The Big Spring Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Gene Chartier Smith, will perform Saturday night at 8 in the Big Spring Municipal Auditorium with Oscar Morzsa.

The Hungarian-born Morzsa won the 33rd annual Hemphill-Wells Sorantin Competition last fall in San Angelo and will perform on the piano during Saturday's production.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $7.50 for senior citizens and students and may be purchased at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, Artifacts, Accent Shoppe, Blum's Jewelers and Dunlaps.

Prison page set Sunday

The Big Spring Herald, in conjunction with local participating merchants, will publish a fullpage poster in Sunday's newspaper in support of the prison proposal.

The poster, which will measure approximately 13 inches high and 21 inches wide, will be suitable for placement in the windows of homes and businesses as well as a show of support at next Thursday's public hearing.

Fina testing scheduled

Some smoke may be visible from the Big Spring Fina Refinery this afternoon, but there is no need to worry, said Everett Hanna, safety director at the plant.

Fire training for 8-10 new employees is being conducted and the smoke will be coming from practice fires.

Neel Barnaby wants more active leadership

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Neel G. Barnaby, Republican candidate for sheriff, says he would be a more active leader searching for solutions to problems than Democratic incumbent A.N. Standard.

"Somebody's going to have to take the bull by the horn and get something done," Barnaby said of issues regarding the emergency 911 telephone system and a proposed city/county jail. "He (sheriff) needs to take a leadership role. That's exactly what I'm saying I'm going to do."

Standard declined to respond to Barnaby's assertions. Standard, according to previous statements, and Barnaby agree on several points but Barnaby said he believes he would be more effective finding solutions and working with officials of other agencies to implement ideas. Standard has said that cooperation with other agencies needs to be tempered by what is feasible or desirable. Both agree:

• All 911 calltakers based at the police department should dispatch all emergency calls, including those to sheriff deputies. Calls involving the sheriff's office are currently transferred to that department. Also, Standard says calltakers should be trained in trauma and medical emergencies. Barnaby said more training would only help.

• A regional jail located in Big Spring that handles prisoners from several counties could solve space problems for the city and county, pay for itself, make a profit, and possibly be operated by a private firm.

The reason 911 calls are not dispatched by calltakers to sheriff deputies is that a logistics plan for it has not been developed and approved, said 911 Director Carl Dorton.

Dorton said Police Chief Joe Cook and Standard need to devise such a plan. Cook said he left a message for Standard so the two could get together on it but Standard said he never got the message.

But Standard said the responsibility for a logistics plan rests with Dorton, who has never raised the issue with the sheriff. Meanwhile, 911 board members have criticized Standard for not attending most board meetings during the planning stages of the 911

About 40 persons, most of them Fina personnel, were on hand Thursday afternoon at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce for a presentation on the Fina tax abatement request by refinery manager Jeff Morris.

Fina has requested a $38.1 million tax abatement for plant improvements Morris described as defensive. Morris says the plant will make the improvements with or without the abatements, but that by granting the abatements, officials would help place the refinery in a better position in difficult times in the refinery industry. Howard County commissioners are expected to act on the request Monday afternoon following public hearing scheduled for 1:30 in the commissioner's courtroom. If the county approves the abatement, officials of Howard College and the Big Spring Independent School District may then consider the request.

The Thursday morning blast blew a wall out of a seven-story production shaft that housed two huge coal ladles at the mine, which straddles the West Virginia-Pennsylvania line about 60 miles south of Pittsburgh.

A new bloodmobile is making donation easier and opening up new locations for United Blood Services.

"It affords us the luxury of being able to go to locations we were unable to service," said Paula Kennemur, community relations director of San Angelo-based United Blood Services, which supplies all of Howard County's blood products.

UBS officials were pleased to take possession of the new vehicle in December, Kennemur said. Before the bloodmobile was obtained, UBS employees brought blood collecting equipment to Big Spring in a van and could only service a business or government offices, which could offer sufficient room for the blood collection.

The new vehicle is completely self-contained and air conditioned and is equipped with two beds, and a booth where prospective donors are interviewed to see if they meet the necessary requirements. "It's very convenient. We just love it," Kennemur said.

There will be four days of blood drives in the Big Spring area starting March 30, and the new unit will be utilized in each of eight loca-. tions, Kennemur said. "Our goal for these drives is 115 blood donations.

Texas rep's overdraft used as loan for re-election bid

WASHINGTON (AP) - East Texas Rep. Charlie Wilson's Republican opponent says she doubts further revelations about bis involvement in the House check-writing saga will register with voters.

Wilson, D-Lufkin, acknowledged Thursday that one of his 81 bank overdrafts occurred when he loaned $10,000 to his campaign.

"I don't think this will have any direct impact on the voters," said challenger Donna Peterson of Orange. "I think they are as informed on the issue as they are probably going to be at this point.

The fine-tuning of the scandal is probably not going to influence them," she said Thursday.

But Peterson said voters won't have forgotten the issue by November.

"Charlie can stand up and say it's going to go away and the people aren't having a problem with it . . but it's not going to go away and the people do have a problem with it," she said.

Wilson already has suffered serious damage because he was named one of the 24 worst "abusers" of the now-closed bank, Republican officials said.

He and two former House members who also appear on the House ethics committee's list of top "abusers" acknowledged writing overdrafts in lending money to their campaigns.

But Wilson said the overdraft was not his fault because he had immediately deposited a check from his personal account in Texas to cover the $10,000 check written on his House account.

"We deposited a check the same day for the exact same amount," he said.

The Dec. 21, 1990, overdraft resulted when either the House bank or his campaign bank in Texas did not credit the deposit in a timely manner, Wilson said.

The only other Texan on the top 24 list, Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, said Thursday he has never loaned his campaign any money. Peterson said she would not focus on the check scandal in her latest bid to unseat Wilson. She mounted a strong challenge in 1990, getting 44 percent of the vote. "I think he's going to have enough problems dealing with all the different groups that are get-ting involved," she said: "This is not something that I need to get involved with.'

Peterson said she would concentrate on what she termed Wilson's lack of representation of the district and his voting record. Wilson, whose overdrafts totaled $143,857, said he is trying to have his name removed from the 'abusers'' list.

"I don't want to come across as a whiner and a crybaby," he said. But, he added, "I really think this is a rotten deal.

Wilson - who made the list because he overdrew his account by more than his next month's paycheck in eight of the 39 months said he can prove two of those months were the fault of the House bank

He has written the ethics committee offering proof that two months of overdrafts resulted from the House bank's practice of sometimes crediting deposits days or weeks late.

'We have modest hopes of maybe getting off the list," he said. But Wilson admitted it may be difficult to reverse the damage resulting identification as one of the top 24.

To date, 15 Texas congressmen have acknowledged writing overdrafts at the now-closed House bank, including 11 Democrats and four Republicans.

School taxes hit businesses hard

AUSTIN (AP) — School property tax bills in 1991 rose more than 14 percent, with businesses seeing a bigger jump than homeowners, the state comptroller reports.

"Overall, Texas property owners paid $946 million more in 1991 property taxes for funding public education than they did in 1990 - a14.3 percent increase," said a study released Thursday.

The 1991 increase was the largest percentage jump since 1984, when taxes rose more than 15 percent, percent Single-family homes, the largest the report said.

Total 1991 school taxes topped $7.5 billion, up from $6.6 billion in 1990

That jump included taxes levied by the more than 1,000 independent school districts and by the 188 County Education Districts, which subsequently were declared unconstitutional by the Texas Supreme Court.

The Legislature created the CEDs, which largely follow county lines, to try to equalize school funding among property-rich and property-poor districts. Gov. Ann Richards has said she category of property in the state, made up about 31.5 percent of the total 1991 school taxes. That was down from a 34.1 percent share of the burden in 1990, the first drop in four years. Oil, gas and mineral owners were hit with the biggest increase in school property taxes, more than 39 percent higher than 1990. Those properties now account for 7.8 percent of total school taxes, up from 6.4 percent a year ago.

Utilify company taxes also rose substantially, according to the report.

Utilities' taxes were up 31 percent from 1990 to 1991 and accounted for about 7.3 percent of all school taxes.

"It is very clear from our analysis that the patterns of driving are different for women than they are for men," said Mike Brownlee of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. "Trends that occur for men don't seem to be happening with women.

From 1982 through 1990, the percentage of females in the death toll has increased steadily. Women made up 27 percent of the deaths in 1982 and 31 percent in 1989 and 1990. The total number of traffic fatalities in 1990 - 44,529 - is the lowest since 1985.

some bodies could not be identified. The agency's study, which was published Thursday by the federal Centers for Disease Control, said the number of female drivers caught driving drunk is declining only slightly.

But the number of drunken male drivers is declining rapidly, possibly because "prevention and intervention programs typically have been targeted toward males, the study said.

"Information may need to be targeted toward women about the effects of alcohol on performance and the differences between women and men in alcohol metabolism," the study said.

The NHTSA is beginning further study of women drivers.

"We need to take a look at the data and try to decide what is contributing to these trends," said Maria Vegega, who conducted the study.

Jaffa, where Abdelghani lived, was once an Arab city. It is now part of Tel Aviv, founded in 1909 as world's first all-Jewish city.

Unlike the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, Jaffa is a part of sovereign Israel. Tel Aviv's formal name is Tel Aviv-Jaffa. Eilat links them together. It was there that Azri Muhammad el Reifi, a Muslim fundamentalist from the Gaza Strip with a grudge and a long-bladed knife,

Then he lunged at a party of Jewish schoolchildren, injuring several before a policeman shot him dead.

On Thursday, the school principal, Sarah Yolles, went to the Ohana household in suburban Bat Yam to express condolences. Then she drove to Jaffa and visited the Abdelghanis.

"We are striving for coexistence, and our school educates its pupils that way," she told reporter outside.

On Wednesday, his brother Ramzi, 21, visited the Ohana home. Ilanit's Aunt Malka remembered him from when the two families lived on the same block in Jaffa. "She hugged me and kissed me," Ramzi said.

The Ohanas, immigrants from North Africa, did not want to talk to a reporter, but outside, some visitors paused to chat.

Ora and Ronit, 17-year-old acquaintances of Ilanit, said the attack left them frightened. No longer would they stroll to Jaffa on weekends to eat Arab delicacies at Abulafia's bakery, or go to their favorite discotheque on Eilat Street.

The writer's art New coins in the fountain

Writers are never satisfied. Merriam-Webster's Third International Dictionary, published in 1976, offered 460,000 entries. Derivative words would add that many more. One might suppose a million words would be enough for journeyman use, but no.

You readers, bless you, have sent along some splendid neologisms. Before getting to them, let me express an apology and clear up the matter of "covivant." In a recent column I credited this delightful coinage to Richard Lederer, whose most recent book is "The Miracle of Language." Several readers said it wasn't new; they recalled hearing "covivant" in Quebec at least 15 years ago. Well, Lederer never claimed to be the inventor. My mistake

For the record, a "covivant" is one of two persons of opposite sex

January. The editor reported that the town's first baby of the new year was born a little before 2 a.m. to a gentleman in the pension department "and his happy lady." That certainly beats 'girlfriend" or "roommate," but "covivant" would happily have said it all.

Another item of unfinished business has to do with the verb "to diss." I asked a few weeks ago for information on its meaning and origin. One reader noted that Eric Partridge, in his Dictionary of Slang and Unconven what Humana is trying to do is unpublic these documents, and I don't think they can do it." In Washington, D.C., where I hang out, the verbs of art are to suppress, to conceal, to sit on, and to prevent the disclosure of. Happens all the time.

and a manufamment

In Greer, S.C., The Greer Citizen reported a joint meeting of the City Council and the planning board. Much of the discussion focused on "neighbors who do not upkeep their property." Well, there's upgrade, upheave, uplift and uproot, not to mention the movie that is upcoming, so

'upkeep" is OK by me. What about "to overjoy"? The AP reported last year that a decision on the Dead Sea Scrolls "overjoyed scholars." The verb goes back to the 16th century, but this transitive usage is a new one on me.

Shanks Boredom and youth a danger

There's nothing to do in Big Spring.

Gary

If you've never heard those words, then you've never lived around a teenager or young person

I recently heard a young man complaining of Big Spring's lack of entertainment for young people. In fact, I clearly heard the young man say, "They're trying to make this into an old folks home, but they're going to make it into a ghost town!"

Now most teenagers would consider me completely out of touch at 30, but I can still remember the overwhelming need to live that accompanies youth. The emotional state of teenagers is very labile - when they feel good, they feel great!; and when they feel bad, they're in hell (There are plenty of teenage suicides to back up this hypothesis.)

But above all is an overwhelming urge to taste life - joy, excitement, danger, conquest. (Auto accidents are the No. 1 killer of young men, and teenage pregnancy is a problem across the nation.) Young people are going to live!, even at the cost of their own lives

Now I'm past most of that joie de vivre stuff. This town is as comfortable as an old flannel shirt. And I don't mind the thought of growing old (if I'm granted that luxury) in this or another small town.

But I remember the intense need to feel like a part of the rest of the world, to avoid feeling isolated like some kind of cultural throwback

Older people often are content to merely live and learn and contemplate life, and maybe take the

Pat Martinez and th

I reply to that this way: "Listen, you imbecile, there is only one way anybody should compose and that is upon a manual typewriter."

I then tell them that statement is in the Bible somewhere and they reply, "Oh Yeah." And I reply, "Verily.

Then they ask, "Where in the Bible?"

And I say, "The book of Royal," and they say there is no book of Royal in the Bible, and by that time I'm half way down the street and the conversation is over.

I abhor computers. And I don't know how they work and I don't intend to find out. I believe computers are responsible for a great deal of ills in this society.

For one thing, when people screw up today all they have to do is blame it on the computer. If you screwed up before computers, you had to be clever and imaginative in coming up with a means of covering your tail.

You had to say, "The dog did it," or 'You might not believe this, sir, but I was just sitting here at my desk when a large goat walked in and ate the report you wanted right off my desk.'

Ronald Reagan, who was our president, never blamed anything on a computer. When he screwed up he actually told the truth and said, "I forgot."

Besides all that, since I don't know how computers work and refuse to find out, it could mean computers are magic. That could also mean they are the work of evil spirits, the kind that made Jimmy Swaggart go out and look for hookers.

You get evil spirits involved in anything and pretty soon the economy fails, crime rates go up, politicians begin writing bad checks, and all presidential candidates go around blithering like idiots.

And this one other thing. I have steadfastly refused to compose upon a computer because I'm not sure where the words go when you put them into that electric box, push a button, and they disappear from the screen.

"Oh, but you can always call them back up," computer-breaths say to me.

Never say, "always." You start fooling around with anything mechanical and something eventually will go wrong with it. A dog could go to the bathroom on a wire in my neighborhood and it could cause a shortage, and all 417 pages of my new book could be lost forever. Do you think if Margaret Mitchell had done "Gone With the Wind" on a computer, and it had all disappeared because of a dog's indiscretion, she would have gone to all the trouble of rewriting

"GWTW"? Of course not. She would have killed herself.

When I work on a book, I type it on white sheets of paper with a Royal manual typewriter. I make many copies of each sheet. I keep copies in various rooms of my home. I give other copies to friends. I put others in a vault I rent that is buried 5,000 feet underneath Stone Mountain.

I'm not about to lose a book. And they have said I was crazy and old-fashioned. because I wouldn't give way to high-tech. Well, I told you so. Computer virus

It's been all over the news that something called Michaelangelo, probably an evil spirit, could get into computers and wipe out everything stored in them. Great industries could be brought to their knees. Kingdoms could crumble. Authors could kill themselves in droves.

I was right. Something can get into a computer and lobotomize it. The only thing that ever got into my typewriter was a large roach, which I promptly typed to an upper-case death with the dollar and ampersand keys.

As I said, I don't know anything about computers. but I heard on television that the way a virus gets into one is when an infected floppy disc is inserted into it. Do they make condoms for

Bureau of the Census identifies them as POSSLQs and reports 2.9 million such couples in 1990, up from 1.6 million in 1980. I asked Bill Safire of The New York Times what he knew about "covivant." He obligingly ran the word through the word search and found that Newsweek in 1977 credited it to Elizabeth L. Post, author of "The New Emily Post's Etiquette." Judith Martin, the Miss Manners of The Washington Post, commented upon the word in 1980. She sniffed that a covivant "sounds like someone who will cook only on copper pots." That's Miss Manners for you.

Anyhow, "covivant" is a great word, greatly needed. The editor of a company newspaper in Maryland could have used it in tional English, dated the word from about 1930. Supposedly it comes from "disconnect," as in disconnecting a wireless set. In 1937 Wireless World discussed a warning whistle to tell a radio listener that his speaker is 'dissed.'

That may have been the meaning 55 years ago, but today "to diss" evidently means "to manifest disrespect for, brush off. snub." The verb may have come from "to dismiss," or less likely, from "to disdain" or "to disapprove."

A number of other verbs have turned up recently. In January, Nevada's state legislative counsel commented on a lawsuit that involved-certain papers belonging to Humana Hospital. Said Counsel Loren Malkiewich, "I assume that come along. A critic for The New York Times said in January that Marlo Thomas should have "decosmetized" herself for a role in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" A company spokesman for Mutual Life of New York told The Wall Street Journal last summer that "we have no plans to demutualize." I'd send those verbs back to whoever invented South Carolina the Columbia State summarized the plot of the 1963 movie "Cleopatra" in a marvelously compact sentence: 'Queen of Egypt seduces Caesar, sees Mark Antony, asps herself." You can't write much tighter than that.

wife on an occasional trip or two. But unlike the Dylan' Thomas poem, it is the young people that rage against the dying of the ty ironic sometimes.)

Doctors always tell women in labor not to push, and the women look at the doctor like he's an idiot. The urge to push is implacable. Nature offers no choice.

Teenagers need to push their emotional boundaries, to struggle against boredom. Boredom to a teenager is a quantifiable misery, whereas to us it's just resting.

Boredom is what drives young people to the really stupid, senseless things like driving around breaking windows out of parked cars. (CrimeStoppers will still pay for info. on that.) It causes teenagers to take risks just for the adrenalin - to drive like maniacs and is a big factor in taking those first drugs. And what have we done for them lately?:

 We've burried their skatebord park with a bulldozer. We've put up signs disallowing skateboards almost everywhere.

 We've taken MTV away from them, so now Big Spring youth are that much more isolated and angry. They have MTV in Moscow, for Pete's sake!

 We've even taken the high diving board off the city pool. It's like fun has been outlawed here.

And while I'm ranting: Why is there no place to go backpacking around here? We're in the middle of a lot of vastness, especially to the south, and we can't even hike out into it?!

We've got two, count 'em, two lakes, for fishing, but you can't put a jet-ski in either one of them. Shoot! We've got the only mountain in the Permian Basin and unless we pay two bucks to the state, we can't legally even climb the darned thing

If we can buy 600 acres of land with taxpayer's money and hope we get a prison to put on it, surely we can buy a little piece of South Mountain.

I'd bet a teen club/amusement park/gathering place/something! would pay for itself if one counted all the cars that wouldn't get smashed and all the glass that wouldn't be broken. Besides, if they're all together (a gaggle of teenagers?), educational materials could be posted and the drug dealers could be ferreted out

Well, that's OK. Nobody liked my bungee jumping from the Set-tles Hotel idea either. Ciao.

COAHOMA - Despite a small field the competition is expected to be hot at the Bulldog Relays here. Saturday.

The three division track meet will attract 10 boys teams and eight girls teams. Action begins at 9 a.m. with field events. The finals of the 3,200 meters will begin at 9:45 a.m. Running prelims start at 10:45 and more field events follow at 1:15 p.m. The running finals start at 3 p.m.

Teams entered in the varsity boys division are Coahoma, Stanton, Brownfield, Colorado City and Forsan. Stanton is a question mark because the Buffalos might compete in Ozona. The same teams are entered in the junior varsity boys division.

Varsity girls teams entered are Coahoma, Stanton, Brownfield, Colorado City, Forsan, Big Spring, Wylie and Westbrook.

The Coahoma Bulldogs have one meet under their belts, this is the first meet for the Coahoma Bulldogettes.

If the Stanton boys do compete in the meet, all eyes will be on junior Jeremy Stallings, the Class AA defending state champion in the 800 and 1,600 meters. Last week in his first meet at the West Texas Relays in Odessa, Stallings ran a 1:58.04 in the 800 meters and a 4:44.00 in the 1,600 meters.

The Buffalos also have Kenny McCalister, who ran a 50.60 in the 400 meters, and the 1,600 meter relay team which ran a 3:30.60 last

The Bulldogs will be competing with a full squad for the first time this season. In their previous meet in Fort Stockton, Coahoma took 11 athletes

Top performers for Coahoma include Chris Schneider in the high jump (6-2), Greg Atkinson in the long jump (20-0) and Wes Rowell in the 800 meters (2:13).

Coahoma coach Steve Park is also expecting good things from Mike Mendez in the sprints and the 400 and 1,600 meter relay teams.

Park thinks the 400 relay team of Mendez, Cadet Bryant, Atkinson and Kenny Lowery is capable of running in the 44-seconds range. He also feels the foursome of Bryant, Lowery, Atkinson and Brent Elmore can run in the 3:30s in the 1,600 relay.

Although he's nursing an injured knee, a top runner for the Bulldogs will be senior Matt Coates in the 3,200 and 1,600. Last year Coates made it to the regional meet in the

A top contender for Forsan will be senior pole vaulter John Reese, who vaulted 11-6 this year. Freshman Michael Treadaway is also expected to score points for Forsan.

Colorado City's top contender will be senior Kevin Green, who jumped 20-11 in the long jump. BIG SPRING, WYLIE ARE GIRLS

TEAMS TO WATCH The Bulldogettes are low in numbers according coach Phillip Ritchey. Ritchey has 11 members on his track team, headed by senior. LaTisha Anderson, who will compete in the long jump, high jump,

Big Spring Lady Steers junior Hope Martinez will be one of the top distance runners in the Bulldogs Relays Saturday in Coahoma.

400 relay, 100 hurdles and 200 meters.

Last year Anderson finished sixth at the state meet in the 100 hurdles, running a 15.60. She also had best of 35-2 in the triple jump and 17-6 in the long jump.

Anderson said another top prospect for his team is sophomore transfer Angela Crippen from Salado, in the shot put and discus.

The team race will probably come down to the Big Spring Lady Steers and Wylie Lady Bulldogs. Two weeks ago at the Concho Belle Relays in San Angelo, Wylie scored 87 points and got second place while Big Spring scored 78 points and got third place.

One of the Lady Steers' top performers is junior Anne Rodriguez, who's run top times in the 400 (59.60) and 800 (2:24.11).

Hope Martinez in another top prospect in the 800 (2:29.00) and Christi Miller in the 100 (12.70) and 200 (27.92)

Syretta Shellman in the shot put (38-8) and Tina Hilario in the discus (114-4) are top Lady Steer prospects

Big Spring has three good relay times - 400 (51.18), 800 (1:51.89) and 1,600 (4:15.55)

The Stanton Lady Buffalos have three good relays. Their times are 51.74 in the 400 relay, 800 relay (1:51.02) and 1,600 (4:18.61).

Wylie has three good relays itself 52.87 in the 400; 1:53.11 in the 800 and 4:18.23 in the 1,600.

Staci Sessom of Wylie has run a 63.10 in the 400 and 2:27.43 in the 800

Colorado City has two good discus throwers in Christi Hulme (121-4) and Rosemary Rosas (103-10)

SNYDER — The Big Spring Steers got a six-hit pitching effort from John Kennedy and Louis Bustamante to win their opening game of the Snyder tournament, 9-3, over Canyon High Thursday.

The win gives Big Spring a 3-6 record. The Steers play the winner of the Snyder-West Texas game today at 5 p.m. If Big Spring wins that game, the Steers will play the winner of the Brownwood-Frenship contest Saturday at 9 a.m.

Kennedy got the win for Big Spring, going four innings and allowing three runs.

Bustamante pitched the last two innings. The game was called after six inning because of the two-hour time limit.

Right fielder Jon Downey and catcher Mike Oliva paced Big Spring with two hits each. Oliva drove in three runs, including two with a first inning double. Downey drove in two runs. Abel Hilario got a hit and drove in two runs in the winning cause.

"We've been playing pretty good the last three or four games," said Steers coach Bobby Doe. "We'll pitch Frankie Martinez today and Saturday we'll try to stay in the game but we won't waste anything because we start district Tuesday.'

FORT WORTH (AP) - Martin Baldwin, formerly of Big Spring, and now of Odessa, advanced to the light middleweight semifinals at the Golden Gloves state tournament.

Baldwin beat Clay Lankford of East Texas.

Defending bantamweight champion Chris Hamilton of Wichita Falls has managed to reach the finals of the State Golden Gloves tournament by outpointing Mario Mendoza of Odessa.

Another returning champion wasn't so fortunate Thursday night. Mac McLin of Odessa was ousted by Juan Herrera of Corpus Christi in their flyweight bout. McLin was last year's light flyweight champion.

Herrera, the USA Boxing's No.2 ranked flyweight derailed McLin's bid for another title by continually pressing the fight to negate McLin's longer reach. "I figured he would try to run," 'Herrera said, who knocked a backpedaling McLin to the canvas in the second round.

McLin, who was given a standing 8-count, disputed the knockdown and the decision. "I was backing up and he hit me in the chest and was stepping on my foot," McLin said. "I don't see how he won. He never hit me with a clean shot.

All five judges gave the nod to Herrera, who moved into Saturday night's finals where he will meet Juan Delgado of San Antonio, who won a unanimous decision against Javier Buentello of Wichita Falls.

Finalists were determined in the light flyweight, flyweight and bantamweight divisions. Semifinal bouts will be held tonight in the other nine weight classes.

He said the firm employed 96 persons compared to a projected 98 and expended $375,000 on materials locally compared to a projected $1.2 million. Morris said the firm can show more than 96 names of local persons employed, but that the total hours were less than the projected 98 man-years.

"We had not tracked our employment or purchasing by county before," Morris explained. "We thought we spent more than that, but we overestimated.'

Morris said that he felt the company's experiences with the first two abatements in regards to estimating employment and expenditures would make current projections more accurate.

Data provided county officials show local labor expenditures of $3.7 million on the first two projects.

The project on which Fina is requesting the abatement will employ an anticipated 100 manyears - 100 jobs for the duration of the year-long project - at an average wage of $9 per hour. The minimum impact of the payroll in Howard County is estimated at $1.9 million.

Morris provided charts that showed investments at the refinery as well as the tax obligation of the refinery and pointed out that the total difference to Howard County in tax collections would be $100,000 annually.

"If the abatement is not granted, we will pay $500,000 annually in taxes. If the abatement is granted, our taxes would be $400,000," Morris explained.

Morris said the refinery paid $1 million in taxes in 1987 and $1.6 million in 1990.

"I don't think it's fair for the taxes on the refinery to triple in six or seven years," he said, referring to a chart projecting the refinery's tax liabilities.

He also cited $33 million in marginal projects that could be in jeopardy if the abatement is not granted.

That certification can be followed by two more semester courses (16 more credits) at the college and tests at a cost of about $850 to get a paramedic certification.

But the 911 board will not address those issues until after the Nov. 3 election, Dorton said. "The board does not want to do anything to get someone elected or to get someone out of office. They want to wait until the dust settles.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Exposure to second-hand cigarette smoke increases the risk of heart disease among non-smokers by significantly narrowing their arteries, a researcher says.

The link between second-hand smoke and narrowing of the arteries - by virtue of a thickening of the artery walls - "is a strong effect," said George Howard of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, N.C. He is principal author of the study released Thursday.

Narrower arteries are more prone to clogging by cholesterol deposits and clots. Blockage of those arteries causes heart attacks and strokes.

The study is the first to use ultrasound to examine arteries directly to look for the effects of secondhand smoke, Howard said.

"The point is to get a more direct measure of the process" that leads to a heart attack, Howard said at the annual American Heart Association meeting on heart disease epidemiology.

Exposure to second-hand smoke is an established risk factor for lung cancer, but its role in heart disease has only recently become clear, researchers said.

Last year, a study in the American Heart Association's iournal Circulation found that second-hand smoke caused an estimated 37,000 heart disease deaths per year among nonsmokers in the United States.

Howard said the researchers also found that the more hours per week a person was exposed to second-hand smoke, the narrower the arteries. Although that effect was smaller than the overall association, it helped give the researchers confidence they were correctly assessing the data, Howard said.

Also boosting their confidence in the findings was a consistent pattern when they compared nonsmokers to smokers.

People who had never smoked and who said they weren't exposed to second-hand smoke had the least artery narrowing.

Denominational officials want allocated money

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion write

A big, mutimillion dollar religious organization seeks to take away a $300,000-fund allocated more than a quarter century ago to a small, longtime but now disowned adjunct. It has kept the money on deposit since 1964.

Time, frayed relationships and group keep the fund would be a sometimes vague records tangle the case.

The large organization says that seeking the fund is a matter of fiscal responsibility. But the little group likens the effort to the biblical story of a rich sheep owner seizing a poor man's only lamb.

The disputed account bears the name of "BJCPA Capital Needs Fund." The acronym means Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, a Washington lobbying group of nine Baptist denominations on religious liberty causes.

It has received annual interest from the account to pay on rent. But the principal is now claimed for the biggest, richest Baptist body, the 15 million-member Southern Baptist Convention, which has quit the BJCPA.

The denomination's executive troversial court decision. Southern Baptists, after quitting the joint committee and halting support of it, turned religious liberty concerns over to their Christian Life Commission, which deals with various social issues. It promptly laid claim to the fund.

The money originally was allocated 28 years ago by the Southern Baptist Convention to the BJCPA to share in paying for a new Baptist building in Washington. But no building has been acquired. The fund, deposited with the Southern Baptist Foundation, paid interest regularly to the BJCPA, totalling $568,384 through last year. The BJCPA instructed the foundation in decisions about fund investments. After the rival claims arose, the

tion to close the account, saying "attempts to pilfer" it caused the BJCPA to decide to purchase a building instead of renting.

But the foundation, confronted with the conflict and sometimes ambiguous past references in correspondence relating to the account, froze it and asked the denomination's executive committee to resolve the dispute.

The committee, after a subcommittee spent weeks examining records going back to 1964, adopted a proposal for the fund to be reallocated to denominational causes that the committee "deems appropriate."

That likely would include the commission newly assigned to handle public affairs. Action on the proposal comes at the denomination's convention in June. The executive committee, in asking reallocation of the fund, said it would "dilute the voice" of the denomination to leave the money with the BJCPA since it holds differing views.

The committee proposes reallocating the money to organizations that share the denomination's "theological ideologies.

BJCPA's counsel Thomas said that for the denomination to take back the fund after it has been under the "exclusive domain and control" of the BJCPA for 27 years would "cast a dark cloud over reliability of Southern Baptist institutions" to stick to agreements.

"If they can do this to the joint committee, they can do it to anybody."

Thomas said the BJCPA hasn't yet decided whether to challenge in court any convention action to take the money. He said the $300,000 is 'only a pittance" to the denomination with its "vast resources and $140 million budget" but is substantial to the BJCPA with its $800,000 budget

A new leadership

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) The Episcopal House of Bishops, after three days of discussion at a mountain retreat center, has called for a "new way" of exercising their joint leadership.

In practical terms, the new approach means seeking greater consensus in making decisions rather than by siding with blocs in legislative fashion.

Salvation Army's "red kettle cam paign" in the 1991 Christmas season raised $159 million, an increase of $10 million over the amount raised the previous year, the Army's headquarters reports.

It was the 100th year in which the Army has hung kettles at busy points on sidewalks of U.S. cities to receive donations from passers-by. In the six-week holiday period, the Army said it assisted 7.1 million people, up from the 6.5 million the year before, with demands for several basic services increased.

Among these were holiday dinners and toys, clothing requests, services for the elderly and requests for rent and utility assistance from suburban families. "The Army was able to meet increased demands due to increased contributions," said Commissioner James Osborne, the group's national commander. "The American people were extremely generous in spite of the economic times.'

some toy names

CINCINNATI (AP) - Toys with names like Puke Shooters, Snot Shot, Butt Kickers and Chunk Blowers could soon get more appealing monickers, Kenner Products says.

The Cincinnati-based toymaker said Monday it would respond to consumer complaints by changing the names of some of the toys in its new Savage Mondo Blitzer line.

But the company declined to say which toys will be renamed or how soon the renamed versions will reach stores, and a critic said the name change would be only a cosmetic solution.

The toys are plastic figures that roll on wheels. They don't do what their names imply, but have grosslooking faces and carry weapons in threatening poses.

'It's a very, very poor response. It still doesn't cover their obligation to produce positive toys that create positive self-images for children," said Sharon Cooley, a first-grade teacher in suburban Loveland.

Mrs. Cooley and several colleagues at Mann Elementary School complained to Kenner that the toys are vulgar and suggest to children that violence is acceptable.

Kenner said it received no consumer complaints about the toys during test marketing in Indianapolis in January and February, and sales exceeded the ompany's expectations. The comany began selling the toys nafionally two weeks ago

Kenner, owned by Hasbro Inc. of Pawtucket, R.I., said the toys were "fun, wacky and humorous characters on wheels to appeal to boys who enjoy action figures and ehicle play.

DEAR MRS. L.P.: Don't delay any longer doing what is right even if it is painful or makes you anxious Repeatedly in the Old Testament God's people were commanded to make restitution when someone was cheated or something was stolen. Theft was a sin - but it also was a sin not to make things right. "If anyone sins ... about something entrusted to him or left in his care or stolen, or if he cheats him ... he must return what he has stolen. ... He must make restitution in full" (Leviticus 6:2,4,5).

It won't be easy, but I urge you to go to your employer privately, tell him what you did, and then pay him back fully. I suspect your employer will be grateful for your honesty in wanting to set things right. It may also help him to set up a system of controls which will prevent theft by others in the future. Zacchaeus had cheated many people as a tax collector, but when he came to Christ he determined to pay it all back — and then some know that if his behavior does not (see Luke 19:1-10).

Your greater need, however, is to seek God's forgiveness - for you have also sinned against Him. And God wants to forgive you, because there is no choice. It is true that the just slip the money back into the He loves you and He does not want you to be separated from Him (which is what sin does). Christ died on the cross as the perfect and complete sacrifice for your sins. Open your heart to Him, and ask Him to forgive you and cleanse you today.

> DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I don't know how to handle my boss. At first I just thought he was being friendly with me, inviting me out to lunch occasionally, but now it's clear it is much more than that. Often he makes comments with sexual overtones, and now he's getting bolder - even pressing me to spend the weekend with him at a convention. I need the job, but I can't take much more of this. -J.D.

DEAR J.D.: You need to deal with this frankly and openly, and let him know that while you want to do the best job you possibly can for the company, that you will not tolerate his harassment. Many companies today are much more sensitive about this issue, and he should be aware of this. He should change you'll have to take up the matter with his superior.

Although it's not easy to confront a person in this situation, at times

Bible urges us to avoid unnecessary quarrels: "It is to a man's honor to avoid strife" (Proverbs 20:3). But it also recognizes that when important moral issues are at stake then we must take a stand against what is wrong. The Bible says, "My son, if sinners entice you, do not give in to them. ... Do not set foot on their paths" (Proverbs 1:10, 15).

Don't compromise with what you know is right - either on the job or away from it. Instead, build your life on the solid foundation of God and His Word. If you've never done so, turn your life over to Christ and ask Him to keep you from impurity and to lead you in the future. You can commit the future to Him - including your job. "For surely, O Lord, you bless the righteous" (Psalm 5:12).

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My sister and I are worried about our father. He's had several small strokes that seem to have affected his memory and his ability to make decisions, and we think he would be better off in a nursing home instead of living by himself. But he won't hear of it, and even gets angry when we mention it. How can we help him? -Mrs. G.K.S.

DEAR MRS. G.K.S.: First of all, I'm thankful for your concern for your father. Far too often today the elderly are almost forgotten by others, sometimes even by their children. But God commands us to "Honor your father and your mother" (Exodus 20:12) - no matter how old they are. From the cross just before His death, Jesus told one of His disciples to take care of Mary, His aging mother (see John 19:25-27) Let me suggest first of all that you speak with your father's doctor about his condition. He needs to know your observations and concerns, and he may have some specific recommendations to make. Your father may also be more open to his suggestions than to your urgings if a move is necessary.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How do you answer people who claim that the Bible is inaccurate and full of contradictions and myths and fables? This is what a man in my office says whenever I try to say something to him about God or Christ, and I don't know how to answer him. -V.G.

DEAR V.G.: Perhaps one way to answer him might be to ask him politely'- to show you an example from the Bible. Very probably he'll. have nothing to say in return. Usually, I have found, a person like this has never read the Bible for himself and actually knows very little about the Bible, and is only repeating things he's heard others say

Even if he comes up with a difficulty you may not be able to answer yourself, realize that he's not the first person to make this claim and that scholars have already examined them exhaustively - and have found answers to them. If necessary, your local Christian bookstore can suggest some books which deal with these issues and show why the Bible can be trusted. The Bible reminds us, "Every word of God is flawless" (Proverbs 30:5).

Secret of marriage is sharing everything

DEAR ABBY: I like your column, and 95 percent of the time you are right. This time, I think you are wrong. My wife and I were married at 18 and 19 years of age. We have a great son and daughter as well as six wonderful grandchildren. Our grandchildren even bring their boyfriends and girlfriends to visit us on our farm and to ask our opinions on many subjects.

Your answer with regard to a letter from a reader who does not like his wife opening his mail without his permission is in bad taste and incorrect. Our wonderful marriage has lasted 50 years because it includes no secrets, both participants working for the same goal, always talking nice, no drinking, no smoking, no cussing, and we kiss each other at least 50 times a day! We , but was not as fortunate as you:

DENNIS THE MENACE

Dear Abby

have no money problems and have no need for privacy between one another. I think your views about a spouse being entitled to his or her privacy are incorrect. - PAUL PENCE JR.

DEAR PAUL: My congratulations to you for an ideal marriage. A marriage license does not confer automatic permission to read mail addressed to one's spouse. Read on for someone who had that problem,

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

DEAR ABBY: This advice is for "Straight Arrow," whose wife opened all the mail that came to the house, regardless to whom it was addressed.

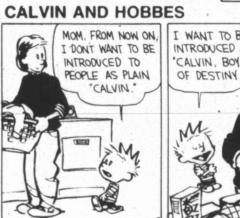

I had the same problem. I worked days; my husband worked nights. He opened all the mail. My resentment kept growing, and consequently I accumulated a lot of anger. Then one day, I got some good advice from a co-worker. She said, "Rent a P.O. box and have all your mail sent there." So I told my husband I had had enough of my privacy being violated and that I was getting a post office box.

I filled out change-of-address cards for my friends, creditors and relatives, and I keep the key to my P.O. box in a drawer at my office. Now, I go to check for my mail during the lunch hour. I never had anything to hide, either. But having my personal mail opened (by mistake, or otherwise) really irritated me.

Now ... there is never a problem. - ANGRY NO MORE IN GULFPORT, MISS.

DEAR ABBY: I travel for business reasons and frequently dine in restaurants. I have noticed that on several occasions the server will take my money to pay the bill, then ask me if I "want any change" - obviously intending to keep all the change as a tip, unless I object.

The sum of the change has sometimes been substantial, and I feel put on the spot when asked this question, which irritates me. I have actually ended up giving the server a smaller tip than I had originally intended.
