Advisory board, focus group members needed

The Herald is still seeking persons interested in serving on its Focus Groups and Reader Advisory Board.

The Herald will be implementing these groups in a short time in order to help gauge community perception of the manner in which the Herald covers events in the community and to gain feedback.

Persons interested in participating in either the Focus Group or Reader Advisory Board are asked to contact John H. Walker, Managing Editor, 267-7331.

Youth AIDS seminar set

Hillcrest Baptist Church Youth Department is featuring a video entitled "No Second Chances" Wednesday from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

The film, aimed at area youth, focuses on AIDS through a series of candid interviews with patients and their families. The video is to help educate youth on the seriousness of AIDS and present scientific realities concerning the HIV virus.

This program is open to the public and free of charge.

There will be a question-and-answer period, along with a mini-book handout, following the film. Parents are invited and encouraged to attend with their kids. Childcare will be available.

For additional information call Gary Phillips at 267-1639.

Water shutoff planned

Big Spring water crews will be interrupting water supply to homes on 18th Street from Douglas to Parkhill and on Lancaster from Eighth to Ryan.

Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., water will be shut off to allow crews to replace a six-inch valve and to repair a leak.

Fina seeks its 3rd, largest abatement

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Fina Oil & Chemical Co.'s third and largest tax abatement request — on $38 million in plant improvements — was presented to Howard County Commissioners Monday.

The newest request is more than both previous abatements combined, which were approved. If the latest request is approved, it would amount to an estimated $2.7 million in taxes over 10 years waived by the county, the Big Spring Independent School District and the Howard Junior College District.

The abatement is expected to create 100 construction jobs for a year and pump $3.2 million in salaries and material expenditures into the economy, said Fina plant Manager Jeff Morris.

The county will hold a public hearing March 9, said County Judge Ben Lockhart.

The abatement request follows an announcement last week that Dallas-based Fina may sell half its United States interests, including refineries in Big Spring and Port Arthur, to the Saudi Arabian national oil company.

"It shouldn't make a difference," said Precinct 3 Commissioner Bill Crooker of the possible sale. Crooker was appointed by Commissioners Court to an advisory committee composed of county and school district representatives to study the request.

Fina plant Manager Jeff Morris said he would have submitted the request regardless of who the owner is. "Fina will still operate the plant if this deal is made," Morris said. "This type of economic impact is important."

Crooker and the other four members of the Commissioners Court declined to comment on the merits or chances of the county granting the abatement. The county must first approve the abatement before it can be considered by the other two taxing entities.

"We'll look at it," said Precinct 4 Commissioner Bobby Cathey.

The advisory committee is expected to meet this week and render an opinion on whether the request conforms to abatement policy guidelines, Lockhart said. Commissioners may consider the request immediately following the public hearing.

The request package submitted by Morris also included articles from various publications documenting the plight of the nation's oil refineries, especially in the wake of new pollution regulations.

Council to address police issues

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Several issues regarding law enforcement will be addressed at today's meeting of the Big Spring City Council. The council will meet at 5:30 p.m. in Building 1106 at the McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.

The council will consider funding a consultant to review the Howard County/City of Big Spring jail facilities, and will vote on accepting a special law enforcement grant from the State of Texas providing for the establishment of a school resources officer.

Members also will vote to accept a special grant from the state for a fifth year of funding for a Big Spring Police Department burglary and theft unit.

A presentation from the police department citizen's advisory board bylaws committee will be made. Bylaws will be presented for council action on what is now to be called the Big Spring Public Safety Advisory Board, which is expected to serve in an advisory role with the community and the police force.

The council will decide if the county is to be asked to participate in funding the city/county jail study.

The council also will adjourn into executive (closed) session to discuss the lease of property to Fiberflex Inc. at the McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark and to

Americans doubt product quality

NEW YORK (AP) — Many Americans harbor doubts about the quality of U.S.-made products, especially cars, but 72 percent in an Associated Press poll reject the charge by Japanese politicians that U.S. workers are lazy.

A third of those polled think Japan makes higher quality cars than U.S. companies do. Two in five give credence to the old saw that American-made cars built on Fridays have more mechanical problems because workers get careless.

Asked about differences in quality when American and Japanese companies both make a product, 28 percent of the 1,009 adults surveyed said U.S.-made products are better. Products made in Japan are rated better by 23 percent. Products of both countries seem about the same in quality to 43 percent.

When it comes to cars, just 32 percent say both countries' products are of the same quality. The percentage saying cars made in Japan are better is 32 percent, while 29 percent say American-made cars are of higher quality.

The poll taken Feb. 12-16 by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., has a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Quality is just one part of the decision of whether to buy an American car or an import. But a finding that about a third of Americans think the Japanese make better-quality cars does not bode well for Detroit's Big Three, which lost a record $7.6 billion in 1991.

Of those polled, 16 percent said workers in the United States are more productive than the Japanese; 33 percent said Japanese workers are more productive. More than a third considered productivity about the same in the two economic superpowers.

U.S. blacks achieve many notable firsts

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

Since the first wave of blacks brought in to be sold as slaves, African-Americans have been an integral part of the history of the United States, boasting accomplishments in areas such as medicine, theater, law and publishing, as well as many others.

The following is a list of first accomplishments by American blacks:

- 1783 — James Derham became the first black physician in the United States. He was born a slave and learned medicine by assisting his owner, who was a doctor. After gaining his freedom, Derham's practice served black and white patients.
- 1826 — John Russwurm is the first black college graduate. He received his degree from Bowdoin College in Maine. He later became an editor of Freedom's Journal, the first black newspaper printed in the United States.
- 1845 — Macon B. Allen was the first black lawyer to be admitted to a state bar after passing the exam in Massachusetts.
- 1860 — Brooklyn Excelsiors was the first black baseball team to tour in the United States.
- 1865 — The Colored American is the first black newspaper in the South. It is published in Augusta,

- Ga.
- 1872 — Charlotte E. Roy was the first black woman lawyer. She received her degree from Howard University School of Law in Washington D.C.
- 1882 — The Cairo, Ill., Gazette was the first daily newspaper owned by a black.
- 1903 — Lena Walker was the first black woman bank president. She was the founder of the Saint Luke Penny Savings Bank in Richmond, Virginia.
- 1910 — Alain Leroy Locke was the first black to receive a Rhodes Scholarship.
- 1949 — Wesley A. Brown was the first black to graduate from the Naval Academy at Annapolis.
- 1950 — Gwendolyn Brooks was the first black woman to win the Pulitzer Prize.
- 1950 — Ralph Bunche was the first black to receive the Nobel Peace Prize.
- 1958 — Ruth Carol Taylor was the first black airline stewardess.

Critics decry Bush's strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A boost for small business here. A lift for veterans there. President Bush calls it a "rifle-shot" strategy for revitalizing the economy. But economists say the scattering of new programs and initiatives won't be enough.

"It's really just a bunch of nonsense, bells and whistles," said economist Paul Getman of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa.

"I think they're designed ... to take credit, as much as possible, for the (recovery) going on even though it would have gone on anyway," said economist David Wyss of DRI-McGraw Hill in Lexington, Mass.

The administration acknowledges that no proposal, by itself, will have much impact on the economy as a whole. But put them all together, Bush says, and they will help reverse the nation from its economic torpor.

Since the president's State of the Union address in January, the administration and independent regulatory agencies have put together a package of initiatives, all designed to give just a little more oomph to the recovery.

Some examples: ● $1.1 billion for the Small Business Administration to increase its authority to guarantee loans. The program was started in New Hampshire just before the state's primary election.

● The Department of Veterans Affairs is accelerating payment of $560 million in life insurance dividends to 1.6 million veterans rather than waiting for the policy anniversary dates.

● Regulators are exploring new approaches for assisting rather than closing sick banks and savings and loans. That goal is to prevent the dumping of loans and foreclosed real estate on already depressed markets and free up money for new loans.

● The Securities and Exchange Commission is proposing rule changes to make it easier for small companies, which create most of the nation's new jobs, to bypass tight-fisted banks and raise money by selling stock to the public.

These have been added to earlier Bush initiatives including a 90-day freeze on new regulations not required by law and reduced income tax withholding, amounting to $1 a day for the typical married couple.

But the centerpiece of the president's proposal includes tax cuts, which must be approved by Congress. He wants to cut the capital gains tax and increase the personal exemption for children younger than 18 years. He also wants to give a $5,000 tax credit to first-time home buyers.

The proposals are getting mixed reviews. Fifty top economists surveyed this month by the newsletter Blue Chip Economic Indicators of Sedona, Ariz., gave the package an average grade of C.

Man pleads guilty to wife's slaying

FORT WORTH (AP) — A retired postal worker has pleaded guilty in the shooting death of his wife of 42 years. Jay Bell, 67, was accused of shooting Dola Emmons Bell, 60, to death while the two were attending a marriage counseling session in a minister's office April 2, 1991.

College Hill Church of Christ minister Robert Waller said the session had been under way for about an hour when Bell suddenly pulled a .38-caliber pistol and shot his wife in the chest, abdomen and arms. She died about 18 hours later.

Defense lawyer Jeff Kearney said he planned to ask a jury to give Bell probation.

Richards upbeat about progress

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards feels "pretty good" about progress being made on school finance problems, but she still hasn't decided when to summon legislators into special session to again overhaul the law.

"We're working," Richards said Monday. "It's the toughest question I've had to deal with since I've been in office."

The Texas Supreme Court last month threw out — for the third time — the state's system of funding public schools.

The court gave lawmakers until June 1993 to write a new plan. But Richards has said she expects to call a special session this spring or summer to do it.

More than 50 property-rich school districts and some individual taxpayers challenged the most recent law. It was designed to shift hundreds of millions of local property tax dollars from wealthier to poorer school districts within new education taxing regions, made up of one or several counties.

New consultant picked by lottery

AUSTIN (AP) — A consulting firm has been hired to review contract proposals for starting up the Texas lottery in response to the resignation of another lottery consultant amid potential conflict of interest charges.

Lottery officials on Monday awarded the $90,000 contract to the independent, not-for-profit firm of Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio.

Battelle has no connections to various lottery vendors that are seeking Texas' business, state Comptroller John Sharp said.

State officials say GM decision a boon

AUSTIN (AP) — The decision by General Motors to keep its Arlington factory open is good news not just for the workers and their families but the whole state, Comptroller John Sharp says.

"It sends a message that the largest corporation in the United States, that obviously studied every aspect of the national economy, has come to the same conclusion that Texans come to: Texas is a good place to do business," Sharp said.

work force but also to the economic environment that Texas has," he said.

Gov. Ann Richards donned a black satin General Motors jacket to cheer the automaker's decision Monday to keep open its Texas factory. But she voiced sympathy for workers at a Michigan plant being closed.

"I have to say to you, it is with real understanding that our gain is an immense loss to those workers in Michigan and other states who lost in their efforts to keep their plants open," she said.

Richards said Texas needs the 3,800 GM jobs and nearly 7,500 more related to the Arlington factory. Statewide, keeping the plant will have a $816 million economic impact, she said.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said the good news was much-needed in an area hit hard by job losses to area defense contractors. "Believe me, it's been pretty dismal in Tarrant County ... for a long time. We're really excited and ecstatic about this," he said.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — TV second banana Ed McMahon has married for the third time.

The 68-year-old sidekick to Johnny Carson and host of television's "Star Search" wed advertising executive Pam Hurn on Saturday in Nevada, his spokesman Paul Wasserman said Monday. Miss Hurn's age wasn't disclosed.

McMahon's 6-year-old daughter, Katherine Mary McMahon, was ring bearer and "best man."

McMAHON NICHOLSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warren Beatty ducked the question of his marital status when Sen. Alan Simpson introduced actress Annette Bening as Beatty's wife at a news conference.

The "Bugsy" actor and director on Monday was endorsing a bill requiring the public be told when a movie is colorized over the objections of its creator.

"I don't mean in general — I think it's always better to tell the truth," said Beatty, who recently had a child with Bening, his "Bugsy" co-star.

Asked later whether Simpson was "in general, telling the truth" when the senator said Beatty and Bening were married, Beatty replied, "I would say that, in general, Senator Simpson is very truthful."

Beatty has said he considers himself to have the same responsibilities as a married man.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Jack Nicholson and Rebecca Broussard are the parents of an 8-pound, 6-ounce boy.

The boy, who has not been named, was born Thursday, 20 months after the couple's first child, a daughter, said spokesman Paul Wasserman.

The "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" star also has a 28-year-old daughter from his marriage to actress Sandra Knight.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star Garth Brooks says he'll miss the Grammy Awards tonight so he can stay home with his pregnant wife.

Brooks is nominated for best country vocal performance by a male and for best music video for "The Thunder Rolls."

He canceled an appearance at the American Music Awards last month after his wife, Sandy, 26, was ordered by doctors to rest to avoid a miscarriage.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Travis Tritt decided to drop his biggest hit from concerts after he was injured by a quarter thrown by a fan.

Fans traditionally throw quarters at the country star when he performs "Here's a Quarter

(Call Someone Who Cares)."

But one of the coins sliced him above the eye at a recent show in Bristol and forced him to leave the stage, said his publicist, Nancy Russell.

Tritt is nominated for a Grammy for best country vocal performance by a male.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Edward James Olmos, who went from "Miami Vice" to an acclaimed performance in the movie "Stand and Deliver," celebrated his 44th birthday by unveiling his Hollywood Walk of Fame star.

The star on Hollywood Boulevard was dedicated Monday.

His new movie, "American Me," about on drugs and gang violence in the city, comes out March 13. Olmos directed and stars in the film.

Groups opposed to Bush policy coming to drug summit

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — As President Bush and Latin American leaders arrive here for a drug summit Wednesday and Thursday, so will dozens of people opposed to the federal government's drug policy.

The protesters range from the marijuana advocates Green Panthers to the national Libertarian Party to think-tank organizations such as the Criminal Justice Policy Foundation.

"This time we're going to see ties, along with suits and ties," said John Gibbs, organizer of an "alternative summit" that will take place when the leaders are here.

Some of the opposition groups want all drugs legalized. Others believe some drugs should be legal and regulated. And others want Bush to shift his emphasis from enforcement to prevention and treatment.

"We are asking for a revised drug policy nationwide," said Gibbs, local president of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws. NORML and the Coalition for Hemp Awareness have planned the opposition gathering.

Bush is hosting the presidents of Mexico, Bolivia, Colombia, Peru, Ecuador and Venezuela in a meeting similar to the drug summit Bush attended under heavy security in Colombia in 1990.

Gibbs is calling his Wednesday gathering a "peace conference" to urge an end to the so-called drug war.

On Thursday, the protest groups plan to hold a "hemp summit" at Brackenridge Park, not far from the presidents' meetings at the McNay Art Museum. Organizers intend to talk about the history and uses of the hemp plant.

Gibbs predicts 900 to 2,500 people will attend the two days of "alternative" events.

Representatives of the participating groups say they will aim their messages at the national and international news reporters in San Antonio covering the drug summit.

"We need complex, comprehensive regulation of drugs," said Eric Sterling, president of the Washington, D.C.-based Criminal Justice Policy Foundation.

Psychologists: TV ignores, distorts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's psychologists said today that commercial television doesn't portray children, the elderly, minorities and women as they really are.

And television doesn't even try to appeal to many groups in society, they said.

Instead, television is fixated on appealing to young and affluent Americans, those with enough money to buy sponsors' products, a task force appointed by the 108,000-member American Psychological Association said.

"The major flaw in American broadcasting is that commercial television must generate revenue through programming that attracts large, heterogeneous, affluent audiences which do not represent the majority of viewers," the panel said in a report on the impact of television on society.

"So long as the primary goal of programming is to lure audiences to advertisements, the needs of many demographic and ethnic minorities will not be met."

To broaden television's reach, the report called for returning to the original philosophy of the Communications Act of 1934, the

"The major flaw in American broadcasting is that commercial television must generate revenue through programming that attracts large, heterogeneous, affluent audiences which do not represent the majority of viewers."

Panel of psychologists

basic law regulating broadcasting. It said that philosophy — requiring that broadcasters serve the public interest, convenience and necessity — had withered away in the deregulatory trend of the 1980s.

The report acknowledged, however, that researchers still can't agree on TV's impact. Some see it as trivial, innocuous and irrelevant; others argue that television affects how people think and "induces a generally passive, intellectually lazy approach to dealing with the world."

The authors said the most needed change is to increase non-commercial sources of funding to break television's dependency on commercials.

They welcomed creation by Congress last year of the National Endowment for Children's Television but said more along those lines was needed to meet the desires of other groups for information and entertainment.

Recapping the findings of years of research, the report said:

• The "model female on TV" is not like women. On television, she is "beautiful, dependent, helpless, passive, concerned with interpersonal relations, warm and valued for her appearance more than for her capabilities and competencies."

• Constant portrayals of sexual violence "leads to increased acceptance of rape" and "can instigate antisocial values and behavior."

• The average child watches three hours a day and witnesses 8,000 murders and 100,000 other acts of violence by seventh grade.

• Violent incidents occur five or six times an hour on prime time and 20 to 25 times an hour on children's Saturday morning programs.

• While blacks are now appearing in more major and positive roles on TV, ethnic minorities are "virtually absent" from the screen. Those who appear are stereotyped as criminals, dangerous characters or victims of violence.

• Most "implied sexual activity" on television involves unmarried couples "with little emotional attachment or commitment to one another."

The report is titled "Big World, Small Screen: The Role of Television in American Society." The authors are: Aletha C. Huston, University of Kansas, Lawrence; Ed Donnerstein, University of California, Santa Barbara; Halford H. Fairchild, past president, Association for Black Psychologists; Norma D. ## Baker's ultimatum angers some Israelis

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israelis reacted with dismay and anger today to Secretary of State James A. Baker III's ultimatum that Israel must freeze settlement building or jeopardize $10 billion in U.S. loan guarantees.

The main headline in the Hebrew daily Yedioth Aharonoth warned of "an American-Israeli crisis."

Political analysts said Israelis view Baker's move as designed to favor the center-left Labor Party over Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's right-wing Likud bloc in upcoming national elections. But they warned the move could backfire.

"It is a gross interference in the internal affairs of the state of Israel," Finance Minister Yitzhak Modai charged in an interview with Israel radio.

Addressing high school students, Modai said that to accept the U.S. ultimatum would invite more pressure. "What will be the next condition?" he asked. "Maybe less security for the state of Israel?"

This echoed claims by other Israeli ministers that the U.S. demand to freeze settlement construction is a prelude to forcing total Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories.

In contrast to Modai's strong language, Foreign Minister David Levy struck a conciliatory note, telling visiting American Jewish leaders late Monday that "Everything must be done to overcome differences and reach agreement."

But Levy also said: "Israel cannot be seen to be caving in."

Ehud Gol, spokesman for Shamir, said the government had no official reaction to Baker's move but emphasized that Israel "remains in negotiations" with Washington on the loan guarantees.

Israel is seeking the guarantees to get favorable rates on international loans needed to build houses and create jobs for thousands of Jewish immigrants from the former Soviet Union.

It insists the issue is separate from the settlements. But it has become entangled in the U.S.-backed Mideast peace process, which opened its fourth round in Washington on Monday.

The United States views the guarantees as leverage for stopping the settlements, which it sees as obstacles to a land-for-peace compromise between the Jewish state and its Arab neighbors.

Shamir on Monday renewed his refusal to freeze settlements in the occupied territories, which the prime minister views as part of biblical Israel.

"We cannot, under any circumstances, go along with the principle that Jews have no right to live in this or that part of the Land of Israel," Shamir told the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations.

His hard-line housing minister, Ariel Sharon, announced Monday that he has started about 22,000 new housing units in the occupied territories or annexed east Jerusalem since 1990. He said work on 2,000 new housing units has begun so far this year and 1,000 more "will be under construction soon."

Accord angers right-wing activists

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — An accord seeking to reinstate President Jean-Bertrand Aristide has angered some right-wing activists, but calls for calm by a coup leader suggest the military may not oppose the settlement.

Few officials, however, predicted a quick resolution of Haiti's political crisis under the pact reached Sunday between lawmakers and Aristide, who was ousted in a Sept. 30 coup.

Among the unanswered questions is when Aristide may return from exile.

The accord, mediated by the Organization of American States in Washington, calls for creation of an interim government headed by moderate Communist Rene Theodore, who would work to restore Aristide to power.

In exchange, the OAS would end a punishing trade embargo that has crippled the economy of Haiti, the hemisphere's poorest nation.

Marcos agrees to terms for burial

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Former first lady Imelda Marcos today accepted the government's conditions for burying her husband in the nation he ruled for 20 years. She said she would leave soon for Hawaii to fetch the body.

Mrs. Marcos traveled to Ilocos Norte province, 250 miles north of Manila, to look for a burial place for the late President Ferdinand Marcos, who died in exile in 1989.

President Corazon Aquino last year reversed her opposition to the return of Marcos' body but stipulated that it be flown directly from Hawaii to Ilocos Norte, Marcos' native province.

Mrs. Marcos refused at the time, saying it was her husband's dying wish to be buried in the Manila area.

Mrs. Marcos, one of eight candidates for president in May 11 elections, faces at least 80 criminal and civil cases.

Mrs. Marcos said today that she would bring her husband's body back to the Philippines "as soon as possible."

Justice Stevens has prostate cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens is being treated for prostate cancer but remains on the job with a prognosis for a full recovery.

Stevens, 71, has begun radiation treatment at Georgetown University Hospital, said spokeswoman Toni House.

The justice participated in the three hours of oral arguments the court heard Monday and was due back on the bench today. The court returned Monday from its standard four-week, midwinter recess.

"Justice Stevens is expected to continue to participate fully in all cases to come before the court during and after his radiation treatment and to make a full recovery without any residual effects," Ms. House said in a written statement.

"At the time of his last annual physical examination, a routine screening blood test, the prostatic specific antigen (PSA) was found to be mildly elevated," the statement said. "A biopsy of the prostate demonstrated localized early adenocarcinoma (malignant tumor) and a staging evaluation indicated that the tumor was limited to the prostate."

Stevens, who underwent open heart surgery in 1974 and renewed his private pilot's license afterward, has been in apparent good health in recent years. He is an avid tennis player.

One of the conservative court's most liberal members, he was appointed by President Ford in 1975.

One other current and two retired Supreme Court justices have had prostate problems, not uncommon in elderly men.

Russia denies black market gets aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia is trying to overcome the perception that vast amounts of Western aid ends up on the black market rather than in the hands of people who need it.

"We want to use this opportunity to tell you we are able to get the aid we receive to the people who need it," Alexander A. Zhitnikov told a news conference Monday at the Russian Embassy.

Zhitnikov is deputy chairman of the Commission for International Humanitarian and Technical Assistance.

He cited an assessment by the International Red Cross that only 3 percent of aid sent to Russia is lost.

As for reports that up to 60 or 70 percent is siphoned off into the black market, Zhitnikov said those estimates are "just not true."

Zhitnikov conceded that "there are some views here and some views in our country that assistance doesn't go to people who need it."

Hole punched in a favorite story

A California professor has punched a new hole in one of the favorite stories of Democratic politicians. It's well that he did. Too many people continue to believe the story, which is that the Reagan and Bush years have been bad for everyone but the very wealthy.

When people believe that story, they tend to make uninformed political decisions. They sometimes elect candidates who seek votes by stirring up gloom and resentment. Or they push for tax policies that discourage investment and increase the national debt. Some of the current proposals for a middle-income tax cut for example.

Richard B. McKenzie, a professor of enterprise and society at the University of California at Irvine, challenged the pessimistic view of the Reagan-Bush years in a report for the Center for the Study of American Business at Washington University in St. Louis.

McKenzie acknowledged that some sets of figures make it appear that all American families except the wealthy have slipped backward financially.

But when he looked beneath the surface, he discovered that government economists have adopted a different way of adjusting for inflation after 1982. The new method hid some of the growth in family purchasing power after 1982.

Furthermore, he discovered that the average size of a family declined 17 percent in the Reagan-Bush years. And he discovered that families were receiving more non-wage income, including fringe benefits.

When McKenzie plugged in the additional information, it was apparent that family income had risen in the bottom fifth and the middle three-fifths as well as the upper fifth of the taxpayers.

It is "grossly misleading," McKenzie wrote, "to suggest that the poor as a group got poorer, or that only the 'most fortunate fifth' gained over the past decade or two."

Not all Americans are better off, of course. People without education and training have trouble keeping up. Unwed mothers often have much less purchasing power than two-parent families. Recession and workplace changes have brought unemployment to a number of low- and middle-income families. Housing costs, tuition and transportation expenses have risen faster than some families have been able to adjust to.

But as McKenzie noted, it isn't fair to categorically assert that the rich got richer and the poor got poorer in the Reagan-Bush years.

Some people in the lower brackets moved up with the help of a better job, a wise investment or an inheritance. Or because they married a working spouse. Others, including people who had been in the top brackets, fell into poverty, perhaps because of a divorce or a loss of employment.

"Income growth was trickling in all directions," McKenzie wrote, "not just down or up."

Unfortunately, he and others have had difficulty being heard over the clamor of the critics of Reagan and Bush. Sad to say, there are always people who want to be told that someone else is getting ahead at their expense.

Even sadder, there are politicians who will seek political gain by obliging them — no matter what unfairness might result.

Awesome wonder of saving a baby's life

Betty Johansen

Daily exposure to a wire service that reports the bloodiest, meanest stories in the nation and world sometimes wears my soul with all the ugliness on this planet. And yet, the Earth is resplendent with beauties: rainbows, waterfalls, crocuses, cumulus clouds, galloping horses.

Perhaps the most beautiful of all is a newborn baby. Back in the bad ol' days, I delivered a few dozen babies, and every one of them was purely beautiful.

But just as beautiful as the babies is the incredible process by which they are formed. I can comprehend a cell reproducing itself to form a sheet of muscle tissue or connective tissue. But for two half-cells to come together — one from the mother and one from the father — multiply into a ball of cells and then at the appointed hour to differentiate, some cells becoming nerve cells, some becoming heart cells, some blood cells, that's a mystery!

Even more mysterious to me is how anyone can justify murdering that tiny, unfolding human being through abortion. I wonder what would happen if the Supreme Court, I mean Court, ruled that inconvenient two-year-olds could be killed indiscriminately. I wonder how many of our complacent, uninvolved citizens would go to the killing fields and try to stop the slaughter.

If Congress legislated that troublesome 31-year-olds could be destroyed, I wonder how many 30-year-olds would protest the law.

You're undoubtedly thinking, It will never happen. But it has already happened. Killing a preborn baby is morally no different than killing anyone else. The only difference is its total helplessness. It can't even flash its dimples at you to win your heart as a 2-year-old can.

And so some of the gentlest, most tenderhearted among us,

I JUST HOPE THE POLICE ROUND UP THOSE FANATICS BEFORE WE HAVE A REAL TRAGEDY...

Yet, a few weeks ago, a local columnist wrote of stopping at an abortion clinic to ask some of the protesters why they were there. The answers he reported were so frivolous and insulting I knew it had never happened. The column was satire; I knew that as soon as I read it. But the national media presents pro-lifers in such an ugly, ridiculous light that I worried some readers might find it consistent with their expectations and believe it happened.

So I phoned some real abortion protesters and asked them why they took time out from their busy lives to participate in such a difficult, unpopular activity. Carmen from Odessa said she was horrified when she learned exactly what abortion involved, that in a suction abortion the baby's head is crushed and then its body parts are vacuumed out of the mother's uterus. And in a saline abortion the baby is chemically burned to death. One woman who'd had twins aborted by the saline method told Carmen she had felt her babies dying inside her.

Carmen finds it outrageous that abortion is unregulated. An eye doctor with no hospital privileges at all (in case of emergencies, which do occur) can hang out his shingle to do abortions and rake in the money hand over fist.

After she saw a film and learned exactly what abortion was all about, Carmen felt she had to take a stand. She could no longer do nothing. And so she's an abortion protester.

When I asked Kim, who protests abortions in Dallas, why she does it, she said, "Oh, that's easy, because of the life of the baby, to protect what the abortionist and the mother have decided to do to the baby."

She tries to encourage women to rethink their opinion by offering options. She gives them information about adoption, medical care and maternity homes — information the woman may not get anywhere else.

Cathy in Houston speaks of compassion and the love of God. "God created babies and loves them just as much as He loves me," she said. "But they're being thrown away."

It's a ministry, she said, like helping the homeless. And why did she choose a ministry of protesting abortions? "It's the most awesome evil we've ever witnessed. It's hard to run away and not feel responsible after seeing what it really is."

And so she drags herself out of bed on Saturday mornings and heads for an abortion clinic. As she drives, thinking about what is in store for her at her destination, she is tempted to turn around and go home.

But she goes on, and sometimes she sees the fruit of her labors. "Turning one woman away is the most wonderful feeling," she says. "You've saved a baby's life."

And that's the bottom line, I think, for all these women — saving a baby's life.

Arrest handled like a circus came to town

To the editor:

A few days ago my world was disrupted. I was trying to recover from a bout with the flu and, having just taken some cold medicine, I really did not feel up to it but I started fixing supper for my family.

As I was preparing to start I heard some strange voices in the other room. I went in there only to discover what seemed like an army of law officers in my house and my husband in handcuffs.

They informed me that they were taking my husband to jail. Someone asked me some questions and I'm not really sure what I said. (Remember I had just taken some medicine.)

What I do remember is one officer telling me that if I didn't stop he'd take my children from me. He also said that he didn't care if I wanted to mess my head up with that "stuff," but if I did to at least give my children to someone who'd take better care of them. By that "stuff" I take it he meant the "stuff" that my husband was arrested for.

Well after some more B.S. they left, leaving my door wide open. When I went to close it, I could not believe the size of the caravan outside my house. It looked like the circus had come to town.

Well somehow with the help of some good friends, I made it though the next few hours till my husband came back home.

Now what I'd like to know is this, why did they have to make it a big show? If my husband did do this, why wasn't he arrested the first time, that night? Why did "John" have to seek him out to get 2 counts when others were arrested for only one. Is it as they say, Politics?

My common-law husband of the last 2 years has been a good provider and the greatest daddy to our boys. I will stand by him because I believe he was bamboozled and I love him.

I have something to say to that officer who gave me that uncalled for advice about my children:

I would lay down my life for my children, and for you to imply otherwise is an insult to my being. Also I have never used nor will I never use that "stuff" so thanks for the advice but no thanks!

Thank you to my family and friends for standing by us.

Hawks upset Texans in the Dome

No perfect league mark for Lady Hawks

LEVELLAND — The Howard College Hawks had their hopes for a perfect conference season ruined as they dropped a 81-65 decision to the South Plains Lady Texans Monday night at the Texas Dome.

Howard, 25-5 overall, and ranked No. 3 in the nation, still finishes as conference champs with a 11-1 mark. The win assured the Lady Texans of a regional playoff spot. South Plains is 5-7 in league play and 17-12 overall.

The Lady Texans took advantage of its outside shooting and deadly foul shooting to gain the win.

South Plains gunned in nine three-pointers made 22 of 27 free throws for 80 percent. Howard shot 54 percent from the foul line (23-42).

Nicki Wade and Shannon Willis led South Plains with 23 and 18 points respectively. Wade made five three-pointers in the game. Stephanie Cotter made 11 points and had eight assists.

Howard was led by freshman point guard LeKisha Wiley with 12 points. Desiree Wallace and Yolanda Wells got seven rebounds each.

The Lady Hawks' next competition will be the regional tournament March 4-6 in Levelland.

This time Russell's shot finds it mark

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The memories came back right after the ball went through.

Bobby Russell hit a 3-point shot with 10 seconds left to break a tie and help South Florida to an 81-76 Metro Conference victory over No. 15 Tulane on Monday night.

Only then did Russell remember his missed 3-pointer at the buzzer on Feb. 6 against Tulane, which would've won it for South Florida. Instead the Green Wave won 78-70 in overtime.

"I didn't have time to think about that until the shot was made," said Russell, who had 17 points. "After that, I started thinking about it."

The Posse SF's bench, outscored the Bulls' bench 49-0, but the Green Wave's starters got outscored 81-27.

The only South Florida reserve who got much playing time was Jarvis Jackson, who played 10 minutes primarily because another second-teamer, David Williams, left with a neck injury seven minutes into the game, leaving Jackson to carry the bulk of the relief role.

Radenko Dobras hit two free throws with four seconds left to ice the game for South Florida (17-8, 5-5). Dobras blew a kiss to the hostile crowd between his clinching free throws.

Dobras had a string of 29 straight free throws broken on his first attempt against Tulane (19-4, 7-2) but hit his remaining five, including a pair that gave the Bulls a 76-75 lead with 1:08 left.

Tulane's Kim Lewis hit one of two free throws to tie it at 76, then, after Russell hit his 3-point shot, a pass went off Lewis' hands to give South Florida its final possession with four seconds left.

"That was a great college basketball game," South Florida coach Bobby Paschal said. "There were some unbelievable clutch plays down the stretch by both teams, and Tulane played every bit as good as we did. But the last bucket fell our way. Clearly, it could have gone the other way."

South Florida now has beaten five teams that appeared in the rankings — the others are North Carolina Charlotte, Iowa, Louisville and Florida State.

South Florida led 25-12 midway through the first half, but Carlin Hartman led a 28-4 run over seven minutes and 43 seconds to give Tulane its first lead since 4-2. Carlin Hartman had six points and a key steal in the run.

South Florida led 38-34 at halftime.

All of South Florida's starters played at least 33 minutes. Fred Lewis played all 40 and led the Bulls with 22 points. Gary Alexander had 20 points and 14 rebounds in 37 minutes. Russell also played 37 minutes. Derrick Sharp had 12 points, all on 3-pointers, in 33 minutes, while Dobras had 10 in 33 minutes.

No. 3 Kansas 84, Oklahoma 65
 Eric Pauley had a career-high 23 points and 12 rebounds and helped key a 17-4 run that broke open a tight game.

Pauley, a 6-foot-10 junior, scored eight points in the 5-minute spree and Adonis Jordan, a 5-11 point guard, scored six as Kansas (21-3, 9-2) won its 15th straight Big Eight game at home and swept their two-game series with the Sooners for the first time since 1986.

Oklahoma (17-7, 5-6), was led by Terry Evans with 25 points.

No. 20 St. John's 72, Providence 68, OT

St. John's, which missed 16 of its first 40 free throws, went 6-for-6 in the final 2:55 of overtime at the Providence Civic Center to win its seventh straight game and move into a virtual first-place tie with Georgetown in the Big East.

The Redmen (17-7, 11-5) have just two conference games remaining.

New Texas Tech coach making good on his chance

LUBBOCK (AP) — Nine months ago, it seemed first-year Texas Tech basketball coach James Dickey was stopping by every local meeting this side of the Pecos River.

For 20, 10 or even two minutes, Dickey would try to convince area residents and Tech alums of a bright future for the Red Raiders.

After a 5-22 season in 1989 and an 8-23 mark in 1990, Dickey wanted to make it clear that this Tech team would be different.

Nine months later, Dickey has taken a team projected to finish near the cellar of the Southwest Conference to the brink of a post-season tournament bid.

But many were critical at first, saying that Dickey may have been part of the problem during his one year as an assistant under then-Tech coach Gerald Myers in 1990.

Even the Tech administration was lukewarm towards Dickey.

After Tech athletic director T. Jones recommended the former assistant under Eddie Sutton at Arkansas and Kentucky, the board of regents requested a more extensive search before finally offering Dickey a two-year contract.

While most major college coaches start out with at least a four-year deal, Dickey was unfazed, saying, "I am simply happy to have an opportunity."

Tech's 105-98 upset of Rice Saturday comes after crucial victories earlier this year against New Mexico, Texas Christian and then-undefeated Tulane.

Coaches in the SWC are calling Tech's rise a source of pride for the entire conference. And some are even saying it's time to reward Dickey with a contract extension.

"Unless you're an interim coach, you should get a four-year contract from the start," Texas coach Tom Penders said Monday. "I would think Tech is going to reward him with a long-term contract. He has proven himself under adverse conditions."

"He is one of the names you are going to hear in the 'hot young coach category,' and people are going to be after him," said Penders, whose Longhorns (18-9, 9-2) sit atop the SWC.

Jones said Monday he hoped a contract extension will be agreed upon by Dickey, the athletic department and the school's board of regents at the end of the season.

Dickey has preached poise to his team on its way to a 13-10 mark.

Did you know Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and other protesters are arrested in Selma, Alabama during demonstrations? King and more than 770 blacks are arrested during protest demonstrations against discrimination in black voter registration. King remained in jail for four days before posting bond. During that time, more than 3,000 people were arrested. A federal district court ordered the county board of registrars to refrain from using an unduly difficult literacy test on voter applicants or from rejecting their applicants on petty technicalities.

Did you know on Jan. 2, 1965, Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. announces his intention to call for demonstrations if Alabama blacks are not permitted to register and vote in appropriate numbers? On Jan. 18, 12 blacks including Rev. King booked rooms at the Hotel Albert in Selma, Ala. They were the first blacks accepted at this formerly all-white hotel. While signing the register, King was accosted by a white segregationist who is later fined $100 and given a 60 day jail sentence. A federal district court order issued on Jan. 23 barred law enforcement officials from interfering with voter registration and warns against violence.

Owners lose court appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — NFL owners lost a Supreme Court appeal in their bid to avoid paying approximately $18 million to a pension fund for players.

The justices, without comment, let stand a ruling that the owners were not entitled to reduce their contributions to the fund even though all of the payments were not immediately tax deductible. Under the 1982 collective bargaining agreement, owners agreed to pay $12.5 million a year for five years into the pension fund "provided that such contributions are allowable as deductions" on the owners' federal income taxes.

During the early 1980s, the pension plan became overfunded when its investments earned greater returns than expected. The owners paid only $7.5 million into the fund in 1984, believing they could claim tax deductions only on that amount. They feared they would be denied refunds if they paid the additional $5 million and later discovered that sum was not deductible. Similar partial contributions were made in subsequent years.

Wisconsin coach's last year

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Steve Yoder, who has produced only one winning season in a decade at Wisconsin, announced he's quitting after this season because the school won't renew his contract. The 52-year-old Yoder, who has one year remaining on his contract, resigned effective April 1. Wisconsin, 12-13 overall and 3-9 in the Big Ten this season, is 127-160 overall and 49-125 in the Big Ten in 10 seasons under Yoder.

Lendl wins opening match

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Third-seeded Ivan Lendl defeated Jan Gunnarsson 6-7 (4-7), 6-1, 6-0 and fifth-seeded Goran Prpic beat Thomas Enqvist 7-5, 6-3 in the first round of the ABN AMRO World.

At Indian Wells, Calif. tenth-seeded Pam Shriver defeated Peanut Harper 6-4, 6-1 and 11th-seeded Yayuk Basuki beat Maya Kidowaki 6-4, 6-1 in the first round of the Evert Cup.

At Scottsdale, Ariz. Cristiano Caratti upset sixth-seeded Javier Sanchez 6-3, 7-6 (7-5) in the first round of the Purex Championships.

NHL, players plan another meeting

NEW YORK (AP) — In their first negotiating session since Sept. 25, the NHL and its players association met for five hours and agreed to talk again March 9. The collective bargaining agreement between the league and the NHL Players Association expired Sept. 15.

Missouri AD will call it quits

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri athletic director Dick Tamburo announced his retirement, effective when his contract expires on June 30. Tamburo, 62, became athletic director in 1988 after serving two years as associate athletic director and interim athletic director.

Foreign feud hurts Red Sox

Every spring training, a major injury seems to hit somewhere. This year, far from the baseball field, Carlos Quintana became the first victim.

The Boston Red Sox began the spring Monday and found out that Quintana, their starting first baseman, would be out for about four months after breaking his left arm in an automobile accident in Venezuela.

Quintana was hurt Sunday in Caracas while rushing two brothers to a hospital after they were shot at a party. The shooting, which a family friend said stemmed from a longstanding argument, left one of the brothers wounded in the hand and the other in the leg. Quintana's wife broke both legs in the accident.

"Right now my first concern is with Carlos and his family. From what I hear, his brothers have had a pretty rough time too and that's going to have an effect on him," — Boston Red Sox first year manager Butch Hobson.

"Right now my first concern is with Carlos and his family. From what I hear, his brothers have had a pretty rough time too and that's going to have an effect on him," new manager Butch Hobson said.

Red Sox general manager Lou Gorman also said the team would try to get Quintana to the United States as soon as possible to begin rehabilitation under the guidance of team doctor Arthur Pappas.

Quintana, a fine fielder, hit .295 with 11 home runs and 71 RBIs last season.

Mo Vaughn, who took over for Quintana briefly last season and batted .260, will most likely inherit the spot. Jack Clark, Boston's designated hitter, also is a first baseman.

Quintana's injury was not the only upsetting news for the Red Sox. Roger Clemens was a no-show.

Clemens did not call to say he wouldn't be in camp, but his agent telephoned to say the three-time Cy Young winner was working out and would arrive shortly.

Baseball's collective bargaining agreement doesn't require players to report to spring training until 30 days before opening day, but his absence still created a mild stir in Winter Haven, Fla.

"The fact that he's not here is somewhat of a surprise," Gorman said. "He's usually one of the first to get here."

Bob Welch, another former Cy Young winner, also is off to a shaky start.

Welch received a cortisone injection in his left knee after throwing for the first time this spring at Oakland's camp in Scottsdale, Ariz.

"Hopefully it will relieve some of the discomfort in his knee," A's trainer Barry Weinberg said. "It's caused from old wear and tear from previous injuries and operations."

Orthopedic specialist Dr. Rick Bost, who injected both sides and the top of Welch's knee, will examine the knee again Saturday. "I'm still concerned, but I'm happy to get on a mound and not fall down and have my knee fall apart," Welch said. "It feels good today."

Welch was 12-13 last year after winning 27 games and the American League Cy Young Award in 1990.

In Yuma, Ariz., Tony Gwynn was among the players to take part in San Diego's first workout.

Gwynn underwent arthroscopic surgery on his left knee Sept. 18. He said he experienced a little bit of soreness in his knee after working out on the hard turf.

"Let's face it, the knee is never going to be the same as it was before I got hurt," Gwynn said. "I just have to prepare differently. I can't go out there anymore if I'm not warmed up."

W. Virginia women move up

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thirteen wasn't an unlucky number Monday for West Virginia's women's basketball team.

The Mountaineers jumped two spots in The Associated Press poll to No. 13, their highest ranking ever, and then clinched a first-place tie in the Atlantic 10 with a 61-60 victory over No. 15 George Washington on Monday night. The Mountaineers are 13-0 in the Atlantic 10.

"Early in the year when we lost to Western Kentucky, we were 3-2, and I told our players to go out and win the next 20," West Virginia coach Scott Harrelson said.

The school-record winning streak is now at 19. Meanwhile, Virginia stayed No. 1 in the poll with another near-unanimous vote total. The Cavaliers (24-1) received 69 of the 70 first-place votes and 1,748 points from a nationwide panel of 70 women's coaches. Tennessee (22-2) remained No. 2 with 1,675 points.

Maryland is third, followed by Mississippi, Stanford and Iowa.

Stephen F. Austin, which was upset by Northeast Louisiana, fell from third to seventh, just ahead of Miami, the new Big East regular-season champion, which held eighth.

Penn State, which upset Vanderbilt last week at Nashville, jumped two spots to ninth, while Southwest Missouri made its Top 10 debut at No. 10.

Purdue, which lost Big Ten road games at Wisconsin and Northwestern, fell from ninth to 14th. Vanderbilt dropped a spot from 10th to 11th.

Trustees discuss expansion plan

By GARY SHANKS
 Staff Writer
 The Howard College Board of Trustees discussed a master plan for the expansion of the college, instituted a new financial reporting system and renewed contracts of current district administrators during their Monday meeting.
 The board discussed a four-phased master plan to remove the Adams Street entrance and make the Memorial Field parking lot the main parking for the school. Some sidewalks are to be removed and paving stones used instead, said Terry Hansen, vice-president for administrative services.
 The main entrance to Dorothy Garrett Coliseum could be switched to the south side of the building to form a more cohesive appearance for the campus. The existing entrance could be made into a circle drive with rain cover, suggested Board Member Harold Davis.
 A pond or possibly a fountain was discussed. The pond would serve as a focal point for the campus and would be positioned in front of the Student Union Building.
 An arched entrance would be constructed as the campus' main entrance from the parking lot, Hansen said.
 The board voted to allow the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf to charge $150 for a kit for their photo retouch and restoration class.
 Annual contracts for vice-presidents were renewed. Ron Brasel stays as associate vice-president for SWCID, Randy Hicks remains vice-president for instruction, Dusty Johnson stays as vice-president for student services and Cheri Sparks' contract was renewed as vice-president for institutional advancement.
 President Bob Riley said he was impressed with the new financial reporting system. "We can get fund balances almost on demand," he said. The delay in receiving a specific fund balance was identified as a serious administrative problem in 1984, he said.
 Riley discussed the May 2 election in his report. Charlie Gonzales will be running for the Place 1 seat and Curt Mullins is up for re-election for Place 2.

Groups concerned about human rights in Kuwait

NINA TOTENBERG

KUWAIT CITY (AP) — On Saturday, a Palestinian journalist will kiss his two young daughters and wife of 17 years good-bye and board a plane for Jordan. He is being expelled by order of the government.
 Across town, Filipino maid Rodrigua Albina is in her nation's embassy, nursing wounds she says were caused when her Kuwaiti mistress beat her with a rolling pin. Ms. Albina and hundreds of other Asian workers have sought shelter in their embassies from abusive Kuwaiti employers.
 A year after the Persian Gulf war, groups such as Amnesty International, the International Committee of the Red Cross and Kuwaiti rights organizations are raising new concerns about the emirate's human rights record.
 Investigators note that the wave of executions and torture that followed the February 1991 ouster of Iraqi troops largely ceased by July.
 "But there are still serious human rights problems," said Jean-Philippe Lavoyer, head of the Red Cross delegation in Kuwait.
 Among the major concerns:

- Rights groups say new allegations of severe beatings in Kuwaiti detention centers are under investigation.
- Palestinians continue to be forced out of Kuwait against their will, especially the estimated 15,000 people from Gaza who taught in the emirate for decades. Lacking real passports, only Iraq is taking them.
- There has still been no solution for tens of thousands of stateless Arabs living in Kuwait, once the core of the army and police force but now unemployed.
- Kuwait is expelling thousands of Iraqis, Palestinians, Jordanians, Sudanese and Yemenis even if they are married to Kuwaiti women, splitting up families. The Palestine Liberation Organization, Jordan, Sudan and Yemen supported Iraq in the gulf war.
- "They are pushing me to divorce by their decision. I know very well that this is wrong," said the Palestinian journalist who is planning to leave Saturday after living in Kuwait for more than 30 years.
- He spoke on condition of anonymity for fear of harassment of his two daughters and Kuwaiti wife.

Court

Robert Baker, 42, of Big Spring was convicted of aggravated assault last week by a 118th District Court jury and sentenced to two years probation.
 The conviction was in connection with a 1990 incident in which a man was hit in the foot with a shotgun blast and a four-year-old child was hit with a pellet.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

- A 25-year-old Big Spring woman reported a man breaking into her home and holding a knife to her throat. The incident occurred in the 1300 block of Lamar. No injuries were reported.
- Five minor accidents occurred in various parts of the city.
- A tool box worth $400 was reportedly stolen from a vehicle in the 1600 block of Kentucky Way.
- Roy Wayne Doss of 2112 West Third Street was arrested for public intoxication.
- Connie Edens, 22, of 1905 Wassor was arrested for theft under $20.
- A dog worth $150 was reported stolen from a home in the 1100 block of Pennsylvania.
- About $200 worth of damages and stolen items were reported on the south service road of Interstate 20.

Reporter refuses to divulge her source

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Public Radio journalist is refusing to identify the sources who told her about sexual harassment allegations against Justice Clarence Thomas.
 Reporter Nina Totenberg appeared under subpoena Monday before Senate special counsel Peter E. Fleming Jr., who was hired to investigate news leaks.
 She told reporters after the closed-door questioning that she refused to cooperate in the leak investigation in part because of "personal honor." She said, "I gave my word and I will not break it."
 But "most important is the first principle of the Bill of Rights — the First Amendment," which guarantees press freedom, she said.
 Fleming was hired, in part, to discover who leaked law professor Anita Hill's allegations that she was sexually harassed by Thomas, who now is an associate justice of the Supreme Court.
 Ms. Totenberg and Timothy Phelps of Newsday, a Long Island newspaper, were the first journalists to reveal Ms. Hill's allegations. Phelps was questioned by Fleming Feb. 13 and said he refused to reveal his sources.
 In her statement to Fleming, Ms. Totenberg said she obtained the affidavit filed by Ms. Hill with the Senate Judiciary Committee but "at no time did I receive a copy of any FBI report with respect to the Thomas nomination."
 "Within the next day or two, I destroyed all notes, copies of documents, phone logs or anything else that might lead to the identification of the source or sources of my story," Ms. Totenberg said.

Americans to choose Elvis stamp

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Will it be the teen-age idol or the aging legend? Enough time has passed to honor Elvis Presley with a stamp, but the Postal Service hasn't decided which visage is apt.

Young or old? The American public will be the final arbiter.

The Postal Service unveiled two stamp designs Monday, one showing the rock singer when he first hit it big, the other the more mature Elvis late in his career. Presley died in 1977 at age 42.

The two stamp finalists were selected from more than 50 pieces of artwork, said Postmaster General Anthony Frank. The winner will be the first in a series of American music giants expected to be printed over several years.

Five million ballot cards will be distributed to the public in early April, and voting will take place from April 4 to April 26, Frank said. The winning stamp, expected to be issued in 1993, will be announced in May, probably at the Presley's Graceland estate in Memphis, Tenn.

One of two stamp designs depicting Elvis Presley will be issued to commemorate Presley's contributions to American music. The two designs were unveiled as Vegas Monday. The one on the left portrays Presley shortly after achieving fame; the one on the right shows him when he was older. A nationwide poll conducted April 6-24 will determine which design the postal service will use.

Computer talks back

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Apple Computer Inc. has developed a personal computer that recognizes speech and sometimes talks back.

The Macintosh is just a prototype that has been demonstrated at industry gatherings, and experts said it won't reach desktops for years.

Lots of PCs can talk back and respond to one-word-at-a-time commands, but the prototype can recognize connective speech.

years ago.

Interest in an Elvis stamp has been enormous, Frank said, and joked that continued reports of Elvis sightings and rumors that he is still alive have delayed the issuance of the stamp. A person must be dead 10 years before a stamp can be issued in his or her likeness, he said.

Presley was a natural to inaugurate the stamp series, which will start with rock 'n' roll and expand to other music, Frank said.

"He broke new ground," Frank said. "The American people have deep feelings for him."

Cocaine seizures up, prices unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two years after the United States and Latin American countries expanded their drug enforcement cooperation, cocaine seizures are up sharply. But U.S. prices remain unchanged, indicating the drug cartel is still keeping pace with demand.

Whether that demand is up or down is another question. The administration says cocaine use has dropped by more than a third since 1988. Others say that, if anything, use is up.

President Bush will join six Latin American presidents on Wednesday for a review of the cooperative effort and to discuss ways of improving coordination in the drug war.

The two-day meeting will take place in San Antonio, Texas, just two years after Bush met with Latin leaders in Cartagena, Colombia, in an initial effort to forge a common drug strategy.

At the 1990 summit, Bush met with the leaders of Colombia, Peru and Bolivia. This year, the invitation list had been expanded to include the presidents of Venezuela, Ecuador and Mexico.

Bush maintains the United States is winning the war but government statistics indicate a mixed picture.

On the plus side, the figures show that cocaine seizures in Latin America rose sharply to 203 metric tons last year, compared with 57 tons in 1988. In December alone, Colombian authorities reportedly confiscated 17 metric tons.

If the seizures had resulted in a dramatic increase in price that would mean the cocaine cartel was being hard-pressed to keep up with demand. But the prices have been stubbornly stable, averaging a little more than $100 a gram, roughly the same as it was a decade ago.

"We are winning" the drug war, Bush said recently. Since 1989, federal spending on drug control has almost doubled to more than $12 billion. In recent days, the administration has been highlighting the progress it claims has been made since Bush took office.

It contends that cocaine use is down 35 percent since 1988 and that, among adolescents, the decline is 63 percent. Over the same time frame, it says the percentage of students who approve cocaine use has dropped by 47 percent.

The administration attributes these advances to a determined attack at both the supply and demand ends of the cocaine chain. As an example, federal outlays for Colombia, Peru and Bolivia have more than doubled to $471.8 million since the Cartagena summit. Almost $4 billion is earmarked for demand reduction this year.

Critics say the administration has been manipulating the figures, and they insist the glowing accounts from Bush and his aides have no basis.

"Unlike President Bush, I don't believe we're winning the war," said Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz. "I think there is an impasse in the war on drugs."

A congressional report released Monday said that despite the 700 percent increase in government spending over the last decade to stop drug imports, "there is no evidence that a single street dealer has missed a single sale because he couldn't get his hands on a rock of crack" cocaine.

The report by the Democratic staff of the House Judiciary crime subcommittee said efforts to eradicate coca leaf-growing in Peru, Colombia and Bolivia have failed to prevent an increase in cocaine production and shipment to this country.

Peru, the world's largest coca producer, poses the greatest challenge. A report issued last week by the General Accounting Office, a congressional watchdog group, said law enforcement efforts in Peru are impeded by a lack of coordination between military and police and "pervasive corruption throughout the government."

The administration is given credit for attacking the problem with gusto, but many, like Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., believe the government is not leveling with the public on the magnitude of the challenge.

In addition, Kerry said his own figures show an increase in both actual and potential cocaine production and that the estimated number of cocaine users in the United States — contrary to administration claims — is up.

Kerry said he believes it is futile for the administration to focus on source-country eradication and interdiction.

"All this may be a little like holding a bucket under a waterfall," Kerry said.

Asked to respond to Kerry's complaint, the administration's drug policy adviser, Bob Martinez, said, "When you go back to what little bucket we had in 1988 in being able to seize and interdict and you look at what we're seizing and interdicting today, we've gone from a bucket to a tub."

A Jerusalem resident walks up Jaffa Road, one of Jerusalem's busiest arteries, as a fierce winter storm blankets the region with heavy snow Tuesday. Over a foot of snow fell on Jerusalem, and meteorologists do not foresee any relief until Thursday.

Blizzard hits Mideast, avalanches kill six

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Paralyzing winter storms lashed the Middle East again today, isolating hundreds of villages, stranding motorists and causing avalanches in Turkey that claimed at least six lives.

Flooding killed a soldier in Israel and left two children missing.

The blizzards and rainstorms were the latest blow to a region suffering through the harshest winter weather in more than 70 years.

Some parts of northern Jordan were covered by up to 6 1/2 feet of snow today.

Mideast highways were either closed or made treacherous by snow and ice. Some motorists spent seven hours traveling from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem — normally a one-hour drive.

The Beirut-Damascus highway was under snow drifts of up to 16 feet.

In lowlands and along the Mediterranean coast, heavy rains and hail caused extensive flooding and forced evacuations.

"The density of snow and amount of snowfall is something we never witnessed in the history of the kingdom," said Abdel-Hamid Olayan of Jordan's National Weather Department.

The Meteorological Center in Israel said rain and snowfall had reached more than three times the annual average, the Yedioth Aharanot newspaper reported today.

The temperature in Cairo, Egypt, reached only 46 degrees — the coldest high temperature on record, the Meteorological Department said.

In Turkey, the Anatolia news agency said avalanches killed six people in two southeastern villages, bringing the snowslide death toll to at least 230 this month.

Jordanian police said they rescued about 1,300 stranded motorists. Officials said they received 420 complaints of power failures caused by lightning and 50 mph winds.

In Israel, a soldier was killed when his car was swept away by the flooded Jordan River in the Beit Shean Valley, Israel radio reported. Two children were reported missing from the Arab village of Jisr ez-Zarqa south of Haifa, raising fears they were also swept away by flood waters, the radio said.

In the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights, a dairy was forced to shoot cows after they were injured when a shelter toppled. Temperatures falling to 21 degrees also killed 100,000 chickens in the Golan.

Texan's encouraged to give of themselves

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

Death may mean life for individuals who choose to donate their bodies so others may receive life-giving organs or tissue.

A local woman granted that special gift of life to three individuals when she passed away. The corneas in her eyes were used to enable two other West Texas residents to see, and her kidney was given to a father of two children so he may not require dialysis for his brittle diabetes.

Jan and Bob Noyes, local business owners and active Lions

'If you were walking down the street and saw a house on fire and a 2-year-old stuck on the second floor, you'd stop to help that child. Well, what we have here is 25,000 people with their house on fire.'

Club members, said they intend to donate their bodies for organ transplant. And they encourage others to do the same.

"I made up my mind years ago, that (I would donate) anything that's usable. I see no reason why we need the organs after we're gone, so let someone else use them so their life can go on," Jan Noyes said.

Mr. and Mrs. Noyes help raise funds for the Lions Club Eye Bank, District 2-A1. Bob is the Howard County eye bank director.

"I feel the same way Jan does. I see the good that comes (from organ donations). It does a lot of good — someone who couldn't see, can see now," he said.

Current data states that about 25,000 individuals nationwide are waiting for an organ donation. As much as 20 percent those are younger than 18.

Approximately 20 to 30 percent will die awaiting transplant surgery, said Ron Ehrle, regional director of Life Gift of West Texas, in Lubbock.

"The need for donors far exceeds the availability. Technology is no longer a limiting factor in transplant surgery," Ehrle said.

Ehrle stresses that the time to make the decision to become an organ donor is now, before a tragedy occurs.

"You shouldn't talk about drug addiction after becoming addicted to cocaine, and the time to discuss teen pregnancy is not after the teen-ager is pregnant.

To make this decision (to donate organs), you need to be calm and rationally thinking. Ask lots of questions," he said.

hospital where the transplant will occur.

"We only take those things that will benefit someone else. Someone must benefit from the gift; if there's not a benefit, we don't take it," Ehrle said.

He said there is no cost to the family or the individual who donate organs, and no additional medical bills. The transplant procedure is usually accomplished within a few hours of death, and the incisions are sutured to reveal no disfigurement. The family may plan funeral arrangements as they wish, he said.

A few medical conditions preclude the ability to be an organ donor, including cancer, severe blood infections and persons at risk for contracting the AIDS virus. Medical histories are screened before the surgery is performed.

Thus far, at least 30 kidney transplants and six heart transplants have been performed successfully in the West Texas area, Ehrle said.

Someone considering becoming a donor may have additional questions, such as religious beliefs and fears of suffering or dying. Ehrle urges anyone to call him for more information about becoming an organ donor.

"If you were walking down the street and saw a house on fire and a 2-year-old stuck on the second floor, you'd stop to help that child. Well, what we have here is 25,000 people with their house on fire."

"This has such a profound impact on our fellow man," he said.

Ehrle may be contacted at 1-800-633-6562. Or write to him at Life Gift of West Texas, 1901 University, Suite 605 B, Box 36, Lubbock, 79411.

Prayer of a donor

Printed with permission to the Herald

The day will come when my body will lie upon a white sheet neatly tucked under four corners of a mattress located in a hospital busily occupied with the living and the dying. At a certain moment a doctor will determine that my brain has ceased to function and that for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped.

When that happens, do not attempt to instill artificial life into my body by the use of a machine. And don't call this my deathbed. Let it be called the Bed of Life and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

Give my sight to the man who has never seen a sunrise, a baby's face or love in the eyes of a woman.

Give my heart to a person whose own heart has caused nothing but endless days of pain.

Give my blood to the teenager who was pulled from the wreckage of his car, so that he might live to see his grandchildren play.

Give my kidneys to one who depends on a machine to exist from week to week.

Take my bones, every muscle, every fiber and nerve in my body and find a way to make a crippled child walk.

Explore every corner of my brain. Take my cells, if necessary, and let them grow so that, someday, a speechless boy will shout at the crack of a bat, and a deaf girl will hear the sound of rain against her window.

Burn what is left of me and scatter the ashes to the winds to help the flowers grow.

If you must bury something, let it be my faults, my weaknesses and all prejudice against my fellowman.

Give my sins to the devil.

Give my soul to God.

If, by chance, you wish to remember me, do it with a kind deed or word to someone who needs you.

If you do all that I have asked, I will live forever.

SMU professor finds desert man

EDITOR'S NOTE — For 30 years an American anthropologist has been sifting the sands of the Sahara searching for clues to prehistoric man. What he's found is evidence of an early African that was far more sophisticated and ingenious than had been surmised.

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — They kept telling Fred Wendorf he was crazy to search for the footsteps of early man in the southern Sahara. But the American anthropologist and prehistorian kept looking.

Today his findings represent African history in the making. "Got my dander up," Wendorf explained in his Western drawl as he headed for the desert to begin his 30th excavation season.

The professor from Southern Methodist University found his early men in a desert landscape, frozen in time, not far from Egypt's southern border with Sudan. It's where herders and their cattle feasted in grassy Saharan basins 8,000 years ago.

Wendorf's window on that stilled world reveals a far more sophisticated and ingenious African traveler than imagined, a wanderer on the verge of becoming a farmer.

He was a man able to harvest grasses, build large storage areas, dig deep wells, build shelters resembling houses — even succeed in a bit of city planning. Out in the Sahara.

"When we first went out, we didn't know what if anything was in the desert," Wendorf says. "There were no data. But we felt certain

Michael A. Floyd, a Clemson University doctoral student, shows one of two aquatic insects, never before identified that he discovered in the Upper Runs Creek on the Savannah River Site near Aiken, S.C.

Studies find new bugs in nuclear plant creek

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A creek at a nuclear weapons plant near the Georgia border is home to several new, and possibly rare, species of aquatic insects, a researcher says.

"We know of no stream in North America, and perhaps the world, with as many species of aquatic insects as the Upper Three Runs Creek," said Michael A. Floyd, a Clemson University doctoral student working at the Savannah River Ecology Laboratory.

The swift, blackwater stream on the Savannah River Site, a nuclear materials production plant near Aiken, has a diverse population of aquatic insects.

During a three-year study, Floyd found two unknown species of the caddisfly. Adult caddisflies are small, mothlike insects with a soft body, long antennae and legs, and two pairs of hairy wings. He also found three species of the insect that are new to South Carolina.

Glenn Wiggins, a curator of entomology at the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto, Canada, said there are up to 10,000 species of caddisflies in the world, 1,400 of which are in the United States.

"A good many will be found in the Southeast because it seems to be a diverse area for more insect groups and plant and animal species as well," Wiggins said.

Eight to 15 new species of caddisflies are described in the United States every year, Wiggins said.

J. Vaun McArthur, who helped supervise the project at the ecology laboratory, said the new caddisflies show the uniqueness of Upper Three Runs Creek.

"There are 124 species of caddisflies in that creek. We've got 124 species of just one type of bug in there," McArthur said. "In other areas of North America that's the total number species of all insects."

The Savannah River Ecology Laboratory is a research unit run by the University of Georgia for the Department of Energy to find out how plant operations affect the ecology.

McArthur said the lower portion of the Upper Three Runs Creek receives liquid discharges from the plant. But the creek is the least disturbed of all streams at the site.

"There is some discharge into the creek right now," he said. "It's supposedly not enough to cause any problems, but we don't know because we don't know what all the stream communities are."

Saving face

This file photo from Oct. 1988, seven months after a boulder fell from the Sphinx's shoulder, show Egyptian antiquities officials and conservers working on yet another stopgap project to save the 4,600-year-old monument. Alarmed

Sierra Club celebrates century of protection

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It all started on a 19th-century summer afternoon with 27 people gathered in a downtown office determined to "do something for wildness." One hundred years later, the little band of mountaineers and nature lovers might be surprised to see what became of their Sierra Club, now a leading environmental player that has flourished through a century of earthquakes, Earth Days — and James Watt.

Today, the club has about 630,000 members in 57 chapters and an annual budget of $35 million. Current campaigns range from preserving arctic wilderness to implementing the Clean Air Act to protecting wetlands.

"I think that they'd be proud of our achievements, but probably shocked at how unwieldy and far-flung the organization seems to be today," said Michael McCloskey, Washington, D.C.-based senior spokesman for the group.

Turning 100 "symbolizes the durability of the concerns about the environment that ... these interests are not merely a matter of fads nor a passing romanticism as people thought it was in the 19th century. These concerns have become part of the fabric of American culture," McCloskey said.

Early members probably wouldn't be surprised to see their successors "out defending wilderness all over the place," said Tom Turner, author of "Sierra Club: 100 Years of Protecting Nature." (Abrams, $49.50). "Whether they would have thought they would get into endangered species ... this was a very Republican group," he said.

The club incorporated June 4, 1892, to "explore, enjoy and render accessible the mountain regions of the Pacific Coast," among other things.

Founded by Scottish immigrant John Muir, who sent letters to prospective members urging them to "do something for wildness and make the mountains glad," the early club concentrated on arranging outings to the Sierra Nevada and doing battle to preserve the wild splendors of Yosemite National Park.

The 1906 earthquake and subsequent fire wiped out club records, but the movement continued, aided by such legendary members as photographer Ansel Adams and mountaineer William E. Colby.

For Dick Leonard, a 61-year veteran of the club, only the scope of the organization has changed since those early days.

"It's been very faithful that whole time," said the 83-year-old Leonard, now an honorary member. "I think the most important thing is the Sierra Club now covers the whole Earth."

Today, the club has about 630,000 members in 57 chapters and an annual budget of $35 million. Current campaigns range from preserving arctic wilderness to implementing the Clean Air Act to protecting wetlands.

The shift to a national perspective began in the 1950s, McCloskey said, with passage of the Wilderness Act in 1964 a key event. In the ecology-conscious 1970s, a decade that opened with the first Earth Day, the club broadened its program beyond nature protection to include fighting pollution and energy conservation.

The 1980s brought passage of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act, adding 103 million acres in national parks, refuges and wilderness areas.

The decade also brought James Watt, President Reagan's interior secretary.

Conservationists were aghast at Watt's policies, including ordering issuance of mineral-exploration permits in the Bob Marshall Wilderness in Montana, one of the oldest and largest wilderness areas then in existence.

Watt maintained that "the only way to eliminate pollution is to eliminate people and I'm opposed to that." He contended land should not be preserved for preservation's sake, but should be used wisely for man's benefit.

Incensed, the Sierra Club gathered 1.1 million signatures for his ouster, showing they could "turn on the spigot of public outrage," Turner said.

Watt eventually ran himself out of town, making a quick exit after joking that an advisory panel consisted of "a black ... a woman, two Jews and a cripple."

Paradoxically, Watt was good for the Sierra Club, prompting hundreds to flock to the conservation fold.

"He was so outspoken and so outrageous that a lot of his efforts didn't come to anything because he rallied the public behind the environmental movement like nobody probably ever had before," Turner said.

In recent years, the club has faced conflict within its own ranks, a phenomenon Turner credited to the nature of the fiercely democratic group.

In March, dissident members accused the club of selling out in its approach to forest issues and said Muir wouldn't join the Sierra Club in its present incarnation. But club leaders responded that endorsing more extreme proposals to halt logging was unrealistic.

McCloskey described the club's atmosphere as "a healthy tension in the organization between the visionaries and the practical types and I think you need them both."

For the future, curbing climate changes is at the top of the agenda along with preserving endangered habitats, McCloskey said.

"We are trying to lay the plans for our launch into our second century by trying to think ahead and think big," he said.

"People believe they can make a difference in American society," McCloskey said. "Our strength is in that conviction."

Desert man

there must be prehistoric sites left from one of the world's great river systems, the Nile."

Academics of the early 1960s scoffed that it was unlikely Wendorf would find anything worthwhile. Traces of early man in the Nile Delta, the most promising place to dig, long since had disappeared beneath yearly Nile floods.

Remains in other parts of Africa also had been destroyed by climate or civilization. And politics, then as now, made some sites off-limits to foreign archaeologists.

Wendorf says another barrier was "colonial hangover," the idea that African history wasn't all that important.

From the early 1950s scholars concentrated on southwest Asia, the area of what is now Iraq and Iran, where civilizations played a direct role in Western culture, and the Mayan culture and Latin America.

"Not so Africa," Wendorf says. "Early man in Egypt was considered conservative and backwards. Africa, including North Africa, got very little attention."

"After all, he was just an African and his role had little to do with Western civilization. This was the thinking."

Wendorf argues it's important to study movements of early man in Africa if historians are to understand how complex African societies developed.

"We have the earliest pottery in the world from some of our sites," he says. "It's not from the Nile. It's coming from the central Sahara, perhaps from Chad and Niger. Crops like sorghum that originated in Africa still are economically important to much of the world."

And from North Africa arose the ancient Egyptian civilization, a great contributor to the West. Wendorf came to Egypt in 1962 to record prehistoric sites that would be inundated by the waters of Lake Nasser after the advent of the Aswan High Dam. His work was part of UNESCO's campaign to save the monuments of Nubia, including the temples at Abu Simbel.

He stayed, with the idea in mind to trace early man from southern Egypt to the Mediterranean.

But then came the bloody 1967 Arab-Israeli war, which left Egyptian security officials wary of foreigners along the Nile.

"They pointed to a map and said, 'Anywhere out there would be fine.'" Wendorf says. "I've been playing in the sand ever since."

Wendorf's concession is Texas-sized: 400 square miles of wilderness untouched by modern man. Artifacts are scattered among rippling sands in three sites beginning 62 1/2 miles west of Abu Simbel.

He compares the landscape with the American Midwest before it was farmed or the stretch between Odessa and Lubbock, Texas, where mesquite is king.

Two things made life possible for the desert people Wendorf is reviving: grass, occasionally, and water. Underground accumulations of sweet water still provide refreshment.

But climate wasn't always on man's side.

Northern Africa was bone-dry from 65,000 years ago until 12,500 B.C., when central African monsoons gradually brought moisture northward.

By 9,500 years ago man was in the desert with his cattle, probably following the rains to find new grasses. The Nile was still nothing like the great river it is today.

Wendorf admires the bravery of the first adventurers to leave the Nile Valley. But his findings show that by 8,000 years ago man had developed the means to survive for longer periods. While the Nile people were still hunting and fishing, Wendorf's wanderers were busy building and developing technology.

He credits man's relationship with his cattle for many achievements.

"In southwest Asia you had cattle to give meat," he says. "Here, cattle gave milk, meat, skins and maybe in times of drought provided blood mixed with water for man to survive."

"We call it a food bank on the hoof."

By 6,800 years ago these desert wanderers were herding sheep imported from southwest Asia.

Wendorf's Combined Prehistoric Expedition fuses the talents of 40 to 50 specialists and diggers from Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas, the Polish Academy of Sciences, the Geological Survey of Egypt and the Egyptian Antiquities Organization.

Life in space: sex and potatoes?

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Space sex? Irish potatoes on Mars? Astronauts without The Right Stuff?

Those are among the out-of-this-world topics launched during an International Conference on Life Support and Biospherics at the University of Alabama.

Conjugal spaceflight is on the horizon as America looks to space stations on Mars or the moon — missions that could last years — in the coming century.

Regina North, a behavioral scientist at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston, says the agency is about to miss a golden opportunity to conduct its first research on sex in zero gravity.

Astronauts Mark Lee, 39, and Jan Davis, 37, who were married last year, are scheduled to be among seven people aboard an August space shuttle mission.

"We have this incredible opportunity, and there is no experiment planned," she said Wednesday.

"This could be an experiment like no other life science experiment. We could monitor heart rates and determine what are the physiological problems that microgravity presents."

"NASA doesn't want to talk about (sex), but I'm thinking about that," she said. "It's a very Puritan society."

North concedes that spaceflight is so action-packed that taking time out for romance might be a problem. "They are using all their libido to do experiments. They're busy almost 24 hours a day."

The only data available on sex in space was a study of rats by Soviet cosmonauts, she said.

Although sex might not be high on NASA's list, food is. For extended missions, astronauts would grow some of their own food.

Ted W. Tibbitts of the University of Wisconsin-Madison told the two-day conference, which ended Thursday, that his research shows Irish potatoes would fare well. They grow easily in sterile environments, are nutritious and can be prepared many ways.

The rigors of a long stay in space can lead to physical and psychological disorders in people who lack patience, North said.

"The current shuttle astronauts are perfect," she said. "They are pilots, they are self-sufficient, they love themselves, they do their jobs. But exactly what made them good for short missions may not be good for long missions."

Black History Month February 1992

Did you know the Selma March began March 21, 1965 and lasted five days?

Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and thousands of civil rights supporters made a five day march from Selma to Alabama's state capitol of Montgomery in protest of the denial of voting rights to blacks who had attempted to register in Selma.

When the march ended in front of the state capitol building, the number of participants reached 25,000.

We can, like, improve our language, OK?

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to the English language? The excessive use and misuse of the word "like" is an abomination! To utter the incoherent, "I was, like, you know, going home," incriminates the user; as does, "it was, like, Saturday." "Like" is a substitute for "about," "approximately," "similar to," "it may have been," or many other terms or expressions.

And "I go" and "he goes" are stupid contortions for "I said, stated, noted, observed," and other correct usages.

"Hopefully" is used far too often and invariably ungrammatically. And athletes, especially, seem incapable of stumbling and fumbling through even a half sentence without a "hopefully." This incorrect redundancy could be replaced with "I hope." "I would hope" or "we will attempt to."

The sports announcers are the worst. We can surely do without the "hey" and "guys" in every other sentence. They are so infuriating, I turn them off and walk the dog.

DEAR KENNETH: You have found a soul mate in Marcie Mitchell. Read on.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please make another attempt to improve the atrocious and horrid misuse of our language? Much of it is inarticulate, appallingly sloppy and infuriating to the listener.

It is maddening to hear "you know, you know, you know" from so many of the celebrities (and athletes) who are interviewed on TV talk shows.

One of the most annoying habits is ending every sentence with "OK?" Some people end every sentence with, "Right?"

I know you dealt with this problem several years ago, but it wouldn't hurt to print a reminder.

And there are dozens of other speech irritants. — MARCIE MITCHELL, ROLLING HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR MARCIE: Over the years, I have invited my readers to send in their pet peeves with regard to the misuse of words and other speech irritants. Readers, what are yours?

FOR WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Show more initiative and your stock will quickly rise at your place of employment. In May, a relationship based on mutual respect will develop into lasting love. A financial situation turns to your advantage by June. Children influence an important decision you make next summer. Travel will bring in new business in September. Romantic fires you thought extinguished may still burn brightly. Go slow.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Jackie Gleason, actor Tony Randall, country singer Johnny Cash, actress Betty Hutton.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An older person for your family. Curb a tendency to talk shop when socializing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Paying bills on time protects your credit rating. A close friend or relative may be willing to arrange a short-term loan. Check both train and flight schedules if planning a business trip.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A new financial partnership begins to yield handsome profits. Your personal contacts bring you wonderful luck. Substitute long-distance phone calls for expensive travel.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Meeting a deadline will put you head and shoulders ahead of your competition. Improve your communications skills — they will help you land a top job! A long-distance romance begins to intensify.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Learn to express your feelings in a calm, positive manner. Enrolling in night school or attending a seminar will boost your earning potential. Your reliability helps you move up the ladder of success.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An excellent day to dispose of unwanted items cluttering up the basement or attic. Renovating your home will add to your comfort while increasing its value.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Home projects could lead to a second income. Seek the cooperation of family. Some surprising news elicits an unexpected reaction. Improving your appearance will boost your ego.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your mate may urge you to act in a more constructive manner. Learn from your experiences. Do not sell yourself short. Your creativity commands top dollar!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Although you have undertaken a rather tough assignment, any difficulties are offset by the promised rewards. Be careful not to act overconfident. Romance takes on a rosy glow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your associates may not be able to help out today. Rely mostly on your own efforts. Your clever handling of a personnel matter wins you new respect. Spruce up your appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Resist the urge to roll over someone who crosses you today. Although you are irritated by other people's lame excuses and shortcomings, this is not the day to say so.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Business must come before pleasure, especially during office hours. A co-worker's ideas tend to be on the extravagant side. Be tactful when offering an alternative suggestion.
