Chamber's quarterly luncheon set for Oct. 6

Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's Quarterly Luncheon will be Oct. 6 in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The luncheon starts at 11:45 a.m.

The program will focus on recognition of the local educational system and setting goals for Partnership 2000, a national education program.

Tickets are $6.75 per person and need to be picked up at the chamber offices, 215 West 3rd St., prior to the luncheon. Season ticket holders must make reservations by calling 263-7641.

D-FY-IT car wash set

Members of the Coahoma D-FY-IT (Drug Free Youth In Texas) are having a car wash to raise funds for the club from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday. The service is offered for $5 per car and $7 per van. It will be in the 200 block of North 1st Street in Coahoma.

The parking lot, a common meeting place for Coahoma youth, is being donated for the event by the owners of the Lil' Super store in Coahoma.

The D-FY-IT members are planning to clean the parking lot in return for its use, said D-FY-IT board member Woody Howell.

The Coahoma club has about 300 members from grades seven to 11, he said.

Friends of Mountain meet

Friends of the Mountain, a group of citizens concerned about Scenic Mountain, will conduct its first meeting Sept. 29 at 2 p.m. at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Interested people are urged to attend the meeting or call Marae Brooks at 263-7641.

YMCA breaks ground Friday for new pool construction

BY GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

A ground-breaking ceremony for the Big Spring YMCA's new indoor swimming pool is scheduled for Friday at 10 a.m.

YMCA officials have been working to make the addition a reality for more than a year, said Gary Wollenzien, YMCA executive director

The new pool will be 75-feet long and 42-feet wide, therefore usable in all 25 yard swimming events. The existing pool is not regulation, and cannot be used for sanctioned competition, Wollenzien said. Housing the pool will be the

Horace Garrett Natatorium, a building with outer dimensions of 72-feet wide and 115-feet long. The natatorium will be added on to the son's account of a well-known investigation at a federal agency he headed.

In another front page story today, the Morning News reported that Guerrero, 34, had decided to resign because of the furor over exaggeration of her academic credentials from the University of Texas.

In public debates last week, Williamson took credit for an investigation into the hiring of nude and topless dancers for after-hours parties by staffers of the Minerals Management Service, an agency of the U.S. Department of the Interior.

However, federal documents show the inquiry was about a month old before he found out about it, the Morning News reported.

Instead of commending the whistleblower whose call to the FBI resulted in the investigation into misconduct, Williamson's department threatened the tipster with disciplinary actions "solely" because he had reported the problem, according to an administrative judge's ruling on the case.

No Corpus prayer vigil disappointing

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Area school administrators and students are surprised and disappointed that students in Corpus Christi schools last week were prohibited from participating in a nationwide morning prayer vigil.

Of 10 area school districts checked, including all three in Howard County, students at nine held the vigil with no problems reported. A vigil was not held in Colorado City but no policy would have prohibited it, the superintendent there said. A spokesperson in Garden City could not be reached.

Diversity captured in writing of Mexican-American authors

BY MARTHA E. FLORES Staff Writer

Novelist Rolando Hinojosa is one of more than 200 Mexican-American authors who capture more than one experience with their novels, short stories or poetry.

"People write about what they know," Hinojosa said during a telephone interview. "William Faulkner and Flannery O'Conner wrote about the south. Mexican-Americans write about their experiences. In a sense it is a mission because we want this included in American curriculum.'

He says there is a commonality of experience, but what part of the United States the writer is from shapes the perspective.

"Texas is more culturally conservative and so are its writers," he said. "The diversity of the race is evident because the experience of those in Texas will be completely different than those in Chicago or California.'

Hinojosa, now teaching at the University of Texas at Austin, has published 10 novels, numerous works of prose and has collaborated with other Mexican-American authors in works about curanderismo and agricultural workers in the Rio Grande.

His novels are intertwined and many of the characters appear in more than one. "The Klail City Death Trip series starts in 1749 and stops at 1970," Hinojosa said. "It has about 900 characters and is about what most novels are about - politics, religion and daily living.'

His work has been subjects of dissertations throughout the United States and abroad.

Hinojosa's novels may be obtained through inter-library loan at the Howard County Library and Howard College Library

He began writing at age 15 through a program offered at his high school in South Texas. His early work was in Spanish, but as other writers, his work is published in English mostly.

"One of the major in changes Mexican-American literature is that many authors no longer read or write Spanish," he said. "Younger writers have become more urbanized. They are retaining part of the old heritage but at the same time living and writing in their own contemporary times."

Much of his work has been published by Arte Publico, the oldest publisher of Hispanic minority authors. The publishing house has helped develop the audience for United States Hispanics by sponsoring book fairs, tours of writers, a quarterly newsletter and direct mail programs. Arte Publico's books are used as text books at colleges and universities throughout the United States.

Arte Publico was founded in Gary, Ind., as Rivista Chicano-Requena, a literary journal in 1972. The name changed in 1979 and the press moved to the University of Houston in 1980 the vigil, held annually before school hours at school campus flagpoles nationwide."

Corpus Christi students and parents were urged by a Dallas attorney of the Rutherford Institute, a pro-religious group based in Virginia, to take a legal stand on the issue because it could have repercussions in other areas, according to wire reports.

Last week, vigil gatherings at Corpus Christi's Moody and King high schools and a middle school were broke up by administrators who said a policy enacted by the school board in 1988 bars all noncurricular groups from assembling on campus.

"When I first read it, I felt like it was a poor decision," said Big Spring Independent School District Superintendent Bill McQueary. "They've got a problem down in Corpus Christi.

For one thing, McQueary pointed out, student councils and the Key Club are non-curricular groups. "So obviously Corpus Christi must not allow Key Club, student council

"That's impossible," Armstrong said of the policy. "You're going to have cliques and you're going to have clubs no matter what they do. It might be a Christian club or whatever.'

McQueary said, "Our policy is a limited open forum where we allow non-curricular groups to meet on our campus.'

Jimmy Campbell, the high school athletic trainer and sponsor of the student Fellowship of Christian Athletes/Bible Club, of which Armstrong is a member, was disappointed.

"I hate to see the kids not be allowed that opportunity. I just pray that they can get it worked out.

Officials at other area school districts made similar comments.

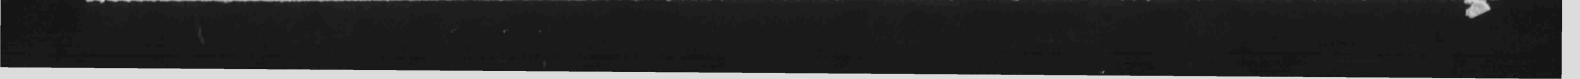

• "I really think that we may be headed in the wrong direction," said Sands ISD Superintendent Don Bryan, who grew up in Corpus Christi, graduated from high school there and later worked there, first as a coach in 1968 and later as an assistant principal at King High School as late as 1972.

"I don't see why they would oppose, it was early in the morning, he said.

Twenty years ago, Bryan said, the Corpus Christi school district had a "thought for the day" in which a quote from a famous person or the Bible was read or a short prayer held.

• "I don't know what Corpus" policy is but I'm disappointed," said Stanton ISD Superintendent John McGregor. "We were really kind of excited about it here."

Rains brought on the big ragweeds

Rough allergy season expected

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

It might be a good time to buy more stock in tissue companies as it looks to be a banner year for allergens in Texas.

A mild winter and heavier-thanusual summer rains have resulted in towering ragweed plants across the state, prompting an early onset of an allergy season that normally starts in mid-September and peaks in October.

Allergists say their offices have been inundated with patients seeking relief.

In the Houston area, a mild winter combined with heavy rain and some early cold fronts have kicked off the ragweed season about a month earlier than usual, said Dr. Glenn Kline, a partner with Allergy Associates of Houston.

He said the season, which began in mid-August, has brought many patients to his office with symptoms of itchy noses and eyes, plus asthma and wheezing in severe cases.

"Right now, the noses have just looked totally blocked off. They're so swollen on the inside people just can't breathe," said Kline.

The ragweed season lasts until the first frost, which usually comes in mid-November in the Houston area, he said.

Kline estimated that up to 10 percent of southeast Texas residents suffer from ragweed allergies. He said his office has been busy all year with mold allergies. "The ragweed's just been on top of that," Kline said.

In Central Texas, ragweed growth is expected to be followed by cedar pollen production.

The mountain cedar is a major problem," said Dr. David Hines, an Austin allergist. "There is so much of the cedar pollen that it a count of 364 for the same time last causes allergies. It usually starts year. about Christmas.

But in the past three days, Hines

Mold and fungus spores are also contributing to the suffering, said Senter

"Allergies don't usually create the need for hospitalization," he said. "But if people suffer with untreated allergies, a lot of them will get sinus infections, from which they can get asthma and bronchitis.

In West Texas, increased planting of milo and grain sorghum due to huge losses in cotton have created more woes for allergy sufferers, said Dr. Robert Mamlok, a Lubbock allergy specialist.

"We have more grains being harvested and that is an additional problem because it creates additional pollens and weed spores,' Mamlok said. "We always see a seasonal increase in pollen difficulties in the fall, but this year is among the more significant."

"The quantity of ragweed has been up so much for such an extended time that it is causing people who usually don't have allergy trouble to flare up," said Dr. Don Senter, an allergist in the Dallas suburb of Garland.

"And a lot of the people who have long-term allergy problems are really suffering this year," he said Wednesday.

Heavy rains earlier this year have caused ragweed to grow up to 10 feet high in fields and along waterways and railroad tracks, with the plants more pollen-laden than usual, Senter said.

Doctors in his allergy clinic are working double shifts for a standing-room-only crowd of patients, Senter said.

Senter, who keeps records for the American Academy of Allergy, said the total weed pollen count Wednesday was 511 grains per cubic meter of air, compared with

Motorist killed in chase; murder charges are filed

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO - Two burglary suspects have been charged with murder after their car struck and killed a motorcyclist while they were being pursued by Bexar County deputies.

Air Force Master Sgt. Ronald L. Smith, 40, died after the car occupied by the burglary suspects ran a red light and struck his motorcycle Wednesday, police said.

Smith, who was wearing a helmet, was thrown to the ground and his motorcycle was snapped in two, officer said.

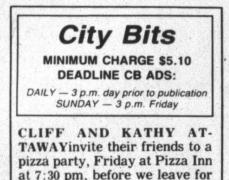

The 15-year Air Force veteran had been stationed at the Air Force Intelligence Command facility at Kelly Air Force Base since 1988.

Eva Lara Gonzales, 23, and John Pardel, 22, both of San Antonio were each charged with murder and three counts of burglary. Theywere being held in the Bexar County jail today in lieu of $2.5 million bonds each.

Ms. Gonzalez was identified as the driver of the car, deputies said. It was the second motorcycle fatality in the city in two days. San Antonio traffic officer Randall "Randy" Sisco, 45, died Tuesday when his motorcycle was sideswiped into a guardrail on Interstate 35. In January, two innocent people were killed after San Antonio police pursued a hit-and-run suspect who had fled the scene of an accident in which no one was injured.

Education commission recommends finetuning programs for migrants

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON - The National Commission on Migrant Education says federal programs designed to help the children of itinerant farm workers need to adapt to a changed migrant population.

The commission, created by Congress in 1988, recommended a finetuning of migrant education programs that were begun a quarter-century ago. Its recommendations were part of a study issued Wednesday.

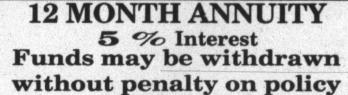

"I don't think we are calling for a total revamping. I think what we are asking for is modification in the existing programs,'' Linda Chavez, the commission's chairwoman, told reporters at a Capitol Hill briefing.

One key recognition is that the migrant worker population has become increasingly Hispanic in the 25 years since migrant education programs were implemented. Today, an estimated 94 percent of migrant workers are Hispanic, with 80 percent born in Mexico. The majority of the nation's estimated 600,000 migrant children are Hispanic where previously most were white or black, said Chavez, a former Reagan White House aide.

"This, of course, has made changes in the needs of the children," she said, noting that many migrant children speak little or no English.

The study painted a bleak picture for migrant children, noting that they live in poverty, isolated from the communities where their families search for work. Their education level is among the lowest of any occupational group while dropout rates are among the highest, the analysis found.

"Migrant children, unlike other children in our school system, come and go," Chavez said. "They are easily missed and easily forgotten.

Brownsville allergist Dr. Robert Lekach said an increasing number of South Texas residents have suffered from allergies this year, with the trend likely to continue.

WASHINGTON - The proposed Latino research group says.

The Southwest Voter Research Institute said Wednesday that Hispanics will reap some of the benefits while also being hurt disproportionately as the American work force adjusts to shifting trade patterns.

The conclusions were drawn from two studies conducted for the non-profit group based in San Antonio. The studies were released at a briefing organized by Reps. Esteban Torres, D-Calif., and Bill Richardson, D-N.M.

"It's not as good as it's being made out to be in terms of jobs, and it's not as bad as it's being made out to be," said Andrew Hernandez, the institute's president.

The Texas study, conducted by researchers at the University of Texas at San Antonio, projects that over five years the trade pact would result in a net gain of 1,617 jobs for Hispanics in the 37-county South Texas area.

The analysis finds that Hispanics will have less access than Anglos to new jobs created by increased trade with Mexico, with on average 1.23 jobs going to an Anglo for every job created for a Latino.

"Disproportionately, Mexican-Americans will lose more jobs than non Mexican-Americans," said Avelardo Valdez, one of the study's co-authors. "Anglos will disproportionately gain more jobs than non-Anglos will.'

That trend held in the California analysis conducted by the University of California at Los Angeles and at Berkeley, said Raul Hinojosa Ojeda, one of the study's authors

Hispanics comprise 23 percent of California' work force, but will account for 29 percent of the job loss related to the trade treaty, said osa, a UCLA profe rozze legislative bodies in Mexico, Canada and the United States. Congress is not expected to vote on the agreement before next summer.

The Southwest Voter Research Institute is touting its studies as the first to examine the pact's likely effect on Hispanics. The institute is undertaking similar studies for the rest of Texas, Arizona, Florida, Illinois, Michigan, New Mexico and New York.

Hernandez said his organization will not take a position on the trade treaty, but is disseminating information to keep Hispanic leaders informed.

"Over the last year we have seen a course change among Hispanic leaders and voters regarding NAF-TA," he said. "What was once a Latino consensus in favor of NAF-TA has eroded to a wait-and-see attitude, though Latinos still want to help Mexico.

The idea behind the trade treaty is not to aid Mexico, Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari said in a television interview to be aired Sunday on "John McLaughlin's One on One."

"We don't want aid, we want trade," Salinas told McLaughlin.

Salinas, who has staked his nation's economic future on passage of the treaty, said he would not be willing to renegotiate the pact if Democrat Bill Clinton wins the election.

Clinton has yet to announce his position on the agreement recently concluded after 14 months of negotiations. But some members of Congress, including House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, want the treaty renegotiated to strengthen worker and environmental safeguards. "I would say we have done a very good effort, but no more renegotiations," Salinas said. "This is a very serious agreement - serious and good for the three countries.'

A young Somali boy attempts to rouse his friend, who grimaces in pain at the slightest movement, in a feeding center some 175 miles west of Magadishu Wednesday. This area remains one of the hardest hit by the famine as rural dwellers continue to flock to feeding centers and kitchens run by foreign aid groups.

Economic growth anemic for quarter

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON - Consumer caution held economic growth in the April-June quarter to an anemic 1.5 percent annual rate, the government said today in its latest estimate of the gross domestic product.

Today's Commerce Department report on the increase in the seasonally adjusted total of all goods and services produced in the United States was a shade better than the 1.4 percent rate estimated a month ago.

Still, the change was too slight to alter economists' views about the continuing weakness of the economy, despite the fifth consecutive quarter of expansion following the actual shrinkage of output in 1990-91.

'Nothing has really changed to alter the basic landscape and that is we're in an economy that is growing too slowly for its sown good," said economist Paul Getman of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa.

Housing, business investment, trade and consumer spending were all slightly better than in last month's GDP estimate, while government spending and production for inventories were slightly less

Next month, the government will issue an early estimate of gross domestic product in the July-

September period. In advance, most analysts were expecting only a slight improvement.

It will be the last look at the overall economy before voters choose between President Bush and Democrat Bill Clinton.

"Barring a miracle, it would appear the calendar is running out for George Bush. We don't know why there should be any sudden pickup," said economist Robert G. Dederick of Northern Trust Co. in Chicago

The lackluster growth in the latest period follows a moderate increase of 2.9 percent at an annual rate in the January-March quarter. That's considered poor for a recovery period but it still was the best growth since the early months of the Bush administration.

American consumers, whose spending accounts for roughly twothirds of all economic activity, were behind the slowdown in the second quarter. Their spending edged down 0.1 percent after spurting 5.1 percent in the first quarter.

The decline in consumer spending encompassed a 2.1 percent drop for durable goods - big ticket items such as autos and appliances.

Business investment in new equipment recorded a large 24.1 percent gain in the second quarter. Business investment in buildings fell at 0.8 percent rate. Spending on housing rose 12.6 percent.

Rains brought on the big ragweeds

Rough allergy season expected

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

It might be a good time to buy more stock in tissue companies as it looks to be a banner year for allergens in Texas.

A mild winter and heavier-thanusual summer rains have resulted in towering ragweed plants across. the state, prompting an early onset of an allergy season that normally starts in mid-September and peaks in October.

Allergists say their offices have been inundated with patients seeking relief.

In the Houston area, a mild winter combined with heavy rain and some early cold fronts have kicked off the ragweed season about a month earlier than usual, said Dr. Glenn Kline, a partner with Allergy Associates of Houston.

He said the season, which began in mid-August, has brought many patients to his office with symptoms of itchy noses and eyes, plus asthma and wheezing in severe cases

"Right now, the noses have just looked totally blocked off. They're so swollen on the inside people just can't breathe," said Kline.

The ragweed season lasts until the first frost, which usually comes in mid-November in the Houston area, he said.

Kline estimated that up to 10 percent of southeast Texas residents suffer from ragweed allergies. He said his office has been busy all year with mold allergies. "The ragweed's just been on top of that," Kline said.

In Central Texas, ragweed growth is expected to be followed by cedar pollen production.

'The mountain cedar is a major problem." said Dr. David Hines, an Austin allergist. "There is so much of the cedar pollen that it causes allergies. It usually starts year. about Christmas.'

But in the past three days, Hines

Mold and fungus spores are also contributing to the suffering, said Senter

"Allergies don't usually create the need for hospitalization," he said. "But if people suffer with untreated allergies, a lot of them will get sinus infections, from which they can get asthma and bronchitis.

In West Texas, increased planting of milo and grain sorghum due to huge losses in cotton have created more woes for allergy sufferers, said Dr. Robert Mamlok, a Lubbock allergy specialist.

"We have more grains being harvested and that is an additional problem because it creates additional pollens and weed spores," Mamlok said. "We always see a seasonal increase in pollen difficulties in the fall, but this year is among the more significant.

"The quantity of ragweed has been up so much for such an extended time that it is causing people who usually don't have allergy trouble to flare up," said Dr. Don Senter, an allergist in the Dallas suburb of Garland.

"And a lot of the people who have long-term allergy problems are really suffering this year," he said Wednesday.

Heavy rains earlier this year have caused ragweed to grow up to 10 feet high in fields and along waterways and railroad tracks, with the plants more pollen-laden than usual, Senter said.

Doctors in his allergy clinic are working double shifts for a standing-room-only crowd of patients, Senter said:

Senter, who keeps records for the American Academy of Allergy, said the total weed pollen count Wednesday was 511 grains per cubic meter of air, compared with a count of 364 for the same time last

Education commission recommends finetuning programs for migrants

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON - The National Commission on Migrant Education says federal programs designed to help the children of itinerant farm workers need to adapt to a changed migrant population.

The commission, created by Congress in 1988, recommended a finetuning of migrant education programs that were begun a quarter-century ago. Its recommendations were part of a study issued Wednesday.

"I don't think we are calling for a total revamping. I think what we are asking for is modification in the existing programs," Linda Chavez, the commission's chairwoman, told reporters at a Capitol Hill briefing.

One key recognition is that the migrant worker population has become increasingly Hispanic in the 25 years since migrant education programs were implemented. Today, an estimated 94 percent of migrant workers are Hispanic, with 80 percent born in Mexico. The majority of the nation's estimated 600,000 migrant children are Hispanic where previously most were white or black, said Chavez, a former Reagan White House aide.

"This, of course, has made changes in the needs of the children," she said, noting that many migrant children speak little or no English.

The study painted a bleak picture for migrant children, noting that they live in poverty, isolated from the communities where their families search for work. Their education level is among the lowest of any occupational group while dropout rates are among the highest, the analysis found.

"Migrant children, unlike other children in our school system, come and go," Chavez said. "They are easily missed and easily forgotten.

Brownsville allergist Dr. Robert Lekach said an increasing number of South Texas residents have suffered from allergies this year, with the trend likely to continue.

North American Free Trade Agreement could mean both good California and South Texas, a Latino research group says.

The Southwest Voter Research Institute said Wednesday that Hispanics will reap some of the benefits while also being hurt disproportionately as the American work force adjusts to shifting trade patterns.

The conclusions were drawn from two studies conducted for the non-profit group based in San Antonio. The studies were released at a briefing organized by Reps. Esteban Torres, D-Calif., and Bill Richardson, D-N.M.

"It's not as good as it's being made out to be in terms of jobs, and it's not as bad as it's being made out to be," said Andrew Hernandez, the institute's president. The Texas study, conducted by researchers at the University of Texas at San Antonio, projects that over five years the trade pact would result in a net gain of 1,617 jobs for Hispanics in the 37-county South Texas area.

The analysis finds that Hispanics will have less access than Anglos to new jobs created by increased trade with Mexico, with on average 1.23 jobs going to an Anglo for every job created for a Latino.

"Disproportionately, Mexican-Americans will lose more jobs than non Mexican-Americans," said Avelardo Valdez, one of the study's co-authors. "Anglos will disproportionately gain more jobs than non-Anglos will.'

That trend held in the California analysis conducted by the University of California at Los Angeles and at Berkeley, said Raul Hinojosa Ojeda, one of the study's authors.

Hispanics comprise 23 percent of California' work force, but will account for 29 percent of the job loss related to the trade treaty, said a UCLA professor.

legislative bodies in Mexico, Canada and the United States. Congress is not expected to vote on the agreement before next summer.

The Southwest Voter Research Institute is touting its studies as the first to examine the pact's likely effect on Hispanics. The institute is undertaking similar studies for the rest of Texas, Arizona, Florida, Illinois, Michigan, New Mexico and New York.

Hernandez said his organization will not take a position on the trade treaty, but is disseminating information to keep Hispanic leaders informed.

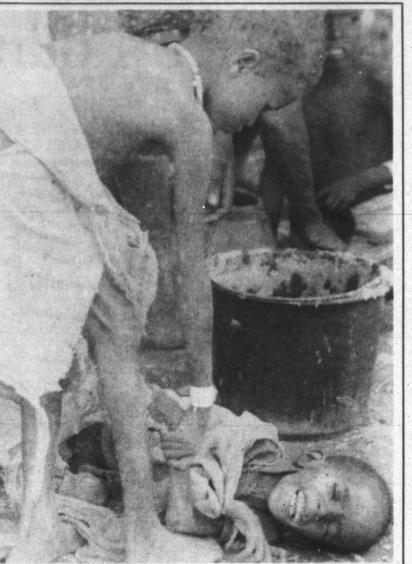

"Over the last year we have seen a course change among Hispanic leaders and voters regarding NAF-TA," he said. "What was once a Latino consensus in favor of NAF-TA has eroded to a wait-and-see attitude, though Latinos still want to help Mexico.

The idea behind the trade treaty is not to aid Mexico, Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari said in a television interview to be aired Sunday on "John McLaughlin's One on One."

"We don't want aid, we want trade," Salinas told McLaughlin.

Salinas, who has staked his nation's economic future on passage of the treaty, said he would not be willing to renegotiate the pact if Democrat Bill Clinton wins the election.

Clinton has yet to announce his position on the agreement recently concluded after 14 months of negotiations. But some members of Congress, including House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, want the treaty renegotiated to Hispanics also will account for 26 percent of the job gain, he said. strengthen worker and environmental safeguards. The California analysis projects a net gain of 9,000 Latino jobs in the "I would say we have done a very good effort, but no more renegotiations," Salinas said. "This is a very five years after implementation of serious agreement - serious and The treaty must be ratified by good for the three countries."

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

Texas voices

It may only be an illusion that presidential campaigns get worse every four years, but this year, there's no doubt that both candidates are operating in an economic wonderland, far from the ugly reality of a $330 billion deficit and a $4 trillion national debt.

George Bush pledges to cut taxes. Yes, he also says he wants to cut spending, but that will be far harder to do. And even if the spending cuts match the tax cuts, the debt will keep on growing.

Bill Clinton talks of raising taxes on the rich, but his proposed tax increase wouldn't come anywhere near paying for his other proposals for lower taxes and "higher investment'' (doublespeak for spending)

Deficits and the overall federal debt comprise the greatest single drag on the American economy, and one that is the fault of Republicans and Democrats alike. Any long-range economic plan that fails to tackle this issue seriously is irresponsible – a fair description of both candidates.

A father's plans go up in smoke

Voltaire

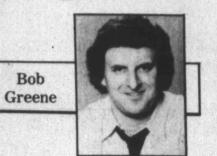

The father, who is 42 years old and owns a restaurant, wanted to take his daughter, who is 17 and about to be a senior in high school, to see Eric Clapton. "I became a fan of Clapton before I even knew his name," the father said. "It was around the time I was the same age my daughter is now. I heard some music by the band Cream, which Clapton was a member of, when I was a teen-ager, and I loved the music. My daughter loves Clapton's music, too, and it seemed that for the two of us to go to the concert together would be a terrific way of enjoying each other's company.

Clapton was going to be appearing at one of those big outdoor venues that are filled with fans all during the summer; this was a few weeks ago. There were no good seats available through conventional sources, so the father paid a scalper for two seats.

"I thought about taking my wife, but my wife isn't as big a Clapton fan as my daughter is," he said.

So the father and daughter set off for the outdoor concert. "We were excited for days before," he said. "We planned what souvenirs to buy, and tried to guess what songs he would be performing. I told her about all the concerts I had been to and she told me about the comparatively few she had been to.

"When we got there, the staff was very thorough in making sure that no one brought alcohol or tape recorders into the outdoor theater. They were helpful in making sure everyone found their seats. Everything seemed to be well-managed and controlled.

"When the lights went down and the concert started, the smell of marijuana filled the air within minutes of the first song. People in front of us openly passed a joint. The people on our left were lighting something in a small pipe. The smell of pot was coming from behind us, too. The man on our right waited perhaps 15 minutes before smoking his own pot. He was sitting right next to my daughter and looked to be about my age.

The father began to become more and more uncomfortable. "I didn't want my daughter to be in the middle of this," he said. "It was hard to blame the staff there was so much pot being smoked that there was no way they would have been able to stop it all. But by doing nothing, I felt as though I was condoning what was happening around us, and I didn't want my daughter to feel that I approved.'

But . . . if the father was a young man during the days of Clapton's tenure with Cream, was there not a lot of dope being smoked at the concerts and parties he used to attend?

"There was," he said. "It didn't seem to be quite so open back then - it seemed that people at least tried to hide what they were doing. But maybe I'm wrong. Maybe it was just as open then, and I'm remembering it differently.

He said that when he was a young man, he never used drugs "I was one of the scared kids, I guess I was one of those nerds" but that the drug use around him never particularly bothered him. "At a concert or a party when I was young, I would know it was going on, but it didn't ruin anything for me."

This year, at the Clapton concert, it did. "I was embarrassed," he said. "I had arranged this evening, I had brought my daughter, and I couldn't enjoy the concert because of what was going on. The night had been my idea, and I didn't want to be a part of this."

Was his daughter bothered by the marijuana around them? "I think she was bothered that I was bothered," he said. "She knew I was upset, and that made her feel bad.

On the way home, they talked about it. "I told her I was sorry that all the marijuana was being smoked around us at the concert," he said. "And she said to me, 'It wasn't as bad as I expected. There was much more pot at the Tesla concert earlier this summer '

He believes that she has never experimented with drugs. "I guess there's a chance that she will one of these days," he said. "But I just felt unhappy that it was going on around her while I was there.

But since he had been through this himself - since he had grown up during an era when drug use among young people was widespread - was he not confident that she, like he, would get through to adulthood OK? "I guess I'm just trying to protect her," he said.

Did he know what it was he was trying to protect her from? He laughed softly "Just from the big, bad world," he said.

Yet, despite the obstacles, we continue to endorse the concept of an independent counsel. Texans should have no excuse for not being signed up to vote in this presidential election year, according to a study by the League of Woman Voters.

The league's Voter Education Fund has released a national survey of state voter registration procedures. And Texas was among the tope five states cited for making registering easy and convenient. The other four were Maine, Minnesota, Oregon and Wisconsin, plus the District of Columbia.

Texas was listed as having several of the criteria the league regarded as necessary for a user-friendly system mail registration, sign-up at county registration offices, deputies, courthouse and special sites, and voluntary adult deputization. . . .

The Post strongly encourages every eligible citizen to register and vote. But these should be conscious, considered and voluntary acts by each individual. The electoral process should not be cheapened or trivialized by participation on whim or under coercion.

Stuff that takes you to tears

If you can listen to "The Year That Clayton Delaney Died" without crying, you are a hardhearted, money-grubbing, stonefaced son of a gun, and I don't like you. You might not care, but that would figure.

I wonder if songwriters know when they've rendered a classic. Did Tom T. Hall realize when he penned "Clayton Delaney" that he had struck gold? That many years later the introductory guitar chords alone would cause a grown, flinty-eyed woman to weep, no matter where she was, no matter how good things were going, or what she was doing, or with whom? I bet he did.

I bet he scribbled those lyrics on the back of a used envelope and felt good about those sad words the rest of the day. Probably took his wife out to eat and petted the dog extra hard and started shopping for a new pickup. That song addresses everything important in life: death, music, money, love, loyalty, fame, heroes, religion and hypocrisy. And it does so with a few simple words and strong images. It is poetry without pretension.

The inherent sadness comes with the idea of a child looking up to a man for all the right reasons, before that child has a chance to become a man, forget what's important and value another person for his wealth, or business acumen, or silk suit.

I punched in the Tom T. Hall tape by mistake the other day and had my usual bawl. The started me thinking of other things power-

The Robert Service poem "Yellow" and Tennyson's "Tears, Idle Tears" push the button. I would love to have heard John Huston read either of them; his was the best sad voice around.

There are other songs that make me cry. Almost anything by the real Hank Williams. Mahalia Jackson singing "What Child Is This?." The overture from "Camelot," the whine of a fiddle song from "The Civil War."

I get misty when I hear Percy Sledge sing "When A Man Loves A Woman," Willie on "Angel Flying Too Close to the Ground" and Joan Baez crooning "We Shall Overcome.

The mass Confederate burial trench at Shiloh is hard to pass without tears. So, too, is the small marker at Mt. Nebo Missionary Baptist Church in Philadelphia, Miss., honoring Schwerner, Goodman and Chaney — three young civil rights workers murdered and buried in an earthen dam.

Sometimes the most unlikely images prime the well: Lucille Ball, Kermit the Frog, Kodak television commercials, men's fedoras, men who usually wear fedoras without them, old Pintos, people alone in laundromats.

I get the sniffles at each rereading of "To Kill A Mockingbird" and "Of Mice and Men," not to mention "The Yearling" and "Turned Funny.

that probably play a bigger role in the problems this country is having.

What does family values mean? Neither camp has explained it. The only example we have been given is single motherhood is not good family values.

America is a dysfunctional country, the results of which are seen in many homes - single or two parent - halls of institutions for convicts, in the number of shrinks inhabiting this country, in the number of murdered children, abused children and adults, raped women and in hate crimes.

Is it a lack of those nebulous family values? Not entirely. I think it is more a lack of one basic value - respect. We don't respect people for their race, color, religion or simply as another human being struggling in this world.

Prejudice is still rampant. Kids are still taught to hate someone else because of a difference, to blame that difference for their problems. This hatred is carried for another generation.

Unfortunately, we have to have hate crime laws on the books because people refuse to respect another's beliefs. We have people. firm in their own beliefs, trying to force those beliefs on everyone else. Respect for people's ability to think for themselves is missing. Some Americans would like everyone to think just as they do as they try and force morality laws on the entire populace.

But, those people are not respecting my rights and those of many other Americans.

Lacking in respect for another's right to choose to belief, think, say what they want, we would prefer everyone to think like we do. Respect for people's ability to chose is lacking.

We refuse to accept people for what and who they are with all their shortcomings and strong points. Acceptance has never implied approval, just simply letting people be themselves. And respecting their rights.

It's easier to like someone who is just like us. It's harder to respect someone else's beliefs, accept that person as he is because we believe somehow our own beliefs will be questioned.

The beauty of America is the diversity. Diversity of cultures, beliefs, "Infinite diversity in infinite combination.'

But, that diversity should be respected, even sought after. 'R-e-s-p-e-c-t, find out what it means to me." R&B singer Aretha Franklin summed it up

One thing in O'Donnell's favor is the Screaming Eagles are coming off a very successful season. They went 10-2 last year, losing in the are area round of the playoffs to eventual Class A state champion Memphis 49-13. Gone are 18 starters from that team, only four starters return.

Forsan, which dropped from Class AA to A this year, is trying to snap a 13-game losing streak. The last Forsan victory was a 33-19 win over McCamey in November of 1990.

MEXICO CITY - Aurelio Lopez, whose relief pitching helped the Detroit Tigers and Houston Astros win championships, was fatally injured in a car accident.

Police said Lopez's car overturned Tuesday on a highway 300 miles north of Mexico City. He was thrown from the car and crushed by the vehicle. Lopez's wife Celia and another passenger were injured in the accident.

Lopez had his best years with the Tigers. He was 10-1 with 14 saves in 1984 when they won the American League pennant. He won games in the playoffs and the World Series, allowing one hit in three innings of two World Series games as the

After leaving baseball, Lopez, 44, Tigers beat the San Diego Padres in five games.

Lopez finished his career with the Astros in 1987, ending with a lifetime mark of 62-36, 93 saves and a 3.56 earned run average.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has asked the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) for approval to offer new optional call management services called Caller Identification Service (Caller ID) and Anonymous Call Rejection (ACR).

Caller ID is a new optional phone service which allows subscribers to see the phone number and/or name of most local calls before they answer the phone. Caller ID also allows the recording of the date, time, name and/or phone number of calls. Currently, Caller ID would work only on most local calls, not long distance calls. It would also require that a separate display unit be connected to the telephone. These units that attach to the telephone will be available from various retail vendors, including Southwestern Bell, at a cost starting at approximately $50.

Southwestern Bell is also proposing that all customers be able to "block," or stop their name/number from being transmitted and displayed on a Caller ID device, free of charge. You would have this option of "blocking" your name/number on each call free of charge. There would be no need to subscribe to this service. All customers would have this capability when Caller ID is introduced in their area.

If you want to block your name or number, you need only press *67 on your touch-tone pad (or dial 1167 from a rotary phone) before dialing the telephone number. The person you're calling would see displayed a message such as "private" or "anonymous" on their Caller ID display unit.

Southwestern Bell also proposes that gualified domestic violence and law enforcement groups have the option of free per-line blocking, or free per-call blocking.

Anonymous Call Rejection (ACR or "block the blocker") allows subscribers to automatically reject all calls that have been marked anonymous, or "blocked" by the person calling. It is not necessary to subscribe to Caller ID Name/Number to subscribe to ACR. With ACR, your telephone will not ring if the person calling you has "blocked" his/her name or number. The person calling whose identification is blocked will receive a message to hang up and call back with caller identification unblocked. Following are the proposed monthly rates for Caller ID and ACR.

Proposed Rates (monthly)*		C
	Residence	Business
Calling Number only	$6.50	$ 8.50
Calling Name only	$6.50	$ 8.50
Calling Name & Number	$8.00	$12.00
Anonymous Call Rejection	$3/$1	$3/$1

These rates are in addition to the initial installation charges and monthly basic service rate. For residence customers, installation charges are $2.70 per feature, with a maximum charge of $5.40. For business customers, the charges are $5.40 per feature, with a maximum charge of $10.75.

* Anonymous Call Rejection is $3 per month if purchased without Caller ID and is $1 per month when purchased with Caller ID Name or Number

This proceeding has been designated Docket No. 11362, and a hearing on the merits has been scheduled for November 16, 1992. The PUC has jurisdiction to consider this matter pursuant to Sections 16, 18, 37 and 38 of the Public Utility Regulatory Act (PURA). This application was filed pursuant to the provisions of the PUC's Substantive Rule 23.24. Among the issues that will be addressed in this proceeding is the legality of the Caller ID device and service under Texas wiretap laws.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the PUC as soon as possible. The deadline to intervene is October 26, 1992. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the PUC Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Thursday Notes

Steers TE ranked third in state

Big Spring Steers tight end Oscar Cervantes is still leading District 3-4A in receiving, according to the latest stats released by John Fulbright of the Pecos Enterprise.

Cervantes has caught 15 passes for a 20.1 yard average per catch. That makes him the state's third leading receiver, according to figures released by the Associated Press.

In district, Cervantes is kept company by teammates Tim Pearson and Pat Martinez, who rank second and third. Pearson has eight receptions for a 20.8 average and Martinez has 12 catches for a 13.0 average.

Big Spring quarterbacks Clay Klatt and Wes Hughes ranked second and third in passing behind Fort Stockton's Shawn Beeles. Klatt is 21 of 40 for 331 yards, three touchdowns and no interceptions. Hughes is 15 of 29 for 274 yards, four touchdowns and three interceptions. Beeles has completed 26 of 66 passes for 397 yards, four touchdowns and two interceptions.

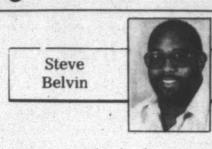

Big Spring's Lonnie Jackson ranks fifth in the rushing department, with 40 carries for 254 yards, an 6.4 average. Sweetwater's Chris Hines is the district's leading rusher with 420 yards on 66 carries.

The Steers rank second in the league in total offense, averaging 420 yards per game. That figure ranks Big Spring fifth in the state in total offense. Andrews, ranked third in the state, leads 3-4A, averaging 449 yards per contest.

If it's balance you want, Big Spring has it, averaging 222 yards per game in the air and 197 on the ground. The only other district team that shows that kind of balance is San Angelo Lake View, which is averaging 142 yards on the ground and 105 yards in the air.

In contrast, Andrews is averaging 371 yards rushing and 78 passing. Sweetwater is averaging 250 on the ground and 56 passing. Monahans is averaging 319 yards on the ground and 81 in the air.

Defensively the Steers rank last in the league, allowing 265 yards per game. Andrews also leads that department, allowing 147 yards per game, followed by Pecos (184) and Monahans (200).

The Caravan City Junior Tennis Tournament will be Oct. 3-4 at the Rio Pecos Tennis Courts in Carlsbad, N.M.

HOUSTON - Houston Oilers defensive tackle Ray Childress has created a foundation to take on a much tougher opponent than any quarterback: city crime.

The All-Pro announced Tuesday the creation of the Childress Foundation, a nonprofit group that will be funded by private donations including as much as $20,000 from Childress and his wife, Kara. The organization will attempt to steer children away from lives of crime.

"We intend to start a grassroots movement throughout our community," Childress said at a City Hall news conference.

Both coaches said it didn't take much planning for this game. 'Their offense is just like ours and they run the very same plays," said East. "In practice we just line up and run our own offense because that's just what they're going to do.

"It's not hard to get ready for each other," said Summers. "I think it will help both teams. Forsan is in the same boat we are, only they're starting a bunch of sophomores and this is a rebuilding year for us.

East said he's happy the offense is showing signs of life. "I feel like we're getting some offense now. We'll have to because we won't be able to shut anyone out." Forsan's leading rushers this year have been sophomores Jacoby Hopper and Chad Kemper, both have 120 yards on the ground.

Summers is also seeking better offensive production. "We've got some skill people back but it makes a lot of difference if when you have a new offensive line," he said. "We need to get some explosion off the offensive line, start moving people off the ball." Halfback Jason Summers is O'Donnell's leading rusher with 190 yards. Fullback Raymond Gonzales has gained 120 yards. East feels his team will be ready to play homecoming night. 'It's not too bad," he said. "We have dress-up day and stuff like that. But we don't have too many distractions. Game time is 8 p.m.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC), hereby gives notice of the Company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas for optional Custom Calling Services and Touch-tone service, effective March 15, 1993, unless otherwise determined by the PUC

These proposed rates will not increase or decrease the Company's overall revenues; the net effect will be neutral to the Company's annual revenues.

The Company proposes to decrease the rates for Touch-tone service for residential customers from $1.00 to 68 cents, and also to reduce the Touch-tone rates for business customers from $1.75 to $1.70. In addition, the Touch-tone rates for business PBX trunks will be reduced from $3.15 to $2.18.

This proposal to decrease the rates for Touch-tone service does not change the commitment that the Company made in the Docket No. 8585 Stipulation to reduce the rates for Touch-tone service in 1993.

The Custom Calling Services affected by the Company's application are optional telephone service arrangements that provide the following features: Call Waiting, Call Forwarding, Three Way Calling, Speed Calling-8 and Speed Calling-30. Following are the feature combinations and their current and proposed rates.

가 가 다니 것 같아?	Resi	dence	Busi	ness

Most of the Company's residence and business customers who subscribe to Custom Calling Features and Touch-tone service will be affected by the proposed rate restructuring.

It is expected that the restructuring of Custom Calling Features will result in a rate increase for approximately 2.9 million residence customers and 280,000 business customers. The reduction in rates for certain Custom Calling Services and Touch-tone Service will affect approximately 4.3 million residence customers and 1.7 million business customers.

This rate restructuring is expected to have a "revenue-neutral" effect on the Company's annual revenues. The proposed rate restructuring of Custom Calling Services will increase the Company's annual revenues by $19.8 million; while the reduction in Touch-tone rates will decrease the Company's annual revenues by $19.8 million.

This proceeding has been designated Docket No. 11382. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in this proceeding should notify the PUC as soon as possible. The deadline to intervene is October 30, 1992. A request to intervene, participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Youth heads to court for historic divorce from parents

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO, Fla. - A 12-year-old boy headed for court today in a precedent-setting bid to "divorce" either open a legal Pandora's box or afford kids more protection from abuse.

Gregory Kingsley wants to sever

Rachel Kingsley, left, and her attorney Jane Carey speak to media about Gregory Kingsley's suit to divorce his parents.

his parents, a case some say could ties with his parents for alleged early this year. abuse and abandonment and be adopted by the foster family he has lived with for nearly a year.

Circuit Judge Thomas S. Kirk, who was to hear the case without a jury, decided in a precedentsetting ruling in July that the boy has as much right to protect his interests as an adult and could take his parents to court.

Gregory said his mother gave him up at age 4 to his father, an abusive alcoholic. He said he was abandoned, then lived in a succession of foster homes. He said he has lived with his mother only seven months in the past eight years.

Rachel and Ralph Kingsley, who are separated, deny their son's allegations of abuse, neglect and abandonment. But Ralph Kingsley is not contesting the lawsuit and has said Gregory would be better off with the foster parents.

Mrs. Kingsley asked to have Gregory returned to her after his foster parents, George and Lizabeth Russ, moved to adopt him

"Right when she found out that I was happy and I wanted to stay where I was, she decided 'Oh, well, I don't want you to be adopted so I'm going to try to get you back,"" Gregory said on ABC's "20-20" last week.

"I never abused him. I never abandoned him," Mrs. Kingsley said earlier this week. "I asked for help and placed him with the state when I couldn't provide for him. I love him and he belongs with me and his brothers."

Mrs. Kingsley, 30, a waitress, claims she now has a stable life in St. Louis with her other sons, ages 8 and 10, and her fiance.

Jane Carey, Mrs. Kingsley's attorney, said in July that the boy's lawsuit set a dangerous precedent.

"There has to be a delineation between children and adults," she said. "We're changing the whole system here. (Children) are going to have the ability to sue over anything."

Children's rights advocates said a decision in the boy's favor would help open courtrooms to children who face the prospect of being returned to abusive and neglectful parents.

"It opens the door a little bit wider for kids to have control of their lives, especially abused kids," Karen Adams, national coordinator of the National Child Rights Alliance, said after the July ruling.

Clinics stock up for the flu season

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA - Health clinics and doctors will enter this year's flu season armed with an extra 18 millon doses of vaccine after last year's nationwide flu epidemic wiped out the supply early.

And federal health officials are -reminding people that now is the best time to get vaccinated in case the flu bug again attacks early this year.

The flu season typically begins in early winter, but last year it was in full swing by October. It raged at epidemic levels nationwide for about seven weeks from December to February.

"There's absolutely no way to predict, unfortunately, how bad the flu will get this year," said Nancy Cox, chief of the influenza branch at the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control.

"Since we don't know, people who could be in danger of complications from the flu, such as pneumonia, should get vaccinated early this fall."

The vaccine usually takes about two weeks to take effect. Along with last year's suffering came complaints that public clinics had run out of the vaccine. To avoid shortages this year, the nation's four vaccine manufacturers prepared an extra 18 million doses

About 50 million doses will be distributed to private doctors, clinics and military doctors, said Mike Williams, a biologist with the Food and Drug Administration, which tests the vaccines and approves their distribution.

That's up from 32 million doses last year.

About 90 percent of the vaccines had been shipped by this week, Williams said. Most of the vaccine about 85 percent - goes to private doctors, the CDC said.

While the vaccine will not always prevent a person from getting the flu, it is effective in reducing serious complications, such as viral pneumonia, which can be fatal.

Every year, the flu and flurelated pneumonia kill about 10,000 Americans.

This year's vaccine targets a different strain of the flu than last year's because the two major strains of flu generally alternate years, Ms. Cox said.

Flu Type A-H3N2 - commonly known as Beijing flu — usually targets the elderly but last year was rampant among all age groups, particularly schoolchildren.

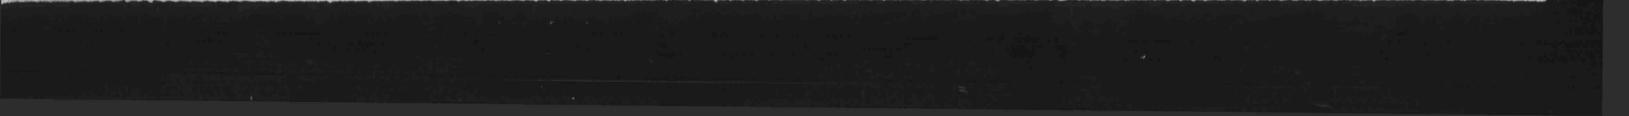

This year the vaccine is for Taiwan flu - officially called Type A-H1N1 - and the Texas flu, a lesscommon variety of the Taiwan strain.

The CDC recommends that anyone over age 65, anyone with heart or lung problems, and anyone with a weakened immune system, including people who are infected with the AIDS virus, get vaccinated.

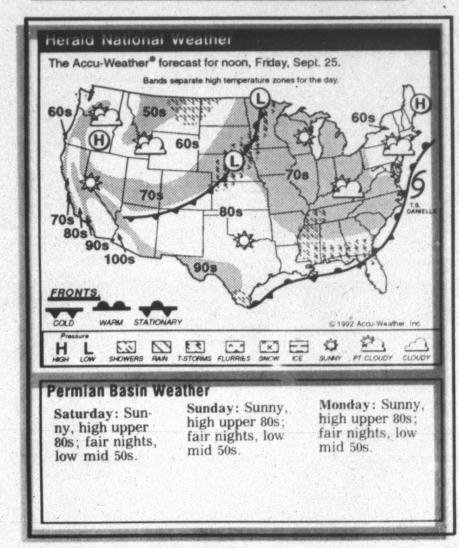

Some who suffered from the flu last year already were lining up for shots.

"The flu was so bad last year and everybody was so sick, I wanted to make sure it didn't happen again," said Lottie Anderson of Atlanta, who with her two children was vaccinated Tuesday. "We're getting the shots early."

I called – we called – in the FBI and the inspector general, and we said we want it stopped, and it stopped," Williamson said during a San Antonio debate.

"I called the FBI. We don't allow that kind of activity at MMS," Williamson said.

But the Morning News said records from the inspector general, an independent division of the Interior Department, and interviews with officials involved show that Williamson did not call either the FBI or the inspector general.

Instead, a whistleblower in the mineral agency's Dallas regional office in March of 1989 contacted the FBI, which referred the case to the inspector general's office, the newspaper reported.

Williams told the newspaper Wednesday that he was not trying to exaggerate his role in the investigation. He defended his actions and past statements, saying he took credit for the investigation because it was "my ultimate responsibility." He said he may have been unclear about the chain of events.

Disciplinary action was attempted against the whistleblower because Williamson had information the tipster might have been involved with some of the misconduct he reported, the GOP candidate told the Morning News.

"We felt like he should be treated similarly for some activities. The legal advice and the facts warranted, in our opinion, pursuing the matter with him. And he won,' Williamson said.

The questionable activity occurred before Williamson's tenure as agency director, which was from April 1989 to June 1991, the Morning News said.

Concerning Guerrero's possible resignation, the newspaper quoted an associate of the chairwoman as saying she will remain in the race for a full 6-year term, however, in hopes that voters in November will forgive her inflated resume and return her to office.

Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for the Guerrero campaign, would say only that Guerrero was considering her options and would make a public statement, possibly today

She has been under fire for the past two weeks following disclosures that she wasn't an honors graduate of UT as she had claimed for 12 years.

Street style Rap-inspired fashions clash with dress code

By CONNIE SWINNEY Staff Writer

As the seasons change so do the styles, and what better indication of what's "in" than a high school campus.

The current styles spell trouble, though, for some Big Spring High School students. In the name of style, they break the local dress code - a rule officials set for safety, modesty and cleanliness.

An urban, rap-inspired style has hit Big Spring and crosses all cultural lines. The street style includes wearing baseball caps backward, pants sagging below the waist, oversized clothes and sports team logos.

The trend is influenced by large, inner-city styles and Big Spring In-dependent School District educators feel the dress is a distraction and down-right indecent.

"We've had a pretty liberal dress code over the years," said Craig Fischer, a BSHS assistant principal.

'The problem we have is with the boys because they're practically exposing their behinds," he said. 'It's ridiculous. If I see it, I make them pull them up to the waist line.

As with any school code, students get a warning first. Then, they could face in-school suspension or be sent home to change clothes if they do not comply with the dress policy.

According to some youths wearing the style, the "pants-down-toolow" look is inspired by music entertainers - usually in the rap industry.

Although the current styles are inspired by inner city dress, school officials and students both agree, the local trend does not reflect gang activity.

Educators see no problems in students wearing their favorite team colors, but youths are prohibited from wearing alcohol and tobacco advertisements as well pictures or writing considered by educators to be offensive or vulgar. The students have stopped wearing the ads, but "we're seeing more

T-shirts that are vulgar," Fischer said. "It's not as a joke, just as dirty language.

A few years ago, school officials said they encountered students wearing bandanas and specific colors, trends pinpointed as gangrelated, he said.

Even with the policy, it seems students are attempting to see how far they can go to skate the rules. One student said being "in style" is motivation enough for him to dress like a rapper.

"That's the style, the rappers, just the way they dress and the way they sing makes them look good,' said Howard Foster, a BSHS sophomore. "It's just gangsters rap music."

SWCID students hail from other countries

Special to the Herald

The services of SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf have been sought by students from all parts of Texas and the U.S. for the last 12 years. Its name has become familiar to people all over the nation.

But officials were pleasantly surprised this year to discover two students from far off countries had enrolled for the fall - Shelly Williams of Belize and Rianja Rasandy of Madagascar.

Belize, a small country in Central America, is about 9,000 square miles and populated by more than 122,000 people. Williams said it is a beautiful country with a culture very different from America.

Her parents were concerned that Williams would not get a good education in Belize because of limited funding for people with disabilities. At age 5, she went to St. Rita School for the Deaf in Cincinnati, Ohio. She remained there 12 years until graduating last spring, visiting her parents twice a year.

Madagascar is an island country in the Indian Ocean, east of the African coast. The country has a school system for the deaf, but Rasandy said leaned more toward fun that education. His mother, an employee of the United Nations in New York, took him to the U.S.

He attended Model Secondary School for the Deaf in Washington, D.C. Rasandy got involved in sports and clubs that helped him develop leadership skills.

Both the new students came to SWCID through the advice of family and friends. Williams plans to continue on to a senior university for a degree after completing her associate's degree, and Rasandy said he is undecided about his future at present.

As for SWCID, officials said the administration could not be happier to welcome the two students.

Buffalos ready to tackle Iraan Commissioners, council two years.

It couldn't have been much fun playing football for the Stanton Buffalos last season.

The team finished a dismal 1-9, getting shut out five times and allowing oppenents to pile up 35 or more points in the same number of games.

But what a difference a year makes. In the first three weeks of more fun."

Picked by one publication to bring up the rear in District 6-2A, Grissom admits he and his players are now talking playoffs.

"If this thing works out and we can play well against Iraan (in this week's district opener) I think we can be a district contender," Grissom says.

And what's the secret to this year's turnaround? "Mostly just the fact that the 1992 season the Buffs (2-1) have kids are much more aggressive and play defense a lot better," not only surpassed last season's Grissom says. "(They) worked win total but equalled their total number of victories over the past hard in the offseason and worked on their strength and that really And that makes coach Bill helped. A simple look at the results of the Grissom and his players approach to practicing and playing football a first three games of the '91 and '92 seasons show the Buffalos are play-"I enjoy going to work and I know the kids do now," seconding better not only on defense but offense as well. Stanton gave up 64 year head coach Bill Grissom says. points to go 0-3 at the start of last "It (the winning) makes it a lot season compared to half that -32 points — the first three games of 92. On offense, the Buffs have 67 points this year compared to one touchdown after three games a season ago.

And Grissom says other than Greenwood, which beat the Buffs last year 20-7, his team's competition has been as good this year as last.

Most of the Buffs' offensive success can be attributed to a running game that has amassed 748 vards in the team's three games. The offensive line is full of seniors, but the offensive backfield - led by junior tailback Ricky Lucas - has plenty of underclassmen. 'We'll lose a lot of senior linemen (next year) but our skill spots are going to be sound for a couple of years," Grissom says. Quarterback J.J. Ortiz and fullback Jerele Lee are both sophomores. Grissom is hoping Iraan's lopsided wins over Stanton in the last two seasons will motivate his team this Friday in the 8 p.m. home game. "They've totally beat our old kids down the last two years (42-0

last year, 58-0 in '90)," Grissom says. "Our kids realize that and it should be an incentive (for them) to play well."

But win or lose against Iraan, the Buffs have learned how to win again, and that could make for some unpleasant surprises for the

to review landfill project

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

Martin County Commissioner's Court will be meeting jointly with the Stanton City Council to review items related to the landfill project.

The governmental bodies have been granted a permit for the facility, and will consider the design of the landfill at the meeting, which is scheduled for Sept. 28 at 7 p.m. at the courthouse.

Officials from Cap Rock Electrical Cooperative Inc. will discuss contracts for disposing of its waste at the landfill. Cap Rock will be requesting permission to dispose of materials such as waste poles and other wood, metal, glass and paper, said County Judge Bob Deavenport.

The purchase of property adjacent to the landfill site also will be discussed. The land has potential use as a caliche source and later expansion of the landfill, Deavenport said.

Also on the agenda, council members and commissioners will consider instituting a community development program. Earlier in the day, at 9 a.m.,

the commissioners will have their regular meeting.

Items on the agenda include the consideration of:

• Bids for a vehicle for the sheriff's department.

 Review bids for vehicle, property and liability insurance.

 Investing funds in Tex-Pool, which could provide a greater interest rate.

 Allowing employees to opt for a semi-monthly pay period instead of the current once-permonth pay day.

 Bids for the construction of a new livestock pavillion.

 Medical insurance for retirees.

 Resolutions providing for the Nov. 3 general election.

lot different this year.

The Stanton City Council last week passed a 7.5 percent sewer and water rate hike, a $1 million budget - about the same as the current budget - and adopted the effective tax rate.

The fiscal 1992-93 budget includes a $15,000, 3 percent, across-theboard raise for employees. The raise is only half of what was considered. Consideration of the other 3 percent was tabled until next year.

Expenditures are within $6,000 of the current budget but are $6,500 more than expected revenues, said City Administrator Danny Fryar. The deficit is being covered by reserves.

The budget does not include about $30,000 to use toward $41,000 as 50-50 matching funds for a state grant to improve the city park. However, the council voted 3-2 to proceed with the improvements but without a controversial $8,000 recreational vehicle park: "This budget this year is plain renovations, which include a walking trail, pavillion, tennis court lights and handicapped accessible restrooms. Voting for were James Jenkins and Gene Wheeler. Voting against were Dennis Kotasek and Jim Epley. Abstaining was James Johnson, who cited a conflict of interest on his part. "It was decided to leave the RV park out of the grant," Fryar said. City matching funds will probably be borrowed, he said.

Accompanying the budget is a water rate hike of 66 cents per 3,000 gallons, to $8.75, and a sewer rate hike of 62 cents, to $8.87.

Also, the tax rate was set at the effective rate of $1.078 per $100 of property valuation - what is needed to generate the same revenue as this year's rate of $105.5. In other business, the council:

Buffalos ready to tackle Iraan Commissioners, council

more fun."

What a difference a single year has made to Buffs

B. MIKE BUTTS Staff Writer

It couldn't have been much fun playing football for the Stanton Buffalos last season.

The team finished a dismal 1-9, getting shut out five times and allowing oppenents to pile up 35 or more points in the same number of games.

But what a difference a year makes. In the first three weeks of the 1992 season the Buffs (2-1) have not only surpassed last season's win total but equalled their total number of victories over the past two years. And that makes coach Bill Grissom and his players approach to practicing and playing football a lot different this year. "I enjoy going to work and I know the kids do now," secondyear head coach Bill Grissom says. "It (the winning) makes it a lot

Picked by one publication to bring up the rear in District 6-2A,

Grissom admits he and his players are now talking playoffs. "If this thing works out and we can play well against Iraan (in this week's district opener) I think we can be a district contender," Grissom says. And what's the secret to this year's turnaround? "Mostly just the fact that the kids are much more aggressive and play defense a lot better," Grissom says. "(They) worked hard in the offseason and worked on their strength and that really helped.' A simple look at the results of the first three games of the '91 and '92 seasons show the Buffalos are playing better not only on defense but offense as well. Stanton gave up 64 points to go 0-3 at the start of last season compared to half that -32 points - the first three games of '92. On offense, the Buffs have 67 points this year compared to one touchdown after three games a season ago.

And Grissom says other than Greenwood, which beat the Buffs last year 20-7, his team's competition has been as good this year as last.

Most of the Buffs' offensive success can be attributed to a running game that has amassed 748 yards in the team's three games. The offensive line is full of seniors, but the offensive backfield - led by junior tailback Ricky Lucas - has plenty of underclassmen. 'We'll lose a lot of senior linemen (next year) but our skill spots are going to be sound for a couple of years," Grissom says.

ed wins over Stanton in the last two seasons will motivate his team this Friday in the 8 p.m. home game. "They've totally beat our old kids down the last two years (42-0 last year, 58-0 in '90)," Grissom says. "Our kids realize that and it should be an incentive (for them) to play well.'

But win or lose against Iraan, the Buffs have learned how to win again, and that could make for some unpleasant surprises for the

to review landfill project

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

Martin County Commissioner's Court will be meeting jointly with the Stanton City Council to review items related to the landfill project.

The governmental bodies have been granted a permit for the facility, and will consider the design of the landfill at the meeting, which is scheduled for Sept. 28 at 7 p.m. at the courthouse.

Officials from Cap Rock Electrical Cooperative Inc. will discuss contracts for disposing of its waste at the landfill. Cap Rock will be requesting permission to dispose of materials such as waste poles and other wood. metal, glass and paper, said County Judge Bob Deavenport.

The purchase of property adjacent to the landfill site also will be discussed. The land has potential use as a caliche source and later expansion of the landfill, Deavenport said.

Also on the agenda, council members and commissioners will consider instituting a community development program. Earlier in the day, at 9 a.m.,

the commissioners will have their regular meeting

Items on the agenda include the consideration of:

 Bids for a vehicle for the sheriff's department.

 Review bids for vehicle, property and liability insurance. Investing funds in Tex-

Pool, which could provide a greater interest rate.

 Allowing employees to opt for a semi-monthly pay period instead of the current once-permonth pay day.

 Bids for the construction of a new livestock pavillion.

 Medical insurance for retirees

• Resolutions providing for the Nov. 3 general election.

The Stanton City Council last week passed a 7.5 percent sewer and water rate hike, a $1 million budget — about the same as the current budget - and adopted the effective tax rate.

The fiscal 1992-93 budget includes a $15,000, 3 percent, across-theboard raise for employees. The raise is only half of what was considered. Consideration of the other 3 percent was tabled until next year.

Expenditures are within $6,000 of the current budget but are $6,500 more than expected revenues, said City Administrator Danny Fryar. The deficit is being covered by reserves.

The budget does not include about $30,000 to use toward $41,000 as 50-50 matching funds for a state grant to improve the city park. However, the council voted 3-2 to proceed with the improvements but without a controversial $8,000 recreational vehicle park.

Accompanying the budget is a water rate hike of 66 cents per 3,000 gallons, to $8.75, and a sewer rate hike of 62 cents, to $8.87.

Also, the tax rate was set at the effective rate of $1.078 per $100 of property valuation - what is needed to generate the same revenue as this year's rate of $105.5.

More emergency crop funds made available

President George Bush announced an additional $755 million in emergency funds for crop losses incurred in 1990, 1991, and 1992. This is in addition to the $955 million disaster, assistance for 1990-91 crops announced by Jerry D. Harris, Chairman of the Texas State ASC Committee, Jan. 2.

The application period for disaster claims on fall-seeded program crops planted in 1991 and harvested in 1992 will begin Sept. 8 and end Oct. 2, Harris said.

The application period for producers with losses on other 1992 crops, and for producers with losses from 1990 or 1991 crops who did not previously receive disaster payments for those losses, will begin on Oct. 13 and end Feb. 12, 1993.

"Disaster assistance is available on a per-farm basis for any two years of 1990, 1991, or 1992," Harris said. "The original program provided $955 million for either 1990 or 1991. Now, relief will also be provided for fall-seeded program crops planted in 1991 for harvest in 1992.

"Producers will be eligible to apply for assistance on 1990, 1991, or 1992 crop losses; however, if pro- tional information.

ducers received assistance for any of those years they may not receive further assistance for that crop year. Producers who receive payments for fall-seeded program crops will only be eligible for assistance for 1992 crop losses."

Producers with qualifying gross revenues of less than $2 million per year may file claims for losses of participating and nonparticipating program and non program crops.

"Producers with crop insurance must have had losses greater than 35 percent," Harris said. "Producers without crop insurance must have had losses greater than 40 percent. Producers with 1992 crop losses are required, under certain conditions, to purchase crop insurance for 1993.

Harris said producers intending to file for assistance should begin to assemble their records now, so they will be ready when the official application period opens and they should contact their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office for addi-

Kissing among friends confuses husband

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married for more than 20 years and have been very close. The past five years we have been good friends with another married couple. They are "huggers and kissers" -- I am not. The past year my wife has been doing a lot of "hugging and kissing" (on the cheek) with this couple.

Recently, my wife reached to grab his arm to kiss him goodbye, and he turned to give her a full kiss on the mouth. She hung onto his arm, standing on her toes to receive.

I do not think a man should be kissing another man's wife this way. My wife says it was "just a kiss." I say he's out of line. She defended him. She has been doing some flirting with him as well.
