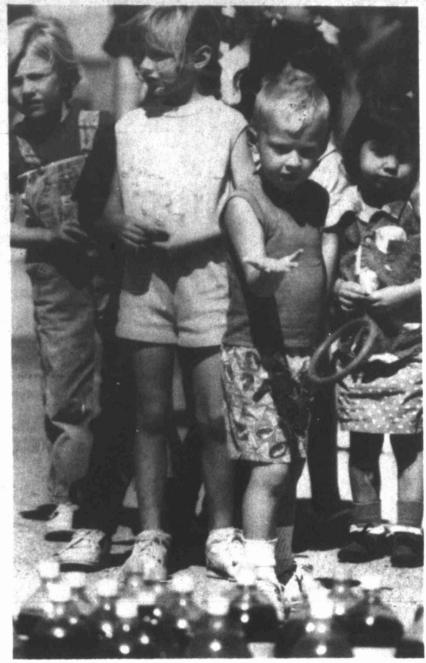

The district must submit a plan that contains continuous updates and revisions of the campus improvement plan as one are of needed improvement. A plan must also be submitted concerning curriculum guides including bilingual education.

The district must submit evidence that a non-interupted planning and preparation period is provided for all teachers. A dutyfree lunch period for all teachers must also be evidenced.

Classrooms must have adequate resources, and the district must submit a plan to that end. Libraries in the district are also deficient and a plan must be in place to solve these problems.

Facitilies must be adapted to meet the needs of handicapped students. Deficiencies in the science laboratories must also be corrected.

Thousands of miles from the Wednesday, Dr. Lee Simmons examined a snowy-faced marmoset before climbing through the foliage to gauge the progress of a transplanted vine.

The $15 million Lied Jungle (pronounced leed) was four years in the making. Funding came from the Lied Foundation, a private organization founded by an Omaha car dealer.

"This is the biggest and most complicated thing we've done,"

On a stroll through the jungle said Simmons, the zoo director. Putting a jungle together meant coping with the intricacies of creating an environment, and with animals that weren't always > predictable. There was a scrambling squirrel monkey that swam a moat in pur> suit of freedom. A zoo keeper swam right after it to make the pinch. And there are zoo-raised leaping monkeys, stronger than their wild cousins, who jump 10-feet farther

'They were jumping out to where we didn't want them," Simmons said.

By the official opening April 1, the jungle will have 125 animal species from insects to crocodiles, thousands of plants, palms and orchids, 50-foot waterfalls, pools, caves and a winding trail on the rain forest floor.

Simmons said the jungle is threetimes larger than other indoor jungles in North America.

Most Americans expect Bush to be re-elected

WASHINGTON (AP) - An overwhelming majority of Americans believe President Bush will be reelected even though some are unenthusiastic about that prospect, according to a poll released

The Times Mirror telephone poll of more than 1,200 people also found that as the 1992 presidential campaign picks up steam, voters are extremely interested in the economy and domestic issues in general.

Bush's approval rating peaked at 84 percent in the Times Mirror poll in March and has been declining since. The latest poll, taken Oct.

"You will be more sensitive to the rights of the accused," prompted Sen. Dennis DeConcini, the only Democrat on the committee to vote for Thomas. The nominee agreed.

For the second day in a row, the networks scrubbed regular programming to carry some or all of the proceedings. The debate spilled over into the hallways outside the ornate Senate caucus room. "Your group has been digging up dirt for weeks," a Thomas supporter, former White House aide Gary Bauer, said to feminist Eleanor Smeal.

With a second potential accuser, Angela Wright, waiting in the wings, Thomas didn't hesitate in suggesting a motivation for fabricating charges. "I terminated her very aggressively a number of years ago, and very summarily,' he said of Wright.

Sen. Alan Simpson later said Wright was getting "cold feet" and raised the possibility that she might not testify.

But speaking through her attorney, Wright denied Simpson's assertion. "I am ready to testify before the committee and I do not have cold feet," Wright was quoted as saying in the Sunday editions of The Charlotte (N.C.) Observer, the newspaper where she works.

Simpson said he had begun to receive information about Hill. "I've got letters hanging out of my pockets . . . saying watch out for this woman," he said.

As for any motivation that Hill might have to lie and thus jeopardize her own career, Thomas said, "I don't know. I don't have a clue as to why she would do this.

Asked about the role of interest groups opposed to his nomination, Thomas said, "I believe in combination this story was developed or concocted to destroy me.'

He was emphatic about continuing his quest for confirmation. "I'd rather die than withdraw," he said. "If they're going to kill me they're going to kill me. President Bush monitored the hearings on television at Camp David, and the White House issued a fresh declaration of support for Thomas. "We look forward to the vote on his confirmation and believe he will be confirmed to the court," it said. Thomas startled the committee Friday by saying he had refused to watch Hill's seven hours of testimony — even though he denied all her allegations. But he said today that his wife "watched significant parts of it.'

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., a former Alabama Supreme Court judge, said Thomas' refusal to watch her testimony makes it harder to determine the facts. "We're left in a great quandary, and we're trying to get to the bottom of it," he said.

House leaders cut transportation funds

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Democratic leaders, rewriting transportation legislation after the collapse of their proposed 5-cent-agallon gasoline tax hike, are cutting money for projects in members' districts by 30 percent. But the 557 projects, condemned by the Bush administration as wasteful "pork barrel" spending, remain controversial despite the reduction of their overall cost from $6.8 billion in the original bill to about $5 billion. In news briefings Thursday, leaders of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee unveiled a highway and mass transit bill with spending authority spread out over six years instead of the original five.

The overall cost was trimmed to $151 billion from the original $153.5 billion.

The rewritten measure keeps the spending level for mass transit at $32 billion, a significant increase over financing levels during the Reagan administration.

Spending authority for highways was set at $119 billion, $3.8 billion less than the original measure.

Committee staff members said the reduction was necessary because $119 billion is the maximum level the Highway Trust Fund can support over six years.

The panel plans to bring the new ly redrafted bill to the House floor next Thursday and to pass it by the end of next week. It would then be subject to a conference with the Senate, which passed a $123 billion, five-year version more than three months ago.

House Democrats had previously sought to finance the original and more expensive measure with a five-cent "Nickel For America" increase in federal gasoline taxes, now 14 cents a gallon.

That effort failed in mid-September when the Senate went on record opposing the tax boost and President Bush said he would veto any bill containing it.

The spending in the revised House bill would be financed in part through the $3.3 billion a year expected to be raised by extending for four years half of the five-cent increase in federal gasoline taxes approved last year as a deficitreduction measure.

Rep. Robert Roe, D-N.J., chairman of the House transportation panel, said additional financing for highways will be obtained by spending down the Highway Trust Fund from $11 billion to $2.3 billion by

The new bill calls for spending to expand over the six-year life of the bill as money becomes available.

The organization has grown into a national voice for working women since its founding in 1973 by about 25 women office workers in Boston who got together to complain about working conditions.

The association, which moved its headquarters to Cleveland in 1982, now has a membership of 15,000 and more than 25 chapters nationwide.

"Who would have thought in 1973, that the problems and concerns of those women would in 1991 be on the nation's political agenda?" said spokeswoman Barbara Otto.

the single largest bloc — were Bush supporters who said they might change their minds.

Among Democrats, the poll showed a surge of support for Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerrey, who was receiving heavy media coverage the week it was taken because he formally entered the race for the Democratic nomination Sept. 30.

Kerrey was favored by 21 percent of poll respondents who described themselves as Democrats or independents leaning toward voting for a Democrat

Three other declared hear candidates talk about, 43 per-Democratic candidates were clustered behind him - Virginia Gov. L. Douglas Wilder with 15 percent, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton with 14 percent and Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin with 13 percent. Clinton did not announce he was running until Oct. 3.

House leaders cut transportation funds

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Democratic leaders, rewriting transportation legislation after the collapse of their proposed 5-cent-agallon gasoline tax hike, are cutting money for projects in members' districts by 30 percent.

But the 557 projects, condemned by the Bush administration as wasteful "pork barrel" spending, remain controversial despite the reduction of their overall cost from $6.8 billion in the original bill to about $5 billion.

In news briefings Thursday, leaders of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee unveiled a highway and mass transit bill with spending authority spread out over six years instead of the original five.

The overall cost was trimmed to $151 billion from the original $153.5

The rewritten measure keeps the spending level for mass transit at $32 billion, a significant increase over financing levels during the Reagan administration.

Spending authority for highways was set at $119 billion, $3.8 billion less than the original measure.

Committee staff members said the reduction was necessary because $119 billion is the maximum level the Highway Trust Fund can support over six years.

The panel plans to bring the newly redrafted bill to the House floor next Thursday and to pass it by the end of next week. It would then be subject to a conference with the Senate, which passed a $123 billion, five-year version more than three months ago.

House Democrats had previously sought to finance the original and more expensive measure with a five-cent "Nickel For America" increase in federal gasoline taxes, now 14 cents a gallon.

That effort failed in mid-September when the Senate went on record opposing the tax boost and President Bush said he would veto any bill containing it.

The spending in the revised House bill would be financed in part through the $3.3 billion a year expected to be raised by extending for four years half of the five-cent increase in federal gasoline taxes approved last year as a deficitreduction measure.

Rep. Robert Roe, D-N.J., chairman of the House transportation panel, said additional financing for highways will be obtained by spending down the Highway Trust Fund from $11 billion to $2.3 billion by

The new bill calls for spending to expand over the six-year life of the bill as money becomes available.

Maternity workers see double

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) -Maternity ward workers at a West Virginia hospital had a night of seeing double, and double, and double.

Three sets of twins were born within 12 hours of each other Friday at Cabell Huntington Hospital

"This is the first time in recent memory that anything like this has happened," hospital spokeswoman Janet Ferguson said. "It was pretty unusual.

The first set arrived at 12:49 a.m., born to Naomi Taylor of Culloden. She had two girls. At 6:29 a.m., Melissa Black of Milton had two boys. The last set arrived at 11:15 a.m., born to Rosetta James of Huntington. More boys.

Mothers and babies were well, Ms. Ferguson said.

Court docket

The last of three men accused of robbing a beating a pizza delivery man in December pleaded guilty to robbery in 118th Judicial District Court. Corey Darnell hayes, 18, of St. Louis, was sentenced to 10 years in prison or probation, depending on the results of a 90-day boot camp

Filings in Howard County courts also indicate the following:

 Ralph Lee Cothran Jr., pleaded guilty in district court to felony escape and was sentenced to two years in prison. Prior to an escape attempt from Howard County Jail last month, Cothran had been sentenced to three years in prison for revocation of a probation of criminal mischief.

• Jessie Chapman Coker, pleaded guilty in district court to revocation of a probation for burglary. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

• Weldon James Akin, 19, 1306 Colby, pleaded guilty to revocation of a probation of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. He was sentenced to five years in prison. • Clyde Myles, 64, 2111 W. U.S. 80, was sentenced to 15 days in jail for a Howard County Court judgment of driving while intoxicated.

CLEVELAND - Sharon Kinsella, left, and Karen Nussbaum confer in the Cleveland office of 9to5, the National Association of Working Women. In the wake of allegations against Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas, callers complaining of sexual harassment in the workplace have swamped the association's phone lines.

Hotline swamped with harassment calls

ual harassment accusations made against Judge Clarence Thomas have helped shove into the spotlight a national organization formed 18 years ago to improve the conditions of working women.

Hundreds of people have been calling 9to5, National Association of Working Women each day since the charges against Thomas surfaced last weekend, said Sharon Kinsella, coordinator of the 15,000-member group's national toll-free hot line.

"We've not had time for a breath between calls," Ms. Kinsella said. Even though we've tried to keep the length of calls to a minimum, it's just been wild.

Before law professor Anita Hill's allegations that Thomas sexually harassed her when she worked for him at the federal Equal Opportunity Employment Commission, the organization got about 40 such calls a week, Ms. Kinsella said. Karen Nussbaum, the organiza-case has made more women aware that they can do something about sexual harassment.

"Many times they don't report it because they fear losing their jobs, not being believed or becoming a victim of publicity," she said.

After Hill's allegations came to light, a second woman, Angela Wright, made similar accusations. Wright, now an assistant metro editor at The Charlotte Observer, was an EEOC press officer when Thomas was in charge of the

The 9to5 hot line — which offers job counseling to both men and women — normally averages about 200 calls a week, about a fifth of them dealing with sexual harassment, said Kinsella. Other calls are about such issues as health and safety protections, pay equity and women losing jobs because of

"You will be more sensitive to the rights of the accused," prompted Sen. Dennis DeConcini, the only Democrat on the committee to vote for Thomas. The nominee agreed.

For the second day in a row, the networks scrubbed regular programming to carry some or all of the proceedings. The debate spilled over into the hallways outside the ornate Senate caucus room. "Your group has been digging up dirt for weeks," a Thomas supporter, former White House aide Gary Bauer, said to feminist Eleanor Smeal.

With a second potential accuser, Angela Wright, waiting in the wings, Thomas didn't hesitate in suggesting a motivation for fabricating charges. "I terminated her very aggressively a number of years ago, and very summarily," he said of Wright.

Sen. Alan Simpson later said Wright was getting "cold feet" and raised the possibility that she might not testify.

But speaking through her attorney, Wright denied Simpson's assertion. "I am ready to testify before the committee and I do not have cold feet," Wright was quoted as saying in the Sunday editions of The Charlotte (N.C.) Observer, the newspaper where she works.

Simpson said he had begun to receive information about Hill. "I've got letters hanging out of my pockets . . . saying watch out for this woman," he said.

As for any motivation that Hill might have to lie and thus jeopardize her own career, Thomas said, "I don't know. I don't have a clue as to why she would do this."

Asked about the role of interest groups opposed to his nomination, Thomas said, "I believe in combination this story was developed or concocted to destroy me." He was emphatic about continuing his quest for confirmation. "I'd rather die than withdraw," he said.

"If they're going to kill me they're going to kill me. President Bush monitored the hearings on television at Camp David, and the White House issued a fresh declaration of support for Thomas. "We look forward to the vote on his confirmation and believe he will be confirmed to the court," it said. Thomas startled the committee Friday by saying he had refused to watch Hill's seven hours of testimony - even though he denied all her allegations. But he said today that his wife "watched significant parts of it." Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., a former Alabama Supreme Court judge, said Thomas' refusal to watch her testimony makes it harder to determine the facts. "We're left in a great quandary, and we're trying to get to the bottom of it," he said.

House leaders cut transportation funds

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Democratic leaders, rewriting transportation legislation after the collapse of their proposed 5-cent-agallon gasoline tax hike, are cutting money for projects in members' districts by 30 percent.

But the 557 projects, condemned by the Bush administration as wasteful "pork barrel" spending, remain controversial despite the reduction of their overall cost from $6.8 billion in the original bill to

about $5 billion. In news briefings Thursday, leaders of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee unveiled a highway and mass transit bill with spending authority spread out over six years instead of the original five.

The overall cost was trimmed to $151 billion from the original $153.5 billion.

The rewritten measure keeps the spending level for mass transit at $32 billion, a significant increase over financing levels during the Reagan administration.

Spending authority for highways was set at $119 billion, $3.8 billion less than the original measure.

Committee staff members said the reduction was necessary because $119 billion is the maximum level the Highway Trust Fund can support over six years.

The panel plans to bring the new-ly redrafted bill to the House floor next Thursday and to pass it by the end of next week. It would then be subject to a conference with the Senate, which passed a $123 billion, five-year version more than three months ago.

House Democrats had previously sought to finance the original and more expensive measure with a five-cent "Nickel For America" increase in federal gasoline taxes, now 14 cents a gallon.

That effort failed in mid-September when the Senate went on record opposing the tax boost and President Bush said he would veto any bill containing it.

The spending in the revised House bill would be financed in part through the $3.3 billion a year expected to be raised by extending for four years half of the five-cent increase in federal gasoline taxes approved last year as a deficitreduction measure.

Rep. Robert Roe, D-N.J., chairman of the House transportation panel, said additional financing for highways will be obtained by spending down the Highway Trust Fund from $11 billion to $2.3 billion by

Columbus sowed the seeds of change

By JOHN BARRAT

Smithsonian News Service

It's difficult to keep track of things when you travel. Countless umbrellas, hats, wallets, sunglasses, sweaters and other items are lost each day by travelers. Five hundred years ago, Christopher Columbus had a similar problem with items he brought to the New World - namely horses, hogs, cows and sheep. After landing in the Caribbean on his second voyage in 1493, a few of these animals escaped. The Americas haven't been the same

"Even before the first settlers arrived in such areas as the Great Plains of North America, the environment had been significantly altered by the animals Columbus brought from the Old World," Smithsonian historian Herman Viola says. "Plants, animals and diseases introduced — sometimes deliberately and sometimes accidentally - by Columbus and those who followed, altered flora and fauna around the world, reordered the ethnic composition of entire countries and changed the diet and health of peoples everywhere."

Just for starters, Columbus' hogs found heaven, and so did those later introduced by Spanish conquistadors. The New World tropics offered a smorgasbord of delights for the tusked, rooting omnivores. They bolted down lizards, nuts, berries, manioc, pineapples and young birds while their numbers swelled beyond belief. As they gradually spread across both American continents, wild hogs stripped the landscape of its native flora and fauna.

Wild horses also thrived in the tropics. When horses reached the rich grasslands of North and South America their numbers exploded. "On these endless plains the herds have multiplied so prodigiously that the newcomers believe they see wooded mountains," wrote a Dominican friar in 1591 in South America. "We wanted to go fell trees, but they were stallions and mares." Before Columbus, the horse had been extinct in the Americas for 10,000 years.

Cows and sheep also found a niche in the New World and flourished. Under the strain of millions of new hooves and grinding teeth, many native species of grasses and other plants died out and were replaced by hardier European and Asian plants.

As horses began to flood the plains of North America in the mid-1500s, American Indians who had never seen a horse and, at first, called them "moose" and "deer" - captured a few and learned to ride, Viola says. They became some of the world's finest equestrians. 'North American tribes, such as the Blackfeet, who traditionally hunted on foot, learned that fewer men could catch more buffalo faster on horseback," Viola continues. "Settled tribes, such as the Cheyenne, the Sioux and the Kiowa-Apache, became nomads, moving into the Great Plains to hunt buffalo full time." Wealth came to be measured by horse ownership. Indians also believed horses had supernatural powers the Sioux called them "holy dogs" — and they became prominent in religion, rituals and art.

Nothing, however, affected Native Americans as much as diseases from the Old World. At the time of Columbus' arrival, Europe was still emerging from an era of plagues. Early explorers brought these contagious diseases smallpox, measles and typhus — to the New World. Indigenous Americans had no immunity to these epidemic diseases, nor did they understand the idea of contagion. Millions of people died. Soon after Columbus and his men landed on Hispaniola, for instance, an outbreak of coughing, nosebleeds and fever struck the loca! people. Within a few months, thousands died and the sickness spread to other islands.

"Between 1492 and 1900, the native population of the Americas dropped by an estimated 90 percent, primarily because of disease," Viola says.

Smallpox hit the Aztecs of Mexico in 1520, leaving them virtually defenseless against the soldiers of conquistador Hernando Cortes in 1521. In 1525, smallpox killed the Inca Emperor Huayna Capac along with many of his royal court and then spread rapidly throughout the Inca empire. Spanish soldiers soon followed to take advantage of the situation. In what is now the state of Georgia, Hernando De Soto, an early explorer of the Southern United States, came upon empty villages and great funeral houses filled with corpses of Indians who had died from epidemic disease.

"Spanish conquistadors came to the New World looking for gold and silver to take home, but the enduring treasures they took back were potatoes, tomatoes and corn, Viola explains. The potato, which was found in Peru, revolutionized life in Ireland and England. South American tomatoes became a hallmark of Italian cooking. Corn, taken to Africa from the Americas, significantly boosted Africa's population.

"Only recently have we come to realize that Columbus did not find a 'new world' but linked two old worlds," Viola said. "He started a chain of exchange of plants and animals between these two worlds which has touched everyone and is still unfolding to this day.'

CHECK YOUR DEPENDENTS

You are allowed a deduction of $2,150 for each dependent this year (unless subject to the phase-out for high-incomers). Therefore, knowing who qualifies as your dependent could cut your tax bill. To be claimed as your dependent, an individual must meet five

•Gross income test. The dependent cannot earn more than the personal exemption amount ($2,150). However, if the dependent is your child, there is no income limit as long as the child is under age 19. If the child is a full-time student for at least five months out of the year, there is no income limit until age 24. Tax-exempt income, such as nontaxable social security benefits and municipal bond interest, is not included as gross income for purposes of this

•Member of household or relationship test. The dependent must either live in your home or be closely related.

·Citizenship test. The dependent must be a resident of the U.S., Canada or Mexico, or be a U.S. citizen or national

. Joint return test. The dependent, if married, cannot file a joint return with his or her spouse, unless a joint return is filed just to get a refund for withheld taxes.

•Support test. You must pay more than 50% of the dependent's expenses for the year. Support includes all funds (except from certain scholarships) that were actually spent during the year.

Even if you can claim a dependent, you may not get the deduction. Deductions for you and your dependents begin to be phased out when your adjusted gross income exceeds $100,000 if you're single or $150,000 if you are married.

LB gets arrested before activation

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) -Linebacker Tim Harris, acquired by the San Francisco 49ers less than two weeks ago, was arrested for investigation of drunken driving one day before he was scheduled to be activated.

Authorities said Harris was arrested at 2:45 a.m. Friday in San Jose.

Harris, who underwent outpatient counseling for alcohol abuse while with the Green Bay Packers in 1989, was booked at the Santa Clara County main jail at 4 a.m. and released on citation about four hours later, California Highway Patrol Lt. Dave Clifford said. Clifford told the Peninsula Times Tribune of Palo Alto that Harris, 27, "was very cooperative" while under arrest. The player was at the 49ers' training complex in nearby Santa Clara for practice on Friday and was scheduled to be activated today for Sunday's game with the Atlanta Falcons. Harris, a former Pro Bowl player, was obtained from the Packers in exchange for a second round draft pick in 1992 and a conditional secondrounder in 1993. He held out all of training camp, finally forcing Green Bay to trade him. He signed a two-year contract with the 49ers worth a total of $1.7 million, including incentives.

The arrest reportedly could affect a "good conduct" clause in Harris' contract with San Francisco. Harris, who tested for marijuana use in 1987 and is subject to mandatory testing by the league, could lose as much as $100,000 in bonuses, the Times Tribune said.

It was an emotional victory for the South Africans, playing in their first international team event in 11 years.

The Americans, who won the title in 1989, failed to reach the semifinals for the second year in a row. They lost in the first round to France last year.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Chip Beck followed up his recordmatching 59 with a 68 - and lost ground in the exceptionally low scoring that has marked the $1.5 million Las Vegas Invitational.

"I'm happy to be just one shot back," Beck said Saturday after completing 72 holes of the five-day, 90-hole event at 264, a distant 24 below par.

That equals the most strokes under par for any previous 72 holes on the PGA Tour this year, but it was only good enough for a tie for fifth in this remarkable shootout. Four others were tied for the lead at 25-under 263 with one round to go. However, two of the four -Bruce Lietzke and D.A. Weibring - declined to claim any part of the lead. "With the scores we've been

Grady Wildcats feast on Eagles, 56-6

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

ABILENE - The Grady Wildcats barely broke a sweat Saturday afternoon as they romped to a 56-6 victory over the Oak Trail Christian Academy Eagles here at

Elmer Gray Stadium. The Wildcats exploded for 30 first-quarter points and never looked back, ending the game at halftime because of the 45-point

Grady improves to 3-3 for the season, while Oak Trail, a private academy from Grandbury, falls to

The ease of Grady's victory surprised even head coach Leandro "They had three starters out, and that didn't help," Gonzales said. "I do give them credit for not quitting, though. "Actually, I thought we were a little flat in the first quarter," he added. "But we came around in the second quarter and played some hard football."

The Wildcats wasted little time 2 of 6 getting onto the scoreboard. After receiving the opening kickoff, Grady marched 44 yards in just 1.5 three plays. The big play of the drive was a 30-yard pass from quarterback Timmy Garza to Johnny Britton that took the ball to the Oak Trail 11.

On the next play, Gilbert Cortez scooted around right end untouched for the touchdown. Joe Moreno added the extra-point kick to give the 'Cats a 8-0 lead.

The Wildcats took advantage of a short Oak Trail punt on the ensuing drive to add to their lead. Setting up shop at the Eagles' 24, Grady scored on its first play from scrimmage when Tommy Hewtty slipped around left end and scored.

Running back Chad Walker — who led all rushers with 78 yards on 17 carries — slipped a tackle at the 13, then broke down the left sideline for a 66-yard scoring run, which cut Grady's lead to 22-6 late in the first quarter. But Grady responded to that score almost immediately. On the first play of the ensuing drive, Florencio Hewtty broke two tackles at the line of scrimmage, then speeded down the left sideline 47 yards for a touchdown and a 30-6 lead as the first quarter ended.

The Eagles' miseries only increased in the second quarter. After the 'Cats held Oak Trail on downs, Florencio Hevitty fielded Mike Deford's punt at the Oak Trail 32, cut up the middle of the field and slipped into the end zone

Special teams played a big part in the Wildcats' next score also when J.C. Odom blocked Deford's punt attempt, giving Grady the ball at the Oak Trail 20. Five plays later, Shawn Rivas plunged over from a yard out for a 42-6 lead.

Cortez, subbing for Garza at quarterback, added two touchdown passes - to Britton and Odom, respectively — before the half, and the game, mercifully ended.

"We were expecting to beat them, but not by this great amount," Gonzales said. "(With the easy victory) we were able to work on our spread offense, which we needed to do to get ready for Loop."

The Wildcats return to action next Friday when they take on Loop at Loop. Game time is 7:30

Rice Owls shock Baylor, 20-17

After the kickoff, Baylor moved to its 41 but Strait was stopped for no gain on fourth-and-one by defensive end Shawn Alberding.

Rice led at halftime 17-10 behind the running of Trevor Cobb, the nation's leading rusher, as well as key pass receptions by Greg Willig and a defense that jumped on two Baylor fumbles.

Cobb scored on a 12-yard run with 3:33 left in the first quarter and finished the half with 132 yards in 18 carries. He had 171 yards rushing for the game, about eight yards short of his average.

Baylor responded with a 78-yard scoring drive, gaining first downs on four straight third downs and scoring on third-and-eight as Strait ran 12 yards with 11:48 remaining in the half.

A 45-yard run by Cobb was the big play as in a five-play drive that set up Richardson's 33-yard field goal for Rice, giving the Owls the lead at 10-7.

The Owls stretched the margin to scoring. John Henry lost a fumble at the Owls 26, and Robert Strait Miller to the Baylor 18 on a fake as Willig dove over from the 1 after Cobb had gained 24 yards and Willig completed two passes for 28 yards in a 53-yard drive.

Baylor marched quickly down the field, Quarterback J.J. Joe completed three passes to the Rice 41, and kicking from just two yards short of midfield, Ireland made the longest kick of his career as time expired.

HC rodeo team

This could be the start of something special

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

Bobby Scott has a hard time keeping a smile off his face when talking about the Howard College

The reason Scott has a case of the grins is that his team, though young, is one of the most talented squad ever at Howard. With a bit of experience, he said, the team could be something special.

"They're raw right now," Scott said. "But if they start hitting on all cylinders, watch out.'

"We've got more talent than just about anybody in this area," added assistant coach Mike Yeater.

"I think this could be the best (Howard team) yet," added Scott, in his fourth year coaching the team. "Based on Mike and my evaluations, in our minds, they could be able to win regionals both the cowboys and the

Scott and Yeater struck gold on the recruiting trail this year, as evidenced by the following signees:

• Dusty McCollister, from Acworth, Ga., who qualified for the national high school finals rodeo in in bareback bronc riding.

 David Underwood, Kennisaw, Ga., the Georgia state champ in calf-roping. Brad Stewart of Charlotte, N.C., a three-time qualifier for the national high school rodeo in calf roping and steer wrestling.

 Dawn Bleiker of Channing, the state reserve champion in barrel racing.

 Craig Gentry of Dell City, the state steer wrestling champion. David Manning of Fort Worth, the North Texas High School Rodeo

Association all-around cowboy. But Scott said the talent is not reserved to the freshman class. Top returnees for Howard include: Kippi Kuykendall of Valley cowgirl. Aimee Medlock of Iola, the state goat-tying champ.

Springs, the 1990 all-around

 Jamie Bean of Fort Hancock, the 1990 barrel racing champ who placed third in regional competition.

 Don Henderson of Groesbeck. T.J. Kennedy of Pecos, Yancy James of Kerrville and J.O. Duke of Summerville, Ga., who all competed on the pro rodeo circuit during the off-season (collegiate rodeo circuit and remain eligible for college rodeos).

The trove of talent doesn't include Will Jordan, a former national high school bronc riding champ who is currently on the shelf with a knee injury.

"We've got 56 nice kids," Scott added. "They are serious studentathletes - and I emphasize student. I'm really looking forward to this season. I'm excited about the possibilities. It's all out there ahead of us."

Yeater, who came to Howard after a year coaching rodeo at Frank Phillips, also is looking forward to the season.

"If the guys hit like we know they can, we're liable to scare the other coaches right out of regionals," he

Results from the team's first two rodeos have been mixed so far, and Scott is reluctant to draw any conclusions.

"To be honest, it's like judging a race car on the first lap," he said. There are just so many possibilities here; we just wish there were more rodeos this fall."

Pena, perfect in 13 save chances with Atlanta, rushed off the field and so did the rest of the Braves. That got the 50,905 fans even louder, and they began their celebration an inning early, even before Bream's three-run homer.

The loss further compounded Pittsburgh's problems. Game 1 winner Doug Drabek cannot start Sunday night because of a hamstring injury, and Pirates manager Jim Leyland said his ace is "iffy" for Game 5 Monday.

Instead, Randy Tomlin (8-7) will face Atlanta's Charlie Leibrandt

Leyland picked Smiley, a 20-game winner, to start because of his 8-1 record in day games. But before Smiley got to look at the Braves, he and the rest of the Pirates saw the fans.

The drum beats began a halfhour before the game, and the chants and tomahawks swung into action. Nearly every Pittsburgh player went to the top step of the dugout to survey the scene.

Smiley had said he would use "tunnel vision" to block out the crowd. Rather, the only tunnel he saw was the one leading to the

Fun times in the Meadowlands

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - You won't see any New York Jets defensive backs shivering in their cleats Sunday. They like facing the run-and-shoot as much as the Houston Oilers like running it.

Well, almost as much.

"It'll be a track meet out there," James Hasty, the Jets' best cornerback, said of the matchup with Warren Moon and his band of destroyers. "We'll have the chance to create turnovers.

"It's fun, sure. It lasted one play and I was out of the box. Dislocated my elbow. The 'House of Pain' got me. We'll line up almost like a street game, like (Moon, Houston QB Warren Moon) says, 'You go out to the picket fence; you keep going,"

Moon has received consistent help from the running game. Twice, he has thrown for 300 yards. In two games, Allen Pinkett has run for more than 100 vards. So the run-and-shoot isn't the total package in Houston.

The defense has been superb, allowing an AFC-low 69 points and leading the conference with

"We made things happen," said William Fuller, whose three sacks against Denver gave him an AFC-leading six. "We made plays that resulted in points.'

Bills trying to rebound with victory over Colts

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

A team coming off a 33-6 loss as a 19-point favorite? Ridiculous.

Not if that team is the Buffalo Bills and the opposition is Indianapolis. Adjectives have not been coined to accurately describe the 1991 Colts.

So let inept, clueless, injured and overmatched suffice.

What they get Sunday is a trip to Buffalo, where the Bills (5-1) are itching to rebound from that rout at the hands of Kansas City on Monday night before the nation. Maybe 19 points aren't enough.

"It's kind of like last year when we went down to Miami and got thumped," Bills tackle Will Wolford said. "We weren't as bad as we looked down there, either. Now it's up to us to prove it again. A lot of people doubt us right now, and there's a little doubt

There is a lot of doubt about the Colts, who rank last in rushing offense and 26th in rushing defense. They have scored 43 points, 19 fewer than anyone else, in their six losses

The offensive line is in shambles and quarterback Jeff George has admitted he's leery of calling audibles at the line, fearing it might confuse his teammates.

Now they face the embarrassed Bills, a team that nearly won the Super Bowl last year and is anxious to re-establish its power.

"I think it just brought them back down to earth in that each week they're going to have to go out and play hard," Colts linebacker Scott Radecic said. "Even in some of their tighter ball games, they were able to come away victorious, and when you do that, all of a sudden you think you're a little indestructible."

Elsewhere, the league's remaining unbeatens have interconference games, with New Orleans (5-0) at Philadelphia and Cleveland at Washington (6-0). Cincinnati, the other winless team, is at Dallas.

Also, it's Phoenix at Minnesota, San Diego at the Los Angeles Rams, Miami at Kansas City, Houston at the New York Jets, Atlanta at San Francisco, and the Los Angeles Raiders at Seattle. On Monday night, the New York

The NFC Central, except for the Vikings, is off. So are Denver and New England.

NFL Roundup

The Saints-Eagles matchup could be as low-scoring as the Bills-Colts might be productive — for Buffalo. Philadelphia's offense, down to its third-string quarterback, rookie Brad Goebel, has been pitiful, and it faces the NFL's topranked defense. The Eagles defense is ranked third overall.

"We send a message that we are going to hit you hard and hit you often," said Vaughan Johnson, one of New Orleans' superb linebackers. "I'm sure we intimidate some people."

The Eagles intimidate no one with their attack. They were 5-for-27 in third-down situations in their last two games, a 23-0 blowout at the hands of Washington and a 14-13 loss at Tampa Bay. The Saints have allowed just four conversions in the last 34 third-down plays in their last three games.

"We're going to definitely spread things out this week," Goebel promised. "We're going to still try to run the ball (Philadelphia is 26th in rushing with 78 yards a game). You've got to do that to be effective, and I think we can do that on their defense. But we should be throwing more and do some other

Perhaps. Goebel must remember whom he is facing.

"Ask the people who have played against us," Johnson said. "Ask them how good our defense is. I think they'll tell the truth."

Novacek is go-to receiver

Dallas wide receiver Michael Irvin often pleads with quarterback Troy Aikman to throw him passes.

But the leading receiver in the NFC doesn't have to stoop that low. Jay Novacek knows the ball is coming to him anyway.

He caught 11 passes in Sunday's 20-17 victory over the Green Bay Packers and leads the NFC in receiving with 30 catches for 306 yards and three touchdowns.

If the Cincinnati Bengals want to win their first game of the season on Sunday in Texas Stadium, they'll have to stop Novacek.

'All those stats don't mean a thing just six games through the season but it's nice to know the tight end is going to get the ball in our offense," Novacek said. "I like the way they move me around. On one play I'm in motion and on him. He's a lot faster than he another I'm split out like a wide receiver. It's difficult for the defense to find me.

Strong safety David Fulcher will be trying to find Novacek on Sunday when the 0-5 Bengals take on the 4-2 Cowboys.

'He's not the fastest guy in the world but he runs good routes and has great hands and he can take a hit," Fulcher said. "He's a big guy in their offense and just an ex-

Dallas has three castoff tight ends, and Novacek said the tight end troika "is the best in the NFL." Novacek and Alfredo Roberts were obtained through Plan B and Dallas got Rob Awalt in a trade. "I think we're pretty solid at tight end," Awalt said. "Of course Jay is the hardest one to stop. Defenders just can't keep up with looks.

Irvin, who has a locker next to Novacek, is third in the NFC with 28 catches but is envious of the attention the tight end gets.

"Come on, man," Irvin said. "Let the 'playmaker' get some of those balls. I get it a little farther downfield. What about it? You can have my chair? How about it?" Novacek just grins.

"Give me a break, Michael," he replies. "I can't outtalk you." Novacek doesn't need to. He's Aikman's go-to-guy on third down.

"You just know he's going to get open," Aikman said. "Jay just has a special knack for beating a defender.

The Cowboys are 7-point favorites over the Bengals in the noon game. The all-time series between the teams stands at 2-2.

Oilers get nod over Jets

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The last time the Houston Oilers went on the road against an AFC East team, they found a way to lose in New England

So they should be wary when they reach the Meadowlands on Sunday to take on the up-andcoming New York Jets. They already have a reason to be wary last season, before the Jets were

Too many Grizzlies in Yellowstone

GRAND TETON NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) - Grizzly bears, once feared to be making their last stand in the lower 48 states, are again leaving their tracks in the shadow of the Tetons.

No longer comfortable within Yellowstone National Park's 2.2 million acres, some grizzlies are heading to Grand Teton National Park, while others are moving into the Shoshone, Bridger-Teton and Gallatin national forests

"There's no question that the range is expanding," says John Varley, Yellowstone's research chief. "In fact, the biologists believe that Yellowstone Park is filled up. It's probably got all the bears that it can effectively deal

"And so what's happening now are that all these sub-adults that are being weaned have to go into the adjacent national forests, or Grand Teton National Park, in order to find a territory," Varley

Grizzlies, which can reach 750 pounds and stand 8 feet tall on their hind legs, historically roamed from northern Canada to Mexico and from California to eastern Kansas. But as people moved West, they wiped out the bears' range.

Today the grizzlies' range is limited to approximately 30,500 square miles in the lower 48 states. They number 700 to 1,000, with most scattered about extreme northwestern Wyoming and northwestern Montana.

While the bears were designated a "threatened" species under the Endangered Species Act in 1975, the 200 or so Yellowstone grizzlies seem to be flourishing today.

That wasn't the case in the early 1980s, when some feared that "Ursus horribilis" was heading for extinction in Yellowstone.

The leading cause of their decline — population estimates at the time said there were fewer than 200 bears, of which only 30 were sows — was the sudden weaning of the bears from park dumps in the late-1960s and early 1970s.

Biologists and park officials agreed dump feedings were dangerous both to bears and humans, since the grizzlies associated people with food. In 1970, park officials began to close the dumps.

Frank Craighead Jr., who along with his brother, John, studied grizzlies in Yellowstone from 1959 to 1968, said the ecosystem lost at least 118 grizzlies from 1970 through 1972. Yellowstone officials, however, say rangers removed only 35 bears from the park in those

The closing of the dumps did not doom the bears; in fact, they rebounded throughout the 1980s. Wildlife officials won't put a number on the population, but say there are at least 200.

"The number of reproducing least, a minimum, of 50," Varley said. "Adult females producing cubs. And that's very promising.

"And then we see other things with bears that give us cause for optimism. We're seeing bears give birth for the first time to cubs at age 4. And that's one indication of a healthy bear. That's like a teen-age mother," Varley said.

The Yellowstone bears also are having larger litters. While the average is just under two cubs per litter, some sows are giving birth to four cubs, he said.

The Greater Yellowstone Coalivation organizations, questions the females with cubs has to be up at bears. It contends that the bear population likely will decline and ultimately vanish unless a steady population of as many as 600 bears can be maintained.

In Grand Teton National Park, biologist Steve Cain is seeing bears that left Yellowstone for new

'We do have more bears than we've had probably just in the last four or five years," Cain said. "It's been increasing. And it's largely due to good protection in the Yellowstone population. Getting overflow, essentially.

Recycle those squirrel tails

By MARK WEAVER

I know many fishermen who are also hunters so I thought I would pass on the following information. I'll admit I chuckled when it came across my desk. "Is this for real?" I asked. Yes it's Mepps Lures is asking area hunters to recycle the tails of the squirrels they take. According to company officials Mepps uses about one percent of the estimated thirty million grey, fox and black squirrels taken each hunting season. The tails are used to dress the hooks of the Mepps spinner, an extremely popular fishing lure. Two of the most common are the Aglia and the Comet. Mepps is committed to quality and realizes there is no substitute for natural squirrel tail. Hence they are willing to buy the tails from area hunters.

Prices paid for tails vary depending on both quality and quantity. The figures I saw were from twelve to twenty one cents each. But, if the hunter is also a fisherman and so wishes, Mepps will trade squirrel tails for spinners. The cash value of the tails is doubled when applied towards the purchase of Mepps spinners or spoons. This is an excellent purchase of mepps spinners or spoons. This is an excellent way to add some really productive lures to your tackle box at no cost year-round in the northern end of the park not far from Yellowstone's southern border.

But higher grizzly numbers alone aren't justification enough to remove the bears' "threatened" tag, according to Chris Servheen, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist who coordinates the Interagency Grizzly Bear from squirrels who have stopped shedding and have their full winter coat. These are usually the squirrels taken after the first of October. Some of these tails may be classed as premium quality tails and could bring a few cents

Instructions for care and handling of the squirrel tails include not removing the bone from the tail, salting the butt end generously, keeping the tail straight before drying and away from flies. Mepps also requests that the tails not be put in plastic bags for storage and shipping and recommends shipping during the cold months. In some cases shipping charges are also refunded.

If you are a squirrel hunter or know someone who is, it sounds like Mepps may have just the deal for you. It's certainly one way to recycle and help conserve our natural resources. This certainly should be a concern of every hunter and fisherman. For more details and information write to T.L. Shepherd, Sheldons' Inc., Dept. ST86, Center Street, Antigo.

WI 54409-2496.

There must be a good distribution of bears in the region and a low annual mortality rate, he said.

"Delisting is a ways off," Servheen said. "We have to assure that the habitat will be adequately managed and can be adequately managed without the Endangered Species Act."

Interest rates lower than ever!

'Now is the best time to become a home owner or to move to a larger home," says Lila Estes, of ERA Reeder Realtors. Interest rates are lower now than they have been in seventeen years. For instance, a buyer can get a FHA mortgage for 81/2% with only one discount point. This means lower monthly payments, most times lower than rent. And, home owners can still deduct a portion of their yearly interest and taxes on their income tax. You could say, Uncle Sam is paying part of your house payment. Big Spring native inspires youth to 'reach for the sun'

By MARTHA E. FLORES

A passage from the biography, Zora Neale Hurston: A Storytellers Life, recently published by Ward Hill Press states, "She (Zora's mother) encouraged them all to 'jump at de sun,' to aim for what they wanted even if it seemed impossible. As Zora explained later, 'we might not land on the sun, but at least we would get off the ground.' '

Janelle Yates, former Big Spring resident and author of the Hurston biography, also reached for

She received a Bachelor's of Art in journalism from Angelo State University at San Angelo. After graduation she moved to New York to work on her Master's degree in English literature from New

She has taught creative writing courses at NYU. The Hurston biography is her first published work.

The biography has a suggested reading level of 10-15 years old. It traces Hurston's life from her birth in 1901 in Eatonville, Fla., to her work as a folklorist, novelist, dramatist and part of the Harlem Renaissance, drawing strongly from Hurston's own writings.

From her home in New York, Yates told how she became interested in writing a biography about Hurston.

"While helping my children with their homework, I noticed that the way the biographies described the lives of people like George Washington or Betsy Ross did not make an impression on children as they should," she said.

"Hurston had to struggle between poverty and racism," Yates said. "She had the courage to continue with her pursuits even after a failure.

"After reading about her courage, I decided to write a book about her. She is the kind of person I would like my children to emmulate.

What I tried to convey was her extraordinary belief in herself," Yates said. "She also failed and disappointed herself, but she found the strength to continue when a lot of people would have given up. "There are no easy answers in this world and everyone has to take chances. Failure is not the end. It can always be a beginning.

"Our society is programmed to think that everything comes easy or it does not come at all." said Yates. "Whether it is hard or easy, people should do what is important to themselves and follow their heart."

Yates was born in Big Spring and grew up in San Angelo and lived in San Angelo until she moved to New York.

After moving away from the rural arid countryside of West Texas, she discovered cultures far different from those in her home town.

A similiar discovery was made by Hurston after she moved away from rural Florida to New York, said Yates.

"There is a divider between the culture Hurston grew up in, in rural Florida, and the diversity of cultures in New York, "she said. "I had a similiar problem with growing up in Texas and then moving to New York. It is difficult to reconcile the different worlds.'

"Growing up in San Angelo, I was not given the opportunity to read books by authors who were not mainstream middle America. They were not available," said Yates. "When I moved to New York and began reading authors from different cultures. I felt I had been starved, in a literally sense, as a child. Other cultures are so rich, and no one should be deprived of that learning experience.'

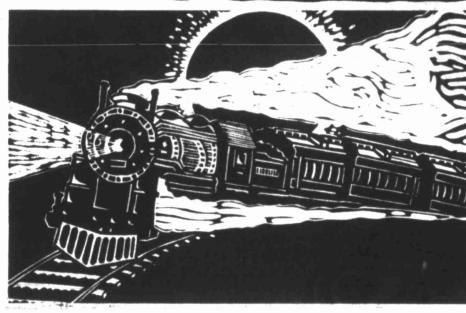

Yates extends this philosophy to her readers, her students and her own children.

"Everyone needs a hero, and there should not be any color boundries on heroes," she said.

The Hurston biography is one in the "Unsung Americans" series from Ward Hill Press.

For more information or to order the series write to Ward Hill Press, 514 Bay St., Box 424, Staten Island, NY 10304 or call (718) 816-9449.

Now it was my turn to say, "Oh

"Yes," I said. "I know." "So, Mom, do you have two bucks I can borrow?"

When my son was a baby, I'd sit him on my lap and read Dr. Seuss every night, without fail. I can still picture him, cuddled there in his fleecy one-piece jammies. His wasn't me Mom. I think it was favorite book was "Marvin K.

Mooney, Will You Please Go Now." When he was admitted to the hospital with pneumonia my husband and I would sit beside his crib reading Marvin K. Mooney over and over and over.

When I told my youngest kids of Dr. Seuss' death, one said, "Dr. Who?," another said, "I don't like doctors," and the third patted my arm sympathetically and asked, "Was he a friend of yours, Mommy?" Just a few precious years ago all three of them would gather on my bed while I read "Green Eggs and Ham." At the appropriate time they'd all shout in to nursing women," said Dr. Julie A. Mennella, who directed the Nursing mothers are frequently dvised to have a drink a half hour before breast feeding. According to lore, this improves the flow and production of milk and relaxes mother and child. Texts from firstcentury India recommend wine for good lactation.

Mennella and Dr. Gary K. Beauchamp decided to put this ancient advice to the test at the Monell Chemical Senses Center in Philadelphia, a research institute devoted to studying taste and smell. Their results, published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, showed two main -Babies who suckled after their mother had a drink consumed 23 percent less milk than usual.

-Mothers' milk smelled — and probably tasted — like alcohol after just one drink.

The researchers could not be sure why the babies took in less milk. They said it could have been because the babies did not like the taste or because the alcohol itself had some effect on the baby or the

'Whatever the mechanism, this study shows that alcohol consumption by nursing women alters the flavor of milk and the interaction with the infants during breast feeding," said Mennella.

Beauchamp said many tastes, not just alcohol, are passed through breast milk, depending on what the mother has been eating.

"The world of the breast-fed infant is one of a variety of flavors, unlike what has long been thought, which is that breast milk is bland,' he said. "Bottle feeding really is bland, and bottle-fed infants miss an experience that is common to all mammals.

In an accompanying editorial, Dr. Janine Jason of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control said the results imply that doctors should be "circumspect" about advising nursing women to take a drink to ease the difficulties of breast feeding.

However, she said this is just part of a larger issue of guarding against passing unwanted substances to babies in breast

"Physicians should review with breast-feeding mothers the transmissibility in breast milk of any drugs they may be taking, both prescription and nonprescription," she wrote. "Alcohol is only one of many drugs that have potential effects on the breastfeeding infant.'

The study was conducted on 12 nursing women and their infants on two days. Each day, the mothers drank either straight orange juice juice laced with a dash of alcohol. The spiked drink contained about as much alcohol as a can of beer

The infants sucked more frequently during the first minute of feedings after their mothers had the alcohol. But they ended up consuming significantly less milk.

The researchers also subjected the mothers' milk to a sniff test. A panel consistently found that milk smelled stronger or more like alcohol if the donors had recently been drinking.

Mennella said more research will be necessary to learn whether mild drinking has any bad effect on babies' overall nutrition.

The amount of alcohol that reaches a baby through mother's milk is tiny — about 1 percent of what the mother drinks. Concentrations in milk are about the same as in the mother's bloodstream.

A study two years ago hinted at another possible drawback to occasional drinking during nursing. Researchers from the University of Michigan found that the development of movement skills, but not intelligence, was slightly retarded in babies whose nursing mothers had one or more drinks a day.

Is it true?

Kitchen Kemistry

By TONY WEDIG

Sometimes I am asked, "Is this true?" I want to share with you a couple of "Is this true?" questions. These may sound silly, but you may have heard them before. To start with, "Does placing ice cubes into a brown paper bag keep them from sticking together?" The answer is yes. A frost-free is designed to evaporate small amounts of ice which form on the inside walls and packages. So when a small amount of an ice cube becomes a liquid not all of that liquid will evaporate quickly. Some of the water will freeze one cube to another. Soon what was a bunch of ice cubes will become a block of ice. Because paper absorbs water, the brown paper bag will absorb the water. If the water is not present then the cubes will not fuse together and the formation of a block of ice will be prevented. The water that the paper bag absorbed will eventually be evaporated by the frost-free unit. As the water leaves the bag then more water can be absorbed by the brown paper bag. If you leave the cubes in the bag long enough then the bag will be empty.

Ice has another unique property and that is to numb the senses. If ice will reduce the hurt from cuts and burns then it will also numb the sense of taste. With this in mind it may be best to have children suck on an ice cube before taking their medicine. This is a simple way to create practically tasteless medicine.

Another question deals with ice: "Is it true that things packed in ice will stay cold longer if rock salt is added?" The answer is no. Ice can be thought of as a quantity of coldness. The total amount of coldness is determined by how much ice you have, not whether salt is added to the ice. So if you want something to stay cold longer add more ice not salt. Rock salt causes ice to melt quicker and the ice water to be at a lower temperature. In areas where there is ice on sidewalks and roadways, salt is sometimes added to cause the ice to melt. But there is a problem caused by this, it is that the melted ice, now water, mixed with the salt creates salt water This salt water causes increased corrosion of metal. Salt water is also not good for the soil and/or "Is it true?" questions are fun to research and write about. I also hope that they are fun to read. Many times there is a lot of interesting science in everyday questions. If you have any "Is it true?" questions then please send them to me. I sincerely feel that science is fun and interesting, and by answering your questions I hope others can share in the enjoyment of everyday science.

Please send your questions or comments to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

4-H'ers recognized at banquet

By DON RICHARDSON COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT-AGRICULTURE

The annual Howard County Achievement and Leader Recognition Banquet was held in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum in Big Spring with over 150 persons in attendance.

4H'ers successfully completing projects in various program areas were recognized for their achievements. Highlights of the evening included the naming of the county's Gold Star recipients.

The Gold Star Award is the highest award a youngster can win on the county level in 4H Club Work. The winners this year were Kim Middleton and Jim Bob Nichols. The Big Spring High School students are members of the Lucky Acres 4H Club. Kim is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Middleton of Big Spring and was cited for her accomplishments in the 4H Sheep project program and her leadership activities.

Nichols is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Nichols of Big Spring and was recognized for his accomplishments in Beef Cattle and the 4H Shooting Sports program. In addition to receiving the Gold Star award, Middleton and Nichols were each awarded a $250 Scholarship from Howard College for their accomplishments.

Howard College, represented by Dr. Dusty Johnston, ViceAsk the agent

President for Student Services. was named as the recipient of the prestigious Friend of 4H Award this year in recognition for all the support the college has given to the Extension Programs and 4H in Howard County.

The Most Outstanding Junior 4H Members selected for 1991 were Ryan Wright and Kirstie Moates. Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Wright, is a Coahoma student and a member of the Lucky Acres 4H Club. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Moates, Kirstie is a member of the Lucky Acres 4H Club and is a Big Spring student.

John Middleton and Nita Wright were cited as the Outstanding Adult Leaders in the County for 1992 and were cited for their work in promoting and supporting the 4H program in Howard County. Middleton has been instrumental in developing the 4H Lamb Project Program by assisting 4H members obtaining projects and helping plan and develop county and area lamb showmanship clinics for area

Mrs. Wright has actively developed and supported Curriculum and School Enrichment programs for Urban Youth and served as Club Manager for the Lucky Acres 4H Club. She and her husband Lonnie also serve as publicity chairmen for the County Adult Leaders Association.

Two special awards, Rodeo Appreciation Presentations, were awarded to two long-time supporters of the county program in recognition for their support of the major fund-raising project for the county program, the AJRA sanctioned Junior Rodeo. Neil Fryar was cited for helping with the rodeo for over 30 years by furnishing his tractor for arena preparations at the event. McDonald's of Big Spring was recognized for their assistance in donating awards for several years for top rodeo contestants in the event 4H is an exciting youth program that helps young people to learn how to do new and interesting things through learn by doing projects.

The display will feature such rulers as the six-toed Seti I, Merneptah with his yellow skin and the Rambo of the Nile, Ramses II, said Nasry Iskander, conservation director for the Egyptian Antiquities Organization.

Once one of Egypt's top tourist attractions, the museum's 27 royal mummies were hidden away in 1980 under orders from Sadat, who said the gawking tourists and the undignified display violated religious sensitivities.

Opposition to the closing grew in many quarters.

Egyptologists feared scientific studies on the mummies would come to an end even as technology advanced. Tour operators worried about their pocketbooks. The museum lost income from a special entrance fee for the Mummy

Before the Persian Gulf War, roughly 6,000 tourists visited the museum daily, with admission about $3 for foreigners. The number of visitors is still down following the war, and recent figures were unavailable.

The new cases have also been designed to reproduce the mummies' original environment.

Recreating a tomb's atmosphere to save mummies has been Iskander's great challenge.

In 1987, he shipped the mummy of a woman, a commoner he named Lady X, to the laboratories of the J. Paul Getty Conservation Institute at Marina del Rey, Calif.

The story of Big Bend Ranch

BY TUMBLEWEED SMITH

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has acquired a ranch along the Rio Grande River and has named it the Big Bend Ranch State Natural Area. The ranch covers some 400 square miles and represents half of the state-owned parks and wildlife acreage. Transfer of ownership to the state was completed just three years ago, so Parks and Wildlife personnel are still learning things about the ranch. P & W has agreed to keep the area in its natural state. No more roads will be built and visitors must make special arrangements to get into Basically the ranch stretches from Lajitas westward beyond Redford. It goes north for a few miles and has some striking atributes that some states would capitalize on and turn into big tourist attractions.

One of the most dramatic sights on Big Bend Ranch is Cinco Tinajas. That means five water holes in Spanish. It's some of nature's best work. A rocky gorge has a series of waterfalls that form five pools of water. Not far away from Cinco Tinajas, when there has been plenty of rain, is an absolutely perfect swimming hole. The ranch has some springs where tall trees attract a variety of birds. The running springs, the birdsong and the soft breezes in the trees make it a place where you want to linger awhile. And you remember it long after you

Las Cuevas is a series of caves where people lived 10,000 years ago. Cave drawings illustrate the Tumbleweed Smith walls of some of the caves.

The ranch headquarters is called Saucedo and here visitors have a lunch cooked cowboy style and served from a chuck wagon. Following the meal are demonstrations of horsebreaking and other cowboy skills.

Visitors to the Big Bend Ranch go to the Fresno Canyon overlook and see inside an extinct volcano called Solitario. When it erupted years ago, it was several times more powerful than Mount St. Helen in Washington state.

Golden eagles are permanent residents of Big Bend Ranch. So are mountain lions, javelina, lizards and jackrabbits. A very special snake lives on the ranch. It's a pink coachwhip. Several people have sworn off drinking after seeing a large pink snake.

Scrub oak, evergreen sumac, cottonwood, ash and willow form canopied forests at streams and seeps on the ranch. Wet years, such as the last two, result in remarkable displays of wildflowers and cacti. Bluebonnets bloom in November and grow to three feet tall. The previously mentioned attractions are in the northern part of the ranch and may be viewed only on a bus tour which requires reservations to be made ninety days in advance. The tours are only offered the first and third weekends of each month. The cost is $30 per person. Reservations may be made by calling 915/229-3613 during business

The bus tours have experienced guides who know the legends, the geology, plant and animal life on the ranch and are eager to show off the state's newest and largest

The lower part of the ranch has hiking trails, some with access to Colorado Canyon on the Rio Grande.

Three trails are open at this time. The Rancherias Loop Trail is 19 miles long and requires 3 days and 2 nights to complete. The Rancherias Canyon Trail is a good day's hike. Closed Canyon is an easy two nour nike through a spectacular gorge. Because of the primitive nature of the trails, you must have a topographic map and compass to know how to use

Both the bus tours and the hiking trails leave from either the Warnock Center in Lajitas or Fort Leaton near Presidio, bot of which are owned by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The land now known as the Big Bend Ranch State Natural Area has seen the coming and going of prehistoric and historic native Americans, Spanish Europeans, their Hispanic-American descendants and Anglo-Americans.

It is an area to explore, to experience, to spend some time absorbing the almost pristine atmosphere of this spectacular

Nutritious foods while on a budget

COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT-HOME ECONOMICS

People can have a healthful diet even on a modest budget. Eating the dietary guideline way helps assure balance and variety in your diet without having to shop for foods in expensive specialty food or health stores.

Consumer demand for wholesome and healthful foods has brought about significant changes in the market today. Retailers are trimming excess fat from meat and poultry. Producers are improving leanness in their products. Reasonably-prices, water-packed tuna has replaced tuna packed in oil. Also, whole-grain bread is now available in most stores at reasonable prices.

Food companies are reformulating many of their standard offerings to make them lower in fat, calories, cholesterol and sodium.

Top value items within each food group help the savvy shopper to balance nutrition and budget goals. Lean Meat, Poultry and Fish; Since meat group foods are a major part of grocery bills, you save money and make good health moves by limiting meat, poultry or fish portions to the recommended two 3-ounce servings per day. Serve an extra potato, bread, or pasta instead of an extra piece of meat. Combine meats in stir-fries and casseroles to extend meats with vegetables andor pasta.

Buy lean meats, fish and poultry for leanness, avoiding breaded

Plain, nonfat yogurt is often the most economical of the yogurt op-tions. You can add fresh fruit, vanilla, or honey, if desired.

Bulk cheese is cheaper than presliced wrapped types.

Focus on family

Bread, Grain, Cereal; Many whole-grain breads are priced as reasonably as refined white bread. Check the label for whole-grain ingredients and compare prices per pound, not per loaf. Stretch meats or beans with rice or pasta. Regular rice is a better value than instant, and brown rice provides more fiber and better nutrition than white.

Home-cooked hot cereal, such as oatmeal, continues to be a wholesome breakfast choice and less expensive than ready-to-serve and instant hot cereals. Whole grain cereals like pufffed grains, shredded wheat, and corn flakes are also economical and nutritious. Fruits and Vegetables; Always buy fresh, in-season for the best price and most nutritious produce. Store brands of canned and frozen produce are cheaper than national brands. By frozen vegetables when season. Frozen vegetables make a origin.

good, economical substitute. Deep green and orange vegetables typically provide the most vitamins adn minerals for the money. Spinach, for example, is richer in vitamins and minerals than iceberg lettuce. Buy fresh vegetables and fruits. Age and damage can greatly reduce the nutrients, particularly the vitamins (minerals adn fiber content will be maintained). Snacks; Expensive snack foods, such as soft drinks, chips and sweets boost your grocery bill while they counteract your diet. Snacks should be selected from the basic food groups. Nutritious snacks such as air-popped popcorn, fresh fruits, vegetables, low-fat cheese and lean meat or poultry, are smarter choices and less So, whatever amount of money you have to spend for food, ensure

Navy men share West Texas ideals

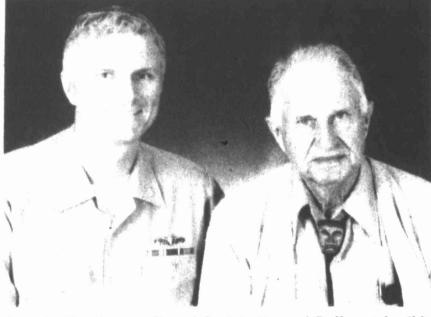

At the recent celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Naval Reserve Training Center, Seattle, Wash.. the featured speaker was Howard Duff (US-Ret), introduced by Capt. Alan Dunn.

These "old tars" had a lot in common - both from dry West Texas - made a career in the Navy; both are from Big Spring. Moreover. Duff was one of the first commanders of the Seattle Center from 1946-50, and today Dunn is the commander of the same center.

Their memories cover different periods, but the two captains had a lot to recall about their home town when they got together.

Duff has been back to Big Spring frequently and has taken a keen interest in the Heritage Museum. It was he who inspired the publication of the pictorial album of Pioneer artist's H.W. Caylor's early day paintings by the museum. Dunn also came back occasionally when his parents, Joe and Thelma Dunn, were here. He is looking forward to making the 30th reunion of his class of '63.

It was in 1928 when Duff, son of produce wholesaler, came to Big Spring. The following year, he applied and received a commission to the U.S. Naval Academy in An napolis. He is married to the former Pauline Melton, member of a pioneer (Melton-Holmes) family. With a brief interlude, he continued until retirement in 1962, his naval career which included several at-sea commands, among them a destroyer squadron in WWII. Perhaps the highlight was when his USS Flagerty (DE135) sank a German (U-546) submarine. The first survivor he picked up was Paul Just. the U-boat commander. Later they became good friends, the Duffs making two trips to Germany and the Justs two to California.

Captain Alan Dunn, left, and Captain Howard Duff pose for this shot at the Naval Station, Puget Sound, in Seattle, Wash. Both men commanded the Naval Reserve Center in Seattle and both have ties to the Big Spring area.

Just went back into the German navy after the war and retired as captain, same as Duff. Almost 40 years after Duff departed Big Spring for Annapolis, Dunn left the old home town for the same destination. In the interim he has served on six ships and four shore stations. In September this year the USS Gray was decomissioned leaving one of his six ships still in

As evidence of various assignments, "my wife is in her 18th house " said Duff

Today, as he peers out his office window at the Space Needle, he remembers how, as a member of the Big Spring High School, he visited the Worlds Fair in Seattle.

There are many memories more, including service as a Big Spring Herald Carrier on two routes — one in the Herald vicnity (Reed Grocery, River Funeral Home, Medical Arts Hospital) and later one including his home on E. 17th Street and down unpaved Birdwell. "This included some open country where you could throw the paper. In town, however, we had to faithfully fold the paper and slip it behind the screen door handle...never the mailbox!" Duff explained.

As a schoolboy he attended Central Ward (then back of High School (Runnels), East Ward, Runnels. Goliad and finally BSHS, graduating in 1963. He took an associate degree from Howard College and his bachelor's from Hardin-Simmons University in 1968. Four years later the Navy commissioned him and put him to

Avery hosts weekend get-together

Johnnie Lou Avery threw a party that lasted a whole weekend! She invited five houseguests from out of town — one was a former high school chum - and hosted a buffet dinner that included local friends.

Arriving Saturday were Patsy Brunson, San Angelo, who attended Abilene High School with Johnnie Lou and her late husband, Jerry, and Bobbye Harper, Odessa. Coming in Sunday were former resident Nita (Tarbet) Carraras, Grover City, Cal.; Norma Webb, Midland; and Kathy Harrison.

A Saturday night feast of sandwich makings and fresh vegetables was topped off with coffee and five flavors of Blue Bell ice cream for dessert!

Dinner guests included Shirley Burgess, Dene Sheppard, Clovie Shirey, Sandra Waggoner, Margaret Lloyd, Marae Brooks and Shirley Shroyer as well as Patsy and Bobbye.

Our town's Jean Warren had an article published in the Dallas Morning News.

Jean addressed the recent case of Wanda Webb Holloway who was convicted and sentenced to 15 years for plotting murder to "further her daughter's cheerleading aspirations." Jean wrote, "This shocking scenario calls attention to the unrealistic importance some people attach to cheerleading.'

Jean, a retired BSISD teacher, urged parents and school boards to consider limiting young people from serving two consecutive years as cheerleader in junior high and the first two years of high school. Only high school juniors and seniors could serve consecutive years.

"This measure would take a lot of pressure off students, and it would give more youngsters the chance to be cheerleaders, Jean suggested. She also believes pep squads need to have a greater role, "so that more students can enjoy "a moment in the limelight."

By George W. Brasher, M.D. Q: I have a young child with allergy problems. He sometimes has severe allergy attacks. Should I consider allergy shots to relieve his problems? What do they involve?

A: Allergy problems are quite common and it is estimated that some 40 million Americans suffer from one or another of the common allergic diseases. The most frequent of these conditions are allergic asthma, allergic rhinitis (also known as "hay fever") and certain allergic skin problems.

Many people have relatively mild allergy symptoms and respond quite well to symptomatic medications in the form of antihistamines, bronchodilators or topical steroid preparations. In such individuals these simple measures are often sufficient. On the other hand, some people will have more serious problems or will not respond well to simple measures. In addition, some individuals will have significant side effects from their medication, and drug treatment may create as many problems as it solves. A basically two approaches. The first more detailed evaluation is needed in these people.

An allergy evaluation begins with a detailed history in order to get as much information as possible about the patient and the problem. Most allergists (physicians trained in the evaluation and management of the various allergic diseases) use the combination of a careful history and selected skin testing to pinpoint the specific allergens involved. Blood testing is not as sensitive as skin in the evaluation of most patients. The common allergens are household inhalants (such as dust mites, feathers and animal hairs), pollens (such as trees, grasses and weeds) and the environmental molds. Once the specific allergen has been identified, there are testing and has only a limited role approach involves avoidance, which is appropriate for certain allergens such as animals hairs and feathers since they can be excluded from the home environment. The second approach involves allergy injections, also known as immunotherapy, for those allergens which cannot be avoided if a person lives in the Central Texas area (cedar pollen, for example) Immunotherapy was first introduced in England 80 years ago and involves periodic injections of an extract composed of those inhalant allergens that cannot be avoided. The body produces protective antibodies which can block the allergic reaction and reduce the need for symptomatic medication. Immunotherapy is a longterm treament and should not begin without a careful evaluation of all the factors involved. In addition, the patient should be seen by his allergist periodically to assess his progress. Only in this way can maximum benefit be obtained from allergy shots.

DEAR ABBY: Like many others, I never thought I'd be writing to you. My husband and I have been married for 20 years. About two years ago, he started getting very bullheaded and selfish - even the people at work mentioned it.

Our sex life was always OK until about two months ago, when he bought a video camcorder and announced that he wanted to videotape us having sex! Abby, I have never been a prude, but that's where I draw the line. I tried to talk him out of it, but he said he would not have sex with me again unless it was on film.

I asked him to go to counseling with me. He refused -saying I was the one with the problem. I asked him to have a medical checkup. He refused. I tried to tell him how degrading it would be for me, etc., but to no avail. He has been badgering me every night for two months

I am at my wit's end. I am sick to death of his badgering, and I don't know what to do. I've even thought of divorcing him, but I still love him, and we are just approaching the time when we could travel and enjoy life.

I'm signing my real name, city and state, but please don't use them in your column, as I would be very distressed if anyone we same problem with their

DEAR LIVING: You surely know that your husband is a sick man. You absolutely must get him to a doctor for a psychiatric evaluation. Please don't treat this as anything other than a potentially life-threatening illness. Your husband's behavior could be symptomatic of a brain disorder (possibly a tumor). You must talk to your family physician about your husband's sudden personality change. And please write again and give me a progress report.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can shed some light on a problem that has been bothering me. Can you tell me why my husband, who is nearly 70 (but in excellent health), has in recent years become more and more 'allergic'' to soap and water?

Many of my friends of approximately the same age have confided to me that they have the husbands. Is there a psychological or physiological explanation for this behavior - or is it just another way men have of aggravating their wives? - COL-UMBUS, GA.

DEAR COLUMBUS: I have heard this complaint before, but it applies to women as well as men. There is no single explanation, but I offer the following: Ast a person ages, one's senses hearing and sight — grow dull, so why not the sense of smell as well?

Some older people may find it difficult or inconvenient to bathe daily. It's also possible that they' do not change their undergarments daily. Arthritis' might also make it painful to wash themselves thoroughly.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GOT IT" BAD IN HARTFORD, CONN." Please send "Mr. Wonderful" on his way. There is no situation as hopeless as a single woman who's got it bad for a married man who never had it so good.

It may pay to wait for age 70

Question: In a previous column you stated that if you "run the numbers, you'll discover that at no point do you ever give back more Social Security than you make." My husband doesn't believe this and thinks he should not claim Social Security benefits since he would have to give it back. Would you please comment. Shirley B.

Dear Shirley: I sure hope my columns haven't caused any arguments at the dinner table. I also hope the answer following does not cause any more arguments either.

Your letter stated that your husband is 65 and eligible for Social Security benefits. But, he is self-employed and making significantly more than the Social Security ceiling for income.

Shirley, I believe your husband is right. The particular column you are talking about, published in August in most newspapers, actually dealt with a slightly different matter. That particular question dealt with an individual who was curious as to whether or not she was actually losing money was having to give back Social Security benefits. The column went on to say that she was actually coming out a few cents ahead for every dollar earned, so she was actually making money while continuing to work even though she was giving back Social Security. Your husband, on the other hand, since he has a high income, would not receive any benefit from Social Security at all. Due to his income, he would have to give back all Social Security income until he reaches age 70. So, he is correct.

It would not make sense for him to draw Social Security income. Tell him it's all right to continue to work and earn income since that's the best thing for him to do. When he reaches age 70, it makes no difference how much income he earns and he should claim Social Security because he can keep all of it.

Gasoline prices reflect variety of factors

Marilyn Clark puts gas in her car at a local station recently. Although wholesale prices may be relatively inexpensive, an additional $.35 per gallon for taxes quickly adds to the price.

Staff Writer

The subject of gasoline pricing in West Texas is as volatile as a flame near an open gas line. With a refinery in the city's backyard, consumers wonder why Big Spring pump prices are higher than other communities in West Texas, including Midland, Colorado City and Garden City.

The factors involved in gas pricing are as numerous as the oil wells that can be seen on the horizon in the oil patch.

The primary factors in the equation are the amount of gasoline sold and the amount of competition in the area

As a general rule, rural areas, such as Big Spring, pump less gas which means that a smaller volume of gas is sold by the refineries to the wholesalers. The lower volume means higher costs when disributors contract with the

In West Texas, the Fina Oil and Chemical refinery on the outskirts of Big Spring is the primary supplier in the area.

"We supply to Midland-Odessa, Big Spring and the area, San Angelo and Witchita Falls," said Jeff Morris, refinery manager.

"As far as the impact on the local market, Fina only sets the rack price at the refinery," he said.

Although the wholesale price of gasoline is at $.60 a gallon and has been that for a few weeks, the rack price, which is the contract price between the refinery and the buyer, entails a variety of factors.

As in any industry, the amount of product bought will affect the price of the product. Larger purchases act as an incentive for the seller to offer a competive price to the

'As far as wholesalers are involved, the price set by Fina for them is determined by how long they have a contract with us, the amount of gasoline purchased monthly and what additives they want in the gasoline," said Rick Hagar, coordinator of media relations for Fina in Dallas

"Transportation is not a factor in gasoline prices, so the location of the refinery in Big Spring is not a factor," he said. "What also determines the price of gasoline is the price of crude, and competitive pressures at the retail level.

Competition is the variable in the equation that determines the exact price of gasoline at the pump, said

Even with the low number of competitors in the area, the competition within the small circle is high. Retailers are forced to be competitive with the station across the street to get business and to stay in business

To further understand pricing, one has to take into account the overhead and taxes in the petroleum business.

Ken Peeler, an oilman for more than 40 years and owner of Midland 66 Oil Company said, "New York Mercantile may read gasoline prices at $.65 a gallon but that is excluding taxes, fees and the markup for overhead and capital investment.'

Taxes for gasoline in Texas are $.35 per gallon and diesel has a $.40 tax per gallon. The state and federal fees wholesalers are required to pay include a loading fee of $50, which is mandatory everytime a truck loads at a refinery, and an environmental protection fee.

'You also have to count freight and handling when looking at why gas prices are what they are," said Peeler. "The mark-up is usually less than 10 percent and many times it will be split between the • GAS PRICES page 2-D

Bidding on pipeline may begin Feburary 1

If all elements progress at the present rate, the Colorado River Municipal Water District may be able to ask for bids February 1 on the Lake O.H. Ivie/Midland Odessa Pipeline.

General Manager, O.H. Ivie told directors in Big Spring Thursday that a construction start by or soon after March 1 is probable. This will be by far the largest project ever undertaken by the district and is being financed by $115,000,000 revenue bonds issued August 6. Midland and San Angelo, as contract cities, will share in approximately forty percent of the cost of the project.

For practical purposes, surveying of the route has been completed; soil resistivity tests are well underway; and the archaeological survey of the route is due for completion within two weeks. Ivie reported. Meanwhile. the initial right-of-way purchase was made October 8.

Conferences are continuing with potential major suppliers concerning the type of pipe, dimensions and delivery schedules, he said.

In early September the District received proceeds from the $115,000,000 revenue bond issue voted August 6. After deducting cost of financing and $7,835,118 for the Reserve Fund, the District received $104,916,009, plus $1,936,000 accrued interest, which has been invested.

The terminal point has been moved to north of Highway 80 and west of FM 1788 which is paralleled by the Midland-Odessa airport on

Besides the pipeline, there will be six pump stations capable of delivering 90,000,000 a day. Of this, 25 million are dedicated to San Angelo, 10 million to Big Spring, 20 million to Midland, and the balance to the District, including Odessa.

The board adopted a $28,160,780 budget, which included $7,970,144 first time charges on the Lake Ivie and pipeline bond issues. Otherwise, the budget would be $49,081,287, virtually the same as the current year.

spects are good."

Excess rains in the county this year were welcomed by farmers some of the time but not always. In May and June, the seeds were washed out of some fields. Then in August, the cold weather that accompanies rain began to threaten cotton growth.

The 23 inches of rain that has fallen in Big Spring so far this year is well above the 16-inch average by this time of year

It would be ideal if the year's first cotton-killing freeze did not occur until mid-November or later. Richardson said. However, some farmers have already begun the defoliation process, applying herbicides to kill it for harvesting.

Gas prices

In attempts to answer the question of why Big Spring may at times have higher retail pump prices than that of surrounding communities, competition again has to be taken into account and the ownership of the retail outlets has to be considered.

If a retail outlet is owned by a corporation that is based outside of the community of the outlet's location, two things may occur.

The corporation may attempt to make up a margin loss at that particular location because the market can bear it, or the corporation may set the retail price with a lower mark-up, which would force the local competitors to also lower their prices.

"For a marketeer to build his volume, he will target a certain location to have highly competitive price, which is a low mark-up,' said Peeler. "He may have a dozen or more stations throughout a large area. This allows him to establish a customer base in one location with the low mark-up, and to make it up at another location with a higher mark-up.

To put Big Spring gasoline prices in better perspective, other information is also needed, such as the national tax average, wholesale average and the retail average.

poration is a price information service for the petroleum industry that gathers wholesale and retail prices nationwide. The corporation does a national retail survey each week, published on Mondays, that states the national gasoline price averages.

"Last Monday the national average was $1.14 for regular unleaded self-serve," said Mike Doyle, editor of CPC. "For further comparison, we have estimated the average state tax at $.17 per gallon. Texas is $.04 higher with a $.21 tax, then you have to add in the $.14 federal tax.

"And the estimated gross profit margin national average is calculated at $.14 cents a gallon," he said. "In talking with retailers, the break-even point is at about $.10 a gallon to recover costs.

"When looking at the profit margin, you must bear in mind that sometimes retailers go through long periods of time when they are losing money or just breaking even, and at other times they may have a high profit margin," said Doyle. "We can not look at just one period of time to determine profit margin.'

"There is not an incredibly ridiculous mark-up with gas prices and no one is getting filthy rich," said Peeler. "The prices reflect the complexity of the industry and the

pending against Fina

By MARTHA E. FLORES Staff Writer

Earlier this year a lawsuit was filed against Fina Oil & Chemical Company by an independent oil distributor who alleged that Fina was practicing price fixing and price discrimination in the third quarter of 1990.

"The plaintiff alleged that Fina was selling to their companyowned retail outlets for less than what they were charging wholesale customers," said Jim Shillingburg, vice-president of the Texas Oil Marketers Association. "The practice is believed to have occurred for at least 24 months, but the pricing at the beginning of the Gulf War was the final blow that caused the lawsuit to be filed.

Fina contends that the wholesale prices were higher than the retail prices for only a few days, and it was due to the political pressure by President Bush to keep oil prices down.

"Wholesale prices accurately reflected the increase in crude oil prices; whereas, the pump price of gasoline reflected the political pressure," said Rick Hagar, coordinatior of media relations for Fina in Dallas. "The wholesale price was the same price for our company owned retail outlets as for the wholesalers.

The major oil companies were keeping the pump prices down as President Bush requested, and in turn Fina retail outlets lost money during that time, he said. A tentative trial date has been set for March 2, 1993.

Chicken: Virtuous and tasty versatility

It seems the more we discover about the virtues of chicken — its superlative nutrition, affordability and menu adaptability — the more we are serving it to our families, as often as three times per week, according to industry experts.

Although there is an infinite number of ways to prepare chicken to lend meals variety, it is often quite difficult to conjure up imaginative recipe ideas when running to the supermarket after work to pick up a few things for dinner or summing up a quick response when asked "What's for dinner?"

The key to instant chicken excitability? Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, recommends keeping a few simple recipes developed by the professionals at the Kraft Creative Kitchens at hand. With Miracle Whip Salad Dressing and one or two other common ingredients that are likely to be on hand, she says it is easy to create dishes that are fast and delicious. Miracle Whip Salad Dressing also adds delicious tangy flavor to a variety of tasty and imaginative recipes and seals in natural chicken juices according to Kaliny.

A recipe for succulent Italian Chicken can be committed to memory in a flash and prepared just as quickly by simply combining equal amounts of Italian dressing and Miracle Whip Salad Dressing. Brush the zesty combination on chicken during broiling or grilling.

Another hot menu memory pleaser? Mexican Chicken, Salsa, McCormick/Schilling Chili Powder and Miracle Whip Salad Dressing are blended together and brushed on chicken as above.

One more entry for quick recall? Kahny suggests superb Honey Mustard Chicken. McCormick/Schilling ground Red Pep-per, honey and Dijon mustard are blended with Miracle Whip Salad Dressing and brushed on chicken breasts during broiling or grilling.

Remember these few simple ideas the next time you're looking for quick chicken versatility. Once these simple concepts are a part of your everyday chicken dish vocabulary, experiment with your own favorite combination of ingredients from your kitchen cupboard and Miracle Whip Salad Dressing. One other benefit — these recipes are terrific for sandwiches, too!

Fish and seasonings made for each other

From a can of tuna to a fillet of sole, fish can be transformed into a gourmet delight with a dash of seasoning. Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, points out that fish may be classified in three groups according to flavor, and the seasonings change as the flavor becomes more robust. As a general rulel the more robust the flavor the higher the fat content of the fish, she said.

To enhance the very delicate flavored fish Kahny recommends McCormick/Schilling Parsley, Tarragon, Dill Weed, Chives and Basil for adding just the right flavor. If fish is to be poached, add McCormick/Schilling Bay Leaves or Whole Black Pepper to the liquid. Combinations of flavors, such as McCormick/Schillings Lemon & Pepper Seasoning Salt or Salt 'n Spice lend a special touch. If color is important, McCormick/Schilling White Pepper rather than Black Pepper may be used. Some of the fish in this group are sole, cod, flounder, grouper, sea bass, haddock, orange roughy and trout. These are best prepared by poaching, pan frying, baking or broiling with a basting sauce.

The same seasonings can be used for light to moderate flavored fish but stronger flavors may be added. Kahny recommends such seasonings as McCormick/Schilling Garlic Powder, Oregano, Italian Seasoning and ground Red Pepper, which go well with red snapper, perch, pike, pompano, bluefish, catfish and salmon. Most all cooking methods can be used for this group.

Those fish with more pronounced flavor, such as swordfish, mackerel, sablefish, shad and tuna, cook well on the grill although Kahny says that baking and poaching are other good cooking methods. Seasonings recommended for other groups may be used, as well as hardy flavors such as McCormick/Schilling Thyme, Marjoram, Garlic Powder, Fennel Seed and Rosemary

If adult bread bakers love the feel of dough on their hands, the magic of dough rising and the warm, yeasty taste of a loaf fresh out of the oven, imagine the delight of children assisting with a baking project. According to working parent, author and child care expert, Wenda Morrone, author of "Child Care That Works," yeast baking is perfect for "quality time" with kids because it includes conversation, making a mess and watching a mini-miracle as yeast changes playdough into something delicious.

Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, points out that making bread also fits a child's attention span. It's 15 to 20 minutes in the beginning - then "punch it down for me, honey!" One or two hours later, adult and child can shape a plain or creative design and pop it in the oven. Kahny feels the last part is the ultimate reward — that first taste!

Baking bread, cinnamon rolls or coffee cake with children is not only wonderful entertainment for them, it's educational, too. To keep children involved in the baking process Kahny passes on these tips from the test kitchen of Fleischmann's Yeast:

Spread newspaper on the kitchen floor. No need to worry about spills - just roll the papers up and throw

Peanutty Chocolate Chiffon Cake combines the great tastes of peanut butter and chocolate to make an absolutely delicious dessert.

Peanut butter and chocolate make the perfect food couple

Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers pure Vanilla Extract Schools home economist, loves to take a chocolaty chiffon cake, layer it with a creamy peanut butter filling and pour on a scrumptious peanut butter glaze for an absolutely delicious dessert!

Although childhood memories frequently link peanut butter with jelly, many avid peanut butter fans declare chocolate the other half of their favorite flavor combination in cookies, cakes and candies. Kahny points out that chocolate's slight tartness and richness enhances the peanut butter flavor to make many delectable desserts.

An example she uses is the Peanutty Chocolate Chiffon Cake featured here, baked in a bundt or loaf pan and sliced into three layers. Whip up the creamy peanut butter filling by combining marshmallows and Reese's Peanut Butter Chips in milk and heat until melted. (These handy chips, made from real peanuts, are ready to use right from the package. No messy measuring and they blend readily in hot mixtures.) Cool, then fold into stiffly beaten whipping cream. Finish this beauty by pouring on a satiny peanut butter chip glaze then chill until serving time.

For the true peanut butter lover, Kahny claims there's nothing quite like a good peanut butter cookie. Traditional crisscross cookies will come in second to the Peanut Butter Cut-Out Cookies, which are outstanding in chewy texture and wonderful peanutty flavor. The dough is ideal for making seasonal cutout cookies. Drizzle or spread with melted Hershey's Semi-Sweet or Milk Chocolate Chips and serve with coffee or other favorite Bake either of these special treats using Reese's Peanut Butter Chips and chocolate from Hershey's. This is the perfect couple . . . two great tastes that taste great together. Kahny affirms kids as well as grown ups will love them and remember them.

Homemade bread is easier than you think

Nothing beats the aroma of home-baked bread, rolls and coffeecake wafting from the kitchen. For many, the smell brings back memories of a day long ago. In the interest of two-career families and hectic schedules, consumers have resorted to supermarket breads and ready-made pastries from the local bakery

Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, indicates that even busy cooks can still enjoy baking yeast breads thanks to Fleischmann's Yeast. The trick involves adapting the baking process around a busy schedule. Kahny explained that the dough can prepared on a free Saturday and stored frozen in a plastic bag with zipper lock until time to bake.

Baking with yeast does take a little time, but no one with a busy schedule needs to miss out on the rewarding experience of creating home-baked products," states Kahny. She points out that the test kitchens of Fleischmnnn's Yeast developed a series of flexible recipes that can be worked around even the most hectic schedule.

The Classic Freezer Dough can be used for any two of the following variations: White or Wheat Loaf, Hearth Braid, Onion Rolls, Soft Herb Breadsticks, Cinnamon-Date Rolls or Pizza Dough. Kahny suggest baking half of the dough now and freezing the other half for baking later on.

When the following recipes are mastered, Kahny encourages busy cooks to expand their horizons and establish family favorites. Traditions evolve over tine with repetition. Soon, Sunday breakfast without Sticky Buns just isn't the same. The smell of Parker House Rolls baking is the sure sign that Thanksgiving Dinner is almost on the table! She points out that certain foods are associated with 5 minutes of baking to prevent extimes of day, seasons of the year cess browning. Remove from pan; (Apple Coffecake is autumn!) and cool on wire rack. with special occasions and holidays.

Now is a perfect time to rediscover, or discover for the first time, the appeal of baking with yeast. Kahny emphasizes that by involving the children of the house, a tradition can be established and carried on with their families in until risen slightly, about 10-20 years to come.

CLASSIC FREEZER BREAD 6 to 6-12 cups all-purpose flour 3 tablespoons sugar

2 teaspoons salt 2 packages Fleischmann's Active

Dry OR RapidRise Yeast 1-12 cups water

12 cup milk

2 tablespoons margarine OR butter In large mixer bowl, combine dissolved yeast. Heat water, milk and butter to 120 to 130 degrees. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1/2 cup flour: beat at high speed 2 minutes. With spoon, stir in enough additional flour to make soft dough. Knead on lightly floured surface until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Divide dough in half. Prepare one half for freezing (directions follow). Prepare one half for baking: if using Active Dry Yeast, place dough in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, abouth 1 hour. If using RapidRise Yeast, cover kneaded dough and let rest on floured surface 10 minutes. Punch dough down. Shape, rise and bake according to selected variation.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD: Substitute 1 to 3 cups whole wheat flour for 1 to 3 cups all purpose

To freeze (use t_2 above recipe): Flatten dough to 6-inch disk. Place in lightly floured 1-gallon plastic freezer bag with zipper lock. Seal bag, allowing space for dough to rise slightly. Freeze for up to one

To thaw: Thaw dough in sealed bag following one of these options. Allow dough to rise slightly.

Refrigerator: overnight or 8 to 16

Counter (room temperature): 4

Microwave oven: Heat for '10 minutes on LOW (10% power), turn over and rotate 1/4 turn. Let rest 10 minutes. Repeat 1 to 2 times, until dough is thawed.

Remove from bag; shape, rise and bake as directed Variations: Use 1/2 dough (freshly made or thawed).

LOAF

Roll dough to 12x7-inch rectangle; roll up from short end to make loaf. Pinch seam and ends to seal. Place, seam side down, in $8-\frac{1}{2}x4-\frac{1}{2}x2-\frac{1}{2}$ -inch greased loaf pan. Cover; let rise in warm, draftfree place until doubled in size, about 1 to 1-1/2 hours. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes or until done. Remove from pan; cool on wire rack.

HEARTH BRAID

Divide dough into 3 equal pieces. Roll each piece to 16-inch rope. On greased baking sheet braid 3 ropes together; pinch ends to seal. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, about 30 to 90 minutes. Brush with 1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water; sprinkle with McCormick/Schilling Sesame OR Poppy Seed. Bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes or until done. Remove from pan; cool on wire rack

ONION ROLLS

Makes 10 rolls Divide dough into 10 equal pieces; form smooth balls. Place balls in greased 8-inch round cake pan. Cover; let rise in warm, draftfree place until doubled in size, about 30 to 60 minutes. Brush with 1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons McCormick/Schilling Instant Minced Onion. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes or until done. Cover with aluminum foil during the last

SOFT HERB BREADSTICKS Makes 12 breadsticks

Divide dough into 12 equal pieces; roll to 15-inch ropes. Coil ends in opposite directions. Place on 2 greased baking sheets. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place minutes. Brush with 1 lightly beaten egg white sprinkle with herbs OR herb blends such as Mc-Cormick/Schilling Italian Seasoning, Oregano Leaves or Dill Weed. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes or until done. Remove from baking sheet; cool on wire racks.

CINNAMON-DATE ROLLS Makes 12 rolls

Roll dough to 15x12-inch rec-1-12 cups flour, sugar, salt and untangle; brush with 2 tablespoons melted margarine OR butter. Sprinkle evenly with 2 tablespoons sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon Mc-Cormick/Schilling Ground Cinnamon and 3/4 cup chopped dates OR pitted dates, snipped. Roll up from short side as for jelly roll; pinch seam to seal. Cut into 12 (1-inch) pieces. Place cut side up in greased 9-inch round cake pan. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, about 30 to 45 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes or until done. Remove from pan; cool on wire

Check dough frequently during thawing and rising; use the time range as a guideline. Thawing and rising times vary according to temperature of the dough, the room or the refrigerator. Frozen and thawed dough is cooler than freshly made dough and takes longer to rise.

To check dough for double in size, press the tips of two fingers lightly and quickly ½inch into dough. If the dents stays, it is doubled.

Note that some recipes, such as breadsticks, do not need to rise until doubled in size before baking. Whole wheat flour may cause dough to be sticker. Handle carefully and avoid using too much flour or bread will become dry. Doughs made with large amounts of whole wheat flour may take longer to rise and result in heavier

Two dessert finales await in refrigerator

If the entertaining schedule ahead looks busy, now is the time to muster some recipe "ammunition" for the weeks later this vear. Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, highly recommends Fluffy Chocolate Mint Pie. After preparation, it waits patiently in the refrigerator as the dessert finale. There are only five ingredients, including the convenience of two envelopes of Dream Whip Whipped Topping Mix and two packages of instant pudding and pie filling. According to Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, Dream Whip Whipped Topping adds marvelous volume with chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling. Make a choice of adding McCor- FLUFFY CHOCOLATE MINT mick/Schilling pure Peppermint Extract or white creme de men- 2 envelopes Dream Whip Whip-

the liqueur for a subtle flavor. An electric mixer will blend it all together in jig time. Imagine, only about four hours of chilling is needed after the fluffy filling is spooned into a pie shell. Then, to the table it goes with garnish of drizzled melted semi-sweet chocolate.

For another festive occasion, consider a Fluffly Rum Pie, another simple recipe suggestion from Kahny. As with first pie, Dream Whip Whipped Topping Mix adds volume to the mixture when it is whipped with instant pudding and pie filling — vanilla flavor. Rum or McCormick/Schilling imitation Rum Extract enhances the flavor that to the mixture when it's whipped puts it into the company pie category according to Kahny.

Great pizza starts with the dough

Pizza has come full circle - it started as a simple, savory crust brushed with oil and herbs. Today, pizza lovers everywhere are once again focusing on the dough - experimenting with healthy crusts featuring whole wheat flour or oats, rich cheese crusts or using the tried-and-true delicious basic flour crusts.

Any pizza connoisseur will confirm that the quality of the crust makes or breaks a pizza. Toppings are important, but the real secret of a mouth-watering aromatic pie is in the dough. And don't be put off by the process — even novice cooks can turn out a foolproof crust that will impress family and friends.

All it takes according to Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, is a spirit of culinary adventure combined with a few simple ingredients and tools. In fact, by using Fleischmann's RapidRise Yeast and an easy onerise method, the dough can prepared and shaped in close to 30

Kahny emphasizes that, in addition to tasting great, pizza is nutritious and fun to make. Pizza provides generous amounts of fiber and complex carbohydrates and can be a healthy menu choice. In addition, most dough is low in fat and cholesterol, high in B-vitamins and can be supplement by low-fat, high protein toppings.

Once the dough is made, the difficult part come - deciding between all the possible toppings. Kahny thinks that variety and ingenuity are the name of the game. She likes to have some fun here like mixing matching ingredients to come up with an original/unique combination.

These recipes from the test Kitchens of Fleischmann's Yeast are designed to delight the serious pizza-maker as well as the beginner. Contemporary cooks will be pleased to see dough that incorporates whole wheat flour and rolled oats. Parmesan lovers can add extra pizazz to their meal with Cheese Dough for Pizza. Fans of Southwest cuisine will enjoy the crusty flavor of cornmeal dough.

Kahny points out that once the art of combining fresh, homemade crust with creative toppings is mastered, the cook's kitchen may be more popular that the best

WHOLE WHEAT PIZZAZ Makes 2 12-inch pizzas 2 cups all-purpose flour 1 cup whole wheat flour

1 package Fleischmann's RapidRise Yeast 1-1/2 teaspoons salt

2 tablespoons olive OR vegetable

Set aside 1 cup all-purpose flour. In large bowl, mix remaining flours, undissolved yeast and salt. Heat water and oil until hot to touch (125 to 130 degrees); stir into dry mixture. Mix in enough reserved flour to make stiff dough. Knead on lightly floured surface until smooth and elastic, about 5 minutes. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. Divide dough in half. Roll and stretch each piece to a 13-inch circle. Place on 2 12-inch round pizza pans or 2 baking sheets, greased and sprinkled with cornmeal. Shape edge into standing rim of dough. Top with favorite pizza sauce and toppings, dividing evenly. Bake at 400 degrees until crust is golden, about 20 to 30 minutes.

Great pizza starts with the dough

Pizza has come full circle - it started as a simple, savory crust brushed with oil and herbs. Today, pizza lovers everywhere are once again focusing on the dough - experimenting with healthy crusts featuring whole wheat flour or oats, rich cheese crusts or using the tried-and-true delicious basic flour crusts.

Any pizza connoisseur will confirm that the quality of the crust makes or breaks a pizza. Toppings are important, but the real secret of a mouth-watering aromatic pie is in the dough. And don't be put off by the process — even novice cooks can turn out a foolproof crust that will impress family and friends.

Homemade bread is easier than you think

Nothing beats the aroma of home-baked bread, rolls and coffeecake wafting from the kitchen. For many, the smell brings back memories of a day long ago. In the interest of two-career families and hectic schedules, consumers have resorted to supermarket breads and ready-made pastries from the local bakery.

Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, indicates that even busy cooks can still enjoy baking yeast breads thanks to Fleischmann's Yeast. The trick involves adapting the baking process around a busy schedule. Kahny explained that the dough can prepared on a free Saturday and stored frozen in a plastic bag with zipper lock until time to bake.

Baking with yeast does take a little time, but no one with a busy schedule needs to miss out on the rewarding experience of creating home-baked products," states Kahny. She points out that the test kitchens of Fleischmnnn's Yeast developed a series of flexible recipes that can be worked around even the most hectic schedule.

The Classic Freezer Dough can be used for any two of the following variations: White or Wheat Loaf, Hearth Braid, Onion Rolls, Soft Herb Breadsticks, Cinnamon-Date Rolls or Pizza Dough. Kahny suggest baking half of the dough now and freezing the other half for baking later on.

When the following recipes are mastered, Kahny encourages busy cooks to expand their horizons and establish family favorites. Traditions evolve over tine with repetition. Soon, Sunday breakfast without Sticky Buns just isn't the same. The smell of Parker House Rolls baking is the sure sign that Thanksgiving Dinner is almost on the table! She points out that certain foods are associated with times of day, seasons of the year (Apple Coffecake is autumn!) and with special occasions and holidays. Now is a perfect time to rediscover, or discover for the first time, the appeal of baking with yeast. Kahny emphasizes that by involving the children of the house. a tradition can be established and carried on with their families in years to come.

CLASSIC FREEZER BREAD 6 to 6-1/2 cups all-purpose flour 3 tablespoons sugar 2 teaspoons salt

2 packages Fleischmann's Active Dry OR RapidRise Yeast 1-1/2 cups water

½ cup milk 2 tablespoons margarine OR butter In large mixer bowl, combine 1-1/2 cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved yeast. Heat water, milk and butter to 120 to 130 degrees. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1/2 cup flour; beat at high speed 2 minutes. With spoon, stir in enough additional flour to make soft dough. Knead on lightly floured surface until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Divide dough in half. Prepare one half for freezing (directions follow). Prepare one half for baking: if using Active Dry Yeast, place dough in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, abouth 1 hour. If using RapidRise Yeast, cover kneaded dough and let rest on floured surface 10 minutes. Punch dough down. Shape, rise and bake according to selected variation.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD: Substitute 1 to 3 cups whole wheat flour for 1 to 3 cups all purpose flour

To freeze (use 1/2 above recipe): Flatten dough to 6-inch disk. Place in lightly floured 1-gallon plastic freezer bag with zipper lock. Seal bag, allowing space for dough to rise slightly. Freeze for up to one

To thaw: Thaw dough in sealed bag following one of these options. Allow dough to rise slightly.

Refrigerator: overnight or 8 to 16

Microwave oven: Heat for 10 minutes on LOW (10% power), turn over and rotate ¼ turn. Let rest 10 minutes. Repeat 1 to 2 times, until dough is thawed.

Remove from bag; shape, rise and bake as directed. Variations: Use 1/2 dough (freshly made or thawed).

LOAF

Roll dough to 12x7-inch rectangle; roll up from short end to make loaf. Pinch seam and ends to seal. Place, seam side down, in 8-1/2 x4-1/2 x2-1/2-inch greased loaf pan. Cover; let rise in warm, draftfree place until doubled in size, about 1 to 1-1/2 hours. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes or until done. Remove from pan; cool on wire rack.

HEARTH BRAID

Divide dough into 3 equal pieces. Roll each piece to 16-inch rope. On greased baking sheet braid 3 ropes together; pinch ends to seal. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, about 30 to 90 minutes. Brush with 1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water; sprinkle with McCormick/Schilling Sesame OR Poppy Seed. Bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes or until done. Remove from pan; cool on wire rack.

ONION ROLLS

Makes 10 rolls Divide dough into 10 equal pieces; form smooth balls. Place balls in greased 8-inch round cake pan. Cover; let rise in warm, draftfree place until doubled in size, about 30 to 60 minutes. Brush with 1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons McCormick/Schilling Instant Minced Onion. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes or until done. Cover with aluminum foil during the last 5 minutes of baking to prevent excess browning. Remove from pan; cool on wire rack.

SOFT HERB BREADSTICKS Makes 12 breadsticks

Divide dough into 12 equal pieces; roll to 15-inch ropes. Coil ends in opposite directions. Place on 2 greased baking sheets. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until risen slightly, about 10-20 minutes. Brush with 1 lightly beaten egg white; sprinkle with herbs OR herb blends such as Mc-Cormick/Schilling Italian Seasoning, Oregano Leaves or Dill Weed. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes or until done. Remove from baking sheet; cool on wire racks.

CINNAMON-DATE ROLLS

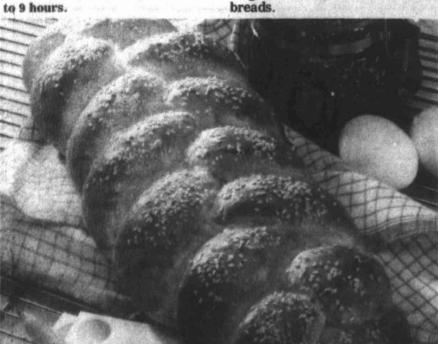

Makes 12 rolls Roll dough to 15x12-inch rectangle; brush with 2 tablespoons melted margarine OR butter. Sprinkle evenly with 2 tablespoons sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon Mc-Cormick/Schilling Ground Cinnamon and ¾ cup chopped dates OR pitted dates, snipped. Roll up from short side as for jelly roll; pinch seam to seal. Cut into 12 (1-inch) pieces. Place cut side up in greased 9-inch round cake pan. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, about 30 to 45 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes or until done. Remove from pan; cool on wire

Check dough frequently during thawing and rising; use the time range as a guideline. Thawing and rising times vary according to temperature of the dough, the room or the refrigerator. Frozen and thawed dough is cooler than freshly made dough and takes longer to rise. To check dough for double in size, press the tips of two fingers lightly and quickly 1/2 inch into dough. If the dents stays, it is doubled.

Note that some recipes, such as breadsticks, do not need to rise until doubled in size before baking.

Whole wheat flour may cause dough to be sticker. Handle carefully and avoid using too much flour or bread will become dry. Doughs made with large amounts of whole wheat flour may take Counter (room temperature): 4 longer to rise and result in heavier

Two simple but elegant pies are easy to make with Dream Whip Instant Topping and pudding or pie mix. Both are quick to prepare and require only a few hours in the refrigerator before

Two dessert finales await in refrigerator

If the entertaining schedule ahead looks busy, now is the time to muster some recipe "ammunition" for the weeks later this year. Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, highly recommends Fluffy Chocolate Mint Pie. After preparation, it waits patiently in the refrigerator as the dessert finale. There are only five ingredients, including the convenience of two envelopes of Dream Whip Whipped Topping Mix and two packages of instant pudding and pie filling. According to Kahny Homemakers Schools home economist, Dream Whip Whipped Topping adds marvelous volume to the mixture when it's whipped with chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling. Make a choice of adding McCormick/Schilling pure Peppermint Extract or white creme de menthe liqueur for a subtle flavor. An electric mixer will blend it all together in jig time. Imagine, only about four hours of chilling is needed after the fluffy filling is spooned into a pie shell. Then, to the table it goes with garnish of drizzled melted semi-sweet chocolate.

For another festive occasion, consider a Fluffly Rum Pie, another simple recipe suggestion from Kahny. As with first pie, Dream Whip Whipped Topping Mix adds volume to the mixture when it is whipped with instant pudding and pie filling - vanilla flavor. Rum or McCormick/Schilling imitation Rum Extract enhances the flavor that puts it into the company pie category according to Kahny.

FLUFFY CHOCOLATE MINT 2 envelopes Dream Whip Whipped Topping Mix 2½ cups cold milk

2 packages (4-serving size) chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling

3 tablespoons white creme de menthe liqueur*

1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled, OR chocolate crumb crust *Or use 1/4 teaspoon McCormickSchilling pure Peppermint

Extract Prepare whipped topping mix with 1 cup milk as directed on package, using large mixer bowl. Add remaining 11/2 cups milk, the pie filling mix and liqueur. Blend; then beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Spoon into pie shell. Chill at least 4 hours. (Garnish with chocolate drizzle, if desired. Melt I square semi-sweet chocolate and spoon over top of chilled pie in lacy pattern).

FLUFFY RUM PIE

2-3/4 cups cold milk 2 envelopes Dream Whip Whipped Topping Mix

2 packages (4-serving size) French vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling 2 tablespoons rum⁴

1/8 teaspoon McCormick/Schilling ground Nutmeg

1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled *Or use 1 teaspoon McCormick/Schilling imitation Rum Extract

Blend 1 cup of the milk and whipped topping mix in large mixer bowl. Beat at high speed of electric mixer about 4 minutes or until topping thickens and forms peaks. Add remaining milk, the pie filling mix, rum and nutmeg. Blend; then beat at high speed of electric mixer for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Spoon into pie shell. Chill at least 4 hours. Garnish with chopped mixed candied fruits, if desired.

Singles also need healthy meals

Cooking for one may not be as interesting and enjoyable as cooking for a family or a crowd, Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, expressed concern about the number of Americans living alone and the foods they eat. She also knows that many Americans lack nutrients in their diets — and the two groups may include many of the same people.

Kahny suggests turning to the refrigerator for some ideas and inspiration to prepare a meal that tastes great, but also provides much needed nutrients.

Start with some protein, such as leftover cooked chicken. Add a little diced celery and some diced apple, both good-for-you foods. Mix them together with a light hand and some Miracle Whip Salad Dressing. Then add something special — like toasted Baker's Angel Flake Coconut for a nutty crunch, a different flavor. Serve it all on spinach or lettuce leaves, with carrot sticks and the rest of the apple sliced.

Voila! A super supper salad, as easy as that. A complete entree in itself — but that's not all! According to Kahny, it includes protein — 60% of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance and goodly amounts of Vitamins A and C and iron — the nutrients most often deficient in American diets. This salad also includes significant amounts of riboflavin and niacin — also essential nutrients in the diet.

The difference between this planned but simple meal and hit-ormiss meal often eaten by someone living alone is substantial. It is not only a much more appetizing dinner, but more healthful as well emphasized Kahny. And it's easy. Use leftovers when available, but use them with other kinds of foods — a medley so that you get many different kinds of needed nutrients. The same chicken salad can be made with pineapple chunks instead of apple, for instance. But in any case, remember that many diffarent vegetables cereals fruits dairy products — all contribute a share of important nutrients. And don't forget that extra touch — like toasted Baker's Angel Flake coconut— that makes the whole combination even more appealing. Kahny suggests adding a roll and a glass of milk (for calcium; that's also important) to round out the meal. She adds that, when dining alone, it's fun to put it all together on a pretty tray and eat it leisurely, whenever you want — by the fireside, in a favorite chair or by the television or VCR. Dining alone can be a special treat in many ways.

Let's see...what's in your refrigerator!

CHICKEN WALDORF SALAD 2 to 4 tablespoons Miracle Whip Salad Dressing

1 teaspoon sugar ½ teaspoon lemon juice 1 apple

1/2 cup diced cooked chicken

1/2 cup diced celery 1/4 cup Baker's Angel Flake Coconut, toasted Spinach OR lettuce leaves 1 small carrot, cut in thin strips

Combine salad dressing, sugar and lemon juice. Cut half the apple into slices; set aside. Dice remaining apple. Toss diced apple, the chicken, celery and 3 tablespoons coconut with salad dressing mixture. Serve on crisp spinach leaves with carrot sticks and reserved apple slices. Makes 1-1/2 cups of 1 entree serving.

Tropical Chicken Salad:Prepare Chicken Waldorf Salad as directed, using 1 can (8¼ oz.) drained pineapple chunks in place of apple.

Pasta salads are worth raving about — simple, yet nutritious

It's no wonder pasta salads have become a regular fixture on America's tabletops. They are simple to prepare and delicious to eat — a quick fix for friends and family that is nutritiously satisfying.

Many make the mistake of associating pasta salads with tossed green salads, and dress them according with standard salad dressings. Lucinda Kahny, Homemakers Schools home economist, points out that the professionals at the Kraft Creative Kitchens suggest the use of Miracle Whip Salad Dressing mixed with a variety of favorite seasonings for perfect pasta salads. Miracle Whip Salad Dressing coats each and every piece of pasta, clinging nicely to the noodle and not the bottom of the bowl, allowing wonderful taste to shine through.

She likes to give pasta salad an Italian accent by mixing a colorful array of broccoli, cucumber, carrot slices and red pepper strips with Miracle Whip Salad Dressing, seasoned with McCormick/Schilling Italian Seasoning and Garlic Salt. Miracle Whip brings out the very best in each vegetable as well as the pasta, especially when blended with this combination of seasonings from McCormick/Schilling.

ripe olive slices, the salad will be delicious and lovely to look at right down to the last morsel left in the bowl.

Kahny recommends Bacon-Mustard Pasta Salad. Just whirl together Dijon mustard and Miracle Whip Salad Dressing then blend with cooked corkscrew noodles, ripe olives halves, green onions, tomatoes and crumbled cooked bacon. Experiment with your favorite combinations of seasonings and Miracle Whip, and keep the salad flavor on the fork and not the bottom of the bowl.
