Red carpet rolled out for prison team

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

State officials inspecting proposed prison sites were greeted by protesters in Pampa, a television poll in Lubbock showing 64 percent of callers against a prison and — in Howard County Thursday — helium balloons marking the site.

Community support is a factor in selecting which of 67 sites in 63 communities to locate three 2,250-bed and 15 1,000-bed prisons, officials with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice said last week. Technical requirements, medical facilities and the work force also are factors.

Bringing in a prison is nothing new to Howard County.

"You have overcome kind of the mystique about a prison: Do prisoners run around and pillage?" said Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, who met with the Big Spring Herald after touring the Howard County site with a six-member state site-selection team.

Montford, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Howard County rates high among nine communities in his district vying for prisons. Only four made a semi-finalist list for prisons built in 1989-90, including Howard County, Lubbock and Odessa. Only Lamesa received a prison; 1,000 beds.

"Big Spring has displayed the best enthusiasm, in my opinion," said Montford of latest efforts. He pointed out the more than 6,000 signatures on petitions for the prison, compared to only 42 signatures against. "I think a prison fits the community here and the community fits the prison."

Enthusiasm has not been as good in other communities, according to one site-selection team member who commented on the poll in Lubbock and the protest in Pampa. "We thought people in Lamesa might be calling up to Lubbock saying they were against it," he joked.

Four site-selection teams are inspecting all sites across the state this week.

Morales seeking to halt election

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Attorney General Dan Morales has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to halt the state Senate primary next month, saying there is a "dark cloud" hanging over the election.

In an emergency motion sent to the court today, the state asked Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia to halt the March 10 Senate primary. The request would not affect the other elections scheduled in Texas on that date.

The delay is necessary, Morales said, because his attempts to overthrow the state Senate redistricting plan drawn up by federal judges in Austin have yet to be ruled upon.

"A dark cloud hovers over the district court's purportedly self-crafted Senate redistricting plan," the emergency motion said. "Very real and substantial questions have been raised about the district court's jurisdiction."

The state is fighting the judges' map on several fronts — the U.S. Supreme Court, a federal three-judge panel in Washington, D.C., and in federal court in Austin.

Separately, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans has ordered a committee of judges to investigate allegations that U.S. District Judge James Nowlin of Austin acted in a partisan way when ordering a state Senate redistricting map.

That plan is opposed by Democratic leaders, who charge that Nowlin — a Republican appointee — had Republican state Rep. George Pierce of San Antonio secretly make adjustments to the map.

The state and minority groups, which favor a state Senate map drawn in a special session of the Legislature, contend that the Nowlin plan increases Republican representation at the expense of minorities.

Nowlin repeatedly has declined to discuss the allegations, saying that he won't comment on pending litigation.

Pierce has denied any wrongdoing, saying he made only minor adjustments on the Senate boundaries, including the district in which he is running this year.

A spokesman for Morales said the stay of the election is imperative, especially because early voting opens next Wednesday.

String of firsts for local man

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

Dillard White has a string of firsts in his long-time business career in Big Spring. White was one of the first blacks to arrive in Big Spring during the bumper cotton crop season in the 1930s. He was also the first black in Big Spring to own a cab service, a liquor store and a bar.

In 1936 he came to work a two-month assignment at the cotton compress on the north side of the Gregg Street viaduct. He was the only black employed at the facility and planned only to stay as long as he was assigned to work there. Instead, after two weeks he decided to make his home here.

"Big Spring was a good place to live, so after two weeks here my wife Freddie May came out here," he said. "We made our home on the northside and have been there ever since."

He worked at the compress for 15 cents an hour until 1941 when he was hired by Texas & Pacific Railroad. He went overseas with the Army in 1943-45. When he came back, he resumed his job with T&P and in 1948 he purchased two cars and opened Northside Cab.

"The primary reason for opening up the cab service then was one of our (northside residents) children became sick, we would have to wait until the cab company on the south side would come out to the northside to pick them up and then take them back on the south side to the hospital," White said.

BSISD may be shorted by property appraisal

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

A disparity in state and local property valuations puts in question up to $400,000 in funds next year for the Big Spring Independent School District.

The Howard County Appraisal District will appeal state valuations that say taxable property in the school district is $42 million higher (6 percent) than local 1991 valuations of $644 million, said Chief Appraiser Keith Toomire.

Higher state valuations would mean less outside funding for the property-poor school district while locally-generated revenue would still be based on lower local valuations.

"I think we've got a pretty good chance of getting some of it raised but we won't get up to 100 percent," said Toomire, who on Wednesday told local appraisal board members of intentions to appeal the assessments by the property tax division of the state comptroller's office.

If a 5-6 percent difference remains, state valuations will be used next year to determine distribution of Howard-Glasscock County Education District funds and state guaranteed yield per student money, said Tom Patton, director of state funding for the Texas Education Agency. Local valuations are used when the difference is only 1-2 percent, he said.

At next year's state-required minimum CED tax rate of 82 cents per $100 valuation, the difference translates to $344,400. Another estimated $66,000 in guaranteed yield per student is also at stake, Patton said. "That is roughly true."

Toomire said he began preparing the appeal, which must be ready by March 11. State figures must be certified July 1.

State and local figures of the school district show:

- Local valuations lower in categories of farm and ranchland (25 percent under), single-family

Woman receives historic triple transplant

DALLAS (AP) — Doctors who made medical history with a triple transplant say the operation may yield new information about treating insulin-dependent diabetes by implanting a healthy pancreas.

A 39-year-old woman was recovering from a nine-hour procedure in which surgeons transplanted a heart, kidney and pancreas.

"If this pancreas continues to function and we are able to study that heart and show that the pancreas' functioning will prevent diabetic changes in the heart, then we know that pancreas transplantation is a viable type of transplant," said Dr. Richard M. Dickerman, leader of the kidney-pancreas transplant team at Methodist Medical Center.

Whether or not pancreas transplantation will cure diabetes for 20 or 30 years is unknown, Dickerman said, but the woman is no longer considered a diabetic.

More than a dozen surgeons, anesthesiologists, scrub nurses and other hospital personnel took part in the nine-hour operation that began Wednesday night, Dickerman said Thursday.

The patient, a woman from the Dallas suburb of Plano, was not identified. However, doctors said she was in stable condition in the hospital's intensive care unit and could go home in three weeks.

"All signs for continued recovery are good," said John Carver, executive director of the medical center.

Carver said the United Network for Organ Sharing had confirmed the transplant of those three organs to a single recipient was the first on record.

Dr. Nonie L. Whiddon, right, and Dr. Richard M. Dickerman answer questions about a triple transplant they performed on a 39-year-old woman at Methodist Medical Center in Dallas Thursday. The woman received a heart, kidney and pancreas.

The woman, who had diabetes, kidney failure and heart disease, had been waiting six weeks for a kidney and pancreas, Dickerman said. However, Dr. Lonnie L. Whiddon, who led the heart transplant team, believed her heart probably would not have stood up to the rigors of the operation. "He felt that her heart disease was so bad that she couldn't undergo the kidney-pancreas transplant, that her heart would not be able to tolerate that," Dickerman said.

So doctors performed the simultaneous transplants when the organs all became available at once. The donor was a young man who died at the hospital after being involved in a traffic accident, the surgeons said.

"We're indebted always to family members who agree to donate and give other patients chances for quality life," Whiddon said.

"This particular family was just outstanding and their understanding of what was going on was wonderful," Dickerman added.

Because all three organs came from the same donor, the chances of organ rejection are greatly reduced, Whiddon said.

The patient's insurance is paying for the operations, which separately would have cost more than $160,000, Carver said.

Names in the news

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Kevin Kline's shortcut through a decrepit, gang-ridden neighborhood in "Grand Canyon" angered Inglewood officials, who want the movie's producer to apologize.

In the movie, Kline's character is threatened by a gang of hoodlums when his car breaks down in the Los Angeles suburb. A tow truck driver played by Danny Glover rescues him.

"They automatically assume that if somebody is stuck out there, they're going to be robbed, beaten or worse," Mark Sinagulia, president of the Inglewood Chamber of Commerce, said Wednesday.

Andrea Jaffe, a spokeswoman for producer 20th Century Fox, did not return a telephone call Thursday seeking comment.

NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Trump has asked a court to bar ex-wife Ivana from talking about her life with him.

Trump lawyer Jay Goldberg asked an appeals court Thursday to reinstate a gag order that forbade Mrs. Trump from talking publicly about life with The Donald.

That gag order was part of a divorce contract the couple submitted to state Supreme Court Justice Phyllis Gangel-Jacob last year.

But the judge — acting on her own — removed it from the final decree, saying it infringed on Mrs. Trump's right to free speech.

The judges reserved decision.

NEW YORK (AP) — Tony Bennett, who has recorded 91 albums and won two Grammy Awards, says he has the "get-up-and-go of someone just starting."

"I always tell people, 'Stay busy — don't ever stop, because it's like cashing in,'" Bennett, 65, says.

His 45-year career includes such hits as "Blue Velvet" and "I Left My Heart in San Francisco."

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese media have called a halt to reports about Crown Prince Naruhito's search for a bride.

Public interest is high about his love life, or lack of it.

But the imperial palace — angered by a magazine story suggesting Naruhito needed a new haircut — asked the Newspaper Publishers and Editors Association to consider the privacy of the women Naruhito may consider.

The association said the news blackout — which affects all major Japanese newspapers, news agencies and broadcasting companies — will last three months.

The 31-year-old crown prince has been under pressure to find a wife following the 1990 marriage of his younger brother, Prince Akishino.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — NFL coach Jerry Glanville's latest move is from the sidelines of his Atlanta Falcons' games into a TV studio.

Glanville will appear with the country music group Confederate Railroad in the group's music video, "She Took It Like a Man."

Clinton backers stand by man

AUSTIN (AP) — Controversy surrounding Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton is a stale rerun of past attacks that won't have any impact on voters, his top Texas supporters say.

"You've got the state of Arkansas with good, decent, average American people that have listened to all of this garbage for 10 years, and he hasn't had a problem," said Billy Goldberg, a former state Democratic chairman.

Goldberg, current chairman Bob Slagle and former chairman Calvin Guest all endorsed Clinton's presidential bid Thursday, shrugging off the controversy about Clinton's Vietnam draft status.

"It's a typical Republican hatchet distraction to take and distort, to get people's minds off of the issues," Goldberg said.

The three said Clinton remains the most electable of the five major Democratic candidates who are contesting Tuesday's New Hampshire primary.

But in that state, opinion polls showed Clinton slipping behind former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas after reports about Clinton seeking a 1969 draft deferment by agreeing to join the ROTC, then backing out of the reserve officers' training program and placing himself in the draft pool.

One rival, Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin, said a 22-year-old letter in which Clinton thanked an ROTC official for "saving me from the draft" would doom the Arkansas governor's candidacy.

Slagle blasted the national news media for ignoring serious issues and focusing on the draft controversy and accusations of marital infidelity that were published in a tabloid newspaper and denied by Clinton.

"Right now, Bill Clinton is being subjected to dirty tricks, a media feeding frenzy and the disgusting spectacle of a nation being served a menu of tabloid trash, street gossip and malicious rumor," Slagle said.

Write-in campaign underway

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — There's a wild card in the bidding for Democratic votes in New Hampshire — a write-in campaign for Mario Cuomo that could shuffle the outcome in the opening presidential primary.

The New York governor who took himself out of the running nearly two months ago isn't involved, but he isn't unhappy, either.

He calls the campaign flattering, says he won't interfere and that he's not reconsidering candidacy.

With five major candidates dividing the Democratic vote, and 31 minor ones crowding the long ballot, the unauthorized push for Cuomo will affect next Tuesday's contest even if it falls far short of the 15 percent goal its organizers have set.

Turnout estimates run to about 125,000 votes, so a small shift to Cuomo would be enough to affect the percentage shares, and perhaps the standing of the declared candidates. Cuomo said that wouldn't be his fault.

"If anybody is beaten it will not be by a candidate who never showed up," he said. "It's because they failed to reach the voters."

The threat of failure is exactly what concerns the campaigners: losing to write-in votes for an absentee would be an invitation to quit. And the write-in organizers say they want enough votes for Cuomo to convince him he should run after all.

Cuomo repeated that he is not running, saying he is still at work on the state budget impasse that led him to renounce candidacy in December.

Still, his New Hampshire profile rose Wednesday night, when Cuomo delivered a long-scheduled address at Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., just a television signal away, saying the alternative to action now on economic and social problems would be to "leave the victor of this campaign without a mandate and the country that elects him without a future."

While in Massachusetts, Cuomo met with Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn, who urged him to run. Answering questions, he said Democrats should heed the five declared candidates. "Let them function and I think you'll have a strong candidate," he said.

Then again, he said he wasn't going to tell people not to vote for him, not to use their write-in rights.

Meanwhile, a California committee to draft Cuomo was launched Thursday, but the attorney running it said he wouldn't try to put Cuomo on the ballot unless the governor gave his permission.

Democratic National Committee Chairman Ronald Brown, said he doubts a Cuomo write-in will have a significant impact on the choice of a nominee. Brown hopes the party will settle on a nominee early in the season, so that they can avoid a long intramural struggle and start campaigning against President Bush.

Brown forecast that one of the current five — former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerrey, Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin and former California Gov. Jerry Brown — will be the nominee.

Phil Krone, left, chairman of the National Draft Cuomo for President Committee, and Don Rose, political director of the National Draft Cuomo for President Committee, look at a television commercial Wednesday in Manchester, N.H. They produced the commercial to support a write-in campaign for New York Governor Mario Cuomo as a presidential hopeful.

House post office workers charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens says the indictments of four former workers at the House Post Office does not end a criminal investigation of the facility.

Stephens announced Thursday that the four were charged with embezzling more than $35,000 from the federal government.

Stephens said the charges "represent an important step in our ongoing investigation of alleged criminal activities at the House Post Office."

The House voted last week to have its Administration Committee investigate management of the post office, which operates as a contract agency of the U.S. Postal Service.

The vote followed partisan accusations by Republicans that the House Democratic leadership covered up mismanagement at the post office. The Democrats denied the charge and beat back GOP attempts to establish a special committee to probe postal operations.

House sources, speaking only on condition of anonymity, have said the Democratic leadership has pressured House Postmaster Robert Rota to resign but he has refused.

Rota was quoted Thursday in the newspaper Roll Call, which circulates on Capitol Hill, as saying, "I'm going to serve my term."

Rota, elected by the House every two years, would serve through this year if he does not quit.

Most 2-year-olds not immunized

ATLANTA (AP) — Only 40 percent of the 2-year-olds in a recent study were found to be adequately vaccinated against measles and other infectious diseases during a time when such ailments are on the rise, federal officials say.

The federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta reported Thursday that by the time children reach school age, 95 percent have been properly vaccinated.

But by the age of 2, only four in 10 have received the immunizations they need to ward off polio, diphtheria, measles, mumps and other childhood diseases.

U.S. Health and Human Services

Secretary Louis Sullivan reported separately Thursday that for the first time in more than a decade such infectious diseases are on the rise. He said complacency was partly responsible.

"We were seduced by the success of our vaccination efforts in the past," Sullivan said. "The level of public knowledge, interest and commitment to vaccine programs dropped."

Sullivan announced plans for a $46 million program to fight childhood diseases by immunizing at least 90 percent of the nation's children before they reach age 2.

Single file

Haitians line up single file as they leave the refugee camp on the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, for repatriation Thursday. U.S. Coast Guard cutters returned 500 more Haitians to their troubled homeland Thursday.

Nations agree on air, arms embargo

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States, Britain and France are proposing a U.N. air and arms embargo on Libya until Moammar Gadhafi hands over suspects in the bombings of Pan Am Flight 103 and a French jetliner, diplomats say.

The draft resolution also calls on U.N. members to withdraw many of their diplomats from Libya, said the Western diplomats, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The draft was expected to be circulated to the 15-member Security Council as early as today. A council vote was expected by the end of the month and the diplomats said it was certain to pass.

The diplomats said the resolution calls for an embargo on all sales of weapons and military equipment to Libya. It also would ban sale of airline parts and equipment to the Libyan airline and ban air travel to and from Libya. Diplomats said the broad agreement on a text shows that France is standing firmly with the United States and Britain, despite Libya's apparent efforts to divide the three by promising to cooperate with a French investigation.

Col. Gadhafi, the Libyan leader, said Thursday that four Libyan officials were willing to go to France to face charges of complicity in the 1989 bombing of a French UTA airliner over Niger that killed 170 people.

But he said Libya would not honor the U.S. and British request to extradite two other Libyans wanted in the 1988 bombing of Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland, which killed 270 people.

Three republics refuse to join force

MINSK, Belarus (AP) — Three former Soviet republics refused today to join a united commonwealth armed force, while the other eight drafted plans for a "unified command" to remain in place for two years, an official said.

A Belarussian government spokesman said Ukraine, Moldova and Azerbaijan opted out of any military role in the new Commonwealth of Independent States.

The remaining eight republics, including Russia, appointed a working group to draft an agreement for a transitional "unified command," said the spokesman, Stanislav Ogurtsov.

The dispute over the armed forces threatens the future of young commonwealth of 11 nations that arose from the disintegrated Soviet Union nine weeks ago. Russia has been pressing for a unified military for the entire commonwealth, while Ukraine believes that a single military might dominate and even threaten individual member states.

Differences over the issue have stalled the coordination of crucial economic reforms.

The Herald salutes:

The Big Spring Herald salutes the following groups and individuals for helping make our community a better place to live:

- Members of the Big Spring community who took the time to make poster board-size Valentine's Day cards for hospitalized veterans at the Big Spring Veteran's Administration Medical Center.
- Our hospitalized veterans at the Big Spring facility. All too often, we overlook the contributions made by our veterans so that we may enjoy our way of life.
- Big Spring attorney Walton Morrison. At 84 years of age and 60 years' experience, Mr. Morrison is the oldest and longest practicing barrister in the community.
- Citizens Federal Credit Union, Bowlin Tractor and Scenic Mountain Medical Center — all co-sponsors of the Newspaper in Education project with the Herald.
- Big Spring High School's Lady Steers basketball team, which won the District 3-4A title this week.
- Students, teachers and administrators at local area schools for their efforts in the area of reducing dropouts and preparing for the TAAS tests.
- Howard College's Lady Hawks, who knocked off the No. 1 ranked women's junior college team in the nation — for the second time this season — this week.
- Those members of the Big Spring community who have given of their time and energies to prepare the Big Spring/Howard County proposal to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Round table talks with a few squares

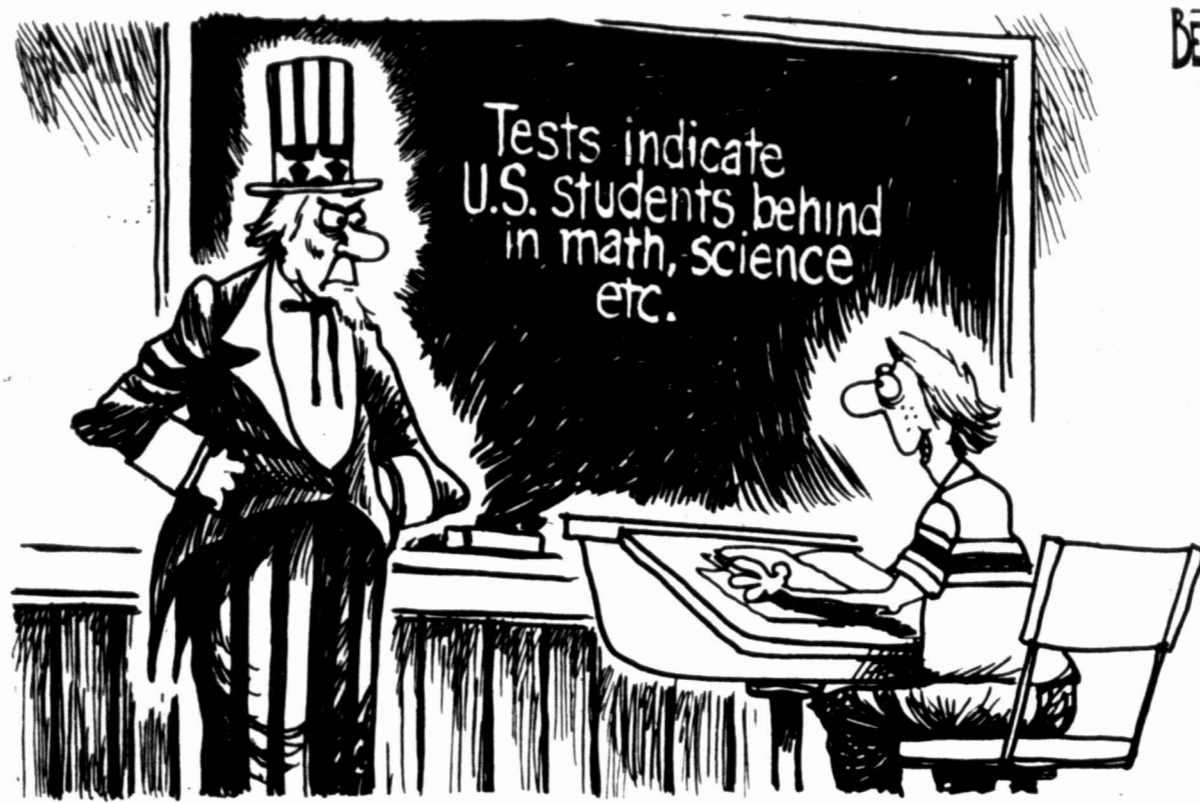

"Welcome to the Lewis Grizzard Column. Today we will have a panel discussion involving several individuals who have been in the news charged with various sexual misdeeds.

Lewis Grizzard

"I will moderate the discussion and would like to remind all panelists to keep their hands to themselves. Is that perfectly clear, Mr. Tyson?"
 "Man, why are you picking on me?"
 "You heard me, Mr. Tyson, and I expect you to comply with the rules all the panelists have agreed upon."
 "Don't worry about me, man, there ain't no beauty queens in this bunch."
 "Then let us begin. My first question is for Arkansas governor, Bill Clinton, a Democratic presidential hopeful. Gov. Clinton, did you or did you not have a 12-year affair with another woman?"
 "My wife will answer that."
 "Mrs. Clinton?"
 "I stand by what my husband has said."
 "But he didn't say anything."
 "That's our story and we're sticking to it."
 "Very well, Mrs. Clinton. Gary Hart, you ran into the same sort of thing when you ran for president. What advice would you give Governor Clinton?"
 "Next time, take a cold shower instead. If I'd done that I might be in the White House today."
 "This isn't a high-tech lynching, by any chance?"
 "Why do you ask, Justice Thomas?"
 "I just wanted to make sure. I've got no time for that sort of thing anymore. I'm busy considering Roe v. Wade."
 "What's so hard about that?"
 "What do you mean, Mr. Tyson?"
 "Roe will knock him out by the fourth round."
 "Back to you, Justice Thomas. Have you heard any word on how Anita Hill is doing?"
 "I heard she can't get a date."
 "Why not?"
 "After what she did to me, Long Dong Silver himself wouldn't have the guts to ask her out."
 "I will. Anybody know her number?"
 "Rev. Swaggart, aren't you in enough trouble as it is?"
 "I guess you're right. By the way, can anybody lend me bus fare back to Baton Rouge? The contributions have been really slow lately."
 "We'll discuss that later, Rev. Swaggart."
 "Let's move on to our next panelist, William Kennedy Smith."

"Mr. Smith, are things pretty much back to normal with you and the Kennedy family after your acquittal on rape charges?"
 "Very much so, Lewis. As a matter of fact, we're planning a big party at the estate in Palm Beach on the night of the anniversary of the alleged incident."
 "Do you think that is a prudent thing to do? I mean you Kennedy start partying and..."
 "Oh, it will be fine. My uncle Teddy has planned the whole thing."
 "And what sort of party will it be?"
 "A masquerade party."
 "And what will you wear?"
 "A pair of pantyhose pulled down over my face."
 "Well, that's about all the time we have for today. Remember if you'd like a televised copy of this transcript write the Lewis Grizzard Column and please include a few bucks to get Rev. Swaggart back to Baton Rouge."
 "Yes, Gov. Clinton?"
 "Do you think I could get a blue dot over my face for the television portion?"
 "I'll see what I can do. If nothing else, I'm certain Willie can find you a pair of pantyhose."
 "Thank you, panel, and thank you readers."
 "On an upcoming Column, former basketball star Wilt Chamberlain will attempt to recite the names of all the 20,000 women with whom he has claimed to have had sex. Don't miss it."

The writer's art Getting on right wavelength

An analogy comes from the world of radio. It's old, but it's apt: A writer transmits, a reader receives. Unless writer and reader are tuned to the same wavelength, all that one hears is static.

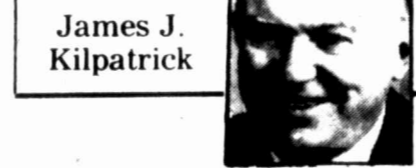

How do we find a common wavelength? It's mostly a matter of guesswork. Three examples will suggest the problem.

A few weeks ago I wrote a column that dealt with "mangles, dangles, non sequiturs and baffles." A dear lady in Indianapolis, 82, wrote to say that she understood what was meant by mangles, dangles and baffles, but what was a non sequitur? She had searched her dictionary under "S" and could find no help.

I wrote back what I thought was a polite and friendly letter. I said that it had not occurred to me that non sequitur was such a strange phrase that it would baffle any reader. I said that non sequitur appears in the "N" section, that it comes from the Latin for "it does not follow," and that the phrase had been in use since the 1500s. Cordially yours.

Zaap! Mrs. R fired back a hurt and resentful letter: "It never occurred to me that 'non sequitur' was a common phrase. It didn't occur to 20 other people... If you took a poll of your readers, how many would look under 'N'? How many would know what the phrase meant without looking it up? And who else besides yourself would use that phrase?"
 "No answer to this letter is expected, unless it's to say you're sorry. Of course I'm not in the same league as you, but you didn't need to rub it in."

About the same time I was offending Mrs. R in Indianapolis, my brother columnist Bill Safire was offending a reader in Port St.

James J. Kilpatrick

Lucie, Fla. Bill was writing about Patrick Buchanan, the columnist who has become a candidate for the White House. A year ago Buchanan opposed armed intervention to liberate Kuwait.

Safire said: "Had the Buchanan Weltanschauung prevailed, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein... would today be importing Soviet scientists to put the finishing touches on his nuclear-tipped intercontinental missiles."

Complained the gentleman in Port St. Lucie: "What in the world is Weltanschauung? Does Mr. Safire really believe that most of his readers would understand that word? It is bad enough when a writer throws in an English word that I have never heard of, but to do it in a foreign language is totally unfair."

For the record: Weltanschauung is German. It means "a comprehensive conception or image of the universe and of humanity's relation to it" (Random House). It is "a comprehensive world view, esp. from a specified standpoint" (American Heritage). Now we all know.

Example No. 3. In early January, The Wall Street Journal carried an editorial on the budgetary problems of California. Said the editor: "Politicians in Sacramento face, belatedly, the need to put public expenditures on a Jenny Craig-size diet."

Who in the world, said I to myself, is Jenny Craig? Never heard of the lady. The allusion was meaningless to me, and I expect it was lost on many other readers. We were not on the same wavelength.

These things matter. A friend in Wyoming received a fund-raising flier from the Cheyenne Civic Center. It began, "Kudos is an idiosyncratic name for the Cheyenne Civic Center's 1991-92 season." (For the record: "Kudos" is acclaim or prestige; "idiosyncratic" didn't make it into any of my desk dictionaries, but it turns up in the unabridged Webster's and Random House in the sense of appropriate, fit, suitable, apt.)

This past August the pastor of First Baptist Church in Edgefield, S.C., sent a message to his flock: "The fullness of God's nature can never be grasped by us. At best, the finite can only adumbrate the parameters of the infinite. Even the ocean reminds us of our limited powers of prehension."

Nuff said. Whether a writer is composing a sermon, a book review, a business letter or a newspaper column, the same admonitions apply: Do not write down to your reader! Do not write over your reader's head! We should aim at a wavelength on which 90 percent of our prospective readers will understand 90 percent of the words we use. Another 9 percent of the words we employ should be understandable in context.

What about that lonesome 1 percent of words that are wholly unfamiliar — words such as non sequitur and Weltanschauung? Let the reader look up the hard words. A writer has to have some fun.

A day of pitfalls for manlymen

Welcome fellow manlymen to the one time of year when you can show some emotion — sort of.

Valentine's Day is designed especially for all those girlygirls in the world — "Ahhhhh, so little time," he reminisced.

These monthly columns constitute addendums to the Manly Manual, a handbook dedicated to the preservation of the domination of the male figure in society, peace through superior firepower, the divinity of the "Y" chromosome and the implacable opposition of social conscience and all things androgenous.

Valentine's Day is named after Saint Valentine, who must have been a real hound — if you know what I mean!

While, as a manlyman, it is not imperative to have a steady girlygirl, single manlymen must always have two or three girlygirls "in the works."

Failure to have any girlygirl at all does not immediately remove one from manlyman status — as long as one's prowess is well documented. (Lies are acceptable.)

To be caught in a lie, however, is a one-way trip out the bronze oaken doors of the Manlyman Halls. One immediately becomes a "pencil-necked geek" and must turn in all manlyman regalia including all tools, four-wheel drive vehicles, swimsuit calendars and torn boxer shorts.

But for manlymen with steady girlygirls, there are other pitfalls, one of them being Valentine's Day.

To retain said girlygirl, one must make some effort at displaying affection. I'm not talking normal affection like a 15 minute bout and shower before work.

On this day, you're actually going to be required to say something romantic.

Now don't get nervous. Here's a hint. Buy a bunch of flowers. This greatly reduces the amount of actual verbalization of feelings necessary to keep the girlygirl at home where she belongs.

Note: A number of flowers are always referred to as a "bunch." Anyone using the word "bouquet" might as well be wearing wings and a sequined tutu.

Some mushiness is allowed in these necessary verbalizations. Not a whole lot, mind you. But a little bit.

Here is a sampling of tender comments previously approved by the Manlyman Emotional Dispensation Committee:

"You're the greatest, babe — really."

"I love you more than my jeep! (Again lying is acceptable.)"

"Have I told you lately how hot you look? Well ya' do."

Note: Great caution must be exercised here, however. Opening the door on one's feelings, even a crack, could lead to a disastrous erosion of one's manliness, unless great control is exercised. One could find one's self watching Phil Donahue and reading Byron within a month. I've seen it happen — it's not pretty.

Following these tender moments, it is necessary to rejuvenate one's manliness.

The Manly Manual suggests:

- Joining a male-only gathering to eat red meat and discuss sports.
- Blowing a small furry animal away with a large caliber weapon.
- Sweating feverishly over a V-8 engine, whether it needs servicing or not.

d. Singing Karen Carpenter's "Close to You" from outside your loving woman's bedroom window and donating money to Greenpeace.

All right! What limp-wristed, commie, weasel wrote that last one!!!

I can't leave my terminal for a minute! Look! Deadline or no deadline, I'm not erasing this blasphemy until the slack-jawed, panty waist who wrote it confesses. I'm not kidding — I'm not going one step further!

Champions!

Lady Hawks secure WJCAC crown

By STEVE BELVIN
 Sports Editor

For the second time this week, a championship banner will go up in Big Spring.

Tuesday night the Big Spring Lady Steers clinched a district championship. Thursday night the Howard College Lady Hawks clinched the Western Junior College Athletic Conference basketball title by taking a 57-40 win over the Frank Phillips Lady Plainsmen.

STANDINGS

Howard	11-0, 25-3
NMJC	8-2, 22-3
South Plains	4-6, 16-11
Odessa	4-6, 13-14
Frank Phillips	3-5, 10-11
Western Texas	3-7, 9-14
Clarendon	1-8, 10-10

Thursday's Results
 Howard 57, Frank Phillips 40; NMJC 83, Western Texas 61; Odessa 82, Clarendon 44.

Monday's Games
 Odessa at Frank Phillips; NMJC at Clarendon; Ranger at Western Texas.

It's the first conference crown the Lady Hawks have won in three years under Royce Chadwick, and their first conference title since 1981. The No. 5 nationally-ranked Lady Hawks go to 11-0 in conference play and 25-3 overall. Frank Phillips falls to 3-5 and 10-11.

The win was a total team effort. Chadwick emptied his bench early in the game and continued to do so throughout the game. Although it wasn't an overpowering performance, it was consistently good enough to stay a step ahead of the Lady Plainsmen.

Chadwick said his team's play was a bit lackadaisical. "Call it ugly, we had a lot of mental lapses. We didn't act like we were fired up. It's like we said, 'We beat them once, we can beat them again,'" Chadwick said.

"They killed us on the boards. We try not to jack them (Lady Hawks) up every game. We didn't want to put too much emphasis on this game, we've got more important games coming up."

"We had some kids who hadn't been in in a couple of games, we wanted to make sure they got in. They've been working pretty hard. Kim Stanley is starting to play pretty well."

The Lady Hawks' press gave Frank Phillips problems from the start as Howard raced to a 10-2 lead in the first three minutes.

Spurred by the outside shooting of Stacy Schroeder, Frank Phillips battled back to knot the contest at 16-16 at the 13 minute mark.

Howard then went on a tear that left it in control the rest of the game. It started with a three-pointer by LeAnn Heinrich and ended with Regina Huff getting a steal and layup. Howard led 27-16 with 7:11 left in the half.

comeback just before half. Howard led 31-25 at halftime.

In the second half Frank Phillips pulled to within 37-32, but Howard put things away starting with a three-point play by Kathy Mangram, followed by a three-pointer and two free throws by LeAnn Heinrich, and two baskets each by Desiree Wallace and Yolanda Wells. Howard had the game well in hand, 54-38 with 2:39 left.

Howard was led by Wallace with 14 points and Mangram with 13 points. Huff followed with 10 points.

Frank Phillips was paced by Jennifer Gordon with 10 points. Oliveira, a sophomore forward, finished with four points and three rebounds.

The Lady Hawks will be in non-conference action Friday, Feb. 21 against the Dallas AAU team at 6 p.m. at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Kathy Mangram 5-9, 3-3 13; Desiree Wallace 7-10, 9-0 14; Regina Huff 4-7, 2-2 10; Yolanda Wells 2-8, 1-5 5; Dina Rozner 0-0, 0-0; Vernetra Allen 0-1, 0-0 0; Yumeca White 2-6, 0-0 4; Rebecca Brown 0-2, 0-1 0; Kim Smith 1-4, 0-0 2; Anita Wright 0-1, 0-0 0; Kelly Williams 0-1, 0-0 0; LeAnn Heinrich 1-4, 2-2 5; Kim Stanley 1-2, 0-0 2; totals 24-57, 9-13 57.

Rape victim goes public

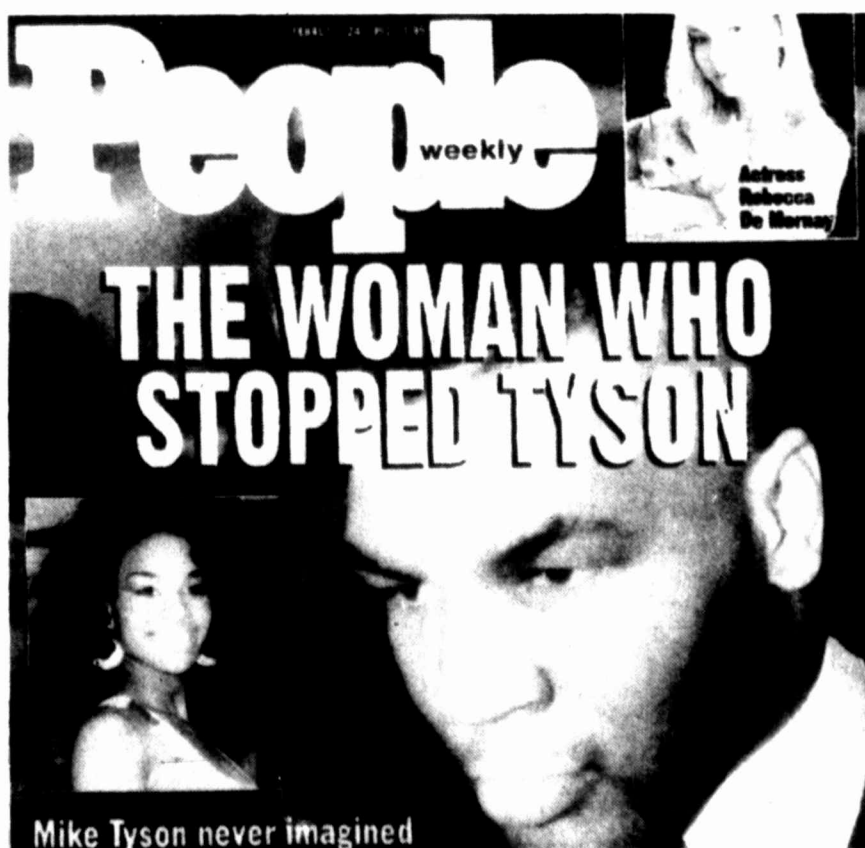

NEW YORK (AP) — The beauty queen who brought rape charges against boxer Mike Tyson went public by appearing on the cover of next week's People magazine, saying "I didn't do it for fame. It was the right thing to do."

The magazine goes on sale Sunday but released a copy of the cover and story Thursday.

The cover includes a large photograph of a scowling Tyson with a smaller picture of a smiling Desiree Washington, the 18-year-old Miss Black America contestant he was convicted Monday of raping.

People spokesman Beth Kseniak said the magazine interviewed Washington after its story on the trial had gone to press, so the cover was the only place she could be quoted.

Washington, a freshman at Providence College in Rhode Island, wasn't paid for permission to use her identity, Kseniak said. During

Hawks win dunkfest over Frank Phillips

By STEVE BELVIN
 Sports Editor

The Howard College Hawks played the Frank Phillips Plainsmen a basketball game Thursday night, and a dunking contest broke out.

Howard won the dunking contest and the game, coming away with a 129-108 win at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The win gives Howard a 6-7 conference record and 19-8 overall mark. Frank Phillips drops to 1-11 and 3-22.

Howard College Hawks' guard Demond Thomas prepares to pass to a teammate as Steve Hill (50) of Frank Phillips runs down the court in action Thursday night.

The contest could be a highlight film for dunks. While Frank Phillips got its dunks in, Howard definitely came away with the dunking prize. From guard Markee James' 360-slam to post player Bernard Lloyd's monster dunks to the alley-ooping stuffs of Corey Williams, just about everybody on the Howard team slammed in this fast-paced affair.

Mixed in with the fast breaking, slam-dunking was a turnover-filled frenzy, which saw 52 turnovers. Howard also won that battle, 27-25.

The game was never a contest from the time Howard's Jason Hodges hit a jumper to start the game and Mark Davis followed with the game's first dunk. Before the Plainsmen knew what

Canseco rams wife's car

MIAMI (AP) — Oakland Athletics slugger Jose Canseco faces up to 15 years in prison and $10,000 in fines for aggravated battery after trying to run his estranged wife's car off the road, police said.

Canseco, 27, repeatedly rammed his red 1985 Porsche into Esther Haddad Canseco's $78,000 white BMW, causing $10,000 in damage, police said after his arrest Thursday.

A passerby who saw the chase dialed 911. Officers arrived in time to see Canseco spit on his wife's car window, said Metro-Dade police spokesman Ralph Fernandez.

Canseco then acted like a gentleman, officers said, and even gave them his autograph while they questioned the former Miss Miami, 25.

"When they put him under arrest, she recanted her story," saying the collisions were an accident, but then she returned to her original account and asked that her car be towed away, Fernandez said.

Hockey team passes tough test

ALBERTVILLE, France (AP) — Christopher Bowman was no showman. Todd Eldredge's train of thought was derailed in mid-axel.

The two-time U.S. champs were chumps, they admitted, with the Olympic figure skating title up for grabs. As a result, the Americans' streak of gold medals in the event may be over at two — apologies to darkhorse Paul Wylie in third place.

"I'm sorry things didn't work out better," said Bowman, who knew his big chance was gone the moment his hand hit the ice on a triple axel.

Victor Petrenko, a Ukrainian competing for the Unified Team, was the only one of the top medal favorites to perform well and can earn the gold with a solid performance in the free skate Saturday night.

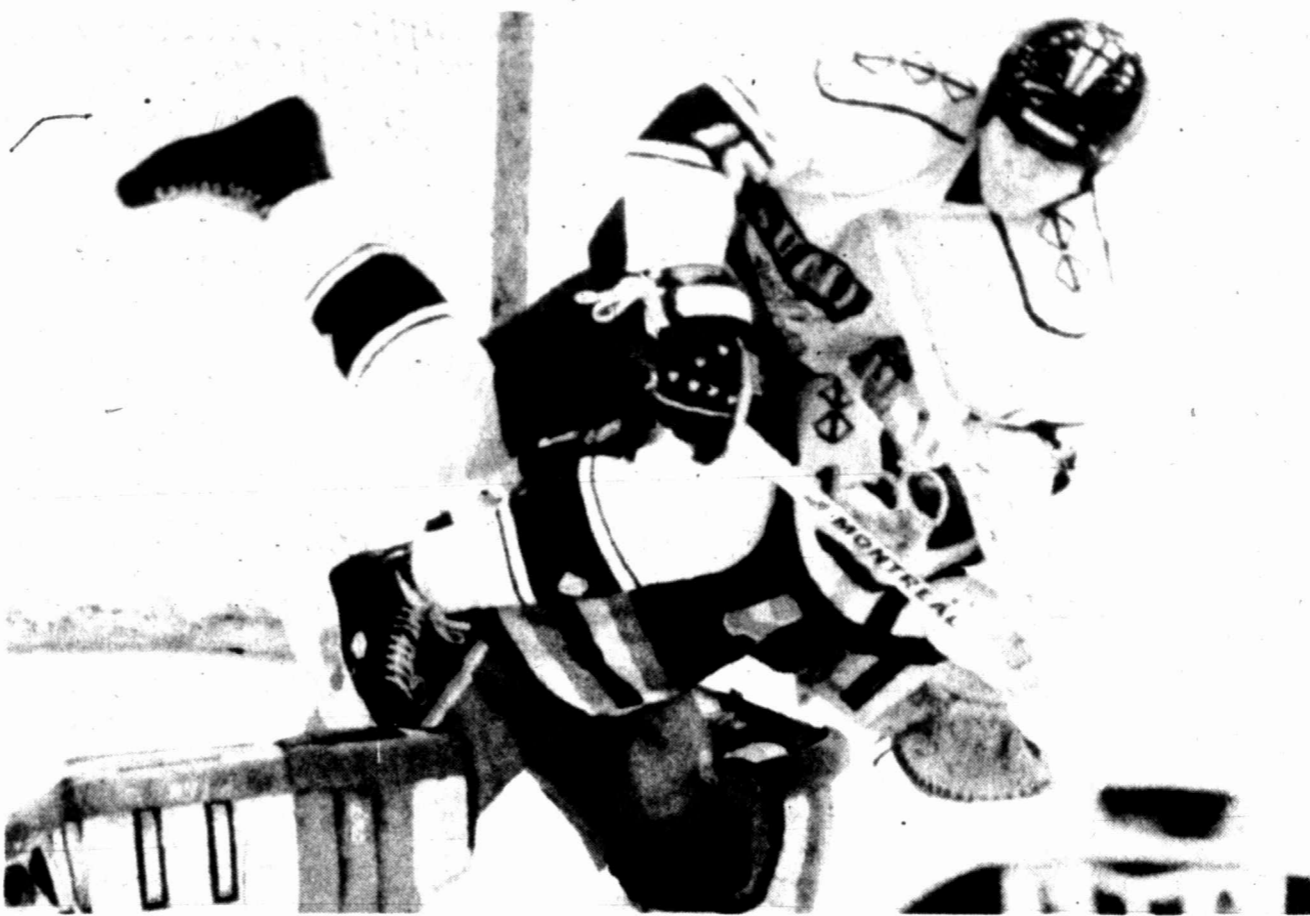

"While the top American men's skaters failed to live up to expectations, Austria and the U.S. hockey team continued to exceed theirs at the 16th Winter Olympics.

Austria bagged its 12th medal with more than half the Winter Games remaining, matching its all-time best from Innsbruck in 1964. Germany was next among the leaders with 10, the Unified Team had six, Norway and host France five each.

Thick fog this morning all but obscured visibility at La Plagne, altitude 5,905 feet, and the start of the men's luge doubles was delayed by half an hour. Italian and German teams were favored. The women's biathlon relay began on schedule at Les Saisies.

Scott Hamilton and Brian Boitano, U.S. skaters who reached new Olympic heights to claim the gold in 1984 and 1988, left Bowman and Eldredge a mighty heritage to uphold. They weren't up to it Thursday night.

Eldredge, recovering from back problems that sidelined him from last month's nationals, muffed a relatively easy double axel near the end of his program. Before coming off the ice, he put an imaginary gun to his head, then hands around his neck.

That leaves the unheralded Wylie, 27, as the sole hope for the Americans, last shut out of the medals in 1976. He bombed at last year's world championships and last month's nationals, surprising even himself with the sparkling showing in Albertville.

Wylie was 10th at Calgary four years ago. To earn a medal Saturday night, he'll have to hold off three-time world champion Kurt Browning of Canada. Another favorite who went sour, Browning fell early in his routine while doing a triple axel. European champion Petr Barna of Czechoslovakia is second.

The United States was still just halfway to its dismal 1988 total of six medals, but its hockey team — short on National Hockey League talent but not on toughness — passed a stern test with ease.

The Americans clinched the medals round for the first time since 1980, the year of miracle gold, and closed in on a top seeding by beating Finland 4-1.

Acrobatic goalie Ray LeBlanc turned in another stellar performance with 29 saves, including a couple of spectacular ones in the third period when Finland trailed only 2-1. Scott Young scored twice and the U.S. team played its savvy game of checking with gusto and seizing opportunities.

The third Olympic rink where skating took place Thursday was soft and soggy and deemed unfit for competition — by the medalists.

"I wanted the entire event postponed because of the conditions," said Geir Karlstad of Norway, winner of the men's 5,000-meter speedskating at the Albertville oval. "I don't know why we skate an outdoor race. It is not equal for all. For the future, I think it is important that we have the Olympics indoors."

Petra Kronberger, the queen of women's Alpine skiing, seemed as relieved as she was happy to have survived the second day of the combined competition to capture her first gold medal. A two-time World Cup overall champion with an estimated $300,000 in annual endorsements, she had everything a skier could want except the most glittering jewel of all.

hit them, Howard had roared to a 16-0 lead in the first two minutes of play.

The lead grew to 35-15. After Williams and James scored on drives inside and Lloyd got a steal and finished it off with a jam, Howard led 41-15 midway through the first half. In the first 10 minutes alone, Howard shot 16 of 21 from the floor, 10 of them being dunks.

Howard coach Jeff Kidder said he didn't have that in mind when his team had a slam dunk contest in Tuesday's workout.

"After the loss to Odessa, we lightened up things a little a practice," said Kidder. "We had a slam dunk contest, a three-point contest and a trick shot contest. Wednesday we had a good, hard workout."

Paced by Will Macon's 16 first-half points, the Hawks led 71-53 at the half, forcing Frank Phillips to press the entire second half. In return, Frank Phillips created a lot of turnovers, but Howard also got a lot of fast break points when it beat the press.

All of the Howard players scored and six players scored in double figures. Macon's 24 points led the way. Williams added 20 points and James added 12 points, five steals and seven assists. Mark Davis also scored 12 points and Demond Thomas and Lloyd added 10 points.

Frank Phillips was led by forward Rod Martin with 21 points. After missing his first shot of the game, he finished by making his last nine field goal attempts.

Jacob Garza and Fabian Ramos scored 12 points each. Cedrick Hodges, John Cash, Jeff Isom and Steve Hill scored 10 points each.

"It was one of those games where we played to the level of our competition," said Kidder. "It was a real up-and-down game. It gives us 19 wins and mathematically we're not eliminated. These kids are a bunch of competitors and they won't give up."

The Hawks will be on the road Monday against Midland College at 7:30 p.m.

Valentine's Day costs more now

HOUSTON (AP) — Alas, the days of free love are long gone. And as anyone getting ready for Valentine's Day can tell, the cost of being sweet to one's sweetie is higher this year than ever before.

According to the "Cost of Loving Index," compiled by Houston Asset Management Inc., prices for a romantic Valentine's Day gifts have gone up 11.9 percent since last year and nearly tripled over the past two decades.

A lavish Valentine's Day including a dozen long-stem roses, Godiva chocolates in a Valentine heart, and a one-ounce bottle of Chanel No. 5 perfume would run at least $360. Add a romantic candlelight dinner and movie, and the tally rises by $156 to $516, the investment advising company said.

The total is up $40 over 1991 and $372 from 20 years ago, when the same evening would have cost $144.

Pete Condon advertises his need for a job Tuesday in the Atlanta hotel district.

Man gets interview by wearing resume

ATLANTA (AP) — Most job applicants copy their resume and mail it out. Pete Condon blew his up and wore it in front of a morning rush-hour audience in downtown Atlanta.

It landed him at least one interview. "That was about as inventive as I could be," said Condon, who also carried a sign that read, "I Will Work for $25,000 a Year."

Condon, 25, said he hasn't been able to find a decent-paying job in his field — marketing and advertising — since he graduated in 1989 from the University of Georgia. He has been trying to make a living as a valet parking cars.

On Tuesday, he put on his long underwear, covered it with a navy blue Brooks Brothers suit, left the apartment he shares with two roommates in suburban Cobb County and traveled to Atlanta.

He was on the streets by 7:30 a.m., wearing the sandwich-sign version of his resume that included his name and telephone number in big letters.

He was a hit with motorists. "We had people laughing, rolling down their windows, giving me thumbs up — almost everybody wished me good luck," he said.

And he got a job interview for Wednesday. The head of a company that produces class materials saw Condon standing on the street corner, jotted down his telephone number and called him.

Many lawmakers planning to depart

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 100 fresh faces are expected in Congress next year in the largest turnover since World War II, a change brought on by factors ranging from an aging crop of lawmakers to revised ethics rules.

With the current session of Congress barely two weeks old, 29 incumbent lawmakers have announced they will not be back in 1993.

"It should be a refreshing breeze for the institution," said Rep. Dennis Eckart, a 41-year-old Ohio Democrat elected in 1980 and departing after the November election.

Precisely how the breeze would blow is unpredictable. The so-called Watergate class swept into office in 1975 produced a series of reforms and ousted some long-entrenched committee chairmen.

Reasons why lawmakers are leaving include:

- Redistricting that has carved up the home turf of some incumbents, mostly in the Northeast and Midwest. A few sitting lawmakers must either retire or fight each other for survival. Many would have to run on less friendly territory.

- Low public esteem for Congress, fanned by mini-scandals involving the House's internal management. Lawmakers are subjected to constant criticism back home, and more may retire if the ethics committee releases a list of those who bounced checks at the House bank.

- An ethics law that allows members elected before 1980 to keep for personal use any leftover campaign funds, but only if they retire this year.

- The House is getting older. Fully 105 of its 435 members are over 60, and 33 are in their 70s or 80s.

Over the past four decades, average turnover in the House every two years has been about 62, ranging from a low of 36 in 1969 to a peak of 86 in 1975. Retirements alone have accounted for anywhere from 21 seats in 1956 to 49 in 1978.

Ironically, the big turnover comes at a time when critics say Congress has become a lifetime sinecure and that limiting the number of terms lawmakers may serve is the only way to oust incumbents.

In years past, lawmakers such as Eckart would have been just settling in for long Capitol Hill careers. He had acquired a reputation as a thoughtful and articulate lawmaker with a bright future in Congress.

But times have changed. "It's very clear there is a loss of stature at home, to say you're a member of Congress," he said.

And those who came to Washington to pursue idealistic goals have been stymied by budget constraints and polarization between the Republican White House and the Democratic Congress. "We seldom have paralyzed government like what we've had the past decade," Eckart said.

Burnout is a factor. The wearing cycle of travel between Washington and home, election campaigns and endless fundraising takes its toll.

Rep. John Miller, R-Wash., said he was leaving Congress at age 53 because he wanted to spend more time with his wife and son. And he added: "I also feel less creative and energetic than in my first year."

Twenty-two of those retiring are Democrats, seven Republicans. Some are running for the Senate or governor but many are going elsewhere.

Rep. Lindsay Thomas, 48, a 10-year House member, is leaving to take an executive job with the Atlanta committee that is organizing for the city's hosting of the summer Olympics in 1996.

Another Georgia Democrat, Rep. Ed Jenkins, 59, is stepping down to practice law in Jasper, Ga., leaving behind a coveted seat on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee.

Don Pease, a Democrat from northern Ohio, is leaving at age 60 to "enjoy life in a slower lane" that might include "just plain loafing."

And Kentucky Republican Larry Hopkins, beaten badly in last year's gubernatorial election, has decided to leave Congress because of political exhaustion.

Like many of those retiring, Hopkins, 58, could legally keep the money remaining in his congressional campaign fund, and has said he is considering that option. At $658,000, he tops the list of retirees with fat campaign chests.

Committee chairmen also are among those leaving.

They include Walter Jones, D-N.C., chairman of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee; Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., chairman of the Banking subcommittee on financial institutions; Edward Roybal, D-Calif., chairman of the Appropriations Treasury subcommittee; Gus Yatron, D-Pa., chairman of the Foreign Affairs human rights subcommittee, and Mervyn Dymally, D-Calif., chairman of the Foreign Affairs Africa subcommittee.

Long term, though, the retirement of those senior lawmakers could be less important in the House than the departure of some of those who might have advanced to key chairmanships.

"The interesting pattern is not the older ones. It's the Eckarts, and the Lindsay Thomases, the guys in their 40s," said political analyst and newsletter publisher Charles Cook.

"They came wanting to do something, found the institution paralyzed, and then they go home and get dumped on by constituents," said Cook. "I'm thinking there could be as many as 50 to 60 retirements this year."

Stadium construction unearths Babe Ruth's outhouse

BALTIMORE (AP) — The "House that Ruth Built" is in New York, but the outhouse built for Ruth is in his hometown — underneath center field in the city's new baseball stadium.

The privy used by the Sultan of Swat and his family was among a treasure trove of artifacts found by archaeologists working with construction crews at Oriole Park at Camden Yards, where the Baltimore Orioles begin playing this spring.

"This is in my opinion a premier collection of urban artifacts ever excavated in our entire region," said R. Christopher Goodwin, whose archaeological firm conducted the dig for the Maryland Stadium Authority.

The stadium, which officially opens April 6, was built in a section southwest of downtown called Camden Yards, after an old station of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

One of the area's former residents was the Babe's father, George Herman Ruth Sr., who operated a saloon from 1906 to 1912 in what is now center field.

The Ruths lived above the saloon and their privy was directly behind it. Bruce Hoffman, the stadium authority's executive director, said the privy had been filled in and did not pose a sanitary threat in center field.

Babe Ruth himself lived perhaps three years in Camden Yards because from 1902 to 1914, he was in and out of reform school, researchers say.

He went on to become baseball's first great slugger. New York's Yankee Stadium became known as the "House that Ruth Built" because it was built to accommodate the bigger crowds Ruth attracted.

Before the Baltimore dig, archaeologists created a computerized geographic information system using 113 historic maps of the area, which helped them locate the Ruth saloon and other landmarks.

Archaeologists also were aided by the recollections of Babe Ruth's 92-year-old sister, Mary Ruth Moberly, now living in Hagerstown.

"She thought we were benign, but crazy," Goodwin said of Miss Moberly's reaction to digging up the privy.

Workers dug nearly 100 trenches throughout the 71-block site and uncovered 41,300 artifacts. Most were bits of broken glass, china and pottery. Some have been pieced together into pots, plates and pitchers.

One prize find was a flintlock that may have been left behind by a French soldier during the Revolutionary War. Researchers even found an old pottery kiln that was unrecorded.

Privies are historical time capsules because they were used for

R. Christopher Goodwin, whose archaeological firm conducted the dig for the new baseball stadium in downtown Baltimore, holds a vase discovered on the property. He is shown at his office in Frederick, Md., last month. Working with construction crews, the archaeologists discovered a treasure trove of the city's history, including relics from the boyhood home of Babe Ruth and his family.

trash disposal before communities had municipal trash service, said Martha Williams, a researcher for Goodwin's firm.

"If you can find one that hasn't been cleaned out, you can find a wealth of information. But 200 years does not make a difference (in the human waste), so there can be kind of nasty stuff," she said.

The dig on the Ruth property yielded two privies, one dug for the Ruths and one made 100 years earlier and used by Frances Whiddington, an upper-class woman, whose status is reflected in the broken porcelain and pottery that she discarded.

Items taken from the later privy included old pipes, glassware, china, old cherry pits, watermelon seeds and a coconut, Ms. Williams said.

Because the outhouse was used by other dwellers after the Ruth family, it is impossible to determine which items came from the Ruth household. But items from that site will be sent to the nearby Babe Ruth Museum, she said.

The discovery of the potter's kiln and the fragments of pottery left there also should help collectors, said Susan Sanders, who was crew chief for the Camden Yards dig.

"Each potter had his own pattern for his pottery. If other pieces are found in other digs, they could be traced back to Baltimore," she said.

BSISD trustees set May 2 election

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

Trustees for the Big Spring Independent School District called for a public hearing to discuss proposed redistricting plans, a school board member election and a public textbook hearing during Thursday night's regular board meeting.

On May 2, three at-large school board member positions will be elected. Glynna Mouton, Al Valdes and board president Dan Wise all have expiring three-year terms. Filing dates for a position on the school board are Feb. 17-March 18 at the administration building, 707 11th Place, from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

The proposed redistricting plan reduces the ideal district size total population deviation from 32.25 percent to 5.9 percent. The hearing is scheduled for Feb. 25 at 5:15 p.m. in the high school board room. A public textbook hearing has been scheduled for Feb. 20 at 3:45 p.m. in the board room.

Kent Bowerman, high school principal, Dwight Butler, athletic director, Murray Murphy, assistant superintendent for personnel and instruction, Ron Plumlee, assistant superintendent for business, and Ron Logback, assistant business manager, were approved for two-year contracts following an executive session. Other one-year contracts approved at the same time included the alternative school coordinator, administrative personnel, directors, administrative assistants, assistant principals, principals.

Nancy Saenz, a recent University of the Permian Basin graduate, was hired as a physical education teacher at Washington Elementary. P.E. teacher Rhonda Doe requested and was granted a transfer to Anderson Kindergarten Center.

James McFarland, administrative assistant, presented bids for canine Contraband detection service to the trustees. "Bids were sent out to three vendors. One bid was returned," he said. "This service will provide 132 canine search visits throughout the contract visit, 11 canine searches per month when school is in session."

The 17-month contract was awarded to Narcotic Consultants of Spicewood and totals $30,912. Monthly payments will be rendered and services include 200 or more presentations to area classes on subjects such as fire safety. McFarland said the dog that searches the high school, junior high school and middle school is trained to alert on illegal drugs and alcohol as well as on other dangers such as firearms, fireworks and gas powder.

McFarland recommended Dewey Stone Refrigeration, Big Spring, for $2,295 to install walk-in freezers at March 4 Elementary. Purchased from Germcoaters, Inc., Fort Worth, the total bid is $4,542. Also included are a machine and bin for the high school and about 30 dozen food service trays, purchased from Gerry Shabers in Houston.

Logback recommended Bob Brock Ford in Big Spring for a bid to purchase two half-ton pickup trucks for a total of $6,100. Other bids awarded included Wolbans Construction for a bid for a paving project at the bus barn, totaling $12,063 and Abilene Sheet Metal for the purchase of fan coil units totaling $21,442.

BIM Corporation was awarded a bid for $25,430 for computer maintenance and service of 203 computers. Tandy Corporation received a similar contract of service for 19 units totaling $66.

The 1992-93 school year calendar was approved by trustees. The calendar selected was voted for by 236 employees of the district. "We have always involved the staff in this decision. This calendar meets all the requirements of TEA," Sprague said. March 8-12 will be followed by everyone in the Permian Basin except San Angelo, not including Abilene," McQuary said.

Trustees listened to a report from Helen Gladden, curriculum director. Ed Lovelless, high school English department chairperson, and Terry Robertson, high school math department chairperson concerning the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test results.

Plumlee also included a county education district tax collection report in his routine action report

The cab company did not refuse to pick up blacks or anyone else living north of the railroad tracks. It was not a question of segregation or discrimination, but of efficiency and convenience, he said.

The cab service was in business for 2 1/2 years.

A few years later, White opened Diek's Liquor Store on N.W. Second Street. It was the first black to own and operate a store.

In those days, blacks didn't own and run things, he said. And if you wanted your own home, you would have to live on the north side of the railroad. You could live anywhere, but it would be in the servant's quarters of the homes on the south side. Most of the places were occupied by the servants of the owners.

In the early 1960s, White opened the 20-20 Bar on N.W. Third Street and a few years later he opened behind the Green Door, which was located a few blocks from 20-20 Bar.

Today, White is retired after working for I&P 32 years. He and his wife of 13 years still reside on the city's north side.

to determine which sites meet requirements. Semi-finalists are expected to be selected March 16 and finalists by April 10. Construction could begin this year and be completed by 1993-94.

Team members talked with county, city, hospital and college officials during the two-hour visit in Howard County, where $2.9 million is offered in giveaways of land, utilities roads, cash and services. Numerous questions were asked by state officials but no requests or suggestions made afterward, said members of the county Prison Proposal Coordinating Committee.

We felt like they were very impressed with Big Spring, said Hooper Sanders, chairman of the Coordinating Committee. We have no reason to think that they were not.

Selection of a site will be based on technical requirements such as land and utilities and other things related to the project, said Sanders.

White said he would like to see a prison in Big Spring. He said he would like to see a prison in Big Spring.

members Ladd Smith and Bill Crocker both said there is adequate medical facilities and educational facilities to train a work force.

More than half of 300-800 jobs created by a prison are expected to be filled from local people, although for initial training they would have to work at other state prisons.

Average annual salaries would be $20,000. Also, for the larger prison, up to 500 construction jobs would be needed up to two years, Sanders said. An estimated $20 million in construction in indirect jobs, he said, would be an injection of money into the economy.

Putting their hearts into unification

BERLIN (AP) — While Ina was pondering the paintings at Berlin's Altes Museum, Ralf was pondering Ina. He struck up a conversation and they hit it off.

She was East, he was West, and the twain not only met, they married. A happy story, and a rare one.

On this Valentine's Day, most of the love between eastern and western Germans is largely platonic. Even with the Berlin Wall gone, few of Cupid's arrows can clear the old barriers.

"We're united, but we're still two societies, two people," says Ralf Penke, a west Berlin fireman who married Ina in November 1990, a month after the two Germans tied the knot.

There are few statistics to measure how much wooing is occurring over the old border. But it's clear more thawing is needed in the Cold War relationships.

Of the 12,233 marriages in Berlin during the first eight months after Germany's unification in October 1990, only 256 were East-West unions, according to the city statistics office.

Berlin, where 2.1 million westerners and 1.3 million easterners live, is the largest city in united Germany and the place where the cultures are most likely to mingle.

Remarkably, 222 of the 256 marriages — 87 percent — were between a western man and an eastern woman. Just 34 east German men married western women.

"In some cases it might be a matter of economic survival," said Sigrid Lesser, a Berlin psychologist and marriage counselor. "East German men don't have any money."

What about the low number of East-West marriages overall? Sociologist Brigitte Wiessmeier says cultural differences were so great that, romantically speaking, Germany remains two nations.

"You may as well look at the number of Germans and Americans who married," she said. "They are like foreign

Ina and Ralf Penke smile in their apartment in Berlin Saturday. They met at Berlin's Altes Museum. He was West and she was East, but they countries."

But both experts say it's only a matter of time before the line blurs.

The Penkes managed to buck the odds even before German unity. They actually met in March 1989 in East Berlin, eight months before the wall fell.

"He could travel to the east," said Mrs. Penke, 28. "And we talked on the telephone all the time."

The courtship was complicated by the repressive rules of the Communist regime. Easterners could not even get in cars with westerners.

In August 1989, Ina applied to the state for approval to marry Ralf, 46. While they waited, the wall fell. When they realized they could marry whenever they wanted, they took their time.

The Penkes planned to spend Valentine's Day skiing near the Czechoslovak border. Although the holiday didn't exist in East Germany, the American import has taken off in western Germany in recent years.

"I never heard of Valentine's Day until after the revolution," Mrs. Penke said.

She describes herself as more leftist politically than her husband. But the couple, who live in a comfortable apartment in the wooded suburb of Reineckendorf, say they're extremely happy.

When the wall came down, Ralf took Ina into West Berlin, which she had never seen. She received the 100 marks in "welcome money" the West German government gave all arriving East Germans.

They spent it on a bottle of sparkling wine and toasted their good fortune, and each other.

"That was a very incredible time," Mrs. Penke said, blushing.

Groups criticize credit check for student loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some educators and lawmakers fear that students will be denied the college educations they need to get good jobs under a measure that, ironically, is designed to help some 2 million jobless Americans.

The law that extended unemployment benefits for an extra 13 weeks last November included a provision requiring students over 21 to undergo credit checks when applying for federally guaranteed student loans.

Students would pay $25 for the credit checks, designed to weed out borrowers who are likely to default on the loans.

The provision drew little attention when the $2.7 billion jobless bill was passed, but it's now being attacked by those who say it will prevent thousands of low-income students from going to college or trade schools.

"The greatest irony is that many unemployed workers who are helped by one part of the law will now be denied the education and training they need to get a job," said Stephen J. Blair, president of the Career College Association.

Supporters hope the provision will prevent some costly loan

'To believe that we can save money to provide unemployment compensation by denying people the chance to go to college is the most shortsighted policy I can imagine.'

Paul Simon
Illinois Senator

defaults. But critics believe the credit reports will block students from qualifying for loans because most have low incomes with poor or inadequate credit histories.

The White House Office of Management and Budget estimates the government can save between $15 million and $25 million through the credit checks and another requirement that older students with poor credit histories have co-signers on federally guaranteed student loans.

But David Carle, an aide to Illinois Sen. Paul Simon, said the Congressional Budget Office has estimated the savings to be negligible.

"To believe that we can save money to provide unemployment compensation by denying people the chance to go to college is the most shortsighted policy I can imagine," Simon told members of the Senate this week.

Simon and Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., are leading efforts to rescind the provision before the Education Department finalizes rules later this summer to start the credit checks.

Simon plans to offer a bill to repeal the measure when the Senate begins debate next week on reauthorizing the Higher Education Act.

He believes a more useful tool in dealing with student loan defaults is another provision that authorizes guaranty agencies or the Education Department to garnish up to 10 percent of a student's wages if he or she defaults on a loan.

In citing the need for the credit reports, the Bush administration said the cost of student loan defaults has grown from $151 million in 1981 to an estimated $2.7 billion last year.

But Charles Saunders of the American Council on Education said the purpose of the guaranteed student loan program "is not to loan money only to the people who are going to pay it back."

"It's to take risks and give people a chance. To say you need a credit check is to put more obstacles in front of precisely the people who find it most difficult to get a loan," said Saunders, whose group represents 1,400 universities and colleges.

The overall default rate of Guaranteed Student Loan participants has risen to nearly 17 percent but it is substantially higher for trade schools — 27 percent. That concerns some operators of trade schools.

James L. Combs and James Forsythe of the American Transportation Education Centers Inc. said more than 60 percent of the students who graduate from their two truck driving schools in Missouri and Ohio wouldn't qualify for a student loan under the new provision.

Company tries to stop panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A silicone breast implant manufacturer wants to block an advisory panel at the Food and Drug Administration from considering the safety of the devices.

McGhan Medical Corp. of Santa Barbara, Calif., said in a lawsuit Thursday that the issue should be turned over to Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan.

The company alleged that several members of the FDA advisory panel have shown a bias against silicone gel breast implants. The lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Baltimore also accuses FDA Commissioner David Kessler of prejudging the issue.

McGhan seeks a temporary restraining order to bar the advisory panel from meeting next week on the implants' safety.

Kessler last month sought — and obtained — a voluntary moratorium on the use of silicone gel breast implants.

Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., will ask the Justice Department to investigate whether Dow Corning Corp. misled federal regulators about the safety of silicone gel breast implants.

Romance School Learning to work on our relationships

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — For women, romance is a noun, defined in dressing up and evenings out. For men, it's an adjective, as in a romantic relationship.

"It's a women's concept to ride off on a white horse," says Jan Biefeld, a relationship consultant who runs an eight-week School for Romance. "Men are romantic in the sense that they're happy to have a lot of activities outside of sex, they enjoy spending a lot of time with a woman."

"It's sort of a self-esteem issue for men. For women, it's hearts and flowers," she says.

The School for Romance is not a place to find a date. Rather, Biefeld says, it's a place for people to expand their abilities to develop healthy relationships.

Howard Benson, a 35-year-old Albuquerque businessman who has never married, says he'd worked at a career for a number of years and then found the rules of dating had changed.

Benson says the school's material, the class discussions and the wealth of articles and books on relationships tell him "I'm not alone in this situation of not knowing what's going on in the dating world."

Linda Snyder, 49, who has worked as a counselor, musician and music teacher, says the course is "an opportunity to explore ideas and feelings and thoughts with other people who are single and have had various kinds of relationships. ... I can integrate that with my own experiences so relationships I build in the future will be more successful."

Snyder, divorced for a number of years, says that because she's independent and does the things she wants to do with friends, "it's not a vital part, but it's more fun to do things in the context of a relationship."

The school generally attracts thirtysomethings and up, often people who have been divorced. Individual sessions Biefeld conducts through her Center for Man-Woman Relationships generally attract professional people, most often men in their 30s who have never been married.

In both cases, people feel like they have something to offer, but can't find a relationship, says Biefeld, who has a master's degree in counseling.

In simple terms, she defines three stages to a relationship: being attracted to each other; learning you don't have as much in common as you originally thought; and accepting the differences.

The School for Romance, which meets once a week for eight weeks and costs $175, covers such topics as first impressions, identifying the role men and women play in a love relationship, recognizing and healing emotional wounds, and avoiding arguments and feeling loved. Biefeld also conducts one-day seminars through the University of New Mexico Continuing Education Division, the latest on "Secrets of Love and Friendship."

Biefeld says some people are very good at attracting others, but not so good at progressing beyond that first meeting. Other people, particularly if they're shy, are good at maintaining relationships but have a hard time being noticed in the first place.

"A lot of times, they'll work their one ability as far as they can," she says.

But, she says, they can't get around the need for both attracting people and nurturing the relationship.

Biefeld says a lot of attention has been paid in the past few years to single women in their 30s and 40s and the idea they have a slim chance of ever marrying. But Biefeld says women she sees often tionship than in marriage, while the men in their 30s want marriage and a family.

"It's a reversal of all this talk of how women can't find anyone. It's the men," she says.

There's a lot of distrust in the singles scene, with men and women misreading each other, she says.

"Women have a tendency to think there aren't any good guys out there," Biefeld says. "Men feel like women are so rude to them."

With the emerging women's movement in the 1970s, men were urged to be more sensitive.

"Men leaned over backward to give women what they wanted — and women didn't want men who leaned over backward," Biefeld says.

Men now are learning a "new masculinity," that they needn't be either wimps or patronizing rulers, she says.

Biefeld says that in today's busy, often isolated world, men and women need to learn to talk to each other. She says she tells men that if the outward trappings of Valentine's Day — gifts and a romantic evening — are important to the woman in their life, the man should try to remember the holiday. And she says she tells women they should sit down with the man in their life and discover what he finds romantic.

"We can't always know what the other person wants unless they tell us," she says.

She also suggests people tell each other what they like in each other.

"Men and women crave being told about themselves, being told what the other wants," she says. "This is intimacy."

Atheist urges others 'out of closet'

NEW YORK (AP) — America's most prominent, scrappiest atheist, Madalyn Murray O'Hair, says many people who share her belief keep it secret to avoid the blasts.

She taunts them to come "out of the closet."

Assorted governors, mayors, senators and entertainers "have confided in me that they are atheists," she says. "One day I'm going to sit down and name them. ... Their hair is just going to curl."

Ms. O'Hair, who 30 years ago mounted the lawsuit that got Bible reading and group prayer banned in the public schools, said she hasn't toned down her battle against religion, adding:

"I attack the Old Testament. I attack the New Testament. I attack religious ideology. Religion has done more harm than any other idea in history. It's the major enemy of mankind."

A large, white-haired woman of 72, Ms. O'Hair appeared on the Phil Donahue show last week. It was like a reunion of old sparring partners — the 25th anniversary of her first appearance on his first show in 1967.

"Rockets went off," he said. "Boy, oh boy, did you light up the switchboard." Donahue has had her a dozen times since then.

"I'm still feisty," she said. The sparks still crackled. She's "full of the devil" and may go to hell, a telephone caller said. A smiling Ms. O'Hair shook her head incredulously.

"This is just exactly typical, that a Christian who is committed will rave on like this," she said. "I have been an object of hatred for 25 years and I can speak authoritatively on the subject."

When an audience member, Robert Stamper of Rensselaer, Ind., protested that true Christians don't hate her "no matter what you say, I don't hate you. I don't even know you. Jesus Christ loves you."

She remarked, "That's insulting. I would never say to you

Ms. O'Hair was accompanied by her son, Jon, now president of American Atheists, and her adopted daughter, Robin, editor of The American Atheist Journal. She's the daughter of Ms. O'Hair's other son, William, who turned Christian evangelist.

"He joined the enemy," she said in an interview after the show. "I hear Bill is very rich. He got the money from the religion field and I'm proud of that."

She said her organization, with about 10,000 members, and 40,000 other subscribers and book purchasers, has its own cable television show carried on 120 cable systems reaching every major city.

"We need a confrontation with the religious over principles," she said. "We need courses on the psychopathologies of religion."

Asked if atheism isn't a belief system — faith in God's non-existence, just as religion is faith in God's existence, she said, "You don't have to prove a negative."

LARRY AND LILA GAUMONT

Wesley United Methodist welcomes missionaries

Wesley United Methodist Church, 12th & Owens, invites you to be a part of their Mission Awareness Weekend. The events begin on Feb. 15 with a Pot-Luck Supper in the church's Memorial Hall.

The fellowship begins at 6:30 p.m. A program with missionaries Larry and Lila (Willie) Gaumont will follow the supper.

On Feb. 16 the adult Sunday School classes will meet in Memorial Hall at 9:45 a.m. for a special time of sharing with the Gaumonts. The Gaumonts will also have a small part in both the 10:50 a.m. worship service on Sunday and the 6 p.m. worship service that evening.

Four years ago next month, Larry Gaumont (pronounced G-o-m-o-n-d) volunteered for a 5 day work camp to Juan Mendoza, Mexico, coordinated through Christian Hands In Action, CHIA, out of El Paso, Texas. His church at that time, Oakwood UMC in Lubbock, was interested in involving their youth in missions. Since he was the world missions chairperson, he felt he should experience first hand work as a "short-term" missionary. Both Larry and Oakwood's youth minister, Rick Doyle, joined the college campus ministry group from Wesley Foundation, Texas Tech University, to build a new church in Juan Mendoza.

"I started out that week trying to persuade Rick that he should join CHIA full-time. The week ended with God convincing me I was the one He wanted," Larry later told his friends. How did his wife and family receive this bit of news? "I knew when Larry came through the door what he was going to say," his wife, Willie, related. God had been preparing her for this new direction their lives were to take.

Within 6 months they had sold their home and moved to El Paso to join with the other members of CHIA as lay missionaries to Mexico and South America.

CHIA coordinates both medical missions and work camps into these countries. Volunteers pay their own expenses, approximately half the money going toward the purchase of building materials for the week's project.

"Oh, come on!"

Ms. O'Hair, founder and head of the board of American Atheists Inc., based in Austin, said she gets lots of hate mail from Christians voicing hopes she dies of cancer or other "horrible things."

When Donahue, a Roman Catholic, remarked that he respected her, and not just for "theatrical reasons," but because "I think what you've done really strengthens religion," she said:

"Oh horrors. ... Religion is the enemy."

Donahue commended her "very humble and honest" acknowledgement of not knowing how life began, but said to be consistent she also should acknowledge she doesn't know if there's a God — the agnostic view.

"We're not talking about it by reading a book," she said, referring to the Bible, which she described as "scientifically useless."

Rosebud Garden Club

The Rosebud Garden Club met in January at the home of Jane Thomas. Mamie Lee Dodds was the co-hostess. Jane Perrine vocational counselor in activity therapy talked us about their new greenhouse at the State Hospital. She asked our support in their horticultural therapy. Also the president Dot Blackwell reported on how to dry and press flowers. The next meeting will be Feb. 25 at Thelma Carliles.

1955 Hyperions

The 1955 Hyperion Club met on Feb. 4 in the home of Mrs. Adrian Randle. Mrs. Randle presented the program on English Tea customs and told of the origin of cream tea. Tea is one of the oldest beverages that we drink and is still the main beverage of England and the United Kingdom. Wars have been fought over tea. Tea, once thought to be only a ritual of the wealthy, has become a pleasure enjoyed by many. It is also known for its medicinal benefits. A short business meeting was held with Mrs. James Cowan, president, presiding. Mrs. J.E. Hogan was introduced as a guest. A gift to the Battered Women and Children was announced and agreed upon as the club project. The meeting was adjourned with the reminder that the next meeting would be held in the home of Mrs. Robert Penner on Mar. 3.

1970 Hyperions

The January meeting of the 1970 Hyperion Club met in the home of Mary Leatham. Co-hostesses for the meeting were Maureen Haddad and Joyce Alexander. Hyperion was privileged to have the editor of the national magazine, Bridges for Peace, as the guest speaker. Judy Stone, who resides in Midland, is part of a network of people who recognize the biblical, historical, political, prophetic and spiritual significance of the return of the Jews to Israel. Mrs. Stone told us of the recent airlift, under the cloak of secrecy, that brought hundreds of Ethiopians (the Communist/Dictator dominated country in Africa) into Israel, carried on cargo planes, packed and overloaded with "wall to wall" families. Bridges for Peace greets the new impoverished arrivals with "care" packages. These packages include very practical items for the kitchen and personal hygiene, etc. Mrs. Stone explained that there were several ways people could get involved in the Friends of Israel: Some may want to go to Israel for a visit or to live working side by side with the Jewish people involved in rebuilding Israel. Some may be interested in putting together and delivering the "care" packages to new arrivals. Others may want to be informed of the prayer needs both practical and spiritual for the people on the frontlines which can be accomplished by requesting to be placed on the mailing list and receiving the newsletter.

The program was followed by a brief business meeting conducted by current president Cindy Middleton. Members were reminded of the upcoming February meeting at the home of Barbara Donelson with the program being brought by Mrs. China Long.

Big Spring

Do opposites really attract?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you agree with the old saying that opposites attract? Is that a good thing in a marriage? My husband and I have been married almost 10 years (the second time for both of us), and I have come to realize that we are opposites, and we don't have much in common. In fact, I often wonder why I married him. — Mrs. F.V.

Billy Graham

Then take practical steps to restore the spark to your marriage. For example, don't concentrate on your differences; focus instead on what you have in common and what is good about your husband, and how you can encourage and help him. Don't take each other for granted, but do little things for him that let him know you care. You may be surprised how positively he will respond. Encourage him also to put Christ first in his life. Then you will share a faith in Christ, and He is far stronger than your differences.

DEAR MRS. F.V.: At times people with very different personalities do seem to attract each other — although not always. Perhaps it happens because people tend to admire other people who are strong in areas where they are weak. Human love is often a mystery! Among the things which the writer of Proverbs declared he could not fully understand was "the way of a man with a maiden" (Proverbs 30:19).

A good marriage doesn't happen automatically — and this is particularly true when a husband and wife are very different from each other. Marriage takes work, and at times it takes sacrifice — but it is worth it, and even a marriage like yours can be happy if you both make the effort.

Begin by committing your marriage — and your life — to Christ. God gave marriage to us, and because He designed it He knows what it takes to make a marriage work. Why not turn to Him and seek His path? He can give you a new love for your husband, and a new commitment to make your marriage work.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How can you say that the Bible is true (as you believe) when it has so many contradictions in it? For example, Acts 12:2 says that James was killed by the king, but later in the same chapter Peter tells someone to send a message to James, showing he was still alive. How do you explain this? — S.D.

DEAR S.D.: Most so-called "contradictions" in the Bible are easily explained once you understand all the facts, including the example you mention. Archeology has also resolved many questions through its discoveries. Be sure you have all the facts, therefore, before you decide that the Bible is unreliable.

There is no contradiction in this passage once you realize the Bible is speaking about two different people who had the same name. James was a very common name then (just as it is today), and there were several disciples of Jesus who were called James. The passage you cite makes this distinction, pointing out that the James who was killed for his faith by King Herod was "the brother of John" (Acts 12:2). Other prominent disciples also had the name James, including James the son of Alphaeus (Matthew 10:3) and James who was related to Jesus (Matthew 13:55).

I am concerned that you take the Bible seriously, because it has a message you need. However, I'm also concerned because I sense you may be rejecting the Bible for a deeper reason — because you are rejecting God. My prayer is that you will not make that mistake. Yes, it may seem easier to live life without God — at least at first. But it is a dead-end road.

I invite you to read the Bible with an open mind and heart. In it you will discover the greatest truth you can ever know — the truth that God loves you, and through Christ you can come to know Him personally as you commit your life to Him.

Drinking And Living Don't Mix. Your Lifescope Says, "It Ruins More Than Just Your Body."

Whose heart is filled with anguish and sorrow? Who is always fighting and quarreling? Who is the man with bloodshot eyes and many wounds? It is the one who spends long hours in the taverns, trying out new mixtures. Don't let the sparkle and the smooth taste of strong wine deceive you. For in the end it bites like a poisonous serpent; it stings like an adder. Your eyes will see strange sights and your mind imagine confusing things, and you will say foolish, silly things that would embarrass you no end when sober. You will stagger like a sailor tossed at sea, clinging to a swaying mast. And afterwards you will say, "I didn't even know it when they beat me up... let's go and have another drink!"

Don't spend your time in wild parties and getting drunk or in adultery and lust, or fighting, or jealousy. But ask the Lord Jesus Christ to help you live as you should, and don't make plans to enjoy evil. Since Christ suffered and underwent pain, you must have the same attitude He did; you must be ready to suffer, too. For remember, when your body suffers, sin loses its power, and you won't be spending the rest of your life chasing after evil desires, but will be anxious to do the will of God. You have had enough in the past of the evil things the godless enjoy — sex, sin, lust, getting drunk, wild parties, drinking bouts, and the worship of idols.

Of course, your former friends will be very surprised when you don't eagerly join them any more in the wicked things they do, and they will laugh at you in contempt and scorn. But just remember that they must face the Judge of all, living and dead; they will be punished for the way they have lived.

We Cordially Invite You To Attend Our Services

7.9% APR NEW CAR LOANS

Now is the time to take advantage of historically low interest rates on new car and pickup loans! Unlike most of the "good rates" offered by captive finance companies, our 7.9% APR is not tied to any particular car or pickup model. It is good for up to 60 months on any new 1992 vehicle. And, if the manufacturer is offering a rebate, you get to keep it!

But hurry, this rate is good only for a limited time!

Ten commandments for a happy marriage

DEAR READERS: Here it is, St. Valentine's Day again.

Some years ago, when I was less savvy about equal rights for women, I unabashedly wrote a St. Valentine's column on "how to keep your man happy." I called it the Ten Commandments for Women — and soon it was followed by a Ten Commandments for Men.

Then an early feminist, Mandy Stillman of Milwaukee, wrote, demanding equality for the sexes and insisting that there should be only one set of commandments for both genders. Well, Ms. Stillman won — and here they are: TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR A SUCCESSFUL MARRIAGE

Put your mate before your mother, your father, your son and your daughter, for your mate is your lifelong companion. Do not abuse your body with excessive food, tobacco or drink, so that your life may be long and healthy, in the presence of those you love. Do not permit your business or your hobby to make you a stranger to your children, for the most precious gift a parent can give his or her family is time. Do not forget that cleanliness is a virtue.

Do not make your mate a beggar, but willingly share with him or her your worldly goods.

Remember to say, "I love you." For even though your love may be constant, your mate yearns to hear those words.

Remember always that the approval of your mate is worth more than the admiring glances of a hundred strangers, so remain faithful and loyal to your mate, and forsake all others.

Keep your home in good repair, for out of it come the joys of old age.

Forgive with grace. For who among us does not need to be forgiven?

Honor the Lord your God all the days of your life, and your children will grow up and bless you.

Jeane Dixon

FOR SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: An exciting creative project or promising business venture has you walking on air. Get material issues settled at work. A class reunion in the spring could lead to a second career or new romance. Your work finally gets the recognition it deserves. Travel with a friend in the fall. October and November are good money months. Consulting a professional in December could give you a new lease on life. Stop blaming yourself for something that was inevitable.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Jane Seymour, fashion designer Adolfo, comedian Harvey Korman, actress Claire Bloom.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Forget about your differences with an authority figure and make this a day of pleasure. A gentle nudge is all a loved one needs to do the right thing. Avoid sounding critical of your mate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Work hand-in-hand with a loved one today. The two of you make a great team! Seek publicity during the day, but avoid the spotlight after dark. Your honesty works in your favor.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Certain promises may be premature or reckless; take time for deep thought. Your allies are more influential than you realize. Be sure to speak up at a public gathering.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your social plans are subject to change. You may find yourself pulled in two different directions. It is impossible to please everyone. Do not be afraid to choose what is best for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your words spur your friends into action today. Work for the common good. A long talk helps you see someone in a new light. Nurture a promising relationship. Be considerate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Give an older person the red carpet treatment now. A change of lifestyle brings greater comfort to you and your loved ones. Decorate your home to reflect a new interest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not let a crisis throw you into a panic. Persistence will help you turn a dream into reality. Tighten those purse strings. Do not let others take advantage of your generosity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep an eye on rising financial expenditures. There may be a less expensive way to achieve the same effect. Heed an urge to seek solitude. A period of meditation leads to fresh inspiration.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Come down from your pedestal and mingle with the masses. Working in a subordinate position for a while could gain you valuable insight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Too much soul-searching could weigh you down. Think positive! Try to avoid getting caught up in other people's problems. Discussing your goals with loved ones boosts your confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Use your powers of persuasion to win your peers' support for a pet project. Romance is very much in your plan. Spend the evening with someone you care.

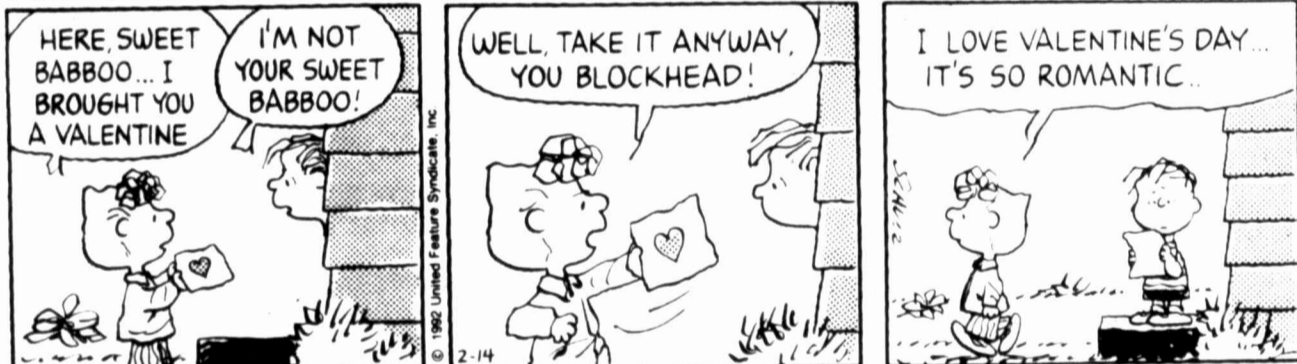

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Encouraging career or business developments take your mind off any financial worries. You finally can see the light at the end of the tunnel. Relax with good friends tonight.
