City manager applicant list cut

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Sixteen applicants for the position of city manager — a majority from Texas — were selected Tuesday for further consideration by the Big Spring City Council.

According to council members, more than half the 16 are from Texas and at least two live within a 100-mile radius of Big Spring. Although no particulars were divulged, it is thought at least one applicant is Hispanic. None are women.

No Big Spring residents applied for the job.

The 16, pared from an original list of 125, will be contacted and informed about job requirements and salary, expected to range from $50,000 to $70,000 a year, said Mayor Tim Blackshear. The current city manager's base pay is $55,000 a year.

Blackshear said a list of applicants still interested in the job should be finalized by Thursday.

"We feel like we're going to lose a bunch just through that one phone call (salary)," Blackshear said. "I think we've been getting a bargain with our city manager."

The 16 were pared from a list of 30 that resulted by combining lists of 11 to 15 selections by each council member. Of those 30, one was a woman and one was Hispanic. The council met in a one-hour closed session to pare the list.

Of the 125 applicants, an estimated 15 were from Texas, about a half-dozen from West Texas. A large number were from the East Coast, including about 25 from Florida.

A few applicants were rated high by most council members. Councilman Mark Sheedy said those applicants typically worked their way up to a city manager position, worked at least several years at each job and work in cities facing similar problems that Big Spring does.

But council members said they were impressed by qualifications of all 16 applicants.

"Very adequate," Sheedy said. "Good education, good experience."

"I believe that all of the applicants are working as city managers or have come off of a job as city manager," Blackshear said.

Councilman Corky Harris said that 29 of the 125 applicants were qualified for the job.

"I was surprised at some of the experience they had," said Councilman John Coffey.

A city manager is expected to be hired after the council completes the budget process in September. Hal Boyd resigned the position effective July 31, to return to private business and is finishing the month on accumulated vacation time.

Council approves bonds for paving, flood control

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Readings to authorize bond elections Oct. 10 to fund flood control and street paving projects were approved Tuesday by Big Spring City Council.

An emergency reading to authorize funds for water pipe replacement in the Capehart neighborhood was also approved by the council. That authorization cannot be finalized until after 14 days.

Among other business, the council heard requests from area organizations for annual funding in what was the second of three budget workshops scheduled this week.

The council unanimously approved the first readings for the bond elections and the emergency reading for water pipe funding but not without some criticism and caution:

• $1.1 million in bonds for street paving was approved by voters in 1980 but never used. It will not cost extra for another election because it will be on the same ballot as the flood-control project, but now less can be done for the same amount of money.

"It makes me angry," said Councilman John Coffey. "I think the people of Big Spring have sure been shortchanged."

"I agree," Councilman Charles Beil quickly responded.

• Replacing water pipe in Capehart has been discussed the past few years and previous repairs done, causing Councilman Ladd Smith to question why the authorization for $665,000 in certificates of obligation to replace

Delegates to the Democratic National Convention carry signs touting various causes during Tuesday's session of the convention at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Clinton's nomination expected

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Democrats nominate Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton for president tonight, optimistic that his moderate message is their path back to the White House after 12 years of Republican rule.

After two days of warmups, it was time for the convention's main event: The poll of nearly 5,000 delegates and the traditional roll call of the states, all to stamp Clinton and running mate Al Gore with the party's blessing.

"It's an amazing thing and humbling," Clinton said of the chance he'd be president. "It shows you once again how the system works, to know that somebody who came from a small state from a family without any money ... can at least get this far."

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo would put Clinton's name in nomination. "It will not be a great speech," the frequently eloquent governor said. "Don't stay up."

Clinton is banking on voters not only to stay up but to tune in. And he's hoping praise from Cuomo shores up his support among liberals and minorities worried about Clinton's tugging the party to the center.

Keeping to his convention-week routine, Clinton was up early today to jog in Central Park. Smiling broadly, he chatted with onlookers about running and the weight he put on during the campaign and has been struggling to lose.

Jogging also "helps you deal with the tension," added Clinton, who showed no signs of feeling any.

He was to continue working on Thursday night's acceptance speech after meeting today with Nelson Mandela, the president of the African National Congress. The South African said on NBC's "Today" program that he was not sure whether he would appear at the convention tonight since any suggestion of favoring the Democrats "would not be altogether desirable for us."

The last bit of party paperwork was wrapped up Tuesday night.

Quashed were platform challenges by vanquished rival Paul Tsongas; overwhelmingly supported was a platform with Clinton's tough language on law and order, welfare reform and willingness to use military force.

Tsongas was speaking tonight, as was former California Gov. Jerry Brown, who rejected a proffered deal of a prime time speaking slot in return for his endorsement of Clinton.

Party leaders crossed their fingers that Brown, as he promised the party chairman, would urge supporters to work for Democratic victory in November.

Cunningham resigns as medical center director

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Scenic Mountain Medical Center is undergoing administrative changes as Managing Director Ed Cunningham prepares to change jobs effective July 31.

Cunningham will leave to take a similar position at Charter Regional Hospital of Cleveland, a small city north of Houston, he said.

Cunningham will be leaving Hallmark Home Health Care Inc., the parent company of SMMC. Cunningham worked for Hallmark as the director of a group of hospitals owned by the Atlanta, Ga.-based corporation before spending two years as the administrators of SMMC.

"It's got a better benefit package and the whole nine yards," Cunningham said. "They made me an offer I just couldn't refuse."

Hallmark should be announcing the name of Cunningham's replacement later today. Hallmark officials would not release the information earlier because the hospital staff are to be advised first in a formal announcement, said Donna Murray of the Atlanta office.

It will not be known until 1 p.m. whether a firm decision even has been made, Cunningham said.

Bob Deuschle from the Hallmark Corporate office is at the hospital performing bookkeeping tasks awaiting the arrival of the new controller, Deuschle said. Sylba "Sam" McGiness is expected to begin the job on July 27, replacing Fran Tinnin, Cunningham said.

The hospital opened its new geriatric, psychiatric center on May 1, and is working on initiating a new occupational medicine program, Cunningham said.

The occupational medicine program will be a primary concern of the new managing director, Cunningham said. "The new person will have to take the bull by the horns and run with it."

Officials of the Malone Hogan Clinic adjacent to the hospital could not immediately be reached for comment on how the change in administration will effect the clinic.

Reading program enchants children

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

Reading outside the classroom during summer vacation may not sound like fun to some children, but to more than 500 local children reading is summer fun.

The Howard County Library sponsored two reading clubs throughout the first six weeks of summer vacation for children ranging in ages from toddler to high school. The "Read to Me" program is for children in the first grade or under. The "Summer Reading Program" is for second grade to the ninth grade age group.

Each group has a theme for the session. The younger age group's theme was "Be a Book Buccaneer," and the other group focused on the theme, "Discover the World of Reading."

There were 191 children enrolled in "Read to Me" and 365 in the older reading group.

Throughout the program, the younger group listened to Felice Logan, program coordinator, tell stories, read to them or act out scenes. They also participated in a treasure hunt, arts and crafts activities and watched films.

"Some kids are here everyday and others come once a week for program," Logan said. "The children read more than 250 books (in the Read to Me program) and some children in the Summer Reading Program have read more than 300 books."

Logan says the program was developed by the Texas Librarians Association to promote reading, contribute to reading throughout the summer months and help children become more comfortable with using the library.

The children are not taught to read in the program, but are encouraged to read at their level. Parents are also encouraged to stay for the hour-long program and participate by helping their children select books.

Many of the children, who start with Read to Me, will return each summer continuing with The Summer Reading Program and returning as volunteers during their high school years.

"Olivia Trevino's four children have participated in the summer program for the past four years. Her oldest daughter, Beatrice, 11, read 80 books this year. Beatrice says she thinks the program is fun and she also enjoys volunteering to work during the summer session. Like Beatrice, other past participants return to the summer program to help out as volunteers. The volunteers record the books checked out and assist locating books.

The Summer Reading Program is different from the Read to Me Program in the aspect that Logan does not read to the participants. Instead guest speakers are invited to give presentations.

"This past year we had Tim Haynes (Big Spring High School theater director) talk to the children about theater and pantomime," Logan said. "We also had guest speakers from Alaska and Tonga, a Philippine island."

The session will close this weekend with a party for each program. Participants will receive certificates stating they have completed the program.

The Howard County Library is open Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5:45 p.m.

Approval needed for Texas to regain control of prisons

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — A federal judge's approval is all that stands in the way of Texas taking back control of its prison system.

Attorneys representing inmates in the Ruiz lawsuit said Tuesday they signed a settlement that previously was approved by Texas Attorney General Dan Morales.

"Basically, we are ending Ruiz," said attorney Donna Brorby of San Francisco. The case is named after plaintiff-inmate David Ruiz, who first filed suit in 1972.

The settlement must be approved by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler before removal of federal supervision of the Texas prison system, which is one of the largest in the nation.

The Texas prison system had 48,585 inmates on Tuesday, just 16 shy of the maximum allowed. Meanwhile, there are more than 15,000 inmates in county jails awaiting transfer.

Morales, in New York for the Democratic National Convention, said: "We are encouraged. Our objective from the beginning has been to return control of the state prison system to state officials. This is a positive development toward that end."

Selden Hale, chairman of the Texas Board of Criminal Justice, said the signing of the agreement marks the probable end of the lawsuit.

"It's sort of a historical reality that Ruiz had to be ended. It's sort of like the Berlin Wall coming down. It was just inevitable," Hale said.

Under the agreement, Texas will be able to place about 3,500 more inmates into already overcrowded prisons and new prisons within a year, Hale said.

The settlement would remove court-imposed population caps on future prisons, and allow the state to use tents, or abandoned military installations for certain kinds of facilities.

The proposal would save the state about $100 million that it would have to pay to counties for inmates backed up in county jails, officials said.

In 1980, Justice declared that confinement in the Texas prison system constituted cruel and unusual punishment. His opinion cited overcrowding, under staffing, substandard medical care, and routine brutality by guards and inmates who were used as guards.

After more than a decade of massive spending increases to build new prisons, state officials said they had earned the right to take back control of the system.

But attempts to end the lawsuit hit snags, resulting in fights between Morales and the inmates' attorneys for most of the year.

The inmates' attorneys and Criminal Justice Board had reached a settlement, but Morales rejected it, calling it a "surrender agreement" that would have maintained federal court control.

Ms. Brorby had dismissed those claims as political posturing by Morales.

Another round of courtroom fighting was set to start Wednesday on whether Morales could reject the settlement accepted by the Criminal Justice Board.

But that hearing was canceled because of the inmates' attorneys agreement to sign a settlement that Morales had offered in May and already signed.

Ms. Brorby said she signed the agreement because she believes Texas prison officials are committed to running a constitutional prison system.

"We were then and remain convinced that it's time for Ruiz to end," she said.

War declared in fight against violent kids

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO — An escalation of violent crimes committed by juveniles in Bexar County means "we've got some pretty violent kids out there," a law enforcement official says.

Statistics show that the number of juveniles in the county arrested on a charge of murder has more than tripled during the first six months of 1992. There have been 15 arrests so far this year, compared with 4 a year ago, officials said Monday.

"Those numbers mean we've got some pretty violent kids out there on the streets," Joe Castillo, the county's chief juvenile probation officer, said.

Authorities have a statistic of their own they hope will send a clear message to youthful offenders and stem the tide of violence on the streets.

More juveniles are being certified to stand trial as adults for crimes such as capital murder, murder, attempted murder, aggravated robbery and aggravated sexual assault.

Officials said that during the first six months of 1992, the county juvenile court certified 18 youths to stand trial as adults compared with six during the same time last year.

"We have a new philosophy in the district attorney's office. We are going to hold people accountable for their actions and that includes these mean little children," District Attorney Steve Hilbig said. "If kids commit serious crimes, they are going to face stiff punishment."

During the first half of this year, 12 juveniles were accused of trying to kill someone, while last year, seven were referred to the authorities on charges of attempted murder.

"The number of homicides by youths are not going up, per se," Castillo said, "but the number of offenders is because youths who run in gangs and commit crimes together are being held accountable, whether one person pulled the trigger or not."

"The number of juveniles being charged with these serious crimes, however, is a reflection of what we've seen happening in large cities all across the nation," Castillo said.

In Houston, 40 juveniles suspected of being involved in homicides have been referred to authorities during the first half of the year, compared with 23 youths during the same period last year, Harris County statistics show.

Suit filed against LULAC

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO — A former San Antonio teacher has filed a lawsuit against the League of United Latin American Citizens, claiming she was forced to resign because of the actions of the Hispanic organization and two other persons.

The lawsuit was filed Tuesday by Lisa Bagby, who now lives in Alaska and seeks damages in excess of $4.5 million.

The former middle-school reading teacher also named Janie

Adame, a San Antonio resident, and Rosa Rosales, state LULAC director, as defendants.

The lawsuit claims that on last Oct. 8 when she was teacher at Jeremiah Rhodes Middle School, she had a discussion with a class about the importance of students becoming responsible for the completion of their assignments.

"Among other things, a reference was made to the high incidence of dropouts in the Hispanic community," the lawsuit states.

The lawsuit claims that actions by Adame and Rosales forced her to resign.

Tornado injures 28 in Indiana

The ASSOCIATED PRESS
KENDALLVILLE, Ind. — A tornado destroyed a dozen homes and injured at least 28 people in this Indiana town as violent storms continued in the Midwest. Flooding prompted the mayor of Marion to urge people to evacuate their homes.

Heavy rains and high winds also pummeled neighboring Ohio for a third day Tuesday, downing trees and power lines in the north and damaging two homes and two barns.

Tornadoes touched down Tuesday near Dundee, Mich., at Ft. Myers, Fla., and Stafford Springs, Conn., the National Weather Service said.

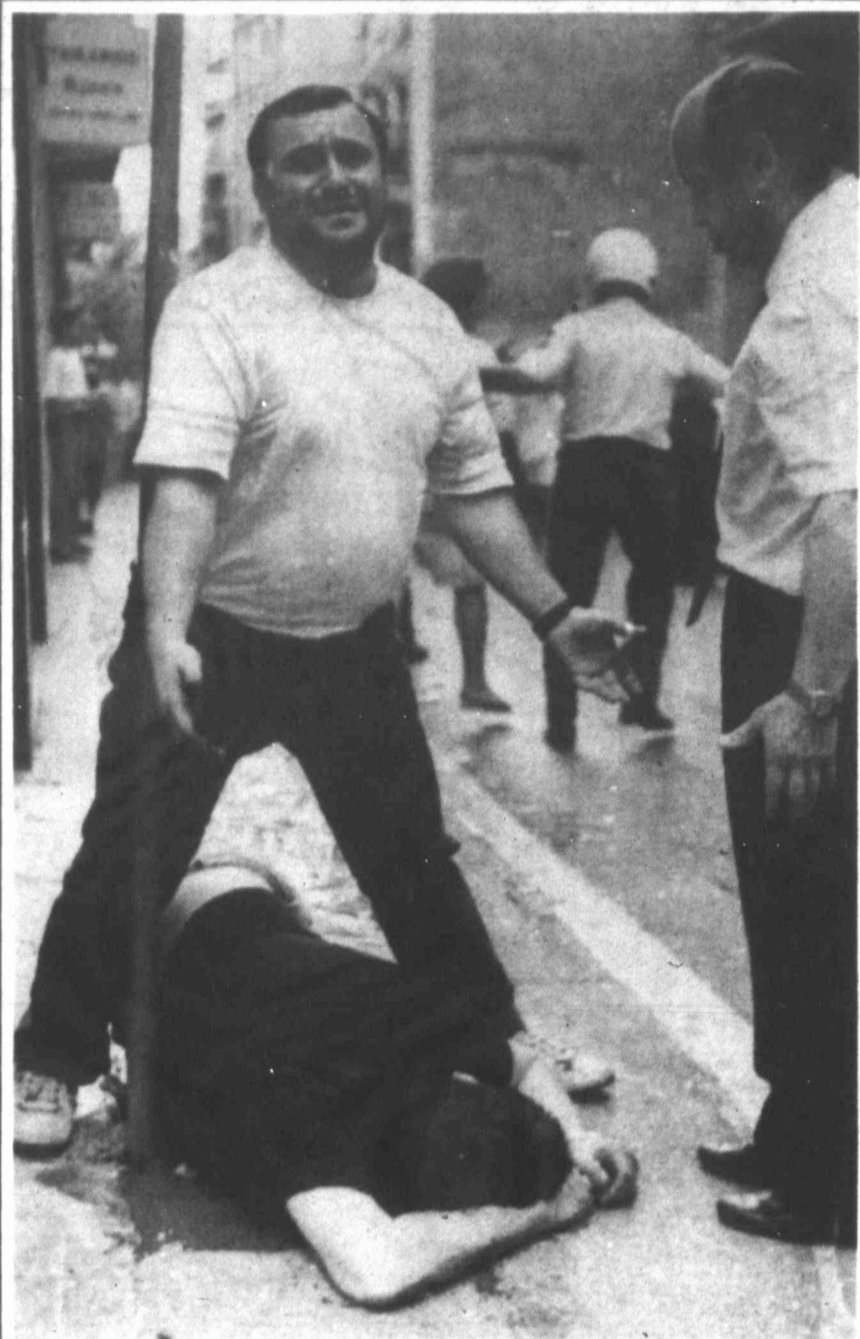

Heavy rains in northern Indiana pushed the Mississinewa River in Marion to more than 5 feet above flood stage. Marion Mayor Ron Mowery declared a state of emergency and urged people to evacuate their homes. "Those people who remain are endangering their lives," he said.

Officials at the State Emergency Management Agency, however, said the levee was holding steady early today, less than half a foot below the level that would mandate an evacuation.

More rain was expected today in central Indiana, which could aggravate some already overflowing areas.

In Kendallville, about 20 miles north of Fort Wayne, a tornado Tuesday destroyed 12 homes and heavily damaged 13 others, said Alden Taylor, spokesman for the state agency.

Scandal rocks Brazil's hero

Citizens want Collor out

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — The scandal that has engulfed the government of President Fernando Collor de Mello, his family and inner circle has left Collor a shadow of the conquering hero who swept into office in 1990.

Today, isolated in the presidential palace, he scribbles notes to his press secretary about a mysterious "coup syndicate" he says is behind the scandal.

A poll in early July of 11 major cities indicated that 53 percent of Brazilians want him to step down because of charges involving a close Collor associate accused of graft, extortion and influence-peddling.

Collor has denied any wrongdoing, but not many people seem to believe him. Even if he stays in office, he is linked in the public mind to a crude attempt to raid the henhouse.

"The government is over," said Alexandre Barros, head of political consultants Early Warning of Brasilia. "The number of 'smoking guns' is incredible."

How did things go so wrong, so fast? Graft and corruption ran rampant during the 1964-1985 military dictatorship, and persisted under civilian rule before Collor took office.

But it's never been so noticeable as in the past two years.

One reason is that newspapers are freer to expose wrongdoing. Sniffed political columnist Gilberto Dimenstein in the Folha de Sao

In addition, the distribution of income is as skewed now as it was in colonial times, when a tiny elite ruled Brazil and plundered its wealth.

According to a U.N. report released in April, Brazil's richest 20 percent has 26 times the income of the bottom 20 percent — in a time of recession, record unemployment, and 20 percent monthly inflation.

Collor, however, was born to privilege, heir of a wealthy and politically powerful provincial clan with close ties to the military rulers.

Rich, handsome and athletic, he attended the best schools here and in Paris, returning to take over his family's news media empire.

Early on, Collor learned the uses of power and connections.

He was 14 when his father, Sen. Arnon de Mello, shot a colleague on the senate floor. The death was ruled accidental — he was aiming at someone else.

Collor rose quickly in Alagoas, a notoriously violent and corrupt state in Brazil's poor northeastern sugar cane belt. He would beat on his chest and defy hired assassins to shoot him, winning points with voters as a macho man.

In 1979, the military regime named him mayor of Maceio, the state capital. Three years later he was elected to Congress. In 1986 he became governor.

Bosnia's factions attend peace talks

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Pledging to seek peace, federal Premier Milan Panic began forming a government today while representatives of Bosnia's warring factions agreed to make fresh efforts to end their civil war.

All three ethnic groups in Bosnia's conflict — Muslims, Serbs and Croats — accepted invitations to attend European Community-sponsored peace talks in London today. Previous EC-sponsored talks have failed.

In London, the Foreign Office said EC mediator Lord Carrington would first meet separately with the three leaders. A spokesman said it was not clear whether all three Bosnian factions would subsequently meet together.

The three leaders are Radovan Karadzic, leader of the Bosnian Serbs; Bosnian Foreign Minister Haris Silajdzic, who represents Muslims; and Mate Boban, the leader of a Croat militia who earlier this month declared a separate Croat republic within Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The new Yugoslav premier, Milan Panic, has encouraged foreign efforts to end the conflict.

Fund schools with lottery

Can Texas properly fund secondary education on its own? At the present rate, it doesn't seem possible. Our elected officials, from Gov. Ann Richards on down, have been unable — or unwilling — to properly fund our education system. Oh, they've anxiously laid blame at the feet of others but still are yet to accomplish anything. With a lottery that has already reached 25 percent of its 12-month goal after just 30 days, one would think we could provide an educational system second to none. We could designate the educational system as the primary recipient of lottery proceeds and increase funding to school districts, increase teacher salaries and improve the quality of education provided our youth. Instead, we prefer to send that money down the black hole known as the General Fund and let our future — our school children — drift in open water. It's time for the people of Texas to send a message to our elected officials in Austin. It's time to tell them we're tired of the party politics and we're tired of the cutesy one-liners. If we had officials as anxious to serve the needs of the people of this state as they are to get reelected, perhaps something could be accomplished. This is more important than getting reelected, folks. This is the future of our state.

Full-blown carnival on 7th Ave., NY, NY

NEW YORK — God was preaching at 34th and Seventh Avenue a little before noon today, but nobody was paying much attention. That's the way it is in New York. Nobody pays much attention to the don't-walk signs, either.

James J. Kilpatrick

Maybe the old gentleman was praying for the Democrats. It was hard to tell. God had white hair and a white beard and the round, red face of a cop who has stayed too long in the sun, but he was speaking mostly in tongues. The passers-by were speaking mostly in Spanish. Or Swahili.

The Rev. Lord had plenty of competition. In front of Madison Square Garden a large black man was baying against abortion. A young white woman was arguing with him. Nearby an earnest fellow was passing out leaflets on behalf of Jews for Jesus. Next to him was a fellow promoting a pizza palace on 35th.

The occasional visitor to Manhattan tends to forget the abounding madness. Yesterday evening a high-backed cattle truck got stuck in traffic right in front of the Garden. The truck was carrying a sextet of lady mud wrestlers. I am staying in a nearby hotel, next door to a clairvoyant, one flight up, who reads the tarot cards. Around the corner is an adult video center offering, in addition to the videocassettes, an absolutely astounding variety of rubber goods.

In the midst of these hustlers, the Democrats put on a pale show. Yes, Barbara Jordan sounds like God, but when you have the real thing erupting on 34th Street, it's not easy to be heard. Especially when Elijah himself is preaching at 32nd.

For want of anything else to talk about at the convention, we are talking about Al Gore, the vice presidential nominee. A comely young staffer from the national committee engaged an old reporter in eager conversation. She had the look of a spaniel who has just fetched the slippers. Please, sir, isn't Sen. Gore a great choice? Indeed, said the aging scribe, a most excellent choice. If the lady had been equipped with a tail she would have wagged it.

Well, Gore is a good choice. He's not likely to hurt Clinton, and that's all Clinton has a right to ask. Unlike some other vice presidential nominees of recent memory, Gore is in most ways an asset. He is a personable fellow; he holds working credentials as a Southerner; he should appeal to the Gucci-Pucci crowd. He has bedded no bimbos, so far as we know. His voting record makes him a liberal, but if his liberalism constantly flickers, it rarely flames.

It is a matter of desperation, nothing more, that has us concentrating on Gore. We all know — the whole political world knows — that people will not be voting in November because of Al Gore's place on the ticket. The November election will have mighty little, in a positive sense, to do with Bill Clinton either.

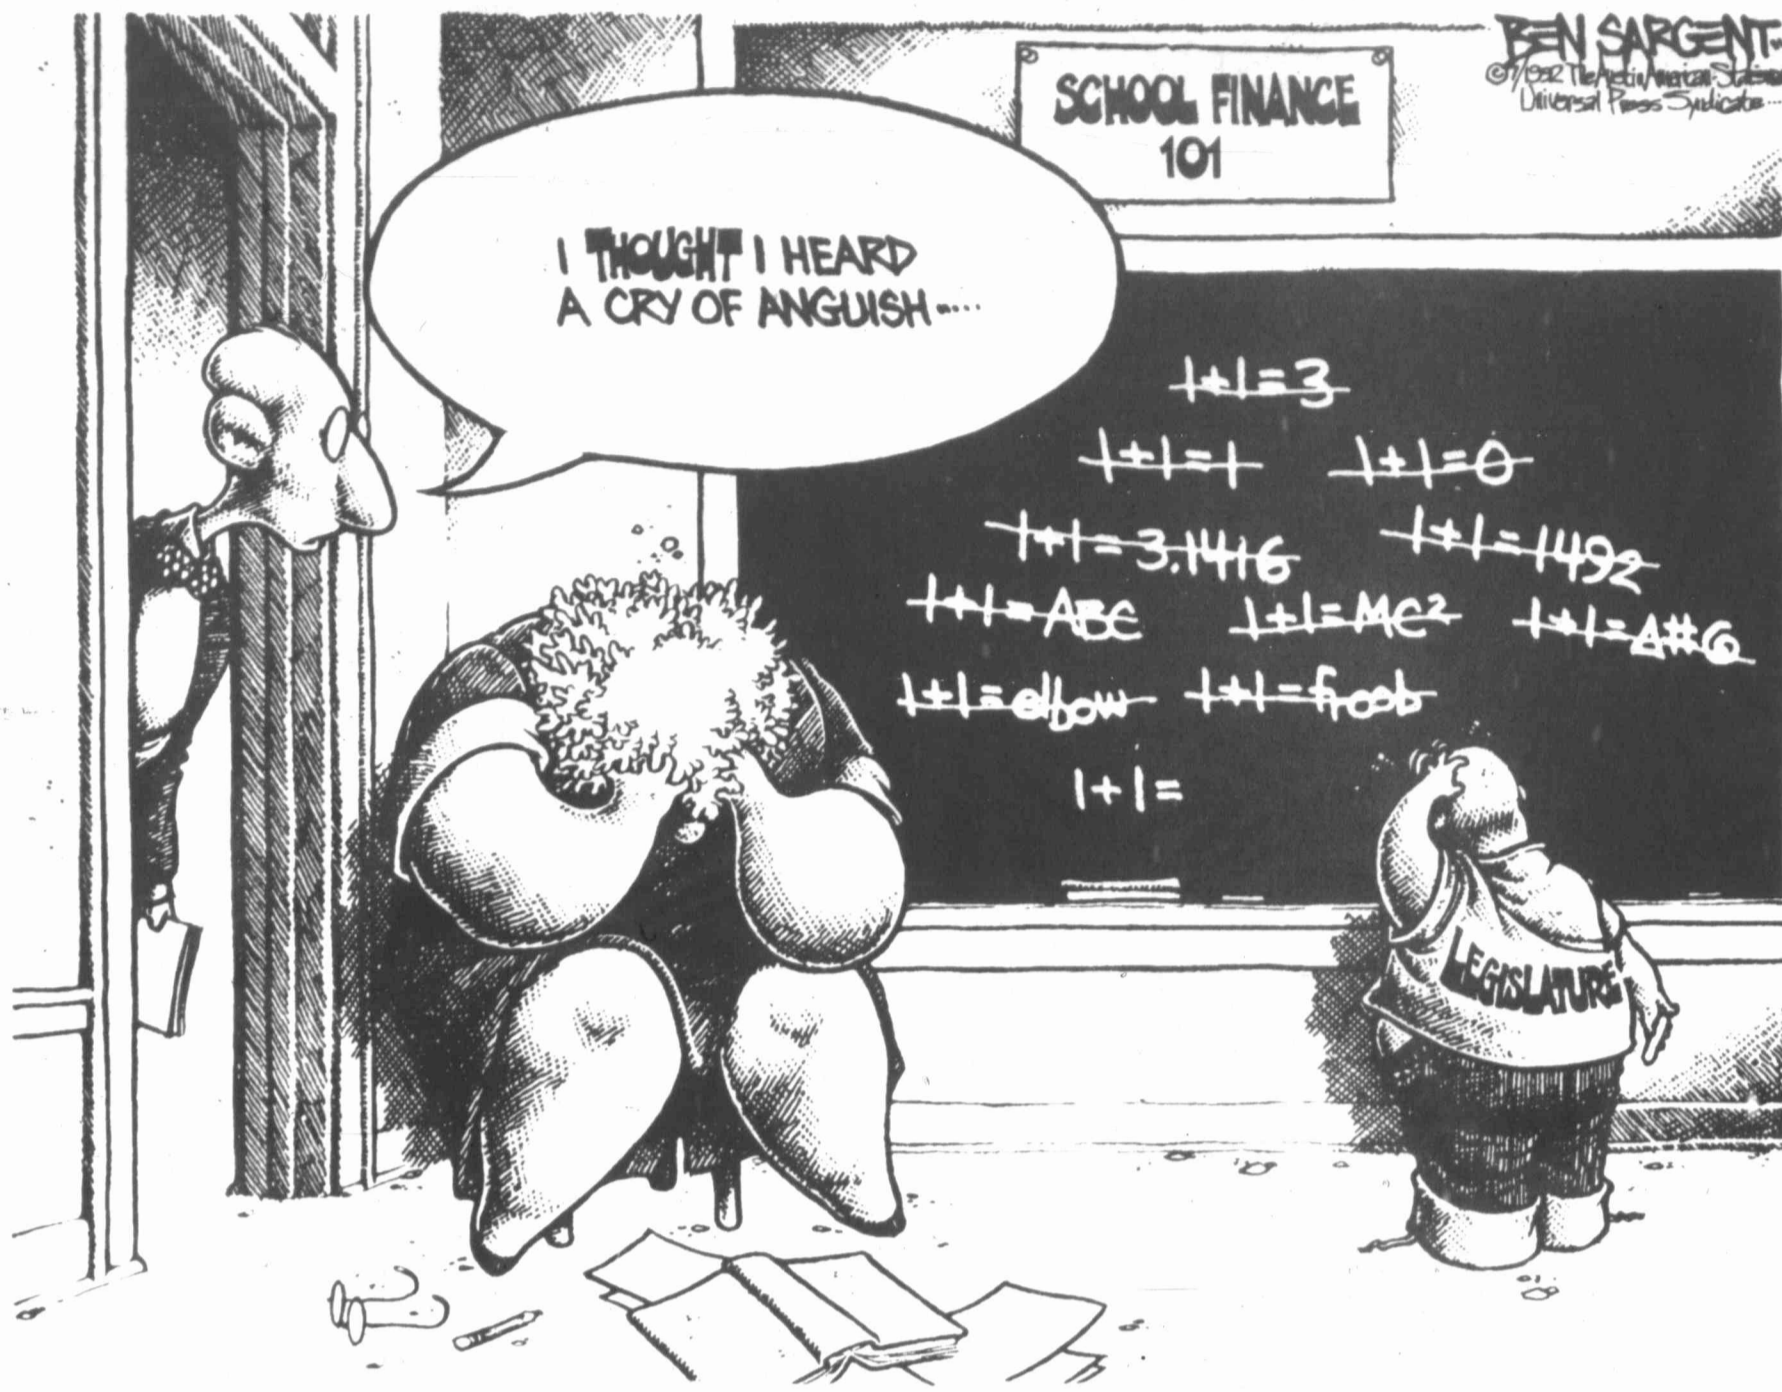

This whole election amounts to a referendum on George Bush. Has he done so poor a job that he should be turned out of office? Yes or no? If the answer is no, there's an end to it. Bush will return to the Oval Office. If a majority of the voters in states having 270 electoral votes decide the time has come to give George the old heave-ho, that's it. Neither Clinton nor Gore will need to engage in heavy lifting. Out Bush goes.

The state of the economy will be the deciding factor. If the figures are improving in mid-October, Bush should make it. If unemployment still is high, if the housing market is anemic and auto sales are slumping, it will mean disaster for the GOP. Turn the economic factors the other way, and Clinton-Gore will be lucky to carry Arkansas, Tennessee and the District of Columbia.

This will be a young ticket that leaves the Garden Thursday night, armpit to armpit, with wives, children and a disgruntled Jesse Jackson trailing somewhere in the van. In the political calculus, it is well established that young whippersnappers vote less avidly than old geezers. Will the baby boomers see Clinton-Gore as their very own? Will Southern blacks vote in droves for the Democratic duo? Will Southern whites scorn the Southern boys at the top and rally in the end to the president?

We pundits are in business to provide sage answers to such penetrating questions. After a while I may take it up with God on 34th Street. Or I may go next door, one flight up on Seventh Avenue, and see what Madame Sostris has to say.

Clinton-Gore has 'Dixiecrat' sound

Bill Clinton's selection of Al Gore as his running mate is unusual at best.

Traditionally, it has been felt that a ticket representing two regions of the country draws more support.

Clinton-Gore brings back memories of 1948 when the Southern Democrats decided they weren't being treated fairly and ran as "Dixiecrats" — with South Carolina Gov. Strom Thurmond running for president and Mississippi Gov. Fielding L. Wright for vice president.

The Thurmond-Wright ticket was officially known as the States' Rights Democrats and they sought the White House because of dissatisfaction with Harry Truman's civil-rights program and the platform adopted at the Democratic National Convention.

And while Clinton-Gore is far from a Dixiecrat ticket, it still raises the question of viability on a national basis for two men from the Deep South — Arkansas and Tennessee — to run on the same ticket.

Back in '48, Thurmond received 39 electoral votes. Dixiecrats were actually chosen as the official Democratic delegates in Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina but Truman carried the South.

The States' Rights Party ran in the states that generally made up the Confederacy and got virtually no support from outside the region.

But even though they ran a regional race with no hope of winning the White House, the Thurmond-Wright ticket picked up more electoral votes than George McGovern did in 1972, only 10 less than Jimmy Carter in 1980 and 26 more than Fritz Mondale in 1984.

Those three Democratic presidential hopefuls ran multi-region tickets — with McGovern and Sargeant Shriver, Carter and Mondale and Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro — and got less than 100 electoral votes combined.

The 1992 election will be different than any before us.

True, there have been third party candidacies before, but none that look to be as strong as the still unofficial campaign of Ross Perot.

Back in '68, George Wallace's American Independent Party picked up 46 electoral votes — which stands as the strongest effort ever by a third party. Indiana's John Anderson ran in 1980, but failed to garner an electoral vote, and we seem to have Libertarians and LaRouchies just about every election these days.

But never an H. Ross Perot. Perot's candidacy, along with what seems to be a widespread dissatisfaction with George Bush, could help Clinton-Gore in areas they might not normally fare well.

The question remains, however, as to whether or not a dyed-in-the-wool New Englander or Californian or Southerner from Chicago will vote for an Arkansas-Tennessee combo.

And an even larger question looms in regards to what support Perot will pull from Bush and Clinton and whether or not the race will wind up in the House of Representatives.

Only time will tell.

'Red Baron' has lack of tolerance

I was driving the other day, going about 45, when this idiot pulled out of a side street directly in front of me.

Luckily, my cat-like reactions enabled me to get my car stopped before we collided.

Had this fool been bitten by a snake and was rushing to the emergency room for treatment?

No. A few hundred yards from where he pulled out in front of me, he turned into a convenience store, probably to buy a copy of National Enquirer to find out if any 90-year-old grandmothers had given birth to Elvis's love child lately.

I thought of pulling into the convenience store and hitting the driver of the car over the head with a tire tool, or whatever blunt instrument I could find.

The problem with doing something like that, however, is you give the other person the opportunity to get his own blunt instrument and bonk you over your head.

So I drove on. But I thought,

Lewis Grizzard

what if I had an automobile with a button I could push and the headlights would roll back and two machine guns would come out in their place.

I could have blown this person completely off the road with a few rounds from my machine guns.

I'm the Red Baron and there goes my target, smoking to the side of the road.

In this day of aggressiveness on our highways (they're already shooting one another on California interstates) it would be nice to have some built-in protection in our automobiles.

The Japanese haven't thought of this, so it's another way American automakers could get a leg up on their rivals.

Know what else I'd like to have in my car?

A button I could push that would release nails or some sort of super-slick substance out of the rear of my car as a means of getting even with anybody tailgating me at 65 on the interstate.

"Take that!" I would laugh.

I got this idea, by the way, from a James Bond movie. Nobody tailgated Double-0 and got a way with it.

How about people who pull into the passing lane on an interstate and go 45, backing up traffic for two states?

I could use my front-end machine guns or I could push another button and a giant claw would come out from under my car. I would maneuver the claw underneath the inconsiderate driver ahead of me, lift his or her car, and then deposit it over in the right lane where it should have been in the first place.

For anybody who honked behind me .0001 second after the light turned green, I would have a special tube in the rear of my car that would spray some foul substance like chicken leavings or green pond scum all over the offending windshield to my rear.

For some kid who pulled beside me at a light with his windows down and a tape blaring some unholy cacophony at a decibel level that would rival the noise the Concord makes on takeoff, I would have a button that would shoot some sort of laser beam into his car, and his tape would no longer play anything but Bing Crosby singing Irish lullabies.

And if I saw somebody driving a Japanese-made car and it happened to rub me the wrong way, I would have the ability to go airborne and hover over the hated Honda and drop leaflets on it that said, "America — love it or leave it — and buy a Chrysler next time."

I feel better just thinking about all this. Eat my dust.

Steers bats remain cold against El Paso

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

MIDLAND — The Big Spring Steers picked a bad time to go into a hitting slump.

The Steers, competing in the Senior League All-Star tournament (ages 14-15), hit the ball well in their first two games. But the last two games of the tournament were a different story — with the team netting zero runs. Last night the Steers were shutout by an opponent for the second consecutive time in an 11-0 loss to El Paso.

The loss eliminated the Steers from the tournament with a fifth place finish. Big Spring breezed through the first two games of the tournament, scoring 18 runs on 17 hits against East Odessa and West Odessa. The last two games — a 7-0 loss to Midland American on Monday and Tuesday's loss — they managed just five hits.

Steers coach Brad Leniz simply stated that there was no offense. "Our bats went cold," said Leniz. "The pitching we faced either game wasn't anything we hadn't already faced. We hoped to go ahead and get somebody on base and then start it off with a hit. That would get us pumped up. But we didn't get the hit when we needed it."

All-Star Tournament

El Paso pitcher Eric Laredo made sure the Steers didn't get "pumped up." He allowed three hits, a second inning single by catcher Cody Treadaway, a double by first baseman Trey Terrazas in the fourth and a single by shortstop Frankie Flores in the seventh. He went the distance, striking out 11 and walking two.

El Paso harassed Big Spring starter Gabriel Rodriguez and reliever Terrazas, who pitched the last two innings, for 13 hits. Duran, Walker Paul, Will Steinmkn, Danny Duran, J.R. Carrena and Laredo got two hits each. Catcher Duran and Laredo drove in two and three runs respectively.

After a scoreless first inning, El Paso got untracked in the second with three runs and three hits. An error in the outfield, a dropped fly ball, started it all.

In the third inning El Paso repeated its second inning total via four hits. A Big Spring double play prevented further damage. El Paso held a comfortable lead, 6-0.

The El Pasoans added two runs in the fourth and three more in the sixth for the final scoring. Laredo got his shutout when his defense made two plays in the seventh inning to squelch any resemblance of a Big Spring rally. He picked Flores off at second and Brien Burchett, who had walked, was thrown out trying to steal second.

In today's action, the Big Spring Internationals (13-year-old) go for the Junior League title against Midland National at 5:30 at Hogan Park. If Midland National wins, another game will follow.

Junior circuit romps Nationals

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Hey, junior! Great game.

Ken Griffey Jr., Cal Ripken Jr. and Sandy Alomar Jr., three baseball brats who grew up in ballparks, started a record-shattering show Tuesday night as the American League embarrassed the Nationals 13-6 in the All-Star game.

The Americans rapped seven straight singles, capped by hits from Ripken, Griffey and Alomar, during a four-run first inning to set one mark, and battered Tom Glavine for nine hits to establish another. Eventually, it added up to a record fifth straight victory and a record-tying run total for the AL.

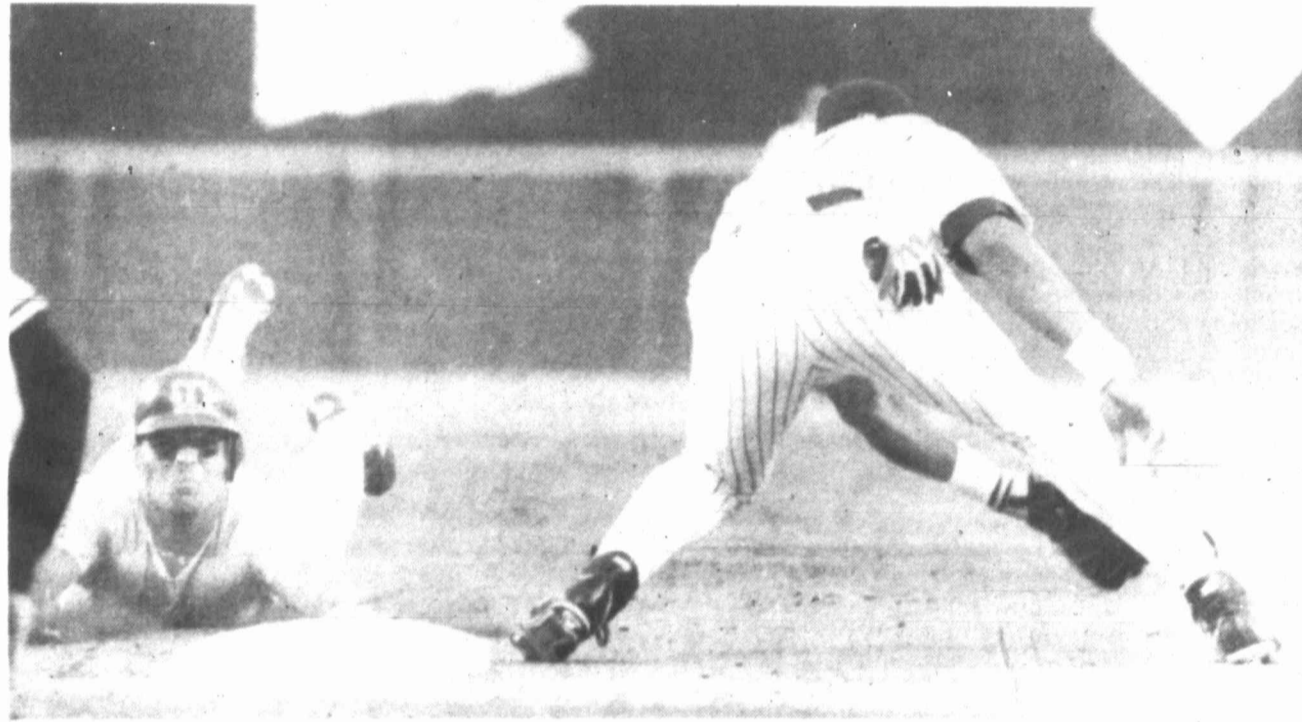

The American League — the junior circuit, an appropriate nickname in this case — also shattered the All-Star record with 19 hits, two more than the AL gathered in 1954.

Things went so well all night long for the Americans that even a pitcher, Cleveland's Charles Nagy, added to the hit total. Nagy, wearing a Texas Rangers' batting helmet in his first major-league at-bat, beat out an infield chopper in the three-run eighth for the first hit by an AL pitcher in the All-Star game since Ken McBride in 1962.

That hit came long after President George Bush had left the ballpark. The president attended his second consecutive All-Star game and was roundly booed as he accompanied Hall of Famer Ted Williams onto the field for the ceremonial first pitch.

Griffey, of Seattle, was the best of all the juniors, going 3 for 3 with a solo home run, a double and an RBI single. That won him the MVP award, just like his dad, Ken Sr., in 1980, and they became the only father-son combination to homer in All-Star play.

"It was kind of weird, when I hit it, I didn't think it was going," Griffey, 22, said of his first home run in Texas Rangers' Ivan Rodriguez tries unsuccessfully to stretch his double into a triple before San Diego Padres' Gary Sheffield swings to make the tag in the seventh inning of the All-Star game Tuesday in San Diego.

his third All-Star game. "When it went out, I thought of my dad hitting one in 1980."

NL manager Bobby Cox also had a flashback at that moment.

"I saw Ken Griffey Jr. at Moeller High School in Cincinnati. He was the best high school prospect I've ever seen," Cox said.

Oakland's Mark McGwire contributed a two-run single in the first inning — which matched the All-Star record for most runs in the opening frame — and Ruben Sierra's two-run homer capped a four-run burst in the sixth off Bob Tewksbury of St. Louis that made it 10-0.

Travis Fryman of Detroit drove in Nagy with a single in the eighth, and the AL added two more runs on a double by Roberto Kelly of the Yankees.

The AL's 13 runs tied the record for the most by a team in an All-Star game. The Americans won 13-3 in 1983.

"As a joke before the game I said 'Let's get 15 or 20 hits tonight,'" AL manager Tom Kelly said. "I didn't think we'd do it."

Kevin Brown picked up an easy win, needing only 10 pitches in the first inning. Jack McDowell took over in the second, and Kelly let the rest of his staff work one inning each.

The NL's first run came in the sixth off Mark Langston on an RBI single by San Diego's Fred McGriff, and it got three more on an opposite-field line-drive homer by Will Clark of the Giants in the bottom of the eighth.

Big Roberts' bases-loaded single drove in two runs with two out in the ninth for the final NL runs. With no more hitters on the bench, Cincinnati reliever Norm Charlton batted and struck out on three pitches from Oakland reliever ace Dennis Eckersley.

In the last seven games, six of them won by the AL, the NL has managed a grand total of 16 runs. Still, the NL leads the series 37-25-1.

But any doubts that all the scoring had gone out of All-Star games, particularly those that began in the West Coast twilight, were dispelled right away. Who knows, maybe it had something to do with odd, new baseballs they used, ones with navy and orange stitching.

Anyway, Glavine, who leads the majors with five shutouts, retired Roberto Alomar on a grounder to begin the night before it got real bad, real quick.

All-Stars stand tall in Midland and Odessa

The Big Spring All-Stars held their own in baseball play over the past two weeks.

Local teams competed well in all three divisions, Little League (ages 11-12), Junior League (age 13) and Senior League (ages 14-15).

The squad that fared the best was the Big Spring International Junior League All-Stars, which plays for the tournament championship tonight at 5:30 against the Midland National League team.

The Internationals were expected to do well. For the past few seasons the International teams have been the strongest in Big Spring. In fact, the last four city Little League champions have come from the International League.

So in the Junior League tournament, it was no surprise the Internationals would do well. Last year as 12-year-olds they finished fifth.

Steve Belvin

The Internationals got to the championship game with strong pitching, good defense and contact hitters, the things that have kept them ahead of the rest of the Big Spring teams.

What was surprising, however, was that International teams faltered in the Senior League and Little League circuits this summer.

In the Senior League competition (ages 14-15), the Big Spring Steers All-Stars proved that the more teams you have to choose from, the better the talent.

The International Senior Stars chose their All-Stars from two International League teams. The Big Spring Steers chose their All-Stars from the rest of the players in Big Spring plus Coahoma and Stanton. The Steers finished fifth in the tournament. The Internationals were out in three games.

While the Internationals dominated city Little League play, the National League All-Stars proved that they may not have had the quantity of good players, but they had better quality.

National League manager David Roman and his coaching staff of Kyle Ditto and Drew Mouton did a great job of getting the most out of their talent. The Nationals had the best finish of any local Little League squad, winning three games and losing two. They finished fifth out of 16 teams.

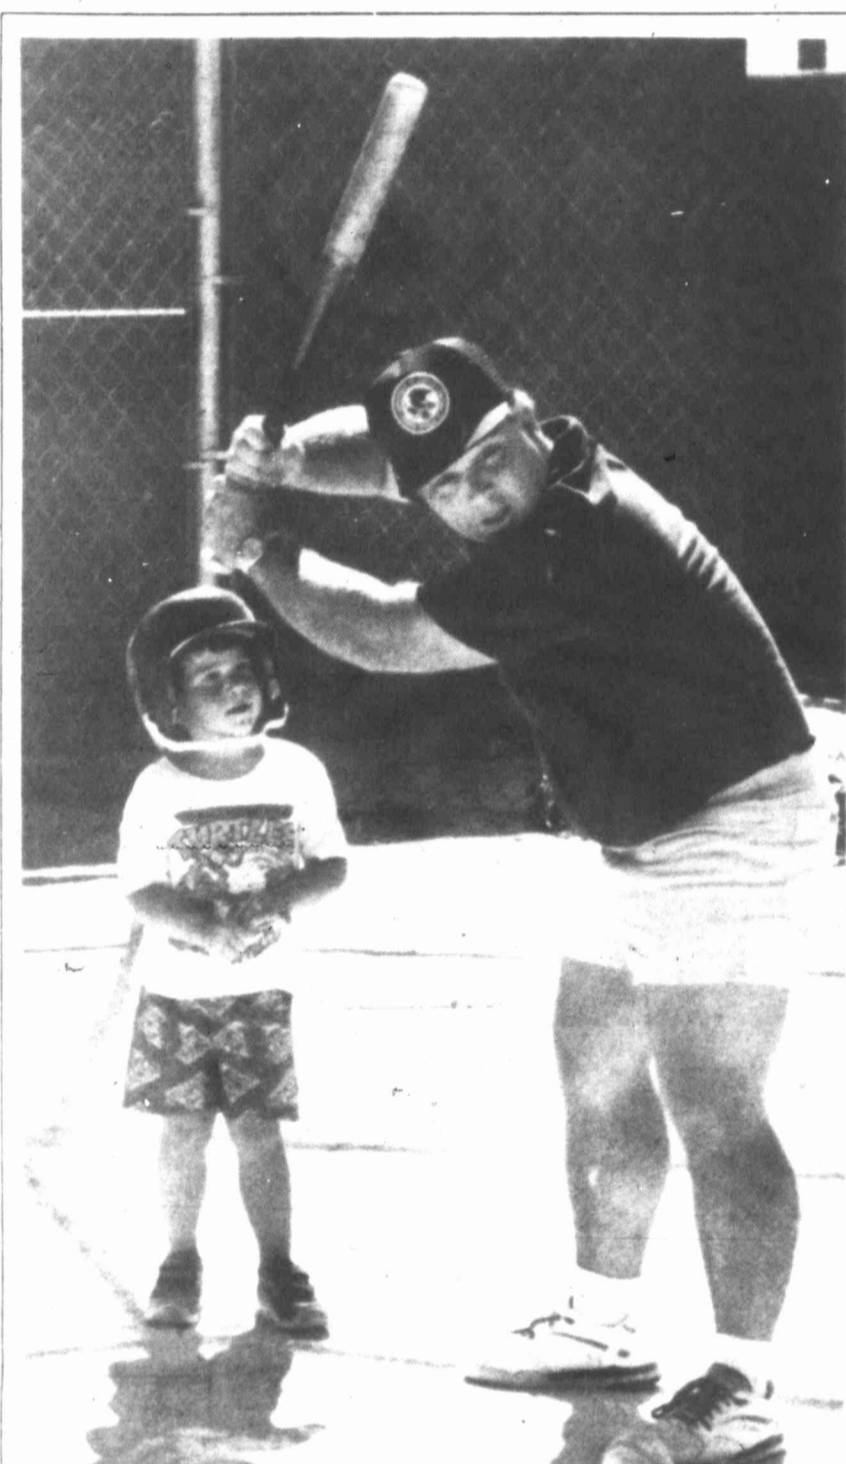

Here are just some of the highlights in two weeks of All-Star competition.

• Most Surprising Team Award — The National Little League All-Stars. In recent years, National Little Leaguers have had short stints in the tournament. This time they battled toe-to-toe with the big boys.

• Power Pitching Award — Edward Aguilar of the Junior International League All-Stars. In two games Aguilar has allowed five hits, no earned runs, struckout 23 and walked three. In his first game against Lamesa, he pitched a no-hitter.

• Big Stick Award — This goes to National Little League All-Star catcher Jerrod Beall. In a game against the Coahoma All-Stars,

All-Star chicken grilled

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Famous Chicken, who once ruled the roost when the San Diego Padres played at home, got a rude reception when he returned to the ballpark for the All-Star game.

Ted Giannoulas, the man inside the plucky mascot's bright yellow costume, was carried out of the lower deck by a dozen security guards Tuesday night during the game.

Although many of his faithful fans believed it was all part of the act, it wasn't. Giannoulas was later put in a holding area at Jack Murphy Stadium for about three innings and questioned before he was allowed to return — without fanfare — to his seat, security guards said.

Back in the early 1980s, Giannoulas, then known as the San Diego Chicken, was the most popular figure at the stadium, known for his outlandish antics and risqué routines. But by 1984, the only year the Padres made it to the World Series, he had fallen into disfavor with team management, particularly with Jack McKeon, and his appearances were cut.

Giannoulas showed up at the stadium dressed in his costume with a regular ticket and walked in, guards said. Near the middle of the game, egged on by a big ovation, the chicken began flapping his wings in the seats down the right-field line, and that prompted security guards to go get him.

Giannoulas was taken to the holding area and told he would not be allowed to perform any part of his act.

Coahoma UGSA All-Stars go perfect in tournament

MIDLAND — The Coahoma Division II All-Stars (ages 10-12) brought home the team championship at the United Girls Softball Association All-Star tournament, which concluded Tuesday.

The Division II All-Stars, managed by Shanna Roberts, went undefeated in the tournament, winning nine games. Coahoma beat Lovington, N.M. 11-1 in the championship game. The game was called in the bottom of the fifth inning because of the 10-run rule.

Jennifer Hayes paced Coahoma with two hits and four runs batted in. Peggy Edmondson, Allison West and Tara Sterling also got two hits. Kelli Buchanan went the distance and got the win.

Coahoma's road to the championship began with a 15-14 win over Colorado City. Sterling picked up the win in relief. The winning run scored in the bottom of the fifth inning on an infield hit by Kenna Cathey to score Kim Elmore. O'Daniel, Sterling and Cassie Tindol were leading hitters.

Coahoma then beat Brownfield 21-10 and Buchanan again picked up the win. Hayes and Edmondson drove in three runs each. Lovett had two RBI. Defensive standouts were the outfield of Cathey, Hayes and Kelli O'Daniel.

Coahoma won game six with an 11-9 victory over Hawley. Buchanan was the winning hurler. She, Hayes and Elmore all got two hits. Third baseman Lovett made two unassisted double plays.

The next Coahoma victim was Wink, falling to Coahoma 20-9. Sterling was the winning pitcher. She helped her own cause with three hits, including a homer and three RBI. Tindol, Edmondson and Hayes were other leading hitters.

Playing well defensively was first baseman Cassie Riah. Coahoma made it to the title game by downing Lovington, N.M. 8-6. Buchanan was the winning hurler and Tindol and West were leading hitters.

Edmondson, who played catcher, was selected the tournament Most Valuable Player. All-Tournament selections were Buchanan, Sterling and Edmondson.

DIVISION III

The Coahoma Division III All-Stars (ages 13-15) just missed making it to the championship round, winning five games and losing four.

Coahoma opened the tourney by defeating Colorado City 12-4. Audra Bingham was the winning pitcher and Julie Hernandez doubled and tripled. Also getting two hits were Jerrian Mitchell, Tonia Sparks and Belinda Turner. Defensive standouts were Dolores Garcia and Andi Schneider.

Coahoma won the second game, defeating Breckenridge 8-7. Bingham got the win with relief from Tori Elmore. Top hitters were Garcia, Elmore and Leslie Rodriguez. Defensive standouts were Brenda Austin and Schneider.

Coahoma went 3-0 in tournament play by downing Kermit 8-7. Bingham was the winning pitcher and Mitchell relieved her. Getting two hits in the win were Stephanie Stone, Turner and Garcia. Elmore got the winning hit in the game.

Coahoma lost its first game of the tournament, dropping a 10-9 decision to Jal, N.M. Elmore was the losing hurler. Coahoma battled back from a 10-0 deficit after two innings of play. Rodriguez and Schneider were leading hitters. Defensive standouts were Mitchell and Garcia.

Brownfield handed Coahoma its second loss, a 15-9 setback. Bingham was the losing pitcher. Garcia led the hitting with a triple and two singles. Mitchell and Schneider also contributed three hits.

Coahoma fell to 3-3 in the tournament by dropping a 6-4 decision to Hawley. Bingham took the loss. Hernandez, Garcia, Bingham and Turner were top hitters. Defensive standouts were Bingham, Garcia and Mitchell.

Coahoma got back on the winning track with a 15-10 win over Robert Lee. Mitchell was the winning pitcher leading the way with two hits each were Tonia Sparks, Hernandez, Garcia, Bingham Elmore and Austin. Sparks and Mitchell were defensive standouts.

Coahoma improved to 5-3 in tournament play by defeating Lovington, N.M. 13-12. Bingham and Elmore combined in the pitching effort. Bingham singled and hit two doubles. Stone, Schneider and Rodriguez all got two hits each.

Coahoma concluded the tournament with a 6-3 loss to Lovington, N.M. Bingham was the losing pitcher. Schneider singled and doubled. Garcia hit two singles and Stone tripled to drive in two runs. Top defensive player was Garcia.

Bingham was named to the All-Tournament team.

United States relay team squabbling

LONDON (AP) — Danny Everett has seen this before. He didn't like it then, and likes it even less now.

Internal squabbling has threatened to again unhinge the United States 1,600-meter relay Olympic team, just like at the World Championships last year in Tokyo.

Then, Everett explained, 400-meter world champ Antonio Pettigrew wanted to run the anchor leg. Now, Everett and his teammates are concerned that Michael Johnson has asked for a spot on the team. Everett, Olympic champion Steve Lewis and Quincy Watts qualified for the relay and individual 400s in Barcelona by finishing 1-2-3 at the U.S. trials in New Orleans last month. Fourth-place finisher Andrew Valmon would normally fill the last relay spot.

The talk is that Johnson, ranked No. 1 in the world in the 400 the last two years, wants in on the relay team. And Lewis and Everett aren't happy.

"Quincy feels the same," Everett said Tuesday, with Lewis nodding agreement beside him. "It has been proposed that Johnson should come in to the final in place of Valmon, but we would be upset about that."

"As Johnson didn't put himself on the line in the trial, we don't think he should be allowed to run the final," Everett added. "I would be irritated if Johnson joined the 400 team. The U.S. trials were totally reorganized to suit Michael and then he didn't compete."

"You don't need your four best guys out there, you need four guys who want to work together and perform together. Valman wouldn't harm the team."

Johnson, who on Friday ran the third fastest 400 in the world this year, chose not to run the distance in New Orleans, concentrating instead on qualifying at 200 meters.

Last year, relay in-fighting led the highly favored Americans to a stunning second in the World Championships. Everett was a member of that silver-medal U.S.

team which was beaten by Britain. "Antonio Pettigrew only demanded the anchor leg," Everett said of the world champion. "He was trying to be cute about it, but he only wanted the last leg."

"I explained it's not the champion, it's the experience. I didn't think he could fight off a challenge along the home straight, and that's what happened when Kriss Akabusi went past him."

"There was a lot of ill-feeling towards Pettigrew afterwards."

Boggs, Glavine's favorite player when he was growing up in Massachusetts, singled sharply in the middle. Kirby Puckett blooped a hit to center field that Andy Van Slyke broke later on and another single by Joe Carter loaded the bases.

McGwire, who leads the majors with 28 homers and won Monday's home-run derby with 12 shots in 22 swings, singled softly to center for a 2-0 lead. Ripken, the Baltimore shortstop and the AL's top voter, hit a liner into the right-field corner that scored Carter, and a strong throw by Tony Gwynn cut down Ripken at second.

Griffey's single to center made it 4-0 and Alomar, a product of the San Diego system now playing for Toronto, also singled. That brought up pitcher Kevin Brown, who did not expect to bat. He went to plate with his helmet awkwardly over his cap, and struck out.

Kelly promised to play this game like any other, so that meant playing it aggressively. So even with a 4-0 lead, he turned loose Roberto Alomar — brother of Sandy Jr. — after a leadoff single in the second, and Alomar went on to become the first player to steal two bases in one inning in All-Star competition.

With two outs, another single to center by Carter, who started in place of the injured Jose Canseco, made it 5-0 and brought Cox out to take out Glavine. "I've never seen so many balls fall in, a lot of them off the end of the bat," Cox told Glavine on the mound.

Glavine was the first NL pitcher to start All-Star games in consecutive years since Robin Roberts in 1954-55, and was pitching on six days' rest, maybe too many. Glavine has a 13-3 record, although his worst game of the season had come at Jack Murphy Stadium on April 22, a 9-4 loss to San Diego.

The nine hits off Glavine were two more than Tommy Bridges gave up in the 1937 game. Not surprisingly, most of the damage came in the first inning, where Glavine has been most vulnerable in the last few years — this season, he's given up 19 runs in the first inning of his 19 starts on the way to a 13-3 record.

"There's not much you can do about it," Glavine said. "They hit a few pitching wedge shots, kind of broken-bat hits. But I really didn't have anything to prove here. I've had a pretty good first half."

Beall clubbed three homers, driving in four runs.

• Double Threat Award — In the American Little League's only win of the tournament, against Coahoma, Gil Grawunder was a one-man wrecking crew. Grawunder was the winning pitcher, firing a four-hitter. He was also the hero at the plate, going three-for-three. He hit a three-run homer, a two-run double and a run-scoring single, driving in all six of his team's runs.

• Most Talked About Hit — By International Senior League's Michael Paul Martinez. The 15-year-old Martinez was the only one in the tournament so far to knock one out of Midland Angels Stadium. He hit a solo shot over the left field wall against the Midland Americans. To prove it wasn't a fluke, he hit a line drive off the wall in the same game.

In case you're wondering, Big Spring did not field a Senior League (ages 16-18) team this summer. I think it was a case of burnout from the long University Interscholastic League season — a season which took the Steers to the state tournament.

Some of those Steer players have taken up a new hobby of late — slowpitch softball. They've held their own in two local tournaments, finishing third in one tournament. It took two of the better softball teams in the area to beat them.

Lamesa is still around in Big League tournament play. Lamesa beat Big Spring in the summer tournament last year. However Big Spring eliminated Lamesa from the UIL regional playoffs in June.

Lamesa and Midland will play today for the right to play undefeated El Paso for the senior league championship Thursday. The El Paso All-Stars are composed of several players from El Paso Coronado, which competed in the 5A state tournament.

Citizens, leaders frustrated as civil war continues to rage

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

KISHINEV, Moldova — Once-tranquil summer nights are shattered by rocket attacks that destroy homes and uproot crops. The missiles kill civilians, as well as poorly trained soldiers, on both sides of the Dniester River.

Less than a year since its festive declaration of independence after decades of Kremlin rule, this largely agricultural nation is embroiled in a civil war with no end in sight. About 600 people have been reported killed since March in battles between Moldovans and Russian-speaking separatists who proclaimed their own state in Trans-Dniester, on the east bank. Some believe the toll is higher.

President Mircea Snegur's frustration was evident when he was asked, in an interview with The Associated Press, how long the war can last.

"Give me some advice," he said. "Tell me what to do."

As in the other ethnic conflicts troubling the former Soviet Union, there are no easy ways to undo decades of hostility generated by Soviet annexation and Russification.

The conflict in Moldova, on the southwestern edge of the former Soviet Union next to Romania, is one of the most serious because it threatens to draw Russia into open conflict with another former republic.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin has threatened to send in Russian troops to quell the fighting, and military officials have acknowledged that some soldiers have, on their own initiative, fought with ethnic Russians in Moldova.

Moldova accuses the more than 5,000 troops of Russia's 14th army of giving the separatists arms and assistance.

Although Yeltsin has promised to withdraw the army from Trans-Dniester, he also faces pressure from conservatives to defend the Russian population.

A major issue is the rights of ethnic Russians in parts of their former empire no longer under Moscow's control. Russians were often disdained as colonizers by Moldovans, who are ethnic Romanians, and by residents of other non-Russian republics.

With the protective Kremlin umbrella gone, the Russians and Ukrainians who make up one-third of Moldova's 4.2 million people say ethnic Romanians treat them as second-class citizens.

They object to a language-proficiency law that requires them to demonstrate fluency in Romanian by 1996 or lose their jobs. They also fear possible unification with Romania, which controlled most of Moldova between 1918 and 1940.

Ties between Romania and Moldova were virtually nonexistent under Soviet rule but are now tightening. Support for unification is high in Romania, although its leaders say the initiative must come from Moldova.

Snegur insists unification is not imminent and that "two Romanian states are viable."

He has the support of most Moldovans. He is their first elected leader in centuries.

"I have the right to consider myself a Moldovan," said Vladimir Tsaranov, an ethnic Romanian historian. "How can I become a Romanian overnight? We have historically been influenced by the East, while (Romania) has been influenced by the West."

Under Romanian rule, he said,

"half the population was illiterate and we were all second-class citizens."

Anatol Raiu, a 35-year-old violinist, said he is a mixture of Gypsy, Russian and Romanian, "and that adds up to Moldovan."

"I don't understand why there is all this hate," he said. "I can't believe there is war just down the road."

Russians and Ukrainians predominate in Trans-Dniester, which was part of Ukraine and never ruled by Romania. Stalin incorporated it into Moldova to dilute the republic's ethnic Romanian majority.

Slavs in Trans-Dniester formed an army in December to support their bid for independence.

More than 5,000 soldiers of Russia's 14th Army are stationed in Trans-Dniester and Moldova accuses them of helping the separatists. President Boris Yeltsin of Russia has promised to withdraw the troops, but also is under pressure to defend the ethnic Russians.

Losing Trans-Dniester's developed industrial base would greatly weaken Moldova's already feeble economy.

In addition, some Moldovans fear concessions in Trans-Dniester would stir unrest at home: More than 1 million Russians and Ukrainians live on the western bank of the Dniester, in undisputed Moldovan territory.

About half of the Slavs west of the river are Russians and most arrived after the Soviet takeover in 1940, according to demographer Vladimir Solonari. Many say they want to leave, and many Moldovans would be happy to see them go.

Ivan Garayev, chairman of the Russian Cultural Center in Kishinev, said 5 percent of the Russians have left since 1989. His group tries to help them do so.

"Almost all would leave if they have housing and jobs in Russia," said Valentina Makarova, 61. She said she has seen ethnic Russians beaten and intimidated by Moldovans.

Fear and suspicion are mutual, fed by government-run media in both Kishinev and the separatist capital of Tiraspol. Newscasts on both sides call the other "fascists" who commit "genocide."

Petre Mihailov, 59, expressed a common view in Kishinev: "The Russians are pigs."

Moldovans believe the separatist leaders have bullied their own population into submission.

Anatoly Danilov, a 43-year-old ethnic Russian newspaper editor, said he was targeted for assassination by separatists for not supporting them and had to flee Trans-Dniester.

Moldovans appear split on how to proceed.

Alexandru Secreieru, a medical student in Kishinev, said he would fight to retake Trans-Dniester if called up, because "it is our land."

Others speak for peace.

"We should recognize their independence," said Vladimir Cebotari, a 36-year-old architect. "I'm afraid of being drafted and having to kill people."

Some soldiers on the front at Bendery, scene of the heaviest recent fighting, have less than two weeks of military training.

Moldovan soldiers dry laundry on artillery barrels in an area near the Trans-Dniester region. Less than a year since its festive declaration of independence after decades of Kremlin rule, Moldova is embroiled in a civil war with no end in sight.

Sell of classic patterns has quilters on pins and needles

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

CONCORD, N.H. — The gentle art of quilting has taken a belligerent turn, pitting quilters in this country against Chinese manufacturers that copy American heirlooms.

Actually, the quilters' target is not so much China as the Smithsonian Institution, repository of American folk art and artifacts of culture and industry, which sold China the rights to four classic 19th century patterns.

Now, department stores such as Filene's and mail-order companies such as Land's End and Spiegel stock the reproductions made in China through a contract signed by the Smithsonian with a New York importer, American Pacific Enterprises.

They sell for about $150, one-quarter the price of an American-made quilt. That does not sit well with U.S. quilters, especially since the copies bear tags with the Smithsonian's name.

Ironically, the Smithsonian doesn't sell the copies — designs based on originals in the National Museum of American History — either at its shops or by mail. It sells only original, handmade American quilts.

"You have cheap, slave-labor-produced quilts passed off as heirloom quilts, taking away work from Americans," says Eva Sartwell of Concord.

To Sartwell, 68, a retired supermarket cashier, quilting is a hobby that gives her artistic satisfaction

"You have cheap, slave-labor-produced quilts passed off as heirloom quilts, taking away work from Americans."

Eva Sartwell
quilter

and heirlooms to her grandchildren. Her livelihood is not at stake, but the former labor and political activist says she "couldn't let this go unchallenged."

Marilyn Hancock, who runs Country Quilters in Hopkinton, N.H., is equally blunt. The Smithsonian "is supported by the taxpayers," she says, "and it is cutting our throats and devaluing quilts."

Hancock said she cannot estimate how the Chinese copies have affected her sales because her business has been growing. "Nor do I know how many people who walk in here and then walk out have bought one of the cheap ones."

Sartwell and members of New Hampshire's 16 quilt guilds, groups that meet periodically to discuss and practice their art, have organized a petition drive and a letter-writing campaign to rescind the Smithsonian's contract.

Hancock, one of 3,200 quilt retailers in the country, says national quilting groups estimate the Smithsonian deal will cost U.S. quilters $46 million in sales annually.

Besides, she says, the Chinese use inferior materials and poor stitching, using four to five stitches per inch, commonly called "toe-catcher stitching." American-made quilts have up to 15 stitches per inch, she said.

Nor is Hancock satisfied by the Smithsonian's promise to a congressional subcommittee that it will not renew the three-year contract.

"We want them to cease and desist now," she said, "not after the damage is done."

Smithsonian officials say they have tried to make amends. They have met with quilters "and listened to them in good faith and learned from them," Lisa Stevenson, director of product development and licensing, said last week.

"But in good faith, we also have a contract" which pays the museum $500,000 over three years, she said. Three American companies that had been considered for the contract could not deliver 3,000 to 4,000 quilts a month, Smithsonian officials said.

And to placate the quilters, the Smithsonian now will require new copies from China to be embroidered rather than merely tagged as "Made in China."

Clinton

Clinton is a formidable contender with a lot of experience and knowledge," said Brown. "It wasn't the endorsement Clinton would like, but it was a far cry from Brown's 'scandal a week' label of the bruising primary wars. Jesse Jackson's blessing was also less than effusive. Still, Jackson used the term "President Bill Clinton" in his occasionally fiery speech and urged his sometime rival: "You must heal and make us better." Jackson was part of a podium parade of party stars, each with just a few minutes in a crowded, carefully orchestrated made-for-TV event.

"I'd rather be at the All-Star Game," said a placard inside Madison Square Garden, a reminder that on this night the Democrats competed not only with voter alienation but with the national pastime.

President Bush was at the game and got booed. Ross Perot's search for a running mate was the lead story in a mock edition of The New York Times produced by the folks at Spy magazine.

Ancient bison kill site uncovered

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

ELK CITY, Okla. — Archaeologists say they have uncovered a bison kill site about 1,500 years old and believe it to be one of the most important prehistoric sites ever found in Oklahoma.

"This is a mass kill where the Indians ran the herd of bison up a box canyon and then killed them at the end of the canyon," said Lee Bement, a staff archaeologist with the Oklahoma Archaeological Survey at the University of Oklahoma. "There are bones eroding out along the banks that stretches for about a quarter-mile long."

The so-called Certain site, named after a previous landowner, is on private ranch land near Elk City in northwestern Beckham County. It is the largest and one of the oldest such sites ever found in Oklahoma, Bement said Tuesday.

There is a possible bison kill site near Freedom in northwestern Oklahoma that is believed to be around 2,900 years old, but the jury is still out on whether humans were actually involved, Bement said.

There is no question with this one, he said.

"That's mainly because of the density of the bone and that they are laid out in sections along the banks of this little canyon," he said. "Only humans would do this. We also have tools within the site and projectile points and debris from sharpening knives."

The site is now in a spring-fed creek about 60 feet deep, he said. The bones are within 10 feet of the surface on the sides of the canyon.

Bement said the site initially was discovered by then landowner L.E. Certain in 1969.

Laughs and suds at the Maiden's Prayer

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

"A Maiden's Prayer" is a funny but poignant play about the lives of a group of "bar flies" in Big Spring.

District Attorney Rick Hamby wrote the play, a finalist in a nationwide play contest about 2½ years ago, he said. The play is produced as a benefit for the new West Texas Center for the Arts at 125 East Third St. where the dinner theater is being performed.

Performances are Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and tickets for the Saturday performance are running out, said Doris Vieregge, president of the center. Tickets for the Thursday and Friday performances are $15. The Saturday tickets are $17.50, including admission to the cast party following the performance.

The three-act play is a full evening beginning with a barbecue dinner "with all the fixin's," Vieregge said.

Beer, wine and other beverages have been donated for the event, Hamby said.

The play deals with 14 characters who live out their lives spending all their free time in a bar called "The Maiden's Prayer," Hamby said.

Although the play is first and foremost a comedy, "it has an edge of seriousness to it," Hamby said. The evolutionary changes in the characters brings them to the realization that they are hiding from life within the confines of the bar.

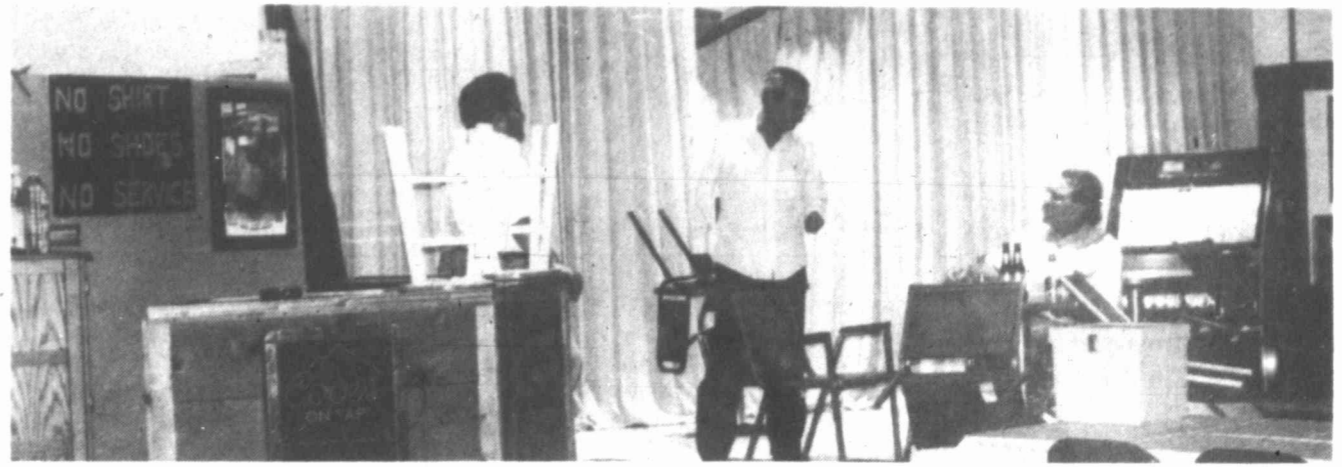

"It's a fun play and it's about the concept of the bar scene in Big Spring," Vieregge said. "The emphasis is making something of yourself."

"It deals with hypocrisy, fanaticism and hiding from life — the fear of living," Hamby said.

Although the play could have been set in a workplace or other setting, the comedic opportunities were more prevalent in the bar setting," he said.

One of the major plots in the play deals with a few bar buddies who decide to drill an oil well. Another deals with a fanatical preacher who has decided all the economic woes of the community are directly related to the sale of alcohol.

"There are a couple of love interests in the story," he said.

Tuesday night at "The Maiden's Prayer," a bar in a play written by District Attorney Rick Hamby. In this rehearsal, Jamie Sotelo, left, looks on while Keith Toomire, standing, tries to convince Terry McDaniel that all of Big Spring's economic woes are the direct result of selling alcohol. The play runs Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the West Texas Center for the Arts at 125 East Third St.

"unrequited love." "There's an epiphany for everyone... at the end I think everyone comes to the realization that they are wasting their lives in this bar."

Hamby has another play to his credit called "The Judgement of Willie G. Stovall," produced a few years ago, he said.

Performing in the play are Tim

Haynes, theater director at Big Spring High School, Terry McDaniels has the lead role of a philosophical used car dealer and Keith Toomire plays the fanatical preacher.

Also in the cast are Jamie Sotelo, T.L. Roger, "Papa" Joe Reed, Beverly McMahon, Clyde McMahon, Dale Dupree as Sheriff Jake Smith and Marcy Weaver as

"the coquettish cocktail waitress." Cindy Appel and Tommy Olsen also act in the play. Hamby himself plays "Frostie," a semi-successful, self-obsessed bar goer. And John Rheinscheld directs the play and acts the part of the arrogant Brigham Youngblood.

Producing the play is Gloria Hopkins.

Linkletter speaks tonight

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Art Linkletter will be speaking to and meeting the people of Big Spring at the Big Spring High School Auditorium tonight.

Linkletter, who has performed on two of the longest running television shows in history, House Party on CBS and People Are Funny on NBC, will be meeting people at a reception tonight at 6:45 and will present his speech beginning at 7:30, said Julie Miller at Scenic Mountain Medical Center. The event is free of charge and open to the public.

Linkletter will be touring Scenic Mountain Medical Center's new geriatric psychiatric facility during his stay in Big Spring, Miller said.

Linkletter has been writing books since 1950 and has 23 to his credit. "Kids Say the Darndest Things" is still his best known work, according to his biographical information. "Kids Say the Darndest Things" is one of the best sellers in American publishing history, the information states.

The Canada native holds a bachelor of arts degree from San Diego State College, but has been awarded numerous honorary degrees and awards for his work.

Carradine bouquet

From left, movie brothers Robert, David and Keith Carradine star as outlaw brothers Bob, Coleman and Jim Younger on the television series, "The Long Riders." The episode airs Aug. 1, at 8 p.m. on the Family Channel.

Cajun cooking, pork steak

Papa Joe Reed

One of life's pleasures is loving to cook. Another is the sharing of recipes with friends.

A couple of weeks ago, a friend and I were sitting around talking about cooking and different recipes.

This friend was at one time in his life, a cook on an off-shore drilling rig of the coast of Louisiana. So naturally, this is a Cajun dish.

There is no way I can give you the french name of the recipe, but it is pronounced, "Mashoe." For our purposes, we will just call it:

CAJUN CORN

- Onion, 1 medium
- Bell pepper, 2 medium
- Oleo (1/3 stick or equal amount of bacon grease)
- Tomatoes, 1 can
- Corn, 2 cans, whole kernel
- Salt and pepper to taste

First, you chop the onion and peppers and then brown slowly in the butter or grease. Then drain. Drain the corn and cook over medium heat for about five to seven minutes. Drain the tomatoes and add this to the mixture while cooking. Continue to cook for about five to seven minutes over medium heat. It is important to stir often while cooking. It is equally important to keep this dish as dry as possible. The drier it is, the better it is. The flavors blend together beautifully.

This "cajun corn" recipe compliments pork chops, pork steak or beef steak.

Personally, when I tried it, I used pork steak. The meal was delicious.

For our second recipe, we will be cooking:

- CRUNCHY PORK STEAKS
- Pork steaks, 1 to 6
- Mustard
- Cracker crumbs
- Salt and pepper

Liberally coat the pork steaks on both sides with mustard. Now coat with the cracker crumbs. Fry until golden brown. That's all there is to it.

I'll bet you will keep these recipes in your files for years to come.

Now for a refreshing and delicious dessert. This will top the "cajun corn" and "crunchy pork steaks."

COOL PEACH PIE

- Vanilla wafers, 1/2 pound
  - Powdered sugar, 1 cup
  - Butter, 1/4 cup
  - Egg yolks, 2, well beaten
  - Peach halves, 1 large can
  - Whipped cream, 1 cup
  - Powdered sugar, 1 tablespoon
- Crush the vanilla wafers and form into a 9-inch pie crust. (Save a portion of crumbs to sprinkle on top). Cream the 1 cup of powdered sugar with the 1/4 cup of butter. Add the egg yolks. Spread this on the crust. Place the six peach halves, round side up, on the creamed mixture close to the edge of the pie pan. This is so each pie slice will have a peach. Whip the one cup cream and sweeten with the 1 tablespoon of powdered sugar. Spread over the peaches. Top with the remaining crumbs. Refrigerate for 24 hours before serving.

This recipe is very nice because it can be made ahead of time.

Papa Joe's kitchen tip: Instant potatoes are a good thickening for stews.

Big Spring cooks marinate with imagination

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

Summertime signifies the beginning of the barbecue season in West Texas. Amateur and professional barbecue cooks can be found any summer day, standing over an open flame, searing their favorite meats and vegetables to perfection.

Every city has its share of barbecue chefs, and Big Spring is no exception. Taking time from their busy schedules, two local attorneys shared their favorite techniques for cooking outdoors.

A barbecue fan who cooks on the grill about once a month, Assistant District Attorney Dale Dupree says that although he cooks enjoys cooking brisket and turkey, his specialty is ribs.

Many cooks will say the secret to cooking delicious ribs is to flavor them properly.

To add flavor to ribs, Dupree rubs them with pepper and seasoned salt. He then marinates them overnight in a mixture of teriyaki, Worcestershire and soy sauces. Reserved marinade is used to baste the meat while cooking.

Dupree prefers to use a mustard-based sauce to add additional flavor to his ribs. Ingredients for his homemade sauce include mustard, molasses or honey, Worcestershire sauce, and salt and pepper. After mixing ingredients together to form a liquid, he bastes the meat sparingly.

Another trick Dupree uses is various types of wood to enhance the flavor of meats. In addition to charcoal, Dupree cooks with mesquite, pecan and bark from an apple tree.

"I do like pecan. It's absolutely some of the best. . . Pecan is a lot milder. I'd rate it between hickory and mesquite for flavor," he said.

Howard County Attorney Hardy Wilkerson and his wife, Stefanie, enjoy cooking outdoors because it lends itself to some much-needed family time.

"We usually cook out two or three times a week. After a hectic day at work, we enjoy cooking out as a family. We're a real team. I season the meat and he (Hardy) does all the grill work," Stefanie explained.

Using a Wilkerson family recipe, Stefanie marinates ribeye steaks with Adolph's meat tenderizer, seasoned salt, ground black pepper, garlic powder and Worcestershire sauce.

"What's good about this recipe is that you can use it on any type of meat. It's great for hamburgers, too," she said.

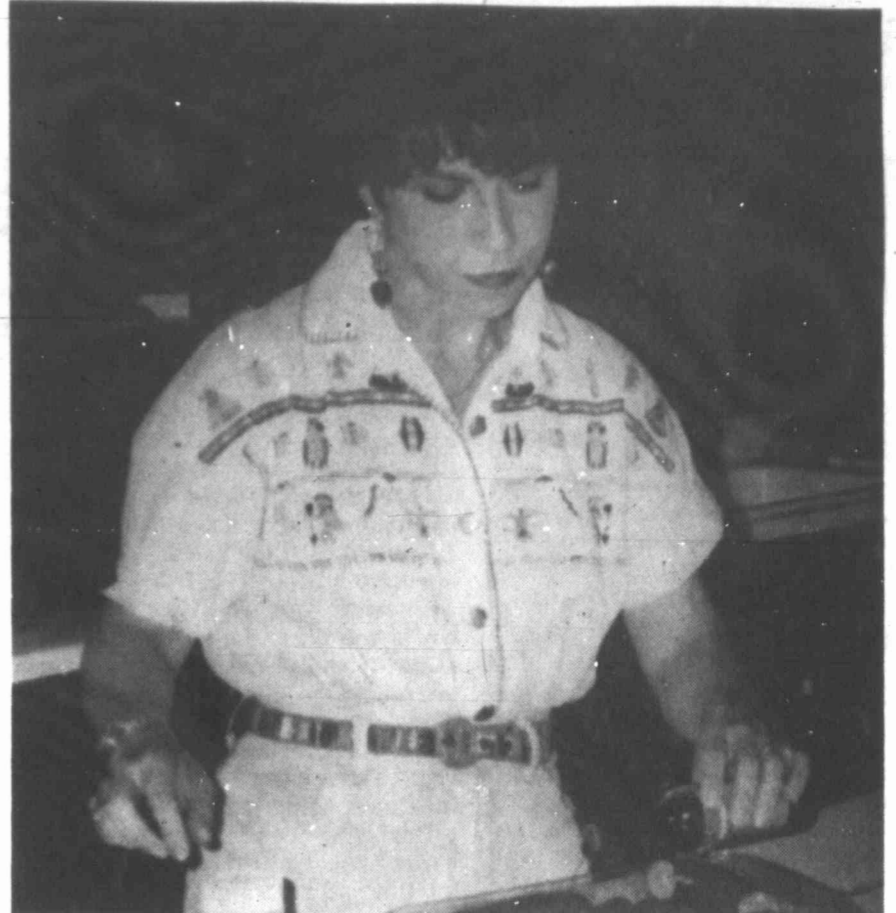

Using a fork, Stefanie mashes the dry ingredients into both sides of the meat and covers it with the Worcestershire sauce. The meat is then covered in a plastic wrap and placed in the refrigerator until it's ready to be grilled.

The Wilkersons prepared a complete barbecue dinner Monday evening. The menu featured ribeyes, jalapeno sausages, hot dogs, homemade bread, salad and corn-on-the-cob.

Using the "Ultimate Grilling Tool," a gift from his wife, Hardy grilled the steaks over charcoal and mesquite wood chips.

Ingredients for Stefanie's salad include leaf lettuce, spinach, iceberg lettuce, garlic cloves, green onions, tomatoes, cayenne pepper, ground black pepper and an oil and vinegar dressing.

According to these barbecue enthusiasts, it's not difficult to be a good barbecue chef. All you need is a little imagination.

Fire tips

An evenly burning bed of coals is the secret to maintaining control over your cookouts, according to the Reynolds Wrap Kitchens.

For direct cooking, arrange coals directly under food, extending 1 inch beyond edge of food.

For slow indirect cooking in a covered grill, or on rotisserie, place coals to one side of the grill with an aluminum foil dips pan placed under food.

Marinades, sauces spice up outdoor cooking

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

Because tastes for barbecue run from mild to extra-spicy, barbecue connoisseurs suggest mixing together your favorite ingredients to obtain just the right flavor for marinades, sauces and butters.

By enhancing flavors and tenderizing less expensive cuts of meat, marinades help stretch the budget. Marinades penetrate the meat fibers and should contain an acid or alcohol base such as vinegar, fruit juice, wine or beer, according to barbecue experts.

Ingredients for your marinade might include: apple cider, honey, beer, applesauce, onion soup, pineapple, red or white wine, teriyaki, brown sugar, garlic and ginger.

Meat should be marinated in the refrigerator overnight, but no longer than 24 hours. If you like, while cooking, brush both sides of the meat with the marinade.

Added to flavor foods, sauces are brushed on during cooking, and unlike marinades, do not tenderize the meat. Sauces range in flavor from sweet to tangy.

Because sugar-based sauces burn quickly, it is suggested they be brushed on during the last 15 minutes of grilling.

Butters add exciting flavors to grilled meats, fish and vegetables. They can be served two ways — melted and brushed on hot, or at room temperature. Butter should be softened to room temperature before adding flavorings, or use soft tub-type margarines. To prevent burning, butter should be added to meat during the last few minutes of cooking.

The following are a few recipes for marinades, sauces and butters.

Marinades

APPLE TARRAGON

- 1 cup apple cider
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1/2 cup sliced green onions with tops
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 3 tablespoons honey
- 2 tablespoons steak sauce
- 1 1/2 teaspoons tarragon leaves
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

Combine all the ingredients and bring to a boil; simmer uncovered for 20 minutes. Chill before using. Great on chicken and lamb.

TERIYAKI

- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 1/3 cup dry sherry
- 1/3 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger

After mixing together all the ingredients, marinate your favorite cut of beef, chicken, pork or seafood.

Sauces

HOT AND SPICY

- 1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons prepared mustard

Backyard cooks like Stefanie and Hardy Wilkerson use a variety of recipes to make their meats and salads delicious. The Wilkersons, like many local families, cook outside several times a week during the summer. Grilled steaks, salad and homemade bread make a terrific and easy evening meal.

- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, finely chopped
- 1 tablespoon chili powder

In a saucepan, combine all ingredients; bring to a boil, then simmer 5 minutes. Delicious on chicken, hamburger, pork and steak.

PINEAPPLE

- 1 8 1/4-ounce can crushed pineapple
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 3 tablespoons honey
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce

- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- In a saucepan, mix together all ingredients; heat 5 minutes. Great on chicken and pork.

Butters

PARSLEY ORANGE

- 1/2 cup softened butter
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- 1 tablespoon orange juice
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 2 teaspoons chopped parsley

Mix all ingredients with butter.

Use on chicken, duck or lamb.

CHEESE HERB

- 1/2 cup softened butter
- 3 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
- 1/2 teaspoon basil leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder

Mix ingredients with butter and use on corn-on-the-cob, sliced zucchini or a variety of other vegetables.

Kebabs fresh as cookout choice

Backyard chefs — here's an alternative to traditional cookout fare.

In the following recipe for grilled kebabs, lean pieces of sirloin steak are seasoned with a lemon-honey mustard, then skewered with peppers and mushrooms. Use metal or dampened bamboo skewers.

The kebabs cook in less than 15 minutes over medium coals. Keep in mind that beef should always be grilled over medium to low temperatures, otherwise the beef can overcook on the outside before the inside is done.

Beef, Pepper and Mushroom Kebabs

- 1 pound boneless beef top sirloin steak
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon water
- 2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard
- 1 teaspoon honey
- 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

- 1 medium green, red, or yellow bell pepper, cut into 1 1/4-inch pieces
- 12 large mushrooms
- Salt, if desired

Cut steak into 1 1/4-inch pieces. Whisk together oil, lemon juice, water, mustard, honey, oregano and pepper in large bowl. Add beef, bell pepper and mushrooms, turning to coat. Alternately thread beef, pepper pieces and mushrooms onto each of four 12-inch skewers. Place kebabs over medium coals. Grill 8 to 11 minutes, turning occasionally. Season with salt, if desired.

/Note: To check temperature of coals, cautiously hold the palm of your hand about 4 inches above the coals. Count the number of seconds you can hold it in that position before the heat forces you to pull it away; 4 seconds for medium coals.

Dog named Sex sets tongues wagging

DEAR ABBY: I have enjoyed your column for many years, so I'm sending you something your readers might enjoy. It's a birthday card I just received. I hope you like it. A.D. BRADLEY, STATEN ISLAND, N.Y.

Dear Abby

DEAR A.D. BRADLEY: Like it? I loved it. Thanks for a dandy day-brightener. Readers, this is it: When I went to the City Hall to renew my dog's license, I told the clerk I wanted a license for Sex. He said, "I'd like one, too!" Then I said, "But this is a dog." He said he didn't care what she looked like. The clerk said, "You don't understand. I've had Sex since I was 9 years old." He winked at me and said, "You must have been quite a kid." When I got home and went on my home phone, I took my dog with DENNIS THE MENACE began, the dog got loose and ran away. Another contestant asked me why I was just standing there, looking disappointed. I told him I had planned to have Sex in the contest. He said, "Wonderful! If you sell tickets, you'll clean up!" "But you don't understand," I said. "I want to have Sex on TV." He said, "They already have that on cable. It's no big deal anymore."

Well, my wife and I decided to separate, so we went to court to fight for custody of the dog. I said to the judge, "Your honor, I had Sex before I was married." The judge said, "The court is not a confessional. Please stick to the facts." Then I told him that after I was married, Sex left me. He said, "Me, too." Well, last night Sex ran away again, and I spent hours looking all over town for him. A cop came over to me and asked, "What are you doing in this alley at 4 o'clock in the morning?" I said, "I'm looking for Sex." My case comes up on Friday.

DEAR ABBY: It was remarkable to learn that a physician thinks veterinarians earn more than he does!

An ovariohysterectomy on a 100-pound dog is about $100 here in Springfield, Mo. Our local Blue Cross/Blue Shield office reports that the customary physician's fee for the same operation on a woman is $2,000. The veterinarian's fee includes hospitalization, anesthesia, surgery supplies, etc. The physician's fee does not. Who is fooling whom? The veterinarian who retired at age 43 must have been selling Amway on the side! -- DOUG BRYAN, D.V.M., PRESIDENT, SPRINGFIELD, MO., VETERINARY ASSOCIATION

FOR THURSDAY, JULY 16, 1992

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your financial fortunes are on the way up. Good friends offer to help out. You no longer feel alone. Repay favors with gratitude. Although short on cash, you are long on ingenuity!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Working from home helps you cut expenses. A white elephant could turn into a pot of gold. Finding the right partner is a matter of luck. A mutual friend will make the introductions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Reach out to that special person who makes your heart sing. A heart-to-heart talk cements a relationship with a teen-ager. Be aware that someone may be trying to manipulate you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Read the fine print on contracts. Put some space between yourself and a dominating influence. It is your life and no one has better insights than you do.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23): Good timing is the secret to success. Have your agenda ready but keep it secret until the right moment. Hard work and a stroke of good financial luck give you cause for celebration.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work pressures subside. Avoid financial speculation and get-rich-quick schemes. New doors open; your career or school program takes off in an exciting direction. A pal tries playing Cupid!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): A new health regimen should include plenty of exercise. Encourage an out-of-shape relative to join you. Romance or special rapport with someone near to your heart makes this a special day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An unexpected declaration catches you off-guard. A shy admirer offers a token of affection. The ability to speak a foreign language will help land new business.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A chance encounter drives you to the mirror to evaluate your fitness. Be careful not to go overboard if you have not exercised in a while.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Streamline household clutter and redecorate with clean, clear lines and colors. Take the same approach to simplifying your wardrobe. The theater gives you a new idea for self-expression.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Profit, as well as romance, is linked to faraway places. Try to combine a vacation with business. If overseas travel is too expensive, capitalize on your foreign contacts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A new investment will pay nice dividends. Greater work responsibilities mean greater financial rewards. Be careful about paying your bills on time. Romance could keep you guessing.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are family-oriented, affectionate and inclined to cling to the familiar. Give these youngsters plenty of space when they are young and encourage them to make their own decisions. Otherwise, they may let peer pressure dictate their choices later on. Budding artists, these Cancerians love to sketch what they see outdoors. They feel at one with nature and have a special reverence for wildlife.

Tips On Writing EFFECTIVE Classified Ads

- ◆ STICK TO THE FACTS
 Prospective buyers need to know details, like the condition of the item for sale, the size, brand name, color and any other relevant information that would help them make a decision.
- ◆ BE HONEST
 Aside from being unethical, exaggerating or misinforming potential buyers won't help you make a sale, and may only serve to lose a prospective buyers' trust. Even if they come to look at what you have to sell, they'll be less likely to buy the item or trust you once they see they've been misled.
- ◆ SPELL IT OUT
 Abbreviations are not easily understood by many people and may even confuse a reader. It only takes them a second to pass over an ad because it doesn't seem clear, why let it be yours because you abbreviated a description?
- ◆ THE BOTTOM LINE
 State the price. You'll save yourself the hassle of having to answer calls from prospects who, upon learning the price, are not really interested. Price is the first thing they'll look for when reading your ad, and when prospects know the price, you'll know you have a serious buyer on the line.
- ◆ BE THERE
 List the best hours to call and make sure you're at home. If you don't list a specific time, you could be flooded with calls any time of the day or night. And when you're not at home to take calls, most likely, they won't call back.
- ◆ ASK US
 If you aren't sure how to word your ad or what features to include, why not ask us? Our professionals on staff know how to create an effective ad that sells, they're always willing to help, and there's no charge!

Rangers stand out in All-Star game

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Texas Rangers contributed heavily to the record-shattering show in Tuesday night's 13-6 American League All-Star Game victory.

Kevin Brown, the first Ranger pitcher to start a mid-summer classic, needed just 10 pitches in the first inning to retire the NL in order. He struck out Ozzie Smith and got Tony Gwynn and Barry Bonds on flyouts.

Jack McDowell took over in the second, and AL manager Tom Kelly let the rest of his staff work one inning each.

Brown leads the majors with 14 victories, but none were this easy.

Ruben Sierra, picked Kelly over teammate Juan Gonzalez as a reserve outfielder, one-handed a two-run homer in the sixth off Bob Tewksbury of St. Louis. That made it 10-0.

Ivan Rodriguez, the only player born in the 1970s to play in an All-Star Game, appeared to have a double in his debut. But the official scorer ruled that Rodriguez's deep fly should have been caught by John Kruk, who was charged with a two-base error. Things went so well all night long for the Americans that even a pitcher, Cleveland's Charles Nagy, added to the hit total.

And things went so well for the Rangers that Nagy, in his first major-league at-bat, wore — what else? — a Texas Rangers' batting helmet.

Brown, pitching on two days' rest, also got to bat. He struck out against Tom Glavine, ending the first-inning.

Brown had hoped to get his first major-league at-bat but didn't figure to because he didn't feel his turn would come up until the second or third inning after he had put in his work.

This year's Texas contribution was similar to that of 1989, when winning pitcher Nolan Ryan gave up one hit in two innings and closer Jeff Russell worked some relief.

In 1990, Texas second baseman Julio Franco was named Most Valuable Player after his two-run double led the AL to a 2-0 victory.

Last year, though, Franco was the only Ranger on the squad and the only position player not to get into the game.

Summer is a great time for fun with family and friends

Relax and enjoy the season Fresh ideas for grilling up something good

Summertime can be enjoyed for only a few months, so take full advantage of it now. Flowers, trees and plants are in full bloom, so you should be as well! Growth and newness are two important characteristics of summer, and people really take this to heart by exercising until their bodies are toned and ready for summer activities.

"Spring cleaning" is a common chore, and many people also like to make certain that the outside of their homes sparkle. Lawns are freshly fertilized and cut, flowers are planted, and many people choose to have repairs done in the summertime.

Looking forward to a fun-filled season? Not everyone is. There are many who absolutely abhor this season. Summer makes some of us grumpy, groggy and lazy. Common complaints: overheating cars, insects that devour vegetable gardens, and temperatures that make it too hot to mow the lawn.

But there is no point in complaining. Summer is to be enjoyed, and there are plenty of ways to alleviate the summertime blues.

To some folks, especially joggers, summer can be the very worst time to exercise. How about a leisurely stroll instead? Walking is a cooler, more relaxing alternative to running or jogging, yet it can be just as invigorating.

Bring along a personal cassette player and a bottle of water, and take the most scenic, shady route you can find.

Try gardening. It's relaxing and rewarding. Believe it or not, gardening also is good exercise. It involves rigorous bending and stretching, but your body probably won't feel as worn out as it would after doing a normal workout. (Don't forget to wear a hat and sunblock.)

The kitchen (unless cooking is your first love) is definitely a candidate for "the room most likely to be avoided" on a hot summer day.

Planning ahead will help. Some salads keep well and don't require elaborate preparation. When you have some spare time, prepare two or three of your favorites — potato, seafood, coleslaw, chicken and tuna are some surefire winners. Keep the salads in the refrigerator for lunches, snacks or light dinners.

Lightweight, loose-fitting cotton clothing feels soothing and airy on scorching-hot days.

When you head outdoors, take along a water spritzer to mist your face, and a bottle of cold water for a quick, refreshing drink.

If you hate the heat, you'll hate a burn even more! When going outside — even for a short time — it is important to apply sunblock to any exposed skin.

The hot months don't have to drag by. Enjoy yourself now, because you'll be scraping ice from your car's windows and purchasing new snow tires before you know it!

Summer barbecues are an American tradition. Who doesn't look forward to breaking out the grill for that first-of-the-year cookout?

But meals prepared over a grill don't have to stick to the same old menus. With a little imaginative flavoring from marinades, sauces and seasonings, cookout chefs can vary their traditional barbecue recipes without taking extra time from other summer activities.

For would-be backyard gourmets, Anita Hallman, a consumer specialist for Naturally Fresh, makers of all-natural salad dressings, sauces and dips, offers some time-saving suggestions for fast, delicious summer cookouts.

"Ready-made sauces offer an easy, creative solution to spicing up barbecue standbys," Hallman says. "Cookout seasonings don't have to mean only barbecue sauce, ketchup and mustard."

For example, as a change from traditional hickory-flavored barbecue sauce, a citrus-based marinade gives a lighter, zestier flavor to grilled poultry, pork or fish.

Honey mustard sauce is another fresh alternative to use in basting grilled chicken or shrimp kebabs. It also makes an innovative potato topping and a tangy dip for grilled steak, vegetables or french fries.

For those who like their chicken with a little more kick, hot buffalo wing sauce will heat up any cookout.

"By grilling chicken wings instead of deep-frying them, you cut down on fat significantly without sacrificing any flavor," says Hallman.

She emphasizes that a change in sauces or seasonings is an easy way to spice up a family cookout without going to a lot of extra effort. Hallman notes, "That's particularly important when dad is the one in charge of the grill!"

A perfect marinade for grilled chicken or fish (see recipe which follows), Naturally Fresh's Lite Lemon Rice-Wine Vinaigrette topping combines rice wine vinegar and real lemon juice for an all-natural, fat-free sauce that has only 14 calories per serving. It also adds a light, citrus flavor as a topping for a garden or fruit salad.

LITE LEMON VINAIGRETTE CHICKEN

Marinate four chicken breasts with split ribs in Naturally Fresh Lite Lemon Rice-Wine Vinaigrette; leave in refrigerator overnight.

When ready to cook, grill on top rack, turning and basting frequently until completely done.

Garnish with basil and parsley. (Or, for indoor cooking, cover with foil, broil for approximately 25 minutes, then remove foil during the last few minutes to brown chicken.)

Another option: honey mustard chicken is an aromatic alternative to traditional barbecued chicken. Simply baste chicken with honey mustard sauce as the chicken grills, turning periodically, and serve with more sauce on the side, as a condiment to enhance the honey mustard flavor.

For spicier barbecued chicken, grill 15 chicken wings, separated at joints, until done (about 15 minutes on bottom rack). Toss in a large bowl with three tablespoons of ready-made buffalo wing sauce, and serve with plenty of celery sticks and bleu cheese dressing.

For more changes to standard cookout fare, summer chefs can try creative beverages and desserts. Sangria or spiced tea punch (non-alcoholic) may be prepared and chilled ahead of time to provide a fresh cookout beverage.

And after the main course has cooked, a dessert of skewered fruit warmed over the grill, topped with sugar or liqueur, is an imaginative yet easy finish to a creative cookout.

For more free recipes of summer cooking ideas, write to: Consumer Recipe Brochure, Dept. M92, Naturally Fresh, Inc., 1000 Naturally Fresh Blvd., Atlanta, GA 30349. SL928715

BARBECUE MEALS don't have to stick to the same old menus. Creative variations, like these made with Naturally Fresh ready-made sauces, are an easy way to spice up family cookouts.

Good food brings family and friends together

As food-fads come and go, it's comforting to welcome the return of a trend that celebrates a tradition that's been popular for generations: Potluck parties. What could be more enjoyable than spending time with loved ones, enjoying delightful food and good conversation? Potluck parties are generally casual affairs that take on a festive air because of who's there, and because everyone is involved. Remember the lazy Saturdays of our childhood when the neighbors gathered in your backyard for a potluck picnic with a tray loaded with Wisconsin cheese and crackers and the grill was sizzling in the background? Or the Sunday reunion dinners at grandmother's house, when the aunts and uncles brought covered hot dishes? Years later it is the treasured memories that flood back, often triggered by a sniff or taste of the foods that were so lovingly made and happily shared.

Potluck lends itself to dishes that can be prepared simply, and to family-style or buffet service from big bowls and platters. Even non-cooks can contribute to the food memories. A simple but beautiful tray of Wisconsin cheeses or a woven basket of garden-fresh veggies and creamy dip can play an important part in a meal. Many foods are well-suited to spur-of-the-moment events. For example, keep plenty of Wisconsin cheese on hand; cheese is the original convenience food, and Wisconsin produces more than 200 varieties, types and styles of premium cheese.

Savory sausages are great for appetizers, and you can dash to the garden or your local supermarket for fresh vegetables and fruits. Even hot dishes can be fast, quick and easy one-dish casseroles fill the bill.

Experienced potluck cooks treasure recipes that taste great, are easy to make and travel well. Discovering a new recipe for the next potluck makes it even more fun. Variations on traditional favorites, such as potato salad made with Blue Cheese, or an up-to-date casserole, such as Wisconsin Swiss Linguine Tart, are recipes that are savored, discussed, traded and made for the next potluck get-together.

Cheese is a natural choice for potluck menus, and Wisconsin is the natural choice when you select cheese. Wisconsin, known as America's Dairyland, has a proud history of cheese quality and artistry dating from the past century, when immigrants from European countries brought their age-old cheesemaking traditions to the New World. In Wisconsin, they found a plentiful supply of fresh, wholesome milk produced on dairy farms dotting the rolling, green landscape.

Today, Wisconsin's cheese companies produce some of the world's greatest cheeses, from familiar favorites like Cheddar and Mozzarella, to Wisconsin originals like Colby and Brick, to specialty cheeses such as Asiago, Gruyere, Muenster and Provolone.

A potluck can be held any time, for any reason — or for no reason. Think of holidays, birthdays, picnics, family reunions, graduation parties, pool parties or office parties. Or think of something fun for no reason on a lazy day. Call a few friends and plan a potluck party. Let the good times — and memories — begin.

WISCONSIN SWISS LINGUINE TART

- 1/2 cup butter
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 30 paper-thin French bread slices
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon white pepper
- Dash nutmeg
- 2 cups milk
- 1/2 cup (1 oz.) grated Wisconsin Parmesan cheese
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 8 ounces fresh linguine, cooled, drained
- 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Wisconsin Baby Swiss cheese
- 1/2 cup green onion slices
- 2 tablespoons minced fresh basil
- plum tomatoes

Preheat oven to 350° F. Melt 1/2 cup butter. Add garlic; cook 1 minute. Brush 10-inch pie plate with butter mixture; line bottom and sides with bread, allowing bread to come 1 inch over sides.

Brush bread with remaining butter mixture. Bake 5 minutes or until lightly browned. Set aside.

Melt remaining butter in saucepan over low heat. Blend in flour and seasonings. Gradually add milk, cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat; add Wisconsin Parmesan cheese.

Stir small amount of sauce into eggs; mix well, then add remaining sauce. Pour over linguine combined with 1/2 cups Baby Swiss cheese, green onion and basil; mix well. Pour into crust.

Cut each tomato lengthwise into eight slices; place on tart. Sprinkle with remaining Wisconsin Baby Swiss cheese.

Bake at 350° F for 25 minutes or until warm. Let stand 5 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

WISCONSIN CHEESE PASTA CASSEROLE

- 1 lb. spaghetti or fettuccine, broken into 3-inch pieces
- 1 qt. prepared spaghetti sauce
- 1 cup (1 1/2 oz.) grated Wisconsin Asiago cheese
- 1 1/2 cups (7 oz.) sliced or shredded Wisconsin Colby cheese

- 1/2 cup (1 oz.) grated Wisconsin Asiago cheese
- 1 1/2 cups (6 oz.) shredded Wisconsin Mozzarella cheese

Preheat oven to 350° F.

Prepare pasta according to package instructions; drain. Toss warm pasta with prepared pasta sauce to coat. Add 1/2 cup grated Wisconsin Asiago cheese to mixture and mix well.

Spread half of sauced pasta into bottom of a 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Cover with 1 cup of the Wisconsin Colby cheese. Spread remaining pasta over cheese. Top with remaining 1/2 cup of Wisconsin Colby cheese.

Sprinkle with 1/2 cup grated Wisconsin Asiago cheese and the Wisconsin Mozzarella cheese.

Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until top is lightly browned and casserole is bubbly.

Remove from heat and let stand at least 10 minutes before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

MEXICAN CHIP CASSEROLE

- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons butter

SIMPLE, GREAT-TASTING FOODS are a wonderful idea for potluck gatherings among family and friends. A well-planned potluck event should include plenty of convenient foods high on taste, such as an assortment of Wisconsin cheeses.

Apples, pears, plums, cherries, and almonds are all from the same family as the rose bush.

Pointers For Parents

Preparing Children For A Move
Can Mean Less Tension, More Fun

Summertime is moving time. In fact, U.S. corporations relocate between 300,000 and 500,000 employees annually, with many relocating during the summer months when kids are out of school. This relocation is almost always stressful for a family, but it can be made easier for children when they play an active role in the family's move.

To help youngsters understand and deal with changes they will face in the move, a new coloring book has been developed by Residence Inn by Marriott, a hotel chain that serves as "home away from home" to thousands of relocating families each year. The story presented in the book is "told to kids by kids," according to Laura Herring, a family psychologist who served as a consultant to Residence Inn by Marriott on the coloring book.

Designed to reach children between the ages of three and ten, the book features John and Jill, a brother and sister in the midst of a move to a new town. It captures the feeling of leaving friends and other familiarities of home while offering children suggestions for making new friends and coping with the move. Residence Inn by Marriott sponsored the coloring book as part of an ongoing effort to serve relocating families, who often stay in residential style hotels during the move for an average of 39 days.

- 1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce
- 1 can (4 oz.) diced green chilies
- 2 teaspoons cumin
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon red pepper
- 1 package (8 oz.) tortilla chips, coarsely crushed
- 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Wisconsin Monterey Jack cheese
- 1 lb. ground beef, cooked and drained
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded sharp Wisconsin Cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 350° F. Sauté onion in butter until transparent. Add sauce, chilies, cumin, salt and red pepper. Simmer uncovered, 10 minutes.

Layer in buttered 9-inch square baking dish half of the following: tortilla chips, Wisconsin Monterey Jack cheese, beef and sauté. Repeat once.

Bake for 20 minutes. Remove from oven and spread sour cream on top. Sprinkle with Wisconsin Cheddar cheese. Bake an additional 5 to 10 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings. SL928884

Entertaining Ideas

Have Fun & Save Money

With higher prices, tighter budgets, busy schedules and added stress, good old American female ingenuity is coming to the rescue. Especially when it comes to smart ways to spend more quality time with friends and family, without spending a fortune.

Add to that just about everybody's desire to kick-off their shoes, get more relaxed and spend more time at home, and many people are discovering they can save a lot of money and have a ball, right in their own home. Here are some tips for entertaining at home:

- Think casual. Ask close friends to drop by for your favorite casserole, hearty sandwiches—or cater it yourself with take-out food.

- Think economical. An iced pitcher or hot pot of tea is a natural, festive way to please thirsty guests and it serves a whole group at very little cost—just three cents per serving. Tea is a relaxing pick-me-up that can be served with or without food, in glasses, mugs or cups, in any situation—casual or formal. Your family and friends will love it because it's non-carbonated, has no calories, doesn't irritate the stomach and won't make you jittery.

There are different teas for different times of the day and different occasions—and many delicious varieties. Regardless of what tea you buy, always make sure it is a quality, branded tea that you know and trust, says Tea Council lifestyle expert Marie Rama.

- Make it special. Always set the table in style.

- Make it easy. Instead of dinner, focus the party around dessert, or throw a weekend brunch.

- Get everyone in on the act. Games and planned activities offer more interaction, and make the most of an evening with good friends.

SUMMER EYE CARE

Aside from their fashionable good looks, there are four good reasons for you to wear sunglasses:

1. AGING. Sunglasses keep you from squinting, so they can help delay the arrival of wrinkles.

2. VISION. Wearing sunglasses during the day, no matter the season, can preserve optimum night vision. Explains Dr. Jack Weber, Director of Education and Research at Marchon and Marcolin Eyewear: "Rhodopsin or 'visual purple' is a chemical in the retina of the eye. During the day, the substance can be 'bleached out,' by light. At night, it regenerates to enable us to recognize objects under dim illumination. Once unprotected or underprotected eyes are exposed to bright light such as reflections off water, sand or snow," he adds, "the retina becomes exhausted, slowing down the normal regeneration process, making vision under dim light difficult."

3. SUNBURN. Eyes can burn just as skin does. Dr. Weber suggests you protect your eyes with a brimmed hat and a quality pair of sun-blocking glasses such as Marchon's Ellesse sunwear or CPG's which are 100 percent protected from the harmful ultraviolet rays of the sun.

4. EYE DISEASE. Age-related retinal disease is the cause of blindness affecting 24 percent of those over 60. Researchers now believe Sunglasses are a terrific fashion accessory, but the real beauty is the way they can protect your eyes from damage and disease, say the experts from Marchon and Marcolin Eyewear.

this mostly untreatable disease may have its origin in exposure to ultraviolet rays as early as childhood. Since ultraviolet rays are present on cloudy as well as sunny days, all year-round, Dr. Weber suggests you wear sunglasses.

Keeping these facts in mind can help you keep your eye on good health.

The Great American Rip-Off: Working Off the Clock

Millions of dollars are stolen every day from American workers' paychecks, and not much is being done to stop it. Violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act—the 1937 law establishing the minimum wage and the 40-hour week—have risen to epidemic proportions, the 1.3 million member United Food and Commercial Workers Union (UFCW) has found.

More often, however, workers don't know their rights. Common employer violations include:

- Not paying workers for meal periods.
- Not paying workers for on-call time. Most workers who are on call and must be available to go to work immediately are eligible for pay.
- Not paying for travel time required on the job.
- Not paying for authorized overtime or work off the clock. The law requires that overtime be paid at one and one-half times the regular rate of pay.

For more information, contact your union or the state department of labor (listed in the blue pages of the telephone book).

inside look at one of the region's most interesting industries by visiting the Jim Beam American Outpost in Clermont, Kentucky. Located on the grounds of the Jim Beam 200-year-old distillery, this visitor's center features several exhibits, including an intriguing film on the distilling process; a hilltop rack house stacked high with bourbon slowly aging in oak barrels; the world's oldest moonshiner's still; a cooperage museum; the world's largest collection of Regal China collector decanters; and a wide selection of handmade Kentucky crafts.

Car Maintenance—An Important Buying Consideration

If you're like most American car buyers, operating cost rates are your second most important buying consideration, led only by your concern about occupant safety features. That's the finding of a recent national survey funded by the Insurance Research Council.

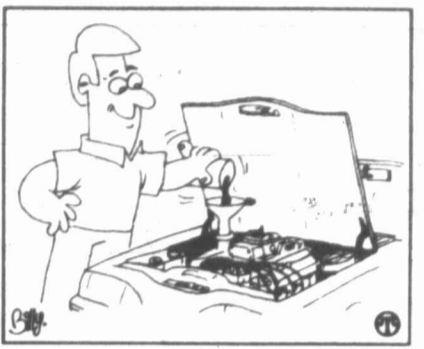

People today are looking beyond the sticker price of a car and considering what it will cost to keep the vehicle running properly. The annual cost of oil changes, front-end alignments, engine adjustments and other scheduled maintenance can add up quickly.

Knowing this, one luxury car manufacturer is offering a special "Customer Protection" package designed to virtually eliminate maintenance costs and provide what it

Better Mileage Tips

Getting your dollar to go that extra mile seems like a pretty good idea, especially during these times. In the latest, free "Answer Book" from Shell, "The Better Mileage Book," there are valuable tips on how you can literally get that extra mile for your dollar. Here are a few car maintenance tips from that booklet.

- Get in tune. Getting a tune-up for a car that's badly out of tune, even a newer car, can increase your fuel mileage by up to 20 percent.
- Get in line. Have your wheel alignment checked and adjusted if necessary. Poorly aligned wheels increase road friction and waste gas.
- Pump it up. Check your tire pressure at least once per month. Underinflated tires significantly hurt fuel economy.
- Don't mix it up. Cars with radial tires get better mileage than those with bias-ply tires. You should not, however, mix the two types.
- Clean up your act. Dirty, clogged air filters cause a higher fuel-to-air ratio, decreasing fuel economy. Change filters at the interval recommended in the owners manual or if they look dirty.
- Make the grade. To improve your gas mileage, use a multigrade motor oil recommended by your car's manufacturer. Choose an energy conserving (EC) oil identified by an Energy Conserving or Energy Conserving II label. An EC-rated multigrade oil can improve your gas mileage 1.5% over a typical single grade motor oil. An EC II rating signifies an improvement of 2.7% over the single grade oil.

To improve your gas mileage, use an energy conserving (EC) multigrade motor oil.

How to Keep Track of Your Gas Mileage

Knowing how to calculate your car's fuel efficiency can be helpful in assuring that you're getting the best possible gas mileage. Here's how you can check:

- Write down the number of miles displayed on your odometer when you fill up your car.
- Divide the number of miles you've driven since the last fill-up by the number of gallons you put in. This will give you the miles per gallon (mpg).

It's a good idea to keep track of your car's gas mileage. Sudden decreases may suggest the need for a tune-up or repairs. Of course, driving conditions, such as different terrains and inclement weather, vary and can have an impact on mileage.

The Shell "Better Mileage Book" offers these as well as other helpful fuel efficiency tips. To get your free Shell Answer Book, visit your nearest Shell station and ask for a copy or write to Shell Answers, Shell Oil Company, Dept. M, P.O. Box 4681, Houston, Texas 77210.

Keep your cool with nutritious summer juices

Bring out the frisbee and slip into a pair of shorts — the sunny season is extending its annual invitation to take advantage of our favorite warm-weather pastimes. By its very nature, summer inspires an abundance of physical activities. And because summer can be sweltering, health and fitness experts say it is essential that people monitor physical activity and keep their bodies well hydrated.

"Fresh, natural fruit juices are especially effective in taking the bite off summer heat. They quench thirst and provide the vitamins necessary to keep up energy levels — even during the most stifling heat waves," says Pamela Hastings, director of education for Singer. "Unlike many canned, bottled or frozen varieties, fresh juices contain no preservatives and offer 'just-picked' taste and goodness."

A growing demand for fresh juices, fueled by the country's increasing awareness of the benefits of healthy eating, is powering the popularity of easy-to-use, in-home juice extractors, according to Hastings.

"Home juicers let people extract exotic fruit nectars like papaya, kiwi or orange, or make fresh vegetable juices at the touch of a button," explains Hastings. Singer's version of the popular appliance — the Juice Giant™ — conveniently extracts these nutritious drinks in seconds. Juice and pulp are separated into two easily-removable, dishwasher-safe containers, making access and clean-up a breeze. The Juice Giant is available at Singer retailers nationwide for less than $60.

"These machines ought to be called juice and pulp extractors because there are so many healthful and delicious ways to use the pulp, as well as the juice — nothing goes to waste," says Hastings. Here are several tasty recipes from Singer to give your body a refreshing boost:

- SUNSHINE BREAKFAST DRINK
- 3 oranges, peeled
  - 1/2 pineapple, cored with outer layer removed
  - 1 cantaloupe, peeled
  - 2 orange slices
- Juice all ingredients except orange slices. Stir to blend. Serve over crushed ice and garnish with orange slices. Makes about two cups. Tip: Freeze and serve fruit pulp for a low calorie, sorbet-style dessert.

ITALIAN COCKTAIL

- 4 ribs celery with leaves
  - 4 tomatoes, cored
  - 4 carrots, pared
  - 1/2 cup spinach leaves, packed
  - 1/2 cup fresh basil leaves, packed
- Salt and pepper to taste

Juice celery, tomatoes and carrots. Combine spinach and basil in separate container and add to juicer. Add salt and pepper to taste and serve over ice.

Save pulp to use in Hearty Minestrone Soup. Makes 2 1/2 cups juice.

HEARTY MINISTRONE SOUP

- Vegetable pulp from Italian Cocktail (about 1 1/2 cups)
- 2 cans (14 1/2 ounces) beef broth

- 1 can (15 ounces) white beans
- 1 zucchini, halved lengthwise, sliced
- Rosemary and oregano to taste
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 8 ounces uncooked pasta
- Grated Parmesan cheese to garnish

Combine all ingredients except pasta and cheese. Bring to boil. Add pasta and simmer until pasta is tender. Serve with Parmesan cheese sprinkled on top.

Makes 8 cups thick minestrone. For more information and a booklet of delicious recipes, send $3.00 (includes shipping and handling) to: "Quick, Easy and Delicious," Dept. C, Singer Sewing Company, 200 Metroplex Dr., Edison, NJ 08818. Call 800-877-1329 to locate a nearby Singer retailer. SL929076

Chem-Dry of Big Spring has been serving the Howard and Martin County area for six years. The carpet and upholstery cleaning service is owned and operated by Randy and Tricia Clanton. Glenn Stanley, (head technician) has been with them for two years. Randy and Glenn both are certified carpet and upholstery cleaning and water damage restoration technicians.

Other than complete customer satisfaction, their first and foremost goal is to change the attitude of the public towards carpet cleaning due to the many problems associated with other cleaning methods.

They feel that the customers are discouraged by the poor results and damaging effects that can be caused by steam, shampoo and dry cleaning methods.

The people are looking for and very much deserve a viable alternative; something fast, efficient and economical. This is where Chem-Dry comes in. Chem-Dry uses a highly carbonated solution. The patented carbonation process allows the solution to penetrate each fiber and emulsify the dirt and stains. As the solution turns the dirt and stains into a liquid (emulsification), the CO<sub>2</sub> actually lifts them to the surface for easy extraction.

As a result of using the CO<sub>2</sub>, excess amounts of water are eliminated, thus preventing damage as can be found with other methods.

Chem-Dry offers a number of distinct advantages which other methods cannot. They are: carpets dry within an hour, not days; no dirt attracting residues; removes stubborn stains, even most pet stains, it is very economical.

One major benefit of using Chem-Dry is the texture and feel of the carpet after it is cleaned. Steam, shampoo and dry cleaning may leave the carpet coarse, brittle and stiff. Chem-Dry actually makes the carpet fluffier and softer. The mildness of the Chem-Dry solution does not remove the natural oils from the carpet that give it its soft texture.

The uniqueness and exclusiveness of the Chem-Dry process is backed by a nationwide franchise network over 3000 strong.

It is also protected by patent, registered trademarks, copyrights and a research and development firm.

Our revolutionary patented system of carpet cleaning is so effective that carpets which people have been ready to replace have been restored to an acceptable condition.

Chem-Dry also offers a variety of other services. They feature the patented process of red stain removal called "RED ALERT." They have several type of protectors from fluorochemicals to stain resistors. They have an exclusive pet urine removal treatment called "PURT," which can totally remove pet odor. Chem-Dry offers full water damage restoration and carpet repair. Other products and services they offer are G-Coate 20 fabric protector; Rust removal, carpet anti-statics, Dirt wrangler — laundry detergent, Vehicle interior detailing and Leather Vinyl cleaning.

Chem-Dry is a full service carpet, upholstery, and drapery care system.

We are so confident of our carbonated process that we challenge you to give us a carpet that we cannot clean. If you are not completely satisfied, you pay nothing. You have nothing to lose but the dirt in your carpet.
