Cook seeking grant for mobile precinct

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

Big Spring Police Chief Joe Cook hopes to supply the city with a mobile police precinct to improve service to the community

The federal government has set aside about $500,000 to fund "innovative ideas" in the field of crime prevention, and Cook decided to try to bring some of those funds to Big Spring, he said. After receiving favorable comment from the Permian Basin Regional to know that we had people out there Planning Commission, Cook and staff have completed and submitted a proposal to the U.S. Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, which will decide which 10 ideas submitted from across the country will be funded under its Field Initiative program, Cook said.

The idea of the mobile precinct came to Cook after hearing last year that some Big Spring citizens were reluctant to come to the police for assistance. "That really bothered me who, for whatever reason, we could not serve," he said.

The precinct, if funded, will place department representatives in areas with high crime rates to provide a safe haven for citizens and gather information needed to solve crimes.

The refurbished recreational vehicle is to be clearly marked as a police unit and will have computer and other communications links with the central police station, but the primary purpose is to meet and garner the trust of 'good people" suffering in a crimeridden neighborhood, he said.

In the grant, Cook requested about $50,000 for equipment and an extra, specially trained, employee for the 18 months the grant covers.

The unit is far more mobile than the temporary "storefront" police substations tried in some cities. Mobility is important, as burglars, drug dealersand other criminals can easily move to another area of the city when police

Valuations up, appraiser says

Home valuations for property tax purposes may increase 8.3 percent overall in Howard County and 7.9 percent in the city of Big Spring, preliminary appraisals show.

About 8,700 notices were mailed Tuesday and today by the Howard County Appraisal District to inform homeowners of changes. The deadline for filing protests to contest new assessments is July 17.

"It'll vary from bouse to house, said Chief Appraiser Keith Toomire. "Some/will go up and some will go down.

Also, the Coahoma school district, which officials were not able to fully appraise last year because of staffing constraints, was completed this year and did not have significant overall changes, he said.

The increases, totalling about $14 million in the city and $20 million overall for the city and county, will not offset an expected 8 percent drop, $68 million, in mineral values, Toomire said. Most mineral properties are outside the city. County government still faces a year. That followed a 12 percent possible revenue drop of $173,950 out of a $6.9 million annual budget drop from 1990 to 1991. Of 8,796 and Howard College faces a possihomes in the city, the average valuation increased from $19,664 to Martin, Howard, Glasscock, Borden and Dawson counties, said Jody Streicher, community relations coordinator for Hospice of the Southwest. The Stanton board also instructs the main of fice in Odessa on how funds, which include donations from the Dora Roberts Foundation, should be spent in the area, she said.

Hospice keeps home-health nurses based in the Permian Basin, including one in Coahoma. These nurses serve the needs of the home-bound patients in the area, she said.

Plans are being made for the expansion of services in the five-county area, and are the primary focus of the Stanton meeting.

Environmentalists decry trade talks

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON - Actions by U.S. negotiators working on a North American Free Trade Agreement "do not inspire confidence" that the pact will contain adequate safeguards to protect the environment, the Natural Resources Defense Council says

"A fundamental shift in direction will be necessary for the trade agreement to merit environmental support for congressional approval," the coalition said in a report for release today.

The council is composed of 13 organizations, including the Environmental Defense Fund, Friends of the Earth, National Audubon Society, Public Citizen and the Sierra Club. The Border Ecology Project, the Texas Center for Policy Studies and the Arizona Texics Information also are members

Many of the groups have voiced reservations about the proposed agreement, largely on environmental grounds. Many members of Congress also say their support for the pact will be contingent upon whether it adequately addresses environmental matters.

Poll shows wide confidence in Perot

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK - Americans who think Ross Perot is the presidential contender best able to handle the economy outnumber those holding the same view of President Bush and Bill Clinton combined, an Associated Press poll found.

The economy remains the No. 1 concern - even more so than a year ago - and Perot is neutralizing the advantage the Republican Party built up in that area over the last three presidential elections, the poll found.

Only one-third of those who generally think of themselves as Republicans say Bush could deal best with the economy, and only one-third of Democrats say the Clinton could do best. But half those who call themselves independents put faith in Perot on the economy.

The poll reveals a severe lack of confidence the Republican and Democratic standard-bearers must overcome to catch up with Perot if, as expected, the Dallas billionaire runs for president as an independent.

Overall, 42 percent of those polled chose Perot as the best person to handle the economy, compared with 19 percent for Bush, 18 percent for Clinton, and 21 percent uncertain.

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON - Russian President Boris Yeltsin said today that "we should not be penalized" for providing information about U.S. war prisoners in advance of his pleas for Western economic aid to a skeptical Congress

On the second day of a post-Cold War summit that already had produced a breakthrough on nuclear disarmament, the White House sought "a quick accounting" of any American servicemen from the Vietnam and other wars that may have been held as prisoners in the former Soviet Union.

"We expect some answers in a very quick fashion," presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Media, Pa. Of those polled, 39 percent say the economy is the most important issue in voting for president. That's up from 26 percent in a comparable AP poll a year ago and is three times the 13 percent who pick education and health-care costs, the two issues that tie for second place.

The three men are statistically tied on the issue of protecting the environment: 26 percent say Clinton could do the best job and 23 percent each pick Bush and Perot. The margin of sampling error is plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Clinton does not have a significant lead on any of the eight issues, but he and Perot get 28 percent each as best able to improve the nation's schools, compared with 22 percent for the self-proclaimed education president.

Bush is trusted most on foreign policy, by 50 percent.

On controlling health-care costs, an issue that matters more to those in lower-income categories, 32 percent put the most confidence in Perot, compared with 25 percent for Clinton and 17 percent for Bush.

Texas

Lawmaker suggests new nursing home accreditation

AUSTIN (AP) - A state lawmaker has suggested that Texas may want to look at subcontracting the job of licensing inspections of nursing homes to a private, non-profit group.

Rep. Jack Vowell, R-El Paso, raised the idea Tuesday, in the wake of complaints about inconsistent licensing inspections of nursing homes. The Legislative Health and Human Services Board asked rather than whether patients were Richard Ladd, the state's new health and human services commissioner, to look at the idea along with other options for changing regulation of long-term care facilities. Ladd will make recommendations to the Legislature.

Vowell said there was concern that Texas Department of Health inspections of some long-term care facilities focused on technicalities happy and healthy.

He emphasized the state still would set standards under his proposal, and that licensing would be done by a group such as the one that currently licenses Texas hospitals, the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations

Janice Caldwell, chief of the Department of Health's Bureau of Longterm Care, said staff could research Vowell's idea.

But she said she believes the plan would not be allowed by the federal Social Security Act, under which the federal government contracts with the state to do Medicare and Medicaid certification inspections. She said waivers are allowed for demonstration projects, for example, but she did not know if one could be obtained in this case.

Ms. Caldwell said a training program has been instituted regarding licensing. "I know there are things we need to do better, and I'm working on them.

Under a state law reorganizing health and human services, the licensing of nursing homes is Human Services Committee, said scheduled to be transferred to the Department of Human Services, which administers Medicaid funds. Sen. Chet Brooks, who like Vowell serves on the legislative board, said he was concerned about reports of inconsistency in licensing inspections by Health Department survey teams.

Brooks, a Pasadena Democrat who heads the Senate Health and some teams work with nursing homes to ensure quality care, but in other regions, "it's playing 'gotcha.''

State leaders say no new education taxes are telling school superintendents not to expect a tax increase for public education in the next legislative session.

'There will be no new state money for public education next biennium and you can expect per pupil state aid to remain, at best, constant," said the letter signed by Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Gib Lewis.

They said the state cannot raise the additional $3 billion that would have been required under the current funding law for 1993-94 and 1994-95. That law was found to violate the state constitution by the Texas Supreme Court, which gave lawmakers until June 1, 1993, to come up with a new plan.

At the same time, the letter says increases of $617 million in state funding, and $626 million in county education district money should go ahead as planned in the upcoming school year.

It urges school districts to "make a fair accounting of this increase to their taxpayers and not to raise local taxes beyond what is necessary to maintain current perstudent revenue."

Meno suggested that school districts for budgeting purposes anticipate twice the $231 million proration that occurred in 1991-92.

The CIA's role in the Reagan administration's worst scandal will be laid out in detail if prosecutions go forward against two former high-ranking CIA officials. One of them, Clair George, the spy agency's retired operations chief, is scheduled to go on trial next month.

Weinberger's indictment Tuesday on five felony charges of lying both, according to the federal and obstruction adds a new dimension to what prosecutors say has been a high-level coverup.

Weinberger is accused of con-'cealing the existence of 1,700 pages of personal notes that allegedly contradict his congressional testimony of five years ago. He told Congress he knew nothing in 1985 about arms sales to Iran and was unaware of Saudi Arabian financial assistance to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels grand jury indictment.

His notes also say he was told in November 1985 that President Reagan had authorized a shipment of Hawk missiles to Iran, according to the indictment. The notes also show that a few days after that shipment, Weinberger told Reagan that such arms deliveries were illegal, the indictment added.

The indictment also said Weinberger lied to FBI agents and Iran-Contra prosecutors when he Weinberger knew a lot about allegedly told them he rarely took notes. Prosecutor Craig Gillen said his office discovered Weinberger's notes from 1985 and 1986 in the Library of Congress.

Weinberger left government in 1987 and now is publisher of Forbes magazine.

The former defense secretary said he will fight the charges, calling the indictment "a grotesque distortion of the prosecutorial power" by independent counsel Lawrence Walsh.

The White House wishes the scandal would just go away. President Bush recently complained repeatedly about the cost of Walsh's office - it has spent \$35 million to date - and the duration of the probe $-5\frac{1}{2}$ years so far. Weinberger's former boss, Ronald Reagan, weighed in with a statement of support, saying Weinberger will be "fully vindicated.'

Reagan's possible role in an Iran-Contra cover-up was the focus of Walsh's investigation, sources knowledgeable about the investigation said earlier this spring. Prosecutors wanted Weinberger to implicate Reagan in a cover-up and they interviewed the former defense chief recently Weinberger refused to sav whether the prosecutors were pursuing Reagan, saying only that he simply wasn't willing "to give them statements which were not true about myself or others."

The upcoming courtroom battles feature these defendants:

• George, who ran all of the CIA's operations overseas, for lying to Congress in 1986 to prevent it from finding out about White House aide Oliver North's secret Contra resupply network.

 Duane Clarridge, who allegedly hid his knowledge of a Nov. 25, 1985 shipment of Hawk missiles to Iran.

• Weinberger, accused of perjury when he told Congress that "I did not" have any knowledge that the Hawk shipment was about to take place; and accused of making a false statement when he told congressional investigators that "I don't have any memory of any Contra funding or of anything connected with the Saudis.

Applauding the city's decision

We applaud the decision by city officials to award a portion of the engineering work on a $450,000 grant for paving dirt streets on the city's west side to a local firm.

To say the least, we feel the decision is long overdue. Too much city money - taxpayer money - has gone to out-of-town firms, despite the fact we have the same services available locally

We believe in getting good value for our tax dollar and we believe the best value comes when we spend that tax dollar at home.

Too many times, because of our somewhat central location between Midland-Odessa, Lubbock, Abilene and San Angelo, we are overcome with the malady of "bigger is best'' - and that simply is not the case.

While firms in bigger cities may have more bodies and resources, they don't have the personal knowledge, concern and interest of Big Spring. Other than meeting the terms of the contract and cashing the check, their concern with our community is non-existent.

Crim Engineering, which will get the work on the new project, is not as big as the Lubbock firm that was also considered but so what? David wasn't as big as Goliath, either.

It's clear that Crim is qualified. According to firm president Roy Crim, the firm did a majority of the city's work prior to about 1982-83 - until policies apparently changed.

Keeping our money at home is important for the growth of our community and, if taxpayers see city officials sending their tax dollars out of tow 1, just how pointless is the argument of "Shop at home" become?

We have many talented and qualified individuals and firms in our community who can do the job as good or better than those from out-of-town.

We hope the news that at least city work is to be done

Is it infatuation or true love?

"It's absolutely phenomenal," said pollster Mervin Field. He was talking about the candidacy of Ross Perot. Then he posed a question that cannot be answered till November. "But is it infatuation? Or is it long-lasting love?'

At the moment, Field added, it looks like love to him. It doesn't look that way to me. The country's love affair with Perot, in my own view, has all the aspects of a teen-ager's crush. It won't last.

At this point in the race, polls of public opinion undoubtedly are accurate. Field is director of the California Poll. His figures may be relied upon. The astonishing numbers supplied by other polls are equally believable - but in my observation, they are equally unreliable. Polls cannot measure the gap between what a fretful people say to a pollster in June, and what they actually will do if they vote in November.

"I'd vote for Perot," said a little old lady on NBC. "It would just make me feel good. All this sounds great - in early June. If Perot is to be a winner, instead of a spoiler, he will have to overcome a few realities. Ours is a government based on the two-party system, and Ross Perot is a man without a party. Yes, the major parties are in danger of self-destructing, the Republicans over abortion, the Democrats over everything else. Even so, at every level of government the system remains in place. As the November campaign picks up speed, the party organizations will do their job. Democratic officeholders, thinking of jobs and patronage in a Clinton administration, will find the Arkansas salesman more attractive. Conservative Republicans will bury most of their unhappiness with Bush; they will return to the fold. Suppose Perot wins the White House. What then? Do we have a three-party system? Do the Republicans go the way of the Whigs? Perot has said that he has no desire to hang around Washington. He will ride into town, clean up the place, and then 'go home and get back to work.' Seen through the pollster's inconstant eye, this all looks good. But in the polls of passing opinion, as in the real world the polls so briefly reflect, things are not always what they seem. ATLANTA - All of us native Southerners living in Atlanta knew it was coming. And, now, it is here.

The Sunday paper carried a large article about Northern migration to the capital city of the South

In the Atlanta metro area the article said native Georgians still have the edge, but it's not an overpowering one and the margin is dwindling.

Said the article, "... The migration patterns that brought Northeasterners to Atlanta's elite northern suburbs also sent people from other regions to spots around the metro area. "These settling patterns . . . have brought a new sense of place to dozens of Atlanta neighborhoods, influencing everything from local politics to the inventory at the corner grocery store.'

The article also quoted a Yankee population expert, William Frey of the University of Michigan, as saying, "... The nice Southern flavor of Atlanta may be diluted a bit with all the Northerners moving in.'

"The nice Southern flavor of Atlanta may be diluted a bit . . .

Although I certainly understand somebody from the land of freeze and squeeze wanting to seek asylum here, I also fear I'm losing my city and may, in my own lifetime, see the dreaded egg cream.

A transplanted New Yorker once said to me, "I like everything about Atlanta except for the fact you can't get an egg cream here." "What is an egg cream?" I asked him. He explained it was some sort of concoction that sounded a little like a liquid buttermilk pie. I said, "So you can't get one of those whatever-they-ares, but at least you don't have to worry about alligators in the sewer system like you did before you moved out of New York City.' So what else can I expect as my beloved city becomes more populated with migrating honkers? (Honker: Northerner with a grating accent who always talks at the top of his or her

Bush, Yeltsin take a rest from domestic problems

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - For George Bush and Boris Yeltsin, a chance to spend two days talking about nuclear weapons and Western aid to Russia offered a welcome break from the tougher problems they face at home.

The American and Russian presidents approached this week's summit on a sea of domestic troubles.

Both are dealing with shaky economies, unbalanced budgets, and unruly political opponents. Pollsters regularly deliver bad news. Life is grim for the Russian people. It's a lot better for Americans, but they still tell pollsters they think the country has gone to pot.

The bad news on the home front is sure to weigh on how the two leaders view issues on the summit agenda.

Yeltsin hears complaints he's giving in too readily to U.S. demands and he has toughened his rhetoric on arms control, saying the United States is seeking an unfair advantage. Yeltsin said the American proposal would require Russia to give up its most powerful missiles while allowing the United States to retain two-thirds of its own.

"If such a decision is made, the United States would find itself in a more advantageous position,' said the Russian president.

Bush would love to enter the final months of the U.S. presidential campaign able to claim he'd persuaded the Russians to scrap the heart of the strategic missile force. On the other hand, Bush is unwilling to take the political risk of committing the United States to large-scale financial aid to Moscow

Bush, who met with Yeltsin on Tuesday and today, is in an unexpectedly tough re-election race. Less than a year ago, he looked like a shoo-in for a second term.

Yeltsin says he won't run when his term expires in 1996. But can ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - The night belonged to seemingly ageless pitchers — Nolan Ryan before the game and Bert Blyleven during it.

Ryan, still a power-pitching marvel for the Texas Rangers at 45, was honored by the California Angels, who retired his No. 30 and inducted him into the club's hall of fame in pregame ceremonies.

The curveball-favoring Blyleven, making still another strong comeback for the California Angels at 41, then went out and ran his record to 3-0 with a two-hit performance over six innings of a 4-1 victory over the Rangers.

"In his day, he had the best breaking ball I have ever seen," Ryan said of Blyleven earlier this week. "I hope he stays healthy and stays around long enough to win his 300th game. He certainly deserves it.'

Blyleven's breaking ball was certainly working against the Rangers, as he struck out seven and walked two. He held the Rangers hitless until Jeff Huson bounced a slow roller between third and short with one out in the fifth.

He lost his bid for a shutout in the next inning when Juan Gonzalez hit a solo homer, his 16th of the season and seventh in eight games

Catcher Ron Tingley, whose two-run homer in the second staked the Angels to a 3-0 lead, said he enjoyed working with Blyleven.

'His curve is the greatest thing to catch," Tingley said.

"His breaking ball is working about as well as ever, and his velocity is getting better, too."

5-A

Blyleven, the AL's Comeback Player of the Year in 1989 when he had a 17-5 record, is coming back this time from rotator cuff surgery. He had the operation in 1990, missed all of last season, then was let go by the Angels in October of last year before signing a minor league contract in January.

He was called up from their Edmonton farm club last month and has pitched extremely well. in his five starts since, with a 1.67 earned run average.

Blyleven was pleased with his outing against the Rangers, although he said he's still not all the way back.

"I won't really feel I'm back until I pitch nine innings. That will come later," said Blyleven, Blyleven complimented Ryan, who is scheduled to pitch for the Rangers tonight at Anaheim Stadium, and said the season-high crowd of 51,401 helped inspire him.

"When you've got 50,000 people out there, you certainly want to pitch well," Blyleven said. "Then we got three runs early and that took a lot of the pressure off me.'

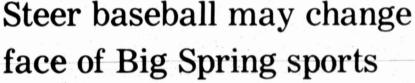

John Wathan, the Angels interim manager, said of Blyleven, "I've run out of superlatives for Bert. If anybody could take some of the steam away from Nolan Ryan tonight, it was Bert. After all that pregame hoopla, Bert went out there and was completely focused the start of football or basketbal season.

The responsibility for such an unlikely perspective lies with the Steers '92 baseball team, which last week bussed to Austin as one of four 4A teams to play in the state championship tournament.

The Steers' unexpected success in baseball this year and their loss of only three starting position players to graduation means high expectations for next year's team. But Steer fans shouldn't start spending time in a sauna in preparation for a trip to the steamy state capitol next June without first realizing what it will take for Big Spring to get back.

The Steers' district should be almost as competitive next year as it was in '91, when five teams finished within a half-game of first place. And Lake View's district MVP, Raymond Rodriquez, a sophomore in '92, has the skills to single-handedly bag the district crown for the Chiefs. The one-game format in the playoffs means only the most dominant teams are assured of advancing. The rest of the field has to hope they get all the right bounces and the right pitching match-ups.

Next year the Steers will especially miss the stability of pitcher-outfielder Gerald Cobos and the defense and bat of center fielder Abel Hilario, both graduating. But daydreaming about the ability and potential of three returning players will help Big Spring diamond devotees make it through the winter.

All-district second baseman Pat Martinez could be next year's team leader. He paced the squad in hitting this season as a junior with a .469 average.

Sophomores Mike Oliva and Brandon Rogers were standout players in '92 and should get better next year. Catcher Oliva is catquick, has a good arm and can sting the ball on offense. He had the only extra-base hit against Robstown's starting pitching in the state tournament. First baseman Rogers makes good contact with the bat, and if he continues to show the fire he demonstrated in Austin shaking his fist at the Robstown throngs — he could be a motivator in the dugout.

> Those three will almost surely have all-district quality years for Big Spring, but how well the team does will ultimately depend on the play of returning pitchers Fankie Martinez, John Kennedy and Luis Bustamente. If Martinez, an academic freshman in '92, can gain control of his fastball, he will be a more than adequate staff ace.

But there's still plenty of time to soak in the fun of the team's '92 campaign. The players who went to Austin will not soon forget the thrill of being introduced to and playing in front of that big crowd at Disch-Falk Field. And neither will their fans, parents or the others who followed them.

Losing by four runs to a powerhouse like Robstown is nothing to be ashamed of.

The Cotton Pickers played almost flawlessly in the tournament. Their starting pitchers allowed only two hits and one run in 12 innings and they played errorfree ball in both the semi-final and the final. There are few, if any, 5A teams in the state that could take Robstown.

It may be a long time before any Steer team can top this year's edge-of-your-seat baseball playoff wins over Frenship and Lamesa and the blowout of Burkburnett.

So don't be too shocked if so meone watching a Steer football game this fall can be overheard wishing March and baseball season would hurry up and get here.

struction were scheduled for today in Milwaukee County Circuit Court.

Judge John Franke denied a motion to dismiss the charges after the only day of testimony. But he acknowledged - with the jury out of the courtroom — that the state's case had not been a strong one.

When defense attorney John Halloran moved for dismissal, Franke asked, "Can you recall any law that permits me to shoot a horse that is dying but not dead?"

Halloran decided against calling Barkley, the Philadelphia 76ers' six-time All-Star, to the stand. He didn't feel he needed to.

"We made the decision that the state hadn't met its burden." said Halloran.

Barkley has claimed that he punched James R. McCarthy of Milwaukee in self defense when McCarthy approached him on a street outside a bar with clenched had the right to do it. McCarthy suffered a broken nose and lacerated forehead. But two of the six witnesses called by Steinhafel said McCarthy, a powerlifter who weighs 245 pounds, was the aggressor during the early morning dispute last Dec. 22.

"I'm not surprised at any of the testimony of any of them. We said the other guy was the aggressor and he basically called Charles out and threatened him," Hallorar said

"You take witnesses as you can find them. Some of them didn't say the same thing they said the other day," Steinhafel said.

If convicted, Barkley faces up to nine months in jail and a $10,000 fine on the battery charge and up to 90 days in jail and a $1,000 fine on the disorderly conduct charge.

He plans to be in San Diego this weekend where the U.S. Olympic basketball team, of which he is a member, will report for practice.

McGwire 1992's king of dingers

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) -There's something familiar about the new Mark McGwire.

He's hitting homers again, in bunches, just like the "old" Mark McGwire. His defensive play at first base for the Oakland Athletics is as solid as ever and his batting average (.277) is up 76 points from last season.

"To me, it's like his rookie year," said teammate Carney Lansford, referring to McGwire's 49-homer barrage in 1987. "He's covering the whole plate, but he's stronger. He's bigger. Now he's not even 'getting' balls and they're going out."

With each tension-free swing, every diving stab, McGwire has moved closer to his old self and farther away from what was a tormented 1991 season, on the field and off. In the midst of a contract year, he's moved into Hall of Fame company and the ultimate homerun neighborhood.

Outwardly, he seems to be the same Mark McGwire who became the first player to hit 30 or more homers in each of his first four seasons while becoming a Gold Glove fielder at first.

Inwardly, McGwire said, he has changed - a lot, and for the better. "I am a completely different person. I'm smarter, wiser. I like myself a lot better as a person and I know myself a lot better,' McGwire said. "I've been through a lot that people don't know about. I'm just a lot happier person right now The 28-year-old McGwire reached into his past for solutions. And his recovery from career lows in batting average (.201) and homers (22) has been so dramatic, so complete that a bemused McGwire admits he's finally starting to look at himself as a home run hitter.

"I always considered myself a line drive hitter but over the past two years, I've probably led the never considered myself a home hit a pitch where you can do some run hitter. I may have to reconsider that.'

McGwire has a major-league leading 23 reasons for his reconsideration, the most recent a grand slam Saturday against Texas that put him one over last year's homer total with nearly four months remaining in the season. He reached 200 for his career when he launched his 22nd homer at Milwaukee on June 10. Only four players in major league history reached that milestone in fewer atbats and all of them are in the Hall of Fame

No major leaguer has more homers than McGwire over the last five years.

"He's equipped to take advantage of a pitch he should hit," batting instructor Doug Rader said. "That's how you have a good year: world in fly balls," he said. "I to make sure you're in a position to by beating another old fighter.

damage. If you do that, you're going to have a good year and that's what Mac is doing. There were some holes last year that perhaps aren't there now.

McGwire's homer total so far projects to a Ruthian 60 over the course of this season, one behind Roger Maris' record. Those are the kinds of comparisons McGwire would just assume avoid at this point

"It's not that I want to shy away from it. There's just no reason to bring those guys' names up until one player gets to at least 50 homers with a month left in the season," McGwire said. "I don't think people realize how difficult this game is. I mean, I get it all the time. People say, 'Come on, hit a home run,' like it's that easy. It's not because the pitcher is trying just as hard to get me out."

Braves run streak to six

By The Associated Press

The Atlanta Braves are so hot right now they can even survive blowing a four-run lead in the ninth inning.

The Braves took a 7-3 lead into the ninth Tuesday night at Atlanta, only to see Los Angeles rally for five runs. But the Braves came right back with two runs in the bottom of the ninth to beat the Dodgers 9-8.

Rafael Belliard hit reliever Roger McDowell's first pitch to center field for a run-scoring single to cap the rally.

"I had never gotten a hit off him until now," said Belliard, previously 0 for 10 against McDowell. 'Usually in that situation, they are. looking to pinch hit for me, they're looking for a good hitter."-

It was Atlanta's season-high sixth straight win and 15th in 17 games. The Dodgers, meanwhile, lost their sixth straight and 11th in 14 games, falling 101/2 games behind first-place Cincinnati in the NL West. The Braves are 31/2 out. Elsewhere in the NL it was Chicago 2, St. Louis 1; Cincinnati 5, San Francisco 3; New York 5, Montreal 2; Houston 11, San Diego 0; and Pittsburgh 6, Philadelphia 5 in 12 innings.

Holyfield, appearing Tuesday with Holmes at the final prefight press conference, suggested an age limit of 38 for fighters. It's a subject Holyfield knows something about, having made his first title defense in April 1991 against 42-year-old

NFL free-agent trial underway

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) down to the nuts and bolts in the antitrust trial which could decide the NFL's future.

After a long day of jury selection and opening arguments, testimony begins with witnesses scheduled to include quarterback Don Majkowski of the Green Bay Packers, offensive tackle Dave Richards of the San Diego Chargers and their agent, Randy Vataha.

The trial, which could bring a liberalized system of free agency to the NFL, could continue until mid-August.

Majkowski was used during the NFL's opening argument Tuesday as an example of a player who had benefitted from the current system, going in four years from a salary of $80,000 a year to $1.7 million for 1992, even after what Frank Rothman, the NFL's lead attorney, described as "an abysmal last two years.

hurt," Rothman said. "But he still got a raise.

Majkowski, asked afterwards about Rothman's remarks, smiled and said, "I don't think I have any comment

The eight players, suing for antitrust damages after being denied the right to become free agents in 1990 under Plan B; got what they appeared to want on Tuesday - an all-woman jury of nine, only two of whom professed any interest in sports.

That left several officials of the NFL Players Association, which now represents the players only as a trade association, privately expressing confidence. But it was Showtime is over for now and it's Paul Tagliabue, the NFL commissioner, who was the most openly optimistic following the opening arguments by Rothman and Jim Quinn, the lead lawyer for the players.

Tagliabue, who has made a settlement of the labor dispute his top priority and has spent a good part of his nearly three years in office trying to end it, said he is no longer interested in negotiating.

"I think we're going to win," Tagliabue said after the opening session. "Quinn convinced me that whatever reason we had to settle has gone by the boards because we're going to win.'

In his opening remarks, Quinn portrayed a prosperous league that grossed, according to the NFL's own figures, $1 billion in 1989, $1.3 billion in 1990 and $1.4 billion in 1991.

"Revenues have tripled since 1982 and the value of franchises "It wasn't all his fault, he was have gone up five times in 10 years and 10 times in the last 20, yet they retain a system that restricts players to where the league wants them to play.

"We believe this involves the fundamental basic legal rights and freedoms that affect every American citizen," Quinn said. "It involves the right to work where you want to work, to work for whom you want to work, and to have your compensation set by the competitive system.'

Rothman said in his opening argument that an open free agent system would benefit big-name stars but do nothing for the average player.

"None of thse defendants are stars," he said. "They are good players but they wouldn't necessarily benefit from the system.'

In addition to Majkowski, Rothman singled out Freeman McNeil, the New York Jets' 33-year-old running back. As McNeil sat smiling, Rothman related how he had earned more than $7 million in his 12-year career and had been rewarded for his worst season in 1989 with a 1990 contract, the year the suit was filed, calling for an identical $850,000.

Yeltsin was previewing his appeal to Congress at a "business summit" today with corporate executives at a downtown hotel.

President Bush on Tuesday brushed off such suggestions from some lawmakers.

"They've got it backwards," said the president. "This man is trying to go the extra mile."

While Bush stressed that "we have no evidence of anyone being alive," he and Yeltsin announced that a joint commission would scrutinize Communist Party and KGB archives for information about possible American prisoners.

Bush also said he was dispatching a U.S. envoy to Moscow at once to look into the new allegations.

Yeltsin's disclosure - and his offer that "no stone will remain unturned" in helping to discover the fate of the missing Americans - threatened to overshadow the centerpiece of the first post Soviet-era summit: a sweeping proposal to cut nuclear weapons.

Bush and Yeltsin were to wrap up their two-day summit meeting today by signing the agreements which they announced Tuesday in the White House Rose Garden — under which each nation would slash its arsenal of long-range nuclear weapons by twothirds

The arms accords call for the complete elimination of some of the deadliest weapons. The two nations agreed to cut their stockpiles of long-range nuclear weapons to no more than 3,500 warheads each.

Family business: Hydroelectric company

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP) - The Hitchcocks run a family business - a hydroelectric company. Elaine Hitchcock started it, husband Carl handles the electrical end of the business, and son Scott provides the environmental expertise.

The family is "never going to get rich off this thing," Carl Hitchcock said. "But in years to come, it should be a very, very good investment."

Mrs. Hitchcock, 54, formed the company after years of courting investors, negotiating with utility officials and seeking government permits for a small dam she leases on the Eau Galle River and a dam she bought on the Rock River.

The Eau Galle dam, which hadn't generated electricity since the 1950s, went back on line last week with a $350,000 investment. And the second plant should be running next year after $400,000 in renovations, Mrs. Hitchcock said.

"We were a middle-class family and we went to poverty to get this going," she said. "I made it. I did it, even though the skeptics discouraged me.

The Hitchcocks' son Scott, 32, provides the environmental expertise and works on federal licensing. And Carl Hitchcock handles the electrical end of the three-person operation.

The venture should produce enough power to pay the family at least $5,000 a month, Mrs. Hitchcock said.

The Eau Galle project - a 32-foot-high, 175-foot-wide concrete dam on an 1,800-acre reservoir and a power plant the size of a small house — is expected to generate 1.8 million kilowatt-hours of electricity a year, enough to supply at least 50 homes through a 35-year contract with Northern States Power Co

Whoopi vows: No attacks, pressure or 'posse'

Actress and comedian Whoopi Goldberg laughs and plays with her braids during an interview at a Berkeley Calif. Hotel in May. Goldberg will play hostess on "Whoopi!," a late-night talk show this fall, which will air conversations with big-name entertainers.

Big Spring Herald

"Whoopi!" will join the latenight gabfest come fall. Los Angeles-based Genesis Entertainment is distributing Goldberg's syndicated talk show, which will be carried in 105 markets, said show spokeswoman Lynn Gardner.

Like Goldberg, many of the confirmed guests are big names in movies: Robert De Niro, Danny Glover, Spike Lee and Sting. Goldberg, who gave her age as 37 but is listed as 42 in reference books, knows how it feels to be a guest, and she plans to go easy on her visitors. She said she doesn't consider Arsenio Hall, Jay Leno, Dennis Miller and David Letterman her competitors, even though they'll be battling for an audience. talking about someone's current, latest, hippest. We can talk to anybody, so we are kind of like an asset to the other shows. I'm hoping that the guys who are on late night will come be on (my) show."

And she doesn't plan to slow down any time soon.

"If work is coming, you might as well take it. God knows there'll be enough times when you'll say, 'Why isn't that phone ringing?' You never know when it's not going to show up again.

In 1983, Goldberg's comedy work caught the eye of Mike Nichols, who offered to help her create a one-woman show

The show opened at the Lyceum Theatre to critical acclaim and eventually wound up as the HBO special "Whoopi Goldberg: Direct from Broadway.

That led to her role in Steven Spielberg's "The Color Purple," which won her a 1985 Academy Award nomination. Then came a string of flops, including "Fatal Beauty" and "Clara's Heart."

Her next big critical and financial success was the romantic comedy "Ghost." Her role as a psychic earned her a 1991 Oscar for best supporting actress.

In "Sister Act," directed by Emile Ardolino, Goldberg plays a "We don't have the pressure of bad lounge singer named Doloris Van Cartier who witnesses a mob hit by her gangster boyfriend and winds up hiding out in a convent to escape the killers.

> "Basically, she's still a lounge singer dressed as a nun, hiding out among all these women," Goldberg said

> Van Cartier clashes horribly with Mother Superior, played by Maggie Smith.

In real life, the two actresses made a warmer connection.

"It was such an honor to be in her air space," Goldberg said. "It took me awhile to relax because it was Maggie Smith. I kept dropping to my knees ... and she kept saying, 'Get up!' She taught me some great bawdy English stage songs, and I taught her some bad American dirty jokes. We got along fine.'

'Sister Act'' presented another first for Goldberg: singing.

"I've played a lot of lounges, but never as a singer," she said. "We put in a lot of references to her having been a bad lounge singer because nobody was sure what was going to happen. But it turned out to be pretty good, and it's all me Nobody is going to show up and say, 'I sang for Whoopi Goldberg.'

That may be a kindness to "Diamond Fleece," a caper fantasy that's as plausible as any given 1970s TV series pilot. It stars Cross (Barnabas in NBC's short-lived "Dark Shadows") as Rick Dunne, an imprisoned jewel thief. Screenwriter Hint 107: The underworld term "gunsel" is obsolete. Use it only in period films of the '30s and '40s. Its original meaning referred strictly to boys who were used for sex. Rick is paroled - get this - by an insurance company that wants him to study the security system of the jewelry store that holds the fabulous Famed Diamond. (Or was it the famed Fabulous Diamond? Never mind.) Why? Don't wait for any plot relevance. Michael Norell felt his script needed a love story and he tacked it on. At the same time, Holly makes friends with the diamond's cutter, 80-year-old Alex Breuer (George Spelvin). In the last act, the implausibilities and switcheroos mesh like cheap clockwork and the whole thing grinds to a ludicrous, unbelievable halt. Compared to this nonsense, "Bodies of Evidence" is a happy surprise. It's a character-driven drama about the lives and cases of detectives on a big-city homicide techniques are ignored.

Hey, still good friends, right? George Clooney plays Ryan Walker, a dark, intense, stylish investigator whose methods to get "inside the head" of a killer are modeled after the sad and improbable hero of Michael Mann's 1986 "Manhunter" movie.

Kate McNeil plays Nora Houghton, the squad's rookie, descended from a long line of policemen. Her father works in the same precinct. Her character is thinly written, but she brings considerable power to it.

Her partner is Sgt. Tim Houghton (Al Fann), an experienced if overweight investigator who finds himself widowed in late middle age and at the beginning of his wisdom. Fann's is a sure, certain performance.

There are some woeful problems in the premiere. First, there's Walker's emotional obsession with his cases. It's a fantasy, a vulnerability that no one in real life with that sort of job can afford.

Just as bad, the police techniques are inconsistently applied. These investigators' forensic pathology, a la "Quincy," is superb, but basic investigating and interrogating figures like millionaire private eye headquarters in the Watergate as Deep Throat.

'Gone With the Grits' Southern favorite isn't just for breakfast anymore

"Only Southerners eat grits." In 1/4 teaspoon oregano "Gone With the Grits" gourmet cookbook, South Carolina author Diane Pfeifer transforms this once-Southern grain into 135 delicious dishes, including New York cherry cheesecake, spicy jalapeno casserole, stuffed grape leaves and party dips.

2-B

"Grits are just for breakfast." Pfeifer, a former chemist and longtime vegetarian, discovered while creating her recipes that this underrated grain makes exciting, economical meat alternatives in stuffed main dishes and casseroles.

And, grits lend creaminess to dips and sauces, sponginess to breads and chewy volume to bar cookies with no fat or cholesterol.

"Grits grow on trees." With a poke of good-natured fun, "Gone With the Grits" provides humorous cartoons and a trivia guiz that will stop the endless grits rumor mill.

Women chefs succeed in food world

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK - American women have finagled and pushed and cooked their way into restaurant kitchens, but they're bumping up against a glass ceiling not unlike that faced by their sisters in other professions.

Women who have succeeded needed wile, luck, skills from other careers - and usually all the money they could beg or borrow. "To be powerful in this field as a woman, you really have to be an owner," said Anne Rosenzweig, chef-owner of Arcadia in New York City. As a new mother, she said, she might be forced out of the business without the flexibility she has as boss.

Nora Pouillon, chef-owner of Nora's in Washington, said she had trouble with some male employees until they realized she signed their checkş.

Several women told their stories and speculated about the future at a weekend conference called 'Women, Culture and the Professional Kitchen," sponsored by Oldways Preservation and Exchange Trust and the James Beard Foundation to mark what would have been the late Beard's 89th birthday.

The long-held notion was that women couldn't make it in restaurant kitchens because they couldn't lift huge stock pots, couldn't take the heat, couldn't take the physical labor.

Rosenzweig began by working for free, as an apprentice, in a New York restaurant. Her co-workers considered her too short and too feminine but the boss couldn't pass up the free labor.

"From the moment I walked in they said, 'You can't do it,'" she recalled. She describes her experience as valuable but also the 'most unbearable sort of hazing.' Pat Bartholomew was turned down for 44 jobs when she went looking in the 1970s. Now, she chairs the hotel and food service department at New York City Technical College; half the students are women and they do get jobs, she said.

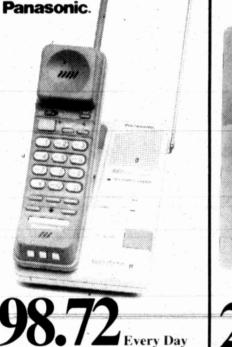

Early palaces of haute cuisine would not even allow women diners, let alone cooks or waiters. Gourmet magazines from about a half-century ago make it clear that "what really defined the world of Panasonic* Cordless Phone has 10 great cuisine for them was that it's a man's world,'' said Laura Shapiro, author of "Perfection Salad.'

"Women could cook for their families, but only men could cook for money and prestige.'

Few women chefs were famous. Julia Child has been a strong exception.

Alice Waters is credited with fomenting a culinary revolution, Shapiro said. She opened Chez Panisse, her acclaimed restaurant in Berkeley, Calif., 21 years ago with a 1960s political awareness and without regard to accepted rules, Shapiro said.

Joyce Goldstein, chef-owner of Square One in San Francisco, is one of many now-famous chefs who got their first restaurant jobs there.

"'It was like, my God, where have Lbeen? Why haven't I been doing this all my life?" she said, recalling that she worked 12 hours a day, six days a week, "and I didn't think it was working.'

Women always have worked in family-run inns or bistros, but only in the past decade or so have they become a force in restaurant kitchens, said Peter Kump, of Kump's New York Cooking School.

"America is basically leading the way," Kump said. "We are moving very fast.'

To mark that movement, the James Beard Awards — the food world's Oscars - recently saluted women chefs from around the country.

Waters was named chef of the year and Chez Panisse restaurant of the year. Other winners included Debra Ponzek of Montrachet in New York as rising star chef of the year; Lydia Shire from Biba in Boston as the Northeast's best chef; and Barbara Figueroa from the Hunt Club in Seattle as the best chef in the Northwest.

A decade ago, 10 percent of cooking school students were women. Today, 40 percent are female. The Culinary Institute of America, the Harvard of U.S. cooking schools, only began admitting women students in 1970.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

DEAR ABBY: I cannot forget a letter you had in your column some time ago. It was written by an erson who didn't know what to say when he (or she) was asked what he did for a living. From the tone of the letter I concluded that the person was working for minimum wage, or doing some kind of manual labor of which he was somewhat ashamed.

This, coupled with the following remark a school principal made to my son, prompts this letter. My son was having problems in s 'hool, so his teacher took him to e principal. In talking to my on, the principal asked, "Do you want to be a ditchdigger all your life?" My son replied, "What's wrong with being a dit digge ? It's honest

The principal called me to school because of my son's "smart mouth." When the principal repeated what my son had said, I responded: "Nothing was wrong with what he said. If there were no ditchdiggers we'd be up to our necks in water and filth." I also told the principal he was dead wrong to demean ditchdiggers, and repeated what my son had said. "It's honest work.

Then I went on to say: "I am a professional who works with professionals, and I get really steamed when my co-workers look down on people who are minimum-wage laborers. If no one picked up the garbage, cleaned the septic tanks, laid sewage pipes, picked the crops and worked in the fields, where would we be? This country was founded on hard work - most of it manual labor. Pride comes in doing the best you can with whatever talents you possess.

I will close with a comment I heard a long time ago. I don't know the author, but it goes something like this:

"Use what talents you possess.

"Can I answer when she says 'paper or plastic'?"

for the woods would be silent if no birds sang, except the best." C.V.J.

DEAR C.V.J.: Hear, hear!

* * * DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a thank-you note that reads as follows: "Thank you for the lovely gift," signed "Mrs. and Mrs. Newlywed"?

I was shocked to receive such a note. It was so cold and impersonal, it could have been run off on a copy machine.

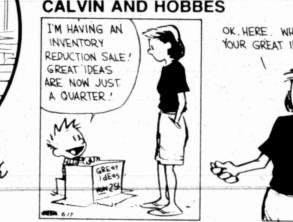

I was very hurt because I had spent a lot of time and money selecting a gift I thought would be perfect for this couple. I would like to add that the bride is a relative of mine. - DISGUSTED IN BER-THOUD, COLO.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Obviously, the bride and groom are woefully ignorant about how to write a thank-you note. However, their note did serve to acknowledge that your wedding gift was received.

Sadly, there are some who can say, "Well, that's more than I received.'

What to give the "do-it-yourself" dad

From barbecue grills and assorted outdoor cooking gear, to power tools and photographic equipment, there are hundreds of gift ideas to bring a smile to dad's face on Father's Day. And after "something to wear," the most popular Father's Day gift is one that is related to dad's favorite hobby

Does dad like to cook?

There's nothing like a summer cook out to make dad's day. Does dad have a gas grill? If not, you'd probably score big by giving him one. (Less work for mom in the kitchen, too.) And if he does have one, he's close to being a pro-chef. so supplement his equipment with some handy utensils he can use for grilling, smoking or cooking up a storm. He'd probably love one of the cookbooks than ever. And if dad hasn't yet suc focusing on back yard grilling. Another powerful gift dimension is the power tool. Be it a humble screwdriver or a sophisticated lathe, there's hardly a dad who doesn't occasionally have to take a tool in hand to handle a simple repair. But there are wide ranges of tools between the very elementary hammer and the power joiner. Since you know your dad. you'll know how skilled he is and which tools would best suit his needs.

If he's a weekend shutterbug, anything from a couple of rolls of color film to an auto-focus camera will warm his heart. Darkroom equipment has special allure for dads who like to do their own developing and printing. And there are all kinds of novel equipment to make photography more fun

Sunday of June to give the ministers more time to prepare their tributes. The third Sunday of June has been Father's Day ever since. It has now been firmly established by a Joint Resolution of Congress, passed in 1971.

A grass roots movement

But the path to "official national holiday" status was slow. Early on, the great populist, William Jennings Bryan, recognized Father's Day as an event that warranted national support and observance. Presidents Woodrow Wilson and Calvin Coolidge, in later years, endorsed the observance of the holiday. But it took the formation of the Father's Day Council, in 1931, to give coherence and organization to Father's Day as an event that merited national observance. The idea took hold so quickly that before the end of the decade, Father's Day had become meaningful and widely accepted and observed. It became a grass roots movement

It wasn't until 1971 that Congress recognized Father's Day for what it - a national holiday, proclaimed Was by the people. The following year, President Richard Nixon signed the Families have backyard cook-outs, presided over by "chef dad," or the children may whip up a "sit down" dinner for the family.

Dads receive an avalanche of gifts: everything from "something to wear' (a big favorite) to "spirits to sip." More than a hundred million greeting cards will go through the mail; there will be special visits: telephone lines will be flooded with calls to dads; and snap shots will be taken. Father's Day had a head start as a family day, but it now has evolved into an all-community celebration, almost to the day when spring turns to summer, and new warm-weather lifestyles are born.

William Smart, in whose image and name Father's Day was founded, lived to see it take hold. He died in 1919.

A life-time crusade

Mrs. John Bruce Dodd (nee Senora Smart) lived for almost 60 years longer, and all through her life, she continued to crusade on behalf of Father's Day and its significance for the family and the community. So, on Sunday, June 21, we will observe the 82nd Father's Day when, as a nation. we sing out in chorus, "Dad, we love you! All our best!

Voices Of Young America' Coming A dozen gift ideas for dad Through Loud And Clear

Global warming to Glasnost. Getting good grades to making the grade. Do today's youth really care? While there have been a flurry of reports recently pointing to the fact that the younger generation is uninterested, uninformed and unconcerned about the issues of the day, a new survey from Fuji Tape shows that America's young people are in fact "tuned in" and concerned about the world around them.

Fuji Tape recently turned its focus on America's young people, asking their attitudes and opinions concerning relevant political and social issues of the '90s. The results are found in Fuji's "Voices Of Young America," a nationwide study of young adults (age' 16 to 24) conducted by The Gallup Organization. Some of the findings include:

•Sixty-four percent of young adults (16 to 24-year-olds) believe pre-recorded music should carry warning labels about its lyrics.

. More than three-quarters of America's young adults are in favor of random drug testing while three out of five respondents cite drugs as the biggest problem facing the youth of today.

•Approximately 77 percent of young adults are in favor of the death penalty.

According to David Elkind, Ph.D., Professor of Child Study and Senior Resident Scholar at Tufts University, "The Fuji survey goes a long way to help dispel the perception that the younger generation is full of rebellious kids who don't care about what's going on in the world. In fact, the majority of today's young people are very aware of social problems and political issues, but more than that, they want to help and want to do something about these things.

Other key findings of the "Voices Of Young America" survey support Dr. Elkind's view that this is a thoughtful and concerned generation. For example:

 The most admired people in the world today for 16 to 24-year-olds are members of their own family. "Mom" was named by 11 percent of respondents as the person they most admire, followed by "Dad" with 8 percent.

•The majority (70 percent) of young adults believe that the world was a better place to live in when their parents were their age than it is for them now.

•More than half of the respondents (56 percent) think the world will be a worse place for their children to live in than it is for them now

"The Fuji Tape survey demonstrates how today's youth are very much directed toward improving social problems and the environment. For instance, 16 to 24-yearolds spend about three hours every week doing some sort of volunteer work, a figure that's probably higher than most adults' volunteer time," says Dr. Elkind.

As Father's Day 1992 approaches, (the day is Sunday, June 21st, in case you've forgotten) the loving son, daughter, wife or friend faces the agecollection, old problem of what gift to give the dad who's said a thousand times. "I don't need anything." What dads don't understand is that need sometimes has little to do with certain gifts, especially when it comes to fashion. And if dad winces at the word "fashion," remind him that everything he wears makes a fashion statement of some sort, and what he wears tells the world what kind of man he is.

The National Association of Men's Sportswear Buyers, a professional association of menswear retailers, knows there are dads of various shapes and sizes, and dads who range from ultra-conservative to "taking-a-walkon-the-wild-side," so they have prepared a shopping list filled with fash ion and fun, with something for every dad. Here is their Dozen for Dad:

1. The number one Father's Day gift is always the tie, and this year stripes are back, the colors are fresh and bright. 2. There's a new kind of dress shirt

- colorful and full cut - that looks great with ties or without.

3. If your dad has had a tired old jacket that you've begged him to dispose of forever, take charge and replace it with a rainproof slicker, a baseball jacket (yes, in 1992, baseball is in fashion), or a zipper jacket in washed silk. (Ask for washed silk at your favorite store. You have to see and feel it to believe it!)

4. Because 1992 is an Olympic year. an official Olympic T-shirt would make a perfect addition to dad's T-shirt

5. If your dad is a shorts man (and this is the year of walk shorts), many styles are available, from trim and boxy to full and baggy shorts that can be dressed up or down with blazers, and beach-wear shorts with bright colors and unique patterns.

6. Now there's more fun, fashion and comfort in spring cardigans, which are an easy-wear replacement for jackets with lots of intricate, handsome computer-designed patterns

7. Pullover sweaters pick up on the same fashion, and they've become a year-round item for every dad's wardrobe.

8. Dressy sweat tops feel like a sweatshirt, but look like a sweater, in bright colors and stripes, usually made of canvas-like fabrics in rainbow-color combinations. Whatever shirt or short he wears will match at least one of the many belt shades. It's a great gift - and one he probably wouldn't take the time to buy for himself.

tion to any man's summer wardrobe, enabling him to look good and see well in the sun. Take this one seriously, and consult with the storekeeper about the shape of dad's face, the color of his skin and hair.

11. Baseball caps. If you don't give him a baseball cap, he may be the only dad who doesn't have one.

12. Last but not least, sleepwear. It's the new fashion focus for men.

Have A Hearth

When Victor Hugo said, "The most charming thing in the world is a hearth," he probably wasn't too concerned about the impact of wood smoke on the environment. If he lived today he might say a "propane gas hearth" instead.

Smoke from wood-burning stoves and fireplaces is such a serious problem that the Environmental Protection Agency has gotten involved. Emission control devices are required on all wood-burning stoves and fireplace inserts manufactured after July 1, 1988. New, tougher standards have gone into effect with the passage of the 1990 Clean Air Act, reports the National Propane Gas Association (NPGA).

Environmental experts report propane gas burns cleanly and doesn't create an environmental hazard. In fact, wood-burning leads
