Kelly sentenced to six life terms

FARMVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Convicted day care center child molester Robert F. Kelly Jr. was sentenced today to life in prison after maintaining his innocence and telling a judge, "I have not done these things."

Judge D. Marsh McLelland rejected a plea for leniency and gave Kelly at least six consecutive life terms in one of America's longest child-molestation cases. He was still reading sentences on other of the 99 charges Kelly was convicted of.

Kelly, who owned the now-closed Little Rascals Day Care Center in Edenton, was found guilty Wednesday of sexually abusing 12 children, ages 4 to 7.

Kelly, 44, faced up to 40 life terms plus 590 years in prison. As his sentencing hearing got under way this morning, prosecutors asked for 12 life terms, one for each child he was convicted of molesting. Mike Spivey, his lawyer, asked McLelland to consider Kelly's prior clean criminal record and good reputation in the community and give him a lenient sentence.

"When I went to jail, ... I was accused of many many things, none of which I have done," Kelly told the judge. He has been jailed since his 1989 arrest.

"I am innocent," he said. "I have not done these things."

Many of the children who testified in the case were in the courtroom as the sentences were read.

He was found guilty of rape, taking indecent liberties, sexual offense and crimes against nature. The sole acquittal among the 100 counts against Kelly involved allegations he had sex with his wife in front of a child.

Many parents of the victims returned to the courtroom today for the sentencing, some with their children. Katherine Harris, the jury forewoman, also came back for the sentencing.

The verdict, returned after 14 days of deliberation, a state record, ended the longest and most expensive criminal trial in North Carolina history, one that's been compared to the McMartin Pre-School case in Manhattan Beach, Calif.

Kelly's trial began in August and is estimated to have cost more than $1.2 million in court expenses. The trial was moved 85 miles west from Edenton because of pretrial publicity.

The McMartin case involved an 18-month preliminary hearing and two trials — one of nearly three years — and cost more than $13.5 million, a U.S. record for a criminal proceeding. Raymond Buckley and six others ultimately were cleared.

Earthquake shakes Southern California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A strong earthquake shook Southern California, damaging utility lines and desert towns, causing minor injuries and raising official worry that the catastrophic Big One could be on the way.

The quake struck at 9:50 p.m. Wednesday and measured 6.1 on the Richter scale. Buildings swayed in downtown Los Angeles, and tremors were felt as far away as Arizona and Nevada and from San Diego to Santa Barbara, 200 miles up the coast.

Witnesses' estimates of the quake's duration ranged from 10 to 60 seconds.

"It was a terrible shaking," said Mary Gibson of Desert Hot Springs. "We were just getting ready to go to bed, and the whole house just shook. It felt like an eternity."

As dozens of aftershocks rumbled through the region, officials warned residents to be ready for an even bigger one. But the risk of that happening diminished within hours.

The quake was centered 110 miles east of downtown Los Angeles in Desert Hot Springs. It was along an unnamed north-to-south fault in the mountains about five miles from the big San Andreas fault, said Lucy Jones, a seismologist for the U.S. Geological Survey.

In Los Angeles, Fire Department spokesman Jim Wells said there were no immediate reports of damage or injuries in the nation's second-largest city.

Shaking was felt at Dodger Stadium but didn't interrupt a baseball game there. There was no noticeable reaction from players or the crowd of nearly 35,000; phones in the press box went out for several minutes.

The quake damaged at least 10 buildings and knocked out power in areas of Yucca Valley and Twentynine Palms, said San Bernardino County sheriff's dispatcher Bob Duncan. The quake also shattered supermarket windows in Palm Springs.

About a dozen people were taken to Hi-Desert Medical Center in Joshua Tree with injuries ranging from a broken ankle to cuts, spokeswoman Theresa Graham said. The emergency room was full.

"We practice this all the time," she said. "We're doing pretty good."

In Riverside County, fire officials received reports of mostly minor damage, including gas leaks at homes, some flooding from pipes and damage to a fire station in Thousand Palms, said county spokeswoman Joanne Evans. Some phone service was lost.

At Cravan, left, and Mary Merrick, managers of a drug store in Desert Hot Springs, Calif., look over damage to their store caused by an earthquake Wednesday night. The quake, which measured 6.1 on the Richter scale, was centered in desert communities 100 miles east of Los Angeles. No deaths or major structural damage has been reported.

North Koreans taught to hate U.S.

PYONGYANG, North Korea (AP) — At a kindergarten in Pyongyang, children take turns firing wooden machine guns at an effigy of a U.S. imperialist soldier. The teacher then pulls a string and the hinged head collapses.

The scene is no distant memory from the darkest days of the Cold War. It is a snippet from daily life in this hard-line Communist state, where anti-American propaganda is everywhere.

From beginning classes to diatribes in the state-controlled press, there is no escaping anti-U.S. propaganda, which depicts Americans as wolves and urges North Koreans to remain vigilant against supposed U.S. plans to launch a war.

Annual mass rallies throughout the nation bring hundreds of thousands of people together to condemn the "U.S. imperialists."

"Yankes are wolves in human form" is one sentence found in a popular book to teach English-language sentence structure. "Let's mutilate the American imperialists!" is an entry in an English phrase book.

"Of course I think the United States will start another war," said Kim Duc Sun, 77, speaking in this capital city, which was virtually flattened by U.S. bombs during the Korean War.

"Even the children in

'Even the children in kindergarten know that the United States wants to bring war again. Even the babies hate the American imperialists.'

kindergarten know that the United States wants to bring war again. Even the babies hate the American imperialists."

Foreign residents from North Korea's former socialist allies say that even at the worst of times, anti-U.S. sentiments espoused by their governments could not compare to those encouraged by the North Korean regime.

Most of the North Koreans interviewed cited the stationing of U.S. soldiers in rival South Korea and annual U.S.-South Korean war games as reasons to fear a U.S. attack.

"We are still in a state of war with the United States," Maj. Kim Song Nam said in an interview at Panmunjom, the truce village that straddles Communist North and capitalist South Korea.

"Of course, I am very hostile to them. We have done nothing wrong to them, but they have unilaterally given us suffering and misery. That is why we all call the Americans wolves."

His hostility was on display when he conducted a Western reporter through the Panmunjom neutral zone as American soldiers watched silently a yard away.

"This is where we negotiate with the American bastards," he said. Despite the rhetoric, President Kim Il-Song appears ready for a thaw in relations with Washington, in part because the fall of his socialist allies has created a domestic economic crisis.

North Korea is desperate for hard currency to purchase items such as fuel and spare parts for factories.

This month, Kim called for opening of diplomatic relations with the United States.

Washington, which accuses Pyongyang of trying to build nuclear weapons and of engaging in international terrorism, has held meetings with North Korean officials since January in search of improved relations.

The annual U.S.-South Korea "Team Spirit" war games were canceled this year, but fear of the United States instilled by a generation of relentless propaganda may be hard to erase.

Marion Barry out of prison

LORETTO, Pa. (AP) — Marion Barry's dishwashing days behind bars are over. The former Washington mayor was released without fanfare today from a federal prison after a serving six-month sentence for cocaine possession.

"There were no crowds," prison spokesman Ron Hamm said.

Barry was released about 5:30 a.m. Supporters in six buses planned to join him in a prayer service at noon in nearby Johnstown before escorting Barry back to the city he governed for three terms.

Barry was caught in an FBI sting and convicted in 1990 in a trial that featured a videotape of him smoking crack in a hotel room.

Plane carrying skydivers crashes

PERRIS, Calif. (AP) — A plane taking U.S. and Dutch skydivers on a jump plunged nose-first into a field on takeoff, killing 16. Investigators focused on whether the parachutists were wearing seat belts in the open cabin.

Jumpers were riding on the floor when the twin-engine De Havilland DHC-6 Twin Otter went down at Perris Valley Airport on Wednesday, authorities said. The nose and wings were sheared off, but the plane didn't explode or burn.

"People inside were yelling. I thought it was gonna blow. Gas was dripping and the engine was smoking," said Fred Parle, a businessman at the airport who rushed to the crash site.

"It was gruesome," said Mark Moore, who lives near the airfield. "More blood than I've ever seen."

Fifteen people were dead at the scene and one died at a hospital, said fire Capt. Travis Witten. Six others were hospitalized in serious or critical condition. The plane carried 22 people, two of them crew members, Witten said.

The cause of the crash was under investigation.

The plane had no cockpit voice recorder or flight data recorder. The so-called black boxes are not required on that type of plane, said Fredrick O'Donnell, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Los Angeles.

Investigators were also focusing on whether the jumpers were strapped into seat belts anchored to the floor, said a National Transportation Safety Board official, speaking on condition of anonymity. Skydiving planes typically have the seats removed and seatbelts anchored to the floor.

The plane, leased by Perris Valley Skydiving, was about 30 to 40 feet in the air and 200 yards off the runway when school owner Jeff Jones saw it was in trouble.

Jones "said he heard him feathering an engine, then he lost sight of the plane and it crashed," Witten said. Feathering an engine changes the angle of the propeller blades, essentially putting the engine in neutral.

Elvis, many were of appropriate age to remember the King's entire career, while younger ones could only remember the older Elvis. "I'm a big-time fan. I like the one in the white suit," said one lady of the former category.

Age seemed to have little effect on preference as one Big Spring woman said, "I like the skinnier version — I was younger back then and I like to relate to that time." While hundreds of thousands of votes have been received nationwide. The Big Spring Post Office has handed out about 200 of the ballots, said Mike Glenn, officer in charge of the Big Spring Post Office.

The ballots have the younger Elvis stamp as "A" while the older Elvis is "B." Voters are asked to place the letter of their choice in the appropriate box, fill out the name-and-address portion of the ballot and mail it to Memphis, Tenn. A 19-cent stamp is required.

Bright New Ideas MADE IN THE USA

World's Fair Firsts

Many of the World's Fairs' brightest ideas were MADE IN THE USA and first exhibited at World's Fairs held in this country. Here are only a few:

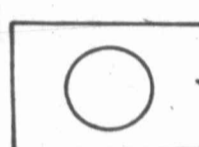

Can you unscramble the names and identify the flags of some of the countries where World's Fairs have been held?

1. England

2. France

3. Japan

4. Australia

5. Canada

Fairs give people and countries a great chance to show off their bright new ideas. Visitors come to look and discover what's new and different and better.

The biggest fairs of all are World's Fairs. They are usually held every 10 years.

THERE'S A WORLD'S FAIR COMING UP!

Meet Curro, the mascot of Expo '92, which starts soon in Seville, Spain.

Philadelphia, 1876

Alexander Graham Bell showed off the first telephone.

U.S. International Centennial

St. Louis, 1904

The ice cream cone was invented when a tidy eater rolled a waffle-like top of an ice cream sandwich into a cone shape.

Louisiana Purchase Exposition

Thomas Edison demonstrated the phonograph (the earliest record player).

New York, 1939

At the opening of this World's Fair, Franklin D. Roosevelt became the first president to appear on TV. The image was very blurred. This show was the start of regularly scheduled TV service in the U.S.

Chicago, 1893

George Ferris introduced the Ferris wheel. It had 36 cars. Each car held 60 people. The wheel was 264 feet high at its highest point.

World's Columbian Exposition

The trylon and perisphere are probably the most famous World's Fair buildings ever. The trylon was a three-sided, 65-story-high tower. Next to it was the perisphere, a huge, round building. Visitors went inside the perisphere to see a model of a city of the future. These buildings are no longer standing.

A trip to a fair can teach you many things about the people and their community. You may be able to see many hobbies such as hunting, sewing, cooking, quilting, other types of needlework, art and photography. In rural communities you can see livestock shows, demonstrations of agriculture, and farming. You may be able to learn about the oilfield. You also see cotton and pecans in the agricultural exhibits. A visitor to a fair can get a good taste of how the people of the community live, and have a great time.

World's Biggest Fair to Open Soon

Let's go to the World's Fair to see: Bridges

The biggest fair ever held is getting ready to open in Seville, Spain. It's so big that it's called a Universal Exposition. Expo '92 opens April 20. It will last until Oct. 12.

EXP 92

The theme of this expo is "The Age of Discoveries." A red globe covered with lines stands for the many voyages of discovery since 1492.

Seville is one of the leading cities of Spain.

Awnings

Seville is very hot in the summer. The fair planners have built huge awnings to shade the visitors. Trees and plant-covered walkways also help. Fountains spray cool water. Since it is cooler at night, the fair will stay open until 4 a.m. It opens each morning at 10 a.m.

CAN YOU FIND THE SPANISH WORDS ON THIS PAGE?

From the observation tower, visitors can get a good view of the fair. The Spanish use the metric system. The tower is 90 meters high. How many feet is that? (There are 3.3 feet per meter.)

Used motor oil and tire disposal rules

It is now illegal in Texas to discard used motor oil, or whole used or scrap tires in any fashion other than through proper disposal methods. Under new laws passed by the 72nd Texas Legislature effective April 1, violators face fines of up to $2,000.

Used motor oil must be taken to a waste oil collection center, such as a quick lube operation or service station. Whole used or scrap tires must be recycled, reused or used for energy recovery.

The Texas Water Commission (TWC) has developed a Waste Tire Recycling Program that has begun prioritizing waste tire sites throughout the state. About 350 illegal tire sites have been identified in Texas to date.

The worst sites based on a ranking of four criteria, are being placed on a priority enforcement list (PEL) to be cleaned up first.

It is estimated that Texas may have as many as 500 million waste tires stacked up in these illegal sites. Several sites are known to have a million tires or more.

The TWC also has begun registering potential tire transporters, mobile and fixed tire shredders and tire storage sites.

About two dozen applications have been received from potential tire shredders. Applicants must submit a site engineering plan and post a performance bond in order to qualify.

Four applications have been approved to date, and seven more have received conditional approval to operate with final approval anticipated within 45 days.

The program will pay 85 cents for each 18.7 pounds of shredded tire pieces produced. According to the law, at least 25 percent of all tires shredded must come from PEL sites, with an additional 25 percent coming from wholesalers and retailers.

The remaining 50 percent can come from these or other sources designated by the TWC. Tire shredders will request to be assigned specific PEL for cleanup, but the final decision for assignment will be made by the TWC staff based on several factors. The first assignments are expected to be made by mid April.

The Waste Tire Recycling Program and reimbursement system is being funded by a $2 fee now charged on each new car and truck tire with a rim diameter between 12 and 26 inches.

To obtain additional information about the Waste Tire Recycling Program, call 512-834-6683.

Also under the new laws, used motor oil must now be taken to a registered waste oil collector. In most communities, many service stations, oil change businesses and retailers provide this service.

It is estimated that Texans who change their own oil dump about 18 million gallons of used oil on the ground or into storm sewers, or throw it out with their household garbage. Such dumping is now illegal.

The TWC is required to register all collectors, transporters, marketers and recyclers of used motor oil. These businesses may call the TWC's new Recycling and Waste Minimization Section at 512-834-6682 for technical assistance.

Collectors must report annually on the amount of oil they collect from the public. They are also required to use only registered transporters to remove collected oil.

Transporters are required to keep careful records showing the source and destination of each oil shipment.

Communities that do not have an adequate number of public waste oil collection centers can apply for TWC grants to develop their own programs. This funding is provided by an eight cent per gallon fee on the sale of all automotive oil in Texas, which became effective January 1, 1992.

To learn the location of the nearest oil collection center in your community, call TWC's Environmental and Recycling Information Center at 1-800-458-9796.

Growing

'burning and itching' in a certain body area on which the sun seldom shines. If you have this problem you can either go see a surgeon or buy a tube of the stuff they sell on television.

If you buy the tube, I don't recommend putting it in the same drawer as your toothpaste. A fellow I know stumbled out of bed without his glasses one morning and used America's answer to the burning and itching to brush his teeth.

He suffered no ill effects and his gums did not shrink as you might expect.

Even the Farmer's Almanac offers some pills and liquids that they say, if taken, will restore your youthful vitality.

Some of the almanac publications just hint at this problem while others just come right out and say what we would not want to mention in a family newspaper.

I wonder, since these ads are found in the almanac, if farmers have this problem more than electronics people. I certainly hope not.

A lot of people have the false impression that you slow down when you get over 60. The truth is that you don't slow down.

It just takes longer to get started each day. After all, how can you hurry when you have to remember where you put your teeth, hearing aids, glasses and other jump-start items.

Just because someone on television makes a sales pitch for some wonderful product allowing one to grow old gracefully, or slow down the aging process — take it with a grain of salt.

Myself, I just ignore most of these advertisements. Except if George Burns does one. Then I hang on every word.

Oh, by the way, it's nice to live in a town where you only have to dial five digits to make a local call.
