Famed footless goose slain

HASTINGS, Neb. (AP) -- Andy, a footless goose that learned to walk with special boots, was found in a park with its head and wings pulled off.

The animal was still wearing the boots when it was discovered dead Saturday.

"Why would anyone do that to that poor little goose?" asked owner Nadine Fleming. "I feel just terrible. He was my pet and he never hurt anybody, but somebody broke into his house, kidnapped him and killed him."

Andy was born with stumps for feet and could not walk or swim like other geese. In 1988 the animal learned to walk with customized baby shoes made by Mrs. Fleming's husband, Gene, an inventor.

Thermometer rising high

BAKER, Calif. (AP) -- A 134-foot thermometer is rising in the desert heat here.

When the project is completed next month, Baker will be home to what is being touted as the world's tallest thermometer.

Its height was chosen to recognize the reading of 134 degrees recorded in Death Valley in 1913. That is believed to be the highest recorded temperature in the Western Hemisphere.

Baker, 100 miles southwest of Las Vegas on Interstate 15, is promoted as the Gateway to Death Valley.

Talk of gun control grows in wake of killings

Lawmakers don't see new laws as answer

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Gun control measures are expected to be introduced in the Texas Legislature as a result of a massacre of 22 people in Killeen last week.

However, two area state representatives agree that it's unlikely any law would have stopped George Hennard, 35, from killing 22 people, wounding 23, and then killing himself Wednesday at a Luby's cafeteria.

"I don't think there's any gun control law that would have stopped that. That was an unstable person," said Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, who suggested state lawmakers consider implementing computer background checks on gun buyers.

"You can't legislate against someone's mind popping," said Rep. David Counts, D-Knox City.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said he believes that a requirement for background checks could pass the Texas Legislature, according to reports. Gov. Ann Richards said the idea may have merit.

When Hennard purchased two pistols in Nevada that were later used in the massacre, a background check revealed a misdemeanor drug conviction. Only a felony would have disqualified him under restrictions in the county he bought the guns. Fraser, Counts, Bullock and Richards cautioned that any state law should be carefully worded so that ownership of legitimate hunting guns is not restricted. Fraser and Counts also said that gun ownership by other law-abiding citizens should not be restricted either. "All it would do is hurt the good citizens that complied with the law," Counts said of badly written laws. He pointed out that 16 gun control bills have been introduced during his five years in the House, but none made it out of committees. He said he would not have voted for any of them as they were written.

Fraser said, "I would be opposed to attempting to control guns for hunting or self protection."

Fraser and Counts said they would consider laws to further restrict automatic weapons.

"If there's a way to limit the import and manufacturing of guns like machine guns, I would be willing to look at the legislation," Fraser said.

Fraser also advocated stiffer penalties for criminals and urged voters to pass Proposition 4 on the Nov. 5 constitutional ballot, which would authorize $1.1 billion in bonds to build 25,300 prison and drug rehabilitative beds.

Concerning gun-control measures being considered by the U.S. Congress, Fraser and Counts said they would have to study the bills before deciding the merits of the legislation.

The U.S. House last week struck language out of the Senate Crime Bill that would have limited ammunition clips to seven rounds and restricted ownership of 13 semi-automatic weapons. The 9mm Glock Model 17 semi-automatic used by Hennard was not listed as one of the proposed 13 weapons to be restricted but it used 17-round clips.

Gunshot victim OK, his wife says

HERALD STAFF REPORT

A man who suffered two gunshot wounds following an argument Sunday is doing well, his wife said today.

Reports indicate that Abel Barerra, 26, was shot in the parking lot of the El San Luis bar on West Highway 80 early Sunday morning following what police have determined was a "pushing match."

Big Spring Police Lt. Pam Jordan said today that no arrests have been made, but that police are "looking at a couple" of suspects.

"He says he's feeling a little bit better," said Lydia Barerra, 30, of Lamesa, from her husband's room at Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

"We don't know who he was or why he shot (Abel)," Mrs. Barerra said, adding that Big Spring police have talked to her and her husband.

Barerra said she has been told the handgun used to shoot her husband in the chest and abdomen was a .22-caliber pistol.

"He's trying to breath deeply now. They transferred him to his room (from the Intensive Care Unit) yesterday," Mrs. Barerra said.

Barerra was admitted into Scenic Mountain Medical Center and underwent three hours of surgery following the shooting. He was transported to the hospital by private vehicle.

Big Spring police were called to stop a fight, according to a department news release. When officers arrived at the bar, they discovered Barerra had been shot.

The Barerras came to Big Spring over the weekend to help Abel's mother with an automotive problem, Mrs. Barerra said.

Home loan trends called into question

Hispanics, blacks don't fare as well

WASHINGTON (AP) -- A federal report showing that mortgage lenders rejected blacks and Hispanics far more often than whites is raising questions about the effectiveness of the nation's anti-discrimination laws.

Lenders last year turned down 33.9 percent of applications for non-government-backed mortgages from blacks, but only 14.4 percent from whites, regulators said Monday.

Rejection rates were 21.4 percent for Hispanics, 22.4 percent for American Indians and 12.9 percent for Asian-Americans.

And the disparate pattern held up even when applicants were grouped by income level. The rejection rate for high-income blacks, 21.4 percent, was only slightly less than the rate for low-income whites, 23.1 percent.

Other factors holding down lending to low-income people include a shortage of appraisers experienced in poor neighborhoods, the reluctance of government-sponsored mortgage companies to purchase loans of $50,000 or less, and lending standards imposed by title inurance companies and private mortgage insurers.

Federal Reserve Governor John LaWare, a former banker, cautioned reporters at a news conference not to conclude from Monday's figures that banks were discriminating against minorities.

The rejection rates, although correlated by income, do not take into account such other factors as applicants' credit and employment histories and current debt loads, he said.

However, Chris Lewis of the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, ACORN, said the figures were "not only an indictment of the banking system but a testament to the inadequacy of regulatory efforts to eliminate mortgage discrimination."

The study, ordered by Congress, was the broadest look yet at lending patterns in the nation, covering 6.4 million applications to 9,300 banks, savings institutions, credit unions and mortgage banking companies.

It also was the first time the government has specifically collected information on lending by race, ethnic group and gender. Until adoption in 1989 of a section in the savings and loan bailout law, the government gathered data on lending only by neighborhood.

Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy II, D-Mass., who sponsored the requirement leading to Monday's report, said it "portrays an America where credit is a privilege of race and wealth."

Big Spring's Lanny Fryar to get Washington report

By MARTHA E. FLORES Staff Writer

Lanny Fryar, a local cotton grower, will visit Washington D.C. on Oct. 27-28 to attend the Republican Senatorial Inner Circle fall briefing.

The engagement will include briefings with Ed Madigan, Secretary of Agriculture, Carla Hill, U.S. Trade Representative and Senator Phil Gramm. The group will lunch with vice-president Dan Quayle the second day.

"The Inner Circle bi-annual briefings bring active committed people who have helped elect Republican senators across the nation with contributions," said Wendy Burnley, press secretary for the Republican Senatorial Inner Circle. "It is primarily an exchange between elected officials and the Inner Circle members."

Fryar is a second generation farmer and has grown cotton in Howard and Martin county for more than 20 years.

He has a special interest in agricultural issues and keeps abreast of all legislation that may affect him and other cotton growers.

"Everyone says you should write your congressman, but not too many people do it," said Fryar. "I think it helps a lot. I correspond with KiKi Dela Garza, Phil Gramm and Charles Stenholm about issues that would effect the West Texas cotton grower."

Two issues that Fryar hopes to discuss while he is in Washington are crop insurance premiums and mandatory pesticide crop spraying.

"Insurance premiums went up this year by 20 percent, but coverage did not," he said. "Last year, my premium was $12,000 and this year it has skyrocketed to $19,000."

"Farmers are left to come up with the premium increase or not take out insurance at all. And cotton growing has to be the riskiest business to be in because of it being dependent totally on the weather. There is no guarantee to make a crop."

Lanny Fryar will make a trip to Washington next week to discuss agricultural issues.

The eradication program Fryar would like to see implemented would require that counties in Texas be sprayed for boll weevils, which are detrimental to cotton.

"I would like to discuss the boll weevil eradication program and

American hostage Turner gets freedom

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) -- American mathematics professor Jesse Turner, looking pale and wan, was turned over to the U.S. ambassador today after spending more than 4½ years as a captive of Shiite Muslim kidnappers in Lebanon.

His release, which involved some confusion, was the fruit of intense U.N. efforts that have since August led to freedom for three other Western hostages.

The swap deals have led to freedom for Arab detainees held by Israel and its allies and the release of information on the fate of Israeli soldiers missing in Lebanon.

With Turner's release, eight Western hostages remain in Lebanon.

Turner is known to have been held with another American educator, 52-year-old Alann Steen of Boston.

"I'd like to say I'm very happy to be out, finally, and I'm looking forward to seeing my family and my friends," the 44-year-old Boise, Idaho native told reporters at the Syrian Foreign Ministry at 9:20 a.m.

He had a bushy mustache, spoke in a soft voice and looked pale, unsmiling and withdrawn.

"I wish to thank everybody for all the help they gave in exerting my release and I know it will continue to get all the hostages released," said Turner, who wore glasses and a beige jacket.

He told reporters he was confident the release of further hostages would come before too long but refused to answer when asked if he had seen any other hostage while in captivity.

Turner is known to have been held with another American educator, 52-year-old Alann Steen of Boston.

Sidelines

Lewis anxious to start trial

AUSTIN (AP) — Indicted House Speaker Gib Lewis says he is anxious for a jury to hear his misdemeanor ethics case.

"We want to go to court," Lewis said. "We are trying to get in the courtroom as soon as we can."

Lewis was indicted last December on two charges: that he accepted a gift from a powerful San Antonio law firm and did not report it on his public finance disclosure statements.

The indictments are the only charges from a Travis County grand jury investigation into ties between legislators and special-interest lobbyists at the Capitol.

Lawyers attempt to halt execution

BRYAN (AP) — Lawyers are seeking to halt the scheduled Wednesday execution of a man convicted of hiring a hitman to kill his wife.

A Brazos County judge Monday refused to stay Robert Black's execution, meaning the appeal would head to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Black, 46, faces lethal injection early Wednesday for the 1985 slaying of his wife, Sandra, at their home in Bryan.

Black was convicted of hiring a hitman through Soldier of Fortune magazine. Black has indicated in recent weeks he would not pursue appeals that could spare his life.

INS criticized for gun training

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department audit faults the Immigration and Naturalization Service for not requiring its agents to be qualified on all types of firearms they use.

Almost 50 percent of the INS agents involved in shooting incidents last year were not qualified to use their weapons, according to a report by the Justice Department's Office of the Inspector General.

The audit, obtained by The Associated Press, said the INS had inadequate policies regulating firearm usage, disciplinary action and training.

Twenty-eight of the 62 agents who fired their weapons in 1990 either had not qualified to use their firearm in the quarter before or after the incident or had no record of such training, the report said.

West Texas 'U' leader official

CANYON (AP) — The new president of West Texas State University has been on the job all year, but now it's official.

Inauguration ceremonies were held Sunday for Barry Thompson, who was sworn in as the eighth president of West Texas State.

Thompson assumed the job Jan. 1, 1991, but the West Texas State community never got around to scheduling an inauguration ceremony.

Thompson, who has developed a reputation for being blunt and talking tough, down-played the attention focused on his installation to praise the achievements of the school.

Man held in Killeen copycat attempt

Killer's autopsy reveals no drugs

KILLEEN (AP) — A man who authorities said threatened to copy an attack on a restaurant that left 23 people dead remained jailed today after ramming his pickup truck into a recreation center.

Daniel Bobb was held at the Lampasas County jail in lieu of bail bond after sheriff's officers said he threatened others at the Kempner Veterans of Foreign Wars hall, then rammed it with his truck Thursday night.

Word of the threats to duplicate the attack at Luby's Cafeteria in Killeen came as an autopsy of the gunman in that shooting spree showed no signs of drugs or alcohol nor evidence of brain tumors.

Lampasas County sheriff's officers said they were called to the VFW hall in Kempner, about 20 miles west of Killeen, after reports of a disturbance and threats made to employees and patrons.

"Employees advised Lampasas deputies that the man became angry and when asked to leave, stated that he was coming back, and that the Killeen Luby's massacre would be small compared with what he was going to do," Lampasas County sheriff Gordon Morris said in a statement.

"He got into his pickup truck and attempted to run through a metal side entrance door to the club, causing extensive damage to the door, door frame and metal building supports."

Meanwhile, the body of George Hennard, 35, has been released for "direct cremation," after the deaths of 23 people in the nation's worst mass shooting, a spokeswoman for a Dallas funeral home said Monday.

On the same day, Killeen police released results of the autopsy, performed in Dallas. It showed Hennard was wounded by law officers before he shot himself in the head last week.

Meanwhile, police said that "nothing" in the investigation shows Hennard saw any movie that would have given him the idea for the shooting spree, including the film "The Fisher King."

On Saturday, The Dallas Morning News reported that police had found a ticket for the movie, which contains a restaurant massacre scene, among Hennard's possessions.

Disappearance of Midland girl a mystery

MIDLAND (AP) — Elizabeth Henry dialed 911 for emergency assistance, but by the time help arrived she was gone.

Nearly two months after Miss Henry, a popular 17-year-old student at Midland Lee High School, disappeared from her home without a trace, police have few clues.

The disappearance took a bizarre turn when Miss Henry's ex-boyfriend committed suicide two weeks after the girl was reported missing. Police say they have been unable to link the two incidents.

Flyers with Miss Henry's picture plastered in nearly every storefront in Midland serve as painful reminders of the attractive teen's mysterious departure.

"It was a tragedy. Everyone is concerned," Pam McClure, who lives across the street from the Henry's, told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. "There seems to be no resolution to it. It's very disheartening. No progress has been made. We're all hoping she comes home safe."

Police acknowledge the odds are against the teen-ager.

"As more and more time passes by, your leads dwindle down and the possibility of recovery gets Elizabeth Henry, 17, disappeared from Midland without a trace Aug. 19.

slimmer," said Midland police Lt. Earl Luckey, who is leading the investigation. "The chances of finding her alive go down as well."

Miss Henry, who served as a trainer on Midland Lee's traditionally powerful football team, dialed for emergency assistance a little after 2 p.m. on Aug. 19.

Miss Henry pleaded for help, but before she could say what was wrong, she screamed and then the phone was hung up, Luckey said.

Investigators have little to go on other than a few hair and blood samples from Miss Henry that are being analyzed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D.C.

More than 200 people, including classmates and close friends, were interviewed in the weeks after the disappearance. Miss Henry's parents asked the FBI and Texas Rangers to assist in the investigation, which included aerial searches of the county and surrounding region.

Ralph and Carolyn Henry, the girls' parents, could not be reached at their home for comment Monday.

The disappearance is being treated as an abduction. But authorities have never received a ransom note or any communication, Luckey said.

"The house was pretty pristine.

There were no outward signs of a struggle" such as overturned chairs or drag marks on the carpet, said Midland police Cpl. Jim White. "There's no one suspect; there's no lack of suspects."

A wrinkle developed in the case Aug. 31 when her ex-boyfriend, 23-year-old Sumner Pendleton, committed suicide by starting a vehicle in an enclosed garage. He died from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Luckey said Pendleton left a note, but there was no reference to Miss Henry.

Luckey said he could not comment on whether Pendleton was considered a suspect in the disappearance.

"I can't get inside his head. I don't know why he committed suicide," Luckey said. "I wouldn't get into all the connections we have between the two because that is part of the evidence we have collected."

Luckey said Pendleton was interviewed by police shortly after Miss Henry was reported missing. Luckey refused to elaborate, saying only:

"(Pendleton) was pretty torn up about the split. He seemed pretty upset."

Perot denies accusation in book by Oliver North

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five years ago, Texas industrialist H. Ross Perot assisted Oliver North in trying to free U.S. hostages in Lebanon. The one-time alliance between the two men is now a feud.

In his new book, North accuses Perot of urging that he protect President Reagan as the Iran-Contra scandal broke in 1986. Perot says North is lying.

"Under Fire: An American Story" says Perot met twice with North lawyer Brendan Sullivan in December 1986, suggesting that North make a statement clearing Reagan.

Perot acknowledges offering to assist North financially if he told the whole truth immediately but denies suggesting that North denigrate the president. Perot denies that his offer of financial help came at the request of Reagan or anyone representing the president.

"I have no idea why Lieutenant Colonel North made up this false story that appears in his book," Perot said Monday.

"I never wanted to protect anybody," he added.

Perot said North and other Reagan administration participants in Iran-Contra "stonewalled, instead of telling the truth."

He said North is "now willing to sell the 'truth' in book form for his own personal gain."

The Iran-Contra scandal erupted on Nov. 25, 1986, with the disclosure that money from the administration's secret arms sales to Iran had been diverted to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Spouse of ex-San Antonio mayor files for divorce

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Former San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, once considered a rising star in national politics, has been sued for divorce by his wife of 22 years who alleges he has committed adultery.

Mary Alice Cisneros, 41, filed the divorce petition Friday.

Mrs. Cisneros asked for custody of the couple's three children, according to divorce documents. She also is requesting child support.

The couple has two daughters, Teresa, 20, and Mercedes, 16, and a son, John Paul, 4, who was born with a heart defect and requires constant medical attention.

"The marriage has become insupportable because of discord or conflict of personalities," according to the petition filed in the 244th state District Court in San Antonio.

Mrs. Cisneros, 41, spoke in veiled terms Monday of her decision to seek a divorce, but implied that the split was prompted by her husband's continued link to Linda Medlar, a political aide, with whom Cisneros acknowledged having an affair.

"I love Henry very much, and we have been through an enormous amount," Mrs. Cisneros told the San Antonio Light. "It is my intent to no longer live under a circumstance that involves adultery."

Cisneros, 44, in a statement issued Monday, termed the divorce filing regrettable, saying "it is not what I want, and it would not have been my choice."

The former mayor also protested the petition's language, which he called "unnecessarily harsh and adversarial."

Ed Johnson, managing partner of the law firm filing the suit on Mrs. Cisneros' behalf, said he prefers to let the petition speak for itself. He declined further comment.

Cisneros, a popular Hispanic leader once considered a potential Democratic vice presidential candidate, left politics in 1989.

Case redirects civil rights debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A week after the bitter fight over Clarence Thomas' confirmation, the Senate is taking up the much-delayed civil rights bill with provisions expanding the rights of sexual harassment victims to sue for damages.

No one is sure how the divisive struggle over Thomas' Supreme Court nomination, and its heated allegations of sexual harassment, will affect the outcome. The Senate planned to begin debate on the bill late today and vote later in the week.

But women's groups, liberals and civil rights advocates plan to pressure Senate Democrats and Republicans who voiced commitment to tough enforcement of sexual harassment laws during the Thomas debate.

They will do so with a bipartisan amendment on the Senate floor that would erase limits on the amount of damages that women can collect in cases of sexual harassment or other forms of job discrimination. Under current laws, victims of racial discrimination are not limited in the damages they can receive, but women are limited to back pay only.

All three versions of the rights bill — a House-passed version, a Senate version sponsored by a small group of Republicans and President Bush's version — would permit women to collect damages but would limit them in varying ways. Damage awards in race discrimination cases would continue to be unlimited.

Washington to vote on euthanasia

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Washington voters are leaning toward making their state the first to allow doctor-assisted suicide and euthanasia of terminally ill patients who want to end their suffering.

More than 223,000 signed a petition to put Initiative 119, the so-called Death with Dignity measure, on the Nov. 5 ballot. If passed, it would become law immediately.

The vote will be the nation's first on euthanasia. Backers hope to put similar proposals on ballots next year in Oregon, California, Florida and Washington, D.C.

"It is the most important bioethical event I've seen in America," said Dr. Arthur Caplan, director of the University of Minnesota's Center for Biomedical Ethics. "It's not artificial hearts, it's not grandmothers who give birth to their grandchildren. It is a break from a 2,000-year-old tradition that says doctors cannot harm."

The measure would legalize active euthanasia, such as a lethal injection, and assisted suicide, such as prescribing sleeping pills and giving instruction on how many to take.

Estimate of burned homes at 1,800

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The city raised to at least 1,800 its estimate of the number of houses destroyed by a brush fire that left at least 14 people dead and reduced neighborhoods in Oakland and Berkeley to smoking ruins.

The Red Cross said Monday night that it surveyed 55 percent of the burned area on foot and counted 1,800 houses and 442 apartment units destroyed.

Deborah Reisman, spokeswoman for the Oakland Office of Emergency Services, said the city had adopted that block-by-block count as its own. Earlier Monday the agency had said more than 400 houses were destroyed in the two communities.

The 1,800-acre fire was one of the worst in U.S. history, rivaling the Great Chicago Fire of 1871. The city put damage at $1.5 billion before its estimate of houses destroyed was raised. It had no new estimate of the cost. The blaze, which fed on brush parched by fire years of drought, was ignited by wind-tossed embers from a smaller fire Saturday, said fire Capt. Charlie Fasso.

Intact missile in hands of Iraqis

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the key weapons used by the United States in the Persian Gulf War — a Tomahawk cruise missile — is in the hands of the Iraqis, a Pentagon source says.

The Iraqis appear to have obtained an intact missile that survived being fired at a target but failed to detonate. "They must have dug it up, or found it somewhere in the desert," said the official, who spoke Monday on condition of anonymity.

In the opening weeks of the war against Iraq, 280 of the highly accurate missiles rained destruction on Baghdad and other key strategic targets.

Although the long-range missile is crammed with high-tech guidance systems that send it on a certain path in order to hit a specific target, the official said the missile found by the Iraqis is no longer operable.

"It's kaput," he said. "They can't shoot it either."

The source declined to describe how the United States knew of the Iraqi find, saying that information was too sensitive to discuss.

The official brushed off concern that the missile might be an intelligence coup for the Iraqis.

Having a ball

WEST BRANCH, Iowa — Vice President Dan Quayle looks over a "Hoover Ball" presented to him at the Herbert Hoover National Historic Site, Monday afternoon, while his wife Marilyn looks on. The ball is used in a game invented by former President Hoover while he was in the White House.

Abortion restrictions upheld in federal court

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal appeals court upheld most of Pennsylvania's strict abortion law, moving it closer to a test in the U.S. Supreme Court that could be the undoing of Roe vs. Wade.

In its ruling Monday, a three-judge panel of the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals largely reversed a lower court decision and held that the 1989 restrictions do not "unduly burden" women who want to terminate a pregnancy.

"It makes perfectly clear the courts are no longer going to protect a woman's right to access abortion," lamented state Sen. Allyson Y. Schwartz, a Democrat from Philadelphia.

Mary Believeau of the Pennsylvania Pro-Life Federation said, "It's a great day for parents and women."

The provisions upheld establish a 24-hour waiting period for women after they ask for an abortion; require doctors to advise women of the dangers of abortion and the alternatives; and require minors to get parental consent.

However, the appeals court agreed with the lower court that a requirement that a woman notify her husband before getting an abortion is unconstitutional.

Pennsylvania's abortion restrictions were considered the nation's toughest when they were passed. Utah, Louisiana and Guam have since passed stricter laws, allowing abortions only in rare circumstances. But those laws are under challenge as well and aren't being enforced in the meantime.

Although the Pennsylvania law is not considered a frontal assault on Roe vs. Wade, the 1973 Supreme Court ruling guaranteeing a woman's right to an abortion, atorneys said it could prove to be the vehicle for its undoing.

ACLU attorney Kathryn Kolbert said Planned Parenthood of Pennsylvania and the women's clinics that had also challenged the law probably will seek re-argument before all 10 circuit judges before appealing to the nation's highest court.

Thomas E. Zemaitis, an attorney for the women's clinics, said the ruling would allow states to "impose all kinds of harassing impediments to women seeking abortions that they couldn't do under Roe versus Wade."

The ruling also shifts the burden of proof from the state to the woman seeking an abortion.

Under Roe, the state had to show there was a "compelling state interest" for regulating abortion, Zemaitis said. The appeals court decision requires the woman to prove that the regulations are an "undue burden," he said.

Previously, U.S. District Judge Daniel H. Huyett had found parts of Pennsylvania's law unconstitutional and blocked them from taking effect.

Writing for the appeals court majority, however, Judge Walter Stapleton cited a U.S. Supreme Court opinion by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

"She has consistently stated that she would subject an abortion regulation to strict scrutiny review only if the regulation 'unduly burdens' a woman's freedom to decide whether to terminate her pregnancy," Stapleton wrote.

Stapleton insisted the ruling didn't reverse Roe vs. Wade. "This case involves the regulation of abortions rather than their outright prohibition," he wrote.

PLO planning active role in talks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — In moves bound to raise Israeli ire, Yasser Arafat has pledged an active PLO role at next week's Mideast peace talks and the top Palestinian negotiator said his team won't hesitate to openly back the PLO.

Their comments Monday — which threaten Israel's demand for PLO exclusion from the talks — underscore the difficulty of making any sort of progress at a gathering that took months even to schedule.

Israel considers the Palestine Liberation Organization a terror group and has said it will not attend the Oct. 30 meeting in Madrid unless it is excluded. The PLO, however, says it is the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people.

The makeup of the Palestinian delegation, which is to attend the meeting in a joint delegation with Jordan, is among the touchiest issues.

A top Israeli official reiterated Monday that Israel will walk out if its conditions for Palestinian representation aren't met.

"We will not sit across from people who are members of the PLO, who have said that the PLO appointed them and who are connected in any connected to the PLO," Yossi Ahimeir, aide to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, said Monday.

Yet Arafat, who has been making a swing through the Middle East to try and coordinate Arab approaches to the talks, said any Palestinian delegation would in effect represent the PLO.

Dutch debate legalizing euthanasia

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — The Dutch government is preparing to debate whether to take euthanasia out of the shadows and put it into the law books.

Euthanasia is illegal in the Netherlands, but the government and courts have done little to stop the practice. The Roman Catholic and other conservative church groups are among the leading opponents.

Doctors who have been prosecuted in recent years have received at most suspended sentences. But they are among those now pressing for full legalization, and the government has promised to consider the issue later this month.

A recent government-commissioned report found that Dutch physicians assist in about 2,300 cases of euthanasia each year in this nation of 15 million.

Euthanasia is generally tolerated in The Netherlands as long as guidelines set by the Royal Dutch Medical Association are met.

The guidelines do not require a patient to be terminally ill, but he or she must be enduring unacceptable pain with no hope of relief.

Quake victims trying to recover

UTTARKASHI, India (AP) — Nails torn and fingers bleeding, Jagat Singh clawed through the debris of his stone and mud house for two hours to rescue his family. He was lucky — all 10 survived the earthquake.

"Outside, the entire village was wailing, but what could I do? All of us were in the same boat," the 32-year-old farmer said Monday, tears streaming down his ruddy unshaven face.

In his village of Ganeshpur outside of Uttarkashi in the foothills of the Himalayas, 50 houses were destroyed in Sunday's mighty temblor.

At least 665 people died in the quake, including 602 in the Uttarkashi district bordering Tibet, said Hardev Singh, a spokesman for the relief operation headquarters in Dehra Dun, 30 miles southwest of Uttarkashi.

More than 1,700 people were injured and more than 10,000 houses flattened by the quake, Singh said.

Prabhawati Gaur, a Red Cross worker in Uttarkashi, said she had counted 670 names on death lists.

Future of Marcos' shoes in doubt

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — If Imelda Marcos fulfills her pledge and returns next month, what will become of the fabulous collection of shoes and other personal items on exhibit at the Malacanang presidential palace?

President Corazon Aquino's government has been playing footsy with the answer.

"If they can prove the shoes belong to her, they will be given to her," said assistant presidential spokesman Horacio Paredes.

But Mariel Tolentino, executive director of the Malacanang Museum where the shoes are on display, said she is not sure.

"It's really not up to us," she said. "We will just have to refer this to the proper authorities. Even as executive director of the museum, I have no power to decide."

Mrs. Marcos left behind most of her personal belongings, including the famous 1,700 pairs of shoes, dresses and a bullet-proof bra, when she fled the country during the 1986 "people power revolution" that toppled her late husband, former President Ferdinand Marcos.

Since then, the items have been on public display at Malacanang.

Report: Iraqi children's health at risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tens of thousands of Iraqi children are at risk from malnutrition, contaminated drinking water and shortages of medical supplies following the Persian Gulf War, says a private report being released today.

The report by an 87-member team of experts who canvassed Iraq in August and September also found that infant and child mortality nearly quadrupled since the war's end and that more than 900,000 children under 5 years of age were malnourished.

Psychologists found "unprecedented" levels of anxiety, stress and abnormal behavior in a survey of children of primary school age. "Nearly two-thirds of children interviewed believe that they will not survive to become adults," the report said.

The rate of low birth weight in Iraq also has doubled or tripled, according to the report, a draft of which was obtained Monday by The Associated Press. The study, financed by the United Nations Children's Fund and several private foundations, was being released today in London.

Pointing to the report's conclusions, several members of Congress charged that the Bush administration and the United Nations seem unwilling to admit the gravity and urgency of the problem, choosing instead to merely blame Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

At a hearing Monday, Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., told the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Thomas Pickering, "You really have not come to grips with the humanitarian problem in Iraq."

"My impression is that very little is being done inside Iraq to alleviate the suffering," added Hamilton, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on the Middle East.

The United Nations in August adopted a resolution that would amend an economic embargo to allow sale of up to $1.6 billion worth of Iraqi oil, with part of the proceeds to be used to buy food and other humanitarian supplies. But Iraq has not accepted the terms of the relief program.

Pickering said he did not quarrel with the findings of the report by the International Commission on the Gulf Crisis, but he said more study is needed.

"I'm not comfortable with leaving it at that," Hamilton said later. "We kind of have a standoff" in which both sides are using the suffering to build pressure — on Iraq to comply with sanctions, and on the United Nations to relent and waive parts of its embargo.

"How long do you wait, and how long do you let these people suffer?" Hamilton said. "I just don't get the sense from Ambassador Pickering... that he's aware of what's going on here."

Reps. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, and Tim Penny, D-Minn., underscored Hamilton's concerns and called for more urgency on the part of the United States and international relief agencies.

Some 29 percent of children under 5, or more than 900,000 overall, were found to be malnourished by international standards.

Proposition 11

Texans should vote down state-run lottery Nov. 5

Lotteries are incredibly seductive. They seem to offer the best of everything: fun and profit for the players and a huge income for cash-strapped state government. But don't be fooled; the state-run lottery voters will be asked to approve through Proposition 11 would be bad for Texas and for Texans. Voters should not hesitate to defeat the measure.

State officials say the lottery would generate a billion dollars in profit each two years, once it is running full steam. That makes it easy to see the lottery as a panacea for the state government, but the reality is that a lottery is just a quick and easy way to soak residents for a few more bucks. Lawmakers — who regularly defeated lottery legislation for years before this summer's special session — would be better off either to enact more taxes or to cut services. And Texans should face up to the fact that the state simply cannot provide unlimited services unless state residents are willing to pay for them.

Taxes, unpleasant as they might be, force officials and residents to closely scrutinize expenditures. Big bucks from a lottery would ease the state's financial problems for a time, but would do nothing to really correct the situation. Rarely does throwing money at a problem present a true solution. At the very least, lawmakers ought to require that lottery funds be used for specific purposes, rather than to bail out the general fund.

But beyond the question of responsible budgeting, there lies another lottery problem. Simply put, gambling is a vice that often costs people money they can't afford and occasionally proves so addictive that it ruins lives. It is simply wrong for the state of Texas to encourage people to gamble away their money, just as it would be wrong for the state to sell cocaine or marijuana. Gambling is wasteful, and it is wrong.

Yes, a state-run lottery seems to be an answer; but in reality it is simply another problem. Texas should not have a state-run lottery. We urge lottery opponents to work hard in coming weeks to spread the word about the idea's drawbacks, and we urge Texans to vote against Proposition 11 on Nov. 5.

Opportunities for fun in Big Spring

To the editor:
Hats off to the Big Spring Herald advertising staff and the ten merchants who sponsored "Today's Lifestyles Homemakers School," and congratulations to all the people in Big Spring who attended. And thanks to the Senior 4H Ambassador Club and Gail Earls.

How wonderful to go early and find seats only in the back of our beautiful Municipal Auditorium. It was fun for all, as dozens of door prizes were won and instructions were continuous on how to make holiday goodies.

Your advertisement said to come join the fun. They came and they had fun!

We are starting a very busy season where many things are offered for Big Spring residents to enjoy. Come and have fun and enjoy Big Spring!

Possible ways to increase state revenues

To the editor:
Frequently it is brought to my attention that there is supposed to be a separation between Church and State. If this be true, then why are the church leaders speaking out on State affairs?

Your voice in government is the vote you have a right to cast. Those entities that pay no property tax should have no voice in raising revenues for the state. If these entities (the church) persist in making their voice heard, then they should lose their tax free status. After all, these entities do receive fire and police protection plus they enjoy the freedom of speech that may be denied elsewhere.

Listed here are three possible ways to increase revenues for the state of Texas.

1. A state income tax which would be paid to the state treasurer. Minimum wage recipients would pay no tax.

2. A state operated lottery whose monies would go to the state treasurer.

3. Property tax assessed against all the churches and their various holdings and paid directly to the state treasurer. This would generate more revenue yearly than any lottery ever could.

Take your pick. I'm voting for the lottery.

Second largest industry

Elliott Abrams, the former assistant secretary of state, who fought the battle for the super-hard liners in the Reagan Administration, has just plea-bargained with the Justice Department. He admitted that he gave perjured testimony to Congress. This came as no surprise to Washington insiders as plea bargaining is now the second largest industry in the nation's capital.

Any Monday you can walk by the Justice Department on Pennsylvania Avenue and see hundreds of lawyers and clients waiting to make a deal with the government.

The other day I saw a large crowd in front of Justice trying to break down the doors.

"What's up?" I asked a man with a briefcase.

"It's plea-bargaining day at the Justice Department. Everyone is here to make a deal."

"The crowd seems unruly," I remarked.

"They're afraid that if they don't get in first, someone else will be chosen as a government witness."

"How does the Justice Department decide who it will and will not bargain with?"

"The rule is that the first one who offers to turn on the others gets consideration."

"Take the recent Fatfingers scandal when Fatfingers tried to sell nuclear submarines to Iran in exchange for Halcion tablets. I represent Dennis Mokie, one of the people who lied to Congress about it. When the bubble burst, Mokie came to me and offered me a third of all the money he had made if I could get him two months of community service. I asked him if he was willing to turn informer on his friends, and he said that he would consider it a great honor."

"I took the case and the money. You never can tell when white-collar criminals are going to cheat their lawyers. Now it's just a question of getting inside and seeing if the government will deal."

"Does plea bargaining pay better than a full trial?"

"It certainly does. When a white-collar criminal is caught he's terribly fearful of going to jail. Suddenly money doesn't seem as important as the thought of making license plates at the Atlanta Federal Prison. If you can make a decent plea bargain for him, he's eternally grateful. Dennis would give me the house, the swimming pool and the Porsche if I asked him to."

"I guess the plea negotiations depend on the prosecutors."

"It helps if you know Justice lawyers by their first names. I reduced one client down from a felony to a misdemeanor because the prosecutor's kids went to the same school as mine. But today I'm in line with everybody else."

"Presumably this time your client will be humble under oath as opposed to the way he sneered at Congress."

"You better believe it. We're going to say that Dennis never intended to lie. It was just a joke he was playing on Ollie North."

"Then your man is going to reveal names?"

"That's the idea, but this is taking longer than I thought. There are so many others waiting to plea bargain that they now give you a number like they do in the delicatessen. Dennis and I have been here since 7 o'clock this morning. It makes you mad to see the justice system move so slowly. I have a good mind to forget the plea bargain, and let the government throw the book at Mokie."

"I don't blame you. It would certainly teach the Justice Department a lesson."

Overhauling education system

By BEN HUTSON, PH.D.

I barely remember my first grade teacher. Oh, I can tell you her name but not much else. I do remember that she was huge. When you're barely six years old, everybody is huge. My clearest memory is seeing this screaming, instructional leviathan thundering down the aisle, like an avenging angel, a ruler in her upraised hand, hell bent on smacking some errant six year old on the palm of the hand for some first grade felony.

On the other hand, I can tell you quite a lot about Miss Loyd. She taught second grade. She was very tall. (Tall in the second grade is like huge in the first. Everybody is very tall.) Not only was she tall, she was also blond, she had blue eyes and she was beautiful. She was nice to me. Have you ever noticed how attractive the people are who are nice to you? All during first grade I dreamed of the day I'd be in Miss Loyd's room (when and if I got out of the first grade alive with some of the skin left on the palms of my hands.) I could hardly wait. Miss Loyd had that kind of reputation with kids. Everybody wanted to be in her room.

I got out of the first grade in one piece, but I didn't get to be in Miss Loyd's room. I have always regretted that. I can't recall the teacher's name who taught the second grade class I was in. But I remember Miss Loyd clearly.

It doesn't matter that in time I would come to realize that she wasn't really that tall, that blond or that beautiful or that just possibly her eyes were brown. I still loved her.

My high school yearbooks are all gone now, but I still remember Miss Jenny Reid. She taught High School English. She was nice to me. She always had time to speak to me, to smile and to let me know that she was interested in me as a person. She was that way with everyone. I would have killed for her. So would everybody else who knew her.

Coach taught history. Things weren't all that different then than now. Mostly, it was, "... read the chapter and answer the questions at the end," but he was great. It didn't matter that he sometimes misspelled the Xs and Os as he diagrammed spectacular football plays on the board or that the plays didn't always produce spectacular results on the field. He liked us and we liked him. We won district that year and he got a better offer. I can't remember the name of his replacement. I do remember that he didn't like kids.

Is this an exercise in nostalgia? Nope. This is about teachers and kids. Is part of being a good teacher a popularity contest? Not for a minute. These teachers I remember so vividly were popular because they genuinely cared about children.

Unfortunately, some children come from family and economic circumstances so desperate that simple survival takes priority over school issues. However, the large majority of children are able and willing to make an honest effort in their school work. At least in their early years in school. And, if they have someone like Miss Loyd for their teacher, they try harder because they want desperately to please her.

Kids don't try to make an "A" because the shape of the letter is pleasing to the eye. They don't give a flip about TEA, the TAAS test, or the Texas Legislature. To them Ann Richards and George Bush are just names and the Secretary of Education is down by the principal's office. Kids aren't much concerned with bond issues or the condition of buildings. In the elementary grades, I doubt if most of them could tell you whether the room is cooled by a swamp cooler or refrigerated air or if they even care. If they like school, if they try to do their assigned tasks, they do it for somebody who is important to them: Mom or Dad but most likely their teacher. Someone who thinks they are important!

The opposite is equally true. Any child who is made to feel unimportant will come to believe he or she is of less worth than others. Worth less. Worthless. They will become resentful of any system that rejects them whether it is the family system, the school system or the community system.

A person rejected by a system will reject that system in return. And you know as well as I do that personal rejection is the creator of rebellion.

What about the student with less than average ability who does his best but never makes an "A"? And what about the gifted student who loafs through school and gets an "A" in everything? Is that a fair system or does it cause feelings of rejection in the poor student and reward substandard performance for the gifted one? Does a grading system like this breed resentment, dropouts, rebellion? You tell me.

It has often been said that there are lies, damned lies and statistics. Yet statistics provide some very important and useful information about us as human beings. For instance, there is enough accumulated data to reliably predict that out of any group of one hundred randomly selected first graders fifty of them will have IQs that range from the average IQ of 100 points upward through the superior range. Unfortunately, the other fifty will have IQs that range downward from 100 points through the retarded range. Statistics can even accurately predict the percentage of students that will be in each level of ability from retardation through giftedness. These are facts.

Then, how can a grading system be fair if it measures all students, from the least able to the most gifted, as if they all have average ability? It can't. We need a system that measures each student against himself or herself. Expecting the same performance from a student with an IQ of 80 as that of a student with an IQ of 120 is the height of educational stupidity. That also is a fact.

What is the point of all of this? Simply this. If we are going to overhaul the educational system in this country or this town let's develop a system that allows for individual difference in students. A system that meets their human needs as well as their educational needs. And, let's get Miss Loyd, or someone like her, to be the teacher.

Editor's note: Dr. Hutson has a Ph.D. and a Master's degree in special education. He is part of the Special Education Department of the Big Spring Independent School District.

Precautions for safe Halloween

Dear Abby

DEAR READERS: It's autumn again — and Halloween will soon be here. That means it's time to remind readers with small children that:

— Somebody's child will be seriously injured or killed in a Halloween-related traffic accident.

— Somebody's child will be badly maimed or fatally burned due to a flammable costume.

— Somebody's child will be coaxed into an automobile or lured into a secluded area and sexually assaulted.

To make sure that that child isn't yours, I offer these tips to preserve the safety of your children:

— Use flameproof costumes only. If costumes are made at home, treat the fabric with a flame-resistant solution.

— Because masks, floppy hats, wigs and veils often interfere with a child's vision, use makeup instead.

— Accessories such as swords, broomsticks, hatchets, wands, etc., should be made of cardboard rather than plastic, metal or wood. Sharp items are dangerous!

— Provide youngsters with flashlights to prevent falls on sidewalks or porch steps. (Positively no lighted candles should be carried!)

— Decorate your child's costume and trick-or-treat bag with reflective tape to make them highly visible to motorists.

— Remind children that they should never enter the home of a stranger or accept rides.

— Adults can help by keeping their yards well-lighted.

— Parents should check all "treats" before allowing children to eat them.

— Very young children should never be out after dark unless accompanied by an adult.

So, let's make it a safe Halloween for all children, and come Thanksgiving, we'll have more to be thankful for.

DEAR ABBY: Like many others, I can't say I've read your column for years because I'm only 11 years old. But I have read it a great many times.

I have a very bad habit. I suck my thumb and bite my nails. In fact, I've bitten one of my nails so low it started to bleed without my knowing it. It doesn't even hurt. I started sucking my thumb when I was about 3 years old; then I started biting my nails when I was about 6.

Whenever I catch myself, I take my hands away, or try to "hurt" my hand. Usually my family catches me when I'm not aware of what I'm doing. Abby, please help me, and sign this ...

THUMB IN MOUTH AND NO NAILS

DEAR THUMB: Try this. Put a rubber band on your wrist, and when you get the urge to suck your thumb or bite your nails, snap the rubber band hard enough to remind you to resist those old habits.

DEAR ABBY: I'm only 13, but I really need your help. Recently, the mother of one of my friends was strangled in her home. She is a classmate of mine and I'll have to talk to her because the thought of ignoring it sounds unbelievably rude. The problem is, I have no idea what to say!

I don't want to hurt her. What should I say? Or would it be better to say nothing at all? — LOST FOR WORDS IN TENNESSEE

DEAR LOST: Say, "I'm sorry about your mom ..."

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

A control room operator, right, at Power Resources Inc., monitors the daily operations in the Distributor Control System room. This room houses the main control room for the plant which watches all plant pressures, temperatures and tank levels. The operator has the ability to start and stop all motors, open and close all valves and trip the steam and gas turbines. The operator interprets alarms throughout the plant and takes corrective action.

Above, Jimmy Johnson, Jr., relief supervisor at Power Resources, overlooks the pressure, temperature and tank levels on the monitors in the Distributor Control System.

Power Resources; the generation of energy

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

With the vast amounts of energy used by households and businesses in the United States daily, efficient energy sources are always in demand.

Nuclear, solar, lignite, gas, wind and oil are some of the available energy sources.

Power Resources, Inc., located east of the city, produces electrical and thermal energy in the form of steam.

The technology used to produce this energy is known as combined cycle power generation.

"Combined cycle is a very efficient method of producing electrical power," said Ken Hamby, plant manager.

The process begins with the burning of natural gas in a gas turbine, which turns a generator to produce electrical energy.

"The turbine is the industrial form of a jet engine," he said. "It is about three times the size of a DC-10 engine."

The exhaust gas is taken out of the engine and then goes to a heat recovery steam generator. The gas exits at about 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

"This takes the energy out of the exhaust gas and produces steam," said Hamby. "The steam is then used to operate a steam turbine generator that produces more energy. "When you make this amount of steam, a lot of water is needed. We have a large facility on the premises that purifies the water we use."

Ken Hamby — Plant manager

Power Resources uses four purifying systems: clarification, filtration, reverse osmosis and demineralization.

"The purification process is continuous at the plant," said operations supervisor Al Atkins. "Lime and soda ash softening is used to clarify suspended solids. Filtration is used to reduce solids and kill organics. Reverse osmosis eliminates 98 percent of the calcium, magnesium, nitrates, sulfates, chlorides and other dissolved solids in the water. The demineralization performs an ion exchange on the small amounts of minerals left in the water."

The process utilizes about 800 gallons of water a minute.

The plant location in Big Spring was chosen because of the need for power in this part of the state, said Hamby.

"All the electrical power that Power Resources generates is sold to the local utility company and all the thermal energy is sold to the local refinery," said Hamby.

The energy bought from Power Resources is one of many sources Texas Utilities uses to pump in energy to their transmission grid system, which is a pipeline that travels throughout the state, said John Tune, manager of TU Electric.

Power Resources puts in about one million dollars annually into the city's economy and employs 39 Big Spring residents at the plant.

The plant can produce enough energy to accommodate 140,000 homes with average monthly usage. It produces 200 megawatts of energy an hour.

"One megawatt is equaled to 1000 kilowatts," said Jimmy Johnson, Jr., relief supervisor. "One thousand kilowatts is the average monthly usage for a household of four."

The utility company is responsible for the distribution of the energy sold to them by Power Resources.

Jeff Morris, manager of Fina Refinery, said Fina buys about 100,000 pounds of steam an hour from Power Resources and uses it as a heat source.

The technology used at Power Resources has been in use for more than 10 years, but it was not until the 1980s that the process became common in Texas, said Hamby.

The plant began its operations in 1987 and covers about seven acres of land north of the Fina Refinery.

Power Technology is a wholly owned subsidiary of Falco Seaboard Oil Company based in Houston.

Hostage-like bonding seen in abusive relationships

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Women in abusive relationships can bind emotionally to the abuser as a survival tool, just as hostages bind to captors in the so-called Stockholm syndrome, psychologists said Saturday.

The bonding "improves one's chances of surviving.... It's simply smart to do" if one cannot escape, said Dee Graham, psychology professor at the University of Cincinnati.

A woman in such a relationship fears that an escape attempt will invite retaliation and possible death, Graham said. The Stockholm syndrome provides further explanation of why women have trouble leaving an abusive relationship, said Edna Rawlings, who works at a student counseling center at the university.

They spoke at a press conference before giving a presentation at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association.

The Stockholm syndrome is named for a phenomenon noted among some hostages in Sweden, who came to see their captors as their protectors and later even visited them in jail, Graham said. Four conditions lead to its development, she said: a person threatens another's survival, that person shows some small kindness, the victim is unable to escape, and the victim is isolated from outsiders.

Even the temporary cessation of abuse can be taken as the kindness, Graham said. The victim can seize upon the small kindness as "the first sign she may be able to survive this," Graham said.

The isolation can be either physical or ideological, as when a woman has contact only with people who defend the abuser or tell her such things as, "You made your bed, now lie in it," Graham said.

To win the abuser over, she tries to look at the world from his perspective and comes to agree with him that she is not being abused, or that she deserves it, Graham said.

Rawlings said the syndrome helps explain why many young women in abusive relationships can deny or minimize the violence. If a therapist pushes a woman to leave an abusive relationship before she is ready, the woman is likely to leave the therapist instead, Rawlings said.

Graham said evidence for the syndrome appeared in a study of more than 400 battered women and, to a lesser extent, another study of 764 women in dating relationships.

Lenore Walker, executive director of the Domestic Violence Institute in Denver, said the Stockholm syndrome idea is valuable in many cases for understanding how abuse happens.

Innovative toy ready for Christmas

TAMPA — Tampa-based Levatron Industries, Inc. recently announced it has established a retail sales and marketing network and is taking orders for its innovative toy flying saucer.

Company Chairman Zenn Taylor said the Levitator, priced at $3.95, is a dramatic addition to this year's new crop of Christmas toys. In addition, according to Taylor, its debut represents "the long-awaited culmination of three years of intensive research, market analysis and product development."

Crafted from a patented microfoil design and fueled with helium, The Levitator floats, spins, hovers and hangs in space unaided by batteries, a motor or string. Taylor said it fulfills the need in all children for an educational playtoy; specifically, one that fascinates, teaches and entertains. "In addition, it's affordably priced, safe and suitable for play in virtually any indoor environment," he conceded.

During a mid-summer test conducted in west central Florida, The Levitator attracted rave reviews from children, retailers and countless news media. Taylor said inquiries about the flying saucer have come from as far away as Mexico and the United Kingdom. Interest has been so significant, Levatron Industries last month elected to accelerate production of its new toy.

Don Barton, president of Levatron Industries, said production of The Levitator is presently in full force. "We're now fully staffed and able to accept orders from our corporate headquarters in west central Florida."

Barton said Levatron initially will not require minimum purchases. However, a $1.50 shipping and handling charge will be added to the manufacturers suggested retail price of $3.95. The terms for all domestic (U.S.) orders require a check or money order simultaneously with the purchase. Expected delivery time is four to six weeks, said Barton. Levatron will accept phone inquiries Monday-Friday 9 a.m.-5 p.m. EST, via their toll-free number- 800-245-5813.

For the Record

The Mary Viasana listed in Sunday's court report was not Mary Lou Viasana of Big Spring.

Total taxes due on property within city limits this year to the city, county and schools — not including homestead and other exemptions — increased about 1 percent over last year, to $8.6 million; not 33 percent, to $989,767, as reported Monday in the Herald. The combined tax rate for property in the city is the highest rate — and increase — in 10 years.

Board of trustees swears in Carlos Gonzales

By GARY SHANKS
 Staff Writer

The Howard College Board of Trustees has sworn in a new member, Carlos (Charlie) Gonzales, to serve as District 1 representative.

Gonzales was born and raised in Big Spring and was a member of the last high school graduating class from what is now Runnels Junior High School.

After serving in the U.S. armed forces, Gonzales worked at the Veterans Administration Medical Center before retiring a few years ago, he said.

He is replacing David Gomez, who resigned from the board in September.

In his first vote, Gonzales joined the other board members in granting a request for tax abatement for the Big Spring Fina Refinery.

Plant manager Jeff Morris presented the request to abate 75 percent of the taxes on a new sour-water stripper/sulfur plant at the refinery.

The Big Spring plant can process sour crude, which is an advantage in the refining marketplace, said Morris.

With these modifications, the refinery can process more sour crude and still remain within the guidelines set by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The plant also will improve the environment as it will eliminate the white-smoke plume that puts 6 tons of sulfur in the air every day, Morris said. The plant also will help treat the wastewater produced by the refinery, he said.

"This is the first grass roots (from the ground up) construction at this refinery since 1969," he said.

The construction employs 63 people from Big Spring alone, Morris said. Answering allegations that Fina is not buying local when possible, he said, "I did an analysis this week, and I can show that we've already spent $600,000 in Howard County, which is more than the amount we initially thought."

In other business, the board:

• Decided to table the 1991-92 District Master Plan pending review by the board members.

• Approved a proposal for a self-funded workman's compensation plan.

• Approved the final payment of $15,000 for real estate adjacent to the Howard College property.

• Approved bids for replacement equipment for the Harold Davis Fitness Center.

• Approved the low bid from Webco Printing Inc. of Big Spring for athletic brochures.

• Approved the purchase of a new tractor for use at the rodeo arena.

• Accepted the resignation of David Wallace, the guidance counselor for the disadvantaged. The position will be advertised to attract a replacement, said President Bob Riley.

In the president's report, Riley said the college will soon be receiving and cooperating in a Business Development Center, which will be sponsored by the Moore Development for Big Spring Inc.

Democrats working on new unemployment bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats are making a new effort to find a bill expanding benefits for the long-term unemployed that they can enact with President Bush's signature — or over his objections.

Just a week after the Senate narrowly sustained Bush's veto of a $6.4 billion benefit package, Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., planned to ask his House Ways and Means Committee today to approve a $5.4 billion version of the measure.

Rostenkowski, saying he was acting "in the spirit of compromise," has changed the bill in an effort to answer criticism from Bush and congressional Republicans that it was a budget-buster. But the final product is likely to differ little from the earlier version.

As a result, Rostenkowski's effort seemed to indicate that Democrats believe they can still benefit politically by pressing the unemployment issue. Bush has killed two versions of the bill, and Democrats believe their 1992 election prospects are strengthened by forcing him to demonstrate what they say is indifference toward the recession's victims.

The new bill would provide up to 13 extra weeks of benefits for people who have used up the standard 26 weeks of coverage — seven weeks fewer than the earlier bill. States would qualify for seven or 13 weeks of extra coverage, depending on the local unemployment rate.

But bipartisan opposition is strong to another change Rostenkowski made — adding several minor tax increases so the new measure would pay for itself.

"In the face of a growing recession, this isn't the time to levy additional taxes on small- and medium-sized businesses," said Rep. Michael Andrews, D-Texas, a Ways and Means member who said he would oppose the tax provision.

Democrats and Republicans said they believed tax increases of any sort were so unpopular among lawmakers that the committee seemed likely to strip them from the bill. If that occurs, the legislation would look very much like the earlier measure, which relied on deficit-boosting government borrowing and which Bush and GOP lawmakers opposed.

"You wonder how many times you're going to run the same ugly dog down the runway when you know it's not going to get you the blue ribbon," said Rep. E. Clay Shaw Jr., R-Fla.

Shaw said Bush and Republican legislators would oppose the new Rostenkowski bill, with or without the new taxes. He said they would continue to press for a measure sponsored by Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., that limits the extra benefits to 10 weeks.

Aides said Democrats hoped the new bill — even without the tax increases — would lure enough GOP votes so they could reverse a Bush veto. The last version of the bill attracted 300 votes in the House — surpassing the 289 needed to override a veto.

The real fight will come in the Senate, which fell two votes short of the 67 votes it would have needed to enact the bill over Bush's objections. Top Senate Democrats were still trying to decide how to reshape the bill, aides and lobbyists said.

Mail for America's First Dog

NORTH LIBERTY, Ind. (AP) — One child wanted to know what it's like living in the White House, and one asked how difficult it was to give birth to six offspring at once.

Such is the correspondence these days between a group of third-graders in northern Indiana and Millie, the White House dog.

Lisa Clark's reading class at North Liberty Elementary School began writing to Millie in September at the suggestion of a parent who had seen a brochure on the project.

It seemed like a good idea, considering a dog-eared copy of "Millie's Book: as Dictated to Barbara Bush" is one of the more popular books in the school library.

In response, some of the children received post cards picturing Mrs. Bush and Millie, and other received booklets about the White House and the English springer spaniel who was a gift to the Bush family in 1985. Both had Mrs. Bush's signature and Millie's paw print.

In her letter, Robin Hans asked Millie whether she was hounded by admirers.

"I was wondering how much mail she gets," Robin said.

"We all wanted to know how she feels about living in the White House," added Nicole Radandt.

And Becky Richardson asked Millie, "What's it like to have babies?"

Dick Reese, superintendent of the John Glenn School Corp., said he was pleased with the project.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

• A business in the 500 block of West 4th Street was reported burglarized and a new pickup truck stolen. Loss is estimated at $16,000.

• A pickup tailgate worth $1,000 was reported stolen in the 400 block of Main Street.

• Booster cables and other equipment worth $110 were reported stolen following the burglary of a vehicle in the 1400 block of Lincoln Ave.

• A 40-year-old Big Spring woman was arrested for driving with a suspended license.

Pedestrian injured

Rosa Mata was treated for a broken arm and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center emergency room, following an automobile/pedestrian accident Monday night. Mata, 8, allegedly was struck by a vehicle in the 2000 block of Goliad Street after she ran from between two parked cars into the street.

Dickson will focus on rural interests

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
 Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — Sen. Temple Dickson, D-Sweetwater, who may have Mitchell County added to his district, assured a lunch crowd here that his agenda will focus on rural interests.

Dickson, who picked up Mitchell County in a redistricting plan awaiting approval by the U.S. Department of Justice, has said he plans to run for a second term next year. His next term would begin in January 1993.

A prime concern, Dickson told about 100 people at a luncheon at the Colorado City Civic Center, is rural economic development. "I think we in West Texas have to be diligent if we want to survive. We have to take the initiative," he said.

Dickson, appointed this year as chairman of the Senate Economic Development Committee, said he will help area residents "penetrate the (bureaucratic) barriers that have been so difficult to penetrate" and referred to a reorganization of the economic development committee to help "insure economic survival in West Texas."

A key, he said, is for larger urban areas to work together with rural areas. "If we continue to let the rest of Texas know we are not a threat to cities, that is our salvation," he said. "If they don't appreciate life in rural America, I say let them come to Colorado City."

Dickson joked about an October issue of Texas Monthly that listed him as one of the 10 worst legislators in Texas, saying that he expects to keep on making the list since the magazine's interests are more with urban areas. "You can expect me to be on it every time and I don't mind," he said.

Dickson, a lawyer and rancher, has been named Senator of the Year by the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas, one of the five outstanding legislators of 1989 by Texas Prosecutors, and as one of the Top 10 Legislative Crime fighters in Texas by the Greater Dallas Crime Commission.

Addressing another issue,

Dickson urged the audience to vote for Proposition 4 on the Nov. 5 state constitutional ballot, which would authorize up to $1.1 billion in bonds to construct 25,300 prison and rehabilitation beds.

The extra prison space is only a short-term solution, he said, but is sorely needed. He pointed out that convicts typically spend one-tenth of a prison sentence behind bars.

"We have to do some things in drug and alcohol abuse that we have not done before. We have to do some things in education that we have not done before," he said.

"But in the meantime we've got to create more penitentiary space."

Approving of the bonds would also move the state forward on some long-term preventative measures, he said.

"Eighty-five percent of them (convicts) are drug and alcohol abusers," he said. "I think the other 15 (percent) are probably lying."

Introducing Dickson at the luncheon was Sen. Steve Carriker, D-Roby, the current senator representing Mitchell County.

"I don't think you'll find any two senators that work better together than Senator Temple Dickson and I," Carriker told the crowd. "I want you to know I'm (going to continue to be) available to you, too."

the possibility of it going into effect in Howard and Martin county," he said. "The boll weevil problem is like having a dog with fleas. If you spray the dog, the fleas will just jump another dog. In order to get a handle on the boll weevil situation, we have to spray all the crops in the counties."

Fryar spent $45,000 for insect spraying on his 3,000 acres of cotton fields this year, he said.

Fryar sees the trip to Washington as a forum, where he may voice his concerns about agricultural problems that affect many residents in West Texas.

His wife, Teri Fryar, will accompany him on the trip.

Crossroads Chalk Talk

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

Crossroad Country football teams suffered their first losing week this season, winning three games. Two area teams tied and four suffered defeats.

Staying unbeaten were the Big Spring Steers and Garden City Bearkats, setting up important showdowns this week. Big Spring defeated Fort Stockton 37-12, and will host Sweetwater Friday. Garden City beat Bronte 50-8. The No. 1 ranked Bearkats will host No. 5 Rotan Friday.

Also winning its game was Grady, a 38-20 winner over Loop. Coming away with ties were Colorado City, which deadlocked with Kermit 6-6, and Coahoma, which battled Eldorado to a 0-0 tie.

Coming out on the short end of the stick were: Borden County, which lost to Ira 47-38; Forsan which was beaten by Wall 55-0; Stanton which was whitewashed by Iraan 42-0; and Klondike, which lost to Wellman 24-6.

Here is what area coaches had to say about last week's games and this week's opponents:

Bobby Avery, Borden County, on the loss to Ira and this week's game with Trent — "That's a game we'd like to have back. It was a good ballgame, you can't take anything away from Ira. They played good ball for 40 minutes.

"We came out and thought if we stopped their offense, that would take the wind out of their sails. We stopped them the first three times. They stopped us the first time and the second time we scored.

They punted to us on their third possession and we fumbled at our two. That was a give-me and that's the way it went all game. They scored on big plays and that was disheartening.

"We have to beat Trent Friday night. They have a good senior ballclub, they have seven seniors. They run the unbalanced offense and 2-3-1 defense. There is no one player you can key on."

Steve Park, Coahoma, on the tie with Eldorado and this week's game with Stanton — "The defense played well. Offensively we'd move the ball but we just had some mental lapses. We'd get going and have a penalty or lack of execution.

"It was the worst offensive game we've played all year. I guess that's my fault for not getting them prepared to play.

"Stanton is getting better. They move the ball in between the 20s (yard lines) but have trouble getting it into the end zone. They have good team speed and quickness. They're a lot better than their record indicates."

Sam Scott, Garden City, on the win over Bronte, and this week's showdown with No. 5 Rotan — "We had a bad week last week because of injuries and sickness. I think we were lucky to be able to play as well as we did.

"We had seven starters out Monday and eight out Tuesday, I was a little worried that we wouldn't be able to play as well. But we had good intensity.

"Rotan has jets all over the field, a lot of team speed and a wide open offense. Defensively they are very aggressive. They play very good football."

Bill Grissom, Stanton, on the loss to Iraan and Friday's game against Coahoma — "Iraan is a good football team, they have a lot of talent, a lot of offensive weapons. They have great skill people and a lot of experience in the backfield. A lot of those kids have been playing for three or four years. Their line does a good job also.

"I felt like we moved the ball well at times. Two times in the first half we had good drives and didn't get anything. We did it two more times in the second half. We had some breakdowns that hurt us.

"Coahoma is a big, strong football team. I didn't realize how big they were until I looked at the film. They do things well and their big people can move."

Tom Ham, Klondike, on the loss to Wellman, and this week's clash with Grady — "We played well, probably about as well as we can play. We still made a few mistakes but it was one of our better games.

"It was 12-6 at halftime and they scored their last touchdown late in the game. We only had one fumble. We didn't do that well offensively. Defensively we gave up a lot of yards in between the 20s, but we bowed our necks once they got down there. We finally got the kids to relax and just have some fun playing the game.

"We're Grady's homecoming, they've got everything going their way. They're playing good right now. They're playing with a lot of confidence right now."

Tom Ramsey, Colorado City, on the tie with Kermit, and this week's homecoming game with Sonora — "We should've won that game. We missed two chip shot field goals and had a touchdown catch in the end zone that they ruled incomplete.

"The kids played well. If we can win the rest of our games we'll be all right.

"Sonora looks pretty good, they went to the playoffs last year. They've got Adam Youngblood who's a pretty good running back. They like to run the ball and they have some good linemen. We don't get caught up in the homecoming stuff and we usually play pretty well at homecoming."

Dwight Butler, Big Spring on the win over Fort Stockton and this week's game with Sweetwater — "It was good to win. We played sloppy at times but I thought the kids went down there and did what they had to do to win. We were real fortunate.

"The defense played good again, that's a good sign because they'll have to play good against Sweetwater.

"I've been saying all year long Sweetwater has some exceptional athletes, strong and fast. They're a lot like Estacado, except they play harder."

Jan East, Forsan on the loss to Wall, and this week's game with Eldorado — "Well we got beat 55-0. Wall has a good team that does a lot of things well, they're just a good football team.

"We've seen Eldorado on a couple of films and they've improved from last year. They play real good on defense . . . on offense they try to line up and run right at you."

Leandro Gonzales, Grady, on the win over Loop and this week's homecoming game against Klondike — "The team is beginning to execute very well, both offensively and defensively . . . I'm just very pleased with the progress we've shown so far.

"(Winless) teams like Klondike have nothing to lose, and those are the kind of teams that scare me. It puts pressure on us to do well . . . even though they haven't done well so far."

Air Kelly blitzes Bengals

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — James Lofton was magnanimous. "Every ball I caught, he was right there with me," the Buffalo Bills wide receiver said of Richard Fain, the rookie cornerback Cincinnati assigned to cover Lofton.

Fain may have been right there with Lofton, but it was Lofton who came down with the ball.

Making the first start of his pro career, Fain was beaten three times for touchdowns Monday night — twice by Lofton — as Jim Kelly threw five touchdown passes to prolong the Bengals' nightmare season with a 35-16 loss to the Bills.

"I think we realized that we had someone who had not had a lot of NFL experience," said Lofton, who finished with a career-high 220 yards on eight catches.

"Hopefully in the future, I'll get better," said a humble Fain, who was involved in a play that triggered one of the wildest scenes in the NFL this season.

Fain and Lofton went up for a pass at the Cincinnati goal line with the Bills holding their smallest lead of the night at 14-10. After some jostling, Lofton came down with the pass, which was good for a 48-yard touchdown.

Several Bengal defenders, incensed at what they felt was pass interference by Lofton, challenged officials in the end zone.

Towels, a helmet and finally Bengals coach Sam Wyche went on the field as the Cincinnati bench howled at what they thought was an injustice. Wyche sprinted from his sideline position down into the end zone, drawing a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty.

"When Lofton shoved our defender down and caught the touchdown, the complexion of the game changed totally, no question about it," said Wyche, who denied charges he's lost control of his winless team.

"We never lost control at all," he said. "Anyone who thinks we were out of control really doesn't understand the process of sideline organization."

Auburn football in wake of scandal

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Auburn University is looking for a new president, but the school's governing board doesn't have any plans to begin the search for a new football coach.

Several members of the board of trustees left no doubt Monday that their support for coach Pat Dye is unwavering in spite of a potentially major scandal in the football program.

"He certainly has my support until something comes along to prove otherwise," said trustee Jack Venable, a state legislator from Tallahassee. "It will take more than newspaper reports for me to lose my faith in a man who has done so much for Auburn University."

"I feel like he has the support of all the trustees," said Emory Cunningham, a retired publishing company president. "If anything was done wrong, I'm sure it was without his knowledge."

"I have a lot of confidence in Pat Dye and his staff," said Charles Glover of Cullman, a real estate agent. "I think he's a good coach."

In recent weeks, though, Auburn's athletic program has been under fire.

The NCAA and the university launched separate investigations of the football team after former defensive back Eric Ramsey accused the school of potentially major rule violations and said he had secretly recorded conversations to back up his claims.

Six of those tapes were disclosed

Sunday by a Birmingham newspaper. They show an Auburn booster and friend of Dye, Bill "Corky" Frost, gave Ramsey hundreds of dollars, free beef and performance bonuses while he was with the Tigers from 1986-90.

Ramsey also has said he has tapes of Auburn coaches giving him money, but those have not been made public. His attorney, Donald Watkins, said the other tapes would be released in batches in coming weeks.

Meanwhile, the Auburn men's basketball and tennis programs could be facing sanctions from the NCAA because of alleged violations.

Dye has said he is not aware of any wrongdoing in the football program and doesn't think the school will face sanctions after everything is told. However, he is one of only a handful of NCAA Division I football coaches who also serves as athletic director and has expressed a willingness to give up the AD job, if necessary.

Cunningham, for one, would like to see two different people in the posts.

Braves hope to turn tide at home

ATLANTA (AP) — World Series history suggests the Atlanta Braves are in trouble. Then again, this hasn't exactly been an average season.

The Minnesota Twins take a 2-0 World Series lead into Game 3 tonight as play shifts from the Metrodome to the Georgia skies of Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

"This team has been optimistic all year," Braves catcher Greg Olson said. "But the history is when teams are down 2-0, they don't win."

Olson is quite right. Teams taking a 2-0 lead have gone on to win 31 times in 41 attempts (76 percent), including the last four years.

But the Braves and Twins did a lot of things that weren't supposed to happen this year. Most notably, they became the first teams in the modern era to move from last place one season to first place the next.

Atlanta wasn't expected to catch Los Angeles after falling 9½ games back, and most thought Oakland would overtake Minnesota sooner or later. And wasn't it supposed to be Pittsburgh against Toronto in the World Series?

"We feel very confident coming home with Steve Avery and John Smoltz pitching," Olson said. "We were down 3-2 to the Pirates and came back to win two games there."

The Twins just might feel a little strange. Minnesota's last 10 games, including the regular season, have been inside, at either the Metrodome or Toronto's SkyDome.

Minnesota won the first two

ATLANTA — Minnesota Twins designated hitter Chili Davis works out with the team Monday at Atlanta Fulton County Stadium.

Turn it off

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Parents endorse violence on television when they let their children watch it, says Bob Keeshan, TV's Captain Kangaroo.

Keeshan was in Nebraska on Sunday and Monday to talk about children's programming.

"We should turn it on when we know that it is a given program that we want to watch with our children. Then, the TV should be turned off," the 65-year-old actor told parents.

Berle to marry

NEW YORK (AP) — Milton Berle plans to marry a Beverly Hills fashion designer in the spring.

BOB KEESHAN MILTON BERLE

"We are both the luckiest people on Earth to have found each other," Berle, 83, said in announcing his engagement Friday to Lorna Adams.

Publicist Glenn Schwartz said Monday that the bride-to-be is "about 50."
It would be Berle's fourth marriage and the second for Ms. Adams.

Town benefits from filming

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — This town will get a new roof on its field of dreams with help from the baseball movie "A League of Their Own," starring Madonna.

The movie will have its premiere in Evansville in June, with proceeds to benefit Bosse Field, where much of the film was made. Columbia Pictures has pledged $20,000 to the renovation project.

Geena Davis and Tom Hanks also star in the movie about a women's professional baseball league during World War II.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You will feel more settled and secure. A family reunion at Christmas could lead to rekindled romance. Self-improvement activities bring big rewards early in the new year. Set specific monetary goals in February.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Catherine Deneuve, artist N.C. Wyeth, author Doris Lessing, actor Jeff Goldblum.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your plans get moving in a big way. Talks, trips and letters expand your career and domestic horizons. What you do for your family will be richly rewarded. Be willing to make sacrifices.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The career arena provides the proper setting for you to display your competitive streak. Discussions with influential people encourage them to make their financial resources available to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You and your partners can reach a better understanding today. Share a secret goal to achieve optimum rapport. Your plans unfold beautifully. Help a relative who feels pressured tonight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Success in your dealings with prominent people is practically assured. Adopt a serious, sincere manner to gain favor. Keep an eye on the high costs of living. Show your mate more affection.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): To advance key interests, you may have to reach a wider audience. The path ahead could be difficult; delays and complications are featured. Push on — a big payoff awaits you! Romance beckons.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are irresistible, witty and on top of your game today. A financial transaction or maneuver looks promising. Lend an ear to what an older person has to say. Take a hint.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be on the lookout for a behind-the-scenes opportunity to advance your business aims. Your personal magnetism is a big asset when convincing others to do your bidding. Be generous with praise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It is time to reach a compromise with your mate or another key ally. Do not try to hide your emotions. Sharing your doubts and hopes with loved one brings you closer together.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have greater control over financial matters now. Investigate recent purchases and investments. You will benefit from making yourself more visible at work. Listen to a woman's wise advice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Any promises you make today will be difficult to keep. Postpone making a serious commitment. Consider a new investment plan. Learn more about stocks, real estate and overseas investments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Avoid relying on other people if there is work to be done, errands to run or messages to send. Everything will go much better if you fly solo today! Listening to music relaxes you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make the most of a communications network. Your words have special power today. Be careful not to offend someone who would make a good ally. Your involvement in community affairs brings rich rewards.
