Medical fund set up at First National Bank

A medical fund for Luther resident Bruce Kemper has been established at First National Bank. Kemper, a native of Knott, will undergo vascular surgery at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital. The fund has been set up to help defray the family's medical costs. For more information, contact First National at 267-5513 or call 399-4714.

Cookoff slated at mall

The inaugural Highland Mall CASI-Sanctioned Bar-B-Que Cookoff will be held Saturday at Highland Mall. For more information, contact Mall Manager Bettye Gossett at 263-1132. Also, the Community Garage Sale, originally scheduled for Saturday and Sunday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, has been cancelled, according to officials at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Fireworks fund grows

The Fourth of July fireworks fund has grown to the point that less than $800 needs to be raised. Eddie Cole is chairman of the project for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. Few towns in this area will have a fireworks display on July 4, and Cole promises that Big Spring's effort will be as big as ever. For more information, contact the chamber of office at 263-7641.

Test: No Capehart water contamination

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

An independent laboratory in Lubbock confirmed Howard County Health Department tests that show no wastewater contamination in Capehart Addition water.

Several weeks ago, Big Spring plumber Jack Watkins noticed a smell characteristic of wastewater contamination that coincided with dark, murky water running from faucets and shower heads in his Chanute Drive home, he said.

By the time proper samples for laboratory submission were obtained, however, the water had been cleared by regular flushing of fire hydrants in the area, he said.

The Herald sample showed the water to be free of common bacteria found in sewage.

The sample did show a type of bacteria commonly found in soil. The bacteria was identified as a gram-negative cocci, one of the 19 different families of bacteria. The most harm that could be expected from this bacteria is a short episode of diarrhea, according to the microbiology technician at the lab.

The water sample had very small numbers of this bacteria in relation to volume, and was well within established health parameters, she said.

The contamination scare stemmed from the fact that both water and wastewater piping in the subdivision is substandard, corroding and in too close a proximity to each other, according to current health regulations.

In today's Big Spring City Council meeting at 5:30 p.m., the council will discuss options in regards to the water quality in Capehart, which is often discolored with rust from the cast iron water-inlet piping.

The meeting is in Building 1106 at the McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.

Rodeo to attract top talent

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Just like in the past, the 59th Annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo will attract some top names in the rodeo world.

Nightly performances Wednesday through Saturday start at 8:30. Advance tickets, available through today, are $5 for adults and $3 for children. Tickets are available at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, Big Spring Hardware, Ward Boot and Western Wear and Driver Insurance. Tickets at the gate are $6 for adults and $4 for children.

The rodeo unofficially gets started tonight at 7 with slack performances. There is no admission for slack.

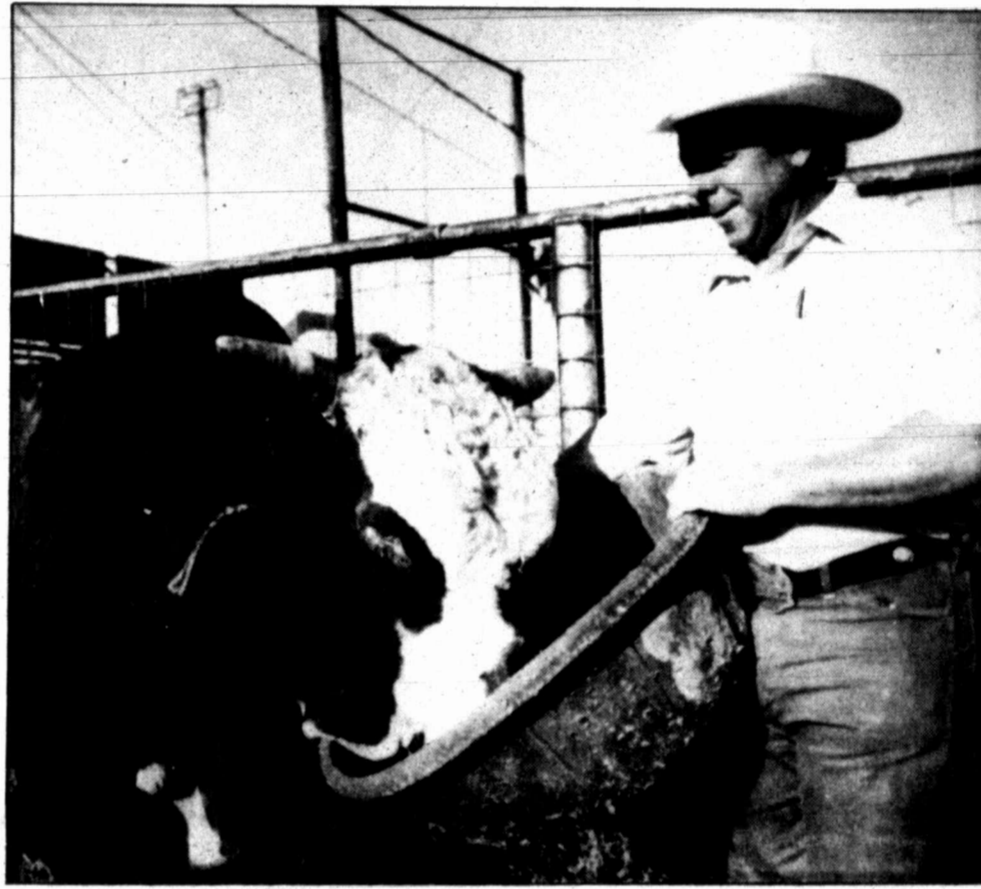

This year's rodeo, which will have a purse in excess of $40,000, has attracted a horde of bull riders and barrel racers, according to Big Spring Rodeo Board Secretary-Treasurer Skipper Driver. Driver said 52 bull riders and 69 barrel racers have entered the competition.

Highlighting the rodeo will be appearances by defending world champion bull rider Richard "Tuff" Hedeman of Bowie. Hedeman won world bull riding titles in 1986, 1989 and 1991 and earned more than $113,000 last year. He is currently fifth in the Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association (PRCA) standings. Hedeman will ride Friday.

Hedeman isn't the only world champion in the bull riding field. Stephenville's Jim Sharp, the 1990 world champion, will also be on hand. Sharp is currently ranked 14th on the PRCA tour. He will ride Friday, also.

Brothers Billy and Dan Etbauer will be two of the favorites in the saddle bronc competition. Last year Billy, who lives in Ree Heights, S.D., finished second on the PRCA tour and Dan, from Goodwell, Okla., was fifth.

Currently, Billy is second in the PRCA standings and Dan is seventh. Another brother, Robert, is ranked 10th, but won't be competing in Big Spring.

The Etbauers will ride Thursday. The favorite in the bareback bronc event will be Chuck Logue from Cumby. Logue was a world champion in 1990 and is ranked 10th on the tour this year. Logue will ride Wednesday and Saturday.

Local favorite Steve Fryar, of Lomax, will be a contestant in the steer wrestling competition. Fryar won the steer wrestling competition at the 1990 Big Spring rodeo. In 1989 Fryar bulldogged a steer in 2.8 seconds at a rodeo in Abilene. It's the fifth fastest time in steer wrestling history. Fryar will compete Wednesday and Thursday.

Sonora cowboy Keith Hudson will compete in the calf roping. Last year he finished 14th on the PRCA circuit.

Despite Jackson, black mayors rally around Clinton

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Black Democratic mayors, overshadowed by Jesse Jackson in the past, are turning away from Jackson's complaints about Bill Clinton in favor of pushing the presidential candidate's domestic economic program.

Jackson, the two-time unsuccessful presidential candidate, was expected to speak today to the U.S. Conference of Mayors, a day after Clinton won praise when he outlined his economic program that promises $20 billion a year for roads, bridges and other public works projects that cities are seeking.

"The way Bill Clinton has laid out is the call to America to say there's hope for you, and opportunity," said Seattle's Norm Rice, a black mayor of an overwhelmingly white city. Sharpe James, the black mayor of Newark, N.J., pledged to work to turn out his city's vote for Clinton. "We have a man with a vision for a better America," he said.

Another black mayor, Atlanta's Maynard Jackson, who has been a strong Clinton supporter, said Clinton's economic program draws a stark contrast between the Arkansas governor and his rivals, President Bush and independent Ross Perot.

"Bush does not care. Perot does not know," Jackson said. "But Clinton has got his eye on the future of America."

White Democratic mayors praised Clinton as well, including Boston Mayor Ray Flynn, who earlier was cool toward Clinton and met twice in recent weeks with Perot.

HC eyes programs for the homebound

By GARY SHANKS

Howard College may be producing and teaching classes to homebound people, thanks to the purchase of video equipment and an agreement between the college and Larson Lloyd, manager of Big Spring Cable TV Inc.

The channel also could be used to rebroadcast sports events from both the college and area school districts, said HC President Bob Riley.

Bob Ramsey will spearhead the new program at the college, Riley said. This was decided at Monday's meeting of the HC Board of trustees.

Also at the meeting a $356,070 contract for extensive roofing repairs at HC and the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf was given to Lydick and Hooks of Abilene. The contract was offered for bids at the previous board meeting.

The board decided to accept the resignation of SWCID recruiter Bob Coltrane, who tendered his resignation effective July 1. Coltrane had been informed that his contract would not be renewed for the fall, which caused a furor within the SWCID student body.

As to the reason for Coltrane's early departure, Riley said, "I presume he wants the time to seek other employment."

Court grants stay to woman scheduled for execution

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — A court must investigate whether a prosecution witness lied during the trial of convicted murderer Karla Faye Tucker, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has ruled in halting Ms. Tucker's execution.

Velma Barfield was put to death in November 1984 in North Carolina. The appeals court, in a 6-3 decision, ordered the trial court in Houston to conduct an evidentiary hearing to investigate whether a prosecution witness perjured himself. James Liebrant contends he lied when he testified he had not made a plea bargain agreement with prosecutors.

develop those facts," the appeals court said. The appeals judges gave the trial court 90 days to hold a hearing and 120 days to submit a transcript of the hearing. "She was terribly elated and relieved," Gary Entress, a spokesman for Ms. Tucker's attorneys, said of the inmate. Ms. Tucker, 32, of Houston, has been on Texas' death row since 1984 when she was convicted of the June 13, 1983 murder of Jerry Lynn Dean, 26, at Dean's Houston apartment. She also was charged with capital murder in the slaying of Dean's girlfriend, Deborah Ruth Thornton, 32. That charge was dismissed after Ms. Tucker testified against her co-defendant and former boyfriend, Daniel Garrett, who also is awaiting execution although he has no scheduled date. Both victims were stabbed repeatedly with a 3-foot-long pickax, which was left embedded in Ms. Thornton's chest. Liebrant, a friend, was with Ms.

Tucker and Garrett at Dean's apartment and was the only eyewitness to the killings. Liebrant received a 20-year prison term on a burglary charge. He served just 40 months. Prosecutors contend they made no plea bargaining deal and promised only to make the judge aware of his cooperation. If the perjury allegation is substantiated, the statute of limitations has expired, however, and Liebrant may not be prosecuted. In testimony he does not dispute, Liebrant told the jury how it appeared Ms. Tucker was enjoying swinging the ax into the victims' bodies. "That didn't happen," she said. "It was a very sick thing. I was very sick in the mind at that point." Ms. Tucker testified at her trial she began using marijuana at age 8, switched to heroin at 10, toured as a groupie with the rock group the Allman Brothers Band at 13, married at 17 and turned prostitute to support her drug habit.

LULAC to announce development

AUSTIN — Officials say negotiations have continued between the state and Hispanic plaintiffs who successfully challenged the Texas public higher education system.

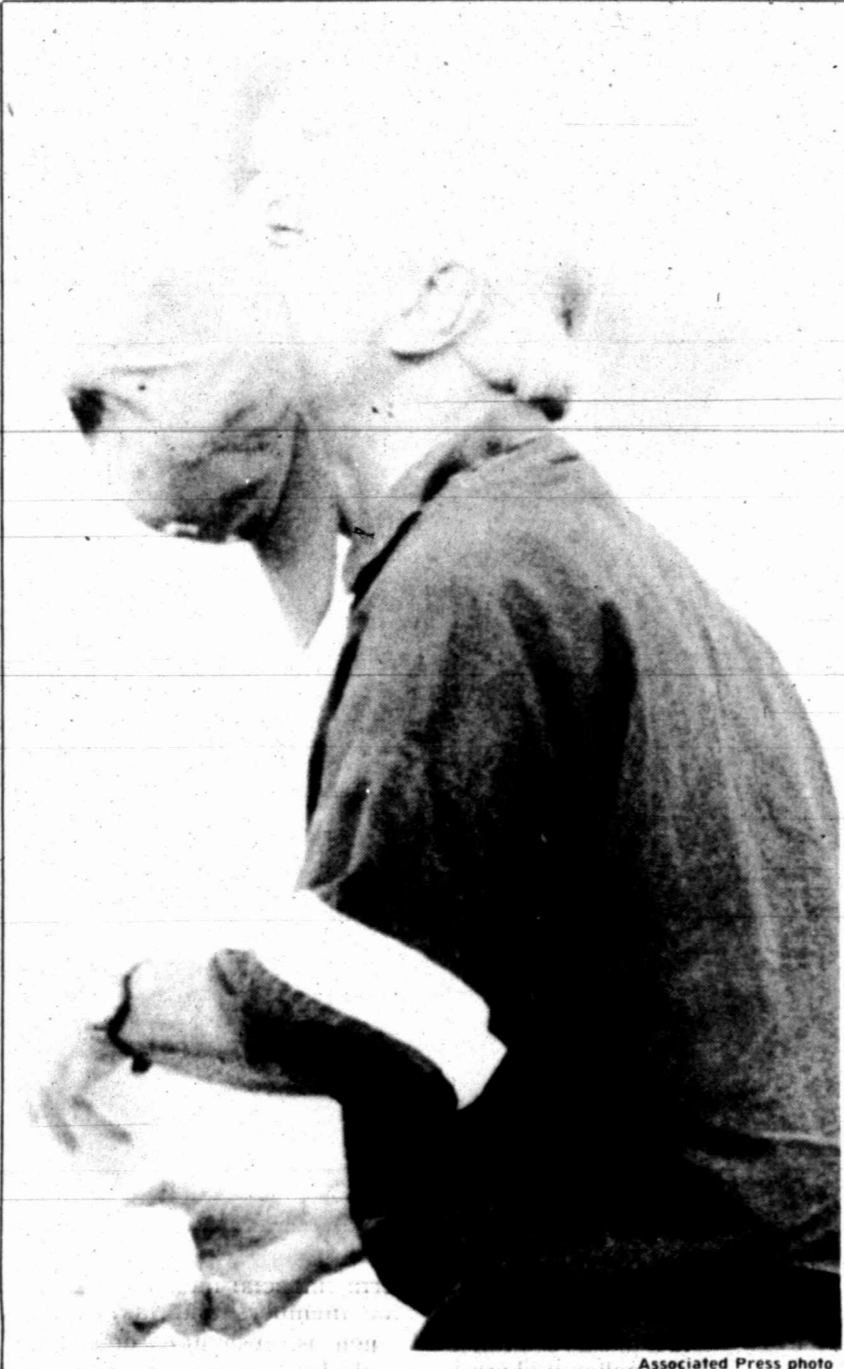

But on Monday, representatives from both sides declined to say how successful the talks were. The League of United Latin American Citizens, former San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, and several state officials, however, did plan a news conference today in Austin.

In January, a state judge in Brownsville ruled the Texas system of public colleges and universities unconstitutional because it denied Hispanics living in the border region equal access to higher education.

The lawsuit defines the border region as 41 counties stretching from Brownsville to El Paso. Although the area comprises 20 percent of the state's population, it receives only 10 percent of state higher education funding, according to the plaintiffs. They also said that of the 600 doctoral programs offered in the state, only three are available in the border area.

State District Judge Ben Euresi Jr. gave the state until May 1, 1993, to come up with a new system. The state attorney general's office appealed Euresi's ruling to the Texas Supreme Court. Oral arguments in that appeal have been scheduled for Oct. 13.

Prior to Euresi's ruling, a jury in his court decided that the state's higher education funding system was inefficient.

AUSTIN — More measles cases have been reported in South Texas since a severe outbreak started in the Corpus Christi area in late 1991, officials have said.

In all, there have been some 1,200 measles cases associated with the outbreak, the Texas Department of Health said Monday. Of those cases, two resulted in death, officials said.

The majority of cases have been among infants and toddlers younger than one-year-old. In Hidalgo County alone, there have been some 400 recent reports.

The state's southernmost 26 counties reported that most of the current cases have required medical attention and at least one-fourth have required hospitalization.

Wes Hodgson, of the TDH Immunization Division, said that parents in the outbreak area have been advised to be sure all children 6-months-old or older have been immunized. He said that state law requires measles immunizations for Texas school and day care children as well as college students who may have direct contact with patients in health-related fields.

"However, we recommend that the general college population receive a second dose of measles vaccine," he said. "We know that there are young adults in our universities who still are susceptible to this highly contagious disease," he said.

AUSTIN — Two schools in the Texas A&M University System have signed a contract with four universities in Mexico to collaborate on research and teaching, officials said.

Tarleton State University in Stephenville and Texas A&I University in Kingsville soon will be exchanging faculty, students, and research findings with universities in Saltillo and Monterrey. "The promotion of international education has been a prime objective on the Tarleton agenda," Dennis McCabe, president of Tarleton State, said Monday.

AUSTIN — Students who attended any CBM Education Center's now-defunct trade schools in San Antonio, Austin and McAllen will be able to transfer to several other trade schools in those cities, officials said.

Earlier this month, CBM's board of directors voted to cease operations in those cities and convert to liquidation under Chapter 7 of the federal bankruptcy code, the Texas Education Agency said Monday.

AUSTIN — Texas red meat production totaled 343.74 million pounds during May, down 2 percent from a year ago, officials reported. Commercial red meat production nationwide also dropped 2 percent from May 1991, the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service reported Monday.

Black bears appear at Big Bend

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO — For five decades, the black bear has been a rare sight at Big Bend National Park.

Now the shaggy animal is making a comeback.

Black bear sightings in the park averaged three a year until 1987, which officials attributed mostly to male bears wandering across the Rio Grande and into the park from the higher mountains in Mexico.

Then in 1988 the number of sightings rose dramatically, said

Rick LoBello, executive director for the Big Bend Natural History Association, a non-profit organization that promotes educational events at the national park in southwest Texas.

"When I saw those bears for the first time, I felt like I was seeing something that the Indians saw. It really moved me," LoBello said.

Twenty-one black bears were spotted at the park in 1988; 20 in 1989; and 70 in 1990, according to LoBello's records.

So far this year, visitors and park officials have reported seeing 14 black bears. And drier summer months, when bears are more apt to forage for food, are still ahead.

"I think that's one of the things people come to a national park for, to see the wildlife," he told the San Antonio Express-News in Monday's editions.

LoBello said many sightings have been of sows with cubs. The presence of offspring, scientists say, means park habitat conditions favor residency for the bears.

Park personnel believe females have taken up permanent residency in the Chisos Mountains, an oasis of meadows in the park above the 5,000-foot elevation.

SAN DIEGO — Magic Johnson returned to basketball at an Olympic team practice and announced, "I'm back to being one of the boys again."

Johnson, who retired from the Los Angeles Lakers on Nov. 7 after announcing he is infected with the AIDS virus, said he felt fine after Monday's workout.

"The anticipation was wearing me out because I was so excited and now we're finally here," he said. "I can relax now and do what I know how to do and what I do best, and that's just play basketball."

He said he has been preparing for the Olympics for the past two months.

"Other than not having the wind that the rest of us might have, he still looks the same," said teammate Michael Jordan.

Coach Chuck Daly agreed. "He's the same player he always was," he said. "In fact, he's trying harder now than he ever has. He looked very, very good."

SAN FRANCISCO — Former Mayor Joseph Alioto recounts the city's history in his poem "The Ballad of My San Francisco," including the time he bailed Beat poet Allen Ginsberg out of an Italian jail in the 1950s.

Alioto, who ran the city from 1968 to 1976, plans to read the 1,100-line work Thursday at a coffee house in the North Beach neighborhood where he grew up.

It describes the city's colorful, multicultural past and its political, literary and journalistic controversies.

It includes these lines: "From Siskiyou to San Diego 'Sierra to the Sea 'There is a fascinating span 'That's native sod to me."

ARLINGTON, Ore. — Former "Tonight Show" bandleader Doc Severinsen says his flamboyant clothes reflect the Western tradition of his childhood.

"It started with a red silk shirt my mother made for me," he said. "Cowboys used to wear wild silk shirts."

Severinsen, 64, returned to his hometown on Sunday for its annual Big River Band Festival.

He said his father, a "cowboy dentist" in this community of about 520, encouraged him to develop his trumpet talent at age 7.

Survivors tell of Serb atrocities

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — About 100 women, children and elderly refugees from the embattled suburb of Dobrinja waved a white towel, then dashed across a bridge to the relative safety of the city center.

In voices enfeebled by hunger and exhaustion, they told grim tales of what they had escaped: summary executions of relatives, friends and neighbors by Serb gunmen.

They told of husbands and fathers marched away at gunpoint, of streets strewn with corpses.

Meho Slijvo, 17, said the Serbs seized his apartment block six days ago, rounded up all non-Serb males and forced them to stand against a wall with their hands raised, as if for a firing squad.

They called all the relatives around and selected one man — Slijvo's father. Shouting "Watch this!" they shot him, the teen-ager mumbled.

Then, he said, they shot Slijvo's distraught 83-year-old grandmother after she had begged: "Please kill me too, I want to die with my son."

Other refugees said more men were gunned down before the group was marched off to Kula, a prison near Dobrinja that has become a whispered synonym for death and torture. They said men 18 and older were taken away separately.

The refugees were released without warning early Monday, driven through Serb-held parts of Sarajevo and dumped in the middle of a deadly no-man's land.

Reports of atrocities by Serbian nationalists in Dobrinja have surfaced for several weeks, but the stories heard Monday were the first major first-person accounts. There was no way to independently confirm the reports or to seek the alleged Serb tormentors for comment.

Dobrinja, a highrise suburb of 30,000 before the war and the site of the 1984 Olympic Village, is suffering a siege within a siege in the 2½-month battle for Sarajevo, the Bosnian capital of 300,000.

Food supplies are running so low that residents have been reported to be supplementing a diet of bread and water with grass and herbs from local parks. Medicine is also in short supply.

Sarajevo today came under sporadic shelling and gunfire in an extension of heavy attacks Monday that killed 21 and wounded 135. Bosnian radio said grenades fell on the Muslim old town and bridges over the Miljacka River.

It said there were an unspecified number of dead and wounded.

Several civilians were wounded in shelling near the Bosnian presidency building, and a police station was on fire, government officials said.

Bosnian radio reported two dead in fighting near Tuzla, north of Sarajevo.

"Last night was very disturbing, which we expected as the result of yesterday's horrific events," said Brig. Gen. Lewis Mackenzie, chief of U.N. peacekeeping troops in Sarajevo.

Dobrinja is adjacent the airport, which U.N. peacekeepers have been trying without success to open for relief flights. Mackenzie said he will not attempt to reopen the airport unless a cease-fire holds for at least 48 hours.

The refugees from Dobrinja said streets of the western suburb were scattered with corpses when they left.

People who escaped Dobrinja last week have also told horrific tales.

Members of a separate group that fled to avoid capture during a Serbian attack on Friday told of crawling over corpses in ditches to escape sniper fire. Of the 40 who left, only 26 arrived after a four-hour trek over a half-mile no-man's land.

The city is surrounded by units of ethnic Serbs, whose ethnic group makes up about one-third of Bosnia's 4.3 million people. Backed by the Yugoslav army, Serb irregulars have seized two-thirds of the republic from its majority Muslims and Croats since they voted to break free of Yugoslavia on Feb. 29.

Clinton says everyone must help reduce deficit

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Bill Clinton said today he scaled back his earlier proposal for middle class tax relief because the deficit has worsened since last winter and "everybody is going to have to make some contribution" to reducing it.

"The world is changing. The deficit got bigger. The American people cannot have everything they want," the certain Democratic presidential nominee said on a roundtable discussion on ABC's "Good Morning America."

Clinton also stressed that he alone among the three men aiming for the White House has produced an economic plan. "I've made choices," he said.

In contrast, he said, "We've got a president of the United States who's been president for four years who has no program. We've got a guy who wants to be president who's got no program."

Clinton's revised economic strategy, issued on Sunday, proposed giving middle class taxpayers a choice. They may either pick a cut in their tax rates, or a higher tax credit based on the number of children they have.

During last winter's primaries, the Arkansas governor proposed giving the middle class both of those breaks.

Clinton spoke on an hourlong roundtable discussion with "Good Morning America" host Charles Gibson, and C. Everett Koop, former surgeon general; Alvin Poussaint, a Harvard professor of psychiatry; Johnnetta Cole, president of Spelman College and Norman Ornstein, resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute.

The six sat around a table set for breakfast, and continued their lively discussion during commercial breaks. During one, Koop praised Clinton's proposal to curtail lobbying by former high-ranking federal officials, and said the last three top lawyers at the Food and Drug Administration had gone to work for tobacco companies after leaving the government.

Clinton awoke to a fresh poll indicating he runs third in a three-way matchup with Bush and Perot, who has not yet formally announced his candidacy. The survey, by The New York Times and CBS, also reported Clinton is viewed favorably by 16 percent of the voters, and unfavorably by 40 percent.

The Arkansas governor is spending the time before the Democratic National Convention hoping to repair some of the damage inflicted by the brutal primary wars, and redefine his message for the fall campaign.

Earlier this week, he issued an economic strategy that emphasized billions of dollars in federal spending to create jobs and revitalize the nation's inner cities, and called for higher taxes on the wealthy and foreign corporations operating in this country.

Taxes aside, Clinton was asked what his goals were to help children prepare for school. He said he supports preschool programs, an effort to teach parents to help their children, and "make sure these children have access to basic health care. These simple things can change the life of the children," he said.

Doctors want AMA to soften stand against self-referral

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Members of the American Medical Association are urging the AMA to relax its stance against doctors sending patients to labs, X-ray centers and other facilities in which the physician has a financial interest.

"Ninety to 95 percent of doctors run good, honest operations that give people the best possible care at the best possible price," Dr. Donald J. Holtzman of Elizabeth, N.J., said Monday at a meeting of the AMA's policy-making House of Delegates.

"I believe if you trust us to make life and death decisions, if you trust us to operate on people, if you trust us to help guide their lives, then you should trust us to refer them to the best facilities."

The AMA decided in December that the practice, known as self-referral, should be avoided unless the community needs the services provided by doctor-financed facilities and alternative financing isn't available.

That decision came after studies indicated that patients of doctors with a financial stake in labs, X-ray centers or other facilities them for some laboratory services for Medicare patients.

Florida doctors are asking the AMA to support the right of physicians to engage in ventures such as outside labs. The Florida delegation said the state and federal limits deny doctors the right to engage in free enterprise.

"We in medicine have much more to lose than just some financial investment, than just some money involved in this issue," countered Dr. Robert J. McQuillan, a member of the Council on Ethical and Judicial Affairs.

"I believe we have the possibility of losing our credibility and our ability to take care of our patients in their best interests."

Also Monday, AMA delegates debated a proposal that doctors and hospitals post their fees in the waiting room to encourage price competition.

Bush call good but far too late

Not long ago, President Bush called for a program to put Americans back to work in the oil fields. He said something to the effect of putting the rigs back to work now.

As hard as things are in the oil patch — and as long as they've been hard — it seems logical that a president who started out in the West Texas fields would have made this call long ago.

This one didn't, and neither did his predecessors. In fact, it has been so long since the United States petroleum industry got any help from Washington that few can remember.

We've taxed production into remission and we've regulated and stipulated oil production overseas. And as business has gone on as usual in Washington, thousands and thousands of men and women have lost their jobs.

Now, we want to put those men and women back to work and get those rigs back into production.

It's not that easy. In order to be able to do that we need to ease some of the regulations. We need to encourage . . . not discourage.

Since there has been very little domestic policy at all out of this administration, this call by the President puzzles us.

If it's an effort to try and regain lost support in the oil industry, it's seems a bit little and a lot late.

Read our lips, Mr. President, we need a real plan to put real people back into real jobs . . . not campaign rhetoric.

Who casts ballot also important

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Behind the argument over simpler, hassle-free voter registration, there's an unmentioned, awkward fact of campaign life: the competition is over who will vote as well as how.

Each party and each candidate tries to register and turn out its likely supporters. There's a real, but politically incorrect corollary: each side would prefer that the other side's people stay away from the polls.

Nobody says so. Indeed, the standard election-eve statement urges people to turn out and cast ballots whatever their choice.

That was the tone in congressional debate over a law to set federal standards for easier voter registration, Republican opponents insisting that they are no less devoted than Democratic advocates to encouraging voter turnout.

The mail and motor voter registration bill would require states to register people to vote when they get or renew drivers licenses, and at other state licensing agencies, beginning in 1994. The White House has threatened a veto, saying the bill would impose new burdens and costs on the states, and would heighten the risk of vote fraud. One provision forbids the purging of voter rolls of people who do not vote in successive elections.

The bill passed the House on Tuesday, 268 to 153, short of the margin it would take to override a veto. The vote was largely on party lines; some Republicans who had supported a similar measure two years ago voted no this time. One reason gets to the political realities: this version requires that voter registration be offered at welfare and other social service offices, and Republicans said that would create an unacceptable bias to register people likely to vote Democratic.

"This bill will be vetoed," Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said before it passed the Senate on May 20. "Democrats knew it when they brought it up . . . in another partisan effort to paint the president as anti-reform and anti-democratic."

Democrats said the bill would get 90 percent of voting-age Americans registered to cast ballots; the current registration rate is 61 percent.

McConnell said Republicans don't oppose that, but don't want lax laws that could put registration at 110 percent.

His candid formula for promoting registration and voting: "Turn the parties loose to register voters and convince them there is a compelling reason to turn out on Election Day."

AP ANALYSIS

That's the way it is supposed to work now; in a presidential campaign, the parties are allowed to raise and spend so-called soft money, outside the legal limit on candidate expenditures, for operations including voter registration. But turnout has been slumping in presidential elections since 1960, from 60.9 percent then to 50.1 percent in 1988. It's far lower in the off years; only 36.4 percent of potential voters cast ballots in 1990.

The turnout of registered voters is much higher; by Census Bureau estimate 85 percent to 90 percent of them cast presidential election ballots.

But the turnout slump has come during an era of eased voting procedures, from the Voting Rights Act of 1965 to state registration changes, some matching the provisions of the bill. In 32 states, people can register to vote at some licensing agencies; in 29, they can register by mail.

Three states have election day registration systems; turnouts there are an estimated 14 percent above the national average.

According to a 1990 General Accounting Office study, of 30 democracies surveyed, only the United States and two others leave it to people to register as voters on their own initiative; in the rest it is automatic or mandatory.

And registration can be more complicated and inconvenient than voting, the GAO said.

That study ranked the United States 20th among 21 industrialized democracies in voter turnout. But many of them presume universal participation, and in some, voting is required. In American elections, registration and turnout is part of the contest.

That level of competition may get a special test this year, with the polls reflecting a dissatisfied electorate, and independent Ross Perot challenging the major party nominees. People who haven't been voting, out of disinterest or alienation, may be prime prospects for Perot.

How can Supreme Court OK kidnaping?

I am not one of those people who is always criticizing a Supreme Court decision — but every once in a while I wonder if the justices' elevators really go to the top floor.

The court's recent 6-to-3 decision on kidnaping is a case in point. The Supremes ruled it was legal for the United States to kidnap someone in a foreign country and bring him or her back for trial without the approval of the nation whose borders have been violated.

As a hard-liner I am not disturbed about the U.S. violating international law, particularly if the person kidnaped is guilty. What troubles me is that the people doing the kidnaping are prone to make mistakes, and you may wind up with a number of foreigners being snatched who have nothing to do with any American crimes.

I will give you an example. "Ricardo Alvarez, we are American agents and we have been ordered to drug you, put you in chains and drag you back to the United States to stand trial for murder, using a false credit card at a Taco Hut and speeding in Arizona."

"My name is not Alvarez. It is Alacazar."

"Alvarez, Alacazar — they both have one 'l.' Trust us. We don't make mistakes."

"But you have the wrong man. Alvarez lives in the next block. He weighs 290 pounds. I weigh 140 pounds."

"It isn't for us to decide if we have the wrong man or not. When we get you over the border we will assign you a lawyer, and it will be his job to prove you are a victim of mistaken identity. It says right here on our kidnap authorization slip that our man lives at 234 Simon Bolivar Lane. That is this house."

"But this is 234 Simon Bolivar Boulevard. Are you going to take me from family?"

"You should have thought of that before you illegally shipped 300 pounds of fireworks to your cousin on Long Island for his daughter's wedding."

"By what authority can you kidnap me from my own country?"

"By authority of the Supreme Court of the United States, whose justices have declared that no one is safe from the long arm of the law. Come with us, Mr. Alvarez."

"Alacazar, my name is Alacazar."

"If you're going to be picky, picky about your name, we're not going to let you plea-bargain for a lighter sentence."

Although this type of behavior bothers me, what really has me distressed is that if the Supremes say we can kidnap foreign citizens, what is to prevent foreign agents from snatching ours?

"Mr. Smith, we are from the Mexican secret police. Please step into this coffin so we can take you back to Guadalajara for trial as a war criminal."

"I have never been to Guadalajara."

"Several people have identified you as Ivan the Terrible."

"My name isn't Ivan."

"Alacazar's name wasn't Alvarez, either, yet they took him anyway."

"But I am an American citizen, and we're in Sabta Monica, Calif."

"We can't help it. Your Supreme Court has made it a jungle out there."

We humans find what we seek

My friend C.T. isn't allowed to read the newspaper because it makes his blood pressure go up. He lives outside of Dallas where the news that makes the paper is seldom good. His wife, Cloe, scans the paper, censors out the worst stories, waters down the rest and reads it to him.

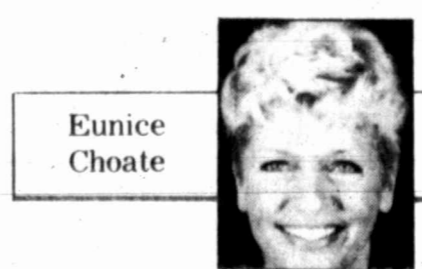

I'm not as excitable as C.T. but I'm getting there. Take last Tuesday.

A news story said some Palo Alto, Calif. firefighters are protesting the use of a fire helmet named for Texas hero Sam Houston. Seems they got wind of some rumors that Houston engaged in slave trade, was responsible for atrocities against women, and was prone to bare-knuckle brawls, among other things.

The protesting firemen say the helmets "would create a hostile work environment for some minorities." The fire chief says, "There is some controversy within the ranks, and I'm trying to prevent it from becoming a big issue." The president of the Palo Alto firefighters union says the union is obligated to look into grievances raised by its members.

He didn't add "no matter how stupid the grievance", but I did. For one reason, part of the complaint was that Houston was an egotist, a drunk, and a philanderer. Almost everybody in congress today would fall into one or the other of those categories. But, to be fair, the protesters aren't talking about living people; their quarrel is with a dead man.

Human beings are great ones for finding what we're looking for. Including the worst side of any subject.

Eunice Choate

Charles A. Lindbergh made a non-stop solo flight from New York to Paris in 1927 and became a national hero. Later, during World War II, Lindbergh outraged the American public when he said he believed that if America were to take the unwise step of entering the war, it should be on the side of the Germans, not the Allies. But they didn't take away his medals, and the fact of their disagreement didn't take away his epic solo flight.

Madame Marie Curie, because of an affair with a married man with four children, was called Husband Stealer by a mob who surrounded her house on the day she won her second Nobel Prize. But the shouts didn't undo her scientific achievements.

Martin Luther in the 1500's was known for his intolerance and wanted to deport the Jews to Palestine or burn their synagogues when they refused to convert to the church he established. Thomas Edison felt that ethics had no place in business. John F. Kennedy was a womanizer. But all of these people are dead and gone, and their weaknesses don't erase the good they did. To look for the worst of anything is senseless. To try to undo the mistakes of history is an effort in futility.

I wonder how those firefighters feel about George Washington?

As commander-in-chief of the Revolutionary War, he refused the $500 dollar a month salary and asked to be paid for "expenses" instead. He came out almost $400,000 ahead of what his salary would have been. When he became the first President of the United States he offered to work for expenses again. Congress said no, and insisted he take the $25,000 a year the job paid. During his years in office, slaves were a part of the White House staff. He retired from the presidency in 1796, but George Washington's face is on every dollar bill those protesting firemen have in their pockets. I wonder if that "creates a hostile work environment for some minorities"?

I doubt it. Every person in the United States of America falls into one or another of our all too numerous "minority categories". Whatever that category is, it is only a small part of the total person we are.

Those people in California are firefighters. That tells me they are intelligent enough to pass the written test, strong enough to endure the physical requirements, and courageous enough to do one of the most dangerous jobs in the world. They deserve the best safety equipment on the market. Whether it's called the Sam Houston Helmet, or Atilla-the-Hun's-Hat, shouldn't be a factor.

Track trials sounding like court docket

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Make that U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials — and tribulations.

While disgruntled athletes continued to try to crash the contest via the courts, two of the big names in the games saw their hopes for Barcelona dim Monday night.

Carl Lewis, already an also-ran in the 100 meters, made three sluggish attempts in the long jump preliminaries. Mike Powell, who has replaced Lewis as the No. 1 jumper in the world, produced the best leap of the qualifying.

Mary Slaney, the woman who made Olympics synonymous with heartbreak, dragged around the 3,000-meters course to a sixth-place finish and failed to make the team.

PattiSue Plumer won the 3,000 in 8 minutes, 40.98 seconds, the second-fastest in the world this year. Sally Steely was second at 8:41.28 and Annette Peters was third at 8:42.31.

Monday's other winners included Kamy Keshmiri in the men's discus at 211-10, Todd Williams in the men's 10,000 meters in 28:19.82, Donna Mahew in the women's javelin at 189-1 and Debi Lawrence in the women's 10-kilometer (6.2-mile) race walk in a meet-record 45:46.

Meanwhile, the court docket continued to grow.

Butch Reynolds, who is due to race for the first time today in the men's 400 meters thanks to an order by a U.S. Supreme Court judge, was joined — for a few hours — by shot putter Randy Barnes, who also sought help from the courts.

A Charleston, W. Va. judge ruled that Barnes, who was suspended the same day Reynolds was for steroid use, must be allowed to participate in the trials.

Connors ousted in first round

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The magic missing from his game and the enthusiasm drained from his heart, Jimmy Connors left his 20th and probably final Wimbledon as a pained loser.

Connors, who thrilled crowds at the All England Club last year with a display of guts and great tennis, was listless on court Monday and downright depressed after a loss to Luis Herrera.

Today, women's seventh seed Mary Joe Fernandez quickly moved into the second round with a 6-1, 6-0 defeat of Sarah Bentley. All 16 seeds that played Monday also advanced with ease.

Top men's seed Jim Courier,

Wimbledon

halfway to the Grand Slam after victories in the Australian and French opens, defeated Markus Zoeckle 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 to win his 24th straight match.

Second seed Stefan Edberg, a two-time Wimbledon winner, joined Courier in the second round with a 6-1, 6-3, 6-0 defeat of American Steve Bryan.

Defending champion Michael Stich, the third seed this year, swept to a 6-3, 6-3, 6-2 victory over Stefano Pescosolido. Fourth seed Boris Becker, a three-time champion, defeated Omar Camporese

7-5, 6-3, 7-5. Fifth seed Pete Sampras had 10 aces in a 6-1, 6-3, 6-3 victory over Andrei Cherkasov and sixth seed Petr Korda won 7-5, 7-6 (7-4), 6-4 over Christian Bergstrom.

Other seeded men advancing were Goran Ivanisevic (eighth seed), Ivan Lendl (10th), Brad Gilbert (13th), Wayne Ferreira (14th) and Alexander Volkov (15th).

"I get to a point in a match where things just get too painful," said Connors, who produced moments of brilliance but lacked bite against Herrera. "My hips go and my knees get too sore and my back stiffens up."

Rape victim wants Tyson's money

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Tyson's attorney says the beauty pageant contestant whom the boxer was convicted of raping showed her true colors by filing a lawsuit against him.

Desiree Washington, 19, filed suit in U.S. District Court on Monday seeking unspecified damages for assault, battery, false imprisonment and intentional and negligent infliction of emotional distress. Her attorney said Tyson may have passed along a sexually transmitted disease to Washington.

Harvard University law professor Alan Dershowitz, who is handling Tyson's criminal appeal, said his client was the real victim.

"Mike is suffering daily in prison. She doesn't have to be the private, vengeful angel that has to get Mike to apologize for something he didn't do. She's in it for the money. That's what it's all about," Dershowitz said.

During the trial, Tyson's attorneys predicted Washington would use a conviction to win monetary damages from him in a civil suit.

"We couldn't be happier because it finally gives us a vehicle for bringing out the whole truth, for deposing Desiree Washington and for exposing her for what she is: A money-grubbing phony who has done this — as we suspected right from the beginning — for the money," Dershowitz said.

However, Washington's attorney said money was no motive and that the Coventry, R.I., woman filed the lawsuit only after "much soul-searching" and Tyson's continued lack of remorse.

"If he (Dershowitz) thinks that that kind of character assassination is anything more than the second or third rape of my client and is some dignified defense, I think he's got something coming," Boston attorney Deval L. Patrick said.

Sports briefs

Rangers' Franco injured again

ARLINGTON (AP) — Defending American League batting champion Julio Franco of the Texas Rangers sustained a bone bruise when he was hit on the right elbow during batting practice.

Franco was accidentally hit with a fungo bat by bullpen coach Ray Burris during Monday's warmups and was scratched from Texas' starting lineup.

The second baseman was taken to Arlington Memorial Hospital where X-rays uncovered the bone bruise.

The incident adds to Franco's physical woes. He has been slowed by a bone bruise on his right knee that landed him on the disabled list until he was activated June 1.

Franco's knee problems had forced him to miss two straight games until returning to the starting lineup Sunday night. His status will continue to be listed as day-to-day.

Franco is hitting just .211 in 76 at-bats this season.

Blue Jays batter Rangers, 16-7

ARLINGTON (AP) — Dave Winfield had five RBIs and one of four Toronto homers at Arlington Stadium.

The Blue Jays' 20-hit attack backed Jack Morris (9-3), who won his fifth straight game despite allowing nine hits and all seven runs.

A solo homer by John Olerud and Winfield's two-run double keyed a six-run second inning for Toronto, which had nine extra-base hits.

Jose Guzman (6-5) gave up six runs in 1 2/3 innings for the loss.

Candy Maldonado finished 4 for 5 and had his fourth homer, a solo shot in the sixth. Devon White had a two-run homer and Winfield added a three-run shot.

Kevin Reimer and Rafael Palmeiro homered for Texas.

Astros hand Reds 4th straight loss

CINCINNATI (AP) — Brian Williams further solidified his chances of remaining with the Astros as he handed the Reds their fourth consecutive loss, 5-2. The Reds are just one game in front of Atlanta in the NL West.

"He's got a good arm and good stuff," Astros manager Art Howe said. "He's an outstanding athlete, and he adapts very quickly."

Williams was called up from Tuscon last week when Mark Portugal went on the disabled list. He pitched six shutout innings against San Diego, and then held the Reds. "As long as he's winning ballgames, he'll stay," said Howe.

Sears ends commission in auto shops

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Sears, Roebuck and Co. is ending commissions and sales goals in its auto shops — practices blamed for unnecessary repairs.

"When our integrity is on the line, we must do more than just react — we must overreact," Sears Chairman Edward Brennan said Monday.

He said sales at the 868 Sears auto shops across the country fell 15 percent in the 11 days after California moved to revoke or suspend Sears' auto repair license for alleged fraud.

New Jersey officials cited six Sears auto shops last week for recommending unnecessary repairs. And Brennan said an investigation also has begun in Florida.

'Our auto center incentive compensation programs and goal-setting process for service advisers created an environment where mistakes did occur.'

"Our auto center incentive compensation programs and goal-setting process for service advisers created an environment where mistakes did occur," Brennan said. He wouldn't specify the type or number of mistakes.

Until Monday, Sears' 2,700 service advisers, who inspect cars and suggest repairs, had been paid for the amount in parts and services they recommended. The commission system was implemented about three years ago to improve sales.

California consumer protection officials, referring to the system as quotas, said they found widespread fraud because of the practice.

The service advisers now will receive a salary that will approximate their commissions, Brennan said. However, he said he believes there was no willful overcharging.

"The work that was done was done in good faith," he said.

"It is probably the only thing Sears could do right now to restore credibility," said Jack Gillis, an auto repair expert with the Consumer Federation of America in Washington.

Brennan said he hopes the change will lead to settlement of the California charges, which Sears initially denied.

Jim Conran, director of California's consumer agency, said it is premature to discuss a settlement. He said he applauded Sears' efforts, "although we regret they did not occur earlier."

California officials said they launched their investigation in 1990 because consumer complaints about Sears auto service doubled after the commission system began.

The California agency said it found an average of $223 worth of unnecessary work per car by Sears auto shops.

Sears previously defended the commissions as a way of better ensuring customer satisfaction.

On June 15, the New Jersey Department of Consumer Affairs cited six Sears auto centers for recommending unnecessary new parts for secretly rigged cars that needed only an alternator wire reconnected.

Budget

dates will be needed on more than 3,500 people served meals each month, Leonard told commissioners.

"It's more than what I thought," she said of the workload.

"Unbelievable," said Lynn Manchette, the part-time employee who is paid for 30 hours a week to help complete paperwork. "I've gotten it as high as two to three weeks comp (trade-out) time already."

County commissioners, who still need to hear from a few more groups, have already gotten budget requests in private meetings from each county department and a proposed budget is being prepared.

"We're going to try to hold it down to what it was last year," said County Judge Ben Lockhart, who working with county officials managed to cut last year's $6.9 million projected budget by $32,619 from the year before. "It's going to be hard," he said of a similar feat.

County taxpayers could also be facing an increase in the effective property tax rate because of an expected 8 percent drop in mineral value appraisals this year. Home values may increase by 8.3 percent but not enough to offset the drop in mineral values. At current tax rates, the new values translate to a revenue drop of about $173,950 for the county.

Olson is waiting for finalized tax figures and hopes to finish a proposed budget by July 13. "I've still got a lot of work to do."

Asking Monday for the same budget money for this year were:

- City of Big Spring for 911 dispatcher, $23,000.
- City/county ambulance service, $51,000.
- The Heritage Museum, $10,000.
- Howard County Association for Retarded Citizens, $5,400.
- Meals on Wheels program, $8,200.
- Retired Senior Volunteer Program, $900.
- Rape Crisis/Victim Services, $7,200.

Other groups expected to address commissioners in July include the city of Big Spring for shared costs on the city/county health office and civil defense, the U.S. Soil and Water Conservation District and Howard County Outreach.

Fina given 30-day extension

Fina Oil & Chemical Co. on Monday was given a 30-day extension by county commissioners to decide whether to accept a controversial tax abatement approved in April.

The normal 60-day deadline passed June 5, but Fina had requested a 60-day extension to research whether the abatement — which would lock refinery property valuations at a certain level while sections of the plant depreciates — would actually save money.

The abatement, the result of a compromise, is only 17 percent of the amount asked for on $38.1 million in improvements to bring the refinery into compliance with new federal pollution regulations.

Commissioners in March and April cited lack of public support, no permanent jobs being created — although about 100 construction jobs are being sustained a year — and high local gas prices as reasons not to approve the abatement.

If accepted by Fina and then approved by two school districts, the abatement would waive an estimated $444,000 in taxes — $88,000 a year — over five years and Fina would pay $13.8 million in taxes over the expected 30-year life of the projects. The school districts can only accept or reject what the county approved.

with Sterling Price of Tatum, N.M. in the team roping event. They'll compete tonight and Saturday.

All-Star Rodeo Company stock contractor Don Gay of Mesquite will team with Joe Don Griffin of Mansfield. They will rope tonight and Saturday.

Two of the world's top barrel racers also will be on hand. Donna Kennedy of Evant will ride Thursday and Oklahoma City cowgirl Kim West will ride Saturday. Evant is currently ranked eighth and West is ranked ninth.

The Big Spring rodeo is the second oldest in Texas, next to the West of the Pecos. This year, Gay and his All-Star Rodeo Company of Mesquite will supply the stock. Gay is an eight-time world bull riding champion and his stock company will return the rodeo to a more traditional format after a rock 'n' roll ride with Sonora's Bad Company Rodeo.

Also new to the rodeo will be the Kennedy Sausage Percheron Sausage Hitch from Peaster. The hitch consists of four gray percheron horses weighing almost a ton each. Standing over 17 hands tall, the four horses show grace, intelligence, style and prestige.

Also on hand will be Duain Madsen Rodeo Acts from Harrison, Idaho. Madsen and his wife Dee, put on a fine show with two horses, six sheep and two dogs.

The Madsens both are trick riders and have a trained pulling sheep act in which six sheep pull a wagon and a pickup.

Other new features include the U.S. Forest Service and Smokey Bear and the Texas Tech University Masked Rider, Jason Smith of Tahoka.

The rodeo marks the return of Dave Lammers, a Big Spring native who served as Howard College Athletic Trainer from 1983-86.

Lammers will bring a sports medicine van from the Tom Landry Sports Medicine and Research Center in Dallas. The center donated use of the van and the services of Lammers.

In addition to the rodeo, a parade will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday. The parade will begin at 10th and Main streets and move to Third Cathey Construction worker Pat Lamb sits atop the Copenhagen/Skoal rodeo scoreboard and motions the crane operator to swing the boom closer to him as workers prepare the Rodeo Bowl for the 59th annual Big Spring Rodeo beginning Wednesday. Street, to Scurry Street and back to Main.

Anyone wishing to participate in the parade should be present at 10th and Main at 9:30 a.m. Marchers, horseback riders, cars, trucks and floats are welcome. For more information call Harry Middleton at 267-5964.

Also on June 27, there will be a Cowboy Poets Gathering and Singing at the Courthouse Square. Activities get under way at 11 a.m. and continue until 6 p.m.

Some of the entertainers on hand will be Judy Wood of Big Spring, Perry L. Williams of Lubbock, Washburn Jerry of Fort Davis and Frank Hill of Blanco.

Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys will be providing the music at the rodeo dances June 24, 25 and 27 at the Howard County Fair Barn from 9 p.m. until 1 p.m. Tickets are $5 per person.

Returning to the rodeo for the first time in nine years is an electronic scoreboard. The scoreboard will be used to keep competitors and spectators updated on current standings.

An ounce of prevention Vaccine can prevent canine parvovirus

By LYNN HAYES Staff Writer

The old saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," is certainly true when it comes to canine parvovirus.

With vaccinations, your pet can be protected from this often-fatal disease.

Because of its severity, the virus, which appeared in the summer of 1978, is a grave concern for pet owners, breeders and veterinarians.

It usually takes five to seven days for an infected dog to show symptoms of the disease. The animals normally are listless, have temperatures of 104 degrees to 105 degrees F., vomit, and have diarrhea that turns bloody, said Dr. Scott Burt, DVM.

Parvo attacks the lining of the intestine, which consists of finger-like projections called villi. Through the villi, fluids and nutrients are absorbed.

With damaged villi, the efficiency of the intestinal surface area and digestive efficiency are reduced, often resulting in diarrhea, dehydration and death, Burt said.

According to published reports, the parvovirus can reproduce only in cells that are in the process of dividing, and tends to affect those organs in the body that are undergoing rapid growth.

The heart, intestinal lining, lymphoid tissue and bone marrow of a dog are ideal sites for parvoviral infection, the reported said.

If your pet becomes infected, the treatment is costly and, if your pet is under three months of age, is most likely fatal.

"The only treatment is intravenous fluids, antibiotics for secondary infections and anti-inflammatories to make them feel better," Burt explained.

To prevent the infection of canine parvovirus, puppies should be vaccinated at six, 10 and 14 weeks of age; a booster should be administered at six months, and the dog should be vaccinated yearly thereafter.

Although the virus is generally transmitted through direct contact with an infected dog, Burt said it is now believed to be an airborne virus.

"We use to think it was spread by direct contact. Now its believed to be airborne," he said.

The virus can be carried on a dog's hair and feet; in contaminated cages, on shoes or other objects. Dog owners and breeders are warned to clean kennels and exercise areas thoroughly.

To prevent the disease, the mothers need to be vaccinated prior to breeding. This will place antibodies in the milk, which will be passed on to the newborn puppies. However, as soon as they're weaned, the antibodies begin to decrease.

Puppies should be vaccinated at six, 10 and 14 weeks of age; a booster should be administered at six months, and the dog should be vaccinated yearly thereafter, Burt said.

It is less expensive to vaccinate than to treat for the disease, Burt noted.

"It could $300 to treat the animal for the virus. For $18.50, we can give a seven-way vaccine," Burt said.

distemper, adenovirus type-1 and type-2, bordetella, leptospirosis, parainfluenza, parvovirus, rabies and coronavirus.

Because parvo is an extremely stable virus, pet owners are warned to disinfect the living area of an infected pet. The most effective disinfectant is one ounce of bleach mixed with one gallon of water.

"I usually advise pet owners not to get another puppy for six months after they've had a pet die from parvo. However, sometimes in certain circumstances it can't be helped. If they do get a pet, I tell them to disinfect the pet's living area," Burt said.

Wireless artificial heart keeps calf alive 2 1/2 months

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA — A wireless artificial heart that has kept a calf alive for nearly three months could one day permanently replace a failing human heart, researchers say.

The electric heart, developed at the Penn State Medical Center in Hershey, is the only wireless model ever fully implanted, according to one of its creators, bioengineer Gerson Rosenberg.

Penn State hopes to implant the device in a human by the end of the decade.

The calf, a 5-month-old animal named Winston, received his new plastic and metal heart on March 24.

Nine other calves at Hershey received the device, but none survived longer than two weeks.

Other electrically powered artificial hearts have required wires poking through the patient's skin and tethered to a battery pack. One such heart implanted at the Cleveland Clinic lasted up to 45 days in a calf, that clinic's Dr. Hiroaki Harasaki said. Harasaki called the Hershey development "a brilliant achievement."

The wireless heart includes an external coil attached to a battery pack and a coil implanted under the skin. Electricity passes between the coils, which are not connected.

The external coil, 4 inches in diameter and one-eighth of an inch thick, is held in place by an elastic bandage. A human would probably wear the battery pack slung over a shoulder, Rosenberg said.

A person using the device would carry two batteries, each lasting four to five hours. A third, small, implanted battery would allow the patient to take off the external coil for about 30 minutes to take a shower, for example.

The Institute of Medicine, part of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington, estimates that each year 35,000 to 70,000 people could be helped by permanent artificial hearts or heart-assisting pumps.

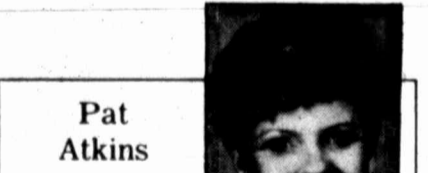

Researchers offered no estimate of the cost of such devices should they come into wide use.

Air-powered artificial hearts were implanted permanently in five humans in the mid-1980s, but they were connected by hoses to bulky external pumps. The longest-surviving of the five, William Schroeder, died in 1986 after a 620-day ordeal.

Dr. Gerson Rosenberg displays a wireless artificial heart, similar to a smaller one implanted nearly three months ago in Winston, a five-month-old calf. Rosenberg says the device, which he developed, is the only wireless model every fully implanted.

participated in the festivities were: Roger Bryan, Layton McGonagill, James Simpson and Francis Connolly, who won a blue ribbon in the Special Olympics games.

We would like to give a special thanks to the Red Cross Volunteers who helped drive the residents to the festival and accompanied them throughout the events.

Care of the mentally ill in VHA nursing Home Care Units has become a major concern in the Veterans Health Administration. As a result of this concern, a conference, "Care of the Mentally Ill in Nursing Home Care Units," was held May 27-29, in Las Vegas, Nev. The Big Spring VHA Long-Term Care Interdisciplinary Care Team was honored by being selected as one of the medical centers west of the Mississippi River to attend.

Members of the team were: Connie Fowler, Mary Tan, Dwight Blackwell, Jordan Yee, Dee Mobley and David Sutton.

Social Work Service recently announced a new affiliation with the University of Texas at Austin. Ron Gray, who is a second-year graduate student, has come aboard as the first student under the new affiliation. He is working toward completion of a two-year program that will result in a master's degree in social work. He will serve a 600-hour internship or practicum. Gray will gain experience in a wide range of VA programs that include medicine, surgery, psychiatry, nursing home care, and substance abuse.

The U.S. government has chosen 550 acres of Dallas grassland as the site for a new national cemetery. The decision ended five months of work by a veterans' group that has lobbied for a cemetery in North Texas. A VA spokeswoman said the site was chosen because it is easily accessible, utilities are available and the rolling hills make an attractive setting. The site will have space for 185,000 interments.

Since 1973, when the VA took over the National Cemetery System, eight new national cemeteries have been established and another has been approved for northern California. Today, the National Cemetery System is composed of 112 operating cemeteries in 38 states and Puerto Rico. Of these, 66 are open to new interments. Total acreage in the system has increased from 4,000 acres to the present 9,900 acres. Interments are expected to increase from 53,665 in 1987 to 80,000 in the year 2000. The VA also provides over 250,000 headstones of markers each year to mark the graves of veterans buried in private and national cemeteries.

Did you know? It is necessary for you to inform the VA of your new address if your monthly benefit check is handled by direct deposit. Failure to keep the VA notified of your current address could result in missing important notices related to your claim. If you are deaf, you may call 1-800-829-4833. VA's TDDD (Telecommunications Device for the Deaf) connection. VA offers nationwide, toll-free service for answering your benefit or other VA related questions, regardless of where you live or where your VA file is located.

Under the Survivors' and Dependents' Educational Assistance Program, VA education benefits are available to children of veterans who died or who are permanently and totally disabled as the result of a service connected disability. Divorces do not affect their eligibility, nor do your children have to be in your custody or supported by you. Children generally must be between 18 and 23 to receive benefits. They may even be married and retain their eligibility.

The proceeds from National Service Life Insurance are considered as income for a VA approved Pension?
