Disappointment reigns as prison news arrives

Dejection quickly replaced anticipation following an announcement that Howard County was not selected as a site for a new prison facility. "No," said Big Spring Herald managing editor John Walker. "The 1,000-bed facilities will go to Rusk, Colorado City, Fort Stockton, Dalhart, Amarillo and Cuero."

And although the textile mill proposal to the Texas Department of Agriculture was denied, Herb Wright and the Moore Development for Big Spring staff were told to reapply and request a lesser amount of funding.

"This is positive. They told us to keep it open, and they could have turned us down flat. We should meet together next week to discuss this possibility," said Pam Welch for Moore Development.

Area officials appeared ashen and displeased following the announcement that a new prison would not be bringing more than 300 new jobs to Howard County.

Linda Roger, vice president for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, said, "We're terribly disappointed. We felt that the proposal was of the best quality and we had the strength of our area representatives behind us."

Customers at the Kremer and Krust on Gregg Street also were disappointed that Big Spring did not receive the two new industries.

City cleanup scheduled

Citywide cleanup crews for the Clean Committee of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce will meet at the old Box parking lot, 2300 Gregg, Saturday.

The committee sponsored a cleanup in October that chairperson Beverly Franklin-McMahon said was very successful.

Sites chosen for this endeavor might include alleys in downtown Big Spring, Cosden Lake, Scurry Street, N. Gregg and Third and Fourth streets, she said.

Adults should meet at 8 a.m. and are urged to bring gardening tools, such as weed eaters and lawn mowers, she said. CUBS youth, accompanied by adults, are scheduled to receive their assignments at 9 a.m.

For more information contact the Chamber of Commerce at 263-7641 or Franklin-McMahon at 263-2825.

Prison, mill bids denied

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

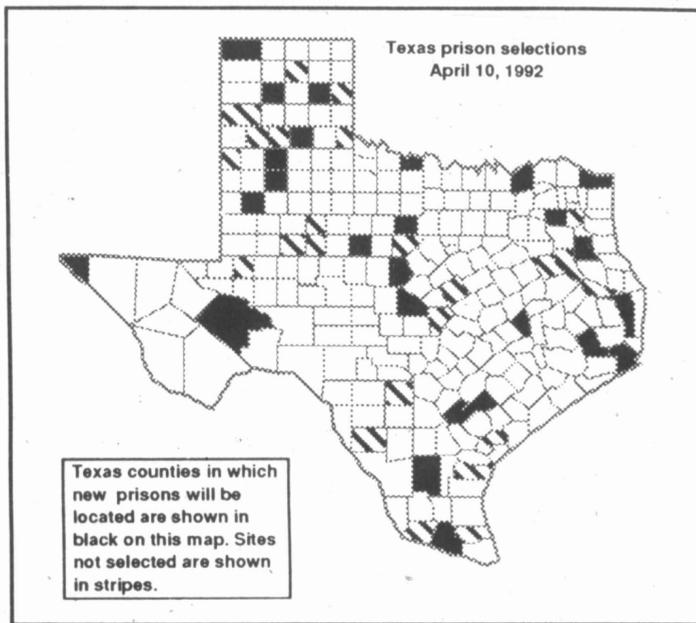

Big Spring lost out on a bid for a state prison but Mitchell County received a 1,000-bed minimum/medium security prison, state officials announced this afternoon.

"Boy howdy! I'll be darned. It's very, very disappointing," said Howard County Commissioner Bill Crooker upon hearing news of the decision from the Texas Board of Criminal Justice, which met in Austin.

"It's the loss of a tremendous economic impact it would have had," Crooker said.

The prison in Mitchell County will create 317 jobs paying an average of $21,000 annually. Half the jobs could go to local people, according to estimates based on employment at a similar state prison near Snyder and expected employment at another being built near Lamesa.

Other area communities receiving facilities are Lubbock, which got a 550-bed psychiatric unit, and Brownfield, which got a 500-bed rehabilitative center.

Big Spring may have lost out on a chance for the $5 million Wright Fibers Inc. textile plant because of a decision by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The Agricultural Finance Committee voted not to approve the $1.98 million loan request, but invited parties to reapply for a lesser $1.4 million-$1.5 million amount, said Ted St. Clair, executive director of Moore Development for Big Spring.

The proposed textile plant is a project of Herb Wright, Wright, a native Texan, was employed with Dan River Mills in New York City for 15 years before returning to Texas, where he is currently engaged in ranching and farming operations near Decatur.

The Texas Agricultural Finance Authority, which operates within the Department of Agriculture, was the agency that would have guaranteed the $1.98 million loan.

St. Clair was in Austin today to hear the decision and said the Texas Agricultural Finance Committee elected not to fund the pro-

Jury finds Noriega guilty

MIAMI (AP) — Manuel Noriega, the defiant dictator plucked from his country to stand trial in the United States, was convicted of turning Panama into a way station for drugs. And U.S. officials say the verdict contains a powerful message.

"I hope it sends a lesson to drug lords here and around the world they will pay a price if they continue to poison the lives of our kids in this country or anywhere else," President Bush said.

Noriega was convicted Thursday on eight of 10 drug and racketeering counts in the indictment that set the stage for the December 1989 invasion of Panama. The ousted Panamanian dictator faces up to 120 years in federal prison at his July 10 sentencing.

The trial marked the first time the United States has invaded a sovereign nation and brought back its leader for prosecution. Noriega is the first foreign head of state convicted by an American jury of criminal charges.

Defense attorney Frank Rubino said he will appeal on many grounds, including Noriega's claim that he is a prisoner of war. He called the case a dark side of President Bush's new world order.

"Unless the foreign governments are willing to kneel once a day and face Washington and give grace to George Bush, they, too, may be in the same posture as General Noriega," he said.

After his sentencing, Noriega faces marijuana trafficking charges in Tampa federal court. He could receive up to 35 years if convicted in that case.

U.S. officials cheered the verdict.

"Manuel Noriega's conviction sends a powerful signal to our Latin American allies who support us in this fight against the trafficking of illicit drugs," said Bob Martinez, director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy.

Former Noriega prosecutor Mark Schnapp called the conviction "a tremendous vindication of U.S. drug efforts."

"It's an awesome victory for the United States... and clearly it's the most important drug case that was ever brought," said Schnapp, who helped bring the indictment before going into private practice.

During the seven-month trial in U.S.

District Court, the government described Noriega as "just another crooked cop."

Defense attorneys maintained Noriega was a victim of U.S. politics, saying the case "smelled all the way to Washington." They portrayed the government's witnesses — many of them confessed drug traffickers — as thugs seeking a "get-out-of-jail-free card."

Jurors deliberated for five days.

Meek denies conflict

DALLAS (AP) — Attorney General Dan Morales says Public Utility Commissioner Paul Meek's job as chairman of Fina Inc. is a conflict of interest, according to a published report.

The Dallas Morning News, citing an unidentified official, reports in today's editions that Morales has told Meek in a 4½-page letter that he must choose "immediately" between the two posts.

Meek, 62, formerly of Big Spring, told the newspaper he "did not know anything" about the letter.

"I haven't seen anything like that," said Meek, who has repeatedly denied the two duties could influence one another.

Fina, a Dallas-based oil and gas company, supplies energy to utility companies regulated by the PUC. Meek is retired from Fina, but has remained chairman of the board since his 1989 appointment to the PUC by former Gov. Bill Clements.

Thespians in Snyder; board meets

The Big Spring High School One Act Play director, cast and crew, traveled to Snyder today to compete in the Area University Interscholastic League contest against three other school plays.

BSHS students will perform "The Runner Stumbles" at 4 p.m., the opening performance at Snyder High School's Jerry Worsham auditorium. Other performances are scheduled between 5-7 p.m.

Levelland, Snyder and Sweetwater also will compete against Big Spring for a chance to continue in the competition and advance to regional in San Angelo later this month.

Levelland will perform "The Diviners," Snyder is presenting "Romeo and Juliet" and Sweetwater will present "The Dark Side of the Moon." Sweetwater and Big Spring competed against two other schools March 31 in Big Spring for the opportunity to advance.

Several BSHS students have been named to the All Star Cast during the zone and district level of competitions, including Marci Weaver, Sunny Fraser, Jason LeGrande and Brandy Bedell.

Lana East, a student teacher from Angelo State University, also attended the contest with Haynes and the students. * * *

Trustees OK curriculum changes: Trustees for the Big Spring Independent School District approved career ladder placement and curriculum changes during a regular board meeting Thursday night.

Murray Murphy, assistant superintendent for the district, said the Correlated Language Arts classes, as well as Fundamentals of Math and Consumer Math, will no longer be available for high school students. Pre-algebra classes will be offered instead, in keeping in line with Commissioner of Education Lionel Meno's directives.

Ralph Madison and Jewell Stovall retired following board acceptance, and Oneita Burgess was hired as a high school science teacher.

A total of 194 teachers were approved for career ladder pay incentives.

Forsan, Colorado City and Grady independent school districts have scheduled meetings for their board of trustees Monday, April 13.

First lottery tickets arrive

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Lottery is waiting on a second shipment of what officials say will total 300 million tickets for playing the state's first game.

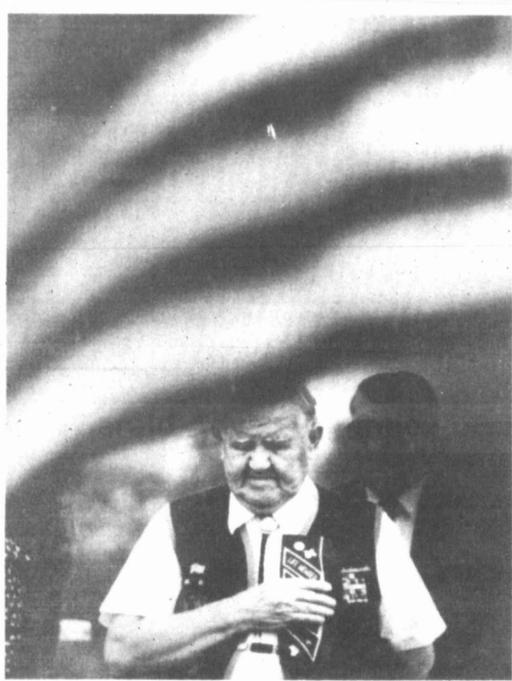

Lottery Director Nora Linares said details of how the game will work will be announced at the end of the month, with sales planned to begin by June 1.

"We think Texans are going to be very pleased with our first game," Ms. Linares said.

The first 86 million tickets, shipped in six tractor-trailer rigs, arrived Thursday from Dittler Brothers Inc. of Atlanta, and another 64 million tickets are on the way.

Officials said the tickets were shipped in locked and sealed trailers. They will be stored at an Austin warehouse with round-the-clock guards. Company and lottery officials said security has been extremely tight surrounding the printing of the tickets to both protect the identity of winners and to make counterfeiting difficult.

The tickets are multicolored, foil-laminated and include computer bar codes to help thwart imitators.

Richards touts proposal to reform school funding

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislative leaders appear cautious about Gov. Ann Richards' school finance reform plan, which she touts as fair and responsible.

The plan includes taxing business property out of local school districts' tax bases, instead taxing it and returning the money to schools on a statewide basis. School districts would continue taxing residential property locally.

Richards — at a Thursday news conference in the schoolhouse where she once taught social studies — said her plan would get the state "out of the lawsuit business" over equitable funding and allow it to concentrate on improving education.

Richards — at a Thursday news conference in the schoolhouse where she once taught social studies — said her plan would get the state "out of the lawsuit business" over equitable funding and allow it to concentrate on improving education.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said, "I am eager to work with the governor, and I hope we can develop the necessary consensus for a solution that meets court muster."

'It is not my place to rubber stamp any plan until every idea is on the table and tested with full and open discussion and study.'

Bob Bullock

Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, said he is "open-minded" but opposed right now because so many school districts in his area rely on mineral wealth for their tax base. Richards' plan would tax minerals statewide.

"You've taken the rich and made them poor," said Rudd, who heads the budget-writing House Appropriations Committee.

But all said they want to solve the problem created by the Texas Supreme Court's January ruling that the current system is unconstitutional.

Richards' proposal needs a constitutional amendment, requiring approval of two-thirds of the Legislature and a vote of the people.

Richards earlier said she wants a special legislative session early in May, allowing time for lawmakers to put the proposed amendment on November's ballot. However, she acknowledged the difficulty for officeholders seeking re-election to vote for controversial issues while being second-guessed by opponents.

"I have no interest in calling the Legislature together unless I think we can be successful... If the votes are not there, we may have to wait until after the November election," Richards told the Texas Chamber of Commerce before Thursday's news conference.

She asked for the chamber's support. Its chairman, Don Carlton, said, "It would be premature for the business community to endorse her school proposal before important details are resolved, but the concept has merit."

Richards said a special session would be required "pretty shortly" if a federal judge rules against continued collection of current school taxes.

The Supreme Court said the current system violated the Texas Constitution by imposing a statewide property tax, and by levying a property tax without voter approval.

The system was designed to shift money from property-rich to poorer school districts within new taxing regions made up of one or several counties.

The court gave lawmakers until June 1, 1993 to fix the system. U.S. District Judge James Nowlin will hold a hearing Friday in a taxpayer challenge to continued collection of the taxes.

Richards said that her plan "is the best chance that we have to do right by all of our kids and still live within our means."

Besides the new state business property tax, the proposal would require two other constitutional changes.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Shanna Reed, co-star of the CBS sitcom "Major Dad," has given birth to a boy.

Jonathan Joseph, born Monday, weighed in at 8 pounds, 1 ounce, a spokesman for Miss Reed said Thursday.

Miss Reed is married to director Terrence O'Hara.

CLAREMORE, Okla. (AP) — Patti Page won fame singing the "Tennessee Waltz," but her home state apparently doesn't feel scorned.

Ms. Page, who is from Claremore, was chosen to receive the Lynn Riggs Day Award, given each year to an Oklahoma artist. It's named after Lynn Riggs, whose play "Green Grow the Lilacs" was the inspiration for the musical "Oklahoma!"

The award will be presented today.

Ms. Page's recording of "Tennessee Waltz" is the second-best selling single ever behind Bing Crosby's "White Christmas." Her other songs include "Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte," "How Much is That Doggie in the Window" and "Allegheny Moon."

NEW YORK (AP) — Woody Harrelson, who plays a gentle, naive bartender on the NBC series "Cheers," says he used to lead a wild life that included bar fights.

"I barely survived my 'roaring 20s,' chasing all the material and physical things I thought would make me happy," Harrelson, 30, says in an interview for Sunday's Parade magazine. "Violence was almost an aphrodisiac for me."

But in 1989, he said, he wound up in a brawl so violent he feared for his life. That's when he decided to change his ways.

Harrelson says he is leading a less-materialistic life now with the help of his girlfriend, who he refused to name.

"This may sound corny, but we have a spiritual tie," he said. "She was a friend first. This is the most stable relationship I've had."

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Actor Corey Feldman says he once preached the evils of drugs while he was still using them. This time, he says, he's clean.

Feldman, 20, told students at Patrick Henry High School that he hasn't used drugs in 16 months.

"My life today is about helping people," he said Wednesday. "They are not paying me to be here. I'm not here because of the courts."

He told the students that drugs and alcohol cost him about $1 million; his house, his car, and his wife.

"When I started smoking pot, I never thought I would become a heroin addict," Feldman said. "One thing leads to another."

Feldman's movies include "Stand by Me," "The Lost Boys" and "License to Drive."

VALHALLA, N.Y. (AP) — It was an honor steeped in sorrow: New York Medical College named a laboratory after singer Michael Bolton, who became active in the fight against cancer after a friend was diagnosed with leukemia.

"It's a very strange dichotomy," Bolton said at a ceremony this week unveiling a plaque for the college's Cancer Research Institute.

Bolton's childhood friend, Joel Brander, was diagnosed with leukemia about 2½ years ago. He died Feb. 5.

Brander and his wife, Julie, founded an organization to help cancer victims and their families.

Bolton won a Grammy this year for his hit "When A Man Loves A Woman."

Fujimori purges court

LIMA, Peru (AP) — President Alberto Fujimori fired 13 Supreme Court justices and dozens of other judges linked to a main opposition party on Thursday.

The opposition struck back Thursday night: More than half of Peru's 240 congressmen met secretly and elected vice president Carlos Garcia president. The assembly declared Fujimori incapable of governing due to "moral incapacity," said Rep. Pedro Cateriano.

Cateriano said several members of Fujimori's small Cambio 90 party were among those who voted for Garcia, who had announced earlier in the day that he was going into hiding to protest Fujimori's actions.

The president, who suspended the constitution and dissolved Congress on Sunday, also fired all nine members of a federal constitutional review panel and a number of other officials.

Radical leftist rebels from the Shining Path guerrilla movement exploded a dynamite-filled bus outside a suburban Lima police station, killing three officers and wounding five others.

The guerrilla attack took place Wednesday night after Fujimori — in his first public speech since the crackdown — said his measures were needed to "restore democracy" in what he called an "ungovernable country."

On Sunday, Fujimori said he had no choice but to make the changes if he was to succeed in reviving the troubled economy and defeating the Shining Path, a Maoist group staging one of the world's most violent insurgencies.

More than 25,000 people have died in political violence in this country of 22 million residents since the rebels took up arms in 1980. More recently, the rebels have turned their attacks from the Andean highlands to Lima and its many shantytowns.

On Thursday, official publications carried presidential decrees that fired 13 of the nation's 23 Supreme Court justices, all nine members of a federal constitutional review panel, the entire seven-member National Council of Magistrates, whose main job was to propose candidates for judgeships, and all 20 District Court chiefs in the Peruvian interior.

Many of those kicked out were members of the Aprista Party of former President Alan Garcia, a free-spending populist who remained in hiding.

The constitutional review panel had torpedoed Fujimori's proposed labor laws reforms and opposed to his plan to privatize money-losing state companies.

Also fired by presidential decree was Peru's federal comptroller, Luz Aurea Saenz, another Aprista member.

Labor Party loses again

LONDON (AP) — With a fourth consecutive election victory, Britain's Conservative Party showed it can hang on to power even in a recession and raised new doubts about whether the opposition Labor Party can ever win again.

Labor leader Neil Kinnock pulled the party back from the left, fought a smooth campaign and challenged a government dogged by rising unemployment, record home repossessions and a litany of unfulfilled promises that things were about to get better.

Almost all the opinion polls and many of the political pundits pointed to the end of 13 years of Conservative rule.

Right up until the first few dozen results were declared early today, the big question was whether Labor would get the 8 percent swing it needed for overall control of the 651-member House of Commons — or simply be the largest party.

In the end, Labor managed a swing of only 2 percent against the government.

And Prime Minister John Major emerged strengthened by a personal mandate — despite a majority down to around 17 seats from nearly 90 when he succeeded Margaret Thatcher 16 months ago.

In the view of many analysts, Major won on the curse of Labor's past: The party remains linked to strikes and a currency free-fall.

"The problem for Labor is that those memories have bitten deep and have been passed on from one generation to another," said Anthony King, professor of government at Essex University.

"There are just an awful lot of people out there who are mistrustful of even frightened of the possibility of a Labor government," he added.

The Conservatives fared better than governing parties in France, Germany and Italy, which faced electorates recently with less depressing economic statistics to explain.

"Labor at the end of the day failed to get across their message that the Conservatives were responsible for the recession," said Professor John Curtice, a political scientist and analyst with the British Broadcasting Corp.

Labor made little headway with in the southeast of England, prime beneficiary of the prosperous heyday of the Thatcher era in the mid-80s, but now badly hit by recession. The problem there appeared to be Labor's higher tax plans.

Kinnock, in an emotional speech conceding defeat, told stunned party workers, "The whole country deserves better and we will work to ensure that the day will come when with a Labor government the country will get better in its spirit, in its soul."

But with the latest defeat, Labor faces being out of office for another five years, bringing the total to nearly two decades of rule by one party.

Many analysts believe the Tory victory will provoke a confrontation between Major and opposition parties over the constitution.

Labor may now back demands for a change to a European continental-style electoral system of allocating seats according to the proportion of the vote won. Under the British system only coming first in a district counts.

The Conservatives flatly refuse the Labor demand. The Conservatives, understandably, are content with the rules they play by and win by.

Congress upping SS limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is embracing bigger benefits for the working elderly despite protests that it's a budget-buster designed mainly to court that powerful bloc of voters.

"I see in what we're doing tonight the worst kind of political pandering in an election year," Rep. Herb Bateman, R-Va., said Thursday night as the House voted, 340-68, to double the wages Social Security recipients may earn before their benefits are cut back.

The bill, which goes back to the Senate, would let a person aged 65 to 69 earn up to $20,000 without having his or her benefits reduced. The current cap is $10,200, after which every $3 earned results in a $1 benefit decrease.

The most recent figures available from the House Ways and Means Committee showed that in 1986 about 10 percent of people between the ages of 65 and 69 earned enough wages to lose part of their Social Security pension. Unearned income, such as interest, does not count toward reducing the benefits.

"Who receives the penalty? People who work," said Rep. Dennis

Hastert, R-Ill., who supported the change.

The higher limit would be phased in over five years, and the legislation also would increase benefits after age 80 for widows and widowers who apply for Social Security before they reach age 65. The combined cost over the next half-decade would be $7.3 billion, according to congressional estimates.

The House bill would be only one-fourth as expensive as a Senate-passed version, which would lift the Social Security earnings test altogether. The White House opposed that, but was said ready to support the House bipartisan compromise.

The Senate legislation continues to attract opposition in that chamber.

"I oppose any liberalization of Social Security benefits that isn't paid for," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said through a spokesman.

Some supporters said the $7.3 billion figure was too high because it did not reflect what they said would be additional tax revenues from enticing elderly back into the work force.

"They said it was unfair for Social Security recipients to be penalized for still working after retirement benefits kick in."

The goal was to "make life a bit more comfortable for thousands of senior citizens who need our help," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"We owe them this small measure of additional income security," said Rep. Larry Smith.

But others argued that efforts to reduce the federal deficit require the new revenues or spending reductions, as called for in the 1990 White House-congressional budget agreement.

"We're now willing to set aside that budget summit agreement... in order to do something for a group of constituents that we know are going to vote," said Rep. Jim Kolbe, R-Ariz. "We are robbing our children, we are robbing our grandchildren, in order to get votes today."

United Way drops Boy Scouts

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — San Francisco's United Way chapter says it was taking a stand against discrimination when it dropped funding for the Boy Scouts of America because of the organization's anti-gay stand.

The United Way of the Bay Area said Wednesday it was ending direct support to six scout councils — valued at $849,000 this year — because the Boy Scouts bar homosexual scouts and leaders.

"I think we're taking a stand for integrity and a stand for non-discrimination," said Dave Wharton III, regional director of United Way, the major source of funding for Boy Scouts nationwide.

A spokeswoman at United Way headquarters in Alexandria, Va., said the San Francisco chapter's action was permissible because decisions on which groups to fund are made at the local level.

But the spokeswoman, Karen Freeman, said the chapter is the only one of the United Way's 2,100 agencies to cut off funds in protest of the Scout policy.

The Boy Scout oath requires its takers to be "morally straight." The Scouts have used that provision to exclude gays.

First lottery tickets arrive

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Lottery is waiting on a second shipment of what officials say will total 300 million tickets for playing the state's first game. Lottery Director Nora Linares said details of how the game will work will be announced at the end of the month, with sales planned to begin by June 1.

"We think Texans are going to be very pleased with our first game," Ms. Linares said. The first 86 million tickets, shipped in six tractor-trailer rigs, arrived Thursday from Dittler Brothers Inc. of Atlanta, and another 64 million tickets are on the way.

Officials said the tickets were shipped in locked and sealed trailers. They will be stored at an Austin warehouse with round-the-clock guards. Company and lottery officials said security has been extremely tight surrounding the printing of the tickets to both protect the identity of winners and to make counterfeiting difficult.

The tickets are multicolored, foil-laminated and include computer bar codes to help thwart imitators.

Richards touts proposal to reform school funding

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislative leaders appear cautious about Gov. Ann Richards' school finance reform plan, which she touts as fair and responsible.

The plan includes taking business property out of local school districts' tax bases, instead taxing it and returning the money to schools on a statewide basis. School districts would continue taxing residential property locally.

Richards — at a Thursday news conference in the schoolhouse where she once taught social studies — said her plan would get the state "out of the lawsuit business" over equitable funding and allow it to concentrate on improving education.

Gov. Bob Bullock said he appreciates Richards' work. But he said that his job is "to work with everyone toward finding a practical and equitable solution which can pass the Legislature."

"It is not my place to rubber stamp any plan until every idea is on the table and tested with full and open discussion and study," he said.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said, "I am eager to work with the governor, and I hope we can develop the necessary consensus for a solution that meets court muster."

'It is not my place to rubber stamp any plan until every idea is on the table and tested with full and open discussion and study.'
Bob Bullock

Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, said he is "open-minded" but opposed right now because so many school districts in his area rely on mineral wealth for their tax base. Richards' plan would tax minerals statewide.

"You've taken the rich and made them poor," said Rudd, who heads the budget-writing House Appropriations Committee.

But all said they want to solve the problem created by the Texas Supreme Court's January ruling that the current system is unconstitutional.

Richards' proposal needs a constitutional amendment, requiring approval of two-thirds of the Legislature and a vote of the people.

Richards earlier said she wants a special legislative session early in May, allowing time for lawmakers to put the proposed amendment on November's ballot.

However, she acknowledged the difficulty for officeholders seeking re-election to vote for controversial issues while being second-guessed by opponents.

"I have no interest in calling the Legislature together unless I think we can be successful... If the votes are not there, we may have to wait until after the November election," Richards told the Texas Chamber of Commerce before Thursday's news conference.

She asked for the chamber's support. Its chairman, Don Carlton, said, "It would be premature for the business community to endorse her school proposal before important details are resolved, but the concept has merit."

Richards said a special session would be required "pretty shortly" if a federal judge rules against continued collection of current school taxes.

The Supreme Court said the current system violated the Texas Constitution by imposing a statewide property tax, and by levying a property tax without voter approval.

The system was designed to shift money from property-rich to poorer school districts within new taxing regions made up of one or several counties.

The court gave lawmakers until June 1, 1993 to fix the system. U.S. District Judge James Nowlin will hold a hearing Friday in a taxpayer challenge to continued collection of the taxes.

Richards said that her plan "is the best chance that we have to do right by all of our kids and still live within our means."

Besides the new state business property tax, the proposal would require two other constitutional changes.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Shanna Reed, co-star of the CBS sitcom "Major Dad," has given birth to a boy.

Jonathan Joseph, born Monday, weighed in at 8 pounds, 1 ounce, a spokesman for Miss Reed said Thursday.

Miss Reed is married to director Terrence O'Hara.

CLAREMORE, Okla. (AP) — Patti Page won fame singing the "Tennessee Waltz," but her home state apparently doesn't feel scorned.

Ms. Page, who is from Claremore, was chosen to receive the Lynn Riggs Day Award, given each year to an Oklahoma artist. It's named after Lynn Riggs, whose play "Green Grow the Lilacs" was the inspiration for the musical "Oklahoma!"

The award will be presented today.

Ms. Page's recording of "Tennessee Waltz" is the second-best selling single ever behind Bing Crosby's "White Christmas." Her other songs include "Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte," "How Much is That Doggie in the Window" and "Allegheny Moon."

REED PAGE

NEW YORK (AP) — Woody Harrelson, who plays a gentle, naive bartender on the NBC series "Cheers," says he used to lead a wild life that included bar fights.

"I barely survived my 'roaring 20s,' chasing all the material and physical things I thought would make me happy," Harrelson, 30, says in an interview for Sunday's Parade magazine. "Violence was almost an aphrodisiac for me."

But in 1989, he said, he wound up in a brawl so violent he feared for his life. That's when he decided to change his ways.

Harrelson says he is leading a less-materialistic life now with the help of his girlfriend, who he refused to name.

"This may sound corny, but we have a spiritual tie," he said. "She was a friend first. This is the most stable relationship I've had."

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Actor Corey Feldman says he once preached the evils of drugs while he was still using them. This time, he says, he's clean.

Feldman, 20, told students at Patrick Henry High School that he hasn't used drugs in 16 months.

"My life today is about helping people," he said Wednesday. "They are not paying me to be here. I'm not here because of the courts."

He told the students that drugs and alcohol cost him about $1 million, his house, his car, and his wife.

"When I started smoking pot, I never thought I would become a heroin addict," Feldman said. "One thing leads to another."

Feldman's movies include "Stand by Me," "The Lost Boys" and "License to Drive."

VALHALLA, N.Y. (AP) — It was an honor steeped in sorrow: New York Medical College named a laboratory after singer Michael Bolton, who became active in the fight against cancer after a friend was diagnosed with leukemia.

"It's a very strange dichotomy," Bolton said at a ceremony this week unveiling a plaque for the college's Cancer Research Institute.

Bolton's childhood friend, Joel Brander, was diagnosed with leukemia about 2½ years ago. He died Feb. 5.

Brander and his wife, Julie, founded an organization to help cancer victims and their families.

Bolton won a Grammy this year for his hit "When A Man Loves A Woman."

Fujimori purges court

LIMA, Peru (AP) — President Alberto Fujimori fired 13 Supreme Court justices and dozens of other judges linked to a main opposition party on Thursday.

The opposition struck back Thursday night: More than half of Peru's 240 congressmen met secretly and elected vice president Carlos Garcia president. The assembly declared Fujimori incapable of governing due to "moral incapacity," said Rep. Pedro Cateriano.

Cateriano said several members of Fujimori's small Cambio 90 party were among those who voted for Garcia, who had announced earlier in the day that he was going into hiding to protest Fujimori's actions.

The president, who suspended the constitution and dissolved Congress on Sunday, also fired all nine members of a federal constitutional review panel and a number of other officials.

Radical leftist rebels from the Shining Path guerrilla movement exploded a dynamite-filled bus outside a suburban Lima police station, killing three officers and wounding five others.

The guerrilla attack took place Wednesday night after Fujimori — in his first public speech since the crackdown — said his measures were needed to "restore democracy" in what he called an "ungovernable country."

On Sunday, Fujimori said he had no choice but to make the changes if he was to succeed in reviving the troubled economy and defeating the Shining Path, a Maoist group staging one of the world's most violent insurgencies.

More than 25,000 people have died in political violence in this country of 22 million residents since the rebels took up arms in 1980. More recently, the rebels have turned their attacks from the Andean highlands to Lima and its many shantytowns.

On Thursday, official publications carried presidential decrees that fired 13 of the nation's 23 Supreme Court justices, all nine members of a federal constitutional review panel, the entire seven-member National Council of Magistrates, whose main job was to propose candidates for judgeships, and all 20 District Court chiefs in the Peruvian interior.

Many of those kicked out were members of the Aprista Party of former President Alan Garcia, a free-spending populist who remained in hiding.

The constitutional review panel had torpedoed Fujimori's proposed labor laws reforms and opposed to his plan to privatize money-losing state companies.

Also fired by presidential decree was Peru's federal comptroller, Luz Aurea Saenz, another Aprista member.

Labor Party loses again

LONDON (AP) — With a fourth consecutive election victory, Britain's Conservative Party showed it can hang on to power even in a recession and raised new doubts about whether the opposition Labor Party can ever win again.

Labor leader Neil Kinnock pulled the party back from the left, fought a smooth campaign and challenged a government dogged by rising unemployment, record home repossessions and a litany of unfulfilled promises that things were about to get better.

Almost all the opinion polls and many of the political pundits pointed to the end of 13 years of Conservative rule.

Right up until the first few dozen results were declared early today, the big question was whether Labor would get the 8 percent swing it needed for overall control of the 651-member House of Commons — or simply be the largest party.

In the end, Labor managed a swing of only 2 percent against the government.

And Prime Minister John Major emerged strengthened by a personal mandate — despite a majority down to around 17 seats from nearly 90 when he succeeded Margaret Thatcher 16 months ago.

In the view of many analysts, Major won on the curse of Labor's past: The party remains linked to strikes and a currency free-fall.

"The problem for Labor is that those memories have bitten deep and have been passed on from one generation to another," said Anthony King, professor of government at Essex University.

"There are just an awful lot of people out there who are mistrustful of even frightened of the possibility of a Labor government," he added.

The Conservatives fared better than governing parties in France, Germany and Italy, which faced electorates recently with less depressing economic statistics to explain.

"Labor at the end of the day failed to get across their message that the Conservatives were responsible for the recession," said Professor John Curtice, a political scientist and analyst with the British Broadcasting Corp.

Labor made little headway with in the southeast of England, prime beneficiary of the prosperous heyday of the Thatcher era in the mid-80s, but now badly hit by recession. The problem there appeared to be Labor's higher tax plans.

Kinnock, in an emotional speech conceding defeat, told stunned party workers, "The whole country deserves better and we will work to ensure that the day will come when with a Labor government the country will get better in its spirit, in its soul."

But with the latest defeat, Labor faces being out of office for another five years, bringing the total to nearly two decades of rule by one party.

Many analysts believe the Tory victory will provoke a confrontation between Major and opposition parties over the constitution.

Labor may now back demands for a change to a European continental-style electoral system of allocating seats according to the proportion of the vote won. Under the British system only coming first in a district counts.

The Conservatives flatly refuse the Labor demand. The Conservatives, understandably, are content with the rules they play by and win by.

Congress upping SS limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is embracing bigger benefits for the working elderly despite protests that it's a budget-buster designed mainly to court that powerful bloc of voters.

"I see in what we're doing tonight the worst kind of political pandering in an election year," Rep. Herb Bateman, R-Va., said Thursday night as the House voted, 340-68, to double the wages Social Security recipients may earn before their benefits are cut back.

The bill, which goes back to the Senate, would let a person aged 65 to 69 earn up to $20,000 without having his or her benefits reduced. The current cap is $10,200, after which every $3 earned results in a $1 benefit decrease.

The most recent figures available from the House Ways and Means Committee showed that in 1986 about 10 percent of people between the ages of 65 and 69 earned enough wages to lose part of their Social Security pension. Unearned income, such as interest, does not count toward reducing the benefits.

"Who receives the penalty? People who work," said Rep. Dennis

Hastert, R-Ill., who supported the change.

The higher limit would be phased in over five years, and the legislation also would increase benefits after age 80 for widows and widowers who apply for Social Security before they reach age 65. The combined cost over the next half-decade would be $7.3 billion, according to congressional estimates.

The House bill would be only one-fourth as expensive as a Senate-passed version, which would lift the Social Security earnings test altogether. The White House opposed that, but was said ready to support the House bipartisan compromise.

"The Senate legislation continues to attract opposition in that chamber."

"I oppose any liberalization of Social Security benefits that isn't paid for," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said through a spokesman.

Some supporters said the $7.3 billion figure was too high because it did not reflect what they said would be additional tax revenues from enticing elderly back into the work force.

They said it was unfair for Social Security recipients to be penalized for still working after retirement benefits kick in.

The goal was to "make life a bit more comfortable for thousands of senior citizens who need our help," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"We owe them this small measure of additional income security," said Rep. Larry Smith.

But others argued that efforts to reduce the federal deficit require the new spending be offset with new revenues or spending reductions, as called for in the 1990 White House-congressional budget agreement.

"We're now willing to set aside that budget summit agreement... in order to do something for a group of constituents that we know are going to vote," said Rep. Jim Kolbe, R-Ariz. "We are robbing our children, we are robbing our grandchildren, in order to get votes today."

United Way drops Boy Scouts

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — San Francisco's United Way chapter says it was taking a stand against discrimination when it dropped funding for the Boy Scouts of America because of the organization's anti-gay stand.

The United Way of the Bay Area said Wednesday it was ending direct support to six scout councils — valued at $849,000 this year — because the Boy Scouts bar homosexual scouts and leaders.

"I think we're taking a stand for integrity and a stand for non-discrimination," said Dave Wharton III, regional director of United Way, the major source of funding for Boy Scouts nationwide.

A spokeswoman at United Way headquarters in Alexandria, Va., said the San Francisco chapter's action was permissible because decisions on which groups to fund are made at the local level.

But the spokeswoman, Karen Freeman, said the chapter is the only one of the United Way's 2,100 agencies to cut off funds in protest of the Scout policy.

The Boy Scout oath requires its takers to be "morally straight." The Scouts have used that provision to exclude gays.

PUBLIC NOTICE
CITY OF COAHOMA
COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT FUND
TEXAS COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

City of Coahoma has completed its 1989 Texas Community Development Program (TCDP) project under a contract with the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs. This water improvements project was carried out in the City's target area in the north part of the City of Coahoma.

A public hearing on this TCDP project will be held at 7:00 o'clock P.M. on Tuesday, April 14, 1992, at the City of Coahoma's Community Center located at 306 North Avenue, Coahoma, Texas. The purpose of this public hearing will be to discuss and evaluate the City's implementation of this water improvements project.

Citizens are encouraged to attend this public hearing and present their views to the City. Written comments will be accepted by the City until this public hearing is concluded.

For further information about the City's 1989 TCDP project, contact Eleanor Garrett, Mayor, City of Coahoma at (915) 394-4287. Handicapped individuals who might have difficulty in attending this public hearing should contact the Coahoma City Hall to arrange for special assistance.

Sluman's ace highlights first round

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins' three consecutive birdies in Amen Corner were merely rare. Jeff Sluman's ace on No. 4 was historic.

The neat feats at an uncommonly tame Augusta National helped Wadkins and Sluman take a share of the first-round lead Thursday in the Masters.

Wadkins deftly negotiated the old course's most famous stretch, holes 11 through 13, on his way to a 7-under-par 65. Sluman matched that total and needed just one stroke at the 213-yard fourth hole.

Brandishing a 4-iron, Sluman's tee shot landed about 20 feet from the cup, crossed a ridge and rolled in.

"Like a 1-foot putt," he said.

Through 55 previous Masters, No. 4 had never yielded an ace. That covers an estimated 11,000 drives.

"It was a good shot, looked good all the way. But I never dreamed it would go in," Sluman said. "I took my time on the next tee, trying to calm down."

Sluman and Wadkins held a three-shot lead going into today's second round. Tied at 68 were former PGA champion Wayne Grady, Players Championship winner David Love III, Mike Hulbert and Ted Schulz.

Leading money winner Fred Couples, six-time Masters champion Jack Nicklaus, defending champ Ian Woosnam and 49-year-old Ray Floyd were among 12 players shooting 69. Two-time champion Nick Faldo and Augusta rookie Long John Daly were in a group at 71.

Eighteen golfers broke 70, and 35 bettered par. Both figures were tournament records for the first round, as was the average score of 72.052 by the field of 83.

Augusta National was made inviting by a light wind and relatively slow greens softened by rain early in the week.

"The opportunity was there to shoot a good score if you put it in the right place," Sluman said.

Like in the hole off the tee. After his ace, Sluman pulled the ball out of the cup and handed it to his mother, who was in the gallery.

"She said, 'I want it. Give it to me. Give it to me now,'" Sluman said.

Wadkins gave away little. He said he hit just two bad shots, both off the tee, and each time he saved par.

He flew through the historic southwest corner of the course, making birdie putts of 12 feet on No. 11, 15 feet on No. 12 and 6 feet from No. 13. *

The scorecard read 3-2-4.

"I feel like Amen Corner has kicked my butt so many times over the years, it probably owes me a little bit," Wadkins said. "It's gotten me; it's gotten everybody. It's a great stretch of holes. ... I just try not to get too cute there."

Wadkins finished his round with a 45-foot birdie putt at No. 18. The 42-year-old veteran has won 20 PGA Tour tournaments, but only one major title — the 1977 PGA Championship. Third at Augusta the past two years, he would love to improve by a couple of places.

"It would mean a lot," he said. "I'm no spring chicken any more, so I've got to get what I can as soon as I can. I don't have a whole lot of years left."

Sluman, 34, is younger and less successful than Wadkins; his only tour victory came in the 1988 PGA Championship.

"All I want to do is have a chance to win on the last nine holes Sunday," he said.

Sluman and Wadkins rose to the top of the leader board while much of the gallery was focused on a couple of other Americans, rising stars Daly and Couples.

The crowd cheered each monstrous drive by Daly, including a 320-yard blast on the first hole, but three bogeys kept him back in the pack.

Couples birdied three par-5s but played the rest of the course at even par. The tour's hottest player, long regarded as an underachiever, is seeking his first major title.

"I didn't feel any extra pressure today," Couples said. "Pressure comes when you are not playing well."

Mets cleared of rape charges

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP) — Prosecutors say that while they believed a woman's accusation of rape against three New York Mets, they just didn't think they could get a jury to believe it.

The lack of corroborating evidence and a nearly year-long delay in the woman filing the complaint were among the factors that led prosecutors to end a five-week investigation Thursday with no charges against pitcher Dwight Gooden and outfielders Daryl Boston and Vince Coleman.

"It was an accumulation of problems," said state attorney Bruce Colton. "Our obligation is to fully examine the facts and file a criminal charge only if there is a reasonable likelihood of conviction ... even if we personally believe the victim."

The announcement came as the Mets were on their way to a 7-1 victory over the Cardinals in St. Louis and Gooden readied to pitch today's home opener against Montreal.

"I'm very happy it's over. I had confidence all the way," Gooden told a news conference after Thursday's game. "I'm just glad to be back to playing baseball."

"The case boiled down to the word of three individuals against the word of one. These are the most difficult kinds of cases to successfully prosecute," — Florida state attorney Bruce Colton.

Boston appeared angry and refused to talk to reporters, but Coleman was smiling.

"I was very confident in the decision," Coleman said. "I knew everything would come out OK."

Said commissioner Fay Vincent: "The allegations were carefully and properly reviewed. Now I hope we can all turn our attention back to baseball and focus on the game we enjoy."

The case arose March 3 when a 31-year-old Manhattan woman filed a statement accusing the three players of raping her March 30, 1991, in a house rented by Gooden during spring training in Port St. Lucie.

Each of the players passed polygraph tests in which they acknowledged various sex acts took place, but said they were consensual.

"The case boiled down to the word of three individuals against the word of one," Colton said. "These are the most difficult kinds of cases to successfully prosecute."

According to the woman's handwritten statement, included in a more than 450-page investigative file released Thursday, she met the three Mets at a nightclub and agreed to give Gooden a ride home. She arrived there to find Coleman and Boston already there, and said she was pushed into a bedroom and assaulted by all three men.

"I realized I couldn't talk them out of it," she said in her statement. "I just wanted them to do what ... they had to do and get off of me."

In the days that followed, the woman said, she went back to the Mets complex several times to watch games, continued to date Mets pitcher David Cone and didn't fully realize she was raped until four days later.

Clippers edge closer to first playoff appearance

The ASSOCIATED PRESS
The long wait to make the playoffs appears to be over for the Los Angeles Clippers.

The Clippers took advantage of the absence of Clyde Drexler on Thursday night to beat Portland 106-100, giving them a two-game lead over Houston and a 2½-game margin over the crosstown rival Lakers in the race for two Western Conference playoff spots.

Danny Manning scored 34 points and Ron Harper 26 for the Clippers, who have never made the playoffs. The franchise's last postseason appearance was in 1976 when it was located in Buffalo.

Drexler sprained his right knee and did not dress for the game. But the Trail Blazers, who have the best record in the conference, rallied from an 81-65 fourth-quarter deficit to tie the game 100-100 with 38 seconds remaining as Terry Porter scored 15 of his 30 points in the period.

Manning's hook shot snapped the 100-100 tie with 26 seconds left for the Clippers, who have five games remaining, including three at home against some of the worst teams in the conference — Denver, Sacramento and Minnesota.

Spurs 102, Lakers 94
San Antonio won at the Forum as Sean Elliott scored a season-high 33 points and Terry Cummings had 22 points and 12 rebounds.

Cummings' tip-in gave the Spurs an 88-78 lead with 8:39 left before the Lakers closed to 90-86 with an

NHL trying to save playoffs
 NEW YORK (AP) — The NHL reopened talks with the striking players in an attempt to save the Stanley Cup playoffs. In doing so, the league allowed its season-ending deadline to pass.
 A spokesman for the NHL Players Association said that executive director Bob Goodenow was on his way to New York to meet today with NHL president John Ziegler. It will be the first time they've talked since Tuesday when the owners gave the players a take-it-or-leave-it contract offer.

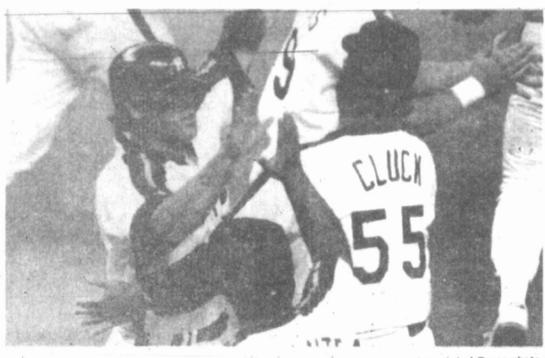

Knight boots son off team
 BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana coach Bob Knight has kicked his son off the team following 21-year-old Patrick Knight's arrest for public intoxication and disorderly conduct. The younger Knight, a sophomore who was redshirted this past season, was arrested early Wednesday outside a downtown bar after he allegedly swore at a police officer.

Foreman returns to Vegas
 LAS VEGAS (AP) — George Foreman knows something about wiping the slate clean.
 It took the former heavyweight champion 10 years in retirement to erase the stigma of his shocking loss to Muhammad Ali in 1974.
 He doesn't plan to allow Alex Stewart to gain his redemption in only one fight.
 The 43-year-old Foreman continues a remarkable comeback now in its sixth year Saturday night in a scheduled 10-round fight against Stewart, a one-time contender whose career is at a crossroads.
 "This is my last year," Foreman said. "I won't fight after this year. I'm not one of those fighters who keeps fighting just for the money."

 Hakeem Olajuwon scored 26 points and Houston won at Minnesota with the help of a 23-9 fourth-quarter run.
 Otis Thorpe had 24 points and 13 rebounds for the Rockets, who have climbed into eighth place in the Western Conference with four straight victories.
 Backup guards Sleepy Floyd and Avery Johnson also played a major role after point guard Kenny Smith couldn't return after spraining an ankle late in the first half. Floyd scored 19 points, including two fourth-quarter 3-pointers; Johnson finished with seven assists.

Candiotti's NL debut a big success

The ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Tom Candiotti and Greg Swindell gave National League hitters a different look in their debuts, and came away with the same result, almost.
 The former Cleveland teammates both pitched well enough to win Thursday night. Only one of them did.
 Candiotti, the first full-time knuckleballer in the NL since the Niekro brothers, stymied San Diego and led Los Angeles to a 6-3 victory in the Padres' home opener.
 Candiotti, signed as a free agent from Toronto, gave up three runs on six hits in 7-1-3 innings. He struck out seven and walked two.
 Swindell, meanwhile, showed off his fine mix of fastball, slider and some of baseball's best control. He left after eight innings with Cincinnati ahead 5-1 lead in Houston, but the Astros rallied for four runs in the ninth and won 6-5 in the 13th on Casey Candaele's two-out single.

 Swindell held Houston to five hits. He struck out seven and walked none.
 The Indians provided Swindell with the fifth-worst support last year (3.6 runs per game), but Cincinnati gave him a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Reggie Sanders, who hit an RBI single in the first, added a solo home run in the fourth.
 Swindell came out after the eighth and Scott Bankhead gave up a pair of singles to start the ninth. Norm Charlton relieved and Ken Caminiti hit the first pitch for a three-run homer that made it 5-4.
 Caminiti led off the 13th with a single off Scott Ruskin (0-1), was sacrificed to second and scored on Candaele's single, beating Sanders' throw home from center.

Dodgers 6, Padres 3
 Brett Butler led off the game with a home run, Eric Karros hit a two-run shot later in the first inning and Mike Scioscia added a home run in the seventh as Los Angeles won San Diego's home opener.
Giants 11, Braves 4
 Will Clark homered, had four hits and drove in four runs as San Francisco chased Steve Avery and spoiled Atlanta's home opener.
 Ron Gant and Jeff Blauser each hit solo home runs off reliever Gil Heredia (1-0).
Phillies 7, Cubs 1
 Dale Murphy hit his 397th career home run and drove in three runs, leading Danny Cox and Philadelphia past Chicago.

High scoring Rangers win again

The ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Scoring certainly has not been a problem for Texas.
 The Rangers, led by Ruben Sierra, Dean Palmer and rookie Monty Fariss, beat completed a four-game sweep of the Mariners with a 9-1 victory. Texas had 50 hits in the series and scored 38 runs.
 And the Rangers — whose weakness figured to be pitching — got a strong performance from Jeff Robinson. They allowed only 12 runs in the series, 10 of them on opening night.
 Sierra had a three-run homer, Fariss a homer and three RBIs and Palmer had three hits, although none left the park. A homer by Palmer would have matched Willie Mays' 1971 record of four in the first four games.
 Texas won its 11th straight game in the Kingdom over two seasons.
 Robinson (1-0) got all the support

American League
 he needed when Texas scored six times in the second inning against rookie Dave Fleming (0-1).
 The new ballpark in Baltimore has a very long name. Perhaps they should shorten it to something more appropriate — like Shutout Stadium.
Orioles 2, Indians 0
 Oriole Park at Camden Yards has known nothing but in the first three days of its existence. The latest blanking was by Ben McDonald, who pitched a two-hitter Thursday night as the Orioles beat the Cleveland Indians 2-0.
 McDonald (1-0) struck out nine in his fifth complete game in the majors, permitting only one runner to reach third base.
 On opening day, Baltimore's

Rick Sutcliffe threw a five-hit shutout. On Wednesday, Dave Otto and Rod Nichols combined to blank the Orioles. Then came McDonald's gem, in which he retired the final 13 Indians and 18 of the last 19.
Blue Jays 3, Tigers 1
 Juan Guzman (1-0) matched his career high with 10 strikeouts and Dave Winfield hit his first home run for Toronto, giving the visiting Blue Jays a sweep of their three-game series against Detroit.
Twins 3, Brewers 1
 Minnesota's Pedro Munoz, starting in place of beamed Shane Mack, hit a tiebreaking, two-out single in the eighth inning at Milwaukee.
 Luis Quinones singled to start the eighth off Jaime Navarro (0-1). Kirby Puckett grounded out and Chili Davis followed with a single. After Randy Bush fouled out, Munoz singled to left-center for a 2-1 lead.

Athletics 5, Royals 2
 Ron Darling, who lost his final seven decisions last season, pitched well as the Athletics defeated Kansas City to sweep their three-game series at Oakland.
 Hot-hitting Mark McGwire had a solo homer and a run-scoring double, and Mike Bordick drove in two runs for Oakland.
Yankees 3, Red Sox 2
 Frank Viola, breezing into the sixth inning with a two-hit shutout, gave up an RBI double to Robert Kelly and a two-run double to Danny Tartabull as New York swept the two-game series.
White Sox 7, Angels 6
 George Bell had three hits, including his first homer, for the White Sox and Kirk McCaskill survived a shaky return to Anaheim Stadium.
 Rich Montealeone got the victory with 2 1-3 innings of hitless relief.

Foreman returns to Vegas

George said the 27-year-old Stewart.
 The 10-round fight, which will be televised by HBO, will be preceded by a scheduled 12-round fight for the IBF middleweight championship between champion James Toney and Glen Wolfe, the No. 6 contender.
 It was a much younger George the last time Foreman fought at the Las Vegas Hilton, which is sponsoring the fight.
 The year was 1969 and George Foreman was making his Las Vegas debut with a smashing first-round knockout of journeyman Bob Hazleton.
 Foreman, who weighed around 215 pounds during his first career, weighed in at 257 pounds against Holyfield and Ellis.

Beating force 'excessive'

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — A high-ranking officer watching a videotape of the beating of a motorist testified that baton blows police delivered after an initial flurry were an unreasonable use of force.

Cmdr. Michael Bostic, who chairs the Los Angeles Police Department's use of force review board, stopped the videotape Thursday after it showed Officer Laurence Powell hitting Rodney King about a dozen times.

"I believe from this point forward it is outside the policy of the Los Angeles Police Department," Bostic said.

"Is it your testimony that any force being delivered to Mr. King from this point forward is unreasonable and unnecessary?" asked Deputy District Attorney Terry White.

"Yes, it is," said Bostic, called by the prosecution as a rebuttal witness.

At that point, Officer Theodore Briseno is seen on the tape apparently trying to push back Powell's baton. King is on the ground, trying to get to his knees.

Seconds afterward, Officer Timothy Wind is seen smashing King in the legs and Powell resumes baton blows. The beating goes on for another minute before the tape ends.

Powell, Briseno, Wind and Sgt. Stacey Koon, all of whom are white, are charged with assault in the March 3, 1991, beating of King, who is black. King was stopped after a high-speed chase.

Dr. Norman Shorr, who performed surgery on motorist Rodney King after his beating by four Los Angeles Police Department officers, points to a photograph showing injuries to King's face.

Powell, Wind and Koon have generally contended their use of force was justified because King appeared to be dangerous and possibly under the influence of drugs.

The beating, recorded on videotape by a bystander, focused national attention on police brutality and stirred racial tensions in Los Angeles.

Also Thursday, an ophthalmologist called by the prosecution testified that King's cheekbone fractures were more likely caused by baton blows than by a fall.

"A broad flat surface would not result in a concavity like that," said Dr. Norman Shorr, a professor of ophthalmology at UCLA's Jules Stein Eye Institute. "There's no question a smaller blunt object could cause these (fractures)."

The defense had called an emergency room doctor who said King's injuries were consistent with a single fall to the pavement. Baton blows to the head aren't approved police practice and can be fatal, witnesses have said.

The trial was adjourned to Monday because of a death in the prosecutor's family.

gram at the requested amount. "At this point in time it is disappointing that they did not elect to fund us," St. Clair said. "The $1.98 million is a dead issue, but funding at a lesser amount is not a dead issue."

The Moore board and Wright will meet next week to determine if Wright will seek to fund the industry at the lower amount, St. Clair said.

If the loan had been approved, the Moore Board was ready to match these funds with $220,000 in order to gain the new industry.

An additional $500,000 in funding was being sought from the Texas Department of Commerce for the initial operating expenses for the industry, which was expected to employ 60 people initially, with this number growing to about 200 within 5 years, said St. Clair.

The mainstay of the operation, initially, was to be the production of cotton bale bags, replacing the environmentally harmful polypropylene and burlap bags, which are in use presently.

Wright has purchased 27 knitting machines to be used in the production, with this investment totaling about $750,000, St. Clair said.

What's your beef? West Texas beef of course!

Prison

Area communities pored from a statewide semi-finalist list of 47 were Abilene, Odessa and Snyder.

Facilities awarded include: three 2,250-bed maximum security prisons, six 1,000-bed minimum/medium security prisons, one 300-bed prison, four 1,000-bed drug rehabilitative centers, 10 500-bed drug rehabilitative centers and one 550-bed psychiatric unit.

The large prisons went to Wichita Falls, Karnes County and Bowie County.

"Boy howdy! I'll be darned. It's very, very disappointing. It's the loss of a tremendous economic impact it would have had."

Howard County Commissioner Bill Crooker

"I'm disappointed that Howard County didn't get one," said Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, who had three communities in his district that received facilities. "I think there will be more opportunities in the future and I'll certainly keep plugging."

Construction on the prison in Mitchell County could begin this year, take 18 months to complete and pump an estimated $28 million into the local economy. The state requires that water, sewer, electricity and telephone service be available in 90 days.

American cuts fares up to 50 percent

NEW YORK (AP) — Some travelers will find air fares sharply lower beginning next week.

American said Thursday its first-class fares will be 20 percent to 50 percent lower beginning Monday, and unrestricted coach fares will be at least 38 percent cheaper.

United, Delta, USAir, Northwest, Continental, Alaska Airlines and America West quickly said they would match the plan either completely or partially. Trans World Airlines, a frequent fare-chopper now in bankruptcy court, said it was studying the plan.

American is betting the lower fares will encourage more people to fly, bringing bigger profits in the long run to offset a short-term financial blow.

If the plan doesn't work, American Chairman Robert L. Crandall said, it might at least build good will among travelers angered by high fares and confused by the many restrictions put in place by the airlines.

"The system, quite simply, is broke," Crandall said Thursday. "To have the future we want — for our customers, our shareholders and our employees — we must fix it."

American expects to lose $100 million this spring as travelers take advantage of cheaper fares, Crandall said. But in the long run, he estimated, the plan could increase profits by some $350 million a year and allow the airline to save $25 million in annual costs associated with the current quagmire of fare-setting. Current restrictions often include advance purchases and Saturday night stays.

American said the price of a New York to Chicago flight in coach would drop from $427 to $250 each way. The price of a Dallas to Boston flight would drop from $655 to $380 each way.

Most discount ticket prices will go down, but some will rise, Crandall said.

American's plan includes other changes:

- Corporations and groups previously able to cut deals with airlines by purchasing tickets in volume will pay the same price as everyone else.

- People who change their reservations or want a refund for full-fare tickets will pay a $25 surcharge.

- Passengers with 7-day or 21-day discount advance purchase tickets will be able to use them at a later date if they cancel their plans, but they must pay a $25 charge. In the past, costs for handling those changes were shared by all passengers, American said.

Official: Victims don't want Keating free

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Retirees who lost life savings after they were duped into buying risky bonds from Charles Keating Jr.'s Lincoln Savings "would rather go hungry than to see him go free," a probation officer said.

Probation Officer Thomas Aiken recommended that Keating be given a long prison term at his sentencing today.

Anything short of prison would be "a slap in the face to the elderly victims fighting for economic survival," Aiken wrote in his sentencing recommendation to Superior Court Judge Lance A. Ito.

Keating, 68, was convicted in December on 17 counts of securities fraud alleging that he duped investors into believing risky junk bonds from his holding company, American Continental Corp., were safe.

He faced a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison. Prosecutors also urged a fine of up to $4.25 million.

More than 17,000 bondholders, including many elderly depositors at the Lincoln Savings and Loan Association, lost about $250 million when Keating's empire crumbled three years ago. Lincoln's bailout cost taxpayers $2.6 billion, the costliest thrift failure ever.

Keating supporters urged the judge to grant probation. They described Keating as a devoted family man and philanthropist who, if allowed to remain free, would work to repay those who lost money on his bonds.

However, Aiken recommended a long sentence, citing what he called Keating's "callous disregard and betrayal of trust" in his position as bank owner.

"Each of the victims contacted stressed ... that they would rather go hungry than to see him go free," Aiken wrote.

District Attorney Ira Reiner said

Ito should order Keating to prison while the state case is appealed and Keating prepares to defend himself against federal charges carrying a potential 510-year sentence.

The maximum 10-year sentence would be a small penalty for the enormous suffering Keating caused, he said.

"The maximum isn't enough in this case. Any reduction whatsoever would diminish the gravity of the case," Reiner said in an interview.

Blood banks deluged with calls

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

The woman had already gotten two negative tests for the AIDS virus since her transfusion about a year ago. But when she heard about Arthur Ashe, she still called a blood bank for advice.

"What I told her was for her own peace of mind, have another test, and if that's negative, then just to figure she is... free of the AIDS virus," said Blanche Lansky.

Lansky took the call as director of community services of the American Red Cross Blood Services-Northeast Region, in Dedham, Mass.

It was among about 10 inquiries there by Thursday afternoon, and was typical of what many blood banks were dealing with after Ashe's announcement Wednesday that he had gotten AIDS from a surgery-related transfusion.

Some calls have also come from people who are contemplating surgery, said Bill Teague, president of the Gulf Coast Regional Blood Center in Houston, which had received 15 to 20 calls in all by mid-morning Thursday.

"Clearly it has renewed the fear of getting AIDS from a transfusion," he said.

Ashe, the former tennis star, said he believed he was infected by blood transfused after heart-bypass surgery in 1983. The date is significant, blood bank officials stress, because that was before blood banks began screening blood for the AIDS virus in March 1985.

Out of millions of people transfused since then, only 20 have gotten AIDS from screened blood, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control.

Spokesmen for major blood banking associations say transfusion recipients should contact their doctors if they are worried about the possibility of AIDS infection.

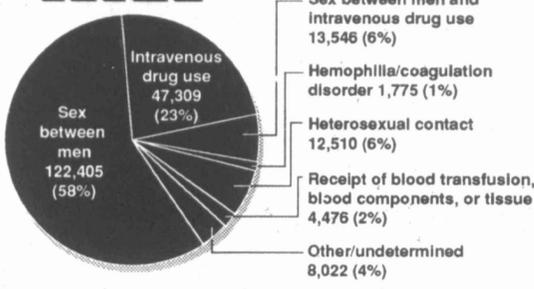

Marcia Lane, spokeswoman for the American Association of Blood Banks, said the average delay between transfusion-related infection with the AIDS virus, called HIV, and appearance of AIDS is about seven years. That is about the time that has elapsed since screening began, she said.

"If they haven't developed symptoms, there is probably not a cause for worry at this point," she said.

The distinction between risk before and after the screening began seems to have sunk in for transfusion recipients and others who have called the New York Blood Center, spokeswoman Andrea Smith said.

"The most important thing they want to know is what is the date testing began," she said. "They simply want a line in time drawn."

At some blood banks, calls have led to a discussion of storing one's own blood for future use, a practice recommended if it is possible before a planned surgery.

Dollar rises, gold up

LONDON (AP) — The dollar rose against most other major currencies in Europe today. Gold prices also moved up.

In Tokyo, the dollar fell 0.51 yen to a closing 132.19 yen. Later, in London, it was quoted at 132.35 yen.

High school students at high risk for AIDS

ATLANTA (AP) — One in five high school students are putting themselves at high risk for AIDS by having sex with four or more partners, researchers say.

"The best way to explain it to kids is that it's like playing Russian roulette and not knowing how many live bullets are in the chambers," said Dr. Lloyd Kolbe of the national Centers for Disease Control.

The CDC reported Thursday that 19 percent of U.S. high school students have had four or more sex partners; the percentage jumps to 29 percent by senior year.

Male students were more likely than females to be sexually active, 27 percent to 12 percent. For black males, the figure was 60 percent, compared with 21 percent for white males.

The 1990 nationwide survey shows "a substantial proportion of students engage in behaviors that place them at risk for HIV (AIDS virus) infection," the CDC said.

Only a moderate number of sexually active students are protecting themselves against AIDS and other diseases, the CDC said. Of students who had engaged in sex in the previous three months, 45 percent reported using condoms.

Among students with four partners or more, it was 41 percent.

The CDC's 1990 survey of high school health habits was its first. But the findings were dramatically higher than in similar previous studies.

A 1979 survey of females 15-19 found 29 percent had ever had sex; by 1990, it was 54 percent, said

Kolbe, director of the CDC's Division of Adolescent and School Health.

Through February, there were 808 cases of AIDS reported in Americans 13-19 and 8,402 in Americans 20-24. It can take 10 years or more for the HIV infection to develop into AIDS.

The survey was conducted among more than 11,000 students in all 50 states, Washington D.C., Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. The overall margin of error was about 2 percentage points.

Groups struggle to promote organ donations

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruby Stroman prayed from the moment she learned her daughter Regina had suffered a brain aneurysm.

When doctors and her minister approached her about the possibility of donating her daughter's organs to others waiting for transplants, she prayed some more. And suddenly through her tears there was an answer.

"I tend to be a person who cries easily. My tear ducts were just dried. It was though at the time he (God) just told me what to do."

What has kept her strong since is the knowledge that her daughter's kidneys took two people off of dialysis and her heart and lungs also were used to help others.

"This is my way of keeping her alive," she said. "It makes it peaceful with me because I know she's not rotting in the ground."

Stroman told of her experience at a conference on religious issues in organ and tissue transplantation sponsored by the Montefiore Medical Center and the New York Regional Transplant Program Inc. The conference was an attempt by the medical community to help increase religious support for organ donations.

Most religious groups support organ donor programs, but are wary of being out front on the issue. In the pews, concerns range from the fear that organs will be taken before patients die to concerns that losing organs would complicate a bodily resurrection into heaven.

Even as medical groups push for religious support, a cloud has emerged over the discussion with the case of a Florida couple who wanted to donate the organs of their anencephalic child before her death. The parents wanted their daughter to live on in another child, but ethicists warn it could set a

The Rev. Robert V. Lott says his experience as a liver transplant recipient has deepened his faith. The Roman Catholic priest is shown Tuesday at St. Francis de Sales Church in New York.

"When human life can be saved, it must be saved. There is no defiling of the dead when a dead person's organ is used to save someone's life. It's only an honoring of the dead."
-Rabbi Moshe Tendler

precedent to push back the barriers of organ donation to allow killing the living to save the dying.

The issue of protecting vulnerable populations from abuse is particularly important to many religious groups.

Dr. Vivian A. Tellis, director of the transplant program at Montefiore, said at the conference that although the individual case of an anencephalic child is tragic for the family, there would be more serious consequences if exceptions were made to rules limiting organ donation to those already dead.

"We should not redefine death to suit our convenience," he said. "Do not blur the line. We will be regressing back to Nazi Germany. Do not blur the line."

But with that fear eliminated, Tellis said, the ethical imperative then becomes to donate organs. With thousands of people dying for the lack of heart and liver transplants, not being an organ donor is not a benign decision, he said.

"People will die if you say no," he said.

The Rev. Robert V. Lott said he wondered before agreeing to a liver transplant whether it was an extraordinary means to preserve a life.

But now that he has been a recipient, the Catholic priest said he experienced a sense of awe at the procedure that has deepened his faith.

On Easter Sunday, he would encourage clergy to mention organ donations as a dimension of the resurrection "that can bring us into a deeper insight of what life is about."

The Rev. James A. Forbes, senior minister of The Riverside Church, said in the black free church tradition he comes out of there has been a concern that organ donation would somehow detract from the sacredness of the body. There also is a popular belief that tampering with a dead body would make the eternal "manicuring job" of the angelic surgeon more difficult.

But Forbes said he bases his stand in favor of organ donation on the example of Jesus, who Christians believe died to offer eternal life to others. In liturgical rites, Christians continually commemorate Christ's giving of his body and blood for others.

"Sacrificial giving is an expression of the height of love," Forbes said. "When you can no longer live, grant that what remains will serve the legacy of love."

In Orthodox Judaism, the Bioethics Commission of the Rabbinical Council of America issued a recent health care declaration in which it advocated organ donation.

"When human life can be saved, it must be saved," said Rabbi Moshe Tendler of the commission. "There is no defiling of the dead when a dead person's organ is used to save someone's life. It's only an honoring of the dead."

Conference opens dialogue with artists

NEW YORK (AP) — The works of art have sent imaginations soaring to the heavens for centuries — Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel, Botticelli's "Spring," Leonardo da Vinci's "Virgin and Child with St. Anne."

Twentieth-century artists such as Wassily Kandinsky and Mark Rothko continued to produce works with profound spiritual content, but what once was a symbiotic relationship between art and religion has deteriorated into one of mutual distrust in many quarters.

On the extremes, many religious leaders cannot look beyond an Andres Serrano exhibit of a crucifix soaked in urine in forming their opinion of modern art, while those in the artistic community see religion as part of the crusade to eliminate federal funding for works some consider pornographic or blasphemous.

Into this tense atmosphere, one of history's great art patrons — the Vatican — has stepped in to try and begin to bridge the gulf.

"It may sound banal, but if there is ignorance and mutual suspicion, it is best to meet and to share ideals," said Cardinal Paul Poupard, president of the Pontifical Council for Dialogue with Non-Believers. "We meet around a certain idea of humanity. The church is in charge of good and the artist is in charge of beauty. The good needs the beautiful to express itself."

A conference on "Religion and the Arts" last weekend at Fordham University was the council's first formal dialogue with artists, but the recent effort to develop a new understanding of the relation between religion and art goes back to Pope Paul VI, who established a museum of modern art in the Vatican in the 1960s.

When Pope John Paul II visited the United States in 1987, he quoted form Pope Paul VI in telling the entertainment community in Hollywood that the church is not asking artists to play the role of moralists, "but we are expressing confidence in your mysterious power of opening up the glorious regions of light that lie behind the mystery of human life."

But problems remain in relations between the church and the artistic community.

"I think they're miles apart, to be honest with you," said painter Adam Cvjianovic. "While there's obviously some common ground, the differences are really huge."

Poupard and others in the dialogue said many within the church have difficulty understanding the freedom to create demanded by the vocation, or with others lack the sophistication to appreciate abstract art.

But there is a similar dogmatic resistance to the church in the art world, dialogue participants said.

For example, Cvjianovic said, while Serrano's "tedious" work is acceptable within the art community, "what would not be acceptable is a piece glorifying Jesse Helms."

By holding prejudices against the church that are canonical in their own way, the artistic community is tending to ignore its own history, Cvjianovic said.

"That's too bad because art is always a spiritual inquiry," he said.

That many of the great spiritual works of the 20th century have been abstract is but one of the ironies that abound in the current dialogue. Both sides agree there is substantial common ground.

The style has changed, but many works of modern art still "will actually be extremely serious inquiries into the relation of form and spirit," Cvjianovic said.

And while some within the modern art world hold a "belief in unbelief even to the point of martyrdom," both artists and the church share a common enemy of a culture that dehumanizes individuals, said Joseph Mascheck, an art critic and associate professor of art history at Hofstra University.

But the problem lies in where one draws standards for evaluating art.

Particularly in the selection of religious art to be used for worship, the church has a critical role, Poupard said.

"The church is a guardian of the message received from Christ, the Gospel, and this message has content," he said.

Poupard would measure art by whether it enhances or detracts from human dignity.

"A false culture is one that embitters or degrades the human," he said.

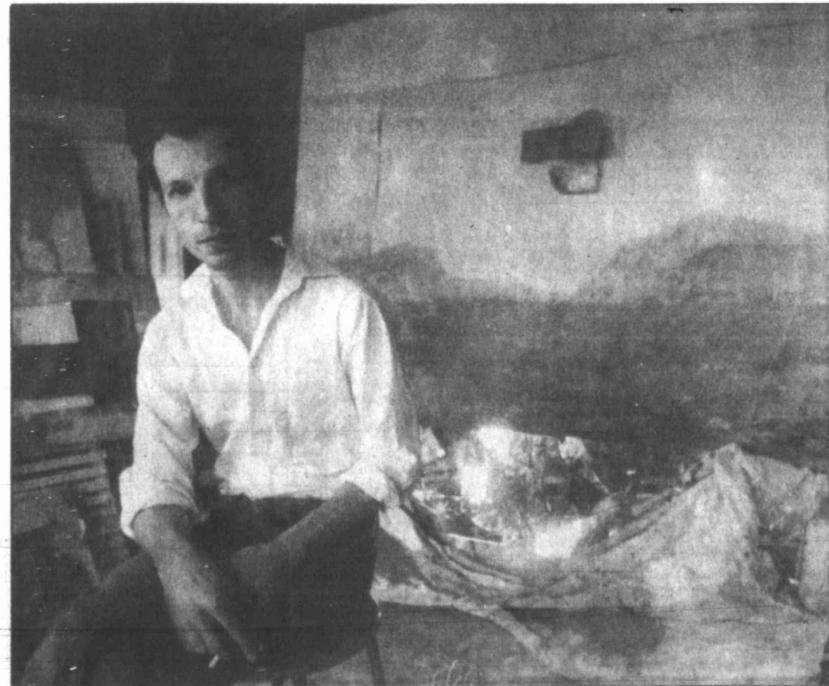

But artists who are suspicious of any definitions of terms such as faith, truth or beauty may have more modest ambitions.

Mascheck sees the potential for dialogue in starting out by recognizing concerns over the art of someone like Serrano.

"What is revolting to me is his tasteful blasphemy. Baudelaire himself would retch," Mascheck said.

But he would also ask the cardinal or other church leaders to recognize in the performance art of Karen Finley, which sometimes includes smearing her nude body with chocolate, an important message about the exploitation of women.

"We know about art. They know about faith. And we'll just have to work out the overlap," Mascheck said.

Artist Adam Cvjianovic sits in his Brooklyn, N.Y. studio recently before his work "Expulsion from Paradise." Cvjianovic says he regrets current differences between the church and the artistic community since he believes "art is always a spiritual inquiry."

Convention fears precedent

GREENSBORO (AP) — Leaders of the state Baptist Convention have rejected a proposal that would expel churches that support homosexuality, but they said that doesn't mean they support recent controversial actions within the denomination.

The executive committee of the North Carolina State Baptist Convention, meeting Tuesday in closed session at Wake Forest University, voted 9-8 to reject the proposal, issued in March by the convention's top six leaders. Five of the votes cast Tuesday in favor of the proposal came from those leaders.

It was the first official vote on the issue, which has dominated debate among Baptist leaders for more than a month.

"I thought this was setting a precedent that puts us on a slippery slope," said the Rev. Lamar King of High Point's First Baptist Church, who voted against endorsing the proposal.

"If we exclude one church for one reason, then we open the door for excluding any church for any reason," he told the News & Record of Greensboro. "I am so afraid that if we begin excluding groups based on what we perceive their sins to be ... let's face it, there'll be no end to it."

King and other committee members stressed, however, that their opposition to the proposal does not mean they endorse stands on homosexuality taken in recent weeks by two member churches.

Olin T. Binkley Memorial Baptist Church in Chapel Hill voted Sunday to give a gay divinity student a license to preach. Pullen Memorial Baptist Church in Raleigh voted in March to let their minister bless the union of two gay men.

The Rev. Lamar Brooks, president of the convention's General Board, said the leaders still plan to take the issue to the full board when it meets May 19.

"Today's vote will not serve as a clue as to what the General Board will do when it meets," Brooks said. "My guess is the General Board will approve the statement, but we don't know that for sure."

Church briefs

Members of the First Church of the Nazarene will present the "Living Last Supper" Sunday at 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. According to church officials, the production will be presented twice to enable those who attend other churches the opportunity to attend. "There's a lot of people who don't want to miss their own church service on Sunday morning. This will give them will have the opportunity to attend," said C.J. Ward, church secretary. The church is located at 1400 Lancaster St.

Passion Play begins April 16

The First Assembly of God, 4th and Lancaster, welcomes the second annual presentation of Passion Play on April 16-19.

The hour-long drama includes over 70 cast members, seven scenes and live animals. The cast will depict the last days of Jesus Christ from his triumphant entry into Jerusalem to the jubilant announcement of his empty tomb.

Passion Play begins at 7:30 p.m. nightly and admission is free. Call the church for more details.

'Honor your father and mother', especially now

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My sister and I are worried about our father. He's had several small strokes that seem to have affected his memory and his ability to make decisions, and we think he would be better off in a nursing home instead of living by himself. But he won't hear of it, and even gets angry when we mention it. How can we help him? — Mrs. G.K.S.

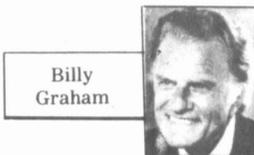

DEAR MRS. G.K.S.: First of all, I'm thankful for your concern for your father. Far too often today the elderly are almost forgotten by others, sometimes even by their children. But God commands us to "Honor your father and your mother" (Exodus 20:12) — no matter how old they are. From the cross just before His death, Jesus told one of His disciples to take care of Mary, His aging mother (see John 19:25-27).

Let me suggest first of all that you speak with your father's doctor about his condition. He needs to know your observations and concerns, and he may have some specific recommendations to make. Your father may also be more open to his suggestions than to your urgings if a move is necessary.

In addition, explore other alternatives. For example, could someone help your father during the day with cooking and cleaning and other chores which may be difficult for him now? Or in many parts of the country there are "assisted living" facilities which are designed for people who need some help, but don't need the full service a nursing home provides.

Let your father know that you're not trying to run his life for him, but you are concerned for his well-being. Pray for him also, and seek to encourage him spiritually. It is undoubtedly a hard time for him — but if he knows Christ then he knows there is hope for the future.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My hus-

band died last year after 44 years of marriage, and I've been so lonely since then that I've almost given up any desire for living. I know I was probably too dependent on him, but he meant everything to me and now that he's gone I don't have any real friends. I guess he really was my best friend. Please pray for me. — Mrs. E.P.

DEAR MRS. E.P.: Let me thank you, first of all, for the example I know your love was to others during those 44 years. Our society needs to see more marriages like that! I've often said to others that my wife is also my best friend, and I'm grateful to God for giving her to me and for her love — not only for me, but for Christ. Take comfort from those many years God gave you, and thank Him for them.

God understands your hurt and your loneliness, and He wants to assure you of His love and presence in a special way right now. He knows our weaknesses, and He does not condemn us or scorn us when we are weak. Do you believe that? The Bible promises, "A bruised reed he will not break, and a smoldering wick he will not snuff out. ... I, the Lord, have called you in righteousness; I will take hold of your hand. I will keep you" (Isaiah 42:3,6).

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I'm amused by people like you who try to get others to follow the Ten Commandments. Surely you must realize those were written thousands of years ago and are no longer relevant to modern life. — B.L.L.

DEAR B.L.L.: I regret you feel the way you do about these timeless moral truths (which you can find in the Old Testament in Exodus 20). I have found them to be just as relevant — and needed — today as when they were first given.

The real question is this: Why did God give us the Ten Commandments? Is it because He wanted to take all the fun out of living? Or did He have a deeper purpose? Listen: The real reason God gave them to us is because He loves us. Let me explain.

You see, just as there are physical rules, so there are moral and spiritual rules. You may choose to defy the law of gravity by jumping off a tall building, but that will not cancel the law of gravity or save you from its consequences. In the same way, we may choose to defy God's moral laws, but that won't cancel them or keep us from suffering the consequences. When we ignore the moral commandments of God we end up hurting only ourselves. "A man reaps what he sows. The one who sows to please his sinful nature, from that nature will reap destruction" (Galatians 6:7-8).

NOTICE TO AT&T CUSTOMERS IN TEXAS

BUSY LINE VERIFICATION AND BUSY LINE INTERRUPTION

This notice is to advise of the introduction of new operator services offerings by AIXT Communications of the Southwest, Inc. Effective April 19, 1992, AIXT will provide Busy Line Verification and Busy Line Interruption. A description of these services are as follows:

BUSY LINE VERIFICATION provides for operator assistance in determining if there is conversation in progress on a called number. The proposed rate is $3.00 per attempt.

BUSY LINE INTERRUPTION provides for operator interruption of a conversation in progress on a called number. Busy Line Verification charges will not be incurred on calls in which a Busy Line Interruption charge is imposed. A Busy Line Verification must be made prior to this service. The proposed rate is $4.00 per attempt.

OPERATOR DIALED 0-

This notice is to advise of the introduction by AIXT Communications of the Southwest, Inc. of an operator service surcharge of $0.50 per call, effective April 24, 1992, on calls utilizing AIXT's Operator Dialed 0- service. At the same time, AIXT will reduce Customer Dialed/Automated and Customer Dialed-Operator Must Assist Calling Card service charges from $1.05 to $0.93 per call.

OPERATOR DIALED 0- service denotes those situations where the Customer dials the operator and requests the operator to dial the called number. A function of this surcharge will be to recover new costs now imposed on AIXT by local telephone companies involved in processing these calls.

These revisions will affect customers who utilize AIXT's Operator Dialed 0- Customer Dialed/Automated and Customer Dialed Operator Must Assist Calling Card services. The positive net revenue impact to AIXT of these two changes is less than $225,000 annually, which is .03% of AIXT's annual intrastate revenues.

Any person who wishes to comment on these applications, or who would like further information, should mail a request as soon as possible to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Second Annual Passion Play

Western civilization dates all of history around the life of Jesus Christ of Nazareth. The significance of his life rests upon the event that is celebrated every year on Easter Sunday his resurrection from the dead.

The First Assembly of God Church's presentation of the Easter Pageant portrays that moment in history, as well as the days leading up to it, with fast-moving drama and sensitive emotions.

Stephen Grace, pastor of the church, plays the part of Jesus convincingly with a supporting cast of approximately 70 men, women and children of the congregation. All are realistically costumed in robes or Roman soldiers' armor. The front of the church is partitioned with a curtain to provide two stage areas for the action.

In Scene I, "The Triumphal Entry," Jesus sends his disciples to get a donkey for him to ride into Jerusalem. They return with a live donkey, which Jesus mounts and rides around the stage amid cheers and the waving of palm branches by a stageful of actors, including children.

The next scene is "The Last Supper," in which the betrayer is revealed and the Passover is celebrated. "The Garden of Gethsemane" follows where Judas (played by Abel Salzar) identifies Jesus with a kiss and Peter cuts off the ear of the High Priest's servant.

Soldiers arrest Jesus in the Garden, leading up to "Pilate's Judgment Hall," which finds Peter denying that he knows Jesus, Jesus being scourged and Pilate washing his hands of the whole business. The despair of the hour, as Jesus, the wisest and gentlest of men, is lashed repeatedly and then brutally dragged to his fate brings tears to the eyes.

The next scene, "The crucifixion," finds Jesus being nailed to a cross between two thieves. His blood-spattered body and crown of thorns are poignant testimony to the pain he feels, as he hangs on a cross at the front of the stage.

In "The Resurrection" scene three women Magdalene, Mary, the mother of Jesus and Salome go tearfully to the tomb to anoint Jesus body, only to find the stone rolled away, the cave empty and an angel bearing the news of his resurrection. They rush from the stage excitedly to take the news to the disciples.

In the final scene, "The Ascension," Jesus charges his disciples to go forth into the whole world with the good news of the gospel, and then he rises into the clouds.

Between scenes, special music soloists sing appropriate songs, adding to the mood of the play.

It is a moving story about one of the best-known weeks in history. Anyone who has ever wondered, "What is Easter really about?" should see the performance of the First Assembly of God's Easter Pageant April 16, 17, 18, & 19, 7:30 p.m. nightly.

Campus rape is old story needing new attention

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Concerned Mother" whose letter about campus rape was published in your column. In the first place, no one should be ASSIGNED to a coed dorm. Only those who request a coed dorm, and are mature enough to accept the responsibility, should be allowed in a coed dorm. In my opinion, only juniors and seniors who have proven themselves with good grades and respectable behavior should be in a coed dormitory. The girl who was raped — and her parents — should have yelled bloody murder, and the student who raped her should have been taken to court, sentenced, and thrown out of school for good! However, this rarely happens. I work at a university and see this all

Dear Abby
The guy is usually an athlete. He's slapped on the wrist, and the girl and her family are convinced by campus police and the university lawyers that it would be in the girl's best interest to drop the case, because it will ruin HER reputation, and she will have to prove that she didn't ask for it. I'm afraid this practice will continue until the girls insist on filing charges and seeing the case through. The suggestion was made that the student who raped the girl in her dorm should be moved to an all-male floor! The guy should have been moved to PRISON! — OUTRAGED

DEAR OUTRAGED: I agree with you 100 percent. Fortunately, more college girls are being briefed about the subject of campus rape. They now know that every case must be reported — not to the campus police, but to the city police. * * *
DEAR ABBY: What do you think of people who make a habit of recycling gifts? Someone gives Grandma some old gift for Christmas, for example, a pair of lawn flamingos or a clay sheep that grows alfalfa sprouts. Then the next Christmas, Grandma rewraps it and sends it to Aunt Helen. Grandma does this constantly. I could understand it if she were unable to buy something new, but she is very well off. I am very hurt to receive these obviously recycled gifts from Grandma every year. Am I being overly sensitive? — HURT

DEAR HURT: I see nothing wrong with recycling gifts that are (a) in mint condition and (b) useful. But those who make a practice of sending secondhand white elephants on gift-giving occasions are just plain cheap. You are not overly sensitive. Shame on Grandma. * * *

FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 11, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY: IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: New emotional security and financial success will be yours when you put down roots! A midsummer vacation can be fun, even if you spend it in your own back yard. A warm-weather romance could turn serious by October. Loans are more likely to be granted in December. Focus on your career as 1993 gets under way. Wise investments will make monetary worries a thing of the past.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Louise Lasser, fashion designer Oleg Cassini, actor Joel Grey, Ethel Kennedy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Check into the advisability of financing a promising enterprise. You may get better terms when you deal with people you know well. Pay bills on time and answer important letters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Believe that wishes come true — they really do. Confidential help from a friend or special group could make it happen. Talking shop with your colleagues pays off handsomely.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You will get a positive feeling from what happens this weekend. Share your optimism with your mate and children. Get a message to someone before it is too late. Offer your full support.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Everything begins to fall into place for you emotionally and financially. An unexpected visit proves very rewarding. Fulfill your obligations to others to the best of your ability.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): By slightly altering your weekend plans, the whole family can participate in the fun. A moral sense is very important when making a financial decision now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Avoid behavior patterns you know will get you into trouble. Good nutrition will keep you feeling fit and energetic. Once you settle a debt, you will find it easier to relax and be happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Listen to someone's explanation before going off on your own. Certain shortcuts may not save time. Find out what is behind a child's thinking and you will draw closer to each other.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Treat yourself to something special today. A change of pace is just what the doctor ordered! Do not be afraid to express your concern for a loved one or friend. Travel is favored.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A woman's viewpoint may help you find the right solution to a recurring problem. Follow your intuition and good things will happen. A heart felt compliment will lift your spirits sky-high.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What goes up will come down — and you will be better for it. Lukewarm approval is not enough for a child. Be more supportive! You are in a position to score big gains.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): All that glitters is not gold. Proceed with caution. A lovable bumbler may be just what you need in your personal life right now. Give this loyal new admirer a chance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You have to have both heart and resolve to get ahead. A controversial approach may offer the best chance for success. Confide in someone who has earned your trust.
