Turkeys recalled in nine states

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Norbest Inc. is recalling turkeys in nine Western states because of a rotten-egg odor caused by decay.

No illnesses have been reported.

The birds recalled are among 70,000 fresh turkeys sold in Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho, Nevada, Arizona, Montana, Utah and Wyoming, company spokesman Mike Korologos said. Frozen turkeys weren't recalled.

Only turkeys that smell bad need to be returned, Korologos said Monday.

Doomsday clock pushed back

CHICAGO (AP) — The keepers of the Doomsday Clock turned back its hands today to 11:43 p.m. — its farthest point ever from nuclear midnight — to reflect the end of the Cold War.

The clock, which appears on the cover of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists and symbolizes the threat of nuclear war, had stood at 11:50 p.m. since March 1990, after a democratic tide swept Eastern Europe.

"The Cold War is over. The 40-year-long East-West nuclear arms race has ended," the Bulletin said in an editorial today.

Howard County grand jury clears police of wrongdoing

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

A Howard County grand jury found no criminal wrongdoing on the part of city police in connection with 28 complaints of alleged police abuse, including alleged beatings of prisoners.

"There were three or four instances in which the officers could have used better judgment, but the grand jury was quick to emphasize that the officers, the police department is doing a good job," said Texas Assistant Attorney General Shane Phelps. "They identified at least as many situations where citizens could have used better judgment.

"The majority of these cases were meritless," said Phelps, who presented evidence to the seven-woman, five-man jury and was asked by jurors to publicly communicate the jury findings. "They (jurors) had pretty strong feelings that they wanted to endorse the police department. This has been blown out of proportion."

Twenty-seven people testified Wednesday, Thursday and Monday, including at least five police officials. Big Spring Police Chief Joe Cook, Mayor Max Green and attorney Bob Miller of Big Spring were among those testifying.

Miller first publicly revealed the complaints of police actions at a Big Spring City Council meeting in August.

Miller said he was not surprised that no indictments were passed down by the jury and repeated earlier statements that most of the cases did not involve criminal wrongdoing.

"I don't think because there's no indictments that means there's nothing wrong and everything's OK and there were no (justified) complaints," Miller said. "They did say there was some misjudgment. There may be some changes. Lets hope there are."

Miller added, "That takes care of the criminal end of it but you never know what can happen civilly. The burden of proof is different in a

Giving thanks

Anderson Kindergarten Center had an outdoor Thanksgiving Feast for students in 10 classes Monday. The children were dressed as Indians and Pilgrims and costumes were made from paper feathers and paper sack Indian buckskin to cloth Pilgrim dresses with paper bonnets. The top photo shows 5-year-old Pilgrims and an Indian waiting in line to receive their share of the feast. The students also chose Indian names for themselves for the occasion. ## Man killed in four-vehicle wreck near Stanton

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

A Midland man lost his life Monday in a fiery automobile crash on Interstate 20 near Stanton, according to police reports.

A Phoenix, Ariz., man remains in critical condition in Midland Memorial Hospital from the accident, which involved four cars.

Timothy Denham of Phoenix reportedly suffered a front-tire blowout while traveling eastbound on I-20 Monday, police reports stated. His vehicle swerved right, but Denham is thought to have over-corrected, crossing the median into oncoming traffic.

His pickup collided head on with another pickup driven by Walter Wolfgang Krug II, of Midland.

Krug's vehicle burst into flames, from which he never escaped, the reports stated. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Denham's pickup spun and collided with a third vehicle driven by Charlie Galindo Roger of Gardendale. Roger was treated and released from MMH.

Upon impact, a spare tire flew from Roger's pickup bed and struck a 1990 model Chevrolet van driven by Bobby Blaylock of Weatherford, who was not injured.

The accident closed both lanes of I-20 near Stanton for about an hour in the early morning.

Firefighters hose down the charred remains of a pickup that was involved in a four-vehicle accident near Stanton Monday. A Midland man was killed and two others injured in the accident, which occurred on Interstate 20.

Study: Men losing hearing

NEW YORK (AP) — A study suggests that men are losing their hearing faster than scientists thought and that their hearing is worsening from generation to generation.

The federal study also suggests that men over 30 are losing their hearing more than twice as fast as women do through age 80.

Study co-author Jay Pearson said that the cause of the reported hearing loss in men is not known, "but if you want to speculate from what the conventional wisdom is on noise exposure, I would think you'd want to be careful about the noise you're exposed to at work and in your leisure."

The findings also suggest a possible influence from such things as high-powered stereo equipment or medications that affect hearing, he said.

The report should probably not cause concern unless followup research confirms it, said Dr. Alexander Schleuning, chairman of otolaryngology, head and neck surgery at the Oregon Health Sciences University in Portland.

Pearson agreed he "wouldn't want to go ringing alarm bells based on this study."

Researchers studied mostly well-educated volunteers from the middle class to upper middle class, so it is not clear whether the findings apply to the general population, he said. Nor is it known whether the declines researchers found over 10 to 15 years will continue, he said.

Still, the study "raises enough concerns that you definitely want to find out whether this is holding up in other places," he said.

Pearson, a researcher with the National Institute on Aging, spoke in a telephone interview before presenting the work Monday in San Francisco at a meeting of the Gerontological Society of America. He did the work with Larry Brant and other colleagues.

The study is part of the long-running Baltimore Longitudinal Study of Aging. It tracked the results of hearing tests done every two years on a group of 1,158 men and 551 women.

The men were followed for an average of 10 years and the women an average of five. Their ages through the study period ranged from 30 to 80.

The tests focused on sound at 1,000 hertz, 3,000 hertz and 6,000 hertz, frequencies important for understanding speech.

As found in earlier research, men consistently had poorer hearing than did women of the same age at the three pitches tested.

The conventional explanation is that men are exposed to more loud noise from the workplace, military service and leisure activities like hunting and carpentry, but there is little evidence that this accounts for the gender difference in hearing, Pearson said.

The male rate of hearing decline was generally faster than that found for women through all ages tested, especially in the lower frequencies that are more commonly involved in speech, Brant said.

The gender difference in rates of decline was greater for ages 30 to 50 or so than between ages 60 to 80.

That may be because men are exposed to more noise than women are at younger ages, whereas the losses both genders suffer at older ages may come from a different cause, Pearson said.

DALLAS (AP) — A sea of yellow roses filled a federal court room in Dallas to show opposition to a plan to end a 17-year-old dispute over care for the retarded.

The roses were worn by more than 100 supporters of state institutions for the mentally retarded, who appeared in U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders court Monday for a hearing on a plan that would close two of the 13 state schools in Texas.

Group lays claim to 1st Thanksgiving

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Residents of this historic coastal town employed some old-fashioned colonial justice to fend off an attempt by a Texas group to claim rights to the first Thanksgiving.

"Pilgrims" dressed in traditional 17th-century garb subjected 12 stylishly dressed conquistadors to a mock trial Monday.

The Texas group, members of the El Paso Mission Trail Association, said historical accounts show that Spanish explorers held a Thanksgiving ceremony in 1598 — 23 years before the Pilgrims held their harvest feast.

About 50 people watched as the conquistadors arrived — some on horseback, some on foot — at Plymouth Rock, said to be the site where the English settlers landed on Dec. 20, 1620.

The Pilgrims held their Thanksgiving following the harvest in 1621, according to Plymouth historians.

As the sun glinted off the visitors' plumed helmets, Plymouth County Sheriff Peter Y. Flynn promptly "arrested" the Texans on charges of "blasphemy and spreading false rumors."

The Texas Thanksgiving theory could inflict "untold economic damage to those enterprising men and women" who make their living from Plymouth's considerable tourist trade, Flynn said.

The president of the El Paso Mission Trail Association, Sheldon Hall, portrayed Spanish explorer Don Juan de Onate, the conquistador who led the expedition into what is now Texas.

He said he first learned of the Texas Thanksgiving about five years ago when he read "A History of New Mexico," a 1610 account of Onate's expedition from Chihuahua, Mexico, to present-day thinking man knows the truth to be otherwise," Flynn said, speaking in the style of the 17th-century colonists. "It is as solid as the rock that sits in yonder harbor."

During the mock trial at Plymouth's 1749 Courthouse, the Texans submitted two pieces of evidence — phony photographs — proving that the first Thanksgiving was held in Texas.

Hall argued that his 400-member expedition suffered hardships comparable to the Pilgrims' as they journeyed over the Mexican deserts to colonize Texas.

"Send them fleeing," declared Plymouth Selectman Alba Thompson. "Fill their tacos with beach sand and their fajitas with seaweed. May they thirst without end until they recant. History is on our side."

Plymouth Schools Superintendent Bernard Sidman, who presided at the "trial," found the evidence inconclusive.

The Supreme Court earlier had refused to consider arguments that jurors were not allowed to consider evidence that May in his childhood was a victim of abuse.

Sheldon Hall, left, of El Paso, is dressed as Spanish explorer Don Juan de Onate Monday as he debates the origin of Thanksgiving with Plymouth, Mass. selectwoman Alba Thompson, dressed as a pilgrim.

Agents seize ton of cocaine in drug bust

DALLAS (AP) — Law officials have seized more than a ton of cocaine at two East Texas locations and arrested five men on charges of conspiring to distribute the bricks, worth $240 million on the streets.

Of the five men arrested, two have been ordered held without bond, two have been released on bail and a fifth faces a judge today.

Charged with conspiracy to distribute cocaine, they could face a minimum of 10 years in jail to life without parole and a $4 million fine.

The seizure last week of 2,400 pounds of cocaine is the largest in the history of the Dallas offices of Drug Enforcement Administration

BRENTWOOD, Tenn. (AP) — Rudy Gatlin of country music's Gatlin Brothers tried his hand at busing tables and taking orders when an eatery where he was having lunch got busy, the restaurant's owner says.

RUDY GATLIN for more than an hour Nov. 13 at Biddle's Lunch Box outside Nashville, the Nashville Banner said Monday.

"He started waiting on customers, putting orders in the back. Then people started asking him for autographs," said owner Sharon Biddle, who was missing an employee because of jury duty.

"He said he'd always wanted to call an order back through a window," she said.

The Gatlin Brothers' hits include "All the Gold in California," "Broken Lady" and "I Don't Wanna Cry."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elvira, Mistress of the Dark, was host of a Thanksgiving dinner at which the turkey was the guest of honor, not the main course.

Actors River Phoenix and Rue McClanahan brought tofu pot pie and corn chowder to Monday's vegetarian Thanksgiving at the home of Elvira actress Cassandra Peterson, said People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals.

"There is also a theme of life here, for us and for the little turkey who was lucky enough to get invited to our party," Miss McClanahan said during grace.

Among the 30 celebrities attending were "Married ... With Children" star Katey Sagal, former first daughter Patti Davis, radio personality Casey Kasem and singers Jane Wiedlin and k.d. lang.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dack Rambo, who quit the daytime soap "Another World" earlier this year because he has the AIDS virus, says he's leaving behind a career damaged by prejudice.

Rambo, 50 and single, said the role he took in 1985 as Jack Ewing on the "Dallas" began to shrink because of industry bias against men suspected of being gay.

"I knew there were whispers going on behind my back," he said in an interview in Monday's Los Angeles Times. "Either 'He's gay,' or 'He's this or ...' And I thought 'What the hell did I do?' People were just assuming and people didn't really know anything about my life."

Rambo said he is bisexual. He said disclosing his AIDS infection has been "like freedom to me."

"I've never felt better. Some say I've never looked better in a long time," he said.

Convict spared by court

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court late Monday refused to overturn a lower court's stay in the execution of Justin Lee May, only minutes before he had been scheduled to die by injection for the 1978 slaying of a Freeport merchant.

The Supreme Court voted 6-3 not to overturn an earlier Monday night decision by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals to stop the execution, pending consideration of new testimony in the case.

May had been scheduled to die before dawn Tuesday. His attorneys obtained affidavits from two witnesses, both ex-convicts, who said May was not involved in the robbery and slaying at a general merchandise store in Freeport.

When the 5th Circuit panel voted to allow more time to hear new evidence in the case, the Texas Attorney General's office sought a Supreme Court order to continue with the execution.

The Supreme Court earlier had refused to consider arguments that jurors were not allowed to consider evidence that May in his childhood was a victim of abuse.

United States turns over Clark Air Base to Philippines

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — The American flag was lowered for the last time at Clark Air Base today as the United States abandoned one of its oldest and largest overseas installations, damaged by a volcano in June.

About 1,000 people watched as an Air Force honor guard handed the flag to U.S. Ambassador Frank Wisner. U.S. officials said about 250 American troops remained at the base, but planned to leave later today for new assignments.

FLAG LOWERED LAST TIME

"The longstanding U.S. military presence is ending," said Maj. Gen. William Studer, commander of the 13th Air Force, which will move its headquarters from Clark to Guam.

Filipino base employees embraced departing Americans and many in the crowd wept during the two-hour ceremony, marking the end of nearly a century of American military presence at the base about 50 miles north of Manila.

U.S. sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said looters quickly swarmed over the base, taking appliances and other materials. In February, looters stripped another U.S. facility, Camp O'Donnell, of nearly everything the Americans left behind.

In recent years, the United States stationed about 20,000 troops, military dependents and Defense Department personnel at Clark, a major transit and training facility for U.S. and allied forces in the Pacific region.

The 130,000-acre base was heavily damaged in June when nearby Mount Pinatubo erupted, spreading tons of volcanic debris.

U.S. officials decided to abandon Clark and tried to negotiate an agreement to remain at the Subic Bay naval base, which was less severely damaged by the volcano. In September, the Philippine Senate rejected an agreement that would have given the country $250 million in aid in exchange for a 10-year lease. Talks are expected soon on a schedule for withdrawal from Subic.

"I think the general mood is probably excitement about going home, being back with your families again, sadness at leaving your friends here all mixed up with some fatigue from working the way we have for the last four or five months," said Clark base spokesman Lt. Col. Ron Rand.

A 1990 Philippine government report suggested turning the base into an international airport and agricultural business center. But the volcano damage has apparently put the plans on hold, and it was not immediately clear what the Filipinos plan for the site.

"It's sad," said Sgt. Harry Sharp, 27, of Canton, Ohio, a member of the honor guard assigned to Clark in May. "It's a goodbye to your friends and move on."

The closing of the base is expected to further damage the local economy, which is still suffering from the effects of the volcano.

Antonio Abad Santos, mayor of nearby Angeles, said about 30 percent of the city's 250,000 people have moved away in search of jobs elsewhere.

He said at least 15,000 people had lost their jobs when the base closed and only about 400 have found new employment. Placards placed near the base praised the Americans and expressed regret they were leaving. "No country can replace you in our hearts," one of the signs read.

Crime bill may turn tables on GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ever since Richard Nixon's 1968 campaign, Democrats have been on the defensive against charges they are soft on crime. They hope to turn the tables in time for the 1992 campaign by passing a crime bill the Republicans can't live with.

"The president and his party are in a box," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y. "This has always been their trump card in an election."

President Bush and congressional Republicans argue that they are blocking the bill because, after Democratic changes, it favors criminals.

But with his veto pledge Monday, Bush took a step that Democrats dared him to take: accept blame for scuttling a bill that both extends the death penalty and applies the first federal handgun controls.

After vetoes of minimum wage, civil rights, family medical leave, unemployment and a series of abortion issues, the president's latest veto threat gives Democrats the further opportunity to charge that his only domestic agenda is to say "No."

Democrats pushed the bill through a weekend House-Senate conference. In the Senate, Republicans are threatening to block it with a filibuster, although they could allow it to pass and let Bush kill it with a veto that Democrats cannot override.

U.S. sets up refugee camp in Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is building an emergency tent camp inside the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, to aid thousands of Haitian refugees fleeing their troubled nation by boat, administration sources say.

Word of the plan came as the political crisis in Haiti deepened and the flood of refugees increased dramatically.

"It will be a temporary tent shelter, and should be up and ready to go by tomorrow (Tuesday), or at the latest, the end of the week," said one senior administration official.

The State Department reported Monday that 815 Haitians were rescued by the Coast Guard on Sunday. It was the largest single-day total since the exodus began.

Abortion doctor's license suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — The state suspended the license of a doctor accused of botched abortions, including one in which a baby's arm was severed in the womb.

Using emergency powers to suspend a license before holding a hearing, the Health Department on Monday charged that Dr. Abu Hayat's practice constitutes an imminent danger to public health.

The department cited Hayat in cases involving eight patients.

In one case, a woman died after her uterus was perforated during an abortion; in another case, Hayat abandoned a patient in the middle of an abortion when she couldn't come up with an extra $500, the department said.

In a third case — in which Hayat was arrested last week on charges of performing an illegal abortion — he allegedly attempted an abortion on a woman who was as much as eight months pregnant.

Under state law, abortions after the 24th week of pregnancy are illegal unless the life of the woman or the fetus is in danger.

Lenin supporters

MOSCOW — Demonstrators hold up Soviet flags and portraits of Vladimir Ilyich Lenin during a rally on Moscow's Red Square Sunday. About 600 protesters demanded that the body of Lenin should remain in the Lenin Mausoleum on Red Square despite recent upheavals in the communist system.

Free lunch helps pensioners survive

LYUBERTSY, U.S.S.R. (AP) — At the Tomilinsk Industrial Poultry Association, there is such a thing as a free lunch.

A happily cackling group of elderly former employees sits down here to a free meal every weekday at the farm's cafeteria.

The chicken farm's three-course free lunches exemplify a growing number of independently run programs in the Soviet Union aimed at helping people who can't make it on their own without assistance.

For decades, no real charity organizations were allowed because the Communist government claimed poverty and unemployment didn't exist.

"This is the second year we've offered free lunches, but we don't limit them only to people who have already retired," said cafeteria director Galina Skvortsova, a cheerful woman who presided over the canteen as if it were a hotel restaurant. "Anyone who needs lunch can come here."

OPEC opens strategy session today

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — OPEC ministers today opened strategy talks that are expected to endorse high oil production through the winter.

Saudi Arabia's influential oil minister, Hisham Nazer, entered the discussions by saying the kingdom could boost production to 10 million barrels of crude a day, well over its estimated current output of 8.5 million barrels.

Such high output could move

Saudi Arabia — already the biggest oil exporter — within striking distance of becoming the world's leading oil producer. The Soviet Union now holds the title, but its production has been falling sharply this year because of mismanagement and outdated equipment.

The Saudi desire to boost output was likely to be the main topic during the strategy talks by the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as the result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate.

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Guidelines For Screening Mammography Established by the American Cancer Society.

- I. 35-40 years of age - One baseline mammogram.
- II. 40-50 years of age - A mammogram every 1-2 years depending on breast type and risk factor.
- III. 50 years of age and over - An annual physical examination and annual mammogram.
- IV. Asymptomatic women under 50 years of age with significant high risk factors should be examined at appropriate intervals. These risk factors include previous breast cancer and family history of cancer.

V. A symptomatic woman should have a mammogram at any age when she experiences a mass, nipple discharge, skin changes or unexplained breast pain.

A screening mammogram is an x-ray of the breast using extremely low dosages of radiation (usually comparable to dental x-rays) and is designed to find very early cancers.

A female technologist who is highly trained in mammography will perform the examination.

The charge for the screening mammogram is $65.00. The Unit accepts cash, check, Visa, Mastercard and American Express.

Cranston gets a slap on wrist

Of the five senators who used their influence to block federal regulators for the benefit of Irvine savings and loan operator Charles Keating, Alan Cranston was guilty of the most egregious misconduct. But what the Senate refused to recognize when it finally put the matter to rest is that Cranston was hardly alone in accepting large contributions in exchange for legislative favors.

During his arrogant, self-serving defense on the Senate floor, the California Democrat spoke the truth when he asserted that his actions were not out of the ordinary. The inescapable reality is that money does indeed buy influence on Capitol Hill. In that sense, Cranston's defense was an indictment of the entire Senate.

That fact helps explain why Cranston's colleagues were content to duck their responsibility to discipline him by holding a floor vote on the Ethics Committee's findings. Under a deal worked out between Cranston and the committee, the panel's conclusions were merely presented to the Senate. That spared the full Senate from having to pass judgment on Cranston's actions.

When the case of the Keating Five came to light two years ago, the Ethics Committee was more interested in limiting the political damage than in disciplining the senators. Despite damning evidence against Sens. Cranston, Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., Donald Riegle, D-Mich., John Glenn, D-Ohio, and John McCain, R-Ariz., the committee let four of them off the hook. Last February, it concluded that the actions of DeConcini and Riegle "gave the appearance of being improper" and that Glenn and McCain merely "exercised poor judgment."

That left Cranston, who had collected nearly $1 million from Keating. So incriminating was the paper trail documented by special counsel Robert Bennett that the committee was obliged to take some kind of action. For the next nine months, however, the panel delayed consideration of whether to recommend the full Senate censure Cranston, based on "substantial and credible evidence" of his unethical conduct.

The unprecedented 135-minute production on the Senate floor was carefully scripted by the Senate leadership to get rid of the Cranston affair as swiftly as possible.

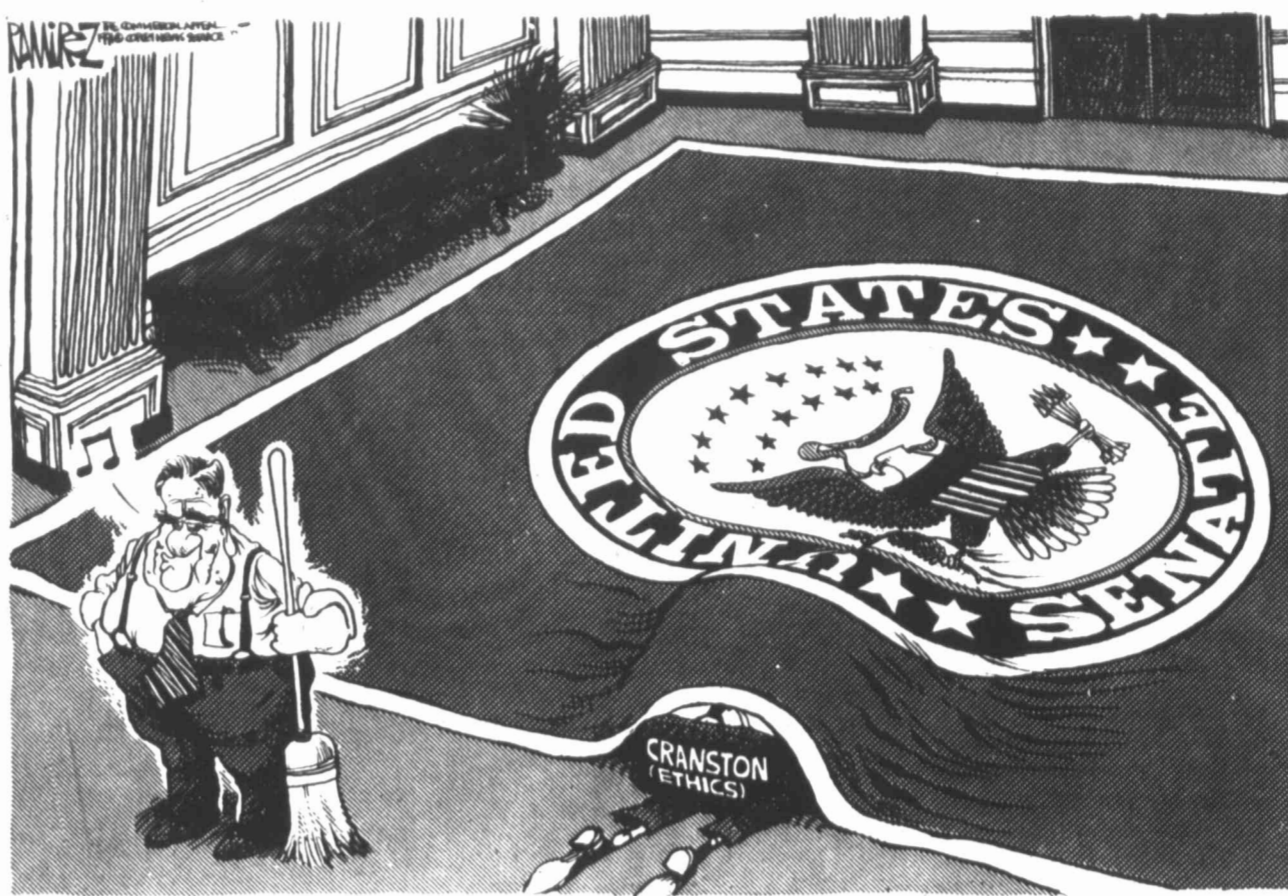

But Cranston, accompanied by his flamboyant lawyer, Alan Dershowitz, departed from the script and tried to explain away his misconduct. The senator's righteous insistence that he had not violated Senate norms, let alone Senate rules, prompted Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H. to jump to his feet and berate Cranston's remarks as "arrogant, unrepentant and a smear on this institution."

In reality, the full Senate shared in Cranston's disgrace by declining to take disciplinary action against him, and by its continued refusal to reform a campaign finance system that corrupts the legislative process.

By merely listening to the committee's findings and then quickly moving on to other matters, Cranston's colleagues essentially winked at his actions. As a consequence, he can always argue that he was never reprimanded by the full Senate. He also can cite the committee's findings that he "acted without corrupt intent" and that he "did not receive nor intend to receive personal financial benefit from any of the funds raised through Mr. Keating."

So, after years of investigation and deliberation, the Ethics Committee has slapped Sen. Cranston's wrist for accepting $1 million in bribes — which turns out not to be a violation of the Senate's rules. No wonder so many Americans hold Congress in contempt.

Fido could get credit card today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nowadays, it seems, the business of America is credit, on plastic cards, and never mind whether the customers can afford to pay the bills.

One senator said the family dog could qualify for a credit card in this market.

After collaborating in the credit card fiasco, President Bush and Congress got the message: Force bank card interest rates down and a lot of people won't be permitted to buy on plastic any more because the banks that issue cards will have to be more choosy about their credit risks.

Common sense suggests that would be a good idea — but the consumer economy is slumping, the banking industry is having trouble, and tighter credit would be bad for business.

The futile exercise on credit cards was a display of government bungling that contributed to a stock market plunge and ended where it began, with bank card interest rates running at about 19 percent, despite Bush's minicampaign to talk them down and a Senate attempt to do it by law.

It began Nov. 12, when Bush said in a fund-raising speech that reducing credit card interest rates would help perk up the economy.

"I'd frankly like to see the credit card rates down," he said. "I believe that would help stimulate the consumer and get the confidence moving again."

That was it, but that was enough. Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., bidding for re-election, grabbed the issue and had it before the Senate the next day. His amendment, effectively cutting credit card interest rates by about 5 percent in current cir-back to the question of who is really paying the bills and what the high interest covers.

About a third of credit card customers seldom pay any interest because they pay their bills monthly and don't carry credit balances. That cut the effective interest rate.

So does the cost of doing business with customers at the other end of the scale, who don't or can't make their payments.

Lobbying against the rate limit, the banking industry said that an interest ceiling would force banks to issue cards only to the most credit worthy customers, meaning that as many as 60 million people wouldn't be able to put it on plastic any more. There were about 242 million bank credit cards in circulation in 1989, according to the consumer group Bankcard Holders of America.

"Credit cards do not have secured backing," said Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, opposing the interest limit. "They are floated to most everybody, and the default rate is much higher."

D'Amato, arguing for it, agreed. "Your dog could get a credit card," he said. "They mail credit cards to everything and everybody that moves."

By some estimates, credit gone bad accounts for nearly 5 percentage points of the card interest rate. To that extent, at least, good customers with credit balances are paying high interest to subsidize bad ones with unpaid debts.

That works as long as the cycle keeps going.

Heart Association says thanks for support

To the editor:

To raise funds for research and education for cardiovascular disease, the Big Spring chapter of the American Heart Association held its first Annual Holiday Style Show on November 19. There are so many people and local businesses to thank.

Thanks to the Big Spring Herald for the excellent coverage in the Lifestyle section and the follow-up coverage during the show. A special thanks goes to China Long who not only served as emcee for the event, but who unceasingly promoted the event during her KBST morning show. Thanks to Big Spring Cable TV for their special announcements.

We also want to thank the Howard College New Dimensions, directed by Joe Whitten, for the outstanding entertainment they provided. We are lucky to have such talented young people who are willing to volunteer their time for their community. A big thanks goes to Ed Rivas who provided piano accompaniment.

We could not have sponsored this event without the support of the many local businesses who allowed us to model their clothing. These businesses included The Cottage, La Lani's, The Look, Beth Ann's, Connie's, Dunlaps, Bogjangles, Formal Affair, Gentleman's Corner, Anthony's, and The Little Extra Boutique. Randy Wallace and Anna Fennell, stylists from La Mirage, worked continually throughout the evening to assure that all the models' hairstyles were perfect. We are indebted to John Buzbee who volunteered his time and expertise to organize the show and help secure models.

We would also like to thank Winn-Dixie for providing refreshments, First Methodist Church for the use of Garrett Hall, Elrod's, Johansen's Nursery and Faye's Flowers for graciously loaning us the use of holiday decorations.

Last, but certainly not least, a tremendous thanks goes to all the models and AHA board members who worked so hard and gave so many hours to help make this event possible and to the Big Spring community for its unflinching support of the American Heart Association.

Special Report: The heart; a users guide

By DANIEL G. HANEY
AP Science Writer

Heart disease remains by far our biggest killer. It takes nearly 1 million lives a year, twice as many as cancer. Yet there's been real progress in prevention and treatment. Since 1950, the risk of dying from a heart attack has fallen 45 percent. And several developments on the horizons are improving the odds of escaping this way of death.

CLOT-DISSOLVING DRUGS
A heart attack starts when a blood clot plugs one of the arteries that feed the heart. Once it simply stayed there, cutting off oxygen to the heart muscle around it. Now something can be done. For those who get to the hospital within two or three hours after their chest pain starts, chances are good that the doctor will administer one of these drugs to dissolve clots: streptokinase, tPA or anistreplase. Given in time, they stop the attack before the heart is permanently harmed.

LOWERING CHOLESTEROL
Cholesterol sticking to the arteries is the chief villain in heart disease. Doctors concentrate on keeping the condition from getting worse. Now it looks possible to reverse the damage. One way is by staying on an extremely low-fat diet and learning to avoid stress. The other is by taking cholesterol-lowering medicines. Eight of them, including lovastatin, cholestyramine, colestipol and gemfibrozil, are on the market, and at least three more are being tested. Both can actually clean out clogged arteries, reducing the risk of heart attacks.

SUPER FAST MRI
Magnetic resonance imaging machines take startlingly clear pictures of such motionless body parts as joints and the brain. But at nine minutes per shot, they are too slow to snap a beating heart. A new version and others in the works will shoot a picture in one-twentieth of a second. The result: stop-action images. They could replace ultrasound, nuclear medicine and other tests, cutting a 1-hour cardiac exam to 10 minutes.

ACE INHIBITORS
When the heart becomes damaged, it often can't pump blood powerfully enough. This condition is called congestive heart failure, and it afflicts 2 million Americans. Evidence is building that blood pressure drugs called ACE inhibitors can help significantly. The medicines lighten the heart's workload. Widespread use could prevent 10,000 to 20,000 deaths and 100,000 hospitalizations every year.

Aspirin as prevention

BOSTON (AP) — Taking tiny doses of aspirin, less than one-tenth of a usual tablet, appears to be an effective way to prevent heart attacks and strokes in people who have already suffered minor strokes, a new study shows.

The report raises the possibility that such minuscule doses might also be a potent way to ward off heart trouble in people who are otherwise healthy, although this idea still must be tested.

Typically, people who have suffered minor strokes are advised to take an ordinary aspirin tablet, which contains 325 milligrams, every day. In today's study, conducted in Holland, doctors found that 30 milligrams a day were just as effective.

The study, conducted by researchers from University Hospital Utrecht in the Netherlands, was published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

In 1988, the Physicians Health Study, conducted at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, found that healthy men who took one ordinary aspirin every other day cut their heart attack risk nearly in half.

The new study suggests that perhaps one-fifth this dose might be just as effective.

Aspirin interferes with the body's ability to form blood clots. Such clots are the principal culprit in heart attacks and strokes. However, strokes can also occur when the blood fails to form clots and bleeding occurs inside the brain.

Experts have said that no one should take aspirin regularly without consulting their doctor first.

GADGETS

More than 200,000 Americans each year have balloons pushed into their hearts to open up clogged arteries. Unfortunately, about a third of the time they close shut again. In development are gizmos to keep blood flowing reliably. Among them: a miniature electric razor that shaves away fatty buildups, a diamond-coated burr that sands the arteries, and lasers that burn away blockages. Also on the drawing boards are tiny wire mesh tubes to prop open arteries.

BATS AND BUGS
When a blood-sucking bat latches onto its prey, the bat's saliva oozes with clot-dissolving proteins. This keeps lunch flowing smoothly. Researchers suspect these creatures' spit will prove a rich source of medicines for freeing people from heart-damaging clots. In development are solvents isolated from the salivary glands of leeches, ticks, black flies, snakes and vampire bats.

UNHEALTHY ANGER
Learning to control nastiness is gaining followers as a way to prevent heart disease. Suspicious, hostile, quick-tempered people are especially likely to suffer heart attacks and cardiac arrest. One reason: Stress hormones like adrenaline trigger the body to pump fat into the bloodstream to provide energy. Over time, this also clogs arteries. Stress-management methods that help people control their moods may also help them live longer.

CHEAP DRUGS
Not every heart advance is expensive or high-tech. The lowly aspirin continues to amaze. It cuts risk of a first heart attack by up to nearly 50 percent in outwardly healthy men and women. It also reduces the chance of a second heart attack or a stroke. Vitamin A is promising, too. Beta carotene, the form you find in carrots and other food, may protect people who already have heart disease. Experts guess it may work by stopping cholesterol from combining with oxygen.

Take heart: New hope for health
Eating right isn't so hard. Just remember one key rule: Cut the fat. Especially saturated fat, the kind in meat and milk. Saturated fat increases cholesterol levels in the blood, which leads to heart disease. Get a grip on your diet and you should be able to lower your cholesterol level 10 percent or 15 percent. Eating right also doesn't have to taste so bad. Just make some substitutions: spaghetti for

SMOKING

Smoking
Doubles risk of heart attacks. Causes even more deaths from heart disease than from lung cancer. Increased hazard goes away quickly after people give up cigarettes.

HEREDITY

Heredity
Heart disease runs in families. Genes influence cholesterol level and ability to lower it through diet. Also contribute to high blood pressure and diabetes.

DIET

Diet
Contributes to high cholesterol, high blood pressure and diabetes, major underlying causes of heart trouble. Saturated fat raises cholesterol. For some, salt aggravates high blood pressure. Obesity is a factor in diabetes.

SEEDENTARY HABITS

Sedentary Habits
Poor physical shape triples risk of dying young from heart disease. Keeping fit holds down weight, improves blood pressure and raises levels of high-density lipoprotein, or "good," cholesterol, which protects against heart attacks.

cheeseburgers, broiled chicken for deep-fried. Or pick a bigger baked potato and a smaller piece of steak, say the size of a deck of cards. No need to feel hungry, certainly. But because low-fat food also turns out to be low-cal, following a heart-healthy diet is a painless way to trim the waistline, too.

FOODS TO EAT
Lots of starch and fiber: Bread, pasta, rice, fruit, beans, vegetables. They're low-fat and low-calorie.

Fish and chicken: Skinless is better. Bake, broil or poach. Don't fry. Lean beef, pork and lamb: Trim off fat. Keep portions small. Low-fat dairy: Skim milk, low-fat soft cheese, fat-free yogurt. Unsaturated vegetable oil: Corn, canola, safflower, olive, soybean, sesame and sunflower. Tub margarine.

FOODS TO AVOID
Fatty Meat: Bacon, bologna, hot dogs and other processed meat, prime beef, cuts rimmed with fat. High-fat dairy: Whole milk, hard cheese such as cheddar and Swiss, butter, ice cream. Saturated oils: Lard, coconut oil, palm oil.

Sweets: Doughnuts, Danish, most cookies, cakes, pies and other baked desserts. Egg yolks: Substitute whites for whole eggs.

WANT MORE HELP?
Read: American Heart Association Low-Fat, Low-Cholesterol Cookbook (Times Books, $25).

For a fancier meal, try "The Chez Eddy Living Heart Cookbook" (Simon & Schuster, $25).

Or write: National Cholesterol Education Program, National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute C-200, Bethesda, Md. 20892.

WHAT TO DO
Exercise won't kill you. On the contrary. Count the benefits: Working out sheds weight, lowers blood pressure, builds stamina, improves muscle tone and raises heart-saving HDL cholesterol. Do it three to five times a week. You'll feel better and look better. Should you see a doctor first? Probably not necessary if you're in good health, start gradually and stick with a challenging but not exhausting regimen. But you should check with a doctor if you're over 60 and not used to workouts, if you already have heart disease, or if you have a family history of heart attacks at young ages.

Walking is great.
Try for three miles a day at a brisk pace. That doesn't mean a window-shopping stroll. Walking doesn't hurt and it's affordable. It requires no teacher, health club or special equipment, except a decent pair of shoes, and is just right for a lunchtime workout.

What else?
Any brisk, sustained exercise, done regularly, will help the heart: Jogging, swimming, biking, dancing, cross-country skiing, aerobics.

The point is to get started and stick with it. It's important to pick an exercise — or two — that you like and fits your schedule.

Where do you stand?
A few simple tests can give you a good idea of the health of your heart:

Blood pressure check:
Probably the most important and also the cheapest. Usually free during any visit to the doctor. If not, ask for it.

Simple cholesterol test:
Provides one number, your total cholesterol. If your reading exceeds 200, you probably need to lower it. Typical cost, $8.

Lipoprotein breakdown:
Tells how much of your cholesterol is HDL, the good variety. Some people with high total cholesterol are actually blessed with unusual amounts of protective HDL. Typical cost, $30.

Electrocardiogram:
Known as ECG or EKG. Measures electrical impulses of heartbeat. Basic test for coronary artery disease, heart rhythm problems and heart inflammation. Typical cost, $80.

Exercise stress test:
Walk on treadmill while hooked to ECG. Provides more information than ECG alone. Sometimes recommended for people starting exercise programs, especially those with known heart trouble or at high risk. Typical cost, $400.

Could love save your life?

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — People with few social or economic resources had triple the heart disease death rate of those with money or someone to confide in, a study shows.

"If you are a patient with heart disease, and you have neither love nor money, your prognosis is worse," said Dr. Redford B. Williams of Duke University.

In a separate study, researchers reported what they said were disturbing findings that women were treated much less aggressively for heart disease than men. Both studies were scheduled for presentation at the annual meeting of the American Heart Association.

Williams said that people who were not married and had no one to talk to had three times the heart disease death rate of people who were not socially isolated.

Fifty percent of the socially isolated patients died within five years, Williams said. "In contrast, among those who were married or did have someone to talk to, only 17 percent had died by five years," he said.

Poorer people likewise had nearly three times the death rate of their wealthier counterparts.

After five years, 24 percent of those with incomes less than $10,000 per year had died. Among those with annual incomes of $40,000 or more, only 9 percent had died, Williams said.

A number of studies have suggested that low social and economic status is associated with a poorer heart disease outlook. The new study refines the earlier work by showing that social isolation and low income are independently correlated with poor prognosis, Williams said.

The importance of the finding is that it suggests relatively simple ways to lower the heart disease death rate, he said.

"The social isolation could be a target for intervention by simply having a nurse visit once a month," Williams said.

The costs of such social support are far less than bypass surgery and other medical procedures used to lower heart disease mortality, he said.

Further research is needed to evaluate the effectiveness of various social support treatments in much the same way that studies are done to evaluate the effects of lowering cholesterol or blood pressure, Williams said.

The other study, by Dr. Charles Maynard and colleagues at the University of Washington in Seattle, reported that clot-dissolving drugs used to treat heart attacks were given to 26 percent of men studied but only 14 percent of women.

Women were also less likely to receive treatment with inflatable balloons used to open clogged arteries, Maynard said.

The findings "call into question whether women are being appropriately treated for heart attacks," he said.

A shocking new device

ANAHEIM, CALIF. (AP) — Implanted devices that shock the heart back to life after cardiac arrest are almost 100 percent effective in stopping people from dropping dead suddenly, a study shows.

Researchers said these devices — which are about the size of a deck of cards and are implanted in the abdomen — may someday become more common than pacemakers, which are given to about 100,000 Americans each year.

"There are a lot of patients out there who should have these devices and don't," said Dr. Roger A. Winkle of Stanford University, who directed the study.

His work, the most extensive study ever of these devices, called defibrillators, shows that they virtually eliminate the risk of a second cardiac arrest. About 300,000 Americans annually drop dead suddenly.

In a review of 650 patients, the doctors found that just 1 percent per year died of cardiac arrest over 10 years of follow-up. An average of 3 percent a year died of heart failure, stroke, cancer and a variety of other diseases.

Winkle said that without defibrillators, at least 30 percent would have died over one to two years. About 60 percent would die over five years, and nearly everyone would be dead within 10 years.

Winkle presented his results Wednesday at a meeting of the American Heart Association.

Dr. Ross D. Fletcher of Georgetown University said the implantable defibrillators are becoming the standard treatment for people who are lucky enough to have been revived by CPR from cardiac arrest.

"It's becoming a better and better therapy," he said.

Tax breaks to be renewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is preparing to extend 12 expiring tax breaks, including a credit that subsidizes low-income housing and creates 100,000 jobs a year.
Lawmakers were considering extensions of the provisions under rules that would bar any other tax amendments, including President Bush's proposed capital-gains tax cut and Democratic plans for reducing the tax burden on middle-income families.
A bill renewing the provisions through next June 30 was approved by voice vote Monday by the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee.
Floor votes were expected before Congress begins its year-end recess this week.

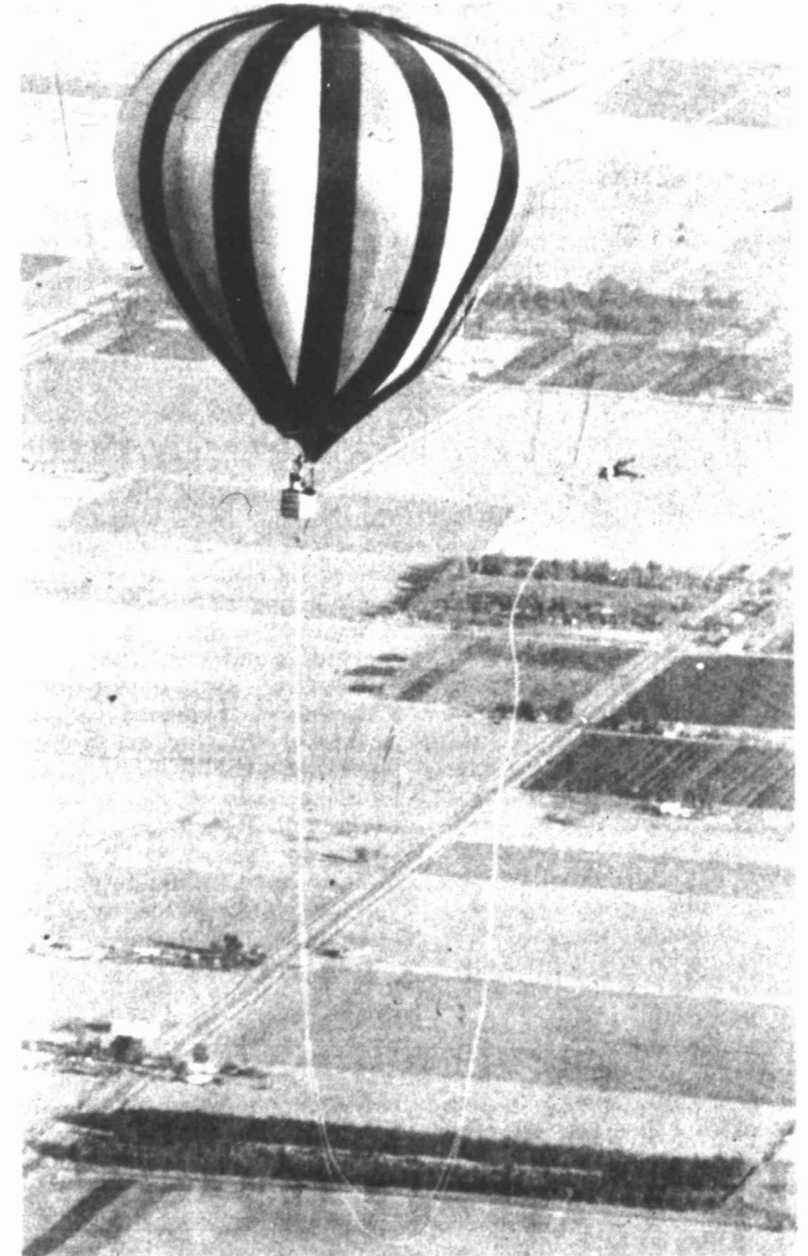

Ill., announced to a mob of lobbyists who filled his Ways and Means Committee room. But he cautioned that "any amendment at any stage will jeopardize passage of this emergency legislation."
Each of the 12 provisions has considerable support, and six of them have the administration's backing. Combined in one bill, the 12 are nearly unstoppable.
With Congress and the administration unable to agree this year on any major anti-recession legislation, the expiring tax breaks are being hailed by lawmakers as a boost for the economy. The prime example is the low-income housing credit, which Bush backed in the budget he sent to Congress in February.
The extensions "are very welcome news for the economy," said Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., who led the fight to renew the provisions without any unrelated amendments. "The provisions serve important national needs and create jobs and economy activity," he said, noting estimates that the housing credit alone is worth 100,000 jobs a year.

The housing credit is the most popular of the dozen tax breaks. It is a credit of up to 70 percent for investors who put their money into the rehabilitation or construction of rental housing for low-income families.
Two of the other provisions are elements of Bush's economic-growth plan. These are a credit for businesses that increase spending for research and special rules that dictate how multinational companies deduct research expenditures against foreign and domestic earnings.

Issue will be resolved by council

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer
After the second and final reading at the Big Spring City Council meeting later today, amendments to the city code will be affected to resolve the alcoholic beverages in the amphitheater dilemma.
The amendments are the result of a compromise between League of United Latin American Citizens representatives and other members of a committee appointed by the council.
In other business, the council will:
• Have second and final reading of a resolution accepting a $15,000 Texas grant for increased enforcement of driving while intoxicated laws.
• Authorize an agreement retaining the consulting firm of Small, Craig and Workenthip to assist the city with its self-funded workman's compensation plan.
• Hear an update on the Beals Creek project from Assistant City Manager Tom Decell.
• Adjourn into executive session to discuss the sale of real estate to Freecom Inc. at the McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark.
• Consider appointments to the Parks and Recreations Board.
• Consider hiring an architect to design the West Side Fire Station.
• Consider approving the adoption of a master plan for the water treatment plants.
• Discuss terms of job termination for the city's employees.
• Hear a report from City Manager Hal Boyd.

Balloon bungee jumper

Doug Hase, founder of a company that arranges bungee jumping in Arizona, leaps off the top of a hot air balloon, about a mile above the desert Monday, attached to a 250-foot long bungee cord. After his jump, Hase cut the cord and used a parachute to return to earth.

civil cases, where juries are asked to weigh the preponderance of the evidence. Criminal juries are told to convict only when there are no reasonable doubts. Miller said he does not have plans to file any civil suits.
The grand jury, which met until 11:30 p.m. Monday, informed Cook of areas where officers could have used better judgment, Phelps said. Cook could not be reached for comment.
But Phelps said many complainants could have avoided problems they had with police. "A number of situations involved citizens just not acknowledging the authority of the police officers," he said.
The grand jury also expressed concern that complainants had not filed complaints with the police department. "They thought that was unfair. Complaints should be filed with the police department. They have a complaint procedure."

Miller said a citizens review board, proposed following the first reports of complaints in August, will provide a better forum to handle complaints. The city council two weeks ago postponed appointing people to the board.
"Tom me that's going to work out great. It should. It protects the police too," Miller said. "So there's been some positive change."
Green said the council is waiting for recommendations from an ad-hoc citizens committee appointed at the council meeting two weeks ago before deciding on the implementation of a citizens review board. That committee is scheduled to meet for the first time on Dec. 5.

Three official trees set up in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barbara Bush, the first lady of Christmas tree topping, performed her annual task with good humor 38 feet off the ground despite near-freezing temperature and a biting wind.
After placing a 30-inch white star on top of the tree, she waved to folks on the ground and with an emphatic gesture told the crane operator in no uncertain terms: "Down."
It was the 11th time she topped the tree, a Colorado blue spruce that stands on the Ellipse on the south side of the White House. She began her yearly rise to the top as wife of the vice president in 1981.
A few minutes before, in the White House, she had accepted delivery of the official White House tree, which will grace the Blue Room where the Bushes greet Christmas guests.
A third tree arrived a mile away to serve as the Capitol Christmas tree. It was brought from the Carson National Forest in New Mexico, complete with rootball.

With that, the Christmas season was launched in the nation's capital.
Mrs. Bush brought along grandchildren Lauren and Pierce Bush, the children of Neil Bush, to accompany her in the cherry picker. The youngsters, aged 7 and 5, showed no fear.
The tree will be lit in a ceremony Dec. 12.
The Capitol tree, a 60-foot blue spruce, traveled for a week from New Mexico. It will be adorned with 6,000 ornaments handmade by New Mexicans and a string of 1,000 lights shaped like chili peppers.
The tree's root ball is 11-by-13 1/2-feet across and four feet deep, weighing 30 tons. A Park Service employee described it as big as a bedroom.
In January, the tree will be planted in the National Arboretum, where attempts will be made to match the native soil conditions.

Schools provide condoms

NEW YORK (AP) — Cities around the nation are joining a slowly growing trend of making condoms available at public high schools.
In Chicago, three school-based health clinics have dispensed condoms since 1985.
New York City's program, being phased in beginning today, is the biggest and one of the most liberal because it does not require counseling or parental consent, and does not involve health clinics.
In Washington state, an advisory council to the governor recommended this month that condoms and other safe-sex products be available in junior and senior high schools. Seattle and Tacoma are considering the issue.
Last month, San Francisco's Board of Education approved two pilot programs, with a provision that lets parents bar their children from taking part, that could begin in January for 3,000 of the city's 20,000 high school students.

The Los Angeles Board of Education may decide in January on a proposal to make condoms available at all high schools, said spokesman Pat Spencer. Three school-based clinics there already dispense condoms, with parental permission.
The Philadelphia Board of Education voted in June to allow distribution on a trial basis at schools that choose to participate. The distribution, which hasn't begun yet, will be handled by health and social service agencies; the school system is prohibited from using its own staff or money.
Boston's mayor and schools superintendent have vehemently opposed condom distribution. But elsewhere in Massachusetts, Cambridge, Falmouth and Martha's Vineyard have approved programs.

Hawks win opener, 113-102

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

Going into the Hawk Classic, Howard Coach Jeff Kidder wanted better play from his reserve guards. Monday night he got it.

Howard College Hawks guard Markee James (10) goes up for an alley-oop pass from Demond Thomas during action Monday night at the Hawk Classic against the Cisco Junior College Wranglers.

The Howard College Hawks defeated the Cisco Junior College Wranglers 113-102 in the opening round. In other action Monday, the Lamar Community College, Colo.

Leading the way in the win was guard Demond Thomas. Thomas came off the bench and finished with 23 points, seven steals and nine assists.

The Hawks appeared to have Cisco on the ropes several times, but couldn't deliver the knockout punch. The Wranglers battled back from a 46-26 deficit in the first half and a 83-64 disadvantage in the second half.

Howard led 83-64. Scott nailed several baskets and Cisco again battled back. Mark Dortch hit a three-pointer and Edwin Randle got a tip-in, cutting Howard's lead to 96-88 with 4:58 remaining.

That's as close as the Wranglers would get however as Howard won its seventh game in eight tries. Cisco falls to 5-4.

HOWARD (113) - Markee James 5-8, 2-3 12; Jason Hodges 1-3, 4-4 9; Chuckie Robinson 8-11, 0-3 16; Mark Davis 4-8, 0-0 8; William Sydnor 5-9, 4-9 14; Marcus Iverson 1-1, 0-0 2; Demond Thomas 7-10, 5-20; Andrew Tillman 1-1, 0-0 2; Will Macon 9-17, 7-8 25; totals 41-68, 22-36 113.

LAMAR 108, WESTERN TEXAS 89 Lamar got 35 points from Conrad Rivers and blew a close game open midway through the second half.

Rivers scored 23 of his points in the first half as Lamar clung to a 54-49 halftime lead. Brett Murphy led WTC with 21 points.

Lamar is 6-5 and WTC is 5-4 for the season.

LAMAR (108) - Wes Nelson 5-12; Mike Gaudette 1-2 4; Eric Williams 9-20; Mike Dixon 4-14; Kevin Briggs 5-10; Conrad Rivers 14-35; Bobby Cunningham 2-10; Duane Clark 1-0 3; Anthony Johnson 2-0 4; totals 40-28-28.

49ers bury hapless Rams, 33-10

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - He'll probably never make anyone forget Joe Montana or even Steve Young, but on Monday night, being Steve Bono was plenty good enough.

The 49ers' first two scores, connected for 23 and 29 yards on their third touchdown drive; then had completions of 24 and 18 yards as they made it 30-0 late in the second quarter.

cutting the Howard lead to 62-55 three minutes into the half. Then the Hawks went on a tear of their own. James fed Sydnor inside, and Thomas did like-wise to Robinson. Robinson followed with another score and James nailed a jumper. With 12 minutes left, Rams seemed to get a break when San Francisco's Sanjay Beach fumbled a punt on the 49ers' 37. But the Rams were called for holding on the play, had to punt again and the 49ers then drove to their fourth touchdown.

ANAHEIM, Calif. - San Francisco 49ers wide receiver John Taylor (82) is on his way to a 78-yard reception in the first quarter Monday night.

Staging a passing show even Montana might envy, Bono threw for 306 yards, completing 18 of 33 passes.

John Taylor had 100 yards in receptions by the end of the first quarter, on four catches that included a short pass he turned into a 78-yard gain. Taylor finished with 121 yards on six receptions.

On the kickoff following the 49ers' second touchdown, the ball bounced off the Rams' David Lang in the end zone and bounced back across the goal line. LA's Vernon Turner scooped the ball up on the 1-yard line and frantically scooted back into the end zone, where he was pinned by the 49ers' Darin Jordan for a safety that gave San Francisco a 16-0 lead.

The Rams' only touchdown came on a 1-yard run by Marcus Dupree in the third quarter, the first NFL score for the former USFL star who is trying a comeback after being out of football for five years with a knee injury.

The 49ers went on to even their record at 6-6 and keep their playoff hopes alive while dealing the Rams (3-9) their sixth straight loss.

Tom Rathman also scored on a 1-yard run, and Dexter Carter added a 3-yard touchdown run.

In the second quarter, the Rams did little right. Their secondary, ranked 22nd in the NFL in pass defense, simply could not stop Bono in the first half.

Bono passes of 24 yards to Jones and 18 yards to Rathman helped the 49ers move down the field again on their next possession, capped by Carter's TD run.

Porkers win without starters

LAHAINA, Hawaii (AP) — Second-ranked Arkansas won without its suspended players to advance to tonight's semifinals of the Maui Invitational, but No. 25 Arizona State couldn't survive the loss of four suspended starters.

Arkansas center Oliver Miller didn't start the game because of disciplinary action taken by coach Nolan Richardson, but he was the big factor in the Razorbacks' 92-83 first-round victory over Minnesota on Monday.

Miller had 23 points and 17 rebounds as Arkansas (1-0) held off a late charge by the Gophers (0-1), who closed within five points at 71-66 with 4:55 to play before Miller led a 6-0 run to seal the victory.

"He triggered us down the stretch," Richardson said. "You've got to remember this is his first game, the rest of the guys have played two exhibition games. But once he got in there, he really got it going."

The Razorbacks are also without three other players — including star forward Todd Day — because of disciplinary actions by Richardson.

Arkansas will face Division II Chaminade, after the host team upset Big East Conference power Providence (1-1) with a 111-108 overtime victory. Senior guard George Gilmore led the Silverswords (1-1) with 37 points, including the go-ahead basket and free throw with two seconds remaining in overtime.

It was Chaminade's first tournament victory after 18 consecutive losses. The Silverswords' last tournament victory was a 77-62 victory over Davidson in 1984.

Rice (2-1) got 26 points and 14 rebounds from center Brent Scott to beat an undermanned Sun Devils team missing four starters suspended for making unauthorized phone calls.

Arizona State (0-1) played without starters Lynn Collins, Jamal Faulkner, Dwayne Fontana and Stevin Smith.

"ASU didn't have all their men, but they still have a very very good team. It was unfortunate circumstances for them, but fortunate circumstances for us," Rice coach Scott Thompson said.

Rice took a 44-27 halftime lead on the strength of a 24-8 rebounding edge that led to many second-chance baskets. Scott had 10 points and 10 rebounds in the first half.

"Big Brent is really a force inside," Thompson said. "He's a tough rebounder. He always comes up with a truckload of rebounds. He really made a big difference."

Arizona State coach Bill Frieder has the option of deciding what games to keep his starters out of, but felt it would be better to sit them at once, although he did keep the possibility of playing one or more of the suspended players.

"I'm glad to get one out of the way," Frieder said. "This is the best way to do it. They (NCAA) gave us the alternative to alternate, but I just can't see doing it that way. But there's a possibility one or more of them may play tomorrow."

Demand to tape sex is part of bigger problem

DEAR ABBY: Over the years, you have provided your readers with numerous comments and some helpful, serious advice. But, Abby, your age and the changing technology have caught up with you — and passed you by. The advice you gave "Living a Nightmare," whose husband wanted to videotape their sex act, was so off base. I had to let you know that you are out of touch with today's men and technology.

Today's women claim that the men in the U.S. Senate are not in touch with women's needs (Professor Anita Hill's charge of sexual harassment against Judge Clarence Thomas), and you are not in touch with today's men's needs. Abby, men have been capturing the sex act through photography since the invention of the camera. So, for your information, a man does not have to have a tumor on the brain to possess an age-old desire.

Abby, had you been up on the video technology available today and attuned to male desires, you would have given your correspondent at least one of the following options: 1. View themselves on the monitor without a tape in the camera. 2. Tape the act and she keeps the tape. 3. Make him agree that the two of them will be the only viewers of the tape. 4. Use the tape as a bribe to get all those things she's always wanted and couldn't get before.

Abby, you need either to retire or get a male adviser for males' problems. — ALPHONSE BUSH, LOS ANGELES

DEAR ALPHONSE BUSH: I heard from other video-wise male readers who also disagreed with my answer, but there will be no mea culpas from this corner, because "Living a Nightmare" said that her husband's behavior had changed so noticeably that even his co-workers had mentioned it.

Furthermore, the issue was not the husband's wanting to videotape their sex act — it was his heavy-handed tactics. When she advised her husband that having their sex act captured on a videotape made her uncomfortable, he told her that he would not have sex with her again unless it was on film! And when she suggested they consult a marriage counselor, he flatly refused. After her husband had been "badgering her every night for two months," she finally wrote to me.

I have always felt that what happens in the bedroom of two consenting adults is their own business, providing they are both agreeable and neither is harmed. The wife felt that his request was degrading, but he continued to badger her; therefore, I concluded that his behavior was sick. Whether it was a symptom of a potentially life-threatening illness would have to be determined by a medical doctor.

I rest my case and stand by my answer, even though it's entirely possible that the husband was more brutish than brain-damaged. P.S. I already have a male adviser. I sleep with him.

Readers can write to: Dear Abby at P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Be careful about choosing sides at work. Early in 1992, the economic winds blow good news your way. Review your investments next March. You could find just the business opportunity you have wanted. In August, a low-key approach will work best with conservative financial backers. Sentimental and generous, you find it difficult to say "no" to people. Put your family's needs first next November.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: author James Agee, actress Robin Givens, country singer Eddie Rabbitt, journalist Gail Sheehy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Research opens new doors for those in sales. Be alert to technological changes that will help you personally. Romance could complicate some family plans. Be diplomatic and you will get what you want.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Consistency plays an important role in shaping your career. Many eyes are watching you now. Perform to the best of your ability. Be discreet.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stay alert and there is no limit to how far your career can go. Asking the right questions produces some extraordinary answers. Be careful how you use certain inside information.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): This is no time to be cautious. Strike out in a new direction. You could have the Midas touch when it comes to making money for yourself and your employer! Reinvest profits.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Something that is usually expensive could have a low price tag this week. Investigate further. Making your own plans increases your chances for success. A conversation proves reassuring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Do not let wanderlust carry you away from your duties just when higher-ups have their eye on you. Work now and play later! Your sense of style can be a tremendous asset.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It is not too late to build a foundation for the future. Open up more when talking with a child. A loving heart is a special gift. You profit from someone else's mistakes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take control of a situation that could affect your future before it is too late. A career goal that has eluded you in the past now moves within reach. Redouble your efforts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Those involved with the introduction of new ideas or products enjoy good luck now. Travel is favored. The arts influence both your outlook and your spending. You continue to choose quality over quantity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): As your confidence grows, so does your success. Work hard, but save more time for family life. Protect your health by eating right and getting enough rest.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Making excuses will only put you in a deeper hole. Face reality and you will soon devise a winning strategy. Financial backing will come through old friends. Repay a benefactor with loyalty.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Document everything you do at work or someone else's mistakes could cost you as well. You must have faith in what you are doing before you can convince other people. Review your research.
