Get ready for the election

Registration deadline is Oct. 4

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

County Clerk Margaret Ray prepares to take the polls to the people as registration deadline for the Nov. 3 general election nears.

The deadline for voter registration is Oct. 4, a Sunday. Therefore, mail-in registrations with an Oct. 5 postmark will be accepted, said Tax Assessor-Collector Kathy Sayles.

The last day to register at the courthouse desk will be Oct. 2, the previous Friday, Sayles said.

Registration must occur 30 days before the Nov. 3 election. As long as this requirement is met, newly registered voters can avail themselves of early voting, Sayles said.

Although the county is not strictly required to provide the temporary branch polls for early voting, Ray tries to provide the service to as many areas as possible.

The purpose of the temporary early voting booths is accessibility to those who cannot easily travel to the courthouse.

The times and locations of the temporary polling places:

- Canterbury North on Oct. 19, from 10 a.m. to noon.
- Canterbury South on Oct. 20, from 10 a.m. to noon.
- Comanche Trail Nursing Center on Oct. 21, from 10 a.m. to noon.
- Golden Plains Care Center on Oct. 23, from 10 a.m. to 11.
- Coahoma City Hall on Oct. 27, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.
- Forsan on Oct. 28, from 10 a.m. to noon (Location has not yet been established).

The service is characterized as "beyond the call of duty," by federal statutes, Ray said.

Although not required, if the county did not provide the early polling places, the community could gather a petition forcing the county to provide them, Ray said. "If the city is large enough to have a post office, you risk a petition."

According to federal law, any registered voter can choose to vote at any one of the temporary polls, Ray said.

Becky Lentz fills out a voter registration card Tuesday afternoon in the Howard County Courthouse Annex, across Main Street from the courthouse. The last day to register at the annex and be eligible to vote in the November election is Oct. 2, though mail-in registration with postmarks before Oct. 5 will be accepted.

New city of Big Spring Parks and Cemetery Maintenance Supervisor Lisa Gamble.

Gamble: Out of the office, to the field

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Getting out of an office and into the field is an eye opener for new city Parks and Cemetery Maintenance Supervisor Lisa Gamble.

"As you can see," said the 36-year-old Tuesday while standing in mud-caked boots and pointing to a ditch several feet deep at the cemetery in Mount Olive Memorial Park, "you never know what's going to be facing you."

But the Big Spring and Coahoma native, who took over as superintendent July 1, sees a challenge and a chance to make a difference.

"I'm not only looking at it from a supervisor's point of view, I'm looking at it from a mother's point of view," said Gamble, who has an eight-year-old son.

"I want all these mothers and all these dads to be able to turn their kids loose in the parks and feel safe about it."

That means everything from directing five employees on routine chores such as mowing grass and cleaning at the cemetery, Comanche Trail Park, Moss Creek Lake and a handful of smaller parks to digging up water pipes.

Probably the most perennial problem is vandalism, including the clogging of toilets and trashing of landmarks. Gamble said people have even loosened the bolts on a rail overlooking the Big Spring at Comanche Trail Park, apparently so that the next person to lean on it would fall in.

"We have problems with vandalism everywhere," she said. "I just don't know (how to prevent it), unless people turn in (vandals) that they see."

Gamble, who before her promotion worked as a secretary for more than four years for the city's public works department, said she is learning on the job all the time.

For example, she mentioned the time she had a hole covered after repairing a water leak and then walked over it, sinking into the mud up to her knees. It proved to be an interesting lesson.

"I figured out that's about the best way to find these water leaks, to just walk out on that green and see if you sink."

Gamble began working for the city six years ago in the sanitation department, shortly after receiving an associate's degree in business from Howard College. She said she was a single parent and "needed a job so I took anything I could get."

After about a year of running the gate at the landfill two days a week and working three days in an office, Gamble moved to the equipment yard where she worked as secretary. While going to college, Gamble had worked several other secretarial jobs.

She was born in Big Spring and raised in Big Spring and Coahoma. She graduated from Coahoma High School.

Breaking down musical barriers

Editors' Note: In recognition of Hispanic Heritage Month, the Big Spring Herald will publish daily articles and features on Hispanics and Hispanic culture.

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

Tejano music is breaking down musical and language barriers. Within the last decade the popularity of the South Texas-based musical genre has skyrocketed, penetrating markets throughout the United States, Mexico, Europe and the Pacific Rim.

The roots of Tejano music come from Conjunto music originating in the 1930s and 1940s in South Texas among the Mexican American community. Conjunto music was synonymous with a distinctive accordion sound, as well as being folksy. As it evolved, the music redefined itself with added instrumentation.

"As the music matured it became more urbane and less rural," said Rudy Trevino, executive director of the Texas Talent Musicians Association, who plans the Tejano Music Awards. "More components added to the instrumentation was due to the modernization of technology."

As instruments were added, the entertainment focus shifted. Bands began to do concert shows, instead of the traditional dance hall shows that Conjunto bands were known for.

After decades of transition for the genre with names such as Chicano music, onda Chicana (the Chicano sound) and Tex-Mex music, the term "Tejano" was coined by the association when they were organizing the first award show.

With the awards show the music soared, finding acceptance with a wider audience beyond South Texas.

The first show in 1980 had about 1,500 people in attendance without any radio or television media present. With the third show the attendance increased and 15 radio stations covered the event.

Last year, the show's attendance exceeded 14,500. More than 62 radio stations were present. A 13 week one-hour preview show was broadcast throughout the United States by participating radio stations. The show was also seen in 14.5 million homes and a video is being marketed.

Trevino attributes the rise in the music's popularity to factors such as a growing number of Hispanics in Texas; greater political, economical and entertainment clout among them; and cultural awareness.

"A pride in the Hispanic culture is instilled in the term Tejano," he said. "Years ago, kids hesitated to listen to the music, but all this has changed. People are identifying and taking pride in the music, which is a reflection of their culture."

In the United States, more radio stations' formats are changing to Tejano music. Locally, the program, La Favorita on KBYG-AM 1400, plays Tejano music weekdays from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. and weekends from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The program was first aired in 1990 when Izzie Gonzales responded to a format need that had not been offered until that time.

Gonzales then brought in Raul Marquez, local businessman, to assist in running the independently-produced show.

Although Gonzales left the show earlier this year, the program continues to bring Tejano music to area listeners. Under Marquez's direction La Favorita has also brought in Tejano concerts to Big Spring. Among the bands that have done concerts locally are La Fiebre and Mazz.

Mazz is a consistent Tejano Music Award winner. Last year, it captured six out of 13 awards, including Album of the Year, Song of the Year, Songwriter of the Year, Vocal Duo of the Year, Single of the Year and Male Vocalist of the Year. The group is not a newcomer to the event, winning awards in 1990, 1989, 1988 and 1986 with nominations beginning in 1984. Mazz has crossed over to foreign markets such as Mexico and Europe.

The popularity of Tejano music extending beyond the United States began a few years ago, Trevino said. Mazz and another successful Tejano entertainer, Selena Quintanilla, toured Mexico earlier this year. Japanese music producers are talking about a Tejano music festival, Trevino said.

Donation leads to LULAC scholarships

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Cynthia Resendez and Sidney Dixon were named recipients of two $450 scholarships awarded by League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) Council 4495 during last weekend's Dies y Seis celebration.

The scholarships were to have been funded by a portion of proceeds profited from the downtown celebration, said Raul Marquez, president of LULAC Council 4495.

Big Country Beverage donated $5,000 last April to help fund the event provided some proceeds would cover student scholarships, said Bruce Davis, general manager and owner of Big Country Beverages in Abilene.

The Big Spring Herald reported in April that the $5,000 check was earmarked for student scholarships.

"We donated the money with the understanding that some of the proceeds from the event would go toward scholarships," Davis said. "We didn't have a specific understanding on the amount to spend on scholarships."

"The fiesta cost us about $5,000 to put on," Marquez said. "... We use those funds for conducting the fiesta, and then we can generate more funds through the fiesta to give away scholarships."

Marquez added, "We only had two recipients out of four applicants.

We're going to try to work with counselors more to get more applicants next year."

He added the lack of recipients does not underplay Lulac's focus on supporting youths. He said LULAC will take a more active effort in recruiting students.

"In the past, there had been a mix-up between the national organizations and the local regarding scholarship money, and we're making sure there aren't any other problems," Marquez said. "Our main concern is education..."

Resendez is pursuing a degree in physical therapy and attends Howard County Junior College. Dixon is studying to become a medical doctor at Baylor University.

Guerrero's 'graduation' is a very hot topic

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — Railroad Commission Chairman Lena Guerrero's academic past and political future were hot topics of conversation across Texas on Tuesday.

From radio talk shows to coffee shops, Texans were talking about

Ms. Guerrero's admission that she really isn't a college graduate and doesn't know how she became erroneously linked to the Phi Beta Kappa honors society.

"It should be called Phi Beta Kappagate," said one caller to Austin radio station KLBJ-AM, where Ms. Guerrero's resume was under discussion for a second straight day.

An Austin restaurant known for wisecracking humor displayed a sign that read: "Lena, it could have been worse...You might have almost graduated from A&M."

Motorist wounded in a confrontation with state trooper

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEAUMONT — A handcuffed motorist was wounded Tuesday by a state trooper who contended the suspect tried to run over him and another man with the officer's patrol car.

The unidentified motorist was in good condition late Tuesday at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston with a bullet wound to his right elbow, said a spokeswoman.

Texas Rangers who were investigating the shooting planned to refer the case to the Texas Department of Public Safety in Austin if they question whether it was justified, said DPS spokesman James Kirksey.

Trooper Pete Maskunas said he stopped two men on U.S. 69 near Interstate 10 at 2:15 a.m. Tuesday. Maskunas suspected the driver was drunk and arrested him on an accusation of driving while intoxicated.

Kirksey said Maskunas cuffed the man's hands behind his back, placed him inside the patrol car and fastened the seat belt.

But the driver managed to pull his cuffed hands in front of him and grabbed the patrol car's steering wheel while Maskunas was conducting a sobriety test on the second man.

"He attempted to drive the patrol car over trooper Maskunas. While this was going on, trooper Maskunas fired two shots," said Kirksey.

Water plan called for

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO — A supplementation plan for Texas' largest spring during dry spells should be studied by the San Antonio Water System, the city's mayor says.

Comal Springs is supplied by the Edwards Aquifer, which is the sole source of San Antonio's drinking water. The aquifer has been threatened by drought in recent years and is the target of a management plan by the Texas Water Commission.

Mayor Nelson Wolff Tuesday criticized the Edwards Underground Water District for not moving fast enough on the idea. It would keep the springs in New Braunfels flowing — even when the aquifer level drops too low to supply it.

"There's been too much running around it," said Wolff. "It seems to me we should grab this issue and go with it."

The water commission, attempting to manage the aquifer in the face of a federal lawsuit, had enacted pumping limits for municipal, industrial and irrigation well owners.

But a state district judge in Austin ruled last week that the aquifer is not an underground river and thus not subject to the water commission's control. A state lawmaker now plans legislation to protect the aquifer.

Wolff, with the consent of other trustees at a water system board meeting Tuesday, urged staff members to report back whether a spring augmentation study could be undertaken, how much it would cost and how long it would take.

The mayor voiced dissatisfaction with progress in the study funded by the Edwards district.

Residents win over food chain

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Residents of Deerfield Village have won their battle to keep Food Lion from building a low-cost grocery store that they believed would lower their property values and cause security problems.

Food Lion now says it will sell the land it bought for the store to the Deerfield Village Community Association, an association official said Tuesday.

James E. Martin, owner of JEM Development, which handles real estate acquisitions on behalf of Salisbury, N.C.-based Food Lion, notified the Deerfield Village Community Association in a Sept. 8 letter that he has been authorized to allow the association to buy the land for $817,402.40.

The 3.9618-acre tract is at the northeast corner of Clay Road and Barker-Cypress roads.

But officials say the price tag is too steep.

"The price is way above market value," said Ann Roberts, who is on the association's external development committee. "We've had a market analysis done, and according to that the price is more than double what's its worth."

Committee Chairman Donald J. Brown said brokers estimated a more reasonable price at $1.50 a foot.

Neither Martin nor Food Lion spokesman Mike Mozingo returned telephone calls Tuesday, the Houston Post reported today.

"We just hope that they're being sincere and this isn't just a political move," Ms. Roberts said.

About 650 residents of Deerfield Village protested Food Lion's plans to build one of its stores in their neighborhood, signing petitions, staging a rally and warning company officials they'd boycott the store if it opened there.

Attorney asks appeals court to reconsider overturn decision

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Harris County District Attorney Johnny B. Holmes says he wants a state appeals court to reconsider its decision to overturn the conviction of a former police officer who killed a woman in a highway shootout.

The 1st Court of Appeals on Tuesday threw out the voluntary manslaughter conviction of former Houston officer Alex Gonzales in the Oct. 31, 1989, shooting death of Ida Lee Delaney, 50.

Gonzales, 27, was convicted in April 1990 and sentenced to seven years in prison, but he has been free on bond, pending his appeal.

In a 41-page opinion issued, the appeals court ordered a new trial, saying some evidence had been excluded during the 1990 trial.

"We have a period of time to ask the appeals court to reconsider it," Holmes said. If the conviction is not upheld, he said the case will be appealed to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. He said it could be another year before the case works its way through those courts.

"We would not want to retry (Gonzales) unless it was absolutely necessary," Holmes said, but added he was prepared to retry the case if necessary.

Gonzales' primary defense was that Ida Lee Delaney was, in fact, the aggressor earlier in the evening," defense attorney George "Mac" Secrest said.

Defense attorneys contended Ms. Delaney had a violent history, including a past conviction for assaulting a police officer and a shooting incident involving her ex-husband.

"The defense should have been able to offer testimony about her background," defense attorney Mike Hinton said, adding that the judge allowed only a general discussion of her past.

But Holmes said he did not believe "the specific acts of misconduct that the deceased committed 20 years previously" was germane to the case against Gonzales.

The shooting sparked outrage among blacks in Houston and the formation of a community civil rights group. Ms. Delaney was black, while Gonzales and the two other officers involved in the highway chase are Hispanic.

"I don't know how much more our community can stand, to be honest with you," said Ada Edwards, who helped found the civil rights group.

The decision "adds to my distrust, disbelief and no confidence in the justice system, or I should say the 'injustice system' because that's how I sum it up," said DeLoyd Parker, another group activist.

Where did all of Clinton's pizza go

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — In February alone Bill Clinton's campaign wolfed down more than $5,750 in pizzas, subs, burgers and Dunkin' Donuts, dropped another $1,500 on groceries and went shopping at K-Mart, Ames, and Radio Shack.

The campaign paid for it all. But when the meter began running on Clinton's legally limited $5.2 million fall election money from the government, all those expenses seemed to drop from his spending rolls, an Associated Press review found.

No food or hotel expenses were listed in the July report even though Clinton and running mate Al Gore took their cross-country bus tour from New York to St. Louis immediately after the Democratic convention.

So who's paying for the pizza now?

The Clinton campaign initially blamed everything from a crash diet to missing expense vouchers. "We're still eating pizza and making those stops at K-Mart," assured Avis Lavelle, a Clinton campaign spokeswoman.

In the end the answer to the mystery was found with the Clinton campaign's accounting — a combination of errors and campaign finance law intricacies — as it made the transition from the primary to general election in mid-

July.

The AP review found the Clinton campaign wrongly paid a small amount of its general election expenses, including some hotels for the bus trip, with leftover primary donations. Federal law expressly prohibits campaigns from using primary donations to pay fall election costs.

The campaign also left off its July report about $400,000 in food and other general election expenses incurred during the month because they didn't clear the bank until early August, acknowledged Christine Varney, the campaign's chief counsel.

The government gives the campaign 20 days after the end of each month to get such expenditures tallied before filing its report. But Varney said the Clinton campaign's computerized accounting system automatically files its report based on what has reached the bank at the last day of the month.

Varney said any errors were unintentional and that the campaign plans to file amended reports soon making corrections and will also voluntarily repay any primary money misspent on the general election.

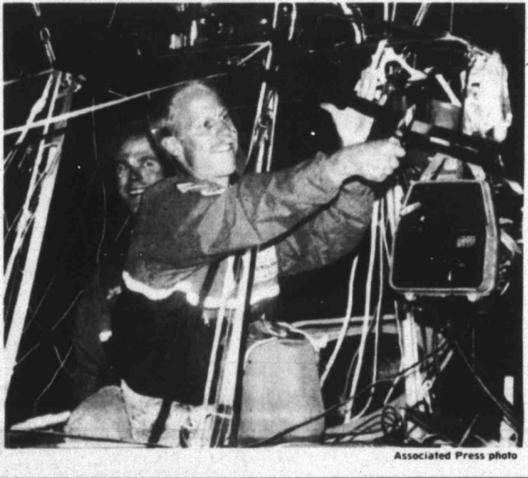

The Clinton-Gore campaign's latest report showed it spent about $1.6 million of its general election money in July.

England raises interest rates

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — The Bank of England raised interest rates today by 2 points to 12 percent, as it scrambled to prop up the pound and ease the chaos gripping Europe's battered currency markets.

The U.S. dollar edged higher, bolstered by the turbulence that rattled exchange markets and pushed British stock prices lower.

But the pound, which had been hovering near its floor of 2.7780 German marks in the European exchange rate mechanism, was little changed by Britain's dramatic move. About an hour later, the pound was quoted slightly higher, at 2.7812 marks.

Traders said the Bank of England had apparently panicked as its moved to appease a market that has already decided the pound will have to be devalued.

"It's too late," said Simon Knapp, an economist at Barclays de Zoete Wedd Ltd. "Sterling is in a complete crisis, and unfortunately, this was the only option the Bank of England had to offer. Unfortunately, such a head of steam has been built up around the idea that sterling has to be devalued, that sterling hasn't been affected." Prices plunged on the London Stock Exchange, where the broad-based Financial Times-Stock Exchange index of 100 shares was off 77.8 points at 2,292.2 around midday.

The Bank of England cut its minimum lending rate, a little-used emergency rate that the central bank uses to influence interest charged by commercial banks. British banks quickly responded with similar rises in their interest rates.

The U.S. dollar rose to 1.4885 marks early this afternoon, from 1.4855 late Tuesday. The pound fell to $1.8583, from $1.8715 late Tuesday.

The Bank of England's surprise move comes four days before French voters are set to register their crucial judgment on the Maastricht treaty for European political and monetary unity.

Higher interest rates could make it even tougher for Britain to emerge from its worst recession in decades.

Knapp predicted that the Bank of England could not maintain the higher interest rate for very long without "stretching the economy to the breaking point."

Marines into Somalia

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOGADISHU, Somalia — The United States is sending four ships with 2,400 Marines to the waters off famine-ravaged Somalia to provide support for U.N. troops protecting donated food and other aid.

The amphibious group will arrive off the coast of Mogadishu within a few days, said Lt. Bruce Cole, spokesman for U.S. Naval Forces Central Command in the Persian Gulf.

It will provide "seaborne command and control for U.S. airlift operations" bringing a Pakistani infantry battalion to Mogadishu to prevent looting of food shipments, Cole said.

The United Nations is sending 500 Pakistani troops to Mogadishu, most of them expected in two weeks. The U.S. Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard are flying the Pakistani troops and their equipment to Somalia.

Cole said the amphibious group consists of the assault ship USS Tarawa, the dock ships USS Ogden and USS Fort Fisher and the tank landing ship USS Schenectady.

NBC said the task force included a contingent of Air Force commandos.

It also said that U.S. Forces would protect airfields used by Air Force planes transporting the U.N. troops from Pakistan. Pentagon spokesmen in Washington would not comment on the NBC report.

Meanwhile, U.N. Children's Fund officials said today that actress Audrey Hepburn would visit the Horn of African nation sometime next week as a UNICEF goodwill ambassador.

Stolen newborn is found safe and alive by police

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERKELEY, Calif. — A newborn kidnapped from her mother's hospital room three months ago by a woman posing as a social worker was found alive and well by police, who were tipped off by a suspicious neighbor.

Karen Lea Hughes, 41, was arrested for investigation in the kidnapping of the child, called Baby Kerri by authorities.

Capt. Phil Doran said the tipster, a neighbor of Hughes, had become suspicious after hearing several different stories from her about where the baby came from.

"It was lead number 1,060 — it was gut-breaking, painstaking, sidewalk-pounding work," Doran said Tuesday at Alta Bates Hospital.

Doran would not give details or speculate on a motive, but the FBI had theorized before the arrest that the kidnapper may have wanted to replace a lost baby or experience the vicarious thrill of having a baby.

The San Francisco Chronicle reported today that Hughes lost a baby over the summer in her seventh month of pregnancy.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of four women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as the result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate.

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Guidelines For Screening Mammography Established by the American Cancer Society.

- 35-40 years of age - One baseline mammogram.
- 40-50 years of age - A mammogram every 1-2 years depending on breast type and risk factor.
- 50 years of age and over - An annual physical examination and annual mammogram.
- Asymptomatic women under 50 years of age with significant high risk factors should be examined at appropriate intervals. These risk factors include previous breast cancer and family history of cancer.

V. A symptomatic woman should have a mammogram at any age when she experiences a mass, nipple discharge, skin changes or unexplained breast pain.

A screening mammogram is an x-ray of the breast using extremely low dosages of radiation (usually comparable to dental x-rays) and is designed to find very early cancers.

A female technologist who is highly trained in mammography will perform the examination.

The charge for the screening mammogram is $20.00. The Unit accepts cash, check, Visa, Mastercard and American Express.

Time to help those in need

Last Friday night, the John Viera family went to the Howard County Fair and then out to eat pizza. While they were gone, their home was burglarized and set afire. The family lost everything.

It's time for members of the community to come to the assistance of the family.

Viera, who was hopeful of selling the house, had let insurance lapse and had to coverage on either the building or the contents.

Viera and his wife, Maria, have three daughters ages 12, 6 and 3. They are in need of clothing, household items and anything associated with setting up a new home.

If you have goods to donate to the Viera's cause, you can either take it by 3212 Cornell, where the family is staying with relatives, or you can call Viera at 263-1943. In the meantime, rewards totalling $2,000 are being offered in connection with the case. If you have information regarding this case, call CrimeStoppers at 263-8477. Take the time to help a neighbor in need... because Big Spring cares.

When the old South took the turn south

I certainly agree with all those who protested the playing of "Dixie" at a football game in the new Georgia Dome.

Although slavery isn't mentioned in the song it still makes people think of the Old South where every white person owned African American slaves.

"Dixie" is definitely a politically incorrect piece of music. Even the word is offensive to some, and I apologize to those who are offended by my use of it. But I'm proud to say my alma mater, the University of Georgia, whose current football team has come down with a major case of fumbleitis, years ago rid itself of any connection with the song or the word you-know-what (see I didn't use the word that time, I despise offending people).

The Georgia band used to play the song at football games. But not anymore. The only place they still play the song is at the University of Mississippi.

They also wave Confederate flags and they allow prayer before a football game.

I'm not certain how long it will be before members of the Speech Police move in and shut down such reprehensible behavior, but it could be any day now—or at least a couple of days after President Clinton's inauguration.

Georgia not only stopped playing the song, it even changed the name of the band, formerly known as the Dixie Redcoat Band. It became simply the Redcoat Band.

That prompted my stepbrother, Ludlow Porch, the famous radio talk show personality, to fire off a letter to the editor suggesting the following:

"I applaud the dropping of 'Dixie' from the name of the University of Georgia band, but let us not stop there.

"How can we allow the word 'red,' which stands for communism? And what about the word 'redcoat' itself, which is an affront to the memory of all those Americans who fought against the Redcoats in the Revolutionary War?"

I believe if we really try we can wipe away all symbols of the Old South forever.

There's a company in Savannah called Dixie Crystals Sugar. Sorry, it's just Crystal Sugar from now on, and don't give me any grief about it.

There's also a Dixie Freight Lines, which heretofore will be known as Freight Lines. And there's even a Dixie Highway in the South. It should be referred to from now on as Highway. As in... Well, you take Highway, then go down three blocks and...

There are even some people named Dixie, believe it or not. They will have to get new first names or go by their middle names. And if anybody named Dixie lives on Dixie Highway and worked for Dixie Freight Line the Speech Police will likely demand they be shot.

And if the song and word "Dixie" are symbolic of the Old South, I guess we ought to stop using "Old South" as well.

Instead of saying "Old South" perhaps we can refer to it as "Back Then," and we can roll our eyes when we use it so everybody will know we aren't talking about when dinosaurs roamed the earth, but when slave holders used to go around singing songs like "Dixie."

Rap songs about killing innocent people, incidentally, are just fine.

Freedom to learn under assault

EDITOR'S NOTE: Today's James J. Kilpatrick column contains two references that some readers may find offensive. The references are left intact due to the fact they are direct quotes from publications and to change them would alter the meaning of the statement.

James J. Kilpatrick

Let us talk about censorship in the public schools, and let us begin with certain assumptions:

Assumption No. 1. All Christian fundamentalists are yahoos.

Assumption No. 2. All school librarians are persons of infallible judgment.

Assumption No. 3. The statistics and case summaries prepared by People for the American Way (PFAW) should be accepted uncritically as an accurate description of a troubling and persistent problem in public school administration.

Well, hokum. PFAW recently released its volume for 1991-92, "Attacks on the Freedom to Learn." It is a fair surmise that most reporters and editors read little more than the alarming Executive Summary and a repetitious wrap-up of "Findings."

Here they would learn of 376 "attacks on the freedom to learn" during the academic year. PFAW documents incidents in 44 states. The freedom to learn was especially imperiled in the Midwest (119 incidents) and in the South (108 incidents). Jacksonville, Fla., experienced "a virtual explosion" of censorship. Over the country as a whole there was "an explosion of library censorship." Censors succeeded in achieving the removal "or restriction" of challenged material in 144 instances, "fully 41 percent of the cases."

Please note those qualifying words, "or restriction." In Cheshire, Conn., for one example, a controversy developed over a book called "The Alfred Summer," which had been assigned reading in the fifth grade. In one passage a character says, "I would kiss a pig's ass if I thought it would bring us luck. I would even pray."

Parents collected a thousand signatures on a petition to have the book removed. Was the book banned? No. Burned? No. The school board directed that "The Alfred Summer" be moved from the fifth grade to the sixth grade.

To PFAW, this was a victory for the forces of darkness and a defeat for the forces of light. It was one of the 144 instances of removal "or restriction" of reading material. In Palm Bay, Fla., the parents of a child in elementary school objected to a book that contained "illustrations of condom use." The book was moved to a section of the library in which books may be checked out by parents who wish their children to read them. Another win for the yahoos.

In Joliet, Ill., a parent objected to "Figure in the Shadow," assigned as reading for sixth-graders. The parent believed the story endorsed witchcraft. "A review committee voted to retain the book. The objector's child was given an alternative assignment." Another defeat for the freedom to learn.

In Lawrence, Kan., a parent objected to "The Girl," by Robbie Branscum, for its depiction of child abuses. The school board recommended that the book be moved from the elementary to the junior high school library. PFAW scores this "restriction" as a triumph for the censors.

In Columbia, Md., a parent objected to "Family Secrets," by Norma Klein, for "constant reference to the sex act." After consideration by a review committee, the book was moved from the middle school library to the high school library.

The yahoos won in a Minneapolis suburb, when a parent objected to "Just as Long as We're Together" by Judy Blume. In the novel, a girl calls a boy "the class asshole." A review committee found the book "more appropriate to junior high/middle school age students," and recommended that the book be shifted from the elementary school to the middle school, "where it remains on the shelf."

Many of the "attacks" reported by PFAW are plainly goofy. In one instance, a parent regarded a deep-breathing exercise in physical education as attempted hypnosis. In at least nine states, parents complained against books for fostering "satanism" or "devil worship." In every instance, except one involving a mural in Longmont, Colo., the material was retained.

Indeed, that is the strong impression I drew from leafing through the whole 193 pages. Overwhelmingly, school officials are standing tall. They are not removing challenged material. In most instances of "restriction," the restriction amounts merely to moving challenged books from lower grades to upper grades. May these local judgments fairly be described as successful "attacks on the freedom to learn"?

Bosh! Not all parents are yahoos, and not all librarians are persons of infallible judgment. Now and then — this will astound PFAW — the parents may even be right.

13 keys explain elections

By BILL STERNBERG
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Now here's a sobering thought for pollsters, pundits and other players in this year's presidential election: Campaigns don't matter. The debates, commercials, bus tours and speeches between now and Election Day count for virtually nothing.

At least that's the conclusion of Ken DeCell and Allan J. Lichtman, co-authors of a book called "The 13 Keys to the Presidency."

DeCell, a senior editor at Washingtonian magazine, and Lichtman, a history professor at American University, argue that a presidential campaign isn't the horse race it's generally made out to be. Instead, the election is essentially a referendum on the incumbent administration's record.

The 13 "keys," developed in 1981 by Lichtman and Soviet mathematician Volodia Keilis-Borok, are stated as conditions that favor the re-election of the incumbent party. When six or more of the keys are false, the challenging party wins.

It all gets rather technical, but suffice it to say the keys include such factors as party mandate in Congress, economic conditions, social unrest, scandals, foreign policy successes or failures, and the candidates' charisma or lack thereof. The authors say their system identifies the winner of the popular vote in every presidential election since 1860.

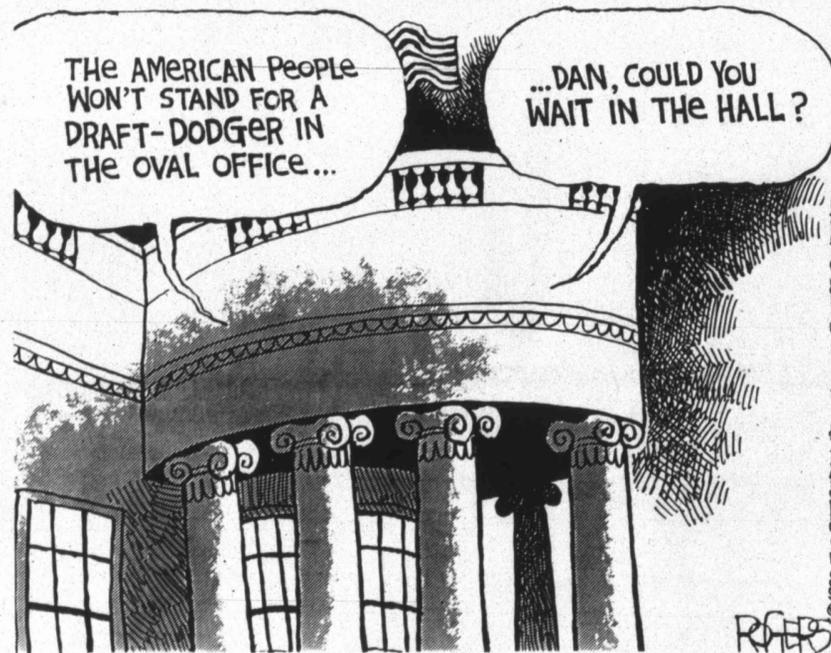

So what do the keys portend for this year's presidential election? DeCell and Lichtman agree on 11 of the 13 keys, four of which turn against George Bush. But they part company on two others: whether the short-term economy is in recession and whether there is a significant third-party campaign.

DeCell takes a "strict constructionist" view: Because the economy has technically been growing, albeit slowly, for the past five quarters, and because Ross Perot dropped his independent bid, DeCell gives the nod to Bush.

Wrong, says Lichtman. Regardless of the technical definition, an economy that quacks like a recession ought to be counted as one, he says. And the Perot phenomenon, he argues, is a major barometer of discontent. That's two more keys against Bush, for a total of six. Advantage Clinton.

Bush could still lose, DeCell says, if two of the following happen before Election Day: an economic plunge, widespread riots, a foreign policy disaster, or Bill Clinton coming down with a case of charisma. If none of those happen and Clinton still wins, DeCell says, the authors will have to "refine the thresholds" in the system.

In other words, back to the drawing board.

Can you tell me . . . ?

Addressing various issues that arise from time to time in the newsroom

● Why didn't you cover our school last Friday night? We won and Big Spring lost, yet the Steers got a big story and we got just a little write-up.

Due to staff limitations, we have to develop a plan in regards to which games we will be able to cover. With two full-time sports writers and 11 high schools, there obviously is no way we can cover every game.

Whenever possible, we utilize a free-lance writer — we call them stringers — to cover an additional game for us so that we can actually staff three games on a given Friday night.

Our situation is no different from other newspapers. In West Texas, with such vast expanses and a large number of high schools, it's not uncommon to see two or three or four games staffed and the rest called in from stringers.

Because we are the Big Spring Herald, and because a wide majority of our subscribers and readers are in Big Spring, we will always cover the Steers — whether they win, lose or play to a tie.

But just because your school might not have had a staffer at last Friday's game doesn't mean we won't have one at the next game. Also, there are times we will be able to have a photographer at a game when we don't have a reporter present.

Two weeks into the season we have staffed games involving five of the 11 schools in our circulation area — Coahoma, Colorado City, Greenwood, Stanton and Big Spring. That's 45.5 percent of the total number of schools and that's a percentage I would put up against any other West Texas newspaper . . . regardless of size of staff.

● Why don't you have more coupons? I see newspapers from Dallas and other places and they always have more coupons than the Herald.

Contrary to popular belief, newspapers don't just print coupons at their fancy . . . they are placed by agencies based on a number of factors, including geographic location, population of the community and circulation of the newspaper.

Our advertising manager aggressively solicits coupon business for our newspaper. After all, it's good for us, it's good for the consumer and it's good for the retailer, who gets traffic from the coupons and who is reimbursed for those coupons they honor.

As more and more agencies realize there are readers in areas outside metro-type areas that want coupons, more and more coupon orders are being placed.

● Why do you promote a Republican/Democrat agenda on your editorial page?

So far, we've been accused of both. I hope that means that we are effectively presenting columns and opinions that weigh all sides of the issues.

As I have written in this column before, I've voted for Democrats and Republicans in the past and will again in the future.

As far as a particular political agenda, we have none. We are a conservative newspaper as such, although there are those issues that will drive us to become wild-eyed liberals.

This newspaper takes the stance that we will be proactive in our community, that we will work for positive change, that we will strive to keep the public informed and that we will present both sides of an issue in our news stories. The official editorial stance of the newspaper on a particular issue will not affect the news coverage of that issue one way or the other.

● What makes newspaper editors and publishers think they move to a town from someplace else and have all the answers to all the problems?

I don't know that anyone has all the answers. I presume persons with this viewpoint are addressing opinions published on the editorial page . . . the conscience of the newspaper.

There are those in our professions that are quick to hide behind the right of the press to know . . . but with that right comes a tremendous responsibility . . . the responsibility to ask questions, to challenge, to offer alternatives.

We acknowledge that responsibility. And while you might not like the questions we ask or the challenges we issue, we will continue to ask and issue with the best interests of our community at heart.

Why is it that editors and publishers always have an opinion? It's our job, our responsibility, our obligation — and maybe we are able to see some things and ask some questions because we did move here from someplace else.

And while we might not have lived here all our lives — many of us throughout the community haven't, you know — this is our home and we're here because we choose to be.

John H. Walker is managing editor of the Big Spring Herald. His column appears each Sunday and Wednesday.

Lady Steers rally past Lake View Maidens

SAN ANGELO — Big Spring's Lady Steers volleyball team came back from a 15-1 second-game blowout to beat the Lake View Maidens Tuesday night. The Lady Steers 15-5, 1-51, 15-6 win was the district 3-4A opener for both teams. Big Spring (6-9) scored the final nine points of game three. Kathy Smith's two kills put the Lady Steers ahead for good in the final game, 8-6. Big Spring coach Lois Ann McKenzie said Lake View had the largest crowd she had ever seen for a volleyball game there.

"Considering that the Lake View gym was packed my kids played well," McKenzie said. "(But) in the second game we just kind of drifted off, took a nap, whatever. We had to completely forget that one. We couldn't receive their serves. They had one girl that serv-

The Lady Steer coach praised the play of Smith and Sarah Bristow, both sophomores, in the first and third games. The Maidens (2-5) got the first two points of game three before a kill by junior Tequilla Marion and an ace by Sarah Cranford tied the score at two. Big Spring continues district play Saturday at 1:30 in Steer Gym against Fort Stockton. "(Fort Stockton's) taller than we are," McKenzie said. "They've got a couple of good size players and they're real scrappy."

A's magic number down to 10

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

All season, the Oakland Athletics have been one step in front of the Minnesota Twins. For two straight days, the A's have been one run ahead, too.

The Athletics again strengthened their strong hold on the AL West Tuesday, beating the second-place Twins 2-1 for their eighth straight victory.

Oakland, which beat Minnesota 3-2 Monday night at the Coliseum, leads the division by eight games. The A's reduced their magic number to 10, and tonight will face the fading World Series champions for the final time this season.

Ron Darling (14-9) held the Twins to two hits for eight innings and Dennis Eckersley pitched a perfect ninth. He has saved both games against Minnesota and has converted 47 of 49 save chances.

"The season never ends," Eckersley said. "Even if we clinch it, I'll go out there and I'm still uptight."

Rookie Pat Mahomes (3-3) took a two-hitter and a 1-0 lead into the sixth. But Rickey Henderson hit Mahomes' second pitch for his 14th home run, Jerry Browne followed with a double and Harold Baines hit an RBI single.

Rangers 6, Tigers 5
Jose Canseco homered onto the roof at Tiger Stadium and Rafael Palmeiro and Dean Palmer also hit home runs for Texas.

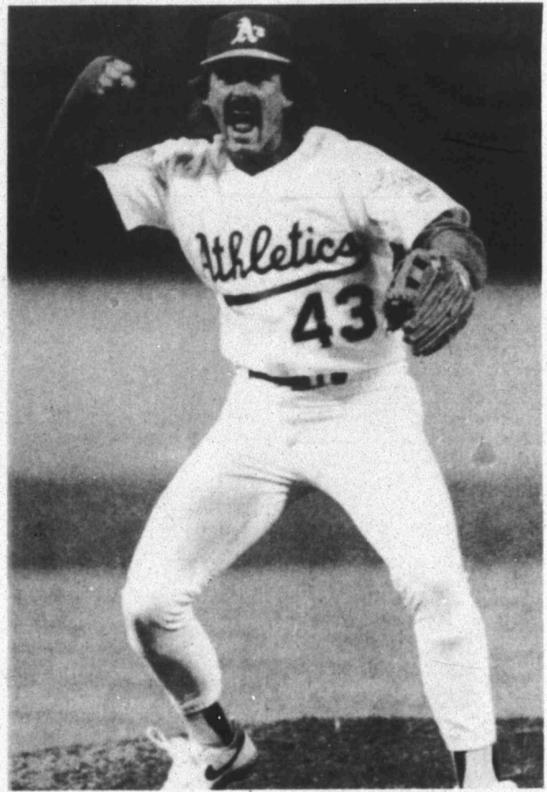

Canseco's solo shot in the ninth inning was his 26th homer of the season and fourth in 11 games for the Rangers. Palmer hit his 25th home run.

Palmeiro had three hits, including his 18th homer, and drove in three runs. Travis Fryman hit his 20th homer for Detroit in the eighth inning and had an RBI single in the ninth.

Jose Guzman (14-11) gave up five hits in seven innings. Matt Whiteside pitched 1 2-3 innings for his first major league save. Whiteside was 29 for 29 in converting save chances in the minors this season.

Bill Gullickson (14-11) has won only one of his last seven starts.

Angels 9, Mariners 0
Seattle tied a team record with its 12th straight loss. At least the Oakland Athletics reliever Dennis Eckersley pumps his fist and yells at Minnesota Twins batter Chilli Davis after Eckersley struck out Davis to end the game in the ninth inning Wednesday night in Oakland.

Mariners went down fighting, getting into an eighth-inning brawl in Anaheim.

Eric Gunderson, who hit California's Gary DiSarcina with a pitch earlier in the eighth, nearly hit Luis Polonia later. Polonia rushed the mound and started hitting Gunderson with his batting helmet and the benches cleared. Order was restored quickly and Gunderson and Polonia were ejected.

The Mariners also lost 12 in a row in 1980 and 1989.

Chuck Finley (5-12) won for the first time in eight starts. He struck out six, walked four and did not allow a runner past second base in his first shutout since June 4, 1991. Dave Fleming (15-9) lost his fourth straight decision.

Blue Jays 5, Indians 4
Dave Winfield's 430th career home run helped Toronto top Cleveland at SkyDome.

Winfield hit a two-run shot that capped a three-run third inning, putting the Blue Jays ahead for good at 4-3. He has 24 home runs and 94 RBIs this season.

Juan Guzman (15-3) allowed three runs in the first inning, but no more before leaving after the seventh inning. Tom Henke pitched the ninth for his 29th save.

Orioles 2, Royals 1
Brady Anderson's sacrifice fly was just deep enough to score pinch-runner Steve Scarsone in the bottom of the 14th inning and Baltimore beat Kansas City at Camden Yards.

Leo Gomez singled with one out against Bill Sampen (0-1) and Scarsone entered. Tim Hulett's hit-and-run single hit Sampen's leg, and Scarsone raced to third when the ball bounced into the vacant short-stop's hole.

Anderson, 0 for 6 in the game, followed with a fly ball to Kevin Koslofski, and Scarsone slid home ahead of a sweep tag.

Storm Davis (6-2) pitched two innings for the victory. The Royals have lost six of seven.

Brewers 7, Red Sox 2
Robin Yount hit a two-run homer and threw out a runner at the plate, leading Milwaukee at Fenway Park.

The Brewers won for the ninth time in 13 games. They stayed five games behind Toronto.

Yount has eight home runs this season. He has 3,006 career hits, one behind Al Kaline for 15th place.

Paul Molitor, batting .402 in his last 24 games, singled twice for the Brewers. Reliever James Austin (4-2) retired all seven batters he faced.

Boston lost its fourth in a row. Frank Viola (11-12) is 0-6 in his last seven starts against Milwaukee.

White Sox 4, Yankees 2
Frank Thomas became the first White Sox player to get 100 RBIs in consecutive seasons in 38 years as Chicago won at Yankee Stadium.

Thomas, who drove in 109 runs last season, hit a two-run double in the eighth inning that gave him 101 RBIs. Minnie Minoso was the last player to accomplish the feat for the White Sox, in 1953-54.

Could be a valuable lesson on intensity

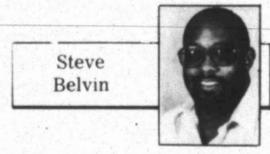

If you ever wanted to see a team blow a big lead in a football game, then you should've watched the Dallas Cowboys-New York Giants game Sunday afternoon.

History was almost made. The Cowboys almost had the distinction of becoming the team to blow the largest lead ever in National Football League history. That's 28 points. Joe Montana and the San Francisco 49ers made up that difference in 1980 against the New Orleans Saints. The Cowboys almost blew a 34-point lead before coming away with a 34-28 win over the Giants.

It had been so unbelievable easy. Unbelievable because the Pokes were playing the NFC East heavyweight on its home turf in East Rutherford, N.J. Easy because Dallas led 14-0 with just under 10 minutes left in the first quarter. It was 17-0 after the first 15 minutes of play and 27-0 at the half.

Anyone who knows anything about NFC East football knows the New York Giants aren't a team accustomed to rallying from a four-touchdown deficit. This was a job for Joe Montana, Roger Staubach or John Elway. But for Phil Simms and the New York Giants — NOT.

The game completely looked like a rout when Dallas scored its final touchdown early in the third quarter. Cowboy fans were high-fiving all over the world. Giants fans at the Meadowlands were chanting "Ray must Go," in reference to Giants head coach Ray Handley.

But then the whole tide of the game began to turn. The Giants rallied for two touchdowns in the third quarter, cutting the deficit to 37-14. No problem, I thought. I wonder when coach Jimmy Johnson is going to start playing his reserves?

Johnson kept in his starters in and they began to play like the Cowboys of three years ago. A tango offense (one, two, three, kick), faulty pass coverage and virtually no pressure on Simms. The passes Simms did complete were ugly. How many times did his receivers have to jump up for a wild throw, leaving themselves wide open to the oncoming Dallas defensive backs?

Somehow the Cowboys managed to make Simms look like a superstar, something he's never been. Simms has always been a great leader, but never a great quarterback, Super Bowl ring or not.

The Giants scored another touchdown five minutes into the fourth quarter, cutting the deficit to 34-21. Midway through the ty. But money players, and the Cowboys seem to think they have their share, shouldn't lose their intensity, not 28 points worth at least.

And Johnson should've pulled his starters with a 34-0 lead and let his reserves play. Reason No. 1: Why risk injury to key players like Emmitt Smith and Troy Aikman? Reason No. 2: to insure you don't have a letdown, put in those young second-teenagers. They want to play, and are eager to impress that fact upon the coaching staff.

Plus with fresh defensive linemen, you're apt to get a better pass rush, and the Cowboys knew the Giants had to pass. The only Dallas starter that exhibited intensity the entire game was Charles Haley. He played for the San Francisco 49ers and he's got two Super Bowl rings. He knows about intensity.

Maybe the Cowboys learned something about intensity Sunday.

Reds' win over Braves may be too little, too late

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

For Pittsburgh and Montreal, this series is definitely a showdown. For the Atlanta Braves, though, their tussle with Cincinnati is more like a slowdown.

The Pirates and Expos, who'll finally play each other tonight after nearly a summer's worth of watching scoreboards, both won Tuesday night to set up a final run at the NL East.

In the West, however, the first-place Braves continued to shuffle along, knowing time is running out for Cincinnati. Even a 4-2 loss to the second-place Reds on Tuesday night still seemed like just a minor delay toward Atlanta's second-straight title.

Reds 4, Braves 2
Atlanta's number for clinching the West stayed at 10 as Dan Wilson doubled home two runs in the eighth off Steve Avery (10-10). The Braves are 0-7 at Riverfront Stadium this season, while Avery is 1-5 with a 7.20 ERA there in seven career starts.

Tim Belcher (12-14) gave up four hits over eight innings, including solo homers by Jeff Blauser, his 12th, and Ron Gant, his 14th, for his first win since Aug. 25. Rob Dibble struck out the side for his 20th save.

Pirates 4, Cardinals 2
Pittsburgh got consecutive homers from Barry Bonds and Jeff King in the sixth inning to beat St. Louis for the 12th straight time.

Astros 9, Giants 6
Jeff Bagwell's three-run homer in the 11th inning was his fifth hit of the game and helped Houston overcome a five-run lead.

Bagwell's 15th homer, a two-out shot to center field in the Astrodome off reliever Steve Reed, followed consecutive singles allowed by loser Dave Righetti (2-6).

Bagwell was 5 for 6 for the game and became the first Houston player with five hits since Billy Hatcher on May 20, 1988.

Doug Jones (9-8) worked three innings, allowing a run on two hits, for the victory.

Expos 3, Phillies 0
Ken Hill (16-8) rebounded from a poor start last week to shut down Philadelphia on three hits over eight innings. Hill lasted just 2 2-3 innings in a 10-3 loss to St. Louis on Sept. 9.

Borden County athletes head Honor Roll

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

For the second week in a row, a pair of athletes from the same school come away with top honors for play in last week's football action.

The first week of the season it was the Stanton combination of Odie Saldivar and Ricky Lucas. This week it's Borden County's John Paul Harris and Clint Wills.

Wills, a senior running back, played an outstanding game in Borden County's 45-13 win over Grady. In the season-opener two weeks ago he gained 199 yards against New Home. Against Grady he was even better, carrying 27 times for 209 yards and six touchdowns. He had scoring runs of 1, 4, 5, 7 and 35 yards. He also caught a 22-yard scoring pass.

Wills also got into the act defensively. After a Grady touchdown, he intercepted the conversion pass at the one-yard line. Seventy-four yards later he was tackled but lateraled back to Harris, who went the final five yards for a one-point score. For his performance, Wills is the Crossroads Country Offensive Player of the Week.

Harris, a senior cornerback, made life miserable for the Grady passing attack. He picked off three Grady passes and contributed nine tackles. He's the Crossroads Country Defensive Player of the Week.

Other top defensive performances were:

- In Garden City's 7-6 win over Ozona, safety Jody Bradford picked off a crucial two-point conversion attempt and made eight tackles; middle linebacker Matt Seidenberger made 15 tackles.

- In Coahoma's 16-6 win over Rotan, linebacker Chris Schneider made 23 tackles; tackle Terry Don Martinez made 12 tackles; end Murphy Henry made 13 tackles and got one quarterback sack and safety Juan Ruiz made seven stops and picked off a pass.

- In Greenwood's 26-8 loss to Fort Stockton, end Shawn Sayles made 14 tackles and sacked the quarterback twice.

- In Borden County's win, end Richard Buchanan made seven tackles and recovered a fumble.

- In Grady's loss to Borden County, safety Shawn Rivas made 13 tackles.

- In Colorado City's 14-13 win over Stanton, cornerback Doug Conner made 12 tackles and strong safety Jim Lemons made 10 tackles.

- In Stanton's loss to C-City, noseguard Salvidar made 11 tackles, recovered a fumble and caused a fumble.

- In Big Spring's 25-6 loss to Lubbock Estacado, before leaving the game with a broken leg in the third quarter, end Marcus Yanez made eight tackles.

Top offensive performances included:

- In Garden City's win over Ozona, Jody Bradford carried 32 times for 155 yards and scored Garden City's only TD.

- In Coahoma's win over Rotan, fullback Steven New carried 11 times for 112 yards. Right guard Chris Gonzales graded out 88 percent, highest on the team.

- In Grady's loss to Borden County, Tommy Hewtty carried 17 times for 111 yards and returned six kicks for 137 yards.

- In Colorado City's win over Stanton, Ashley Walthall carried 25 times for 80 yards. As a safety on defense, he blocked a field goal and intercepted a pass.

- In Stanton's loss to C-City, tight end Robin Barnes caught three passes for 33 yards.

- In Big Spring's loss to Lubbock Estacado, tight end Oscar Cervantes caught six passes for 81 yards.

Coogs hope this one isn't a rout

DALLAS — Here are previews of this week's Southwest Conference football games:

ILLINOIS (2-0) at HOUSTON (0-1, 0-0 SWC), 11 a.m. (CDT) Saturday, ABC regional telecast — The series: The Illini and Cougars meet for just the second time in history. Last year, coach John Mackovic (now at Texas) guided UI past the Cougars 51-10 in Champaign. Though relative newcomers in their current positions, UI's Lou Tepper and Houston's John Jenkins have earned their spurs through outstanding years as assistant coaches. Tepper is 2-1 (second year) overall after coaching his first contest in last year's Hancock Bowl against UCLA. Jenkins is 14-9 (third year) overall as his entire head coaching career has been with the Cougars.

Jenkins assisted teams at Arkansas, Mississippi State and Pittsburgh in the college ranks before moving to Houston as offensive coordinator and run-and-shoot guru. Tepper assisted at Colorado, Virginia Tech, William and Mary, New Hampshire and Pitt before coming to Champaign. Illinois proved its explosiveness in last year's win over the Cougars and last week's triumph over Missouri 24-17. The Fighting Illini have a fine balance between the run and pass and feature an aggressive defense. Houston showed signs of continued defensive improvement by holding Tulsa to 28 points after the 1991 Cougars allowed 101 points in their final two, injury-riddled games. UI looks to QB Jason Verduzco, who finished ninth nationally in total offense last year with 2,781 net yards (including 2,825 passing yards), to propel the attack.

TEXAS A&M (3-0, 0-0 SWC) at MISSOURI (0-1), 1 p.m. (CDT) Saturday — The Aggies and Tigers have met twice previously, with A&M winning both contests. In 1957 coach Paul 'Bear' Bryant's Aggies blanked the Tigers 28-0, and Texas A&M shut out Missouri 12-0 in 1958. The Tigers' last game with a SWC opponent was a 47-21 loss at Baylor last fall. Aggies' coach R.C. Slocum is 30-9-1 (fourth year) for a .763 winning percentage, tops among all active SWC coaches. Tigers' mentor Bob Stull, who came to Columbia after a successful stint at Texas-El Paso, is 40-51-1 (ninth year) overall, 9-24-1 (fourth season) at Missouri. Neither coach has faced the other as a grid chief. The Aggies are steered for road play as they face their third opponent in four games away from the friendly confines of Kyle Field. The Tigers have continued the rebuilding process under Stull and lost a heartbreaker to national champion Colorado in 1990 at Columbia. With continued progress defensively, the home squad may have a strong say in the Big Eight Conference race. LB Marcus Buckley has overcome an arthritic ankle and leg condition to make game-turning plays for the Aggies.

UTAH STATE (0-2) at BAYLOR (0-2), 1 p.m. (CDT) Saturday — The Bears and Big West Conference Aggies have played once — in the frozen Gotham Bowl at New York's Polo Grounds in 1961. Baylor won 24-9 to help keep alive the SWC's streak of 7-0-1 in football contests against Utah State.

BU's coach Grant Teaff is 163-148-6 (30th year) overall, 127-102-6 (21st season) with the Bears, and 0-0 against Utah State. Teaff was in his second season of college coaching at McMurry in 1961 when these teams last battled. USU's Charlie Weatherbie, a former Oklahoma State quarterback, is 0-2 in his first season as a college mentor. Something has to give for two young teams that already have faced some of their toughest opposition of the 1992 season. Baylor threw 13 first-time starters into the fray in the season opener and had 14 student-athletes competing in their initial games as collegians in the opener.

TEXAS TECH (1-1, 0-0 SWC) at OREGON (0-2), 2:30 p.m. (CDT) Saturday — Oregon is playing its 14th game (7-6 mark) against a SWC rival and leads Tech 1-0 in the short series. The Ducks captured a 28-13 triumph last year at Jones Stadium and hope to duplicate the feat on regional television.

Tech's Spike Dykes is 31-27-1 (seventh year, all in Red Raider territory) while the Ducks' Rich Brooks stands 71-95-4 (16th season, all at OU). Both mentors have led recent teams to school pinnacles. Dykes guided Tech's 1989 edition to a 9-3 mark with an All-American Bowl win over Duke and paced the Red Raiders to their best SWC finish — tie for second in 1991 — since 1976.

RICE (0-1, 0-0 SWC) at DUKE (0-2), 6 p.m. (CDT) Saturday — Rice bids to become just the second SWC team in history to master the traditional basketball power on the football field. Duke leads the Owls 3-0 in a trio of games played from 1957-65 during the heydays for both teams.

SMU (1-1) at NEW MEXICO (1-1), 8:05 p.m. (CDT) Saturday — New Mexico beat TCU on Sept. 5 in those teams' first-ever engagement, and that 24-7 victory raised the Western Athletic Conference crew's record to 6-35-2 against SWC opponents. SMU is well-acquainted with the WAC as well, after facing such powers as Air Force and Brigham Young. Both relative newcomers to their present positions but seasoned from previous posts, the two coaches are known for fine offenses. SMU's Tom Rossley, offensive coordinator on the Hilltop and with the NFL Atlanta Falcons just prior to his 1991 head assignment, is 2-11 (second year).

Rule change slips past Irish coach

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Precious seconds slipped away while Lou Holtz talked tactics, with Rick Mirer, forgetting a rule change that starts the clock after a penalty.

"I don't think I've made that dumb a mistake on the sidelines in years," the Notre Dame coach said Tuesday.

Fifteen wasted seconds ran off before Mirer dashed back to throw a sidelines pass out of bounds to Lake Dawson. The clock left the Irish with seven seconds — too little time, too deep in their own territory.

The game Saturday ended in a 17-17 tie, the most notorious for the Irish since 1966 when No. 1 Notre Dame and No. 2 Michigan State tied 10-10.

The tie brought an immediate shower of boos from fans who noticed the ticking clock and were disappointed by a conservative drive. The criticism spread to punters and armchair quarterbacks, and shows little sign of abating this week.

Holtz defends his play calling in the final, failed series, but not his mental lapse.

"I know they changed the rule two years ago," he admits. "I know that today. I knew that Saturday before the game. But I cannot tell you why I did not know the clock was running."

He tries anyway. Michigan had pushed deep into

Notre Dame territory with little more than a minute left. Holtz expected to lose by a touchdown or at least a field goal.

Then Elvis Grbac threw the ball into Jeff Burris' hands at the Notre Dame 14, and with 1:05 remaining the Irish had a chance to win.

Holtz immediately identified a problem. Both punt snappers were injured and a substitute had literally rolled the ball across the grass to the punter. The coach saw a nightmare vision of three failed passes and a punt from near his own goal line.

"There was no way we were going to punt the football," Holtz said.

So Jerome Bettis ran seven yards, and with 35 seconds left Reggie Brooks ran for short yardage. But a procedure penalty brought the ball back. Holtz's mind slipped the tracks.

"I expected the clock to be stopped for a first down, then you go from there," he said.

"The penalty is where I drew a blank," he said, expecting the clock to stop, then start with the snap.

Holtz envisioned a different ending, one that might have muffled the critics if not brought the Irish a victory.

"If we don't get the penalty, and Lake's inbounds, and we throw it and catch it, then we're first-and-10 with 25 seconds to go on their 40 with one timeout," he said.

SMU player honored

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LUBBOCK — University of North Texas coach Dennis Parker watched the play and still couldn't believe it.

With his team driving for a tying touchdown against Southern Methodist and facing fourth-and-1 on SMU's 11, the play was practically a shoe-in.

Instead, SMU senior linebacker Bill Kiely shot through a gap in the offensive line and stuffed Ter-rance Brown for no gain, one of his 16 tackles in the game. For his effort, Kiely earned Southwest Conference defensive player of the week honors from The Associated Press.

Texas Tech wide receiver Lloyd Hill won AP's SWC offensive player of the week after catching a school record-tying 12 passes for 222 yards and a touchdown in Tech's 49-32 victory against Wyoming.

Steers break even at Abilene

ABILENE — Big Spring's tennis team finished 2-2 at the Abilene Cooper Team Tennis Tournament in Abilene last Friday and Saturday. The Steers record goes to 7-2 after a thirteenth place finish in the event.

"We were probably about the eighth best team there but we got a bad draw," coach Todd Spears said. "The team that got sixth we had beaten before. We played two of the best teams early (in the tournament)."

Big Spring began the tournament getting shutout by Cooper, 18-0. It then lost to San Antonio Clark 10-8, beat Cleburne 13-5 and El Paso High 18-0.

The Big Spring YMCA is still offering registration for the adult basketball, coed volleyball and flag football leagues.

Registration continues until Friday. For more information call 267-8234.

Browns QB will miss six weeks

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Browns quarterback Bernie Kosar will be out at least six weeks with a hairline fracture of his right ankle, suffered in the first half of Monday night's 27-23 loss to the Miami Dolphins.

Kosar, the Browns quarterback since 1985, was hit hard several times in the game, but wasn't sure when the injury occurred.

With the Browns trailing 20-3 early in the fourth quarter, Kosar threw touchdown passes of 6 yards to Michael Jackson and 3 yards to Mark Bavaro, sandwiched around David Brandon's 32-yard fumble return, rallying Cleveland to a 23-20 lead.

The Browns backup quarterback is Todd Philcox, who completed 20 of 49 passes for 317 yards with two touchdowns and two interceptions during the preseason. He appeared only briefly in four games last year.

Kosar led the Browns to four division titles in seven seasons, and set an NFL record last year by throwing 308 consecutive passes without an interception.

Pistons sign Terry Mills

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Pistons continued a major roster shakeup, signing Terry Mills to an offer sheet.

Mills, a former Michigan star, is a restricted free agent with New Jersey, which has 15 days to match the Pistons' offer, reported to be $10 million over five years.

Willis Reed, the Nets vice president of basketball operations, said the club would match any offer Mills received. Chuck Daly, the Nets new coach, also would like to sign Mills.

Mills, 24, who averaged 9 points and 5.5 rebounds last season, is a low-post scorer, something the Pistons have lacked since Bob Lanier.

Who is Truman's rightful heir? Bush, Clinton, neither

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO — Before President Bush and Bill Clinton spend too much time squabbling over who is the rightful heir to Harry S. Truman, they ought to talk to San Antonio's Bill Sinkin.

Sinkin — co-chairman of Truman's 1948 Bexar County campaign — said neither candidate has much in common with the president of yore.

"They seem to be reaching out for anything that seems to work, but I don't know how many people remember Truman," said Sinkin, 79. "And in 1948, when I was a Truman chairman, it was as if we had leprosy — nobody would come to our headquarters."

The tiff of the moment has caught political observers by surprise. The sight of two presidential candidates wrangling over who has more in common with a wartime president of nearly half-a-century ago seems to emphasize just how desperate the candidates are.

Bush, who acknowledges voting against Truman in 1948, has sought to compare himself to the "give 'em hell" president. He suggests that, as an underdog running against Congress, he is the rightful heir to the Truman legacy.

That might strike most folk as meaningless campaign rhetoric, but to Clinton, them's fighting words.

Clinton traveled on Labor Day to Truman's hometown of Independence, Mo., and mentioned Truman's name 21 times during an 18-minute speech. Clinton said he, like Truman, is the champion of the middle class and an advocate for civil rights.

What is this all about? "In 1988, it was the symbols that counted," said Richard Gambitta, a political scientist at UTSA.

And now, in 1992 — another presidential election year — substance again is taking a back seat to symbols.

"What most people remember about Harry Truman is that he came from behind and had an upset victory in 1948, when all the pollsters were saying Tom Dewey was going to win," said Jim Lunz, a Republican political consultant. "Harry got on his train and started giving them hell, and when it was over, he had won the election. I like the symbolism."

But non-political people are skeptical.

"Truman was an outspoken individual who tended to say what he thought," said Bob Parkinson, a 60-year-old sales clerk at Guadalupe Pit Smoked Meats. "I

'They seem to be reaching out for anything that seems to work, but I don't know how many people remember Truman. And in 1948, when I was a Truman chairman, it was as if we had leprosy — nobody would come to our headquarters.'

Bill Sinkin
Truman's campaign treasurer

don't think either candidate really comes close to Harry Truman."

Robert L. Cooper, the president of a real estate company that bears his name, agreed.

"Harry Truman was a good president, a character, and I can't think of any way either one of these people would have ever reminded me of Truman," Cooper said.

Some even say all this talk about Truman has provoked wishful thinking for a tougher candidate.

"George Bush is no Harry Truman, and neither is Bill Clinton," said Al Aleman, 50, president of Aleman Food Service. "The only Harry Truman I want is the Harry Truman who can help our economics, and right now there is no Harry Truman."

Partisans on both sides are joining the battle.

"Truman was a rip-roaring Democrat, and Bush is trying to steal our president," said Linda Chavez-Thompson, an international vice president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. "The Republicans should claim Nixon and Reagan."

But U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, steps gamely to his president's defense.

"Truman was an underdog who ran against a do-nothing Congress, and Bush is an underdog running against a gridlocked Congress," Smith said. "The president is right to invoke this image."

Skeptics insist this quest for symbols means nothing to the vast majority of voters.

"If I were Harry Truman, I'd be very disturbed," said Hal Barger, a professor of political science at Trinity University. "And I'm not sure how much appeal this has for Reagan Democrats and detached independent voters — they probably don't understand the analogy."

June Deason, a Republican consultant, agrees.

"I don't see anything wrong with comparing yourself to Harry Truman," Deason said. "But I do think most people would rather hear what both candidates have to say about 1992, for crying out loud."

Dog takes the bites for an 8-year-old

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOVELAND, Colo. — Lady's not a tramp, she's a heroine.

The 9-year-old Husky-retriever mix risked her life to save an 8-year-old girl from some rattlesnakes during a Labor Day outing near here, the youngster says.

Teresa Martinez says she heard the buzz of a rattlesnake — then several rattlers — as she led a pack of children into some bushes.

"I heard a twitching noise like a snake — I saw a snake," the girl recalled. "He didn't look very nice... It sounded like a monster coming up from the ground."

Lady, the family dog, bounded to the rescue.

"Lady got right in there for the kids," said Teresa's mother, Laura.

The dog attacked the snakes and Teresa ran for safety — but not before she saw one of the snakes strike Lady.

"It went up, came down, and then she bit," Teresa said.

Lady kept fighting the snakes until all the children were safe. The dog came away with three bites.

The family took Lady to a veterinary hospital about 15 miles away. By the time they arrived, Lady's head had swollen and one eye was shut, Teresa's mother said.

Lady was treated and is back home. Her face is shaved and sore, but she's getting a heroine's treatment — hot dogs with her medicine.

The controversy arose last week, with Ms. Guerrero's admission that she wasn't a graduate of the University of Texas-Austin, as she has claimed for 12 years.
It grew more heated this week. Monday, Republican opponent Barry Williamson produced literature from Ms. Guerrero's 1984 state House campaign which he said was prepared by her own advertising firm — that claimed she was a member of the prestigious Phi Beta Kappa honors society.
Then on Tuesday, the head of the UT Ex-Students Association said Ms. Guerrero was warned last year there were doubts about her claim to be a 1980 honors graduate.
"We told her that the university's records didn't match with her records and that when she had time, she ought to check it out," said Roy Vaughan, executive director of the ex-students' group.
The issue of her graduation status was discussed with Ms. Guerrero's husband, Leo, about 18 months ago.

North American dogs gather for the Grand

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Howard County has been chosen as the site for an elite hunting dog competition, known only as "The Grand."

On Oct. 30, 31 and Nov. 1, owners of hunting dogs from across the U.S. and Canada will gather in Big Spring for the event, said coordinator Melanie Gambrell.

The Permian Basin Hunting Retriever Club, of which Gambrell is an officer, is sponsoring the 1992 Fall Grand. "This is going to be wonderful," she said. "You're not going to have many chances to see something like this."

The public is invited to watch the "hunts." A gallery will be designated where spectators can watch as dogs compete in what has been termed "the retriever's superbowl." "We want to encourage everybody to come out," Gambrell said.

Nationally, the Hunting Retriever Club has two of these Grand hunting tests each year. With 56 clubs, the HRC boasts more than 2,000 members, according to club literature.

These clubs host HRC-sanctioned hunting contests throughout the year, Gambrell said. When a dog has acquired enough points in these events, it becomes a champion, and therefore is eligible to compete in The Grand.

Currently, there are over 460 HRC champions. There are, however, only 14 HRC Grand champions, said Claudine Christopher, Grand Hunt secretary. "They're not competing against each other, they're competing against the course," Christopher said.

The bull snakes are harmless, but closely resemble rattlesnakes in color and markings. Most importantly the harmless snakes make sounds very similar to their deadly cousins. They are the best choice for "de-snaking" dogs, according to HRC trainers.

The dogs will be attempting to pass the stringent test, which often is passed by only three or four dogs. It is possible, but unlikely, that all or none of the 100 expected dogs will complete the course.

Along with the dogs, more than 200 people are expected to spend several days in Big Spring. To acclimate their dogs to the Howard County environment, most retriever owners probably will compete in the local club's show during the weekend prior to the Grand, Christopher said.

To become a grand champion, each dog must have successfully completed two of the bi-annual Grands, and have collected 240 points from other HRC events. To be invited to The Grand, a dog must have acquired more than 100 such points.

The first day of the three-day event is scheduled to take place near Knott. For information, call Gambrell at the Highland Animal Clinic, 267-8291; at home, 394-4251; or call Christopher at 267-1659.

Judges in the event must be experienced hunters and must pass HRC administered tests. Gun safety training and seminars are required.

Two different land and two different water tests are included. Along with what is known as an "upland" test for quarrying birds completes the five events in the Grand.

Kyra, the retriever being walked by Scott King of Forsan, reacts violently when the strike of a harmless bull snake is augmented by a mild electronic shock device attached to the collar. A dog so conditioned, will avoid rattlesnakes for years. The service is provided to HRC members, whose dogs spend a lot of time hunting in remote, grassy areas.

Feed For Need

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Eighth Annual "Feed For Need" Cookoff is scheduled for Oct. 3, at the Midland County Exhibit Building.

Permian Basin Cookoff Inc., which has donated more than $85,000 to local charities, is hosting the cookoff.

"We invite you, your friends and family to come join us for a day of fun, games, door prizes, a silent auction and lots of great barbecue," said PBC president Judy Makowsky.

"We hope to receive your support this year by your sponsorship, contribution and cook-off team entries," she said.

All proceeds from the PBC are distributed within the Permian Basin. The primary recipients of net proceeds for 1992 are The Epilepsy Association of West Texas, Make-A-Wish Foundation, Allison Cancer Center Look-Good-Feel-Good Shop and the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Committee.

Judging times and guidelines for the chili, brisket, fajita, and pork rib cooking is available by calling Mike Thornton at 684-5531, or Makowsky at 686-4613.

Trophies will be awarded for first-through-fourth-place cooking entries, first-through-third-place showmanship and first-through-third-place for overall team/brig, Makowsky said.

Entries must be mailed by Sept. 29. Chili teams must supply three gallons of chili, brisket teams must supply 25 pounds of brisket, fajita teams must supply 25 pounds of fajita meat and rib teams must supply 25 pounds of pork ribs.

The exhibit building is located on East Highway 80 in Midland.

Fantasia

Cynda Williams plays the role of Fantasia, who is drawn into a vicious Los Angeles dope gang, then steals their money and returns to her Arkansas home town in the I.R.S. Releasing film, "One False Move." The film was destined to a life at video stores until critics such as Roger Ebert and Gene Siskel, who gave the film two thumbs up, rescued it for release in theaters.

NEW YORK — Here is an excerpt from Darius James' novel, "Negrophobia":

"Peering over the plane of her Wayfarer frames, Bubbles stares into the surrounding darkness.

"The floor of the factory is heaped with radiant piles of paint pigment. Misty and eerily luminous, the piles spill in all directions, joined by a confluence of vaporous, variegated lines.

"Phosphorescent paw prints track the dust over the floor. Green eyes gleam in the gloam. And multiply in kaleidoscopic unform.

"Glyphs shift in and out of focus, in a fuzzy, fluorescent glow, squirming with repellent underlife, as if maggots feeding in the furrows of moldering flesh."

Food

Is it truly healthy? Don't trust the label

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Consumer groups want to sharply limit use of the word "healthy" on food packages, allowing it only to describe meals that provide a variety of nutrients and are low in fat, cholesterol and sodium.

Allowing its use too liberally would negate the Food and Drug Administration's work to produce package labels that give consumers standardized and reliable information about what's inside, said Allen Rosenfeld of Public Voice for Food and Health Policy.

"Its power as a marketing tool dwarfs all other individual nutrient claims," Ellen Haas, executive director of Public Voice, one of the consumer groups trying to guide the FDA as it finishes work on new food labels.

The term "healthy" appears on at least 150 different products, and a survey by the National Consumer League shows that more than half of Americans think products labeled "healthy" are better than others, she said.

But the food industry says "healthy" means different things in different contexts.

"Such a familiar and consumer-friendly word as 'healthy' should not be regulated by FDA so that it could be banned from the food label," said Robbie Curry of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, which represents product makers who sell to grocery stores.

Advocates of regulation want "healthy" foods to:

—Contain ingredients from three or more food groups.

—Meet FDA's definitions for low in fat, saturated fat, cholesterol and sodium.

—And meet FDA's definition for

A survey by the National Consumer League shows that more than half of Americans think products labeled "healthy" are better than others.

being high in at least one of the following: vitamin A, vitamin C, calcium or iron.

The FDA's final rules on package labels for literally every nonmeat packaged food in the supermarket are to be published this November in compliance with the National Labeling and Education Act.

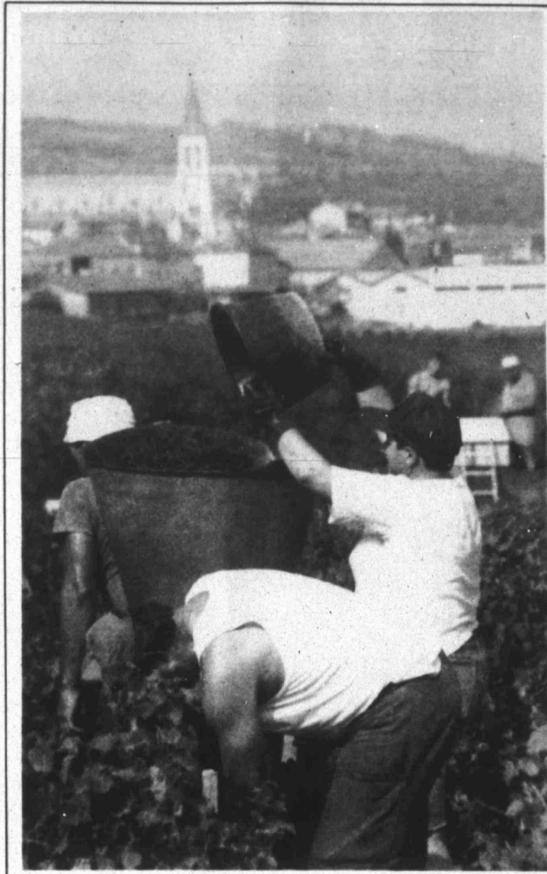

The law says food companies must have the new labels on their goods by next May, though it allows some flexibility for an extension that the government, under pressure from the food industry, is expected to grant.

The FDA also has been reviewing public comment on its other proposed definitions and could make some adjustments. Here are some of the proposed meanings for popular food terms:

—Free: Less than five calories; less than 0.5 grams of sugar; less than 5 milligrams of cholesterol; and 2 grams of saturated fat — each per serving.

—Low: Less than 140 milligrams of sodium; less than 40 calories; 3 grams or less of fat; 1 gram or less of saturated fat and not more than 15 percent of calories from saturated fat; 20 milligrams or less of cholesterol; and 2 grams or less of saturated fat — each per 100 grams of food.

—High: More than 20 percent of the amount recommended for daily eating, as in high-fiber.

Wine time

Grape pickers harvest grapes from the Beaujolais vines near the Fleurie village, in central France Sunday, the first day of the harvest for Beaujolais grapes to make the popular wine. This year's crop should be much smaller than normal, as more than half of the grapes were destroyed by frost last July.

Easy entertaining

As I have said before, casseroles are my favorite meals. They are easy to prepare, time savers, and delicious. They can be served as an appetizer, an easy-to-fix brunch, a delicious main dish, a vegetable side dish and an appealing dessert. And if there are leftovers, they can be put in the refrigerator and then later warmed up in the oven or microwave.

And when you are entertaining, they can't be beat. Many of them can be prepared ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator. When your guests arrive, just pop them in the oven and spend time with your guests, instead of in the kitchen.

Casseroles are perfect for buffet dinners also, because of their ease in serving.

Today, we will start with a:
BAKED FRUIT TOAST CASSEROLE

1/4 cup melted margarine
1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)
1 8-oz. can crushed pineapple (drained)
6 slices white bread
2 eggs
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 tsp. salt

First, mix the margarine, brown sugar and pineapple. Spread this mixture in the bottom of a 13 X 9 casserole dish. Next, top with the bread. Now beat the eggs, milk and salt together and pour over the bread. Bake uncovered at 325 degrees for about 25 minutes or until golden brown. Let this cool slightly and invert on a heated platter.

If you don't want to use pineapple, you can use sweetened cherries or other fruit. A breakfast or brunch that is fast, simple and delicious.

Now for lunch, we will be having another casserole. This is one I'm sure you and the entire family will enjoy. It's inexpensive, fast and delicious. I just call it:

CAJUN WEENIES
8 slices diced bacon
3 cups minced onion
1 can (16-Oz.) tomatoes
3/4 tsp. salt

1/4 tsp. pepper
1 lb. weenies

Fry the bacon and onion in a large skillet until the bacon is crisp and the onion is tender. Now drain off all but two tablespoons fat. Next, stir in the tomatoes, salt and pepper. Heat to boiling, then reduce the heat and simmer for about fifteen minutes, stirring occasionally. Cover tightly and simmer for about another fifteen minutes. Everybody likes this one. You will, too.

Now for a dessert. One with fruit will just fit the bill after that meal of "Cajun Weenies". This one is a:

GREEN AND GOLD IN SOUR CREAM

2 cups green seedless grapes
1 Mix the grapes and pineapple chunks, reserving one tablespoon of the brown sugar. Stir in the remaining brown sugar into the sour cream. Mix this with the fruit and chill. Just before you serve, sprinkle with the remaining sugar.

This is a dessert that you can substitute various fruits. It's fast, easy to prepare, and not only looks, but tastes delicious.

Tahoka family collects classic recipes

HERALD STAFF REPORT

A Tahoka mother and daughters team of cookbook writers brought their creation, "Symphony of Flavors" to Big Spring recently to share some of its classic recipes with local readers.

The book, by Christine Martin Askew and her daughters, Sirita Inklebarger and Debbie Caswell, is billed as "especially for newlyweds." Askew said as a young married woman, she cooked three hot meals a day and often two or three pies or cakes a week.

She admits she made a lot of mistakes, but along the way collected a great number of "classic" recipes from a variety of sources.

"When we finally began our project, it took the three of us a year to finish," she said. "A lot of the recipes were so old, had been around so long, we forgot where we got them."

Some of her personal favorites in the book are the Border Patrol Special, a casserole that layers a blend of hamburger, vegetable and chicken soups, cheese, and flour tortillas for a hot, one-dish meal; and the quick, microwavable, Almond Bark Clusters, using some popular cereals in an unusual combination.

Border Patrol Special
2 lb. ground hamburger
1 chopped onion
1 can cream of mushroom or asparagus soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can Cheddar cheese soup
1 can chopped pimientos
1 (8 oz.) can green chilies
1 large package flour tortillas
1 1/2 lb. grated Velveeta cheese

1/4 lb. grated mozzarella cheese
Brown meat and onion. Mix soups together and add pimientos and green chilies. Form layers of the meat mixture, tortillas (torn in pieces), soup mixture, and cheese. Begin layering again, starting with meat. Bake in a 13x9-inch baking dish at 350 degrees until bubbly and brown.

Almond Bark Clusters
1 (24 oz.) pkg. white almond bark
2 cups chopped pecans
2 cups Rice Krispies cereal
2 cups Captain Crunch cereal
Melt almond bark in microwave in a large bowl. Add other ingredients and mix until well coated. Drop by spoonfuls onto wax paper. The Tahoka cooks' book is available in Big Spring at the Accent Shoppe and Dunlap's.

Men see her scars as just part of her

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Inhibited and Embarrassed" not to worry about her mastectomy scars. Her potential lover might have a few problems of his own. She'd be lucky to find anybody in even near mint condition. Many of us, both male and female, in the fifty-something age range have had organs lopped off, bypassed, reamed out, and otherwise rearranged.

Any man who would reject a woman because of her scars or an absent breast is a man from whom she should be fleeing as fast as she can.

If I were a widower, I'd consider myself lucky to meet a gem of a lady who had a record of a successful, loving marriage, had won a battle against cancer, had endured the trials of widowhood and who now has the spunk to remarry. A great big hug to her and congratulations to the lucky man who finds her. — S.G.B. IN CALIFORNIA years ago.

Last March, she lost her right breast. Did it make any difference to me? Not a bit! I thank God every day for her life. I love her for what she is, not for what she looks like. Besides, we have known each other since we were 13 — and she didn't have any then, and it didn't make any difference. — BOB LONG, SACRAMENTO

DEAR ABBY: First of all, let me tell you that I am a male and a nudist, and I have seen women of all shapes and sizes — some have had mastectomies. There is one thing I learned from being a nudist, and that is to respect people for what they are, not for what they have, or what they look like. People who carry scars from surgery shouldn't feel embarrassed — they are "badges of honor" awarded to survivors of a life-and-death battle. — NASHVILLE, TENN.

DEAR ABBY: Some years ago, I met a woman I found attractive. She was hesitant to get involved, and finally confessed that she thought I might be turned off by the scars she carried following her mastectomy. I told her I had a few scars of my own across my back and across my chest from a VC grenade ambush I earned along with a Purple Heart and a Bronze Star. I confessed that while recovering in a VA hospital, I worried that my scars would turn women off. I worried in vain. We accepted each other for what we were — not how we looked. This is the second marriage for both of us, and we couldn't be happier. — AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN

FOR THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your fortunes will rise rapidly — and so will your power. A reconciliation is possible between a parent and child. Try to make fewer demands on those closest to your heart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A mysterious stranger has recently appeared in your life. Become better acquainted before you make a major decision. Promote a business transaction that promises you a good profit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Morning is the best time to gather the facts you need. A quiet afternoon will help you make important decisions. Not only your interest, but your heart, may be captured today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The whole day appears to be yours to plan. Indulge in your favorite pastime. Quick thinking backed by undeniable talent should convince the most stubborn skeptic.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Something emerges to point the way to a clever financial solution. If you should come up with a new start on things, keep your observations under wraps until the right moment.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): All signs indicate that you are on the right track. Keep up the good work! Do not hesitate to call on your dear ones for help. Doing so will defuse sibling rivalry.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The air at work could be highly charged today. Proceed with caution. You may have to sacrifice or postpone certain career goals in order to pay more attention to offspring.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If productivity rises, the resulting financial gains could help you discharge a pressing obligation.

The closer two allies work together, the easier it will be to cope with difficult problems.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An important issue may knock on your door. You might not know how to answer. Seek the counsel of experts. Your popularity soars like an eagle when you get out and mingle.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hold on tight; when unexpected travel or communications snags loom, you must be razor sharp. A special event could offer both thrills and a small mystery.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A new ally has the charged-up energy you admire. Work, play or enjoy sports together. Cap the day off with an evening of at-home pleasures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your mood should be much brighter today, making it easier for you to find common ground with others. Start exploring and discussing an innovative idea.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stick to the job at hand until the finishing touches have been applied and everyone is satisfied. Dismiss any second thoughts. Decisive action puts you in the driver's seat.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are Nightly intuitive and quick to play their hunches. Yet these Virgos refuse to be rushed when making important decisions. Analytical and thorough, they like to examine issues from every angle. Their concern for detail makes them wonderful candidates for a career in accounting, business or science. They have a special knack for making do with what they have. Count on these enterprising Virgos to be self-employed at some point in their lives.

PUBLIC NOTICE

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS

You are hereby notified that ARCO OIL & GAS CO. has applied for Texas Air Control Board (TACB) Permit No. 21582. This permit, if approved, will authorize construction of an EMERGENCY FLARE in COAHOMA, HOWARD COUNTY, Texas. The location of the facility is THE G.M. DODGE ESTATE SECTION 11 TANK BATTERY, ONE-HALF MILE SOUTH OF 1820 ON EAST HOWARD FIELD ROAD. This facility will emit the following air contaminants: volatile organic compounds, hydrogen sulfide, sulfur oxides, nitrogen oxides, and carbon monoxide. A copy of all materials in the public file is available for inspection and reproduction at the TACB Regional Office at 1901 East 37th Street, Suite 101, Odessa, Texas 79762, telephone (915) 367-3871, and at the TACB Central Office, 12124 Park 35 Circle, Austin, Texas 78753, telephone (512) 908-1000. Inquiries about the permit application should be directed to the TACB Regional Office in Austin or the TACB Odessa Regional Office. You may submit written comments concerning the permit application to the TACB Executive Director in Austin. All written comments received within 30 days after the second publication of this notice shall be considered by the Executive Director in determining whether to issue or not issue the permit. All written comments will be made available for public inspection at the TACB Central Office in Austin. This notice is to be published on September 15 and September 16, 1992.

Any person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the proposed facility may request the Board to hold an informal public meeting and/or contested case hearing on the permit application pursuant to Section 382.06(d) of the Texas Health and Safety Code. The Board is not required to hold a contested case hearing if the basis of a request is determined to be unreasonable. All requests for a contested case hearing must be received in writing within the 30-day comment period regardless of whether an informal public meeting has been held or scheduled on this matter.

Before a permit can be issued for this facility, the applicant must demonstrate that all emission sources are in compliance with all TACB Rules and Regulations and all applicable Federal Regulations. This includes the application of "best available control technology" to each new or modified emission source and compliance with all ambient air quality standards.
