Runnels band captures sweepstakes in Snyder

The Runnels Junior High School Band had a superb showing at the Snyder Band Festival this past weekend, capturing the sweepstakes trophy for first division ratings in concert and sightreading performance.

In addition to group honors, several individuals earned first divisions in solo and ensemble competition.

"I am very pleased and proud of the accomplishments all the Runnels band students have attained this year," said Band Director Joel Weisberg. "These young men and women are going to be a most welcome addition to the (high school band) next year."

Perot's 'not-yet' campaign shifts gears

DALLAS (AP) — With the passing of the first deadline today to qualify for a November election ballot, billionaire

Ross Perot's notyet campaign for president has entered a new stage.

Perot's supporters collected more than four times as many of the 54,275 signatures he needed to qualify for the Texas ballot. After his presentation of the signatures this afternoon, state election officials expect to take a month verifying their authenticity.

Perot's upstart band of volunteers, who begin their second week in a spacious new office today, now plan to assist organizers in other states via long-distance, fax and overnight

Some are even ready to travel for the

"I took the bus here from Pennsylvania. I'll go to Arizona if they tell me to," said Mary Moline, a Greensboro, Penn., researcher and author who arrived at the Perot Petition Committee headquarters last

The volunteers said Texas was replaced by California as the leading originating point for calls to Perot's number of signatures and qualifying factors for them, was the first major test of Perot's prospective candidacy.

The challenges Perot now faces may be tougher. They include getting on ballots in states where he is not well known, withstanding media scrutiny of 25 years of business prominence and presenting ideas on topics he so far has treated lightly or not at all.

Perot signaled the change last week when he announced a two-month break from luterviews and TV appearances to study issues and prepare positions. He kept previously scheduled speaking dates with the Volunteer Center of Dallas and the University of Oklahoma, however, but made no political remarks.

"People are going to want to know issues," said Larry Wechsler of Dallas, a volunteer at the Perot phone bank.

Pressed in interviews before the hiatus for specific issue statements. Perot often begged off, reverted to anecdotes or asked why President Bush and the Democrats weren't being so squeezed.

"I can toss those rough ideas out with numbers and facts, which I haven't heard any other political figure throw out," Perot recently told the AP. "Then three college professors show up and say 'That's not specific enough.' Well, it beats not hearing anything.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the se cond of a three-part series detailing small businesses in Big Spring. Tuesday: The small-business forecast for the area.

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

The number of women-andminority-owned small businesses continues to increase in Big Spring increase. and in the United States, latest available information indicates.

Women-owned businesses of under 500 employees increased 57 percent from 1982-87 and accounted for more than one-fourth of all U.S. small businesses, according to the Census Bureau.

Hispanic-owned small businesses increased 80.5 percent during that time and accounted for 3.1 percent of all small businesses. In Texas, the second-leading state in number of minority-owned businesses, the increase was 38 percent compared to a 45.4 percent increase in the Hispanic population from 1980-90.

No local figures are available for the number of women-owned businesses but Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Linda Roger says it appears numbers are on the

'It is something that is coming into its own," she said.

There were 136 Hispanic-owned businesses in Big Spring and 204 minority-owned businesses in Howard County in 1987, Census figures show. That figure comprises 25 percent of all small businesses in Howard County, compared to a 30 percent Hispanic population.

"I think we're seeing an increase in minority-owned businesses (locally) also," Roger said.

Among problems that local women and Hispanic business owners face are selling their ideas and acquiring financing.

Suit filed against foster care agency

AUSTIN (AP) — A state-funded foster care program violates the Texas Constitution by insisting abused children be placed only with Christian couples, according to a lawsuit filed by a former employee In the suit filed in Travis County last week, Joel Ambelang claims the Pennsylvania-based Bair Foundation, which has a contract with Texas Department of Human Services, promotes fundamentalist beliefs through its foster parent selection process. Ambelang, 52, said he was fired as administrator of the foundation's Austin office because he complained to the Texas Human Rights Commission that his religious freedom had been violated. Ambelang, a Lutheran, is seeking unspecified damages.

The suit names the foundation, its president William Bair and vice president Sue Miklos as defendants The foundation has not yet answered the suit, and Bair did not respond to a request for an interview by the Austin American-Statesman. Ambelang's suit claims Bair said all foster children " ... should only be placed with Christian families and that (Ambelang) should be certain that all such families regularly prayed with their foster children." At one time, the foundation was overseeing the care of 127 children in 59 foster homes and was receiving $700,000 to $800,000 yearly in state funds, Ambelang told the Austin American-Statesman in a story that appeared Monday.

The suit said Ambelang, for fear of losing his job, felt compelled to pray with Bair at meetings. Ambelang's attorney, Jim Harrington, said in a statement, "At least one of the foundation's staff members has suggested that it would be more effective to pray over an injured child than seeking the help of a medical doctor."

Harrington said the foundation's employees also have advocated faith healing.

Clinton gets serious about veep

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — As he gets serious about picking a running mate, Bill Clinton says the opening threshold is simple: "Someone capable of being a good president if I should drop dead the day after I get inaugurated.

From there, however, it gets complicated.

As the Arkansas governor and probable Democratic presidential nominee weighs his choice, he faces no shortage of names or advice - not only on who to pick but how and when to do it.

"You really define yourself and your values and your view of the presidency," said John Sasso, a top adviser to 1988 Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis. "It says a lot about you - how you make that selection and, even more importantly, who you select.

Spacewalking astronaut fails to snag satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) A spacewalking Endeavour astronaut wielding a 15-foot hook failed to latch on to a marooned communications satellite, leaving it in a useless orbit today at a cost to its owners of up to $240,000 a day.

NASA planned another attempt today to rescue the Intelsat-6 satellite.

"Wish the home team would have won, but there's always tomorrow," said space shuttle commander Daniel Brandenstein, who guided the ship to an arm'slength rendezvous with the satellite Spacewalkers Pierre Thuot and Richard Hieb worked about 225 miles above Earth for four hours Sunday.

Despite more than a year's training for the mission, Thuot caused the satellite to wobble when he tried to latch on with a 15-foot capture bar

"I'm sorry guys. I didn't tap it any harder than I tapped it in that (training) simulator," said Thuot. Later, he said he might not have touched the slowly turning satellite

'Wow, we've got to get away from this thing," Brandenstein said when the wobbling, 17-foot cylinder came dangerously close to Endeavour, NASA's brand-new shuttle. "I don't think there's any way we're going to get it."

The shuttle moved more than 20 miles away, and the satellite's jet thrusters were fired to stabilize it.

NASA wants to pluck the satellite from space and attach a motor to boost it to its proper orbit, 22,300 miles high. The rescue is the sevenmember crew's chief task.

For Intelsat, a telecommunications consortium with 122 membernations, the spacewalk was another major disappointment. The $157 million satellite was left in a uselessly low orbit two years ago by a miswired Titan rocket.

Intelsat claims the satellite, designed to handle telephone calls and TV broadcasts, can easily earn $240,000 a day or more in revenue, or $1 billion during its 12-year

On Sunday, Thuot stood on a platform attached to the shuttle's

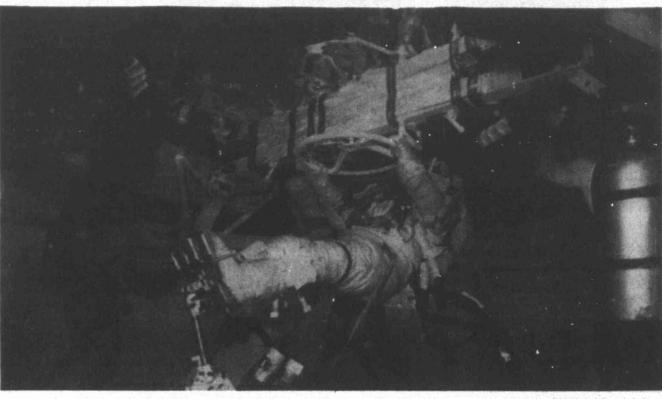

50-foot crane and tried to lock onto a groove across the bottom of the satellite with the capture bar. Thuot missed and said, "Aw, man!" Minutes later, he tried

Thuot and Hieb suggested afterward that their job might have easier if the shuttle and satellite had been in daylight. Mission Control agreed.

The TV pictures sent back to Earth were not of the usual quality because of the failure or partial failure of three cargo baycameras. Before going back into the cabin, Thuot and Hieb detached one and brought it inside, hoping to fix it overnight.

The original plan called for a second spacewalk today by a different pair of astronauts to practice techniques for building the space station. That was put off until Tuesday. A third spacewalk, scheduled for Tuesday, was canceled.

Endeavour is still scheduled to land at Edwards Air Force Base in California on Thursday

Harris inmates jailed in spite of court ruling terms for minor misdemeanor of-

HOUSTON (AP) - Dozens of Harris County inmates unable to pay fines for misdemeanor crimes have been jailed instead despite a U.S. Supreme Court ruling declaring the practice unconstitutional, a newspaper study reveals.

"It's disgusting," attorney James Oitzinger said of the sentencing practices. Oitzinger represents prisoners in a lawsuit against Harris County over jail conditions.

An investigation of justice of the peace court records by The Houston Post found that many of the judges are imposing jail fenses, such as public intoxication, bad checks or minor traffic violations, that carry fines of $500 or less

"The law says people who desire to lay out in jail can," said Justice of the Peace Kenneth Pacetti. "The vast majority say they'd rather serve their sentence. Like other justices of the peace, Pacetti says he is living up to the Supreme Court's ruling by giving defendants the option of paying fines in installments, doing community service or serving out their time in jail.

Farm scene

Agriculture Department's top conservationist says farmers have been given fair warning that unless their land is protected from erosion they risk losing their farm subsidies.

William Richards, chief of USDA's Soil Conservation Service, says the agency is ready to get tough with farmers who are not "actively applying" conservation plans to their highly erodible land. Until this year, the agency has largely been educating farmers about the law and helping them

WASHINGTON (AP) - The adopt conservation plans. But an one out of every 61.7 tracts. environmental research group has complained that the agency looked the other way when it found farmers in violation.

> Now, an internal agency document also raises questions about the low number of tracts of land found not to be properly implementing a conservation plan.

> A national team of agency officials found that farmers were not actively applying conservation plans on one out of every 6.8 tracts of land, while field employees had reported a noncompliance rate of

The report also said there is potential for fraud if agency employees are declaring land to be in compliance if a conservation plan is actually not being applied. Agency officials, however, say they have no evidence of actual fraud.

Richards released the study to The Associated Press on Friday, but in an interview defended his agency's strategy in implementing the law. Approximately 1.2 million farmers and 135 million acres of highly erodible land are affected.

The law requires farmers with highly erodible land to be actively applying a conservation plan to their land according to a schedule approved by the agency. The plan must be fully implemented by Dec. 31, 1994. Those who don't comply with the timetable risk losing their farm subsidies and other benefits, including crop insurance or farm

In a May 5 memo to state conservationists, Richards said the agency must send a clear message to farmers that they are expected to carry out their conservation plans and those who do not will be reported to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. That USDA agency is responsible for deciding whether a farmer is eligible for continued subsidies.

The outcome will determine the strength of the traditional political machines Mrs. Aquino vowed to destroy in the 1986 "people power revolution" that sent the late President Ferdinand Marcos into exile. Mrs. Aguino did not run for a second term and supported former Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos.

Unofficial, partial results from Manila, southern Luzon and the central Visayas islands, compiled by ABS-CBN television, showed Miriam Defensor Santiago whose attacks on corruption improved her standing in opinion polls - leading with 15,531 votes. Ramos was second with 12,723.

More than 80 percent of the 32 million eligible voters were believed to have cast ballots. They also chose a new Congress and more than 17,000 other officials from among more than 87,700 candidates.

Voting went generally smoothly in the Manila area and there were only scattered reports of violence from the countryside. But many voters were unable to cast ballots because they were not on registra tion lists, and there were reports of ballot-box thefts and other incidents

All seven presidential candidates ran on similar platforms, promising close relations with the United States, promoting democracy and rural development and encouraging foreign investment.

Only Mrs. Santiago and Mrs. Marcos generated genuine excitement. But they had weak national organizations.

Opinions from across the U.S. Get spending under control

With interest on the national debt breaking the nation's back at almost a billion dollars a day, Congress is closer than it has ever been to passing a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget.

Although it shouldn't be necessary to amend the Constitution to control reckless spending, even some congressmen who originally opposed the idea have now decided that it may be the only way

If so, let's do it. The proposed amendment would require the president to submit a balanced budget each year and would require Congress to pass a balanced budget. Amending the Constitution requires approval by two-thirds of the members of each house and by two-thirds of the state legislatures. The Senate once came as close as one vote; last year the bill failed in the House by only seven.

This year, the anger of taxpayers and the disgust of some of Congress' own members could trigger

Every day that passes without something being done will only make the turnaround more difficult on every American. Even worse, every day brings closer the threat that debt overload could cause the nation's economy to collapse completely

Test insulting to minorities

The New York Fire Department, apparently deeming certain minorities to be incapable of doing well on multiple choice tests, has revised its examination procedures. Instead of having to pick the correct answer, test-takers will have to rank their top three choices. Picking the correct answer as first-rank choice will be good for one point. But ranking it second will be good for a half-point.

Imagine how this would work in practice. Question: Which of the following can be used to put out a fire? A) water; B) gasoline; C) gunpowder. Someone who chose gasoline first and water second still would get half a point for the question.

Such an approach certainly does not foster public safety. Just as importantly, it is fundamentally racist in its assumption that minorities cannot score as well as whites on a fair test.

This is the sort of nonsense encouraged by federal civil rights laws which place more importance on equality of results for certain racial and ethnic groups than on oldfashioned merit-based equality of opportunity. Coming soon to a city near you.

Bill would shift the power

More than 30 U.S. senators are poised to force a vote on S. 55, radical legislation which prevents all employers union or non-union — from hiring permanent replacements during a strike. The Democrat-controlled House passed a similar bill last year.

Passage would overturn more than 50 years of fair labor-management negotiations, and would dramatically shift the balance of power in labor disputes to union bosses. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, a leading opponent, underscores that "unlike S. 55, current federal labor policy discourages conflict and confrontation between labor and management while promoting conciliation and industrial stability. The strike bill encourages more strikes because workers would be able to stay home without fear of being permanently replaced.'

Indeed, passage will force many businesses (especially small ones) to curtail operations, or even shut down, during a strike because employers would find it difficult if not impossible to locate qualified replacements Businesses could be forced to accept unreasonable contract demands that do not reflect market realities.

Augusta (Ga.) Herald

March: Busy month in Congress

WASHINGTON - Yes, it's true We of the press are forever picking on Congress. In defense we say that Congress deserves all the criticism it gets, but let us be fair. Let us look at the month of March, and let us look factually, with minimal editorial opinion, at what our legislators were up to.

Not much of substance was accomplished in March. The House adopted not one budget for 1993. but two budgets for 1993, known as Plan A and Plan B. The House also completed work on reauthorization of the higher education bill. This will make another 2 million students eligible for federal loans or grants. The Senate fiddled with a child labor bill. The two houses went to conference on a bill to finance congressional campaigns. That was about the size of it.

But much else was going on. It is a base falsehood to suggest that our lawmakers are not busy. They are constantly busy. In March one house or the other, or both, passed bills to designate: National Scleroderma Awareness Month, National Agriculture Day, National Senior Nutrition Week, National Women in Agriculture Day, National Public Safety Telecommunications Week, and National Awareness of Life Saving Technigues Week

Bills were introduced, and most likely will be passed, to designate: Child Care Worthy Wage Day, National Baseball Day, National Substitute Teachers Day, National Education and Sharing Day, National Domestic Violence Awareness Month, and National Adult and Continuing Education Week

Regrettably, House Joint Resolution 434, intended to

mittee. Mr. Taylor, a famous basketball star, played a major role in developing the sneaker

Let it be said that Congress is concerned not only about problems at home, but also about problems abroad. In March the Senate commended President F.W. de Klerk of South Africa. The Senate expressed its concern for democracy in Zaire. On the 18th the Senate passed a resolution dealing with human rights in Tibet. The House, for its part, congratulated the government and people of Venezuela

Resolutions are pending, or have passed, to express the sense of Congress regarding the peace process in Liberia; to express concern about justice in Ireland to deplore the suppression of democracy in Kenya; to urge protection of elephants in Africa; to commend Turkey for helping the Kurds of Iraq; and to call upon President Alberto Fujimori of Peru "to restore immediately the democratically elected Congress.

In other influential actions, Sen. Chuck Robb of Virginia seeks to bring to justice the national Khmer Rouge leaders who committed crimes against humanity in Cambodia. Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina condemns the military regime in Burma for its horrifying abuses of human rights. Rep. Edward Feighan of Ohio offers Concurrent Resolution gress that the Vatican should recognize Israel.

New York comes a powerful statement of congressional concern. In House Resolution 422 he 'condemns unequivocally the conduct since November 1991 of General Mohamed Farah Aideed, Interim President Ali Mahdi Mohamed, and other warring parties which has resulted in the destruction of Mogadishu in Turning its eyes homeward, our industrious Congress has designated a hospital in Northampton, Mass., the "Edward P. Boland Medical Center." Mr. Boland is a former member of the House. In the same cheerful spirit, 11 former members (and a few former judges) will find federal buildings, post offices and courthouses named in their honor.

That is a fair accounting of Congress at work in March, but the record of accomplishment - or pending accomplishment - would not be complete without mention of a bill to strike a medal commemorating the 250th anniversary of the American Philosophical

From Jan. 3 through March 31. I can report to you, the Senate had been in session for 300 hours and 50 minutes, the House for 162 hours and 16 minutes. Members had filled 7,657 pages of the Congressional Record. Together, the two chambers had received 1,301 bills and resolutions. The good news is that only 22 bills had been enacted into law

Somalia.

We ought also to recognize Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois for sponsoring Senate Resolution 264. It would "express the sense of the Senate that people in the United States should plant more trees.

In protest for what I consider to be recent unfair attacks on beef. one of my favorite meats, I went out and had myself a thick, juicy T-bone the other night.

It was great, as usual. I would have eaten two if my stomach would have held another because we beefeaters need to do all we can to tell the wimps and weenies who have put themselves in charge of our lifestyles to go eat a bucket of worms (a.k.a. sushi.)

It's cow meat they're after now One group says we're being cruel by killing cows and chopping them into steaks

There's a book out about the evils, both social and physical, of eating beef as well. I refuse to name it here and give it any publicity.

And then, I read a story in the papers about a report from the American Chemical Society saying the natural substance that gives beef its meaty taste has been synthesized in the laboratory and may be used to turn tofu into a substitute for beef. Do what?

I asked a health nut to tell me what tofu is. It sounds to me like a ballet dance step. "It's soybean-based," she explained. So let me see if I have this

Some scientist has come up with something in his lab to put in something made out of soybear

In the first place, I once ate a soybean burger. Another friend of mine, also a health nut, said, "Try this, you might like it.

Somebody once said the same thing to me about marriage. The soybean burger was awful. so I went to Wendy's and got myself a double with cheese to get the taste out of my mouth. In the second place, when are those self-appointed jerks going to stop jacking us around about our

I bet a chicken could tell the difference.

Pork has been put down as unhealthy. Some chickens have tumors in them and fish have mercury, and I never knew there was such a thing as fake crab meat until now.

So what's left to eat? Nothing much. If what we read and hear is true, we'd all be better off if we didn't eat anything at all, never had sex, abstained from drinking, smoking and gambling, and died on the operating table instead of getting a blood transfusion that could give us AIDS. Life used to be fun. Now, it's just one big Don't.

But I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I'm going to continue to eat beef and everything else I like. I will never walk into any restaurant and say, "I'll have the tofu T-bone, please.

If doing such a thing kills me, it'll just have to kill me. I think I'd rather go suddenly from a beef overdose than live long enough to get really sick and wind up croaking in a hospital bed where they've been keeping me alive by feeding me through a tube

There should be the basic right to live free from as much worry as possible. But how can you, when not a day passes that we aren't told what's the latest thing that's bad for us? Eat, drink and be merry, I say, for tomorrow you may choke on a big piece of broccoli.

About the only thing that made any sense in the NBA playoffs Sunday was that Ricky Pierce rediscovered his shooting touch and Seattle won.

The Celtics, 13-1 without Bird since he last played on April 3, lost 114-112 to Cleveland in overtime as the three-time MVP scored four points in 17 minutes. Reggie Lewis had 42 points for Boston, but it wasn't enough to overcome Larry Nance's 32 points on 13-for-16 shooting and Mark Price's 26 points and 12 assists for the Cavaliers, who pulled even 2-2 in their Eastern Conference

Comanche Rocks

Years ago that unflattering nickname belonged to the Comanche Trail Golf Course because of its barren condition

But recent improvements in the 18-hole course and an increase in golf's popularity have made it the current place to be for area and local linksters.

So much so that the municipal course's manager, Al Patterson, plans to institute tee times seven days a week beginning May 18 to better handle an increase in traffic at the course. At present, tee times are required only on weekends.

"We're getting more and more traffic and having more organizations and companies from Midland and Odessa having little tournaments or get togethers here," says Patterson, who has been the course's pro for nine years since coming to Big Spring from Florida. "They're finding out that this is more or less a hidden jewel in the golf world." The city installed an automatic irrigation system five years ago and has continued to build bigger tee boxes during Patterson's tenure. Those and other improvements have made Comanche Trail, built in 1934 as part of a government works program, one of the best golf courses in West Texas, Patterson says

"It's not like a typical West Texas golf course - which is flat," he says. "This (course) has hills and trees and there are all sorts of challenging shots for the golfer.

ARLINGTON (AP) - Nolan 20 years.

Ryan came home again and showed he's still a long way from a retirement rocking chair.

In fact, the 45-year-old Ryan rocked the Milwaukee Brewers with a 96 mph fastball Saturday night. But he couldn't get his first victory of the year and 315th of his career when the bullpen let him down.

The Brewers didn't think Ryan looked like he was over-the-hill.

"Nolan sure looks strong to me." said former Houston Astros teammate Phil Garner, now manager of the Brewers. "He looked just like he's looked the last 20 years and I guess the way he'll look for the next

Fighting infant mortality

WASHINGTON (AP) - The administration today launched an advertising campaign that says the land of plenty is also the land of unacceptably high infant mortality.

President Bush and Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan were previewing a 30-second television commercial that shows heaps of food in American stores and brightly lighted American cities - followed by a picture of an empty incubator in a hospital nursery.

The commercial says infant mortality is a crisis in this country and encourages women to get prenatal

The campaign is part of the administration's "Healthy Start" program to reduce infant mortality in the United States. Congress has appropriated $65 million for the program this year, and the administration is asking for $143 million for 1993.

Government figures say 36,500 babies in this country died last year before their first birthday, and the United States ranks 22nd in the world in infant mortality. tative per 30,000 citizens until there

The program is targeted at 13 cities and some Indian reservations in the Northern Plains, where infant mortality rates are high.

The job of getting off welfare

By MARSHA STURD! VANT

Howard County residents living on welfare may find a solution to their poverty through the Department of Human Resources Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Training. DHS social workers Jennifer Carnahan and Charles Stallings work one-on-one with DHS Aids to Families With Dependent Children, food stamp and Medicaid clients to gain an education that will lead them from the welfare rolls into rewarding positions in the job market.

'There's no set pattern, we work with each client individually and assess their needs. Together we decide what's best for the client abd work together as a team," Carnahan said.

Seeking out the services offered through the JOBS program is encouraged, but the program in Howard County does not lack for participants. Any person who is receiving AFDC with children older than 3, or any teen-ager with a custodial child are required to participate in the program, they

"They're considered at great risk, those clients under 20 with a child any age. They're young enough to make those important changes right then. As they get older, it will be harder for them to make those changes," she said.

The changes available through the JOBS program include continuing education to achieve a General Education Diploma (GED), vocational training which generally requires a year of study, or a twoyear associates degree. These programs are offered in conjunction with Howard College.

Carnahan said the job market in And failure to comply with the pro-

Roofer 'raises hell for lawyers'

1990, Alfred Adask angrily banged out an open and doggedly ominous letter to the State Bar of Texas. "I am your enemy," he said. "I will hurt every member ... and their families just as you have hurt me and mine. I realize I may not get that opportunity, but God help you if I do.

Since then, he has struggled night and day to carry out that threat.

Adask, 47, is the founder, publisher and editor of AntiShyster, a gleefully venomous and spasmodically monthly magazine "dedicated to raising hell for lawyers.

There's scant evidence the legal community is concerned, although the publication has not gone unnoticed.

"It's not something we pass around to dignify," says Marcy Goodfleisch, a spokeswoman for the State Bar. "It hasn't generated a great deal of attention, negative are to encourage litigation or otherwise."

Adask is hardly deterred. "Call me a wide-eyed optimist. but I suspect there's a 50-50 chance that a social climate may emerge similar to the McCarthy era of the 1950s, except we won't hunt communists. We'll hunt attorneys," he said. A volatile, name-calling, scattershooting harangue, AntiShyster is more than an outlet for Al Adask's fury and despair over lawyers, judges, politicians and the legal system. It is his essence. "I like writing," said Adask, a roofer by trade. "And this is the job I was meant to do. It is the silver lining in this whole thing. I'm now the man I was meant to be.' Adask's wrath, and his desktop publishing venture, stem from a bitter and painful 1983 divorce

"It ripped out the middle of my life, destroyed my relationship to my children and ruined a small business simply because I was the only litigant capable of paying both attorney fees," Adask says.

"The lives of hundreds of thousands of other parents and children are being systematically crippled by a legal system whose principle purposes are to encourage litigation and enrich attorneys.

With malice aforethought, Adask writes with a song on his lips, revenge in his heart and mayhem

"I want you to hurt," he told lawyers in his December 1990 debut. "I want you to ache. I want you to suffer, just as I have, as my mered by a jury's $18 million children have, as hundreds of malpractice judgment. thousands of your victims have. damages.

The 24-page publication offers annual subscriptions for $25, although not always in consecutive months. Adask skipped a recent issue because he was busy organizing demonstrations at the American Bar Association convention in Dallas.

An earlier issue was scuttled because of "time, money, reality, personal inefficiency, a format change and a contractual dispute.

Adask has offered "helpful "I, too, believe in punitive hints" on impeaching judges, circumventing fat legal fees and obtaining preventive therapy for "post-litigation stress syndrome."

Last year, AntiShyster dangled a $10,000 bet in front of Texas lawyers, challenging them to produce five attorneys who can successfully argue publicly that they are honorable human beings and proud to be members of the State

Adask repeated the wager in the March edition, addressing the offer

Taxpayer's fear of filing makes it worse

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I did a foolish thing, and now I'm afraid I'll lose everything and possibly wind up in jail!

Back in 1980, I was alone and raising my son and a younger brother. I figured out my taxes, and I owed $100. Abby, we didn't have enough money to eat the day before payday, and I wasn't able to come up with $5, let alone $100. I panicked and didn't file at all!

The following year, I was afraid to file because I was afraid their computer would show that I didn't file the year before and I would be in big trouble.

You can probably guess where this is headed - out of fear and stupidity, I have not filed since, I receive letters from the IRS periodically, but I just put them aside, hoping to clear things up "later.

I have dug myself into a very deep hole. Their last letter said I
