Lightning strikes chemical plant, triggering explosions

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

ODESSA — Lightning struck a chemical plant early today, igniting a spectacular fire and triggering a series of explosions. Firefighters had no water to extinguish the blaze, a fire chief said.

"It's (burning) as bright as the sun," said Gayle Hill, news director at KTPX-TV. She lives less than a mile from the plant and was awakened by the lightning strike.

There were no immediate reports of injuries.

Residents within a two-mile radius of the Champion Chemical plant were evacuated and a stretch of nearby highway was closed, said Odessa Fire Chief James Wiggs.

Ed Decker, Odessa Fire Department Battalion chief, said the department had no water source to fight the fire, which was burning out of control.

Decker said he was concerned about the potential threat of toxic chemicals because weather conditions — low clouds and no wind — would not help blow away the smoke. Authorities also worried about more explosions.

Alice Cone, field investigator with the Texas Air Control Board, said the plant manufactures chemicals used to prevent rust on oil rigs.

Methanol and xylene were among the chemicals burning, said Cathy Briggs, spokeswoman for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Firefighters at the scene complained of burning eyes and skin, she said.

Dr. Michael Simmons of Odessa Medical Center said that people with previous respiratory ailments should seek medical treatment if they feel any discomfort.

The Red Cross set up an evacuation center. Authorities were going door-to-door in neighborhoods near the plant in southeast Odessa warning people to leave. The plant is about a mile from a residential area.

Lightning struck the plant just before 5 a.m., starting a fire that sent flames several hundred feet into the air and caused explosions, witnesses said.

Webworms hatching yet again

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Webworms in the area are back for another round as another major hatching increases the numbers of the destructive worms.

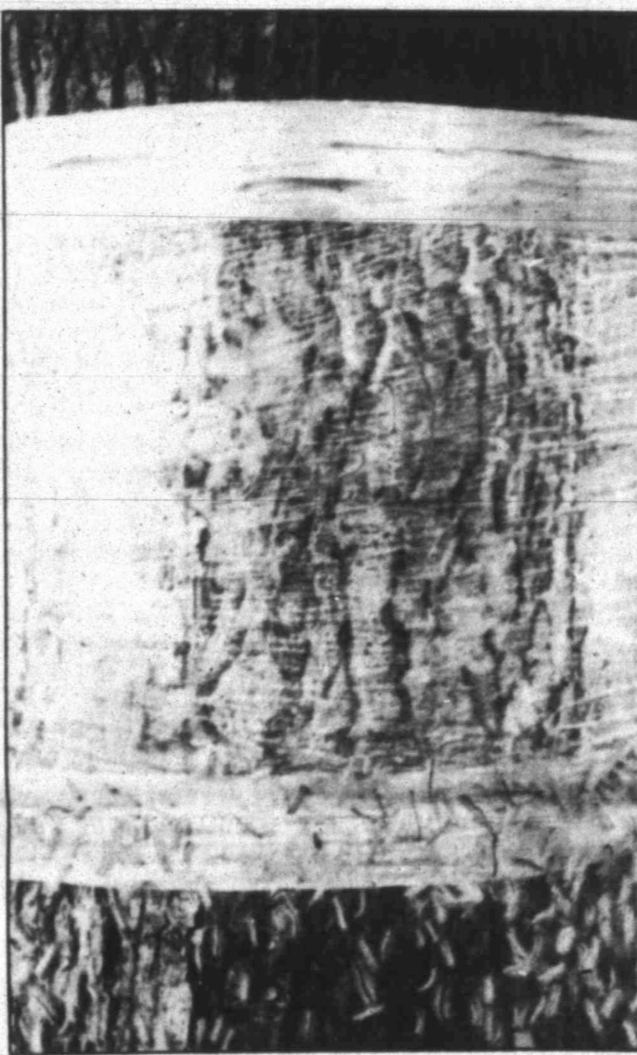

Although the worms are constantly hatching, the warm season has been dotted with major hatchings that cause a bloom of the characteristic web sacks in the area's trees, said Max Moore of Southwestern A-1 Pest Control.

The major hatches have been coming at roughly two month intervals. The first was in May, with another in late June and July, he said.

Calls to exterminate the pests began picking up around Aug. 13 and have been increasing, Moore said. "We are into a major infestation."

"This infestation doesn't appear to be quite as heavy as the last one in June and July," Moore said. Moore said he agreed with County Agent Don Richardson that the interbreeding seems to be taking a toll on the pests, he said.

The webworms are notoriously

Webworms at the base of a tree on Larry Street find the going difficult, with a slippery plastic wrap preventing them from reaching the branches. According to local exterminators, the latest infestation of the pests does not appear to be as heavy as in June and July.

Advisory committee reinstated at college

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

The SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf Advisory Committee was reactivated by the Howard College Board of Trustees Wednesday after a seven-year hiatus.

The committee, established in 1982, was dissolved because of budget cuts, as well as the implementation of the college's vocational advisory committee, said SWCID Associate Vice-president Ron Brasel.

The seven committee appointees are leaders in the deaf community from a geographic cross-section of the southwest. Committee members' representation will be from parents of deaf persons, professionals who work with the deaf, professionals who have demonstrated an interest in the welfare of deaf persons and deaf adults who have substantial leadership experience in the deaf community.

The first meeting is anticipated in October, said college president Cheri Sparks.

"The committee was reinstated because with the situation in the spring it was clear we needed input on the programs at SWCID," she said.

More than two thirds of the SWCID student body participated in demonstrations after conflicts erupted between students and college and SWCID administration late in the spring semester. The conflict began when the former college President Bob E. Riley announced layoff recommendations, including that of the SWCID campus recruiter, Bob Coltrane.

Sparks said steps have been taken to rectify the issues in conflict.

The revised tentative purpose of the committee as stated in the SWCID Advisory Committee Policies and Procedures is advising the associate vice-president on matters pertaining to policy and issues related to the general direction for program planning, development and implementation. It shall serve as a forum for an open exchange of ideas and shall serve as a sounding board for issues brought to its attention by the associate vice-president and dean of students of the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

Committee members may also place items on the meeting agendas. Avenues SWCID students and staff will have to input to the agenda.

Enrollment down slightly in Big Spring school district

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

The first day of school in the Big Spring Independent School District kicked off Wednesday with enrollment figures down for all schools except eighth grade due to students slow to register, according to administrative office figures and the superintendent.

Superintendent Bill McQueary said BSISD was not significantly affected by area districts like Forsan opening its transfer policy this year to accept students from the surrounding area.

He added although figures on paper for the first day of BSISD schools reveal a lower attendance than last year, a few more students are expected to join.

"We still have about 20 to 40 secondary students that have not registered," he said. "So when it's complete, we'll be about the same as last year."

Forsan Independent School District picked up about 40 new students from Big Spring in elementary through sixth grade because of their transfer policy, said J.F. Poynor, FISD superintendent.

The enrollment figure for BSISD totaled 1,060 for the first day down about 20 students from last year, according to the figures.

School officials throughout the district also predicted increases in enrollment in the coming weeks, and Runnels Junior High School (housing the 8th grade) achieved 20 students above last year.

"We've had two small classes the last two years and this one is larger," said Royce Cox, principal for Runnels. "We will pick up another eight to 10 between now and Labor Day."

The total first day figure for the district was 4,464 down 40 students; BSIS, 1,060 down 24 students; elementary, 2,356 down 26 students; Goliad, 668 down three students and Runnels, 320 up 19 students.

Bee swarm stings man 150 times

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

CORPUS CHRISTI — Authorities say they have not determined if the swarm of approximately 25,000 honeybees that swooped down and stung a man about 150 times were Africanized bees or regular honeybees.

Witnesses said Juan J. Flores was mowing his lawn Wednesday morning when the bees descended on him after they were apparently aggravated by the noise and vibrations from the mower.

Witnesses said the bees flew from the eaves of his house and attacked him.

One witness said it appeared to be raining bees.

"He was yelling and screaming and he was trying to get them away by squirting himself with a hose. You could just tell he was in so much pain," said Pete Cantu, a neighbor who was driving by when he saw Flores struggling.

Cantu said he stopped his car and told Flores to get in the car.

"But he said he was too weak. So I pulled him into my car and drove across the street," Cantu said. "The bees got in the car and they followed us."

"He was just covered everywhere with swelled spots with the stingers still in them, like the size of a nickel."

Ofilia Cortez said she called an ambulance and then watched in horror as her next-door neighbor tried to fight off the bees.

"He just kept screaming, 'I can't see! I can't see!'" she said.

Flores, 37, who was being treated at Humana Hospital early today, sprayed water on the bees with a hose. Health department officials said that while soap and water repels bees, the straight water probably just aggravated them more.

Though the bees were extremely aggressive, it was not known Wednesday if they were Africanized honeybees, which have been responsible for 83 deaths in Mexico since 1986 and have been colonizing in South Texas.

Police, fire and health department officials came to Flores home in response to calls for help.

While workers were installing poisonous pest strips under the eaves to keep the bees from returning, the bees returned and began attacking everyone in sight.

Several people were stung repeatedly as they ran toward their cars and a nearby strip mall.

"People were running and screaming and slapping," Cantu said. "Just imagine some kind of horror movie, that's what happened."

Oscar Ortiz of the health department said the bees had apparently been at the home for at least several months.

"It looks like they could have been in there for years," fireman R. J. Romero said. "They just picked today to react."

"Lawn mowing appears to be a common denominator in many of the stinging incidents in the (Rio Grande) Valley and the one that happened here," said Harvey Buehring, Nueces County Agricultural Extension Agent.

Buehring said about 100 bees from Wednesday's incident probably will be sent to the honeybee identification lab at Texas A&M University in College Station.

Radiation monitoring to continue at Pantex

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AMARILLO — Radiation monitoring at a high-explosives burning ground and another site at the Pantex Plant will be upgraded because of an incident in which scrap weapons parts were contaminated with low levels of radioactive material earlier this year, officials say.

Energy Department spokesman Tom Walton said Wednesday that an investigation into the incident is ongoing because investigators have not determined the cause of the contamination.

Officials said the contamination was caused by depleted uranium, a radioactive material used in nuclear weapons and some military projectiles.

"The investigation is continuing to determine why it happened and what can be done to keep it from happening again, even though there was no major problem resulting from this as far as personnel or the environment," Walton said.

An Energy Department report obtained by the Amarillo Globe-News said no workers were contaminated during the incident, which occurred April 23 at Pantex, the Carson County plant where the nation's nuclear warheads are assembled and disassembled.

The areas involved have been decontaminated and radioactive waste has been shipped to Nevada for burial, Walton said.

According to a report issued last month, the contamination was found when radiation safety personnel monitored scrap aluminum weapons parts that were being sheared during a "declassification" procedure. Such procedures are used to change classified components into unclassified parts.

Operations were stopped and access to the area was controlled.

Making sure Longley really did die in 1878

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

GIDDINGS — Debate over whether a notorious Texas gunman escaped the hangman in 1878 may be settled next week.

A forensic anthropologist from the Smithsonian Institution will lead a scientific team in an exhumation of the alleged grave of William Preston Longley, officials said Wednesday.

Longley, who killed 32 people in his life, was allegedly hanged for murder 113 years ago in Giddings.

But rumors soon spread that the hanging was faked, and that Longley escaped, changed his name and settled in Iberville Parish, La. Some say he then married, raised 10 children and died a wealthy and respected man in 1923.

Dr. Douglas Owsley of the Smithsonian Museum of Natural History, research assistants from the University of Texas-Austin, and the Texas Historical Commission will exhume the supposed grave of Longley next week.

The grave is located in the town cemetery of Giddings, which is located about 50 miles east of Austin. Giddings is the county seat of Lee County and has a population of about 5,000 people.

"He (Owsley) is confident he will be able to figure out the mystery," said Pamela Baker, a spokeswoman for the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

She said that Owsley undertook the case at the request of the Longley's descendants.

Once the grave is opened, the scientists will try to date and identify the remains to determine if the person buried there could be Longley, she said.

Longley was born in 1851 in Austin County, and killed his first man when he was 16, according to "The Handbook of Texas."

He killed several more men before he was hanged for stealing cattle, but escaped death because of a faulty execution, according to the reference book.

Through his life he was arrested several times for murder but either escaped prison or bought his freedom.

Barbara boosts George

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — The Bush-Quayle ticket was nominated for another trip to the White House, and Texas delegates offered some words of wisdom.

Barbara Bush bolstered her husband, while Texas barbecuers battled to a draw.

And Houston businesses thanked the GOP for spending freely as the Republicans' biggest party draws to a close.

President Bush and Dan Quayle were to take the stage tonight for prime time acceptance speeches. But Bush couldn't wait to make an appearance at the convention podium Wednesday night.

He profiled with family, earlier vowing to go to "every corner of this nation" to beat Bill Clinton and "clear out the deadwood in Congress."

After putting Bush over the top in the uncontested roll call, Texas delegates told the president, who calls Houston his home, to think positive.

"George Bush will prevail," said

William Baker of Knox City. "I know it looks desperate now, but we'll make it. It's a matter of articulating our accomplishments to the public, and we started that this week."

Barbara Bush's moment under the Astrodome was all she had promised all week to all who would listen: not much. Just chatter about George and about raising kids, the fun of it and the hurt of it.

She talked about den mothering, carpooling, Little League-ing. And she remembered the daughter lost to leukemia, the son who almost died, the child with a learning disability.

"No family is without pain and suffering," she said.

Earlier in the day, it was Texas vs. Tarheel, beef vs. pork, in the meatiest debate of the GOP convention.

Which state has the best barbecue?

The good-natured result: a draw. Texas GOP Chairman Fred Meyer accepted the results, reluctantly. "We're the hosts for this convention. We've got to be hospitable," he laughed.

Leaders had predicted the convention would add $114.8 million to Houston cash registers, and thousands have worked hard to make those predictions come true.

"It's been fabulous, absolutely fabulous!" says Stan Skadal, director of sales and marketing at the downtown Hyatt Regency, headquarters for the Republican Party and the New York delegation. "And above and beyond the cash, they're very friendly and courteous."

And the spending's not over yet: Several state delegations have shopping trips planned today at the Galleria, Houston's shopping Mecca.

After almost a week of near-obscure, the demonstration site outside the Astrodome welcomed a crowd as more than 4,500 abortion rights supporters staged their own family values rally.

The rally Wednesday night capped an active day of protests scattered around Houston, including the disruption of President Bush's only public appearance.

term, sending him and Quayle on the comeback trail with a toast to family values and a prime-time convention boost from the president's no. 1 fan — his wife.

Iraq's neighbors wary of allied moves

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Many of Iraq's neighbors are wary of allied plans to create a "safe haven" for Shiite Muslims in the south, in effect partitioning the country into three sections.

Even some of Saddam Hussein's most bitter enemies, such as Syria, fear that the stage is being set for another military attack on Iraq, which they believe could add to instability in the region.

Although some countries tend to discount the possibility that Iraq could be permanently divided and support the plan if it might lead to Saddam's downfall, others are far more cautious.

"We are against tearing Iraq or any other Arab country apart because that would not be in the interest of any side in this region or outside," said Jordan's information minister, Mahmoud Sharif.

"Creating a confrontation in southern Iraq aims at partitioning the country, and in the long run this is not in the interest of regional security, especially that of the (Persian) Gulf," Sharif said.

The plan would prohibit Iraqi aircraft from flying south of the 32nd parallel, putting the southern third of the country under an allied air umbrella.

That would prevent Saddam's air force from attacking Shiites who have conducted an insurgency from the southern marshes since a full-scale rebellion failed in March 1991.

The allies set up a "safe haven" north of the 36th parallel for the Kurds last year after Saddam's army put down a Kurdish rebellion in the wake of the Gulf war.

Two such zones would effectively leave Saddam to rule only Baghdad and the central provinces, about half the country.

Shiite and Kurdish leaders have insisted they do not want to split up the country and are only out to destroy Saddam's Sunni Muslim-dominated government in Baghdad.

Nevertheless, the Kurds have already set up a provisional regional government in their territory and have appealed to the United Nations to exempt it from the economic embargo imposed on the rest of Iraq.

In the past, Western powers and Saudi Arabia showed no desire to destroy the territorial integrity of Iraq.

Turkey, a key ally in the war against Iraq, faces a Kurdish separatist insurgency of its own that has used the Kurdish region in northern Iraq as a refuge. And Saudi Arabia was fearful of the widening influence of Iranian fundamentalists, which has supported the Shiites in Iraq's south.

Those fears were believed to be a key reason why the allies allowed Saddam's army to crush the twin Kurdish and Shiite rebellions after the war.

But in the past 18 months, the apprehension may have eased.

Earlier this year, the Saudis hosted Mohammed Bakr al-Hakim, the premier Iraqi Shiite opposition leader, in a conference of opposition groups.

Thousands flee California wildfire

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANDREAS, Calif. — Fourteen thousand people were ordered evacuated from their homes in California's Gold Rush country as a blaze charged across 15,000 acres of rugged terrain pocked with treacherous mine shafts.

Some 4,000 firefighters early today battled the out-of-control blaze in the Sierra Nevada foothills about 50 miles southeast of Sacramento, but officials said the fire could double in size before it is contained.

The fire destroyed 53 structures, including at least 26 single-family homes, as it consumed brush and forest left dry by six years of drought, said Kathy Self, a state Forestry Department volunteer. Damage was put at $2 million.

Only minor injuries among the firefighters were reported.

Firefighters were hampered by rough terrain, temperatures over 100 degrees, low humidity, shifting winds and abandoned gold mines. But temperatures were expected to drop into the 80s by Friday.

"This is the Gold Country. It's rugged and firefighters have to step over mine shafts," said Katherine Campbell, a Forestry Department spokeswoman.

The evacuation orders affected 14,000 people — one-third of Calaveras County, said Diane McNown, spokeswoman for the county Office of Emergency Services. Seven-thousand were ordered to leave Tuesday and another 7,000 on Wednesday, she said.

"What we're trying to accomplish by this precautionary, mandatory evacuation is to get people out so fire equipment can get in. We're trying to avoid gridlock," said Sandy Cuneo, another spokeswoman for the county agency.

Residents scooped up treasured belongings and got out.

"We just took pictures off the wall, grabbed the photo frames and baby books and set it all in the middle of the bed," said Lynne Eising, 45. "Then we grabbed the four corners of the quilt and made a big sack out of it and left."

One of those evacuated, Bear Hulmes, said he lost his home in Fricot City to a backfire set by firefighters. The town was overrun by flames Monday.

"It looked like it was bombed, like the pictures of Beirut," said Hulmes, who was evacuated to a shelter in Angels Camp.

The City of Coahoma is planning to file an application with the Texas Department of Housing & Community Affairs (TDH&CA) for a Texas Community Development Program (TCDP) grant under the Community Development Fund. This application will be submitted to TDH&CA on or before September 24, 1992.

A public hearing concerning the proposed grant application will be held at 7:00 o'clock P.M. on September 8, 1992, at The Coahoma Community Center, 306 N. Avenue, Coahoma, Texas. The purpose of this public hearing will be to review the City of Coahoma's 1992 request for TCDP funds including the amount of funds to be requested and the scope and location of proposed project activities. No displacement of residents is expected as a result of the proposed 1992 TCDP project.

All citizens are encouraged to attend this public hearing and present their views on this proposed project. School's open; Time for care School's under way once again and it's time to remember to be careful as we travel the streets around the various campuses.

In the excitement of returning to the classroom — and the trepidation of that experience for first-graders — youngsters forget to look both ways before crossing the street.

And it is up to those of us not overwhelmed by the excitement of the first days of school to watch out for the future of our community.

As you drive past a school, pay attention to the yellow flashing lights and the school zone signs. The few seconds you save by speeding through a school zone could never be as valuable as the life you might take in your haste.

Parents and teachers alike warn youngsters to be careful, but it's hard to remember to be cautious when you've just seen old friends and made new ones.

"Be careful" is a caution we offer to everyone . . . to parents, to teachers, to students and to drivers in the vicinity of our schoolyards.

Being careful is a much easier thing to do than having to look into the eyes of a youngster after he or she has been stuck by a vehicle.

Be careful.
Be cautious.
Observe the school zones.
And have a good school year.

All too often, hate begins at home

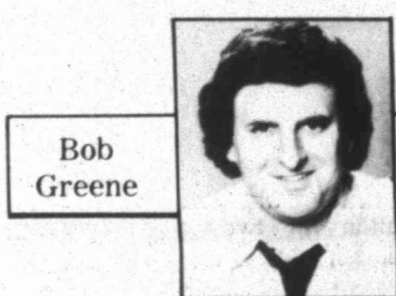

The hatred across the ocean makes headlines. The hatred here at home is accepted as a matter of course.

You wonder how the world can possibly have come to its current state of cruelty. You wonder how the faces of despair can be regarded with such coldness by the faces of temporary superiority. You watch the television pictures from the detention camps in the country that used to be called Yugoslavia. You wonder where the hatred begins.

And then you look around you

On an evening not many weeks ago, a husband and wife went to a Cubs baseball game at Chicago's Wrigley Field. Both are 31; the wife was four months pregnant. "This was my wife's first Cubs game," the husband said. "I'm from here in Chicago, and she's from Wisconsin, and periodically I show her points of interest in the city. We had a great time at the game. The food was good, the crowd was fun, and the Cubs won. But that's where our good times ended."

He said he had parked his car in a Brown's Chicken parking lot on Addison Street, about half a block from the ballpark. "It cost $12 to park," he said, "but I thought it would be worth it, so my wife would not have so far to walk." "When they got to the car after the game, they found they were blocked in by cars surrounding theirs.

"There was a group of 10 or 12 young men near our car," the husband said. "This was not a racial situation. We're white and they were white. They were drinking heavily in the parking lot. "We got into our car and waited for the owners of the cars behind us to show up so we could leave. As we waited, the men who were hanging around urinated openly, in full view of everyone in the lot. They kept drinking and were very profane."

"Fifteen minutes passed, 20 minutes passed, and still no one came to the car blocking our car. The group of young men got bolder and louder as they moved closer to our car. At this point one of them leaned on the trunk of our car. I asked him to please not lean on the car."

"He replied, 'Do you think you're going somewhere?' He then came up to the driver's side of the car and said, 'For five bucks we'll pick up and move the car that's blocking you in.' He laughed. I told him I would rather wait."

The husband knew that the young men were looking for any excuse to start a fight. The husband and wife tried to ignore them, but the car remained blocked in.

"Twenty-five or 30 minutes went by," he said. "We were still stuck. Then one of the men yelled, 'I'll bet you're from the North Side, aren't you? A North Side expletive Jew.' I ignored him, but he continued. He said, 'You cheap expletive Jew, I bet you wouldn't even pay us a dollar to move that expletive car.'"

The husband was trying to think of a way to get his wife out of there and get her home on the elevated train or on the bus. The same young man then rapped on the window of the car.

"He said to my wife, 'Honey, your boyfriend is an expletive cheap Jew.' My wife was almost in tears at this point." The young men seemed to be taking pleasure in the situation, and in the fact there was no one present to stop them.

Two salient points: The husband is not Jewish. He is Catholic. "I have no idea why they were saying what they were saying," he said. "But I could not have felt any more sickened had I, indeed, been a Jew."

And although he presumably appeared to be a pushover to the young men in the parking lot, he in fact is a criminal investigator with a federal agency, and a former military policeman with the Marines. As a part of his job he customarily carries a firearm; luckily for the men in the parking lot, he had not taken it to the ball game.

"Finally, after about 40 minutes, a guy strolled out of a bar and moved his car, which was blocking our car," the husband said. "We left to the sounds of jeers and insults from the men in the parking lot. At home, my wife became ill over this incident."

There's no news in this; it was just an unpleasant incident in the city. Except . . .

"Where does that kind of hatred come from?" the husband said. "Those men didn't look out of the ordinary. They had that tank-top look, like guys who hang out in health clubs and drink all day. They saw what they thought was weakness and went after it. It's the kind of moment that happens all the time, and then everyone forgets about it. But that kind of instant hatred . . . where does it come from? Why does it show itself so easily? You look at that, and you look around the world, and you can be excused for thinking that all of us are in a lot of trouble."

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Aug. 20, the 233rd day of 1992. There are 133 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On Aug. 20, 1940, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill paid tribute to the Royal Air Force, saying, "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

On this date: In 1833, Benjamin Harrison, the 23rd president of the United States, was born in North Bend, Ohio.

In 1866, President Andrew Johnson formally declared the Civil War over, even though fighting had stopped months earlier.

In 1914, German forces occupied Brussels, Belgium, during World War I.

In 1918, Britain opened its offensive on the Western front during World War I.

In 1920, pioneering American radio station 8MK in Detroit (later WWJ) began daily broadcasting.

In 1948, the United States ordered the expulsion of the Soviet Consul General in New York, Jacob Lomakin, accusing him of attempting to force the return of two consular employees to the Soviet Union against their will.

In 1953, the Soviet Union publicly acknowledged it had tested a hydrogen bomb.

In 1955, hundreds of people were killed in anti-French rioting in Morocco and Algeria.

In 1964, President Lyndon B. Johnson signed a nearly $1 billion anti-poverty measure.

In 1968, the Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact nations began invading Czechoslovakia to crush the "Prague Spring" liberalization drive of Alexander Dubcek's regime.

In 1977, the United States launched Voyager 2, an unmanned spacecraft carrying a 12-inch copper phonograph record containing greetings in dozens of languages, samples of music and sounds of nature.

In 1986, postal employee Patrick Henry Sherrill went on a rampage at a post office in Edmond, Okla., shooting 14 fellow workers to death before killing himself.

Ten years ago: Dr. Hector Zevallos, a gynecologist, and his wife, Rosalie Jean, were freed unharmed eight days after they were abducted outside Edwardsville, Ill., by an anti-abortion group calling itself the "Army of God."

Five years ago: A federal appeals court in Washington rejected Lt. Col. Oliver North's argument that the independent counsel investigating the Iran-Contra affair was operating under an invalid Justice Department regulation.

One year ago: More than 100,000 people rallied outside the Russian Parliament building as protests against the Soviet coup increased. President Bush said he would never deal with the coup leaders.

Today's Birthdays: Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, is 59. Singer-musician Isaac Hayes is 50. CBS newscaster Connie Chung is 46.

Thought for Today: "I am more and more convinced that man is a dangerous creature; and that power, whether vested in many or a few, is ever grasping, and like the grave, cries 'Give, give!'" — Abigail Adams, American writer (1744-1818).

President Bush in the beholder's eye

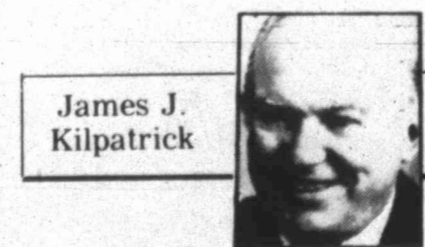

If George Bush winds up by winning this election, he may want to thank the press for his victory.

Writers for the major media are doing their best to defeat the president. They have gone ga-ga over Bill Clinton. In the process they are making Bush the underdog, and that ain't bad. An underdog tends to attract a sympathy vote, and Bush will need every vote he can get.

Such is the prestige of The New York Times that much of the press still takes its lead from its columns. Down in the journalistic foothills, the word of the Times is the Word of God. The awe is generally deserved, for the Times hires some fine writers and it gives them free rein.

The trouble is, from a Republican point of view, that Times writers take a Democratic point of view. If their bias were kept in quarantine on the opposite editorial page, all right, but the contagion spreads.

Thus we learn on Page One that after a long ascendancy, the GOP "seems" to falter. The party's glory days "might" be numbered. The string "may" be running out. The brakes of history "seem" to be working against Mr. Bush and his party. We read in the Times that the convention presents a

James J. Kilpatrick

"jittery" scene. Reporter Robin Toner sees an "anxious" convention. Dissension simmers. Toner speaks of Bush's "lagging campaign." Veteran correspondent Johnny Apple sees the same thing. He too sees a "lagging campaign."

My brother Apple finds Bush haunted by the specter of a one-term presidency. Bush is a wounded warrior, "seemingly at the mercy of events." The situation is grim. The party has begun to speak the language of doubt. Its officeholders speak the language of fear. Meanwhile, self-confidence is flowing back into the veins of the Democratic opposition.

The Times treats us to what is known in the trade as "trust me" journalism, in which reporters attribute quotations to unidentified sources. Thus, "one of the party's senior strategists" says that the party has no campaign plan. Reporter Alessandra Stanley lets us know that Mrs. Quayle "recently confided to one friend" her thoughts about the Clintons' religion. She quotes "another friend" who would speak only "on condition of anonymity." Some friends.

Maureen Dowd and Frank Rich, providing the lite touch, speak of Quayle as "the incredible shrinking vice president." Elizabeth Kolbert tells us how things are on TV. Republicans don't "seem" to have confidence. Most Republican officials look "cranky and sullen." Sam Skinner is "grim-faced." The exception is the president's son George W. Bush, who keeps up an unflinching grin "despite an occasional difficulty coming up with a convincing answer." The headline reads, "GOP Leaders on TV Can't Hide Nervousness."

For his part, reporter Michael Kelly discusses the palpable awkwardness and strain between black and white Republicans. He has learned this from "a number of black delegates and alternates," none of whom have names.

My brothers and sisters of the press are up to the old expectation game. For a month the whole country has been told that Bush's Thursday night speech will be a "make or break" oration. For a month we have heard speculation on the bounce that Bush will get from the Houston convention. Given this buildup, Bush could not satisfy his salivating critics if he made the greatest speech since Pericles bade farewell to his troops. Unidentified observers will see the speech as a serious disappointment. If Saturday's polls show a bounce of less than 15 points, it will be a grave disappointment. The campaign lags.

It is truly said that beauty lies in the eye of the beholder. The beholder who wants to see anxiety in Houston will see anxiety. No doubt "most Republican officials" really did look "cranky and sullen" to Ms. Kolbert and her friends. They may not have looked cranky and sullen to me or my friends. They may have looked combative and determined to us.

These things get circular. The more the press reports that the Bush campaign is in disarray, the more disarray will be seen. Prophecies get to be self-fulfilling. Reporters are not deliberately slanting their stories. They believe they are honestly reporting what they see and sense. Equally honest reporters may not see or sense the same things at all. But these other reporters, alas, are not reporters who report for The New York Times.

While the A's were falling to the lowly New York Yankees for the second straight night, Minnesota lost to the Cleveland Indians 5-1 Wednesday.

That gave the defending World Series champions four consecutive losses and 15 in 22 games. Not the stuff comebacks are made on.

The Twins, who trail Oakland by five games, got another subpar performance from Bill Krueger (10-4). He gave up five runs — four earned — and seven hits in six innings and dropped to 1-2 with a 6.42 ERA in seven starts since the All-Star break.

Charles Nagy scattered eight hits for his ninth complete game. Nagy (13-8) struck out six and walked none as he improved his ERA to 2.52.

Junior Ortiz singled in the third and scored on a triple by Kenny Lofton to put Cleveland ahead. Brook Jacoby singled in the fifth, took third on Mark Lewis' single

It was family night again for visiting Seattle. The team that made the Griffey's the first father-son combo in the same lineup made Bret Boone part of the first three-generation family to play in the major leagues, joining grandfather Ray (1948-60) and father Bob (1972-90).

Edgar Martinez hit his first career grand slam as Seattle won its fourth straight. Mark Grant (2-3) won despite allowing six runs in 5 2-3 innings, and Russ Swan got six outs for his ninth save. Arthur Rhodes (4-3) was the loser as Baltimore dropped its fourth straight.

Angels 3, Red Sox 2

Gary DiSarcina's two-run bloop single with two outs in the ninth at Fenway Park saved Jim Abbott from another hard-luck loss.

Abbott (5-12) was one out away from losing when DiSarcina blooped a 3-2 pitch from Jeff Rardon (2-2) into center field, scoring Ken Oberkfell, who singled, and Lee Stevens, who doubled.

Kevin Appier (14-5) pitched two-hit ball for seven innings as Kansas City sent visiting Detroit to its third loss in 12 games.

Braves continue to control West

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ready for "Braves-Pirates II: The Sequel?" The two combatants in last year's NL championship series appear to be.

Atlanta and Pittsburgh both are pulling away in their respective divisions. The Braves moved a season-high 6 1/2 games in front of second-place Cincinnati in the West by beating Montreal 4-2 on Wednesday night after the Reds lost 9-3 in Philadelphia.

The Expos' loss, combined with Pittsburgh's 3-2 win over San Diego, left the Pirates leading the East by four games over Montreal.

Not that the leaders are ready to claim victory. "We don't take anything for granted," said Atlanta's Jeff Blauser, whose two-run homer in the third at Olympic Stadium put the Braves ahead to stay. "We don't care who is ahead of us or behind us. We know Cincinnati and San Diego are good clubs."

That may be, but they don't have Tom Glavine. The Atlanta ace overcame his career-long struggles with the Expos — he's 3-10 lifetime — to win a franchise-record 13th straight decision.

"The fact I haven't pitched well against Montreal isn't something I think a lot about," said Glavine (19-3). "When I get out there on the mound, I don't say, 'I haven't done well against these guys so I'll have to do something different.'"

Pirates 3, Padres 2

While the Braves were getting a big effort from their ace, the Pirates kept rolling with help from some lesser-known sources.

Bob Walk (6-4) allowed one run and six hits in seven innings. Danny Cox got the last five outs for his first save in 185 big-league appearances.

Don Slaught's fifth-inning RBI double off Jim Deshaies (3-3) broke a 1-1 tie and Gary Redus made it 3-1 with a two-out RBI single.

Phillies 9, Reds 3

Rookie Ben Rivera won his third straight start, and Dave Hollins, Mariano Duncan and Darren Daulton hit two-run homers in Philadelphia.

Rivera (3-2) allowed two runs and four hits in seven innings, struck out five and walked five. Mike Hartley gave up a run in the eighth and Mitch Williams finished.

Chris Hammond (6-8) lost for the sixth time in eight decisions, giving up four runs and five hits in three-plus innings.

Dodgers 2, Mets 1

Los Angeles finally beat Dwight Gooden at Dodger Stadium as Orel Hershiser pitched a six-hitter over eight innings to win their third career confrontation.

Hershiser (9-10) was three outs away from his first shutout in 46 starts since undergoing reconstructive shoulder surgery in April 1990 before Bobby Bonilla — making his return from a broken rib — hit the first pitch of the ninth inning for his 13th homer. After a walk, Jim Gott relieved and got the last three outs for his sixth save.

The Dodgers ended an 11-game losing streak to Gooden (6-11) and beat him for the first time in six career decisions at Dodger Stadium. Gooden allowed five hits in six innings, including a two-out homer in the fourth by rookie Henry Rodriguez and a run-scoring infield hit in the fifth by Jose Offerman.

Cardinals 12, Astros 1

Ray Lankford led a 17-hit attack with four hits and four RBIs to back Rheal Cormier's four-hitter as St. Louis routed Houston.

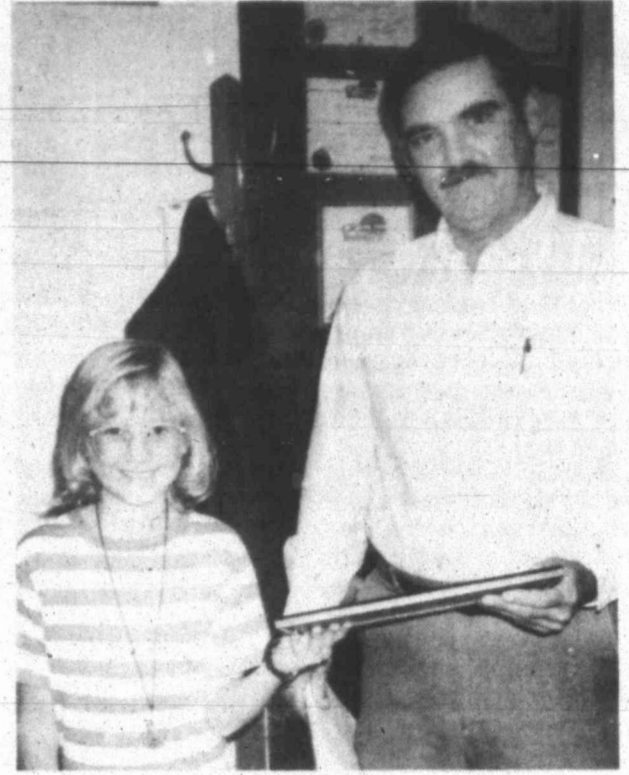

Cormier (4-10) won for the first time in five starts, striking out three and walking four for his first complete game since Sept. 20, 1991.

Giants 9, Cubs 1

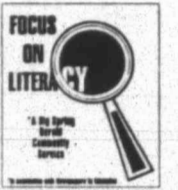

Bill Swift won for the first time in five starts since July 22, and Mark Leonard broke a third-inning tie with a two-run homer as San Francisco won at home.

Swift (9-3) allowed one run and seven hits in seven innings, struck out three and walked one. He lowered his ERA to 2.16, second in the NL behind Bob Tewksbury of St. Louis.

Howard College approves budget

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

Preparing for the beginning of the fall semester, Howard College Board of Trustees tied loose ends by adopting the 1992-93 budget, awarding bids and hiring employees at its meeting Wednesday.

A public hearing on the budget took place before it was unanimously adopted by the board. The $10.8 million budget is $300,000 less than last year's budget. The SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf's budget is not affected by the tax revenue and is supported by state money. It did not receive a reduction in budgeting.

The .1945 cents ad valorem tax rate adopted is less than last year's rate. The tax is for maintenance and operation of the college.

The decrease in the tax was attributed to final payment on the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum and less maintenance and operational costs.

An increase in two students fees was adopted by the board. Bowling fees will be raised from $20 to $25. Nursing and vocational respiratory care students will see an additional $15 fee this year going to clinical costs. The fee is to establish a self-funded program to cover the costs of tests needed when a student is pricked by a needle, said Andy Hicks, vice president of instruction.

Other business at the meeting was acceptance of resignations and appointment of employment.

After an executive session, the board announced Linda Conway's appointment to the position of assistant to the president.

Conway has been employed by the college since 1991. She began at the college as a journalism and speech instructor. Other positions she has had include director of community relations and dean of admissions/community relations.

She is a Big Spring native and attended HC.

Poulson, San Angelo campus tech-prep program coordinator; Beverly Howard, Federal Correctional Institute business instructor; Tanja Kesterson, SWCID recreation director; Pat Bodine, SWCID interpreter; and Dale Kesterson, Developmental Studies Instructor.

The board also approved five bids for long distance service, ex-

Ex-officio members are Sparks, SWCID Associate Vice-president Ron Brasel, SWCID Dean of Students Bob Johnson and SWCID Administrative Secretary Sophia Crawford.

Robertson and Dobson are former SWCID staff members.

Early this year, White visited the SWCID campus with the governor's office team to collect information about the conflict. He submitted a report to the office about his impressions of the situation. The report has not been made available to the media by the governor's office.

White said Wednesday in a telephone interview from Austin that, "I would like to see real communication taking place between SWCID and Howard College. Howard should really listen to the concerns and suggestions of the SWCID staff and students."

"There should be a real attempt to dissolve the stepchild mentality about SWCID which seemed to exist at Howard College," he said.

Program brings parents into schools

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

"There is a communication problem between parents and teachers. Parents don't think teachers want them in the classroom and teachers think parents are too busy to take time for their kids."

"Parents don't feel the teachers are letting them know about problems their child is having," said Nelda Reagan, a parent with school-aged children and co-founder of the local Parent-Volunteer program.

"Educating our children is such a major job that (parents) need to get in there and help the teachers, so she's not having to be a babysitter or disciplinarian," said Vicky Stanley, a full-time mother with a son at Bauer Elementary School.

In order to increase communication and encourage parent involvement in the education process, a local school program began its second year of bringing parents into the education circle.

The Parental Involvement Program is federally funded through Chapter 1.

Assistant Superintendent Murray Murphy said parents, teachers and students must all contribute to the education process.

"One of the problems is getting parents to come to school and get involved," he said. "(The program) worked great last year. . . parents became involved and came up to the schools more."

Murphy said at-risk students are more likely to lack parent involvement — a key to successful education.

"Kids are benefitting because we have a person reaching out into the homes and encouraging parents to become involved," he said.

Rudy Gutierrez, program coordinator, said the teacher possesses the tools for teaching but parents must provide the brain fuel for learning.

"Home has a lot of influence as how a child will perform in school," he said. "The parent must come in with factors like nutrition, study habits and organization. If the parent is active in the education process then they will know the progress of their child."

"If the parents do their part, then the teacher can spend more time on the mechanics of teaching," he said.

Through the course of a school year, the coordinator collaborates with educators, conducts workshops and meets with parents on a regular basis. The workshops focus on decreasing misconceptions and building self-esteem among parents.

Big Spring parents are getting increasingly involved with their children's education — and seeing results, educators said.

Murphy said parents in the program are more likely to be of lower socio-economic status.

The coordinator puts emphasis on meeting parents' needs, including hands-on activities like sharing in a child's work on a computer.

Those hands-on activities encouraged one parent to try and become involved again this year.

Debbie Rios said she works long hours and finds it difficult to set aside enough time for her two elementary school-aged daughters, but the program made her believe time was important.

"I enjoyed (the program) and realized just how much (my children) learn at school," she said. "The oldest is a slow learner, so I thought by being there, I could help."

New video program says 'Buy recycled'

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Texas government has designed a new teaching tool to help kids learn about recycling.

"Don't Let a Good Thing Go to Waste . . . Buy Recycled," is a series of videotapes geared toward older elementary students. It explains why it's important to buy recycled products.

The series and other recycling promotions are being offered free to teachers throughout the state by the General Land Office.

"Texans have enthusiastically contributed to the recycling process on the front end by sorting and saving recyclables from their garbage," says a news release from Land Commissioner Garry Mauro. "But there has been considerably less interest in what happens to that material once consumers drop it off at the curb or recycling center."

Mauro said the situation has become a backlog — there isn't enough demand for recycled material.

So, by going through students, it is hoped that interest will be generated in buying recycled products, enhancing the demand and price and opening up opportunities for recycling.

Each videotape is 15 minutes and there are three in the series. Teachers will also receive a week's worth of ideas for classroom and homework activities related to the "buy recycled" message. Teachers can contact the regional educational service center or the Texas General Land Office, 512-463-5339.

Young student off to college

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

MARSHALL, Texas — A 15-year-old, home-schooled student will skip the 11th and 12th grades and enroll at East Texas Baptist University this fall after earning a full tuition scholarship.

Joshua DeBeer, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Bruce DeBeer, will be able to attend ETBU for free as long as he maintains a 3.5 (B-plus) average on his grades. The full scholarship was awarded on the basis of a recent ACT college entrance exam score, on which DeBeer made a high composite score of 30.

According to ETBU Admissions Director Mike Davis, the Marshall liberal arts school doesn't offer many full tuition scholarships, and even fewer to someone DeBeer's age.

Joshua's mother, Rinda DeBeer, has been teaching her son and her daughter Jennifer at home for the last three years. Prior to that, she sent her children to two private schools.

The young scholar said he's confident about being able to handle the 15 credit hours he'll likely be taking, starting Monday.

"It's just getting used to listening and writing notes — that's basically the only difference," said DeBeer. "I'll still be reading stuff and learning."

How it started

Baseball cards were first printed more than 100 years ago, in the late 1880s. They were packaged with tobacco and sold to adults.

The cards began to be sold with gum in the 1920s.

Getting started

There are many ways to collect baseball cards.

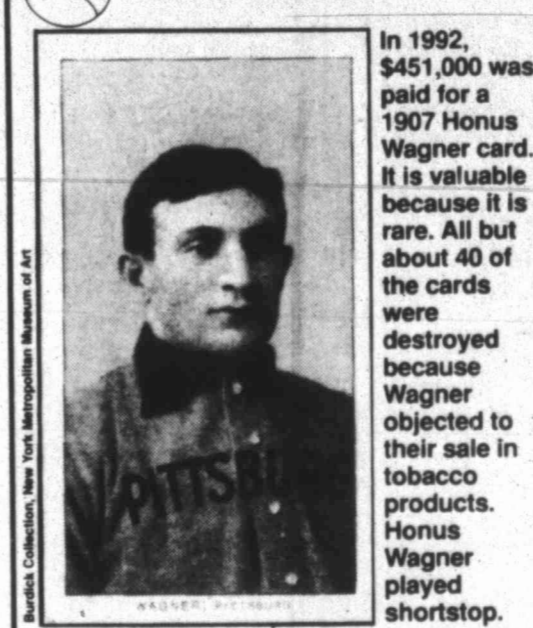

Beginners usually start with new cards.

Today, new cards are issued each year. They come in different types of packages:

- 1 A pack made up of 12 to 15 new cards.
- 2 A set of around 800 cards, made up of major league players from every team.
- 3 An update set sold at the end of the season. It is made up of players who have been traded or added during the year.

Old cards

In 1992, $451,000 was paid for a 1907 Honus Wagner card. It is valuable because it is rare. All but about 40 of the cards were destroyed because Wagner objected to their sale in tobacco products. Honus Wagner played shortstop.

Old cards are also fun to collect. They are usually traded or bought as singles.

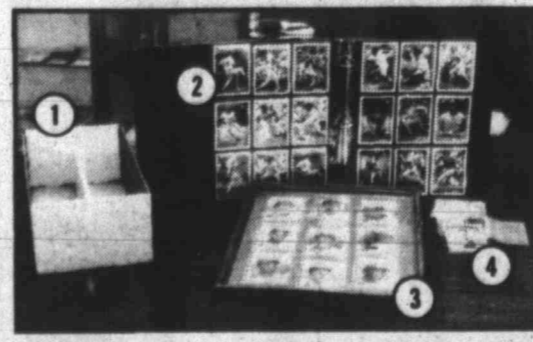

The value of these usually depends on:

- the number of cards produced.
- the player.
- the condition of the card.
- the age of the card.
- if it is a part of a numbered series. (If you collect a new series, or an old series, the sets usually have more value than a single card.)

Card care

Cards are meant to be enjoyed, but if you want to be a serious collector, you'll want to take care of your cards.

- Sort your cards. Sort out the cards you want to keep for your collection from those you want to play with.
- Do not put rubber bands around your cards.
- Keep cards out of the sun and damp places.

- Use special holders to store your collection.
- You can use:
- 1 Special card boxes.
 - 2 Notebook pages that fit into special binders.
 - 3 Frames (take care where you hang them).
 - 4 Clear sleeves or single holders.

How to read a card

School days, school days

First day of school begins smoothly

By CONNIE SWINNEY

The first day of Stanton schools Monday was smooth sailing for school officials and students, said Superintendent John McGregor. "We had a real good day," he said. "It looks like our enrollment is up a little." First day attendance was up almost 30 students due to a volunteer recruiting effort. "We got some help from a county judge and a school program official who put out information for people needing help. "Because of their help, they were able to help anyone who answered the information request so there would be no problems coming to school." The people who organized the effort were Edna Ringener, a Headstart program official, and Martin County Judge Bob Davenport. The breakdown of schools was 209 high school students, 199 junior high and 416 elementary, he said. "We're not yet at our peak enrollment." Even with the extra students, the day progressed without much hassle, McGregor said. "It was the smoothest start than what we've had in a while," he said. "The students came ready to go to school." Major changes to Stanton schools included an elementary program called Excel Math. "We're implementing it because we're always looking for ways to improve our students' skills," he said. "Our test scores precipitated us into starting the math program which allows students to get a better grasp of math spread over a period of time." Officials piloted the program in a 2nd-grade class which met some expectations, McGregor said. Another curriculum change included teaching Pre-algebra at the 8th grade level. "All these changes will better prepare the kids for regular math classes," he said. "They will have a better background."

Cap Rock Electric annual meeting Sept. 15

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The Cap Rock Electric Corp. annual meeting where its board of trustees are elected is coming up and Cap Rock officials say they are trying to placate a 14-member concerned citizens group. The meeting is scheduled for Sept. 15 at the Chaparral Center at the Midland College Campus, said Peggy Luxton, Cap Rock communications advisor. Registration begins at 4:30 and dinner will be served from 4:30 to 6:30, Luxton said. The business meeting will begin at 6:30. In a recent meeting, Cap Rock discussed developments in the corporation with its members, said Eddie Juan Echols of Coahoma. She is a member of Cap Rock. With about 70 people in attendance, Cap Rock discussed the failed lawsuit against TU Electric and the possibility of appealing the decision. The unfavorable comment from the Texas Utilities Commission on the proposed Hunt-Collins merger also was discussed. Former officials of Lone Wolf Electric, which merged with Cap Rock several years ago, were on hand and told members that the merger was a benefit to both customer bases, Echols said. Board members are elected by the membership, but the members can elect to vote by proxy instead of coming to the Midland meeting, said Cap Rock spokesperson Teresa Kelly. On the proxy ballot, which is sent to each member (customer) of the cooperative, are instructions indicating the ballot can be signed and sent to the proxy committee, who will vote in the person's stead, Kelly said; or, a person who will be present at the meeting can be designated at the bottom of the ballot. This person will then be empowered to cast the vote by proxy, she said. Cap Rock has come under fire from a group of concerned citizens because, "Cap Rock does not comply with its charter as a non-profit organization to supply electric service to their membership." In a letter from the citizens group, the board of trustees was instructed to "relieve the present management and secure a competent manager," get rid of subsidary corporations formed under the ownership of Cap Rock, halt the merger with Hunt-Collins, sell a building in Midland purchased by the Cap Rock subsidiary New West and secure an independent auditor to determine if the cooperative is financially sound. Kelly said the Midland building was purchased because it was a very good deal when Cap Rock was in search of quarters for its Midland billing office. Although Cap Rock CEO David Pruitt and some staff will likely move into the building, Cap Rock's operations headquarters will remain in Stanton as the city's second largest employer, after education, Kelly said. Most of the space in the building will be leased to repay the $200,000 purchase price, Kelly said. When property values in Midland climb out of their current slump, the building may be worth as much as $3 million, she added. About 60 percent of Cap Rock customers live around Midland, she said. "Our service area is the size of Maryland." Of the other complaints, Kelly said it is unlikely that the board of trustees will terminate the current management team or terminate the cooperative's subsidiary corporations. "We have had two meetings with the board and I feel like they have been productive meetings," said Myrl Mitchell, president of the Public comment sought on percentages

Nestor's Notes

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation recently asked for public comment on whether the 1993 corn, grain sorghum and barley acreage reduction program percentages should be 0, 5, 7.5, 12.5 or some other percentage within the range. The oats ARP is zero percent as set by the 1990 farm bill.

The 1993 ARP percentages must be announced by Sept. 30. Keith Bjerke, CCC executive vice president, said options will be posted which will include estimated planted acreage, production, domestic and export use, ending stocks, season average producer price, program participation rate and cost to the federal government.

Details appear in the Aug. 3 Federal Register. Comments must be received by Sept. 14 to be considered and may be faxed to 201-690-1346 or mailed to: Deputy Administrator, Policy Analysis, USDA-ASCS, Room 3090-S, P.O. Box 2415, Washington D.C. 20013-2415.

The comments will be available for public inspection in room 3740, South Building, U.S. Department of Agriculture, 14th and Independence Ave., S.W., Washington D.C. during business hours.

Notice of Public Hearing on Tax Increase

The Martin County Education District will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1991 by 15% percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on August 27, 1992 at Stanton ISD Board Room 7 p.m.

FOR the proposal: Mark Greenhaw, Richard White, Bobby Holland, Terry Shanks.

AGAINST the proposal:
PRESENT and not voting:
ABSENT:

(Name of all members of the governing body, showing how each voted on the proposal; if absent, indicate absences.)

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the 1991 tax rate that the unit published on August 13, 1992. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	$25,391	$25,730
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	$10,000	$10,000
Average taxable value	$15,391	$15,730
Tax rate	.7075/$100	.8549/100
Tax	$108.89	$134.47

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would increase by $25.58 or 20 percent compared with last year's taxes. Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by $.1474 per $100 of taxable value or 17 percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

MARTIN COUNTY EDUCATION DISTRICT NOTICE OF EXPLANATION OF TAX INCREASE

In order to comply with what the Commissioner of Education said we must raise through the County Education District: The Commissioner of Education took the value given to him by the State Comptroller, he then has to multiply this by .82 to get the levy we must raise, that amount being $3,111,213. Last year he had to use .72 times the value given him by the State Comptroller.

We then have a formula we must follow to calculate the levy. We had a carry over of $98,701, we subtract this from the levy we must raise. Levy $3,111,213 - $98,701 = $3,012,512. We then estimate our percentage of collections, being 97% & divide by the adjusted levy; $3,012,512 ÷ 97 = $3,105,682. This is the levy the County Education District must raise to be divided between Stanton ISD and Grady ISD.

To calculate the tax rate: Divide the levy $3,105,682 by the 1992 Taxable Value. $3,105,682 ÷ 363,274,109 = The Tax Rate .8549.

1991 Taxable Value	373,434,679
1992 Taxable Value	363,274,109
Taxable Value Loss	10,160,570
The State gives us this formula that we are required to use:
Comptroller 1991 Value	379,416,301
Rate	.82
Levy to raise	3,111,213
Carry over from 1991	- 98,701
Adjusted Levy	3,012,512
Collection %	+ 97
Levy needed	3,105,682

Levy needed 1992 Taxable Value
3,105,682 ÷ 363,274,109 = .8549

If you have any questions, please call 756-2823 or come by the Martin County Appraisal District Office at 308 N St Peter. County Education District Board of Directors

Sorrows, joys of age in reader letters

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1972 and '73.)

DEAR READERS: This concludes the series (from yesterday's column) of responses I received years ago from senior citizens, when I asked what were the biggest problems they faced: Money? Health? Loneliness? Boredom?

DEAR ABBY: I'm an "older woman" who stands 5 feet 8 inches tall, and I cannot find a dress to cover my knees! — C.P. IN ILLINOIS

DEAR ABBY: I'm 74, wear eyeglasses, false teeth, a hearing aid, and I walk with a cane. But I'm happy because I'm a born-again Christian.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Dear Abby

I can smell the fragrance of my flowers and feel the softness of my cat, and I can eat anything I can afford to buy.

I'm on old-age pension and have lots of good books. I've always been poor, so it's no hardship.

Besides, I'll have a mansion by a n d' by. — GLADYS IN CHILLICOTHE, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: I have a sister who married well. She is two years older than I am, and she has never known a lonely hour. Her children and grandchildren flock around her like bees. She is always handing out money and presents, and they treat her like she is some kind of queen.

I have nothing to give, so I am ignored. I am not homeless yet, and God forbid I ever should be, because I'd be dumped into a state home and forgotten. Money is power. — POWERLESS

DEAR ABBY: You asked to hear from senior citizens: Would that some compassionate, benevolent God would take this body and accept the soul of a man on the day he voluntarily retires or is arbitrarily retired from his work, and soon becomes... USELESS AT 70

DEAR ABBY: I am 74 years old and have been a widow since the age of 29. I raised five children and 12 grandchildren, and what a thankless job I had.

My biggest problem is loneliness. But the reason for my loneliness is the fact that I am poor. Young people today don't want us older folks around unless we are well-fixed and can do for them. — POOR WIDOW

DEAR ABBY: I'm 75 and a widower. I made my first trip to a foreign country at age 70. At 71, I started making my own sourdough bread, and now I can't make bakery bread. At 73, I started making my own jellies and jams. I enjoy life because I keep active.

I've sent for a copy of the Living Will, thanks to you. I wish to live, but I am not interested in existing. — F.E.W., KENT, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: We are both 77 years old, and we have been married 53 years. First we liked each other, then we loved each other, and now we adore each other. Our problem? We would like to die together! — HARTWIG AND HELEN IN BERKELEY
