Board appointed to cut boards

DALLAS (AP) — The mayor of Dallas thinks 46 city boards and commissions are too many, so he has created a 47th commission to recommend ways to eliminate some panels and streamline city government.

Friday, Mayor Steve Bartlett named City Council member Paul Fielding to head a four-person sunset commission.

"It would be my hope we could come back with some streamlining. I do have a strong opinion that 46 independent boards is weighty, at least," Bartlett said.

Two die in crash

SAN MARCOS (AP) — A single-engine experimental airplane crashed and burned Saturday evening, killing both men on board, officials said.

The plane went down about 5 p.m. in a field near the intersection of Interstate 35 and Posey Road, the Department of Public Safety reported.

"Witnesses at the scene said the plane came down basically in a nose spin," said DPS trooper David Stading. "It came straight down; there was no angular impact."

Both victims were pronounced dead at the scene. Their names were not immediately released.

Attendees supportive of prison

BILL CROOKER

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Most of about 50 people who attended a public meeting Friday to discuss a proposal to locate a state prison in Howard County agreed with the effort.

A prison could boost local jobs by 2 percent-6 percent, increase the county population — not including prisoners — by 2 percent-5 percent and pump $20 million to $60 million in annual purchases into the local economy, according to various figures and estimates. It would be the third prison built here.

Concerns of effects on property values and safety were raised at the meeting, held at First United Methodist Church, by one married couple that live near the proposed site near McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark, but most people who commented were generally favorable.

At the end of the one-hour meeting, 47 of those who attended signed petitions made available at the meeting to support a prison. Nobody signed a petition against it.

which also was available, but Big Spring native Eddie Arnold and his wife, Candy Arnold, promised to later circulate petitions against it.

"It brings in more potential danger to my children and other peoples' children," complained Mr. Arnold, who lives within a half-mile of the proposed site.

Other people at the meeting disagreed, saying more law enforcement professionals would actually help keep communities safer.

"We've had more problems on one street in Big Spring than we've had in 11 years from the prison system (consisting of two local federal facilities)," said former Big Spring Mayor Cotton Mize.

"The criminal justice system is quite well administrated," assured Isroe Cooper, a local minister who grew up in Huntsville — site of the state's largest prison — and who has been associated with prisons in several states and foreign countries.

"A unit of the Texas Criminal Justice system would be an extremely wonderful benefit to the economy of Big Spring, Texas," Cooper said.

The local State Prison Coordinating Committee, which conducted the public meeting, is expected to finalize a bid next week for either a 2,250-bed minimum-maximum security prison or a 1,000-bed minimum security prison or drug rehabilitation center.

It is the third attempt since 1989 to locate a state facility here.

Enough rest, it's back to the books

By MARSHA STURDIVANT Staff Writer

As Christmas vacation comes to a close, more than 6,400 area students and 525 teachers are getting ready to re-enter the hallowed halls of education.

"I'm ready for school to start. There's nothing to do and I'm bored," said Angee James, 17, a sophomore at Big Spring High School.

James said she's spent her vacation visiting relatives and going on dates. "And we've had our share of car trouble," said James. She said she helped push more than one out-of-gas or stuck-in-the-mud automobile while on vacation.

Nicole Faultner, 9, a fourth-grader at College Heights Elementary, said she's "a little glad school's starting."

"School is sort of fun, but I've liked staying with my mom. I had a real good Christmas, I got two Barbies and a Ken and lots of Barbie clothes and a Barbie case."

"And I got some boots like my mom's and a vest from my cousin and a real, real little box to put my earrings in," Faultner said.

Bucky Crenshaw, 14, who attends eighth grade at Runnels Junior High School, said he stayed in Big Spring during the holiday and had a nice Christmas.

"I am kind of glad school's starting. I've been kind of bored. I've been sitting around the house, but I did go back to basketball practice," said Crenshaw, who said he received a basketball for Christmas.

students in Coahoma. More than 120 teachers in both districts return Monday for a teacher's work day.

Garden City's students returned to school Thursday. Those 404 students will have final exams on Tuesday and Wednesday, about 32 teachers will have a work day Thursday, and school will dismiss for the Glascock County Stock Show, scheduled for Thursday-Saturday.

Big Spring students, about 4,600 strong, return Monday for regular classes. More than 370 teachers will also be returning. Students and teachers alike will begin preparing immediately for the semester's end and mid-term exams.

Big Spring's first semester ends in about a week. Garden City's ends this week, and Coahoma and Forsan ended their semester before the Christmas break.

Registration for the spring semester at both Howard College and the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf begins Monday.

Residents saddened by closing

By MARTHA E. FLORES Staff Writer

Furr's Supermarket, 900 11th Place, closed its door Saturday evening after more than 35 years in business.

The grocery store was nestled in the residential area near Washington Boulevard and the prime location lent itself to neighborhood shopping. Residents in the area are saddened to see the doors close.

"All the neighborhood has been talking about the closing," said Lucy Knox. "It was surrounded by so many homes. People could walk to the store if they wanted to. Older people did not have to drive as far."

Knox lives five blocks away from the store and has shopped there since it opened in 1957.

"It was very much a neighborhood store," she said. "When shoppers went in, we would visit with the produce clerk, the butcher and the checkers."

With son Martin "riding shotgun," Cindy Correa shops for the last time at Furr's Supermarket on 11th Place. The store closed Saturday evening.

consolidating with the store in the College Park Shopping Center.

Many of the Furr's employees have been there for more than 10 years. Customers were well acquainted with the familiar faces they saw each week.

Furr's Supermarket headquarters in Albuquerque, N.M. announced the closing early December. Since the announcement, loyal customers have written to the company expressing their desire in keeping the store open at its location.

"We received letters from customers who had shopped there for many years," said Furr's public relations officer Sharon Maines. "I am answering each letter and enclosing coupons in hopes of encouraging shoppers to continue to shoppe with Furr's at the College Park location. "Anytime we close a store we receive letters. We hate to displace those people but unfortunately it is something that cannot be helped."

Furr's is consolidating its efforts into one store in order to be more competitive and bring better service to its customers, said Delwyn James, director of human resources for the company.

Texans forced from homes

BAILEYS PRAIRIE (AP) — Jerry Svetlik stood in the garage of his five-month-old home Saturday watching his front yard disappear in the rising waters of the Brazos River and Oyster Creek.

"If it had been a few years, that'd be one thing. But we've just barely moved in," said Svetlik, who until his brick home was completed in August had lived in a mobile home on the property for a decade.

Overnight, the water in his yard rose 13 inches and by noon Saturday, another 2 to 3 inches, Svetlik said. "By tomorrow, this will all be under water."

Svetlik and neighbors in this community of 410 people live behind a drainage ditch built after a 1957 flood to protect the city of Angleton, 15 miles east.

"It's going over the levee now and they're telling us to expect two to three feet more before it's through," said next-door neighbor Willie Baylor. "We're going to get a lot of water."

But residents were high and dry at Angleton, about 40 miles south of Houston. Fifty-seven people spent the night at the Red Cross shelter at the Early Childhood Center. Many were from Holiday Lakes, a community of about 1,000 in the southwest portion of Brazoria County.

"The Brazos River and Oyster Creek, they've met. There are several little lakes around there and the water's coming up pretty quick," Red Cross shelter volunteer Emma Stanford said. "There are a few houses there that don't have problems, but most of them are leaving."

"The Coast Guard is out there, pulling out the people who want to leave," she said. "But it's only a voluntary evacuation."

"We've been here since New Year's Day," said Pat Allen of Holiday Lakes, who was at the shelter. "We left early because of Chris." Her 14-year-old son has mucopolysaccharidosis, a degenerative genetic disease that requires tube feedings, oxygen and constant surveillance.

"When we left, there wasn't even water on the road, but we didn't want to wait until even an ambulance wouldn't be able to get through," said Sue Armstrong, Chris' aunt.

The Coast Guard used six boats and 24 guardsmen to move more than 28 residents from their homes on Friday night and

Officer suspended for DWI charge

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas police officer has been suspended for 30 days without pay on administrative charges of driving while intoxicated and evading arrest, authorities say.

Artealous C. Christian III was suspended Friday over the incident, which happened in August, according to Dallas police internal affairs spokesman Capt. Doug Sword.

Sword said Christian was off duty, driving a motorcycle early Aug. 21, 1991, when another officer pursued him for speeding.

Sword said Christian lost control of the motorcycle, but passed a breath test after the brief chase.

Sword said a criminal charge of driving while intoxicated against Christian was dropped, but the department's administrative rules differ from state laws, and the department found Christian had violated department rules.

New mayor starts overtime program

HOUSTON (AP) — Acting quickly on his main campaign promise, Mayor Bob Lanier has announced a police overtime program to put up to 200 additional officers on Houston streets starting Monday.

Lanier said he will use $560,000 in seized drug money, earlier planned for undercover operations and investigations in high-crime areas, to pay overtime for 200 officers through the end of January.

Lanier said the overtime plan would put about 50 percent more officers on patrol between 6 p.m. and 3 a.m. each day, the highest crime period. "We expect an added measure of safety, and we will be monitoring carefully along the way to get that increased safety," Houston Police Chief Elizabeth M. Watson said.

Rep. Pete Gallego, D-Alpine, twirls a jalapeno the second day of a special session of the 72nd Legislature.

Lawmakers mull over redistricting

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House tentatively passed a new redistricting plan Saturday, but the U.S. Justice Department slapped a Democrat-backed Senate district proposal by saying its prior approval of that measure no longer applies.

The House plan, opposed by Republican legislative leaders, was tentatively approved 79 to 56 after about two hours of debate. Lawmakers said they expected another vote to give the measure final passage later in the day.

Under the plan, a House redistricting map imposed by a three-judge federal panel would be used for 1992. The judges handed down new legislative maps in a lawsuit brought by Republicans.

Beginning in 1994, the bill would replace the federal judges' map with a plan almost identical to a settlement plan agreed to by a majority of House members and minority groups, which also sued the state to win greater representation.

Republican leaders unsuccessfully pushed a different plan that they said would be fairer to GOP and minority interests.

Rep. Eddie Cavazos, chairman of the Mexican American Legislative Caucus, said the majority of that group decided to back the bill even though they dislike using the judges' plan for 1992.

"We view this as being able to get eight years of what we want, and we'll work on '92 probably through the courts," said Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi.

Lawmakers draw new district lines every 10 years after the federal census, in order to adjust for population changes.

Officials probing nursing home death

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Health is investigating the strangulation of an 87-year-old woman at a nursing home with a history of violating state rules.

Investigators from the department's Bureau of Long Term Care on Friday went to the Regency Village Care Center in southwest Austin to begin looking into the death of Opal Byrd.

Regency Village is one of 403 statewide nursing homes listed on a recent health department report of facilities with a history of non-compliance with state rules.

Janice Caldwell, head of the Long Term Care division, said Regency Village, which has been open less than three years, has averaged 19 complaints a year, nine above the state average.

The facility is owned by Gary Bowers of San Antonio, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

The San Antonio phone directory lists two Gary Bowers. One phone number was unlisted, and a man at the other number said, "I'm not interested" before hanging up when contacted Saturday morning by The Associated Press.

Ms. Byrd, formerly of Cross Plains, was found dead Wednesday in her bed at the nursing home. Her body was parallel to the bed railing, but her head was under the railing, Ms. Caldwell said.

"We got a call from a concerned citizen on Thursday," Ms. Caldwell said. "He said he had reason to believe that this person had died in the middle of the night. He suspected foul play."

The Travis County Medical Examiner earlier ruled that Ms. Byrd died of an accidental strangulation, said Les Carpenter, an investigator for the medical examiner's office. Two aides were on duty the night of the death, the newspaper said.

Grand Prairie cemetery vandalized for 5th time

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — A handful of volunteers trying to maintain the graves of ancestors at Estes Cemetery say they are growing weary after five incidents of vandalism at the site in less than two years.

"Someone actually tried to dig them up. These grave markers are like museum pieces. They cannot be reproduced," said Beryl Gibson.

Volunteers say they are struggling to maintain the isolated 1-acre cemetery, which includes the graves of six Civil War veterans and one Mexican War veteran. One volunteer estimates the cemetery will cost $60,000 to $100,000 to restore.

"Everyone worked so hard to clean it up that I cannot believe someone would do this. That's our ancestors out there," said Tommie Hance.

The Hance family has owned the cemetery land in this Dallas suburb since 1855. In the latest incident last month, 32 tombstones were damaged, including for the second time the tombstone of Frances Back Nifong's great grandfather.

"Just the thought of vandals destroying the cemetery makes me physically sick. We have been trying to keep the place really nice . . . but look what has happened."

Frances Nifong physically sick. We have been trying to keep the place really nice . . . but look what has happened," Ms. Nifong said.

Ms. Gibson said vandals have regularly smashed and knocked over ornate Italian marble tombstones and last year stole six tombstones and dumped them near Stephenville.

Ms. Gibson said she had to retrieve the stolen tombstones.

Because the cemetery is at the end of a dead-end road, police said they have had no luck in catching the vandals.

Crowd was culprit in fatal stampede

NEW YORK (AP) — Victims' relatives blamed police, who blamed college administrators, who blamed promoters, who blamed police. But in the circle of recrimination that followed the deadly stampede at City College, almost no one pointed at another culprit: a crowd that spawned a beast.

The beast was something more and something less than the 3,000 to 5,000 individuals who showed up for the rap stars' basketball game in Harlem on Dec. 28.

The beast smashed glass doors leading to the gym building, surged past ticket collectors and "bum-rushed" those in front, piling hundreds of innocents into a suffocating heap at the bottom of a staircase.

The beast bent a light pole in front of the gym building; it pestered rappers for photo ops and autographs in the morgue of the gym floor, distracting those who were trying to help the injured; it laughed and joked outside amid the despair; it robbed the dead.

The beast was personified by the gang of rowdy youths at its heart, but it grew along with the panic and terror they instigated. It behaved disgracefully before, during, and after the crush. It killed nine people.

Those who saw the beast that night will never forget it. Lynette Delane was waiting in line outside the building. "A bunch of guys said: 'Let's push! Let's push!' People just started falling and getting smashed. ... No one cared. They wouldn't stop pushing."

William Kirksey was among the rushers who fought his way in behind some rap stars. "Everybody was doing, 'One, two, three — push!' We were getting in, we was moving."

First the crowd filled the lobby, then it pressed down on hundreds of people waiting in the stairway leading to the gym door.

"I saw people climbing over other people to get inside," said Joie Binns.

Fatal help

Officials lift the "Help" sign on the car belonging to a murder suspect near Los Banos, Calif. Friday. The sign was used to lure the murdered man, who stopped to render aid. The suspect was fatally shot after a 300-mile chase.

Loyalist group claims first killing

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — An outlawed pro-British extremist group claimed responsibility Saturday for the first killing in Northern Ireland this year.

The Ulster Volunteer Force said in a statement that its gunmen had killed Kevin McKearney, 32, on Friday in his family's butcher shop in the village of Moy, 30 miles southwest of Belfast.

The group, responsible for 19 of the 94 deaths in political and sectarian violence last year in Northern Ireland, did not say why McKearney was chosen as a target.

The statement, given to a Belfast radio station, said only that if the Irish Republican Army continued its "campaign of genocide against the Protestant people, they must expect to pay a heavy price."

The "loyalist" gangs are based in the Protestant community and consider themselves "counterterrorists" opposing the IRA's armed campaign against British rule.

West defers eight republics' debts

PARIS (AP) — A group of 17 Western creditor nations agreed Saturday to allow eight former Soviet republics to suspend debt payments until the end of 1992.

The agreement allows deferral on the principal only of medium- and long-term external debts contracted before Jan. 1, 1991, and falling due between Dec. 5, 1991, and the end of 1992, according to a statement.

A well-placed participant at the meeting said the deferral involved

$3.2 billion. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

The decision came after two days of closed-door meetings by the group of 17 nations, a delegation for the republics headed by Petr Aven, co-chairman of the Inter-State Council on Supervision of Foreign Debt Servicing, and Tomas Alibegov, first deputy chairman of the Vnesheconombank, the former Soviet foreign trade bank handling such affairs for many of the republics.

Arabs delay departure to peace talks

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordanian, Syrian and Lebanese delegates to the Middle East peace talks delayed their departure for Washington on Saturday to protest Israel's decision to expel 12 Palestinian activists.

Palestinian leaders, meanwhile, debated whether to urge a boycott of the next round of talks, scheduled to resume Tuesday. It was not clear whether the other Arab delegations would abide by any PLO demands. On Friday, Palestinian delegates from the occupied territories announced they would delay leaving for the talks and urged Washington to pressure Israel not to expel the 12 Arabs, accused of links to anti-Israeli groups in the occupied territories.

Jordan, Syria and Lebanon postponed their departures on Saturday and gave no indication of when they would leave.

Republics asked about U.S. POWs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration has given former Soviet republics the names of more than 50 Americans missing in action from World War II through Vietnam who might have been moved to the Soviet Union, officials say.

"It is a list of people worth checking out," said one official, who spoke on condition of anonymity and would not release the list. "These aren't necessarily people we think are or were there."

The names include Americans who fought in Asia during World War II, crews from warplanes downed near the Soviet border during the Korean War and prisoners of war taken in Vietnam, officials said.

The Defense Department has assembled a list of about 50 names of World War II and pre-Vietnam War MIAs, officials said Friday.

The State Department has also discussed with the former Soviet republics the cases of several Americans missing since the Vietnam War, he said.

American Indians planning run

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dennis Banks wants to spread a message, a big one about world harmony. To get it out, he's reaching into American Indian tradition and organizing a Sacred Run the length and breadth of the Western Hemisphere.

Banks, best known as co-founder in 1968 of the American Indian Movement and now its national director, has traded in his militant label of two decades ago. Inspired by a 1977 meeting of American Indian elders, he directs the long-distance running event with a spiritual purpose. The objective isn't to find a winner, he said, but understanding and unity.

"The relationship between human beings and the planet — that relationship is called harmony," Banks said in an interview from the Sacred Run office in Newport, Ky., across the Ohio River from Cincinnati.

Drinking still reaps New Year's toll

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

For more than a decade now, the slogans have been pounded into the American psyche: Drinking and driving don't mix. If you're going to drink, don't drive. Friends don't let friends drive drunk.

They reach a crescendo at the end of each year, when figures show that drunken driving fatalities rise along with holiday drinking.

And they have worked. The percentage of fatal automobile accidents involving alcohol has declined from 57 percent in 1982 to just under 50 percent in 1990, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

For New Year's Day, the most besotted of American holidays, the drop has been even more impressive: from 83 percent in 1982 to 62 percent in 1990.

For 1990, that still meant about 80 people died on New Year's Day in alcohol-related automobile crashes. No statistics are available yet for this New Year's. However, cautionary tales abound.

"It was a bad, bad scene — one of the worst accidents we've had in a while," Perry County (Ill.) Sheriff's Deputy Bill Eyer said. He was referring to a crash early New Year's Day that left three young men writhing in agony for hours. But it could have been worse.

"Back-riding" — drinking beer while cruising the back roads — is a popular pastime among teens

The percentage of fatal automobile accidents involving alcohol has declined from 57 percent in 1982 to just under 50 percent in 1990, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

and young adults in southern Illinois, Eyer said. And that, apparently, is what the three men were doing when driver Richard Frederking, a 21-year-old from Percy, Ill., lost control of his car at the bottom of a long hill on an isolated rural road.

The car swerved off the road, knocking down small trees as it sailed 100 yards along a ditch before coming to rest on a guardrail, Eyer said.

Police are uncertain how much time elapsed before they were notified of the accident by a passerby. But it was long enough for Frederking, who fractured his knee when he was tossed from the car, to crawl far down the road seeking help.

The two passengers — Dennis Eggemeyer, 21, and Jeffery Giacomo, 21, — were both trapped in the car. It took authorities more than two hours to extricate them.

"They were screaming in pain, the whole time," said Eyer, one of the first on the scene. "Parts of metal had gone through their legs."

The car and its passengers reeked of alcohol, said Eyer. A beer keg found in the trunk of the 1980 Buick Regal was nearly empty, he said.

Frederking was charged with driving under the influence and driving too fast for conditions. All three men were hospitalized.

In Hawaii, a drunken driving suspect hanged himself in a city jail. In Florida, a truck driver struck and killed an intoxicated pedestrian. In North Carolina, a drunken driver drove into a tree and died.

And in Maryland, not quite five hours into 1991, cab driver Charles Woodworth picked up a passenger at a bar in the Baltimore suburb of Ferndale. Minutes later, a car crossed the center line of Baltimore-Annapolis Boulevard and crashed head-on into his cab.

Woodworth survived, as did his passenger, Marie Shives. The man driving the other car died, and police said he appeared to have been under the influence of alcohol. The driver, Joseph Gerard Brauns, 32, became Maryland's first traffic fatality of 1992.

David Jones was driving Linda Loveless to a bus station in Johnson City, Tenn. It was New Year's Eve, she was planning to take a bus to Florida to visit her ailing mother. Jones had been drinking, police said later, and that may have slowed his reactions when a bear appeared in front of the car on U.S. 19 in rural northeast Tennessee.

The car hit the bear, veered to the right, left the road and struck a rock wall. Ms. Loveless, 50, was killed, as was the bear. Ms. Loveless' son, 20-year-old Brian Loveless, was critically hurt.

The 24-year-old Jones was treated for minor injuries at a hospital. No charges were immediately filed against him, pending the results of blood-alcohol tests.

Tennessee Highway Patrolman Steve Galyon said four empty beer cans and a nearly empty bottle of tequila were found in the car.

"Any time you mix alcohol and driving, you are playing with death," Galyon said. "I go to many accidents involving fatalities and it always amazes me why people do this. And it seems the innocent people die. I wish the general public would take it more seriously."

Three young people were returning to Montevideo, Minn., from a nearby New Year's party when the driver lost control of his pickup. It rolled on a country road.

All three were thrown from the pickup, including 17-year-old Leslie Lokken, a high school student who was a passenger. She died; the two young men with her were injured.

Beer cans were later found in the vehicle.

Water is the second most important physical body need.

The U.S. Public Health Service has stipulated that water for drinking and cooking shall not exceed 500 parts per million* and this limitation has been endorsed by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). THE 65% WATERY HUMAN

The amount of water in the human body, averaging 65 per cent, varies considerably from person to person and even from one part of the body to another (right). A lean man may have as much as 70 per cent of his weight in the form of body water, while a woman, because of her larger proportion of water-poor fatty tissues, may be only 52 per cent water. The lowering of the water content in the blood is what triggers the hypothalamus, the brain's thirst center to send out its familiar demand for a drink.

Agriculture's valuable role

The first major local event of 1992 unfolds this weekend at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The annual Agricultural Appreciation Dinner and Show will draw an estimated 400 persons Friday night while the first West Texas Ag Expo on Saturday and Sunday is expected to draw upwards of 4,000 persons.

The dinner is a long-standing event underwritten by individual and business members of the community in order to show appreciation to farm and ranch families for their significant contribution to the economy of the area.

And those involved in agriculture will have the opportunity to visit with Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Rick Perry, R-Haskell, who confirmed Thursday that he would attend the dinner.

On Saturday and Sunday, expo-goers will be able to view agricultural equipment and supplies displayed by 65 industry-related businesses from across Texas as well as from Pennsylvania, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

A number of workshops are also scheduled, as is a 1 p.m. appearance Saturday by Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford.

Such an exposition is possible only because of the hard work and long hours put in by numerous members of the Crossroads Country community.

The expo is sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce and TU Electric. It is co-sponsored by a total of 17 area businesses and the Big Spring Convention and Tourist Bureau.

As more and more Americans move off the family farm or ranch and into the city, our Agricultural Appreciation Dinner and Show and West Texas Ag Expo serve to remind us of the vital role our farmer and rancher neighbors play in our lives.

Thank you.

Thank you for basketful of lovely things

To the editor:
A few days before Christmas a nice man knocked on my door and stood with a large clothes basket full of beautiful things to eat, use and enjoy. I was overwhelmed at all the lovely things. He said he was from the VA Medical Center. So I wish to say "thank you" to Mr. Conrad Alexander, director, and the entire staff at the VA

Medical Center and all the folks from "Meals on Wheels" for helping me have such an outstanding Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. I am so thankful to be from our friendly city of Big Spring with all our thoughtful people. Bless each of you.

Prisoner would like to exchange letters

To the editor:
Dear sir, would you be so kind and generous enough to print this letter for me? I would greatly appreciate it and would be glad to send you a free billfold as a sample of my effort to be constructive while here.

I am a young white prisoner, serving a sentence in the state of Alabama. It is my first time (and last!) in prison, and I'm lonely and a long way from home.

I would like to have someone to write to and receive letters from. I enjoy writing letters, and I would share my experience in prison with anyone who wouldn't mind sharing their everyday life, which now seems so attractive to me.

I don't feel that I'm a bad person, yet I feel abandoned and alone. I want to reach out and find someone who cares. It would give me a chance to remain hopeful that I can overcome this terrible experience. I will answer every letter and be grateful for the opportunity.

Answer: Love puts Christ in Christmas

To the editor:
Concerning the letter 12-29-91 by Pete Hanks: "Question: Who put Christ in Christmas?"

Answer: The love in the heart of the believer put Christ in Christmas. Sir, just because someone chose Dec. 25 before you and I were born to celebrate Christ's birth should not matter. Do you think our Almighty God is sitting on His throne saying, "They celebrate to honor my son, but because they chose the wrong date it means nothing?"

because that word is not in the Bible. Would you also diminish the works of Mother Theresa, who uses Jesus as her model and guide, just because you don't find the words Mother Theresa printed in the Bible? Read John 21:25: "And there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which, if they should be written every one, I suppose the world itself could not contain the books that should be written."

Webster's Dictionary: Tradition — "the handing down of beliefs and customs by word of mouth or by example without written instructions. Inherited patterns of thought or action."

I'm so sorry Christmas at your house is only an American custom. At our house I bake a birthday cake with Jesus' name on it and before any gifts are opened we sing a joyous "Happy Birthday dear Jesus." He is the focal point of our celebration. Our gift giving and gathering together is done in thanksgiving for God's blessings and has everything to do with Christ in our Christmas. Amen.

With rain it's feast or famine

It seems like those of us in West Texas are always in a feast or famine situation in regards to rain.

Being on the edge of the Chihuahuan Desert, it doesn't take very much for us to get into a drought situation.

But that same location is the reason we catch moisture from the northwest off the jet stream or from the Pacific via northern Mexico.

It's almost blasphemous for a West Texan to curse the rain, because what's bad for the cotton farmer is good for the winter grasses for the rancher.

And the rain that causes cotton to continue to drop in grade at harvest is the same rain that puts the moisture in the ground that will be needed for next year's crop.

It's the same rain that gives us hope for a dust storm-free spring.

Growing up on a cotton farm in the Mississippi Delta, I am more than familiar with the "darned if you do, darned if you don't" fixes that the weather dumps on the shoulders of farmers.

Too many times I remember Mom loading my sister and me in our beige Chevrolet Biscayne to take Daddy's meal to him in the field.

It didn't make any difference whether it was dinner or supper — for those of you not of the Southern persuasion, dinner is served at noon and supper is the meal just before dark — we were all going to eat with Daddy.

More times than not the table was the tailgate of his old gray Chevrolet Apache pickup and the meal always ended with his saying, "Ya'll get out of here now, I've got work to do."

There were late-night meals when he was planting cotton or wheat or soybeans and there were late-night meals, served before the dew rose and in the light of a harvest moon, when he was trying get the cotton in before the rains of November rolled into Dixie.

But it was the rain that let me spend more time with Daddy, as we'd put on the rubber knee boots, grab a couple of hoes, and take off on an excursion of opening turn rows so that the water could drain.

Daddy always told my sister and me to get an education, shake the dirt off our feet and move away from Mississippi so that we would be able to make a living.

Mom's still in Mississippi and Dad is buried in the shadow of the most magnificent old Magnolia tree in Fellowship Cemetery in Smith County, Miss.

My sister and I both followed Daddy's advice. Because we did, we're both able to enjoy a much better standard of living than our parents.

But even though things were tough financially, neither of us missed out on anything. I don't guess either one of us will ever know how much our parents gave up so that we could play Little League or be in the Boy Scouts or take piano lessons or go to a private college.

Daddy, like all farmers, knew that he couldn't do anything about the weather... only roll with the punches it threw at him.

It's weather like we've had recently that takes me back to my Mississippi of the 50s and 60s... and understand why a farmer can both pray for and damn the rain. Like I said, feast or famine.

Campaigning on racial fear

Several months had passed before the idea of building a wall along the U.S.-Mexico border resurfaced. It had been buried, it seemed, by the momentum building during the last two years in favor of a free trade agreement with Mexico. Who would have thought that it would pop up in the snow of New Hampshire, the site of the nation's first presidential primary?

While the proposed FTA may be in trouble and may not see the light of day, especially in a presidential election year, enough people had talked about trade relations with Mexico so that any serious person should have understood by now that Mexico and its economy — FTA or no FTA — will play a large role in future gains in the U.S. economy.

But now comes Patrick Buchanan, the right-wing Republican political commentator. He floated the idea of a wall along the border during a meeting with journalists as he campaigned last week in New Hampshire for the GOP presidential nomination, seeking to ambush George Bush.

"This country is multiethnic, not multicultural," the Associated Press quoted Buchanan, who then went on to expound on the multicultural threat a wall-less border poses to the United States. Read that: Too many brown people are pouring into the country, and the best way to keep them out is to build a wall along the border.

The story as reported was chilling. It demonstrates how race and racial fears have so permeated the Republican political credo. Race and talk of race and racial fear is so common now among Republicans that a former speechwriter for Richard Nixon and a former communications director for Ronald Reagan feels totally comfortable supporting the construction of such a barrier with absolutely no consideration to its potential impact on the economy of the West and Southwest.

Buchanan's racist innuendos have not been lost on those who occupy the more intelligent quarter of the GOP. New York Times conservative columnist William Safire took after Buchanan for anti-Jewish statements Buchanan made as U.S. intervention in Kuwait and Saudi Arabia came to a head. In essence, Buchanan said the United States was only going to war at the behest of Jewish interests.

Buchanan's easy use of race comes after the notorious GOP ads on Willie Horton only three years ago. Some GOP apologists have the gall to claim that the ads were not part of the official Republican campaign to elect George Bush.

That, of course, is nonsense. Those ads were geared to elicit the very reaction they got and the use of race has hurt this country immeasurably.

The country is most hurt when the viability of future U.S. economic gains are sacrificed in the blind rush to gain political advantage. And that, of course, was what Buchanan was doing.

New Hampshire is a small, hill-locked state. Its economy has no relation to the southwestern economy and its people are wholly unfamiliar with southwestern culture. This is the kind of audience to whom talk about defenseless borders are fighting words. New Hampshire barely acknowledges its close proximity with Massachusetts and New York. It also has one of the highest concentrations of white people in the 50 states.

And here we have Buchanan talking in New Hampshire about a wall along the Rio Grande and along the New Mexico-Arizona-California land border and inferring that immigration is a long-term threat to the United States.

Lost in the process are the two major positive characteristics of greater trade with Mexico: the use of Mexico's hard-working people to help make U.S. products more competitive in the world's markets and the purchase of U.S. made goods in an expanding Mexican economy.

Lost in the process, too, is the fact that Mexico's economy has turned around. Almost five years ago, men like Buchanan and soulbuddy Sen. Jesse Helms were ranting and raving about the threat a nose-diving Mexican economy posed to the United States. Revolution was in the air, they said.

Instead of understanding the real world, in which Mexico and the United States will grow closer and more co-dependent economically, Buchanan rolls out the appeals to race and to racial fears.

This man is a racist anachronism.

Mother Teresa's condition now fair

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Mother Teresa's condition was upgraded from serious to fair Saturday as she continued a slow hospital recovery from pneumonia, doctors said.

The 81-year-old Roman Catholic nun "has shown definite improvement in her lung condition ... as well as her heart condition," Dr. Paul Teirstein told a news conference at Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation.

Mother Teresa no longer was experiencing chest pain, and an irregular heartbeat had returned to normal after medication. She needs less pure oxygen but still is receiving antibiotics intravenously.

It was too early to predict when she would leave intensive care or be released from the hospital, Teirstein said. Mother Teresa, who has devoted her life to helping the world's poor, was admitted to the hospital Dec. 26.

The Nobel Peace Prize laureate was eager to travel to Rome, where she plans to meet with Pope John Paul II, her doctors said.

No longer confined to bed, Mother Teresa sits by her window with its ocean view, reading letters and praying, Teirstein said.

On Saturday, she showed doctors a telegram she had received from President Bush wishing her a speedy recovery. She also looked forward to viewing a solar eclipse at sunset over the Pacific Ocean, Teirstein said.

"She knows what's going on in the world," he said.

Mother Teresa was aware that well-wishers held a candlelight vigil outside the hospital a couple of nights ago. "Those things really give her energy," said Dr. Patricia Aubanel.

She's eating three meals a day and apparently understands the need for a better diet, Aubanel said, adding that she had yogurt, tea and muffins for breakfast Saturday.

Aubanel said Friday that Mother Teresa's medical condition was brought about in part by malnutrition because "she tries to eat what the poor eat."

The irregular heartbeat, atrial fibrillation, lasted 10 to 15 minutes on Friday and wasn't life-threatening, the doctors said. Mother Teresa was unaware of the problem, which was detected on a monitor.

Teirstein said that atrial fibrillation is common among the elderly and that many people are unaware that they have the condition.

Storm pummels resort towns in Northeast

REHOBOTH BEACH, Del. (AP) — A powerful Atlantic storm with winds of up to 70 mph pummeled resort towns in Delaware, Maryland and New Jersey on Saturday, forcing evacuations, damaging buildings and toppling utility lines.

"It's a potentially very dangerous situation. The boardwalks are unsafe right now. There are power lines down. There is storm and sewer overflow," said Gov. Michael N. Castle, who toured the area.

The Rehoboth Beach boardwalk was badly damaged, along with oceanfront buildings, Castle said. "The Bethany Beach boardwalk is gone," he said.

Rehoboth Beach officials declared a state of emergency and Castle called in the National Guard to help highway crews at roadblocks and keep people out of dangerous areas.

State Route 1, which runs along the Delaware coastline to Ocean City, Md., was closed because of flooding.

Authorities called for voluntary evacuations of Rehoboth Beach, Dewey Beach and low-lying areas in Sussex County.

Rehoboth Beach was closed to visitors to prevent sightseers, but residents were allowed, Mayor Sam Cooper said.

The worst of the storm hit the Maryland coast about 7 a.m. No injuries were reported.

In New Jersey, heavy surf lashed beaches left vulnerable by last year's costly Halloween storm. The high tide of 7.8 feet about 7 a.m. did not reach the heights of the fall the Outer Banks were under two feet of water. A 10-mile stretch of the road was closed from Rodanthe to Oregon Inlet.

The Ocean City area in Maryland also had flooding.

Residents of low-lying areas outside Ocean City were told to evacuate, said Mike McKelvin, spokesman for Maryland Emergency Management. Residents of the Snug Harbor subdivision in West Ocean City woke up to find their houses surrounded by five feet of water.

"My car was in my yard and I could just see the top of it. Everyone's car was covered. We had at least four houses that floated off the foundation and into the street. We have boats all over the place," said Magruder Huff, who lives in Snug Harbor.

Robert Jones, manager of the Americana-Stowaway hotel in Ocean City, said eight oceanfront rooms were flooded when waves crashed over a sea wall. Five of the units were occupied, and all escaped safely.

"The rooms are trashed," Jones said. "The water came through storm windows and sliding doors." Ocean City officials said oceanfront stores were damaged and streets were flooded. They said damage would have been worse had a sea wall not been constructed a year ago.

"It has saved us a lot of damage because we've been watching the waves break on the sea wall," said city spokesman Jay Hancock. "If it hadn't been there, those waves would have been breaking on someone else."

storm, when waters rose to a near-record 9.02 feet.

In Ocean City, 68 mph gusts whipped the sea and ripped at boardwalk remaining from October's tempest.

Tom Paul, 33, and his wife, Maureen, 30, watched a 30-foot section of the walkway drop onto their storm-ravaged front lawn.

"The waves were just crashing under the boardwalk and exploding into the air and lifted the entire boardwalk right up," Paul said.

Litter-filled water surged under the Atlantic City Boardwalk in places, turning streets into murky canals.

About 80 people took refuge in emergency shelters in Atlantic and Cape May counties Saturday afternoon and officials expected that number to rise by nightfall.

The Department of Environmental Protection and Energy closed down shellfish beds fearing debris washed into the water might contaminate the harvest.

In North Carolina, parts of Pea Island and Kitty Hawk on the Outer Banks were flooded by waves. Stretches of the main road along

Clouds threaten views of 'Ring of Fire' solar eclipse

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Clouds floated over usually sunny Southern California on Saturday as skywatchers awaited a rare "ring of fire" solar eclipse at sunset.

"The weather is the prime enemy whenever you're chasing eclipses, and this time we have very little room to run," said astronomer Edwin Krupp, director of Los Angeles' Griffith Observatory, which braced for crowds of eclipse watchers.

Elsewhere, skywatchers from the Rockies westward hoped to see a conventional partial eclipse, in which the moon appears to take a bite out of the sun. The best views were due at sunset, making it somewhat unusual.

The moon's shadow also was to create a partial eclipse in the afternoon in Hawaii and at sunrise Sunday west of the international date line in northeast Australia and parts of Japan and the Philippines.

Along the coast from southern Ventura County through Los Angeles and San Diego to Ensenada, Mexico, residents hoped a break in cloud cover would let them see a rare ring-shaped or "annular" eclipse cover 82 percent of the setting sun at 4:50 p.m.

"I'm real excited about seeing it," said Brent Wilson, a boat operator for Island Packers in Ventura. The company sold all 48 spaces on each of two boats for eclipse-watching trips to Santa Barbara Island.

Total eclipses, like last July's in Hawaii and Mexico, happen when the moon completely blocks the sun. The moon also moves directly in front of the sun during annular or "ring of fire" eclipses. But a ring of sunlight shines around the lunar disk because the moon is farther from Earth in its elliptical orbit around the planet, and the Earth is closer to the sun in its orbit around the sun.

Annular eclipses happen at sunset every two or three years somewhere on Earth, but only once every 20,000 years or so at any particular location.

In Tokyo, several groups scheduled events to watch the moon eclipse 36 percent of the sun. There was little interest in Australia and the Philippines, where the partial eclipse was reaching its maximum in sparsely populated areas.

The path of the ring eclipse stretched from the Pacific several hundred miles east of the Philippines, through several island groups in Micronesia, then across the international date line and eastward to Southern California and northern Baja California, Mexico.

Oceanview Instruments, a telescope and binocular store in Newport Beach, sold more than 2,000 eclipse-viewing filters, owner Bill Hartong said. "To observe the ring of fire is very much a once-in-a-lifetime thing."

Cabrillo Marine Museum in San Pedro sold all 400 spots on two cruise boats for a whale-watching and eclipse-viewing trip into the Pacific Ocean.

Davey's Locker Sportfishing in Newport Beach sold out all 250 spaces on two fishing boats

Securing the nukes

Soldiers load a nuclear warhead onto a truck in the Ukraine Saturday. Ukraine transported several truckloads of atomic weapons, under heavy guard, to Russia in an effort to make Ukraine a nuclear-free zone.

Government troops launch assault

TBILISI, Georgia (AP) — Soldiers loyal to President Zviad Gamsakhurdia launched a brief assault Saturday that killed one rebel but failed to knock out a television broadcasting tower held by the opposition.

The president's supporters also failed to draw anyone for a major pro-Gamsakhurdia rally, a day after about 15 opposition gunmen hurled smoke bombs and fired on 3,000 pro-Gamsakhurdia demonstrators, killing two people.

At least 73 people have been killed and 400 wounded in two weeks of fighting between Gamsakhurdia loyalists and the opposition.

Members of the opposition's military council told reporters Saturday they were not immediately planning to attack or burn the parliament building, where Gamsakhurdia was holed up.

"We have the force to take the parliament without (burning it with) gasoline, but we don't want to spill blood and to act like a dictator," rebel commander Tengiz Kitovani said at a news conference.

The opposition accuses Gamsakhurdia of acting like a dictator since being overwhelmingly elected president in a popular election in May. Gamsakhurdia says the rebellion was provoked by former Soviet leaders.

Another rebel leader, former political prisoner Dzhaba Ioseliani, said he was in no hurry to force Gamsakhurdia out.

"I was sitting in jail for 11 months under Gamsakhurdia. Let him sit in his bunker for 11 months if he wants. There will be no storming unless it is provoked by Gamsakhurdia's supporters," Ioseliani said.

Kitovani also hinted that the rebels were softening their longstanding opposition to the presence of former Soviet troops in Georgia.

"They do not bother us," Kitovani said of the troops, estimated to number at least several thousand. "Moreover, their presence is strengthening our borders. Let them stay here, under an agreement or in some other form."

The troops have not taken part in the political violence that has racked Georgia. Both opposition and government leaders have insisted the troops must leave Georgia when it becomes independent.

Gamsakhurdia's soldiers on Saturday tried to disable a TV transmitting tower used by the military council formed Thursday. The troops used a Soviet-built T-55 tank in the skirmish.

Native opposed to prison

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
 Staff Writer

An opponent of efforts to locate a state prison in Howard County says he is undaunted after being refused permission Saturday to put petitions against a prison in 7-Eleven stores.

Big Spring native Eddie Arnold, who lives with his wife and six children within a half-mile of the proposed prison site next to the Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark, said at a public meeting Friday that many people oppose the efforts. He said he wants to prove it by circulating his own petitions.

"I hope that the people that don't want it here will come to the places (where petitions against it will be located) to sign it or call me," he said Saturday. "I'm going to call every business in town." He also said that four of his children may knock on doors to circulate petitions.

Arnold and his wife, Candy Arnold, were the only two people of about 50 that attended the meeting Friday at First United Methodist Church that were outspoken against the prison proposal. They cited possible effects on property values and safety. It would be the third prison built here.

"I don't want that prison next to my house," Arnold said. "I don't want to live in a prison town and that's what this is becoming."

After numerous comments and questions by Arnold, he was cut off and asked to approach officials after the meeting.

"I think we've closed that off, we'll be glad to talk to you after," said Owen Ivie, a member of the local State Prison Coordinating Committee, which conducted the meeting. "We appreciate your remarks and we will make note of those."

After the meeting, 47 people signed petitions in favor of locating a 2,250-bed minimum-maximum security prison or 1,000-bed minimum security prison or substance abuse center here. The Prison Committee plans to submit the proposal by Jan. 13. If Howard County is chosen as a site, officials would still have 90 days to back out after the selection date.

Petitions for the prison, which now contain more than 3,000 signatures, will be submitted with the proposal. Ivie said documentation of opposition, such as petitions against the proposal or letters, would also be submitted.

Ladd Smith, a member of the Prison Coordinating Committee, shows the audience the area being submitted for consideration for a new state prison during a public meeting Friday evening. The area is east and southeast of the airpark runways.

Prison

 Howard County was a semi-finalist twice.

Included with the proposal will be documented attendance of Friday's public meeting, the petitions signed at the meeting and other petitions in favor of a prison that were circulated in the community the past two weeks and now contain more than 3,000 signatures. Prison Committee member Owen Ivie promised to also include any documented opposition.

Three large prisons and 15 smaller facilities will be awarded this year, according to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. More than 100 communities are vying for a facility.

"We believe that we will have one of the best proposals that the TDJC will receive by the 13th of this month," said Prison Committee member and County Commissioner Bill Crooker. "We've refined our package this go-round."

Incentives of land, utilities and other services would cost an estimated $2.9 million for a large facility and $1.8 million for a smaller facility. Local taxpayers would pay 58 percent of costs for a large one; 37 percent of costs for a smaller one. Private donations would pay for, respectively, 14 or 17 percent. City airpark fees would pay the rest.

In return, a large facility will:

- Inject $80 million in construction costs into the economy over a two-year period and create 800 jobs with annual payrolls of $21,000, according to the TDJC.
- Add $60 million in direct and indirect annual expenditures to the economy, says a State Comptroller's Office publication. Ted St. Clair, a Prison Committee member, estimates that area retail sales would jump $11.8 million, bank deposits would increase by $38.4 million, related jobs would increase by 512 and the population would increase by 1,616.

A small facility will:

- Add $28 million in construction costs to the economy over an 18-month period and create 300 jobs, also with annual payrolls of $21,000.
- Add $20 million in direct and indirect annual expenditures to the economy. Estimated retail sales would increase by $4.4 million, related jobs would increase by 192 and the population would increase by 606.

However, committee member and county Commissioner Bill Crooker cited petition support and voter approval in Howard County of prison construction bonds in November and in 1989 by, respectively, 72 and 89 percent. "We feel like that's a very strong show of support," Crooker said.

Efforts to attract a state prison here in 1989 garnered 5,000 petition signatures, which is the goal this year. That is 23 percent of the county's adult population and more than a third of the county's registered voters.

But Arnold said the petition signatures do not represent a majority of people and said the prison bond votes were to decide if more prisons should be built, not where they should be built. "They (ballot questions) didn't say 'Do you want these in your back yard?'" evicted from the Philippines. Bush called the move "symbolic of our commitment to the region."

"We will maintain a visible, credible presence in the Asia-Pacific region with our forward deployed forces, and through bilateral defense arrangements with nations of the region," Bush said.

The new pact will expand upon an existing agreement allowing U.S. military privileges at Singapore facilities. It will bring up to 200 additional Navy personnel to Singapore.

Prime Minister Goh Chok Tong said he had agreed in principle to the transfer.

Bush eyes tax breaks at home, trade concessions abroad

SINGAPORE (AP) — President Bush, on a trade mission to Asia but plagued by economic problems at home, said Saturday he wants to translate Pentagon savings into tax cuts for Americans.

Winding up a 40-hour stop in Singapore, Bush also said he would press South Korea and Japan for "full access" to export markets in an effort to stimulate job-creation in the United States.

Bush departed for Seoul Sunday morning for three days of talks about trade and security issues in the wake of an agreement by North Korea and South Korea to ban nuclear weapons from the Korean Peninsula.

South Korea is the last stop on Bush's tour before he reaches Tokyo on Tuesday for a showdown over Japan's $41 billion trade surplus and barriers to U.S. imports. He visited Australia before coming here.

Tempering his tough talk about Japan, Bush said he was encouraged by conciliatory remarks by Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa, who said his country is obliged to take steps to help the United States climb out of its economic morass.

Bush pledged to push for lifting Japanese trade barriers, but pointedly said: "We're not going there in a kind of an aggressive mode."

Despite signs of resentment in Japan about U.S. pressure tactics, Bush said he didn't "think there's a backlash building."

Bush indicated a willingness to use savings from Pentagon cutbacks prompted by the end of the Cold War to spark the sagging U.S. economy.

"Frankly, I'd like to put it into the pockets of the American taxpayer, if I possibly could, because I think that's what is needed," Bush said at a news conference outside the presidential palace here.

"Maybe it would be nice to do something about the deficit, and maybe it would be nice to do certain things that can stimulate our economy, and that could call for alterations in the tax system," the president said.

He refused to elaborate, although sources in Washington said earlier that the administration is considering a tax credit of up to $2,000 for first-time home buyers.

Bush concluded the first visit to Singapore by an American president by announcing an end to the United States' 16-year-old trade embargo against Cambodia in recognition of its move toward democracy.

The president won the green light to shift to Singapore the Navy logistics command that's being

Court: Sheriff must quit making crack

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A sheriff who said he made crack to guarantee a supply for undercover operations has been told to stop by an appeals court.

Broward County Sheriff Nick Navarro said he would comply because his anti-crime strategy, started in 1989, has been successful.

"You can now drive in this county where drugs were once sold out in the open," he said. "We have driven the dealers out."

Six months ago, the 4th District Court of Appeals upheld Navarro's drug making, but agreed to reconsider at the request of the public defender's office.

"The sheriff of Broward County acted illegally in manufacturing crack," Judge Mark Polen wrote for the majority. "The police agencies themselves cannot do an illegal act, albeit their intended goal is legal and desirable."

Friday's 2-1 decision overturned the 1990 conviction of Kevin Kelly Jr., a Fort Lauderdale man sentenced to a three-year prison term for purchasing cocaine within 1,000 feet of a school.

The appeals decision could endanger about 200 convictions for buying the sheriff's crack, said Cherry Grant, an assistant Palm Beach County public defender.

"It was a sordid scheme," she said. "The question is whether our problems are so big that we should abandon the rule of law to solve them."

The appeals court was particularly disturbed by the disappearance of some of the sheriff's crack rocks — the hard, pebblelike pieces of highly purified cocaine prepared for smoking.

Deaths

Danny Heffington

Danny Gene Heffington, 25, died Friday, Jan. 3, 1992, in Parkland Hospital in Dallas.

Floods

 another 29 people were aided Saturday morning.

In at least four cases, "the water was coming up to where the people were stranded and if they left them there, it was doubtful they could get out," said Don Merwin, Coast Guard spokesman at Galveston.

Two Coast Guard teams remained in Brazoria County, while another team was released from emergency duty in Liberty County on Saturday, he said.

Brazoria County is among 24 Texas counties declared federal disaster areas. Brazoria was among five counties, including Burleson, Coryell, Madison and San Jacinto, added to the list on Saturday, said Martha Stratton, spokeswoman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Flooding along the Brazos, Colorado and Trinity rivers, which has been blamed for at least 15 deaths and millions of dollars in damages, was caused by heavy rains that drenched north Texas before Christmas.

At Lake Livingston Dam in Liberty County, the Trinity River Authority began cutting back releases for the first time Saturday.

"The lake has leveled off," said Jim Mitchum, Liberty County Emergency Management coordinator. "The discharge rate at Lake Livingston dropped slightly from 85,800 cubic feet per second to 83,600 cfs and it will continue moving down next week."

The river had risen to 29.75 feet Thursday, or nearly six feet above flood level, at Liberty, but had begun to taper off to 29.6 feet and was expected to stay at 29.55 feet for several days.

Mitchum said officials believed all the runoff from the north had reached the lake and authorities would begin cutting the discharge over the next two weeks until it reaches a normal range of 15,000 to 20,000 cfs.

"This will be a very slow downhill run," Mitchum said. "Two shelters operating in the Liberty County area were filled Saturday with 50 sleeping there and more than 175 stopping by for meals."

In Fort Bend County to the south, emergency management spokesman Gary Tilton said the Brazos River was beginning to drop Saturday.

"It's on the fall. It's going down two to three feet," Tilton said.

The Brazos had peaked near 50 feet at Richmond, west of Houston, on Thursday and had dropped to 47.5 feet, or a half-foot under flood stage on Saturday.

Tilton said residents in some areas already were surveying damages at their homes and taking samples from their water wells, but many would not be able to return to their homes for about 10 more days. He said at least two businesses would not be able to reopen on Monday.

"But we've been lucky," Tilton said.

TAB seeking business award entries

The awards are presented by TAB each year to one privately-held company and one publicly-held company in Texas which exemplify dedication to excellence in business and industry.

CRMWD to consider fixed charges

Establishment of fixed charges to member cities, the basis for 1992 water rates, tops the agenda for directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District meeting Thursday in Big Spring.

The charges cover basic operation and maintenance and debt service, plus delivery costs to the three member cities of Big Spring, Odessa and Snyder.

District deliveries show slight decline

Deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District broke even in December with 1990, but declined less than 1 percent for the year.

Municipal totals for the year stood at 15.01 billion gallons, a decline of .78 percent. Oil and industrial deliveries were up .95 percent from 1990.

Program to distribute newspapers

"If your kids suddenly start reading the Herald, it may be our fault. It may be our fault for helping teachers excite students about reading," says Kim Halfmann, Literacy Coordinator for the Big Spring Herald.

Some 10,000 newspapers will be distributed throughout the month of January to Big Spring and Coahoma students. Students will begin receiving papers Monday through the Herald's Newspaper in Education (NIE) program.

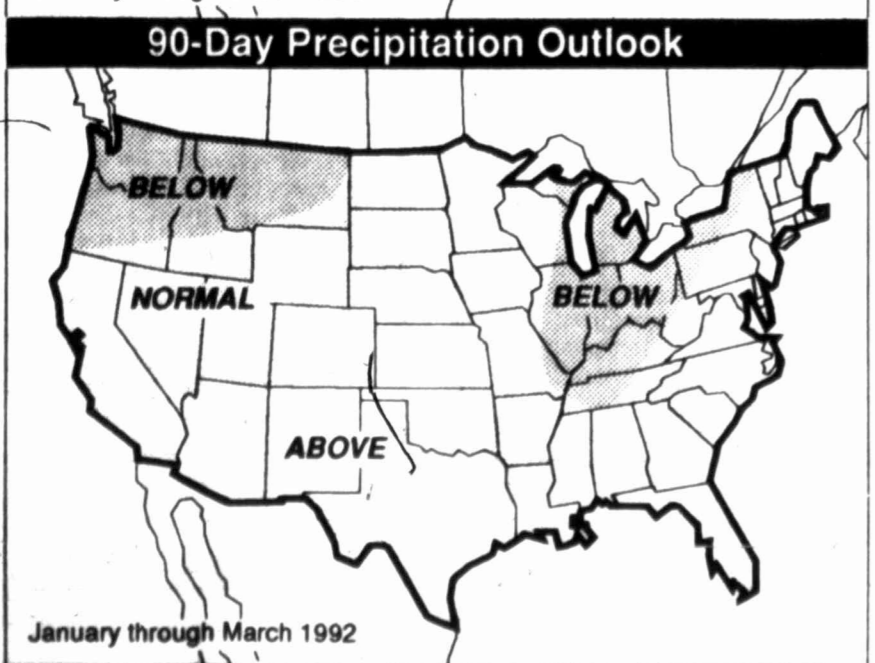

The students to be involved with the program range from first graders to high school students and the curriculum is just as varied.

The guides to be used in conjunction with the papers include geography, mathematics, black history, narrative writing and several others including survival skills for at-risk students.

"We have secured Citizen's Federal Credit Union and Scenic Mountain Medical Center as sponsors, and are hoping to secure six more, to meet the needs of the area schools for the remainder of the school year," Halfmann said.

The Herald is providing the newspapers at cost to the schools' sponsors, along with curriculum guides, teachers' workshops and parenting workshops.

"With the cooperation of our area schools and businesses, the Big Spring Herald hopes to improve the quality of resources available to our area teachers and our children," Halfmann added.

Elway drives Oilers home, 26-24

DENVER (AP) — Call it The Drive II.

Starting at his own 2-yard line with 2:07 left, Denver quarterback John Elway led the Broncos on a drive that ended in a 28-yard field goal by David Treadwell and a 26-24 victory over Houston in the NFL divisional playoffs Saturday.

A 44-yard pass to Vance Johnson on fourth down set up the field goal with 16 seconds left and spoiled a brilliant performance by ageless Oilers quarterback Warren Moon. Moon staked his team to a 21-6 lead by throwing touchdown passes to three different receivers on the Oilers' first three possessions.

The Broncos (13-4) now advance to the AFC championship game for the fourth time in the last six years, where they will meet the winner of Sunday's Kansas City-Buffalo game.

Denver scored on its last three possessions, but the final one looked hopeless after Greg Montgomery's punt was downed at the 2-yard line.

But Elway, who directed the Broncos on a similar 98-yard desperation drive to beat Cleveland in the AFC title game five years ago, passed 22 yards to a diving Michael Young, then scrambled for a 7-yard gain on fourth-and-6 to the Denver 35.

After three subsequent incomplete passes made it fourth-and-10, Elway, scrambling to his right, found Johnson wide open along the left sideline. Johnson turned a 20-yard throw into a 44-yard gain to the Houston 21 with 50 seconds left.

Treadwell, whose missed extra point in the first quarter on a mishandled snap had proved to be the difference up to that point, then drilled the 28-yarder.

Denver (12-5) rallied from a 21-6 deficit on a pair of short-yardage touchdown runs by Greg Lewis.

Moon, still going strong at age 35, completed 27 of 36 passes for 325 yards. He threw TD passes of 15 yards to Haywood Jeffries, 9 yards to Drew Hill and 6 yards to Curtis Duncan. Given good pass protection most of the day, he was on target repeatedly. When rushed, he proved remarkably adept at escaping. Moon wasn't sacked all afternoon.

Moon wasted no time testing the Denver defense. He went deep on the game's first play from scrimmage, hitting Jeffries for 49 yards, then finding the diving Jeffries on a 15-yard TD pass less than two minutes into the game.

After the Broncos were stymied by tripping and personal-foul penalties on their first series and had to punt, Houston (12-6) drove 63 yards for another score.

Moon scrambled for a 15-yard gain to start the march, and he passed 26 yards to Ernest Givins on third-and-14 to keep it alive. Beating the blitz, Moon hit a wide-open Hill from 9 yards out for the TD and a 14-0 lead with 5:16 left in the opening quarter.

Denver then showed some signs of life. Gaston Green ran for 12 yards to start a 65-yard scoring drive. A personal-foul penalty on Houston cornerback Richard Johnson moved Denver to the Houston 17, and John Elway threw a 10-yard scoring pass to Vance Johnson. But Kubiak bobbled the snap and Denver trailed 14-6.

Moon and Givins hooked up on a 28-yard pass on the second play of the second quarter to highlight the Oilers' third scoring march. Denver safety Steve Atwater intercepted Moon and returned it to the Houston 35, but the theft was nullified when linebacker Jeff Mills was whistled for roughing the passer on the play. Thaj gave Houston a first down.

Redskins cages Falcons, 24-7

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rain, wind and the Washington defense turned Atlanta's "Red Gun" offense into a water pistol Saturday.

The Redskins, whose 14-2 record was the best in the NFL during the regular season, used a steady downpour and winds gusting to 30 mph to help force six turnovers. That was the key as they beat the Falcons 24-7, sending Atlanta slip sliding home from their first sojourn into the playoffs in nine years.

"The run and shoot in the rain is like a loaded gun with one bullet," said Deion Sanders, Atlanta's cornerback, kick returner and sometimes receiver, whose main contribution to this one was a holding call that prolonged Washington's clinching touchdown drive.

The Redskins, on the other hand, had a fully loaded gun as they qualified to meet the winner of Sunday's Dallas-Detroit game at RFK Stadium next Sunday.

Ricky Ervins ran 23 times for 104 yards, including a 16-yard touchdown run, and Earnest Byner rushed for 57 more. Ervins ran 17 yards for a touchdown 3:11 before Gerald Riggs went over from the 2-yard-line, then Riggs clinched it with a 1-yard dive in the final quarter.

Ervins noted that in Washington's 56-17 win earlier this year over Atlanta, most of the Redskins' yardage came on Rypien's passing because the Falcons rushed eight men.

"Last time their defense controlled the line of scrimmage," Ervins said. "This time our offense did."

But Atlanta, missing Mike Rozier and Steve Broussard with injuries, could manage only 43 rushing yards and spent most of the game in the shotgun, allowing the Redskins to lay back. Two of Washington's touchdowns were set up by fumble recoveries, and the Redskins had four interceptions against Chris Miller, who was 17 of 32 for 178 yards.

"Everyone talks about offense," Gibbs said. "Defense is what wins championships for you. Today they created turnovers."

It was a lesson in playoff football for Atlanta, which last made it to the postseason in 1982 and won indoors in New Orleans 27-20 last week.

"Typical playoff weather," said Washington coach Joe Gibbs. "We like to say it was Redskins weather. Muddy and a wet field."

Indeed it was. Even though Miller was 14 of 17 in one stretch of the third and fourth quarters, he could get only one score out of it. And the 14th com-

Big name players head into arbitration

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the free agent season is winding down, baseball prepares for the second part of its financial market: salary arbitration season.

Going into the weekend, 157 players were eligible to file for arbitration from Jan. 4-14, and almost all of them will get sizable increases. Players and clubs will exchange figures on Jan. 17, since almost all players file on the last day.

Among the biggest names eligible to file are Detroit first baseman Cecil Fielder, Pittsburgh outfielder Barry Bonds and pitcher Doug Drabek. Texas outfielder Ruben Sierra, San Diego catcher Benito Santiago, Cincinnati shortstop Barry Larkin, New York Mets pitcher David Cone, Oakland first baseman Mark McGwire, Los Angeles outfielder Kal Daniels and Cincinnati pitcher Greg Swindell.

Fielder, who hit 95 homers during his just-completed $3 million, two-year contract, may set an arbitration record for the highest salary ever requested. The current record is held by Baltimore first baseman Glenn Davis, who asked for $3.65 million last winter. The Orioles offered $2.9 million and the sides settled at $3,275,000, thus avoiding arbitration.

Drabek has the largest salary ever won in arbitration. Arbitrator Raymond Goetz gave him $3.35 million last winter rather than Pittsburgh's offer of $2.3 million. Arbitrators must pick either the player's or the club's figure.

In addition to those eligible to file, eight former free agents accepted arbitration offers from their clubs: St. Louis first baseman Pedro Guerrero, Oakland pitcher Ron Darling, Atlanta reliever Alejandro Pena, Los Angeles reliever Jay Howell and second baseman Juan Samuel, California shortstop Dick Schofield, New York Mets outfielder Daryl Boston and Kansas City outfielder Jim Eisenreich.

Last year, 157 players filed for arbitration and only 17 players went through with hearings. Clubs won 11 cases, their first winning season since 1988.

Lady Hawks

win two of three

BRENHAM — The Lady Hawks wrapped up the Blinn College Classic Saturday with a win over San Jacinto, 81-56.

Head coach Royce Chadwick said that second half defense was the key in the win.

"We played excellent defense in the second half," said Chadwick. "It was a see-saw battle early in the game. We finally grabbed the lead at the 15 minute mark of the second half and led the rest of the way. We held them to only seven field goals and 21 points in the second half."

Yolanda Wells paced the Lady Hawks with 17 points. LeAnn Heinrich followed with 12 points.

Despite the win and going 2-1 in the Classic, Chadwick says that the team have a long way to go getting into shape.

"Right now the players are not in good shape," Chadwick said. "I'm happy that we came away with no injuries but right now we need to get into shape for our contest against New Mexico Junior College Thursday."

Howard now stands at 12-3 hosting NMCJ at home Jan. 9. Game time is 6 p.m.

Howard jumped out to a 13-1 lead in the first 12 minutes of the game. Howard led 34-21 at the half. Howard coach Royce Chadwick said the key was his team's fullcourt pressure and its ability to out rebound the much-taller Blinn team.

Freshman point guard LeKisha Wiley paced Howard with 13 points. Kathy Mangram added 10 points. Yolanda Wells scored nine points and grabbed 13 rebounds.

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Deleen Parker and Lori Davis each scored 14 points Saturday night, leading No. 9 Stephen F. Austin to a 77-60 victory over Sam Houston State, the Ladyjacks' 31st straight Southland Conference triumph.

Charlotte Bisor scored a game-high 19 points for the Ladykats, who fell to 4-5 and 0-1. Kellie Fitzgerald added 11 points and former Howard College player Cindy Williams 10.

The Ladyjacks improved to 7-1 in their SLC opener.

Stephen F. Austin hasn't lost a Southland Conference game since losing to Northwestern State 78-76 on Feb. 16, 1989.

Melissa Peay added 14 points for Stephen F. Austin, and Vanessa Martin scored 10 points. Stacy Hairgrove scored eight points and dished out a game-high 12 assists.

The Ladyjacks led 40-21 at halftime.

Kansas defeats SMU Mustangs

DALLAS (AP) — Kansas' record remained unsoiled Saturday, and its No. 4 national ranking didn't suffer with a 79-67 victory over scrappy Southern Methodist.

But coach Roy Williams wasn't pleased with the overall performance even as his Jayhawks overcame a 5-point first-half deficit to run their record to 10-0.

Williams' consolation was that after a 16-2 run gave Kansas a 33-25 lead with 4:26 remaining in the first half, the Jayhawks didn't let the Mustangs (5-5) get any closer than seven points.

Adonis Jordan led the way with 20 points. Rex Walters added 16 points, five assists and three steals.

SMU coach John Shumate said his Mustangs, despite 19 turnovers and 14-for-30 shooting at the foul line, "could have won the basketball game, if we had a little more maturity, a little more patience, and a little more intelligence."

"We didn't get blown out," said Tim Mason, who led SMU with 19 points. "I really felt we could beat Kansas. They just have so many guys they can run in and out."

SMU junior center Greg Kinzer had 11 points and a career-high 19 rebounds, and he shut out Kansas center Eric Pauley, who was 0-for-9 from the field and had one rebound.

Jordan, Pippen lead Bulls by Nets

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 27 points while playing just three quarters and Scottie Pippen had 21 Saturday night, leading the Chicago Bulls to a 140-96 rout of the New Jersey Nets.

The 140 points were a season-high by the Bulls, who beat Boston 132-113 on Nov. 6. The victory was the Bulls' 10th in their last 12 games and improved their home record to 13-2.

The Nets saw their road mark drop to 4-10 in their worst defeat of the season.

The Bulls broke the game open in the third quarter when they outscored the Nets 34-18 for a 100-72 lead behind 10 points from Horace Grant and eight by Jordan in the period. Chicago shot 60 percent in the quarter to the Nets' 42 percent. Grant finished with 14 points and 17 rebounds.

In the fourth quarter, Bulls coach Phil Jackson cleared the bench, while the Bulls coasted to their 25th win in 30 contests.

Sam Bowie led the Nets with 20 points and Drazen Petrovic scored 16.

Jordan and Pippen each scored 11 points in the first quarter, which ended with the Bulls on top 36-28.

The Bulls led 66-54 at halftime behind Jordan's 19 points.

After a muddy, sluggish first period, the Redskins jumped to a 14-0 lead on its two scores early in the second period. But they led only 14-7 at halftime as Chip Lohmiller, who led the NFL in scoring with 149 points, missed three field goals — from 47, 37 and 44 yards, the last as the half expired.

The first TD came on Ervins' 16-yard run at the end of an 11 play, 81-yard drive, the second was set up by Pat Chaffey's fumble that was recovered by Washington's

Injury made football field of dreams

It's taken nine years, but Mark Angel is trying to make a dream come true.

Nine years ago, Angel was being recruited to play college football. Then a knee injury ended all of that. Now the 26-year-old Angel is ready to try his luck again.

In the fall semester of 1992, Angel plans to enroll at Cumberland College, Ky. His goal — to get some type of degree in education and play college football.

In 1983 everything looked rosy for Angel at Crane High School. It was his senior year and he was a returning starter for a good football team. Things started well for the 5-foot-10, 185-pound tailback-strong safety. But disaster struck late in the season against Colorado City.

Angel injured his left knee and had to have reconstructive surgery on it. Crane finished the season at 8-2, just missing the playoffs behind Ballinger and Colorado City. Still, Angel had a superb season. He had 15 interceptions and was named to the All-District and All-West Texas teams.

Angel had planned on attending Tarleton State University, but that was wiped out with the injury. "We had a good team," recalled Angel of the Golden Cranes his senior year. "We didn't get scored on until the seventh game of the season. We missed the playoffs by one point. We lost to Colorado City by seven points and to Ballinger by one point."

What followed was a very difficult time in his life. He was in a cast for six months, followed by a long rehabilitation period. That's

He trained for body building competition, but a series of bouts with the flu changed his plans. Still, he continued to weight-train hard. "I kept lifting and getting stronger. A long time after the surgery, my knee kept swelling up, but it hasn't bothered me the last three years," he said.

Now Angel is a hulking 220 pounds who bench presses around 400 pounds and squats 500 pounds.

He got the idea of playing football again from weight lifting partner Todd Coker, a former all-state noseguard for Big Spring.

Coker, who had played two years at Greenville College, Ill., before sitting out for three seasons, is at Cumberland now, getting ready for the spring semester.

Buffaloes pluck Eagles

STERLING CITY — The Forsan Buffaloes took advantage of early turnovers as they went on to defeat the Sterling City Eagles Friday night, 61-34.

With the win the Buffaloes bring their record to 8-10 heading into district play against Iraan Tuesday night.

Eagles turnovers and strong defense helped Forsan create a 16-2 run to close out the first quarter with a 21-4 lead.

"We played good defense in the last five ball games," said Forsan coach Kurt White. "Anytime you can hold a team to 34 points then you've played good defense."

Senior Joey Conaway led the Buffs with 25 points while freshman Chris Evans chipped in with 11.

"Conaway played a good game," said White. "He was on track both offensively and defensively for us."

White feels that the team will have to be up to a higher level facing the Braves in their first district game of the season.

"Tuesday we play Iraan and we have to be ready," said White. "Both our offense and defense have to be there because Iraan will be tough physically."

Sonja Smith scored all of Sterling City's points in overtime from the free throw line to lead the Lady Eagles over the Forsan Buffalo-Queens Friday night, 50-47.

Barbara Mitchell hit a three-pointer in the fourth quarter to give the Queens a 44-42 lead. But Smith tied the score with 1:22 left in regulation.

Forsan started off well in overtime as Mitchell made the first of a one-and-one situation, but missed the following shot. Teammate Becky Gerstenberger grabbed the rebound and scored, giving the Queens a 47-44 lead.

The scoring would end there for Forsan as Smith went to the line three times in the final two minutes of overtime to give the Lady Eagles the win.

Mitchell led all Forsan scorers with 16. Jenny Conaway finished with 15 and Gerstenberger with 14. Christy Hillger added a bucket to round out the scoring for the Queens.

With the six points in overtime, Smith led the Lady Eagles with 19 points. Kate Glass followed with 17.

Despite the loss, Queens coach Johnny Schafer was pleased with the output from his team.

"In spite of the fact that we lost, I feel like we got a lot from the game," Schafer said. "In three games during their tournament, the Lady Eagles average score was in the 70s. For us to come into their own gym and take them into overtime makes me proud."

"We've had a history of playing good games against Sterling City. Both times we faced them this year the games went into overtime. This time they won."

With the loss the Queens stand at 11-6 overall and 2-0 in district play. Forsan next game is home against district rivals Iraan Jan. 7. Game time is 6:30 p.m.

Parcells turns down offer from Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Bill Parcells says he's not ready to coach football right now. So the Green Bay Packers must look elsewhere to fill their coaching vacancy.

"Bill Parcells has informed me that after giving serious thought to a return to coaching, he has decided he is not ready to coach at this time," Packers general manager Ron Wolf said Saturday in a statement.

Wolf talked to Parcells last Wednesday, just days after Parcells had turned down a five-year, $6.5 million offer from the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to leave NBC-TV and return to coaching.

In addition to his duties at NBC as an in-studio commentator, the 50-year-old Parcells is also co-host of a football magazine show on the Madison Square Garden cable network.

Health could have been a factor in Parcells' decision. He underwent a non-surgical procedure (angioplasty) Dec. 16 to clear a clogged artery, but his doctors cleared him to return to coaching. He coached the Giants for eight years.

His decision to not return means the Packers are back out in the market that is full of candidates and vacancies. The Los Angeles Rams, Buccaneers, Minnesota Vikings, Indianapolis Colts and Seattle Seahawks are also looking for new coaches.

"As I have said from outset, the search for a Packer head coach will take some time. Now that this issue has been resolved, we can continue our search," Wolf said.

Packers President Bob Harlan declined to comment Saturday morning when reached at his office.

"We're just making one comment," Harlan said. "That's the only one we're going to make. We'll have to go with that."

Wolf said he had only one serious discussion with Parcells, on Wednesday in New Jersey, and didn't offer a contract.

Wolf, hired by the Packers Nov. 27, began wooing Parcells since firing coach Lindy Infante Dec. 22.

Former Seattle coach Chuck Knox was supposed to interview last Monday with Wolf but appeared Friday to be close to a deal with the Los Angeles Rams.

Wolf said he has not offered a contract to Knox.

QBs try to lead team to promised land

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Backup quarterbacks have taken teams to the Super Bowl before. Steve Beuerlein and Erik Kramer have a chance to do it again.

Beuerlein will start for the Dallas Cowboys (12-5) and Kramer for the Detroit Lions (12-4) in a second-round NFL playoff game on Sunday. The winner advances to the NFC title game, the last step before the Super Bowl.

During the regular season, Beuerlein threw for five touchdowns with two interceptions. Kramer threw for 11 touchdowns with eight interceptions. Last week, Beuerlein had another TD pass during a 17-13 wild card win at Chicago while the Lions were off.

The main difference between Beuerlein and Kramer is that Beuerlein has playoff experience from his days with the Raiders. Kramer was a virtual unknown until this season. And what little was known about Kramer wasn't always pleasant.

"The last time I heard of Erik Kramer, he was a scab quarterback in Atlanta," Dallas defensive tackle Tony Casillas said, recalling that Kramer was one of the non-union players Atlanta signed during the strike-torn 1988 season.

"It's amazing to me that a pro union town like Detroit would get behind a quarterback that crossed a picket line and played for a scab team," Dallas linebacker Jack Del Rio said. "I would think they'd resent that."

Kramer started this season as Detroit's third quarterback. He moved up to the No. 2 spot by playing better than Andre Ware during the preseason. When Rodney Peete tore his Achilles tendon in the first quarter of Detroit's 34-10 victory over Dallas on Oct. 27, Kramer took over.

The Lions are 7-2 in games that Kramer has started or finished.

"Erik has grown as the season has gone along," Lions' running back Barry Sanders said. "He makes more reads now. Several Atlanta Falcons running back Keith Jones (38) tackled by Dallas Cowboys Vince Albritton (36) in action earlier this season. The times, his audibles have gone for easy touchdowns. He took over the Cowboys on Nov. 24 after Troy Aikman was injured Cowboys will be taking on the Detroit Lions at 3 today.

the week before. Aikman is healthy again, and wants his job back. But Cowboys' coach Jimmy Johnson says he will stick with Beuerlein. "In the course of a ballgame, anything can happen," Johnson said. "But Steve Beuerlein has been winning and I'll stay with him. Troy Aikman will be ready, however. He has taken a lot of snaps."

It is quite possible that Beuerlein might have been in the AFC playoffs if the Cowboys hadn't acquired him from the Raiders for an undisclosed 1992 draft choice.

Beuerlein started the final six games of 1989 for the Raiders. But he didn't play at all in 1990, after missing training camp due to a contract holdout.

That story led to this exchange in the media workroom at the Silverdome this week:

"How do you spell 'purgatory,'" one writer asked.

Another writer answered, "You must be writing about Steve Beuerlein. So am I."

The Lions, who intercepted two of Aikman's passes in the earlier game, respect Beuerlein.

"He's no slouch," linebacker Chris Spielman said. "We consider him a starter. He's smart. He's a winner."

This will be Detroit's first playoff game since 1983 and their first playoff at home since 1957. The Lions were 8-0 in the Silverdome this season.

Despite the home field advantage and the 20-point triumph over the Cowboys earlier, the Lions were just one-point favorites in the game. That is mainly because the Lions have lost several key players to injuries in past weeks.

In addition to the loss of Peete, the Lions have lost tackles Mike Utley and Eric Sanders, noseguard Jerry Ball and linebacker Mike Cofer. As recently as Friday's practice, receiver Brett Perriman pulled his left hamstring and may not play.

"That's the thing I'm most concerned about," Lions' coach Wayne Fontes said. "We're really short some people. But, it's how you play on game day that's most important. The guys who are healthy have to take it up another notch."

Chiefs hope to scalp Bills again

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — The ghost of a game past — the Kansas City Chiefs' 33-6 stuffing of the Buffalo Bills on Oct. 7 — shadows the rematch Sunday in the AFC playoffs.

For the Chiefs, it was validation of their ascension into the ranks of the conference's best during the three-year tenure of coach Marty Schottenheimer. By beating Buffalo, then 5-0 and the defending AFC champ, Kansas City was put on the short list of Super Bowl contenders.

For the Bills, it was the low point in what has been a rewarding season. They were humiliated in front of a Monday night audience by a team that, like the Giants in last year's Super Bowl, exposed a glaring flaw — trouble stopping a strong, up-the-middle running game.

Players on both teams downplayed the revenge factor, but the Bills have longed for another shot at the team they think will be their most difficult challenger for the AFC title.

"Out of the teams that we could have faced, this is probably the toughest one," Jim Kelly said. "It's just a matter of us going out and proving to ourselves that we aren't as bad as we showed last time we played."

The Bills weren't bad, they were awful. The Chiefs got six sacks, recovered five fumbles and limited Buffalo, the league's best offense, to a season lows in points, total offense (211 yards) and first downs (11).

Defensively, Buffalo never slowed down Kansas City's straight-ahead running game. Bruising Christian Okoye softened up the gut of the Bills defense, then rookie Harvey Williams sped around weary Bills defenders.

With the run working so well, Steve DeBerg was able to show why he's one of the best play-action passers in the game. DeBerg's fakes into the line kept linebackers honest and opened up passing lanes for receivers.

"He does an extremely great job of faking the ball and doing half rolls to either side and hitting the short routes underneath," Bills defensive coordinator Walt Corey said.

By grinding out long drives, the Chiefs were able to keep the ball away from the quick-strike Buffalo offense. The Bills know the Chiefs will try that strategy again.

"We're going to find out if we are capable of stopping them because I'm sure they're intending to run," Bills coach Marv Levy said.

Unlike the first game, however, the Bills will have defensive end Bruce Smith, last year's NFL Defensive Player of the Year, and nose tackle Jeff Wright.

Both were out with injuries in the earlier game, and Schottenheimer said their presence will make a difference. "I think it's unlikely that we're going to be able to run the ball as well as we did," he said.

Kansas City's main concern has Thurman Thomas, the NFL's all-purpose yardage leader this season, will lead the Buffalo Bills against the Kansas City Chiefs today at 11:30 a.m.

to be Thurman Thomas, the NFL's most valuable player, who has recovered from a mild ankle sprain that kept him out of the season finale.

Thomas, the league leader in combined rushing and receiving yards for the past three seasons, is the key to the Bills' offense because he represents a difficult dilemma for any defensive coordinator.

When he's not running out of the backfield, Buffalo lines Thomas up as a wide receiver, where he's too quick to be covered by a linebacker and too powerful to be handled effectively by a defensive back.

"It's been a while since I've put on the pads and had a little contact, so I'm looking forward to this game," Thomas said.

Perhaps the biggest difference between this meeting and the previous one is the site. The Bills were flustered by the revved-up Kansas City crowd, getting a taste of what opponents have felt coming into Rich Stadium the past three seasons.

The Bills' 17-game home winning streak was snapped by Detroit in the season finale, but as DeBerg noted, "I got the feeling that they had just kind of sacrificed that game because it really wasn't of much importance to the Bills. They didn't want to chance some injuries to some key players."

For the third year in a row, the Bills set a new NFL home attendance record and a sellout crowd of more than 80,000 — their ninth of the season — can be expected to give the Chiefs the same problems Buffalo had in Kansas City.

"I don't care where you go, when you have fans rooting for you and your offense can hear the audibles and their offense can't, it's a big plus," Bills safety Leonard Smith said.

"I'd like our fans to make as much noise as they can," he said. "They have a week to get their voice back for next playoff game."

NY Knicks cool off Washington Bullets

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Patrick Ewing had 24 points and a season-high 19 rebounds as the New York Knicks cooled off the Washington Bullets, 113-99 Saturday night.

The Knicks built a 13-point lead in the first quarter and never let the margin get under six points after that as they won their seventh road game in the last nine. Mark Jackson had 20 points along with nine assists, and John Starks also scored 20.

Michael Adams scored 23 points for the Bullets, who had won three straight and six of seven. Adams missed eight of nine field goal attempts in the first half but was 8-for-14 after halftime, fueling a late comeback.

A pair of free throws by A.J. English closed Washington to 97-91 with 5:13 left, but Ewing put in a missed shot by Xavier McDaniel and then blocked a shot on the other end.

Anthony Mason then made a pair of free throws to give the Knicks a 101-91 cushion with 4:09 remaining, and the Bullets were doomed to their 10th loss in 14 home games. They are 8-9 on the road.

New York started brilliantly, committing only one turnover while making 11 of its first 18 shots and all seven free throws to open up a 29-16 lead. Jackson had 12 points in the opening quarter, which ended with the Knicks ahead 33-23.

The lead reached 17 points by halftime and climbed as high as 21 in the third quarter.

NBA Roundup

Rookie Larry Johnson scored 23 points and reserve Anthony Frederick added 18 as the Charlotte Hornets snapped a six-game home losing streak Saturday night with a 113-108 victory over the Phoenix Suns.

The Hornets, who have lost four games after leading by 10 or more points this season, didn't fold this time. They trailed 96-95 before turning the game around.

Johnson scored underneath, Johnny Newman made a free throw and Frederick scored on a drive to put the Hornets up 100-96 with 4:12 left.

After Jerrod Mustaf's turnaround jumper closed Phoenix to 102-100, Frederick hit a leaping jumper and was fouled. He made the free throw to put the Hornets up by five with 2:49 to go, and Phoenix got no closer than four after that.

Kendall Gill had 20 points for the Hornets and Newman scored 19. Jeff Hornacek scored 19 and Dan Majerle 18 for the Suns, who have lost two straight after a 14-1 streak.

Charlotte led 73-63 midway through the third quarter, but Mustaf closed the period with five straight points to pull Phoenix to 81-78 entering the final period.

The Hornets took a 60-53 halftime advantage after rookie Kevin Lynch swished a jumper from the corner at the buzzer.

Advertisers steering away from Magic

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Few advertisers have firm plans to continue using Magic Johnson as a product pitchman, despite strong statements of support following his announcement that he was infected with the AIDS virus.

While eagerly committing money to Johnson's AIDS research and education foundation, many companies are less enthusiastic about a national ad campaign with Johnson, now forever associated with the deadly disease.

Johnson's contract with Pepsi-Cola Co. ends this summer and any new campaign using Johnson "is not on the front burner," said Andrew Giangola, a spokesman for Pepsi-Cola in Somers, N.Y.

Nestle Chocolate and Confection Co. of Purchase, N.Y., had plans to air a Nestle's Crunch bar commercial with Johnson in February. But since Johnson's stunning disclosure, plans are up in the air.

"It is different now and he has accepted that," Johnson's agent, Lon Rosen, said. "What's important to him now is to deliver a message."

After Johnson's emotional announcement at a Nov. 7 news conference, companies moved swiftly to pledge loyalty, whether out of fealty or fear of seeming to abandon the popular sports star.

"Companies will fully support his public commitment (on behalf of AIDS) and refrain from using him in active advertising. But you won't find any new companies coming on board," said Marty Blackman, who with his firm, Blackman and Raber Ltd. of New York, advises companies on the use of celebrities in national advertising.

Instead of Johnson for Pepsi-Cola, it may be Johnson for AIDS awareness sponsored by Pepsi-Earvin "Magic" Johnson waves to fans during a recent appearance at the Forum in Los Angeles. After testing positive HIV-positive, advertisers have steered away from Johnson.

Johnson, who promoted the store's electronics goods for the Christmas season. Those commercials already were completed before Johnson's announcement. Target spokesman George Hite said they rarely use a celebrity more than once and had no plans to employ Johnson again.

Kentucky Fried Chicken, also owned by PepsiCo, said they want to back his foundation but doubt they will feature Johnson again in an ad campaign. But officials deny the decision has anything to do with his HIV status.

"We sent him a note the day of the (Nov. 7) announcement saying we were completely supportive and we would stand by him," said Steve Provost, a spokesman for Louisville, Ky.-based KFC.

"We're not sure Magic wants to go back to selling products," Provost said.

A notable exception to advertiser reluctance regarding Johnson is the continued use of the athlete by sporting goods firm Converse Inc. of North Reading, Mass. Converse has been involved with the basketball star since he joined the NBA in 1979.

Johnson will be linked to athletic shoes in television ads scheduled for the summer Olympics to air around the United States basketball games, said Converse marketing executive June Farese.

"In general, consumer response has been extraordinarily positive," she said. "We are more concerned with the higher level of what he's going to do, and try to do the best we can with something sad."

Spalding Sports Worldwide did not return numerous phone messages left at its Chicopee, Mass., office. But published reports have indicated they will continue to sell their Magic Johnson basketballs.

Converse and Spalding plan to help Johnson get his message about AIDS out to the public.

Green Wave surprises No. 24 Louisville, 87-83

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

On the 17th try, Tulane finally figured out what it takes to beat Louisville at Freedom Hall.

"Tulane outplayed us, no doubt about it," Louisville coach Denny Crum said after the Greene Wave had surprised the 24th-ranked Cardinals 87-83 in overtime on Saturday.

"Tulane executed exceptionally well down the stretch. They did what they wanted to do," Crum said.

"Down through the years, we've had teams that have been able to execute coming down the stretch," Crum said. "Today, we didn't execute one thing right. One thing that killed us was when you hit two of 16 from the 3-point line and miss 14 free throws. You're not supposed to win."

Still, Louisville had a chance to run its record against Tulane at Freedom Hall to 17-0. But the Green Wave's Matt Greene hit a 12-footer for an 80-78 lead and, after Louisville's Keith LeGree missed a 3-pointer, came back with a layup off a pass from Greg Gary to push Tulane's margin to four points with 2:20 to go.

"I like the ball in that situation," said Greene, a reserve who led Tulane (9-0) with 21 points. "I'm not going to say I have great confidence in my shot, but underneath the basket I can put it down pretty well."

In other games Saturday, it was No. 6 Connecticut beat Illinois 70-66, No. 8 North Carolina beat Colorado 85-64, No. 10 Indiana beat Cincinnati 81-60 and Villanova surprised No. 22 Georgetown 75-73.

In later games involving the top 10, it was Georgia at No. 2 UCLA and No. 4 Kansas at SMU. In the second 10, it was No. 12 Seton Hall at Boston College, No. 13 Missouri at Oregon, No. 14 Oklahoma against Massachusetts at Springfield, Mass., Auburn at No. 16 Arkansas, No. 17 Kentucky at South Carolina, Miami at No. 18 St. John's, No. 19 Alabama at Mississippi State and No. 20 Wake Forest at Clemson.

Rounding out the rankings, it was Coastal Carolina at No. 21 North Carolina-Charlotte, Providence at No. 23 Syracuse.

No. 5 Connecticut 70, Illinois 66
At Champaign, Ill., Chris Smith scored 33 points as the Huskies (10-0) overcame poor shooting and rebounding. Connecticut hit only 39 percent of its shots and was outrebounded 52-33. But Illinois (6-4) was even worse, hitting only 34 percent and committing 19 turnovers to the Huskies' 12.

Smith made two free throws to put Connecticut ahead 53-52 with 8½ minutes to play. Illinois was within 61-58 with 3:40 to play, but could get no closer.

No. 8 N. Carolina 85, Colorado 64
At Chapel Hill, N.C., the Tar Heels (9-1) had a 50-39 rebounding edge and held Colorado (7-4) to 34 percent shooting. Hubert Davis had 22 points to lead North Carolina, hitting four of six 3-pointers. North Carolina led 36-21 at halftime and pushed it to 76-43 with six minutes to play.

No. 10 Indiana 81, Cincinnati 60

College Hoops

At Cincinnati, Eric Anderson hit seven of 11 shots, including the first four he tried in the second half, to spark Indiana (9-2) past the Bearcats (8-2). Cincinnati led by six at halftime but Anderson scored 10 of his 23 points early in the second period as Indiana took a 44-41 lead.

Villanova 75, No. 22 Georgetown 73
Lance Miller made two free throws with 3.8 seconds remaining as Villanova (3-6) held off the Hoyas (7-2). Villanova led most of the way, but the Hoyas went ahead 71-69 when Irvin Church made four free throws, two for a foul and two more when a technical was called on Villanova's Chris Walker.

The game came down to a collision between Villanova's Lance Miller and Georgetown's Don Reid with 3.8 seconds left. One official called it a charge, but he was overruled and Miller made both shots.

South Florida 78, Texas Christian 67
TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Radenko Dobras scored 26 points and had 8 assists Saturday night to lead the University of South Florida to a 78-67 come-from-behind victory over Texas Christian.

The Bulls (9-2) committed three turnovers and lost four offensive rebounds in the first six minutes, with Texas Christian (9-3) converting them into enough field goals to jump to a 12-5 lead.

Dobras then hit a 3-pointer and four free-throws to make it 14-14 with 11:50 remaining in the first half. Fred Lewis chipped in with three field goals to put the Bulls ahead 25-19.

But guard Albert Thomas came off the bench to score 8 points, including two 3-pointers, to give the Horned Frogs a 41-34 halftime lead.

No. 16 Arkansas 110, Auburn 92
FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Todd Day made his first five shots, four from 3-point range, starting 16th-ranked Arkansas to a 110-92 thumping of Auburn in the Razorbacks' debut in the Southeastern Conference.

The Razorbacks made 10 of their first 12 shots, including their first six 3-pointers, and built a 20-point lead in the first 9½ minutes.

Day, who sat out the first semester for disciplinary reasons, returned to the Arkansas lineup Thursday night and scored 26 points in 22 minutes against Quincy College. Against Auburn, he had 16 in the opening seven minutes, 24 by halftime on 6-of-7 shooting on 3-pointers, and finished with a career-high 35.

Auburn (6-5) led 3-2 before Day hit two free throws and pulled up on a fast break for his first 3-pointer. Arkansas led 11-8 and then went on an 18-4 run.

Day's second 3-pointer made it 17-10. After a steal, Day pulled up and sank another 3-pointer for a 10-point lead. Robert Shepherd got into the 3-point act and then Day made another for a 27-10 advantage.

Seton Hall edges Boston College

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Jerry Walker scored 23 points and helped hold Boston College ace Billy Curley to just two field goals Saturday night as 12th-ranked Seton Hall held on for a 67-64 Big East victory over the Eagles.

Terry Dehere, Walker's high school teammate at St. Anthony's in Jersey City, added 17 points as Seton Hall (8-2 and 1-1) built a lead of as much as 13 points in the first 16 minutes and hung on to hand BC (8-3 and 0-2) a second conference loss within 48 hours.

Curley, a sophomore averaging 21.4 points a game, managed 14 points, including 10 at the free-throw line, as he was hounded by Walker and other Seton Hall defenders.

MAGNUM TRACTORS—MAKING THEIR MARK ACROSS THE LAND.

Farmers across North America have put hundreds of thousands of hours on their MAGNUM tractors. Some have pulled sub-soil chisels through the hardpan of Texas. Some have hauled grain carts across the prairies of Saskatchewan. Others have disked the rich soil of Illinois. Whatever the work, MAGNUM tractors have earned their reputation for durability, reliability and performance.

It's a reputation farmers appreciate. They know when it's time for a tough job, MAGNUM holds its own. And when it's time for a trade, MAGNUM holds its value.

Crappie fishing becoming more and more popular

Crappie fishing as a sport is growing in popularity all across the United States. Crappies are known by many different names, such as razorback, speckled perch and calico bass, depending on the location. Whatever they are called crappie are fun to catch, good to eat and for some enthusiastic anglers, crappie fishing is definitely becoming a profitable sport. As crappie fishing grows in popularity the fishing industry is responding. Manufacturers are designing and marketing tackle and lures especially for crappie anglers. There are also crappie publications, clubs, tournaments and even crappie pros.

To catch crappie you need light tackle. I prefer a 5/8 foot light action rod and four or six pound test line. If the line is too heavy it will be more visible to the fish and distort the natural action of the lure. The most common lures used for catching crappie are tiny jigs, 1/8-1/32 ounces and live minnows. To increase the number of strikes you get make sure the jigs are balanced. A balanced jig will not wobble back and forth as it is being retrieved. Instead, it will set up straight in the water. When the fish are in deep water you may need to add one or two slip shots to get the lure down to the fish.

Crappie are basically a deep water fish, they prefer areas near abrupt depth changes. Remember though, "deep" is a relative term, depending on the specific body of water. Crappie seldom roam wide open water.

Fishing with Mark

They prefer to hold in large schools, near places of cover such as brush piles, submerged tree-tops and dock pilings. A depth finder and a contour map are in valuable tools for locating crappie. Once you find a hot spot you can catch a limit or fill up a cooler.

Crappie like many other species of fish are very pattern oriented. In the spring crappie will move into the shallows to feed but still favor cover. To really be successful, fish close to the cover. Of course you will hang and lose a few jigs so make sure you have a good supply on hand.

Cast or drop your jig into heavy cover. Hold the rod tip up and make the retrieval slow and deliberate, an occasional bumping action will make the jig appear more life-like.

When you get a strike, set the hook with a quick snap. Remember, crappie have tender mouths, hence the name "paper mouth". Be careful not to pull the hook out of the fish's mouth. This takes practice. You will probably lose a few but experience is the best teacher. And in this case gaining the necessary experience is pure pleasure.

Boat show will last six days

SAN ANTONIO — The 36th edition of the San Antonio Sport, Boat and RV Show is set for Jan. 14-19 at the Convention Center for its big six-day run. The event, now recognized as a major show of the South will utilize over a quarter of a million square feet of convention center exhibit space for the 1992 extravaganza. The Sport, Boat and RV Show is slated as one of the fastest growing shows in the South, as visitors travel as far as 300 miles to attend.

More than 130,000 square feet of display floor will be filled with boats ranging from cruisers to sailboats. A full spectrum of powerboats, fishing and bass boats, personal watercrafts and boating and skiing accessories will be available for inspection. instant financing is available from exhibition financial institutions.

Over 400 exhibits will occupy every inch of available space with displays of the latest models and products of the marine industry and related outdoor oriented fields.

Boats are the main event, but only a part of the varied attractions of the upcoming show. Fishing tackle, guides, fishing charters, lodges and camps will be represented, along with hunting guides and outfitters from the Rocky Mountain areas, Alaska and Canada; hunting equipment, campgrounds, recreational vacation areas; plus over 90,000 square feet of recreational vehicles featuring all sizes and types of motor homes, travel trailers, tent camping trailers, along with RV supplies and accessories.

Fishermen and women alike will have the opportunity to mingle through the largest display of fishing tackle, including factory exhibited lanned with factory representatives, in the show's 36 year history. The very latest in rods, reels, lines, baits, plus a multitude of fishing gimmicks and gadgets will be on exhibit and demonstrated in the mammoth fishing section.

Informative and educational free fishing seminars will be presented throughout the six-day event. Topics will include both fresh water and saltwater fishing information. Included with this year's fishing seminars, will be seminars by Dr. John G. Thomas, extension entomologist with Texas A&M University regarding the Africanized honey bee. Dr. Thomas will bring live "killer bees" to his exhibit for public inspection, and will conduct seminars week nights at 7 p.m. and 2 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday afternoon. Dr. Thomas has been involved in tracking the bees since their arrival in the U.S. on October 15, 1990 near Hidalgo, Texas, and will have the most updated information regarding the AHBs. Bill Morrill, Outdoor editor of KTTA-500 AM will host the fishing seminars.

The traditional Trout Fishing Tank always a hit with the children, will be stocked with 3,000 pounds of Rainbow Trout and ready for the young anglers.

All you want to know about 'killer bees'

SAN ANTONIO — Dr. John G. Thomas, extension entomologist with Texas A&M University will be an exhibitor in the upcoming San Antonio Sport, Boat and RV Show, January 14-19, 1992 at the San Antonio Convention Center. Since its arrival in the U.S. October 15, 1990, near Hidalgo, Thomas has been involved in tracking the Africanized honey bee, (AHB) misnamed, the "killer bee." "Just like snakes," Dr. Thomas said, we will have to learn to live with them. (AHBs). Through literature I will distribute to Boat Show visitors, and the seminars I will conduct, I hope to inform and educate more of the public sector as to the habits of the Africanized honey bee."

It is important for the public to be accurately informed about the bees, and with proper knowledge, people can avoid fear and panic because they will understand how to protect themselves with personal injury.

The key to personal protection is to know where the bees are likely to nest and to avoid disturbing them. Due to the nesting site selection, unlike the more gentle European honey bees, who prefer a hollow tree or wall void; the Africanized honey bee may nest in underground cavities and in relatively smaller spaces such as flower pots, old tires and bird houses, with far less protection from the elements.

Along with the most updated information, Dr. Thomas will bring several AHBs to his show exhibit for public viewing and will conduct seminars on the bees week nights Tuesday thru Friday at 7 p.m. ; 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday, and 2 p.m. Sunday.

These seminars are free to the public with the general Boat Show admission of $5 for adults and $2 for children age 6-12.

Barkley's book may make some outrageously wrathful

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Barkley's new autobiography, "Outrageous", is an outrage to 76ers owner Harold Katz.

It's even an outrage to Barkley who said his co-author, Roy S. Johnson of Sports Illustrated, misinterpreted some of his remarks.

"The book is coming out," Barkley said. "There are going to be a couple of things (wrong)." Barkley first vowed last month the book wouldn't be released after he read some of his remarks in a manuscript obtained by The Philadelphia Inquirer.

Then, in an interview from his hotel in Minneapolis on Barkley said he learned he couldn't stop the release since publisher Simon & Shuster had already printed 60,000 copies.

The book is due in Philadelphia bookstores next week.

In it, Barkley claims his grandmother can score more points in a game than Manute Bol while referring to himself as "the ninth wonder of the world."

Barkley said Johnson misquoted or misinterpreted his remarks about teammates Bol, Armon Gilliam, Charles Shackleford and other things.

"One of our problems is that Harold enjoys making deals, and yet he knows about as much basketball as any fan who sits around watching games all the time — not much," Barkley was quoted as saying.

"By the middle of the season, if Harold's moves don't work, maybe I'll do something drastic."

On Thursday, Barkley said: "That was ridiculous. That was a waste of time. I know I didn't say anything like that."

He added he won't do anything drastic like leave the 76ers: "I just have to grit my teeth and bear it."

Katz didn't take the comments lightly, and indicated he may one day decide Barkley isn't worth the trouble.

"I know that most autobiographies are taken by tape," Katz said Thursday. "I find it hard to believe that everything he said was not true."

Simon & Shuster sports books director Jeff Newman said he was sure Johnson had taped Barkley's remarks.

Johnson wouldn't say whether he taped Barkley, but said: "I com-

Philadelphia 76ers' Charles Barkley will come out with his book "Outrageous" sometime this month. Barkley said some of the things printed was said in jest.

pleted this collaboration with the same diligence that I have practiced for the last 12 years."

"Outrageous" will be released nationwide this month, Newman said. He wouldn't say if the book could be released without Barkley's permission.

The push begins to get rid of those 'holiday' pounds

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

One of the most popular New Year's resolutions is to lose the extra pounds put on by indulging in the holiday treats and feasts.

Laurie Churchwell, owner of the Dance Gallery & Fitness Center at 2303 Goliad, says that people gain an average of 7.1 pounds between the months of July through December. Most of the weight gain is seen between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Year round the Dance Gallery as well as other fitness centers offer programs and exercise classes to reduce body fat and promote nutrition. The centers do observe a rise in their memberships in January each year.

The first mistake most people make when they make a concerted effort to lose holiday pounds is to try to do too much too fast, said Howard College's Harold Davis Fitness Center Director Roy Green.

"Everyone is real gung-ho about losing the weight at first," he said. "But trying to do too much and not seeing the results immediately causes many people to lose enthusiasm instead of weight."

The best way to lose weight is to take it slow, Green said. If the weight loss is over a long period of time, it is more likely that a person will keep it off. A diet is almost always just a temporary solution, which will not keep weight down for a long period of time, he said.

Green's strongest suggestion for people wishing to begin a fitness program is not to change everything at once. Daily diet should be looked at first and then the exercise regiment. If an exercise program is started, one should wait before drastically changing their daily diet.

"So many people make the classic mistake of doing both at the beginning," he said. "This causes undue stress on the body and the mind."

"Another thing that needs to be done is finding out where you are at. Body fat measurements need to be taken care of before starting any fitness program. And find out what kind of exercise your body can handle."

Dorothy McDaniel, regional supervisor of Weight Watchers, suggests losing weight nutritionally.

"People need to follow healthy guidelines," she said. "Do not neglect needed complex carbohydrates. A balanced diet with all the four food groups is a necessity. They also should develop an exercise pattern slowly."

The Dance Gallery & Fitness Center, the Harold Davis Fitness Center, New Horizons Fitness Center and the Big Spring YMCA all offer programs to help out with weight loss and fitness programs.

Weight Watchers members meet twice a week in Big Spring. For more information call 1-800-874-7451.

How those calories mount up

WACO (AP) — How can it be that in the short time between Thanksgiving and New Year's — that's just over a month — the calories can mount so quickly? How can I put on pounds so fast when taking them off last year went so slowly?

It's really pretty easy to figure out why the holiday push often means a post-holiday paunch, according to Jo Ann Carson, director of the clinical nutrition program at Southwestern Allied Health Sciences School at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Galveston.

Eating an extra 500 calories a day every day in the 35 days this year between Thanksgiving and New Year's translates into an extra five pounds (17,500 calories), Carson said.

And it takes surprising little calculating for those 500 calories to add up, according to Carson's "Eating Your Way to the Next Dress Size Chart."

For example, at a tree-trimming party you limited yourself to four ounces of alcoholic eggnog (335 calories), one ounce of peanut brittle (123 calories) and just one chocolate chip cookie (46 calories). Presto, you've consumed 504 calories in less than 10 minutes.

Or maybe at that family Christmas party, you sneaked in one gingersnap before dinner, had one piece of pecan pie for dessert and you just couldn't resist a chocolate brownie from the tray Aunt Sue was passing around. Bingo, chalk up 498 calories, according to the chart.

"What can I do," you may be screaming now. "I just couldn't pass by every chocolate chip cookie I saw this season."

Calm down. Instead of trying to deprive yourself of all those goodies, Carson suggests you follow her "Daily Calorie Swap Chart."

Instead of watching everyone else eat cake while you munch on a carrot stick, Carson suggests cutting out a few things you normally eat (preferably those with empty calories) to make room for that little extra something that might satisfy that urge to splurge.

Following are Carson's recommendations for swaps:

- Omitting an order of french fries allows you to have 1 cup of hot chocolate (218 calories).
- Omitting 1 ounce of cheese allows you to have a 1-ounce piece of fudge with nuts (119 calories).
- Omitting a 12-ounce soda allows you to have 1 cup of caramel popcorn (134 calories).
- Omitting 1 dinner roll allows you to have 8 to 12 mixed nuts (94 calories).
- Omitting 1 egg allows you to have 1 glass of champagne (84 calories).
- Omitting 1 tablespoon of butter allows you to have 2 peanut butter cookies (100 calories).

— Omitting 1 ounce of potato chips allows you to have 1 slice of light fruit cake (156 calories).

Carson also offers these suggestions for substituting:

- Substituting lean ground beef for regular ground beef allows you to have 1 sugar cookie (89 calories).
- Substituting 2 glasses of skim milk for 2 glasses of 2 percent milk allows you to have 1 macaroon (67 calories).
- Substituting 1/2 breast of chicken for 1 chicken drumstick and thigh allows you to have 1 shortbread cookie (42 calories).
- Substituting 2 slices of diet bread for 2 slices of regular bread allows you to have 1 oatmeal cookie (62 calories).

Carson says it is even OK once in a while to save up your calories during the week in preparation for a later.

"To do that all the time, however, is not a good idea because you break that pattern of control," she said.

"A lot of people get into a pattern of eating carefully and they begin losing weight," Carson said. "Then something happens to change that pattern, something like the holidays."

One stumbling block for many, according to Carson, is associating the specialness of the holidays with having lots of sweets.

Globe of the Great Southwest

Odessa has an exact replica of Shakespeare's Globe Theater. The original Globe was built in London in the sixteenth century. Odessa's Globe of the Great Southwest opened in 1968.

There are some differences in the two theaters. Shakespeare's theater was open-air. Odessa's Globe has a roof on it. It also has air conditioning and red carpeting. Antique dock lanterns on the inside walls light the way with a warm glow.

The Globe seats 410 people in its balcony and main floor. Because of its octagonal shape and the fact that it is made primarily of plaster and wood, the theater's acoustics are amazing. Each cushioned seat offers an unobstructed view of the stage.

The stage comes within inches of the audience making for an intimate actor-audience relationship. In Shakespeare's time, poor folks called "groundlings" paid a penny to stand in a semicircle at the edge of the raised stage.

The balconies were designed originally for royalty and the wealthy of Elizabethan England. Odessa's Globe is a monument to a dream and is the product of one woman's devotion.

Marjorie Morris was teaching English at Odessa High School in the early sixties when a student brought a miniature replica of Shakespeare's Globe anywhere on earth.

From its inception, Mrs. Morris was the driving force behind the creation and development of the unique theater. Her infectious enthusiasm for Shakespeare and the Globe spread throughout West Texas and the nation and gathered support from many sources.

International magazines, wire services, newspapers and broadcast networks ran stories on the Globe, generating world wide publicity for the city of Odessa. People from several countries have visited the Globe of the Great Southwest.

Marjorie built the Globe as the heard some of the bard's words. She memorized long passages of his work while in high school. She earned BA and MA degrees in English from North Texas State University and studied with Shakespeare scholars at Yale University, the University of Southern California, Washington, D.C. and Birmingham and Stratford in England.

Her thesis, "The Proposed Globe Theater of Odessa, Texas," astonished the world of academe. Scholars scoffed at the idea of building such a theater in the middle of the oil patch. But when they saw the zeal of Marjorie Morris, they knew it would happen. They helped her build the most nearly authentic replica of Shakespeare's Globe anywhere on earth.

money came in. She never borrowed a penny, even though her husband was a banker.

When she was raising funds for the theater, both oil and money were flowing freely in West Texas. When someone made a large donation, she made sure a nice write up was in the Odessa newspaper. The more money that came in, the more obligated she felt to finish her project.

In recent years, the Globe has added Anne Hathaway's Cottage. The original cottage, in England, was the birthplace of the woman who became Shakespeare's wife. The cottage in Odessa is a large structure adjacent to the theater, built in the same architectural style as the Globe and is used for receptions, meetings and seminars. It contains a Shakespeare library.

Each spring, the Globe presents a Shakespeare festival. Some well known actors have performed at the Globe of the Great Southwest. When a Shakespeare play is not on stage, the theater is used for everything from Broadway musicals to Saturday night jamborees.

The 1992 season at the Globe includes comedienne Rose Mary Rumbley, Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," Moliere's "Scapin," "My Fair Lady," "Henry VIII" and "A Christmas Carol."

Marjorie Morris taught English for twenty years at Odessa College. During those years, she was also working with the Globe. She retired from teaching years ago, but stayed on at the Globe. Marjorie, now 84, recently retired from her position as managing director.

Seeing spots

Dalmatians Bethany and Ace enjoy traveling in their "Spotmobile" with their owner, Marcia Lancaster-Carlson, who peers between the two, in Seattle recently. Carlson and her husband Randy love spots so much they have painted their mailbox and two other cars with the distinctive markings. The breed's name comes from the district of Dalmatia in Yugoslavia, as does the car they ride in, a Yugo.

'Living together' then and now

DEAR ABBY: Why do some people get so worked up and judgmental because a man and woman choose to live together without a marriage license? There is nothing immoral about that kind of arrangement. Remember, Joseph and Mary lived together and were not married until after Jesus was born. —BIBLICAL SCHOLAR

DEAR SCHOLAR: Because living together today does not reflect the same commitment that it did in biblical times. According to Jewish customs of biblical times, Joseph and Mary were betrothed — a commitment so binding that if Joseph had died before taking Mary under his roof, Mary would have become a widow. Or, if Joseph had backed out, he and Mary would have required a legal divorce.

Although Mary and Joseph shared one house, according to Matthew 1:25, "He did not know her (have sexual relations with her) until she brought forth her firstborn son." This means that even though Joseph and Mary lived together, they did not have relations until after the birth of Jesus.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been happily married for 20 years. About a year ago, she started to sleep in the clothes she wore all day.

In the morning, she puts on sweatpants and a comfortable sweater, and when evening comes, she takes off her shoes and jumps into bed. She says that way she doesn't have to get dressed in the morning.

Abby, this bothers me a lot. I wear pajamas to bed every night, and I feel cheated when my wife comes to bed fully clothed. She has a very nice figure and I feel like I'm being cheated by this cover-up. When I complain, she accuses me of not letting her be herself. I wonder if auto mechanics wear their greasy coveralls to bed so they won't have to get dressed in the morning.

Abby, please ask your readers if anyone else has this problem. — CHEATED IN BOISE

DEAR CHEATED: I've had letters from wives who complain because their husbands sleep in the shorts they've worn all day, but this is a new one.

Your wife's "cover-up" is a way of avoiding marital relations. (Sex.) You need to find out why your wife no longer wants to "know you" in the biblical sense. There must be a reason. I suggest you both see a family counselor in an effort to restore a 20-year marriage that went off the track about a year ago.

If there is nothing seriously wrong — and your wife has just grown bored or uninterested — consider a Marriage Encounter weekend, and learn together how to revive those old feelings. For the location of a Marriage Encounter group near you, send a long, self-addressed stamped (29 cents) envelope to: National Marriage Encounter, 4704 Jamerson Place, Orlando, Fla. 32807.

Dreaming of a white Christmas

Ollie Mae Henry got her fondest wish for Christmas.

She told her husband, Arvil, that she wanted to spend Christmas "where it snows." — and that's just what they did. The Henrys spent the Christmas holiday in Ruidoso — but pinned down by a 17-inch snowfall!

"We had no electricity — or heat — part of the time," she says, "but it was just beautiful!"

Even the trip up to the mountains was extraordinary. Ollie Mae reports that she had to get out and push the car when it stalled in the snow. And when they arrived at their condo atop Camelot Mountain, she promptly slipped on the icy walk and fell!

Another group from Big Spring also spent the weekend after Christmas at Cloudfroft and Ruidoso, skiing and gambling. They were Darci Bushey, Desiree Wallace, Yolie Williams and Darrell Ash. Of course, Fred and Sam (Yolie's dogs) also went. The weather was perfect for skiing. One of the most exciting things was Darci and Des riding in the back of the truck. It was quite an experience they'll never forget.

Glued to the tube at halftime in the Orange Bowl this week were Mamie Kinman, Mack Underwood and Fannie Joe Cates.

Former resident, R. M. (Bob) Looney, who is married to their sister, Lois, was introduced at halftime as a member of the TCU Horned Frogs team which played

Tidbits

Lea Whitehead

Melba Soles' children were home for the holidays.

Jim and Sharon McDonald, Denver, Colo., came in early and spent 10 days. The family took in the Confederate Air Force Museum open house and air show.

"They went home before the 25th," says Melba, "because they wanted to be there when Santa Claus visited their 2-year-old grandson, Cody Poole."

Arriving in time to spend Christmas with Melba were Larry and Sharon Seals with Catie, 3, and Brid, 15 months. Sheridan, Ark. Brid had a wonderful time trying to help everyone open their presents, says Melba, "and he rearranged grandmother's house!"

Nigel James is leaving Big Spring soon to live in England.

An employee of Fina, Nigel has arranged a transfer to work with Lindsey Refining, an industry associate, for the next three years.

For Nigel, it will actually be a return to his roots; he was born in England and moved to the U. S. when he was six.

"That's why I don't have an English accent," he says.

Maybe he'll cultivate one, he says, while he travels about the Isles to visit aunts, uncles and cousins he's never seen.

in the Orange Bowl's inaugural game 50 years ago!

The Looneys also lived in Odessa and Abilene before settling in Grand Prairie.

Roy and Sidney Rosene spent two weeks visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Carl and Dana Baker, in Spring, near Houston.

Other family members from both the Baker and Rosene families — some 20 in all — gathered from all over the Houston area for a reunion during the holiday.

Another Bowl brief: Hannah Coleman and son, Lee, were surprised to find themselves spectators at the A&M-Florida State Cotton Bowl Classic in Dallas New Year's Day.

They got tickets from her brother, J. Harrison, at the last minute when he opted for a hunting trip. So Hannah contacted her dad, Johnnie Harrison, Cleburne, — "an Aggie to the core" — and away they went.

Hannah returned Friday, but Lee — who drove down in the pickup grandmother Naoma Coleman gave him for Christmas — is staying a few days to help his grandfather Harrison mend fences washed out by the recent flooding.

Weddings

Baldwin-Perry

Carol Baldwin and Ron Perry exchanged wedding vows Dec. 14, 1991, at 10 a.m. in the First Presbyterian Church in Denton. The Rev. Tom Reid performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Hart, Big Spring. The groom is the son of Betty Massey, Mesquite, and Roy Perry, Glen Rose.

Erin Meux, Denton, served as the ringbearer for the ceremony. A reception honoring the couple was held in the couple's home following the ceremony.

The reception table was decorated with an arrangement featuring a bride and groom and a country church, all made of gingerbread.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School, has a journalism degree from Texas Tech University and a master's from UT Permian Basin. She is currently employed as a Public Information Coordinator for the Professional Development Institute of the University of North Texas. The groom is a graduate of Mes-

The couple will make their home in Denton.

Military

Navy Ensign Donald E. Osborn, a 1986 graduate of Snyder High School, was recently designated a Naval Flight Officer (NFO).

Osborn received his "Wings of Gold" upon completion of the 23-week Navigator Training Course at Mather Air Force Base, Sacramento, Calif.

During his final phase of NFO training, he received extensive instruction in celestial, grid, global and tactical navigation.

His instruction included academic study, use of flight training simulators and participation in more than 100 hours of in-flight training.

Also a 1990 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, MD, he joined the Navy in May 1990.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class James R. Bobo, a 1985 graduate of Grady High School of Lenorah, recently returned from a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific, Indian Ocean and Arabian Gulf.

Bobo serves aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Long Beach, homeported in San Diego. Bobo's ship was part of Battle Group Fox-trot, an eight ship task group centered around the Navy's newest nuclear powered aircraft carrier, USS Abraham Lincoln.

Bobo participated in Operation Fiery Vigil which evacuated more than 17,000 Americans from the Philippines after the eruption of Mount Pinatubo. The battle group also spent more than three months on station in the Arabian Gulf joining the multi-national peace keeping forces of Operation Desert Storm.

Battle Group Fox-trot operated with forces from France, Great Britain, Japan, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and several other Gulf states to support United Nations resolutions in the region. The group also worked with the navies of Thailand, Malaysia and Singapore. Additionally, while off the coast of Japan, the battle group participated in exercises with the Japanese Self Defense Force to enhance the combined forces' defense of Japan.

He joined the Navy in March 1988.

Army Pvt. Jimmy G. Thompson, a multichannel communications system operator, has arrived for duty at Fort Riley, Kan.

Thompson is the son of Billy R. and Sandra K. Thompson of 1110 Austin, Colorado City. The soldier is a 1986 graduate of Colorado High School.

Army Spec. Linda G. Brackeen, a medical supply specialist, has arrived for duty at Clark Kaserne, Frankfurt, Germany.

She is the daughter of Dolores A. Thompson of 204 E. River St., L'Anse, Mich. and Leon H. Thompson of 2291 Chesley Dr., Sterling Heights, Mich.

Her husband, Richard, is the son of Frances M. Brackeen of Big Spring.

The specialist graduated in 1983 from L'Anse High School, and received an associate degree in 1986 from Suomi College, Hancock, Mich.

Pvt. Richard G. Kriesen has completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

He is the nephew of Ezequiel J. Munoz of 603 N.E. 10th St., Big Spring.

The private is a 1991 graduate of Big Spring High School.

Raymond Sanchez Jr., son of Raymond and Maria Sanchez, 2613 Fairchild, Big Spring, will depart next March for food service specialist training at Fort Lee, Va.

According to Midland Army Recruiter Staff Sergeant Rudy Rivera-Garcia, Sanchez enlisted for three years. He graduated from Del Rio High School in 1990.

Keith Hawley's appearance Sunday on "America's Funniest People" make him an instant celebrity with his classmates at Wilson School in Bozeman, Mont. this week. On the show Hawley showed off his extraordinarily long tongue that reaches about an inch below his chin.

Culp-Bristo

James Cullen Bristo and Marcy Jane Culp were united in marriage on April 27, 1991, at Westborne Baptist Church in Calgary, Alberta, Canada. Dennis Burriss, cousin of the bride and Larry Bristo, father of the groom, conducted the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.J. Culp, Three Hills, Alberta.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bristo, Marshalltown, Iowa, formerly of Big Spring.

A reception honoring the couple was held at the Delta Bow Valley Inn in Calgary.

The bride is currently employed as an emergency room nurse at Methodist Medical Center in Arlington.

The groom is a tactical officer with the Dallas Police Department. After a wedding trip to Cancun,

Anniversary

Griffith

Maurice (Griff) and Vivian Griffith celebrated 50 years of marriage with a golden wedding anniversary reception on Jan. 4. The event was hosted by the couple's children and held in the fellowship hall of the 11th and Birdwell Lane Church of Christ with many old and new friends in attendance.

Maurice is originally from Cleveland, Tx. and the former Vivian Earwood hails from Comstock.

The couple met in Sanderson in 1940 while at a skating rink. They were married two years later by Maurice's father, the Rev. R.E. Griffith, at the Government Hill Church of Christ in San Antonio.

They have one son, Wayne Griffith and his wife Dhela, Stonewall, and two grandchildren.

Maurice retired from the Union Pacific Railroad in 1980 after 34 years of service. Vivian retired from Civil Service after twenty years when Webb A.F.B. closed.

The couple are longtime members of the 11th and Birdwell Church of Christ. Their hobbies include loving and spoiling their

FOR SUNDAY, JANUARY 5, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Be sure of your authority before insisting that others do things your way. A positive attitude will make a big difference in career or business developments in the spring. Taking extra pains with your appearance helps you land a top job next September. You may want to relocate in November of 1992. Romance blossoms when you realize the true depth of your feelings.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Diane Keaton, slugger Ron Kittle, actor Robert Duvall, football coach Chuck Noll.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You and a friend are kindred spirits today, seeing eye-to-eye on an ambitious plan. Good fortune lies on the private level. Allow plenty of time for delays when traveling.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your plans get off the ground with a flourish today. Romantic partner has a delightfully different appeal. Cultivate someone who can help you broaden your intellectual horizons.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Membership in a club offers you an ideal opportunity to widen your circle of friends. It is safe to share a secret with a longtime confidant. Romance is especially sweet after a separation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Resist the urge to be a recluse now. You need to touch base with a number of people. This evening you will see the future clearly. An older person shares wonderful news.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New insights about yourself and your relationships make it easier for you to plan for the future. A phone call helps you see the light about a romance. Keep your spending in check.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A good day to remain close to home, recharging your batteries. Keep boring acquaintances at arm's length. Diplomacy has its uses. Do not try to impose your way of doing things on others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you have done all you can to bring a situation to a close, there is nothing left to do except wait for developments. Be patient. Hearing from a friend brings back memories.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You probably know that it is money, or its lack, that will determine your next move. This calls for deep thought. Keep in touch with the folks at home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Once you get over an initial disappointment, you will quickly bounce back. Ending a relationship that is going nowhere brings peace of mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It is your own affair if you prefer to stay home doing the things you like today. Just let your loved ones know what you have in mind. Share confidences with your mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You know just what has to be done. Plan along the most constructive lines. Spending quality time with offspring creates new rapport. Listen quietly to your children.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): There are many things to do before a project reaches an advanced stage. Pay close attention to detail to prevent costly mistakes. Get to bed early tonight if feeling tired.

To grandmother's house we go

Buddie Hechler enjoyed several Christmas celebrations with her niece, Ivy Lee Bedell and nephew, Edmund McMurray and their families. The festivities began with an early Christmas tree and dinner the evening of Dec. 14. They took a trip to Eunice, N.M. with Ivy Lee and her mother, Clara Black on Dec. 18 and concluded with a Christmas tree and dinner on the Dec. 24.

The celebration at the McMurray home was shared by their daughter, Dedra and Keight Knox, Salt Lake City, Utah; Nikita and Eddie West and children Kristan and Kaci, El Campo; Shelley and

Recession forces some owners to abandon or surrender pets

BOSTON (AP) — The recession is taking its toll on all members of the family, including pets. Animal shelters report increases in the numbers of strays and pets being "surrendered" — from cats, dogs and horses to chickens, geese and even Vietnamese potbellied pigs.

"Pets are indicative of any changes in society," said Katy Dwyer, shelter manager at Boston's Animal Rescue League.

Dwyer said between 10,000 and 11,000 cats were surrendered to the league in 1991 along with about 2,500 dogs. It was a slight increase over the previous year of hard times, but there was an intensified sadness about it all.

"This past year a lot of people started to give up older pets, pets they shared their lives with for 10 or 15 years. We found more people being evicted and not able to keep pets — single mothers, people whose economic situations changed so drastically that they had to give up pets they wouldn't before," she said. Eighty-five percent of the animals are destroyed.

Donna Bishop, director of the companion animals program for the Alliance for Animals of Boston, said she also has encountered people taking extraordinary measures to keep their animals.

"There's a lot of elderly women who go without food or heat to provide for the animals. It's not just weird people; it's pretty widespread, especially in the inner city," Bishop said.

Jill Pratt of the Colorado Horse Rescue said 110 horses were given up in 1991.

"There have been a lot of sad people coming through here," said Pratt. "Looking at (how many) horses come through, it's clear the economy is not getting better."

Pet owner support services also are being overburdened.

The Anti-Cruelty Society in Chicago runs an animal clinic for poverty-level pet owners. The clinic had 2,000 clients two years ago, but has now reached its capacity at 3,000 clients, said Jane Stern, director of administration. People line up two hours early for a monthly pet food giveaway.

"We also have homeless people come to the pet food pantry and the clinic," she said. "And they take Broomfield, Colo., are finding rabbits, dogs and cats at the end of the driveway.

"They just open up the car door and dump them out," said Kathleen Sinke, the agency's vice president.

People have also given up chickens, geese and Vietnamese potbellied pigs, said Roger Lauze, manager of large animal care at an MSPCA farm in Methuen, Mass.

One of them is Oscar, a 2,300-pound steer and early victim of the recession who came from an education center in Framingham, closed because it was in dire financial straits.

Lauze said Oscar, originally purchased as a poster calf for an anti-

Oscar, a seven-year-old, 2,300-pound steer who loves his neck rubbed, was acquired by the MSPCA after a farm in Framingham, Mass. shut down due to the poor economy. He is one of 13 large animals available for adoption at the farm.

good care of their animals. We'll see a guy pushing his dog away in a cart. It's hard. Boy, those animals are the only thing they have."

In New York City, the number of strays brought to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals rose by more than 2,500, said society official Julie Morris. This indicates some owners may be dumping their pets on city streets, she said.

veal campaign, is only available as a pet. "We don't want him in anybody's freezer. We couldn't bear to see it," he said.

Horse adoption agencies have been especially busy, because the animals are expensive to care for. Horse owners pay up to $300 a month for boarding fees, and $75 a month just to feed their pets. Veterinarian costs also are high.

"Horses are a luxury item," Lauze said.

Washington, D.C. — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) in cooperation with Micro-Dome of San Ramon, CA, today warned consumers of certain safety hazards associated with the use of the "Micro-Dome Food Preserver" manufactured by Micro-Dome and sold and distributed to consumers after August 1987.

The CPSC urges consumers to destroy all food that has been preserved using a Micro-Dome Food Preserver, and to call 1-800-736-2330 for instructions on how to receive a $50.00 rebate for returning the food preserver.

The Micro-Dome Food Preserver is used in microwave ovens to preserve fruits, vegetables and prepared dishes. The appliance is a plastic container that can process one standard metal lidded canning jar at a time. Generally priced at $50.00, approximately 18,600 units were sold to consumers.

Micro-Dome informed the Commission that the top of the plastic container may blow off in the microwave if the vent stem or safety release becomes plugged.

The pressurized plastic container may also explode during or after removal from the microwave, or if the container is hit or dropped. Furthermore, the plastic container may also crack and/or develop lines (called crazing) that could increase the risk of explosion.

Explosion of a pressurized Micro-Dome containing hot water and food could cause severe injuries such as blindness and burns from flying fragments and liquids.

Micro-Dome reported 29 incidents involving the cracking and/or crazing of the plastic container, eight incidents of the top blowing off, and four incidents of the vent being plugged without the blow plug releasing. One injury was reported involving a user who sustained burns when the top of the container blew off.

Naomi

The CPSC recommends that consumer not use the Micro-Dome Food Preserver. It should be returned to Micro-Dome for the rebate or destroyed and disposed of in such a manner that it cannot be used in the future.

CPSC is also concerned about possible food poisoning in certain foods prepared using the Micro-Dome Microwave Food Preserver. While CPSC is unaware of any incidents of food poisoning, it is concerned that the product and its accompanying recipe and instruction booklet do not adequately ensure the safety of certain canned foods.

In addition to possibly failing to kill bacteria while the food in the Micro-Dome is cooked in the microwave oven, food also can be contaminated after cooking. Eating improperly preserved food can cause serious illness such as botulism. The toxin which causes botulism is the most potent natural poison in the world. Even one taste could be fatal.

The Food Safety and Inspection Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has warned that the Micro-Dome needs more extensive testing. According to University of California researchers the Micro-Dome canning process was not successful. Bacteria survived. Micro-Dome denies there is a food poisoning problem.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission is announcing this warning as part of this mission to protect the public from unreasonable risks of injury and death associated with consumer products.

Tips for a healthier New Year

By W. GIFFORD-JONES, M.D.

What is the best medicine for 1992?

Last year I suggested 20 ways to ensure a healthier new year. I haven't changed my mind when I say that anyone who still smokes should see a psychiatrist. You also need a psychoanalyst if you swallow pills for every ache and pain, or if you believe King Henry VIII was a good role model, when obesity is causing an epidemic of diabetes.

Last year I cautioned readers to avoid laxatives like the plague; suggested that estrogen helps post menopausal women avoid many problems; said fiber is crucial to sound nutrition, and that for those past 40 years of age, it's prudent to have a colonoscopic examination to detect premalignant large-bowel polyps.

Here are a dozen more suggestions for 1992.

1. I've never been more convinced that North Americans, and the rest of the world, need a good laugh. Laughter triggers the release of endorphins by the brain. Endorphins are the body's natural painkillers, they counteract the negative effects of stress. So let's start '92 with a chuckle. If you can't see the humor in this joke, you're in trouble. Gregory Peck recently told this story. Two Arabs are sitting in the window and middle seats on a plane. The Arabs ask the Jew sitting in the aisle seat to get them a glass of orange juice so they won't have to crawl over him. While he's getting the drinks, they spit in his shoes. As they're about to land, the Jew realizes what's happened. He complains, "When will all this end, the hatred, the violence, the killing...the spitting in the shoes...the peeing in the orange juice!"

2. If you have high blood pressure, get a dog. Psychologists claim petting a dog lowers blood pressure the moment you start stroking its soft fur. Why? Because human reactions are burdened by certain demands. Your dog loves you regardless of what you do. There's one catch. It must be your dog. Petting the neighbor's dog triggers physical reactions similar to those aroused when the dog meets a strange person.

3. Dietary potassium helps to

Doctor game

prevent hypertension and strokes. The best sources are potatoes, carrots, rhabarb, apricots, tomatoes, yogurt and milk.

4. Don't delay the urge to void. An Israeli study showed that frequent urination helps to fight bladder cancer.

5. Women should regularly perform self-examination of the breasts. It's estimated that women, in spite of all the new diagnostic devices, still detect more than 70 per cent of their own breast malignancies.

6. Financial ruin occurs when money is drawn out of the bank without making sufficient deposits. The same principle holds for our body's store of calcium. If you say "no" to dairy products, the loss of calcium exceeds the supply and bones become brittle. The result? A fractured hip could result in death or chronic disability. The only answer is to build up calcium stores early in life.

7. Don't ignore the symptoms of TIA (transient ischemic attack). If you suddenly experience a fleeting loss or blurred vision, numbness in the face, arm, hand or leg, or feel dizzy or unsteady, the cause may be a mini-stroke. A major stroke may be a week or several months away. See your doctor immediately.

8. Avoid needless radiation. Too many X-rays are taken because the patient asks, "Can't you take an X-ray?"

9. Get a tetanus shot every 10 years, before you step on a rusty nail. And be sure to keep other immunizations up-to-date, such as polio and diphtheria.

10. Don't take the escalator unless you only have a week to live. I'm appalled by the number of young people who use the escalator when they know they'll be sitting at a desk for the rest of the day. And then they have the audacity to blame cholesterol for their heart attack at 40 years of age. The moral? Exercise to build up the HDL (high density lipoproteins), "the good cholesterol" that helps to prevent coronary disease. Keeping physically fit also decreases the chance of platelets sticking together and forming a blood clot.

11. Fishermen who want to enjoy their catch should heed this advice. Don't stand up in the boat to urinate. You may fall overboard and drown. Fishing is only second to swimming as a cause of drowning. The phenomenon of standing up to urinate and falling overboard is well known to coroners.

12. Pick a physician who listens to you. Lack of communication causes needless anxiety. And if you're not happy with your doctor's advice, get a second opinion. That reminds me of another joke. A man had a terrible verbal altercation with his wife. Finally he remarked, "And, in addition, you are a lousy lover." A few nights later he arrived home to find his wife in bed with another man. She casually explained, "I decided to get another opinion."

Happy New Year. Let's pray that people, particularly politicians of all nations, start laughing at their stupidity. Laughter could bring peace to this troubled world.

Conquering all but the kitchen sink

My kitchen faucet died during the night, flooding my kitchen.

I awoke to encounter the Plumbing Problem From Hell. Every plumber I called was either too busy, couldn't be bothered, or didn't make house calls. I explained that my husband was out of state, there was only one water shut-off in the house, and my children and I were completely without water. Still, no man was willing to come to my rescue. I was desolate.

"Don't let this throw you, Mom," said my daughter. "You don't need a man to do this for you. You're no helpless female. You're a woman of the '90s."

Was she talking to me? Before the night was over, I'd decided she was right. I was capable of more than repairing a ripped seam, ironing wrinkles out of shirts and making lump-free gravy. I would replace the faucet myself.

The next morning at the department store, I wished I had measured my old faucet. Did faucets come in different sizes? I asked the young man working in that department.

"Beats me," he said. "I only work here over the summer. I'm a psych major at Penn State."

I chose the cheapest faucet I could find. I knew as sure as God made little green apples I'd end up busting the thing, and better to bust a cheap one than an expensive one.

At home, I read the instructions. This would be a piece of cake.

Am I naive or what? While removing the old faucet, I broke the copper tubing. It meant another trip to the store. This trip I went to the home appliance store at the mini-mall and made a beeline for the gray-haired man behind the counter. He wouldn't be a psych major. Men of his generation know how to treat a lady in distress.

He fixed me up with everything I needed.

Later that day, I crawled under the sink and entered the wonderful world of plumbing. For the first and only time in my life, I was glad I hadn't been blessed with large breasts. They would have only gotten in the way.

Six hours later I would have had it all connected, but a doohickey (I think it's called a connector) was defective and wouldn't screw into the pipe. The stores were closed; we would have to face another waterless night.

A few minutes later, my neighbor and his wife stopped by to see how I was getting along. I explained about the faulty connector, and my neighbor decided to check it out for himself. He jammed the connector into the pipe, got it wedged in crooked and while trying to remove it accidentally broke the top of the pipe.

He was very sorry. I was very hysterical. Now I'd have to buy a new pipe.

"Calm down," he said. "All you have to do is solder."

"I don't solder," I screamed. "I don't ever solder." The room started to spin.

"Quick," his wife screamed. "She's having an anxiety attack. Get her into a chair. I'll stick a Valium under her tongue."

The next morning I was back at the store with all the broken and defective parts in a plastic bag. Before I reached the gray-haired gentleman, I was intercepted by a young man in his early 20s.

"Can I help you?" he asked.

"That depends," I answered. "You aren't a psych major, are you?"

I told him my situation.

"You don't have to buy a new pipe," he said. "All you have to do is solder." I made a grab for the front of his shirt.

"I'm a principled woman," I shouted. "I don't lie, I don't cheat, I don't steal, and I don't, under any circumstances, solder."

He fixed my pipe without another word.

By noon that day, I had finished replacing the new faucet and even installed shutoff valves so we'd never have to be waterless again. It had only taken 36 hours. I felt like a million bucks, which is approximately what this venture had cost me.

I may not officially be a woman of the '90s. I may not be a card-carrying, dues-paying member of the National Organization of Women, but I bet the president of NOW couldn't fix her own plumbing!

Colorado City playhouse opens season

By BARBIE LELEK

Colorado City is privileged to have a beautiful playhouse and many talented citizens who perform regularly much to the delight of the community.

The most recent production was presented by several high school students. "Design for Murder" by George Badson, was held Dec. 12 and 19-21 at the Opera House. The students who made up the cast were: Elizabeth Walker, Austin Barber, Nedra Shonia Wallhall, Ruben Hurt, Kameron Ramage, Julie McElvaney, Sally Cain, Julie Hammond, Chris Lynch and Chris Sanchez. Other Colorado high school students who assisted in the production were: Jay Kay, Justin Edwards, Chris Payne, Cindy Newman, Angela Anderson, Lisa Davila and Dylan Moore.

Colorado City by BARBIE LELEK Call 728-9051

The annual Christmas tree lighting ceremony was held at the courthouse on Dec. 7. A few changes were made in hopes to draw a larger crowd. Besides the usual Christmas carols led by Bill Carter and the beautiful singing of Martha Anderson, several residents were asked to reflect on Christmas' past and family traditions. An elf contest was also held for all ages. The winners of the contest were:

4 and under: Jeffrey Schwoerer (infant), first; Haner Haggerton, 2nd; and Karter Ziegler, 3rd.

5-12 winners were: 1st Josh Ziegler; 2nd Rebecca Carpenter; and Marcus Wyrosdick, 3rd.

13-high school age winners was Lynn Boyd.

Adult winners were: Mary Ann Wright, 1st; Debbie Carlock, 2nd; and Ruby Wyrosdick, 3rd.

The City National Bank gave its customers and employees a special treat again this Christmas season as they invited many talented individuals to perform for them. This was the fourth year the bank held this event. On Dec. 19, 52 children from the Mother's Day Out program came and sang a few carols. Next was the Colorado City Community Choir of Christian Singers and finally June Kinnell's 5th grade singers were there to share a few songs. On Dec. 20, these groups were present: The CHS Band under the direction of Alex Martinez and the First United Methodist Church Handbell Choir under the direction of David Jones. December 23, brought a special visitor to the bank. Santa came to see the children and listen to the wants of each one.

Christmas Eve, the St. Ann's Children's Choir under the direction of Raul Rivera sang and Cliff and Sandra Vlassin also brought special Christmas music.

Former Wall Street stockbroker Val Faria stands under a parking sign in New York's Upper East Side recently. Faria matches up motorists with Manhattan parking spots for a fee, which is $75 for starters to join the Street Parking Clearing Corp. A recent CBS-TV 48-hours program has increased the company's business.

Parking for dollars

NEW YORK (AP) - In Manhattan's Upper East Side, where time is money, some people would rather pay Val Faria to find a place to park their cars than look for a parking space themselves.

Faria, a former Wall Street broker, is apparently the city's first parking-place broker. His Street Parking Clearing Corp. matches drivers with vacant spots on city streets.

"The East Side is wall-to-wall cars. And this is a service," the 45-year-old Faria told the New York Post.

Here's how it works: Each driver puts down a $75 deposit to join the corporation, whose boundaries are Fifth and East End avenues and East 72nd and East 86th streets.

When Driver A is about to leave his space, he calls Faria, who notifies the parking space-seeking Driver B.

Driver B pays Faria $9 for the privilege of parking and Faria gives a $4 credit to Driver A.

Drivers who find spaces on their own can call Faria as they are leaving and get the $4 credit.

City officials say the business is legal as long as no one shoos non-members away from a legal space. Faria would not say how many people work for him or how many members he has.

He told the Post he has determined that there are 90 spots per block, and only about 15 will become vacant each day. Charging people for a shot at those spaces isn't easy.

"It's a hard sell, I know," Faria said. "We prove to them that it can work, but we don't guarantee anything. There's a limited number of spaces."

A nice surprise on IRAs

Question: Do you think Congress will bring back the deductibility of IRAs again? David W.

Dear David, It may be surprising for you to know that IRAs are still deductible for the majority of taxpayers today. But most of the public are like you, David, in believing that IRA contributions are no longer deductible.

Let's look at the facts. The Tax Reform Act of 1986 set limits on the deductibility of IRAs. Before that time, all contributions up to $2,000 were deductible.

The Tax Reform Act limited high income taxpayers from deducting IRA contributions. Today, if you are a single taxpayer, you are able to deduct the full $2,000 amount if your adjusted gross income is less than $25,000.

If your adjusted gross income is between $25,000 and $35,000, the IRA deduction is slowly phased out. If your adjusted gross income is over $35,000, no IRA deduction is available.

If you are married and file jointly and your income is less than $40,000 you can take a full IRA deduction. If you file jointly and your income is between $40,000 and $50,000, the IRA deduction is phased out and once your income is over $50,000, you receive no deduction.

David, these numbers are for those covered by an employer's retirement plan. If you do not have a retirement plan, you have an IRA deduction no matter what your income.

The one exception is if you are married and file jointly and your spouse has a retirement plan, then the numbers above apply. Otherwise, if your employer provides no retirement plan, you can take full deduction of your IRA contribution no matter what your income level.

The public has been confused by thinking no one can take a deduction because the limitations are so stringent. Frankly, the average income of a two-earner couple in the U.S. today is approximately $27,000. They would fall well below the ceilings listed above and would be able to take a full deduction of their IRA contributions.

David, I suggest you look at your gross adjusted income to see whether or not you could take a full deduction on your IRA contribution.

Subway shop opening soon

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

A Subway sandwich shop franchise is expected to open at Tenth and Gregg streets in late January or the first week of February, said franchise outlet owner Eric Nelson.

The fast food franchise offers sandwich and salad combinations. Choices for the combinations include turkey, ham, roast beef, steak, Italian meats, cheese, tuna, seafood and crab, lettuce, tomatoes, onions, green peppers, pickles and olives. White and whole wheat bread is baked fresh at each location. A information sheet distributed by Subway discloses that the first Subway was opened in 1965. The initial store was known as Pete's Super Submarine Sandwiches. It was opened by Fred DeLuca, a 17-year-old student and Peter Buck, a nuclear physicist who provided the initial capital of $1,000. By 1974, Pete's changed its name to Subway and began to franchise. It has grown into a network of more than 6,000 outlets with current annual sales of more than $1.1 billion.

Construction continues on the Subway sandwich shop at the intersection of 10th and Gregg streets. The shop is due to open in late January or early February.

Reed assists with GED test book

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Efforts of Big Spring educator Joe Reed Jr. to help individuals get a high school diploma are being experienced nationwide — although those individuals benefitting may not be aware.

Reed is one of a number of educators who worked together to develop a text to assist persons in preparing for the General Educational Development test, better known as the GED.

"I'm glad I could help out," said Reed, who is also the chair of the science department at Big Spring High School.

Reed said the process to get the book into publication was a lengthy one.

"I was contacted about two years ago by Research and Education Association (REA) and asked to submit materials for consideration (for the book)," Reed explained. Reed, who was also a reviewer for the current Glencoe-Miller biology textbook used in Texas classrooms, helped prepare questions and answers for the biology section of the preparatory guide.

An 18-year classroom veteran in Big Spring, Reed said he was happy to be able to do something to help fight illiteracy.

"It's good to be able to do something to help combat it (illiteracy)," he said.

Reed has had other material published, including Crossword Puzzles in Biology (1984), Crossword Puzzles in Chemistry (1984), How To Be A Better Student By Making Better Grades (1986), QUICKTIPS (1988) and The Best Test Preparation for the GED (1991).

Reed received a bachelor's degree from Sul Ross in 1968 and his master's in 1978 and was recognized by the City of Big Spring with "Joe Reed Day" on May 6, 1981.

Reed has also authored 14 computer programs, many of which are used by teachers nationwide.

Joe Reed Jr., a biology teacher at Big Spring High School, holds a copy of the GED preparatory text he helped develop recently.

HC Junior stock show Jan. 16-18

It hardly seems possible but livestock show season is upon us. Coming up Jan. 16-18 will be the annual Howard County Junior Livestock Show in Big Spring.

This event attracts over 300 entries of outstanding livestock projects fed and managed by our local 4H and FFA members from Howard County. This year promises to be no exception.

Prospects for one of the highest quality shows in recent history is being anticipated. All entries from the junior exhibitors are to be entered by Jan. 10 in the Howard County Extension Office in Big Spring.

Entries must be taken in person and entries fees are due at time of entry. No late entries can be accepted.

Entry fees for the show this year are $10 per head for steers and heifers and $5 per head for lambs, swine and capons.

The schedule for this year's show is as follows: Weighing and classifying of all livestock will be from 3-6 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 16. Judging of Market Swine will be on Friday, Jan. 17, beginning at noon.

Swine Judge will be Jake Coleman from Meadow.

Immediately following the swine show will be the capon show judged by Chris Kooz of Lubbock.

The Lamb show will conclude the Friday activities with judging beginning at 6 p.m. by Rex Jones from San Angelo.

Beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 18, the Heifers will be judged, followed by the Steer Show. Steer Judge will be Billy Reagor of Ozona.

A Buyers' Barbecue that is open to the public will be held at noon, Saturday, with the Premium Auction beginning at 1:30 p.m.

This county-wide activity is one of the few events that involve people from through the entire county and support is always good.

The directors of the Howard County Junior Livestock Show, headed up this year by Dusty Johnston, have been at work for the past several weeks calling on supporters for the Premium Auction. We hope all that are contacted will once again be at the auction in person to a part of the action there as the young exhibitors are rewarded for their efforts in livestock production.

If you have not been a supporter in the past and desire to do so, we invite you to contact any director of this organization, Johnston or the County Extension Office here in Big Spring and we will see that you get all the information you need to help with this worthwhile activity for youth involved in agriculture.

The latest information on changes in major livestock shows in Texas for 1992 will be given at the West Texas Ag-Expo in Big Spring on Jan. 11-12.

Oregon town inspired to find life after logging

EDITORS NOTE — The timber industry has been buffeted for the last two years by a slump in the construction business and by the northern spotted owl. One has reduced the demand for timber, the other has cut the supply. This package explores the impact of these factors on two small logging towns in the Pacific Northwest, and on the timber industry.

BUTTE FALLS, Ore. (AP) — When Butte Falls first started looking at life after logging, folks didn't like what they saw.

"The perception was that this was a logging town, and if the logging was gone, Butte Falls would cease to exist," said Harvey Boyle, school superintendent in the southern Oregon town of 485.

Now the town has a new point of view.

Ever since timber harvesting fell off because of the construction slump and the northern spotted owl, people have been talking about making money in other ways: bottling and selling the water from Big Butte Creek, perhaps, or packaging the wild mushrooms that grow in the woods nearby.

"We never looked beyond the trees (before). It's really picking up in terms of things we never looked at," said Steve Stratton, a former school administrator who is one of the sparkplugs for the new ideas.

ranger for the Rogue River National Forest in southern Oregon. "They're really taking charge of the situation, which is unusual from my perspective. They are kind of a leader for small timber-dependent communities."

Incorporated in 1911, Butte Falls was born around a sawmill powered by the waters of Big Butte Creek. The town, 200 miles south of Portland, was the center of Medford Corp.'s logging operations in the Cascade Range for better than 50 years.

So it's natural that when folks park their pickups around the town square to watch the high school football team on Friday afternoons, they cheer for the Loggers. A statue of a logger carved from a sugar pine log welcomes visitors to the square.

The local tavern is the Log Inn. But gone are the days when logging could carry a little town like this. Timber harvesting has been cut way back by two

Many in town also give credit to Joyce Hailicka, chairman of the local economic development committee. She helped the town establish its own library and museum inside a railroad depot-style building hauled into town.

"Suddenly, there was the realization that, 'Yeah, we can do something ourselves,'" said Chuck Anderson, the Butte Falls district

Record runoff helping fill up area reservoirs

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Record rain runoff for the month of December helped fill area lakes supplying drinking water to more than 200,000 West Texans and has diluted salt in drinking water a little, officials say.

"It was completely unexpected," said Colorado Municipal Water District Manager Owen Ivie.

Most of the captured runoff went into Lake O.H. Ivie near Ballinger, the newest of three lakes owned by the water district, which is based in Big Spring. The lake, built in May 1990, almost doubled in capacity since Dec. 15 and is now 54 percent full, Ivie said.

"Unfortunately, we can't use it for municipal supply (right now)," he said.

Water in Lake Ivie will only benefit fishermen and other water recreationists until 1993 when water is expected to be pumped to San Angelo after construction of pipelines are complete. In 1995, it will be sent to Midland and Odessa and later to Big Spring.

The 103,900 acre-feet of water captured since mid-December, more than twice the total runoff in 1991, helped increase the surface area of the lake to 12,600 acres, which is 66 percent of surface capacity, Ivie said.

"We thought we'd be lucky, in the month of December, to catch 5,000 feet," he said.

Lake J.B. Thomas in Borden County caught 5,000 acre-feet of water since mid-December but is only at 18 percent of capacity, Ivie said. Lake E.V. Spence near Show Superintendent at the Houston Livestock Show, will be here as a guest speaker on Saturday to discuss these latest changes.

The event will be in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the campus of Howard College in Big Spring in room A, beginning shortly after noon.

Come early and visit all the exhibits that will be displayed on the floor of the coliseum and attend any of a number of other interesting subjects related to agriculture being presented at the ExPo.

Also tentatively scheduled on the program related to stock shows will be Tommy Newman of Stanton, who will discuss the raising and selling of club calves as an alternative agricultural enterprise in West Texas.

One of the Highlights for the ExPo will be an Agricultural Appreciation Dinner hosted by the Chamber of Commerce on Friday evening, Jan. 10, at 6 p.m. in the East Room of the Coliseum.

Guest speaker will be Congressman Charles Stenholm, who will bring us the latest information on events affecting agriculture that can be expected in 1992 at a special noon luncheon on Saturday.

Tickets are available free of charge for both events from the Chamber of Commerce.

For more information on any of the events we have discussed with you in this column we invite you to contact the Howard County office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Big Spring located in the courthouse on its first floor of East wing.

Our telephone number is 267-6671 and our office hours are 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

developments: the recession-plagued building slump, which has lowered demand for lumber and plywood; and the northern spotted owl, a threatened species that's caused the supply of timber from Northwest national forests to plummet.

To preserve habitat for the owl, as well as watersheds, trout streams and other wildlife, the Butte Falls Ranger District on the Rogue River National Forest will be offering just one-eighth of the timber it once did. That means cutting 15 of the 45 full-time Forest Service jobs in the district, said Anderson, the district ranger.

Medford Corp. started accelerating the logging on its own lands six years ago to make up for the drop in timber harvesting on federal lands, said Vice President Hank Snow. But by now the company has gone through most of its timber here and no longer need 30 loggers on the payroll, Snow said. What little logging remains will be done by contractors.

That's a sharp contrast from earlier days.

"When Medco started in 1936, there were a couple hundred men working here," recalled Elga Abbott, 89, who has lived and logged in Butte Falls since 1912.

Yet life isn't over for this town. School enrollment is up. And there's no police officer because the last two people hired couldn't find a place to live. The few houses and ranches put up for sale were snapped up, some by Californians who came north to retire.

The top two sources of income now are transfer payments for retirees and paychecks for people who commute to jobs in nearby towns, Stratton said.

Although timber can't carry Butte Falls anymore, the surrounding forests still offer opportunities. One possibility is mushroom farming, Stratton said the industry could take off.

"We know we have four gourmet-quality edible mushrooms that grow here," he said. "We have pickers. We have brokers who come in from the outside."

Abbott figures a golf course would be good. Other people are thinking about bottling water from Big Butte Creek, rebuilding a logging railroad for sightseeing tours or enticing drivers to stop in and shop on their way to the resort at Willow Lake, 12 miles away.

Many say Joyce Hailicka opened their eyes with the Butte Falls library. After moving here in 1987, she got involved in the Friends of the Library, which was working on getting the Jackson County Library books out of the elementary school and into a home of their own.

They raised almost $65,000 from governments and local residents. Then they found a restaurant in Medford built to look like a railroad depot, and hauled it up the hill — clearing the canyon walls by inches. It now sits on the town square as Butte Falls' own library and museum.

Even the loggers wolfing down burgers at the Totem Pole after a morning of elk hunting don't appear worried about jobs.

Hot trend: Let someone else do it

PLANO (AP) — The hub of the world's largest private computer network lies on the Electronic Data Systems campus next to a health club, gas station and a new lake.

The setting in suburban Dallas, inconspicuous except for satellite dishes and its own power substation nearby, belies its importance in the world of computing.

Inside, scores of technicians constantly watch computer screens and large video screens that display the performance of EDS' computers, located in more than 100 data centers and used by more than 7,000 customers worldwide.

The center's role as EDS' mission control is nearly matched by its importance as a marketing tool, a powerful way to impress prospective clients.

Businesses can turn to Dallas-based EDS and a few dozen competitors to handle the development and sometimes the operation of computer and communication systems.

The practice is called outsourcing, a hybrid word that could also describe the manner in which an advertising agency is hired to help with marketing.

Computer outsourcing is a fiercely competitive and fast-growing niche of the high-tech industry, expected to more than double in size by 1995.

The outsourcees will reap $17.8 billion from U.S. clients by then, according to a forecast by J.P. Richard of Input, a market analysis firm in Virginia and California. That's up from $8.3 billion this year and doesn't include revenue from international operations.

"Everybody has plenty of business to keep them going," Richard said.

"You can't ever look at a time in history where the requirements for computing have declined," said Richard Boswell, outsourcing director for Power Computing Co. in Dallas.

The Commerce Department last month placed data processing services on the list of fast growers in its annual industrial forecast.

And a survey by Index Group Inc. last year of nearly 400 U.S. companies found about 56 percent are outsourcing or considering outsourcing some of their information technology.

Such companies typically want to cut costs, keep up with the ever-quicken pace of technological change and, often, simply stop worrying about computers to concentrate on their own business.

Hank Johnston, president of Electronic Data Systems' manufacturing and distribution services business unit, poses recently in the "mission control" center at EDS' headquarters in Plano.

"They're looking for ways to change the processes, change the culture, change the pace under which things get done," said Hank Johnston, president of EDS' manufacturing and distribution services business unit.

When Continental Bank Corp. of Chicago formalized a 10-year deal last month for the outsourcing arm of IBM to takeover its computer operations, chairman Thomas Theobald happily yielded even the bank's in-house software development.

"Most banks, including Continental, have invested massively over the past decades in developing their own proprietary application technology, but have gained no lasting competitive advantage," Theobald said.

The $450 million, 10-year contract is the largest outsourcing deal ever. On Jan. 1, more than 400 of the bank's employees transferred to the payroll of the IBM subsidiary, called Integrated Systems Solutions Corp.

IBM formed the subsidiary last summer, shifting much of its internal data work to it. The event formalized IBM's entry into the outsourcing business, which ostensibly began when the company in 1989 agreed to run the information systems of Eastman Kodak Co., a deal that reshaped the industry.

"It really opened up the eyes to a whole other set of large customers that outsourcing could dramatically affect the way they did business," said Peter Dance, vice president of systems operations for ISSC, the IBM subsidiary.

During the previous 30 years, outsourcees had run the data divisions of small- and medium-sized businesses, chiefly financial institutions.

Barry Sullivan, vice president of marketing for EDS, lists the IBM-Kodak deal as one of the reasons the market for outsourcees has exploded.

"The Kodak thing as an event eventually turned (outsourcing) into a standard business practice," Sullivan said. "When major successful well-known corporations are doing it, it sort of gives other people the permission to do it."

For EDS, the deal also presented a new strong competitor in a business it had long dominated. Ross Perot started the company in 1962 and it made him a billionaire.

Since he sold it in 1984 to General Motors, EDS' revenue has jumped from $750 million to more than $6 billion in 1990. Its share of work for the automotive giant has dwindled from 80 percent to slightly less than half last year.

IBM declined to release outsourcing revenue figures but Fortune magazine estimated it at $3.9 billion in 1990. International Data Corp., a market researcher, estimated it at $1.3 billion in 1990.

Other leading outsourcees are Computer Sciences Corp. of El Segundo, Calif.; Andersen Consulting; Digital Equipment; ACS Commercial Services, a Dallas company that handles Southland Corp.; and Perot Systems Inc.,

In 1978, 100 franchise outlets were in operation. As of October 1991 the number was more than 6,000. The outlets are located in the United States, Canada, Australia, Bahrain, St. Maarten, Aruba, Mexico, Bahamas, Guam, Puerto Rico, South Korea and Cayman Islands. Entrepreneur magazine has named it the fastest growing franchise in the world five years consecutively, said Subway's public relations director George Shea.

Today, DeLuca is the CEO of Subway and Buck is his partner, he said.

The local Subway is owned by Eric and Julie Nelson. Currently, Eric Nelson is liquidating his car dealership in Los Angeles. Julie Nelson has just received a nursing degree.

"We are looking forward to moving back to Texas," Eric Nelson said. "I lived there in the early 1980s and have not found a place that I like more."

Water

Robert E. Lee caught 9,000 acre-feet of water and is at 62 percent of capacity. Lake Thomas was built in 1952 and Lake Spence in 1969.

The salt content in Lake Spence was diluted by 2 percent by the rains but is still more than three times saltier than recommended limits set by the Texas Department of Health, Ivie said. Water in Lake Thomas has always been under those limits but is unusually high because of evaporation. Lake Ivie has the lowest salt levels.

Average spring rains will further dilute the salt content and increase the amount of stored water, Ivie said. "The spring rains we can expect will put us in pretty good shape," he said, "both quality and quantity-wise."

Meanwhile, the water district is preparing to advertise for bids to build 158 miles of pipeline and six pump stations from Lake Ivie to Midland and Odessa, Ivie said. The estimated cost is $110 million. Land for 60 miles of the route has already been purchased. Land purchases are expected to total $505,000.

Steel Siding

Eliminate frequent painting tasks

Have you taken a good look lately at the paint on your house? Is it peeling, chipped or faded? Is the color outdated?

If you've been putting off the inevitable, you have three choices, says Owen Johnson, owner of Big Spring Siding.

1. You can re-paint the house yourself for weekend after weekend.

2. You can hire a professional housepainter to put your house in tip-top shape — an expense that you will repeat in just a few years.

3. You can make a modest investment in new steel siding — and scratch house-painting off your list of chores forever.

Siding gives your home a permanent just-painted look that is as durable as it is attractive.

"We install only the top-of-the-line siding," says Johnson. "This siding carries a lifetime warranty which is transferable, should you ever decide to sell your home. The warranty guarantees that the siding will not crack, peel, rust or discolor."

Of course, a warranty means our costs down, so that we are able nothing unless the siding is properly installed, Johnson adds. "Big Spring Siding has the equipment and skills to do the job right."

"Unlike many siding companies, we have no commissioned and storm doors to dress up your salesmen, nor do we use sub-contractors," Johnson says. "By doing business this way, we can keep our job costs way below that appeal to the taste of the most of our competitors — even their so-called sale prices."

Owen Johnson personally prepares all bids, and he is on the never call residents at home "at all jobsite working with his crew every-hours of the day and night with speed — from start to finish."

No painting

Big Spring Siding, specializing in whole-house steel siding installations, is now working with building contractors on new homes. For the brick home shown, the firm installed steel soffit and fascia (trim and overhang) while the home was under construction. For information about steel siding or trim for your home, call Owen Johnson at 267-2812.

tacular sales gimmicks." Big Spring Siding has no need for that, relying on referrals from satisfied customers, plus a modest advertising budget to promote business.

"Our marketing approach keeps our costs down, so that we are able to install siding on a customer's home for about what it costs for two professional paint jobs."

Big Spring Siding has a good selection of shutters, storm windows we have no commissioned and storm doors to dress up your salesmen, nor do we use sub-contractors," Johnson says. "By doing business this way, we can keep our job costs way below that appeal to the taste of the most of our competitors — even their so-called sale prices."

Owen Johnson personally prepares all bids, and he is on the never call residents at home "at all jobsite working with his crew every-hours of the day and night with speed — from start to finish."

Business highlights

WASHINGTON (AP) — A closely watched barometer of U.S. industry plunged back into recession territory in December and one-third of top business executives said in a separate survey that they were preparing for more layoffs in the new year.

While new claims for jobless benefits eased a bit in mid-December, the government said

Thursday that construction spending took a turn for the worse after four months of improvement.

Analysts said the reports were further evidence of a deeply troubled economy that is unlikely to show any life until spring.

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's factories fell back into a recession in December due to sluggish consumer spending and brought the overall economy close to a decline of its own, corporate purchasing executives said.

The National Association of Purchasing Management's monthly survey, the first indicator of the economy's health in December, was a disturbing harbinger Thursday of business conditions in the coming months.

Respondents said orders for new business, the driving force behind the industrial sector, were down sharply, along with inventories and employment. Production levels also fell after six straight months of increases.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The typical American family's ability to buy a home soared to its highest level in 17½ years in November as buyers were helped by falling prices and lower mortgage rates, a trade group said.

The National Association of Realtors said Thursday its housing affordability index climbed to 124.5 in November, up from an October reading of 118.8.

That meant that a family earning the national median income of $36,584 in November had 124.5 percent of the income needed to qualify for a mortgage covering 80 percent of a home priced at $97,800, the median home price for that month.
