Guidelines established regarding prison hearing

Thursday's public hearing on the proposed Texas Department of Criminal Justice prison facility for Big Spring will follow guidelines established by TDCJ.

The meeting will be held at Big Spring Municipal Auditorium and will begin at 7 p.m. Guidelines to be followed include:

- All persons in attendance must sign-in and register.
- Persons wishing to speak must fill out a registration card.
- Each side will be afforded an equal opportunity to present its viewpoints.
- Local elected officials will present their viewpoint at the start of the meeting with a time limit of two minutes per official.
- A brief overview of the proposal will be presented.
- Persons in opposition will be afforded the same amount of time to present their side.
- Public input, alternating for and against, will be accepted for up to one hour with a time limit of two minutes per person.

For more information on the hearing, call Moore Development for Big Spring at 264-6032.

New features upcoming

In an effort to provide more services to its readers, the Big Spring Herald will soon begin offering a number of telephone-based services.

Scheduled to debut April 15 will be Perfect Date®, an introduction column for adults 18 and over. Perfect Date® will offer a fast, free, convenient way to place personal ads. No ads will be accepted that are suggestive, sexual or offensive to the public and all ads will be screened.

Perfect Date® will offer adults an alternative way to screen contacts before meeting people.

Other new telephone features to be available this week include Accu-Weather forecasts and travelers weather, sports scores and sports news, daily soap opera update, daily horoscopes, stock market reports updated every 15 minutes and movie reviews.

Advisory board may face challenge

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council's Citizens Advisory Board is facing challenges even before its membership is official.

Fraternal Order of Police attorney David Twedell said the board, as it is set up, could face legal challenges. "We're very troubled with the proposal as is. We do anticipate legal problems coming out of this," he said.

In Tuesday's council meeting, 12 local citizens were nominated as members of the advisory board, which will review cases of citizens' complaints and present their findings to the chief of police and the city council.

The board is supposed to be in rough approximation of the ethnic diversity of Big Spring, said council member Mark Sheedy.

- Appointed were:
- Joyce Crooker, who served on the bylaws committee.
  - Floyd Green, an employee of Security State Bank
  - Local attorney Wayne Basden.
  - Robert Garcia, a manager at Don's IGA.
  - Jesse Jones, who works at the Veterans Administration Medical Center.
  - Earl Lusk.
  - Brenda Brooks, who served on the bylaws committee.

Council may contest lawsuit

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council may contest a redistricting lawsuit brought against the city by the League of United Latin American Citizens.

In Tuesday's meeting, the council voted to transfer $50,000 into the city's legal budget to compensate for the expense of a possible legal battle against the LULAC suit, filed more than a year ago to contest current council districts.

Council member Corky Harris took exception to the transfer saying, "As many things as the city needs, to spend $50,000 on this is not something that is palatable to me. I think we ought to work this out and not end up in court on this issue — I recommend failing the issue."

Following a motion by Ladd Smith and a second by John Coffee, the vote was passed, however, with Pat DeAnda and Harris voting

Brown edges Clinton; Bush romps

NEW YORK (AP) — Democrat Jerry Brown said today he would carry his Connecticut upset forward into critical New York while a chastened Gov. Bill Clinton aimed new attacks at his lone rival and vowed to put his march toward the presidential nomination back on course.

"This is a cause, a movement, and its picking up," Brown said on network morning shows after squeaking by with a 1-point win over Clinton in Tuesday's Connecticut primary. He again named civil rights leader Jesse Jackson as his choice as a running mate if he won the nomination.

Brown scored the narrowest of victories in Connecticut, 37 percent to 36 percent.

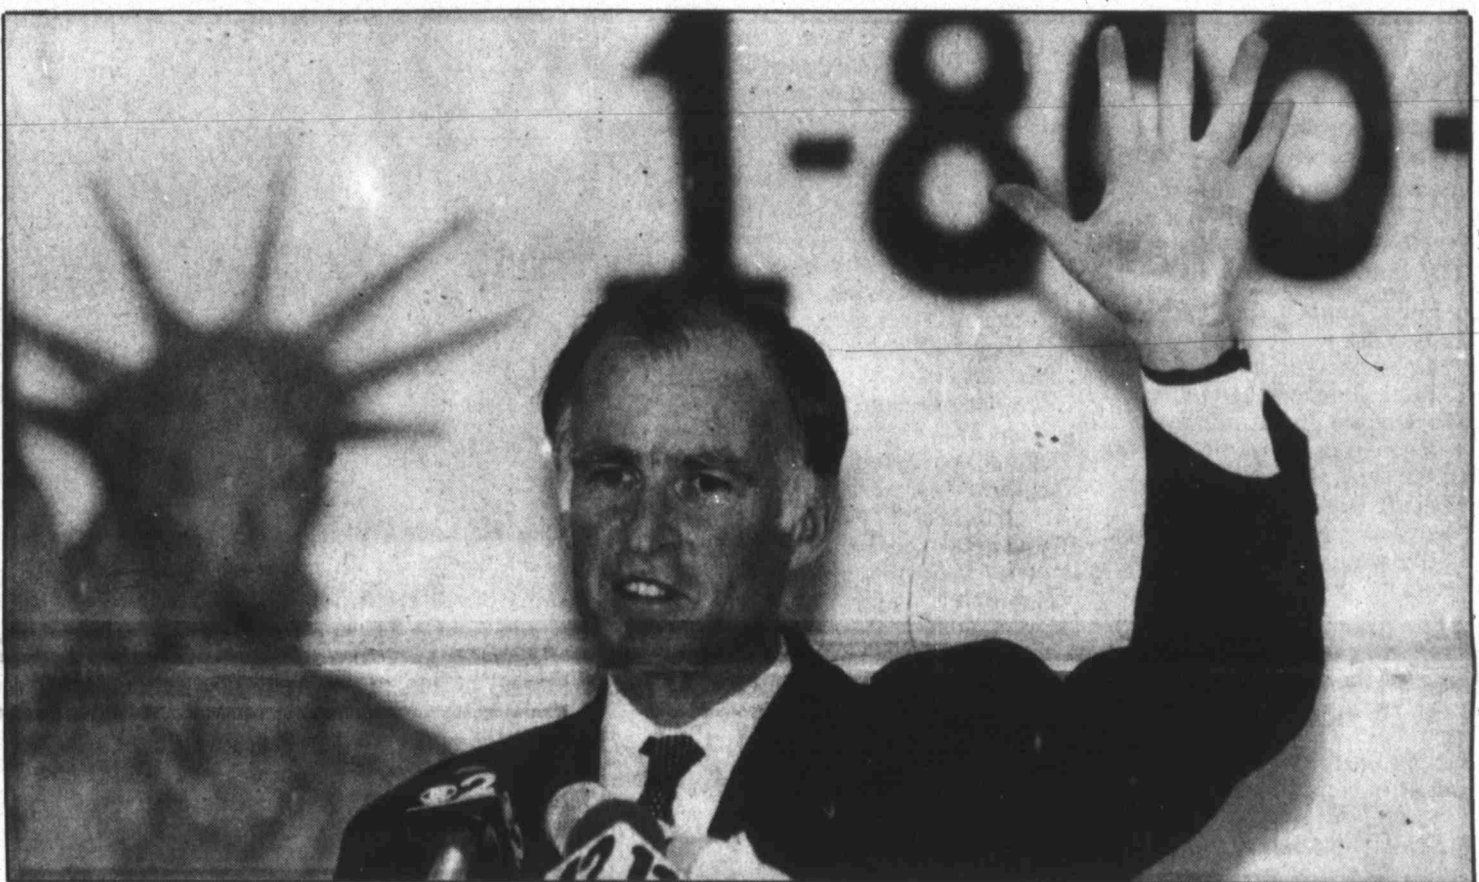

President Bush again thrashed conservative commentator Patrick Buchanan, 67 percent to 22 percent. But when support for uncommitted and David Duke was added to Buchanan's votes, the protest vote against the president still represented one-third of the total.

"I'm pleased with the results," Bush told supporters in a telephone call. "This is a screwy year. Frankly, I'm much more optimistic now."

Clinton vowed to halt Brown's insurgency, aggressively attacking the former California governor's flat-tax proposal and promising "we'll roll up our sleeves" to regain momentum in the April 7 contests in New York, Wisconsin and Kansas.

Brown said he wanted the advice of New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, who has been on the outs with Clinton, on "how to save the cities," as the candidates focus on that state's primary.

The former California governor warned that Bush would win if Clinton became the Democratic nominee. "The only chance we have is to move Clinton aside and give our party the opportunity to challenge Bush with credibility, with honesty, with some imagination."

Democratic presidential candidate Jerry Brown speaks at the Hotel Trades Council office in New York City Tuesday after defeating Democratic rival Bill Clinton in the Connecticut primary.

Despite Brown's surprising win, Clinton maintained his overwhelming lead in the delegate race. Clinton won 22 delegates to Brown's 21 because of allocation rules, stretching his delegate lead over Brown even in defeat.

The Connecticut results were still trickling in when Clinton and Brown shifted the focus to the contests ahead, with the most attention on the biggest trophy: New York. Both men campaign there today.

Brown's call for a 13 percent flat tax "declares war on New York," Clinton said, maintaining that it would trigger an accompanying 13 percent sales tax. "It would triple taxes on the poor, increase taxes on the middle class by 30 percent and lower taxes on rich Americans."

Brown said Clinton's information came from "those folks in Washington who love" the current tax system.

In addition to their post-election speeches, Brown and Clinton also appeared together on ABC-TV's "Nightline" program, where both endorsed the use of force if Iraq refused to cooperate with U.N. nuclear inspectors.

Both also tried to position themselves as Washington outsiders.

"I don't think you can posture yourself as an outsider next to me," Brown told Clinton.

"He became a convert to this reform the day he announced for president," Clinton retorted.

It was a pointed but polite preview to what promises to be a hectic campaign over the next two weeks.

For Brown, the challenge is to prove he can win in a big state like New York.

Mauro aide denies collecting state pay for Clinton work

AUSTIN (AP) — A top aide to Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says he did not draw his state pay while working on the campaign of Democratic presidential hopeful Bill Clinton.

"I have no official role in the Clinton campaign, other than as a volunteer," aide Tucker Sutherland said in an interview Tuesday.

Sutherland is a special assistant to Mauro, who chairs Clinton's Texas campaign.

The Houston Chronicle reported in a copyright story Tuesday that the Clinton campaign paid $8,600 to Sutherland's company for organizing the candidate's South Texas tour on Nov. 25.

Sutherland said his son, Craig, did perform the Clinton campaign work on the South Texas tour, except for one event. The elder Sutherland said that he arranged for Clinton to attend a San Antonio Press Association function.

The Chronicle also reported that Sutherland used a state-owned, tax-exempt mobile telephone to call Clinton's national headquarters in Little Rock, Ark., and make other calls associated with Clinton's campaign. Sutherland said he may have used his state phone while making arrangements for Clinton to meet the press association. He said he routinely reimburses the state for calls not related to government business.

"I've always repaid the state for my telephone calls," Sutherland said.

Mauro last week acknowledged what he said was mistaken use of state telephones to make more than 200 Clinton-related phone calls between Dec. 1, 1991 and March 11.

On Monday, Mauro also said he planned to reimburse the state for flight time of a state aircraft that picked him up after a Clinton campaign event in Wichita Falls. Mauro said he had used the plane earlier for state business, and the pilot took it to Wichita Falls on his own to avoid bad weather.

The Texas Republican Party is calling for federal and state investigations of Mauro campaign activities.

Sutherland on Tuesday criticized a Houston Chronicle newsman over reports about Mauro's involvement with the Clinton campaign.

Senator Rudman will retire from Congress

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Sen. Warren Rudman, who helped lead the Iran-Contra inquiry and sponsored the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law, says he's fed up with Congress' political posturing and reckless spending, and he's getting out.

WARREN RUDMAN

The 61-year-old moderate Republican announced Tuesday he won't seek a third term.

"There comes a time when everybody ought to come home — and this is my time," he said. "Because, frankly, although I am not discouraged beyond repair, I am terribly frustrated. I do not see this Congress doing what has to be done while we have time to do it."

"There's so much politics," he said, "and I enjoy substance."

Rudman said he has no specific plans, but may teach, practice law or take a job in private enterprise.

Elected to the Senate in 1980, Rudman has been credited with propelling an almost anonymous New Hampshire judge named David Souter to the Supreme Court and with forcefully pushing for a full accounting of the Iran-Contra scandal.

But he is perhaps best known as co-sponsor of the Gramm-Rudman Act. The law was supposed to force the government to curb spending and balance its budget by 1991.

But the deficit is expected to reach $348 billion this year, and Rudman called the measure's failure his greatest disappointment. He said Congress' inability to curb the deficit is a major reason he's leaving.

"How will we feel in the year 2000, those of us who were in the Senate in the '80s and '90s, as we watch the news reports of leaders of foreign governments dictating to the leadership of America the terms and conditions upon which they will loan us money to support our past profligacy?" he asked.

In Congress, Rudman is known for his blunt, no-nonsense style.

As the ranking Republican on the Iran-contra committee, he blasted the Reagan administration for trying to trade arms for U.S. hostages and upbraided Oliver North for leading the secret effort.

Cosmonaut returns to different world

ARKALYK, Kazakhstan (AP) — A Russian cosmonaut who had blasted off from the Communist-led Soviet Union returned to a different world today after 10 months aboard the space station Mir.

Sergei Krikalev, who rocketed into space on May 18, 1991, landed in Kazakhstan at 11:51 a.m. aboard the Soyuz TM-13 spacecraft along with fellow Russian Alexander Volkov and German Klaus-Dietrich Flade.

While Krikalev was in space, Communist governments toppled throughout Eastern Europe, his old country ceased to exist, his hometown of Leningrad was renamed St. Petersburg, and the once-proud Soviet space program had to turn to the West for money.

Krikalev (whose name is pronounced sur-'gay kree'-'uh-lawf)

While Krikalev was in space, Communist governments toppled throughout Eastern Europe, his old country ceased to exist, his hometown of Leningrad was renamed St. Petersburg, and the once-proud Soviet space program had to turn to the West for money.

was given smelling salts and appeared a bit dizzy after being lifted from the spacecraft today. But Commonwealth television reported that he was feeling "marvelous."

Krikalev spent 313 days in space. Volkov blasted into orbit in October. Flade had spent just eight days on Mir, going up with the first Russian space mission since the demise of the Soviet Union.

Ground workers lifted the three from their spacecraft, placed them in chairs and wrapped them in coats. They wiped their brows and then took their blood pressure. The cosmonauts smiled and waved at photographers, and all three drank bullion.

"Of my three landings, this was the smoothest," Volkov said. Krikalev, 34, originally was scheduled to return in October. But in order to be allowed to keep using the Baikonur Space Center in Kazakhstan, Russia had to strike a deal and send up an inexperienced Kazakh cosmonaut in October. That meant the veteran had to stay until this month.

Russia is turning to its former ideological adversaries for money to keep the 6-year-old Mir flying. Previous customers have included Japan, Britain and Austria.

Germany paid $24 million to send Flade, a test pilot, into space.

Flade rocketed to Mir with Cmdr. Alexander Viktorenko and Flight Engineer Alexander Kaleri, who are to stay until August. They will be replaced by a joint Russian-French mission.

Libya refuses to surrender two suspects

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi told Arab League envoys he won't surrender two suspects in the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 unless the World Court orders him to, an Arab diplomat familiar with the talks said today.

Gadhafi told the delegation that Libya's ambassador to the United Nations wrongly announced Monday that Libya would turn over the two men unconditionally and quickly to the Arab League, the diplomat said. He spoke on condition his name and nationality not be disclosed.

Libya faces the threat of U.N. sanctions if it does not turn over the two men wanted in the 1988 bombing of Flight 103 over Scotland, and four wanted in the 1989 bombing of a French airliner in Africa. The attacks claimed 441 lives.

The Arab diplomat agreed to discuss Gadhafi's message after the Arab League's secretary-general, Esmat Abdel-Meguid, returned from Tripoli, Libya's capital. Abdel-Meguid only told reporters: "Consultations are continuing."

Abdel-Meguid and his colleagues said they were too tired to answer questions.

Rushdie speaks instead of Wallace

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — The invitation sent to Washington journalists and educators promised a speech by Mike Wallace of television's "60 Minutes," but that was just a ruse.

When a door swung open and the guards stiffened, it was author Salman Rushdie who walked through to make a case that the world is losing interest in protecting him from the death sentence pronounced by the late Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini three years ago.

Man was taken from nursing home

POST FALLS, Idaho (AP) — An 84-year-old Alzheimer's patient had been checked out of a nursing home by his daughter hours before he was found abandoned at a dog track hundreds of miles away, police said.

John Kingery, a retired auto company worker, was left at the Coeur d'Alene Greyhound Park on Still, Rushdie, 44, in a rumpled maroon jacket, his hair overlapping his collar, seemed at ease Tuesday night at a Freedom Forum conference on barriers to free expression.

He could even joke. A Pakistani in the audience told him that not only Iranians — but Muslims the world over — were ready to carry out Khomeini's decree.

"Well, thanks for the information," said Rushdie, dryly.

Saturday, along with a bag of diapers. A note inaccurately identifying him had been pinned to his wheelchair.

Kingery was identified on Tuesday after nursing home officials in Portland, Ore., saw his picture on television, Post Falls Police Chief Cliff Hayes said.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as the result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate.

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Guidelines For Screening Mammography Established by the American Cancer Society.

- 35-40 years of age - One baseline mammogram.
- 40-50 years of age - A mammogram every 1-2 years depending on breast type and risk factor.
- 50 years of age and over - An annual physical examination and annual mammogram.
- Asymptomatic women under 50 years of age with significant high risk factors should be examined at appropriate intervals. These risk factors include previous breast cancer and family history of cancer.
- A symptomatic woman should have a mammogram at any age when she experiences a mass, nipple discharge, skin changes or unexplained breast pain.

A screening mammogram is an x-ray of the breast using extremely low dosages of radiation (usually comparable to dental x-rays) and is designed to find very early cancers.

A female technologist who is highly trained in mammography will perform the examination.

The charge for the screening mammogram is $65.00. The Unit accepts cash, check, Visa, Mastercard and American Express.

Time to stop the free ride

The response of many voters to the check-kiting scandal on Capitol Hill has been, "We don't get free money, why should Congress?" Good question.

Why should House members get free overdraft protection that amounts to interest-free loans? Why should they get discount haircuts and shoeshines? Or a gymnasium and swimming pool? Or pharmacy service and a private ambulance? Or taxpayer-financed junkets abroad and free parking at the airport? Or their own dining room, where they can sign their names instead of paying?

They shouldn't. If anything is learned from the check-kiting mess, it should be that members of Congress have to start living like the rest of us. The special privileges they have extended exclusively to themselves over the years have insulated them from the voters they are supposed to serve and helped breed such abuses as writing bad checks on a massive scale.

The perks need to stop. That's what the House leadership must do if it expects to regain the public's confidence.

The price of haircuts and meals should be raised to market level. The House and Senate gymnasiums should charge dues, and they should be far more than the present $100 per year, considering that the facilities compare favorably to posh fitness centers. If members of Congress want banking, they should start their own credit union, with penalties for overdrafts. And no more unpaid dining tabs at the House restaurant.

The administration of Congress should be turned over to a nonpartisan manager and run like a nonprofit corporation. All amenities should pay for themselves through user fees. Just like in the real world.

J. Edgar Hoover: The ultimate un-American

The man was a monster. He was also, in his twisted way, a genius. He professed to loath communism, yet he practiced the worst aspects of communism every day. During his lifetime he built a reputation as a 100 percent American. Twenty years after his death, we are beginning to see J. Edgar Hoover for what he was: the ultimate un-American.

James J. Kilpatrick

In her new study of the FBI under Hoover, "Alien Ink: The FBI's War on Freedom of Expression," Natalie Robins performs a notable public service. At great expense, and at prodigious investment of time, she used the Freedom of Information Act to obtain FBI files on 150 persons. Her review of those files provides the most fascinating reading of the spying.

Fascinating, yes, and terrifying also. George Orwell's fictional world of "1984" was not more ominous than the world of J. Edgar Hoover. His genius was in meticulous organization of random bits of intelligence. The man was a vacuum cleaner. His agents sucked up every morsel of information they could find on the subjects of Hoover's encompassing curiosity.

It was immaterial to Hoover if the filed information was true or false. It could be evaluated later. But file it! File everything! The director wanted every scrap saved.

The appalling truth that emerges from Robins' book is that law also was immaterial to Hoover. The FBI's authority extends only to suspected violations of federal law. In practice, Hoover ordered an investigation of any person whose ideas he disliked.

He hated ideas, distrusted them, feared their contagion. Thus he built files on people who had ideas. Writers are people who have ideas. Privately, as his memoranda make clear, he despised them.

For a ludicrous example of Hoover's paranoid mind at work, consider the 690-page file he accumulated on William F. Buckley Jr., editor of National Review. The file begins in 1941, when Buckley was 16 years old. His name went into the memory bank because his father was president of Pantepec Oil Co. of Venezuela, a foreign corporation.

By 1950 young Buckley had acquired excellent credentials as a patriotic, God-fearing American. An FBI agent filed a note that Buckley had been a guest speaker for a Foundation to Defeat Communism. Hoover was impressed. He offered Buckley a job as an FBI agent. Buckley was then an agent for the CIA. He politely declined.

Years passed, and the file on Buckley grew. In 1959 Hoover sent two agents covertly to cover a debate between Buckley and James Wechsler, editor of the New York Post. In 1962 Buckley took his son, Christopher, on a tour of the FBI building. Christopher dutifully sent a thank-you note to Hoover. The note is in the Buckley file. Christopher was 10 years old.

"Then Buckley committed the unforgivable sin," Robins remarks. "He ridiculed Hoover." This was in a satirical piece in National Review that alleged, tongue plainly in cheek, that Hoover had been arrested on a morals charge. Hoover, a man utterly devoid of a sense of humor, never forgave the impudent editor.

The director ordered files on other writers. A few of them — very few — were communists legitimately subject to surveillance as possible spies. The rest at some time had said something, or written something, sympathetic to socialism. They were pinkos. Hoover hated pinkos.

He especially hated pinko poets. They think too much. Such men are dangerous: Joyce Kilmer, Conrad Aiken, Robert Frost. He feared playwrights: William Inge, Clifford Odets, Moss Hart. He ordered that files be kept on Erle Stanley Gardner, writer of the Perry Mason novels, and Rex Stout, creator of Nero Wolfe. The names of Edna Ferber, Westbrook Pegler, Edith Wharton, H.L. Mencken went into the memory bank. He filed "rabble-rousers," "activists," "agitators."

Freedom of speech? Freedom of press? Freedom to believe? These were values that J. Edgar Hoover held in contempt.

The man was a monster. It is a travesty, but a fitting travesty, that the ugliest building on Pennsylvania Avenue should bear the name of the ugly man who ruled the FBI.

Congress leaves the real world

There was a quote in the business section of a newspaper that should be framed and sent to every member of Congress.

Paul Bennett, a yacht-maker from Wilmington, N. C., said: "It should be mandated," he began, "that you have to have had a career in business before you are ever allowed to be a politician. Right now, none of them knows how money works."

Congress, in an effort "to get the rich guys," as President Bush put it, ordered a luxury tax on such things as private automobiles, aircraft and boats. It was a stupid tax that didn't hurt rich guys. It hurt people who weren't rich. People who could afford boats quit buying them because of the tax, and boat manufacturers and workers took it right between the eyes.

The article reported one company, Californian Yachts of Rocky Mount, N. C., had to lay off 600 workers over the past 18 months.

What happens when somebody is elected to Congress, I am convinced, is he or she leaves the real world and forgets how it works.

Washington isn't the real world. Washington is Fantasyland. And just about everybody who lives and works there can be counted on to do something that will fall under the category of either Mickey Mouse or Goofy.

I'm like Paul Bennett. I would like to see a lot more people who have built and run successful businesses in Congress than professional politicians and lawyers.

"Right now," Paul Bennett had said, "none of them (politicians) knows how money works."

Where do you get that idea? A lot of congressmen obviously don't understand or have forgotten how a checking account works.

The first thing one needs to know about a checking account is you're not supposed to write a check for more money than is in your account.

But in Fantasyland, Congress has ignored that little rule and now we've got the congressional banking scandal.

An 8th-grader knows if you've got $10 in your banking account and you write a check for $20, you have written a bad check.

Private citizens sometime get put in jail for such.

But not members of Congress. They ignored all that and because they are members of Congress, their bank allowed them to get away with it.

Damn right we should know just who did the check bouncing and for how much.

It's scary. Here are a bunch of ninnies who don't know how to deal with their own money but they are the ones who decide what happens to our taxes.

One reason they never do anything about the federal deficit is that perhaps members of Congress don't really understand it.

If you can constantly get away with writing checks for more money than you have in the bank, who's going to worry about the country being a few trillion in a hole that just keeps getting bigger?

In private business, you watch every dime. If you don't, you stand a good chance of being out of business.

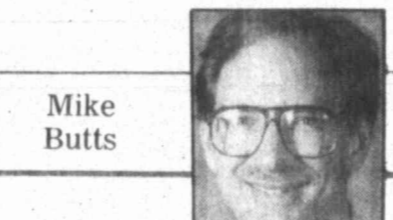

But when you deal with other people's money, the taxpayer's money, it's like a big Monopoly game. It's play money and if you run out of it, you simply reach in to the Monopoly bank and get some more.

Living simple life in Big Spring

American author Henry David Thoreau's advice to those suffering from the strain of modern living is to "simplify, simplify, simplify."

I wonder if his remedy is effective if the simplifying is not strictly voluntary?

After living with big-city complications virtually all my life, my recent move to Big Spring has made for some simplifying I would never have experienced had I not gotten a job with the Herald.

Mike Butts

I'll admit it, I'm a big-city person through and through: born, raised and completely accustomed to living in Dallas for all but about 14 months of my 38 years.

The only living I've done in anything resembling a small town was in Denton, when I went to the University of North Texas for a semester. And that doesn't count because Denton is too close to Dallas to have a real small town feel.

So living in a small town is entirely new to me.

"You're going to go crazy out there," a Dallas friend told me before I left. But I'm starting to think he's the one who's crazy for thinking quality of life suffers when you don't share your community with a million or more other people.

Sure, large cities have tremendous resources, but that can be overwhelming as well as beneficial.

Big Springers may think they have it tough because there are only two movie theaters in town, but I've found it to be a blessing in one sense. At any given time in Dallas there are about 40 movies to choose from at maybe 25 theaters. You could spend a weekend trying to decide which movie to see and which theater is closer.

In Big Spring, with six movies at two theaters, the choice is simple and the theaters are 10 minutes from anywhere in town.

In fact, everything is 10 minutes from anywhere in town. I live eight minutes from the Herald, and I haven't lived eight minutes from work since my first job as a teenager, when I rode a bike to the neighborhood five and dime.

The Big Spring malls may have a limited number of stores compared to Dallas malls, but it's a luxury for me to be able to park 100 feet instead of a half-mile away from their entrances.

When I called the city's cable company to start service, I was thrilled when a live voice answered the phone after one ring. In Big D you talk to a "representative" of the cable company only after you have navigated your way through a touch-tone directory maze and listened to promotional recordings for 20 minutes. They can have their 72 channels.

I hadn't been in town for two hours when a neighbor came over to introduce himself. I didn't meet my neighbors in Dallas until I asked to use their limb-lopper a year after I moved into the neighborhood.

Of course I miss the array of restaurants Dallas has to offer. There are more Thai food joints in Dallas than there are pizza places in Big Spring. But I don't miss the snooty atmosphere and pricey menus of so many Dallas eating establishments.

When I got the check after finishing a meal at what I consider one of the better restaurants here, I got sticker shock in reverse.

The other day I was called at work by a local restaurant operator. Apparently some of my co-workers had told her they worked with a vegetarian (me). My co-workers had told me the restaurant was going to run a vegetarian special, and the restaurant operator wanted to let me know the special had been changed to the next day.

How did she even know who I was? In Dallas this would not happen unless you owned the restaurant.

People here have an attitude towards clothing different from Dallasites.

In Dallas you feel as if you have to wear a freshly-ironed Ralph Lauren shirt to take out the trash. Casual wear in Dallas is not casual, unless you call an outfit that took hundreds of dollars and hours of mix and match trial and error to put together casual.

Thank goodness Big Spring isn't a fashion center. It's a relief to be able to fit in anywhere in town wearing a T-shirt.

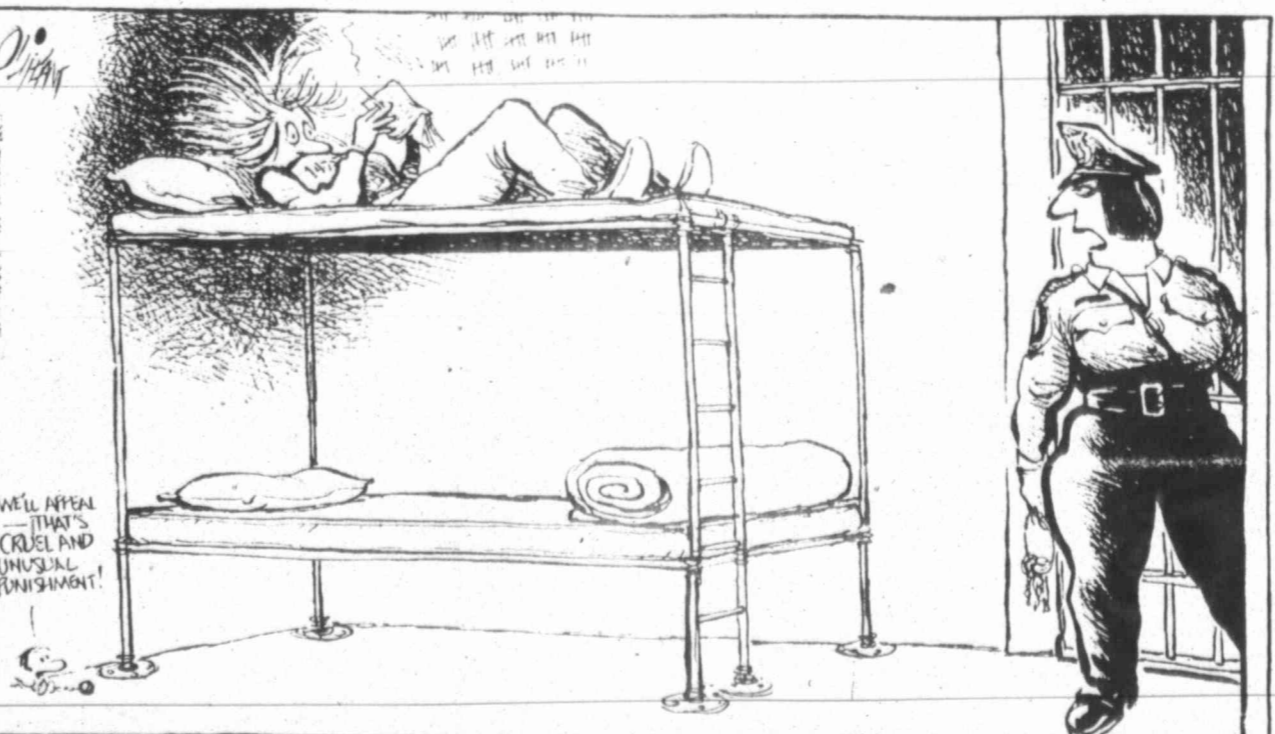

When I told that newly-acquainted-with-Big-Spring neighbor I was from Dallas, he was taken aback.

"Why'd you leave?" he said. But after giving it some thought, he was able to come up with a short but, as I was soon to find, accurate defense of Big Spring as compared to Dallas and its big city attractions:

"Well, it's peaceful."

Maybe "peaceful" is something you have to have come from Dallas to fully appreciate.

SWC a big power still

The Southwest stay in the NCAA basketball tournament was so sweet as SWC teams winless.

Both the Texas Longhorns and Houston Cougar pushed to the wayside first round, proving SWC is falling further from the rest of the college ball world.

Georgia Tech scored 11 points of the game the Houston Cougars game in which Houston back in a zone during Tech shoot almost to jump shots.

The Texas Longhorns usually play good during tournament time, we by Iowa 98-92.

I sure miss the Arizona Razorbacks now. Including, the Porkers are at the tournament. But Arkansas is a legitimate basketball team.

The Athletic Coast fence is flexing its the tournament, with teams advancing to 16. They are perennial North Carolina and I along with Florida State Georgia Tech.

But the ACC has a tough basketball league makes the sixth time that ACC teams have four spots in the regional semifinals. The 1987, '88 and all the ACC did it were send two teams Sweet 16.

So, it's easy to see ACC, even in seasons this, when the overall level is down, is always in the NCAA tournament.

The ACC has two of coaches in college basketball Dean Smith at North Carolina and Duke's Mike Krzyzewski's Tar Heels have advanced to 12 consecutive 16s. Only UCLA in the Wooden era has reached final 16 more times.

Krzyzewski's Blue Devils the defending national champions, are in their seventh Sweet 16 and have been to five of the past Final Fours.

What's been the biggest upset of the tournament? It wasn't Tulane over John's or East Tennessee. It was UNLV of Texas-El Paso's 66-60 Kansas.

UTEP's victory Sunday leaves the Big Eight, sidetracked by most the top conference this season with a 5-5 record through rounds of play. Of the Eight qualifiers to the tournament, only Oklahoma State remains.

On the other hand, the ACC has a chance although the odds are good as me losing 100 of sending four teams Final Four.

No doubt about it. It lies in the ACC.

Strike workers affect tournament

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. — The showcase Play Champions will go scheduled, a PGA Tournament executive promised, even if it's hit with its first round.

The use of paid members "is not the only way to run a golf tournament," commissioner Tim Finchem said Tuesday after a breakdown of negotiations with the union representing the field's officials.

Finchem said staff and "other quality personnel" will fill in for members of the Professional Golfers' Association of the $1.75 million tournament which begins Thursday.

"This tournament is other (PGA Tour) will continue uninterrupted," Finchem said.

Steers upset district favorite, 4-3

ANDREWS — Big Spring opened district 3-4A baseball play Tuesday with a 4-3 come-from-behind win over pre-district favorite Andrews.

Freshman Frankie Martinez ran his record to 3-1 and allowed five hits.

The Steers, 6-7 for the season, scored two runs in the top of the seventh on a double by Pat Chavarria and a single by Pat Martinez.

"It was a big win at Andrews 'cause they're a good ballclub," Steers coach Bobby Doe said.

Louis Bustamante took over for pitcher Martinez with one out and a man on first in the seventh to get the save. "He (Martinez) gets a bit nervous in the last innings, but that's something time will probably take care of," Doe said "He's getting some confidence."

Big Spring third baseman Mike Ross led off the game with a first-pitch home run to give the Steers an early lead, but Andrews scored in the bottom of the second and third innings to take a 3-1 lead.

In the sixth Jon Downey cut the Steers' lead to 3-2. He got on base on an error, went to second on a wild pitch, stole third and came home on an error on the catcher.

Big Spring	1-0
Sweetwater	1-0
Fort Stockton	1-0
Pecos	0-0
Andrews	0-1
Monahans	0-1
Lake View	0-1

Tuesday's Results
Sweetwater 15, San Angelo Lake View 5;
Fort Stockton 9, Monahans 7; Big Spring 4,
Andrews 3; Pecos 8, Kermit 2 (non-district).

Big Spring at Monahans; Andrews at Pecos.

Saturday
Lake View at Fort Stockton.

In the top of the seventh, Sammy Gonzalez walked and was brought home on Chavarria's double. Pinch-hitter John Kennedy sacrificed Chavarria to third and Pat Martinez singled him in for the winning run.

The Steers play at Monahans 7:30 Friday.

SWC a big flop; power still in ACC

The Southwest Conference's stay in the NCAA basketball tournament was short and sweet as SWC teams went winless.

Both the Texas Longhorns and Houston Cougars were pushed to the wayside in the first round, proving that the SWC is falling further behind the rest of the college basketball world.

Georgia Tech scored the last 11 points of the game to beat the Houston Cougars 65-60, a game in which Houston set back in a zone during the waning moments, letting Georgia Tech shoot almost uncontested jump shots.

The Texas Longhorns, who usually play good during NCAA tournament time, were upset by Iowa 98-92.

I sure miss the Arkansas Razorbacks now. Incidentally, the Porkers are also out of the tournament. But at least Arkansas is a legitimate good basketball team.

The Athletic Coast Conference is flexing its muscles in the tournament, with four ACC teams advancing to the Sweet 16. They are perennial powers North Carolina and Duke, along with Florida State and Georgia Tech.

But the ACC has always been a tough basketball league. This makes the sixth time since 1984 that ACC teams have seized four spots in the regional semifinals. The three exceptions were in 1987, '88 and '91 and all the ACC did those years were send two teams to the Sweet 16.

So, it's easy to see: The ACC, even in seasons such as this, when the overall talent level is down, is always a force in the NCAA tournament.

The ACC has two of the best coaches in college basketball in Dean Smith at North Carolina and Duke's Mike Krzyzewski. Smith's Tar Heels have advanced to 12 consecutive Sweet 16s. Only UCLA in the John Wooden era has reached the final 16 more times.

Krzyzewski's Blue Devils, the defending national champions, are in their seventh consecutive Sweet 16 and have been to five of the past six Final Fours.

What's been the biggest upset of the tournament so far? It wasn't Tulane over St. John's or East Tennessee over Arizona. It was University of Texas-El Paso's 66-60 win over Kansas.

UTEP's victory Sunday leaves the Big Eight, considered by most the nation's top conference this season, with a 5-5 record through two rounds of play. Of the six Big Eight qualifiers to the NCAA tournament, only Oklahoma State remains.

On the other hand the ACC struts along with an 8-1 record. The ACC has a chance, although the odds are about as good as me losing 100 pounds, of sending four teams to the Final Four.

No doubt about it. The power lies in the ACC.

Hawks sweep Rangers

RANGER — Howard College prepped for their three-game conference series with New Mexico Military Institute by taking a doubleheader from the Ranger Junior College Rangers Tuesday, 16-6, 6-1.

The sweep gives Howard a 23-13 record. The Hawks play NMMI in Roswell, N.M. in a single game Friday at 2 p.m. The two teams play a doubleheader Saturday starting at 1 p.m.

Howard assistant coach Joe Almaraz said if Howard's pitching holds up, the Hawks will be all right. "We're playing better, we have some good days and bad days," said Almaraz.

"When our bullpen comes out and throws strikes, we can be good. When they can't we slowly deteriorate. The guys in the bullpen are working hard, hopefully they'll put something together."

Howard 16, RANGER 6
First baseman David Suarez gave Ranger pitchers fits as the freshman from Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico, blasted three home runs. For the game Suarez went four-for-five, driving in six runs.

Shortstop Demond Thomas was almost as deadly as Suarez, hitting two homers. Thomas went three-for-four at the plate, driving in three runs.

Jay Maldonado went the distance for Howard, gaining his sixth win of the season.

Howard scored three runs in the first inning, via a single by Henry Martinez, a walk by Santiago Rivera and Suarez's first homer of the game.

In the fifth Howard got another run on a solo blast by Suarez.

Howard added five more runs in the fifth inning as Maldonado helped his own cause by leading off with a homer. Roger Vilchez and David Snyder got singles in the inning and Thomas hit a three-run homer to cap off the scoring.

Howard College Hawks shortstop Santiago Rivera leaps over a runner in action earlier this season. The Hawks swept a doubleheader from Ranger Tuesday.

Howard iced the game with seven runs in the seventh inning. The big blow was a three-run homer by Suarez, followed by a solo shot by Thomas. Also in the inning, Maldonado doubled and Vilchez and Rivera singled.

In the second game Shane Ziegler and Edwin Corps combined to pitch a four-hitter as Howard batters cranked out 10 hits.

Ziegler started and got the win. He went the first four innings and left leading 4-1. Corps finished up. Howard got two runs in the third inning. Chad Dunavon homered and Martinez followed with a single and stolen base. James Espinoza singled, moving Martinez to third. Martinez scored on a single by Thomas.

The Hawks added two more runs in the fourth inning. Maldonado, Milton Diaz and Steve Barrera all singled. Barrera's single scored Maldonado. Diaz scored on a wild pitch.

The final two Hawks runs were in the fifth inning. Rivera singled and stole second. Thomas followed with a two-run homer, his fourth of the day. Thomas finished the second game with a two-for-four performance at the plate, and three runs batted in.

Utes stop Sun Devils

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State had the home-court edge. Utah had the better defense.

"I told the guys there is no tomorrow," coach Rick Majerus said after his team came from six points down in the last 3½ minutes to defeat the Sun Devils 60-58 Tuesday night in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Byron Wilson scored the go-ahead points on a pair of free throws after he was fouled on a breakaway with 25 seconds to play.

Arizona State led 59-58 when the Utes took the ball away from point guard Lynn Collins on a drive. The play exemplified the rugged defense of Utah, which outbounded the Sun Devils 35-24 and held them to 42 percent shooting from the field.

In Tuesday night's other NIT game, Rhode Island beat Boston College 81-80 in double overtime. The Rams visit Utah on Friday in a quarterfinal game.

Wilson led the Utes (22-10) with 16 points. Paul Afeaki scored 12 and had 10 rebounds, and Jimmy Soto added 11 points. Arizona State (19-14) got 24 points from freshman Mario Bennett and 16 from Stevin "Hedake" Smith but had only two other players score in the second half.

Craig Rydaldch cut Arizona State's lead to 58-57 with a 3-pointer with 2:02 remaining, the last field goal of the game. Rydaldch also rebounded a missed 21-footer by Smith with four seconds left and made a free throw for the final margin.

Arizona State called a timeout with 18 seconds left, and Smith, who hit a 3-pointer at the buzzer to give the Sun Devils a 32-31 halftime lead, was told to penetrate.

"I was told to make a shot in the last 10 seconds — any shot. It didn't matter what," Smith said. "We just couldn't score. I can't blame anyone. We just weren't taking good shots."

"I wanted Hedake to penetrate and dish on the last play, and their guard (Soto) did a good job of not letting him do that," said coach Bill Frieder, whose 1983-84 Michigan team defeated Marquette's Marquette squad en route to the NIT title.

Bennett had 15 points in the second half, including Arizona State's first nine. He also had one block, tying Alton Lister's single-season school record of 55 set in 1979-80.

"All I can say is that we can come on strong next year," Bennett said. "It was a good year and it was a bad year."

Despite Bennett's early flurry, the Utes came back to take a 43-42 lead on Phil Dixon's two free throws with 12:23 remaining. Wilson's three-point play 45 seconds later and Soto's steal and layup with 10:13 remaining gave Utah a 48-42 lead.

But Bennett hit a 3-pointer that started a 15-3 run that put Arizona State ahead 57-51 with 3:40 left.

Afeaki brought the Utes back with a free throw and a basket, setting the stage for Rydaldch's dramatic shot and Wilson's free throws.

Utah, which won the NIT in 1944 and finished second in 1974, had not gotten past the tournament's first round since then until this year. The victory gave the Utes a 9-8 record in NIT play.

Rhode Island 81, Boston College 80

Rhode Island also won on the road as Jason Alexander made a 3-pointer with 34 seconds left in the second overtime and the Rams survived the Boston College shots in the final 17 seconds.

After Boston College's Malcolm Huckaby made a jumper with 54 seconds left to move the Eagles ahead 80-78, Alexander hit his long jumper from the right side to win the game. Curley missed once and Huckaby failed to connect twice for the Eagles.

Longhorns start spring ball

AUSTIN (AP) — After more than three months of letting his players know his hard line on academics, Texas coach John Mackovic has unveiled his football strategy.

"I've had very little to say to almost anybody about football," Mackovic said Tuesday before the Longhorns kicked off spring practice.

"I think there are a number of players academically in this program who needed somebody to get their attention. I've tried to do that," Mackovic said.

Mackovic, who was hired Dec. 12 to replace David McWilliams, said Tuesday that he relishes the opportunity to help students work toward their degrees in addition to playing.

"When someone leaves this university, I want him to leave saying 'We had a great time playing football, but the rest of my life is going to be carved out a little better because I have an education.'"

The satisfaction of seeing players graduate is one reason why Mackovic said he has chosen to coach college football rather than try to work in the NFL.

Tyson sentence Thursday

PENDLETON, Ind. (AP) — If boxer Mike Tyson has to serve time in prison, "our plans are to process him normally," a Department of Correction spokesman said today.

Kevin Moore, executive assistant to the Correction Commissioner James Aiken, told reporters that Tyson is probably the biggest celebrity who has entered the state's correction system since gunman John Dillinger.

Moore led two groups of reporters through the Correctional Industrial Complex, one of seven facilities Tyson could be assigned to Thursday if Marion Superior Court Judge Patricia J. Gifford sentences him to serve time in prison.

The other six facilities include two maximum security facilities, the Indiana Reformatory, also at Pendleton, and the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City, as well as two other high-to medium-security facilities, the Indiana Youth Center at Plainfield and the Westville Correctional Center. The Correctional Industrial Complex is also a high-to medium-security facility.

The two others, which are low-to medium-security facilities, are the Branchville Training Center in Tell City and the Indiana State Farm in Putnamville.

Of the seven facilities, the CIC is the newest, built in 1988.

Tyson would be processed through the Reception Diagnostic Center in Plainfield, Moore said. That evaluation and assigning process typically takes 30 to 45 days to determine what security level is appropriate for the offender, where those needs can best be met and where there is available space.

Taken into consideration in the evaluation are the nature of the crime, criminal background, psychological testing.

Strike won't affect tourney

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — The showcase Players Championship will go on as scheduled, a PGA Tour executive promised, even if pro golf is hit with its first strike.

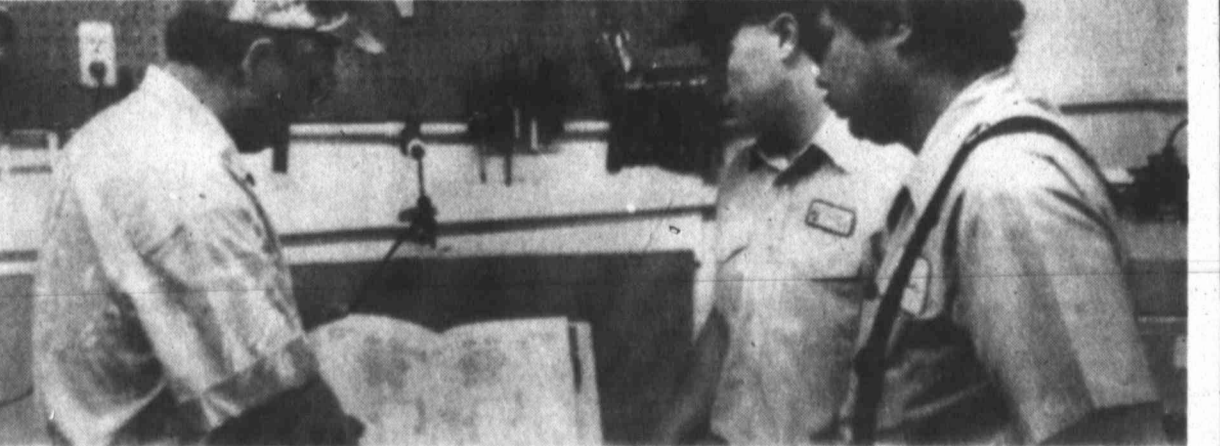

The use of paid employees "is not the only way you can run a golf tournament," deputy commissioner Tim Finchem said Tuesday after a breakdown of contract negotiations with the union representing the tour's field staff officials.

Finchem said management staff and "other qualified personnel" will fill in for striking members of the Professional Association of Golf Officials in the $1.75 million tournament, which begins Thursday.

"This tournament and all other (PGA Tour) tournaments will continue uninterrupted," Finchem said.

The tour's offer was signed by the four player members of the policy board.

Approval requires the support of 11 of 14 American League owners and seven of 12 National League owners.

Olajuwonless Rockets blasted by Sonics

The Houston Rockets' troubles with center Hakeem Olajuwon have them in trouble in the Western Conference playoff race.

The Seattle SuperSonics took advantage of Olajuwon's suspension, dominating the Rockets inside Tuesday night and beating them 128-106. The loss dropped the Rockets into eighth place in the conference, just one-half game ahead of the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Sonics outrebounded Houston 46-28, including 11 each by Shawn Kemp and Michael Cage, and got 32 more shots from the field.

Seattle also had 24 offensive rebounds to nine for the Rockets, who suspended Olajuwon Monday, claiming his hamstring injury isn't bad enough to keep him out of uniform.

"We were determined to raise the tempo because we knew we could get the defensive rebounds with Olajuwon out," Kemp said.

"We have to lift our play up to a different level without Olajuwon," Rockets guard Kenny Smith said. "That had to be one of the ugliest games I've played in. We were never in this game physically or mentally."

The Rockets lifted their game last year when they went 15-10 without Olajuwon when he broke a bone around his eye. But they are 2-8 without him this season.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was New York 126, Orlando 117; Cleveland 128, Indiana 113; Chicago 116, Denver 103; Portland 109, Dallas 83; and Sacramento 113, Milwaukee 102.

Derrick McKey scored 23 points, Ricky Pierce 20, Kemp 19 and Gary Payton 18 for the Sonics, who led 61-52 at halftime en route to their 10th win in 12 home games.

Seattle led 73-63 midway through the third period, then turned the game into a rout with a 94-72 lead after three quarters.

The Sonics outscored the Rockets 33-20 in the third period, with Kemp scoring 11 points and Pierce and Payton eight each.

Vernon Maxwell led the Rockets with 19 points.

Trail Blazers 109, Mavericks 83 Portland clinched a playoff berth and handed Dallas its 14th consecutive defeat and 22nd straight road loss.

Terry Porter scored 19 points for the Trail Blazers, nine of them during a 16-6 run in the third quarter that turned a 12-point lead into a 73-51 advantage late in the period.

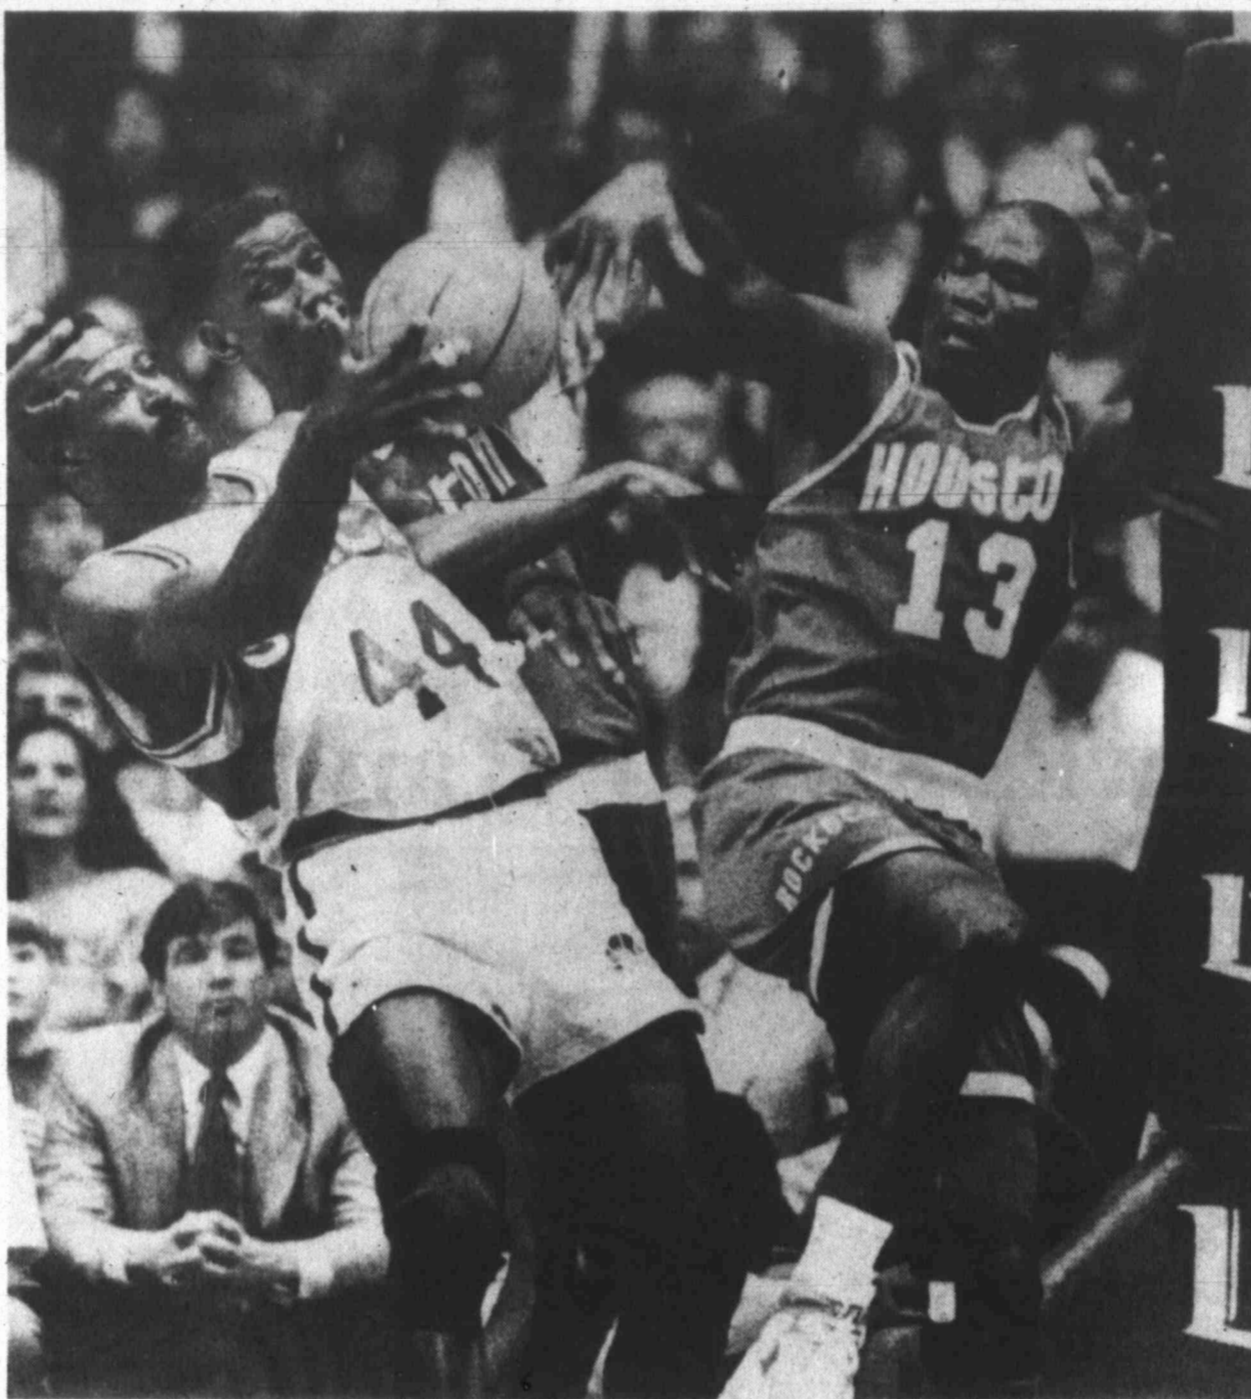

Portland's outscored the Mavericks' bench players 50-23 while the Blazers' leading scorer, Clyde Drexler, finished with just 10 points, 15 under his average, on 5-for-14 shooting. Doug Smith scored 15 points for Dallas, now 5-29 on the road this season and winless away from home since Dec. 23.

Bulls 116, Nuggets 103

Michael Jordan scored 50 points for the second time in three games as Chicago defeated Denver.

Jordan, leading the NBA with a 30-point average, scored 51 Thursday night against Washington, the high for a regulation game in the NBA this season. Against the Nuggets, he led the Bulls to their ninth victory in 10 games and 29th in 34 at home this season.

Plano High football coach resigns

PLANO (AP) — Tom Kimbrough, who coached the Plano High School Wildcats to three state championships, has resigned his post because of back problems.

Kimbrough, who compiled a 171-28-7 record in 16 seasons in the Dallas suburb, said Tuesday he will remain in the Plano Independent School District as an assistant to athletic director John Clark.

Plano assistant coach Gerald Brencel will replace Kimbrough.

"My back bothered me so much that I just couldn't enjoy practices anymore," said Kimbrough, who coached the Wildcats to the Class AAAA title in 1977 and the Class AAAAA title in 1986 and 1987. His 1987 team was 16-0.

The Wildcats were 10-2 in 1991.

"It's the only job I've ever had," said Kimbrough, 47, who became an assistant football coach to Clark following his graduation from Texas Christian University in 1968. He was an assistant for eight years.

It was the second time Kim-brough has resigned. In 1989, he resigned to take a job as athletic director and coach at Henderson in East Texas. Three weeks later, Kimbrough said he had "gotten used to the asphalt and concrete" in Plano and asked Clark if he could reclaim his job.

"Luckily for me, he said I could," Kimbrough said.

Brence, 32, a native of Oklahoma, was an assistant to Kimbrough for nine years and had earlier coached the junior varsity for two years.

In conversations with bank officers, Boulter said he wanted to cash a $57,000 cashier's check and avoid paying taxes on it.

The $57,000 check was drawn on the ProServ account at Sovran Bank in Washington and was numbered 329842. Among the $108,000 payments by Jordan that the NBA has said it would look at was a $77,000 check on the same account numbered 329841. ProServ is a Virginia sports management company that handles Jordan.

Attorney Stephen Gheen, who is handling Dow's estate, said the $77,000 check to Dean Chapman was to be divided among Dow and four others who won money from Jordan, The Observer said. Chapman was a longtime friend of Dow.

Gambling doesn't violate NBA rules unless wagers are placed on NBA games.

"Pete Rose matter," referring to the Cincinnati Reds manager's lifetime suspension from baseball for allegedly gambling on games.

After practice Tuesday, Jordan declined to answer questions about the checks.

The court documents filed March 10 included telephone transcripts of Boulter's calls from a cordless phone. Ashcraft said Boulter made the calls Oct. 4. They were taped by the Union County Sheriff's Department.

In one conversation, Boulter told a man identified as George that he won $200,000 to be paid to him in three cashier's checks.

Boulter suggested telling officials the money was a loan to buy the driving range, according to the transcript. When George asked if Boulter wanted to avoid taxes on the money, Boulter responded, "Hell, yeah."

Ashcraft has said Jordan is not under investigation.

But the NBA said last week it would look into check payments made by Jordan totaling $108,000 found in the estate of bondsman Eddie Dow, who was shot to death last month. Dow's lawyer and his brother said the checks were to pay gambling debts incurred by Jordan.

After practice Friday in Deerfield, Ill., Jordan said the NBA shouldn't worry because he never gambled on basketball.

Panel grills the FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration finds itself on the defensive again as a congressional panel investigates whether the agency has allowed unsafe medical devices on to the market.

The FDA is under pressure from the White House and others to speed up the process for approving new drugs and devices to get them into the hands of the sick and dying.

But the agency also must explain decisions that allowed certain drugs and devices to be sold, only to find out perhaps years later that there were serious problems or questions. In some cases it has cost people their lives.

A hearing today before the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations focuses on two devices: a synthetic jelly used during eye surgery and a radiation treatment machine that malfunctioned and killed some cancer patients.

This is the first of a series of hearings on the subject.

The synthetic jelly, manufactured by Optical Radiation Corp., was to be injected into the eye to keep it stable during surgery.

"Practitioners began reporting adverse reactions, including incidence of blindness and loss of visual acuity, only a month after approval," according to a subcommittee document. "The adverse reactions reported to the agency now exceed 270."

The company withdrew the product from the market last fall.

The committee also was hearing of malfunctioning linear accelerators sold by Theratronics, which is owned by the Canadian government.

"Beginning in 1985, these malfunctions included crushing patients and exposing cancer patients to fatal doses of radiation in some cases, and in other cases, either over or under exposures occurred," the subcommittee document said.

Council Some Panamanians want treaties to be renegotiated

against and Mayor Max Green, Tim Blackshear and Mark Sheedy voting for.

Following a closed session, the council took no official action. Midland attorney Rick Strange was at the session to advise the council, and will be working on a new map to be presented for LULAC's consideration, DeAnda said.

The council also passed on final reading, an agreement to accept solid waste from the city of Ozona, and voted to save half of the proceeds from this venture in a separate account to pay for the "capping" of the landfill when it is full, according to Public Works Director Tom Decell.

Although the acceptance of this waste could shorten the lifespan of the landfill from 25 years to as few as 20, the proceeds will cover the more than $1 million process of capping, Decell said. A separate fund was established for this purpose.

The council also authorized the Big Spring State Hospital to close Fourth Street between Runnels and Johnson Streets for the purpose of dedicating their new outpatient center in the old Southwestern Bell building, which the hospital has spent more than $100,000 restoring for that purpose, according to Administrator Robert Von Rosenberg. The dedication will be May 27, from 4 to 7 p.m.

Also in Tuesday's meeting, the council voted to:

- Pass on final reading a resolution to sign an agreement with Fiberflex Inc. for lease property at the McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark.
- Consider reevaluating the city's policy of charging $50 for the second roll out garbage container for single homes without alley access. The issue was brought before the council by Bob Coltrane whose container was stolen twice.
- Allow the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's Clean Committee to place concrete cacti, along with other landscaping, at various intersections in the community.
- Awarded a bid for a van for the Big Spring Correctional facility to the low bidder, Pollard Chevrolet.
- Approved the Karla Wester subdivision near Kentwood.
- Provide an emergency reading a resolution pledging full support for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice's prison location in Big Spring. An emergency was declared so that the proposal could be in hand for Tuesday's meeting with the state, said City Manager Hal Boyd.

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — To the glee of nationalists, the U.S. military is packing up under terms of the Panama Canal treaties. Yet some Panamanians, afraid of the economic impact, are having second thoughts.

"Thousands of jobs and hundreds of millions of dollars in business could be lost by the end of 1999, when all 10,000 troops are to be out."

Some Panamanians are calling for the treaties to be renegotiated to maintain at least some U.S. presence.

"The economic situation cannot absorb all of those workers," says Ray Bishop, who heads the union representing the civilian employees on the bases.

Bishop, whose father worked on the bases before him and whose grandfather helped dig the Panama Canal, has lobbied hard in Panama and Washington to get extension talks started. He says overgrown railyards full of rusted equipment and sagging buildings on land that has reverted to Panama belie claims that things will be different when Panama gets the rest.

"The best solution for Panama would be to renegotiate the treaty because this would give us job stability at least until the government develops an economy that can absorb us," agrees Luis Alberto Rivera, who has worked on the bases as a locksmith for six years. "I would like to see a total withdrawal, but that puts our jobs in danger," said Berta Pomare, an inspector in the garbage collection division since 1978.

The pullout from Panama, about 10 percent completed today, is another example of locals losing their Cold War dividend in a more peaceful world.

Police arrest suspect for syringe holdups

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police arrested a suspect in a string of holdups by a man who brandished a syringe he claimed was filled with his AIDS-tainted blood.

Wesley Pledger, 35, was being held without bail today after being booked Tuesday night for investigation of robbery, said Lt. John Dunkin. Police planned to seek robbery and assault charges today in eight cases, Dunkin said.

The syringe bandit struck nine times last week in the suburb of Northridge. He stole a car and robbed small amounts of cash from several businesses, including a hot dog vendor, a bicycle shop, a market and a convenience store.

Pledger was arrested Saturday on an unrelated parole violation after employees at a business recognized him from a police photo of the syringe bandit, Dunkin said. Witnesses later picked him out of a lineup, police said.

Pledger was arrested after police found drug paraphernalia, a violation of his parole on a 1991 robbery charge, Dunkin said.

Dunkin didn't identify the drug paraphernalia but said police hadn't recovered any syringes.

Board

- Archie Kountz, who served on the bylaws committee.
- Dr. Jay Warren.
- Carl Schoenfeld.
- Rudy DeLeon.
- Pat Craddock.

Twelve names were submitted in case one does not meet membership criteria.

The Citizens Advisory Board is designed to take only those complaints that have not been satisfied through the police department's grievance procedures, Crooker said.

According to the board's bylaws, which were passed into law following a second and final reading at the meeting, any officer called before the board must attend or be found insubordinate to the city council.

The officer, however, is protected from incriminating himself through testifying under the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, said City Attorney Mike Thomas.

Twedell takes exception to the lack of law enforcement input on the board and feels the bylaws, as written, prevent such input.

He also said he believes the board should be open under the Texas Open Meetings Act because it has the power to compel a witness to testify.

Thomas, however, said the bylaws are more of a constitution and the committee's rules and procedures will be established at a later date. At that time, provisions will likely be made to secure police department input as needed, he said.

The board will serve only in an advisory capacity and is not covered under the Open Meetings Act, Thomas said. It is the council which will compel an officer to attend as requested by the board, he added.

Twedell has a history of taking the city to task legally on issues regarding the police department. Last year Twedell was defeated by Thomas in a case before the Texas Supreme Court regarding the city's policy that forced a three-month delay on a charter amendment election.

Twedell and the FOP helped gather signatures on a petition calling for the charter amendment, which was defeated in February.

Read — lives depend on it.

Today, 27 million Americans are functionally illiterate. They can't read directions on an aspirin bottle. They can't read the ingredients listed on packages of the food they eat. They can't read warning labels on common household products they use. They can't even read this ad.

As publishers, the alarming rise in the rate of illiteracy across North America is of deep concern to us.

Close to 95 percent of Americans aged 21 to 25 read below the fifth grade level. Only two-fifths of young Americans read well enough to grasp the meaning of a typical newspaper column.

You can help reduce those illiteracy numbers. Get involved in one of the many literacy programs now available in our community. Please do your part. Keep reading. And help someone who can't.

Missile crews still manning stations

MICHIGAN, N.D. (AP) — The post-Cold War workday is no different than usual for Air Force specialists Capt. Jeff Schaff and 2nd Lt. Tom Hancock.

Eight times a month, they descend 60 feet under ground into a concrete bunker, screwing shut an 8-ton door behind them. For the next 24 hours, the controls to launch 10 nuclear missiles are at their fingertips.

While the Soviet Union has disintegrated, Russia and its neighbors still have nuclear missiles, and U.S. launch control centers such as one codenamed "H-O" in northeastern North Dakota are still primed for thermonuclear war.

"They're manning their systems, so we're still manning our system," said Hancock, assigned to a control center north of the town of Michigan.

If anything, the 180 crew members in three squadrons that make up the 321st Missile Wing take their jobs even more seriously since President Bush ordered strategic bombers off alert last fall and their weapons put into storage.

At Grand Forks Air Force Base, 30 miles to the east, that meant B-1B crews no longer were standing by ready to go to war with only minutes' notice.

But it also meant the burden of deterring a nuclear war fell more solidly on those who keep tabs on the 150 Minuteman III nuclear missiles deployed in silos near the base.

"What I've noticed in the last eight or nine months is that crews seem more positive about their jobs," said wing commander Col. James Reid.

"I kind of assume that's because they don't see the bombers sitting around anymore, and they don't ever see submarines. They kind of view themselves as the primary, people. The crew controls 10 Minuteman III missiles armed with nuclear warheads, still poised for thermonuclear war despite the disintegration of the Soviet Union.

first line of defense. They are it." Missile operations crews are likely to go on doing their jobs for some time to come.

Even if Russian and U.S. negotiators agree to cut the number of warheads aboard Minuteman III missiles to one instead of three, as Bush proposed in January, there still would be 150 missiles in the ground.

"If the numbers are reduced, that really doesn't change their job out here," said Lt. Col. James Toles Jr., commander of the 447th Missile Squadron of which "H-O," also known as "Hotel Zero," is a part.

Reducing the number of warheads isn't a matter of simply taking two warheads off a missile. It would mean removing and destroying the bulkhead that contains three re-entry vehicles and replacing it with one that contains only one.

Meantime, crews say life in a launch control center goes on the same as always, with the tension no different from before. "Where the tension comes from in the job is making sure that we maintain proficiency," Hancock said.

A typical missile operations crew at the Grand Forks base pulls alert duty about eight times a month, spending 24-hour shifts in a capsule underneath one of the 15 launch control centers spread through the missile field.

Each center controls 10 missiles, but no crew could launch its missiles alone. The crew must act in concert with at least one other missile crew.

The National Command Authority — the president and the secretary of defense — would have to give the authorization for a missile launch.

The launch keys and the documents to verify that the enabling commands are legitimate are locked inside a small red box in the launch center, fastened with two combination padlocks. Each crew member has the combination to one lock. An inhibit switch would stop the launch procedure.

Embrace this book

Marilyn Quayle, right, wife of Vice President Dan Quayle, and her older sister Nancy Northcott attend a book-signing party for their new novel "Embrace the Serpent" at a Manhattan bookstore last week. Their political thriller takes a fictional look at Cuba after the death of Fidel Castro.

Quayle co-authors spy thriller with her sister

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's a classic story of good against bad, David against Goliath, Republicans vs. Democrats.

And it's written by Marilyn Quayle, wife of Vice President Dan Quayle, and her sister, Nancy Northcott.

So guess who are the good guys and who are the bad.

"Obviously" the sisters' politics figured heavily in the outline of the book, Quayle said in an interview. "You've got the Republican senator who's the good guy and you've got the Democrats that are bad, and communism is still bad."

In their thriller, "Embrace the Serpent," to be published April 3, the president is an Ivy League Democrat, obsessed by style over substance, and unwilling until nearly the end to believe that the Russians are plotting with Arab extremists to take over Cuba after Castro's death.

The book describes this Democratic president and the Democrat-controlled Congress as having "little understanding of either defense or security."

The authors lament: "If only they could understand the long-term implications of their actions and vote accordingly. If only the SDI were in place now and in its entirety," they said in reference to the anti-missile Strategic Defense Initiative.

Death

Chona Hernandez

Chona Hernandez, 91, Big Spring, died today in a local hospital. Services are pending with a black from Georgia whose wife is a pediatrician and whose dog is named Justice — to dig up the evidence to persuade the president the Russians are up to no good, to support a Cuban patriot as the new Cuban leader and thwart a threat to the United States.

Quayle and Northcott depict the U.S. intelligence capabilities as inept. They write: "Rumors of Castro's death had reached the United States, but American intelligence agencies had been so crippled by the micromanagement of Congress that little concrete information was available."

Yes, more politics, Quayle said, but also a warning that "if we as a nation don't keep our intelligence capabilities open, we can be manipulated."

The media, which generally has not been favorable to Quayle the vice president, also takes a big hit. The executive editor of the largest paper in Washington, D.C., the fictitious Washington Herald, is clearly biased, haughty and arrogant. And he's sleeping with an important senator's wife to boot.

But don't look for any graphic sex scenes.

"It didn't need it," Quayle said. "Our brother told us in the beginning that Louis L'Amour has sold millions of books and he never had a sex scene in any of his books," she said. "So we figured if it worked for Louis, it would work for us."

Native American youths suffer more problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Indians suffer more physical and mental problems as teenagers than any other group and attempt suicide at four times the national rate, says a federal study.

"We are now on notice... exactly how devastated this community is," said Rep. George Miller, chairman of the House Interior Committee. "You cannot participate in the formation of public policy and ignore the conclusions of this report," the California Democrat said.

Nearly one in six Indian adolescents has attempted suicide and 20 percent of the teen-agers surveyed for the Indian Health Service study described their health as poor.

One in four Indian boys is a problem drinker by the end of high school, and 11 percent of the youth surveyed reported extreme hopelessness, said the report, published Tuesday in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"This is the most devastated group of adolescents in the United States," said Michael Resnick, a University of Minnesota researcher who helped conduct the study. Everett Rhoades, director of the Indian Health Service, said the health problems amounted to a "great epidemic that's taking off Indian youth."

Teen-agers who have dropped out of school were not surveyed, so health problems are probably more pervasive than the study found, the researchers said.

Many Indian youth know-friends or family members who have killed themselves, so suicide has become the way for them to deal with the distress and hopelessness that pervades their lives, the report said.

Eleven percent of the Indian teen-agers surveyed knew someone who had committed suicide and 17 percent had tried to take their own lives. Indian adolescents are more than twice as likely as non-Indians to die from suicide.

The study offered a glimmer of hope. Indian adolescents don't experience more health and mental problems than non-Indians until they reach the ninth grade, according to the survey.

The researchers said that was a "window of opportunity" to help Indian teens.

Key Lane is shootin' straight to town

By GARY SHANKS
 Staff Writer

Hot new Nashville recording artist Key Lane will play at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum April 7.

The concert and dance begins at 8 p.m. at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Lane is touring with her first album, "Shootin' Straight to Your Heart."

Born in Alabama but raised in Hawaii, Lane takes her name from her Hawaiian name of Kiwilimakai Lani Pua and her married name, Lane.

The country music artist has been sitting in on jam sessions with various artists since she was 12, according to her literature. Her repertoire contains dozens of songs from almost as many country superstars, but she has found more satisfaction now that she has music and lyrics of her own creation, she said.

Tickets to see Lane are available at the Howard College Bookstore, McMillan Printing and Premiere Video. Prices are $8 advance and $10 at the door. There will be general admission seating and tickets are not refundable

Key Lane

"Shootin' Straight to Your Heart" was completed in August of 1991 and since that time Lane has been appearing across the country and has produced some country music videos.

Lane is kicking off her spring tour in West Texas. Big Spring is the last of four concerts in West Texas before proceeding to Farmington, N.M., and Grand Junction, Colo.

Lane, who now resides in Brainerd, Minn., with her husband and daughter, says her music is colored by her experiences from Alabama and the island state.

"Writing country songs and creating my new music gives me great pleasure as I express my thoughts and feelings through my songs. I hope to widen the field of my audiences in reaching out to a variety of people to share my songs with them," Lane said.

Elvis police are watching

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — No Elvis Presley postcard, coffee mug or bespangled look-alike escapes the attention of the "Elvis police." They expect a cut when money is made on the late king of rock 'n' roll.

"If you're going to use Elvis for a commercial purpose, you've got to deal with us," says Barry Ward, a lawyer for Elvis Presley Enterprises Inc.

The estate is managed on behalf of Presley's sole heir, daughter Lisa Marie, 24. A trust agreement says she can take personal control of the Elvis business in 1998 if she wants.

Ward and his colleagues have waged a decade-long fight tightening their legal hold on the use of Presley's name or likeness. It is now a formidable grip.

Presley's estate grosses some $15 million a year, though he has been dead for almost 15 years.

His former Memphis residence, Graceland, opened to tourists in 1982, draws 650,000 visitors annually. It supports an 11-acre complex of souvenir shops and museums.

On his desk, Ward keeps "the book," a black looseleaf binder of court rulings he pats affectionately from time to time.

No Elvis venture is too small to trigger Ward's interest. He runs weekly computer checks to see what's on the market and relies on a large network of Elvis faithful who are on the lookout for Presley knock-offs.

Watch a TV show with an Elvis look-alike and the estate had a part in the affair. Buy a copy of Presley's will from a small-time entrepreneur, and the estate wants to know about it.

Got an old photo of Elvis? It's yours to do with as you please. But don't make copies and try to sell them.

Ward recently shut down one will-peddling venture, though the will is a public record open to anyone who cares to visit the Shelby County Probate Court for a look.

Looking is one thing. Selling another.

"What are you using to sell that will? You're using Elvis's name, and that belongs to his daughter," Ward says.

But the legal going has often been rocky.

Presley's longtime manager, Tom Parker, kept only loose controls over the souvenir trade. After Presley died in 1977, the trinket bootleggers went into high gear.

"It took us awhile to turn that around," Ward says.

As late as 1980, the drain was brisk on what is now considered

Miss Presley's rightful due.

The 6th Circuit decided then, in absence of state court direction, that the legal rights to Presley's name died with him.

The estate turned to lobbying the Tennessee General Assembly to remove ambiguities in state inheritance laws and then convinced the Nashville court that their arguments were sound: Elvis' likeness was inheritable.

Now, a letter from Ward is generally all it takes to stop an unlicensed trafficker in Elvis memorabilia.

"Our position is, 'We can fight if you choose to fight, and we'll win. Here's the track record. But we can make you a better deal,'" Ward says.

And "deal" is the operative word.

The estate has 20 licensed agents making Presley or Graceland souvenirs. It also holds copyrights to many of the songs Presley recorded. One branch of the business watches over TV, movie and stage productions.

Elvis trademark ventures are under way, as Ward describes it, "in all major industrialized countries."

"Graceland," too, is a registered trademark.

Most mainstream businesses cause few problems these days and contact the estate first off if they have an Elvis idea.

Producers of the TV sitcom "Cheers" got permission for an episode last year in which one of the stars had a dream about Elvis.

"We helped them with the script. ... We helped in the selection of the person who actually portrayed Elvis," Ward says.

At Graceland, the official Elvis story focuses on his talent and rise from rags to riches, not on the messier sides of his life, such as the drug abuse that hastened his death at age 42.

But Ward insists his interest is on commerce, not on limiting art, free speech or public comment on Presley's style of life.

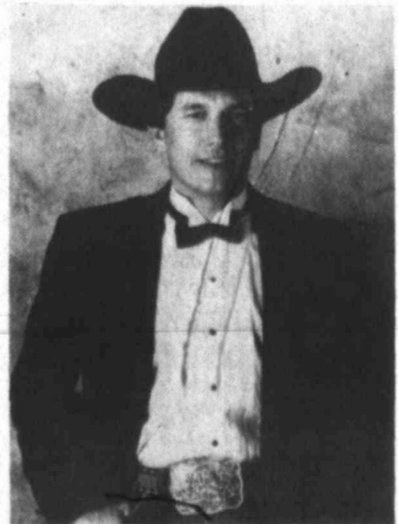

One of Soden's first jobs was shutting down the hodgepodge of tacky souvenir stands that took over a shopping center across the street from Graceland after Presley's death.

The estate was short on cash then, so Soden, a former investment banker, lined up backers to buy the center. The estate got a master lease, and as subleases on the independent shops expired, they were not renewed.

Graceland has a deal to buy the shopping center in 1993, and the whole place has been remodeled as a single operation.

Tillis opens Strait

Only single tickets remain for the George Strait/Pam Tillis concert Saturday at the Ector County Coliseum. Strait was the No. 1 country artist during the 1980s and newcomer Tillis is a 1992 American Music Award nominee. The show begins at 8 p.m. For tickets call 1-(800) 462-7979.

Trotters to play Midland

The world famous Harlem Globetrotters will display their basketball prowess at the Chaparral Center in Midland, April, 8. The self-proclaimed Houdinis of the Hardcourt have been entertaining audiences for generations.

Tickets to the year's funniest and most exciting sports event for all the family, the Midland appearance of the world-famous Harlem Globetrotters, brought to you by Bounce and Cheer, are on sale now. Get your tickets to the only local stop of this year's 1992 World Tour playing at the Chaparral Center on Wednesday, April 8 at 7:30 p.m.

These Houdinis of the Hardcourt are back again to bring smiles to the faces of their Midland fans. The Harlem Globetrotters name is synonymous with great basketball, and this year's event promises to be no exception.

Headlining the 1992 team is Michael "Memphis" Douglas, the reigning "Clown Prince of Basketball" and one of the most extraordinary basketball players ever to wear the celebrated red, white and blue uniform.

The strong new team also features J.B. "Captain Crunch" Brown, renowned master of the slam dunk; the fast and talented female guard, Jollette Law; mesmerizing trick dribbler Tyrone Brown; longtime fan favorite Billy Ray Hobbey; defensive genius Donald "Clyde" Sinclair; powerful 7' center Derrick Polk and two promising rookies, Arnold Bernard and Mark McCall.

Fans can rest assured that the 1992 Harlem Globetrotters will create all the classic comedy routines that delighted their parents and grandparents. In addition, the zany squad has put together a series of brand-new basketball surprises. There's so much to see, including "I don't believe they did that!" shooting, jamming, dribbling, passing and ball handling, designed to evoke laughs — and gasps.

Opposing the Harlem Globetrotters are the winning Washington Generals. Veteran Generals coach Red Klotz claims the Generals are fielding their most powerful team ever, including some of the hottest shooters in basketball today.

Tickets, priced $11.50 and $9.50 are on sale now at the Chaparral Center Box Office and Endless Horizons Records in Midland and Odessa. A $2 discount is available for kids 12 & under and seniors 60 and over. A limited number of special, VIP seats are also available. To charge tickets by phone call (915) 685-4584.

'Cheers' 11th season

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The gang at "Cheers" will be back for another round this fall. NBC renewed an 11th season for the Emmy-winning barroom comedy.

"Cheers" is NBC's highest-rated series and the No. 4-rated series on television this season, trailing CBS' "60 Minutes," ABC's "Roseanne" and CBS' "Murphy Brown."

Only "Bonanza" ranked as high in its 10th season.

Salaries for the cast, including Ted Danson, George Wendt, Kirstie Alley and Woody Harrelson, help make "Cheers" the most costly series in TV history.

Both Paramount and NBC declined to say Thursday how much the network paid for next season's shows.

Arlo's hassle

Folk singer Arlo Guthrie stands in front of a former church he purchased in Great Barrington, Mass., back in September of 1991. Guthrie is currently using the structure as the office of Rising Sun Records. Since he first discussed using the building for meditation sessions for AIDS patients and programs for abused children, however, the town of 8,000 has become downright unneighborly.

Local grocers make exotic produce available to Texas cooks

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

Next time you prepare your grocery list, don't forget the daikon, ginger root, lemon grass, celery root or kumquats.

According to local produce experts, these exotic items are used to prepare many mouth-watering dishes.

Although commonly known as exotic produce, these items and many more are available here in Big Spring.

Prompted by many consumer requests, Winn-Dixie Supermarket recently began selling what many would call "weird produce."

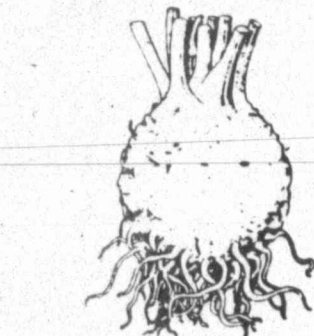

"We've always sold some," said Mike Seitz, local store manager. "Now, it's (exotic produce) going to provide a lot of variety."

Most of the exotic produce originated in foreign countries and was brought to the United States where it is now grown stateside.

To better serve its customers, Winn-Dixie requested its distributor to include recipes with each shipment of produce.

Doug Pitts, produce manager at Winn-Dixie Supermarket, holds a horseradish root and a yucca root. The roots are only two of the many exotic produce that can be purchased at the store. Don's IGA and Furr's Supermarket also stocks a line of exotic produce.

"These recipes come with the produce to teach people how to cook with these new fruits and vegetables," said Produce Manager Doug Pitts.

Don's IGA also sells exotic produce, including jicama, Asian pears and star fruit.

The store is experimenting with gala apples, which originated in New Zealand and are now grown in California.

"It's real crisp and tasty. It's a good quality apple," said Produce Manager Abel Garcia.

According to Assistant Produce Manager Ruben Perez, almost any produce item can be obtained simply by making a request.

Although Furr's Supermarket does stock exotic produce, Severo Leija, produce manager, said most of it is available only during the summer months.

"The most exotic we have now is a mango," he said.

Originating in the United States, celery root is popular in central Europe and Scandinavia and is available from late September through the end of May.

Because it adds a crunchy-celery taste, celery root is said to be excellent in salads. It is also recommended for soups and stews, or cut in wedges for dips. According to published reports, celery root is a main item in the Passover dinner. Daikon is commonly found in kitchens throughout the Orient. It can be eaten raw, stir-fried or pickled. Related to the radish family, daikons originated in the United States and Mexico.

Use them in salads, dips, as a garnish or with fish dishes as a condiment to add a little "kick". They are also for pickling.

This week's recipe edition features dishes prepared with exotic produce.

LEMON SCENT VEGETABLE BROTH

- 1 large stalk lemon grass
- 4 cups light meat, fish or poultry stock
- 1/2 cup cilantro stems
- 1 whole serrano or jalapeno chile
- 1/2 teaspoon grated lime zest
- 1-2 tablespoons lime juice, to taste
- 3 ounces snow peas, strings removed
- 1 medium carrot, peeled
- 4 medium red radishes
- 1 medium green onion, green part only

2 tablespoons whole cilantro leaves

Cut lemon grass in short pieces, about two inches. Crush stems lightly. Mix with stock, chile, cilantro stems and lime zest in saucepan. Simmer with cover 15 minutes, after 7-8 minutes remove chile if desired, or leave in longer for more "kick". Strain; add lime juice, salt and pepper. Cut snow peas in thin diagonal strips. Shave 2-inch ribbons of carrot. Slice radishes and green onion thinly. Bring soup to a boil; stir in snow peas and carrots and boil just until tender — about 1 1/2 minutes. Stir in radishes, green onion and cilantro leaves. Bring to a boil, serve at once. Makes four servings.

FRESH HORSE RADISH ROOT IN COCKTAIL SAUCE

1 small piece horseradish root, washed, peeled and finely grated to make 4 teaspoons of white, pungent particles. If you grate by hand, be sure to do it in an area with lots of fresh air.

1/4 teaspoon Tabasco sauce
1 1/4 cups chile sauce, prepared sauce is found in the grocery section or use homemade, if preferred.

2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

1/2 teaspoon garlic salt or plain salt
Combine all ingredients and thoroughly mix. Let stand in refrigerator for 1 hour. This sauce can be used as a topping over meatloaf, or as a dip for seafood. If used over meatloaf, simply add 15 minutes prior to removing the meatloaf from the oven.

RED BANANA BREAD WITH YOGURT WALNUTS AND MEDJOO DATES

- 1 cup butter, softened

- 2 cups sugar
- 4 eggs
- 2 cups mashed ripe red bananas, 4-6 depending on size
- 4 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 23 cup heavy cream
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1/2 cup chopped yogurt walnuts, or plain walnuts
- 1/2 cup chopped medjool dates, or any other cooking variety.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Cream butter and sugar. Add bananas and eggs; mix well. Add the flour mixture to the banana mixture and blend. In another bowl, combine cream with lemon juice and mix into the banana-flour mixture. Mix well and add the chopped walnuts and dates. Pour mixture into two buttered loaf pans and bake for about one hour or until a cake-tester or small knife does not have any batter sticking to it when inserted. For a real splurge, this bread takes on a very rich taste when topped with cream cheese frosting.

STIR-FRIED WATER CHESTNUTS WITH SNO PEAS, SHALLOTS AND SMOKED TURKEY

Water chestnuts are delicious sauteed or stir-fried with almost any vegetable, meat, poultry or fish.

- 1 package fresh water chestnuts,

- peeled and thinly sliced
- 2 ounces sno peas, rinsed and cleaned, with strings removed
- 2 shallots or 1 small onion, peeled and thinly sliced
- 2 ounces smoked turkey, shredded
- 2 tablespoons peanut oil

Heat oil in a skillet over medium heat. Add shallots, or onion, and stir-fry about three minutes. Add sno peas; stir-fry one more minute. Add water chestnuts; cook 30 seconds, then quickly toss in the smoked turkey and serve. As an alternative, steam the vegetables quickly, the refresh them under cold water. Mix with the smoked turkey an serve as a salad with a sesame oil dressing or any dressing you prefer.

SAUTEED CELERY ROOT

- 1 1/2 cups celery root, peeled and diced into 1/2-inch cubes
- 3/4 cup onion, sliced 1/2-inch

- 2 cloves garlic, peeled and minced
- 2 medium-size baking potatoes, peeled and sliced 1/4-inch slices
- 1/2 cup parsley, chopped fine
- Fresh pepper to taste

1/2 cup olive oil, or butter if you prefer a very rich taste

Heat olive oil over low heat in a heavy skillet. Add garlic and cook 30 seconds. Add celery root, onion and potatoes and cook over medium heat for 10 minutes. Stir often and use a spatula to keep vegetables from sticking to pan. Lower heat and cook 5 minutes, then add chopped parsley and pepper to taste. Cook mixture another 5 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Add more pepper to taste. Serves four. Goes well with grilled fish or chicken.

Leftover celery root may be stored, unpeeled, and added to fresh salads. Be sure to peel before using. The root also is a nice replacement for regular celery in your stuffing recipes.

KUMQUAT AND MIXED VEGETABLE SALAD

Called "golden orange" in Cantonese, the kumquat is unique in that it is the only fruit with a rind that is very sweet and flesh that is mouth-puckering sour.

- 1 package kumquats, reserve 5 to 6 whole fruit and set aside. Blanch remaining kumquats by placing the whole fruit in Boiling water for 25 seconds, then rinse in ice water, dry and slice very thin.
- 1 head of lettuce, rinsed and torn
- 2 avacados, peeled and sliced
- 2 Belgian endive, washed and sliced
- 1 shallot or small onion, peeled and chopped fine
- 1 sweet red pepper, rinsed, seeded and chopped (charbroiling is delicious)

Salt and pepper, optional
Salad dressing as desired, poppy seed or other slightly sweet dressing is suggested.
Combine all ingredients in a salad bowl, toss, season, top with dressing, and garnish with reserved kumquats. Serve at once.

Cabbage, elephant and pork chops: dandy

By PAPA JOE REED

Once again, it's time for our cooking lesson and today we will be having two more great recipes. I keep telling you men, if you will just follow my instructions, you will be a great cook. You know, cooking is not difficult. Once you get into the swing of it, you will find that it is enjoyable, fun and gives a great feeling of satisfaction. Yes, when you serve a great meal that you have prepared and you see your family enjoying the fruits of your labor, it will warm the cockles of your heart. Our first recipe today will be a casserole. You all know I love to cook casseroles. It's a complete meal in one dish. You will like this one. First, get all your ingredients together, and preheat the oven to 350 degrees.

Papa Joe's Cabbage Casserole

- 1 small head cabbage
- 1 lb. hamburger
- 1 small minced onion
- 1/3 cup uncooked rice
- 1 can tomato soup
- 1 soup can of water

Papa Joe Reed

Having all the ingredients together, you first chop the cabbage in large pieces and place in a greased baking dish. Brown the hamburger and onion and pour off the excess fat and stir in the raw rice. Place this meat mixture on top of the cabbage and cover with the tomato soup and water. Bake at 350 degrees for at least one hour. I tell you, this will make a hit with everyone.

This next recipe I really enjoy and I know you will, too. It will probably become one of your family favorites.

Stuffed Pork Chops

Brown four pork chops on both sides and pour off the drippings. Then lightly mix the following:

- Bread crumbs, 3 cups
- Onion, 2 tablespoons, chopped
- Butter, 1/4 cup, melted
- Water, 1/4 cup
- Poultry seasoning, 1/4 teaspoon

Place a mound of stuffing on top of each pork chop. Blend one can of mushroom soup and 1/3 cup of water. Pour over the chops and bake at 350 degrees, covered for 30 minutes, then uncovered for 30 minutes. You will get raves over this dish.

Now for the big one. For all you cuisine mavens, here is the ultimate in a stew. I have to admit that I have lifted this one from the Farmer's Almanac.

Elephant Stew

- Elephant, 1 medium size
- Salt & pepper
- Rabbits, 2, optional

First, you cut the elephant into small bite-sized pieces. This should take about two months. Add enough gravy to cover. Cook over a kerosene fire for about four weeks at 465 degrees. This will serve three-hundred people. If more are expected, two rabbits may be added, but do this only if necessary, as most people do not like to find hare in their stew.

Family fails to recognize work at home

DEAR ABBY: I do licensed day care in my home. I care for six children during the course of the day: five full time and one before kindergarten. I do craft projects and teach them basic numbers and the alphabet. The children range in age from 4 months to 4 years, plus I have a daughter of my own who is 2. My problem is that my family thinks that I don't work!

Last summer my mother came to visit from Los Angeles. I loved seeing her, but she made the comment that she would come and spend the day with me and bring my niece with her because my brother and sister-in-law work during the day. (Where would anyone get the idea that I don't work?) My brother also shares this feeling. He is coming home from Germany with his new wife — he is in the Army — and he announced that "since I don't work," they could stay and visit with me during the day, and I could spend the evenings with them and their 2-year-old.

Abby, I love my family very much, but day care is my business, and I work very hard at taking good care of my "extended family" so their parents can work and not worry if their children are being well taken care of!

I would love to be the one visiting in the evening, when things are relaxed and enjoyable. I have tried explaining my feelings to them, but they don't seem to hear me. Can you help? — STEAMED IN WESTMINSTER, COLO.

DEAR STEAMED: Since you have already tried "explaining" that you work during the day, the next step should be to draft your doubting family to "assist" you for a day. If that doesn't confirm that you are up to your neck in responsibility, then nothing you or I could do or say will get through to them.

I wish you success in your venture. The parents of Westminster are fortunate in having someone as conscientious as you making your services available.

FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 26, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A policy change at work will be to your advantage. Make the most of a special employment opportunity. Money becomes less of a concern although you will still have to work hard to accumulate real wealth. Your personal relationships enjoy especially favorable influences in September. A job promotion could lead to a change of residence. Simplifying your lifestyle early in 1993 will lead to better health and greater domestic happiness.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: playwright Tennessee Williams, actor Alan Arkin, superstar Diana Ross, comedian Martin Short.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you are smart, you will not try to force a financial issue. Gentle persuasion and a light touch are your best bet. Zero in on career ambitions. An older person admires your enthusiasm.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An extra work assignment gives you a chance to shine. You need to tackle something entirely on your own. Slow down the tempo in business and romance. A hasty commitment could bring regrets.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Say "no" to financial hanky-panky and secret romantic liaisons. Keep your nose to the grindstone at work. Tend to a health matter before it gets out of hand. Relax with good friends tonight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do not believe everything you hear today. Sift out the truth from the rumors going around. Repeating gossip would be a mistake. Bold ideas abound tonight. Urge caution.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your thoughts turn to someone you would like to impress. Try not to come on too strong. Your best bet is to keep other people guessing and off-guard. Protect your privacy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Do not hesitate to suggest changes in living arrangements if it will help you pursue creative ideas. Get rid of distracting influences. A new hairstyle or wardrobe enhances your image.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Timely communications and local travel increase your influence. The outlook is bright for starting or completing a household project. A late afternoon phone call brings welcome news.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Unforeseen problems could threaten your own or shared funds. Delay making any major financial decisions. The evening favors your learning of business developments at a distance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Now you are thinking and speaking in well-defined terms, able to reason your way to wise solutions. New monetary gains are likely. Reach out to people who share your vision for the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are the boss when it comes to buying, selling and earning today. Know that you are held in high esteem. Important developments are underfoot.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Whether dealing with partners or rivals, you are likely to reach an accord. If your day is as successful as expected, a celebration will be in order tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You find the solution to a financial problem by studying or discussing it in detail. Act quickly after receiving an urgent phone call; doing so could prove highly profitable.
