Newspaper may publish special edition Friday

Should the Big Spring Steers defeat Robstown today and advance to the state championship game, the Big Spring Herald will publish a special late edition Friday with full results from the title game.

The special edition, Publisher Patrick Morgan said, will be limited newsstand and single-copy sales and should be available after 5 p.m. Friday and all day Saturday. Extra copies also would be available at the Herald office, Morgan said.

Results of today's Big Spring-Robstown game will appear in Friday's regular edition.

Task force to visit BSSH

The task force conducting inspections of state psychiatric hospitals will visit Big Spring State Hospital July 20.

The five-member task force, created by the Texas Legislature to recommend whether any state schools or state hospitals should be closed, will visit eight such facilities during July, according to published reports.

Earlier this year, the task force recommended the closure of state school in Austin and Mexia. Gov. Ann Richards decided later to keep the Mexia facility open.

The schedule for hospital inspections is: Vernon, July 14; Wichita Falls, July 15; Terrell, July 16; Tusk, July 17; Big Spring, July 20; Austin, July 22; San Antonio, July 23; and Kerrville, July 24.

Firework fund grows

The Fourth of July fireworks fund has grown to the point that only about $1,500 needs to be raised, according to Eddie Cole, who is chairing the project for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

"We will have one of the few fireworks celebrations in West Texas this July 4 and it will be as big as ever," Cole said.

For more information, call the chamber at 263-7641.

Lawsuit settlement closer

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The City of Big Spring is one step closer to settling the redistricting lawsuit filed by the League of United Latin American Citizens.

In Tuesday's Big Spring City Council meeting, member Mark Sheedy made a motion that, pending input from a public hearing, the council draw up a map for the election of six single-district council members and an at-large-elected Mayor.

According to the motion, districts one and two will be elected in 1993, districts three, four and six, will be elected in 1994, and district five and the mayor will be elected in 1995.

This is a step closer to settling the lawsuit filed almost a year ago, but will still require the LULAC chapter 4375 to compromise, said Midland attorney Rick Strange, who is representing the city in the suit.

"I would say that the council is going in the right direction," said LULAC attorney Rolando Rios, who was pleased by the council's decision. "It does feel good to find a council that makes sense," he added.

Rios said the City of Baytown fought a similar redistricting up to the Texas Supreme Court, spending $300,000 in the process. The case was lost and Baytown was ordered to redistrict, he said.

It is unclear which of three maps that were drawn up by Map Resources Inc. of Austin is to be used in the single member districts. "These maps have not been accessible to me," said chapter president Marguerite Davis.

"Our purpose is to have another minority seat on the council," Davis said.

The public hearing is scheduled for the next regular council meeting on June 23, said Assistant City Manager Tom Decell.

The six single-member district solution was the one most sought by the local LULAC chapter, Rios said in earlier discussions. The main purpose of the suit is to more properly represent the voting strength of the city's minority population, he said.

CRMWD to build new dam

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Moves are being taken to prevent a salt water overflow from Natural Dam Lake northwest of Big Spring, which has overflowed only one time in history, according to geological research.

Releases in 1986-87 raised salt saturation in tap water by more than half, bringing salt in water to nearly three times recommended state standards. Water, now 1.7 feet from the top of the dam, is again threatening to spill over. Continued heavy rains could cause flooding in Big Spring and possible damage to Interstate 20, officials say.

Since 1986, the Colorado River

Municipal Water District spent $2.25 million to double the capacity of Natural Dam Lake, to 54,000 acre-feet, and now plans to spend another $2 million to build a dam structure upstream to trap up to another 18,000 acre-feet of water that officials want to let evaporate.

"We don't have a serious problem out there," assures water district manager Owen Ivie of Big Spring. "We have a problem that the board of directors of the water district and the (Texas) water commissioners have instructed us to act on immediately."

The proposed dam, called Sulphur Creek Dam, will be built about six miles north of Texas 176 just inside Martin County, say water district officials. It is expected to be completed by September.

It was approved by the water district board of directors Tuesday and a permit was approved Wednesday by the Texas Water Commission. Landowners have been contacted.

Hopefully, the dam will be completed in time to avert any spillage from Natural Dam if heavy rains continue this summer, Ivie said. "We just hope to goodness that we don't have a spillage out there."

Rains since the last week in May that filled Natural Dam Lake also filled two area lakes owned by the water district and resulted in

HC gives guarantee to grads

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

The next graduating class at Howard College will get a guarantee along with their diplomas.

The college will begin guaranteeing its academic and technical associate degrees as a result of a policy adopted at the May meeting of the board of trustees.

Under the policy, the college will allow academic transfer students to take tuition-free alternate courses for those credit courses taken at Howard that are not accepted by a receiving university. The guarantee is good for up to a year after the graduate receives an associate degree.

"Transferability of courses has long been an issue between community colleges and four-year institutions," said Bob Riley, Howard College president. The Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board adopted a transfer dispute policy last year that assists students in solving transfer problems.

"By adopting the graduate guarantee, Howard College is making an effort to assure students that they will not need to use the transfer dispute process because the transfer of courses will be guaranteed," Riley continued.

Also, graduates of the college's technical, vocational and occupational programs will have the option of taking up to 12 tuition-free credit hours of additional skill training if an employer judges the graduate to be lacking in necessary job skills. Those skills must be the same as the college expects the student to master before graduating from its program.

Technical, vocational and occupational graduates have 90 days after their graduation to seek additional tuition-free training under the guarantee. Students who meet the conditions of the policy can take up to 12 semester credit hours.

"Students not being qualified after graduation has not been a problem," said Riley. "We don't expect too many graduates to utilize the policy. What the college is trying to do is make a statement that we are accountable for what we're doing and we are willing to put it in writing."

Montford praises 'valued resources'

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

State Senator John T. Montford, D-Lubbock, spoke to a packed house as the keynote speaker for Tuesday's luncheon at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's quarterly community luncheon was sponsored by the Big Spring Herald and serves as a means to keep the citizens of Howard County informed as to important happenings in the community.

Montford spoke at length regarding the Big Spring State Hospital, the Veterans Administration Medical Center, the Big Spring Federal Correctional Institute and the U.S. Post Office.

These facilities were recognized as being valuable resources not only because of the jobs they provide, but for the people they serve.

Montford said that although some state institutions are being closed or are being considered for closure, he fully supports the Big Spring State Hospital, not only because it provides more than 1,000 jobs to the community, but because of the vital role it plays in serving the needs of a large portion of the state.

Many of the people in the senator's 23 county district are served by Big Spring institutions such as BSSH and VAMC.

Reps blast proposed energy bill provisions

By ANA RADELAT
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Lawmakers gathered under an oil rig set up in the middle of Washington Wednesday and blasted provisions in a proposed energy bill that they claim will hurt the oil and gas industry.

The Senate and House versions of the bill do little to help the oil industry, the lawmakers said, and the House version includes a "prorating" provision that may hurt natural gas producers in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma, they said.

"It's interesting that this rig is erected in the shadow of the Smithsonian Museum, because at the rate we're going, it will soon be eligible to be in the Smithsonian because there won't be any rigs operating in America any longer," said Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La.

The senator claimed that oil and gas industry has lost more jobs than any other industry in the United States.

The press conference was sponsored by the Independent

PHIL GRAMM

Court throws out 2 death row convictions; 1 upheld

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has thrown out convictions of two death row inmates and upheld the sentence of a third in separate cases.

"Yes! Man, oh, man! This is great!" Gilbert Urbano, 34, said Wednesday when told the state's high court ordered he be acquitted in the stabbing death of another inmate. "From day one I was optimistic. It's not that I'm surprised, but it's just the feeling of hearing it, of finally receiving it."

James Wilkens Jr., 30, won a new trial on charges he killed two people, including a 4-year-old boy, in Tyler in 1986.

"Praise the Lord!" Wilkens said on hearing the news. "My wife and I have been praying for this."

But prosecutors of both men said they would seek new trials. In Urbano's case, prosecutors are seeking a lesser charge of murder, while in Wilkens' case, attorneys predicted he again would be convicted of capital murder and sentenced to death.

The state's high court also upheld the conviction of Jonathan Nobles, who was sentenced to death for the 1986 slayings of two women in Austin. Nobles was found guilty of capital murder in the fatal stabbings of Mitzi Johnson Nalley, and Kelly Fahrquhar during a burglary.

Urbano was found guilty in the 1988 murder of inmate Ramon Gomez at the Ellis I Unit. Urbano had been in prison since 1987 after being convicted of aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon.

Prosecutors contended Urbano killed Gomez on behalf of a prison gang known as the Texas Syndicate and that after the murder he was promoted in gang rank, enabling him to get increased proceeds from gang activity.

"It wasn't a capital murder case," Urbano said Wednesday. "Any individual with common sense would have predicted the outcome of this appeal."

He maintains he was in the prison recreation yard when Gomez was killed, but did not participate in the slaying. "I'm not in the gang," he insisted.

The appeals court said there was no direct evidence Urbano was aware of the gang rules and committed murder because of them.

"If the evidence at trial raises only a suspicion of guilt, even a strong one, then that evidence is insufficient," the court said. It reversed Urbano's conviction and sent the case back to trial court for a judgment of acquittal.

Urbano still would remain behind bars until at least 2002. He is serving a 45-year term for aggravated robbery.

Longtime battle flares once again

DALLAS (AP) — The smoldering rivalry between Dallas and Fort Worth has reignited in a tit-for-tat legal dispute over a rule that ensures the regional dominance of the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

The relationship between oil-slick Dallas and the city dubbed "Cowntown" isn't exactly the Hatfields and McCoys, but the North Texas cousins have fought frequently since Fort Worth publishing magnate Amon G. Carter Sr. quipped he would rather take a sack lunch than eat in Dallas.

Former Fort Worth Mayor Willard Barr, who helped negotiate the DFW airport deal in the mid 1960s, said differences between the cities go far beyond economics.

"Dallas was settled mostly by merchants," said Barr, who served as mayor from 1965 to 1967. "Fort Worth was settled by ranchers, primarily, and those who dealt with ranchers."

"You could almost say the two cities represented two cultures."

Even when the cities worked together, they weren't happy about it.

"The first few partnerships between the cities could only be described as a shotgun wedding," said Dallas city councilman Chris Luna. "After that there has been some good cooperation."

That is, until recently, when an ongoing disagreement over the Wright Amendment flared again.

The rule, adopted in the late 1970s, promotes the regional airport while restricting growth at Dallas Love Field. Opponents claim the arrangement causes higher air fares by restraining trade and competition.

The Dallas City Council recently took up efforts to reconsider

'Dallas was settled mostly by merchants. Fort Worth was settled by ranchers, primarily, and those who dealt with ranchers. You could almost say the two cities represented two cultures.'

Willard Barr

Wright Amendment provisions. That talk was quickly stopped when Fort Worth filed a lawsuit alleging that its neighbor had breached a 1968 agreement to maintain DFW as the region's premier airport.

Fort Worth, however, has refused to drop the lawsuit, and Dallas Councilman Domingo Garcia on Tuesday said he and others are considering a counter lawsuit that would accuse Fort Worth of violating the 1968 pact by building Alliance Airport.

"They want to force another shotgun marriage," Garcia said. "At this point we don't want to get married. We might get divorced."

Some Dallas council members also have said they would not support going ahead with a planned $218 million commuter train project on a 34-mile corridor linking the cities unless the lawsuit is dropped.

Dallas Mayor Steve Bartlett had planned to use Wednesday's council session to study ways to end the dispute.

"It's something that's gotten itself to almost petty status," Bartlett said. "We're dealing a little more with emotion than intellect."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dieters are beginning to realize they must eat more fruits and vegetables and less fat for the rest of their lives if they expect to keep extra weight off, says a behavioral psychologist.

Dr. Lawrence Stifter says a survey of 500 people enrolled in a weight reduction program shows dieters are increasingly interested in the maintenance portion of the program.

Although quick weight loss remained the top priority for most people, 15 percent said learning how to keep the weight off was their main reason for joining the program. That's an increase from 9 percent four years ago.

"Weight loss is just the beginning," said Stifter. "Weight maintenance is a way of life. It's living a healthier lifestyle and making changes in everyday habits, such as eating more fruits and vegetables, fewer fatty foods and walking more often."

The survey of dieters was taken in 1988 and 1991 among patients in Health Management Resources programs. Health Management, based in Boston, is a national preventive health care company that offers programs in weight management, risk factor management and smoking cessation.

WASHINGTON (AP) — People throughout the world are learning a great American eating tradition: Ketchup makes anything taste better.

U.S. makers of condiments are experiencing an export boom that is expected to continue for several years, according to the June issue of the Agriculture Department's "AgExporter" magazine.

Tomato based sauces, like salsa and hot sauce, comprise the largest group of condiments sold abroad, with over $30 million in sales in 1991.

Mayonnaise tops the list of individual products with over $19 million in sales that year, followed by salad dressing with $14.3 million in sales and tomato ketchup, $14 million.

Export growth for each of those three products has been at least 10 percent every year since 1986. In the last three years, sales have almost tripled. They are expected to double by the mid-1990s from last year's total of $164 million, said the magazine.

Names in the news

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Author James A. Michener pledged to help a museum named after him collect more works by painters who put Bucks County on the artistic map.

"We have got to beat the bushes to find where they are so that we can have a first-class museum," Michener said Wednesday at groundbreaking for a $1.65 million expansion of the Michener Art Museum.

Bucks County, just north of Philadelphia, was the site of an artists colony around the turn of the century.

Among the artists represented in the museum: Daniel Garber, Edward Willis Redfield, Fern Coppedge, Walter Elmer Schofield, Edward Hicks and Helen Frankenthaler.

Michener, 85, grew up in Doylestown. His works include "Tales of the South Pacific," "Texas," "Hawaii" and other blockbusters.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Actor-director Robert Townsend has selected a shabby section of town for filming of "The Meteor Man," about a black superhero battling urban ills.

Townsend chose Reservoir Hill, where a section has been transformed into a flashier, more photogenic version of itself for his "inner-city fairy tale."

"I wanted to do a movie that got back to the values of the movies I saw when I was a kid," said the former stand-up comic, who wrote the script, directs and stars in the movie. "But the kids today are so sophisticated that I had to put the things in it that are part of their lives — drugs, gangs, violence."

The movie's lead character is a mild-mannered high school teacher who counsels acquiescence as a means of survival.

But when he is exposed to radiation from a fallen meteor, he changes into The Meteor Man, who instead preaches confrontation against the gangs that terrorize the neighborhood. Townsend began shooting the movie in May.

It also features Bill Cosby, Robert Guillaume, Marla Gibbs and James Earl Jones. Townsend directed "The Hollywood Shuffle" five years ago and "The Five Heartbeats" last year.

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — Lexington's historic main square has been taken 125 years back in time for a one-minute scene in a movie starring Richard Gere and Jodie Foster.

The square has been given dirt roads and horse traffic for the movie.

Gere plays a Civil War soldier returning to Ms. Foster, who thought her husband from a short, unhappy marriage was long dead. Eventually she falls in love with him. Then she discovers he is not really her husband.

The plot is similar to that of "The Return of Martin Guerre," an early 1980s French film starring Gerard Depardieu and set in medieval France.

The production crew spent all day Wednesday coordinating more than 100 extras in period costumes and shooting nine takes of what will end up being less than a minute of the film, "Sommersby."

Filming began April 13 and is scheduled to end June 29.

Bush says U.S. willing to stand alone

WASHINGTON (AP) — A defiant President Bush declared today the United States is prepared to stand alone in opposing an Earth Summit treaty and will reject pressure for more spending on environmental projects.

"The day of the open checkbook is over," Bush said as he departed for Panama and the environmental summit in Rio de Janeiro. The president said that he is "determined to protect the American taxpayer."

A storm of anti-U.S. criticism has swirled for the last week among delegates at the 178-nation Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro, and Bush had hoped to offset the tense reception expected there with a brief, and hopefully happier, stopover in Panama this morning.

But on Wednesday, one U.S. soldier was killed and another wounded when three gunmen opened fire on an American military vehicle.

Asked this morning at the White House about the situation in

'No other nation has done more, more rapidly, to clean up the water, the air or preserve public lands.'

President George Bush

Panama, he said he was "not worried at all" about going. "We'll be received very well down there," he added.

Bush has come under strong criticism internationally for refusing to sign the Earth Summit biodiversity treaty preserving wildlife species.

"If the United States has to be the only nation to stand against the biodiversity treaty as now drawn — so be it," Bush said before boarding Air Force One at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington.

He said "America's record is second to none" on the environment. "No other nation has done more, more rapidly, to clean up the water, the air or preserve public lands," Bush said.

He added that "environmental protection and a growing economy are inseparable."

Bush said that a strong U.S. economy is important not just for Americans, but for the rest of the world including the developing countries who are clamoring for some environmental treaties unacceptable to the United States.

During a photo session before leaving the White House, he was asked if he expected to be the brunt of continued heavy criticism from other countries at the Earth Summit.

"Doesn't matter," Bush snapped. "We are the United States. We're the leader in the environment. We've got a good record... I represent the people on this visit."

Wednesday night, several hundred demonstrators gathered at a downtown Panama City park, where the president was to speak today. One group set fire to the red, white and blue bunting around a flatbed trailer that was to serve as a platform for the address.

Nonetheless, Bush could expect to receive a warm welcome in Panama, and he planned to extol the Panamanian government's return to democracy and its efforts to stop the flow of cocaine.

The United States is spending $130 billion annually, or about 2 percent of its gross national product, cleaning up pollution. This statistic has been cited often in recent days by administration officials trying to paint the United States as long on action and its critics as long on talk.

In Panama, many still are bitter over damage and loss of life from the December 1989 invasion that Bush ordered to topple Noriega from power and bring him to trial in Miami on drug charges. He was convicted.

Two unidentified U.S. soldiers pull a radio from the military vehicle which was fired on by three men with assault rifles Wednesday killing one U.S. soldier and wounding another. The vehicle was found at the bottom of a 30-foot deep ravine in Chilibre Colon, Panama, with bullet holes in the windshield. The attack came on the eve of President Bush's four-hour visit scheduled for Thursday.

Robertson withdraws $6 million bid for UPI

NEW YORK (AP) — United Press International, running short of options and cash, scrambled to survive the week after religious broadcaster Pat Robertson withdrew his $6 million bid for the news service.

"If additional funds for UPI's operations are not found UPI will terminate operations on Friday, June 12, at midnight," the company said in a statement.

Robertson on Wednesday said he had concluded that trying to restore the money-losing news service did not make financial sense. He cut his offer down to $500,000 for little more than the UPI name, but the news service said no.

PAT ROBERTSON

Lawyers for UPI said it was negotiating with other potential buyers, whose names were not released.

"We feel really let down. Now we'll start looking again. But we're looking a lot uglier than we did," said Dennis O'Dea, lead lawyer for UPI's creditors committee.

"Unless somebody pulls a rabbit out of the hat again, it looks like Friday will be it," said Doug Levy, a UPI reporter in Washington and an officer in the Wire Service Guild. "Have we given up hope completely? No. But we're realists."

UPI has lost money for 30 years and owes creditors $60 million. It is operating under bankruptcy court protection for the second time in a decade.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Francis Conrad last month approved the $6 million offer from Robertson — who described himself at the time as UPI's "white knight" — but gave him until Friday to lower his price or back out.

On Wednesday, Robertson said in Washington that lawyers estimated it would cost $31 million over 18 months to attempt to make UPI viable, and "they couldn't guarantee a turnaround at that time."

Robertson, who owns the Christian Broadcasting Network and made an unsuccessful run for the Republican presidential nomination in 1988, said he found that 32 percent of UPI's customers had decided to drop the service.

His offer of $500,000 was for the name he could use for a new agency along with rights to 60 pictures a month from UPI's photo library, and its agreement with Reuters to provide pictures to two dozen clients.

Robertson's lawyers asked the judge to order UPI to accept the offer. Conrad refused but said they could file a request, which he would not rule on for at least two weeks.

UPI said Robertson would get back his $900,000 deposit but not the $300,000 he spent to keep UPI afloat for the past month while studying its books.

Wire Service Guild President Kevin Keane said Robertson's decision left reporters, editors, photographers and others "kind of saddened but relieved. This has been going on for a very long time."

Army taking blood, saliva for DNA dogtags

FORT KNOX, Ky. (AP) — In a grim concession to war's ability to leave victims without fingerprints or teeth for identification, the Army has begun taking blood and saliva samples from recruits for a "genetic dogtag" program.

"We hope there will never be another body buried in the tomb of the unknown soldier," Army Maj. Victor Weedn, Chief of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, said Wednesday. "Service members want to know that if they pay the ultimate price, proper respect will be paid."

Sgt. Joe Ricondo, a Fort Knox nurse, said 1,000 to 1,500 recruits will give samples each month at the Army post. Soldiers at Fort McClellan in Alabama will be tested beginning next month. Eventually the program will be expanded to the entire Army.

"I believe it's a good idea to keep the unknown-soldier rate down," recruit Mike Davis, 18, of Palestine, Texas, said before having his blood drawn.

DNA, or deoxyribonucleic acid, is the molecular genetic blueprint found in every living cell. By cross-matching the smallest tissue specimens with genetic samples on file, pathologists can make identifications with high reliability.

Army Staff Sgt. Mark Joliff applies blood samples from a new recruit to a bloodstain card, which also contains a fingerprint and signature, Wednesday at Ft. Knox, Ky. The blood samples will enable the military to make a positive DNA identification to supplement other identification techniques in the event of a soldier's death.

The blood and saliva will be used only to identify a body and will be destroyed once a soldier leaves the military, said Weedn, chief of AFIP's new Armed Forces DNA Identification Laboratory.

The blood smears are on cards sent identification methods, which have their limitations.

Only about 70 percent of military personnel have fingerprints on record, he said. And dental comparisons are not always possible because soldiers don't need as much dental work as they used to, and thus lack dental records, he said.

Moreover, fingerprints and teeth can be destroyed in combat.

"It's not bullets and bayonets anymore," said Navy Capt. Glenn Wagner, deputy director of the multiservice Armed Forces Institute of Pathology. "It's stuff that can really cause a good deal of damage."

In an explosion in Kuwait last July, for example, investigators found only one small portion of a jaw with intact teeth among tissue from two dead soldiers.

DNA comparisons helped make identifications in those cases and helped sort out body parts in others. But using DNA in Operation Desert Storm was challenging because the military did not have DNA samples from soldiers.

Investigators had to check the DNA of victims' relatives for guidance.

UPI has lost money for 30 years and owes creditors $60 million. It is operating under bankruptcy court protection for the second time in a decade.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Francis Conrad last month approved the $6 million offer from Robertson — who described himself at the time as UPI's "white knight" — but gave him until Friday to lower his price or back out.

Doomsayers can't decide

It has been noted that the people who are issuing scary warnings about greenhouse gases and global warming are the same people who 20 years ago were issuing such warnings about impending global cooling that would result in a new ice age.

In both cases, the changes would be disastrous, the predictors warned.

Now skeptics are saying the prophets of doom were wrong about global cooling and also are wrong about global warming. That sounds commonsensical.

But wait. Maybe the prophets were right both times. Maybe the Earth is cooling and heating at the same time. And if that is what is happening, then the result, naturally, will be a temperate climate, which is what most people and plants and animals seem to prefer.

There is only one thing wrong with that. It means the prophets of doom won't be able to rule the lives of all the rest of us.

Tough.

President's staff faces an urgent owl decision

It hasn't received much publicity, but one night last week at midnight a rare spotted owl was seen sitting on the branch of a tree overlooking the President's bedroom. In accordance with Mr. Bush's environmental policy, the Secret Service decided to shoot it.

But since the owl is an endangered species they held off until they could get a ruling from the Justice Department as to whether it was legal or not.

Art Buchwald

He says that the U.S. has become the villain of the conference and if we don't sign a treaty -- any treaty -- we're going to be in deep spotted owl droppings. What do I do about the message?

"Leak it to the press," Quayle urged. "If the Brazilians pelt us with rotten eggs we'll go up 10 points in our polls."

The Secret Service man said, "Here's my problem. If we shoot the owl now, we're going to make a heck of a racket and wake up the President. If we wait until morning, the owl may fly away and we won't have another chance to get him."

One of the President's handlers asked, "How did the owl get into the tree in the first place? Spotted owls live outside the Beltway."

Quayle said, "Ross Perot could have flown the bird in on his private plane. I don't trust him any more than I trust an endangered snail darter."

The press spokesman yelled, "Of course! It's another Ross Perot dirty trick. He's counting on us to kill the spotted owl so that his managers Ham Jordan and Ed Rollins can claim we don't care about rare species that prevent us from getting a jump-start on the nation's economy."

A White House adviser said, "I don't think we should decide what to do about the owl until we talk to the President."

"We can't wake him. He's going dolphin fishing in Maine the first thing in the morning."

Baseball is putting Big Spring on the map

Random thoughts while waiting for the Steers' game to start:

Baseball happens to be my favorite sport, so it is thrilling me no end to see the Big Spring Steers make it to the state tournament.

Whether or not the Steers win today (that will be public knowledge by the time most of you read this), they have done this town proud.

On paper, they're not the most talented bunch around, and they have by far the worst record of any team in the 4A finals, but they have taken what they have and put it to very good use.

They have shown that hustle and determination -- and a little luck thrown in just for good measure -- can sometimes make up for a lack of blue-chip prospects in the lineup.

Baseball has given this town more than its share of reflected glory. First, the Howard College Hawks win the junior college World Series last year in Colorado, and now the Steers are just two wins away from the state title.

Take that, you football fanatics. Now, if the Texas Rangers can just win the AL West, I'll be a happy man.

Nah, can't expect too many miracles, can I?

Well, this is not supposed to be a sports column, so what do you say we get on to other things?

Like what, for instance? Glad you asked. It so happens I've got just enough space to run a mini-version of the Garden of Grammatical Delights.

Everybody say, "Big whoopie." The GGD, for the uninformed or weak of heart, is a semi-regular addition to this space where we look through the dictionary, find some strange-looking words and try to discern their meaning.

Ready? Too bad. The first word today is frumenty. At first glance, the word looks like it describes something that tastes sort of fruity and sort of minty.

But that wouldn't do, would it, folks? Frumenty, according to Uncle Webster, is a dish of wheat boiled in milk, usually with sugar, spice and raisins.

So that's what that junk I had to eat for breakfast is called. Well, I'd love to further discuss my eating habits -- and I'm sure you'd love to hear more about them -- but time and space are a-wastin'.

The next word on our list is prognathous. Hmmmm, this one sounds like something a doctor with a lisp might say: "Well, Mrs. Smith, little Timmy had a bad spill, but the prognathous is good."

OK, OK, so I'm reaching. Sue me.

Prognathous is an adjective meaning "having the jaws projecting beyond the upper part of the face," which is how I feel on certain mornings, but enough about that.

I'd love to continue, but a look at the clock says it's time to close for now. Keep your dictionaries dry, kiddies.

Five months to convince voters

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Democrats overhauled their system for picking presidential nominees, the aim was to air out smoke-filled rooms, take power away from professional politicians and give it to the voters.

Twenty years later, a good many voters seem irked that politicians are running, let alone king making.

From inside the major parties looking out at independent Ross Perot, the nominating process seems to be punishing success.

Bill Clinton won 29 primaries to capture the delegates for the Democratic nomination, and now says:

"The American people are so disgusted with both political parties -- and I don't blame them -- that anybody who's gone through this primary process winds up weaker coming out than they went in, because you become like a politician."

He offered that judgment in an appearance on CNN's "Larry King Live" interview program, the stage on which Perot declared himself available for the White House less than four months ago. So far, the TV talk shows have been a persuasive forum for Perot, while the primary campaigns have advertised the weak spots of their winners, Clinton and President Bush.

Perot now boasts that he's pulling the others into his talk show arena.

"Remember when they thought it was obscene that I would go on a talk show and talk about these issues?" he told a rally in Las Vegas last Thursday.

He also taunted Clinton and Bush as big spenders for the cost of their primary campaigns, saying that he's economized. That neglects the fact that they have been running all year -- and that he's said he's willing to spend $100 million or more of his own money on the campaign.

Guest column

"Let's look at the facts, which people rarely do in politics," Perot said. "The Democrats have spent over $17 million, the Republicans have spent over $17 million, and all of us put together, including me, have spent $1.4 million."

"We used brains, wit and ingenuity as a substitute for massive spending," he said.

Since a petition drive to get on general election ballots substitutes for a far costlier primary election campaign, Perot hasn't needed massive spending yet.

"He hasn't faced one voter in one election yet," Democratic National Chairman Ronald H. Brown said on ABC-TV, noting that Perot's strength in voter surveys may wane as the months go on.

"It's one thing to ask a voter in May or June what would you do if the election was held today," Brown said.

"There's a big difference between the polls, exit polls and the like in June, and what people say in November in the voting booth," added Fred Malek, campaign manager for Bush.

Prognosticator Richard M. Nixon says Perot will be the strongest third candidate at least since Theodore Roosevelt in 1912, and not only because he has a lot of money to spend. "It's because he is a non-politician," said the former president.

"It's a big advantage in this day and age when the parties are both unpopular if you can just say, 'I'm running, and here's my direct communication with the American people,'" Clinton lamented.

The irony is that the system itself was changed, initially by Democratic reformers, to put would-be nominees in direct contact with the voters. The objective was to broaden participation in nominating campaigns, and the result was the proliferation of presidential primaries.

Once a testing ground where a candidate would try to show his voter appeal to impress the power brokers, the primaries became the dominant force in picking presidential candidates. Since they are set up by state election laws, the Democratic reforms affected the Republicans too.

None of it applies to Perot, running outside the two-party system in a year when outsiders have had the advantage.

At the prime time news conference the major broadcast networks skipped last Thursday, Bush was asked why any candidate would go through the grueling primary campaign if, like Perot, he could simply announce and run.

Bush said his wife had asked him the same thing.

"Yes, we are going through an unusual period," Bush said. "But the two-party system has provided us fantastic historical stability. . . . So in my view, as this campaign unfolds, as all of us spell out our positions on the issues, people are going to recognize that, and the two parties will be strong when this election is over."

And that, as on little else, Bush and Clinton are agreed.

"There's also no question that every now and then, the parties need a little shaking up," Clinton said. "But I still believe that our democracy will work better if we have two parties that function, rather than just splintering apart."

Bush and Clinton now have five campaign months to convince the voters of it.

Trail Blazers win to even series

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Michael Jordan put the ball on the floor and drove to the basket. Which move would he use this time?

Would he race past Clyde Drexler, as he has done so often in the NBA Finals — as he did in league MVP voting? Or would he just make Drexler think he would drive and, instead, pull up for the quick jumper? In your face, Clyde. Again.

This time Jordan drove. This time, Drexler thought Jordan would drive. And for the first time this series, Drexler beat Jordan. Beat him clean, took away the ball, started and finished the fast break that gave Portland its first lead.

Drexler's Trail Blazers went on to beat Jordan's Chicago Bulls 93-88 in Game 4 Wednesday, tying the best-of-7 series at two games apiece. Game 5 is here Friday night before the teams return to Chicago Stadium for Game 6 Sunday.

he was trying to increase Chicago's 82-81 lead. He drove hard to the basket before Drexler used his left hand to knock away the ball. It deflected into the hands of Jerome Kersey, who led Terry Porter, who flipped the ball back to Drexler for the layup.

Portland 83, Chicago 82.

"I guess I tried that move too often. I scored on it just (a few) minutes before. He anticipated it well," Jordan said. "It's an open-court situation, and they finished it off very well. It was a big motivational factor for them."

"I've been stripped before. I've been blocked before. I've been dunked on before. I've missed dunks before. You just want to redeem yourself ... as a team. We just didn't do it as a team down the stretch."

Drexler and his team redeemed themselves. The Trail Blazers after a miserable performance in Sunday's Game 3 loss and a terrible start to Game 4 that saw them fall behind 10-0 and 18-5. Drexler after missing seven of eight third-quarter shots and failing to score for almost 8½ minutes of the fourth.

Just before his big play, Drexler missed two free throws that could have tied the game with 3:59 to go. The 12,888 fans in the Blazers' 682nd consecutive sellout crowd groaned. A few even booed.

"We just couldn't get over the hump," Drexler said. "It was a feeling, like, 'We keep making it tough on ourselves.'"

Drexler and the Blazers finally decided to make things tough on Portland's Danny Ainge (foreground) crashes into Chicago's Scottie Pippen in fourth quarter action Wednesday night in game four of the NBA finals in Portland.

the Bulls.

Cliff Robinson, 2 of 11 from the floor in Game 3, made a free throw to cut Chicago's lead to 82-81. Drexler made his steal. Kersey, who had been shooting 40.6 percent in the series, dunked on an assist from Drexler to match Drexler's 21 points.

After John Paxson's 3-pointer made it 85-85, Robinson made another foul shot, Drexler played hand-in-face defense as Jordan missed a short jumper, Porter made two free throws, Portland's defense collapsed on Jordan to force another miss, Robinson hit yet another free throw to give him 17 points, and Drexler made two foul shots for a 91-85 lead.

Chicago pulled to 91-88 on three free throws before Porter took Drexler's outlet pass and hit the clinching layup.

The Trail Blazers snapped the Western Conference's incredible four-season, nine-game home losing streak in the Finals. Portland had fallen in four of those games, including three straight in their 1990 loss to Detroit.

"We had confidence that we could win here," Drexler said. "There's a sense of relief, but we're looking forward to Friday's game."

Jordan felt the Bulls had a 3-1 series lead in their grasp.

"We played a good 42 minutes," he said. "The last six minutes we didn't execute properly. We did get flustered down the stretch."

Jordan sang a similar tune after Chicago blew a 10-point lead and lost Game 2 in overtime.

Lewis wins first 200 race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Carl Lewis nipped teammate Floyd Heard at the tape to win the 200-meter dash in the Indy Games Wednesday night in a final tuneup for next week's Olympic trials.

Lewis won in 20.43 seconds to 20.44 for Heard, a teammate on the Santa Monica Track Club. Kevin Little of U.S. West was third in 20.61.

The race was Lewis' first 200 since he won the event in a meet at Stockholm last July.

"It was a better race than Stockholm, there's no question," he said. "Floyd has run 20.17 this year and to come in front of him is a good accomplishment."

The old guard of American track and field fared well Wednesday night. Lewis and Evelyn Ashford won their events, and hurdler Renaldo Nehemiah finished second in a comeback attempt.

Former world record holder Leroy Burrell won the 100 in 10.21, with Mark Witherspoon second in 10.26. Both runners practice at the Santa Monica club with Lewis, who skipped the 100 in the unique meet that featured finals only in 17 events.

Cletus Clark won the 110 hurdles in 13.66 racing into a strong headwind. The 33-year-old Nehemiah was second in 13.70 in his first race since May 10.

"When you play a guy enough, eventually you learn some of his moves. Michael's got about 2,000 of them. I just happened to guess right that time," said Drexler, who had 21 points, nine assists, eight rebounds and two steals.

"It was just one of those plays where you try to anticipate one of his moves and I was able to get my hand on the ball. Then it was off to the races."

Jordan opened the fourth quarter with two baskets against Drexler — scoring the last of his 32 points and putting the Bulls ahead 73-66.

With just under four minutes left,

Ponys win battle of horses

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The American League Colts got a rude greeting in their opener in the City Little League tournament Wednesday night at Johnnie Hobbs Field.

The greeting was delivered by a trio of National League Ponys. Ricky Gomez handled the pitching duties and brothers Jerrod and Stewart Beall handled the hitting chores. The net result was an 8-0 victory for the Ponys.

The Colts came into the game as the second-place finisher in their league. The record falls to 8-5. The Ponys, from Ackerly, finished fourth in their league. Their record goes to 7-7-1.

On this night it was all Ponys as Gomez recorded the first no-hitter of the tournament while going the distance. He completely dominated Colt hitters with his fast ball. No Colt got close to getting a hit. Gomez finished the game with 12 strikeouts and six walks.

The Beall brothers made life tough for Colts pitcher Edward Ornelas. Ten-year-old Stuart, a shortstop, got two singles and a double, driving in four runs. Twelve-year-old Jerrod, a catcher, singled, doubled and tripled in three official trips to the plate. He scored four times and drove in one run.

The Ponys scored a run in the first when Jerrod Beal got an infield hit and scored on a single by his brother.

The Ponys got another run in the third when Jerrod Beall doubled and scored on an infield hit by his brother.

The Ponys put the game away with a four-run fourth inning. They got two hits and the Colts committed two errors in the inning. Roy Girby singled and Stuart Beall doubled in the inning, driving in two runs.

The Ponys added two insurance runs in the sixth. Gomez led off the inning by reaching base on a fielding error by the second baseman. Jerrod Beall followed with a triple, scoring Gomez. Eric Wigginton followed by grounding out to the pitcher. Jerrod Beall scored on the throw to first base.

Gomez finished his no-hitter in the sixth by striking out Aaron Rodriguez and Ornelas. Adam Guerra walked and eventually advanced to third, but he was picked off base and tagged out in a rundown, ending the game.

Cubs pitcher fires three-hitter at Cards

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greg Maddux looked at the scoreboard after Ray Lankford doubled with one out in the sixth inning and realized it was the first hit for St. Louis.

It didn't bother him a bit. He has come to expect such things.

"I don't think I've had a no-hitter since high school," Maddux said after limiting the Cardinals to three hits in seven innings while pitching the Chicago Cubs to a 4-2 victory Wednesday night.

The four runs by the Cubs were a boost for Maddux, 2-6 in his last nine starts. During that stretch, the Cubs have scored fewer than three runs a game.

"I don't worry about how many runs we score," he said. "I worry about how many I give up."

He had some room for error this time because the slump-ridden

Cardinals made it easy for the Cubs. They committed three errors and Chicago's Sammy Sosa hit two homers.

Lankford said the Cardinals helped Maddux (6-6) by being impatient.

Expos 8, Mets 2

The Mets made six errors to tie a club record, and Montreal's Mark Gardner beat them for the first time in nine starts.

Gardner (4-5) allowed two hits, struck out four and walked three in five innings to raise his record against the Mets to 1-4. Gardner, bothered by a virus for the last month, pitched no-hit ball until Vince Coleman lined a single to center with two out in the fifth.

Pirates 2, Phillies 1

Visiting Pittsburgh used two walks, a single and an error on Philadelphia's Len Dykstra to score an unearned run in the 12th inning. Barry Bonds walked against Barry Jones (4-3) to start the 12th and advanced on an infield out. Gary Varsho was intentionally walked and Jose Lind singled to center. Bonds initially stopped at third, but raced home when Dykstra bobbled the ball in center field.

Padres 5, Astros 1

At San Diego, Fred McGriff homered for the second straight game and hit an RBI double as the Padres completed a three-game sweep by handing Houston its fifth straight loss.

Craig Lefferts (7-4) allowed six hits in eight innings but failed for the second straight game to pitch his first career complete game. The converted reliever also went eight innings Friday in a 3-2 loss to Atlanta.

McGriff, who ended a 12-game homerless streak Tuesday night, hit a two-run shot off Butch Henry (1-5) with two outs in the third for his 14th of the year. He drove in Tony Gwynn, who had singled, to move into a tie with Barry Bonds of Pittsburgh for the NL home-run lead.

Giants 6, Reds 2

Bud Black pitched three-hit ball for eight-plus innings and Will Clark and Robby Thompson homered as San Francisco beat visiting Cincinnati.

Black (3-1) took a two-hitter into the ninth, but a single, a walk and an error cost him the shutout and brought on Jeff Brantley.

Clark, who entered the game with a .214 career average against Cincinnati starter Jose Rijo, singled, doubled and homered against the Reds' ace, then added a double against reliever Rob Dibble in the eighth.

Thompson snapped a 0-for-21 slide with his homer in the second and capped a three-RBI day with a two-run single off Dibble in the eighth.

Former Angels come back to haunt old teammates

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a good night to be a former Angel.

Shawn Abner and Kirk McCaskill, both one-time California players, came out on top of their former team Wednesday night. Abner's sacrifice fly in the 12th inning gave the Chicago White Sox a 3-2 victory.

McCaskill pitched well for eight innings, carrying a three-hitter and a 1-0 lead into the ninth. But the bullpen failed him and he wound up with a no-decision. Scott Radinsky relieved, followed by ace Bobby Thigpen, and Rene Gonzales eventually hit a two-run single.

The Sox came back to tie it on Frank Thomas's RBI single.

At Milwaukee, Mark McGwire became the fifth-fastest player to reach 200 career homers, getting his 22nd this season. McGwire's 200th homer came in his 2,852nd career at-bat, faster than everyone except Ralph Kiner, Babe Ruth, Harmon Killebrew and Eddie

American League

Mathews. Harold Baines also homered in support of Ron Darling, who yielded seven hits in seven innings to win for the fifth time in his last six decisions. Dennis Eckersley got his 22nd save in as many opportunities.

Rangers 5, Mariners 3 At Arlington, Texas, Juan Gonzalez homered for the fifth time in his last four games and Dickie Thon's two-run homer keyed a five-run third inning.

Seattle starter Randy Johnson allowed only four hits in his four innings, but he walked six and hit two batters. Johnson leads the league in walks (51) and hit batters (eight).

Jose Guzman (6-3) yielded six hits and walked one in seven innings in winning his fourth straight decision. Jeff Russell finished for his 16th save.

Orioles 3, Red Sox 1 Rick Sutcliffe tied for the major league high with his ninth victory. Sutcliffe (9-4) allowed six hits in winning a fourth straight start for the first time since 1989. He lost his shutout in the seventh when Ellis Burks hit his team-high sixth homer. He has allowed only one run in his last 15 innings.

Blue Jays 10, Yankees 3 Toronto continued its mastery at Yankee Stadium as Joe Carter homered, tripled, doubled and drove in four runs. The Blue Jays swept New York, outscoring the Yankees 28-7 in the three-game series, with 15 hits in the finale, including two homers, three triples and four doubles. Greg Myers hit a three-run homer during a six-run second inning.

Indians 4, Tigers 2

At Detroit, Glennallen Hill continued his power surge with two home runs. His second of the night broke a 2-2 tie in the 11th inning. Brook Jacoby, the next batter, also homered.

Royals 7, Twins 6

At Kansas City, Brian McRae had three hits and drove in three runs, leading the Royals to their ninth victory in their last 11 games.

Leagues approve sale of Mariners

NEW YORK (AP) — The sale of the Seattle Mariners to a Japanese-led group was approved in principle in separate votes by the American and National leagues, who then set a formal vote for a joint session today.

AL president Bobby Brown said the sale received the necessary three-quarters majority during his league's session, and NL spokeswoman Katy Feeney said there was no significant opposition in her league. A final vote can take place only during a joint meeting of both leagues. The group buying the club is headed by Hiroshi Yamauchi, president of Nintendo Co. Ltd. of Kyoto. Yamauchi is contributing approximately $75 million of the $125 million raised by the buyers.

South African upsets Becker

LONDON (AP) — Christo Van Rensburg of South Africa upset third-seeded Boris Becker of Germany 6-4, 6-3 and Patrick Kuhnen of Germany beat sixth-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia 7-6 (9-7), 3-6, 6-1 in the second round of the Queen's Club grass-court tournament. In another second-round match, second-seeded Pete Sampras of the United States defeated Mark Woodforde of Australia 6-1, 6-3.

At Rosmalen, Netherlands fifth-seeded John McEnroe beat fellow American Jim Grabb 6-2, 7-6 (9-7) and top-seeded Michael Stich of Germany defeated Fernon Wibier of the Netherlands 6-4, 6-4 in the second round of the Rosmalen Trophy grass-court tournament.

At Florence, Italy third-seeded Magnus Gustafsson of Sweden defeated Mark Koevermans of the Netherlands 6-2, 6-0 in the second round of the City of Florence clay-court tournament.

At Birmingham, England third-seeded Gigi Fernandez of the United States defeated Amanda Grunfeld of Britain 6-1, 6-2 and fifth-seeded Natalia Zvereva of Belarus beat Nathalie Guerree of France 6-2, 6-1 in the second round of the Edgbaston grass-court tournament.

Reynolds runs 44.67 400 meters

HOLMDEL, N.J. (AP) — World 400-meter record-holder Butch Reynolds, barred from international competition, participated in a meet at a high school facility.

Wearing No. 4329 in honor of his world record of 43.29 seconds set in 1988, Reynolds was timed in 44.67, the fastest clocking in his comeback attempt.

Reynolds, suspended for two years by the International Amateur Athletic Federation after allegedly testing positive for steroids at a meet in August 1990, hopes to compete in the U.S. Olympic trials in New Orleans on June 19-28.

Clarke returns to former team

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Clarke, who spent 21 years with the Philadelphia Flyers as a player and general manager, returned to the team as a partner and senior vice president. Clarke, who spent the past two seasons as general manager of the Minnesota North Stars, will concentrate on scouting and player development, offering input on all hockey-related decisions, team president Jay Snider said.

Griffin wins easy bout

WORCESTER, Mass. (A.P.) — Eric Griffin of Jasper, Tenn., the world 106-pound amateur champion, outpointed Bradley Martinez of Fort Huachuca, Ariz., 5-0 in a quarterfinal bout in the U.S. Olympic Trials.

Baseball commissioner keeps power

NEW YORK (AP) — An attempt by two American League owners on the Player Relations Committee to strip commissioner Fay Vincent of his power over labor relations failed last week.

PRC chairman Bud Selig of the Milwaukee Brewers and Chicago White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf led the move last week in Chicago, officials said. It also had the support of Richard Ravitch, hired by Selig last fall as management's chief negotiator.

Vincent said he was surprised and dismayed by the move, which he refused to go along with. Vincent's approval was necessary because the Major League Agreement states "no diminution of the compensation or powers of the present or any succeeding commissioner shall be made during his term in office."

"I am not going to change my position, whatever that means," Vincent said.

The failed power grab, first reported in Wednesday's editions of The New York Times, took many owners and officials by surprise. It came amidst increasing indications of a split in labor policy pitting Selig, Reinsdorf and Ravitch against the commissioner and his central staff.

"All I'm going to say on the record," Ravitch said, "is that I was hired by the owners to achieve their economic objectives. Any comments from me would not be consistent with that objective."

Owners from both leagues met jointly Wednesday with the PRC. Reinsdorf and Selig both refused to discuss PRC business with reporters.

Ravitch's participation in a failed move against Vincent calls into question his future effectiveness as the owners' negotiator.

Tools worth $1,500 were reported stolen in the 1700 block of Purdue.

Mike Calloway, 38, of 2516 Chanute was arrested for public intoxication.

Eusebio Saiz, 53, of 310 West Seventh St. was arrested for public intoxication.

Myrell Simpson Jr., 18, of Big Spring was arrested for driving without a license.

Some Baptists oppose expulsion of churches

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Some Southern Baptists decried their denomination's expulsion of two churches for accepting homosexuals, saying the decision could spur a fundamentalist crackdown on other dissidents.

"I think it becomes a convenient first step for the Southern Baptist Convention to banish other congregations with whom they find themselves in disagreement," said the Rev. John Hewett of Asheville, N.C.

Hewett said the fundamentalists who control the church's administration "have clear designs to use their stands on such issues as abortion and the role of women to complete the purge they began in 1979."

Critics said Tuesday's action by the convention of the 15.2-million-member denomination broke with a historic Baptist principle of local church autonomy.

The convention, attended by about 18,000 people, voted overwhelmingly to expel two North Carolina congregations. The Puller Memorial Church in Raleigh had blessed a union of two homosexual men and the Binkley Memorial Church in Chapel Hill had ordained a homosexual to preach.

"This is a major shift for Baptists," said the Rev. David Sapp of Richmond, Va.

"The question in the minds of a lot of us is that in excluding these churches about this issue, then what's the next issue?"

But others attending the convention of the nation's biggest Protestant denomination insisted that the expulsions were not likely to prestage a "slippery slope" of other infringements on local church independence.

"It was a highly unusual case that required highly unusual procedure," said the Rev. David Hankins of Lake Charles, La., chairman of an executive committee that led the action.

Natural Dam Lake water, naturally salty because of evaporation and salt deposits left from the prehistoric Permian Sea, is blamed for more than half of the salt in Big Spring tap water. One-third of salt in tap water is blamed on oilfield activity in the first half of the century.

Neo-Nazi violence on the rise

BERLIN (AP) — A Vietnamese woman is beaten, a Togolese man is thrown in front of a truck and a Sudanese refugee is pelted with stones — all victims of a neo-Nazi gang on a single day in a gritty section of east Berlin.

Violence and threats of violence against foreigners are now occurring with frightening regularity across Germany: an average of seven a day, say authorities who are struggling to battle the rise in right-wing terror.

Neo-Nazis and other right-wing extremists continue to find support among the youths' left jobless or confused by the changes caused by unification. Their gang attacks and nationalist fervor are humiliating to a nation still saddled with the sins of the Third Reich.

"I don't know what the answer is," says Reinhard Herwig, chief of detectives in Goerlitz, a city on the Polish border that has been a cauldron for neo-Nazi trouble. "Perhaps we should put them on a bus and show them Auschwitz so they can see what the real meaning of fascism is."

Right-wing extremism is now more dangerous than at any time since World War II. More than 1,030 cases of threats or attacks against foreigners were reported between Jan. 1 and May 15, claiming the lives of at least five people and leaving 130 injured, according to federal police.

Teens arming themselves for protection

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Paul Perry isn't packing a pistol yet, but the beating of his roommate and gunfire in the night have changed his way of thinking.

The soft-spoken art student said he will arm himself next fall when he returns to Pittsburgh, which — although part of an area ranked as the nation's safest for black teenagers like Perry — is becoming more dangerous.

"My gun's going to be readily available — somewhere I can reach it quickly," said Perry, 19, a Harrisburg native and freshman at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh.

The government's National Center for Health Statistics found that gunfire was the most common cause of death for black males ages 15 to 19, claiming about 1,000 such victims a year.

Black youths were less likely to die from gunfire in Allegheny County, which includes Pittsburgh, than in 79 other counties in major metropolitan areas ranked by the center.

The study, published today in the Journal of the American Medical Association, covered the years 1987, 1988 and 1989.

Overall, the firearms homicide rate for black teen-age males was 143.9 per 100,000 people, compared with 21.5 per 100,000 for white teenage males.

The deadliest place for black males ages 15 through 19 was the District of Columbia, with a firearms homicide rate of 227.2. In the middle — No. 40 — was Oklahoma County, Okla., with a rate of 67.7. Allegheny County's rate was zero.

In the past 2½ years, however, 12 black teens were shot to death in Allegheny County, compared with one in the three years before that,

Paul Perry, right, and Kevin Zambach talk on a basketball court on Pittsburgh's North Side Tuesday about people they have seen carrying pistols.

Perry shows how a man at a party was carrying a gun in a holster. He says he plans to get a gun for protection.

said County Coroner Joshua Perper.

"The study is just an outdated photograph of how things were, not a movie of how they are today," he said Tuesday. "The potential for homicide is increasing."

Perper and others said that when drugs moved in to neighborhoods, guns followed.

"With the crack dealers and turf gangs in evidence now, the youths are getting bolder," said Stan Rideout, security director for Pittsburgh's public schools.

In one of those neighborhoods, the North Side, Shawn Coachman, a self-described reformed drug dealer and recovering addict, said drug couriers carry more firepower than ever — and are willing to use it.

"Seven or eight years ago, you were a punk if you went home to get a gun for a fight. It was unheard of," said Coachman, 29. "You had to fight for yourselves, use your hands. The kids are out to prove themselves now, and they'll shoot you down."

Coachman said he quit dealing because he was afraid of dying.

"I'm older now," he said. "I know better."

A few blocks away, as white roommate Kevin Zambach shot baskets on a playground, art student Perry talked about the gunfire he hears in a park one or two nights a week.

"I was at a party, and this short guy comes in and takes off his coat and there's a 9-millimeter under his arm — just like that. And he's just walking around like everything's normal," Perry said.

Zambach said he stays indoors nights since he was beaten by a group of blacks after trying to join a basketball game — "right after Rodney King." Meanwhile, Perry plans to replace the knife he carries everywhere with a gun.

Asked what he will buy, he said, "Something small, maybe a .25."

Producer hit Vereen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Grammy-winning composer and producer David Foster was at the wheel of the station wagon that hit Ben Vereen as the entertainer walked along a highway in the middle of the night.

No charges were brought against Foster in the accident Tuesday near Vereen's Malibu home.

Vereen, best known for his portrayal of Chicken George in the miniseries "Roots" and his Tony Award-winning Broadway performance in "Pippin," was in critical condition Wednesday with head and internal injuries and a broken leg.

Foster, who lives near Vereen, was named Grammy producer of the year in February for Natalie Cole's "Unforgettable" album. He has also collaborated with Michael Jackson, Barbra Streisand, Chicago and Manhattan Transfer.

The 42-year-old Foster called for help on a cellular phone.

Residents of an apartment building remove belongings after it was destroyed by a car bomb in Puerto Callao, Peru, a suburb of Lima. Shining Path guerrillas have increased the power and frequency of car bombings since President Alberto Fujimori declared one-man rule April 5.

Car bombings growing more frequent in Lima

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The day after a car bomb ripped through the city's fashionable San Isidro district, barbers at the Monte Carlo Barbershop swept the broken mirrors aside and set their chairs out on the sidewalk.

"Never did we think of closing, not for one minute. We have never lost a day of work here," said barber Avelino Marquez. "We were cleaning for four days and we still attended everyone who came in."

Broken windows and barricaded streets are increasingly common sights in Lima. Shining Path guerrillas have increased the power and frequency of car bomb attacks since President Alberto Fujimori declared one-man rule April 5.

Fujimori said in dissolving congress that political corruption was shackling his efforts to defeat the Maoist-inspired rebels. But critics say his new get-tough campaign against the rebels has exacerbated the violence.

Indeed, the stepped up bombings attacks have prompted sterner security measures. The government on Wednesday imposed a 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. ban on traffic in the capital.

Ten police and military targets have been bombed since April 5, killing at least a dozen officials.

Civilian centers have likewise been targeted, and the bombers have used hundreds of pounds of explosives.

On June 5, a truck packed with explosives killed four people and injured dozens when it exploded after midnight in front of a television station that has taken a hard line against the Shining Path.

The car bomb exploded in San Isidro two weeks earlier, killing one person at an intersection surrounded by banks and shopping centers.

Experts say the timing and placement of such bombs indicates the Shining Path is more interested in making a point than in killing or injuring large numbers of people.

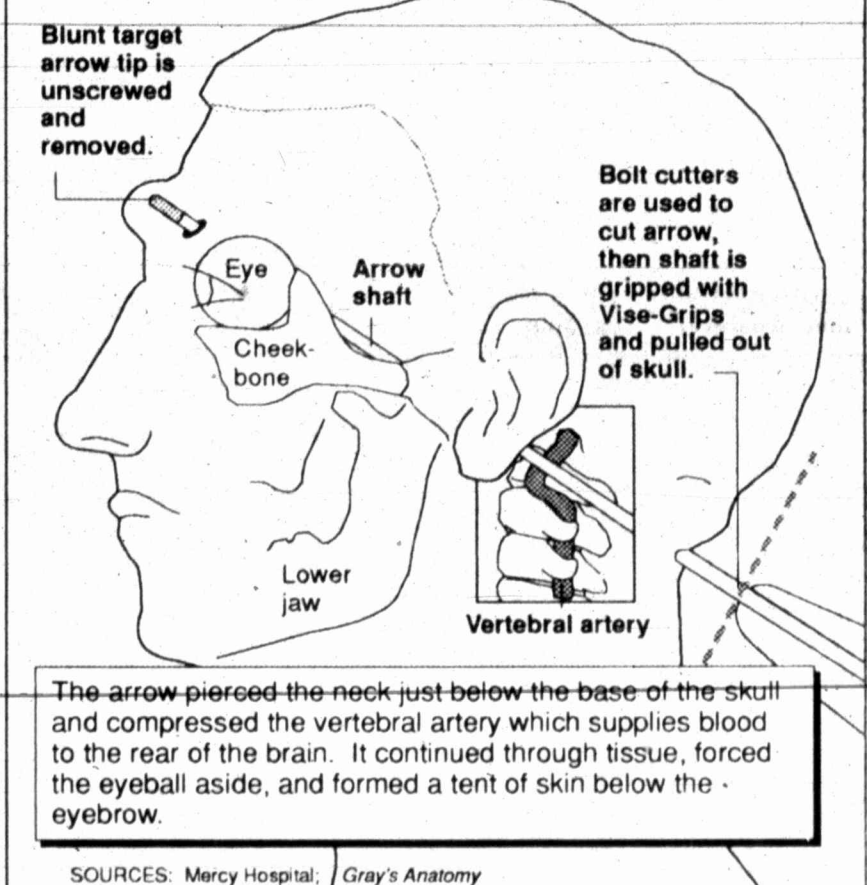

The rebels have in the past year steadily increased their presence in Lima, coming down from their strongholds in the highlands and making inroads in the shantytowns that ring the capital.

Now, barricades made of rocks and barrels have been erected along roads running past police offices and military posts.

Private businesses and wealthy homeowners fearing bombs have also begun blocking streets that run past their property, snarling traffic.

Shoe scam fools women

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — A man apparently duped dozens of women into cutting up their shoes on the false promise that they would receive 40 new pairs, police said.

One woman reported that the man called her Friday, telling her he was conducting a survey for a shoe company, police said. He asked for her age, address, shoe size and favorite styles and brands.

The caller promised the woman 40 pairs of shoes over the next year if she destroyed her old ones. The woman cut up a $70 pair while the man listened, police said.

When the woman called a number the man had given her, she reached Hughes Aircraft Co.

Howard College's babysitter clinic benefits young and old

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

A special Babysitter's Clinic will be offered at Howard College June 15-18 from 1 to 4 p.m. to persons 11 years of age and older.

The clinic will be presented through the Howard College Continuing Education Department by Family Connection and Referral Service.

Cost of the four-day clinic is $15.00 and the class will be limited to about 12-15 participants. If requests exceed this number, an additional workshop will be conducted as soon as possible.

The role of Family Connections is to help parents find child care and to train child care providers. The resource and referral service frequently receives requests from parents for babysitters.

Babysitting which is usually short-term or occasional is defined differently from regular child care that parents need during work hours.

The main focus of the workshop will be safety and will cover a wide range of topics including what behaviors and abilities to expect from each age and stage of childhood; age appropriate toys, games and activities; infant care; simple, safe, healthy meal preparation; responding to emergencies; CPR/First Aid; running a successful babysitting business; and ethics and etiquette of babysitting.

A registered dietitian, a police officer, CPR instructor and a child development specialist will present the workshop in an interesting and enjoyable format.

Class graduates will receive a certificate of completion and their names will be included on a list of babysitters that will be provided to parents who call Howard College Family Connections requesting this type of care.

This training will not only benefit parents and their children by upgrading child care quality but will also benefit the babysitter as well.

Babysitter training and experience can help young people decide if they are interested in a career in child development or related occupations.

Older, more mature babysitters will be better prepared for a variety of other employment possibilities such as full-time summer child care providers, church nursery staff, weekend or vacation house-sitting and child care, and part-time employment as a substitute or after school worker in a child care facility.

To enroll or for more information, call Howard College Continuing Education at (915)264-5131 or Family Connections at (915)264-5178 or 1-800-725-4454 outside of Big Spring local area.

A Boston street vendor gives a lesson on using a high-pressure water gun to a buyer recently. Boston's Mayor Raymond Flynn has called for a ban of the popular toy because some teens have reportedly filled them with cleaning fluids and fired on pedestrians.

Man shot by squirt gun fires back

NEW YORK (AP) — A man angry about being sprayed with a high-powered squirt gun returned fire with a semiautomatic pistol, wounding a teen-ager and an older friend, police said.

The gunman fled after the shooting Monday night in Harlem, police said.

"It was a hot day and we were just having fun," said 29-year-old Maurice Anderson, who was shot twice in the leg. "I don't see why he got so mad."

Anderson and 16-year-old Richard Cooke, who was shot in the back, were hospitalized in stable condition.

Police around the country have received complaints of "drive-by" drenchings. Some of the plastic guns can hold almost half a gallon of water and propel it 50 feet or more.

Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn on Monday called for a ban on one brand, the Super Soaker, after a 15-year-old who walked into an argument that broke out during a squirt gun fight was slain with a real gun.

A Boston woman last week told police she and her 4-year-old child were sprayed in the eyes with bleach by two youths with water guns.

In Michigan on Tuesday, several state senators proposed outlawing the high powered toys.

Who's who

Sinclear and Mendoza honored by DARE

Travis Sinclear and Ray Mendoza has been awarded the national I Dare You Leadership Award in recognition of personal integrity, balanced living, and potential for leadership. The honor was presented by Sharon Richardson at ceremonies held at Big Spring High School on May 27.

The award is made available each year by the American Youth Foundation in cooperation with Principals, Headmasters and 4-H County Agents across the country.

In addition to a Certificate of Recognition, Travis and Ray received a copy of Mr. Danforth's inspirational book, I Dare You, and a scholarship opportunity to attend the American Youth Foundation's National Leadership Conference at Camp Miniwanca in Michigan or Camp Merrowvista in New Hampshire.

For more information about the I Dare You Leadership Award and the American Youth Foundation, contact the office at 1315 Ann Ave., St. Louis, Missouri 63104.

Subbaraman, Crippen attend seminar

Viswanath Subbaraman and Sarah Crippen recently attended the Hugh O'Brain Youth Foundation, Texas Panhandle Leadership Seminar.

Viswanath and Sarah joined with other young leaders representing high schools from throughout the North Texas area on April 24, 25, and 26 in Amarillo.

HOBV Leadership Seminars bring together a select group of high school sophomores so that they can interact with groups of distinguished leaders in business, government, education and the professions to discuss present and future issues. The goal is to provide the youths a unique forum for learning about the American incentive system and democratic process and for broadening their understanding of their leadership potential and quest for self development.

A&M graduates

Feemster and Wilson attend symposium

Outstanding science students and their teachers from across the state were recently selected to attend the 32nd Annual Texas Energy Science Symposium to be held at the University of Texas at Austin June 9-12.

Teacher Betsy Feemster and student Shawnda Wilson, from Big Spring High School, will participate in the symposium.

Scientists, engineers and national leaders with special expertise in the energy fields will present a four-day program dealing with research and careers in energy science. Also scheduled are tours of the university's laboratories and research facilities.

The Symposium is sponsored by TU Electric, the University of Texas at Austin and the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation.

WHAT'S WRONG HERE?

Swimming Safety

Knowing how to swim is important to water safety. But so are other rules, too. Put an X on pictures showing mistakes some swimmers make. Put a check on the pictures of good safety rules.

- Don't jump on others and don't swim under a diving board.
- Don't depend on inflatable toys or rafts.
- Walk around the pool. Don't run.
- Take swimming lessons.
- If you see lightning, don't go in the water.
- Use the buddy system.
- Don't swim in polluted water.
- Only one person on the diving board.
- Don't eat or chew gum while swimming.
- Don't dunk people, even for fun.
- Dive only in specially marked areas.

by
Lindsay Kirk
 Bauer Elementary

During the summertime almost everyone loves to go swimming because it's fun and exciting. A cool dip in a pool or something filled with hot or cold (even muddy!) water would be marvelous. Here are some suggestions of where to go swimming. A swimming pool anywhere would be refreshing. But places like lakes, rivers, streams and oceans would be exciting to explore. But if you can't leave your house you can swim in your bathtub! So all this summer, you can enjoy swimming.

More swimming rules

Put an X on the pictures showing mistakes some swimmers make. We've lettered the pictures. Match each with the rule that applies.

- Wear the proper swimwear. (Cutoffs shred and clog the drains.)
- Take a shower before going swimming to keep the water clean.
- Don't fake drowning when you are not.

Swimming Jobs

If you love swimming, you might set your sights for one of these jobs. Many swimmers pick up extra money by working part time as lifeguards or water safety instructors. Some people, such as pool managers and coaches, make full-time careers out of swimming.

Would you like to be a swimming instructor and teach kids—and grown-ups, too—how to swim? This young swimmer-to-be is using a training kick board.

Swimming fact-a-roonies

We really don't know exactly when humans started swimming. We think that there were probably three reasons.

- To get something to eat.
- To flee from danger.
- To get clean and keep cool.

The first known life preservers were blown-up sheepskins.

Today, there are several types of life preservers. They are often called PFDs. This stands for "Personal Flotation Devices."

About 5,000 people drown each year. Children 1 to 3 years old have the highest risk of drowning of any age group.

SISD election plan opens 5 at-large seats

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The Stanton Independent School District adopted a staggered election plan that coincides with the new five single-member district seats and two at-large seats.

The redistricting process has been ongoing for more than two months, according to Assistant Superintendent Johnny McGreggor.

The seven positions will come up for reelection on a staggered schedule with each member serving three years.

Personnel changes were made in Monday's meeting. Ida Flowers was hired to replace the resigning Karen Fulton.

The resignations of Wallace Moore and Anita Vest were accepted and the positions filled with Dana Kohl and Sherry Brantley. Employment is subject to confirmation by Superintendent Wayne Mitchell, according to SISD procedure.

Other personnel-related matters were discussed in a brief executive (closed) session, McGreggor said. No action was taken following the executive session.

SISD funds from the state were transferred to the Region 18 service cooperative, which uses the funds to provide the state-funded programs for the school district, he said.

Also, the board of trustees approved an arrangement with the Martin County Country Club for use by the school golf teams, and a few changes were made to the standard administrator evaluation forms used by the school district.

In other business the SISD Board of Trustees addressed the following items:

- Presented a gift in honor of the service of Mitchell, who announced his retirement as superintendent.
- Consideration of implementing a baseball program in the high school was discussed, but no action was taken.

• A list of polling places for the election of the seven-member board was approved.

• A salary schedule for the 1992-93 school year, which was submitted in the May 11 meeting was adopted unanimously.

• Student insurance coverage was discussed, but no official action was taken by the board.

• A meeting of the board of trustees was set for July 20.

TO WED — Mr. and Mrs. Guadalupe Morales Jr. announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Norma, to Luis A. Gonzales, son of Rev. and Mrs. Leandro Gonzales. ## Nestor's notes

By NESTOR HERNANDEZ

The Emergency Conservation Program provides emergency funds for sharing with farmers and ranchers the cost of rehabilitating farmland damaged by wind erosion, floods, hurricanes or other natural disasters, and for carrying out emergency water conservation measures during periods of severe drought.

The natural disaster must have created new conservation problems, which, if not treated, would:

- Impair or endanger the land.
- Materially affect the productive capacity of the land.
- Represent unusual damage which, except for wind erosion, is not the type likely to recur frequently in the same area.
- Be so costly to repair that federal assistance is or will be required to return the land to productive agricultural use.

Conservation problems existing prior to the disaster involved are not eligible for cost-sharing assistance. ECP is administered by state and county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees.

Subject to availability of funds, county ASCS committees, in consultation with state ASC committees, are authorized to implement ECP for eligible farmers for all disasters except drought.

When severe drought conditions exist, the determination to implement the program will be made by the Deputy Administrator for State and County Operations, ASCS, in Washington.

Cost-share levels up to 64 percent are set by county ASC committees. Eligibility for ECP assistance is determined by county ASC committees on an individual basis, taking into account the type and extent of damage.

Individual or cumulative requests for cost-sharing of $10,000 or less per person per disaster may be approved by county ASC committees, and of $20,000 or less by state ASC committees.

Cost-sharing over $20,000 must be approved by DASCO. Technical assistance is provided by the Soil Conservation Service.

Emergency practices to rehabilitate farmland damaged by wind erosion or other disasters, including drought, may include debris removal, providing water for livestock, fence restoration, grading and reshaping of farmland, restoring structures and water conservation measures.

Other emergency conservation measures may be authorized by county ASC committees with approvals by state ASC committees and DASCO.

Farmers or ranchers may enter into pooling agreements to jointly solve mutual conservation problems.

The ECP was established by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1978, as amended by Section 502 of the Disaster Assistance Act of 1989. Funding for the program is appropriated by Congress.

Nestor Hernandez is executive director of the Stanton ASCS office.

Stanton native buried at ANC

By BARBARA NEAL LEDBETTER

While on my last trip to the National Archives in Washington to research Texas frontier documents, I decided it was time I pay a last visit to the gravesite of a long-ago acquaintance from Stanton.

My daughter, Patricia, works with the Superconducting Super Collider. While she was doing her job in the nation's capital, I accompanied her and did my research, then decided to make my visit to the National Cemetery across the Potomac in Arlington, Va.

I listed two sites I wanted to find: a frontier colonel who was killed by Kickapoo Indians in 1854 not far from my ranchland in Texas; and to the gravesite of my acquaintance and friend from Stanton, Marine captain Veston Edwards.

I didn't find the colonel, but I found my friend.

Captain Veston Edwards of Martin County survived World War II. He was still in the military service and was working for the government when he died at age 40.

His family were longtime citizens of Martin County and their children attended Martin County schools.

Among that family were fraternal twins Veston (called Big 'un) and Leston (called Hink). Veston was a redhead and Leston a blond, but they were their mother's pride and joy.

Both were fun-loving and their peers, with whom they were well-acquainted, scattered to the four winds when WWII came.

The captain went away to war and never returned permanently to Stanton, but he did visit often. The Saunders, Edwards, Reed, Shultz, Castleberry, Baker, Williams, Vowell, Hopper, Guerin, Massey, Fuller, Standifer, Yates, Anderson, Weathers and Keels families all were friends in the Lenorah and Valley View communities.

But there was a special camaraderie between the twins and David and Otho Elvin Saunders. Where one went, the others were always there — until the war separated the foursome.

Nevertheless, all kept their friendship.

Barbara Neal Ledbetter is a former resident of Stanton and Valley View community. She teaches political science and writes for the Graham Leader.

Stanton native Veston Edwards lies buried at the National Cemetery in Arlington, Va. Edwards grew up in Martin County, and later served as a captain in the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II.

Reagan County tops in picking winners

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

BIG LAKE — Folks out here take special pride in their big lake, even though it's been dry since the mid-1970s.

They have even erected a sign in the bed of the old buffalo wallow that asks, "Who pulled the plug on the big lake?"

The 4,000 residents of Reagan County — 50 miles southeast of Midland-Odessa — also boast about living in "the birthplace of the fabulous Permian Basin."

But they were unaware of the county's other distinction: being Texas' weathervane when it comes to presidential politics.

Reagan County has voted for the White House winner 86 percent of the time, giving it the best record of any of the state's 254 counties.

In 1992, it's still up for grabs.

President Bush appears to hold a slim — though unenthusiastic — lead over probable independent candidate Ross Perot in this oil-dependent West Texas county.

A sampling of local sentiment indicates that likely Democratic nominee Bill Clinton would finish a distant third if the election were today.

Reagan County, appropriately, is also the home to many Reagan Democrats — those longtime Democrats who abandoned their party to vote for Ronald Reagan for president in the 1980s.

But that only partially explains why Reagan County has the state's best record in backing national presidential winners.

Local leaders offer a variety of other reasons.

"This community is hard-working, independent business people and we think for ourselves," said Reagan County Judge Frank Sandel.

Noting that 90 percent of the county's tax dollar comes from the oil industry, the judge said, "We're voting, if you please, for survival."

Christian named new tax assessor

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Ronnie Christian, a Stanton city councilman, was appointed Monday as Martin County tax assessor/collector.

Christian, appointed by county commissioners at the regular monthly meeting Monday, fills the unexpired term of Leona Louder, who recently passed away. Half a dozen people applied for the position.

Louder, an eight-year incumbent, in March won the Democratic nomination for re-election. According to County Clerk Virginia James, the county Democratic committee will select a substitute nominee for the Nov. 3 election. Louder faced no opposition in the November election.

Write-in candidates have until 5 p.m. Sept. 4 to file paperwork for the office with the county judge's office.

'We're an oil-field community here. We have people coming and going all the time, so there is not a stagnant group of folks that have one opinion and keep one opinion.'

David Werst

Big Lake Mayor H.F. Ritchie, who divides his time between municipal duties and picking and grinning with his Country Squires band, said, "People just kind of vote a split ticket most of the time here. They pretty much just go by their instincts when they vote."

David Werst, 42, editor of the weekly Big Lake Wildcat, suggested another reason: "We're an oil-field community here. We have people coming and going all the time, so there is not a stagnant group of folks that have one opinion and keep one opinion."

He noted the county's diversity of income and ethnic groups. Nearly half of the county's population is Hispanic.

The county has a Democratic Hispanic sheriff, Sandel is the lone elected Republican official.

It didn't have a Republican primary until four years ago, but GOP candidates have carried the county in six of the last seven presidential elections.

In 21 presidential elections, the Democratic candidate has carried the county 11 times, the GOP contender 10 times. No independent candidate has ever carried Reagan County.

As in most rural counties in Texas, Friday night football with the Reagan County Owls and Little League baseball games are the talk of the town.

The county's unemployment rate is only 5.9 percent, thanks to a rebound in the oil business, which developed locally in 1923 with West Texas' first major discovery of oil 10 miles from town.

Still, Werst declared, "We need some help right now. There are a bunch of people in West Texas who are a paycheck away from disaster or a payroll away from disaster."

The mood of most of the residents here is no different from many other Texans' when it comes to politics and government.

"I need a change. I'm tired of politicians. I'm ready to throw the bums out. It's a protest vote," said Charlie Berlin, an oil-field supervisor who said he intends to vote for Perot, the Dallas billionaire.

The sentiment of disgust and distrust of politics was echoed at Grandma's Kitchen, where the town's richest and poorest eat lunch together, and at the Dairy Queen, where the good 'ol boys gather for their afternoon coffee.

"I might not want Ross Perot, but I know I don't want the other two," the president of a local bank exclaimed, referring to Bush and Clinton.

Clinton's scant support in Reagan County comes from a handful of nurses, teachers and the few remaining "yellow dog" Democrats in Big Lake.

Bush's support comes from civic leaders such as Sandel, who blames Congress for the nation's economic woes.

The Reagan Democrats' support is split between Bush and Perot.

"I think they will stay with George Bush or Ross Perot. Right now, it's Bush, but that may change and it probably will," said Ritchie, who considers himself a Reagan Democrat.

Can You Help???

In research for the upcoming Pictorial History of Big Spring, to be published later this year, the Howard County Historical Commission has discovered this interesting but unidentified photo. If you have any knowledge of this fire; where, when, or how it happened please write to:

The Big Spring Herald
Box 1431
Big Spring, TX 79720

Preorders for this Pictorial History of Howard County are still being accepted. The cost of this beautiful 128 page book with over 250 old photos and historical information is only $24.95 if ordered quickly. After publication the cost will increase to $34.95.

This will be a marvelous keepsake edition, and will be available before Christmas, so don't put off your order. For details call Guy Huffman at the Big Spring Herald, 263-7331, or mail your order form to the address shown.

Easy answer to money woes is hard lesson

DEAR ABBY: Could you please answer this question we are baffled over at work:

Why doesn't the U.S. Mint simply print enough money to just pay off our government's debts, feed the hungry and house the homeless? We know there must be a logical answer. We just don't know what it is. — BAFLED

DEAR BAFLED: According to an official at the U.S. Treasury Department in Washington, D.C., who wishes to remain anonymous: "The amount of money printed has to be related to the economic activity of the country. If the government were to print enough money to pay all the nation's bills without regard to the goods and services being produced by the country, it the nation's output is more important to economic stability. Germany in the 1920s is a textbook example of printing money "willy-nilly," which resulted in a crippling currency debacle, acute economic distress and, ultimately, the rise of Adolf Hitler.

could cause rampant inflation." The amount of currency printed at the U.S. Mint is directed by the Federal Reserve System, the central bank of the United States.

The gold bars stored at Fort Knox, Ky., and the gold and silver stored in a depository at West Point, N.Y., are "symbolically important," according to my source at the Treasury Department, but mine Abby: A new friend of mine talks very loud. When I talk to her on the telephone, I have to hold the receiver at least six inches from my ear.

I don't think she's hard of hearing because her 10-year-old daughter talks just as loud as her mother. They constantly yell at each other. Since I don't know this woman very well, I don't know how to tell her to tone down her voice a little. I don't want to offend her or hurt her feelings. What should I do? — FRIENDLY NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: When you know her better, it would be a kindness to tell her that she is speaking exceptionally loud, and even suggest that she have her hearing tested. (Usually, people who talk loud are hard of hearing.)

Your new friend's daughter talks "just as loud" because children often imitate their parents. The child could also have a hearing loss.

DEAR ABBY: Since your hobby is gathering facts about the American presidents, add this one: When President William McKinley received a cable from Adm. George Dewey reporting the capture of Manila, he had to look up the location of the Philippines on a globe.

"I could not have told where those damned islands were within 2,000 miles," he later confessed. — GEORGE P. FRANQUEY, GUAM

FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You can look forward to realizing a secret desire by the end of summer. Facing the facts about a business or romantic relationship will help you put it on a sounder footing. Welcome a newcomer to your turf in November. Together, the two of you can make record financial gains. Be persistent in pursuing your career goals. An alliance you engineer in early 1993 could succeed beyond your wildest expectations. Set a good example for younger relatives.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: President George Bush, jazz musician Chick Corea, singer Vic Damone, sportscaster Mary Albert.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Work may pile up faster than expected. You can handle it but will probably feel the strain. Have lunch alone if a friend's gossip will only put you more on edge.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do everything you can to avoid arguments with family members today. Words said in anger may never be forgotten. Seeing a movie tonight will lift your spirits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Opposing viewpoints should be moderated before you set off an unfortunate chain of events. Try to mollify an attractive member of the opposite sex. Ride the romantic roller coaster at your own risk.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): A good day to cultivate your ties with people at a distance. This evening and tomorrow morning look particularly promising for romantic ties and recreational pleasures.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): An associate's constant questions could prove aggravating.

Nevertheless, be conscientious regarding shared financial responsibilities. Make a thorough review of recent changes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The weekend looks golden. An invitation may come from out of the blue. Go slow if presented with an unexpected romantic opportunity. Accent literary and educational pursuits later in the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Today's events make the outlook for your weekend very exciting. Travel enjoys highly favorable influences. Stabilize your finances by saying "no" to risky deals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Continue to be cautious regarding your business interests or public standing. You are still making headway with influential people. Maintain your sense of humor if you encounter red tape.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Allow a friend to meddle in your financial affairs could cause a rift with a third party, perhaps your mate or another close ally. Be realistic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Leaping before you look could prove costly. Someone warns you about a friend, do not be too trusting if money is involved. Someone new has failed you before could do so again.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Business or other obligations will keep you on the go today. Certain activities will be much more enjoyable than you anticipated. Live up to your high ideals.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Although your thoughts are on faraway places or people, get into the routine of the business day. Refuse to let distractions mar the conclusion of an excellent work week.
