Beals Creek project funding approved

Funding for the Beals Creek flood control project for $500,000 was approved by a U.S. Senate panel Tuesday, said U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm. The funding is contained in the Energy and Water Development Appropriations bill, which includes funds for dozens of flood control, navigation, water supply and energy projects throughout Texas. Gramm said under this bill, the money will be used to construct flood control improvements along Beals Creek and the money will be available after October.

Commission eases water fears

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Texas Water Commission officials Tuesday assured West Texas water districts and residents the commission does not want to regulate underground water across the state. Commission Chairman John Hall and Commissioner Peggy Garner visited water district offices in Stanton, Garden City and Sterling City following stops in Wichita Falls earlier that day and Lubbock and Plains on Monday, to ease fears of an April commission ruling to regulate a Hill Country Aquifer. Legislation to remove the commission's authority to regulate underground water would be supported by the commission if underground water districts do not fight the April ruling, Hall told about a dozen people in Stanton, the last stop of the tour. "I think we can work together on that," said Hall, who addressed the group at the Permian Basin Underground Water Conservation District in Stanton. "It should take care of your concerns." The April ruling, declaring the Edwards under San Antonio and six surrounding counties an underground river and therefore subject to state control, was unique, said Hall of Austin and Garner of McCamey. No other aquifer in the state has underground characteristics, such as beds and banks and almost constant flow. The ruling was to facilitate agreement on decades-old disputes on water pumping limits on the aquifer and to avoid federal takeover due to an endangered species suit filed in federal court in Midland. More than 1.5 million people depend on the aquifer and that is expected to double in 20 to 30 years. No plan for alternate sources of water are on the table. While the Edwards was mismanaged, other water districts across the state are doing a good job, Hall said. "What we're doing in the Edwards Aquifer is not your fight and if the people in the Edwards had been doing what you're doing, we would not have this fight," he said. "You're doing a good job." At least some were relieved after hearing Hall. "That sounds good," said Mark Hoelscher, manager of the water district in Stanton and immediate past president of the statewide Alliance of Groundwater Districts, which last month officially opposed the ruling. "If we get that (law allowing commission regulation of underground water), we do a lot." "I understand it now more than I did," said Lenorah cotton farmer Myrl Mitchell, whose household water is supplied by one water well that pumps 15 to 20 gallons a day. "I want to say that I agree with it wholeheartedly."

Detectives of another ilk seek sexually at-risk people

By MARTHA E. FLORES

Combating the spread of sexually transmitted diseases is a battle being fought with an aggressive approach to locating people at risk throughout Texas. In metropolitan areas, health department aides are assigned to locate sexual partners of those tested positive for STD. By gathering information from the person tested, the aides go into the community to inform sexual partners of the health risks and the importance of getting tested. In rural Texas counties such as Howard County, STD investigators do not go into the community. Their investigations are conducted by interviews with the tested person. The aide will emphasize the importance of notifying sexual partners. If the individual is not comfortable with contacting sexual partners, Howard County Health Unit personnel will offer to send a letter urging the person to contact the office. "The key to controlling the spread of the disease is contacting those who may be at risk without knowing it," said Casey Blass, director of the Texas Department of Health STD control. "With the limited resources statewide, we target certain STDs. Early syphilis cases are targeted in attempts to prevent complications with infants." Other high target diseases are chlamydia and gonorrhea. There are more than 20 sexually transmitted diseases.

Human Immunodeficiency Virus is handled in the same manner, but is categorized by itself, although it is sexually transmitted. Statistics are also kept by a department separate from STD control. Blass said the health department concentrates on areas with the largest STD rates, which is not necessarily a metropolitan areas. "There are very high rates in some rural areas. It is important to look at the rate per 100,000 instead of the number of cases reported. The Houston area will always have more reports because of the higher population, but a less populated area may have a higher rate of incidents. This is what needs to be considered." In Howard County for 1991, 22 cases of gonorrhea calculated into 68 rate per 100,000 and 31 cases of syphilis calculated into 95.8 rate per 100,000. Dr. Ray Owen, director of the Howard County unit, said he did not have the impression that rates were increasing in the county. But he does see more younger people in for testing. Owen added "We handle the testing on a very professional basis. We are not here to judge, but to help." At the unit the tests are $15 each. Anyone may be tested. It is not restricted to Howard County residents. Literature on the symptoms of STD and free condoms are available at the health unit. For more information call 263-7261 or come to the unit office at 201 E. Lancaster St.

Rotary students visit Big Spring

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

Participants in the Rotary International student exchange program will stay overnight in Big Spring Friday. Accommodations for the 43 students will be provided by family members of the local Rotary Club. Their evening in Big Spring will consist of a barbecue at the Morgan Ranch, attendance at the 47th annual Howard County 4-H Club's American Junior Rodeo Association Rodeo or an evening their host family, said Janet George, host family coordinator. The students are participating in Rotary International Eastern States Student Exchange (ESSEX). Native lands include European countries, Eastern block countries, Latin American countries, Pacific Rim countries, New Zealand, South Africa and Australia. The students have been in the United States for about a year and had a least six months of English, George said. The ESSEX tour is one of 10 tours sponsored by Rotary International. In years past, Colorado City and other surrounding cities have accommodated the students. This is the first year the exchange program participants will stay in Big Spring. George said Rotary members wanted to give the students the opportunity to have "a taste of Big Spring." The students resided on the Eastern states throughout the exchange program. The tour takes place at the end of the year stay, extending from the East to West coasts. The students will visit Dallas-Fort Worth area after Big Spring. Rotary International has 25,634 clubs throughout 184 countries. In order for the organization to exist, residents must be able to meet in a free and open dialogue.

Enoch seeks place on state supreme court

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Texas Supreme Court candidate Craig Enoch, in Big Spring Tuesday, is riding a wave of reform he hopes will further tip the conservative majority of the high court. The 42-year-old Dallas Republican's target is Democrat Oscar Mauzy, 65, of Dallas, who is running for re-election for Place 1 on the court, the last stop for civil appeals in the state. Following reports of lavish campaign contributions to justices from attorneys with cases pending on the Court, Enoch wants to follow other Republican and conservative reform candidates by removing politics, big money and special interest from the bench. "Politics stops at the courthouse door," said Enoch, addressing more than 30 people at a luncheon at the home of Jane Thomas. "It's just going to have to be a court that understands its role in the review process and doesn't seem to be an advocate for one side or the other. "There's a judge (Mauzy) in there that's never understood what it meant to be judge," said Enoch, now chief justice of the 5th District Court of Appeals and formerly judge of the 101st District Court. "He believes that he has the right to consider the public will, to consider what's best to society. He functioned as an activist on the court." Pushed by Enoch and other reformers: ● Judges should only interpret and apply law, not create it through judicial decisions. ● Limiting campaign contributions to $5,000 per individual or each political action committee. Enoch said he has done that. ● Non-partisan election of judges followed by retention elections, in which no other candidates file unless a judge is ousted or there is a vacancy. This has merit because it would help remove partisan politics from the system. The reform movement, he said, is not necessarily partisan. Of five justices who ran on a reform campaign, one is a Democrat. ● Better docket management is needed that considers costs to lawyers and clients and not just court time. Enoch said a management system he enacted while a district judge dropped pending cases in that court by 40 percent. Enoch likes to compare contributions. Reports filed this week, he said, show that 41 percent of Enoch's contributors are lawyers, contributing 49 percent the total. But 49 percent of Mauzy's contributors are lawyers, contributing 85 percent of the total. Enoch, a 1975 graduate of Southern Methodist School of Law, said he also has no problem comparing his 10 years of being a judge against Mauzy's five years on the high court. Mauzy was a state senator for 20 years prior to taking his place on the court. The high court is expected to see an increasing number of cases in upcoming years because of recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings allowing more state interpretation.

Republican host committee short on affirmative action

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — The Houston Host Committee has fallen short of meeting minority- and women-owned business contracting goals for the Republican National Convention, the city's top-ranking affirmative-action officer says.

The general contractor hired by the Host Committee to supervise construction in the Astrodome has submitted only $468,000 worth of minority and women-owned business subcontracts, according to a report submitted by a contractor.

That represents only 6.8 percent so far of the $7.7 million in local money the city is using to provide services and construction for the GOP convention.

An agreement between the City Council and the Host Committee called for the committee to make a good-faith effort to award 15 percent of its subcontracts to minority and women-owned businesses.

Lee Eliot Brown, the city's director of Affirmative Action and Contract Compliance, said Tuesday the Host Committee needs to move quickly to meet the city goals before the Aug. 17-20 convention.

"I would certainly expect there will be a greater participation of minorities and women," said Ms. Brown. "Six point eight percent is not a satisfactory representation of what they need to do to meet the city's goals."

The Host Committee hired Freeman Companies of Dallas earlier this year to be the general contractor, overseeing most construction work.

In a report submitted to the city this week, Freeman reported it has selected four women-owned businesses and six minority-owned subcontractors.

If the Host Committee does not increase minority participation, Ms. Brown said, she would have to report to the City Council that the Host Committee did not comply with the contract. The City Council would then have to decide what action to take.

"I believe the Host Committee is concerned they live up to their commitment to our city council," she said. "They know I have questions."

The Republican National Committee, which is spending $11 million in federal money on the convention, is not required to meet any minority-hiring goals even though it is holding its convention in a city where blacks, Hispanics and Asians outnumber whites.

Joe Fleming, a convention spokesman, said the GOP does not have minority-contracting goals and has based its contractor selection process solely "on merit and ability to do the job."

Sharon Adams, Host Committee spokeswoman, said they are trying to meet the goals but that "there is only so much Freeman can contract out."

Ms. Adams said also that some minority- and women-owned firms that the Host Committee has contracted with are not certified by the city. Ms. Adams said the Host Committee hopes to hire more minority contractors.

San Antonio councilman refuses to quit city's AIDS commission

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO — A city councilman under fire for his criticism of AIDS activists says he has no plans to resign as a member of the city's AIDS commission.

Councilman Weir Labatt, appointed as the council's representative to the commission, said late Tuesday he "would not resign voluntarily."

AIDS activists are expected to attend Thursday's City Council meeting to urge that Labatt be removed from his seat on the 25-member commission, created by the council to develop policy recommendations on issues concerning acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Activists were angered when Labatt criticized the HIV/AIDS community for seeking special privileges and stating that most AIDS sufferers should blame themselves for contracting the disease because of drug use or same-sex intercourse.

"I would resign only if the mayor requested it," Labatt said,

"I would resign only if the mayor requested it because he's the one who asked me to be on it (the commission)."

"because he's the one who asked me to be on it (the commission)."

Mayor Nelson Wolff, who returned Tuesday evening from New York, declined to say whether he would seek to remove Labatt from the commission until he talked to the councilman.

Advocacy groups representing the AIDS community, gays and lesbians scrambled Tuesday to figure out a response to Labatt's comments blaming most AIDS sufferers for engaging in behavior that led to contracting the disease.

The San Antonio Lesbian/Gay Assembly, which says it represents about 4,000 individuals, told Wolff its members were "dumbfounded and shocked at the outrageous comments made by Councilman Labatt."

Labatt stated in an interview Monday with The San Antonio Light that "the reason they have AIDS is their lifestyle — the majority of them being drug IV (intravenous) users or having engaged in male-to-male intercourse."

He stood by those comments Tuesday, saying "I don't regret making those comments."

"I think what I said is true. It doesn't show insensitivity or lack of compassion on my part."

The councilman said he received scores of calls Tuesday at his office and home concerning his comments.

Euthanasia process inhumane

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — The process used by U.S. Department of Agriculture employees to kill about 125 exotic birds in Houston last summer has been criticized by federal investigators.

An investigatory report indicates that government veterinarians for years have used a questionable method to kill birds in Texas.

Kevin Schneider, a California bird rights activist, and Dan Easter, owner of the Houston birds, complained to the USDA that the procedures used to kill the birds were tantamount to animal abuse.

The birds, suspected of carrying Newcastle disease, a contagious avian virus particularly dangerous to poultry, were placed in plastic garbage bags at Easter's home, then smothered with carbon dioxide from fire extinguishers.

"The procedures they followed were just crazy," he said.

Names in the news

NEW YORK — Arsenio Hall says his feud with Jay Leno is personal, not business.

Before Leno succeeded Johnny Carson on NBC's "The Tonight Show" in May, Hall, host of a syndicated talk show, proclaimed, "I'm gonna kick Leno's ass."

"I have no problems with Jay as a host or as a competitor in the late-night arena," Hall said in an interview for broadcast today on ABC's "Good Morning Today."

"The problem I have with Jay is personal, and that's why I haven't gone into detail in the press. Man to man, one day we'll discuss it."

He would not elaborate on the falling out.

Sandinista militants clash with police; 11 wounded

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Former Sandinista militants clashed with riot police near the presidential residence during the night and at least 11 people were wounded by gunfire, authorities said early today.

President Violeta Chamorro had left the country hours before the Tuesday night clash for a summit of Latin American, Spanish and Portuguese leaders in Madrid. Former President Daniel Ortega appealed for calm.

Army Col. Hugo Torres said at least seven police officers were seriously wounded in the gunfire, as well as two retired Sandinista military officers, a transport striker and a civilian bystander.

Seven student demonstrators suspected of sympathizing with the militants were arrested, reports said.

The Defense Ministry declared the area near the official residence and the nearby National Assembly building "a police operations zone." Troops reported later the area was calm and the militants, estimated at about 60, had fled.

The shooting followed a day of street protests by thousands of students demanding increased public funding for universities and a paralyzing transport strike by bus drivers protesting a hike in licensing fees.

The 10-minute shooting melee was the second in two days involving the former Sandinista officers, who are demanding government benefits for choosing early retirement under Mrs. Chamorro's plan to trim the military.

The militants were believed to be part of a group of about 2,000 military officers and 3,000 civilians who elected retirement and want the government to grant them land and materials to build homes. The Sandinista militants, dressed in camouflage and brandishing pistols and Molotov cocktails, reportedly began trading fire with riot police after massing for a demonstration late Tuesday.

But a Defense Ministry spokesman, Ricardo Wheelock, said the officers did not carry guns and that the anti-government demonstrators did all the firing.

The Sandinistas blamed the riot police for firing first.

Vincennes cover-up disputed

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff acknowledged the USS Vincennes had been operating in Iranian territorial waters when it shot down an Iranian airliner four years ago, killing all 290 civilians aboard.

But Retired Adm. William J. Crowe Jr., testifying before a House committee Tuesday, denied any attempt to cover up the truth about the Navy's fatal error.

"The accusations of a cover-up are preposterous and unfounded," Crowe told the House Armed Services Committee.

Crowe defended the Navy's actions and dismissed most of the allegations made in a pair of investigative reports about the Iranian Airbus shoot-down earlier this month by Newsweek magazine and ABC's "Nightline" program.

July 3, 1988, came as U.S. warships were in the gulf to keep shipping clear during the Iran-Iraq War. Photographs of the bodies of men, women and children floating in the gulf endure as a ghastly image from that time.

The ABC and Newsweek reports charged that the United States not only provoked the incident but also lied to cover it up.

In acknowledging one of the report's findings, that the Vincennes was in Iranian waters, Crowe dismissed its importance.

He said that the exact location was a "peripheral subject," that it was not necessarily illegal to operate in Iranian waters, and that "the tragedy would have likely occurred whether the Vincennes was within Iranian waters or not."

Captains of the U.S. ships were expected "to act aggressively" if they believed they were under threat, as the Vincennes captain has contended, he said.

The Vincennes' location at the time was kept classified when the Navy released its report of the incident in August 1988 to protect disclosure of the Navy's rules of engagement, Crowe said.

But he said the location could have been deduced through simple calculations made from information made public later that year by an international investigative body.

He also maintained he was never specifically asked whether the ship was in territorial or international waters during news conferences or congressional testimony in 1988.

Statutory rape law struck down

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

TAVARES, Fla. — Florida's statutory rape law is unconstitutional as it applies to teen-agers who consent to sexual relations, a judge ruled.

Circuit Judge Jerry Lockett's ruling on Tuesday could be a landmark decision that forces lawmakers and the courts to re-examine the law designed to prohibit sex between an unmarried person under 16 and an adult — a person over 18.

The courts in Florida have always held that consent is not a defense under the statutory rape law.

Prosecutors said they would appeal.

In his ruling, the judge dismissed two cases he had heard last week in which the 15-year-old girls involved said they had wanted to have sex with their male friends — one 19 and the other 20 — and that they did not want to prosecute.

Lockett said the rape law conflicted with a 1990 Florida Supreme Court ruling that gives minors the same right of privacy as adults.

That Supreme Court decision, which came after Lockett ruled Florida's teen abortion law unconstitutional, said a Lake County teen-ager identified only as "T.W." had the right to an abortion without the consent of her parents or the courts unless the state could show "a compelling interest" to intervene.

"If this constitutional right to privacy extends to the decision of a minor to have an abortion, it must extend to the decision to engage in sexual intercourse," Lockett said.

The judge said the statute also conflicts in this instance with a 1980 amendment to the Florida Constitution that says each person "has the right to be left alone and free from governmental intrusion into his private life."

Lockett's ruling can be cited by other judges but has no immediate effect in other judicial circuits.

Highway word good for town

The word from the Texas Department of Transportation is good for Big Spring and our part of West Texas. At a Monday meeting in Sweetwater, TDT officials announced plans to extend FM 700 from the Snyder Highway to the Lamesa Highway.

Officials had earlier announced release of nearly $80,000 in the near future for beautification work on the east and west entrances to the community from I-20.

That's good news for folks at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, who have lobbied extensively to get the funds committed — and then made available.

The community entrance work is beneficial to everyone in our community and the work will be paid for with tax dollars we have already paid. A return on our investment, if you will.

The TDT also continues plans for the widening and upgrading of U.S. 87 to interstate standards, another project heavily pursued by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

That work, which will take the road to four-lane, divided highway status, could be vital when the decision is made to extend I-27 south of Lubbock.

There are several options for the route, including a Midland-Odessa direction and one through Snyder, Roscoe and Sweetwater in addition to the Lamesa-Big Spring-San Angelo route.

Despite the fact transportation studies show that the Lamesa-Big Spring-San Angelo route would be the most traveled because it is the most direct, the decision will be political.

Our soon-to-be voice in the Legislature in Austin, Rep. David Counts, D-Knox City, has already said he supports the Snyder-Roscoe-Sweetwater route.

And our voice in the Senate, Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, won't commit to support of the most direct, least costly route at the risk of offending constituents in Odessa.

Thus, the work is left up to the members of the community.

Fortunately, the chamber has forged a coalition with the folks in Lamesa and San Angelo, which also gains us the voices of Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, and Rep. Robert Junell, D-San Angelo, to help get the support in Austin.

Yes, the news from the Texas Department of Transportation is good. We are most appreciative of their support for our community.

We are especially appreciative of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce for its vigilance over these areas of concern to our community and region.

AMERICA IS IN A DEEP RECESSION... AND WHAT WE NEED IS BOLD, NEW, COURAGEOUS, AND IMAGINATIVE LEADERSHIP TO STIMULATE THE ECONOMY, AND BILL CLINTON IS THE MAN... HE HAS A PLAN!

Remembering the bad may help out

To my dismay, Neshoba County, Miss. is known as the county in which three young civil rights workers were killed by some redneck louts in the mid-1960s.

The murders of Michael Schwerner, James Chaney and Andrew Goodman along a dirt road near Philadelphia focused national attention on Mississippi's violent resistance to desegregation.

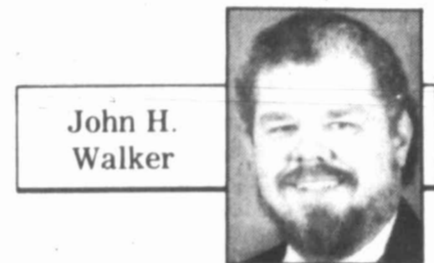

And even though Neshoba County has its fair share of redneck louts, even today, it's a nice enough part of the Deep South.

These days, folks in eastern Mississippi are preparing for the Neshoba County Fair — the 103rd edition.

It's a fair in the truest sense of the word — there's horse races and rodeos, barbecues and a Ferris wheel, fireworks and politics.

There are more than 600 cabins encircling the fairgrounds at Philadelphia, located about 45 miles or so northeast of Meridian, and people go to the fair and stay for the duration.

The main reason people go to the fair at Philadelphia is because it traditionally kicks off the political home stretch in Mississippi. Anybody who is anybody statewide, or wants to be, shows up to stomp with the folks.

They don't stomp with the black folks, though.

Even in 1992, racism is alive and well in east Mississippi.

Back in my college days I dated a girl who lived in Meridian. To get to her home from Delta State, located close to the Mississippi River in the Delta, you just angled across the state — and drove through Philadelphia.

Schwerner, Chaney and Goodman were long dead by the time I drove those dark backroads in 1968 and 1969 but I remember being nervous as I headed my Pontiac Tempest down that asphalt ribbon, lined by tall pine trees and criss-crossed by country roads.

I don't ever remember being nervous about driving anywhere else in Mississippi except that part of the state. James Dickey's book "Deliverance" is the only thing that comes to mind when I think of Neshoba County and that part of my home state.

While thousands of persons visit the fair — including presidential candidates in the past — the fairgrounds themselves must carry some sort of unwritten policy that the folks in charge and the blacks understand.

Once a small, turn-of-the-century picnic for Mississippi's elite, the fair has mushroomed into an international attraction and the state's single most important political event — a nearly compulsory stop for state office-seekers, a favored event for national candidates.

Ronald Reagan launched his 1980 presidential campaign from the fair's sawdust pit. John Glenn visited in 1983, and Michael Dukakis in 1988.

Even though blacks make up more than 30 percent of the county's population, you don't see them away from the cabins or stables they clean.

I grew up on a cotton plantation in the Mississippi Delta — in the days of separate entrances to cafes and separate water fountains.

I remember the signs "white" and "colored" and not really understanding why two little 8-year-old boys — one white and one black — couldn't play together.

That seems like a lifetime ago, but it's not, it's still with us. And for those of us who grew up in the Deep South, places like Philadelphia and Neshoba County will hang around our necks forever.

Southerners will always get to answer the "What was it like?" questions and not everyone try to explain that not everyone from the Deep South was that way — or shared the beliefs of the cowards who hid behind hoods and killed three young men who were just trying to help make this world a better place.

And we'll wonder how we can make a difference back there, in a world we left so we could get away from the hatred.

Maybe by remembering what we didn't like, and telling others about the good, will help.

Being offended 'in' in 90s America

I'm offended. I never thought I would say that, because I'm an easy-going type of guy who figures it's a lot less stressful not to let anybody get to me.

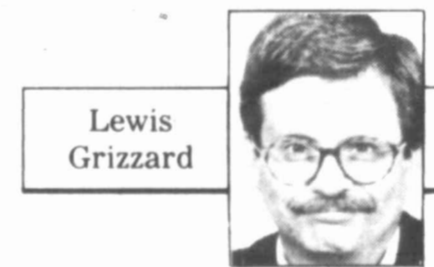

But these are the '90s and getting offended is "in," like drinking bottle water, refusing to eat red meat and cursing smokers.

It's hardly a day that passes somebody doesn't make the news by getting offended.

Recently, Sister Souljah, the rap person, rapped about killing white people and then she became offended because Bill Clinton said she was a racist for doing such a thing.

Jesse Jackson, who was born offended, also got offended by Gov. Clinton's remarks, so it was a two-on-one fastbreak, two of-fendees on one offender. Hardly sounds fair, but that's baseball these days.

And that brings up Native

Lewis Grizzard

Americans becoming offended by Atlanta Braves fans' tomahawk chop and criminals becoming offended by the name Texas Rangers, since Texas Rangers are law enforcement persons who nab a lot of criminals and send them to jail.

So why should I be left off the bandwagon of offendees. It's a free country, isn't it?

Here's why I'm offended. There's was an article in the paper the other day concerning suburban Clayton County (Georgia) promoting itself as a nice place to live in order to convince more Atlanta area people to move there.

The second paragraph began: "Feeling that the county has been treated for years as metro Atlanta's redneck stepchild..."

That offended me. In the first place, I know the origin of the term redneck, and several members of my family fell into that category.

Redneck got its start when ruralites came to town on Saturdays to buy feed, seed and maybe a new pair of brogans.

These people made their living working in the fields under the hot sun, growing food, a very worthwhile endeavor, and their necks often became sunburned.

Town folk, who tend to be snooty, thought these people ignorant, uncouth, and undesirable because they tend to drive pick-up trucks, listen to "The Grand Ole Opry" on the radio, and to be humble.

They were easy to pick on, in other words. My grandfather was one of those persons. He made his living from behind a mule, and his neck got red. He also liked Ernest Tubb and I never heard him make a loud, bodacious statement of any kind.

He also was the most gentle, caring person I've ever known, and I'm glad he didn't live long enough to see the term applied to him become such a derisive label.

In the second place let us discuss the term stepchild.

In the context it was used "redneck stepchild" it seemed to indicate someone who was a most undesirable individual.

I spring from those who worked the soil and became red of neck, and I had a stepfather, so I was a stepchild, and that makes me twice offended.

Now, if you'll excuse me, I'm going to ride around in my red blazer — a sort of pick-up truck — and pout.

Democrats' election-year promises impossible to keep

NEW YORK — In the cynical phrase, political promises are like peanuts. They are made to be broken. In the spread-eagled party platform they adopted last night, the Democrats have made promises that no party possibly could keep. One has to wonder why the party troubles to make them at all.

By promising to protect even the self-determination rights of the people of Palau, the Democrats have covered every base around the world. In the grand tradition of party platforms, this platform promises something for almost everyone. In an incongruous touch, there's even a kind word for private enterprise.

Beyond a stock commitment toward greater efficiency in government, there's not much here that might be defined as economy. The platform promises to eliminate non-productive programs, though it identifies none; it pledges a strict rule of pay as you go for new non-investment spending; it has other sensible things to say about getting the deficit under control.

These exercises in sanity evidently exhausted the framers of this platform, for all the rest of the platform, aside from the usual pieties and partisan insults, is devoted to spending. Here the Democrats have it all over the Republicans. If the Clinton-Gore team wins the White House and goes to work with a Congress controlled by their party, we should expect more spending across the board.

The platform promises more federal spending on roads, bridges and infrastructure. There will be more spending on "research," and that embraces more research on everything. Indeed, an entire new "civilian research agency" would be brought into being.

The Democrats pledge more spending on every kind of "training." They will retrain veterans discharged from the armed forces; they will retrain displaced workers from defense factories and assist them in relocation. They will train youngsters not bound for college through a new "national apprentice-style program."

A party that promises to reduce federal administrative costs by 3 percent a year may find itself hard pressed to make its quota.

The platform commits the Clinton administration to a new national network of Community Development Banks. It promises a new Civilian Conservation Corps. It promises to create a Police Corps and a Democracy Corps. The administration will strengthen legal services for the poor, fully enforce the Americans With Disabilities Act, and pursue deadbeat spouses who fall behind on child support.

When time hangs heavily on the hands of the incoming president, he will rebuild the cities, see that America's farmers — especially family farmers — get a fair price for their products, and set up new programs of student loans available to everyone "regardless of family income." There is more — much more.

"We will enact a uniquely American reform of the health care system to control costs and make health care affordable; ensure quality and choice of health care providers; cover all Americans regardless of pre-existing conditions; squeeze out waste, bureaucracy and abuse; improve primary and preventive care including child immunization and prevention of diseases like tuberculosis..."

The sentence on health care goes on and on until it concludes with a promise to provide a full range of choices in birth control, including the right to a safe, legal abortion. President Clinton will put an end to breast cancer; he will declare war on AIDS. He will make drug treatment available to all addicts who seek it.

All this is bound to cost money, but some of the promises would reduce the government's revenue. There would be "tax relief for families with children." Certain tax credits for earned income would be enlarged. The president would relieve the tax burden on the middle class by "forcing the rich to pay their fair share."

It is a big bundle, but nothing less than one would expect from a party engaged in "revolution." That is the big thrust. "We call for a revolution in government, to take power away from the entrenched bureaucracies and narrow interests in Washington and put it back in the hands of ordinary people." Yeah, man!

NFL, players still trying to settle out of court

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Sometime this week, the NFL and its players will know if there's a chance of settling their 5-year-old dispute out of court.

Both sides in the dispute indicated Tuesday that the decision by NFL owners to give new powers to commissioner Paul Tagliabue and a seven-owner committee could get the league its first labor contract in five years.

But there's still a long way to go. "I wouldn't want to speculate on what this means," Jim Quinn, the lead lawyer in the antitrust suit by eight players against the league. "More likely than not we'll be returning to trial, but that doesn't mean that things can't happen while the trial is going on."

NFL owners voted Monday to give Tagliabue and the executive committee of the Management Council, expanded by one with the addition of the Los Angeles Raiders' Al Davis, the power to negotiate a contract. That means a new agreement would no longer need approval by 21 of the 28 owners.

And while Quinn and officials of the NFL Players Association said Tuesday there had been no official communication with the NFL, Joe Browne, one of Tagliabue's top aides, said the league would try to resume talks before next Monday. That's when an antitrust suit by eight players is scheduled to resume in Minneapolis after a two-week hiatus.

"It's logical to assume that there will be contact between the two parties between now and Monday," Browne said. "However, if things don't work out, we're prepared to return to Minneapolis to present our case to the jury."

Tagliabue has said since he was elected commissioner in 1989 that his first priority was to get a new labor agreement to replace the one that expired on Sept. 1, 1987, just before the players engaged in their unsuccessful 24-day walkout. For the past year, he has been negotiating with Jim Quinn, lead attorney for the eight players whose suit against the NFL's limited free agency system is currently being tried.

Officials of the NFL Players Association, which has officially ceased representing the players' collective bargaining issues, were non-committal.

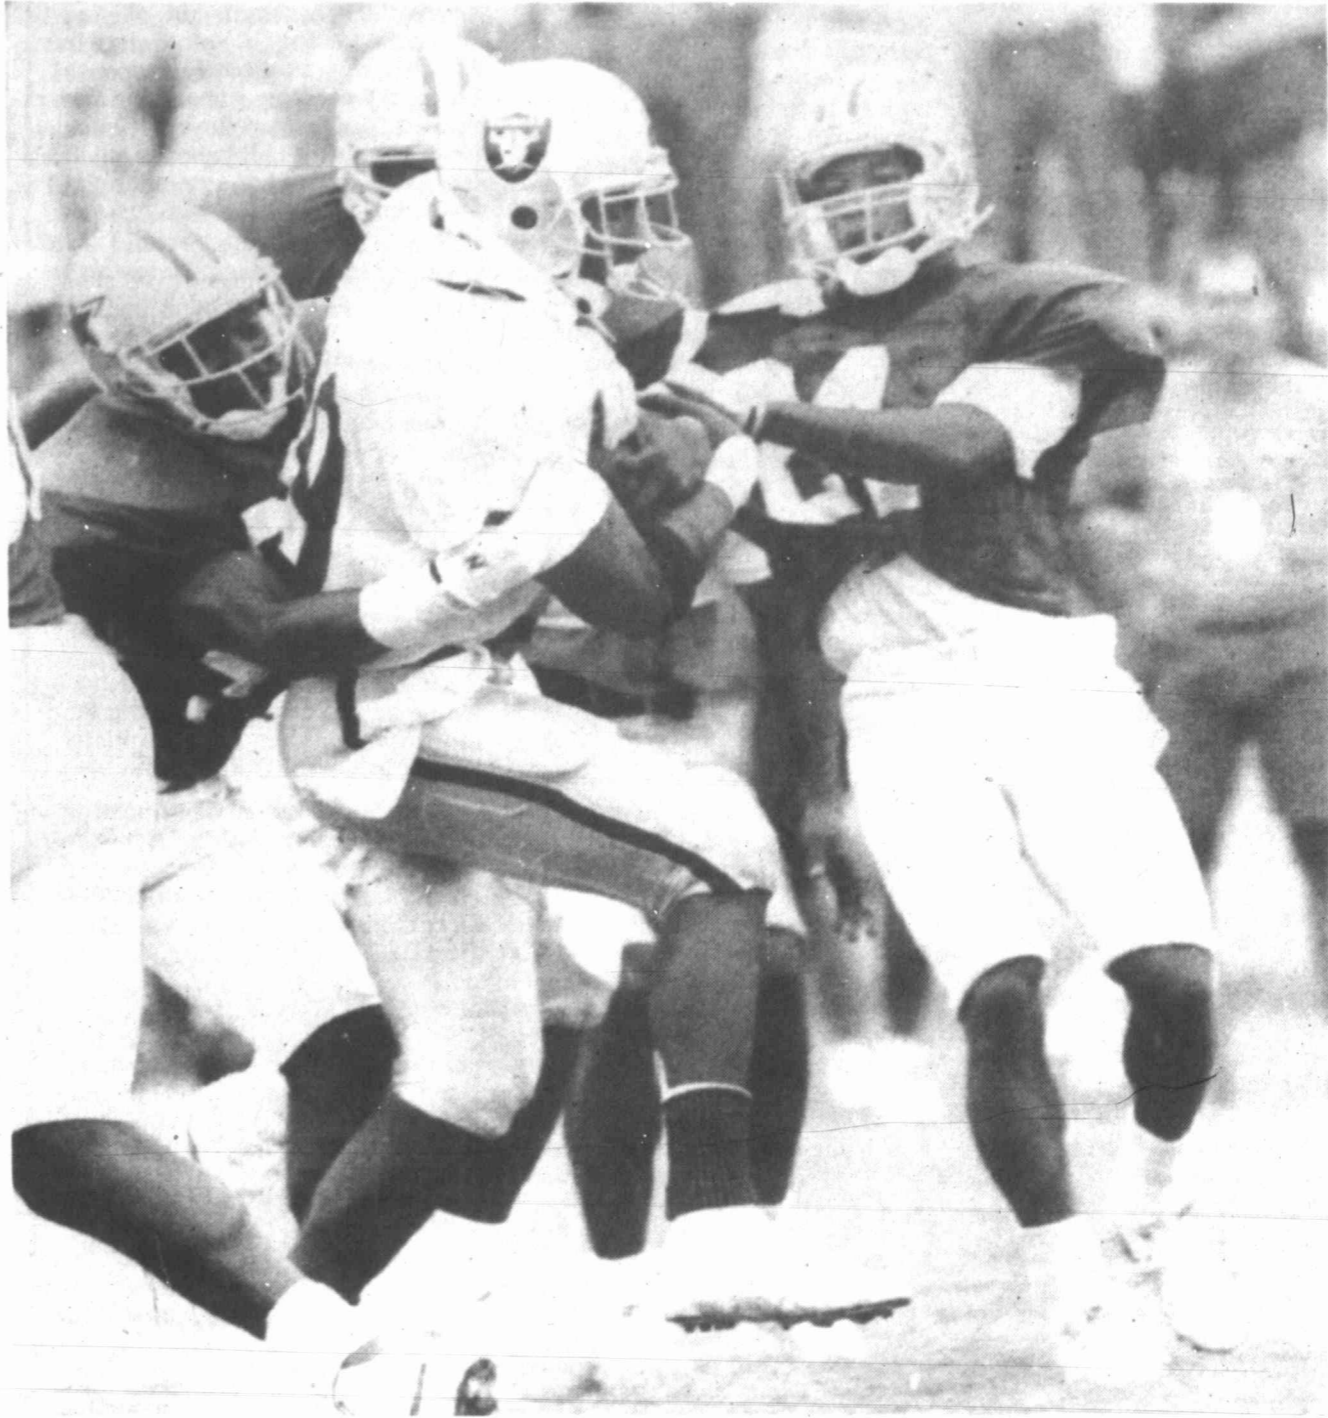

But one, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he believes that giving Tagliabue more power is a positive step.

The most obvious impasse in the talks has been over free agency, which is what the players sought in the 1987 strike. The union wants free agency after four years; the owners are willing to give it to six-year players.

Tagliabue reiterated Monday night that four years is unacceptable.

"The idea that you could have free agency after four years would leave NFL teams with players for a shorter period of time than college teams have them," he said.

Union officials, meanwhile, stressed that the issues go beyond the length of free agency and questioned whether any contract could be worked out in less than a week.

Los Angeles Raiders runningback Eric Dickerson is stopped by Dallas Cowboys Larry Brown (right) and fellow defensive backs during a scrimmage at Dallas' training camp in Austin. The Cowboys and Raiders will practice together for the next two days at St. Edward's University.

Backups drawing big bucks

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Backup quarterbacks in the NFL are worth their weight in gold these days. To the New York Giants, Phil Simms is worth at least $1.6 million.

That's the figure the Giants will reportedly be paying Simms as a backup to Jeff Hostetler for the 1992 season.

Simms might not be No. 1, but he better be prepared to play — if last season was any indication.

A staggering wave of injuries hit the NFL's No. 1 quarterbacks, giving new meaning to the word "backup." Simms, for one, became a starter after Hostetler went down. The Philadelphia Eagles were one of the hardest hit by injuries at the quarterback position. They used five quarterbacks, including Jeff Kemp, who also signed a one-year contract on Tuesday.

The Minnesota Vikings also signed a backup when Sean Salisbury agreed to a one-year contract.

After winning the quarterback job last season, Hostetler started the first 12 games before sustaining a season-ending back injury. He completed 179 of 285 passes for 2,032 yards and five touchdowns.

Simms, who will be 37 in November, started the final four games. He completed 82 of 141 passes for 993 yards, eight touchdowns and four interceptions in 1991.

"I have nothing but admiration for the way (Simms) has handled every situation he had been in," Giants coach Ray Handley said. "He's handled everything well in all the nine years I've been here. He's always prepared and ready to go."

Simms is in his 14th season in New York. The MVP of the 1986 Super Bowl, Simms holds 15 team career passing records, including most attempts, completions, yardage, touchdown passes and lowest percentage of interceptions per throw.

Dream Team talk tops conversations

The main topic for Americans as far as the approaching Summer Olympics go has been the Dream Team.

Some call it the best basketball team ever assembled. You won't get any argument from me with the likes of Bird, Michael and Magic playing. The Dream Team is supposed to be invincible. America thinks so and probably the majority of the basketball world does too.

After all basketball is America's game, we invented it and we should be the best in the world at it — right?

Well there's another Olympic sport being played that came from America, but I don't think the United States will dominate like the Dream Team is supposed to dominate the hard court.

Ron Fraser, coach of the United States Olympic baseball team, hopes that Americans who are dazzled by the pro-laden Olympic basketball team aren't expecting his college lads to have similar success.

For one reason the United States has never dominated international baseball play like the U.S. once did in basketball. One glaring reason for that is the Americans always have a different club each year. The other countries' teams stay together for several years.

The United States baseball team, which has been practicing together two months, recently concluded its pre-Olympic tour. It's last game the U.S. beat Canada, not a baseball power, 13-2. A good indication of the U.S. squad is 18-year-old infielder Nomar Garciaparra who is the youngest player on the team, whose oldest player is 22. Against Canada, Garciaparra drove in six runs with single, double and three-run homer.

The United States had a 20-9 record on its tour. They won two games and lost five to favored Cuba.

The U.S. team is no pushover

mind you, Cuba won the last world championship in 1990. Nicaragua was second and the U.S. finished seventh. The Japanese won the '84 Olympics gold medal while the Americans bounced back to win it '88 — when the Cubans weren't around.

The U.S. managed winning records against Nicaragua (3-2) and against a college-age Japanese squad (5-1). But that's not the squad who will represent Japan in the Olympics. The Japanese Olympic squad, composed of paid players from corporate teams, don't play much internationally. I suppose it's a way to keep the opposition from scouting you.

Other baseball powers are Taiwan, the Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico.

The Cuban team is Dream Team of Olympic baseball. In international tournament play, Cuba is 64-1. That one loss was to the United States in the 1987 Pan American games.

It would be unfair to expect the young American squad to win the gold medal in Barcelona. But there are some who expect them to.

Young men against seasoned veterans. The youngest player on the Cuban team is three years older than the United States' oldest player. Fraser put it all in perspective — "I have a guy 18 years old, Cuba's bat boy is 33."

Whatever the outcome, there's one thing the U.S. Olympic baseball team can be proud of. They are amateurs, something that is becoming obsolete in the Olympics.

IOC gives Yugoslavia extension

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

BARCELONA, Spain — The Yugoslav Olympic committee was given a six-hour extension by the IOC today to vote on adhering to the United Nations' decision allowing only individuals to compete in the Barcelona Games.

Francois Carrard, the International Olympic Committee's director general, said the IOC executive board was awaiting a final response from the Yugoslav National Olympic Committee, which asked for an extension from 1 p.m. local time to 7 p.m. The Yugoslav committee needed time for all of its members to convene and vote in Belgrade.

"We have granted them this extension of the deadline. We have done this because we have hopes," Carrard said.

Carrard said the final IOC decision most likely would be made early Thursday.

"Their own position is important to us," he said.

He added the question of eligibility for athletes from Bosnia-Herzegovina and Macedonia would be handled together with the Yugoslav situation.

"We will come up with a package decision," Carrard said.

The IOC decision on whether Yugoslav athletes may compete individually still would be subject to Spanish government approval.

"For the formal decision, the real decision, it is Spain which will have to say, 'We open or we don't open the border,'" Carrard said.

A spokesman for the Spanish Superior Council on Sports said today, "We will go along with what the IOC says, as long as it corresponds with the U.N. decision." Rogelio Nunez, the spokesman, did not indicate what would happen if the IOC did not agree with the U.N.

decision.

A United Nations Security Council committee cleared the way Tuesday to let Yugoslav athletes compete individually in the Barcelona Olympics, setting up the special meeting today of the IOC executive board.

In Belgrade, a top Yugoslav Olympic official reacted angrily today to the U.N. announcement, saying it would eliminate more than half of the 118 athletes that Belgrade planned to send to the Games.

Caslav Veljic, secretary general of the Yugoslav Olympic Committee, said any decision on his country's participation would have to come from the IOC.

"For us, only the IOC is empowered to make that decision," he said.

The committee decided that any group appearance by the athletes would give the clear impression of a Yugoslav team, in violation of U.N. sanctions.

Yugoslav Premier Milan Panic, in New York for talks about the crisis in Bosnia, called the U.N. decision "wonderful," and said it would allow individual record-holders to compete.

Sports, like music, should not be subject to political sanctions, Panic said.

The U.N. committee administering sanctions against Yugoslavia also decided that athletes from that nation, now consisting only of the republics of Serbia and Montenegro, could not participate in the opening parade or closing ceremonies.

Allegations that Serbia is behind the fighting in the former Yugoslav republics of Croatia and Bosnia-Herzegovina led the United Nations to slap sanctions on the country.

The Security Council committee said team competition was a violation of the sanctions, which include a ban on participation in international sporting events.

Among the teams affected would be the 21-member water polo team that won a gold medal in the Seoul Olympics. Also eliminated would be women's basketball and men's and women's handball, and team aspects of some sports, like swimming relays.

The IOC had proposed permitting all to participate without Yugoslav uniforms, even in team sports. It said there would be no national flag or anthem and they would be considered part of an independent team. But the committee rejected any group appearances.

Katsumi Sezaki, a committee member, and U.N. spokesman Matthew Nerzig reported the committee's decision but there was no formal announcement.

"The committee has no objection to individual participation by former Yugoslav nationals," Sezaki, who is Japan's deputy permanent U.N. representative, said.

"But any team competition should not be allowed," he said.

Yankees top Athletics, 5-1

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

OAKLAND, Calif. — Danny Tartabull hit a two-run homer and Charlie Hayes drove in two runs with a slump-ending double as New York defeated the Athletics 5-1, the Yankees' third straight win over Oakland.

Melido Perez (9-8) pitched a four-hitter for his fifth complete game of the season. He struck out seven and walked four as he became the Yankees' winningest pitcher this season.

The A's lost for the fourth time in five games.

Tartabull put the Yankees ahead 2-0 in the first with a two-out, two-run homer off Kelly Downs (1-2). The Yankees added three runs in the third when Hayes, in an 0-for-21 slump, connected with the bases loaded.

Tigers 6, Mariners 2
SEATTLE — Mickey Tettleton hit his 21st home run of the season and Frank Tanana won for the fifth time in his last eight starts as the Detroit Tigers beat the Seattle Mariners 6-2.

Randy Johnson (5-11) took the loss despite striking out a career-high 13 batters in only six innings. Tanana (9-6) pitched 7 2-3 innings, allowing six hits and three walks, striking out five.

The game was delayed five minutes in the eighth inning after Seattle reliever Kerry Woodson hit Skeeter Barnes with a pitch. Barnes rushed the mound and both teams emptied onto the field.

Blue Jays 9, Angels 5
ANAHEIM, Calif. — Jeff Kent hit

a three-run homer and added a tie-breaking double in the seventh inning, helping Jack Morris win his eighth straight decision as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the California Angels 9-5.

Gary Gaetti, a four-time Gold Glove third baseman but playing first base for only the ninth time in his career, was directly responsible for the deciding run and the loss pinned against reliever Chuck Crim (4-3). ad a ball knocked out of his glove and let a grounder get past him to allow the winning run to score.

Morris (12-3), allowed five runs and eight hits over seven innings while striking out six, walking none and surviving a five-run fifth. Duane Ward pitched two innings for his ninth save.

Astros top Pittsburgh in 12

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Rookie Juan Guerrero hit his first home run in 65 major league at-bats, connecting with one out in the 12th inning as the Houston Astros handed Pittsburgh its second straight tough loss.

The Astros, shut out on six hits for eight innings, tied it in the ninth with three runs against Doug Drabek and reliever Stan Belinda. Then in the 12th, Guerrero, who was batting .172 after entering the game as a late replacement at shortstop, homered off Roger Mason (2-6). Doug Jones (7-6) pitched two innings for the victory.

Mason also was the loser Monday night as the Pirates blew a 7-3 lead after four innings and fell 11-8. The Astros improved to 9-3 in extra innings, the best mark in the majors. Pittsburgh had been 44-1 in games in which it led after eight innings before the loss.

ST. LOUIS — The Atlanta Braves won their 10th straight game the hard way, blowing a five-run lead before Sid Bream's RBI double in the 12th beat St. Louis.

The winning streak is the Braves' longest since they set a team record with 13 straight victories to start the 1982 season. Nine of the victories have come on the road, tying a team record set in 1982 and 1984.

The Braves moved to within one-half game of first-place Cincinnati in the NL West, the closest the defending NL champions have been to the top since April 12.

Atlanta won its ninth extra-inning game, tied with Houston for most in the majors. The Cardinals lost their fourth straight game.

Terry Pendleton reached base on second baseman Rex Hudler's throwing error on an easy play to start the 12th and Ron Gant followed with his fourth hit to chase Mike Perez (6-2). With one out, Bream doubled off Bob McClure, the seventh St. Louis pitcher, and Mark Lemke drove in an insurance run with a groundout. Alejandro Pena (1-4) worked two perfect innings for his first victory since last Sept. 25.

Harris County couple sues Ryan

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — A Harris County couple has filed a lawsuit against Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan claiming he breached a contract that gave their business the exclusive right to sell likenesses of his hands.

The lawsuit, filed by Bronze Memories Inc., and its owners, Roy and Bernadette Champomont of Katy, names Ryan, Matt Merola and Mattgo Enterprises, as defendants.

The lawsuit alleges that the former Houston Astros pitcher signed a contract with Bronze Memories in June 1989, giving the bronze-art business the exclusive rights to manufacture and market bronze or other non-photographic reproductions of the pitcher's hands, according to court records.

Ryan was paid $25,000 for the rights, along with his commitment that he would autograph baseballs and photos to be sold along with the bronze castings, the lawsuit alleges. Each casting of Ryan's pitching hand was to contain one of the baseballs.

Ryan was to receive 10 percent of the gross revenues from the sales, records in the lawsuit, filed last Friday, show.

The Champomonts learned about a year after the contract was signed that Ryan had signed a contract in 1985 with L.T.D. Premium Co., giving that company the licensed rights to produce items bearing his likeness, particularly his face and hands. The lawsuit says Merola participated in the negotiation of both contracts.

The lawsuit alleges Ryan, Merola and Mattgo violated the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act. It also alleges breach of contract and fraud.

Cuban officials go back to the land

Castro pushes model farm to feed people in tough times

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SMILE OF VICTORY, Cuba — Cuba's ambassador to Brazil has temporarily swapped his mansion or a top bunk in a room he shares with seven other white-collar workers-turned-field hands.

Cuba's deputy trade representative has left his office for two weeks to clear weeds from sweet potato fields at this model agricultural farm 25 miles southwest of Havana.

Other government diplomats have been transferred to state farms for two years — and some maybe permanently — following Fidel Castro's push to feed his people in Cuba's toughest year since the 1959 revolution.

It's not known how willingly such officials have gone back to the land; the officials interviewed all asserted they were happy, but dissent is discouraged in Cuba.

Until recent years, Communist officials relied on food imports and neglected most farm production other than sugar, said Eugenio R. Balari, president of a government institute that monitors internal demand.

Nowadays, Cuba's shortage-stricken society has no other choice — and white-collar workers are joining the farmers. Balari said Cuba has broken with tradition this year to try to squeeze out a major summer harvest of corn, green beans, yucca, eggplant and bananas to supplement carrots and potatoes already picked.

Even at the Smile of Victory farm, a favorite of Castro's in one of Cuba's most fertile plains, workers must increase yields with less fertilizer and less mechanized equipment.

On a government-organized tour Thursday, farmhand-officials proudly showed new irrigation techniques and alternative methods intended to get around the fuel shortage, such as using Brahmin bulls Ernesto Diaz Muier, a Havana veterinarian, surveys a sweet potato field on a state agricultural camp in Smile of Victory, Cuba. He is one of thousands of people who have returned to the countryside to try to get an unprecedented summer harvest to ease Cuba's food crisis.

to plow canefields. Dressed in a plain white T-shirt, jeans and sandals after picking bananas all morning, Ambassador Jorge Belanos Suarez compared his digs in Brazil — five bedrooms and a pool — with his austere bunkhouse at the farm. Belanos said the one week of manual labor has helped clear his mind of diplomatic work but added: "It's very intense."

Raul Taladrid, a government trade vice-minister, stopped weeding the green-and-purple sweet potato plants to declare: "I'm a city boy all the way."

Taladrid, 55, took off his work gloves to show hands stained by the copper soil. He carried a small hoe, a tin cup at his waist for water, and wore a baseball cap as protection against the midday Caribbean sun.

A veteran of two other two-week farm stints last year, Taladrid had positive words for the food, the videos — the farmhands watched "The Return of Jack the Ripper" the night before — and "a little rum that some boys brought along."

Increasing numbers of government officials are in for longer stints.

Omar Torres, a former diplomat in the African nations of Cape Verde and Equatorial Guinea, has been serving as the farm's chief of production for the past 20 months. He's been separated from his family for 12-day work stretches.

Torres, 39, estimated that more than a third of Foreign Ministry workers have been retrained for other areas, including agriculture, following the Cold War.

Other ministries are trying to push highly educated employees back into the fields with ideological appeals to save the revolution. The government uses more visceral tactics with youth, promoting the farms' hearty food and occasional coed bunkhouses.

Torres' stint ends in September, but with the uncertainty that clouds so much of Cuba these days, he said he does know what his next assignment will be.

Vineyards haunted by a resistant pest

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

RUTHERFORD, Calif. — Vintner Steve Allen holds two bunches of grapes plucked from vines a few feet apart.

One bursts plump, purple grapes fit for Sequoia Grove Winery's award-winning cabernet sauvignon.

The other one is less than half the size, its tiny grapes green, sour and useless. "It resisted everything — everything except the bug," Allen said.

The bug is phylloxera and it is killing vines patch by patch in the Napa and Sonoma valleys north of San Francisco.

Since 1989, growers in America's best known wine-producing region have uprooted more than 2,000 acres of vines with phylloxera-ridden roots. Analysts estimate another 6,000 acres are infested with the microscopic pest.

Phylloxera does not pose any health threats for wine drinkers, since the grapes affected are rendered unusable and not blended into any wines.

It is expected to force growers to replant two-thirds of the region's 68,000 acres of vineyards at a cost of more than $550 million.

Wine industry consultants Motto, Kryla & Fisher estimated recently that growers and vintners are facing $1 billion in losses. New vines take four years to produce.

Phylloxera is not a new problem. Native to the East, the aphid-like bugs were inadvertently introduced into California and Europe in the early 1900s where they swept through unprotected vineyards.

Growers finally checked phylloxera by grafting pest-resistant rootstocks to their vines — the same technology used to fight it today. The latest outbreak was confirmed in Napa in 1983, but it wasn't until a few years ago that growers began taking it seriously.

"With any bad news you don't want to believe it, so I think we were slow," said Mary Handel, executive director of the 250-member Napa Valley Grape Growers Association. "But I don't know that we could have done anything different."

The seeds of the phylloxera epidemic were planted during the growing boom of the 1970s when newcomers like Steve and Jim Allen founded wineries that dot the region.

Like nearly everyone else in the area, the Allen brothers planted the AxR-1 rootstock, believed to be resistant to the pest.

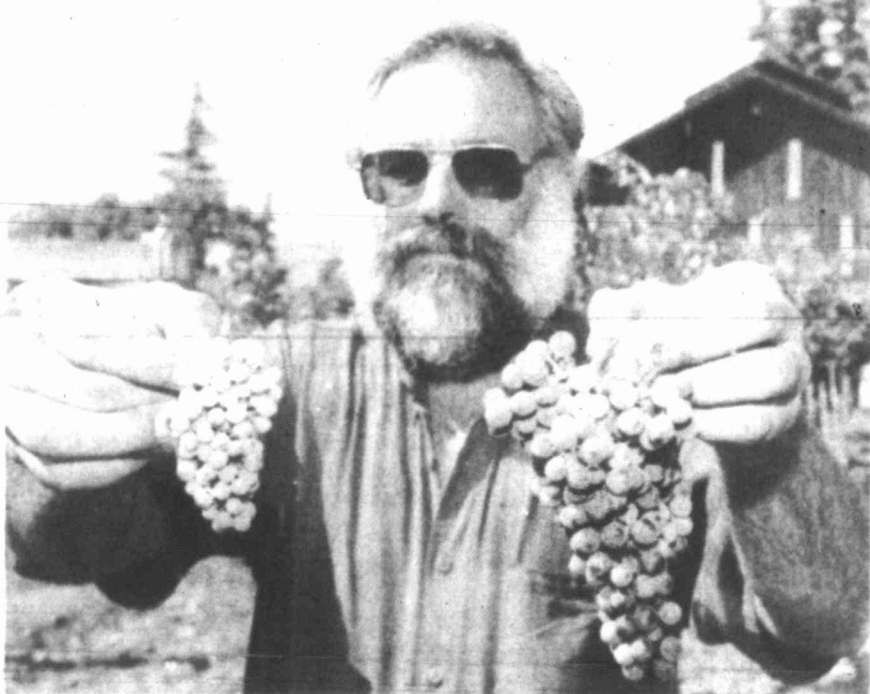

By the time growers realized a new strain of phylloxera had overcome the stock's defenses, AxR-1 stocks were anchoring 50,000 acres of cabernet, chardonnay and other popular varieties of wines throughout the valleys.

Although phylloxera is expected to infest all grapes grafted onto the AxR-1 rootstock, it especially hurts heavily-indebted growers and those unlucky enough to have planted AxR-1 recently.

"It's very expensive to plant vineyards and lenders are more restrictive now about giving out loans," said Ed Weber, the Napa County farm adviser for the University of California, Davis.

The epidemic likely will send California wine prices up — and then down.

Motta, Kryler and Fisher said grape supply will decline from last year's record 284,000-ton harvest to a low of 180,000 tons in 1997, tightening supply and likely increasing wine prices.

But since farmers will use new high-yield technology when they replant, grape volume is then expected to surge to a record of 380,000 tons — glutting the market with premium-quality fruit.

So far, less than 1 percent of the Allens' 17 acres of vineyards are affected. But they figure the pest eventually will force them to rip out all their 12-year-old cabernet vines. That will cost $2,000 to $3,000 per acre and lower Sequoia Grove's production by 10 percent for the next few years.

"This vineyard will probably be replaced and it should have gone on for another 25 years," Steve Allen said. "It's a shame."

PHILADELPHIA — Let the record show: Vice President Dan Quayle had nothing to do with the misspelling of his name on tickets welcoming President Bush to Philadelphia on Tuesday.

"Admit one family. A presidential welcome," the tickets stated. At the bottom: "Paid for by Bush-

Quayle's own spelling has been the subject of jokes for weeks, since he told a school boy he needed to add an 'e' to the boy's correct spelling of "potato."

The vice president was not on Tuesday's trip. No one from the Bush-Quayle campaign was available at the airport to discuss the spelling.

Enoch

Enoch said. Issues include abortion, tort-limit reforms and civil rights cases based on the state's equal rights amendment. Recent typical federal court issues that the state courts dealt with, include school finance, which is expected to be back in the courts next year, and redistricting.

Judges are not supposed to discuss possible pending cases they must rule on and Enoch declined to say whether he was pro-choice or pro-life. But, he said, "Regardless of my personal views, I'm going to have to apply the law as it exists."

Bride killed just before wedding

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa. — A man buried his fiancee in her bridal gown three days after they were to have married. A wedding band was on her finger.

Beverly Davis, 25, and her mother, Betty Davis, 56, were remembered Tuesday by about 300 friends and family. The women were killed Friday in an auto accident as they returned from decorating a reception hall.

Miss Davis was to have married Eric Schwartz on Saturday.

Gramm helps self bashing Clinton

By ANA RADELAT Thomson News Service

WASHINGTON—When Sen. Phil Gramm agreed to play Republican hit man and attack Bill Clinton's economic plan, the Texas senator and the Bush-Quayle campaign both got something out of the bargain.

While President Bush's re-election campaign denies that it asked the irascible conservative to attack Clinton — and Gramm says he volunteered — Gramm's crusade is being financed by Bush/Quayle '92, the president's re-election committee.

By enlisting Gramm in the Clinton-bashing effort, the Bush campaign gains a credible — and tireless — conservative voice on budget issues.

"He's Mr. Budget," said a spokesman for the campaign. "It just makes sense."

By accepting the Bush campaign's offer, Gramm gains yet another platform from which to push his own views, boosting his stature in the Senate and perhaps positioning him for his own presidential campaign in the future.

The former college professor and former Democrat is a budget expert and has worked on budgetary issues throughout his congress-sional career.

Gramm has been set loose like an attack dog, bashing Clinton's detailed 27-page economic plan from every angle — from the spending side, from the revenue side. He accused the Democrats of not being able to add properly and of "double counting" certain items.

He even insinuated the Clinton budget was, well, a little bit Communist. "Only in Havana, Cuba or North Korea...do they debate that more government, funded by more taxes, creates economic growth," he said at a press conference in Washington Tuesday.

While the press conference at the National Press Club was paid for by Bush/Quayle '92, Gramm insisted it was his idea, and his idea alone, to go after the Clinton plan.

"This is all my stuff, I hadn't cleared any of these numbers with the administration," he said, referring to the charts and graphs he had set up to help him slam the Clinton plan. "My guess is that if they looked at (my numbers) they would agree with them."

Yet the senator was standing at a podium festooned with "Bush/Quayle" posters as he tried to distance himself from the campaign.

And the Bush/Quayle campaign also paid for a press conference held about two weeks ago in Los Angeles that began Gramm's crusade against the Clinton budget.

Nonetheless, Larry Neal, Gramm's press spokesman, insisted that his boss had not been called upon to help the Bush campaign. He said it was "natural" for the senator to insert himself into the fray.

"You probably couldn't find a more natural issue for him to be involved in," said Neal.

Gramm's long record of battling Democratic budgets and his doctorate in Economics from the University of Georgia made his involvement inevitable, he said.

"But he's acting utterly independent of the White House," said Neal, adding that he "strongly suspected" that the senator would keep tearing into Clinton's economic proposal for some time to come.

Caravan draws out heartland

America's disillusioned see hope for change

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

VANDALIA, Ill. — Kristin Hill wiggled and jostled and wiggled some more until she reached the front of the crowd, screaming the entire way: "Mr. President, Mr. President please touch my hand. Please! Please!"

Bill Clinton, who would like to be president, shook his head and smiled — and then shook Hill's hand.

"We need a change," Hill, a high school teacher, said Tuesday night, suddenly calm and smiling ear-to-ear. "Our nation is at risk, our children in trouble. Bill Clinton can help us because he's for the average man."

A few hundred miles back in Kentucky, Charlie Main didn't have to wiggle at all — he came three hours early to get his handshake.

"Bush got my vote last time," Main said. "But I think we very much need to go in a new direction."

Along the twisting, scenic roads of Clinton's 1,000-mile bus caravan this week were voices and faces of restlessness — by the thousands.

On the final leg Tuesday night, there were 4,000 or so in Evansville, Ind., another 2,000 in Centralia, Ill., maybe 400 a few miles up the road in Sandoval, and then a screaming, squealing 11,000 outside the former Illinois state capitol here.

In between, there were hundreds in roadside rest stops, dozens in shopping mall lots, and family after family waving from the porch or lawn.

"The heartland of America has poured its heart out for us and we are moved," Clinton said in Vandalia, where Abraham Lincoln once practiced law. "Abraham Lincoln is turning over in his grave tonight thinking what George Bush did to the Republican Party and the United States of America."

In interviews, the faces along the caravan worried aloud about their jobs and the economy and troubled schools. They voiced disillusionment with a government they believe has forgotten them.

"We just need someone to lead us," said 22-year-old Paul Ross of Quaker country in southern Ohio.

"Everyone is worried we're going to lose our jobs," said Sandi Gajka of Weirton, W.Va., like her husband a second generation steelworker.

Together, the voices would appear a perfect chorus for Clinton and ticketmate Al Gore, the Democrats promising change, change and more change.

And indeed, the excitement that greeted the new Democratic ticket on its journey was remarkable. Significantly, many of those interviewed echoed the themes of last week's Democratic convention, a sign of Clinton's success in framing the early campaign stages.

"He seems like a down-to-earth man with good ideas," trucker Herman Yarborough of Columbia, S.C., said at a Pennsylvania truck stop. "I voted for Bush, but I'm disgusted with him."

But there were skeptics among the throngs, as well as several large demonstrations by anti-abortion activists.

"I came to hear if he's really going to address the issues," said Robert Burns Jr. of Wilmington, Ohio, a local volunteer for Ross Perot who brought a four-page questionnaire for Clinton.

"He and Bush each have a 33 1/3 percent chance of getting my vote," said Burns, who said Clinton has yet to persuade him to trust a Democrat with the economy. "The other 33 1/3 percent is a no-vote, but I'd rather cast a vote."

The Clinton-Gore caravan was full of made-for-TV style and marked by aggressive attempts by Clinton to define the race as "people first" economic populists versus "wealthy first" defenders of the status quo.

Rabbit Twisters regale in Coke County

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The "Rabbit Twisters" of the community of Robert Lee are preparing for their 16th Annual Coke County Pageant.

Music and drama regaling the history of Coke County are performed each year in the production, "Ole Coke County, Home of the Rabbit Twisters," said Edna Havins, treasurer of the Coke County Pageant Association Inc.

"We were given that name (Rabbit Twisters) back in the Depression," said Havins, who acts in the pageant. Although there are apocryphal stories about how the name came about, the general theory is that during the hard times of the Depression, many families kept meat on the table by catching rabbits, Havins said.

The town citizens kept the name, and even have a baseball team of that name, she said.

The musical is performed at the Mountain Creek Amphitheatre in Robert Lee, on four nights. The weekends of July 24-25 and July 31-Aug. 1 are the dates of performances.

The shows open at 8 p.m. with a "Choir Sing-out," in which a choir leads in a selection of songs, usually patriotic favorites.

The production begins at 8:30 p.m., Havins said.

Although historical in theme, the production is changed each year. "It's not the same show each year - it's a little different," Havins said.

Children under age 5, are allowed in free of charge. Children 5-12 years of age are $3 and adults and children over 12 are $6.

According to Roberts, the Pageant Association has decided to forego the festival that sometimes accompanies the event. In the past, a parade, golf tournament, washer-pitching tournament, food and exhibit booths were part of a day-long festival to coincide with the pageant.

"Ole Coke County, Home of the Rabbit Twisters," is performed by

The American pipe dream Walters' special on 'twentysomethings'

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Barbara Walters explores the lives, loves and laments of the twentysomething generation in an ABC News special tonight that will leave no viewer wondering, "Where's the beef?"

For instance, here's Peter's beef: "We learned economics from Michael Milken... we got spiritual guidance from televangelists... we saw the sexual revolution turn into the AIDS crisis... we placed our paper route money in failing banks and, worst of all, disco is back."

"The thing that has really affected my life," Maria beefs, "is my parents' divorce."

Then there's Bob, more beefcake than beef: "I like to tear it up on the weekends," he says. "I'm in charge of my own life."

Peter, Maria and Bob are among the eight men and women Walters spotlights with her program, "Twentysomething: What Happened to the American Dream?"

Others include aspiring designer Jane, actress Sandy, aerobics instructor Rhonda, and Billy, a sometime cabdriver who is writing a screenplay. They loll by the pool at their L.A. apartment complex, they're picture-perfect-looking and Wait! We've just crossed over into "Melrose Place," the Fox network's swinging new twentysomething drama series that happens to air at 9 p.m. EDT, an hour before the Walters special.

Viewers truly interested in the 40 million young Americans also known dimly as "Generation X" can warm up to the subject with "Melrose Place," a facile fairyland that plays out the notion all too popular among their elders that twentysomethings are self-centered and tuned-out.

But as the second phase of this point-counterpoint, Walters' program for the most part pulls the rug from under such assumptions and, in the process, gives the nation's thirty-plus good reason for getting hip to the truth.

"They're going to take over sooner than later," says Walters of the twentysomethings, "and what happens to all of US depends to a large degree on what happens to THEM."

During the hour, Walters convenes a round table that includes — no kidding, this time — Peter, a Seattle life insurance agent; Maria, who has a masters degree in English but works in a Long Island garden shop; Cecil, a Chicago financial analyst; Gregory, a Dallas administrator; Cynthia, who works for a Manhattan advertising agency; Pamela, a recent college graduate who, still jobless, has moved home with her parents in Des Moines; and Beverly, a single mother on welfare in Cleveland.

Finally, there's Bob, a California hunk and red-hot ad copywriter who rollerblades to work and zips past life's problems. Unique among the group, Bob has it all — looks, career and a home at the beach. He seems to have skated from "Melrose Place" right into Walters' show.

But Bob is the exception that proves the rule. The hour, which consists of a Walters-moderated rap session interspersed with profiles of each participant, paints a somber picture.

Twentysomethings, it seems, have gotten ripped off when it comes to jobs, leaders, dreams and romance. They may have grown up with options aplenty, but they were shortchanged in the passion to drive them. The only issues that stir them center on abortions and jobs. Theirs, they believe, has been a bum deal.

"They told us that if you go from A to B to C, you could have the American Dream," says Gregory, the only married member of the panel, a new father deeply in debt and trapped in a job he hates. "I haven't seen it happen."

What he and the others in his age group have seen is television. Walters reports that in their lifetimes, they have logged 23,000 hours in front of the tube — compared to 13,000 hours in the classroom.

"Yeah, I'm an addict," says Cynthia with a laugh. "I guess I need a little non-reality before I go out into the office."

Weekend's barbecue chefs share recipes

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

Carl Wyrick keeps an eye on his entry at the weekend's festival, where cooks from all over the state brought barbecue expertise to Big Spring.

Fifty-five teams competed this past weekend at the inaugural Lone Star State Bar-B-Q Cookoff. Although the aim of the competitors was to prepare the best in barbecued brisket, pork, chicken and ribs — each team had their own idea of which ingredients make truly good barbecue.

The Fubar Fajitas team, consisting of Steve Newton, Jim Combs, Donald Reid and Kevin Sneed, placed seventh in pork at the competition. According to Newton, peach butter was one of the main ingredients in preparing pork ribs. Although the team, sponsored by A.J. Pirkle Insurance and Steve Stone, CPA, wouldn't share every ingredient they use, they did let it slip that lemon pepper was very important.

They were more liberal when sharing their recipe for chicken marinade, which includes salad oil, soy sauce and "different seasonings."

Johnny and Trish Trigg, a husband and wife cooking team from Alvarado, who are also known as the Smoking Triggers, said they use "all kinds of spices" for their prize-winning barbecue. The Triggs placed first in the chicken category.

The Triggs, who are members of the North Texas Barbecue Association, use a dry rub consisting of black pepper, brown sugar, white sugar, seasoned salt, Cajun spices and lemon pepper to coat meats before cooking.

The duo also prefers to use a variety of woods for different cuts of meat. Brisket is slowly cooked over mesquite chips, and pecan, because it "adds a sweeter taste," is used for barbecued pork.

The Brew Crew, a family team from Flower Mound, is a member of the Texas Barbecue Association. Gary, Kathy, Shelly and Wes Waymire travel to various cookoffs competing as a family. "It's good, clean family fun and we really enjoy competing," Gary said.

The Waymires, like many of the competitors, also use a dry rub to season their meats. The rub includes brown sugar, celery salt, butter and honey. To add extra flavor, the Brew Crew slow cooks meats over a blend of mesquite and hickory chips.

The Waymires, who placed second in ribs, were second overall at the Meridian Nationals and were second in brisket at the Chisholm Trail cookoff in Ft. Worth, Gary noted.

Robert and Mary Schronk, also known as the Happy Hour Cookers, say, "It's 5 o'clock somewhere all the time." The Schronks, who placed third in ribs and third in brisket, use a sweet marinade to season their chicken. Sauce ingredients include soy sauce, pineapple juice, sauteed onion and butter. After marinating the chicken, Robert said he reserves the liquid to use as a baste. He and Mary prefer a mixture of hickory and pecan chips to cook their barbecued meats.

Ribs are rubbed with a dry mix called Hogs Luv-It. The mix consists of brown sugar and Cajun spices, Robert said. Placing seventh in ribs were Toni, Zee, Whitney and Austin Oldfather from Austin. The family competes as the Old Father Cooks barbecue cooking team. Using no marinade or sauce on ribs and brisket, meats are rubbed with "secret spices." Before cooking, chicken is marinated in olive oil, lemon juice and several different spices.

Midlanders Richard Walling and Frank McBride, competing under the name Fire and Smoke, marinate all their meats. For ribs they use a store-bought barbecue rub mixed with garlic powder, onion powder and lemon pepper. The meats are then marinated for 24 hours in Zesty Italian salad dressing and smoked for eight hours over hot mesquite chips.

Eating out on the patio

During the hot days of July and August, many families are eating out on the patio for their evening meal. It's relaxing, and in the middle of the summer months, no one wants to be cooped up in a hot kitchen. Also, a light meal is better than a heavy, filling one. Acting on these premises, this week, we will start with a recipe that is light, delicious, and takes very little time. We will call it a:

PATIO SALAD

- 1 pkg. frozen mixed vegetables
- 3/4 cup salad dressing
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup cooked rice
- 1 teaspoon grated onion
- 1 cup ham, chopped
- 1/2 cup chopped dill or sweet pickles
- 1 cup American cheese cut in small pieces

First, cook the frozen vegetables for about two minutes with the salt and water. Next, add the rice and stir to moisten all the rice and remove from the heat. Let this mixture stand for about five minutes. Now, stir in the salad dressing, pickles and onions. Add the ham and cheese, mixing lightly. You can serve this on shredded lettuce and garnish with tomato slices. This salad is light, but filling, and delicious. Perfect for those patio dinners.

If we are going to be in the kitchen, here is a meat entree that is out of this world. Men, prepare this dish and you will be recognized for the artist that you are. This is called:

CANDIED HAM LOAF

- 1/2 pound ground beef
  - 1 pound ground ham
  - 5 slices bread
  - 1 1/4 cup milk
  - 3 beaten eggs
  - Salt to taste
  - 1/2 teaspoon mustard
  - 1/3 cup brown sugar
  - Whole cloves
- First soak the five slices of bread in the one and one fourth cup of milk. Then mix the meat, the soaked bread, eggs, salt and mustard. Now, in the bottom of a buttered casserole dish, sprinkle the brown sugar and a few cloves. Pack the meat on top and then bake at 350 degrees for about an hour.

Try this. The family will love it. It is also perfect when you have guests over for dinner. Now for our dessert. This one is simple, does not take much time, and is practically fool proof. It's a:

PINEAPPLE CREAM CHEESE CAKE

- 2 eggs, well beaten
  - 2 cups sugar
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
  - 1 — no. 2 can crushed pineapple
  - 2 cups flour
  - 2 teaspoon baking soda
  - 1/2 cup pecans
- Mix all ingredients together and bake at 350 degrees in an oblong baking pan that is greased and floured. Now for the icing.
- 8 oz. cream cheese
  - 1/2 stick oleo
  - 1 1/2 cups powdered sugar
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Mix all these together and cream well. If you would like, sprinkle nuts on top. Not only does it look pretty, but is delicious.
- Papa Joe's kitchen tip: If you do not have dry mustard on hand, one tablespoon of prepared mustard is equal to one teaspoon of dry mustard.

Cooking from classic 'Silver Palate Cookbook'

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Here are two popular recipes from "The Silver Palate Cookbook."

Chicken Marbella

This was the first main-course dish offered at the Silver Palate takeout shop, which opened in 1977.

Serves 10 to 12

4 chickens, 2 1/2 pounds each, quartered

- 1 head of garlic, peeled and finely pureed
- 1/4 cup dried oregano
- coarse salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
- 1/2 cup red wine vinegar
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1 cup pitted prunes
- 1/2 cup pitted Spanish green olives

1/2 cup capers, with a bit of juice
6 bay leaves
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup white wine

1/4 cup Italian parsley or fresh coriander, finely chopped

In a large bowl combine chicken quarters, garlic, oregano, pepper and coarse salt to taste, vinegar, olive oil, prunes, olives, capers and juice, and bay leaves. Cover and marinate, refrigerated, overnight.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Arrange chicken in a single layer in one or two large, shallow baking pans and spoon marinade over it evenly. Sprinkle chicken pieces with brown sugar and pour white wine around them.

Bake for 50 minutes to one hour, basting frequently with pan juices. Chicken is done when thigh pieces, pricked with a fork at their thickest, yield clear yellow (rather than pink) juice.

With a slotted spoon transfer chicken, prunes, olives and capers to a serving platter. Moisten with a few spoonfuls of pan juices and sprinkle generously with parsley or cilantro. Pass remain pan juices in a sauceboat.

To serve chicken marbella cold, cool to room temperature in cooking juices before transferring to a serving platter. If chicken has been covered and refrigerated, allow it to return to room temperature before serving. Spoon some of the reserved juice over the chicken.

***
Salmon Mousse
At least 12 portions
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
1/2 cup boiling water

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon finely grated onion
- dash of Tabasco
- 1/4 teaspoon sweet paprika
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped dill
- 2 cups finely flaked poached fresh salmon or canned salmon, skin and bones removed
- 1 cup heavy cream

Soften the gelatin in the cold water in a large mixing bowl. Stir in the boiling water and whisk the mixture slowly until gelatin dissolves. Cool to room temperature.

Whisk in mayonnaise, lemon juice, grated onion, Tabasco, paprika, salt and dill. Stir to blend completely and refrigerate for about 20 minutes, or until the mixture begins to thicken slightly.

Fold in the finely flaked salmon. In a separate bowl, whip the cream until it is thickened to peaks and fluffy. Fold gently into salmon mixture.

Transfer to a six- to eight-cup bowl or decorative mold. Cover and chill for at least four hours.

Serve on toasts, black bread or crackers. Or serve as a first course, garnished with watercress.

The authors

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — If you cook for company, chances are good that sometime in the last decade you turned to "The Silver Palate."

Its authors, Julee Rosso and Sheila Lukins, had the gift of perfect timing.

Their first book became a friendly lab instructor for home cooks willing to experiment with blueberry vinegar or arugula or shallot mustard when they could find — and afford — them.

Rosso and Lukins seemed to be in perfect step with the way the baby boom generation was eating when they opened their gourmet takeout shop in 1977, when they began a line of gourmet products, and when they published "The Silver Palate Cookbook" in 1982.

Professionals cooked from "The Silver Palate Cookbook" and were served food from it.

Message promotes healthy eating, advertising

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The government and the food industry are collaborating on a $93 million message to Americans — eat more fruits and vegetables to cut your risk of contracting cancer.

And while you're at it, says a consumer group, try to get the producers of television's Saturday morning cartoon shows to substitute commercials for healthy fare for some of the ads touting sugar-coated, high-fat junk food ads.

The National Cancer Institute on Wednesday announced a five-year, $93 million program to get Americans to eat at least five servings of fruits and vegetables every day.

At the same time, a consumer group released its latest survey of Saturday morning children's TV programming showing that ads for sugar-coated cereals, candy, fast food, high-sugar beverages, cookies and chips dominate the commercials during that time slot.

Of 263 food ads on the Washington, D.C. affiliates for ABC, CBS, NBC, Fox and Nickelodeon during a Saturday morning in February, there was only one public service announcement on healthy eating and a handful of spots for healthy food products, said the private Center for Science in the Public Interest.

"It's pitiful that only one out of 263 messages on children's TV was designed to get that important message out," said Michael Jacobson, executive director of the center, which lobbies the government and industry on food and health policy.

A survey by the cancer institute found that people who ate lots of fruits and vegetables as children continue to consume the most as adults. And most Americans consume 3 1/2 servings daily, it found.

A glass of orange juice in the morning, a lettuce and tomato salad at noon, apple or carrots for a snack and broccoli or another vegetable at dinner would put a person over the five-serving quota, said Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan.

"Let me stress, five-a-day is a minimum," he said. "If you can eat up to nine servings a day, all the better."

The government will provide $18 million in grants to local and state organizations with projects to promote the message, Sullivan said.

According to institute's survey of 2,837 selected Americans over age 18:

- Hispanics eat fewer fruits and vegetables — an average of three servings daily — than do blacks and whites, with an average of 3 1/2.

- Only 23 percent of all adults eat five or more servings a day.

- People with less than a high school education eat about half a serving less per day than those with more education.

- Adults age 18 to 34 eat about three servings of fruits and vegetables a day, while those 65 and older consume four on average.

'Texans are born with a mission to go out and educate the people about barbecue.'

Shame on men who wear hats indoors

DEAR ABBY: Ever since I moved to South Texas, I have been annoyed by the lack of common sense and courtesy displayed by men who wear baseball and cowboy hats indoors - particularly in churches, classrooms and theaters. Apparently, it has never occurred to them that not only are they being rude, but they are also blocking the view of most people seated behind them.

I assume that these men have never been informed that it is impolite to wear their hats and caps indoors.

Since this may be a new subject to your readers, let me paraphrase Llewellyn Miller's Encyclopedia of Etiquette on this subject:

Men are quite free to move their hats on entering places of worship

Dear Abby

during a prayer, burial, dedication or wedding; during the raising or lowering of our flag or while the flag is passing in a parade; during the inner lobby of a theater; and on entering a restaurant.

DAVID L. LAUGHLIN, REFERENCE LIBRARIAN, KINGSVILLE, TEXAS

DEAR MR. LAUGHLIN: Thank you for the above information - particularly that which concerns the American flag. However, in most instances, religious tradition outranks social etiquette, so if you should visit an Orthodox synagogue in South Texas, you will find Jewish males wearing hats - not necessarily cowboy hats, but their heads will be covered with small skull caps called "yarmulkes."

DEAR ABBY: A few years back, you published a letter in which a reader told you off, saying that God alone was the only truly qualified "family planner."

I clipped it out to save and now I can't find it. If you recall that letter, will you please run it again? I thought your answer was one of your best. - RUTH COMSTOCK, LA JOLLA, CALIF.

DEAR RUTH: I found it: DEAR ABBY: Since God alone can create life, and since God alone knows what tomorrow brings, HE alone is truly qualified as a family planner.

How did a smart girl like you ever get taken in by Planned Parenthood? - A LONG-TIME ADMIRER

DEAR ADMIRER: I read the figures on the population explosion and saw pictures of thousands of starving children born of parents who did not want them and could not feed them. I then concluded that a just God could not possibly have given life to innocent children only to doom them to death by starvation in their infancy.

FOR THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Try to be more tactful when dealing with those closest to your heart. Acting unsure of your mate's abilities could jeopardize your relationship.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Justice Anthony Kennedy, actress Gloria DeHaven, pitcher Don Drysdale, actress Belinda Montgomery.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Although the business outlook is good, you must be cautious. Adopting a conservative approach to investments will impress higher-ups.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A fresh idea appears from out of the blue. Extra cash comes your way. Peace of mind comes when you mend a recent quarrel. The key to greater career success is decisiveness.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your intuition reveals the best way to handle a job problem. Seek advice from an older person. Only stubbornness is standing between you and an exciting romance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Magical moments could turn this into a memorable day. By surrounding yourself with positive people and welcoming their ideas, you will turn a loss into a win!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Artistic, musical or literary talent wins you new recognition. Mate needs your undivided attention. Be creative - rearrange your furniture or decorate with an unlikely mix of colors. An authority figure seeks your help. Loved one feels lonely. Give before you expect to receive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emotions run high today. You are in the right place at the right time. Be gentle with those near and dear to your heart. Accent physical fitness and watch what you eat.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your business skills are in demand. You could make an enterprising move, involving real estate. Settling down could become a top priority. Be careful not to take your loved ones for granted.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Financial speculation, risk-taking and games of chance are featured. You feel lucky and ready for romance. An optimistic mood is bound to attract friends and potential lovers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Learn the real story before investing money in a financial scheme. Do not expect something for nothing! A romantic partner may not live up to your expectations. Let a relative play Cupid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Swallow your pride and turn to a parent or authority figure for answers, especially where your profession or career is concerned. A more creative pattern is needed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A special relationship begins to intensify. You are eager to expand your horizons with someone you love. A search for truth could take you far from home.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A spiritual experience helps you choose more meaningful goals. How you feel about yourself is more important than what a critic says. Only the best is good enough for those you love.

CREATIVE COOKING

COOL FOOD IDEAS: SALADS ARE HOT!

PINEAPPLE SUN SALAD

- 1 Dole Fresh Pineapple
- 1 head iceberg lettuce, torn
- 1 head romaine lettuce, torn
- 2 tomatoes, chopped
- 1 can (15.25 oz.) kidney beans
- 10 whole pitted olives
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/2 cup hot chili salsa
- 1/2 pound shredded Cheddar cheese

Twist crown from pineapple. Cut pineapple in half lengthwise then in quarters. Remove fruit from shells. Trim off core and cut into chunks. Toss lettuce in large salad bowl. Add pineapple, tomatoes, kidney beans and olives. Blend sour cream with salsa. Toss salad with dressing. Top each serving with shredded cheese. Serves 10.

Gardening: A popular American pastime

Gardening is one of the most popular American pastimes. Its appeal transcends all barriers. It is accessible to nearly every member of our society regardless of class, income, education or skill level. Indeed, gardens and gardening are part of our culture, figuring in religion, literature, legend and myth.

According to surveys, 78 percent of all American households are involved in one or many forms of gardening, including lawn care and tending houseplants.

And many of those who don't garden enjoy visiting parks and botanical gardens. The New York Botanical Gardens report that, in 1987, more than 100,000 people visited its conservatory. Many thousands more visited the grounds to admire the plants and flowers, or simply to stroll, read or nap in this lovely oasis in the midst of big city noise and crowds.

Many urban dwellers, however, don't just visit gardens — they grow gardens on their rooftops or in windowsills. Or they share in tending a community garden, often a vacant lot transformed from an eyesore into a thing of beauty through the effort of neighbors working together, side by side.

Residents of the suburbs or more rural areas usually maintain more elaborate gardens, which supply their homes with fresh flowers and their tables with fresh vegetables and fruits. Or their gardens exist solely as a refuge, where one can relax among beauty and sweet scents, after a hard day at work.

Gardening has been gaining popularity with each passing year. In fact, it is America's number one leisure activity, according to a recent Gallup poll. But what motivates people to garden?

Gardening offers many rewards, both physical and spiritual. On practicality's side, many people enjoy the sense of self-sufficiency that comes from growing some of their own food. And a home-grown vegetable garden can be very economical and tasty. Everyone knows you can't beat the taste of a home-grown tomato picked ripe off the vine! Plus, canning and preserving allow the gardener to enjoy the fruits of his or her labor even in the middle of winter.

Other gardeners like to surround their homes with beautiful plants, flowers and ornamental shrubs. Some even express an artistic bent exhibited by their careful arrangement of plants and shrubbery. These efforts may even include features such as arbors, garden pools, rose-covered archways and raised beds.

A garden is always a work in progress. As plants pass through maturity and react to the change of seasons, gardeners make adjustments to create a continuously pleasing design. Gardening also is an effective form of mild exercise, requiring plenty of lifting, bending and stretching. It's both relaxing and enjoyable — a great way to escape stress and tension.

And, as our society becomes increasingly complex, more and more people are turning to gardening as a way to re-establish a link with nature.

Time spent working in the garden can also be a time for the whole family (or neighborhood, in the case of a community garden) to work toward a common goal, dividing chores and sharing pride in the results. In fact, most children love helping out in the garden. A logical reason is that children enjoy getting dirty and gardening gives them a legitimate reason for doing just that. But gardening also teaches them responsibility, particularly if they are given their own plants to tend.

The Garden Council recommends the sunflower as a perfect flower for children to tend. It is a delight because it provides a chance for children to witness firsthand the miracle of life and growth, as the sunflower grows from a tiny seed to a towering plant, with its huge yellow flower which always looks toward the sun. Hardy vegetables such as radishes and carrots are also good choices for a child's garden, according to the Council.

Chances are that a child who learns to love gardening will enjoy it throughout life — as well as develop more appreciation for life. And as more Americans continue to discover the joys and benefits of gardening, it is hoped that our society as a whole will develop a greater appreciation for nature and a stronger desire to protect the environment for future generations.

Gardening satisfies many human urges — to create, to nurture, to see the results of hard work and those from tender loving care. And it is one activity which is adaptable to almost any lifestyle, environment or income level. So what are you waiting for — dig in!

FACTS & FIGURES

There could be good news for the approximately 360,000 U.S. soldiers and federal employed Army civilians who'll be leaving their government jobs in the next four and a half years. The U.S. Army will teach them job search skills to prepare them to find their way after leaving active duty. This could be good news for the whole country.

Facts From Experts At National Council on Compensation Insurance Workers Compensation—How It Affects You

Employees all across the country can applaud the settlement of a racketeering suit against a Florida insurance agency which yielded a cash recovery to the reinsurance pool and the assigned risk servicing carriers.

As a result of the settlement over $700,000 will be paid to the National Workers Compensation Reinsurance Pool and over $2 million held by the defendants will be turned over to the servicing carriers. Additionally, the defendants were forbidden to conduct any further workers compensation assigned risk business in any state or receive any payment from any agency which conducts such business.

NCCI and its co-plaintiffs, the Travelers and the Insurance Company of North America, alleged that the several defendants engaged in fraud, conspiracy, civil theft and racketeering to get workers compensation coverage.

How The Scheme Worked
Basically, a Minnesota temporary labor company, Employers Overload, which operates in 42 states, engaged the services of the defendants George Lehor and Florida insurance agent Mark Petro to funnel their countrywide workers compensation claims through a front company. The front, Steve's Auto Repair, was located in Florida and had nothing whatsoever to do with the employee leasing business in

No-Bake Desserts, It's As Easy As Pie

One of America's favorite flavor combinations is chocolate and peanut butter. In fact, more than half of the candy bars sold in this country contain some derivative of this delicious duo.

Capture this taste sensation with ROYAL No Bake Chocolate Peanut Butter Pie. Whether it's made into a Chocolate-Peanut Parfait or a Royal Banana Pie, you'll have a quick and easy dessert that everyone will love.

CHOCOLATE-PEANUT PARFAIT

Makes 6 servings

- 1 (13-ounce) package ROYAL No Bake Chocolate Peanut Butter Pie
- 1/2 cup chopped roasted peanuts
- 1/3 cup margarine, melted
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 1/4 cups plus 1/3 cup cold milk
- Prepared whipped topping, for garnish

Combine crumb packet, nuts, margarine and sugar; set aside. Separately prepare peanut butter filling and chocolate topping according to package directions using milk.

Spoon about 2 tablespoons peanut butter filling into each of 6 (6-ounce) parfait glasses. Top each with 2 tablespoons crumb mixture. Divide and layer chocolate topping, remaining crumbs and peanut butter filling among parfaits. Chill at least 2 hours. Garnish with whipped topping if desired.

Prepare crumb crust according to package directions using margarine and sugar; press on bottom and side of 9-inch pie plate. Slice 1 1/2 bananas and arrange in prepared crust. Prepare peanut butter filling according to package directions using 1 1/4 cups milk; spread evenly over bananas. Place marshmallows over filling. Prepare chocolate topping according to package directions using remaining 1/3 cup milk; spread over marshmallows. Chill at least 2 hours. To serve, slice remaining 1/2 banana and arrange on pie.

ROYAL BANANA PIE

Makes 8 servings

- 1 (13-ounce) package ROYAL No Bake Chocolate Peanut Butter Pie
- 1/3 cup margarine, melted
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 medium bananas
- 1 1/4 cups plus 1/3 cup cold milk
- 1 1/2 cups miniature marshmallows

CHILDREN BLOSSOM with fun-filled work and exercise! BRIO GardenTools™, sized perfectly for young gardeners, give girls and boys a hands-on activity for outdoor play. The spade, broom, rake and shovel are appropriate for ages four and up.

Ideal garden tools for children

Budding gardeners can spring into outdoor fun with a child-sized rake, broom, shovel and spade from BRIO, which can provide youngsters with a creative and satisfying way to explore the earth.

Gardening requires plenty of physical activity, which helps to develop children's gross motor skills. And since the tools are small scale versions of the ones moms and dads use, they're great for role playing.

Young gardeners, ages four and up, will enjoy fun-filled work and exercise playing with BRIO GardenTools™. According to Peter F. Reynolds, president of BRIO Scandinavia Corp., "These tools were developed in keeping with our philosophy of offering good toys that are fun, safe and challenging for children."

Safe and durable, these garden tools have wooden handles that are securely attached to the metal implement. Painted in non-toxic, child-pleasing colors of red, blue and green, they measure about 29 inches long. All are carefully tested to meet or exceed all national and international safety standards.

BRIO GardenTools are available at specialty toy stores for $10 each, or $40 for the complete set. For a list of specialty toy retailers, contact BRIO toll-free at 1-800-558-6863, Dept. M. SL928847

Tips on Fleas

Fleas thrive during the hot summer—two fleas can multiply to 1,200 in just over one month and can survive months without feeding, say the experts at Orkin Pest Control.

Orkin's recommendations to combat fleas in and around the home include:

- Replace or clean all pet bedding.

• Vacuum carpets often, especially pet resting areas, seal and throw away the vacuum cleaner bag when complete.

• Make sure your home is properly inspected and treated to fight fleas. Pest control companies such as Orkin now utilize state-of-the-art insect growth regulator to combat fleas, preventing them from reproducing and giving season-long protection.

• Groom your pets and, if necessary, have them treated with a professional flea control product at the same time your home is being treated.

• Trim lawns and weeds to create a drier, more hostile environment for flea larvae.

For more information or a no cost home inspection send a stamped self-addressed envelope to Amazing Flea Facts, Orkin Pest Control, PO Box 647, Atlanta, GA 30301.

Protecting Our Environment

Ten Tips

1. What can one person do to keep the world we all live in a little cleaner and safer? Quite a bit, say the experts at the Foodservice & Packaging Institute. They suggest you keep these ten ideas in mind:
  1. Recycle everything—aluminum, steel, glass, plastic, newspapers, office paper, cardboard.
  2. Don't leave lights and appliances on when not in use.
  3. Keep your thermostat at moderate temperatures all year long.
  4. Don't use the dishwasher's dry cycle. Let the dishes air dry.
  5. Don't wash dishes under running water; only use a dishwasher when it's full.
  6. Try to buy recycled products as much as possible.
  7. Don't dispose of used motor oil—one quart can contaminate thousands of gallons of water. Recycle it instead at a garage or recycling center.
  8. Carpool, walk, ride a bike or use public transportation whenever possible.
  9. Use recyclable or compostable foodservice disposables instead of permanentware that must be washed. Disposables cut noise pollution, too.

Save water: use disposables.

10. Compost yard, food and paper wastes. Send for free information on protecting the environment from the Foodservice & Packaging Institute, 1025 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036, (202) 822-6420.

TIPS ON TRIPS

The 1000 Islands: Fun and Safety

The spectacular 1000 Islands Bridge spanning Ontario and New York State.

One of the most enjoyable vacation spots on earth is also one of the safest and easiest to reach—it's right on America's northern border.

Clustered in the waters of the St. Lawrence River between New York State and Ontario, Canada, the 1000 Islands—actually, more than 1,800 islands—are a uniquely beautiful resort region. There are luxury hotels, motels, housekeeping cottages, campsites—any kind of accommodation for a day, a month or a season's stay, reports the 1000 Islands International Council, which represents southwestern Ontario and Jefferson County, NY.

The centerpiece of the region is the world-famous 1000 Islands Bridge, the best link between Ontario and New York State and within a day's driving distance from nearly 100 million people in the United States and Canada. Completed in 1938, the scenic bridge crosses several islands and affords a breathtaking view of 200 more. There are seven miles between the foot of the U.S. bridge to the foot of the Canadian bridge, with five spans between, painted a patina green to blend with the scenic background—a thing of beauty and a masterpiece of engineering.

There's much to see and do for every family member in the 1000 Islands. Fine fishing and boating abound—you can even spend your vacation on a houseboat! A "must" for every visitor is a sightseeing cruise on the St. Lawrence, weaving in and out among the maze of scenic islands. Some 45 provincial and state parks offer wonderful camping facilities. Skydeck Tower on Hill Island, Ontario, boasts a spectacular 25-mile view. Historic forts from the Revolutionary era and fascinating museums abound, including the Antique Boat Museum with its classic wooden boats.

Among the most famous turn-of-the-century millionaire's mansions that dot these islands is lovely Boldt Castle, built by the late George Boldt for his beloved wife Louise.

Besides easy access by car, the 1000 Islands can be reached by bus or plane. Getting there is half the fun for boat owners as well, via inland waterways into Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River. For free brochures that can tell you more, see your travel agent or write: 1000 Islands International Council, Box 400, Alexandria Bay, NY 13607. You may also call toll-free 1-800-8-ISLAND.

Exploring In The Wake of Lewis and Clark

Do you have some of the spirit of the great adventurers? Perhaps you'd like to retrace the steps of famed explorers Lewis and Clark in the breathtakingly beautiful, mountainous terrain of the Pacific Northwest. Those with a sense of adventure might want to join one of seven unusual voyages along the region's rivers that combine striking scenic beauty with a deeply felt sense of history and a near-perfect climate.

It was President Thomas Jefferson who dispatched Lewis and Clark to explore the Louisiana Purchase and points west to discover an alternative water route to the Pacific and to report to him on the region's plants, animals, climate and geography. Now tracing the routes of Lewis and Clark's explorations during the early 19th century, the 70-passenger, U.S.-flag M.V. Sea Lion and its 70-passenger sister ship the M.V. Sea Bird rediscover the riverway which was vital in the opening of the West—the Columbia and Snake rivers.

The one-week voyages offered by Special Expeditions will travel from Astoria at the mouth of the Columbia, all the way to Hells Canyon on the Snake, more than 450 miles upstream. The ships will pass through some of the country's most scenic areas, following a beautiful and ever-changing natural highway through forested mountains, arid plateaus and fertile farmland.

The Sea Lion and Sea Bird are ideal vessels for this type of leisurely exploration," says Sven Olof-Lindblad, founder and president of Special Expeditions. "They have large windows so passengers have wonderful views while dining and lots of open deck space from which to watch the passing scenes from outside. These ships can navigate where larger ships cannot go—through the Columbia River Gorge Unique river tours that follow the path of Lewis and Clark explore the fascinating history of the Pacific Northwest Region.

and various locks along the river system. Sturdy inflatable landing craft can put passengers ashore anywhere along the way. Adds Lindblad, "The intimate ambience fosters camaraderie and flexibility as well as a sense of bring on one's own private yacht."

A skilled staff of naturalists and historians accompany each journey to enhance passengers' understanding and enjoyment of the area. You'll see Astoria, headquarters for Lewis and Clark in 1805-06; the Columbia River Gorge, Bonneville Dam and Hood river; the wine country of eastern Washington; and the Palouse River. Via jet boat you'll tour Hells Canyon, deepest gorge in North America and then take a leisurely cruise back down the Columbia River.

Departure dates for the 8-day "In the Wake of Lewis and Clark" voyage aboard the SEA LION are September 20, 27, October 4, 11, 18 and 25, 1992. Dates for the SEA BIRD are September 26, October 3, 10, 17, 24 and 31, 1992. Costs begin at $1,950 per person, double occupancy. ### Free Directory Lists World's Best Hotels

Many of the finest hotels on the face of the earth are not part of a chain, but are individually managed. They've earned worldwide fame by first becoming the best hotels in town. A free directory tells all about them, so you can find one wherever you might be planning your next vacation or business trip.

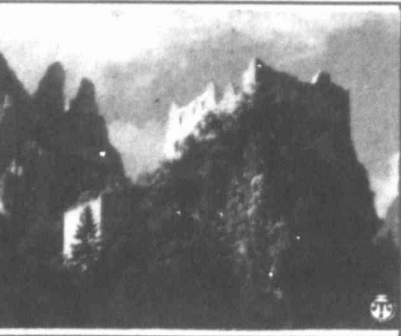

Hotels noted for outstanding quality are listed in a helpful travelers' guide.

Each Preferred member must achieve and maintain a high standard of quality, tradition and refinement by adhering to exacting membership requirements, guaranteeing that every guest will get the highest quality service possible. For a free copy of the 1991 Preferred directory, call the reservations center at 1-800-323-7500 or write to Preferred at 1901 South Meyers Road, Suite 220, Oakbrook Terrace, Illinois 60181.

Independent luxury hotels and resorts in North America, the Caribbean, Europe and the Asia/Pacific region. The 72-page directory contains photographs, rates, and a brief description on each property including such well-known members as the Windsor Court Hotel in New Orleans; The Dorchester in London; and the Imperial Hotel in Tokyo. The directory highlights Preferred's resort members by offering a special section noting the available sports and recreation amenities.

See Beautiful Trentino

Whether your objective on vacation is to do nothing or everything, one of the most unusually beautiful places in which to do it is Trentino, the province in northwestern Italy. Visitors from the U.S. can fly into Milan or Venice; Trentino is only a 90 minute drive from Venice.

With its mild climate Trentino boasts an exquisite landscape with some of the most spectacular sights on earth—towering Alpine mountains, medieval castles, monasteries, museums, lakes and national parks abundant in wildlife. Cuisine and fine wines typical of this mountainous region feature influences from its Austrian neighbors. Delicious apples, mushrooms and cheeses abound.

On summer weekends, from late June through September, Trentino's 25 castles and seven palaces reverberate with the sounds and sights of over 100 artistic and cultural events, from Baroque music concerts and spectacular fireworks displays, to the sounds of a 500-voice choir and ballet. You can get to the castles via a train ride where travelers are entertained en route by quaintly costumed guides.

Trentino also abounds in summer and winter activities that add fun. There's extensive year-round skiing at more than 40 ski resorts and centers featuring awe-inspiring slopes, as well as biking, mountain hiking, tennis, sailing, water skiing, ice skating and fresh-water fishing. For free brochures that can tell you more, contact your nearest Italian Government Tourist Office or see your travel agent.

International Calls Now A Better Value

Answering consumers' need for more competitive and convenient international service, long distance phone companies are unveiling new calling plans that may pay off in a big way for many who make frequent calls to friends, relatives and business associates overseas.

Surprisingly, over ten percent of all U.S. households make one or more international calls per month, studies show. More of us may soon be making more overseas calls, experts predict, thanks to three new international calling plans that offer residential consumers an easier and less expensive means of calling major foreign countries at the most convenient times. For any one of the three MCI Communications Corporation plans—Call Europe, Call Pacific or Call Canada—consumers pay one single, low per minute rate for international calls to available countries during plan hours—hours during which most people make and receive calls—on weekdays and all weekend long, plus a $3 monthly fee.

The Call Europe plan offers international service for only 59 cents per minute to 23 Western European countries on weekdays from 3 p.m. to 8 a.m. and all weekend.

The Call Pacific plan offers a rate of only 79 cents per minute to ten Pacific Rim countries, from 10 p.m. in the evening to 2 p.m. the following day on weekdays and all weekend.

The Call Canada plan is priced

Overseas calls can cost less and be less complicated with the right calling plans.

at 19 cents per minute from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. weekdays and all weekend for calls anywhere in Canada.

MCI also offers money-saving international calling for business and leisure travelers. The MCI Card lets you call from any phone in the U.S. to virtually everywhere in the world, at substantial savings over AT&T rates. To make an MCI Card call from overseas, there's MCI CALL USA. One toll-free call connects you instantly to an English-speaking MCI operator back in the states who will complete your call to anywhere in the U.S. Call quality is unsurpassed and you never have to worry about hidden charges, listen for special recordings or dial differently from different phones.

For free brochures and order information about MCI's international calling plans, MCI Card or Call USA, call toll-free: 1-800-444-3333.

Reduce Travel Risk

Most people, whether preparing for business or personal travel, spend much time and effort planning even the smallest details of their trip. Journeys to developing countries and exotic vacations can be fun and rewarding experiences, but potentially carry certain environmental and infectious disease risks. These risks can be minimized by a visit to a local travel clinic.

The physicians and staff at travel clinics are trained to gather personal data that will enable them to make recommendations specific to your trip. These details will include information on your life-style, what you expect to be doing in a specific location at a specific time (your potential exposure to disease is in part determined not only by the country you visit, but by the time of year and whether you are in a rural or urban setting), countries you will be traveling through (as well as your final destination) and your medical history.

Equipped with the above information, the travel clinic staff will then be able to tell you what vaccinations you should receive, what items you should carry with you that are not readily available at your destination, where specific products can be obtained (such as insulin or heart medication), and a list of English-speaking doctors who use modern medical practices.

Taking a little time and effort in planning your travel, and involving your local travel clinic, can pay dividends by helping to assure a safe, healthy journey. For free information on travel clinics and how to find one, write: Travel Clinic Information, 148 Highland Avenue, Newton, MA 02165.

SMART SNACKING FOR YOUR CRUNCH BUNCH

When the mercury starts to rise, family and friends begin to center their activities out of doors.

Yards get a sprucing, playgrounds jump to life and everyone seems to work up healthier appetites.

To satisfy your bunch with a wholesome crunch, try a frozen peanut butter and banana combo. Placed between two graham crackers, this frozen finger food makes a great tasting snack-time sandwich.

Another nutritious snack begins with a sweet and simple spread. Blend cinnamon, apples, apple juice and light cream cheese together; smooth it on top of a graham cracker for a treat the whole family will enjoy.

CINNAMON APPLE SPREAD
Makes 1 1/2 cups

1 (8-ounce) package
Neufchatel or reduced-calorie cream cheese, softened

3 tablespoons apple juice

1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

3/4 cup finely chopped apple

24 HONEY MAID Grahams

In medium bowl, with electric mixer at medium speed, beat cheese, apple juice and cinnamon until light and fluffy; stir in apple. Cover; chill at least 1 hour to blend flavors. Serve as a spread on crackers. Store spread in covered container in refrigerator for up to 1 week.

Nutrition Information per serving (1 tablespoon spread, 1 cracker): 58 calories, 83 mg sodium, 7 mg cholesterol, 3 gm total fat (47% calories from fat), 1 gm saturated fat, 0 gm dietary fiber.

FROZEN PB BANANA SANDWICHES
Makes 10 sandwiches

1/2 cup creamy or chunky peanut butter
2 tablespoons honey
20 HONEY MAID Grahams
1 small banana, sliced

In small bowl, blend peanut butter and honey. Spread about 1 tablespoon mixture on each of 10 crackers; top with banana slices and remaining crackers. Freeze for at least 1 hour. Individually wrap and store in freezer for up to 1 week.

Nutrition Information per sandwich: 157 calories, 153 mg sodium, 0 mg cholesterol, 7 gm total fat (52% calories from fat), 1 gm saturated fat, 1 gm dietary fiber.

We only need travel enough to give our intellects an airing.

A New Real Estate Firm For Big Spring

Mr. M.A. Snell, owner/manager of M.A. Snell Real Estate, is a veteran in real estate for over 17 years, in the field of farm and ranchland, rural properties, commercial real estate, and development and investment properties, for professional & personalized service. Call M.A. Snell — 264-6424.

qualified to fulfill the requirements of a specialized professional real estate broker.

After spending 20 years in the banking business in West Texas, Snell became involved in real estate and investments in central Texas full time, and since 1983, has broadened his experience necessary to develop a professional specialized real estate firm. Mr. Snell received his B.S. degree from Texas Tech and furthered his education with a graduate degree from S.M.U. at the Southwestern Graduate School. He continues to update the current circumstances and conditions in real estate through selective seminars and courses.

Experience in real estate has included extensive sales as a real estate agent, consulting contracts analyzing RTC properties, advisory positions negotiating FDIC sales and purchases, and has been the successful developer of five subdivisions in west and central Texas. Expertise in farm and ranch land include a background in agriculture, personal investments in farms in west Texas and ranches in central Texas, and a real estate brokerage firm specializing in farms and ranches.

M.A. Snell is an optimistic and positive believer of Big Spring and the surrounding area and has a strong affinity for west Texas, moving back to Big Spring after an absence of almost 14 years. He has the experience and qualifications to provide the real estate services necessary for marketing and purchasing farms, ranches, commercial properties, and investment properties. His primary area of sales and marketing is the Howard County and Glasscock County area.

Services provided by M.A. SNELL — REAL ESTATE will be efficient, courteous, and friendly, but most of all, will be personalized and handled in a professional and qualified manner. If you have a farm or ranch to sell or want to purchase a farm or ranch or have commercial investment properties to buy or sell, contact M.A. Snell, 264-6424. He will promptly work for you, diligently and actively, to get results.
