AIDS coalition to meet Thursday at the Corral

The Permian Basin AIDS Coalition will hold its first Howard County volunteer meeting Thursday. The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the Corral, 611 E. 3rd St. Billy Charles Cawley, PBAC outreach coordinator/counselor will be in attendance to answer questions. For more information call Diane Linhart at 263-0900 or 263-8928.

School starts Wednesday

Wednesday is the first day of school for Big Spring Independent School District students. So after a summer of no school zones, be aware of the flashing lights and kids crossing to get to school.

Help the Shrine Circus

Members of the Big Spring Shrine Club of Suez Temple in San Angelo will begin calling on local businesses this week to sell tickets for the club's Sept. 21 circus.

The circus, produced by George Carden Circus International, will be held in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the campus of Howard College. Performances will be held at 4 and 8 p.m. For more information, contact Woodie Howell at 393-5666.

Sign the park petition

A petition to keep Big Spring State Park open, being circulated throughout Big Spring, so far has collected more than 6,500 signatures.

The goal is to collect 8,000 signatures to take to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission's meeting Aug. 26.

Texas Parks and Wildlife announced July 30 that 11 state parks, including Big Spring State Park, will be closed and several others would be reduced or consolidated in an effort to save money.

People wanting to attend the commission's meeting in Austin, the chamber will be chartering a bus. For more information call the chamber at 263-7641.

Rollover injures eight people

A truck rollover 17 miles north of Big Spring on U.S. Highway 87 resulted in injuries to eight passengers in the vehicle, including a four-month-old infant Monday afternoon.

A 16-year-old male passenger was transported to Lubbock's University Medical Hospital after sustaining head injuries. Scenic Mountain Medical Center admitted five of the passengers who sustained various fractures. Two others were treated and released. The infant was admitted for observation, said a SMMC emergency room spokesperson.

The pickup's driver, a middle-aged woman, was believed to have sustained a broken or dislocated shoulder, said Sgt. Frank Woodall, Texas Department of Public Safety.

The names of the passengers have not been released.

Preliminary investigation suggested the late-model truck with camper was in the process of passing another car when the driver lost control, causing the truck to go into a broadside skid and overturn into the embankment.

Woodall said. The number of passengers in the bed of the truck is unknown at this time, he said.

The family of eight was traveling from Denver to San Antonio when the incident occurred, said Edith Lopez, a 13-year-old occupant.

Lopez said another driver was at fault for the rollover that sheered the top from the camper.

"A white car ran us off the road," she said. "It was just some white car." Lopez was one of the two released after receiving treatment.

Woodall says there is no current indication that another vehicle attempted to run the truck off the road.

"People who were following directly behind the truck said there was not another car involved in the accident," he said.

The rollover did not interrupt the flow of the traffic, but the family's belongings were strewn along side the road including clothing, water bottles and an infant stroller.

Two Howard County Sheriff's Office units and three DPS units were on the scene. Ambulances from Howard County and Martin County transported the injured passengers to SMMC.

A one vehicle accident Monday afternoon resulted in eight injuries. The late model pickup rolled over on the embankment as it was traveling southbound on Highway 87. Six of the eight passengers remain hospitalized. One was transported to Lubbock after sustaining head injuries. The others were admitted to Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

Alternative fuel cars pit stop in Big Spring

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

Ener Run II, the cross country alternative fuel awareness run, made a pit stop in Big Spring Monday morning.

Les Adam, coordinator of the event, and a handful of participants will trek more than 3,000 miles making stops along the way, making people aware of the alternatives to gasoline powered automobiles.

The rally included Theax, a alcohol burning sports car; Vanion, a modified Volkswagen fueled by propane; A Chevrolet four-wheel-drive half-ton pickup powered by a high-miles-per-gallon modified gasoline engine; Aztec, a diesel-powered Jeep; a three-wheel vehicle powered by a hydrogen peroxide-gasoline mixture; and another three-wheel vehicle fueled by natural gas.

The three-wheeled vehicles are finishing the run on a trailer after experiencing minor mechanical difficulties.

The modified Volkswagen bug gets 22 miles per gallon. Propane prices have ranged from $.75 to as high as $2.50 during the trip, Adam said. Adding a propane unit and converter was the main modification to the VW, leaving the original motor intact. The 1600cc engine may be reconnected, reverting the vehicle to gasoline propulsion.

"The biggest drawback with propane-fueled vehicles is finding the fuel," Adam said. "You see signs in every city that say diesel or gasoline, but rarely do you see propane outlets."

Adam says the benefits of having a propane-propelled vehicle include a decrease in regular maintenance required. "Because the fuel is vaporized the engine runs much cleaner," he said. "Maintenance is about a tenth of what it would be with a gasoline engine. Sparks plugs will last longer and oil changes are fewer."

Conversion costs for the propane engine was about $200, he said.

The vehicle achieving the best gas mileage is the diesel-powered Jeep. At 33 miles per gallon, the Jeep exceeds the other six alternative fueled vehicles.

The Jeep has an external modification called Tripaloin, an efficiency booster. Tripaloin is a magnetic treatment changing the molecular structure of the fuel components making combustion easier. Unlike a catalytic converter which changes molecular structure after combustion, the magnetic treatment takes place before combustion making it cleaner and more efficient.

Pick up video, register to vote

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Both local Premiere Video stores are participating in a nationwide non-partisan voter registration campaign.

The campaign is sponsored by the Video Software Dealers Association.

"The association wanted to do something to promote voting," said Teresa Shepard, Premiere manager. "With a video store in just about every neighborhood, the association asked store owners to participate by displaying voter registration cards. The voter registration cards may be picked up at the stores or they may be filled out and given to a Premiere employee who will mail it in, she said.

"The drive provides a much-needed public service and will raise positive awareness of the video industry among consumers," she said.

Howard County Tax Assessor/Collector Kathy Sayles says the office lists 16,157 registered voters in the county. The number is about half of the total county population which is 32,343 according to the 1990 census.

Individuals wishing to vote must be registered 30 days prior to the election.

Local officials warn of telephone scam

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Department of Public Safety officers are warning area residents to beware of a telephone scam in which people are asked to wire money to release a loved one from jail, or for medical care.

"They know enough about their victims to know what name to use," said DPS Sergeant Frank Woodall, who is investigating two of several scams that have been attempted in Big Spring.

"They have had problems with it in the Houston area, the Corpus Christi area, in Dallas-Fort Worth and Austin — it's pretty well state wide," Woodall said.

Locally, one con involved calling people in Big Spring and telling them money was needed in Fort Worth. Another incident involved calling a person in Fort Worth saying an accident had left a loved one in need of money in Big Spring.

Woodall's name was used on one of the scams, he said. Woodall has involved the DPS's Criminal Investigation Division in Fort Worth in investigating the crimes.

"We just want people to know that we don't call people and ask for money. We arrest people on warrants, but it's up to them to call for money," Woodall said.

If a person receives a call from someone identifying themselves as a police officer and asking for money, they need to question the authenticity of the caller, he said.

The DPS is asking for information on similar calls that have been made across the state, according to an Austin DPS release.

"We have had cases recently in which someone has telephoned an individual and identified himself as a DPS trooper," said DPS Captain Coy Clanton of Midland. "The caller names a family member of the person he has called and says that family member has been seriously hurt in a traffic accident. The caller then says the hospital cannot treat the injured person until someone sends a cash deposit."

The con artists have been picking up wired money at Western Union offices. This particular con has been growing in frequency over the last year, Woodall said.

Hot school rooms but enthusiasm still high

By CONNIE SWINNEY

Power trouble stemming from a summer hail storm did not dampen the spirits of Coahoma teachers and students who said enthusiasm was high Monday on the first day of school.

Principal Larry Hudson of Coahoma High School said workers repaired all window damage to the building, but students contended with a physically uncomfortable learning atmosphere.

"We still got some electrical and air-conditioning problems, so we're going to be hot and groggy for a little while," Hudson said.

"The hail beat so many of the (air-conditioner) coils... but everybody is super and it looks like we got a good school year started."

On June 11, Coahoma's high school and junior high gymnasiums as well as the roofs at the high school and elementary school sustained about $1.2 million in damage because of the storm.

Superintendent L.D. Monroe said repairing the roofs would take well into the school year.

"We've had the repair folks here for about two weeks," he said. "It's a matter of one more week to get the coils fixed."

Enrollment figures for CISD were about 900 students which was about the same as last year's first day.

"We were really expecting an increase, but it's still early in the week," Monroe said. "Between now and Labor Day, we'll see a bit more."

While Coahoma schoolers turned on their fans and rolled up their sleeves, Forsan officials said their school year was off to a cool start.

FISD high school principal George White said both teachers and students were positive.

"We had a great day," he said. "The kids showed up and seemed ready to go to school."

After a hectic first day of elementary school, Principal Richard Light said the end of the day could not arrive soon enough.

"We had the usual tasks like paying for lunches on the first day," he said. "Since 95 percent of the kids ride the bus, well, we're a little bit tired."

Enrollment figures for Forsan schools topped 600 for the district, according to estimations from the principals — 140 for high school, 156 for junior high and about 305 for elementary.

The overall first-day FISD figure increased from about 500 last year to 600 due to a new transfer policy, said school board president Bill Mims.

"They opened (the transfer policy) up," he said. "It balances our classrooms a little better."

Redistricting raises specter of new primaries

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — Lawyers expect a federal court ruling this week in a heated battle over Senate district boundaries.

Secretary of State John Hannah has directed that a different map be implemented for the November general election than was used in the March primaries.

The primary map was ordered by a federal three-judge panel in Austin, but the Legislature's plan subsequently won approval from a Washington three-judge panel.

Republicans and others are challenging the order by Hannah, a Democrat. The Austin panel of judges took the matter under advisement after a Monday hearing. Assistant Attorney General Renea Hicks told judges that Hannah didn't have the authority to order new primaries, so he devised a different method for using the Legislature's Senate map in November. Hannah's order has been submitted to the U.S. Justice Department for approval.

"Are you inviting us to order you to have a primary?" asked U.S. District Judge Harry Hudspeth, one of the judges presiding over the case in Austin.

Hicks said the state has concerns about minority turnout in new primaries, but that such elections would be preferable to forcing the state to use a "tainted" map.

As another option, he suggested holding over the old Senate for a period of time.

U.S. District Judge James Nowlin of Austin drew up the plan used in the primaries. But he stepped down from the case after he was reprimanded by a panel of federal judges who said he violated judicial rules by getting secret help from a Republican lawmaker.

Hudspeth replaced Nowlin on the panel in Austin, which also includes federal judges Walter Smith Jr. and Will Garwood.

Hannah and others have said the Legislature's plan is fairer to minorities. It is favored by Democratic leaders.

But Republicans say minorities would be hurt by changing to a different map from that used in the primary elections. The primary map also was expected to give the GOP increased strength in the Senate.

"Our first priority is to see the rights of minorities are protected and the state's will is worked," Hicks said after the hearing.

But lawyer John McCamish, who led the fight against Hannah's order, said after the hearing that having new primaries is an "Alice-in-Wonderland" idea.

And Hannah's order, he said during the hearing, would "displace rightfully elected candidates."

"What kind of havoc is the state trying to wreak on the voters?"

Petition on health care on videotape

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON (AP) — Kathryn Miles is taking a high-tech approach to trying to convince Congress the nation's health care system is in dire need of changes.

Mrs. Miles suffers from a degenerative nerve and muscle disorder commonly known as Lou Gehrig's Disease.

Like thousands before her, she is taking her woes to Congress using the age-old right of petition — but her petition is on videotape.

Mrs. Miles made a videotape to air her concerns that the nation's medical system is designed for critical care but not long-term help.

Mrs. Miles and others are telling their stories and asking for help on a videotape being prepared by HealthRIGHT, a Washington-based organization seeking fundamental changes in the health care system.

"We intend to be confrontational about it," said Bill Halamandaris, a project organizer. He said the organization will ask the legislators: "These are your constituents; how do you respond?"

The taped petitions from Texas and other states will be presented to Congress early next year, when legislators are expected to take up health care reform.

Speaking in a soft voice from her wheelchair, Mrs. Miles said her husband deserted her after her diagnosis. Since then, her parents have struggled to care for her and her two children.

She has no medical insurance, but she does get assistance from the Muscular Dystrophy Association and some government aid. A home care worker assists her for three hours each day. When her condition worsens, she will have to go to a nursing home.

Over a lifetime, the average American throws away 600 times his or her body weight in garbage — more than 90,000 pounds of trash! Recycling just 10 percent of your garbage can reduce that amount by four-and-a-half tons.

Stricter immigration law needs questioned

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

EL PASO — A Democratic state legislator has questioned GOP calls for stricter immigration laws, saying opportunities for Mexicans should be extended, not limited.

State Rep. Paul Moreno (D-El Paso) on Monday asked Chief of Staff James Baker to omit that part of the proposed GOP platform.

"We are concerned with the position taken by the Republicans regarding the approach to the so-called Free Trade Agreement and the strong language in the (party) platform calling for stricter immigration reforms to prevent 'illegal immigration' into our country," wrote Moreno, who is working with the Paso Del Norte Chapter of the Mexican-American Democrats.

The proposed platform states that the border patrol should be increased and officers should be given "the tools, technologies and structures necessary to secure the border."

But Moreno said he disagrees. He said the U.S. could curb undocumented immigration by bolstering economic opportunities for Mexicans.

"You need to create an equal economic situation in the U.S. and in Mexico," he said. "People with ambition will come to the United States where the grass is greener. They'd be fools not to."

Moreno, who is on the state task force on immigration, said he fears "that the INS will have more power." That would lead to more abuse, he said.

MERCO files suit against Morales

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — A company with a contract to spread New York City sludge over arid rangeland in West Texas says Attorney General Dan Morales is violating interstate commerce laws by trying to block the project.

"By singling out MERCO, we believe this sets an ominous precedent in the effective recycling and beneficial use of bio-solids," said Ralph Macchio, a partner in MERCO Joint Venture. "Of more than 528 existing projects in Texas, the attorney general has chosen to discriminate against MERCO."

There was no answer at the attorney general's office late Monday afternoon, when MERCO announced its counterclaim.

The counterclaim was filed in Pecos, said MERCO Joint Venture lawyer Susan Potts.

That's where U.S. District Judge Lucius Buntun in July denied the state's request for a temporary injunction to halt the company's plans to spread sludge on a 128,000-acre ranch near Sierra Blanca.

Buntun has set a Sept. 14 trial date.

The state attorney general sued MERCO and the Environmental Protection Agency, alleging that the EPA did not follow its own permitting procedures and MERCO was not complying with regulations to preserve documented archaeological sites on the ranch.

MERCO and the EPA have defended the project.

The company, based in Oklahoma City, has a six-year, $168 million contract with New York to transport city sludge to the Texas ranch it owns. Sludge is a wastewater treatment plant byproduct.

MERCO said it has been successfully applying the material to "seriously depleted" rangeland on the ranch. It said its plan uses the material as fertilizer to revitalize the rangeland.

McMullen County opposing an industrial waste landfill

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

TILDEN — McMullen County officials have announced plans to oppose a proposed industrial waste landfill near Choke Canyon Reservoir that they claim will threaten the water supply for nearly 500,000 South Texas residents.

The proposal to locate the landfill was submitted two weeks ago to the Texas Water Commission by Oklahoma City-based Halco Texas Inc. It calls for construction of the waste facility on a 128-acre site 13 miles west of Three Rivers.

"We have resolutions from 15 counties and cities along the way that oppose this," McMullen County Judge Elaine Franklin told the San Antonio Express-News by telephone Monday.

Ms. Franklin said the region from McMullen County to the Gulf Coast derives its drinking water indirectly from Choke Canyon.

The judge and other officials said they were concerned industrial waste could leak from the landfill and contaminate the reservoir. The judge also said McMullen County roads are not equipped to handle the increased heavy truck traffic that would be generated by the proposed landfill.

"There is not a soul in McMullen County that I am aware of that is in favor of (the project)," she said.

The proposed site is about 14 miles from the reservoir and five miles from the Nueces River. McMullen County, which is mostly rural, has a population of about 815 residents, the judge said.

Industrial waste is considered non-hazardous refuse.

Bob Hall, the owner of Halco, could not be reached for comment Monday, the newspaper reported today.

But Hall said earlier an engineering study of the site indicates the clay soil would not permit contamination or runoff to reach any of the area's water systems.

The reservoir ultimately drains into Lake Corpus Christi, which serves about 470,000 people, said John Buckner, executive director of the Coastal Bend Council of Governments.

The association, which represents 12 Gulf Coast and South Texas counties, already has adopted a resolution opposing the project.

Republicans pull out the convention paintbrush

Paint Clinton as failure, novice

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Republicans are trying to steer the wrath of disenchanted voters away from President Bush to the Democratic-controlled Congress and paint Bill Clinton as a failure as governor and novice at foreign policy.

After an opening night reflection on 12 years of White House dominance, the Republican National Convention looked ahead today, with a tribute to congressional hopefuls and a prime-time parade of 1996 presidential prospects hoping to boost their own stock while helping Bush.

The president arrived Monday for his second coronation as Republican standard-bearer and immediately joined in the anti-Congress chorus. At a welcoming rally, he rebuked the Democratic leadership as the "sultans of the status quo."

In the cavernous Astrodome, the delegates' refrain was "Clean the House" as Ronald Reagan sought to convince voters the change they need is on Capitol Hill — not at the White House. Chants of "Four More Years" were designed to reinforce that point.

Republicans previewed fall campaign lines aimed at reversing Clinton's double-digit lead in the polls. They portrayed Bush as an unparalleled world leader now ready to turn his energy homeward and the Democratic nominee as a failed governor, closet liberal and Vietnam draft evader.

"Where was Bill?" the delegates bellowed when conservative Patrick Buchanan recalled Bush's World War II service. Now in Bush's corner after an initially scorching primary challenge, Buchanan said Clinton's agenda was topped by abortion on demand, gay rights, and combat roles for women.

"That's change all right," Buchanan said. "But it is not the kind of change America wants. It is not the kind of change America needs."

The morning after his harsh words, Buchanan praised Clinton as "a tough customer; he takes a beating and he comes back." And he said, in an interview on ABC-TV, that Clinton "is making a real reach for those Reagan Democrats in the center."

Bush watched the convention's opening night on television from his hotel — also his legal residence — while working on his Thursday night acceptance speech. Republicans emphasized the importance of that speech — and the need for Bush to define his campaign themes.

"We're here to learn the theme and message of this campaign," said Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad.

At the welcoming rally, Bush promised the frustrated GOP faithful, "When history writes about this election, they're going to say it started right here when you fired up this president to take this message to the American people."

Vice President Dan Quayle was at Bush's side, and later went to the convention floor to catch the opening night's proceedings.

"I don't care what my critics say," Quayle said. "I will never back down from talking about traditional values."

Clinton was home in Arkansas, with one eye on solving a state budget problem, the other on GOP attacks.

He said of the blistering criticisms, "It's the best thing they have, since they can't run on their record." His campaign ridiculed the arch-conservative Republican platform as a document "with universal appeal — as long as you're an extremist."

Buchanan was the first of the party's likely 1996 presidential prospects in convention prime time, but hardly the last. Tonight has keynote Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, whose visits with Iowa and New Hampshire delegates underscored his ambition, as well as Housing Secretary Jack Kemp and Education Secretary Lamar Alexander. Also, a 1996 longshot: Massachusetts Gov. William Weld.

Their job is to continue the boost-Bush, bash-Clinton routine begun Monday.

Buchanan said Clinton's foreign policy experience amounted to "breakfast at the International House of Pancakes." Quayle conceded, mockingly, that Clinton had "a summer internship with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee."

Wyoming Sen. Alan Simpson echoed Buchanan's reminder that Clinton never served in the military. South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell suggested the Arkansas governor's economic plan would cost jobs. Not to be outdone, delegates wore buttons referring to Clinton as "Failed Governor of a Small State."

South Dakota Sen. Larry Pressler, by no means a Clinton fan, protested, "I find it a little of-

President George Bush and his wife Barbara are surrounded by a crowd carrying signs and wearing hats with Texas flags as they arrive at a rally welcoming Bush to Houston for the Republican National Convention Monday. Bush declared "I'm going to roll up my sleeves and do what's right for the American people and I don't care what the polls say."

fensive," he said. "Most Americans live in small states."

Many delegates found Houston to their liking. For many, busy restaurants and loud music were the choices for spare time. Some Iowa delegates took a different approach: "Romeo and Juliet" under the stars.

Under the Astrodome roof, the giant task was igniting Bush's campaign and glossing over the anemic economy was a major part of the Republican strategy.

"We cannot afford to take a chance" on Clinton, Reagan said in his convention return. It was a folksy, vintage Reagan speech in which he endorsed his former vice president "warmly, genuinely, wholeheartedly."

The decision to highlight Reagan, and fellow conservative Buchanan, was a sign of emerging GOP unity despite restiveness on the GOP right with Bush.

Blanket amnesty opposed

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The African National Congress claims the white government wants an amnesty for its security forces because top officials have been involved in political crimes.

Rejecting government proposals for a blanket amnesty, the main black opposition group says an amnesty could perpetuate rather than end the political violence that has claimed thousands of lives.

"The sudden promotion by senior government officials of the concept of a general amnesty clearly relates to accumulating evidence of senior ministerial and security force involvement in assassinations and violence," the ANC said in a statement Monday night.

The ANC was responding to a government call last week for a blanket amnesty for all members of the security forces and black resistance groups for any political-motivated offenses.

The government believes an amnesty is vital to forestall possible reprisals against security force personnel under any future black government. An amnesty could also generate support for a political settlement among government security forces.

The ANC wants a full disclosure of any illegal acts by the security forces, some of whose members have been implicated in killings and beatings of anti-apartheid activists in the past.

Amnesty should be granted to security force members who provide information to help expose past crimes and halt political violence, the ANC statement said.

In a separate statement, ANC President Nelson Mandela said an amnesty could be considered by a future, multiracial government.

But he said the white government had no right to issue an amnesty because it was responsible for political crimes.

"The rampant lawlessness can be seen in the systematic torture — by such means as beatings, electric shocks and the use of hoods to suffocate prisoners — as well as the continued occurrence of deaths in police custody," Mandela said in a speech Monday night in Cape Town.

The ANC pulled out of power-sharing talks in June to protest political violence in black townships. It is demanding an interim government and other concessions as the condition for returning to the talks.

Mandela reiterated Monday that he believes President F.W. de Klerk is partly responsible for the violence in black townships in which thousands have been killed.

"We decided that it would serve no useful purpose to continue talking to a government which is deaf and blind," Mandela said.

Stoffel van der Merwe, secretary-general of the governing National Party, said Mandela's claims that de Klerk was behind the violence were unacceptable.

"The repetition of these unfounded allegations is becoming a serious obstacle in the way of improving relations with the ANC," he said in a statement.

Looking for victims

Rescue workers search for victims in the wrecked cars of a passenger train Tuesday after it slammed into a freight train at Kazichene station outside Sofia, Bulgaria. At least eight people were killed, more than 60 injured in the accident.

Wildfire is creeping toward small towns

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANDREAS, Calif. — A wildfire that burned 15 structures and more than 2,500 acres crept toward several small towns today. Hundreds of people spent a second night in shelters.

Two firefighters suffered minor injuries.

Firefighters lit backfires, dug trenches and used air tankers to fight the blaze. But winds of more than 12 mph and temperatures above 100 fueled it Monday.

"The wind's whipping," said

Kathy Villegas, spokeswoman for the state Forestry Department. "The last we heard was that it's blowing up-canyon toward major communities."

She said it was moving at about one-quarter mile per hour early today toward Mountain Ranch, Shepranch and Cave City, several miles away.

Between 300 and 400 people have been evacuated from their homes since the fire broke out Sunday in the Sierra Nevada foothills, 50 miles southeast of Sacramento.

Abkhazia area stormed by Georgian troops

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

TBILISI, Georgia (AP) — Georgian troops and tanks stormed government headquarters in the breakaway western region of Abkhazia today, firing on and setting several buildings ablaze, witnesses said.

Loud explosions were heard as tanks and armored vehicles rolled into the regional capital of Sukhumi.

Anna Broide, a Russian journalist inside the Abkhazian government headquarters, said by telephone that Georgian troops fired on the building and set the parliament house across the street on fire.

She said the troops hoisted the Georgian flag at the government building after the assault. There was no immediate word on casualties.

Most of the Abkhazian leadership fled before the attack, Broide said.

Battles between Georgian soldiers and local police broke out in Abkhazia after Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze sent in 3,000 troops last week. At least 50 people have been killed, according to Abkhazian officials.

Officials in Tbilisi, the Georgian capital, said the troops were pursuing supporters of former Georgian President Zviad Gamsakhurdia, who was ousted in a brief civil war in January.

Gamsakhurdia loyalists had kidnapped several Georgian officials in recent weeks and held some of the hostages in Abkhazia.

Abkhazia's leaders declared independence last month, and one nationalist leader told Russian television on Monday that Georgia was using the pretext of freeing the hostages as an excuse to crack down on separatists.

The fighting threatened to involve Russian troops based in Abkhazia. Moscow said it would protect Russians in the region's Black Sea resort area, and it sent in paratroopers to speed an evacuation from the region.

On Monday, Russian military transport planes evacuated about 3,000 Russians — mostly vacationers and soldiers' families — from Abkhazia.

About 2,000 others have left by ship.

Bond projects worth support

In a little less than two months, Big Spring residents will have the opportunity to take a step forward. We're talking about the Oct. 10 bond election that addresses street repairs and the Beals Creek flood control plan.

We all realize our streets need repair... many of us, however, do not realize the need for the Beals Creek project to be passed because we may feel it doesn't affect us.

Those of us who feel the overgrown condition around the creek, as well as the creek's somewhat regular flooding, don't affect us are dead wrong.

The eyesore that we know as Beals Creek would be cleaned up under the plan. Trees would be planted and walking and jogging trails developed over a terrain that is now basically unusable — except by mosquitoes and snakes and skunks and rats.

The project would begin on the city's far west end and, as a formal flood control structure, would be built to the Owens Street area east of downtown. A study currently under way by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers would also address the area east of Owens Street to one past FM 700. That area would be developed into a low-maintenance green belt.

Yes, there is a distinct possibility our taxes will increase a few cents per $100 valuation with the passage of the Beals Creek project.

But how much will our taxes increase if the individuals and businesses located in the area choose to move elsewhere? What if the individuals choose to move into apartments where they pay no taxes? What if the businesses move out of town?

And what of the costs associated with the "buyout" of property owners proposed by one council member?

That buyout — coupled with the lost tax revenue created by unoccupied property — then exceeds the amount of money the city would be required to spend. Which brings us to our last point.

The return on our investment would be approximately 7-to-1 in federal monies. These are tax dollars we've already sent to Washington and now have the opportunity to get back.

It's a prudent decision to support both the streets project as well as the Beals Creek Flood Control Project.

By voting in support of the projects, you are saying "yes" to the future of the city of Big Spring.

Thanks to Johansen's for help

To the editor:
We wish to thank Johansen Landscape and Nursery for donating all the wonderful plants to the BSSH Greenhouse.

This new facility, provided by the volunteers, has proven to be unusually popular, fun, and rewarding for the patients. We appreciate this special help from Johansen's.

Also we are looking for some volunteers to help with the Chaplaincy program. We need people to come to the Sunday morning 8:30 worship and serve as greeters, also to assist patients in wheelchairs and others who may need help in getting from their unit to the chapel for the service.

The service will be over in time for the volunteer to attend his own church at 11 a.m.

Further, we need people to attend the Bible Study meetings on Tuesday evenings at 6:30 and serve in the same way as for the Sunday morning services.

If you would be able to help in this role please call the Chaplain Service at the hospital 267-8216.

As always we thank the people of Big Spring for their generous expressions of love and concern for the patients of the Big Spring State Hospital.

Council's jail savings don't add up

To the editor:
Prudent administrators do not omit funding vital municipal services until arrangements are in place that will otherwise provide them.

The Big Spring Herald (Aug. 13) article about the absence of a jail agreement with the county points out this oversight.

On the surface, it appears that the council's overzealous action with the preparation of last year's budget might turn out to be penny wise but pound foolish. Adding "four more employees and about $200,000 in renovations" to our tax load exceeds the promised savings of $60,000 that some council members were popping their suspenders over last year.

But as Will Rogers once commented, "You can't blame them, we elected them."

Your class ring is from . . . where?

"We're doing this because the world is changing," said Roy A. Haberstock, president of the educational products division of the L.G. Balfour Co.

The name of the company may sound familiar to you. Balfour, with headquarters in Attleboro, Mass., is one of the nation's largest manufacturers and purveyors of high school class rings; you may have bought a Balfour ring when you were in high school.

"Things just aren't the same in the class ring business as they once were," said Haberstock, 58. "When I was in high school in the early 1950s, the history teacher would stand up and announce that he was taking orders for class rings. We'd all wrap bands around our fingers to measure them, and he'd tell us to bring in our $24.95 the next day. It didn't occur to anyone not to order a high school ring. It wasn't required, but it might as well have been."

No more. Class rings are a harder sell in American high schools than they were 40 years ago. Which goes a long way toward explaining what the Balfour company is doing:

Namely, selling class rings from the fictional West Beverly High School of the television series "Beverly Hills 90210."

Correct. Balfour is launching an advertising campaign designed to sell young Americans class rings from a TV high school that doesn't even exist.

"We have every expectation that the West Beverly High class rings will quickly become our biggest seller," Haberstock said.

"Certainly a bigger seller than the class ring of any real high school."

Class rings are supposed to provide their wearers with lasting memories of the wonderful times they had in high school. After discussing it among themselves, Haberstock and other Balfour executives came to the conclusion that a huge number of young Americans would probably rather remember the good times of West Beverly High than the times they're experiencing in their own schools.

"Let's face it," Haberstock said. "I'm sure that most high school students look around the hallways and realize that their friends at school are not nearly as exciting as the characters on that TV show."

So Balfour, in addition to selling class rings at real high schools, has just begun to market the West Beverly High rings. They're black and gold, they sell for $48, and they are being advertised in national magazines. Balfour couldn't be any more serious about its plans for these rings.

"At a real high school, even the biggest high school, we would do well to sell 500 or 600 rings to a graduating class of perhaps 1,000," Haberstock said. "And that would be one of the largest high schools in the country. With these West Beverly High rings, we will be very surprised if we don't sell at least 100,000 rings. And we could very well do much better than that."

"I don't think there's any question about it — these rings from that TV high school will appeal to young people who would prefer to be going there than to their own high school."

He said he does not think young people will consider the rings to be a joke. "Kids want to be part of a group, and from what I understand the group of characters on 'Beverly Hills 90210' is a very desirable group to be a part of. So our customers for this ring will feel good that they can wear the ring from the school where Luke Perry is a student." Is Luke Perry the name of the actor, or of the character he plays?

"I think it's the name of the character," Haberstock said. "Is that right?"

The interviewer was not sure. "In any case, we think that the West Beverly High ring is a good value," Haberstock said. "For $48, it's a high quality ring. It's not as high quality as our class rings for real high schools — those go for around $200 — but it's a real piece of jewelry that we believe people will wear and keep."

So Balfour's corporate position is that the class rings from the fictional TV high school will end up in dresser drawers decades from now, the same way that real class rings from real high schools traditionally have?

"We think so," Haberstock said. "After all, why do people keep their high school rings? They keep them to remind themselves of good times when they were young — football games, dances, friendships."

"We're living in a new era. Today's teen-agers, when they look back at the time when they were young, will remember, among other things, watching a lot of TV. So yes, they'll keep the ring. It will bring back many fond memories of high school activities, even if those activities did happen to take place on television."

The real tragedy of mental garbage

I had already turned in last week's column before I realized it wasn't what I meant to write. It was only the beginning. But, because of an injury in the family that has turned my world upside down, I've been in a fog the last 2 1/2 weeks, and my thought processes seem to get hijacked before they reach their destination.

I wrote about a whole generation of minds being a terrible thing to waste, and television was only the first point. Perhaps it was appropriate, however, to spend a whole column on TV since — in spite of its vast potential to inform and educate — the tube seems to be the greatest waster of modern mental powers.

Of course, we're all aware that drugs are great wasters of minds, either by doing actual damage to the brain or by consuming a person's thoughts during what should be some of their most productive years.

And some children begin life with diminished mental and emotional abilities because mothers continue to feed their addictions during pregnancy. Fetal alcohol syndrome is a documented thief of emotional stability in children and adults. And some babies are actually born addicted to cocaine or other drugs; that can't be advanced tageous for still-developing nervous systems.

Pornography is another great waster of mental powers. I recall hearing a radio interview of a young man who had received extensive counseling as he attempted to kick the pornography habit. Even after he was apparently freed of his addiction, he refused to travel alone, because he knew the temptation to visit X-rated movies and bookstores in a distant town where he was unknown might overcome him.

And in a graphic illustration, he told how he was carrying out the trash at his home one time. When he lifted the lid of the dumpster, he saw a pornographic magazine on the pile of garbage. The next thing he knew he was inside the dumpster with the magazine in his hand. And this after he had thought he was loose of pornography's control!

In his book "The Battle for the Mind," Tim LaHaye writes, "The mind is to the emotions what food is to the body. For that reason, what the mind feeds upon becomes the most influential force in your life!

"One of the greatest myths of our times is that feelings are spontaneous. Actually, they are created by what you put into your mind. . . . 'Garbage in — garbage out.'"

It's a tragedy of our times how easily we — myself included — devour mental garbage. Yet we would never put water into our car's gas tanks. We show more respect for our cars than we do for our minds.

The Bible says we should think only about things that are true, honest, just, pure, lovely and of good report. Like every other command in the Bible, this one is given to liberate us, not to limit us. If we would control our thought lives, meditating only on those concepts that line up with scriptural guidelines, we might find ourselves with the time and mental energy to become more original, innovative and creative.

Richard Allen Farmer, in "It Won't Fly If You Don't Try," maintains that everyone is creative: ". . . it's because you were created by a creative God and made in his image (Genesis 1:27) that you cannot be uncreative. Creativity is in your genes."

However, creativity is not developed by sitting in front of the boob tube or by doing drugs or by giving attention to the frivolous entertainments popular today. Creativity comes from applying the gray cells to seeing things a new way, from play, from watching nature and children, from keeping a record of ideas, among others, according to Farmer.

Creativity, in other words, requires work, perseverance, and mental sweat.

Peter Lord has written a book entitled "Turkeys & Eagles" about a pair of eaglets that were abandoned by their parents. They fell in with a flock of turkeys and grew up believing themselves to be turkeys — and as turkeys they were pretty poor specimens!

I have a sinking feeling that we are surrounded by a generation of young eagles who are pecking in the dirt like turkeys. They were born to fly, but they are tethered to the earth by invisible cables of mediocrity. It's time to cut the cables, whether they like it or not.

No-hitter!

Dodgers pitcher hurls season's first gem

The ASSOCIATED PRESS
 LOS ANGELES — Kevin Gross pitched the first no-hitter of 1992, retiring 22 of the final 23 batters Monday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 2-0.

Gross (6-12) allowed second-inning walks to Cory Snyder and Matt Williams and hit pinch-hitter Mark Leonard with a pitch in the ninth. The ball that came closest to a hit was a leadoff line drive by Robby Thompson in the eighth inning that shortstop Jose Offerman caught while moving to his right.

The no-hitter ended an 11-month period since the last one. There were 14 no-hitters in the major leagues in 1990 and 1991, seven in each year.

When Willie McGee flied to left for the final out, catcher Mike Scioscia dashed to the mound and hugged Gross. His teammates mobbed him on the mound and a crowd of 25,561 at Dodger Stadium gave a standing ovation.

Gross, whose previous best performance in 253 career starts was a three-hitter on three occasions, won for the first time since shutting out St. Louis on July 12.

The right-hander retired 13 Giants on ground balls, five on fly balls, two on pop-ups, one on a line drive and six on strikeouts.

Seventy-one of Gross' 99 pitches were strikes. After hitting Leonard in the ninth, he retired pinch-hitter Mark Litton on a fielder's choice, Mike Felder on a weak liner to left,

Los Angeles Dodgers starting pitcher Kevin Gross kisses the game ball in the Dodgers' dugout after pitching his first career no-hitter against the San Francisco Giants Monday night at Dodger Stadium.

and McGee. The no-hitter was the eighth since the franchise moved to Los Angeles in 1958 and the first by a Dodgers pitcher since Fernando Valenzuela beat St. Louis on June 29, 1990. It was the first in the majors since Kent Mercker, Mark Wohlers and Alejandro Pena of the Atlanta Braves combined to no-hit San Diego last Sept. 11.

The last time a Dodgers pitcher no-hit the Giants was June 27, 1980, when Jerry Reuss did it at Candlestick Park. The last time the Giants were no-hit at Dodger Stadium was May 11, 1963, when Sandy Koufax beat them 8-0 for one of his four no-hitters.

It was the 14th career shutout and third of the season for Gross, who had dropped his previous 10 decisions against National League West teams dating back to last season.

Eric Karros, whose 17 homers are the most by a Dodgers rookie since Greg Brock's 20 in 1983, opened the scoring against Francisco Olivares (0-2) in the second inning with a drive over the fence in left center. The other run scored in the fourth when Brett Butler doubled and scored on a single by rookie Henry Rodriguez.

Until Monday night, Gross was perhaps best known for a 10-day suspension in 1987 when he was caught with sandpaper in his glove while pitching for the Phillies.

His no-hitter was a spectacular way for the Dodgers to avert their first four-game sweep at home against the Giants in 69 years. The last team to sweep a four-game set at Dodger Stadium was Philadelphia in 1985 — and Gross pitched the second game in that series for the Phillies.

Braves win three of four from Bucs at Three Rivers

The ASSOCIATED PRESS
 PITTSBURGH — Big series. Big victory. Big momentum-booster.

So how big were the Atlanta Braves' three victories over the Pittsburgh Pirates in their four-game showdown series of National League division leaders?

"Big. Real big," Braves manager Bobby Cox said after Monday night's 5-4 victory in 10 innings.

And what will the season-series edge — and Atlanta's 7-5 season series edge — mean if the Braves and Pirates are rematched in the NL playoffs in October?

According to Cox: A big zero. "No, no, believe me," Cox said. "It's a whole different game in the playoffs. I just hope we're in them."

The Braves have a much better chance after taking their second consecutive series from Pittsburgh, giving them 51 victories in their last 69 games — a .739 winning percentage.

Atlanta won the first two games by a combined 22-5, lost to knuckleballing Tim Wakefield 4-2 on Sunday, then won the series finale on Mark Lemke's two-out RBI double in the 10th inning off Bob Patterson.

"Is it big? I think so. That was a big win for us," Cox said. "When you win the first two, you want them all but when you lose the third one, three of four is good."

Five of seven is almost as good, and that's what the Braves did in their final two series against NL

East leader Pittsburgh. The Braves won two of three games July 24-26 in Atlanta before continuing their success in Three Rivers Stadium, where they took 4 of 6.

All but two of the 12 Braves-Pirates games this season were decided by two runs or less.

The Braves were just a little more excellent.

Justice, in a 1-for-16 slide, went 3 for 4 with a walk and scored three runs, including the game-winner. He doubled leading off the 10th against Patterson (5-2) and scored on Lemke's two-out double as four of the Braves' five runs came with two outs.

Both Patterson and the Pirates failed where they're usually the most successful: extra innings. Four of Patterson's five victories this season and 12 of his 17 career victories were in extra innings.

The Pirates had won four straight and five of their last sixth in extra innings.

Catcher Don Slaught called for an off-speed pitch, but Patterson wanted to run a fastball away and shook him off. The pitch sailed in on Lemke rather than tailing away and Lemke rammed it into the left-center field gap.

Lemke also had a key solo homer in the Braves' 7-5 victory Saturday night.

The Pirates again failed to win for Doug Drabek, who has a 1.84 ERA but only a 4-3 record in his last nine starts. Drabek gave up nine hits and four runs over eight innings and was on the hook for the loss.

Yankees tumble into last place

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO New York Yankee manager Buck Showalter has been ill for the last couple of days with the flu, and his team isn't doing much to make him feel any better.

With their fifth defeat in seven games coming Monday night in a 4-3 loss to the Chicago White Sox, the spiraling Yankees dropped into a tie for last place in the AL East with the Cleveland Indians.

Left-hander Greg Hibbard, who is turning into a Yankee killer, allowed four hits over eight innings and the White Sox scored a pair of unearned runs in the fifth inning to tie, as Melido Perez with the loss.

In the night's only other AL game, Detroit beat Kansas City 6-5.

The White Sox picked up a big run in the eighth on Frank Thomas' run-scoring single with two outs. That helped them withstand a Yankee run in the ninth off Bobby Thigpen before Scott Radinsky got the final two outs for his 12th save.

The victory was the second straight and 14th in the last 19 games for the White Sox.

It was Hibbard's first victory since July 5 after one loss and five no-decisions.

Perez (9-13) wasn't talking after allowing only five hits and two earned runs.

The White Sox scored a run in the first on heads-up running by Steve Sax. Sax singled, went to third as Tim Raines grounded to first and scored on a sacrifice fly by Thomas.

The White Sox picked up two unearned runs in the fifth. Dan Pasqua singled and when Lance Johnson hit a toppler in front of the plate, Stanley threw the ball into center on an attempted force as the runners advanced to second and third.

Royals 6, Tigers 5
 Mike Macfarlane drove in three runs with two doubles and his third homer in three games to power the Royals over the Tigers.

Macfarlane's second double with two out in the seventh scored Gary Thurman, who drew a leadoff walk from reliever Kurt Knudsen (2-2).

The win was the third in a row for the Royals and only the second loss in the last 10 games for the Tigers, who tied the game 5-5 on Tony Phillips' two-out, two-run double in the seventh.

Rusty Meacham (7-3), the third Royals' reliever, got the victory. Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his 30th save.

Saints whitewash Steelers

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS — For Mike Buck, it was a night to write home about. The only problem was, Bobby Hebert had already sent the news airmail.

Buck, the New Orleans Saints' third-string quarterback who had a total of two NFL snaps in three years, took over for Hebert in the second quarter and completed 7 of 11 passes for 85 yards.

Unfortunately for Buck, a sixth-round draft pick from Maine, the Saints' regular starter, Hebert, had a great night as well, setting up the New Orleans scores.

Hebert, who completed 8 of 10 passes, threw for 69 yards in New Orleans' first scoring drive, culminated by the first of three field goals by free-agent kicker Cary Blanchard.

With Blanchard kicking field goals of 48, 48 and 43 yards and Hebert passing for 106 yards and setting up two scores in just over a quarter, New Orleans blanked Pittsburgh 26-0 in an NFL exhibition game Monday night.

Hebert's passing and running set up New Orleans' first touchdown, which came early in the second quarter on a 9-yard run by Craig Heyward. Heyward ran 2 yards for another score just before halftime.

Heyward finished with six carries for 18 yards and caught two passes for 15 yards.

The Saints, 11-5 and NFC West champions last year, are 2-0 in exhibition play. The Steelers, 7-9 last season in the AFC Central, are 0-2.

Bills 30, Lions 24

NFL

Kramer will be his backup. Coach Wayne Fontes isn't sure where the Lions will go from there.

"There's no question who the No. 1 and No. 2 quarterbacks are, but No. 3 is still in a little bit of turmoil," Fontes said.

It didn't seem that murky in the Lions' 30-24 exhibition loss to the Buffalo Bills Monday night. Chuck Long clearly outplayed Andre Ware in a game prolonged to three hours, 46 minutes by 31 penalties.

Both quarterbacks led the Lions on scoring drives, but Long showed greater field presence and easily had the better statistics. He completed 4 of 6 passes for 28 yards, including a 1-yard touchdown pass.

Ware, the 1989 Heisman Trophy winner who was the Lions' first-round draft choice three years ago, threw a shutout in the game (0-for-3 after playing the first quarter and a half) and then again in the interview room afterwards.

"I've got nothing to say to anybody," he said.

If Fontes thought Long did the better job than Ware, he was careful not to say so after the game, possibly because Detroit may be looking to move Ware in a trade.

Like Ware and Long, running back Ed Tillison has no chance of being the Lions' starter, not with Barry Sanders around. Still, the rookie ran hard, trying to distinguish himself from the pack of backs looking to sit on the bench behind Sanders.

He caught the Lions' only touchdown pass, a 1-yarder from Long, and added 73 yards on six carries. Unfortunately, he also fumbled twice.

Sanders and his former teammate and rival for the title of the NFL's best back, Buffalo's Thurman Thomas, didn't stay in the game long.

Thomas left after suffering a bruised cheekbone halfway through the first quarter. Sanders seemed to elude all 11 Bills defenders on a 24-yard, sideline-to-sideline run that set up his 3-yard touchdown run. Shortly after that, he left the game.

Thomas' replacement, Ken Davis, once again showed that Buffalo has a more than adequate backup for Thomas. Davis scored on 1- and 4-yard touchdowns runs, carried the ball 10 times for 56 yards and added a 10-yard reception.

Buffalo's talent evaluators will have some work on the defensive side of the ball. Rookies Frank Kmet, Keith Goganious and Kurt Schulz each made big plays.

Kmet, whom the Bills would like to see develop as a run-stopper in the middle of the defensive line, blew past a Detroit lineman in the fourth quarter and blindsided Kramer, forcing a fumble that Schulz returned 47 yards for a touchdown.

Schulz, a defensive back, saw more playing time than he expected. "I was running around too much and I've got to concentrate a little more on my responsibilities, but it was good just to be out there," he said.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company is asking the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) for approval to begin charging $3.00 per bill, for duplicate paper copies of a customer's bill up to 15 pages. If the customer's bill exceeds 15 pages, an additional five cents per page will apply. If the customer's bill is lost or mutilated for reasons other than negligence by the customer, no charge for a duplicate copy will apply if a customer notifies Southwestern Bell within 60 days of the billing date. The effective date of this application is December 4, 1992.

If approved by the PUC, this application will increase the Company's annual revenues by $835,000, which is an increase of approximately two one-hundredths of 1 percent (.02 percent) in the Company's adjusted revenue for the 12-month period ending December 31, 1991. The application could affect all of the Company's approximately 4.6 million residence customers and all of its approximately 575,000 business customers should they choose to request duplicate copies of their bills.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the PUC as soon as possible. The deadline to intervene is August 7, 1992. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas at 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the PUC Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

School under way in Forsan and Coahoma

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Reporter

With 1992-93 budget wrangling behind two area school boards, the school year has officially started for Forsan and Coahoma.

Forsan Independent School District Board of Trustees conducted a public hearing at their regular meeting on Monday and approved their 1992-93 budget, said school board president Bill Mims.

Concerning passing the budget, "There were no problems," he said. The operating budget totaled $3.9 million.

Board vice president Lee George said now that the budget is behind the district, it is time to get on with the school year.

Trustees also approved a partially self-funded Worker's Compensation Insurance plan for the year.

"It is more economical with the same risk," Mims said. "The majority we put in there will stay if there aren't a lot of losses. Saves us about $30,000 a year."

Enrollment figures were tallied and Forsan schools came out on top increasing by about 100 students, board vice president Lee George said.

"We will retain more of our (County Education District) money," he said. "We've been right on the border line (before the transfer policy) in elementary schools for two or three sections."

"We would guess on how many students and if we were wrong, we'd have an extra teacher," he said. "The transfer students even it out."

Forsan trustees dropped consideration of a public relations campaign aimed at improving the image of education.

"We decided we wouldn't benefit from it compared to the money we would put in," the board president said.

In other business, board members discussed the district tax rate, which was tentatively set at 58 cents. The rate will be approved next month.

"The additional students will help keep the rate down to that much," George said.

Trustees also adopted stricter performance criteria for teacher appraisals and approved attending the Texas Association of School Boards convention this (fall), he said.

The next regular board meeting for FIRD is at 7 p.m. on Sept. 20 at the administration building.

With 101 percent of taxes collected, Coahoma trustees adopted their 1992-93 budget, said board president Guy White.

The operating budget totaled about $6 million, Superintendent L.D. Monroe said.

"The taxes are over 100 percent because of the delinquent taxes collected from last year," White said. "The collected amount is down $10 million from last year because of the property values going down."

Property values for Forsan fell about 10 percent, he said.

In other business, FIRD trustees accepted the resignation of high school counselor David Nelson who will now serve as superintendent for Comstock schools, west of Del Rio.

The next regular meeting is at 7 p.m. on Sept. 21 in the administration building.

Fuel

Adam's company, AZ Technologies of Hardy, Ark., makes Tripalio. The company has been in existence since the early 1970s. In the mid-1980s, Adam was contracted to design and manufacture an electric runway sweeper for the United States Air Force. He was then approached with designing more alternative-fueled vehicles.

Adam says the company's emphasis presently is designing an efficient electric-powered car.

Like the Ener Run coordinators and participants, the Texas Legislature also promoted alternative fuels with the passage of House Bill 470 in 1989. The bill was passed mandating any new purchase or new leases of state vehicles should be capable of alternative fuel conversion by September 1991.

The bill has the number of alternative fueled vehicles will increase in the following increments: 30 percent by 1994; 50 percent by 1996; and 90 percent by 1998.

The bill is targeted at non-attainment areas, such as Dallas-Ft. Worth, Houston, Beaumont and El Paso. It is not targeted at rural communities or sparsely populated areas, said Margaret Justis of the governor's press office.

"Texas is the only state who has passed a law like this," she said. "It is most definitely the forerunner in promoting alternative-fueled vehicles."

Adam hopes the interest in alternative-fueled vehicles increases in and out of Texas before the next Ener Run, slated for 1994.

"I would love to have 20 to 30 cars participate in the next Ener Run," Adam said. "I am sure we will have at least a dozen doing the cross country trip with us."

Oops! Wrong man in grave

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

GRAND PRAIRIE — A Dallas County commissioner says an exhumation at a south Dallas County cemetery has found the body of a man buried in the wrong grave site.

The exhumation Monday at Southland Memorial Park showed that the body found in the grave was not that of Charles Adams Jr., a 50-year-old white man, who died in 1983, said Dallas County Commissioner John Wiley Price.

Instead, cemetery records indicate that a 60-year-old black man, also named Charlie Adams, was buried there. Officials are still trying to confirm identification.

Sheriff's log

The Howard County Sheriff's Office reported the following incidents:

• The Howard County Sheriff's Office is investigating a case of criminal mischief at the Clyde McMahon Concrete Company property on South Moss Lake Road. Unknown people or person used a front-end loader to push over a building and dump a load of dirt on a truck. Gas lines were also cut in the incident.

Sheriff's deputies are taking fingerprint and shoe prints and investigating former employees and others.

• Pablo Martinez Jr., 39, of Coahoma was arrested for contempt of a court order.

• Donald Craig Baker, 20, of 2303 Cindy Lane was arrested on an Eastland County warrant for making a false report to a police officer.

• Nathaniel Freeman Jr. of Odessa was arrested on Howard County warrants for possessing drug paraphernalia.

1992 Property Tax Rates in Coahoma I.S.D.

This notice concerns 1992 property tax rates for Coahoma I.S.D. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:

Last year's operating taxes	$ 479,980
Last year's debt taxes	$ 727,359
Last year's total taxes	$ 1,207,339
Last year's tax base	$ 192,463,355
Last year's total tax rate	$ .60 /$100

This year's effective tax rate:

Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 1,151,953
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 180,484,230
= This year's effective tax rate	$ .63825 /$100

x 1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing

	$ .65739 /$100
--	------------------

This year's rollback tax rate:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 479,980
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$ 180,484,230
= This year's effective operating rate	$ .26594 /$100
x 1.08 (or add $.08 for schools) = this year's maximum operating rate	$ .34594 /$100
+ This year's debt rate	$ .39931 /$100

A school district must insert the following lines

- This year's rollback rate before adjustment	$ .74525 /$100
+ Rate to recoup lost revenue	$ .06853 /$100
= Adjusted rollback rate	$ .81378 /$100

= This year's rollback rate

	$ .81378 /$100

Schedule A Unencumbered Fund Balances

The following balances will probably be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
Local Maintenance	0
Debt Service	0

Schedule B 1992 Debt Service

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

Description of Debt	Principal or Contract Payment to be Paid	Interest to be Paid	Other Amounts to be Paid	Total Payment
1992 Bond Obligation	$ 565,000	138,575 %	$1,500	$ 705,075
			Bond Fee
			$ 705,075
Total required for 1992 debt service			$ 705,075
- Amount (if any) paid from funds listed in Schedule A			$ 0
- Excess collections last year			$ 0
= Total to be paid from taxes in 1992			$ 705,075
+ Amount added in anticipation that the unit will collect only 97 % of its taxes in 1992			$ 21,806
= Total Debt Levy			$ 726,881

Hospice care

Agency offers support to the terminally ill, families

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Features Editor

It's increasingly common: A terminally ill person wants to receive care at home, where he or she feels comfortable.

In the local area, Hospice of the Southwest aims to help people meet that goal. The non-profit program has trained nurses, caregivers and volunteers to support terminally ill patients.

"The human spirit has a lot to do with being able to fight something," said Jody Streicher, community relations coordinator for the organization.

She said hospice aims to give patients pain-free, quality time, as well as support families of the terminally ill.

"Our program is about what communities used to do for families. It's just that now it's

'Basically (volunteers) just befriend the family and the patient. (Patients) are often isolated and sometimes very lonely.'

Jody Streicher,
Community relations for Hospice of the Southwest

become an organization," Streicher said.

Hospice-type care has existed for hundreds of years, but organizations have been in place in America about 18 years. The number of programs in existence has doubled since 1983.

Hospice of the Southwest was founded in 1984. In 1991, it incorporated Hospice of Stanton, and now the Odessa-based program extends to 12 counties, including Borden, Glasscock, Howard and Martin as well as Ector.

A large part of hospice is volunteers — people willing to give time to help a patient and family. They don't give medical care, but volunteers give something Streicher said is just as important.

"Basically they just befriend the family and the patient," she said. "Our patients are not all bedridden. They can be quite alert."

"They're just isolated and sometimes very lonely."

A course to train local volunteers will be conducted at Howard College Oct. 22-Nov. 24.

That class will serve three main purposes, Streicher said. It will satisfy continuing education credits for health care professionals, provide necessary training for volunteers and give basic information about hospice.

She said misconceptions about hospice are common.

"People think we're just for cancer patients. That isn't true," Streicher explained. "We help patients with any life-threatening disease, and patients of any age."

Hospice is not related to physician-assisted suicide. "We do nothing to prolong life," Streicher said. "But we do nothing to speed up the (dying) process. We're interested in pain-free, quality of life."

"I tell people, 'We're all terminal,'" she said. "Our patients just have a better idea how long they have left."

For Big Spring, Coahoma and Stanton area residents, Hospice of the Southwest hopes to open a local office this fall. Currently, 20 patients are served in the area.

Streicher said she is contacting local social service groups to explain the group's purpose and its goals. Hospice workers maintain a speaker's bureau of professionals who can address organizations.

For more information, the toll-free number for Hospice of the Southwest is 1-800-747-HOME. Training course information is available from Charla Lewis at Howard College continuing education.

Foster home brings out good in children

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

STEPHENVILLE, Texas — Twelve-year-old Jimmy Atkinson has come a long way in two years. Since arriving at the Sherwood and Myrtie Foster Home for Children in Stephenville, Jimmy has accelerated three grade levels, unmasked a boyish talent for sketching wolves and come out of his shell. Not bad for a kid who was neglected by drug-abusing parents and needed surgery for a lazy eye and a hernia.

"Jimmy has a lot of friends. When he came here, he was fairly quiet. Now he gets along well with his peers and older kids," said Jay Benson, Jimmy's "cottage parent," or guardian, at the home.

The new Jimmy is animated and talkative. On Wednesday, before he left the 43-acre campus for life with his foster parents who are caring for his 14-year-old sister, he proudly showed his artwork to foster home Director Eugene Boone.

"I want to be a person who goes out and explores and looks for wild animals," said Jimmy, who was one of 50 children staying at the home.

About 1,500 children have passed through the facility since it was founded in 1960 by an Odessa couple whose name, coincidentally, was Foster. Sherwood and Myrtie Foster, who loved children, started the home after moving a cattle operation to Erath County. The house they lived in eventually became the first of six yellow brick cottages.

Today, the nonprofit home relies on contributions from 350 Churches of Christ, foundations, individuals, and a heavy dose of faith, Boone said.

"We have children who don't have any place to be. We try to assume the role of pseudo-parent," he said.

VA ready with services for Desert Storm vets

Recently there have been concerns raised about possible adverse health affects of exposure to petro chemicals and other environmental agents on approximately 550,000 personnel who served in the Persian Gulf Operation.

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is cooperating with the Department of Defense in a mutual effort to assess the impact of such exposure and implications for the development of appropriate health care and compensation.

On Thursday, Anthony Principi, Deputy Secretary of VA, said, "It is too early to tell how large the problem is, but VA wants to be out in front of this issue."

Conrad Alexander, Medical Center Director, said: "Veterans should be assured that VA is aware of their medical concerns and will provide them whatever appropriate medical assistance is indicated."

Women's Equality Day, August 26, marks the 72nd anniversary of the ratification of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which guaranteed women the right to vote. This historic milestone in our nation's advancement has profoundly improved the lives of all Americans.

VA continues to be mindful that the women who performed our mission of caring for veterans during the First World War were primarily responsible for creating the popular support for the 19th Amendment. Just as they led the way in 1919, VA should continue in 1992.

According to Edward J. Derwinski, Secretary of Veterans Affairs, "The nobility and diversity of VA's mission make it an excellent vehicle for the continued advancement of women in America."

Leaders in VA have a special responsibility to promote the success of women and celebrate their many contributions.

On Aug. 4, Edward J. Derwinski, Secretary of the Department of Veterans Affairs, made an unannounced visit to the medical center. According to Conrad Alexander, Director, the visit went very well. Mr. Derwinski was very pleased with the medical center and staff.

Several awards were presented to deserving individuals at the Director's Staff Conference on August 7, 1992. Joe Perez of Dietetic Service was named Employee of the Month for August. Joe has often been recognized for his special concern for patients. Congratulations, Joe!

Employees receiving length of service awards were: Carol Roen, Patient Representative Program Assistant, 20-year pin; Jo R. Watkins, Nursing Service, Charles E. Sims, Engineering Service, and Hugh S. Clark, Radiology Service, 30-year certificates and pins. George Harwood, Dietetic Service, Lyndon G. (Gene) Priest, Engineering Service, and Valentin Torres, Nursing Service, received 35-year certificates and pins.

Amy Dunn, Medical Administration Service, received the monthly award for her "Clue for Conrad."

Big Spring VA Medical Center received recognition from the Veterans Health Services Administration for having trained 100 percent of the employees in job-related safety.

Fred Cox, Chief of Voluntary Service, received Certificates of Appreciation from the American Legion Auxiliary for his participation as guest speaker at their state convention in Dallas, July 18, and for his support of the American Legion Auxiliary Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation Program.

August is Osteoporosis Month. Some of the risk factors are: female, Caucasian or Oriental, family history of osteoporosis, over 15 years of age, weight-bearing exercise less than three times a week, smoking, and dieting.

If you are interested in finding out more about this problem, classes to assess your risk factors will be held at the medical center Aug. 26 at 9 a.m. in Room 212 and 3 p.m. in Room 213; and August 28, at 2 p.m. in Room 213. The public is invited.

Attention bowlers! Don't forget, Helen Duval, Professional Bowler and Hall of Fame member, will visit the medical center August 26 at 1:00 p.m. in Room 212. Helen will sign autographs and give bowling tips.

Participants in the VA Voluntary Service Summer Youth Volunteer Program were treated to a picnic lunch in the Gazebo at the medical center Friday, August 14. Conrad Alexander, Medical Center Director, presented the young men and women with pins and encouraged them to consider a career in public service.

Participants in the program were: Jason Arguello, Traci Castillo, Donny Dennard, Amanda Hernandez, Adelaida Amante, Jennifer Ornelas, Joni Rodriguez, John Salazar, Trey Simmons, Viswanath Subbarman, Paven Reddy, Margaret Clanton, Kristie Munoz, Bethany Oyler, and Lyla Martinez. Special thanks and congratulations to all these wonderful young men and women for a job well done!

Pat Atkins is the Public Affairs Officer and Patient Representative at the Big Spring VA Medical Center. She can be contacted at 915-264-4839.

Dinosaurs: Could crater be key to extinction mystery?

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A group of researchers say new studies prove that a 111-mile-wide buried crater in Mexico is where an immense boulder from space smashed to Earth 65 million years ago and helped kill off the dinosaurs.

Rock from drilling cores has been chemically dated and shows that the crater was blasted out of the ocean floor around the same time that something caused the death up to 70 percent of all animal species on Earth, scientists report in a study to be published Friday in the journal Science.

The finding is "the smoking gun" in the so-called impact theory of the dinosaur demise, says Walter Alvarez, a geologist at the University of California at Berkeley.

Many scientists disagree. Charles B. Officer, Dartmouth College geologist, said far more scientists believe the dinosaurs were done-in by events on Earth, such as the 400,000-year-long volcano eruption that dumped thousands of cubic miles of molten rock into what are known as the Deccan Traps in India. Alvarez, his late father, Luis, and others first proposed in the 1980s that the impact of a massive asteroid or comet could have caused the extinctions.

They formulated the theory after studying a geologic layer, called the Cretaceous-Tertiary boundary, that marks the moment in time 65 million years ago when the dinosaurs and many other species died off. The Alvarez team found that the formation was enriched with iridium, a metallic element rare on the Earth's surface, but highly concentrated in asteroids.

But a major weakness of the theory was that no one had located a crater that was large enough and of the right age to be linked directly to the ancient extinction.

"We have passed a major hurdle that essentially confirms the impact hypothesis," Alvarez said in a telephone interview.

The crater, located near the town of Chicxulub on the Yucatan peninsula, was first identified in the 1980s by petroleum geologists looking for oil.

Scientists examined core samples from oil exploration wells drilled in Chicxulub. A report in the journal Nature last month suggested that minerals from the cores were consistent with an asteroid impact.

Now scientists, led by geochronologist Carl C. Swisher III, have proved that rocks from the crater were of the same age as the extinction.

"What we have done now is substantiated the correlation between these tektites and the impact crater at Chicxulub," said Swisher of the Institute of Human Origins in Berkeley, Calif. "A lot of people have been looking for many years to find this crater."

Swisher said rocks from the drilling core sample were dated using a system that measures the rate at which potassium in the rock has decayed into argon. This measure is then compared to another test to determine how much potassium was originally in the rock. Since the elements decay at a known rate, the ratio of the two tests give a precise age.

The finding, he said, does not prove the impact theory, "but we're getting close."

In brief: Health news

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — The special health concerns of women are getting priority attention from pharmaceutical manufacturers, reports the Arthritis Foundation.

According to the foundation, a survey by the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association disclosed that more than 250 medicines are in human clinical trials or awaiting approval by the Food and Drug Administration for diseases that primarily affect women or are among the top 10 causes of death in women.

They include 37 medicines currently being tested for five specific types of arthritis and other musculoskeletal diseases — juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, osteoarthritis, osteoporosis, rheumatoid arthritis and systemic lupus erythematosus.

NEW YORK — Many children fear the Earth's environmental problems never will be solved. While they blame everyone for the planet's predicament, they are determined to take action themselves to tackle future problems, according to a national study.

Of some 1,000 fifth and sixth graders queried nationwide, more than half predicted the Earth will be more polluted by the year 2000. Almost as many children agreed they were "very frightened" that such problems as the ozone hole, air pollution and "too much garbage and no place to put it" never will go away.

Although they refuse to blame any one group for current problems, they insist "everybody" is responsible.

Sixty-nine percent of the children said they would buy products that do less harm to the environment if they were in charge of the family shopping.

HOME

Most youngsters who arrive are from dysfunctional families and have problems ranging from drugs to running away from home. Referred by Child Protective Services, churches and counselors, they are from within 150 miles of Stephenville. Their average stay is about 18 months.

The campus features a commissary, livestock pens, a playground, gym and swimming pool. The kids do their share of the work and receive points for good behavior as well as bad, Boone said. The younger ones attend the Stephenville school district and older teens receive stipends for college or trade school.

In addition to four social workers, Jay Benson and other cottage parents like John and Pauline Fair offer guidance in the homelike cottages, where they will supervise about 10 girls.

"I love kids. I believe the whole foundation of our society is kids," Pauline Fair said, explaining her reason for working at the home. After growing up with an alcoholic parent, she said, she relates to the youths' problems.

Boone, a former deputy with the Dallas County Sheriff's Department, also understands the importance of intervening in a troubled child's life. Before joining the Foster Home for Children, he was the executive director of the Abilene Boys Ranch and a campus director at Medina Children's Home in San Antonio, where he and his wife, Charmaine, were cottage parents to a dozen girls.

Although affecting stories are abundant, he has fond memories of one foster child in particular — a girl who was abused and neglected by an alcoholic mother. Now a young woman, she attends Tarleton State University in Stephenville and wants to become a veterinarian.

Placement in individual foster homes is ideal for some children, but he pointed out others are better off staying at the Foster Home for Children until they can go out on their own.

1992 PROPERTY TAX RATES IN BIG SPRING INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT

This notice concerns 1992 property tax rates for Big Spring Independent School District. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

LAST YEAR'S TAX RATE:

Last year's operating taxes	$ 2,633,855
+ Last year's debt taxes	$ 439,718
= Last year's total taxes	$ 3,073,573
/ Last year's tax base	$ 592,210,670
= Last year's total tax rate	$ .5190

THIS YEAR'S EFFECTIVE TAX RATE:

Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 3,073,573
/ This year's adjusted tax base	$ 594,058,638
= This year's effective tax rate	$ .5173
x 1.03 = Maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearings	$ .5329

THIS YEAR'S ROLLBACK TAX RATE:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 2,425,103
/ This year's adjusted tax base	$ 594,058,638
= This year's effective operating tax rate	$ 0.40823
x 1.08 = This year's maximum operating rate	$ 0.48822
+ This year's debt rate	$ 0.01584
= This year's rollback rate	$ 0.50406
+ Rate to recoup lost state funds	$ 0.05920
= A. Adjusted roll back rate	$ 0.56326
This year's rollback rate	$ 0.56326

SCHEDULE A: Unencumbered fund Balances

The following balances will probably be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
Local Maintenance	$ 3,063,194
Debt Service	$ 342,535

SCHEDULE B: 1992 Debt Service

This unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable.)

Description Of Debt	Principal or Contract Payment to be Paid	Interest to be Paid	Other Amounts to be Paid	Total Payment
General Obligations Bonds
1967 Series	$340,000.00	$ 6,800.00	$500.00	$347,300.00
Capitol Acquisition Bonds
1992	$ 75,00.00	$18,555.00	$ .00	$ 93,555.00
Total required for 1992 debt service				$ 440,855
Amount (if any) paid from funds listed Schedule A				$ .00
Excess collections last year				$ 3,590
Total to be paid from taxes in 1992				$ 89,965
Amount added in anticipation that the unit will collect only 95% of its taxes in 1992				$ 4,735
Total Debt Service Levy				$ 99,961

NOTICE OF COMPARABLE TAX RATES AND REVENUES

The legislature has enacted a statute on school funding to comply with a court mandate enforcing the state constitution. Under prior statutes (SB 1) the tax rate for last year provides $ 4,095 per student in state and local revenues. Under this statute (SB 351) that same rate now provides $ 4,388 per student in state and local revenues.

State law only requires a minimum tax rate of $ 0.82 for county education districts. State law does not require a school district to adopt additional taxes. Neither does state law require a school district to adopt a tax rate that maximizes the receipt of state funds.

The board of trustees of the Big Spring School District hereby gives notice that it is considering the adoption of a tax rate of 0.515 that will provide $ 2,816 per student in state and local revenues.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1972 and '73.)

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe I'm actually writing a "Dear Abby" letter, but a friend has just put me on the spot, and I don't know how to handle it.

Sarah is a 59-year-old widow who is marrying a 72-year-old widower she met on a cruise last winter. They are being married soon. She was just here and is as excited as a teen-ager. I think she's flipped her lid. She wants a bridal shower! Abby, Sarah has everything she needs, and she can afford to buy anything she wants, but she insists it's not the gifts, it's just the idea of having a shower. She said when she was married the first time, things were rough and she never had a shower, and now she'd like one. Sarah is such a dear and generous person I hate to let her down, but, Abby, how can I invite women to a bridal shower for a 59-year-old bride who has everything? -- ON THE SPOT IN PASSAIC gift shower. Ask everyone to bring a cute little inexpensive present for the 59-year-old bride of a 72-year-old groom. The possibilities are endless.

DEAR ON: Easy. Make it a gag

DEAR ABBY: I am a single girl living in New York City. I have my own car and I am dating a guy who doesn't have a car. It takes about an hour and 15 minutes from his house to mine using public transportation, but it's only 15 minutes by car. I find myself in the position of picking him up and taking him home whenever we go out.

Compounding the problem is the fact that I must use the toll bridge to get to and from his house, which adds up considerably for me.

I find this a very difficult adjustment, as I have been accustomed to having my dates pick me up and take me home. Should I continue this pickup and delivery service? He's not a native New Yorker and is afraid to take the subway late at night. -- DOOR-TO-DOOR SERVICE

DEAR DOOR: Thirty minutes in an automobile beats two and a half hours in a subway, no matter who does the driving. If he hasn't offered to pay for the toll, suggest it. If he can't or won't pay for it, you will have to decide whether dating him is worth the portal-to-portal service you're providing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GRATEFUL BEYOND WORDS": Most small-town clergymen are overworked and underpaid, so since you say you can "well afford it," offer him a gift of cash. If he wishes to donate it to the church, let it be his option. Your letter indicates that your clergyman went far above and beyond the call of duty on your behalf, so be as generous with him as he was with you. (And if he's "insulted," you can blame me.)

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Exciting business gains are featured as more people become aware of your services. A platonic relationship intensifies. Read correspondence carefully before answering.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A break with the past is indicated. Emphasize your hopes for making a partnership more rewarding. An older person could play a major role in your future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You have a good fix on trends and cycles. Meditation gives you a clearer view of what to do next. Long-distance contacts are your business lifeline. Be attentive to their needs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): New technology will boost your productivity at work. Your ability to get at the root of problems is a huge plus. A romantic relationship will deepen if you rectify a mistake.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your personal magnetism helps you land a big account today. Say "goodbye" to outdated methods and unrewarding relationships. Someone who does not understand your goals may think you ruthless. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get your work space better organized and you will become more efficient. Who you know is as important as what you know. Join a prestigious professional or social group. Seek a mentor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stick to familiar territory now and you will accomplish more. A logical answer may not satisfy someone ruled by emotion. Build up your companions instead of tearing them down.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your intuition is your best guide today. Focus on your immediate goals. A close friend or relative is glad to lend a helping hand. Do not let foolish pride hamper progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Let other people do the planning today. You enjoy what has been arranged with such care! Although romance is rewarding, you may not be ready to make a commitment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Seek seclusion if you must study or tackle complicated paperwork. You will begin to see an underlying pattern once you are able to concentrate. Postpone making a decision about a family member or friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Pay outstanding bills and send personal letters. Someone could make a dramatic exit from your life. You feel relief! A big burden has been lifted from your shoulders.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Put your original ideas into action now. Certain opportunities come only once. If a co-worker or friend challenges your beliefs, deal with the situation tactfully.
