Appeals court hears negligence lawsuit

urges postal

Postal Service is considering again whether to make us stick an extra penny's worth of postage on a first-class letter, something the agency has been urging for more than a year and a half.

The Postal Service board of governors was meeting today to discuss raising the rate from 29 cents to 30 cents, a move that would require a unanimous vote of the nine governors. The governors may decide to vote, or they could put off the matter until later.

Even if the increase is approved, it won't take effect until next year, Postmaster General Anthony Frank has said.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark. chairman of the Senate subcommittee that oversees the mail agency, urged the governors on Monday not to raise rates. He contended that an increase was "unnecessary and not in the best interests of the Postal Service or its customers.

The push to raise the rate to 30 cents began more than a year and a half ago.

The independent Postal Rate Commission, in a complex decision affecting all classes of mail, approved a first-class rate of only 29 cents, however.

That rate, termed "penny foolish" by Frank, was instituted under protest in February. Since then, the Postal Service

twice has asked the rate commission to reconsider the matter, insisting that the one-cent difference costs it $800 million annually

The commission refused to go along, although it did agree to some other increases that will bring in an estimated $300 million for the agency.

The second rejection placed the matter back in the hands of the governors, the presidentially appointed board that supervises the Postal Service.

The case, in which the Weismans argue that the constitutional doctrine of church and state should prohibit prayer in invocations and benedictions at public school graduations, is among the most closely watched of the Supreme Court's 1991-1992 term.

The Bush administration has joined the Providence School Board in opposing the Weismans, urging the court to relax a 20-yearold standard for assuring a "wall of separation" between church and

Mideast talks cease, settlements continue

MADRID, Spain (AP) — As Arab and Israeli delegates left the Madrid negotiating table, declaring they'd meet again but not when or where, Israel officials were defiantly opening a new settlement in the Golan Heights.

The United States is expected to take the initiative in keeping the talks going by picking a site for the next round of face-to-face talks. Washington is seen as a likely location.

The inauguration of the Kela set tlement Monday in the Golan Heights, the strategic plateau Israel seized from Syria in the 1967 Middle East war came right on the heels of antagonistic direct talks between the Israelis and Syrians in

The Syrians said they wouldn't be open to a single Israeli proposal unless the Golan, which Israel annexed in 1981, is first returned.

The Israeli hard-liners and Soviet immigrants at Kela were equally adamant that the Jewish state hold onto the Golan.

Middle East passions are so intense and the positions of Syria and Israel's right-wing government so unyielding that the hopes for peace that emerged from the four-day Madrid conference are unlikely to survive without sustained, handson American diplomacy.

The process may take years, although Palestinians suggest their sessions with Israel could resume in less than three weeks and progress could at least be made on that front.

President Bush, whose secretary of state spent eight months arranging the Madrid conference, said pauses were to be expected.

"We have a long way to go and interruptions will probably occur, but hopes are bright," he said Monday in the United States. Israel saw hope in the divergence of Arab positions at the conference. The Palestinians were flexibile, willing to discuss the establishment of self-rule in the Israelioccupied West Bank and Gaza Strip as a first step to eventual statehood, while Syria was unyielding. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir noted how the promising tone of the Palestinian-Jordanian delegation's direct talks with Israel contrasted sharply with Israel's icy face-toface meeting with Syria.

"This in itself is positive as it prevents the formation of a united Arab front against Israel," Shamir said on Israel radio.

But he offered nothing in the way of compromise.

Shamir, in an interview with Israel Television, was asked if he would consider halting settlements in the occupied territories in return for Palestinians ending their uprising against Israeli rule.

Man arrested in store shooting

LUBBOCK (AP) — A San Angelo man has been arrested on a murder charge in the fatal stabbing of a co-worker at a San Angelo grocery store.

Lubbock officers arrested Manuel Rodriguez, 21, early Monday in connection with the early Sunday slaying of Donald James Huisenga Jr., 38, an

"M" System store employee. Huisenga's bound and gagged body was found at 2:11 a.m. Sunday at the San Angelo chain store where he and Rodriguez worked, according to San Angelo police. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Preliminary autopsy results by medical examiners in San Antonio show that Huisenga suffered multiple stab wounds and bled to death, police said.

Rodriguez was turned over to San Angelo authorities late Monday.

AUSTIN (AP) — State water officials can regulate ground-. water, according to Texas Attorney General Dan Morales

Morales issued his opinion Monday in response to a question from the Texas Water Commission, which recently held a hearing on a catfish farm in Bexar County that is using millions of gallons of water each day.

The Living Waters Artesian Springs Catfish Farm uses 43.2 million gallons of water a day from the Edwards Aquifer.

Morales said a provision in the Texas Water Code authorizes the Water Commission to "make and enforce rules and regulations for conserving, protecting, preserving and distributing underground, subterranean, and percolating water located in this state.

General Antonia Novello wants to meet with executives of major beer, wine and liquor companies next month to discuss her objection to advertisements that link drink ing with sex, glamour and youth.

While industry representatives said they would be glad to meet with her, they defended their ads, denied they target young drinkers and said it was unlikely they would withdraw any of their ads.

Novello called on the industry, mainly brewers, to voluntarily pull television ads that appeal to youth with such images as bikini-clad women at beach parties, use of cartoon characters and attractive young people engaged in sports like skiing and surfing.

"The ads have youth believing that instead of getting up early, exercising, going to school, playing a sport or learning to be a team player, all they have to do to fit in is

Soviet Union will allow spy flights

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union will let spy planes fly over its entire territory to verify arms control agreements, Tass reported today, in a major departure from decades of tight Soviet

The decision clears a major obstacle to an international "open skies" treaty, the news agency said.

A Soviet delegation made the statement in Vienna, where representatives from 22 NATO and former Warsaw Pact countries resumed talks today on the 2-year-old "open skies" proposal, Tass said.

Soviet military officials had refused to allow flights over their military bases and certain other areas considered sensitive, despite arms control agreements signed by Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The failure of the August coup removed many hard-line Soviet military officials, including Defense Minister Dmitri Yazov and Chief of Staff Mikhail Moiseyev. That apparently cleared the way for progress in

The reversal followed Gorbachev's announcement last month of unilateral cuts in shortrange nuclear weapons, and the July signing of a long-sought treaty on reducing the number of intercontinental weapons.

Serbians reject EC plan for peace

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Hard-line Serbia agreed today to another cease-fire in Yugoslavia's 4-month-old civil war, but it rejected a European Community peace plan despite a threat of sanctions.

Lord Carrington, chairman of the EC-sponsored peace conference, warned participants that if the cease-fire failed to hold, he would propose Friday that the talks be "indefinitely adjourned," said the spokesman.

The spokesman, who insisted on anonymity, said the parties failed to agree in a 90-minute session on an EC proposal to turn Yugoslavia into a loose association of independent states

Bill fails to help poor minorities

The biggest misconception about the civil rights legislation President Bush recently agreed to sign is that it will make a significant difference in the lives of minority

In fact, the legislation will make a difference only to a minority of minorities — those who generally are bettereducated, middle-class and professional. As to poor and working-class minorities, the civil rights legislation will have only negligible effects.

That is because the three civil rights measures that are soon to become law are almost entirely about court suits. They focus on the right of minority workers to sue if they believe they have been discriminated against on the job, and on the legal defenses that employers may use to fight such suits.

This hardly represents a dramatic improvement in economic opportunity for minorities. Moreover, it hardly promises a better quality of life for the majority of disadvantaged Americans, who probably found the debate about "goals and timetables" and "disparate impact" and "business necessity" to be just so much gobbledygook.

In the ghettos or the barrios, poor and working-class minorities must be wondering when Congress is going to do something for them. This group, among the most disadvantaged of all Americans, should be the primary targets of efforts to help minorities.

Regrettably, there is nothing in the civil rights bills of 1991 that will help this group. The legislation will do nothing to curb the breakdown of minority families, to overcome the inadequacies of schools in inner city neighborhoods, to stem violent crime and drug abuse in poor communities, or to alleviate poverty among the minority population.

This glaring shortcoming in the 1991 civil rights bills provides an opening for President Bush and Republicans to champion the cause of minority opportunity and empowerment. The GOP should put forth a post-civil rights agenda aimed at helping poor, disadvantaged minorities rise above poverty and deprivation. This agenda should entail a comprehensive program to encourage family cohesion, high-school graduation and full-time work — all of which are integral to a productive life.

There should be an economic component that emphasizes training in basic skills, while encouraging work apprenticeships and expanded job recruitment. The program should be open to all disadvantaged Americans, regardless of race or origin. There also should be parental choice in education, so that parents are not forced to send their children to hopeless inner-city public schools.

The new agenda should reform the welfare system to provide incentives for family cohesion and work. As it is now, the welfare system rewards nonworking, one-parent families. Also, there should be a full-scale assault on crime and drug abuse in poor communities. Crime and related violence are a deterrent to businesses and services that might locate in such distressed areas, thereby providing economic opportunities that are far more valuable than welfare checks.

The civil rights legislation of 1991 is aimed largely at the most fortunate of minorities. President Bush should draft a program that will lift up the least fortunate.

TOTALLY OBSCENE

Congress' public image sinking

By STEVEN KOMAROW Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pummelled by rubber checks, unpaid restaurant tabs and the Clarence Thomas-Anita Hill battle, Congress' regard has fallen so low that some members might head home if it weren't for their $125,100 paychecks

"You would have thought I had just been accused of a criminal act," said Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., recounting the stares he received last week when an airline passenger identified him as a member of Congress.

Boren and other lawmakers don't need poll numbers to tell them it's time for a little selfexamination. When a House freshman put a bag over his head last month, few colleagues laughed.

But self-examination doesn't come naturally to members of Congress. What they do instead is blame the process, or the staff or negative campaigning for surveys showing that Americans overwhelmingly disapprove of their national legislature.

"People blame the institution instead of blaming the people" in it, said Rep. Mike Parker, D-Miss. Those on Capitol Hill who are looking to turn the tide seem to agree that if Congress did more good, the American people would be more inclined to overlook the

"The American people would not care a bit about floated checks .. or the tabs down in the restaurant ... if they thought we really represented their interests across this country," said Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, has seized the moment to propose a list of changes in the Senate's rules to make the institution more efficient — and has proposed a major tax break for the middle class.

A host of others from both parties have focused more narrowly, on stopping leaks of sensitive information such as Hill's tale of sexual harassment by Supreme Court nominee Thomas. The Senate's public image would be in better shape had its Judiciary Committee succeeded in its plan to keep her charges from public

All these proposals and others might make good sense within the confines of the Capitol, but there's no evidence the public is going to be satisfied.

And although beating up on Congress has been a national sport since the beginning of the Republic, this time it's different The voters are toying with a weapon that could punish Congress as a whole, not just the rascals: term limits

"One of these days, and it's not going to be far off, the American people in utter frustration are going to say: Those people are never going to reform themselves," Boren said. And they will "turn to the radical solutions of term limitations to do it.

Ed Mahe, a Republican consultant who is a leader in the termlimit movement, said the time has

"What could they (lawmakers) do to start resurrecting themselves? Pass the amendment next year and send it to the states," he said. If Congress goes along now, the public might accept 12-year limits instead of the even shorter terms some have proposed, he suggested The White House, according to published reports, is gleefully planning to exploit the situation as it heads toward next year's elections. But if Bush's re-election campaign turns into a campaign against Congress, he'll have plenty of company.

One Democratic aide estimated that 60 percent of Democrats run anti-Congress campaigns every time, and it's a safe bet that Congress' answer to its current problems will be to beat up on itself ever, more But some worry that it can go too far, especially when lawmakers themselves take part

"The institution itself is important," said Rep. Parker. Representative democracy is at the core of the Constitution, he said, and "if people destroy the belief in the institution, then we've gotten to the basics.'

What's new for Christmas

The good news is that Christmas is just around the corner. The bad news is that Japanese toymakers are pushing a new Nintendo set for $200. This is twice the price of the old one. Even worse news is that none of the games from the old Nintendo fit the new one.

Therefore, a new improved 1991 model with software will cost anywhere from $300 to $400, while last year's Nintendo will now be worth a pound of nuclear waste.

All this means that law-abiding citizens who are trying to make ends meet will either bow to the pressure of their loved ones and buy the 1991 model or declare to their children, "No Nintendo while I still have breath in my body.

There are very few recorded cases of parents saying no to their children when it comes to a Christmas request. But there has never been a test like Nintendo. How, one asks, is it possible to refuse a child a toy he has actually seen advertised on television?

Dr. Gross Varder, a toy therapist, is very concerned that if children are deprived of the new Nintendos, they will see this as a sign of rejection.

He explained, "No child can believe anyone really loves him if adults become churlish about the price of Japanese electronic games.

'Even if if costs $200, not counting the software that goes with it?" I asked.

"Children don't know what toys cost. All they know is that they cannot live in the world with an old Nintendo when a new one has their name on it. You can't expect a child to go to school without this year's Nintendo any more than you can ask him to go without any pants on.

"Is it possible that the only reason the Nintendo people have come out with a new model is to cash in on the guilt of American parents?

"It would be wrong to think that. The purpose of the new Nintendo is to challenge the minds and dexterity of the nation's youth. It is also to make them stronger and better-educated people. The manufacturers felt that the old Nintendo was stifling the skills of the children and, therefore, it was time they upgraded their toys. Profit was never a factor in designing the machine. If it was, they would have charged $500 just to see what the traffic would bear.

"I have three grandchildren," I told Gross, "and they know they will not get the new Nintendo from me.

"I wouldn't take any chances," Gross warned me. "I've seen children withhold their love from grandparents for far less.

"I refuse to get into a power struggle with my nearest and dearest.

'Everybody does. That's why the Nintendo people are predicting a banner year. I am not saying that you should or should not give your grandchild the game. But you're the one who has to look at yourself in the mirror every morning when you shave. You have every right to hold fast. But it will be just a matter of weeks until that darling little one rushes down the steps on Christmas morning and starts ripping open the boxes shouting, 'Nintendo, Nintendo, Nintendo,' and you'll think he is launching an attack on Pearl Harbor.

"When he doesn't find the game his heart will break. Years later the little boy will have become a man, and he will be lying on a psychiatrist's couch and he will say, 'And then when I was 8 my grandfather wouldn't buy me a new Nintendo, and from that moment on I never smiled again."

I'm on Capitol Hill where a deranged gunman with an assault rifle just fired hundreds of rounds into a House Cafeteria line - Horrified & grief stricken LAWMAKERS promptly returned to the floor and defeated another bill to ban assault weapons

Traveler expresses thanks to residents

To the editor:

I am a resident of New Jersey writing to your paper to publicly express my gratitude and appreciation toward some very special people in the Big Spring business community. I have always believed that when people do a good deed they deserve praise and that is certainly the case with the Mitchem family and their business on Main Street. As recent graduates of law school and college, my two friends and I embarked on a cross country camping trip using Driveaway vehicles, cars belonging to other people who engaged a broker to entrust the car to drivers coincidentally needing such a vehicle to get to that shipping destination. We were transporting a GMC truck between San Antonio and Salem, Oregon, when the automatic transmission essentially disintegrated and stranded us far from anywhere.

The Mitchems promptly came to tow us into Big Spring for a reasonable fee (for which we were reimbursed.) But more than this, upon discovering that our funds were not meant to fit in motels, but camping, and that the repair might take many days due to the need for parts, the Mitchems generously gave us a place to camp on their own preperty.

In five long days to come they and their wonderful employees warmly befriended us and kept our dampened spirits afloat in what anyone would describe as a vacationer's worst nightmare. If it was not for them we surely would have given up broke and in disgust and returned to New Jersey rather than press on ahead for what turned out to be three more weeks of wonderful travel. We also want to thank mechanics Jimmy Leffler and Randy Carr for their prompt professional attention.

Big Spring should be proud to claim these wonderful folks as part of their business community. We are proud to call them our friends

The information obtained from the pre-white dwarf known as PG 1159-035, or "McGraw's Star," already has provided the first experimental information about several theories of stellar origin, and could lead to a better understanding of the origin of the Milky Way Galaxy, say Dr. Donald Winget and Dr. Ed Nather.

"This technique tells you nearly everything you'd want to know about a star," says Nather, who invented the photometer with which the data were accumulated and also originated the idea of the Whole Earth Telescope.

"As one of our former graduate students said, this basically turns stellar evolution into a spectator sport," says Winget, the principal investigator of the study of McGraw's Star. "It's hard to think of a field of astronomy that this work won't impact." In addition to Winget and Nather, 30 astronomers at the observatories participating in the Whole Earth Telescope are credited with

The astronomers chose McGraw's Star, which is about 1,000 light-years from earth and almost directly over the equator. because it is known to be entering its death throes. As a pre-white dwarf, the star has lived far beyond the stage at which the earth's sun currently exists. Because McGraw's Star is known to be shrinking, Winget and Nather decided that the star was a good candidate for photometer

With several hundred hours of continuous observation, they speculated, enough information could be gathered to measure accurately for the first time the changes in a star's light intensity caused by its internal turmoil.

Using the Whole Earth Telescope, which links about a dozen major observatories worldwide by telephone and electronic mail, the researchers compiled their data by keeping at least one telescope in the world always trained on the star. In one intense 160-hour period, the observatories collected information on the star every 10 seconds and then transmitted the data to UT Austin by electronic mail.

The photometer accumulated information for the study by counting the photons — or basic units of light energy - coming from the star.

Because the target was a variable star, the researchers were able to see changes in the light intensity as often as every few hundred seconds, and this gave them the data they needed for the study.

When the raw data had been accumulated, the researchers split the information into separate frequencies by means of a mathematical formula known as the Fourier transform, and discovered that they had more than 100 separate frequencies for various depths within the star. They had expected nine or 10 frequencies at the most.

"It was like knowing that a dinosaur tooth had been found in a field and then going out to look for a few more teeth," says Winget. "What we found was the whole carcass!

The light intensity changes that they observed are caused by a seismic activity in the star, which Winget describes as "something like sloshing." Similar data are collected by geologists when they bounce sound waves through the earth for research on earthquakes and plate motion.

"If you think of stars as layers, then each layer is sloshing dif ferently than the layer above it, and this activity becomes especially pronounced in a shrinking star such as a white dwarf," he says. 'Since you can only see the outer layer, or photosphere, then you can only know the interior of the star by these oscillations, which are changes in the photosphere caused by internal activity.

Nather's photometer, which was used by nearly all the Whole Earth Telescope observatories participating in the study, was designed to cancel out the changes in light intensity that can be caused by light pollution from the earth or by other atmospheric phenomena. The photo meter fits on the telescope at the focal point and collects data on the star to be studied, and at the same time samples a reference star that is known to be

If the stable reference star and the target star together change in the course of data collection, then the astronomers know that terrestrial phenomena are corrupting the data set. The information can then be mathematically adjusted by filtering the data on the target star by the same margin that it data into equilibrium.

star's variations in intensity, and the longer the data are collected, the more accurately the astronomers are able to ascertain these frequencies.

Technical reports on the McGraw's Star investigation appear this month in the Astrophysical Journal and in Science magazine.

The Big Spring Fina Refinery's new construction projects will be a benefit to the Big Spring economy and environment, said Plant Manager Jeff Morris.

The new sour-water stripper facility will work in tandem with the other unit under construction, the sulfur plant. Together the two units will drastically reduce the amount of sulfur and ammonia released into the environment,

"That white plume near the catcracker currently puts about six tons of sulfur into the air every day. When this project is completed, that plume will be gone," Morris told area taxing entities while seeking tax abatement for the $15.5 million construction project.

Fina was granted 75 percent abatement on the project, which currently employs 63 construction workers from Big Spring alone,

Homeowners typically underinsured for floods

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was a scene with which thousands across the nation could identify: A clearly upset President Bush inspecting his storm-ravaged Maine vacation home, sifting through what once had been cherished belongings.

Bush was not alone in his suffering. The same storm that sent 30-foot waves crashing over his Kennebunkport, Maine, home ravaged houses, boats and beaches all along the Atlantic Coast.

The president was like most of the other victims in another way, too. He was under insured.

Bush said he had the maximum $185,000 in flood coverage for his three-story, stone-and-shingle home, which was assessed last year at $2.2 million. Real estate agents in the area have said, however, that the house, which sits on a rocky point near the ocean, is worth considerably more. Bush said he also had some coverage for surance. While homeowners commonly have coverage for things like fire and wind, most are uninsured for flood water damage, mistakenly believing it was included in their homeowner's policies. "The standard policy has an ex-

Crossroads Chalk Talk

By LORNE FANCETT Staff Writer

Crossroads Country came away with a winning record on this next to last week of the season, winning six and losing three.

Heading the list of winners were Big Spring, Coahoma, Garden City and Borden County. Big Spring defeated Pecos 23-6, Coahoma over McCamey 48-7, Garden City thrashed Robert Lee 42-7 and Borden County overcame Loraine 62-35. The other two winners were Stanton, a 48-6 winner over area team Forsan and Sands, a 46-0 win over another area team, Grady.

Coming out on the losing end were Colorado City, Forsan and Stanton. Colorado City was soundly defeated by Reagan County, 48-13, Forsan defeated by Stanton 48-6 and Grady lost to Sands, 46-0.

Here is what area coaches had to say about last week's games and this week's encounters.

Randy Roemisch, on the win over Grady and this week's game against Klondike.—"We did a good job on defense. We held them to only 33 yards on offense.

"Our offense came away with only 217 total yards for the game but by the third quarter we had our second-string defense in and our third-string offense into the game. We gave all of our kids a chance to play.

"Klondike right now is 1-7 for the season, but that statistic dosen't reflect the team overall. They had some key injuries early in the season but now they have all of their kids healthy. We are playing at home and we haven't lost a regular season game at home in four years. Hopefully we can go in the post-season with our heads up and a victory.

Tom Ramsey, Colorado City, on the loss to Reagan County and this week's game against Greenwood — "I'l tell you, ole Reagan County was fired up, they ate our lunch. They sent three of our players to the hospital. We lost four players; one was a starting lineman, two had concussions. Reagan County is playing better each week

"Greenwood is up and down. They've beaten Fort Stockton, Lamesa and Reagan County. They've lost to Coahoma, Alpine and Kermit, now that just doesn't come out in the wash.

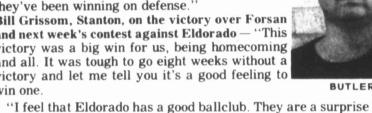

We've got so many injuries, we'll have to play well. We've got to establish an offensive attack and don't turn the ball over.

Dwight Butler, Big Spring, on the win over Pecos, and this week's game with Andrews — "I thought we did things a lot better on the film than I thought we did in the game. We did a lot better job of running the

"We wanted to throw it more but when Gerald got hurt (brusied throwing hand) we had to adjust our game plan.

"Andrews is good. They are very big and powerful. They are real good of taking advantage of their opportunites. They're offense is good, but they've been winning on defense.

Bill Grissom, Stanton, on the victory over Forsan and next week's contest against Eldorado - "This victory was a big win for us, being homecoming and all. It was tough to go eight weeks without a victory and let me tell you it's a good feeling to

"I feel that Eldorado has a good ballclub. They are a surprise in the district this year. Their defense is outstanding. The team is going to be defense all the way. Also the fact that they are well coached makes them a better football team.'

Jan East, on the loss to Stanton and this week's game against Mc-Camey — "We just didn't show up for this ballgame. We didn't play well at all. Stanton showed that they are better than their current 1-8

'McCamey has won some ballgames. If we are going to win we must play better than last week. We expect them to be in a spread formation on offense and throw the ball." Sam Scott.

Garden City, on the victory over Robert Lee and next week's contest against Roby — "We bounced back from a tough loss against Rotan last week. After the (Rotan) game our players were just mentally drained.

"Against Robert Lee we just got back into the groove. Our senior leadership showed up and came through for us.

"Our game against Roby will be very important for us. Right now there are three teams setting their sights on the second playoff position: Roby, Sterling City and ourselves. Roby right now stands at 6-2 and have a solid offensive line that averages about 230 pounds. Add to that fact that they have great quickness. So this game will not only be a much-needed victory for us but also a great Leandro Gonzales, Grady, on the loss to Sands and this week's game against Wellman — "Sands played a good game where the defense executed very well. We just couldn't execute on offense because of the defense. They played well on both offense and defense. We couldn't get the ball rolling. "This week's game against Wellman is going to be a good game. This is gut-check time. Our intestinal fortitude will be tested. Both teams are equal all the way down the line. Last week we had four of our starters out with injuries. This week three of them will return for us. This game will be between two evenly matched teams and whoever wants the victory bad enough will decide the outcome. The key factor in this game will be the mistakes. Whoever makes the fewest will come GONZALES Steve Park, Coahoma, on the win against Mc-Camey and next week's contest against Ozona — "The kids got after it against McCamey. Now that the pressure is off the kids are a little more loose and enjoying it. Both the defense and the offense played

"Ozona is a real quick ballclub. One of their problems is that injuries have hurt them and now they have some youngsters on the field. For us to win we just have to get out there and play them like we are capable of playing.'

Bobby Avery, Borden County, on their victory over Loraine and next week's status — "It was cold. We just did what we had to do. We didn't expect to be up 30-0 at halftime. Our defense played very well. They just couldn't move the ball against our varsity defense. Loraine's players could really hit. Clay Miller, our defensive end, is out for the season with a cracked jaw he suffered in the game. Overall we executed and played really well.

"We were scheduled to play Highland this week but they called us up and decided to call off the game. The main reason was is that they only have eight men on the team. So as it stands we have cinched awcond place and now focusing on our game against Sands next week.'

Lady Hawks destroy | HC Hawks decimate HSU Cowgirls, 79-41

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

The Howard College Lady Hawks began their basketball season on a positive note, demolishing the Hardin-Simmons University Cowgirls 79-41 Monday night.

The rout gave Lady Hawks coach Royce Chadwick a chance to empty his bench by halftime. Howard led 37-15 at the half.

Leading the first half onslaught was freshman forward Regina Huff, who scored 10 of her game leading 20 points. Huff led a hug 53-21 rebounding edge for Howard, getting 10. Sophomores Kathy Mangram and Kelly Williams followed with eight and

The Lady Hawks started with a man-to-man fullcourt press, and followed it with a trapping press. The constant pressure rattled HSU, forcing 24 turnovers.

"It took us a while to get going," said Chadwick. "We played real tentative early. Depth-wise, We didn't play as well as I thought we would."

It took just over two minutes for HSU's Shana Feagan to score the first basket of the game.

McMurry Tribe, 112-59

By LORNE FANCETT Staff Writer

The fans that turned out for Howard College's opener against the McMurry College junior varsity were treated to an all-out destruction

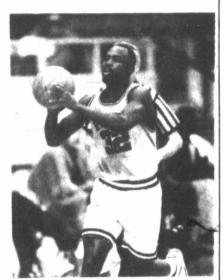

The Hawks, in head coach Jeff Kidder's debut, made short work of the Indians, 112-59. Leading scorer for Howard was Jason Hodges with 25. Chuckie Robinson followed with 17. Eric Burness was the high scorer for McMurry with 15.

Hodges, a transfer from Southern Illinois, scored 11 of his points in the first half, including two 3-pointers

"Jason (Hodges) has a tremendous outside shot," commented Kidder. "He really strokes the ball well.

The first 10 minutes was all Hawks as the defense held the Indians to only six points. In that time Howard College managed to put 29 points on the board, including 11 by Robinson.

The Indians managed to put 19 more points on the board by halftime but that wouldn't be nearly enough as the Hawks went into the lockerroom with a 62-29

Big Spring heads all-district tennis

Big Spring was well represented when coaches chose the 3-4A All-District Fall Tennis Team.

Big Spring, the district runner-up and third place regional finisher, had three singles players and four doubles teams named to first team. In fact, Big Spring was the only team to have all of its team members make either first, second or honorable mention all-district.

Making the boys first team in singles play was senior Paul McKinney, the Steers No. 5 player. The Steers No. 1 doubles team of Trey Terrazas and Greg Biddison were a first team selection, as was No. 3 pair of Shannon Saverance Lady Steers singles players making the first team were No. 4 player Paige Griffin and No. 5 player Leslie Fryar. Big Spring's No. 1 doubles team of Kristen Sevey and Christi Ragsdale was also a first team selection.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — pense," Joseph said, adding that Almost every week since the Kotite told him this week he would season started, Philadelphia play more. Eagles coach Rich Kotite promised to give rookie James Joseph substantial playing time.

He finally did Monday night. It took a back injury to Keith Byars in the third period of Monday's 30-7 win over the New York Giants for Kotite to turn to Joseph, a seventh-round draft pick this Joseph responded with 68 yards and two touchdowns on 18 carries as he helped the Eagles snap a four-game losing streak.

The Eagles boosted their record to 4-5 and left the defending champion Super Bowl Giants with the same numbers, both long shots to reach the playoffs.

Joseph said that at halftime he didn't expect to play.

New Mexico coach canned after five losing seasons

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Mike Sheppard now concedes that he left some homework undone when he accepted the New Mexico head coaching job on Christmas Eve

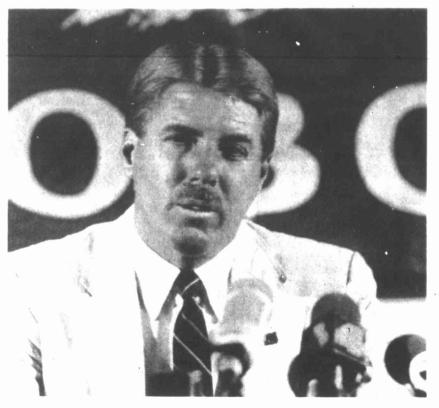

Fired Monday with a fifth straight losing season assured, Sheppard said he had underestimated the magnitude of the job he faced when he took over a program that has had only one winning season in 13 years.

"I was a little naive about what it would take to get the program to a consistently competitive level,' said Sheppard, whose team is 2-8 this season and 1-5 in the Western Athletic Conference

Athletic director Gary Ness said the university would buy out the final two years of Sheppard's contract at an estimated cost of $155,000 New Mexico is 8-49 overall under Sheppard with two games remaining this season — at Utah Saturday and at Colorado State Nov. 16. The Lobos, whose last winning season was 10-1 under the late Joe Morrison in 1982, never came close under Sheppard. His first team in 1987 went 0-11 and New Mexico finished 2-10 each of the past three ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Mike Sheppard talks with the media Monday afternoon after being terminated as head football coach at the University of New Mexico after having a 8-49 record in five years.

The firing of Sheppard came two gest wins, a 34-32 upset of bowl condays after one of his program's big-tender Air Force.

A&M basketball program gets two years probation escaped the death penalty from the NCAA's Committee on Infractions. But to coach Tony Barone, the punishment the Aggies received has the same effect.

"If the NCAA wanted to shut us down and close us down for two years, they did a good job,' Barone said Monday. "But I don't think that's fair. I'm probably not supposed to make observations."

The NCAA placed the Aggies on two years probation Monday for Davis Jr., now an assistant coach mittee said. at Chipola Junior College in Marianna, Fla.

The Aggies will not be permitted to participate in postseason play this season. They also will be limited to two scholarships for the 1992-93 season and can have only eight instead of the usual 15 expense-paid official visits for the 1992 calendar year. In addition, the infractions

COLLEGE STATION (AP) - authority to impose lesser Texas A&M's basketball program penalties if it determines a case is 'unique.'

The university's efforts to gain full presidential control over the intercollegiate athletics program affected the punishment A&M received, the committee said.

"Those actions, combined with the swiftness, thoroughness and decisiveness of the university's response to the matters in this current case, led the committee to determine that this case what it called major violations merited less than the required under former coach Kermit full range of penalties," the com-

"Had not the university's president not responded as he had in both instances, a broader ranger of penalties would have been imposed."

Barone, named in March to rebuild the Aggies' basketball program, was blind-sided by the scholarship ruling.

"I'm stunned by it," Parone said. "The scholarship situation is far more devastating than anything else that could have been done as far as I'm Howard's Desiree Wallace then turned thief as she got a steal and turned it into a layup. This was followed by jumpers by Wells and Huff. The run continued as Mangram scored off an offensive rebound, and point guard LaKisha Wiley passed inside to Rebecca Brown for a basket.

Missy Davis, a product of Abilene Wylie, ended the run with a jumper for HSU, but Howard had a 16-4 lead with 14 minutes left in the half. Davis' long range shots was most of HSU's offense. Davis finished with 19 points, including three three-pointers. Howard scored the first six points of the second half to take a 30-point lead. LeAnn Heinrich passed inside to Huff for two, Huff passed outside to Wiley for a jumper, and Wells passed inside to Huff for another basket. Again Davis ended the rally with a three-pointer, but Howard led 47-17 with 17:06 left.

Wells and Brown followed Huff with 12 points each. Williams was next with seven.

NHL Today

SCOREBOARD Philadelphia at St. Louis (8:35 p.m. EST). The Blues are the only NHL team that has not lost at home this season. They're 4-0-2 at The Arena.

The New York Rangers are 9-1-0 when right wing Paul Broten is in the lineup and 2-4-0 without him. ... Quebec's Owen Nolan leads the NHL with 14 goals in 13 games. ... New York Rangers defenseman Brian Leetch is the assist leader with 17 in 16

STREAKS Montreal takes an eight-game winning streak into Wednesday night's road game against the New York Rangers, who have a six-game winning streak. ... San Jose has a 13-game losing streak and is 0-11-0 on the road and 1-15-0 overall. The Sharks ended a seven-game road trip Monday night with a 4-1 loss to Toronto. ... St. Louis is unbeaten in its last eight games (3-0-5).

SWINGS Toronto is 4-3-1 at home and 0-7-0 on the

STANDOUTS

Los Angeles Kings left wing Luc Robitaille, who led all NHL scorers with 10 points in four games, was named NHL player of the week Monday. He leads the NHL in scoring with 10 goals and 15 assists in 14 games. ... New York Rangers right wing Tony Amonte, who scored eight goals and had three assists in 14 games, was named NHL rookie of the month.

Monday

—John Vanbiesbrouck, Rangers, made 39 saves for his 11th career shutout in New York's 4-0 victory over Calgary. -Wendel Clark, Maple Leafs, scored two goals in Toronto's 4-1 victory over San Jose.

-Steve Thomas and Pierre Turgeon, Islanders, each scored two goals in New York's 6-4 victory over Boston. -Mike Keane, Canadiens, scored 38 seconds into overtime to give Montreal a 3-2 victory over New Jersey.

SIDELINED New York Rangers forward Tim Kerr, out since Oct. 11 with an injured right shoulder, will undergo surgery to correct the problem. Kerr, hampered for the past few seasons by injuries to his left shoulder, will be sidelined indefinitely. He had one assist in five games.

St. Louis recalled defenseman Dominic Lavoie from Peoria of the International League and sent defenseman Randy Skarda to Peoria. ... Vancouver sent right wings Jay Mazur and Andrew McBain to Milwaukee of the International Hockey League.

SUSPENSIONS Boston defenseman Stephane Quintal played against the New York Islanders after a 10-game suspension stemming from a post-game brawl on Saturday was either rescinded or never invoked. Detroit forward Bob Probert, who fought with Quintal, apparently has been suspended for 10 games for his part in the brawl. ... Montreal forward Shayne Corson was suspended for 10 games for leaving the bench to join an altercation in a game against Buffalo on Saturday.

SCOUTING John LeBlanc, who led the American Hockey League with 54 goals in 1989-90 with Cape Breton before sitting out last season in a contract dispute with the Edmonton Oilers, has scored 13 goals in 14 games for the Winnipeg Jets' Moncton affiliate in the AHL. ... Michel Mongeau of Peoria (Blues) leads the International Hockey League in scoring with 11 goals and 21 assists. ... Artur Irbe of Kansas City (Sharks) leads the IHL with a 2.09 goals-

"It was a catch-22. When you're traded, you always want to do well but the guys on the other team are good friends and you have to do it against them." - Montreal's Kirk Muller on facing his former New Jersey teammates for the first time since being traded along with goalie Roland Melanson for Stephane Richer and Tom Chorske during the preseason. Muller scored his ninth goal of the season in the

SEASONS Nov. 5

Canadiens' 3-2 overtime victory.

1983-The New York Rangers and Quebec Nordiques set an NHL record by scoring twice in the first 14 seconds of the third period. Quebec's Andre Savard scored eight seconds into the period and Pierre Larouche answered six seconds

Woman fears doctor's search for trouble Jeane Dixon - horoscope

DEAR ABBY: This refers to your answer to "Out of Ideas," whose wife refused to go to the doctor for checkups.

Your answer was very glib. I, too, refuse to go to the doctor — my reason is fear, pure and simple. I am so frightened of hearing something bad, I just don't go at all. The word "tests" is enough to send my blood pressure soaring. In fact. I can't get an accurate blood pressure reading due to fear of doctors

I'm not as bad as "Out of Ideas" wife; I've gone to the doctor on occasion when I've had uncomfortable symptoms that drove me there. But the experience was sheer torture. The doctors kept saying, "Calm down, calm down" but I simply couldn't. I'm in my 50s and I've never had a mammogram, and I never go for regular checkups.

Dear Abby

I would be delighted to learn how should consider this in relation to caught a malignancy sooner. "Out of Ideas" wife. She may need

DEAR SCARED — and I hope the "to death" is just a figure of speech. I told "Out of Ideas" Short of hog-tying her, there is nothing you can do. Every intelligent person realizes that routine physical checkups (physical and dental) are essential to maintaining good health; and early detection, should there be a problem, has saved many lives.

The help that both of you need is psychotherapy to overcome your fear of doctors. Literally tens of to overcome this deep-seated ter-thousands of women could have adror, but so far, no luck. I think you ded years to their lives had they help, and it has nothing to do with - DEAR ABBY: Our retirement her intelligence. - SCARED TO center runs a trip to the shopping center once a week. Recently I noticed one of the residents put a tube of lipstick in her purse instead of in her shopping cart. I was behind her in the checkout line and saw that she didn't declare the lipstick. Since then, I've been watching her. The week before last, she slipped a bottle of fingernail polish into her bag. Last week, it was toothpaste.

If I speak to her about her pilfering. I know she will deny it and say all sorts of unpleasant things. Still, I am uncomfortable now that I know she is shoplifting.

Shall I tell the store manager? Or maybe tell the other village residents? Or just mind my own business? - IN A QUANDARY

DEAR IN: It would be a kindness to tell the woman privately that you saw her shoplift the lipstick, nail polish and toothpaste. Tell her you fear that if she does it again, she will be caught and asked never to enter that store again - or worse yet, arrested. This would be not only embarrassing, but a blow to her family — and it would reflect badly on the retirement center.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Tremendous per sonal growth and business success are possible. Those contemplating a job change could see their dreams come true. Be patient.
